The glib judgement (a route we never countenance, of course) is that this is more of the same. Reddy has assembled exactly the same group, a feat in itself in these peripatetic circles, and they're called on to blast their way through material which calls for the group to create its own relentless dynamic, rather than following by-the-numbers structures. The results, though, are as enlivening as the first record, and endowed with extra wit, grace and point. 'Prayer 1' is a genuinely affecting dirge. 'Count Your Blessings', which takes an age to get going and makes it worthwhile in the end, shows that Reddy's prepared to take his time. The best of this proposes an ensemble music worthy to stand beside Threadgill and Shannon Jackson, which in this book is high praise.

 However Humble Koch 8579 Reddy; Jeff Lee Johnson (g, sitar); Charles Burnham (vn, mand); Rufus Cappadocia (clo); Dom Richards (b); Hearn Gadbois (perc). 5/00.
(*) Seeing By The Light Of My Own Candle Knitting Factory KFW 291 Reddy; John Carlson (t); Charles Burnham (vn); Dom Richards (b); Guillermo Brown (d). 3/01.
The first set is by Quttah, the second by Sleeping Dogs, and aside from never sticking to a band name for very long, Reddy's certainly up for variety. The Koch album, though, isn't as varied as it might be, and the string-laden personnel seem to get hung up on slow, almost droning pieces, which even the more bustling rhythms below can't quite bring aloft. In context, Johnson's occasional outbursts sound overheated.

Sleeping Dogs are back in the Threadgill/Jackson pocket, and the mix of trumpet, violin and reeds is an effectively pungent brew. This set is more mediated and sensitive than the earlier ones, without losing its cerebral funkiness; Reddy's juxtapositions yield results which occasionally grow almost ecstatic, as in 'Rjoc'.

* A Hundred Jumping Devils Reddy 001 Reddy; Mark Taylor (frhn); Brandon Ross (g); Charles Burnham (vn); Dominic Richards (b); Mino Cinelu (perc), 12/04, 2/05.
A tightly woven fabric of musical styles, drawing on folk forms as well as jazz and other musics, this Gift Horse release is Reddy's first for some time. He's the main but not the only solo voice, with Ross and Burnham both creating fascinating ideas of their own and contributing to a project that is instantly unlike anything else on the current scene. Taylor's french horn adds a rich foundation to the ensembles, blending with the bass.

 The Book Of The Storm Reddy Music 02 Reddy; John Carlson (t); Curtis Hasselbring (tb); Mark Taylor (frhn); Steve Elson (ss, f); Cochemea Gastelum (as); Tim Otto (ss, ts); Lisa Parrott (ss, bs); Charles Burnham (vn); Marlene Rice (vla); Dom Richards (b); Pheeroan akLaff, Guillermo E. Brown (d). 3/07.
A short duration but a powerful statement from a new grouping Reddy calls Small Town. Nothing small about the sound, though interestingly he doesn't use the extra horns merely to give strength and depth but to add texture and colour to the ensembles. There's nobody else writing like this at the moment. Hugely impressive.

Dewey Redman (1931–2006)

TENOR AND ALTO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, MUSETTE

He grew up in Ornette Coleman's hometown and was the anchor member of one of Ornette's most incendiary bands. Dewey was almost 30 before he opted for a full-time musical career, and to some extent has never quite caught up with the slow start. He has also been a member of Keith Jarrett's American quartet and of the Ornette repertory band, Old And New Dreams.

(*) Musics Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1860-2 Redman; Fred Simmons (tb); Mark Helias (b); Eddie Moore (d). 10/78.

 Redman And Blackwell In Willisau Black Saint 120093 Redman; Ed Blackwell (d). 8/80.

 The Struggle Continues ECM 174206 Redman; Charles Eubanks (p); Mark Helias (b); Ed Blackwell (d). 1/82.

(*) Living On The Edge Black Saint 120123 Redman; Geri Allen (p); Cameron Brown (b); Eddie Moore (d). 9/89.

Redman's strong Middle Eastern influence is perhaps most evident on the duets with Blackwell, where the musette introduces a subtle microtonal dimension which builds on Dewey's vocalized approach on single-reeded horns. Blackwell's chops are so finely attuned in contexts like this that it is hard at moments to imagine that there are two musical personalities at work. It is also hard, though, to avoid the impression that this is a sheared and foreshortened Ornette session.

At the opposite end of the decade, Living On The Edge preserves much of the menace Redman generated on the (now deleted) Impulse! session Ear Of The Beholder, but with a new simplicity of emotion and with a tone notably less forced than on previous outings. There are strong parallels between Redman's quiet accommodation and Pharoah Sanders, though the Texan has retained more of the fire and fight of his youth. Allen is an ideal partner in that she is willing to examine intervals that fall outside the usual geometry of blues and bebop, but she also has an unfailing rhythmic awareness that keeps Redman within bounds.

The OJC set, originally recorded for Galaxy, features the band which Redman alternated with the Ornette repertory group, Old And New Dreams. Musics combines a samba, a stirring march, interludes on musette and autoharp, and a totally unexpected version of Gilbert O'Sullivan's 'Alone Again (Naturally)'. Moore has a whale of a time, and the rich harmonic landscape introduced by Simmons (a very underrated musician) stands duty for piano and sometimes a whole horn section..

The reappearance of Redman's ECM record is the major change in his discography since our last edition. It's a surprisingly conventional grouping and approach, both for Redman and for the label, though his original themes (only Bird's 'Dewey Square' is a repertory piece) are strongly argued and authoritative. Much as he had done in the Coleman group, Redman keeps the music securely anchored to some clear tonal centre and on the long 'Love Is' he creates a statement that is as harmonically satisfying as it is emotionally open.

(*) In London Palmetto PM 2030 Redman; Rita Marcotulli (p); Cameron Brown (b); Matt Wilson (d). 10/96.

Recorded live at Ronnie Scott's club, Redman sounds rejuvenated and adventuresome with a band that splits down naturally into two pairs, himself and long-standing oppo Brown up against the Italian Marcotulli and Wilson. The band actually work from a different axis on 'Tu-Inns', the most adventurous tune on the set. Piano and bass take off darkly, building up a steady, brooding ostinato against which saxophone and drums enter with an explosion of sound. As ever, Redman mixes outside and relatively mainstream styles, giving 'The Very Thought Of You', his tribute to Dexter Gordon, a loose, swinging energy and Sammy Cahn's 'I Should Care' an easy, melodic interpretation. 'Portrait In Black And White' is an unexpectedly straightforward Jobim cover, but what's interesting about all of these middle-of-the-road numbers is how carefully they're juxtaposed with the more adventurous material. Tunes like 'I-Pimp', 'Kleerwine' and 'Elevens' suggest that Redman hasn't abandoned his loyalty to the avant-garde. A remarkable record, which is the only recent evidence of Redman's work: a scant showing for a musician of his stature.

Don Redman (1900–1964)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, PIANO, CELESTE, VIBES

Joined Fletcher Henderson in 1923 as arranger and reed-player, then was lured away to McKinney's Cotton Pickers. Led his own band, 1931–40, before writing for other leaders. Toured with a post-war big band in 1946, and later freelanced. A pioneer jazz arranger and multi-instrumentalist.

(*) Don Redman 1931–1933 Classics 543 Redman; Henry 'Red' Allen, Shirley Clay, Bill Coleman, Langston Curl, Reunald Jones, Sidney De Paris (t); Claude Jones, Benny Morton, Fred Robinson, Gene Simon (tb); Jerry Blake (cl, as, bs); Robert Cole, Edward Inge (cl, as); Harvey Boone (as, bs); Robert Carroll (ts); Horace Henderson, Don Kirkpatrick (p); Talcott Reeves (bj, g); Bob Ysaguirre (bb, b); Manzie Johnson (d, vib); Chick Bullock, Cab Calloway, Harlan Lattimore, The Mills Brothers (v); Bill Robinson (tap dancing). 9/31–5/36.

() Shakin' The Africann /  Don Redman 1933–1936 / () Doin' What I Please Hep CD 1001 / Classics 553 / ASV/Living Era 5110 2 Basically as above. 9/31–12/32; 33–36; 25–38.

Redman remains one of the essential figures of the pre-war jazz period. He started out as lead saxophonist and staff arranger with Fletcher Henderson's band, infusing the charts with a breathtaking simplicity and confidence, eventually leaving in 1928 to front the highly successful McKinney's Cotton Pickers. This was his most celebrated music, but some of the music under his own leadership in the '30s surpassed his earlier charts, even if the recordings are inconsistent. The material on the two Classics discs is the core of Redman's output. The earlier of the pair features the band's remarkable theme-tune, 'Chant Of The Weed', Redman's brilliant and justly celebrated arrangement of 'I Got Rhythm' and two cuts of 'Shakin' The African'. The band at this time also featured Harlan Lattimore, one of the few genuinely challenging singers of the era, who was once described by George T. Simon as sounding like a rather hip Bing Crosby; one man or the other is spinning in his coffin even now. The arrangements are well up to scratch, and there is more impressive work from Lattimore. Bojangles Robinson tip-taps on one version of the title-piece, but the better cut features the Mills Brothers and Cab Calloway.

Shakin' The Africann (sic) is a good sampling of Redman's activities just after leaving McKinney's Cotton Pickers. There are fine versions of the bizarre 'Chant Of The Weed', which deserves to be considered on its considerable musical daring as well as for its celebration of the jazz man's favourite relaxant. The set ends with two versions of 'Doin' The New Low Down' with tap-dancing from Bojangles Robinson and on the other version a slightly crazed vocal from Cab Calloway. The ASV Living Era set is beautifully remastered and sounds as good as any of these compilations. Given that it's got all the major cuts, including 'Chant Of The Weed', 'Shakin' The African' and 'Nagasaki', it's probably the only Redman record a casual buyer will ever need.

 Don Redman 1936–1939 Classics 574 Redman; Harold Baker, Mario Bauza, Shirley Clay, Sidney De Paris, Otis Johnson, Reunald Jones, Tommy Stevenson, Carl Warwick, Robert Williams (t); Benny Morton, Gene Simon (tb); Quentin Jackson (tb, v); Rupert Cole (as, cl); Eddie Barefield, Harvey Boone, Pete Clarke, Carl Frye, Edward Inge (as, bs, cl); Robert Carroll, Joe Garland, Gene Sedric (ts); Eddie Williams (ts, v); Bob Ysaguirre (bs, bsx); Don Kirkpatrick, Nicholas Rodriguez (p); Clarence Holiday, Bob Lessey, Talcot Reeves (g); Bill Beason, Big Sid Catlett (d); Manzie Johnson (d, vib); Harlan Lattimore, Laurel Watson, Three Little Maids (v). 5/36–3/39.

The beginning of the swing era saw Redman softening and commercializing his approach somewhat. These sides, however, still stand apart from the generic big-band music of the time. They're harmonically gritty, exuberantly voiced, and elegantly arranged and conducted with an emphasis on precision and timing. And yet, what made the Redman band of the early '30s so distinctive has largely gone and the material and treatment are not so very different from any other band on the scene. Some nice tracks, though, including Morton's 'Milenberg Joys' and a bizarre version of the Gilbert and Sullivan singalong classic 'The Flowers That Bloom In The Spring'. Possibly too many tra-la-las for most jazz fans as commercially acceptable vocals took over.

 For Europeans Only /  Swiss Radio Days, Volume 11: Live From Geneva, 1946 Steeplechase SCCD 36020 / TCB 2112 Redman; Peanuts Holland (t, v); Allan Jeffries, Bobby Williams (t); Jackie Carman (tb); Tyree Glenn (tb, vib); Pete Clarke (as, bs, cl); Chauncey Haughton (as, bs); Ray Abrams, Don Byas (ts); Billy Taylor (p); Ted Sturgis (b); Buford Oliver (d); Inez Cavanaugh (v). 9/46; 46.

Just after the war, Redman took an all-star band to Europe, hoping to capitalize on a revived enthusiasm for big-band jazz and swing there. Redman was also shrewd enough to introduce some elements of bebop into the mix. In many respects, it's not the band of old, but the quality of soloists guarantees some interest. Amazingly, they don't do 'Chant Of The Weed', which perhaps didn't have the resonance in Switzerland or Scandinavia that it would have had back home. There are, though, fine versions on the Steeplechase of 'The World Is Waiting For The Sunrise', 'Laura' and the Tadd Dameron title-track, and Don Byas, very much a fixture in Europe after this, takes some very fine solos. Poor sound, but given that the set is taken from privately recorded acetates it's better than it deserves to be. The Swiss set is from a radio broadcast, so the sound is somewhat better. Similar repertoire, but one senses a certain lack of snap and commitment in the playing.

Also, in brief:

 At The Swing Cats Ball Fresh Sound FSR-CD 393. 4–7/57.
All but forgotten session, originally issued as Park Avenue Patter and Dixieland In High Society. A late curiosity.

Joshua Redman (born 1969)

TENOR, ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, KEYBOARDS

Winner of the 1991 Thelonious Monk competition, Dewey Redman's son became a figurehead for the young American jazz movement of the '90s, largely preferring straight-ahead settings and a purist approach to recording.

* Joshua Redman Warner Bros 945242-2 Redman; Kevin Hays, Mike LeDonne (p); Christian McBride, Paul LaDuca (b); Gregory Hutchinson, Clarence Penn, Kenny Washington (d). 5–9/92.
* Wish Warner Bros 945365-2 Redman; Pat Metheny (g); Charlie Haden (b); Billy Higgins (d). 93.
(*) Mood Swing Warner Bros 9362-45643-2 Redman; Brad Mehldau (p); Christian McBride (b); Brian Blade (d). 3/94.
 Spirit Of The Moment – Live At The Village Vanguard Warner Bros 945923-2 2CD Redman; Peter Martin (p); Christopher Thomas (b); Brian Blade (d). 3/95.

Joshua Redman's first albums caused a sensation: few discs from this period have communicated such sheer joy in playing as these. Although he had already made some interesting sideman appearances, the saxophonist's eponymous set was a stunning debut: a canny blend of bop, standards, the odd tricky choice (Monk's 'Trinkle Tinkle') and young man's fancy (James Brown's 'I Got You (I Feel Good)'), all of it buoyed up on the kind of playing that suggests an instant maturity. His lean tone turned out to be as limber or as weighty as he wished, his phrasing had plenty of spaces but could cruise at any bebop height, and his invention sounded unquenchable. The euphoric but controlled feeling extends to his sidemen, Hays, McBride and Hutchinson (two odd tracks were drafted in from other sessions). Beautifully recorded, too.

Wish was an equally splendid follow-up: a little more self-conscious with the starry support group, and a couple of the tunes (Eric Clapton's 'Tears In Heaven'?) seemed a little too modish; but the more open harmonics of Metheny's guitar and the gravitas of Haden and Higgins framed the younger man's improvisations with great eloquence. The bonus live versions of 'Wish' (from the first album) and a roughly sketched 'Blues For Pat' add a further dimension and extend the joyousness of Redman's playing.

After such a start, Mood Swing had huge expectations to live up to. It's still a very impressive record, but it's just arguable that the sheer joie de vivre of the playing on the first two records has been suspended in favour of a more considered, careful methodology. Not that Redman holds much back in his solos, or that his group are any less imposing. Mehldau, in fact, gives notice that he is a star in the making himself: his contributions, allusive, mischievous and profound by turns, are as substantial as the leader's own. And McBride and Blade are superfine. But here and there are traces of a self-conscious eloquence that suggest a spirit in transition.

Spirit Of The Moment might also be a snapshot analysis of work in progress. There are inevitable recalls of the great Rollins records of nearly 40 years before, especially when Redman tackles 'My One And Only Love' and 'St Thomas'. But this is more exhaustive – two CDs of close to 80 minutes apiece – and more prone to longueurs. As good as the group is, it doesn't really match either the quartet on Mood Swing or Redman's previous touring band of McBride, Blade and Eric Reed. Perhaps, too, the days of a new voice setting down an instantaneous great document, as Rollins once did, are as long gone for jazz as is, say, the idea of rock giants cutting their debut set in an afternoon (cf. the Beatles). Gripes aside – and when a man makes a start as powerful as Redman's, one can't help but be anticipatory – there's still much great jazz here.

(*) Freedom In The Groove Warner Bros 46330-2 Redman; Peter Martin (p); Peter Bernstein (g); Christopher Thomas (b); Brian Blade (d). 4/96.

It was hard to imagine Redman making a less than enjoyable record at this point. He has such a fine sound, fertile imagination and ambitious delivery that he is a kind of celebration of the core jazz language in himself. But his stance is inevitably becoming more mediated and arranged as he goes on. His own sleeve-note essay, which details the background to his musical tastes and his viewpoint on eclecticism, may be entirely from the heart, but in the context of a major-label jazz disc it can't help but read like a press flak's handout. The ten originals on the disc are a catchy set of variations on various forms – a touch of the blues, a couple of groove tunes, a modal blow, a Coltrane-ish prayer – that he has absorbed along the way. The solos are uniformly (perhaps too uniformly – the odd stumble might humanize him a little) handsome and eloquent, and of course his group is a talented one. He benefits further from Matt Pierson's shrewd production and a really splendid studio sound from James Farbar. At this point, Redman can't surprise us; he can only play his best strokes. For many, that will be enough.

(*) Timeless Tales For Changing Times Warner Bros 9362-47052-2 Redman; Brad Mehldau (p); Larry Grenadier (b); Brian Blade (d). 98.

It was a good idea for Redman to do an album of modern-day cover versions: he's young enough to empathize with an audience that knows about Prince and Stevie Wonder (although his choices of pop material are actually rather old-fashioned and conservative, with names like Joni Mitchell and Bob Dylan in the composer credits) but determined enough to make them part of an uncompromised jazz record. Mehldau especially is a like-minded conspirator in this. The result is an intelligent and incisive repertory record. Wonder's 'Visions' and Mitchell's 'I Had A King' are vehicles in which the improvisations grow plausibly out of the song structure. There's no sense that the players use some motif from the song as a peg on which to hang increasingly remote solos: Redman has arranged the material too assiduously for that. He plants 'Summertime' and 'Yesterdays' in there as if to democratize the set-list, too. This record didn't excite as much attention as his earlier sets, but it feels like a genuine step forward for him.

(*) Passage Of Time Warner Bros 9362-47997-2 Redman; Aaron Goldberg (p); Reuben Rogers (b); Gregory Hutchinson (d). 6/00.

The material's still difficult to figure out, but this is a more relaxed, affable, but also more powerful set than Beyond (see below, 'in brief'). With a year of growth in it, the quartet sound both more confident and more generously outgoing, and though Redman overreaches here and there, as in the overcooked climax to 'Before', he sounds as if he's playing within himself, to prosperous effect. Where next?

(*) YayaÅ Loma 9362-48277-2 Redman; Sam Yahel (org); Brian Blade (d). 1/02.

 Elastic Warner Bros 9362-48279-2 As above, except add Bashiri Johnson (perc). 3/02.

As Redman has begun to have the spotlight shifted off him, his records have got lighter, less heavy with meaning. The YayaÅ set is almost an interlude in his work, the album co-credited to the three players, and the music realized as a sort of post-mod take on the organ/sax combo (others, such as Larry Goldings, have already been there, but never mind). It's often enjoyable in a curiously giddy way, the simple grooves of, say, 'One More Once' taken to the edge of turbulence by the sax solo before being suddenly righted by Yahel and Blade. As usual, the drummer's very busy, but he's not too smart, and 'Hometown' especially has a near-classic feel to it, presumably just what they were striving (if that's not too effortful a word) for.

The difficulty with Elastic is just that: there's too much striving. Same line-up, with a bit of extra percussion; Yahel fingers some other keyboards; but somehow the fresher feel of the other record (even if it was made only two months earlier) has been staled. Redman's records are always going to yield pleasure, if only to hear a premier saxman stepping up to deliver, but this isn't a good place to start listening to him.

(*) Momentum Nonesuch 7559-79764-2 Redman; Nicholas Payton (t); Sam Yahel (ky); Stefon Harris (vib); Eric Krasno, Kurt Rosenwinkel, Jeff Parker (g); Meshell Ndegeocello, Flea (b); Jeff Ballard, Brian Blade, Ahmir '?uestlove' Thompson (sic) (d). N.D.

The Elastic Band get a further airing here, with a parade of guests to take cameo roles, and the record bristles and zings with energy. Drum duties are this time shared between Blade and Jeff Ballard, and the latter in particular finds a bridge between jazz time and a funk feel which is executed with superb flair: 'Sweet Nasty' is about as definitive a performance as this style is going to get. Redman and co-producer Yahel intersperse the more-intense pieces with electronics-based interludes and they dress up Coleman's 'Lonely Woman' in a strange pastiche. Not everything works, but what does is very compelling.

 Back East Nonesuch 10425 Redman; Chris Cheek (ss); Dewey Redman (ss, ts); Joe Lovano (ts); Larry Grenadier, Chris McBride, Reuben Rogers (b); Brian Blade, Eric Harland, Ali Muhammad Jackson (d). 06.

The title and presence of 'I'm An Old Cowhand' in the set-list suggests that this is his response to Rollins' Way Out West. It turns out that Redman is concerned with wider ideas of 'East' than that suggests, everything from Edward Said's 'Orientalism' to Kipling and Coltrane. It makes for an intriguing project, but it's hard not to think that this particular musical wheel wasn't invented decades before. The guest spots are fine with Dewey's turned into a memorial following his death, but as with so many contemporary projects all one really wants to hear is a coherent band going about its business, rather than a revolving door of star names.

Also, in brief:

 Beyond Warner Bros 9362-47465-2. 5/99.

A new group, but listeners need more help with the music than they're getting here.

(*) SF Jazz Collective Nonesuch 7559-79866-2. 3–4/04.

Not strictly a Redman album, but a starry collective sponsored by the Bay Area organization of which he's artistic director.

Dizzy Reece (born 1931)

TRUMPET

A Jamaican, he worked in Europe from 1949, basing himself in London from 1954, then settling in New York from 1959.

 A New Star Jasmine JASCD 615 Reece; Sammy Walker, Tubby Hayes, Ronnie Scott (ts); Tony Crombie, Harry South, Johnny Weed, Terry Shannon (p); Dave Goldberg (g); Lennie Bush, Pete Blannin (b); Phil Seamen, Bill Eyden (d). 5/55–7/56.

(*) Progress Report Jasmine JASCD 620 Reece; Tubby Hayes (ts, bs); Sammy Walker (ts); Victor Feldman, Norman Stenfalt (p); Lloyd Thompson, Lennie Bush (b); Phil Seamen (d). 12/56–10/58.

(*) Asia Minor Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1806 Reece; Joe Farrell (ts, f); Cecil Payne (bs); Hank Jones (p); Ron Carter (b); Charli Persip (d). 62.

Reece established his base of operations in Europe for a long while and became a regular partner of British players like Tubby Hayes and Victor Feldman. His rare British sessions have at last been revived as part of Jasmine's reissue programme from the '50s Tempo label. Rather than following the pattern of the original LPs, the CD editions follow eight sessions chronologically (including tracks issued at the time on various EPs). This is seminal British hard bop, with all its flaws and virtues alike. Reece wasn't a bruising player: he kept the fireworks under restraint, even as snapping little phrases suddenly broke out of his line of thought. A New Star has lots of rough edges, and it's not until the final quartet session on the disc that Reece really makes a distinctive impression. Progress Report has a more finished feel to it, and there are interesting Reece originals such as 'The Gypsy' and 'A Variation On Monk'. Of the other players, Feldman and the inevitable Hayes make their mark, but Reece usually makes the strongest impression, even if there's a sense that his mind is occasionally wandering in the middle of a solo.

His Blue Note dates Star Bright and Blues In Trinity show him in his very best light, but so far neither has been generally available on CD. Even at a somewhat later stage, Reece is slightly difficult to pin down stylistically. Though he can play skyrocketing top-note lines, there's something curiously melancholy about his work on Asia Minor, a recording which recalls some of the South African players. His trump card here is, of course, the marvellous band he has round him, all of whom contribute to this very welcome calling-card from a dedicated practitioner who has been unjustly neglected in recent years.

Eric Reed (born 1970)

PIANO

Born in Philadelphia, he moved to LA at 11 and was playing with Gerald Wilson when still only 16. Later joined Wynton Marsalis.

(*) Happiness Nagel Heyer 2010 Reed; Marcus Printup, Mike Rodriguez (t); Wycliffe Gordon, Dion Tucker (tb); Wessell Anderson, Julius Tolentino (as); Wayne Escoffery (ts, as); Walter Blanding (cl); Barak Mori (b); Rodney Green (d); Enato Thoms (perc). 12/00.

Back with an independent after a spell with Impulse!, and unencumbered with major-label considerations, Reed delivers a sunny, bluesy, muscular, free-spirited kind of set. The Marsalis legacy still hangs heavy with him: much of this is for a Wynton-like septet, purloining bits and pieces from jazz gone by, finessed through modern manners. 'Crazy Red' sounds as if it could have come out of, say, Lucky Millinder's book, but it's dressed up in contemporary energy. The rhythm section plays in a way that blends deep swing with trickier, cooler stylings, and soloists like Printup, Gordon and Anderson are pledges of quality – they're raring to play hot, but Reed has them under close command. This kind of set will be the new mainstream.

(*) E-Bop Savant SCD 2051 Reed; Marcus Printup (t); Walter Blanding Jr (ts); Rodney Whitaker (b); Rodney Green (d). 10/00.
 Mercy And Grace Nagel Heyer 2030 Reed (p solo). 10/01.
 From My Heart Savant 2042 Reed; Dwayne Burno (b); Cecil Brooks III (d). 2/02.
 Here MaxJazz 140216 Reed; Rodney Whitaker (b); Willie Jones III (d). 05.

E-Bop delights in its classic post-bop vocabularies, recalling any number of Blue Note/Prestige shootouts while still sticking to a contemporary ground which the players and their solos stake fierce claim on. Printup and Blanding reassert their right to head up an adventurous front line, but major credit goes to Reed for fertile material and bandleading chutzpah. He ends with a Monk double-header of 'Evidence/Think Of One', done solo, which closes the neo-con circle.

Mercy And Grace is all solo, all spirituals and hymns, and dedicated to Reed's late father, who was a pastor. A quiet interlude, soberly done, and the listener feels intrusive, even as Reed plays with open heart. It reminds us increasingly of Ramsey Lewis's gospel-tinged material and that's an impression reinforced by From My Heart, where Reed stretches the jazz ballad concept to include pop tunes and Chopin as well.

The most recent trio hasn't been around long enough to demonstrate its stamina. It's certainly an accomplished and thoughtful set, but possibly too introspective for its own good, a complaint that might be levelled at the whole career to date.

Also, in brief:

() Soldier's Hymn Candid CCD 79511. 11/90.
Although intended as a showcase, it never sounds like more than a demo.

 Merry Magic MaxJazz MXJ 302. 4/02.
Christmas music, played with suitable merriment.

Mike Reed (born 1974)

DRUMS

Chicago-based leader of the vividly original Loose Assembly.

 In The Context Of 482 Music 1047 Reed; Nicole Mitchell (f); Jim Baker (ky); Jeff Parker (g). 12/04.
(*) Last Year's Ghost 482 Music 1055 Reed; Greg Ward (as); Jason Adasiewicz (vib); Tomeka Reid (clo); Josh Abrams (b). 07.
Reed's a fascinating figure in that he deploys large elements of freedom within what's essentially a contemporary post-modal jazz idiom, or perhaps vice versa. The earlier record has plenty of interest, in the sense that the components (Mitchell in particular) are individually gripping, but, to use the title of one of the keyboardist's own records, it delivers more questions than answers. The later Loose Assembly has a highly distinctive sound, with the leader's accurate time-sense a key component on 'Day Of The Dead' and the later 'Ghost Writer', in double waltz-time. The three short improvised tracks only work in context, as primers to the group language. The record wouldn't be much diminished without them, though some of its procedures might be less clear. 'Dreaming With Jill' is a stunningly beautiful send-off.

Ruben Reeves (1905–55)

TRUMPET, BANDLEADER

A Chicagoan who taught music during the day, he led his own recording band for a brief period at the end of the '20s, but the records were indifferently received. He later joined the Calloway band.

 The Complete Vocalions 1928–1933 Timeless CBC 1-039 Reeves; Fats Robins, James Tate, Cicero Thomas (t); Eddie Atkins, William Franklin, Gerald Reeves, John Thomas (tb); Darnell

Howard, Fred Brown (cl, as); Fess Williams, Omer Simeon (cl); Ralph Brown (as); Franz Jackson, Norval Morton (ts, f); Clarence Lee, Bobby Wall, Joe McCutchin (vn); Jimmy Prince, Eddie King (p); Cecil White (g); Lawrence Dixon (bj, v); Elliott Washington (bj); Harry Gray (tba); Sudie Reynaud (b); Jasper Taylor, Richard Barnes (d); Blanche Calloway (v). 4/28–12/33.

Ruben 'River' Reeves was seen by Vocalion as a rival to Louis Armstrong, and the 15 titles he made in 1929 are a sort of riposte to Armstrong's Hot Seven and Five sides. As with Jabbo Smith, Reeves was both like and unlike Armstrong: a similar brio but not quite the same mastery of execution, and he stumbles at moments when Louis would simply soar. But he was still a very good trumpet-player and, with bandsmen like Simeon and Howard also on hand, the music is a splendid evocation of small-group Chicago jazz at a great moment in time. The records sold poorly and Reeves returned to the studios as a leader on only one further occasion, to cut the four 1933 titles which close the disc. The band is much bigger, but the leader still sounds commanding and fiery. He spent the rest of his career doing section work before becoming a bank guard. This is his story (aside from one lost master, 'Bottoms Up') and, judged on solos like those in 'Papa Skag Stomp' and 'Head Low', it bears plenty of retelling.

Rufus Reid (born 1944)

DOUBLE BASS

The Georgian is an extremely busy sideman. A firm time-feel and generous tone are his calling cards.

 The Intimacy Of The Bass Double Time TCD 158 Reid; Michael Moore (b). 99.

(*) The Gait Keeper Sunnyside 1106 Reid; Fred Hendrix (t, flhn); Rich Perry (ts); John Stretch (p); Montez Coleman (d). 12/02.

Reid has co-led dates with drummer Akira Tana in their band TanaReid, but he has done some own-name work as well. The bass duets record finds him in company with the sonorous Moore. The original 'Almost But Maybe' pitches bowed bass against a brisk plucked accompaniment. Moore's 'When I Wage Battle Next' is an unexpected gem, packed with emotion. There are also fine Strayhorn and Miles interpretations. All-bass records make for demanding listening, but this one is immediately accessible and consistently attractive. The most recent set features a great title for a bassist's session and is a thoroughly impressive album. It's the first he's made with a horn-led group and without swamping his distinctive lead playing it opens up all sorts of new harmonic possibilities. The opening track, 'The Meddler', is a superbly convoluted idea, with some surprise elements. 'Seven Minds' is reprised at the end of the set, as if to keep Rufus's best-known composition in view, but the most effective and affecting track is 'Ode To Ray', a tribute to fellow bassist Ray Brown, who died not long before this date was recorded.

Ernst Reijseger (born 1954)

CELLO, VOICE

The Dutchman has been a regular on the European improvising scene, a founder member of the Clusone 3 and a frequent collaborator with percussionist Gerry Hemingway.

 Colla Parte Winter & Winter 910 012 2 Reijseger (clo, v). 2 & 3/97.

(*) Colla Voche Winter & Winter 910 037 2 Reijseger; Alan 'Gunga' Purves (perc); Tenore De Orosei, Tenore De Concordu (v). 9/98.

(*) I Love You So Much It Hurts Winter & Winter 910 077 2 Reijseger; Franco D'Andrea (p). 00.

 Janna Winter & Winter 910 094 2 Reijseger; Serigne C. M. Gueye (perc); Mola Sylla (v). 01.

Unlike fellow cellist Tristan Honsinger, Reijseger has never committed himself absolutely to abstract music and has always retained a measure of melody and euphony in his cello-playing. Though there are earlier records, the solo Winter & Winter set is the earliest readily available and it's a fine place to make the Dutchman's acquaintance. Apart from Abdullah Ibrahim's 'Gwidza', all the compositions are his own and some seem to be meditations on non-figurative canvases by the German artist Thomas Argauer, some of which are included in the liner booklet. The playing, and occasional singing, is delightful, ranging from idiomatic arco work to softer, strummed passages and gently percussive stops. 'Ricercare', 'Ritornello' and 'Toccata' are all cheerfully non-canonical.

Reijseger has worked with the Scottish percussionist Alan 'Gunga' Purves before, on the brilliantly punning Cellotape & Scotchtape, but Colla Voche moves into a new dimension with the addition of two Sardinian vocal groups. The Sard dialect and accent is as distinct from Italian as Scots is from English and that imparts a very special, indefinable quality to these performances, which are among Reijseger's very best on record. Though mostly the two improvisers work along with the choir on a mixture of new and traditional music there are some interludes as well, as when singer Patrizio Mura plays harmonica in an impromptu trio with cello and percussion. Wonderful.

The duets with D'Andrea are much more conventional, very much in the familiar line of horn/piano sets. That's not to say the two don't make beautiful music. 'In A Sentimental Mood' and 'Night And Day' start proceedings on relatively familiar ground, though the rest of the album ranges more freely and eclectically. Reijseger seems to concentrate on keeping his cello within the range of a tenor singing voice, which heightens the songbook feel of the record. D'Andrea solos sparingly and often with affecting reticence, but no mistaking the emotion.

The trio set with Senegalese poet Sylla takes the Dutchman off in a new direction entirely, exploring some of the often overlooked shared ground between European and African music. Sylla's poetry dominates the set, but there is ample space for Reijseger to improvise and his understanding of new rhythms, touched in by Gueye with notable lack of fuss and occasion, is fascinating to watch unfold.

Also, in brief:

 Requiem For A Dying Planet Winter & Winter 910 127 2. 11/06.
Sounds for two films by Werner Herzog.

() Do You Still Winter & Winter 910 136 2. 07.
Received at press time, but it sounds like a beautiful new departure.

Django Reinhardt (1910–53)

GUITAR, VIOLIN

Jean Baptiste Reinhardt was born at Liverchies in Belgium. He played professionally in his teens, but when he was 18 a fire in his caravan seriously damaged his left hand. The Django legend developed between the wars with the success of the Quintette Du Hot Club De France. As a gypsy, he survived the Second World War only through the patronage of a Luftwaffe officer. After the Liberation, Django became an international hero, travelling to America to work with Duke Ellington. Brilliant but erratic, he seemed foredoomed to a short career, and he died aged just 43 at Samois, near Paris.

(*) Django Reinhardt, 1934–1935 Classics 703 Reinhardt; Pierre Allier, Gaston Lapeyronnie, Alphonse Cox, Maurice Moufflard, Alex Renard (t); Marcel Dumont, Isidore Bassard, Pierre Deck, René Weiss, Guy Paquinet (tb); André Ekyan (cl, as); Amédée Charles (as); Charles Lisée (as, bs); Andy Foster (as, cl, bsx); Maurice Cizeron (as, cl, f); Noël Chiboust, Alix Combelle (ts); Stéphane Grappelli (vn, p); Michel Warlop (vn); Jean Chabaud (p); Roger Chaput, Joseph Reinhardt (g); Roger Chomer (vib); Juan Fernandez, Roger Grasset, Louis Pecqueux, Louis Volas (b); Maurice Chaillou (d, v); Bert Marshall (v). 3/34–3/35.

* Django Reinhardt, 1935–1936 Classics 739 Reinhardt; Bill Coleman, Alex Renard (t); George Johnson (cl); Maurice Cizeron (as, f); Alix Combelle (ts); Garnet Clark (p); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Pierre Ferret, Joseph Reinhardt (g); June Cole, Lucien Simoëns, Louis Vola (b); Freddy Taylor (v). 9/35–10/36.

* Swing From Paris ASV CD AJA 5070 Reinhardt; Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Roger Chaput, Pierre Ferret, Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Robert Grassnet, Tony Rovira, Emmanuel Soudieux, Louis Vola (b). 9/35–8/39.

 Django Reinhardt, 1937 Classics 748 Reinhardt; Stéphane Grappelli (vn); André Ekyan (as); Marcel Bianchi, Pierre Ferret (g); Louis Vola (b). 4–7/37.

(*) Django Reinhardt, 1937 – Volume 2 Classics 762 Reinhardt; Stéphane Grappelli, Paul Bartel, Josef Schwetsin, Michel Warlop (vn); Philippe Brun, Gus Deloof, André Cornille, André Pico (t); Guy Paquinet, Josse Breyère (tb); Jean Magnien (cl); Charles Blanc, Max Lisée, André Lamory (as); Charles Shaaf (ts); Maurice Cizeron (f); Georges Paquay (f, d); Pierre Zepilli (p); Louis Gaste, Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Eugène D'Hellemmes (b); Maurice Chaillou (d). 9–12/37.

() Django Reinhardt, 1937–1938 / () Jazz Masters 38: Django Reinhardt Classics 777 / Verve 516393-2 Similar (i.e. Hot Club De France) to Classics above, except add Jean-Louis Jeanson (tb, vn); André Lluis (as, cl); John Arslanian (cl, bcl, ts, bs); Adrien Mareze, Noël Chiboust (ts); Larry Adler (hca); Roger Pirenet, Roger Du Hautbourg (vn); Bob Vaz (p); André Taylor (d); Grégoire 'Coco' Aslan (perc); André Dassary (v). 12/37–6/38; 38–53.

 Django Reinhardt, 1938–1939 Classics 793 Similar to above, except add Bob Stewart (c); Barney Bigard (cl, d); Billy Taylor (b). 6/38–4/39.

(*) Django Reinhardt, 1939–1940 Classics 813 Similar to above, except add Frank Big Boy Goudie (t); André Ekyan (as); Charles Lewis, Joe Turner (p); Marceau Sarbib, Lucien Simoëns (b); Tommy Benford, Charles Delaunay (d). 5/39–8/40.

One of the Christian-name-only mythical figures of jazz, Django reinforces the dangerous notion that damage is a spur to great art. Django's technical compass, apparently unhampered by loss of movement in two fingers of his left hand (the burn ended his apprenticeship as a violinist), was colossal, ranging from dazzling high-speed runs to ballad playing of aching intensity.

Pity the poor discographer who has to approach this material. The Reinhardt discography is now as mountainous as his native Belgium is flat. All we can hope to do is point out a few accessible passes. There is also a problem with titles: the principle seems to be that anything with 'Paris' or 'swing', either in conjunction or separately, will sell records; and there is the additional problem that Django's name has become so iconic that it alone is often deemed enough. There are huge numbers of compilations on the market, some of them of questionable authority and quality, often inaccurately dated and provenanced and with only notional stabs at accurate personnels.

Classics devote a whole CD to the output of just one month in 1937; the tally for the year as a whole is staggering. Unusually for this label, there is quite a bit of material which strictly belongs to other artists, prominently trumpeter Brun, but which features significant amounts of Django and so is included. The series begins with Django's first recordings with the Michel Warlop orchestra in 1934, reaching on into the classic Hot Club sessions over the next couple of years. In bulk, though, the music sounds tired and dated, and Django's astonishing technique almost too perfect.

The other Classics are no less exhaustive, and the 1938–1939 volume, with its roster of guests, is a valuable indicator of his standing with American players. Other curiosities in the run include four tracks with harmonica genius Larry Adler.

The Verve is valuable for the breadth of its coverage. Some will quibble at the lack of earlier material, but the fact that it carries the story right up to the year of Django's death gives the picture a certain valuable symmetry, and the music is quite wonderful. The Hot Club reunion of 1946 in London is well represented, and some care has been taken to give a reasonable balance of material over the final years, including the poignant 'Night And Day' of March 1953, when the shadows were beginning to draw in.

The ASV is beautifully remastered by Colin Brown, an example of how historical recordings can be restored without intrusive sweetening or inauthentic balances. At 66 minutes, it's also excellent value. It's good to be reminded how extraordinarily forceful the drummerless Hot Club could sound. Even with the chugging background, 'Appel Direct' sounds modern. The titles are confusingly similar, but this is the best single-volume option.

[illegible]

* The Classic Early Recordings In Chronological Order

JSP Jazz Box JSPCD 901 5CD As for the above, with some variations. 34–39.

The first thing to note about these marvellous and superbly priced compilations is that they are not strictly chronological at all, but 'piecewise continuous'. Prompted by the poor quality of the existing reissues, remastering engineer Ted Kendall, who learned his craft under the tutelage of John R. T. Davies, has cleaned away the 'audio rubble' and restored these great recordings to something like pristine condition. All but the first two tracks on disc one, of which there are no original pressings, have been taken from excellent-quality 78s. We have compared in detail 15 tracks from various Classics volumes with their equivalents here, and it is clear that a whole generation of Django-listeners have grown up with insecurely pitched renditions, with problems ranging from intermittent flattening of tone to consistently slow transfers, often resulting in tunes being heard a quarter-tone adrift. It would be redundant simply to detail the tracks we have sampled with very close attention. Even a cursory listen suggests that the JSP box, which is issued at a bargain price, is a much more attractive proposition. The arrangement of material is logical enough. Disc one consists of the Hot Club recordings of 1934 and 1935, with Stéphane Grappelli strongly featured. Disc two corrals the London Deccas, and though Kendall has had to compromise here and there with vinyl and one corroded metal master (only the sharpest ears will notice), the quality remains very high indeed. Disc three is discographically trickier since some of the material was never issued on 78. Kendall has clarified a few troublesome points, confirming for instance that a supposed alternative take of 'Time On My Hands' from March 1939 is simply a dub of the original release. Disc four steps back in time to the Decca and HMV recordings made between March 1935 (the earliest of them with Coleman Hawkins) and the first Swing label releases of 1937. The last disc rounds up some additional material from 1935 along with the fine 1937 HMVs. The detail shouldn't put anyone off. These are quite splendid jazz records which belong in every collection, and Ted Kendall has done a demanding job with taste and precision.

 Volume 2 – Paris and London: 1937–1948 JSP CD 504 A–D 4CD As above and below, again with some variations. 37–48.

This second volume covers material from Paris and London over the period indicated, a period during which recording quality probably improved exponentially, not that anyone told the majority of reissue producers that. Kendall's impeccable work has restored these precious sides as well.

 Swing From Paris Emarcy 159 853 2 Reinhardt; Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Pierre Ferret, Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Louis Vola, Tony Rovita, Emmanuel Soudieux (b). 35–39.

 Django Et Compagnie Emarcy 549 241 2 Reinhardt; Michel Warlop Orchestra; Nitta Rette Et Son Trio Hot; André Pasdoc & Orchestra; Yvonne Louis & Orchestra; Micheline Day Et Son Quatuor Swing; Wal-Berg Et Son Jazz Français. 35–37.

 Swing '39 Emarcy 159 854 2 As Swing From Paris, except omit Vées, Vola, Rovita. 3–5/39.

If ever an artist represented Universal's Jazz In Paris series it is surely Django. Nothing on these volumes that hasn't appeared before or that should represent any surprise to seasoned listeners. The middle set has Django in some less well-known company and mostly in the role of accompanist, so it's of historical interest first and foremost. But they are nice sets, attractively packaged and with highly professional sound.

 Django Reinhardt, 1940 Classics 831 Reinhardt; Philippe Brun, Pierre Allier, Aimé Barelli, Christian Bellest, Alex Renard, Al Piguillem (t); Guy Paquinet, Gaston Moat, Pierre Deck (tb); Hubert Rostaing (cl, ts); Alix Combelle (bs); André Ekyan (as); Charles Lewis, Raymond Wraskoff (p); Pierre Ferret, Joseph Reinhardt (g); Emmanuel Soudieux, Francis Luca (b); Pierre Fouad (d). 2–10/40.

 Django Reinhardt, 1940–1941 Classics 852 Reinhardt; Pierre Allier, Aimé Barelli, Christian Bellest, Jean Heutchel, Severin Luino, Georges Wallez (t); André Cauzard, Maurice Gladieu, Guy Paquinet (tb); Hubert Rostaing, Christian Wagner (cl); Alix Combelle (cl, ts, glock); Max Blanc, Charles Lisée, Pierre Martineau (as); Roger Allier, Noël Chiboust, Georges Jacquemont (ts); Léo Chauliac, Paul Colot (p); Joseph Reinhardt (g); Tony Rovira (b); Pierre Fouad (d); Charles Trenet (v). 12/40–3/41.

 Django Reinhardt, 1941–1942 Classics 877 Similar to above, except add Raymond Chantrain, Georges Clais, Paul D'Hondt (t); Sus Van Camp, Jean Damm (tb); Louis Billen, Jo Magis (cl, as); Jeff Van Herswingels, Jack Demany (ts); Arthur Saguet (ts, bs, cl); John Ouwerckx, Jim Vanderjeught (p); Arthur Peeters (b); Josse Aerts (d). 4/41–3/42.

 Django Reinhardt, 1942–1943 Classics 905 Similar to above, except add Alex Caturegli, Lucien Devroye, Maurice Giegas, Janot Morales, Maurice Moufflard, Alex Renard (t); Nick Ferrar, Maurice Gladieu, Louis Melon, Pierre Remy (tb); Gérard Léveque (cl); Bobby Naret, Guy Plum (cl, ts); Robert Mavounzy, Robert Merchez (as); Charles Hary, Benny Pauwels (f, cl, ts); André Lluis, Fud Candrix (cl, ts); Emile Deltour, Chas Dolne, Jean Douillez, Walter Feron, Raymond Goutard, Paulette Izoird, Sylvio Schmidt (vn); Eugène Vées (g); Jean Storne (b); Pierre Fouad, Gaston Léonard (d); Nelly Kay (v). 5/42–7/43.

 Django Reinhardt, 1944–1946 Classics 945 Reinhardt; Alex Caturegli, Herb Bass, Christian Bellest, Robin Gould, Roger Hubert, Bernie Privin, Jerry Stephan, Lonnie Wilfong (t); Bill Decker, Don Gardner, Shelton Heath, John Kirkpatrick, Marcel Librecht, Pierre Remy (tb); Jim Hayes, Hubert Rostaing (cl, as); Desiré Duriez, Roger JeanJean, André Lluis, Joe Moser (as); Bernie Cavalière, Noël Chiboust, Peanuts Hucko, Gaston Rahier, Bill Zickefoose (ts); Ken Lowther, Yves Raynal (bs); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Leo Chauliac, Larry Man, Mel Powell (p); Roger Chaput, Alan Hodgkiss, Jack Llewellyn, Joseph Reinhardt (g); Bob Decker, Coleridge Goode, Josz Schulman, Lucien Simoëns (b); Bill Bethel, Ray McKinley, Jerry Mengo (d); Sgt Jack Platt (cond). 11/44–5/46.

The war years obviously brought a certain non-musical poignancy, and the remarkable story of how Django was protected by a jazz-loving Luftwaffe officer, but the coldest and most detached audition still reveals a shift in Django's playing towards something altogether more inward, secretive, less joyous, and even when there are no obvious shadows gathering there is a hint of darkness and doubt. Again there is a good deal of non-Django (or non-lead) material included, largely stuff by Ekyan and Brun; and the latter's session from February 1940, recorded in Paris, has the fascinating discographical footnote of a playing role for Charles Delaunay, who was operating under the aka of H. P. Chadel.

With the war in progress, Django was cut off from many of his greatest sources of inspiration, Grappelli only most obviously, but it also caught him at his peak of popularity and on 13 December 1941 he made the recording of 'Nuages' that was to cement him in jazz history for ever. Even after more than half a century, and the despoliation of a thousand buskers, it's still a wonderful performance. Django had recorded the piece earlier, but he was dissatisfied with the result – and his judgement, as ever, was sound. It's certainly the highlight of the 1940–1941 Classics volume. The dating is a little misleading, because only one item from March 1941 is included, a Charles Trenet song – 'La Cigale Et La Fourmi' – with the Quintette Du Hot Club De France accompanying. A track credited to 'Festival Swing 1941', a Charles Delaunay-sponsored event, was actually recorded on Boxing Day 1940, as was the celebratory 'Django's Music' line-up originally issued on Swing 95. Most of the remaining material is under the nominal leadership of trumpeter Pierre Allier or clarinettist Christian Wagner, and though Django's personality shines through every time, these are more workaday sessions and not strictly part of the core discography.

The end of 1942 saw Django's behaviour becoming ever more erratic. On another Delaunay tour in the south and Algiers, he refused to play matinées and simply left the party. Delaunay managed to get the remaining players back to the mainland just before the Allied invasion of 8 November 1942. Django had been recording with the Stan Brenders Orchestra, an undemanding gig that in no way stretched or challenged him. In the spring of 1943, though, he made some Hot Club sides with Léveque and Lluis sharing the front line, and he also recorded a trio and a couple of improvised solos for the Swing label. The remainder of the year was taken up with collaborations with Fud Candrix and a few sides with a big band, never Django's strongest suit.

The Liberation of Paris was a key moment in the early autumn of 1944 and immediately opened up the jazz and swing scene. The first recordings represented are a session by Noël Chiboust's orchestra, appropriately enough entitled 'Welcome' (Django doesn't play on the first part), but the real delights had to wait until 1945, the beginning and end of the year, when Django recorded with a 'mystery' Hot Club featuring Peanuts Hucko, Mel Powell and Ray McKinley, and then in November with an American swing band under the direction of Sergeant Jack Platt. 'Djangology' and 'Manoir De Mes Rêves' from the latter session are professional enough, but it's interesting to hear Django playing American standards on the January 1945 session, including a wonderful 'How High The Moon'.

Sentimentally, if not always musically, the reunion with Grappelli was always going to be an important moment. They met up in London in January 1946 and recorded four sides for Swing and another four (including a reworked and extremely disappointing 'Nuages') for Decca the following day. The old magic simply wasn't there, though everyone seems upbeat and keen to play. The British rhythm section had been well versed in Hot Club idiom, but they lack the Gauloise-wreathed cool and sophistication of their cross-Channel counterparts, and the songs never quite come off. Back in Paris in May, there was a date with Rostaing. Again, Django sounds jaded and almost indifferent, and he even fluffs a couple of chord changes on 'Yours And Mine' and 'On The Sunny Side Of The Street'. It had been a long war, but with its passing went the last tension and urgency in Django's playing. Thereafter, he was to become a replica of himself, capable of extraordinary things, but with a critical element missing.

 Django Reinhardt, 1947 Classics 1001 Reinhardt; Jo Boyer, Vincent Casino, Louis Ménardi (t); André Lafosse, Guy Paquinet (tb); Hubert Rostaing, Michel De Villers (as, cl); Jean-Claude Fohrenbach (ts); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Eddie Bernard (p); Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Ladislas Czabancyk, Willie Lockwood, Emmanuel Soudieux (b); Al Craig, Pierre Fouad (d). 3–7/47.

 Django Reinhardt, 1947 – Volume 2 Classics 1046 Reinhardt; Gérard Léveque, Maurice Meunier, Hubert Rostaing (cl); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Eddie Bernard (p); Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Emmanuel Soudieux (b); Fred Ermelin, André Jourdan, Jacques Martinon (d). 7–11/47.

(*) Swing De Paris Arco 3 ARC 110 Reinhardt; Gérard Léveque, Maurice Meunier, Hubert Rostaing (cl); Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Eddie Bernard (p); Ladislas Czabancyk, Emmanuel Soudieux (b); André Jourdan, Jacques Martinon (d). 7–11/47.

(*) Pêche À La Mouche Verve 835419-2 Reinhardt; Vincent Casino, Jo Boyer, Louis Menardi, Rex Stewart (t); André Lafosse, Guy Paquinet (tb); Michel De Villers (as, cl); Hubert Rostaing (cl); Jean-Claude Forenbach (ts); Eddie Bernard, Maurice Vander (p); Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Will Lockwood, Ladislas Czabancyk, Pierre Michelot, Emmanuel Soudieux (b); Al Craig, Ted Curry, André Jourdan, Jean-Louis Viale (d). 4/47–3/53.

Django's visit to the United States made a big impact on him, both positive and negative. It certainly reinforced the feeling of isolation and aggressive independence that increasingly became part of his character. It may also have reminded him that jazz was, after all, an American music. However, it did expose him to a whole raft of new influences – not least bebop – which henceforward were to play a part in his music. Though there is nothing that definitively points to a bebop influence, the phrasing is terser and the attack more forceful. Also the grouping of phrases on tunes such as 'Lover Man' (March), 'Just One Of Those Things' (May) and 'Blues For Barclay' (July, all Classics 1001) points to a more modern idiom.

The most pressing business of all was to record a reunion of the Hot Club after Grappelli's return from wartime exile in England. The violinist had often pronounced himself irritated by Django's 'monkey business', and the reunion did not seem likely to be long-standing. In the spring, Django reconvened his wartime quintet with Hubert Rostaing and recorded a score of sides in Paris and Brussels. There was a further meeting with Grappelli in November, but it's a strangely flat-footed and unamiable encounter which might have waited for more complete coverage in a later Classics volume.

Prefaced by a track each – 'Pêche À La Mouche' and 'Minor Blues' – from Django's quintet and orchestra, the 1947 sessions for Blue Star with the re-formed Hot Club are not classics like the great sides of the previous decade, but they have a spontaneity and ease that are both attractive and aesthetically satisfying. Producer Eddie Barclay gave Django a free hand to play what he wanted, and the music that emerged was bright, flowing and often thoughtful, with a rough edge that is only partially explained by the technical limitations of the recording.

There is one further session from 1947, under the leadership of Rex Stewart, which again might have served to remind Django of the huge cultural distance between him and the Americans. He plays with immense elegance on 'Night And Day' but never sounds as though he's on top of what Stewart is doing harmonically.

The later recording, which was issued as a 10-inch LP, not as 78s, saw the shadows move a little closer round the guitarist, but Django's solo on 'Brazil' is, as noted by Pierre Michelot, quite astonishing in its fiery grace, and he seems to have overcome some of the amplification problems he had been having since the war. He tackles 'Night And Day' again, on his own terms this time, and there are beautiful versions of 'Nuages' and 'Manoir De Mes Rêves'. He isn't a musician whose work divides easily into 'early' and 'late', but it's clear that the period between these two recordings was one of personal and artistic change and, in some respects, retrenchment. Django had made a great many miscalculations and had to spend too much time compensating for them.

As ever, the Classics are hard to beat for literal chronology and completeness, but the sound is very much better on the other compilations and, unless exhaustive documentation is required and pure sound is at a discount, these are the priority purchases.

 Django Reinhardt, 1947–1951 Classics 1317 Reinhardt; Bernard Hullin (t); Hubert Fol (as); Hubert Rostaing (cl); Raymond Fol (p); Henri Baumgartner, René Ferret, Joseph Reinhardt, Eugène Vées (g); Pierre Michelot, Emmanuel Soudieux, Louis Vola (b); Fred Ermelin, Pierre Lemarchand, Arthur Motta (d). 47–51.

Very nearly the end of the story and it's clear that the fires are going out and that Django's personal problems are winning. There is still some fine and fiery playing, and tracks like 'Belleville', 'Micro (Mopping The Bride) Danse Nuptiale', 'Bricktop' and 'To Each His Own Symphony' are worth having, as well as a couple of fine versions of 'Nuages', one late one stretching to well over six minutes.

* Intégrale Django Reinhardt: Volume 1 – 1928–1934 Frémeaux Et Associés 301 2CD As for many items above. 28–34.

(Series continues.)

(*) The Complete Django Reinhardt: Volume 18 – 1949–1950, I'll Never Be The Same Frémeaux Et Associés 318 2CD As for many items above. 49–50.

These are but two examples from a massive and comprehensive documentation of the great guitarist's work from his coming out to the end of his active career, all in 18 well-packed volumes. The language seems to have switched from French to English part-way through. There is nothing to be said about the music that hasn't been said before. This is certainly a definitive source for Django fans who are prepared to make the investment, though we still favour the JSP box.

Also, in brief:

 Rare Django Disques Swing SWC 8419. 28–38.
A useful little compilation. 'If You Knew Susie' is a reminder of how joyous and wicked he could be.

 All Star Sessions Blue Note 31577. 35–39.
All of these dates with Rex Stewart (c), Barney Bigard (cl) and Coleman Hawkins (ts) are available elsewhere, but the transfers are very good indeed and the supporting documentation is sound.

 The Swing Sessions: Volumes 1 & 2 Frog 50 / 52. 37.
All the cuts made for Delaunay's Swing label in 1937; for much of the way, Django's effectively Coleman Hawkins's rhythm guitarist. Some fine and intriguing stuff, though, on Volume 2.

 Django's Blues Emarcy 013 545 2. 7 & 10/47.
Two lateish sets from the reconvened Hot Club: a Jazz In Paris set.(*)

(*) Django In Rome JSP 919 4CD. 49–50.
An often forgotten corner of Django's later Wanderjahre with Grappelli.

(*) Echoes Of France Dreyfus FDM 36726 2. VARIOUS DATES.
No one would deny Francis Dreyfus his right to put out a personal selection of Django performances, but one might reasonably expect a bit more detail.

(*) Django Reinhardt: Volumes 1–9 Naxos 8021 505 / 686 / 698 / 575 / 713 / 764 / 812 / 834 / 838. 34–53.
Ultra-budget options.

… and literally dozens of 'complete' and 'best of' editions … caveat emptor …

Emily Remler (1957–90)

GUITAR

Studied at Berklee from 1974, worked in New Orleans and then returned to New York. Her early death was hastened by heroin abuse.

 Firefly Concord CCD 4162 Remler; Hank Jones (p); Bob Maize (b); Jake Hanna (d). 4/81.
* East To Wes Concord CCD 4356 Remler; Hank Jones (p); Buster Williams (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 5/88.
 Retrospective: Volume 1 (Standards) / ... Volume 2 (Compositions) Concord CCD 4462 / 4463 As above, except add John D'Earth (t); James Williams (p); Larry Coryell (g); Eddie Gomez, Bob Maize, Don Thompson (b); Jake Hanna, Terry Clarke, Bob Moses (d). 4/81–5/88.

Remler's senseless early death (from heart failure while on tour in Australia) deprived us of a talent that seemed on the point of breakthrough. While her early role-models were conservative ones in terms of her instrument – Christian and Montgomery, specifically – her tough-minded improvising and affinity with hard-hitting rhythm sections let her push a mainstream style to its logical limits. Firefly was her debut for the label and is fluent if a little anonymous, although she handles the diversity of 'Strollin'' and 'In A Sentimental Mood' without any hesitation. Some of her albums have now been deleted, but the best example of her work is the impeccable Montgomery tribute, East To Wes. Smith proves to be an ideal drummer for the guitarist, his busy cymbals and polyrhythmic variations on the bebop pulse perfectly cast to push Remler into her best form: 'Daahoud' and 'Hot House' are unbeatable updates of each tune. Jones, imperturbable as ever, takes a cool middle course. While conceived as a Montgomery homage, Remler's playing actually shows how unlike Wes she really was: harder of tone, her solos more fragmented yet equally lucid.

The Remote Viewers

GROUP

British explorers previously associated with B Shops For The Poor.

(*) Low Shapes In Dark Heat Leo Lab CD 049 Adrian Northover (ss, as); Louise Petts (as, syn, v); David Petts (ts, syn). 2 & 7/98.
 Obliques Before Pale Skin Leo Lab 061 As above, except add theremins to instrumentation for Northover, Petts and Petts. 6 & 7/99.
(*) Persuasive With Aliens Leo Lab 067 As above. 1–2/00.
(*) Stranded Depots Leo Lab CD 076 As above. 00.
(*) The Minimum Programme Of Humanity Leo LR 342 As above. 11–12/01.
 Sudden Rooms In Different Buildings GE 5 As above. 6/01–1/03.

The CIA and NASA still, we understand, take remote sensing very seriously, but what are we to make of these enigmatic trios? At moments, we might be dealing with a conventional saxophone quartet who, in the absence of the senior and most sensible member, muck about in the studio for a couple of afternoons, but then Louise Petts's remarkable voice and strange, associative lyrics kick in and the spell is cast.

This is music of great privacy. Even when a familiar theme does emerge – and Low Shapes includes a tender version of the theme from television's Callan – the associations are not necessarily shared. The effect is somewhat akin to a session by Bristol's lamented Startled Insects, but produced by and guesting John Zorn and the sound-crew of The X-Files.

The second album opens with a minimally unaccompanied reading of Jimmy Van Heusen's 'It Could Happen To You', continues with Madonna's 'Secret' and ends with a gorgeous version of Dmitri Tiomkin's 'Wild Is The Wind'. What happens in between defies straightforward description, beyond the fact that it is a richer acoustic mix, with few of the London Saxophone Quartet mannerisms that made the debut so quirkily old-fashioned in places.

Surreal and funky, weary with the world but helplessly fascinated by its many strangenesses, the music has wound on through three more sets for Leo (interestingly, the group has moved from the more arcane Leo Lab sector to the main label with album five). As they've grown and gone deeper into whatever it is they're doing, The Viewers are now able to impose themselves on source material which might seem a complete wrong turning: so we get David Bowie on Persuasive With Aliens (and an Agatha Christie reference), Gordon Jenkins and Satie on Stranded Depots, and texts by Bertolt Brecht on the often very disquieting The Minimum Programme Of Humanity, which makes a greater play with electronics and synthesized percussion. Points of reference might be Annette Peacock, Edith Sitwell and N. F. Simpson, but we advise adventurous listeners to discover for themselves. The latest Sudden Rooms In Different Buildings, after Petts's opening vocal on David Sylvian's 'Ghosts', abandons song form – perhaps any form – completely and all but disappears under corrosive electronic weather. Will they return?

Dave Rempis

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

Profiting from the currently buoyant Chicago free scene.

 Out Of Season 482 Music 482-1021 Rempis; Jim Baker (p, syn); Jason Roebke (b); Tim Daisy (d). 10/03.
The Rempis Quartet grew out of an earlier trio committed to quieter explorations. The addition of Daisy delivered an outwardly more conventional sound, but also a far more exciting range of music, sound-based, non-linear and utterly free from cliché. Two main long-form pieces: the title-section and the two-part 'Scuffle' – equally good.

(*) Rip, Tear, Crunch /  Hunter Gatherers 482 Music 482-1046 / 482-1056 2CD Rempis; Anton Hatwich (b); Tim Daisy, Frank Rosaly (d). 05; 4/06.
This is the new Percussion Quartet, with Hatwich standing in the middle trying to broker some kind of border crossing between the fiery, interlocking percussionists, who seem to touch on every drumming style ever devised on most tracks (Rosaly is the flowing one, Daisy the edge-of-stool player), and the saxophonist, who has never sounded more sheerly exciting than on the double CD live set from the eponymous venue in South Carolina. This is an essential modern group, and one that functions as a group, spearheading a new interrogation of the relationship between 'front' line' and 'rhythm'.

Rena Rama

GROUP

Influential Swedish group of the '70s.

 The Lost Tapes Amigo 883 Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Lennart Åberg (ts); Bobo Stenson (p); Anders Jormin (b); Billy Hart (d). 87.
Rena Rama enjoys almost legendary status in Scandinavia, a kind of superstar band exploring both original and folk-based material, the latter a definitive concern of Swedish jazz. Perhaps the group's best work can be found on the Caprice release Inside-Outside, but this issue offers a welcome glimpse of the group in later years, when the membership was already establishing individual reputations and beginning to leave behind the fusion influence that shaped the group in earlier years. As always, Hart's torrential percussion is the driving force.

Henri Renaud (born 1925)

PIANO

Legendary French player, probably best known for his 1953 recordings with Clifford Brown. Became head of jazz for CBS France and largely gave up playing from 1965.

 The Complete Legendary Saturne Picture Discs PJC 222008 Renaud; Bobby Jaspar, Sandy Mosse (ts); Jimmy Gourley (g); Pierre Michelot (b); Pierre Lemarchand (d). 6/51.
Renaud is an important figure in French jazz, less cerebral and less celebrated than Martial Solal but a consistent champion of home-grown jazz. He had the benefit of two visiting Americans – Gourley and Mosse – on the Saturne sessions, which were originally issued as picture discs with infamously bad sound, and they bring something fresh and spontaneous to a session that is otherwise a little tramlined. Like his fellow saxophonist, Jaspar is very much a Lester Young disciple, soft-toned and occasionally a little diffident, but capable of some fine flourishes.

Don Rendell (born 1926)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, FLUTE

After early dance band work, joined John Dankworth, then Ted Heath and briefly the Kenton band. Co-led a group mid-'60s with Ian Carr and has subsequently led his own as well as teaching.

 Presents The Jazz Six Dutton Vocalion CDNJT 5300 Rendell; Bert Courtly, Kenny Wheeler (t); Eddie Harvey (tb, p); Ronnie Ross (as, bs); Jimmy Skidmore (ts); Ken Moule, Derek Smith (p); Pete Blannin, Pete Elderfield, Kenny Napper (b); Sammy Stokes, Arthur Watts (b); Don Lawson (d). 56, 57.
A fine glimpse of the Jazz Six in early days with some fine supportive parts for Kenny Wheeler and Jimmy Skidmore. These are Denis Preston recordings for Nixa, bringing together the title-LP with Tenorama from 1956 and All The Winners from 1957. Fine playing, and Joe Meek's and Eric Tomlinson's fine engineering comes through strongly.

 Shades of Blue / Dusk Fire / * Phase III / Live BGO Records BGOCD615 2CD / 614 Rendell; Ian Carr (t, flhn); Colin Purbrook (p on Shades Of Blue only); Michael Garrick (p on Dusk Fire/Phase III/Live); Dave Green (b); Trevor Tomkins (d). 10/64, 3/66; 68, 3/68.
 Change Is BGO Records BGOCD 613 As above, except add Stan Robinson (ts, cl); Mike Pyne (p); Jeff Clyne (b); Guy Warren (talking d, perc). 69.
The Rendell–Carr Quintet are honoured presences in British jazz. These records aren't the work of fumbling journeymen, marking time professionally as Carr waited for the epiphany of jazz-rock. But nor do they have the individuality and coherence of musical vision of Stan Tracey's 1965 Under Milk Wood or Graham Collier's 1967 Deep Dark Blue Centre. An insistence on original material (there isn't a single standard as a reference-point) suggests a robust self-determination, but it also makes straightforward comparison harder. Writing a whole album in blue tones doesn't mean you can play the blues. Line and swing (Green and Tomkins aside) were probably less important than colour and texture.

The front line worked to an interesting chemistry. Carr is all fire, with anger and melancholy mixed in varying proportions. But Carr is also often exact and punctilious where Rendell, seemingly the more sophisticated soloist, is approximate. The trumpet is full-voiced and ringing while Rendell's soprano pitching (particularly on 'Dusk Fire') is drab and flat.

Despite a functioning democracy, Carr only puts his name to two tracks on the first BGO record, the formulaic 'Sailin'', and 'Big City Strut', a loose-limbed set closer. With the second album, Mike Garrick came aboard, an immediate bonus. 'Prayer' is instantly recognizable as his, though he surely can't have imagined 'Dusk Fire' so sourly etched.

On Phase III Carr can be heard repositioning the music in line with his intense, highly literate vision. No one else in British jazz at the time was writing titles that referenced W. B. Yeats and François Villon. Rendell's writing and playing here are so pedestrian that Charles Fox's original sleeve-note refers to his one composition as 'a fairly conventional ballad'. No one could argue with that, particularly when set alongside Carr's haunting free balladry on 'Les Neiges D'Antan' or Garrick's Indian-tinged 'Black Marigolds'.

The group always had interesting material at their disposal. The key track on the March 1968 album, though, is 'Pavanne', a rock'n'roll-tinged dance tune written collaboratively by Carr and Tomkins. Garrick again steals the show with 'Voices', one of his loveliest compositions, before the set plays out on the lively conversation-piece, 'You've Said It'.

Recorded in front of an invited audience at Lansdowne Road studios Live is closer, but not close enough, to the group's regular gigging sound. Change was already in the air. The collectively devised 'Elastic Dream' that opens the '69 date inevitably sounds like a foretaste of Elastic Rock, but there's little chemistry left between the two horns. Instead of celebrating their differences, they cerebrate diffidently. Rendell went on to make fine and beautiful music, but, however well loved it was, this group seems a touch overrated.

(*) Live At The Avgarde Gallery, Manchester Spotlite SPJ 401 Rendell; Pete Martin (t); Joe Palin (p); Ian Taylor (b); Gordon Beckett (d). 10/73.
 Just Music Spotlite SPJ 402 Rendell; Barbara Thompson (ss, ts, f); Peter Lemer (p); Steve Cook (b); Laurie Allen (d). 1 & 6/74.
Despite the shaky mono sound, the Avgarde date is probably our favourite Rendell set, a very true and immediate impression of his live playing at this period. Freed from the Rendell–Carr set-up in which he seemed increasingly at odds with his colleague's developing concept, Rendell once again became a convincing and often very impressive soloist. Barbara Thompson was at her very best on the BBC recording that yields Just Music, as so often more compelling in a straight jazz situation than in fusion. The two horns blend together nicely, with Rendell often taking the softer and more romantic course.

Also, in brief:

 Meet Don Rendell /  Modern Jazz At The Royal Festival Hall Jasmine JASCD 613 / 627. 54.
Early trio, quartet, quintet and sextet material, originally on Tempo. The RFH disc is shared with the Ken Moule Seven and Tony Crombie Orchestra.

 Playtime Vocalion CDLK 4284. 58.
Early material and singles from the Rendell Jazz Six.

 Roarin' BGP CDBGPM166. 61.
Good set with the legendary Graham Bond (as), who's attractively Cannonball-like on this.

 Live From The Antibes Jazz Festival And The Don Rendell Four And Five Spotlite SPJ 566. 1/64, 7/68.
Fascinating to compare Ian Carr at Antibes with another small trumpet player from America around the same time ...

 Touch Links Of Gold / Portuguese Portrait Spotlite SPJ 574. 80, 82.
Previously unreleased quartet and quintet dates. Fascinating for collectors and fans but nothing revelatory.

 If I Should Lose You Spotlite SPJ 146. 6/90–5/91.
Not the best of the Spotlites, and again it suffers from the two-session approach.

 What Am I Here For? Spotlite SPJ 551. 3/93, 1/96.
Another pair of sessions cobbled together; not an effective way to make a record.

 Reunion Spotlite SPJ 571. 8/01.
A warm and affectionate reunion with Carr, who has enjoyed poor health in recent years.

Matt Renzi

TENOR SAXOPHONE, CLARINET

Born in San Francisco, the saxophonist, a Joe Henderson pupil, is already a much-travelled musician and has been on several Fresh Sound dates.

(*) Matt Renzi/Jimmy Weinstein Quartet Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 045 Renzi; Ben Monder (g); Chris Higgins (b); Jimmy Weinstein (d). 98.
 Lines And Ballads Fresh Sound FSNT 065 Renzi; Masa Kamaguchi (b); Jimmy Weinstein (d). 2–6/99.
 The Cave Fresh Sound FSNT 226 Renzi; David Ambrosio (b); Russell Meissner (d). 9/03.
Renzi has a limber, easygoing sound on tenor and favours conversational lines that don't push too hard and don't go near timbral extremes. We missed the first – and perversely the best – of these last time round. From the opening 'Cape Verdean Song', it's a strong, well thought-out set, and Monder is an asset in any group. As the lead voice in a trio, he's capable, but a certain reserve seems to hold these sessions back from making a genuinely strong statement. The second disc, produced by drummer Weinstein, who also contributes the single original, is mainly a thoughtful recital of jazz tunes and standards. 'Ah-Leu-Cha' has most of its bebop truculence filtered away, and what's left is a lightly appealing tune. The Cave is made up of Renzi originals and is rather darker and perhaps more deeply felt, though again the playing often turns inwards and the compositions sound like borrowings from other writers. On clarinet, on 'Stones For Sand', he sounds like he needs to woodshed.

Return To Forever

GROUP

Chick Corea's first electric band rode in on a wave of similar fusion projects, but invested the crossover with more sheer exhilaration and joy than the mournful norm.

 Hymn Of The Seventh Galaxy Polydor 825 336 Corea; Bill Connors (g); Stanley Clarke (b); Lenny White (d, perc). 8/73.

() Where Have I Known You Before /  Romantic Warrior Polydor 825206 / Sony 65524 Corea; Al DiMeola (g); Stanley Clarke (b); Lenny White (d, perc). 7–8/74; 2/76.

(*) Return To The Seventh Galaxy Verve 533108-2 2CD As for Light As A Feather (see under Chick Corea), Hymn Of The Seventh Galaxy, Where Have I Known You Before, except add Steve Gadd (d); Mingo Lewis (perc). 10/72–3/75.

 The Best Of Return To Forever Columbia CK 36359 As for the above, except add Jim Pugh (tb); Gayle Moran (v). 72–75.

Compared to the cheesecloth seriousness of the Mahavishnu Orchestra, Return To Forever was rather closer to a dance group, and the very buoyancy of the music often glossed over its subtleties. It might seem strange to exclude Return To Forever and the perennial Light As A Feather from this listing, but both of those were still essentially Chick Corea records and featured a different line-up from these more fusion-oriented discs. There is still plenty of pomp on Hymn, toned down somewhat on the second album, but the sheer bravura of the performances saves the day. Romantic Warrior seems more and more like a reaction to the mythical pretensions of progressive rock at the time, but, as always with Corea, set aside the programmatic apparatus – whether it be Scientology, leprechauns or Smurfs – and the music shines through gloriously.

The best of the group's material, plus some tapes from Chick's personal archive, are included on the two-CD Verve set, which is a more than adequate memorial to the group. 'Hymn Of The Seventh Galaxy', 'Captain Senor Mouse' and 'Theme To The Mothership' are all there, as well as '500 Miles High', 'Captain Marvel' and 'Light As A Feather' from the earlier group. The bonus is three tracks from a live radio broadcast from Quiet Village, Long Island, a long version of 'Spain' and two Stanley Clarke numbers, 'After The Cosmic Rain' and 'Bass Folk Song'.

The material on disc two, which includes two tracks from the 1975 No Mystery, documents the decline and end of what was undeniably a highly inventive band. In this form, the material is very welcome, though most listeners will find themselves returning to the first set very much more often.

The Columbia 'best of' isn't strictly that but a rock-orientated survey of some of the band's most full-on playing. It may yet bring in new listeners to Corea's music, but most initiates will find this selection one-dimensional.

Revolutionary Ensemble

GROUP

Founded in 1971 and disbanded seven years later, the powerhouse trio espoused a fierce, often politicized avant-gardism. Recent years have witnessed a revival of interest and activity.

 Revolutionary Ensemble ESP 3007 Leroy Jenkins (vn, vla); Sirone (b); Jerome Cooper (d, p). 71.

It was Sunny Murray who introduced violinist Leroy Jenkins to bassist Sirone. They immediately discovered large areas of musical and political interest in common and formed a trio, originally with drummer Frank Clayton. Jenkins had already been dabbling in new musical systems, developing a personal language compounded of blues, jazz and classical music. Sirone had considerable experience already on the avant-garde scene and Jerome Cooper, who replaced Clayton before the first recording, was a younger Chicagoan experimenter.

The eponymous first record is a two-part improvisation called, significantly, 'Vietnam'. The music is harsh and demanding, but Jenkins's interest in developing improvisations from small cells or motives is immediately evident, as is Sirone's ability to translate such ideas into a lower register and slower delivery, and Cooper's willingness to add an abstract orchestral quality to the music as well as line and metre. It remains a powerful performance, subtler than its rather two-dimensional register suggests.

Of the trio's other records, little survives except jealously guarded collectors' copies. There is a story that a contract with A&M was cancelled when Quincy Jones played label founder Herb Alpert a selection from The People's Republic, sparking a violent reaction. Elsewhere, bad pressings and no distribution dented the group's visibility seriously.

 And Now ... Pi 13 As above. 03.

More than 30 years after the group's first experiments, the members of the Revolutionary Ensemble got back together again. The results are, as one would expect, mellower ('Ism Schism' is a quiet masterpiece with classical overtones), more measured, and better recorded. None the less, the old fires are not extinguished and there is still plenty of excitement in the set. Cooper's '911-544' is a reminder of the old, one-chord pieces, built out of the simplest and most basic of materials. 'Berlin Erfahrung' is speedy and nimble and 'Light' has a delicacy that, instrumentation apart, would make even established fans wonder who was playing.

Bob Reynolds

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, SYNTHESIZER

Three-time winner of ASCAP's Young Jazz Composer Award.

(*) Can't Wait For Perfect Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 255 Reynolds; Aaron Goldberg (p); Mike Moreno, David Soler (b); Reuben Rogers (b); Eric Harland (d). 1/05.

This one lives entirely up to its billing. Reynolds has been praised by none other than Michael Brecker, and while Mike needn't look to his laurels yet, there are signs already that Reynolds is going to be significant player. He dares to be different from the off, using Soler's pedal steel underneath a fine piano solo from Goldberg on the opening 'Common Ground'. The title-track has a fantastically funky feel, which some have likened to Zawinul back in Cannonball Adderley days. The headlong, raucous 'Last Minute (Late Again)' is pretty much self-explanatory but 'First Steps' and 'Nine Lives' are more subtle, the latter played in 9/4 (!) and using an overdubbed saxophone choir at one point. Debut albums tend to be showcases that attempt to touch too many bases at once. Greybeard reviewers routinely bewail the absence of a 'Body And Soul' or a 'Dear Old Stockholm', but thank God for young musicians like Bob Reynolds who are prepared to try something new and deny some of those old guys and their estates their unearned tuppence of royalty. The next one will be remarkable; this, though, is good to be going on with.

Melvin Rhyne (born 1936)

ORGAN

Rhyne's reputation stems from his work with Wes Montgomery for Riverside. It took some considerable time to establish a separate identity, but in his mid-50s things started to happen and since then there has been a steady procession of strong, idiosyncratic albums.

 Organ-izing Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1055 Rhyne; Blue Mitchell (t); Johnny Griffin (ts); Gene Harris (p); Andy Simpkins (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 3/60.

This feels less like a studio album than a good-quality tape of a live set. It's basically an extended jam on four solid, bluesy themes, with ample space for all the guests to solo, which Griff does with his usual abandon. Harris is more circumspect, but even with the Hammond to contend with he produces some fine things. The longest – and probably best – track is Adderley's 'Barefoot Sunday Blues'. It was to be a long time before Mel fronted another session.

 The Legend Criss Cross 1059 Rhyne; Brian Lynch (t); Don Braden (ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Kenny Washington (d). 12/91.
 Boss Organ Criss Cross 1080 Rhyne; Joshua Redman (ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Kenny Washington (d). 1/93.

The Legend was Rhyne's first recording as a leader since his comeback and rediscovery. It was done impromptu after the organist had finished a Criss Cross session for trumpeter Brian Lynch. Whether the title is entirely deserved is a matter for debate, but Mel certainly enjoyed an enviable reputation among fellow players and he plays with a robustly insouciant confidence. Rhyne immediately sounds different from the prevailing Jimmy Smith school of organ-players. Instead of swirling, bluesy chords, he favours sharp, almost staccato figures and lyrical single-note runs that often don't go quite where expected. The format for the session is the same as that for the classic Montgomery recordings, and Kenny Washington makes a particularly strong impact. The set opens with Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis's 'Licks A-Plenty', kicks along with 'Stompin' At The Savoy', Wes Montgomery's 'The Trick Bag' and Dizzy Gillespie's 'Groovin' High'; there are two evocative ballads, 'Serenata' and 'Old Folks'; and the session closes with a long 'Blues For Wes', with Lynch and saxophonist Braden sitting in.

Another young horn-player makes a vital contribution to the later Boss Organ. Few saxophonists have been more comprehensively hyped than Joshua Redman. He lives pretty much up to billing on this set, swanking through tunes by Stevie Wonder and Wes Montgomery as if he grew up playing them. Rhyne sounds relaxed and laid-back – almost too unhurried since, as the set advances, it begins to drag ever so slightly. Enjoyable, though, and a convincing consolidation of the fine form of The Legend.

(*) Stick To The Kick Criss Cross 1137 Rhyne; Ryan Kisor (t); Eric Alexander (ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Kenny Washington (d). 12/94, 12/95.
 Mel's Spell / (*) Kojo Criss Cross Criss 1118 / 1164 Rhyne; Peter Bernstein (g); Kenny Washington (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc). 12/94, 12/95; 12/97.

By the latter half of the '90s, a Melvin Rhyne record was as predictable and as reliable as a No. 12 bus, and these must have delighted existing fans. The band on Stick offers a scaled-down version of a big-band sound and it would be intriguing to hear Mel working with a full-size ensemble. Apart from Dameron's 'Lady Bird' and Bud Powell's 'Wail', all the material is by Rhyne himself. He writes themes rather than songs, but themes with a very definite shape and structure. The other two albums are much looser in concept and feature considerably more standards material. Mel shows how readily he can switch between bebop ('Blue'n'Boogie') and a swing ballad like 'In A Sentimental Mood', both on Kojo; on Mel's Spell he weaves a delicious programme of tunes, from Bird's 'Billy's Bounce' to Frank Sinatra's 'This Love Of Mine'. As ever, Gerry Teekens gives Mel a big and very natural sound. The organ/guitar/drums trio is not difficult to record, technically speaking, but it calls for a measure of taste and balance which isn't always on call.

 Remembering Wes Savant 2019 Rhyne; Royce Campbell (g); Killer Ray Appleton (d). 2/99.

Rhyne has more claim than most to carry the torch of Wes Montgomery. This is a thoroughly authentic set, with brother Buddy's 'Bock To Bock' prominent and two original tributes written by guitarist Campbell, who's something of a chip off the block: 'I Remember Wes' is almost stationary in its sorrow, while 'Wes', which rounds out the set, picks things up a bit.

 Classmasters Criss Cross 1183 Rhyne; Eric Alexander (ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Kenny Washington (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc). 12/99.

Mel's earned the right to call a tune 'Rhyne, Rhythm And Song', although composing isn't really his thing, perhaps, and after that one's done the rest of the set is given over to other writers. It unfolds like a live situation where songs and composers occur to Rhyne as he goes on, so we get two Legrand tunes, a Turrentine blues, 'Don't Explain', 'Well You Needn't' and then a couple of McCoy Tyner pieces. He has a way of voicing a line that makes you think of the old compliment about 'making the organ speak' and some of the slower pieces are the best. Nothing especially stands out, though, and the session's really just an enjoyable cruise.

(*) Front And Center Criss Cross 1290 Rhyne; Peter Bernstein (g); Ray Appleton (d). 3/06.

Here's a nice mix of original compositions, repertory pieces and standards, with standout versions of 'Jordu' and 'I Want To Talk About You'. At 70, Rhyne has reeled in just a touch and seems to invest his playing with a more thoughtful blues touch. In that regard, Bernstein is an exceptional foil. We'd venture to suggest that this is his best work for many years.

Also, in brief:

(*) Tell It Like It Is Criss Cross 1089. 93.
Muscular workout with Tenor Triangle (Eric Alexander, Ralph Lalama, Tad Shull) that creaks well before halfway.

 Tomorrow, Yesterday, Today Criss Cross 1252. 11/03.
Another predictable organ/tenor/guitar workout, redeemed by Peter Bernstein's (g) sterling work.

Buddy Rich (1917–87)

DRUMS, VOICE

A child performer in vaudeville, he was a bandleader by the time he was 11. He worked in many of the big swing bands of the '30s and spent six years with Tommy Dorsey before leading his own group. When it foundered, he freelanced, sang and did some acting, and spent five years with Harry James, before re-forming a big band in 1966. Against the run of the time, it was an international success, although heart problems interrupted an otherwise tireless working schedule. A ruthless man, peerless in his technique.

 The Legendary '47–'48 Orchestra, Vol. 1 Hep CD 12 Rich; Tommy Allison, Stan Fishelson, Phil Gilbert, Charlie Shavers, Charlie Walp, Dale Pearce, Frank LePinto, Doug Mettome (t);

Mario Daone, Bob Ascher, Chunky Koenigsberger, Rob Swope, Jack Carmen, Lou McGarity (tb); Peanuts Hucko (cl); Hal McKusick, Eddie Caine, Jerry Therkeld (as); Allen Eager, Mickey Rich, Ben Larry, Warne Marsh, Al Sears, Jimmy Giuffre (ts); Harvey Levine (bs); Harvey Leonard, Jerry Schwarz, Buddy Weed (p); Joe Mooney (acc); Terry Gibbs (vib); Gene Dell, Remo Palmieri (g); Trigger Alpert, Tubby Phillips, Charlie Leeds, Nick Stagg (b); Stan Kay, Big Sid Catlett (d); Ella Fitzgerald (v). 10/45–10/48.

 The Legendary '46–'48 Orchestras, Vol. 2 Hep CD 56 As above, except add Bitsy Mullens, Pinky Savitt, Louis Oles (t); Earl Swope, Johnny Mandel, Al Lorraine (tb); Les Clarke, Jerry Thirkeld (as); George Berg, Mickey Rich (ts); Sid Brown (bs); Tony Nichols (p); Jimmy Johnston (b); Stan Kay (d); Dottie Reid (v). 3/46–10/48.

 Buddy Rich 1946–1948 Classics 1099 Similar to above discs, except add Red Rodney (t). 1/46–10/48.

Rich, probably the most renowned big-band drummer of all time, had a rough time as a bandleader in the late '40s, but somehow he held on until 1949. Hep's sets of airshots, V-Discs and the like find various editions of the group in vigorous form. Some of the charts are routine, but others make the most of the impressive sections, and there are some fine soloists on the first disc, particularly Allen Eager on 'Daily Double' and 'Nellie's Nightmare'. There is one small-group track with Charlie Shavers on trumpet and a fairly hilarious 'Blue Skies' where Rich scats along with Ella Fitzgerald. The second disc leans more towards the 1948 orchestra, which is more commercially directed, with vocals and ballads tending to take over; but the opening 'Let's Blow' is prototypical of the excitement that Rich was after in a big band. The sound is fair to good on both discs, but the clout of the orchestra still comes through when they hit hard enough.

Classics bring together three sessions for V-Disc and three for Mercury. It duplicates eight titles with Hep 56, but the balance of the Mercury titles are well worth having: 'Dateless Brown' and 'Desperate Desmond' are flag-wavers of real excitement. Rich shows how appealing a vocalist he could be on 'Baby, Baby All The Time', and bop gets a modest look-in on 'Oop-Bop-Sha-Bam'. An interesting cross-section of titles, with a few soloists – such as Red Rodney – to surprise.

 Buddy And Sweets Verve 841433-2 Rich; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Jimmy Rowles (p); Barney Kessel (g); John Simmons (b). 9/55.

 Blues Caravan Verve 210348-2 Rich; Rolf Ericson (t); Sam Most (f); Mike Mainieri (vib); Johnny Morris (p); Wyatt Ruther (b). 8/61.

While recording for Norman Granz, Rich found himself in numerous small-group situations, and tended to curb his enthusiasm (or had it curbed for him). With the unflappable Sweets Edison he is on good behaviour throughout, and the music is mostly amiable mainstream. The 1961 sextet date is a little more boisterous and has an interesting line-up, with the young Mainieri doing some of his earliest work on record. All the time, though, one senses that Buddy is itching to get back with a big band.

(*) Swingin' New Big Band Pacific Jazz 835232-2 Rich; Bobby Shew, John Sottile, Yoshito Murakami, Walter Battagello (t); Jim Trimble, John Boice (tb); Dennis Good, Mike Waverley (btb); Gene Quill (as, cl); Pete Yellin (as, f); Jay Corre, Marty Flax (ts, cl, f); Steve Perlow (bs, bcl); John Bunch (p); Barry Zweig (g); Carson Smith (b). 9–10/66.

 Big Swing Face Pacific Jazz 837989-2 As above, except omit Boice, Quill, Yellin, Perlow, Bunch, Zweig, Smith; add Chuck Findley (t); Ron Myers (tb); Ernie Watts (as, f); Quin Davis (as); Robert Keller (bs); Ray Starling (p); Richard Resnicoff (g); James Gannon (b); Cathy Rich (v). 2–3/67.

(*) The New One! Pacific Jazz 494507-2 Rich; Chuck Findley, Russell Iverson, John Sottile, Yoshito Murakami (t); Jim Trimble, John Boice, Robert Brawn, Jack Spurlock, Sam Burtis (tb); Ernie Watts, James Mosher (as, cl, f); Robert Keller, Pat LaBarbera (ts, cl, f); Jay Corre (ts, cl); Meyer Hirsh, Frank Capi (bs, bcl); Ray Starling, Russell Turner Jr (p); Richie Resnicoff (g); James Gannon, Ronald Funoldi (b). 6–12/67.

(*) Mercy, Mercy Pacific Jazz 854331-2 Rich; Al Porcino, Bill Prince, Ken Faulk, Dave Culp (t); Jim Trimble, Rick Stepton, Peter Graves (tb); Art Pepper, Charles Owens, Don Menza, Pat LaBarbera, John Laws (reeds); Walt Namuth (g); Gary Walters (b); Tony Bennett (v). 7/68.

 Swingin' New Big Band / Keep The Customer Satisfied BGO BGOCD169 Rich; Bobby Shew, John Sottile, Yoshito Murakami, Walter Battagello, John Giorgani, John Madrid, Mike Price, George Zonce (t); Jim Trimble, John Boice, Rick Stepton, Tony Lada (tb); Larry Fisher, Mike Waverley (btb); Gene Quill (cl, as); Richie Cole, Jimmy Mosher, Pete Yellin (as, f); Jay Corre, Marty Flax (cl, ts, f); Pat LaBarbera (ss, ts, f); Don Englert (ts, f); Steve Perlow (bs, bcl); Bob Suchoski (bs); John Bunch, Meredith McClain (p); Barry Zweig (g); Rick Laird, Carson Smith (b). 9/66–2/70.

The late '60s were scarcely vintage times for big bands, but Rich, who was used to stopping at nothing, drove a limousine outfit through the period with concessions that didn't really bother him much. They had items like 'Uptight' and 'Ode To Billie Joe' in the book, but they still played the likes of 'In A Mellotone' and 'Sister Sadie', and among the technique-laden sections there were players who could step out and play an individualist's solo: Don Menza, Jay Corre, Bobby Shew, and – on Mercy, Mercy – Art Pepper, who has a wounded feature on 'Chelsea Bridge'. The Pacific albums are nearly all taken from live dates, from Hollywood or Las Vegas, and since the band thrived in performance they are among Rich's most characteristic testaments. There's nothing subtle about the arranging or the musicianship: all is speed, bravado, intensity. Not to say that the band didn't have different strokes at its disposal: some of the charts on Swingin' New Big Band (by a variety of hands, including Oliver Nelson, Bill Holman and Phil Wilson) are as elegant as they are assertive. But Rich's rule meant that the band had to fire on all cylinders and there were no pastel shades involved. He even makes 'Ode To Billie Joe' (Mercy, Mercy) into a stormer. There's little to choose between the discs, which have been handsomely reshaped by Pacific with numerous unissued bonus tracks on each disc and some fine discoveries among them. We especially like Mercy, Mercy for the stunning treatment of Joe Zawinul's title-track and for the contributions of Pepper and Menza. The New One! includes material written for a TV series, Away We Go, that Rich worked on during 1967: the theme-tune is a typical barnstormer and, although the sound seems compressed on this reissue, there's plenty to hear, with Watts taking some storming solos – listen to the preposterously over-fast but thrilling treatment of Wes Montgomery's 'Naptown Blues'. In sum, these are probably the necessary Rich albums for the library – considering that his catalogue is still neglected on CD and there is perhaps no obvious classic album in it. The BGO set couples the original Swingin' New Big Band with a lesser effort from 1970, and we prefer the Pacific edition.

 Buddy And Soul BGO BGOCD 23 Rich; Sal Marquez, Nat Pavone, Dave Culp, Bob Yance, Mike Price, Darryl Eaton, Ken

Faulk, Oliver Mitchell (t); Rick Stepton, Vince Diaz, Don Switzer (tb); Ernie Watts, Joe Romano, Richie Cole, Don Menza, Pat LaBarbera, Joe Calo, Don Englert (reeds); Dave Lahm (ky); Herb Ellis, Dave Dana, Freddie Robinson (g); Bob Magnusson (b); Victor Feldman (perc). 1–6/69.

Live or in the studio, Rich's band hit very hard. Anachronistic in the age of Hendrix and Jefferson Airplane (Rich's choice of a tune called 'Love And Peace' probably didn't express what he thought about rock's ascendance), they made up in personal firepower what they lacked in stage amplification. There's some dreadful, modish material and some things which Rich made into valid vehicles through sheer force of will. Big-band jazz out of its time, and presumably for ever.

Tim Richards (born 1952)

PIANO

A familiar presence on the British contemporary scene, most of his work can be found under his band, Spirit Level.

(*) The Other Side 33 Jazz 037 Richards; Kubryk Townsend (b); Kenrick Rowe, Andrea Trillo (d). 97.

... but the other side of what? This is Richards's other project, working apart from the horn-fronted Spirit Level, and interestingly he gravitates to a mostly standards repertoire, or rather to a body of jazz tunes which take their cues in turn from standards material, things like Miles Davis's and Victor Feldman's 'Seven Steps To Heaven', Hampton Hawes's 'Blues The Most' and Big John Patton's 'String Bean'. Rowe (a Spirit Level regular) is used only on seven of the 15 tracks and is a very different percussionist from the stylish but forceful Trillo, about whom we know very little, except that his roots seem to be in the swing era, reminiscent of Shelly Manne rather than anything more recent. Richards switches to electric keyboard for Eddie Harris's 'Freedom Jazz Dance' and demonstrates once again the ability to give amplified piano considerable personality.

 Shibop FMR CD61 Richards; Sigi Finkel (ss, ts); Phil Scragg (b); Marc Parnell (d). 99.

 Twelve By Three 33 Jazz 072 Richards; Dominic Howles (b); Matt Home (d). 01.

The Austrian saxophonist was Richards's most sympathetic partner in years and the Soundscape group that made Shibop felt like his most effective outfit since Spirit Level. The material is all original, eight elegantly crafted songs with plenty of open space for both pianist and saxophonist to range across. Rugged support from Scragg and Parnell. The trio with Howles and Home is less ambitious, but the session highlights Richards's endlessly buoyant, blues-flavoured playing much more prominently.

 Great Spirit / Best of Spirit Level 33 Records 33JAZZ051 Richards; Dick Pearce (t); Denys Baptiste (ts); Gilad Atzmon (as, ts); Tony Kofi (as, bs); Dave Colton (g); Roger Beaujolais (vib); Davide Mantovani (b); David Ohm (d); and others. 03.

* Epistrophy 33 Records 33JAZZ120 Richards; Dick Pearce (t); Jason Yarde (ss, as); Ed Jones, Tony Kofi (bs); Leon Stenning (g); Roger Beaujolais (vib); Tom Herbert (b); Seb Rochford (d). 04.

Most of these guys were in short trousers when Tim Richards began his career. Here, as Great Spirit, they follow the oldtimer through two sets of beautifully realized charts which, in the second case most obviously, keep the harmonics middle and low thanks to the central place given to baritone. 'Kirsten Sunday Morning' has a rich, easy swing that has been a distinguishing characteristic of the pianist's work from the start, but never so well integrated with others as here. The first record still sounds a bit tentative, but it appears in a specially priced double set with a Spirit Level compilation which affirms the continuity and consistency of Richards's vision over the years.

Jerome Richardson (1920–2000)

SAXOPHONES, WOODWINDS, FLUTES

He started working in his teens, and rarely stopped. He worked with Marshall Jones and Quincy Jones, led his own group at Minton's, and was a charter member of the Thad Jones–Mel Lewis band.

 Midnight Oil Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1815 Richardson; Jimmy Cleveland (tb); Hank Jones (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Joe Benjamin (b); Charli Persip (d). 11/58.

(*) Roamin' With Richardson Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1849 Richardson; Richard Wyands (p); George Tucker (b); Charli Persip (d). 11/59.

The quiet Texan was always more than a journeyman multi-instrumentalist. It took him some time to assert himself in his own voice. He became a leader only on moving to New York City in 1953, having served an apprenticeship with Jimmie Lunceford, Lionel Hampton and Earl Hines. Oil was an earlier session on New Jazz, predating Roamin' by a few months, as rare as hen's teeth and reissued without fanfare. The interesting thing about the 1959 band is that all four are individualists, and each is encouraged to bring something to the session. Wyands in particular asserts himself on tracks like 'Warm Valley' and 'Poinciana', the latter a solitary outing on flute, the former with his very distinctive, Mulligan-influenced baritone. His only other horn this time out is tenor saxophone ('Friar Tuck' and 'Candied Sweets').

In the past, we've argued that Richardson's one great stock-in-trade was the simple variety of his resources. Certainly on both records he could rely on an absolutely solid band and indulge a little decorative work here and there. Further acquaintance, though, confirms that he was an able, often thoughtful soloist, and his traded lines with Cleveland and the more boppish Burrell will be a revelation to those who have heard him only as a utility band player.

In the past, we've argued that Richardson's one great stock-in-trade was the simple variety of his resources. Certainly on both records he could rely on an absolutely solid band and indulge a little decorative work here and there. Further acquaintance, though, confirms that he was an able, often thoughtful soloist, and his traded lines with Cleveland and the more boppish Burrell will be a revelation to those who have heard him only as a utility band player.

Logan Richardson

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Rising star who brings together sophisticated composition and a fiery playing style.

 Cerebral Flow Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 278 Richardson; Mike Pinto (vib); Mike Moreno (g); Matthew Brewer (b); Thomas Crane, Nasheet Waits (d). 5/06.

Right from the off, the complex 'Turning Maze', you feel you're in the presence of something genuinely interesting. Richardson's writing attempts to combine post-Coltrane harmonies with an idiom that might come from contemporary chamber music. On the other hand, 'Feel The Blues' (one of two duets with Waits) is a full-on blowing theme, handled with more urgency than finesse. One might wish the sound were a little better balanced. Richardson's soprano is slightly distorted in places, and some of the chiming tones from guitar and vibes are muddied in the mix. Even so, this is an impressive debut and Richardson looks set to do important work. For the moment, 'Animated Concept Of Being' is the track to sample: subtle and strong.

Mike Richmond (born 1948)

DOUBLE BASS

Began on guitar but switched to bass and has worked with Quincy Jones and Stan Getz. Passionately interested in Indian music.

 For Us Steeplechase SCCD 31101 Richmond; Andy Laverne (p). 4/78.
 On The Edge Steeplechase SCCD 31237 Richmond; Larry Schneider (ss, ts, f); Adam Nussbaum (d). 88.
(*) Dance For Andy Steeplechase SCCD 31267 Richmond; Larry Schneider (ss, ts); Jim McNeely (p); Keith Copeland (d). 89.
 Blue In Green Steeplechase SCCD 31296 Richmond; Larry Schneider (ts); Richie Beirach (p); Jeff Williams (d). 8/91.

The title-track that opens On The Edge is a superb trio improvisation that has Schneider and Richmond almost locking horns before Nussbaum's resolving solo. The rest doesn't quite match up but Mike pilots the album with great enthusiasm. Dance For Andy sustains interest all the way. The four originals are nothing exceptional – aside from the witty, sanctified licks of 'Gospel' – but there is a serene trio reading of 'I Remember Clifford', a fast and swinging 'You And The Night And The Music' and a fantastic 'Witchi-Tai-To'. Blue In Green is slightly disappointing. Schneider is more diffident and, though Beirach compensates with some unexpected drive, there's comparatively little of the freewheeling energy this music thrives on. The duo album (issued almost a decade and a half after recording) finally showcases Richmond as he ought to be heard, weaving all sorts of folkloric and ethnic elements into his Mraz-like solos, keeping tight in behind the piano and then seeming to float away almost ethereally.

Frank Ricotti (born 1949)

VIBRAPHONE, PERCUSSION, ALTO SAXOPHONE

Added his bright, distinctive sound to umpteen British dates, but rarely seen as a frontman.

 Our Point Of View Sony 494440 Ricotti; Chris Spedding (g); Chris Laurence (b); Bryan Spring (d). 68.

Product of a halcyon period where Columbia put some money behind British jazz, this is a more obviously marketable project than those of Tony Oxley and Howard Riley, who were also beneficiaries. Their albums, though, have become iconic objects, while this lovely set has been pretty much overlooked. The sound is dated, to be sure, but in 'Three Times Loser, Three Times Blueser' and 'Abbadatt The Cat', Ricotti's quality shines through. He's no saxophone-player, but his vibes work always has a graceful bounce to it and a hint of Cal Tjader's latinized metres. The other group members had/have distinctive voices and Spedding's guitar solos will evoke a nostalgic feeling in British jazz fans of the period.

Alex Riel (born 1940)

DRUMS

Copenhagen-born, and a rock-solid fixture in the city's jazz scene for more than 40 years.

 The Riel Deal Stunt STUCD 19604 Riel; Jerry Bergonzi (ts); Kenny Werner (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b). 1/95.
 Unriel! Stunt STUCD 19707 Riel; Jerry Bergonzi, Michael Brecker (ts); Niels Lan Doky (p); Mike Stern (g); Eddie Gomez (b). 3/97.
 D. S. B. Kino Stunt STUCD 19811 Riel; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Roger Kellaway (p); Mads Vinding (b). 3/98.
(*) Rielatin' Stunt STUCD 19918 Riel; Jerry Bergonzi, Michael Brecker (ts); Kenny Werner (p); Mike Stern (g); Christian Minh Doky (b). 10/99.
 Live At Jive Stunt STUCD 01202 Riel; Lutz Büchner (ts); Carsten Dahl (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b). 3/00.
(*) Celebration Stunt STUCD 00232 Riel; Kenny Werner (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b). 9/00.

Alex Riel loves life and jazz, and as an unrivalled exponent of wordplay in more than one language he probably set up most of these punning titles himself. None of these sets is exactly a world-beating classic but they all benefit from the man's enormous bonhomie and a style that is as swinging and band-lifting as you'll find on any stand. The Riel Deal is a live gig where Bergonzi and Werner get into some heavyweight chopsmanship. The even more stellar cast made Unriel! in New York, with Niels Lan Doky producing, and though some of the playing has a slightly faceless, superstar feel to it, it's an imposing set.

The set with Harry Edison is sometimes a bit discomforting since the old man is clearly a long way from the force he was; yet, as if to compensate, Alex himself plays quite beautifully and there's some super stuff from Kellaway too. Rielatin' rematches some of the big guys from New York, and this one is a bit looser and more fun: the two tenors have a joyful romp through the old Ben Webster favourite 'Did You Call Her Today?', and Brecker relaxes more than he often does.

Live At Jive debuts a new quartet co-led with Büchner. It's a bit of a hard-bop potboiler, but if nothing else you can always listen to what Riel's playing. We slightly prefer his 60th birthday set, released as Celebration; Werner at the keyboard again, and he thrives in an environment where the swinging sounds less portentous than it does on some of his own-name records. 'Siciliana' is Alex's birthday solo – may there be many more.

Barry Ries

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Ries is a seasoned player, with credits embracing the Lionel Hampton Band and Joe Lovano's recent Nonetet.

 Solitude In The Crowd Justin Time JUST 137 Ries; Joe Lovano (ts); Michael Cochrane (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Billy Drummond, Yoron Israel (d). 98.

Listeners might conclude that Ries is better served in a crowd than out front on his own. The playing here is mostly workmanlike and unexceptional, though Lovano's presence adds a gruff energy to the music. The opening 'Akasha' is a longish workout that doesn't ever catch fire and the best of the music is reserved for the end of the set, a reading of Monk's 'Ugly Beauty' (tough for the trumpeter) and a composition by bassist Irwin that puts his leader's originals in the shade. Nice to see him get his moment in the spotlight but Barry's real contribution is fated to be more anonymous than this.

Tim Ries (born 1959)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Ries was born in Detroit, started on trumpet but is now playing post-bop saxophone.

(*) Universal Spirits Criss Cross 1144 Ries; Scott Wendholt (t); Ben Monder (g); Scott Colley (b); Billy Drummond (d). 10/97.

 Alternate Side Criss Cross 1199 Ries; Greg Gisbert (t, flhn); Michael Davis (tb); Larry Goldings (p, org); Ben Monder (g); Stacey Shames (hp); John Patitucci (b); Billy Drummond (d). 6/00.

 The Rolling Stones Project Concord CCD 2260 Ries; Michael Davis (tb); Larry Goldings (org); Ed Simon (p); Bill Frisell, Ben Monder, John Scofield, Keith Richards, Ronnie Wood (g); Darryl Jones, John Patitucci (b); Jeff Ballard, Brian Blade, Clarence Penn, Charlie Watts (d); Sheryl Crow, Nora (Gulp!)Jones, Bernard Fowler (v). 7/02–1/05.

One afternoon in Paris, Tim Ries saw Ornette Coleman being interviewed in a hotel lobby. Not knowing a better way to introduce himself, he took out his soprano and played the early Coleman tune, 'Jayne'. Ornette stood up and applauded, as well he might have done, for the version included here is excellent. Ries's kinship with trumpeter Wendholt is almost twin-like, a mutual understanding that beams out from the very first number, a deceptively simple circle-of-fifths thing called 'Indeed', which has been in his book for many years. Other pieces on the set are derived from his classical side as well, most obviously the Bach 'Sonata No. 2: Siciliano', which is something he has played on flute with his wife, harpist Stacey Shames. A strongly personal record, almost every tune seems – and feels – associated with some strong emotion. 'Guardian Angel' relates to his mother's recovery from life-threatening illness, 'St Michel' to a chance escape from a terrorist bomb in Paris; 'When I'm Through' is a lullaby for his daughter, and again shows indications of being written for a chamber group rather than a jazz band. As ever on Criss Cross, the band is tailor-made. Monder and Colley are friends, and Billy Drummond has the ability to fall in with almost any line-up thrown at him.

Alternate Side is a good, if in the end slightly disappointing, follow-up. Too much of it falls into what is often (and generally incorrectly) described as the Criss Cross hard-bop convention, of which '4637' might be a perfectly idiomatic example. Goldings warms things up at the B-3 and Davis gets in the odd surprising jab, but Ries himself sounds less individual this time and may do better in a less busy band.

The Stones Project is precisely that, a bold concept and a hefty feat of curation and organization. It's pleasing to report that, despite (surely?) the cast of thousands, it all works exceedingly well. Such an idea might have been more surprising before jazz players started to include contemporary pop routinely on sessions or before Charlie Watts made public his desire to play bebop again, but even lacking the element of surprise, the set works well and is worth subsequent visits.

Jason Rigby

TENOR, SOPRANO AND ALTO SAXOPHONES, BASS CLARINET, WOOD FLUTE

Impressive young leader coming through on Fresh Sound's cutting-edge imprint.

(*) Translucent Space Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT CD 254 Rigby; Rich Johnson (t); Soo-Kyung Park (f); Sam Sadigursky, Jason Gillenwater (cl); Mike Holober (p); Cameron Brown (b); Mark Ferber (d, perc). 6/05.

The obvious models for Rigby's approach are Coltrane and Ornette Coleman, in that order, but he's already enough of an individualist not to sound too much like a production-line Trane knock-off. There's an interesting tinge of free playing on things like '114', but for the most part these are carefully thought-through compositons. 'Atmospheric' is unexpectedly conventional in structure, a nice blowing ballad that suggest he still has some way to go in this vein. 'Southampton (UK)' features his soprano-playing, well-pitched and well-shaped but a different voice, it seems, to his other horns. Perhaps too intent on showing all his bag at once, a besetting vice of first albums, Rigby nevertheless impresses strongly.

Knut Riisnaes (born 1945)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Norwegian post-bop saxophonist of wide experience.

(*) Confessin' The Blues /  The Gemini Twins Gemini GMCD 63 / GMCD 75 Riisnaes; Red Holloway (as, ts); Kjell Ohman (p, org); Terje Venaas (b); Egil Johansen (d). 8/89; 1/92.

Gifted with a huskily rich and weighty tone, Riisnaes is an Oslo-born jazzman who, like so many musicians from northern Europe, deserves a far wider reputation than he has (his brother, Odd, is also a fine tenorman). His celebrated Flukt LP won a Norwegian Grammy award but it's currently still out of print. Confessin' The Blues is a fine place to start, though. The session was organized to document Red Holloway's visit to the Oslo Jazz Festival in 1989, and the sympathetic interplay among all five men belies the hasty circumstances of the occasion. While there are some straightforward blowing tracks, such as an ebullient 'Billie's Bounce', the highlight is probably the almost indecently languorous stroll through 'All Blues' at the beginning, which is paced out by both tenormen to sumptuous effect. If Holloway is the more perkily bluesy of the two saxophonists, Riisnaes emerges as at least his equal, taking a solo 'My Romance' which methodically opens out the melody to superb effect. The rhythm section, with Ohman playing mostly organ, is absolutely on top of things, and the digital sound is excellent. They have a return match on The Gemini Twins, which is a mild disappointment since nothing hits the peaks of the previous record. Riisnaes's solo ballad treatment of 'Tribute To Melvin' and the ultra-slow 'Yesterdays' still make the record substantial.

(*) Touching Resonant RM8-2 Riisnaes; Dag Arnesen (p); Terje Gewelt (b); Frank Jakobsen (d). 2/01.

Riisnaes enters the new century with a powerful if conventional record. He brought only the title-piece to the date – the rest are standards, a Jarrett tune, a couple of Arnesen themes and one by Gewelt – and the quartet approaches the occasion with a no-nonsense manner which might have sounded severe if it weren't for the lyricism which touches all of the playing. Riisnaes has never had a better sound in a studio – all the subtleties in his delivery are caught evocatively – and Arnesen, a sometimes unremarkable player on other records, plays beautifully both solo and in accompaniment. 'You Know I Care' has a superb treatment, and Jarrett's 'Love No. 1' is fashioned as a coolly serious ballad.

Ben Riley (born 1933)

DRUMS

Always associated with Thelonious Monk, though he only actually spent just over 30 months in the pianist's group, Riley has also worked with Ahmad Jamal, Abdullah Ibrahim, Ron Carter, Randy Weston, and Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis and Johnny Griffin.

 Memories Of T Concord CCD 2004 Riley; Don Sickler (t); Bruce Williams (ss, as); Jimmy Greene (ts); Jay Brandford (bs, bsx); Freddy Bryant, Wayne Escoffery (g); Peter Washington (b). 8/03–4/05.

Like many a sideman who spent a large proportion of his career in the service of a dominant personality, Riley found few opportunities to record in his own right. He has one earlier record, Weaver Of Dreams on Joken, but this latter-day record by the Monk Legacy Septet is the only survivor. It's a relatively predictable trawl of themes, extending the work Riley did with Sphere, but the arrangements and playing are both impeccable and Riley himself sticks to the same principles of simplicity and directness that made his work in Monk's quartet so impressive. Beautifully recorded, with Maureen Sickler lending a hand at the desk, it stands as a small but significant memorial to the great man's legacy.

Herlin Riley

DRUMS

Guaranteed prominence and possibly brickbats as successor to Jeff 'Tain' Watts in the Wynton Marsalis group.

 Watch What You're Doing Criss Cross 1179 Riley; Ryan Kisor (t); Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Victor Goines (ts, bs); Farid Barron (p); Rodney Whitaker (b). 00.

* Cream Of The Crescent Criss Cross 1272 Riley; Wynton Marsalis (t); Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Victor Goines (ts, bs); Eric Lewis (p); Reginald Veal (b). 10/04.

Riley looks as if he's been storing up some of this material for some time. It's got the easy structure and quietly challenging time-feel of work that has been adequately road-tested. For this debut recording, he has a like-minded group of Young(ish) Turks and a sound that settles comfortably into the middle and lower register, certainly the latter when Goines picks up his baritone. Ironically, the best track on the set – or at least the most attractive piece of writing – is bassist Whitaker's tribute to John Lewis. Otherwise, the charts are pretty much of a muchness. A couple of standards, or possibly the odd Marsalis tune, might have lifted a perfectly agreeable and unexceptionable session an extra notch. After all, the Marsalis group is the uncamouflaged model for the set.

If ever there were a doubt of that, it disappears when the man himself steps out on the second record. It immediately makes sense. Freed of leadership duties, Wynton comes on all sardonic, dry, rebarbative and with a wicked sense of humour. The record builds smoothly and logically to the central sequence of Goines's 'To Those We Love So Dearly' (the only non-Riley cut) and the leader's 'Profit Stop', a brisk, effective idea that stands among his best. Thereafter, it's allowed to tail away a little, but leaves behind a warm satisfaction, especially when the young trumpet-player plays.

Howard Riley (born 1943)

PIANO

Born in Huddersfield, he played in local clubs before moving south and finding his own way to completely free playing.

 Discussions Jazzprint JPVP137 Riley; Barry Guy (b); Jon Hiseman (d). 12/67.

British improvising musicians of Riley's generation currently find themselves in a strange and ironic position, widely admired for reissued work they made many decades earlier but still relatively marginal in critical and commercial terms. Unlike some, Riley has continued to perform and record determinedly and because of that this CD release is more valuable than most and certainly more than a nostalgia object.

Originally on Chris Wellard's small Opportunity label and available only in limited numbers, Discussions sees Riley exploring a mainly repertory programme, with thoughtful examinations of 'Sweet And Lovely', 'Nardis' and 'Spring Is Here', as well as some original material; oddly, neither disc nor liner gives composition credits. The sound is rather clattery and knotted but Hiseman, better known as a fusion drummer, brings a nice, open jazz feel and provides some intricate, if occasionally intrusive, cymbal work. Guy, still only 22, is immense, restlessly looking for new paths through the chords, anchoring Riley's complex lines to Hiseman's sometimes wayward metres.

(*) Angle Columbia 494433-2 Riley; Barbara Thompson (f); Barry Guy (b); Alan Jackson (d). 12/68–1/69.

♛ * The Day Will Come Columbia 494434-2 As above, except omit Thompson. 3–4/70.

* Flight / (*) Synopsis Future Music FMR CD 26 / Emanem 4044 Riley; Barry Guy (b); Tony Oxley (d). 3/71; 73.

Howard Riley's two CBS recordings – the result of the label's brief outbreak of enthusiasm for British improvisation – immediately marked out the 25-year-old as a musician of considerable originality. The reappearance of Synopsis adds significantly to the picture. All that is now required to complete the picture of these early years is the reissue of the three-LP Facets on Impetus.

For Riley himself, the key thing about these recordings was that they represented a working band. Other improvising musicians of the time were happy to issue what were effectively public rehearsals. By contrast, these records by the Howard Riley Trio are terse, focused improvisations on written themes. Only Synopsis features extended tracks; otherwise, none are longer than eight and a half minutes. The fully notated flute-and-piano duets, 'Three Fragments', on Angle stand somewhat apart, but are unmistakably from the same hand. Riley is the only credited composer on the earlier album, which perhaps accounts for its thoughtful and rather reserved character.

The introduction of Barry Guy as co-composer on the brilliant The Day Will Come is the key factor in our very high rating for this record. It is worth noting that, whatever the public persona Guy has now, in 1969 Chris Wellard thought nothing of describing him in his liner-note to the first record, Angle, as 'rumbustious and violent'. It is he who balances the rather tender and melancholic cast of Riley's playing. His arco solo on 'Angle' is astonishing, and he drives the following track, 'Aftermath', into territory new in British jazz at the time. On the later album Guy tunes like 'Sad Was The Song', 'Playtime' and the title-track present genuine improvisational challenges. Of the trio members, Jackson is the one who seems to have been eclipsed by the passing years. He is a drummer of great control and precision, inch-perfect on fast numbers like 'Angle' without compromising a robustly swinging presence which recalls Phil Seamen but also has ties right back to the days of Dave Tough. These are key recordings, even if to some extent they eclipse some of the work that followed.

Some months on from The Day Will Come, Flight represents a development of Riley's trio language, expanded considerably through the use of Guy's pedal and amplifier and drummer Oxley's astonishing range of amplified percussion effects. Even playing acoustically, his trademark device of exchanging sticks and mallets for knitting needles generates a light, skittering sound that blends perfectly with the piano. All three men contribute material. Oxley's 'Cirrus' is a personal tour de force; Riley's opening 'Motion' is a fair representation of his parallel interest in 'legitimate' composition. Pianist and bassist are jointly credited for 'Two Ballads'. Riley's technique is utterly assured, his sense of time is gnomic rather than metronomic, and his dynamics – ranging from huge clusters to the tiniest mosaic effects – bring a constantly shifting intellectual drama.

Synopsis is riveting from start to finish. Guy's sound-world is gloriously idiosyncratic and utterly different from that of any other bass-player of the time. At the same time, Oxley seems to have broken the bounds of jazz percussion in the most joyous and intelligent way. It's possible to luxuriate in these performances without concerning oneself too much about the structures involved, which are looser and less concentrated than on earlier recordings. We still value The Day Will Come most highly, but the Riley trio was a wonder and a joy. Even for those who never saw them perform, these sides are a valuable document.

(*) Singleness Jazzprint JPVP110 Riley (p solo). 74.
The spirit of Thelonious Monk was not far distant when this lovely recording was made. Riley is still audibly in touch with the language of bebop, especially on the blues-soaked 'Item' and the appropriately titled 'Introspective', which takes the conventions of bop piano, slows them down, and subjects them to rigorous scrutiny. 'Inside' and 'Boeotian' are threatening, the former calling on jangly plucked strings, the latter a hectic rhythm that could be dedicated to the cult of Pan. 'Gypsum' is, by contrast, almost folksy. The piano sounds like a modern instrument, but an impeccably well-behaved one.

(*) Overground Emanem 4054 Riley; Barry Guy (b); Tony Oxley (d). 8/74–11/75.
This reveals another facet of a classic trio. Oxley is experimenting with electronics and Guy exploits a measure of amplification, but the real dynamism comes from Riley himself, occasionally amplified, overdubbed on 'Recognition' and strongly foregrounded on the ferociously beautiful 'Pages'. All three players are already pushing at the 'jazz' envelope and though in later years Riley was to reveal more and more of his bop lineage, this period sees him and his like-minded colleagues exploring new territory. Guy is in stunning form on 'Loops' and Oxley's straight percussion is alternately precise and wayward, but never dull.

* Duality Jazzprint JPVP113 Riley (p solo). 6/81.
This was an extraordinarily rich year for Riley, both quantitatively and qualitatively, and this is an outstanding record, reissued in 2002. It's also an excellent point of entry for anyone unfamililar with his work in that the first long track is a free-form improvisation, while the five shorter tracks that follow are form pieces. In them, one can hear Riley experiment, as he often does, with elements of stride, blues, swing and bebop, but always within his own distinctive language. The recording is mostly very true, though one or two pitches waver on the long piece, possibly from tape slackening.

(*) Feathers With Jaki Slam CD 215 Riley; Jaki Byard (p); Mario Castronari (b); Tony Marsh (d). 81–91.
The idea of Riley playing Monk in the company of Jaki Byard would have struck even sympathetic fans as an unlikely one. This, though, is one of the forgotten classics of jazz in Britain, an anomalous but highly creative encounter somewhat akin to the fabled meeting of Cecil Taylor and Mary Lou Williams, though far less acrimonious.

Byard is the more obviously Monk-like in conception and execution, and is far more deeply rooted in blues tonality. However, it's Riley who tends to keep the music on line and within touching distance of the original. The sound-quality isn't all that good, and no better – as we remember it – than the original LP. Released by Leo Records, it's now been compiled with a later Spotlite recording by Riley's Feathers Trio. Some good stuff on that, but people will want this one for the Riley–Byard encounter.

(*) Interchange Jazzprint JPVP109 Riley; Keith Tippett (p). 12/93.
Riley mentions that the first piano duo he remembers hearing was an old 78 of James P. Johnson and Clarence Williams, and he points to the combination of subtlety and 'orchestral' power the instrumentation yields. The Riley–Tippett duo's first recordings are noted below ('in brief'). It's difficult to say how this one differs, except as a function of how both men have changed as individuals. Tippett probably allows more space than he did; Riley has a more forcible attack. However, only someone particularly anxious to separate two voices is going to worry about who is playing what line at a particular moment. The status of the title isn't entirely clear, but what one hears is almost an hour of continuous creative interchange, highly responsive and respectful. The digital recording is of very high quality, though perhaps a little intimately mic-ed for some tastes.

(*) Wishing On The Moon Future Music FMR CD 14 Riley; Mario Castronari (b); Tony Marsh (d). 95.
* Descending Circles Blueprint BP221 Riley; Elton Dean (as, saxello); Mario Castronari (b); Mark Sanders (d). 10/95.
The mid-'90s saw Riley perhaps shifting emphasis back to group playing (often with Dean as co-leader, but also with Art Themen) and at the same time taking a greater interest in composition. There is a more tightly reined and briskly registered attack, a more straightforward approach to the chords, and a freely melodic approach that often suggests a standard lies somewhere behind the theme, an enigma being subjected to fresh variation, but never openly declared.

The trio with Castronari and Marsh is as different from the early-'70s group as its very different personnel would suggest. Both are forceful players who are also capable of sitting out when required, or heading off on parallel courses of their own. The integrity and cohesion of the older group isn't there, but in its place there's a sparkle and lightness of touch which carries over into the quartets as well. Dean is marvellous in these contexts, and his writing for the group is different enough from Riley's to maintain interest. 'Descending Circles' is an almost definitive Riley composition: sturdy, well-rooted, harmonically fascinating, but with a usefully problematic shape and direction. The group sound less secure on two spontaneous improvisations. This isn't Castronari's bag, one suspects, though he throws himself into it with a will. Playing with a horn pushes Riley further than usual into a chords mode, but with no sign that he feels constrained or uncomfortable. An earlier record, All The Tradition, is listed under Dean's leadership.

(*) Classics (Live) Slam CD222 Riley; Art Themen (ss, ts); Mario Castronari (b); Trevor Tomkins (d). 5/96.
Co-led with saxophonist Themen, who famously combines his jazz activities with a career as an orthopaedic surgeon, this is a further attempt by Riley to build bridges between repertory jazz and freer forms of improvisation. Monk has always been a profound inspiration (as he was on Themen's regular employer Stan Tracey) and it's no surprise to hear them both tear into 'Straight, No Chaser' with such gusto. 'Body And Soul' has long been the tenor-player's test-piece, but here Themen deconstructs it rather than simply exploring its changes. It's a refreshing and powerfully spontaneous performance. Riley seems to have some difficulties with the piano, though they may be of his own making, since his playing is so intense in places the keys must have warped. As ever, he plays through them, constructing unexpected chords and stringing together powerfully melodic phrases that are both unpredictable and wholly logical.

* At Lincoln Cathedral Heliopause HPVP105 + enhanced CD Riley (p solo). 9/01.
On the face of it, this sounds like an ideal context for Riley: a fine Steinway piano and the magnificent acoustic of one of England's most impressive church buildings. The reality is well up to expectation, a concentrated and very thoughtful solo recital which shows up even better on the Binaural Surround Sound Stereo tracks on CD2; the final cut, with video, requires a DTS decoder/surround amplifier or all you will hear is white noise.

Riley uses the cathedral acoustics as part of his performance, allowing slow decays and echo to generate another level of harmonic activity. He also exploits the extremes of his instrument, notably on the very beautiful 'Timeless', knowing that their effect will be considerably heightened in this environment. A single standard, 'Round Midnight', is played with unexpected plainness, allowing the richness of a much-performed and therefore under-appreciated theme to shine through without extravagant variation of deconstruction. A marvellous set, for which promoter Rob Ayling, engineers Chris Thorpe and Dallas Simpson, and film-maker Steve Lee deserve a full share of credit.

(*) Duology Slam CD249 Riley; Lol Coxhill (ss). 3/02.
On paper, this doesn't sound an altogether probable encounter, except that both pianist and saxophonist come to free improvisation with a deep understanding of jazz that surfaces at unexpected intervals. The two longest items on the set, 'Two Timing' and 'Interplay', are excellent examples of how much both these players have invested of themselves in this music. Coxhill's deceptively shrill approach disguises a real sensitivity to nuance, while Riley's 'classicism' is classical the way Thelonious Monk was classical. The CD was recorded over two sessions in the famous Holywell Room at Oxford, the first of them a private recording session. There is a small difference in acoustic between that session and the concert tape, testimony to what a sensitive recording space the Holywell is. It certainly brings out the best in these remarkable musicians.

* Short Stories (Volume Two) Slam CD 270 2CD Riley (p solo). 6/04; 8/06.
The music here is of quite staggering richness, with every track immaculately conceived and executed. Some of these compositions – try 'Still Standing' on disc two for an illustration – are so naggingly familiar one wonders if they were once included in some forgotten Bill Evans recital. Others have the freedom and immediacy of spontaneous composition and it is genuinely difficult to tell whether Riley is working to a predetermined template or whether he really is creating these forms in real time. Riley has always been attracted to the notion of the musical 'short story', and the exploration of narrative that combines unity of mood with some linear progression, and some sense of 'well-made' structure within freedom. The technique is correct, fluent and with the deep Monk-influenced pulse one expects from Riley. It's quite a surprise, right at the end of disc two on 'Roots', when he reaches inside the soundbox and plays direct on the strings for a moment before launching off into a blues-soaked improvisation that recalls not just Monk, but also his erstwhile associate the late Jaki Byard. A remarkable coda. (The original Short Stories were recorded in 1998/9 and released on ESP.)

(*) Two Is One Emanem 4127 Riley (overdubbed p). 7/05.
Riley's first experiment in overdubbed piano duo for nearly 25 years (see below, 'in brief'), this is a richly confident recital created as close to real time as is possible in such circumstances by Riley reacting to a playback of the first improvisational 'take'. There are moments when he seems to embellish, noticeably later on in the recording (if these are, indeed, presented in recorded order), but for the most part he builds countermelodies and contentious responses to his first idea, often varying touch and attack so that many passages sound as if one über-piano is being played rather than a duet. There are echoes of previous Riley improvisations, as might be expected given the richness of his discography, but only 'Osoiretsim' (not difficult to decipher) betrays any external reference. Wonderful stuff, and certainly more than a technical exercise, though the technical demands have been very impressively handled by engineer Steve Lowe.

Also, in brief:

 The Toronto Concert Jazzprint JPVP 11. 77.
By no means typical Riley: a Liszt-like bravura in places, and lots of high-volume stuff without the usual shading.

(*) Trisect Jazzprint JPVP 116. 5/80.
An extended exercise in three-part overdubbing.

 Organic Jazzprint JPVP 115. 81.
Originally issued as part of a three-LP set with Trisect and First Encounter. John Stevens's lighter, simpler drumming actually suits the Riley–Guy axis very well indeed.

() First Encounter / () In Focus Jazzprint JPVP 114 & 121. 5/81, 84.
With Keith Tippett, as spontaneous and emotional as Riley is analytical and outwardly reserved.

() Procession /  The Heat Of Moments / () Beyond Category Wondrous WM 0101 / 0103 / 0104. 4/90, 4/91–4/92, 2/93.
Plaudits to Brian Miller of Wondrous for issuing these highly atmospheric solo sessions.

(*) Air Play Slam 244. 4/00.
Riley reasserts his debt to Monk with the resounding title-track.

 Another Part Of The Story /  Pianoforte Emanem 4088 / Slam CD 257. 8/02; 10/03.
Story is an extraordinary three-piano encounter with old associate Keith Tippett and AMM man John Tilbury. Pianoforte is solos and duets involving Tippett again, Pat Thomas and Stephen Grew.

 Consequences 33 Records 33JAZZ126. 5/03.
He continues to challenge critical superlatives with another remarkable solo recording.

Sammy Rimington (born 1942)

CLARINET, ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, VOICE

Born in London, he began playing with Ken Colyer and other trad stalwarts around 1960. Moved to the USA in 1965, subsequently to New Orleans. Returned to Europe and by the '90s was as eminent as many of his former heroes.

 Clarinet King In Norway Herman HJCD 1001 Rimington; Andy Finch (p); Ole Olen (b); Søren Houlind (d). 12/77.
 The Exciting Sax Of Sammy Rimington Progressive PCD-7077 Rimington; David Paquette (p, v); Walter Payton (b); Placide Adams, Stanley Stephens, Ernest Elly (d). 4/86–4/91.
 More Exciting Sax Of Sammy Rimington Progressive PCD 7088 Rimington; Phamous Lambert (p); Lloyd Lambert (b); Ernie Elly (d). 5/94.
Rimington has had a strange career: a stalwart with Ken Colyer, a transplantation to Louisiana, where he became a bosom friend of Capt. John Handy, a flirtation with jazz-rock and now occasional sightings in sundry pick-up groups, like these. The two Progressive albums feature him exclusively on alto, where he sounds like Handy but phrases as if he were brother to Johnny Hodges: the result is a queer hybrid, soaked in a woozy kind of romanticism. Engagingly done, although the sound-mix (with the piano in the distance, the drums right up front) doesn't assist on the earlier disc. The second sounds better and goes along at a jollier pace, with Rimington this time sounding more like a jump-band hornman on a featured night of his own. The Herman album resuscitates a set made by Rimington's quartet at the end of a 1977 tour. He sticks to clarinet, and his own playing, from the beautifully inflected 'Hymn For George Lewis' to the bodacious 'Lou-Easy-An-I-A', is excellent. But the rhythm section is hamfisted, and Rimington needs another horn as some kind of context.

 Plays Spirituals And Hymns Jazztime JTCD-002 Rimington; Freddie John (tb); Jon Marks (p); Brian Turnock (b); Didier Geers (d). 10/84.
 Live In Switzerland Sam 002 As above, except omit Turnock, Geers; add John Coles (bj); Michel Verstraeten (b); Sven Stahlberg (d). 87.
 Live At Meilen Jazzclub Jazztime JTCD-003 As above, except omit Coles, Verstraeten; add Karl-Åke Kronqvist (b). 10/97.
Jazztime and Rimington's own label Sam have begun issuing archive performances, and these are four examples. Spirituals And Hymns is a good mix of dirges and uptempo pieces, even if again the sound isn't terrific; and nor is it on Live In Switzerland, although this seems to have been a happy occasion and the band play well. Rimington is so obviously the star of his own groups that the merely capable players he works with don't seem to set him too much in the way of challenges. At least the 1997 gig at Meilen was better recorded, and there are some interesting tune choices to go with the more familiar material.

 Live 'In Store' At The Louisiana Music Factory 504 CDS 74 Rimington; Clive Wilson (t); Lester Caliste (tb); Bob Broockman (p); Les Muscutt (bj); Gerald Adams (b); Frank Oxley (d). 1/98.
 Very Live At Pakefield Rose RRCD 1020 Rimington; Cuff Billett (t); Mike Pointon (tb); Nick Dawson (p); Louis Lince (bj); Annie Hawkins (b); John Petters (d). 3/99.
Recorded at one of the leading record stores in the French Quarter, here's a recent Rimington crew tackling a dozen favourites from the NO book. Broockman has been playing in the city since the '40s, but this was his first record date; Caliste works for the Post Office but plays nights. Wilson and Rimington are old playing companions from many years before, in the Barry Martyn band. Inevitably, the feel is good-natured fun, and any blemishes are easily forgiven. Not the record Rimington fans have necessarily been waiting for, but good-hearted. The Pakefield date sets him up with a John Petters group, which bridges trad and Gene Krupa-styled swing in the leader's own drumming if nothing else. Billett is in good heart and Rimington puts down a vintage 'Burgundy Street Blues'.

Also, in brief:

() Live At Wettingen Jazztime JTCD-004. 9/83.
Noisily recorded and slipshod.

() One Swiss Night Music Mecca 1021-2. 11/91.
A second-rate band and some very dull material.

Sam Rivers (born 1923)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE, PIANO, VOICE

Born in El Reno, Oklahoma, he studied composition and viola in Boston and played sax in local bands. Backed R&B singers and show groups, but also worked with Miles Davis (1964) and Cecil Taylor (1968–73), composed, and led bands and sessions. Ran Studio RivBea, a focal point for New York jazz in the '70s, and has been one of the major teachers in American jazz.

 Fuchsia Swing Song Blue Note 90413 Rivers; Jaki Byard (p); Ron Carter (b); Tony Williams (d). 12/64.
Rivers's debut on Blue Note was a shrewd attempt to blend marketable hard bop with an altogether more abstract and edgy approach to composition. The title-tune here might have made it on to jukeboxes, but the others, with the possible exception of the evergreen 'Beatrice' (dedicated to his then wife), are chewier fare. 'Ellipsis' is probably the telling title. For all the formidable chording and time-keeping of a vintage band, the tracks move in quite unexpected directions, both harmonically and rhythmically and few of the tunes are genuinely memorable, which is why they haven't turned up in other bandleaders' songbooks.

 Contours Blue Note 731613 Rivers; Freddie Hubbard (t); Herbie Hancock (p); Ron Carter (b); Joe Chambers (d). 5/65.
Rivers's second record for Blue Note has only recently reappeared on CD. Its overall tone might best be characterized by the title of the final piece, 'Mellifluous Cacophony'. The saxophonist seems to be steering a line between relatively orthodox post-bop and free jazz. It's curious how often Hubbard turns up on projects of this kind at the time – Dolphy's Out To Lunch! is the other obvious inside-outside example – and he contributes somewhat to an impression of listening to a set of highly musical conjoined twins, Chang and Eng with very different tastes. 'Dance Of The Tripedal' is perhaps the only place where it falls apart, but 'Euterpe', a signature Rivers theme, and 'Point Of Many Returns' are both very successful. The set has the usual Blue Note production quality and the band sound as if they had more than adequate time to rehearse these demanding themes, so the production gloss more than matches up to the daring of the project. Slightly dated now, but still vigorous.

(*) Trio Live Impulse! IMP 12682 Rivers; Arild Andersen, Cecil McBee (b); Barry Altschul (d). 8 & 10/73.

Rivers was content to leave a significant measure of freedom in his trio performances. Larger units tended to have more structure, but these recordings, albeit highly developed, are the sketchpads on which he worked out ideas. Even so, there is a clear continuity between these multi-sectioned works and the long-form compositions showcased on the much later big-band Inspiration, the same blend of structure and freedom. Most of this material, recorded weeks apart at the Molde Jazz Festival in Norway and at Yale University, has been heard before, but on a bizarre range of Impulse! compilations. Presented as performed, it reveals the organization even in Sam's most free-floating work. The two sets, 'Suite For Molde' and the Yale piece, 'Hues For Melanin', are subdivided according to the leader's choice of horn. The long soprano section of 'Hues' was formerly available on Impulse! Artists On Tour; the flute section was issued on The Drums; the remainder, and the soprano and flute sections of 'Suite For Molde', was issued on a Rivers record called Hues, with the rest of the 'Suite' released as No Energy Crisis.

These are now collectors' items. The beauty of having the material on one format is that it is possible to track the progress of improvisations. Rivers characteristically trades ideas from one instrument to another. The most obvious traffic is between the tenor and flute. Sam often recasts a phrase many minutes later, allowing it to resettle into a new instrumental idiom. It's a fascinating process, and anyone with the technical wherewithal to scoot back and forth from one track to another will learn a great deal about his musical thinking.

(*) Colors Black Saint 120064 Rivers; Marvin Blackman (ts, f, ss); Talib Kibwe (f, cl, ts, ss); Chris Roberts (ss, f); Steve Coleman (as, f); Bobby Watson (as, f); Nat Dixon (ts, cl, f); Eddie Alex (ts, picc); Jimmy Cozier, Patience Higgins (bs, f). 9/82.

This spectacular convocation of New York reed-playing talent went under the name Winds Of Manhattan. Dominated by flutes and without a rhythm section, it creates a sound that is absolutely consistent with everything Rivers had been doing over the previous 20 years, but scaled up dramatically. The usual interests in wave-forms, flux and unity, dispersement and integration, come together again in these complex charts. Rivers is unmistakably the leader, in that he determines the basic concepts, but the music as a whole is democratic and very broadly based. Those familiar with Coleman or Watson or even with the distinctive Kibwe may well be able to pick out their voices, but this is not the point of the exercise, and Colors is best listened to as an orchestral piece, relatively undifferentiated and a long way removed from conventional theme-and-solos jazz.

* Portrait FMP CD 82 Rivers (ts, ss, f, p, v solo). 6/95.

A self-portrait presumably and of the artist at over 70, espousing what he describes in a notably effusive liner-note as an 'uninhibited emotion-driven free-flowing river of vibrant, bold, melodic inventions'. It's a piece of text that runs dangerously close to self-review: 'dazzling', 'musical perfection', 'eloquently phrased' and so on. What saves it is that there is hardly a word with which one might disagree. These unaccompanied essays, with their characteristic one-word titles – 'Image', 'Reflection', 'Shadow' and the overlong 'Cameo' – are magnificently crafted and thoroughly imbued with the creator's personality. Full attributions are given for all the instruments used, Keilwerth saxophones, a Bösendorfer Imperial and a Gemeinhardt flute, while under 'voice' it says laconically 'Sam Rivers', which is a version of 'model's own' on the fashion pages. Again, it makes complete sense, for this is the most thoroughly individual thing he has done for many years, a magnificent testament to his creative range, his generosity of spirit and his great, great intelligence.

(*) Concept RivBea 50101 Rivers; Doug Mathews (b); Anthony Cole (d). 2–7/96.

A mixture of studio material recorded at the bassist/producer's homebase and live tracks from Florida, this is a tightly constructed record which has presumably been selected from a wide range of available material. The playing is consistently fascinating. The sound is underpowered and there are occasions when Rivers disappears into the background for no readily discernible reason. Interesting to note that the track titles here are entirely abstract – 'Aspect', 'Concept', 'Notion' – and the music has something of that quality as well, certainly nothing like as personalized, even confessional, as on the FMP session. If that stands as Rivers's highest achievement of recent times, this must be accounted a more tentative project. Though clearly drawing on the shared experience of a working trio, it lacks the intimacy and the quickfire response one might expect from such a unit, working over a six-month period. It would be fascinating to hear some of the material that wasn't released; perhaps over the course of a live set or a day in the studio the logic and the dynamics would make more sense. A fine achievement nevertheless.

(*) Tangens FMP 99 Rivers; Alexander von Schlippenbach (p). 11/97.

This fascinating duo was recorded at the Total Music Meeting in Berlin. Both players defy certain cultural expectations. Schlippenbach is more deeply rooted in post-Monk jazz than in European free music, while Rivers has an entirely original and idiosyncratic stance on free playing that might be said to be closer to European models. The five improvisations documented here are like nothing else from the time, and are completely riveting from start to finish.

 Firestorm / (*) Celebration: Live at the Jazz Bakery in LA RivBea 108 / PosiTone 8017 Rivers; Doug Matthews (b, bcl); Anthony Cole (d, p, ts). 01; 9/03.

The rhythm section from Sam's orchestra turned into a very effective small unit. The eleven New York tracks on the first disc have the usual blend of dry seriousness and fiery intensity, with 'Solace' the obvious standout. The later celebration, of course, was of Sam's 80th birthday, but it wasn't a moment for simply blowing out the candles and accepting all the love in the room. Entering his ninth decade, Rivers is playing as well and as bravely as ever and with Matthews and Cole he has established a sympathetic (and highly flexible, as witness the instrumentation) unit capable of expressing his music with maximum nuance. The track titles – 'Observance', 'Commemoration', 'Effusion', 'Laudation' – have a Coltrane-ish ring to them, but this isn't Sam's A Love Supreme; rather, it's a rugged workout of long-standing melodic and harmonic ideas, and of a playing style that relies increasingly on 'false' notes and unusual fingerings. Sometimes the trio seems a little static, but that is when Rivers has stopped to interrogate a concept with more than usual vigour and those are the moments when the attention should be focused most acutely. The oldtimer isn't coasting to retirement …

Also, in brief:

 Crystals Impulse!/Universal 589760. 74.
A titanic big-band project that showcases Sam's approach to atonal composition. The strong impression is of an overscored and carefully written-out performance, with little or no room for spontaneous soloing or much in the way of improvisation. The sheer density of sound is often offputting, though digital transfer has cleaned it up somewhat.

* Waves Tomato 2030. 8/78.
A neglected masterpiece from one of the most interesting of Rivers's small groups, with tubist Joe Daley, bassist Dave Holland and percussionist Thurman Barker.

 Fluid Motion Isospin Labs 42058. 02.
Mostly material by trombonist David Manson; doesn't feel much like a Rivers date.

 Vista Meta 9. 9/03.
A collaboration with drummer Harris Eisenstadt and percussionist Adam Rudolph. Highly concentrated playing from Rivers, but not one of his more essential recordings.

(*) Purple Violets /  Violet Violets Stunt STUCD 07162. 1/04.
Even Homer nods; these are dull, but mercifully they're strictly drummer Kresten Osgood's.

Max Roach (born 1924)

DRUMS, PERCUSSION

The fierce metres of bebop, with the accent taken on the hi-hat instead of the bass drum, were created by Kenny Clarke, Art Blakey and Max Roach, who in terms of long-term influence may be the most important of the three, and he has continued to create a radical, often politically engaged brand of jazz in which the drum is at the centre of the action. His group M'Boom took this to the extreme.

 Max Roach Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 202 Roach; Idrees Sulieman (t); Leon Comeghys (tb); Gigi Gryce (as); Hank Mobley (ts); Walter Davis Jr (p); Frank Skeete (b). 4 & 10/53.
 The Historic California Concerts 1954 Fresh Sound FSRCD 377 Roach; Clifford Brown (t); Teddy Edwards, Harold Land (ts); Carl Perkins, Richie Powell (p); George Bledsoe, George Morrow (b); Gene Norman (announcer). 4 & 8/54.
(*) Brownie Lives! Fresh Sound FSRCD 1012 Roach; Clifford Brown (t); Sonny Rollins (ts); Richie Powell (p); George Morrow (b). 4 & 5/56.

Unlike Kenny Clarke and Art Blakey, Roach continued to develop a language for the drums that took account of melody and of sound-colour as well. Stylistically, he stands midway between swing drummers like Jo Jones, Dave Tough, Gene Krupa and Big Sid Catlett and the avant-garde of the '60s. If Krupa made the drummer a 'high-price guy', Roach set jazz percussionists free as instrumentalists in their own right. The eponymous 1953 session gives little indication of what is to follow and there are spells where Roach sounds oddly unlike himself. No mistaking the flashes of originality in the writing, even though most of the themes are orthodox bebop. Even at this juncture, the horns sound almost orchestral, though Roach also breaks the band up into constituent parts. Six of the tracks are for quartet only, with brass and a second saxophone bringing a rather special extra dimension to 'Sfax' and 'Orientation'.

Roach's career as leader really took flight only when he formed the now legendary quintet with Clifford Brown. Their rapport was immediate, and for much of the period after Brownie's death one senses Roach searching for a trumpeter to take his place, something he achieved briefly with the equally short-lived Booker Little. Roach himself missed the road accident which killed Brown and Richie Powell, but his career faltered badly. The California dates, recorded either side of a busy summer recording schedule, have been restored in several places and catch the band very authentically, with Roach's brief intros left in and a nice atmosphere. These, though, are very much Brown's sets, not least because he's better recorded than the drums. The live Brownie Lives! comes from a residency at Basin Street in New York, just six weeks before the tragic events of that summer. Understandably billed as a tribute to the trumpeter, it's arresting for what it tells us about the co-leader. Roach is magnificent throughout, and with digital remastering occupies his proper place in the mix. He improvises constantly, shifting and recalibrating the rhythms on 'I Get A Kick Out Of You' and on his brilliant young colleague's 'Daahoud'; the energy passing between the two is palpable.

CORE COLLECTION

* Alone Together
Verve 526373-2 2CD Roach; Clifford Brown, Kenny Dorham, Booker Little, Tommy Turrentine (t); Julian Priester (tb); Ray Draper (tba); George Coleman, Harold Land, Hank Mobley, Paul Quinichette, Sonny Rollins, Stanley Turrentine (ts); Herbie Mann (f); Ray Bryant, Jimmy Jones, Richie Powell, Bill Wallace (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Joe Benjamin, Bob Boswell, Nelson Boyd, Art Davis, Milt Hinton, George Morrow (b); Boston Percussion Ensemble; Abbey Lincoln (v). 9/56–10/60.

A very valuable compilation both with and, later, without Brownie, and an excellent introduction for anyone who hasn't caught up with Roach. Fans of the drummer may well feel that it's better representative of his work than of the trumpeter's – which seems fair, given the relative weight of material. There are two tracks from Max Roach + 4 (see below, 'in brief') and just one from Jazz In 3/4 Time. Most of the rest is later, some of it from less well-known records like The Many Sides Of Max (1959, with Little, Priester and Coleman) and Quiet As It's Kept (1960, with the Turrentines and Priester again). 'Max's Variations' is based on 'Pop Goes The Weasel' and is performed with the Boston Percussion Ensemble, a foreshadowing of later drum orchestra projects like M'Boom.

(*) Jazz In 3/4 Time Verve 000202102 Roach; Kenny Dorham (t); Sonny Rollins (ts); Ray Bryant, Bill Wallace (p); George Morrow (b). 9/56, 3/57.
A cliché now, of course, but at the time the idea of breaking the basic 4/4 of jazz metre was quite radical, let alone recording a whole album of waltz-time improvisations. Roach's 'Blues Waltz' and Rollins's epic 'Valse Hot' are the outstanding performances from a fine and underrated band, which stands up to some of the best of the Brown-era material.

 Deeds, Not Words Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 304 Roach; Booker Little (t); Ray Draper (tba); George Coleman (ts); Art Davis, Oscar Pettiford (b). 9/58.

Roach was bruisingly committed on Deeds, Not Words, a superb statement that makes a nonsense of generic pigeonholes like 'hard bop' but which also feels like the apotheosis of that often derided style. Draper's chesty valvings are not much more than a footnote in recent jazz, but this is one of his more successful appearances, fulfilling an important role in this long-running pianoless group. The CD also includes a duo featuring Roach with Oscar Pettiford which was made during a Sonny Rollins session.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * We Insist! Freedom Now Suite

Candid CCD 79002 Roach; Booker Little (t); Julian Priester (tb); Walter Benton, Coleman Hawkins (ts); James Schenck (b); Ray Mantilla, Thomas Du Vall (perc); Abbey Lincoln (v). 8 & 9/60.

Some works of art are inseparable from the social and cultural conditions which spawned them, and We Insist! is certainly one of these, a record that seems rooted in its moment. Within a few short years, the civil rights movement in the USA was to acquire a more obdurate countenance. On the threshold of the Kennedy years, though, this was as ferocious as it got. The opening 'Driva' Man' (one of Oscar Brown Jr's finest moments as a lyricist) is wry and sarcastic, enunciated over Roach's deliberately mechanical work rhythms and Coleman Hawkins's blearily proud solo, just the kind of thing you might expect from a working stiff at the end of the longest shift in history. It's followed by 'Freedom Day', which, with 'All Africa', was to be part of a large choral work targeted on the centenary of the Emancipation Proclamation. 'Freedom Day' follows Roach's typically swinging address, but is distinguished by a Booker Little solo of bursting, youthful emotion, and a contribution from the little-regarded Walter Benton that matches Hawkins's for sheer simplicity of diction. The central 'Triptych' – originally a dance piece – is a duo for Roach and Lincoln. 'Prayer', 'Protest' and 'Peace' was not a trajectory acceptable to a later generation of militants, but there is more than enough power in Lincoln's inchoate roars of rage in the central part, and more than enough ambiguity in the ensuing 'Peace', to allay thoughts that her or Roach's politics were blandly liberal. The closing 'Tears For Johannesburg' has more classic Little, and also good things from Priester and Benton. It follows 'All Africa', which begins in a vein reminiscent of Billie Holiday, briefly degenerates into a litany of tribal names and slogans, and hinges on a 'middle passage' of drum music embodying the three main Black drum traditions of the West: African, Afro-Cuban and Afro-American. Its influence on subsequent jazz percussion is incalculable, and this extraordinary record remains listenable even across four decades of outwardly far more radical experimentation.

 Members, Don't Git Weary Koch International 8514 Roach; Charles Tolliver (t); Gary Bartz (as); Stanley Cowell (p); Jymie Merritt (b); Chief Bey (v). 10/60.

Coming so soon after Freedom Now!, this is inevitably something of an anti-climax, and it's perhaps more interesting in parts than as a whole. As a showcase for the burgeoning talents of Tolliver, Bartz and Merritt, it's almost an extended audition. Gary is trenchant and intense in his solo spots and Tolliver's bright, metallic tone has rarely since been heard to such advantage, even though his solo building is rather predictable. Andy Bey's vocal on the title-track takes a bit of getting used to. Roach plays his familiar 3/4s and 6/8s against a straight backbeat, giving the album, as so often with this transitional artist, a feeling of belonging to two generations simultaneously.

 It's Time Impulse! 051185-2 Roach; Richard Williams (t); Julian Priester (tb); Clifford Jordan (ts); Mal Waldron (p); Art Davis (b). 62.

It's Time was always a magnificent-sounding record, bright and brash and very accurately balanced. Richard Williams never found wider fame but is at his best here, picking off clean, single-note lines when out front, blurring his sound most attractively in the ensembles, and contributing a steady run of ideas. Priester also has one of his finest moments, a wonderful solo on 'Another Valley' which modulates between A major and A minor and carries an almost biblical authority. In contrast to his rather laid-back approach on Speak, Brother, Speak, Waldron is taut and ambiguous and only the leader's solo sounds padded.

(*) Speak, Brother, Speak Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 646 Roach; Clifford Jordan (ts); Mal Waldron (p); Eddie Khan (b). 10/62.

Driven by the same impulse as We Insist! Freedom Now, this is even more explicitly hooked into the civil rights movement of the time. The four band members are credited as co-composers of the long title-piece, a 25-minute epic based on a blues progression with a suspended interlude which serves to introduce each of the soloists in turn; they then preach on a 'text' suggested by the change in metre. It's a fascinating exercise, though not perhaps the band to have tried it out with. Waldron sounds diffident and uncomfortable, and Khan has little of substance to offer. 'A Variation' is more conventionally driven by a harmonic idea, and both the pianist and Jordan immediately seem easier with it. It must have been fascinating to have been at the Jazz Workshop in San Francisco when this was being recorded. How much more material was taped that day?

(*) Drums Unlimited Atlantic 7567 81361 Roach (d solo) and with Freddie Hubbard (t); Roland Alexander (ss); James Spaulding (as); Ronnie Mathews (p); Jymie Merritt (b). 10/65, 4/66.

The group tracks are little more than a change of pace around Roach's three solo features. The title-track is a meticulously structured and executed essay in rhythmic polyvalence that puts Sunny Murray's and Andrew Cyrille's more ambitious works in context; the second is a further exploration of the inner algebra of 3/4, adding nothing much more than further curlicues; while the last of the pieces is a heart-felt tribute to one of the swing-era drummers who has exerted a strong pull on Roach, Big Sid Catlett. Some of that era also creeps into the writing on 'In The Red', a fascinating idea performed by the group in a rather lacklustre way. Of the additional players, only Hubbard seems sufficiently relaxed, with an autonomous and often implicit pulse. Spaulding and Alexander are inclined to fall into rather mechanical cadences.

 Lift Every Voice And Sing Koch Jazz 8516 Roach; Cecil Bridgewater (t); Billy Harper (ts); George Cables (p); Ruby McClure (b, v); Eddie Mathias (b); Ralph McDonald (perc); J. C. White Singers (v). 71.

This lost Atlantic classic might well have come from the legendary Stax label with the Staples Singers. Roach and former wife Abbey Lincoln have always been interested in the power of gospel and spirituals, and these arrangements of traditional material, some of them by William Bell, some by Lincoln, some by Roach, come at the end of a period in which the music business was rediscovering some of the lost dimensions of black American music. Billy Harper is or should have been a storefront preacher, and Bridgewater, a longtime Roach collaborator, could dep for the Archangel Gabriel. 'Motherless Child', 'Troubled Waters' and 'Joshua' are the strongest and most developed tracks, with the voices beautifully arranged and recorded.

 Streams Of Consciousness Piadrum 39 Roach; Abdullah Ibrahim (p). 9/77.

* Birth And Rebirth /  One In Two – Two In One Black Saint 120024 / hatOLOGY 630 Roach; Anthony Braxton (as, ss, sno, f, cl, cbcl). 9/78, 8/79.

* Historic Concerts Soul Note 121100 2CD Roach; Cecil Taylor (p). 12/79.

The sessions with Ibrahim were undertaken spontaneously and without preparation, as Roach preferred at the time. Mostly it yields results, but the 'stream of consciousness' approach has limitations and sometimes one gets an impression of parallel soliloquies rather than a dialogue. 'Acclamation' is stunning, though, and Roach's cymbal work some of the most dramatic of his career.

The duets with Braxton are a key point. In their anxiety to sort-code music, critics couldn't decide who was climbing into whose pigeonhole, whether Birth And Rebirth was a better example of the reedman's accommodation to the mainstream, or of Roach's avant-garde credentials. In the event, of course, they met exactly head-to-head. Braxton, even of this vintage, is still making respectful gestures towards bop, and Roach is constantly looking for points beyond orthodox time-signatures. The second record sounds more contrived, a series of sharply recorded but ultimately rather empty musical encounters. A suite of four notionally connected arguments, used as the basis for extended improvisation, it calls on a wider range of sounds, not least from Braxton's flute and contrabass clarinet. The prevailing mood is combative rather than genuinely dialectical, abrasive rather than organic and coherent.

By contrast, the summit with Taylor, recorded at the McMillin Theater at Columbia University, is still exhilarating. Both men warm up in their respective corners, before launching into a huge, 40-minute fantasy that sees neither surrendering a whit of individuality. As was noted at the time, it was the perfect occasion to test the cliché about Roach the melodic percussionist and Taylor the percussive pianist and, like all successful sound-bites, it proves to be both helpful and misleading. For much of the opening duet, Roach fulfils a conventional drummer's role, sustaining a time-feel, accelerating and arresting the pace of development, filling and embellishing; it is Taylor who creates the grandly insane melodies that spring away for whole minutes at a time. The second segment unravels more than a little, and there are symptoms of weariness in Roach's soloing. A recorded interview with the participants makes this a valuable historical document.

 Pictures In A Frame /  In The Light Soul Note 121003 / 121053 Roach; Cecil Bridgewater (t, flhn); Odean Pope (ts, f, ob); Calvin Hill (b). 1 & 9/79, 7/82.

The later of this pair already sounds less tentative and a good deal more straightforwardly linear. Pope concentrates on tenor, less on the oboe and flute doubles which give the earlier disc much of its tone-colour. Bridgewater favours a more open sound than before or since. The key tracks are two Monk covers – 'Ruby, My Dear' and 'Straight, No Chaser' – with Roach repositioning the rhythmic commas like the master he is.

 Live At Vielharmonie Soul Note 121073 Roach; Cecil Bridgewater (t, flhn); Dwayne Armstrong (ts); Phil Bower (b); string quartet. 11/83.

(*) Easy Winners Soul Note 121109 Roach; Cecil Bridgewater (t, flhn); Odean Pope (ts); Tyrone Brown (b); Ray Mantilla (perc); string quartet. 1/85.

Roach was much interested at this point in doubling a basic horn-and-rhythm jazz group with string quartet. At the same time, he seemed particularly concerned with exploring aspects of his own personal history, and the 1983 German concert celebrates two of his most important collaborators, Booker Little and, on 'Bird Says', Charlie Parker. The sound isn't absolutely right and there are problems in the balance of the strings, something that was later taken care of in studio settings. Armstrong has a rather blunt and wearying tone when compared with the assertive Pope, and Bower's electric bass was an unhappy compromise, especially when placed in front of acoustic strings.

Roach's daughter Maxine plays viola with the Uptown String Quartet on Easy Winners. The album contains a further memorial to Little and a later, much tougher and more coherent version of 'Bird Says'. The reappearance of Mantilla, who'd performed on We Insist! and with M'Boom seems a little surprising, but he does add an extra dimension. The balance between the two quartets is very much better this time, with lots of space round the strings.

(*) Survivors Soul Note 121093 Roach; Donald Bauch, Guillermo Figueroa (vn); Louise Schulman (vla); Christopher Finckel (clo). 10/84.

(*) Bright Moments Soul Note 121159 Roach; Odean Pope (ts); Tyrone Brown (b); Uptown String Quartet. 10/86.

Survivors continues the strings experiment and takes it a step further by dispensing with a jazz group altogether. This is territory the Kronos Quartet were exploring around the same time, and they must have kicked themselves that they didn't follow up a collaboration with Ron Carter by setting up an encounter with a drummer who sounds more and more as if he is moving away from jazz strictly conceived and out into new territory. 'The Drum Also Waltzes' is an old idea given fresh impetus and a very unexpected sound, but the best of the material is in the vibrant 'Billy The Kid' and the African-influenced 'Smoke That Thunders'. Roach experiments with dotted rhythms and stretched-out passages of suspended harmony in which he is the only active presence.

Bright Moments is necessarily something of a compromise, a step back towards a more conventional jazz idiom and line-up, but by this stage Roach has worked out exactly how and where the two instrumentations clash and merge, and he has devised a language conducive to maximizing their respective strengths.

Also, in brief:

 Max Roach + 4: On The Chicago Scene Emarcy 9110. 6/58.
Another fine late-'50s quintet.

 Max Chessmates 845. 58.
A respectable studio set, with Kenny Dorham (t), Hank Mobley (ts) and Ramsey Lewis (!) (p).

 The Max Roach Trio Featuring The Legendary Hasaan Atlantic 82273. 12/64.
The legend of Hasaan – also known as Ibn Ali, and a strange hybrid of Abdullah Ibrahim and Ahmad Jamal – hasn't really stretched much beyond this record.

 Scott Free Soul Note 121103. 5/84.
Dedicated to the memory of Scott LaFaro, and with Cecil Bridgewater (t) and Odean Pope (ts) very much to the fore.

 It's Christmas Again Soul Note 121153. 6/84.
Lee Konitz (as) and Tony Scott (cl) are guest performers. Absorbing but curiously introspective music.

(*) Collage Soul Note 121059. 10/84.
Live, M'Boom was a terrific outfit, but its energies rarely transferred to record well.

(*) Beijing Trio Asian Improv 0044. 98.
A brave attempt to synthesize jazz with Asian musics; featuring Jon Jang (g) and Jiebing Chen (erhu).

Yves Robert

TROMBONE

French master brass-player, whose typical approach veers from the abstract to the romantic.

 In Touch ECM 1787 Robert; Vincent Courtois (clo); Cyril Atef (d). 3/01.
Robert has appeared before on ECM, in recordings led by Louis Sclavis and Heiner Goebbels and each time one wanted to hear more of him recorded to the label's usual high standard. This, performed by a group sometimes known as La Tendresse, is a delicious album. The three variations on 'In Touch' are simply a showcase for Robert's warm, vocalized tone. Other tracks feature more in the way of interplay, but there are no exposed nerves and raw places in this music, except implicitly on 'Basculement Du Desir'. Instead, it's sensuous, almost erotic and unfailingly lovely.

Bryn Roberts (born 1977)

PIANO

Originally from Winnipeg, he relocated to New York City in 2001.

(*) Ludlow Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 212 Roberts; Seamus Blake (ts); Drew Gress (b); Mark Ferber (d). 6/03, 2/04.
Roberts is one of a cohort of bright young Canadian players working on the broader North American scene. It's nice to see that while he's gone down the inevitable route of moving to the Big Apple, his record was made back in Montreal. The opener is the title-track, an elegant original with a fine structure and lots of harmonic argument. 'Indie' is in an off-centre metre and gives Gress and Ferber lots to chew on. That's essentially the pattern for the record; Roberts seems to hear things in threes and fours, often clumped together to create an initially awkward metre that none the less has a dancing logic. Blake's great in situations like this and his solos are a key element in the record's success.

Luckey Roberts (1887–1968)

PIANO

Started as a child performer in vaudeville, then played piano in Baltimore bars before setting the pace for Harlem pianists from around 1912. Led his own band and wrote prolifically. Figured in the revival of the '40s but never recorded much, and eventually ran a bar.

(*) The Circle Recordings Solo Art SACD-10 Roberts (p solo). 5/46.
 Luckey & The Lion – Harlem Piano Good Time Jazz GTJCD-10035 Roberts; Willie 'The Lion' Smith (p). 58.
Charles Luckeyeth Roberts was a giant of Harlem stride piano, and he was also one of its least-documented performers. One of the titles on the Circle session, 'Shy And Sly', was cut for Columbia as far back as 1916 but was never issued; aside from a few cameo appearances, it wasn't until the '40s that he got himself properly on record. The six tracks on the Solo Art CD sound like a man making up for lost time: they explode with sheer bravado, rhythms taken at a helter-skelter pace, trills and runs and horn-like outbursts folded into each of the pieces. 'Pork And Beans', which Willie 'The Lion' Smith also liked to play, is the one to try first. The rest of the CD is devoted to early tracks by Ralph Sutton.

Luckey joined forces with The Lion for the 1958 album: they share the date rather than playing together. It's a piquant contrast. Roberts was already an old man, but much of his particular flair is intact on the splendid locomotive piece 'Railroad Blues', and 'Complainin'' is a chuckle. Not much evidence of the piano legend but, given the extravagances of Luckey's style, maybe that's all for the best.

Herb Robertson (born 1951)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, POSTHORN, OTHER INSTRUMENTS

A familiar figure on New York's so-called downtown scene in the '80s and '90s, Robertson is on many of the key records from that movement and has a few of his own too.

(*) Transparency Winter & Winter 919002 Robertson; Tim Berne (as); Bill Frisell (g); Lindsey Horner (b); Joey Baron (d). 85.
* Shades Of Bud Powell Winter & Winter 919019 Robertson; Brian Lynch (t); Robin Eubanks (tb); Vincent Chancey (frhn); Bob Stewart (tba); Joey Baron (d). 1/88.
 X-Cerpts: Live At Willisau Winter & Winter 919013 Robertson; Tim Berne (as); Gust William Tsilis (vib); Lindsey Horner (b); Joey Baron (d). 1/88.
A maverick presence on a whole range of downtown projects, Robertson often gives the impression that he only took up the trumpet that afternoon and discovered he had an aptitude for it. His tone is raw, breathy and of a sort to make orthodox brass-teachers throw themselves out of upper-storey windows. However, he's never less than wholly musical and his tight, often pinched sound, which often sounds as if it's coming from a pocket- or piccolo-trumpet, is instantly attractive.

Transparency is one of the best reissues, a bright, brash album with an impressive range of tonalities and timbres. Berne and Frisell are significant contributors, and on two of the long tracks, 'Flocculus' and 'Floatasia', they combine with Herb so confidently and assertively as to suggest this was a permanent band and he a more-experienced leader.

Arranging Bud Powell for a brass ensemble was a genius idea that works brilliantly and yields one of Robertson's own best recorded performances. His level of playing here is almost uncanny as he makes the horn sing on 'Un Poco Loco', 'Hallucinations' and others. Sterling support, too, from Eubanks, Lynch and Stewart.

The live album has some wonderful moments, but the three long tracks are each overcooked in some significant regard, either in the complexity of the chart or the seemingly wilful perversity of what is done with it. As always, Robertson and Berne turn in some fiery and effective playing, but too much of it sounds thrown away.

(*) Certified Winter & Winter 919048 Robertson; David Taylor (btb); Mark Goldsbury (ss, ts, cl); Ed Schuller (b); Phil Haynes (d, perc). 3/91.

The line-up changed quite significantly for Certified. Goldsbury's introduction was slow to gel, but here his multi-instrumentalism gives a new timbral sophistication to the music and allows Robertson to concentrate on new areas of sound. The rhythm section hasn't the flexibility and wit of the Horner–Baron partnership, but Schuller and Haynes are both brightly gifted players and they dig in manfully on 'Cosmic Child' and 'Seeking Seeds In The Blue Bazaar', the two most ambitious tracks, which need a strong pulse to prevent them from fragmenting utterly.

 Falling In Flat Space / (*) Sound Implosion Cadence CJR 1065 / CIMP110 Robertson; Dominic Duval (b); Jay Rosen (perc, v, etc.). 2/96; 3/96.

The story of these two discs is that Falling In Flat Space was sent in to Cadence on spec. Producer Bob Rusch offered the trio a recording and subsequently decided to release the first session as well It has to be said that, given CIMP's audio vérité approach, there isn't much to choose between actual session and presumed demo. Like all the label's output, the sound is raw and very immediate. Strictly, this is a collaborative trio. Sound Implosion begins with a long solo statement from Duval, an expert craftsman who seems unfettered by the example of any previous bass-player and sounds much more European than any North American. Rosen and Robertson both call on a huge range of ancillary sounds – whistles, posthorns, voice, toys, and so on – to vary the weave.

On Falling In Flat Space the main interest lies in three long improvisations in the middle of the set. Almost everything else is preparatory or somehow unachieved. Of the three, 'The Double Stop' is most impressive, but there is also 'We Can't Get Started', an uncredited standard which nods to Mingus here and there. Sound Implosion follows the same course: long and short pieces and a wholly unexpected re-creation of Jimmy Van Heusen's 'Deep Purple'.

(*) Knudstock 2000 Cadence CJR 1117 Robertson; Frank Grasso (picc-t); Steve Swell (tb, p); Bob Hovey (tb); Bob Ackerman (as, ts, cl, f); Knud Jensen (ts); Jim Hart (g, t); Hans Tammen (g); Chris Lough (b); Tom Sayek, Herb Fisher (d). 2/00.

 Brooklyn–Berlin CIMP 218 Robertson; Vinny Golia (cl, sop-cl, as, bcl); Ned Rothenberg (cl, bcl); Ken Filiano (b); Phil Haynes (d). 2/00.

(*) Ritual CIMP 222 Robertson; Phil Haynes (d). 2/00.

(*) Music For Long Attention Spans Leo CD LR 315 Robertson; Steve Swell (tb); Bob Hovey (tb, perc, v); Hans Tammen (g); Chris Lough (b); Tom Sayek (d). 6/00.

Robertson now bases himself in Berlin and this flurry of recording was done on a trip home. It's a mostly disappointing lot, though Robertson himself is rarely to blame. The Knudstock session is a shambolic free blow, three pieces (one which runs for nearly 40 minutes) for 11 musicians, all of them in an unruly mood. Not harsh enough for genuine assaultive shocks, yet without many redeeming features. Brooklyn–Berlin is a quintet session that benefits from three virtuoso horn-players. Golia and Rothenberg wrangle out a truce between themselves, and Robertson gets in some fine moments, but even here some of the pieces ramble past their useful lifespan. The duo set with Haynes was done while everyone else was on a long break at the same sessions. The sleeve-notes highlight an almost mystical experience but, in the cold light of the CD player's digital read-out, it's nothing like as special.

Music For Long Attention Spans sounds like a challenge, and Herb's poem (!) on 'The Status Quo' sounds like a snook cocked at commercial attitudes, audiences who won't listen and the like. OK, but give us more compelling music than this. It's a typical free-jazz jumble, Hovey and Swell barging into each other, and Robertson playing some interesting things but without scoring big points.

(*) Message For The Errand Boy Ninth World NWM033 Robertson; Lotte Anker (ss, as, ts); Peter Friis-Nielsen (b); Peter Ole Jorgensen (d, perc). 7/03.

Officially credited to Mokuto, this has a cheerfully swinging quality underneath the free-ish gestures. Robertson is in fine voice on his usual array of brass. The longer cuts play out briskly enough, but it's probably most effective when the tracks are more coherently shaped and Herb isn't required to dip too frequently into his bag of effects. Anker provides strong support without showing too much individuality as a soloist.

 Elaboration Clean Feed 042 Robertson; Tim Berne (as, bs); Sylvie Courvoisier (p); Mark Dresser (b); Tom Rainey (d). 10/04.

Not strictly a Robertson record, but the NY Downtown All Stars let loose on a single continuous 48-minute improvisation. It has to be said that Robertson leads from the front, playing with all the quirky fire and humour one expects from him and continually finding new ways of making the horn sound different. The others, Courvoisier perhaps excepted, have worked together so often that the empathy is almost instantaneous. Great stuff.

 Live At Alchemia Not Two Records MW776-2 Robertson; Frank Gratkowski (as, cl, bcl); Julien Petit (ts, bs); Marcin Oles (b); Bartolomiej Brat Oles (d). 3/06.

Another consistently entertaining live date from Robertson, recorded in Krakow. The trumpeter is in urgent form, peeling off high, bugling calls against the more discursive approach of the two saxophonists. Gratkowski is, as usual, more effective on his clarinets. There's a strong leaven of humour throughout – on '2 Phone Addicts' notably – and, on 'Fluttering', some dazzling technical work from all concerned. The high-point is 'It Doesn't Work Like That', a long, hyperactive study in frustration. Only the opening 'Nebula' seems a touch … nebulous? Nice live sound, though, and plenty of detail from all five instruments.

Also, in brief:

 The Legend Of The Missing Link Splasc(h) 827. 11/02.

Recorded in Italy with two separate groups. There are longueurs among the septet cuts, though down to unfamiliarity among the players rather than any individual shortcomings. Robertson, as ever, plays brilliantly.

Donald Robinson (born 1953)

DRUMS

A member of What We Live and a regular with the late Glenn Spearman.

 Straight Lines Skewed CIMP 213 Robinson; Marco Eneidi (as); Lisle Ellis (b). 10/00.

Ellis and Robinson are a practised team and their duo passages here are particularly good. Eneidi plays with a kind of strangulated force that throws out terrific energy and his shrilling contribution to, say, 'Brush Up' certainly stirs the blood. But he often sounds oddly isolated from the other two, and, for a trio, there's a surprising sense of compartmentalizing as they go forward. The altoist's relentless astringency does make the collective playing hard work for the listener, although (as so often with sessions from this source) in smaller doses the music's effective.

Jim Robinson (1892–1976)

TROMBONE

He took up the trombone while serving with the US army in France. He played in and around New Orleans for most of his long life. Much of his best work is with George Lewis or Bunk Johnson.

 Jim Robinson's New Orleans Band Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1844 Robinson; Ernest Cagnolotti (t); Louis Cottrell (cl); George Guesnon (g); Alcide 'Slow Drag' Pavageau (b); Alfred Williams (d). 1/61.

 Plays Spirituals And Blues Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1846 As above, except add Annie Pavageau (v). 1/61.

 Classic New Orleans Jazz Vol. 2 Biograph BCD 128 Robinson; Kid Thomas Valentine, Ernest Cagnolotti, Tony Fougerat (t); John Handy (as); Sammy Rimington, Albert Burbank, Orange Kellin (cl); Dick Griffith, George Guesnon, Al Lewis (bj); Dick McCarthy, Alcide 'Slow Drag' Pavageau, James Prevost (b); Sammy Penn, Cie Frazier, Louis Barbarin (d). 8/64–12/74.

 Economy Hall Breakdown Delmark DE235 Robinson; Johnny Wiggs (t); Raymond Burke (cl); Bob Greene (p); Allan Jaffe (tba); Yoichi Kimura (d). 8/65.

 Birthday Memorial Session GHB BCD-276 Robinson; Yoshio Toyama (t); Paul 'Polo' Barnes (cl); James Miller (p, v); Keiko Toyama (bj); Chester Zardis (b); Cie Frazier (d). 73.

The doyen of New Orleans trombonists – along with Louis Nelson – Robinson had turned 80 by the time the last of these records was made, but his simple, perfectly appropriate playing wasn't too bothered by the passing of time, and he performs much as he did on all the sessions he appeared on over a space of some 35 years. The two OJCs were originally a part of Riverside's New Orleans Living Legends series and were among the first occasions when Robinson had been asked to perform as a leader. Cagnolotti and Cottrell weren't much more interested than Jim in taking a lead, and as a result the front line sounds reserved here and there; but the two discs – neatly split between NO standards on the first and gospel and blues tunes on the second – are as tough and genuine as most such sessions from this period. The Biograph disc puts together three sessions stretching across ten years. The first is a noisy and quite exciting gathering of generations – Valentine and Robinson on one side, Rimington and Handy on another – with boisterous music resulting, and the four tracks from the following year are in the same mould; but it's on the closing 'Gasket Street Blues', which features one of Robinson's rare, unaffected solos, that the man himself stands out most clearly.

Economy Hall Breakdown was formerly on Pearl Flapper, and it's great that Delmark have picked it up. Jim hits his notes typically hard, and Wiggs makes up for his reticence with some sharp, glowing solos, picked out of the ensemble like hot cinders. The nominal leader sings on 'Bye And Bye', which is sweet, but it's the band's romp through 'Atlanta Blues' and 'St Peter Street Breakdown' that makes this a memorable set.

On Birthday Memorial the band play with undimmed enjoyment of the occasion. The presence of the Toyamas, the Japanese couple who lived and worked on Bourbon Street for a spell in the late '60s, invigorates the other oldtimers involved on the date, with Yoshio's admiration for Bunk Johnson letting him fit into the group without any sense of strain.

Justin Robinson

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Teamed with veteran players – Gary Bartz, Eddie Henderson, Bobby Watson – on his Verve debut, Robinson shone promisingly but didn't quite capture the spotlight. His sharp, Jackie McLean-influenced alto seems ever more relevant.

 The Challenge Arabesque 137 Robinson; Ron Blake (ts); Stephen Scott (p); Dwayne Burno (b); Dion Parson (d). 98.

Robinson was a schoolmate of pianist Stephen Scott, who also appeared on the debut Just In Time and who had his own brief flirtation with Verve. 'Master Scott' is the leader's affectionate thank you. This is a more settled project than the now deleted first record. Not having to make so much room for guest spots (Blake appears on four tracks), Robinson digs in and shows his stuff. The pace is brisk and often intense, with just one ballad on the set, the mournful 'Love Thy Father'. His take on Herbie Hancock's 'Maiden Voyage' is fresh and original and he shows a fine turn with the pen on new material liked 'Adnil', the brief, intense 'Cognitive Activity' and the longer, more passionate 'No More Sacrifices'. Rodney Kendrick's 'A Little Sweeter' is an inspired choice of material. Some claim to hear an Eric Dolphy influence, but if Robinson is still processing his original inspirations, it is surely Jackie McLean who springs to mind, especially on the blues.

Perry Robinson (born 1938)

CLARINET

Avant-garde clarinettists are something of a rarity; his lonely furrow hasn't resulted in much recording.

 The Eternal Flame Mahaffay Musical Archives no number Robinson; Gone Orchestra. 11/05.

There are earlier Robinson records on imprints like I.A.I., Chiaroscuro and West Wind, but he's never had a secure place in the catalogues. The clarinet sound is keening and often drifts closer to saxophone than the classical norm. It's not entirely well favoured here against this slightly eccentric ensemble, but we approve of anything that keeps Robinson's name highlit.

Scott Robinson (born 1959)

REEDS

Graduated from Berklee and then became its youngest-ever faculty member. Owns loads of saxophones. And clarinets.

 Thinking Big Arbors ARCD 19179 Robinson; David Robinson (t); Dan Barrett (tb); Richard Wyands (p); Mark Shane (p, cel); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Pat O'Leary (b); Klaus Suonsaari (d). 11/97.

 Melody From The Sky: Plays C Melody Saxophone Arbors ARCD 19248 Robinson; Jon-Erik Kellso (t); Mark Shane, Larry Ham (p, org); James Chirillo, Marty Grosz (g); Lee Hudson (b); Greg Cohen (b, b mar); Klaus Suonsaari (d); string quartet. 11/98.
 Jazz Ambassador: Plays The Compositions Of Louis Armstrong Arbors ARCD 19275 Robinson; Mark Shane (p, v); Larry Ham (p, org); Mike LeDonne (org); Pat O'Leary (b); Klaus Suonsaari (d). 02.
The Anthony Braxton of mainstream-swing: Robinson wheels out his entire range of horns and a theremin on Thinking Big, playing contrabass sax on 'Ko Ko' and a regular bass sax on 'Stompin' At The Savoy' and a couple of others. He even plays contrabass sarrusophone on 'Mandy, Make Up Your Mind', which historians of the music will recognize as a shrewd homage.

Scott sticks to the C melody horn on Melody From The Sky. It sounds a trifle odd, but with a few 'C' references dropped here and there, he makes a virtue of it. The material and instrumentation is nicely varied: Cohen actually plays a bass marimba that used to belong to Sun Ra – nothing avant-garde or intergalactic about the music, though. There is, ironically, something a bit way out right at the end of Jazz Ambassador (which also features a cheeky, Pops-referencing cover). Scott's interpretation of 'Tears' is decidedly odd, and there are frequent allusions to or resorts to bop harmony through the album.

Spike Robinson (1930–2001)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

An American who came to Britain on a navy posting in 1951, he was a frequent visitor to the UK. He started on alto but became a cool midstreamer in the Lester Young style.

(*) At Chesters Volumes 1 & 2 Hep CD 2028 / 2031 Robinson; Eddie Thompson (p); Len Skeat (b); James Hall (d). 7/84.
 The Gershwin Collection Hep CD 2042 Robinson; Brian Lemon (p); Len Skeat (b); Allan Ganley (d); strings. 10/87.
Although he played tenor subsequently, Robinson was an altoman entirely under Parker's spell when he made some early tracks in London in 1951. Robinson's switch to tenor may have deprived us of a fine Bird-man, but his command of the bigger horn is scarcely less impressive on what were comeback recordings. His models were Getz, Sims and – at the insistence of some – Brew Moore, but Robinson was deft enough to make the comparisons sound fully absorbed. The two live records, made in Southend on a 1984 British visit, are wonderfully light and swinging, as if the tenor were an alto in his hands. Volume 1 has the edge for a couple of ethereal ballads and the swing which is piled into 'Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone'. Vivid location recording.

The Gershwin disc flirts with mush and just about gets away with (from) it. Jimmy Deuchar's arrangements are drily romantic. There are half a dozen quartet tracks as well, which help the album as a whole keep shape.

 Three For The Road Hep CD 2045 Robinson; Janusz Carmello (t); David Newton (p); Louis Stewart (g); Paul Morgan (b); Mark Taylor (d). 7/89.
 Stairway To The Stars Hep CD 2049 Robinson; Brian Kellock (p); Ronnie Rae (b); John Rae (d). 10/90.
 Spike Robinson And George Masso Play Arlen Hep CD 2053 Robinson; George Masso (tb); Ken Peplowski (cl, ts); John Pearce (p); Dave Green (b); Martin Drew (d). 10/91.
 Plays Harry Warren Hep CD 2056 Robinson; Victor Feldman, Pete Jolly (p); Ray Brown, John Leitham (b); John Guerin, Paul Kreibich (d). 12/81–8/93.
Robinson continued on his steady way. Three For The Road makes for an amiable blowing match between a seasoned cast: nothing fancy, and nothing untoward. Play Arlen is another dependable, likeable record, with Masso and Peplowski (who's on only two tracks) as foils. The trombonist plays quirkily enough to make one think of Bill Harris, and it's a strong counterpoint to Spike's gentlemanly playing. But the snug, tasteful rhythm section keep dragging the music back into formulaic mainstream. The live-in-Edinburgh Stairway is mildly disappointing, but only because Spike seems short of ideas; the dependable section, with Kellock in lyrical form, offers him every opportunity, but ... Spike's 'modern' career came full circle with Plays Harry Warren, which couples a reissue of his 1981 set for Discovery with a new date made in 1993 with a different American rhythm section. There's an almost seamless transition between the two dates and the playing is as handsome as one might expect – though, without another horn out front, Robinson sometimes lets himself drift off – and as charming as ever.

(*) The CTS Session Hep CD 2098 Robinson; John Williams (p); Louis Stewart (g); Bill Crow (b); Pete Cater (d). 10/98.
The idea was a Stan Getz tribute date with a version of Stan's old rhythm section, but drummer Frank Isola took ill. In addition, Robinson's tenor was stolen on tour in Britain. There's no edge and no sense of problems afoot in the playing. Spike's light, by now seemingly effortless approach lets him glide over 'Smoke Gets In Your Eyes' as if it were no more substantial than smoke. Stewart makes a few well-judged appearances on acoustic guitar, a nice variation of sound.

 Young Lions Old Tigers Jazzizit 0022 Robinson; Derek Nash (ss, as, ts, bs, perc); Nick Weldon (p); Rob Richenburg (b); Pete Carter (d). 5/00.
Spike's passing lends a little sadness to this genial date, which showed him not so much jousting with Nash as lending a helping hand in sundry two-sax workouts. It's very good-natured, but it should have dawned on anyone following Spike's work by now that that was his whole style, a gentlemanly delivery of a kind which is vanishing all too quickly.

Phil Robson (born 1970)

GUITAR

Excellent group player (Partisans, etc.) and composer.

 Impish Babel BDLV 2235 Robson; John Taylor (p); Dave Whitford (b); Asaf Sirkis (d). 02.
 Screenwash Babel BDLV 2445 Robson; James Genus (b); Billy Hart (d). 04.
Robson combines the Wes Montgomery and Barney Kessel styles with Hendrix and Slash; he's also close to (though more interesting than) the Bill Frisell mode in which electricity offers ranges of options rather than sheer volume or distortion. The inclusion of Taylor on the first album is a sign that Robson values the pastoral lyricism that the great pianist brings to his jazz. On the strength of the debut no one could possibly grudge Robson his moment with star Americans or indeed his fitness for the job. His arrangement of John Lennon's 'Jealous Guy' sits alongside classics like Wayne Shorter's 'Ju Ju' and some strong originals with no strain, and Phil's solo playing is first-class.

Joe Roccisano (1949–97)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE

A warm-hearted lover of the music, influenced by Parker and Phil Woods.

 Nonet Double Time 138 Roccisano; Greg Gisbert (t); Conrad Herwig (tb); Tim Ries (ts); Jack Stuckey (bs); Bill Charlap (p); Doug Weiss (b); Terry Clarke (d). 10/97.

Relatively unusually for Joe, he opens what was to be his last record with Trane's 'Moment's Notice' and 'Mr Day'. There's less surprise on the rest of the record, but he's playing well, with the usual Phil Woods inflection and sometimes a hint of Jackie McLean as well. The sadness of this is that Joe Roccisano died less than a month after the sessions were completed.

Betty Roche (born 1920)

VOICE

Originally from Wilmington, Delaware, she sang in Harlem with the Savoy Sultans and Hot Lips Page and enjoyed two spells with Duke Ellington.

 Singin' And Swingin' Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1718 Roche; Jimmy Forrest (ts); Jack McDuff (org); Bill Jennings (g); Wendell Marshall (b); Roy Haynes (d). 1/61.

 Lightly And Politely Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1802-2 Roche; Jimmy Neeley (p); Wally Richardson (g); Michael Mulia (b); Rudy Lawless (d). 1/61.

Roche made only a handful of sides with Duke's orchestra: her set-piece was a version of 'Take The "A" Train' which incorporated a long scat episode. Duke liked her style: 'she had a soul inflexion in a bop state of intrigue'. Her Bethlehem tracks of the '50s have been available but are now out of print . These 1961 sessions are a modest but enjoyable memento of her art. Bop appears on Singin' And Swingin' with 'Billie's Bounce', but her huskier ballad delivery takes some of the slush out of 'When I Fall In Love', and her Anita O'Day influence shows through in a certain wry sidelong delivery of some of the lyrics. That trait is more exposed on the cooler, slower Lightly And Politely. Some of the lyrics she seems to phrase in abruptly chopped sections, a little like Abbey Lincoln, and it lends a curious detachment to heartbroken stuff like 'Jim'. By the end of the record, however, one feels that she has made the songs her own.

Manuel Rocheman

PIANO

He grew up in Paris, and was inspired by the records of Oscar Peterson. Studied in New York with Jaki Byard and Tommy Flanagan and more recently has been Martial Solal's only piano student.

 Trio Urbain Nocturne NPCD 504 Rocheman; François Moutin (b); Peter Gritz (d). 90.

(*) White Keys Nocturne NPCD 513 Rocheman; François Moutin (b); Louis Moutin (d). 92.

Rocheman received the imprimatur of none other than Martial Solal for his debut recording. The great man emphasized not only Manuel's originality and strong harmonic sense, but also his obvious understanding of the tradition. That's obvious enough from the superb interpretation of 'Body And Soul', which effectively recomposes the song rather than merely working the changes.

The Moutins are twins and like all close siblings are as capable of contention as they are of telepathic communication. Their edgy sensibility is a key component of the very fine White Keys, and while Rocheman's solo 'Caravan' is a key track, their contribution on a notably spiky 'Bluesette' and a deceptively wispy 'You And The Night And The Music' makes the record the success it is.

 Tropic City A Records AL 73033 Rocheman; Christophe Wallemme (b); Simon Goubert (d). 96.

The Latin flavour here is easily explained. Over the preceding period, Rocheman and his trio had been making regular forays into Central America and the Spanish tinge is evident from the beginning. At moments, the pianist might recall similar work by Michel Camilo or Gonzalo Rubalcaba, but his touch is both more direct and more floridly elaborate, and retains an almost classical quality. Goubert is a fine leader in his own right, of course, and he brings great authority to the rhythm section.

* Come Shine Sony/Columbia COL 491869-2 Rocheman; George Mraz (b); Al Foster (d). 98.

(*) I'm Old Fashioned Sony/Columbia COL 497620-2 As above, except add Riccardo Del Fra (b); Simon Goubert (d). 00.

The first 'American album' and a chance to say straightforwardly that Rocheman sounds as easy in this prestigious company as his countryman Michel Petrucciani did with Stateside players. The rhythmic complexity of the opening 'Zig Zag' (an original) gives the senior players plenty to think about and do, and the date is bookended with a sparkling read of Charlie Parker's 'Au Privave'. The more lyrical material includes 'My Funny Valentine' and 'I Fall In Love Too Easily'. Mraz is in impeccable form and Foster has an uncanny ability to change his register to suit almost anyone he works with. A small triumph, so why wasn't it more widely acknowledged?

There's an audible inconsistency between the 'American' and 'French' groups on the second of the Columbia dates: not a slippage of quality but a definite change of timbre and sound-philosophy. The recording is notably good, with a live stereo sound that captures the immediacy of these groups and their ability to think fast on their feet. Again, very impressive, with Bill Evans's 'Very Early', Coltrane's 'Countdown' and Foster's 'Missing Miles' among the highlights, but still not as immediately compelling as its predecessor.

* Cactus Dance Nocturne NPCD 532 Rocheman; Scott Colley (b); Antonio Sanchez (d). 06.

Easy to forget at this stage how long he's been around, with every album coming out of the traps with an air of fresh adventure and youthful confidence. Again, there is a strong Latin tinge to this, but probably the best mark to date of Rocheman's exploratory urge is alternative versions (in 4/4 and 7/4 respectively) of Cole Porter's 'I Love You' right at the end of the set. He's too 'lucky' with his sidemen for it not to be impeccable judgement; Colley rarely puts a foot wrong anywhere, but this must be one of his best recorded performances.

() Alone At Last / () Live At The New Morning Hall RDC Records 640133 2 / 401339 2 CD/DVD Rocheman (p solo). 03; 9/03.

The solo album seemed a very long time coming. Rocheman's devotion to the piano trio showed no sign of waning, but clearly this was an important parallel ambition. What he has learned is to absorb some of the role of bass and drums into his left-side playing. This is a more obviously two-handed pianist than we've heard before, and on 'Donna Lee', 'Take The "A" Train' and his own 'Chromatic Boogie', Manuel creates performances of real grandeur.

He plays pretty much the same programme on the live album. The DVD captures a player who, like Bill Evans or Keith Jarrett, does seem to play in a state of grace, though one senses that Rocheman is always somehow in control and not above a bit of showmanship. The studio versions of most of these cuts are generally better, but the visuals provide an entertaining dimension, if not diversion. Ironically, perhaps the poorest sound of his career. He is one of those rare figures who benefits from the studio.

Bob Rockwell

TENOR SAXOPHONE

One of those tenor-players you always seem to find mid-solo.

 No Rush /  On The Natch Steeplechase SCCD 31219 / 31229 Rockwell; Butch Lacy (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b); Jukkis Uotila (d). 11/85, 2/86.
For a man who's turned out a dozen records since, No Rush is an ironic title for a first (actually not quite his first, but the earliest survivor) album. It's solid tenor-and rhythm playing, and to be honest you couldn't say less or more than any of those that follow. Some have their high-points, some seem to trip into formula, but they're all reliable and enjoyable. The first two discs were recorded at the same sessions. So even are they in quality that it's hard to answer whether there's really enough material for two well-filled CDs. As his name rather appealingly suggests, Rockwell is about reliability rather than high drama.

() Bob Rockwell Trio / () Reconstruction Steeplechase SCCD 31242 / 31270 Rockwell; Joe Locke (vib on Reconstruction only); Rufus Reid (b); Victor Lewis (d). 1/89; 5/90.
If we had to plump for a favourite Rockwell disc, it would have to be Trio. It's a tough gig, playing tenor, bass and drums with no harmony instrument in support. He holds his line with impressive authority, blitzing through a bop staple like 'Bird Feathers' with impressive puff, and turning his blues-tinged choruses elsewhere in all manner of original directions. If you only have room for one Rockwell record, it should be this one.

That said, Joe Locke lights up any date, and his role on Reconstruction, though in far from a 'rhythm section' capacity, makes Rockwell's shift a lot easier. Joe's such a phenomenal group player and guest artist that his genius as a performer is often eclipsed rather than overlooked. He's in exquisite form here and the extra point is very much for his playing.

(*) Bob's Wilder: A Salute To Alec Wilder Stunt STUCD 03072 Rockwell; Marten Lundgren (t); Kasper Villaume (p); Marc Davis (p); Karsten Bagge (d). 03.
 Bob's Ben: A Salute To Ben Webster Stunt STUCD 05042 Rockwell; Ben Sidran (p); Billy Peterson (b); Leo Sidran (d). 5/04.
A new label for Bob, and already he's established a pattern of recording! Of these, the Wilder project is the one: better playing and better music, too, from one of those perennially underrated figures who's championed by musicians and rarely taken sufficiently to heart by the public. Sensibly, Rockwell makes no real attempt to pastiche Webster's famous sound. There are hints of it here and there, and some of the phrasing sounds like it's been influenced by Ben, but it's kept subtle rather than overt.

Also, in brief:

 Light Blue Steeplechase SCCD 31326. 1 & 12/92.
Bassist Jesper Lundgaard is a great duo player. He's the key to the success of this one.

 Born To Be Blue Steeplechase SCCD 31333. 2/93.
A drummerless trio, it drifts towards the soporific in places.

 Shades Of Blues Steeplechase SCCD 31378. 5/95.
A pleasant repertory quartet, but very like a dozen others on the label.

Claudio Roditi (born 1946)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, VOICE

Born in Rio, he studied at Berklee, then moved to New York in 1976. Worked with Paquito D'Rivera, but is also heard playing a mix of Latin and unadorned hard-bop styles.

(*) Free Wheelin' Reservoir RSRCD 136 Roditi; Andres Boiarsky (ss, ts); Nick Brignola (ss, bs); Mark Soskin (p); Buster Williams (b); Chip White (d). 7/94.
 Samba – Manhattan Style Reservoir RSRCD 139 Roditi; Jay Ashby (tb); Greg Abate (as); Andres Boiarsky (ss, ts); Helio Alves (p); John Lee (b); Duduka Fonseca (d). 5/95.
() Double Standards Reservoir RSRCD 148 As above, except add Hendrik Meurkens (hca), Gil Goldstein (p), Marty Ashby (g), David Finck (b), Chip White (d). 9–10/96.
Roditi doing a tribute to Lee Morgan sounds like a recipe for overcooking it. Yet Free Wheelin' comes close to being exactly the classic album the trumpeter might have in him. This is the best band he's had in the studio: Boiarsky is a heavyweight, and the rhythm section, especially the inimitable Williams, are right there with the horns. But it's Roditi's concentration of his own powers that impresses here. Without trading in any of his fire, he keeps all his solos tight and impeccable, which makes flare-ups like those on 'Trapped' and 'The Joker' all the more exciting. 'The Sidewinder' follows the original arrangement – in his notes Roditi confesses that he couldn't see any point in messing around with the original charts – and still sounds entirely different from Morgan's original. Nine of the ten tunes are from Morgan's own pen, but the new twist on 'A Night In Tunisia' – with trumpet overdubs and a two-soprano section – is a startling departure. Brignola guests on three and is a welcome visitor.

Samba – Manhattan Style is a notch lower, with a less impressive cast. The gentler aspects of Roditi's playing bring lustre to pretty melodies such as 'Fone Da Saudade', and the sweetness of samba infects the best of the music, although one feels that there's too much padding, and the studio sound does nothing for the lower frequencies. Double Standards was a disappointment after the previous sets. Cut as a pure blowing session in the studio, with stand-bys like 'Bye Bye Blackbird' and 'So What' in the programme, there's nothing wrong with the music but it has no pressing need to exist; only Roditi's shy vocal on 'Desafinado' breaks out of the general blandness.

 Three For One /  Light In The Dark Nagel Heyer 2028 / 2047 Roditi; Klaus Ignatzek (p); Jean-Louis Rassinfosse (b). 11/02; 5/04.
In temperate surroundings, Roditi turns in a graceful performance. The programme is mostly originals, shared between trumpeter and pianist, and there's an agreeably cool and patient demeanour to the playing, though no shortage of sunshine:

Ignatzek's 'Avocado' makes a buoyant finale. But it was a mistake to try for a second helping. Light In The Dark is simply dull, and engenders a perverse desire for Roditi to go back to the flash and smoke of his early records.

 Reflections Nagel Heyer 2065 Roditi; Klaus Ignatzek (p); Jean-Louis Rassinfosse (b). 8/05.
 Smile Nagel Heyer 2072 As above, except add Hans Dekker (d); Bremen Philharmonic Strings. 11/05.
The trio's set is mostly low-key and certainly not flashy set of Ignatzek blowing themes, with a couple of Dizzy Gillespie numbers – "Ow!" and "Con Alma", not surprisingly – thrown in for good measure. It's nice, companionable jazz and Roditi makes an excellent job of negotiating the sometimes tricky harmonic paths the underrated Ignatzek lays out for him. The group reconvened a few months later for Smile, which just sounds overegged. It also softens the impact of Roditi's trumpet playing having him swathed in string textures. Good, bold choice of material, though, and "Cantaloupe Island" is a winner.

Also, in brief:

 Two Of Swords / (*) Milestones Candid CCD 79504 / 79515. 9/90; 11/90.
These aren't bad records, but they are merely potboilers. D'Rivera makes something of Milestones.

Deidre Rodman (born 1974)

PIANO, MELODICA, VOICE

Grew up in Idaho, but came to New York in 1997 and established a reputation for bold writing and an inventive post-bop style.

 Sun Is Us Sunnyside SSCD 1098 Rodman; Russ Johnson (t); Loren Stillman (ss, as); Tony Malaby (ss, ts); Bob Bowen (b); Ari Hoenig (d). 8–11/00.
(*) Simple Stories Sunnyside SSCD 1118 As above, except omit Stillman, Hoenig; add Mark Ferber (d); Luciana Souza, Neighbourhood School Children's Choir (v). 4/03.
 Twin Falls Sunnyside 1149 Rodman; Steve Swallow (b). 11/05.
Like Dave Burrell – and it isn't an entirely absurd comparison – Rodman has the ability to mix advanced styles with simpler vernacular styles. That's evident on the debut, where she builds a march feel into 'Roadlonely', and brings a country touch to 'Inside White', all of which contrasts intriguingly with the freer approach of 'Sun Is Down' and the opening 'Nuggets'. The group is marvellous and beautifully integrated on an all-original programme, but the high-point is Johnson's exchanges with the piano on the closing title-track.

The title of the second is a useful nudge toward Rodman's striking ability to give every composition an obvious but never explicit narrative component. These are never merely harmonic exercises but compositions with a strong sense of direction. The second album unfolds like a suite, or collection of short fictions, with a prelude and solo and duo passages giving shape to the whole. 'Garden Suite' is a tale-within-a-tale, elegantly constructed and eloquently played. Rodman's touch is firm but lyrical, with hints of early Keith Jarrett here and there. Again the title-track comes last, a long, sweeping conception that doesn't feel a note too long. Even the vocals are nicely handled.

That influence is more evident on Twin Falls, an album directly inspired by the landscape of her childhood and packed with church hymns and purely pictorial pieces. It isn't her strongest work, though some of the exchanges with Swallow are breathtakingly beautiful, and there is a curiously unfinished feel to the set, underlined by the habit of fading out tracks before they have reached a climax.

Red Rodney (1927–94)

TRUMPET

That influence is more evident on Twin Falls, an album directly inspired by the landscape of her childhood and packed with church hymns and purely pictorial pieces. It isn't her strongest work, though some of the exchanges with Swallow are breathtakingly beautiful, and there is a curiously unfinished feel to the set, underlined by the habit of fading out tracks before they have reached a climax.

 First Sessions: Volume 3 Prestige PCD 24116 Rodney; Jimmy Ford (as); Phil Raphael (p); Phil Leshin (b); Phil Brown (d). 9/51.
Rodney was the red-haired Jewish boy in Charlie Parker's happiest band. Though diffident about his own talents, the young Philadelphian had done his learning up on the stand, playing with the likes of Jimmy Dorsey while still a teenager. Rodney was perhaps the first white trumpeter to take up the challenge of bebop, which he played with a crackling, slightly nervy quality. It sat well with Parker, and Rodney was an integral part of Bird's quintet in 1950 and 1951, having first worked with him slightly earlier than that. Rodney was not a prolific recording artist, and his career succumbed from time to time to one of the more common jeopardies of life on the road, but there is some excellent stuff on disc. The early Prestige material dates from Rodney's time in the Parker band, and it has the nervy exuberance you'd expect. Ford is a very average player, and each number seems to mark time when he solos.

(*) Red Rodney Quintets Fantasy 24758 Rodney; Jimmy Ford (as); Ira Sullivan (ts); Phil Raphael, Norman Simmons (p); Phil Leshin, Victor Sproles (b); Phil Brown, Roy Haynes (d). 52, 55.
Rodney's best work, the 1955 Modern Music From Chicago now forms half of this valuable set, along with a slightly less compelling release, Broadway. The trumpeter is in great form on the first set, blowing intricate and deeply felt solos, especially on his own 'Red Is Blue'. Roy Haynes helped invent bebop rhythm, and he sounds totally in command of the idiom here, with Ira Sullivan and Norman Simmons filling out the harmony richly.

The earlier group has a much less distinguished line-up (most of them called Phil), and though there are some good things – 'Red Wig' and 'Coogan's Bluff' – there is nothing to match the delightful muted solo on 'Laura', which remains the outstanding moment on Chicago.

(*) Red Giant Steeplechase SCCD 31233 Rodney; Butch Lacy (p); Hugo Rasmussen (b); Aage Tanggaard (d). 4/88.
 One For Bird / (*) Red Snapper Steeplechase SCCD 31238 / 31252 Rodney; Dick Oatts (as); Garry Dial (p); Jay Anderson (b); John Riley (d). 7/88.
 The Tivoli Session Steeplechase SCCD 37025 As above, except omit Riley; add James Madison (d). 89.
Nowhere was bebop accorded higher sentimental status than in Scandinavia. House bands and rhythm sections have excellent chops (the same is true of Japanese players) but with a strongly authentic 'feel' as well. Of these 1988 sessions Red Giant is undoubtedly the best, with Rasmussen, Tanggaard and the rough-diamond Lacy all contributing substantially. Compare the versions of 'Greensleeves' and a curiously but effectively tempoed 'Giant Steps' with those on Red Snapper, which seem merely curious. The original material on Red Snapper is perhaps more interesting, but there's little doubt where Rodney's heart lies. At 60-plus, he sounded chastened but undeterred, and his playing reveals a depth of reference that was seldom there previously. The Tivoli date was a return to form. Notable largely for a wonderful medley of 'Greensleeves' and John Coltrane's 'Giant Steps', this is a long and for the most part successful foray in Rodney's late, sophisticated style.

Adam Rogers

GUITAR

Well-respected sideman with impressive credentials making an overdue debut as leader. He is a charter member of fusion group Lost Tribe.

 Art Of The Invisible / (*) Allegory Criss Cross 1223 / 1242 Rogers; Edward Simon (p); Scott Colley (b); Clarence Penn (d). 12/01; 12/02.

* Apparitions Criss Cross 1263 As above, except add Chris Potter (ts). 4/04.

* Time And The Infinite Criss Cross 1286 Rogers; Scott Colley (b); Bill Stewart (d). 3/06.

Art Of The Invisible suffers from trying to do too much, or at least to show how many different dimensions there are to Rogers's playing and writing. Many listeners will be aware of his skills already, so the drastic shifts from relatively accommodating blues-based themes to the freedom of 'The Aleph' is more offputting than impressive. That said, the guitarist's coming out is more than welcome, since his considerable light has been under a bushel for some years. He has assembled a like-minded band, with a nicely rugged sound, and has led them through some challenging territory. The high-energy 'In Broad Daylight' is among the best things here, with some ferocious playing from the leader, but he's probably at his best on the more brooding numbers like 'Cathedral' and the closing 'The Unvanquished'. A very impressive start.

Wisely, Rogers stays with the same line-up for Allegory, which in every way is a more coherent and polished effort. Perhaps it lacks the runaway energy and unfettered emotion of its predecessor, but it's a more successful album for that. 'Phyringia', 'Orpheus' and 'Purpose' are very ambitious pieces, played at durations that demand a great deal of the players' attention (though there may be an edit in 'Purpose': the mood and timbre shift subtly and unaccountably unless two performances have been digitally spliced). Simon keeps out of the guitarist's way. He's an old-fashioned player in lots of ways but still capable of adding something to the fusion-driven material.

Album three is a barnstormer. The sleeve-notes aver that 'the sound is anything but impenetrable and dense', but density is actually the key to the music's power: Rogers likes to pile up sonic bulk, and with the addition of Potter, declaiming with tremendous intensity, he's got a band of worldbeaters. Tracks such as 'Tyranny Of Fixed Numbers', where the ostinato-driven B section is close to overwhelming, are enthralling, but Rogers immediately follows that with the chastening ballad 'Persephone' – continuing his penchant for mythical titles. He seems to have managed to graft the slick chopsmanship of quality fusion directly onto a sophisticated post-bop base. A Criss Cross classic.

So's the next record: state-of-the-art modern guitar jazz and trio playing of the very highest order. Rogers's liking for abstract album titles – even notionally pretentious titles – might put off some potential listeners. It shouldn't. He's a wonderfully grounded player and his blend of standards ('Night And Day', 'I Loves You, Porgy') with originals like the title-track and 'Elegy' is pitch-perfect. The latter are sufficiently familiar in form to be comfortably assimilated; the former sufficiently rethought to make them interesting. Strongly recommended.

David Rogers (born 1970)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, TALKING DRUM

Thoughtful innovator who has spent much time studying African musics.

* The World Is Not Your Home Jumbie JMB 005 Rogers; Derek Bermel (cl, xyl, talking d, clave); Craig Taborn (p); Marion Hayden (b); Gerald Cleaver (d); Mark Stone (vib, xyl, perc). 97.

 Imaginary Homeland: Jump For George Jumbie JMB 002 Rogers; Marlene Rice (vn); Matt Pavolka (b); Mark Stone (African d, xyl, perc). 8/03.

Rogers is no musical tourist. His understanding of African musics is based on long and passionate research in Ghana, where a vicious internecine war subsequently overtook the villages where he had studied, with thousands of casualties.

The World Is Not Your Home had to wait ten years for release, astonishing given the amount of generic jazz that clogs the release schedules. The clarinet solo that opens the title-track and the album is based on a Hausa folk song that reminds us of the precariousness of our foothold in this 'shaky hut'. Talking drums and gungon take over, before Rogers moves into his first major solo statement over Taborn's astute accompaniment. Given how important the pianist has become over the last decade, it is wonderful to hear him in this mode.

'Don't Drop That Coffin' is a vivid dance for tenor/bass/drums, with a wonderful central section. 'Oboo Ketua Nyom' is a song for Mark Stone's unborn son. Stone and Bermel both play gyil, the Dagara xylophone. 'Mobius Trip' is a fairly obvious pun for a track that weaves seamlessly but with a strangely twisted logic. 'The Merciful Ones' underlines the breadth of Rogers's musical education, a four-part cantus firmus chorale with the theme sounded first in the bass. Though one of the shorter tracks, it builds in momentum and authority to a stunning climax, with tenor, piano, clarinet, vibraphone, bass and drumkit all playing an equal part. 'La Isla De Reyes' is more Afro-Cuban than African, but it shows how carefully Rogers has researched this particular nexus in American jazz.

This is a wonderful, potentially very important record, one of the best of 2007. Ironic that we could have been saying that in any of our five last editions.

Imaginary Homeland is built round a powerful idea, similar to ARFI's folklore imaginaire in Europe. The first track, 'Sanawha Girl', mixes African themes with Appalachian folk, played with loose-limbed vigour by Rice and held together by Stone's throbbing bass-line. Anyone who knows American Civil War history will recognize in the title the name first used by the Unionist counter-secessionists who broke away from Virginia and rejoined the Union. Stone's daughter was born there – now West Virginia – to a Ghanaian mother.

'Anthm' is inspired by West African gonji (calabash fiddle) music but again given a distinctively American twist. 'Mobius

Trip' and, later, 'The World Is Not Your Home' are both reprised, superior versions in some respects, perhaps because Rogers's alto-playing is so evocative on the former. 'Travelogue' sees him abandoning saxophone for the moment in favour of talking drum, a duet with Stone over a string accompaniment from the other two. Another very powerful record from an important contemporary talent.

Paul Rogers (born 1956)

BASS

British improviser and member of Mujician.

* Listen Emanem 4078 Rogers (b solo). 10/89–5/99.

Rogers stands squarely in a formidable tradition of European bass improvisers, enormously skilful with and without the bow. His pair of discs for Rare Music have become as scarce as their label name suggests, but Martin Davidson's initiative in releasing this set on Emanem is very welcome. It opens with almost 40 minutes of unflagging invention in a single piece recorded at a French concert. Rogers makes the bass sound as it is, a big, resonant, capacious instrument. He isn't shy of melodic patterns or conventional timbres, although he makes these elements part of a rushing flow which evolves so quickly that it asks the listener to be very alert, and there's a notable skill in avoiding prearranged figures. Two smaller pieces, encores possibly, spin off into smaller orbits. Then comes music from a London pub gig of ten years earlier: same man, but a four- rather than a five-string instrument; less well-recorded, but here the musician engages in an abrasive, even violent monologue.

Shorty Rogers (1924–94)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Milton Rogers came from Massachusetts, but he is forever seen as a kingpin figure in the West Coast jazz of the '50s and after, scoring several of the classic big-band dates of the period and subsequently writing a lot of music for TV and Hollywood. His own playing was lithe if unremarkable.

CORE COLLECTION

* The Sweetheart Of Sigmund Freud

Giant Steps GIST 009 2CD Rogers; Conrad Gozzo, Maynard Ferguson, Pete Candoli, John Howell, Ray Linn (t); Harry Betts, Bob Enevoldsen, Jimmy Knepper, Milt Bernhart (tb); John Graas (frhn); Art Pepper, Bud Shank, Jimmy Giuffre, Bob Cooper, Bill Holman, Bill Perkins (reeds); Marty Paich, Russ Freeman, Hampton Hawes (p); Gene Englund (tba); Curtis Counce, Don Bagley, Joe Mondragon (b); Shelly Manne (d); also orchestras led by Woody Herman, Red Norvo, Stan Kenton, Maynard Ferguson, Louie Bellson and Howard Rumsey. 5/46–7/53.

Much influenced by the Davis–Mulligan–Lewis Birth Of The Cool, and even claiming a revisionist role in the creation of that movement, Shorty Rogers turned its basic instrumentation and lapidary arranging into a vehicle for relaxedly swinging jazz of a high order. His arrangements are among the best of the time. If they lack the gelid precision that Lewis and Mulligan brought to Birth Of The Cool, Rogers's charts combine the same intricate texture with an altogether looser jazz feel. While never an especially memorable soloist himself, he could call on the top players of the day on a regular basis. Rogers seemed to be in the studios all the time in the '50s and early '60s, and although his Atlantic albums are currently out of circulation, several of his RCA sets have made a comeback. The classic Cool And Crazy sessions (alias The Big Shorty Rogers Express) have now been gathered in on this set, along with another disc of early Rogers charts for Herman, Norvo and Kenton, plus a few later dates with Ferguson and Rumsey. It is a quite irresistible package, excellently remastered and with a fine sleeve-note. The tracks which made up the original ten-inch Cool And Crazy still act as a benchmark in the appreciation of West Coast jazz, and their energy and ingenuity seem completely undimmed a half-century on.

(*) Shorty Rogers And His Giants RCA 74321 60989-2 Rogers; Milt Bernhart (tb); John Graas (frhn); Art Pepper (as); Jimmy Giuffre (ts); Hampton Hawes (p); Joe Mondragon (b); Gene Englund (tba); Shelly Manne (d). 1/53.

* Shorty Rogers Courts The Count RCA 74321 63818-2 Rogers; Conrad Gozzo, Maynard Ferguson, Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Clyde Reasinger, Pete Candoli (t); Milt Bernhart, Harry Betts, Bob Enevoldsen (tb); John Graas (frhn); Herb Geller, Bud Shank (as); Bob Cooper, Jimmy Giuffre (ts, bs); Zoot Sims, Bill Holman (ts); Bobby Gordon (bs); Marty Paich (p); Curtis Counce (b); Shelly Manne (d). 2–3/54.

() Wherever The Five Winds Blow / () Complete Quintet Sessions, 1954–1956 RCA ND 74399 / Fresh Sound FSR CD 2233 3CD Rogers; Jimmy Giuffre (ts); Lou Levy (p); Ralph Pena (b); Larry Bunker (d). 7/56; 9/54–7/56.

 Portrait Of Shorty RCA 74321 61105-2 Rogers; Al Porcino, Conrad Gozzo, Don Fagerquist, Conte Candoli, Pete Candoli (t); Frank Rosolino, George Roberts, Harry Betts, Bob Enevoldsen (tb); Herb Geller (as); Bob Cooper (ts, bs); Richie Kamuca, Jack Montrose (ts); Pepper Adams (bs); Lou Levy (p); Monty Budwig (b); Stan Levey (d). 7–8/57.

 Gigi In Jazz RCA 74321 125882 Rogers; Bill Holman (ts); Larry Bunker (vib); Pete Jolly (p); Buddy Clark, Ralph Pena (b); Mel Lewis (d). 1/58.

 Chances Are, It Swings RCA 74321 433902 Rogers; Don Fagerquist, Pete Candoli, Conte Candoli, Ollie Mitchell, Ray Triscari, Al Porcino (t); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Harry Betts, Dick Nash, Kenny Shroyer (tb); Paul Horn, Bud Shank (cl, as, f); Bill Holman, Richie Kamuca (ts); Chuck Gentry (bs); Gene Estes, Red Norvo (vib); Pete Jolly (p); Howard Roberts, Barney Kessel (g); Joe Mondragon, Monty Budwig (b); Mel Lewis (d). 12/58.

 The Wizard Of Oz RCA 74321 453792 Rogers; Don Fagerquist, Al Porcino, Conte Candoli (t); Harry Betts, Kenny Shroyer, Frank Rosolino (tb); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Bud Shank (f, as); Herb Geller (as, ts); Bill Holman (ts); Jimmy Giuffre (bs, cl); Larry Bunker (vib); Pete Jolly (p); Barney Kessel (g); Joe Mondragon (b); Mel Lewis (d). 2/59.

 The Swinging Nutcracker RCA 74321 421212 Rogers; John Audino, Conte Candoli, Ray Triscari, Jimmy Zito (t); Harry Betts, Frank Rosolino, Kenny Shroyer (tb); Jimmy Giuffre (cl); Art Pepper (as); Bud Shank (as, f); Richie Kamuca, Harold Land, Bill Perkins, Bill Holman (ts); Chuck Gentry (bs); Pete Jolly, Lou Levy (p); Joe Mondragon (b); Frank Capp, Mel Lewis (d). 5/60.

(*) An Invisible Orchard RCA 74321 49560-2 Rogers; Ray Triscari, Ollie Mitchell, Stu Williamson, Conte Candoli, Al Porcino (t); Harry Betts, Frank Rosolino (tb); Kenny Shroyer, Marshall Cran, George Roberts (btb); Bud Shank, Paul Horn (as); Bill Perkins, Harold Land (ts); Bill Hood, Chuck Gentry (bs); Pete

Jolly (p); Emil Richards (vib); Red Mitchell (b); Mel Lewis (d). 2–4/61.

Of the subsequent sessions, there is frankly little to choose between them, each built around some sort of concept, most of them obvious from the titles. Wherever The Five Winds Blow is a small-group date of sheer finesse, the quintet breezing over the material like a polished sailboat. Chances Are, It Swings is a mixed bag of orchestral charts, while Gigi In Jazz returns to the small-group format. We have so far been spared (shame!) the reappearance of Shorty Rogers Meets Tarzan from the same period. In a way, this music was as much cursed as illuminated by its Californian sunshine. Revisionist critics looked down their noses at it for many years, claiming all sorts of outrages: clinical, studio-bound playing, smoothness over passion, the suppression of more radical Californian jazz, etc. At this distance, the virtues of the music now seem more apparent, as they are in the New York jazz of three decades earlier. Rogers had the wit to turn many of the less promising tunes into tongue-in-cheek set-pieces that are not so far from the more irreverent repertory excursions of more recent years. Rather than creating a climate for memorable improvising, Rogers stitched the solos into a detailed fabric. Each man was usually called on for no more than a few appropriate bars, and the result was a language of excellence in miniature. In players such as Shank, Holman, the Candolis, Bernhart and Cooper, Rogers had performers who could eat up these opportunities, and it spawned a discipline which today's West Coast jazz – via the numerous 'occasional' big bands that still record for labels such as Sea Breeze – continues to work from. While the music has some period feel, its vitality survives.

Later additions to the range have all but completed RCA's Rogers output in reissue form (we're still waiting for Tarzan though!). The original Shorty Rogers And His Giants is by a fresh-sounding nonet, and Shorty sounds as if he's raring to go with his charts. Courts The Count, though, is better still, a great favourite of ours, and sounding better than ever in this transfer. Shorty scored nine Basie chestnuts, such as 'Taps Miller', 'Tickle Toe' and 'Jump For Me', and somehow managed to pay homage without once sounding like the Basie band itself. Check, for instance, the brooding 'Topsy', a brilliant bit of recasting. Portrait Of Shorty is more routine, but the playing remains full of sparkle.

An Invisible Orchard collects three sessions for an album that was never released at the time: an ambitious suite of compositions that remain in the Rogers pocket but find him clearly looking for new directions within his accustomed style. The opening 'Inner Space' is certainly one of his most challenging efforts, a maze of interwoven lines that still hold the trademark Rogers clarity and lightness. Most of the eight pieces feel like transitional music, between the sun-soaked optimism of his earlier charts and a darker – or at least more abstruse – feel. There are hints, for instance, of a John Lewis influence, most obviously in the MJQ-like opening of 'La Valse'. An intriguing departure which RCA shelved at the time of its production.

 West Coast Jazz / (*) Get Shorty Proper PROPERBOX 92 4CD / Giant Steps GIST 010 2CD As various discs above. 9/50–9/54; 9/50–8/53.

Proper's four-disc set creams off the best of Rogers's work for RCA during the early '50s, with most of the famous tracks here in decent sound and with full documentation. As a package of convenience, it's hard to fault on any level. If you already have the earlier Giant Steps two-disc set, though, its sequel, Get Shorty, makes a very good buy, including all of the Courts The Count sessions and the music from The Wild One.

(*) The Swinging Mr Rogers Collectables COL 6569 Rogers; Jimmy Giuffre (ts, bs, cl); Pete Jolly (p); Curtis Counce (b); Shelly Manne (d). 3/55.

This is one of our favourites among Shorty's mid-'50s dates, originally on Atlantic but until recently only available in a Mosaic box. The group's obviously an iconic West Coast personnel. They know each other too well, and find the material too comfortable, to be much in the way of a surprise, but if you enjoy the genre, this is almost as good as it gets.

 The Fourth Dimension In Sound Collectables COL 6570 Rogers; Ken Shroyer (tb); Pete Jolly (p); Emil Richards (vib); Ken Shroyer, Joe Mondragon (b); Shelly Manne (d). 11/61.

Originally released in a Warner Bros 'Stereo Workshop' series, the emphasis here was probably more on the recording and mix than the music, but it isn't bad, a fairly orthodox mix of standards and Latin-lite themes. Rogers plays flugelhorn throughout and the mics catch him beautifully.

 Bossa Nova / Jazz Waltz Collectables COL 7504 Rogers; Joe Burnett, Ollie Mitchell (t); Ken Shroyer, Richard Leith (tb); Paul Horn, Bud Shank (f, as); Bill Hood (bsx); Larry Bunker (vib); Pete Jolly, Lou Levy (p); Laurindo Almeida (g); Joe Mondragon (b); Shelly Manne, Mel Lewis (d); Milt Holland, Emil Richards, Chico Guerrero (perc). 62.

This wraps up the pair of albums Shorty made for Reprise, one a set of bossa nova tunes, the second a rather less fashionable set of themes all played in three. While both were clearly conceived by the company as not much more than quota quickies, it was typical of Rogers to introduce all sorts of interesting touches, even into what was quickly to become a hackneyed bossa nova concept: try his delightful version of 'One Note Samba'. The waltz collection is a little less inventive but still has plenty of inimitable Rogers touches, particularly in the brass scoring (and the use of Bill Hood's bass sax). Excellent remastering.

(*) America The Beautiful Candid CCD 79510 Rogers; Bud Shank (as); Conte Candoli (t); Bill Perkins (bs, ts, ss); Bob Cooper (ts); Pete Jolly (p): Monty Budwig (b); Larance Marable (d). 8/91.

 Eight Brothers Candid CCD 79521 Rogers; Conte Candoli (t, flhn); Bud Shank (as); Bill Perkins (ts, ss, bs); Bob Cooper (ts); Pete Jolly (p); Monty Budwig (b); Larance Marable (d). 1/92.

There is then something of a hiatus. For much of this period, Rogers concentrated on film music. His '80s comeback found him in strong voice and, alongside Bud Shank, in musically conducive company. America The Beautiful is certainly the pick of these. Shank's solo intro to 'Lotus Bud' is huskily beautiful and is surpassed only by Bill Perkins's eerily cadenced soprano solo on another of Bud's tunes, 'Un Poco Loco'. 'Here's That Old Martian Again' continues a series of similar conceits, done in reassuringly un-alien blue rather than green, but with a hint of 'Blue In Green' in the shift across the line. The Lighthouse All Stars play beyond themselves, with big credits to drummer Marable. Recommended.

The other one is rather less interesting. Rogers doesn't always sound a naturally confident player alongside the other Lighthouse chapter members, and his solos on these latter-day recordings are genial but rarely memorable.

Also, in brief:

(*) Volume 1: 1946–1954 – West Coast Trumpet JSP 944 5CD. 46–54.

Released in early 2008 and not yet fully auditioned, but it looks, and more important sounds, like it could become the standard source.

 Martians, Come Back / Way Up There Collectables COL 6268. 7/99.
Martians Stay Home would have been a more obvious pairing, but these all reflect the two obsessions of the day. Cool, West Coast jazz and outer space.

 Collaboration Fresh Sound FSRCD 2227. 54–55.
An intriguing relationship: Rogers and André Previn (p).

Bryce Rohde

PIANO

Originally from Adelaide, Rohde co-founded the Australian Jazz Quintet and subsequently moved to the US in 1965, although he regularly returns to Australia and sometimes records there.

 Turn Right At New South Wales Music In The Vines (no number) Rohde; Bruce Cale (b); Lee Charlton (d). 00.
Rohde's piano is an interesting agglomeration of styles, from Tristano to Bill Evans, and he admits to a distinct George Russell influence. This likeable if thinly recorded set has plenty of ideas in music which is primarily ruminative but has some darker and surprisingly oblique currents running through it, even though the titles suggest a paean to the Australian big country. The interested might also like to investigate, on the same rather homemade-looking label, Short Way Home, a love set from 1978, and Always Come Back Here, a duo session with Cale.

Sonny Rollins (born 1930)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Born Theodore Walter Rollins, the New York saxophonist recorded as a teenager with Bud Powell and J. J. Johnson, later with Miles Davis and Thelonious Monk, before working in Max Roach's group for two years. Since 1957 he has been his own leader. Two famous sabbaticals from public appearances (1959–61 and 1968–71) have been the only interruptions in an inspirational though sometimes inscrutable career.

(*) Sonny Rollins With The Modern Jazz Quartet Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 011 Rollins; Miles Davis, Kenny Drew, John Lewis (p); Percy Heath (b); Art Blakey, Kenny Clarke, Roy Haynes (d). 1/51–10/53.

 Moving Out Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 058 Rollins; Kenny Dorham (t); Thelonious Monk, Elmo Hope (p); Percy Heath, Tommy Potter (b); Art Blakey, Art Taylor (d). 8–10/54.
Rollins's most important early session is with Miles Davis on Bags' Groove (OJC 245). The nine 1951 tracks on OJC 011 are cursory bop singles, and the MJQ – despite the headline billing – appear on only three tracks, in a meeting that took place a second time on an Atlantic album some years later. One track, 'I Know', has the novelty of Miles Davis on piano. Moving Out is more substantial, though it still stands as a stereotypical blowing date, even with a single track – 'More Than You Know' – from a session with Monk. The most interesting contributor here is probably Hope, whose off-centre lyricism still turns heads.

(*) Work Time Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 007 Rollins; Ray Bryant (p); George Morrow (b); Max Roach (d). 12/55.

(*) Sonny Rollins Plus 4 Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 243 Rollins; Clifford Brown (t); Richie Powell (p); George Morrow (b); Max Roach (d). 3/56.

* Tenor Madness Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 124 Rollins; John Coltrane (ts); Red Garland (p); Paul Chambers (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 5/56.

(*) Sonny Rollins Plays For Bird Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 214 Rollins; Kenny Dorham (t); Wade Legge (p); George Morrow (b); Max Roach (d). 10/56.

* Tour De Force Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 095 Rollins; Kenny Drew (p); George Morrow (b); Max Roach (d); Earl Coleman (v). 12/56.

 Sonny Rollins Volume 1 Blue Note 81542 Rollins; Donald Byrd (t); Wynton Kelly (p); Gene Ramey (b); Max Roach (d). 12/56.
An astounding year's work on record. Rollins was still a new and relatively unheralded star when he was working through this series of sessions, and – in the aftermath of Parker's death – jazz itself had an open throne. There was a vast distance between Rollins and the tenorman who was winning most of the polls of the period, Stan Getz, but though Sonny evaded the open-faced romanticism and woozy melancholy associated with the Lester Young school, he wasn't much of a Parkerite, either. Rollins used the headlong virtuosity of bop to more detached, ironical ends. The opening track on Work Time is a blast through 'There's No Business Like Show Business', which prefigures many of his future choices of material. Parker would have smiled, but he'd never have played it this way. Still, Rollins's mastery of the tenor was already complete by this time, with a wide range of tones and half-tones, a confident variation of dynamics, and an ability to phrase with equal strength of line in any part of a solo. If he is often tense, as if in witness to the power of his own creative flow, then the force of the music is multiplied by this tension. The most notable thing about the records is how dependent they are on Rollins himself: Roach aside, whose magnificent drum parts offer a pre-echo of what Elvin Jones would start to develop with John Coltrane, the sidemen are often almost dispensable. It is Rollins who has to be heard.

If Work Time is just a little sketchy in parts, that is only in comparison with what follows. Plus 4 is one of Rollins's happiest sessions. With both horn-players in mercurial form, and Roach sensing the greatness of the band he is basically in charge of, the music unfolds at a terrific clip but has a sense of relaxation which the tenorman would seldom approach later in the decade. His own piece, 'Pent-Up House', has an improvisation which sets the stage for some of his next advances: unhurried, thoughtful, he nevertheless plays it with biting immediacy. Tenor Madness features Coltrane on, alas, only one track, the title-tune, and it isn't quite the grand encounter one might have wished for; but the rest of the record, with Miles Davis's rhythm section, includes surging Rollins on 'Paul's Pal' and 'The Most Beautiful Girl In The World'.

Plays For Bird, though it includes a medley of tunes associated with Parker, is no more Bird-like than the other records, and a reading of 'I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face' establishes Rollins's oddly reluctant penchant for a tender ballad. Sonny Rollins ended the year in somewhat more desultory fashion – the session seems to return to more conventional horns-and-rhythm bebop – but Tour De Force, recorded two weeks earlier, is almost as good as Colossus (below), with the ferocious abstractions of

'B Swift' and 'B Quick' contrasting with the methodical, almost surgical destruction of 'Sonny Boy'. The OJC reissues are all remastered in splendid sound.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * Saxophone Colossus
Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 291 Rollins; Tommy Flanagan (p); Doug Watkins (b); Max Roach (d).

The undisputed masterpiece from this period is Saxophone Colossus, and although Rollins plays with brilliant invention throughout the above albums, he's at his most consistent on this disc. 'St Thomas', his irresistible calypso melody, appears here for the first time, and there is a ballad of unusual bleakness in 'You Don't Know What Love Is', as well as a rather sardonic walk through 'Moritat' (alias 'Mack The Knife'). But 'Blue Seven', as analysed in a contemporary piece by Gunther Schuller, became celebrated as a thematic masterpiece, where all the joints and moving parts of a spontaneous improvisation attain the pristine logic of a composition. If the actual performance is much less forbidding than this suggests, thanks in part to the simplicity of the theme, it surely justifies Schuller's acclaim.

(*) Way Out West Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 337 Rollins; Ray Brown (b); Shelly Manne (d). 3/57.
(*) Sonny Rollins Volume 2 Blue Note 97809 Rollins; J. J. Johnson (tb); Horace Silver, Thelonious Monk (p); Percy Heath (b); Art Blakey (d). 4/57.
(*) The Sound Of Sonny Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 029 Rollins; Sonny Clark (p); Percy Heath (b); Roy Haynes (d). 6/57.
* Newk's Time Blue Note 76752 Rollins; Wynton Kelly (p); Doug Watkins (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 9/57.

Rollins continued his astonishing run of records with scarcely a pause for breath. A visit to Los Angeles paired him with Brown and Manne on a session which, if it occasionally dips into a kind of arch cleverness, features some superb interplay between the three men, with Rollins turning 'I'm An Old Cowhand' into a jovial invention. The CD edition includes three alternative takes. One of the compelling things about this sequence is the difference in drummer from session to session: Blakey's inimitable pattern of rolls and giant cymbal strokes sounds, for once, a little inappropriate, with Philly Joe Jones using the same kind of drama to far more effect on Newk's Time. The undervalued player here, though, is Haynes, whose playing on The Sound Of Sonny is ingeniously poised and crisp. The Blue Note Volume 2 finds Rollins a little cramped by his surroundings, but Johnson's sober playing is a far more apposite accompaniment than Byrd's was, its deadpan line a wry rejoinder to the tenor parts. The new RVG edition is very punchy. The Sound Of Sonny is unexpectedly cursory in its treatment of some of the themes: after the longer disquisitions which Rollins had accustomed himself to making, these three- and four-minute tracks sound bitten off. But the grandeur of Rollins's improvisations on 'Just In Time' and 'Toot-Toot-Tootsie' is compressed rather than reduced, and a solo 'It Could Happen To You', though a little snatched at, celebrates the breadth of his sound. We are somewhat divided on the merits of Newk's Time. If Rollins is arguably self-absorbed on some of the studio session, the extraordinary motivic development of 'Surrey With The Fringe On Top' is one of his most powerful creations, and 'Blues For Philly Joe' takes the work done on 'Blue Seven' a step further. The new RVG edition, as with other Blue Note classics of the period, dusts off this music beautifully and restores its power anew.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * A Night At The Village Vanguard
Blue Note 99795 2CD Rollins; Donald Bailey, Wilbur Ware (b); Pete LaRoca, Elvin Jones (d). 11/57.

The live material, originally cherrypicked for a single peerless LP, has now been stretched across two CDs, and in its latest incarnation the in-person feel is heightened by the addition of some more of Sonny's announcements. In the past we felt that the abundance of this material slightly checked the power-packed feel of the original LP, but in the new RVG edition the sound is extraordinarily deep and immediate, and the sheer impact of Rollins on top form is close to overwhelming – hence our upgrading to crown status, since this is a model example of a classic record given its proper treatment. Working with only bass and drums throughout leads Rollins into areas of freedom which bop never allowed, and while his free-spiritedness is checked by his ruthless self-examination, its rigour makes his music uniquely powerful in jazz. On the two versions of 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise' or in the muscular exuberance of 'Old Devil Moon', traditional bop-orientated improvising reaches a peak of expressive power and imagination. Overall, these are records which demand a place in any collection.

(*) The Freedom Suite Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 067 Rollins; Oscar Pettiford (b); Max Roach (d). 2/58.
(*) The Sound Of Sonny / Freedom Suite Riverside CDJZD 008 Rollins; Sonny Clark (p); Percy Heath, Paul Chambers, Oscar Pettiford (b); Roy Haynes, Max Roach (d). 6/57–2/58.
 Sonny Rollins And The Contemporary Leaders Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 340 Rollins; Hampton Hawes (p); Victor Feldman (vib); Barney Kessel (g); Leroy Vinnegar (b); Shelly Manne (d). 10/58.

Although we have been taken to task over this assertion, we still aver that Rollins hasn't shown a great deal of interest in composition. Some of his early bop-orientated themes remain in the repertory, but he has based most of his improvising around other people's tunes for much of the past 50 years. Nevertheless, 'The Freedom Suite' takes a stab at an extended work, although its simple structure makes it more of a sketch for an improvisation than anything else. The engineers caught his sound with particular immediacy on this date, and it's more a celebration of his tone and dynamic variation than a coherent, programmatic statement (Orrin Keepnews's sleeve-notes seem deliberately to fudge the directness of whatever Rollins was trying to say about black freedom). A somewhat neglected record, and one worth further pondering as regards its importance in the Rollins canon. The (British) Riverside CD usefully couples both The Freedom Suite and The Sound Of Sonny. Despite a self-conscious clustering of stars for the Contemporary Leaders date, Rollins takes a determined path through one of his most bizarre programmes: 'Rock-A-Bye Your Baby', 'In The Chapel In The Moonlight', 'I've Told Ev'ry Little Star'.

(*) Sonny Rollins And The Big Brass Verve 557545-2 Rollins; Nat Adderley (c); Clark Terry, Reunald Jones, Ernie Royal (t); Frank Rehak, Billy Byers, Jimmy Cleveland (tb); Dick Katz, John Lewis (p); Don Butterfield (tba); Henry Grimes, Percy Heath (b); Roy Haynes, Connie Kay, Specs Wright (d). 7–8/58.

A rare sighting on Verve (actually the original edition came out on Metrojazz), this is coupled with the even more unfamiliar tracks cut with John Lewis, Percy Heath and Connie Kay, which was once a shared LP with a Teddy Edwards session on MGM.

Ernie Wilkins's charts are lively and chrome-laden (with no softening reeds, and in this very bright transfer this is sometimes metal-machine music), and while Rollins responds to them, it's not really the kind of thing he does best. But there are three good trio tracks with Grimes and Wright, and Sonny even essays a solo 'Body And Soul', though it seems comparatively unadventurous.

Rollins had already worked with the MJQ, on a 1953 Prestige date, but these four live tracks are memorably effective – Lewis might be temperamentally very different from Rollins, but his obliquities are so subtly apt and resourceful that it makes one wish they had worked together much more often. And the saxophonist is in huge, hearty voice on each track, 'I'll Follow My Secret Heart' (which Lewis sits out) and 'You Are Too Beautiful' offering almost indecently full-bodied oratory.

(*) The Bridge RCA 0902 668518-2 Rollins; Jim Hall (g); Bob Cranshaw (b); Mickey Roker, Ben Riley, Harry T. Saunders (d). 1–5/62.

 What's New? RCA Victor Gold 74321 796262 Rollins; Jim Hall (g); Bob Cranshaw (b); Ben Riley (d); Willie Rodriguez, Dennis Charles, Franck Charles, Candido Camero (perc). 4–5/62.

 Our Man In Jazz RCA 74321 19256-2 Rollins; Don Cherry (t); Bob Cranshaw, Henry Grimes (b); Billy Higgins (d). 7/62–2/63.

 Sonny Meets Hawk RCA Victor Gold 74321 748002 Rollins; Coleman Hawkins (ts); Paul Bley (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Roy McCurdy (d). 7/63.

 The Standard Sonny Rollins RCA 74321 22109-2 Rollins; Herbie Hancock (p); Jim Hall (g); David Izenson, Teddy Smith, Bob Cranshaw (b); Stu Martin, Mickey Roker (d). 6–7/64.

(*) The Complete RCA Victor Recordings RCA 09026 68675-2 6CD As above discs, except add Thad Jones (c). 1/62–9/64.

The saxophonist disappeared for two years, before returning to the studio with a new contract from RCA. The CD era has seen this music emerging in a confusing series of editions, and while RCA have reverted to some of the original LPs for their programming, different territories have released their own editions. This seems to be the picture at the moment, but prospective buyers should be prepared for confusion!

The Bridge started him off. On the face of it, little had changed: though Ornette Coleman's revolution had taken place in the interim, the music sounded much like the old Rollins. But this is his most troubled and troubling period on record. The treatment of 'God Bless The Child' is starkly desolate in feeling, and Rollins plays with a puzzling melancholy throughout. Hall, though, is an unexpectedly fine partner, moving between rhythm and front-line duties with great aplomb and actually finding ways to communicate with the most lofty of soloists. It's an often compelling record as a result.

A new edition of What's New? plugs a gap, though this includes some titles from the same sessions as The Bridge. 'If Ever I Would Leave You' and especially 'The Night Has A Thousand Eyes' are magisterial Rollins, long, fertile with ideas, and with a typical mating of laziness and urgency; but the almost laborious distortions of 'Jungoso' (with only bass and percussion accompaniment) dismayed many Rollins admirers, and even the first appearance of the crowd favourite 'Don't Stop The Carnival' now sounds tame.

The meetings with Cherry and Hawkins are both hit and miss. Our Man In Jazz was hailed as Rollins's head-on collision with the new thing, as exemplified by Cherry, but hardly anything the two men play bears any relation to the other's music: recorded live, they might as well be on separate stages. On an exhaustively long 'Oleo', the tenorman's pent-up outburst could almost be an expression of rage at the situation. Cherry, peculiarly, sounds like a pre-echo of the older Rollins in his crabby, buzzing solo on 'Doxy'. Three brief studio tracks at the end are an almost irrelevant postscript.

The encounter with Hawkins is much more respectful, even if Rollins seems to be satirizing the older man at some points, notably in his weirdly trilling solo on 'Yesterdays'. Again, though, there's relatively little real interplay, aside from a beautifully modulated 'Summertime'. The Standard Sonny Rollins sets him alongside either Jim Hall or Herbie Hancock plus rhythm section: aimless, encumbered by his own genius, Rollins sounds bored with whatever tune he's playing but can't help throwing in the occasional brilliant stroke.

The Complete edition spreads all the above music across six CDs, together with the unissued fragments which went to make up Alternatives (now seemingly in limbo) and a few other stray items. Awkward though some of the music often is, few sets document a major artist in both triumph and adversity as scrupulously as this; along with the Prestige and Blue Note editions, this is essential to Rollins followers. The original sessions always sounded particularly handsome on original vinyl; as clean as this edition is, it seems to have lost some warmth in the transition.

(*) On Impulse! Impulse! 051223-2 Rollins; Ray Bryant (p); Walter Booker (b); Mickey Roker (d). 7/65.

(*) Alfie Impulse! 051224-2 Rollins; Jimmy Cleveland, J. J. Johnson (tb); Phil Woods (as); Oliver Nelson, Bob Ashton (ts); Roger Kellaway (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Walter Booker (b); Frankie Dunlop (d). 1/66.

(*) East Broadway Rundown Impulse! 051161-2 Rollins; Freddie Hubbard (t); Jimmy Garrison (b); Elvin Jones (d). 5/66.

Rollins's Impulse! records numbered only a handful and they tend to be somewhat overlooked. The new editions of On Impulse! and Alfie, while not quite demanding a re-evaluation, sound better than ever, and the former in particular, with 'On Green Dolphin Street' and especially 'Three Little Words' transformed into great Rollins set-pieces, is a must. Alfie is arguably slighter stuff, with only the main theme – a swaggering line in the tradition of 'Sonnymoon For Two' – offering much meat to the soloist. But this unusual situation for Rollins is one he seems to have enjoyed, and there are some surprisingly unencumbered and witty solos. Nelson, who arranged, had to do little more than keep the horns out of Sonny's way, but it's interesting to conjecture what impact Kellaway – who contributes a handful of intriguing remarks – might have had on the situation. East Broadway Rundown still sounds disappointing, with Garrison and Jones no kind of dream match for the leader. The long title-track spends a lot of time going nowhere: only a gnarled 'We Kiss In A Shadow' approaches the real Rollins.

 Next Album Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 312 Rollins; George Cables (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); David Lee (d); Arthur Jenkins (perc). 7/72.

(*) The Cutting Edge Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 468 Rollins; Rufus Harley (bagpipes); Stanley Cowell (p); Yoshiaki Masuo (g); Bob Cranshaw (b); David Lee (d); James Mtume (perc). 7/74.

 Easy Living Original Jazz Classics 893 Rollins; George Duke (ky); Charles Icarus Johnson (g); Paul Jackson, Byron Miller (b); Tony Williams (d); Bill Summers (perc). 8/77.

(*) Don't Stop The Carnival Milestone MCD 55005 Rollins; Donald Byrd (t, flhn); Mark Soskin (p); Aurell Ray (g); Jerry Harris (b); Tony Williams (d). 4/78.

() Milestone Jazzstars In Concert Milestone MCD 55006 Rollins; McCoy Tyner (p); Ron Carter (b); Al Foster (d). 9–10/78.

 Don't Ask Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 915 Rollins; Mark Soskin (ky); Jerome Harris (b); Al Foster (d); Bill Summers (perc). 5/79.

Rollins returned to action with Next Album, a very happy album which sounded much more contented than anything he'd recorded in over a decade. 'Playin' In The Yard' and 'The Everywhere Calypso' were taken at a joyous swagger, 'Poinciana' showcased his debut on soprano, and 'Skylark' was the tenor tour de force of the record, the saxophonist locking into a persuasively argued cadenza which shook the melody hard. But at root the album lacks the sheer nerve of his early music. This reining-in of his darker side affects all of his '70s records to some degree. The Cutting Edge, recorded at Montreux, is a muddle, with only a lovely reading of 'To A Wild Rose' to save it. The best of Easy Living – 'My One And Only Love', a merry treatment of Stevie Wonder's 'Isn't She Lovely' and the bleak title-piece – earns a better rating, but Rollins is still surrounded by players who don't belong with him, even Williams.

Don't Stop The Carnival has two great set-pieces, a ravishing 'Autumn Nocturne' and a fine display of virtuosity on 'Silver City', but the mismatched band – Williams tending towards extravagance, and Byrd prefiguring his astonishing total decline of the '80s – let him down. The Jazzstars live session is another disappointment, with the all-star group playing well but to no special purpose and with nothing to show at the end of the record. The almost sublime frustration of this period was provided by reports of (unrecorded) concerts where Rollins was reputedly playing better than ever. Don't Ask is initially a groaner – with a track called 'Disco Monk' and the boogaloo thump of 'Harlem Boys' – but there are some unpredictably enjoyable moments since Rollins is actively enjoying what seem to be inappropriate situations for him. 'My Ideal' is another of his peculiarly bitter ballads. These are curmudgeonly ratings – but we're talking about Sonny Rollins and, next to his masterpieces, these are intensely disappointing records.

 Love At First Sight Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 753 Rollins; George Duke (p); Stanley Clarke (b); Al Foster (d); Bill Summers (perc). 5/79.

 Sunny Days, Starry Nights Milestone MCD 9122 Rollins; Clifton Anderson (tb); Mark Soskin (p); Russel Blake (b); Tommy Campbell (d). 1/84.

Rollins began the '80s with a session that intercut some of his old philosophies with supposed modernists like Duke and Clarke, though both are called on to perform in neo-traditional roles. The result is a diffident rather than a genuinely contrary record: not bad, with a nice 'The Very Thought Of You' and a sweet original called 'Little Lu', but the perfunctory retread of the ancient Rollins classic 'Strode Rode' shows up the lightweight cast and situation. Sunny Days, Starry Nights features the nucleus of the band he kept for many years, built around Soskin and Anderson. Nobody else is remotely on Rollins's level, and he seems to prefer it that way: certainly his best performances have arisen out of a certain creative isolation. This is another good-humoured date, with the melody of 'I'll See You Again' coming in waves of overdubbed tenor and jolly themes such as 'Kilauea' and 'Mava Mava' tempting the leader out of himself; it's as enjoyable as any of his later records.

(*) G Man Milestone MCD 9150 Rollins; Clifton Anderson (tb); Mark Soskin (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 8/86–4/87.

 Dancing In The Dark Milestone MCD 9155 As above, except omit Cranshaw; add Jerome Harris (b, g). 9/87.

 Falling In Love With Jazz Milestone MCD 9179 As above, except omit Smith; add Branford Marsalis (ts); Tommy Flanagan (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Jeff 'Tain' Watts, Jack DeJohnette (d). 6–9/89.

 Here's To The People Milestone MCD 9194 As above, except omit Marsalis, Flanagan; add Roy Hargrove (t); Al Foster (d); Steve Jordan (perc). 91.

The live show which produced the title-track of G Man caught Rollins in his most communicative form: it might not be his most profound playing, but the sheer exuberance and tumbling impetus of his improvising sweeps the listener along. Dancing In The Dark seems tame in comparison, though the leader plays with plenty of bite: tracks such as 'Just Once', though, seem to have been designed more for radio-play than anything else, and the band's snappy delivery of 'Duke Of Iron' is a well-crafted routine, not a spontaneous flourish. The two studio sessions follow a similar pattern, with the guest horn-player on each date doing no more than blowing a few gratuitous notes. Falling In Love With Jazz has a quite irresistible version of 'Tennessee Waltz', and there are two Rollins flights through 'Why Was I Born?' and 'I Wish I Knew' on Here's To The People, where his tone seems grouchier and less tractable than ever before. Both discs, though, sound excessively studio-bound, suggesting that Rollins could use a change of scene here. In his 60s, though, he is probably content to work at his own whim, which – on the basis of the extraordinary catalogue listed above – he has surely earned.

CORE COLLECTION

* This Is What I Do

Milestone MCD-9310-2 Rollins; Clifton Anderson (tb); Stephen Scott (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Perry Wilson, Jack DeJohnette (d). 5–6/00.

It's a commonplace that jazz has for the most part lost its small legion of charismatic figures who have shouldered its great innovations, embodied its major advances. Who are the surviving giants? Cecil Taylor, Ornette Coleman … Sonny Rollins. If Taylor's massive advances exemplify the jazz of a once and future era, Rollins belongs to a bygone golden age, an almost classical figure. He is, perhaps, jazz's Sinatra, absolutely 'traditional', even conservative now, yet so enormously individual that he dictates his own space in his culture. He may have tried modish flavours from time to time, but if they didn't fit with him he simply discarded them. Each new session is nothing more than a set's worth of Rollins, blowing as lustily as he felt at that point. His bandsmen have included distinguished players – Stephen Scott is the best pianist he's had for years, and DeJohnette, who plays on four of the six tracks, is hardly a mere sideman – but they are little more than framing devices for the saxophone. More than ever, this set dismisses ornamentation. The studio sound is unsparing on the players, with a new immediacy in the mix: Rollins's records of recent times have seldom sounded so close and alive. The material is sui generis: a new calypso, 'Salvador'; a more-or-less blues, 'Charles M'; a surprising memento of a nearly forgotten tenorman, 'Did You Hear Harold Vick?'; and three improbable standards, two of them all but unknown to jazz repertory. He makes 'Sweet Leilani' into something approaching a gospel piece, and 'The Moon Of Manakoora', a choice to gladden the hearts of Dorothy Lamour fans, is fractious and regal. Here and throughout, the tenor tone has an almost crusty grandeur, the old supreme-steel sound mottled and scarred, but superbly resilient. His solos no longer sweep through numberless choruses, instead focusing around fragments of the material. The rhythmic chops have been hurt by the passage of time, perhaps, but there's a compensating sense that he's phrasing everything to his own particular clock. If anything, he has gone back to the performer whose sets he always tried to catch after his own night's work, Billie Holiday. 'A Nightingale Sang In Berkeley Square', with the leader lagging imperiously behind the beat, might almost be a late-period Holiday interpretation. The others do their duty, and often handsomely. Scott gets off some shapely and even ingenious solos. Anderson is the patient colourist, and he has some nice muted work on 'Charles M'. But nothing they do is anything other than an intermission, while we impatiently await the saxophonist's return. This Is What I Do is unmistakable, and great Sonny Rollins.

 Without A Song: The 9/11 Concert Milestone MCD 9342-2 As above, except omit DeJohnette; add Kimati Dinizulu (perc). 9/01.
Recorded a few days after the attacks, which drove Sonny and Lucille from their apartment not far from the World Trade Center, this is a poignant and powerful set recorded in Boston. It's also part of a great trove of live Rollins recordings which admirer Carl Smith hopes to share with the world if Rollins and Milestone concur. There is further melancholy in the knowledge that Lucille, who urged her husband to fulfil his commitment to play the Boston show, passed away before the disc was released. The music is often tumultuous and was clearly an event which, in all the circumstances, must have seemed close to overwhelming for those who attended it. Yet closer study of the CD points up shortcomings which suggest that the leader's own vulnerabilities will detract from its durability. It's still Sonny Rollins.

Also, in brief:

* The Complete Prestige Recordings /  The Essential Sonny Rollins On Riverside /  Prestige PRCD 4407 7CD / Riverside FCD-60-020 / Blue Note 93203. 51–56; 56–57; 56–58.
Each of the two best-ofs scores lower marks only because the original albums are indispensable. But the Riverside set does include tracks which are otherwise under the leadership of Dorham or Monk. The Complete Prestige set, on the other hand, is an abundant feast for those who'd prefer to have the nine original albums compressed to a seven-disc edition.

(*) St Thomas Dragon DRCD 229. 3/59.
Rollins's European tour of 1959 brought about no 'official' recordings, but some radio and concert material has survived.

* Silver City Milestone MCD 2501-2 2CD. 72–95.
Rollins has been fortunate in his repackaging, and this set – with a revealing interview essay – is a notably effective round-up.

 Horn Culture /  Nucleus / () The Way I Feel Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 314 / 620 / 666. 6–7/73; 9/75; 8–10/76.
Three of his weakest records, from a period of uncertainty and flirting with crossover success that went nowhere. Completists only.

(*) The Solo Album Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 956. 7/85.
A disappointing solo concert, with too much wool-gathering and not enough point.

 Old Flames Milestone MCD-9215-2. 7–8/93.
This is a sombre record after the sequence of mostly cheerful Milestones.

 + 3 Milestone MCD 9250. 8–10/95.
Another strange one. Sonny's tone has never been grainier or more fogbound, he uses repetitions obsessively, cracks some notes as wilfully as Miles Davis, and states a written melody with seemingly intentional cruelty.

(*) Global Warming Milestone MCD 9280. 1–2/98.
The good-humoured 'Island Lady' and the sunny-sounding title-track militate against a mood which is meant to be about planetary crisis.

Wallace Roney (born 1960)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

While Wynton Marsalis and Terence Blanchard parcelled out the mainstream tradition, Roney established himself as the eclectic heir of Miles Davis. He is married to, and has regularly recorded with, pianist Geri Allen.

* No Room For Argument Stretch 9033 Roney; Antoine Roney (ss, ts); Geri Allen (p, ky); Adam Holzman (p, org, ky); Buster Williams (b); Lenny White (d). 4/00.
This is a most impressive tapestry of styles and sounds, incorporating free-form passages, straight(ish) bop and some intriguing spoken-word samples from African-American heroes Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. Wallace pays homage to John Coltrane in a version of the 'Acknowledgement' section from A Love Supreme; Buster Williams takes that famous bass-line and makes it triumphantly his own. 'Straight No Nothing' and 'Midnight Blue' are both originals but are clearly intended to make direct reference to the modern jazz canon. In terms of trumpet-playing, Wallace refers quite explicitly to Miles, Dizzy, Booker Little and Freddie Hubbard, but the voice is now most distinctively his own and the impact of the album as a whole is considerable. Chick Corea produces and Glen Kolotkin engineers with a delicate touch.

 Prototype High Note HCD 7116 Roney; Clifton Anderson (tb); Antoine Roney (as); Don Byron (cl); Geri Allen (p); Matt Garrison (b); Carl Allan (d); DJ Logic (v). 2/04.
(*) Mystikal High Note HCD 7145 Roney; Antoine Roney (as); Geri Allen (p); Adam Holzman (ky); Matt Garrison (b); Carl Allen (d); Bobby Thomas Jr (perc); Val Jeanty (turntables). 5/05.
These understandably seem like a pair, and like siblings suffer the same ailments in exactly the same way. Prototype is a smart, effective modern jazz record that has acquired a few fashionable excrescences. All praise to Roney's desire to keep his music close to the street and to emulate Miles's determination to move with the times. Unfortunately, such experiments rarely come off. The second album of the pair is stronger because the core playing is better and the associated material only an incidental distraction. Wayne Shorter's 'Atlantis' opens the set on a high note (!) and places it stylistically with some precision. All that follows confirms the impression: not a 2005 record, then, but one marked with nostalgia for the jazz of half a generation back. No harm whatever in that.

Adonis Rose (born 1974)

DRUMS

Young drummer entering the vanguard of today's post-bop.

 Song For Donise /  The Unity Criss Cross 1146 / 1173 Rose; Nicholas Payton (t); Tim Warfield (ts); Anthony Wonsey (p); Reuben Rogers (b). 12/97; 6/99.

Rose first came to notice on Payton's Gumbo Nouveau for Verve. This session returns the compliment: more or less the same line-up and with Payton and Wonsey the main composers. One might suspect that Payton, a Wayne Shorter devotee, also brought in 'E.S.P.', but this is the best pointer to Rose's own debt to the late Tony Williams. He has the same dry, rippling delivery, and a generous amount of the same innate musicality. On 'Love Walked In', which is for piano trio only, he cements the connection with a beautifully crafted performance. Perhaps inevitably, the session is dominated by the two hornmen. The cast returns for another go on The Unity and, while this is perhaps just another good day at the office, the music continues to breathe and expand as these young performers become ever more masterful in their skills. Payton gets a huge sound on 'I Remember You', which sounds as if it must be an uncredited flugelhorn, and Wonsey, who plays modestly for much of the way, digs in hard on his own mockingly titled 'Smooth Jazz'.

 On The Verge Criss Cross 1294 Rose; Nicholas Payton (t); Tim Warfield (sax); Aaron Goldberg (p); Warren Wolf (vib); Reuben Rogers (b). 10/03.

Rose's writing's in good shape on this one, but the band feels a bit shapeless and the arrangements don't flatter the group. Jimmy Heath's 'Gingerbread Boy' has a nice feel to it, and Warfield's 'Lies In Beauty' seems to get most from the band. Adonis sounds more relaxed than he has done in the studio, before or since, and it suits him very well. A good set rather than a significant record.

(*) Untouchable House Of Swing 82807 Rose; Leon 'Kid Chocolate' Brown (t, v); Steve Walker (tb); Jonathan Batiste, Fred Sanders (p); Jason Scott Stewart (b). 5/05.

This sounds like a fun band – they're called the N.O. Vaders, get it? – to be in, certainly more fun than to listen to. There's an air of almost forced enjoyment in places, and Rose has to get his own point across at every available turn, even moments when it behoves him to keep to the background. Nasty sound, too. We hope he didn't sever ties with Gerry Teekens for this.

Scott Rosenberg

REEDS

A seemingly hyperactive performer who ran the Creative Music Orchestra and turns up in myriad performing situations.

* Creative Music Orchestra, Chicago 2001 New World NW 80572 Rosenberg; Creative Music Orchestra. 5/01.

Like Anthony Braxton, Rosenberg is both a devoted multi-instrumentalist and a composer/leader for larger ensembles. The CMO, populated with some of the best young improvisers around, seems to operate in a field between written new music and 'free' improvisation. The language is dark, subliminally polyphonic and with a rugged logic that reveals itself only slowly. '7x/Sttm' and the closing 'Toys' are both titanic pieces, deserving of the closest and most evenly suspended attention.

* New Folk, New Blues 482 Music 1031 Rosenberg; Jim Baker (p, syn); Anton Hatwich (b); Tim Daisy (perc). 8/03.

The background to this is certainly free jazz and neither folk nor blues, though one remembers Charles Mingus going out under the former rubric at Impulse!. There's a slashing urgency to this group fuelled by Daisy, a charter member of CMO, but also stoked up by Rosenberg's roaring altissimo and Hatwich's Barre Phillips-like base, centred but wild at the same time. Baker uses a curiously creaky synth, which gives a heavy-breathing authenticity to 'Knives, Swords, Flags', the best cut, but he's also a fantastic piano-player, with a two-handed physicality spot-on for this music.

(*) Blood CIMP 314 Rosenberg; Todd Margasek (c); Kyle Hernandez (b); Tim Daisy (perc). 5/04.

This is Rosenberg's Red Quartet, and an immensely exciting unit. We sense a certain constraint in this session. Some of the pieces seem to run through an idea (similarly constructed to some of Braxton's language pieces) without much development or conviction, and it would be interesting to hear the same personnel and material in a more confrontational live situation. Cornet and reeds blend well, and there is a nice separation between the winds and the other pair. Ironically, the best piece on the record is a non-original, Jacopo Adreini's 'A1', which seems to bring the quartet together more effectively than the others. More, though, urgently requested.

Bernt Rosengren (born 1937)

TENOR AND ALTO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE, TAROGATO, PIANO

Rosengren led Swedish hard bop as its premier young tenorman in the late '50s. He acquired some international exposure in the '60s with George Russell and others, but he has basically remained tied to his native scene as a player and bandleader, and a fair spread of his career is currently available on CD.

 Jazz Club 57 Dragon DRCD 326 Rosengren; Stig Söderqvist (vtb); Claes-Göran Fagerstedt (p); Torbjørn Hultcrantz (b); Sune Spångberg (d); Nannie Porres (v). 57–62.

 Bombastica! Dragon DRCD 287 Rosengren; Lasse Werner (p); Kjell Samuelson (p); Torbjørn Hultcrantz, Göran Pettersson (b); Sune Spångberg (d). 2/59–6/60.

Rosengren has been a force in Swedish jazz for some 50 years and is still undervalued on the world stage. Wider availability of his earlier records would still be welcome, but the reappearance of Jazz Club 57 is welcome. Rosengren is already in imperious form, clear toned and logical in his development of a solo. Söderqvist makes some arresting interventions on 'I'll Remember April' and 'Sputnik' but only appears on one other track. Bombastica! restores a session which was an early example of Swedish music crossing the Atlantic, since it was released in the US on Jazzland. There are extra, unissued tracks and four pieces from a rare EP by Lasse Werner. It's a nice example of European hard bop, although not all that hard, and often more swing than boppish in its inclinations, though Rosengren's sound, a light variation on Rollins at this point, is sweetly caught.

 Surprise Party Steeplechase SCCD 31177 Rosengren; Horace Parlan (p); Doug Raney (g); Jesper Lundgaard (b); Aage Tanggaard (d). 3/83.

 The Hug Dragon DRCD 211 Rosengren; Carl-Fredrik Orrje (p); Anders Ullberg (g); Torbjørn Hultcrantz (b); Leif Wennerström (d). 5/92.

() Full Of Life / () Bent's Jump: Summit Meeting Live At Bent J Dragon DRCD 205 / 233 Rosengren; Krister Andersson (ts, cl); Göran Lindberg (p); Sture Nordin (b); Bengt Stark (d). 3/91; 7/93.

The Steeplechase session, rather glibly dismissed in our first edition, is standing up rather better than we previously allowed. Admittedly not much more than one of the label's in-house blowing dates, but the calibre of the band is nevertheless considerable and the easy-going authority of the playing is hardly disappointing. The Hug is an agreeable, lightly swinging programme of standards and a few originals which all involved take affably enough, though scrutiny of any passage reveals that nobody's asleep. Rosengren's tone and phrasing are a nice balance of strength and a certain vulnerability which can sometimes give his solos a dozing quality they don't deserve. He is in more commanding form on the two albums by the band Summit Meeting. Full Of Life is a studio date, while Bent's Jump was recorded at the establishment squired by Bent J. Jensen, one of the great jazz-club owners. The live session has an ounce more snap to it, although the sound is somewhat documentary-standard. The music is a sinewy variation on midstream hard bop, and the two saxophonists – neither exactly a pugilist – forge an amicable front line that transcends jam-session clichés. Overall, not a very strong representation at present for a major European musician.

Kurt Rosenwinkel (Born 1970)

GUITAR, KEYBOARDS, DRUMS, VOICE

A ubiquitous presence on the New York club scene of the late '90s, Rosenwinkel has progressed rapidly from sideman to leader status with these sets.

(*) East Coast Love Affair Fresh Sound FSNT 016 Rosenwinkel; Avishai Cohen (b); Jorge Rossy (d). 7/96.

 Intuit Criss Cross 1160 Rosenwinkel; Michael Kanan (p); Joe Martin (b); Tim Pleasant (d). 8/98.

 The Enemies Of Energy Verve 543042-2 Rosenwinkel; Mark Turner (ts); Scott Kinsey (ky); Ben Street (b); Jeff Ballard (d). 99.

The debut has a beautiful feel – the three men were recorded in Smalls' Club, where Rosenwinkel has had a regular gig, and the sound of the record is close, almost humid. The interplay lifts the material to a high level of invention – when they fade 'All Or Nothing At All', it sounds as though they could have gone on in that groove for hours yet. Rosenwinkel plays with a clean, almost classical sound and his melody lines are spacious and paced to suit whatever tempo they've chosen – he never seems to feel he has to rush through his phrases. Cohen and Rossy are just as generous of spirit on a very enjoyable set. It's certainly more successful than the subsequent Criss Cross, which is all right but basically uneventful. The bebop tunes are given a going-over which sounds like a lot of other records, and it feels routine.

The Enemies Of Energy is by Rosenwinkel's regular band. The music's a curious blend of straight-ahead, fusion, prog-rock instrumentals and even folk music, with Rosenwinkel accompanying his own vocal on 'The Polish Song'. Kinsey's keyboards bring in what sound like clavinet and analogue synthesizers. Rosenwinkel and Turner have their moments, but this feels like a patchwork in search of a clear pattern, and what might sound a lot more vivid and convincing in a live situation seems very tame in the studio.

(*) The Next Step Verve 549162-2 Rosenwinkel; Mark Turner (ts); Ben Street (b); Jeff Ballard (d). 5/00.

Rosenwinkel's second for Verve goes back to the feel of his first record. In many ways, it's penny-plain music: he uses a straightforward sound, and the quartet play in a heads-down, get-on-with-it manner. It's all about content, very little variety, nothing to show off. Rosenwinkel and Turner match each other solo for solo, while Street and Ballard push on tirelessly behind them. It has a Tristano-ite logic and cool-headedness. There's nothing to listen for except rigorous thought and intensity; it's abstruse, but entirely coherent. An extraordinary record for a major record company to release.

Also, in brief:

(*) Heartcore Verve 589776-2. N.D.

Despite the guest list this is almost a solo programme with Rosenwinkel playing keyboards and drums, singing and programming. It's dull.

 Deep Song Verve 103456-3. n.d.

A lush studio mix, expertly orchestrated ensemble sound and thoughtfully mediated improvising; but most people would rather listen to a Pat Metheny record.

Renee Rosnes (born 1962)

PIANO

Canadian-born Rosnes maintained a consistent output for Blue Note throughout the '90s. Married to drummer Billy Drummond.

(*) Ancestors Blue Note 34634 Rosnes; Nicholas Payton (t); Chris Potter (ts, ss, af); Peter Washington (b); Al Foster (d); Don Alias (perc). 10/95.

This is the record that marks Rosnes's maturity as a composer. In 1994, she had met her biological mother and learnt more about her Indian heritage; at almost the same moment her adoptive mother succumbed to a late-diagnosed cancer. These extremes of joy and pain are reflected in 'Ancestors' itself, a swinging, confident piece with a measure of tragedy at its centre, and also in 'The Ache Of The Absence', 'Lifewish', 'The Gift' and 'Chasing Spirits', which give the latter stages of this fine record the feel of a loosely connected suite.

This is the first time she has recorded with a brass instrument. Payton's solo on 'The Ache' is immaculate, only matched by Potter's restless idea on 'Chasing Spirits'. Washington and Foster cannot be faulted on any count, and Bob Belden's recording is pristine.

* As We Are Now Blue Note 56810 Rosnes; Chris Potter (ts, ss); Christian McBride (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 3/97.

This time, Rosnes has few items of personal agenda on show. 'The Land Of Five Rivers' is a small exception, a portrait of the northern Indian landscape her ancestors left to go to Canada. The disc gets off to a roaring start with 'Black Holes', an original that sits well for both piano and horn. Nothing could be of greater contrast than the haunted title-piece, named after a May Sarton novel and almost as beautiful. Tony Williams's 'Pee Wee' was written for the Miles Davis album Sorcerer and was included here to mark the drummer's untimely death. Rosnes has the gift of turning strong emotion into compelling music. No mistaking the strength of her feelings, or the ability to convert and transform it.

* Art & Soul Blue Note 99997 2 Rosnes; Scott Colley (b); Billy Drummond (d); Richard Bona (perc); Dianne Reeves (v). 2/99.

As ever, Rosnes draws on the past and makes it sound fresh, friendly and contemporary. Beginning with 'Blues Connotation' (a clever, 11½-bar blues by Ornette Coleman) was a masterstroke, for its off-centre phrasing and hectic pace leave the listener slightly winded and pleasantly punchy. Following it up with a romantic reading of 'With A Little Help From My Friends' was even more clever. Rosnes has the gift of taking shop-worn tunes and making them sound as if they were being written on the spot, and the musing quality she brings to the Beatles song, this time with minimal accompaniment from Colley and Drummond, is spot-on.

Wayne Shorter's 'Footprints' features lyrics by Kitty Margolis and a strong vocal by Dianne Reeves, who also features on 'Fleurette Africaine', a Duke Ellington tune first recorded on the Money Jungle session with Mingus and Roach. Richard Bona's kalimba adds a delightful and unexpected dimension. 'Little Spirit' is a love song for Renee's baby son, and the closing piece is a Corea-inspired arrangement of a Bartók children's song.

 And The Danish Radio Big Band Blue Note 90799 2 Danish Radio Big Band. 12/01.

There is a hint of retrospection to this elegantly polished set as well. Instead of writing brand-new charts for her gig with the big band, Renee has dusted off some favourite themes from earlier in her career and given them a new bulk and presence. 'Ancestors' is the most obvious example, but also 'Black Holes' and the funky 'Bulldog's Chicken Run' from Where We Are Now. This is fine as far as it goes, but the feeling here is very much a big-budget remake rather than a genuinely new project. Jim McNeely's arrangements are spot-on, and the soloists are good without exception, notably trombonist Peter Jensen on 'Ancestors'. Renee brings a touch of steel to a clever arrangement of the English song 'Early One Morning', which is scored without woodwinds.

 Deep Cove CBC Universal TRCD 3012 Rosnes; Campbell Ryga (ss, as); Neil Swainson (b); Rudy Petschauer (d). 9/03.

Co-led with fellow JUNO winner Ryga, this attractive quartet celebrates Renee's home region in North Vancouver. The programme of material is varied and stimulating, with Buster Williams's 'Air Dancing' ('Air Dance'), Stanley Cowell's rarely covered 'Dave's Chant', Monk's 'We See', an Alec Wilder standard and some original tracks. There's a more sombre lyricism to Renee's playing these days, closer to Bill Evans than to Herbie Hancock, and Ryga's saxophone style fits that conception perfectly.

 A Time For Love Video Arts Music 1038 Rosnes; Peter Washington (b); Lewis Nash (d). 10/05.

Johnny Mandel's title-tune is only one of a dozen standards/repertory pieces on this lovely set, but what a selection! Ray Bryant's 'Lullaby Petite', Oscar Peterson's 'Ballad From The East', David Raskin's 'The Bad And The Beautiful'. The trio seem to know the material inside out and Rosnes has rarely played so well. A pity, though, that there is only room for one of her own pieces, the fine 'Dizzy Spells'.

Also, in brief:

(*) With A Little Help From My Friends Blue Note 26584. 88–95.

The earliest stuff is now out of print or only available in certain territories. This valuable compilation adds unreleased material and a wonderful trio version of the title-track.

 Letter To Evans Keystone VACY 1030. 8/00.

Strictly billed as 'The Drummonds', with Ray (b) and Billy (d), this still pretty much counts as Renee's record. May also be available as Pas De Trois on True Life Jazz.

 Life On Earth Blue Note 33997. 01.

Two years away from the studio have given Rosnes time to develop ambitious ideas, but the big-band comeback seems overcooked.

Frank Rosolino (1926–78)

TROMBONE

Also fondly remembered as a comic vocalist, he was valued for fast, responsive trombone-playing. He worked in an array of big bands, including Gene Krupa's, before joining Howard Rumsey's Lighthouse All Stars in the later '50s. His suicide seemed out of character.

* Frank Rosolino/5 V.S.O.P. #16 Rosolino; Richie Kamuca (ts); Vince Guaraldi (p); Monty Budwig (b); Stan Levey (d). 6/57.

(*) Free For All Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1763 Rosolino; Harold Land (ts); Victor Feldman (p); Leroy Vinnegar (b); Stan Levey (d). 12/58.

 Turn Me Loose! Collectables COL 6159 Rosolino; Victor Feldman (p); Chuck Berghofer (b); Irving Cottler (d). 11/61.

(*) Fond Memories Of ... Double-Time Records DTRCD 113 Rosolino; Louis Van Dyke (p); Jacques Schols (b); John Engels (d); Metropole Orchestra. 6/73, 5/75.

 Thinking About You Sackville SKCD 5007 2CD Rosolino; Ed Bickert (g); Don Thompson (b); Terry Clarke (d). 76.

(*) Frank Talks Storyville SKCD 8284 Rosolino; Thomas Clausen (p); Bo Stief (b); Bjarne Rostvold (d). 78.

 The Last Recording Sea Breeze 3080 Rosolino; Larry Willis (p); Kevin Brandon (b); Billy Higgins (d). 8/78.

Coming of age in Gene Krupa's post-war band, Rosolino developed a style that seemed to combine elements of bop harmony with the more durable virtues of swing. A wonderfully agile player with a tone that could be broad and humane, almost vocalized one moment, thinly abstract the next, Rosolino brings a twist of humour to almost everything he plays. Turn Me Loose! was an attempt at a comic jazz album, which mostly works, though his singing is affected and tiresome.

Rosolino/5 is close to the best of the available records: three Rosolino standards, mostly in modified blues forms, together with 'Thou Swell', 'They Say', the old groaner 'Cherry' and Bill Holman's topically titled 'Fallout'. Typically, almost every track involves some manipulation of time or harmony, with 'Thou Swell' falling unexpectedly in threes, and 'How Long' cast in a long, yearning line that puts maximum emphasis on the interplay between Rosolino and the superlative Kamuca, who has rarely sounded better on disc.

The OJC rounds out a fine session done for the Specialty label with some valuable alternative takes ('There Is No Greater Love', 'Chrisdee' and 'Don't Take Your Love From Me') and some great performances from the band that belie the undisciplined mood suggested by the title. Land is a more muscular soloist than Kamuca, but no less responsive to the mood of the session, and capable of some extremely delicate and detailed passage-work.

The Dutch session was recorded at the radio studios in Hilversum at a time when Rosolino was spending most of his time on this side of the Atlantic, often working with Conte Candoli. The Metropole Orchestra are featured on only three tracks, including the superlative 'Corcovado', and though there are no real quibbles about the rhythm section, they aren't entirely well-adapted to Rosolino's fast, elegant later style. Fond Memories was a limited-edition pressing, but copies should still be in circulation, and they are well worth snapping up.

The CD reissue of Thinking About You is vastly expanded. Originally just four longish tracks, it now includes the whole of a long Toronto set which paired Frank with some of Canada's finest jazz musicians. Bickert is especially good and comes through strongly in the remastering. Some of the tracks are overlong and loose; the opening 'Sweet And Lovely' is almost a quarter of an hour in duration, and it's to be doubted whether any but the most devoted of fans will want a full double-CD of this stuff. But it's engaging enough, and Frank was in fine voice, no sign yet of the shadows that were to overtake him later. His solos on 'My Old Flame' and a mellow 'Round Midnight' are among his best on record.

The Storvyville session, recorded less than three months before his death, finds him buoyant and persuasive on a Copenhagen club date. Ably supported by Thomas Clausen, who takes some very effective solos, he strolls through five long tunes of which the first and last, the poignantly named 'Blue Daniel' and 'Waltz For Diane', are originals. The middle cuts are probably longer than is strictly effective, with something of the Buggins's turn of solos one tends to find on sessions like this; but there is plenty for fans of the trombonist to enjoy in a record that seems to have surfaced only in 1998. Rosolino's end could hardly have been grimmer or more bitterly ironic for a man who had played on a record called The Most Happy Fella and who is remembered above all for his good humour; in the liner-note to Fond Memories of ..., J. J. Johnson speaks of his 'infectious giggle'. There's a macabre fascination with 'last' recordings. Rosolino's is doubly strange in that there is no sign of any problem on the horizon. It's a typically workmanlike and open-hearted date, with some terrific accompaniment from Willis. Even so, clouds were obviously gathering. In November 1978, suffering from depression, he shot his sons, then took his own life.

Also, in brief:

 Featuring Sonny Clark: Complete Recordings Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10157. 53–57.
We remain sceptical about Lone Hill's completist claims and the logic of some releases.

Ned Rothenberg (born 1956)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, BASS CLARINET, SHAKUHACHI

A charter member of the New Winds ensemble, Rothenberg has embraced many branches of the music, from Dolphy-influenced post-bop to formal composition and solo improvisation; he is one of the few Westerners to sound convincing on shakuhachi.

* The Lumina Recordings Tzadik TZ7615-2 2CD Rothenberg (reeds solo), and with John Zorn (as); Gerry Hemingway (tenor steel d); David Weinstein (live signal processing). 3/80–11/98.
(*) The Crux: Selected Solo Wind Works Leo CD LR 187 Rothernberg (reeds solo). 12/91 & 8/92.
Solo performance is what reedman Ned Rothenberg calls 'home base', somewhere he returns to periodically to assess technique and musical philosophy. In addition to his work with New Winds and elsewhere, he has over the years allowed glimpses through the keyhole. Best-known, perhaps, is The Crux, a set made for Leo in 1991 and 1992. His alto saxophone-playing bears some comparison with Anthony Braxton's but is more precise in articulation, just as its content is more diffuse. By the same token, the solo bass clarinet performances will inevitably be compared to Dolphy's. At the centre of the recital is a meditative piece for shakuhachi, an instrument on which linear development is rather difficult. 'Sokaku Reibo' for alto – it means 'the cranes in their nest' – is influenced by that more impressionistic language. The most jazz-orientated of the tracks is 'Epistrophical Notions', dedicated to Monk as the earlier 'Maceo' is dedicated to the James Brown hornman.

The Lumina reissue goes back a decade earlier than that, to a trio of records made shortly after he moved to New York. Trials Of The Argo consisted of two long alto saxophone improvisations of which the title-piece was extended with overdubbed woodwinds and homemade instruments. That was followed in 1982 by Portal, the title-piece a homage to bass clarinettist Michel Portal, but a set that also included a virtuosic solo on soprano double ocarina, made by the legendary Alan Albright. The other cut from that album, 'Polysemy', had Gerry Hemingway on tenor steel drum. There's only one other instrumental collaboration on the reissue, an alto duo with John Zorn from the 1985 Trespass, but some of the previously unissued material features live digital signal processing by David Weinstein. No shakuhachi as yet and other than that ocarina piece a pretty robust concentration on alto and bass clarinet, but in a variety of voices that wouldn't shame a birdhouse. Some recent stuff dropped in as a bonus just confirms this as essential listening.

* Power Lines New World NW 80476 Rothenberg; Dave Douglas (t); Josh Roseman (tb); Kenny Berger (bs, bcl); Mark Feldman (vn); Ruth Siegler (vla); Erik Friedlander (clo); Mark Dresser (b); Michael Sarin (d); Glen Velez (frame d). 8/95.
If this is 'avant-garde jazz', bring it on! Rothenberg weaves hard ostinati and runs so long and complex you suspect he must be fitted with gills. Five long and beautifully developed tracks conclude with the 20-minute-plus 'In The Rotation', which builds to a whooping climax that brings everyone in. The start's every bit as good, with 'Hidalgo' calling the band in like a trumpeter at a corrida. Berger gives it all a solid bottom end, allowing Dresser to improvise more freely than he might otherwise. As he would time and again in future years, Rothenberg gets the strings fully involved and insists that they swing and stomp, too, rather than simply adding colour-washes in the background. Sarin's a great drummer for this kind of project, but Velez adds a special dimension on his two tracks.

 Parting Moers 03012 Rothenberg; Thomas Chapin (as, f); Jerome Harris (g, b); Tony Scherr (b); Mike Sarin, Samm Bennett (d). 5/96.
The parting can only refer to the subsequent death of Chapin, who was a key element of the Double Band, with its unique hybrid of free music and hard harmolodic funk. This is perhaps most valuable as a further glimpse of the late saxophonist's still under-documented work, but Rothenberg's more abrasive manner on these cuts is worth sampling too, and Harris is a wonder.

(*) Port Of Entry Intuition INT 3249 2 Rothenberg; Jerome Harris (g, b); Samir Chatterjee (tabla, perc). 10/97, 3/98.
Though this is strictly credited to the group Sync, it is very much a Rothenberg project. His basic idea, inspired by Pat Metheny, is that creative musicians are stretched only by working in contexts, modes and idioms in which they are not adept. In this trio, he has to pit himself against the kind of complex Carnatic rhythms which are basic ABC to a player like Chatterjee but which sit oddly for a Westerner. Jerome Harris is a natural-born blues player whose work falls naturally into blues forms, and yet on 'Lost In A Blue Forest' Rothenberg has him work out of normal range by playing an acoustic bass guitar with bottleneck and pick; very effectively, too.

(*) Ghost Stories Tzadik TZ 7061 Rothenberg; Eric Friedlander (clo); Min Xiao-Fen (pipa); Satoko Takeishi (perc). 8/99–4/00.
Another set of solos and collaborations, with the familiar Eastern cast and a further brilliant outing on the shakuhachi, 'Kagami'. The title-piece involves the whole group in a ritual as delicate as a tea ceremony, while Ned and Satoko also play a fascinating duet.

(*) Tools Of The Trade CIMP 248 Rothenberg; Denman Maroney (p). 6/01.
In the notes, Maroney describes what he uses on the piano on each track – knives, bars, bowls, screwdrivers – with a surgeon's (torturer's?) precision. There is surprisingly little torment. Actually, a lot of the interplay is no more difficult or bound up in obfuscation than many a mainstream date. Even Rothenberg says that the pieces are 'pieces', not just excerpts of a never-ending whole, and that a sense of finished work permeates what's otherwise free-thinking improvising. Rothenberg uses various clarinets and one alto saxophone, and his precision imposes a useful, if unorthodox, order. A curious but very interesting pairing.

 En Passant Creative Works CW 1042 Rothenberg; Peter Schmid (tubax, tarogato, bcl, cbcl). 4/03.
Recorded on April Fool's Day but marked by a quirky seriousness that could almost be a put-on were it not so highly focused, this terrific set teams Rothenberg with another unique wind voice. Schmid handles the lower-register horns, but often works up at the top end of his instruments, so there is more variation in timbre than pitch on these dozen improvisations.

* The Fell Clutch Animul 105 Rothenberg; David Tronzo (slide g); Stomu Takeishi (b); Tony Buck (d). 4/05.
Rothenberg kicks off 'Moment Of Reloading' on his bass clarinet against the most basic line from Buck. Takeishi and Tronzo (the latter making one of just three appearances on the disc) fill in something much richer sonically. 'Epic In Difference' is the other bass clarinet highlight, a brooding, philosophical thing that has immense scope. This is an extraordinary set, mostly improvised but with all the feel of a written and rehearsed programme. Ned's on saxophone for 'Food For A Rambling', splintering his line in such a way that it sounds as though he's squeezing in three or more melodies at once. Again, Tronzo does his curious dry, cool thing on the slide instrument, a sound that Rothenberg obviously enjoys.

Also, in brief:

(*) Intervals: Solo Works For Woodwinds Animul 101 2CD. 01.
More unaccompanied performances. All alto stuff on the second disc. Possibly hard to find.

 Harbinger Animul 104. N.D.
Powerful trio with Samir Chatterjee and Jerome Harris.

(*) Inner Diaspora Tzadik 8114. 6/06.
Rothenberg isn't usually a prisoner of ideas but this feels forced and self-conscious.

Jim Rotondi (born 1962)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

From Butte, Montana, he played in high school jazz groups and graduated in music from North Texas State. He moved to New York in 1987.

 Introducing Jim Rotondi Criss Cross 1128 Rotondi; Eric Alexander (ts); Larry Goldings (p, org); Dwayne Burno (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/96.
(*) Jim's Bop Criss Cross 1156 Rotondi; Eric Alexander (ts); Harold Mabern (p); John Webber (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 10/97.
 Excursions Criss Cross 1184 Rotondi; Steve Davis (tb); Eric Alexander (ts); David Hazeltine (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/98.
No more and no less than three excellent '90s hard-bop dates. Whether such a prospect quickens the pulse or induces a yawn will be up to individual readers, since there's nothing in Rotondi's music that is strikingly new. He doesn't write much – only six of the 24 compositions across the three discs are his, and two of those share a credit with Alexander – and his methods are based around clean, graceful improvising, with a flugelhorn sound much like Freddie Hubbard's on ballads. Alexander, his front-line colleague on all three dates, is always a fail-safe partner in the studios and three different rhythm sections each do their swinging duty – interesting to spot oldtimer Mabern in fast company on Jim's Bop. Farnsworth really kicks the fast ones along on that date, and it's full of spark. Excursions is just slightly disappointing in that Davis doesn't seem to add much except extra weight (and another solo) to all of the tunes.

 Destination Up! Sharp Nine 1022-2 Rotondi; Steve Davis (tb); Mulgrew Miller (p); Joe Locke (vib); Peter Washington (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 3/01.
Same as before, basically, with a little brightness injected by the reliable Joe Locke. Brightness is something that this style, and Rotondi's version of it, does cry out for, since otherwise it all tends towards clean, unsurprising mechanics. Davis is a downbeat presence, but luckily he's only on two tracks – though his composition 'Evening Shades Of Blue' is the longest and least interesting piece on the record. Rotondi gets hotter elsewhere, the solo on 'Last Ditch Wisdom' turning out particularly pellucid. Miller, who's had a quiet time of it lately, has a few characteristic, strong passages.

(*) New Vistas Criss Cross 1251 Rotondi; Chris Potter (ss, ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Sam Yahel (org); Bill Stewart (d). 11/03.
The title might lead you to expect something more adventurous, but the funky sound of this group is somewhat different from Jim's usual idiom and he's also writing more than on previous dates, so there is every indication he's spreading his wings. Potter is a highly adaptable player, so much so that he seems a little anonymous in this context. Jim does some nice Blue Mitchell-like exchanges with the organist and we'd have liked to have heard some more quartet material with just trumpet and rhythm.

* Iron Man Criss Cross 1275 Rotondi; Jimmy Greene (ts); Steve Nelson (vib); Doug Weiss (b); Bill Stewart (d). 5/05.
The new band without piano or organ pushes the trumpet out into more exposed territory, and all to the good. Greene isn't a particularly inspiring partner, but the very neutrality of some of his work is actually a plus on this seemingly quite personal set, where Rotondi gets down to some searching and adventurous work. It's now a very established discography, but there's nothing in it any better than the last four tracks here, from 'Digit' and 'Mr Craignos', through Neal Hefti's 'Repetition' to the closing 'Power'. First-rate.

(*) Four Of A Kind Positone 8034 Rotondi; David Hazeltine (p); John Webber (b); Joe Farnsworth (d); Jason Hann (perc). 6/07.
A new label berth seems to have spurred Rotondi on. This is a notably fresh appearance by the trumpeter, who seems to have a special working relationship with Hazeltine, for there's a crisp edge to the accompaniment that sits tight in behind the horn-line, spurring it subtly onwards. Farnsworth's also a terrific asset on a set like this, buoyant and propulsive but not unsubtle.

Also, in brief:

 Reverence Criss Cross 1209. 6/00.
Another heavyweight hard-bop date, with Mike DiRubbo (as) bringing a harder but also more expansive sound.

(*) The Pleasure Dome Sharp Nine 1029. 10/03.
Another set of crisp burners, lifted and given a nice boppish edge by Jesse Davis's (as) guest appearance on five of the cuts.

Charlie Rouse (1924–88)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

He spent the '60s in the company of Thelonious Monk and remained a devoted interpreter of the great man's work. He began his career with Billy Eckstine and Dizzy Gillespie and played for some time in R&B bands as well.

 Jazz Modes /  Mood In Scarlet Biograph 134/135 / Dawn CD 1345 Rouse; Julius Watkins (frhn); Gildo Mahones (p); Janet Putnam (hp); Paul Chambers, Oscar Pettiford, Martin Rivera, Paul West (b); Ron Jefferson, Art Taylor (d); Chano Pozo (perc); Eileen Gilbert (v). 7–12/56.
(*) Takin' Care Of Business Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 491 Rouse; Blue Mitchell (t); Walter Bishop (p); Earl May (b); Art Taylor (d). 5/60.
Rouse always played saxophone as if he had a cold in the head. There were those who questioned whether his slightly adenoidal, wuffling tone was ever appropriate to Thelonious Monk's music. However, Rouse became one of Monk's most loyal and stalwart supporters, and an essential part of some of Monk's finest quartet recordings. Rouse also carried the banner posthumously in his band Sphere, and in such tribute recordings as the not entirely successful Epistrophy, recorded just a month before his death (and currently deleted).

For a time in the late '50s Rouse co-led a group called Les Jazz Modes with french horn master Julius Watkins. The material, available again on Biograph and Dawn, is more interesting as a historical artefact than as a listenable record, but there are episodes and occasional tracks which recommend it.

 Bossa Nova Bacchanal Blue Note 90416 Rouse; Freddie Hubbard (t); McCoy Tyner (p); Kenny Burrell, Chauncey Westbrook (g); Bob Cranshaw, Larry Gales (b); Willie Bobo, Billy Higgins (d); Carlos 'Patato' Valdes (perc); Garvin Masseaux (shekere). 11/62, 65.
Rouse isn't the obvious tenor for a Latin project like this, and the album's success is largely down to some wonderful percussion work from Masseaux on shekere and to Patato Valdes; also to the supremely elegant guitar work of Burrell and Westbrook. Charlie's solos on top of this are a bit rough and ready, though he brings a distressed grandeur to the classic 'Samba De Orfeu', which is the centrepiece of the set. 'Un Dia' and 'Merci Bon Dieu' are less-familiar themes and Rouse explores them both at first tentatively and then with audibly growing confidence. Never the most effusive of soloists, he has the engaging ability to reinvent even his own ideas on the stand, working at an idea until it's clear to him. Some of this is lost in the studio, without benefit of alternates, and oddly the advertised bonus track on this reissue, 'One For Five', comes from a different session altogether, taped in 1965 with Hubbard, Tyner, Cranshaw and Higgins. If you know Charlie Rouse only as a Monk sideman, or from the tribute group Sphere, this will be a pleasant revelation.

 Social Call Uptown 2750 Rouse; Red Rodney (t); Albert Dailey (p); Cecil McBee (b); Kenny Washington (d). 1/84.
Inevitably, this is pretty much a bebop date. 'Half Nelson', available in two takes here, as are 'Social Call' and 'Darn That Dream', is taken at a relaxed swing and both horns allude to Charlie Parker and Miles Davis in their solos. Albert Dailey is a neglected figure, largely because he has recorded so little under his own name. He's hugely authoritative here, and plays with relaxed power against McBee's gigantic bass-lines. Washington sounds as if he comes from a later generation and that's all to the good, given how authentic the rest of the set is. The bonus cuts are a genuine asset, as always with Rouse, showing how he thinks his way through the changes quite deliberately. A fine showing from the saxophonist, though to hear the real Rouse, best turn to the Monk entry.

 Soul Mates Uptown 2734 Rouse; Claudio Roditi (t, flhn); Sahib Shihab (bs); Walter Davis Jr (p); Santi Debriano (b); Victor Lewis (d). 8/88.
A posthumous release, not just for Rouse but for his fellow saxophonist and the piano-player as well, so it comes down a little weighted with nostalgia. Don Sickler wrote the arrangements, cleverly so in the case of Monk's 'Green Chimneys', effectively elsewhere, and much of the set doesn't call for much more than an accurate reading. Charlie, however, solos nicely throughout, and there are few signs of flagging energy, even given that he hadn't long to live: Charlie died in November of the same year. Pettiford's 'Bohemia After Dark' is a high-point, but there isn't much wastage on this more than workmanlike sextet date.

ROVA

GROUP

An American all-saxophone group, its name derived from the surname initials of the players, although Andrew Voigt has been replaced by Steve Adams (ROAA would be harder to pronounce). Though their music seeks an exact balance between composition and improvisation, they have lately been written for extensively by many different composers.

 As Was /  Favourite Street / (*) Beat Kennel Atavistic Unheard Music ALD/UNS 216 / Black Saint 120076-2 / 120176-2 Larry Ochs, Bruce Ackley, Andrew Voigt, Jon Raskin (reeds). 4/81; 11/83; 4/87.
ROVA's first five albums were cut over a period of 12 months. As Was is a rare recovery from that early period, a notably joyous and invigorating record that in many respects is utterly difficult from the more clenched and abstract sound that followed. Along with the rootsier World Saxophone Quartet, ROVA pioneered the all-sax ensemble as a regular and conceptually wide-ranging unit. Whereas WSQ were more concerned with updating the swinging vitality of the big-band sax section, though, ROVA sought out remoter climes, specifically building on the discoveries of the Chicago avant-garde and claiming such composer-performers as Steve Lacy and Roscoe Mitchell as major influences. Their early work can be rather hard going: deliberately eschewing conventional notions about swing, prodding at the boundaries of sound and space, many of their '80s records are notebooks which frequently throw up as many failures as successes..

Steve Lacy was only belatedly recognized as a major patrician influence on a wide spectrum of modern players, and ROVA's homage to him on Favourite Street paid overdue tribute. The bony rigour of Lacy's themes focuses ROVA's meandering, no matter how adventurous their earlier trips had been: Lacy's music is a good way to clear the head of distractions, either as listener or as performer, and in their thoughtful elaborations on seven favourite themes they clear away some of the more baroque elements of their work. The subsequent Beat Kennel appears to build on this: in 'The Aggregate' and 'Sportspeak', their assured rhythms and tone-colours pull them closer to a jazz tradition, and in their vibrant reading of a Braxton composition they create distinctive jazz repertory.

 For The Bureau Of Both Black Saint 120135-2 As above, except omit Voigt; add Steve Adams (reeds). 2–9/92.
Steve Adams replaced Andrew Voigt, but otherwise ROVA's universe remained constant: a teeming cosmos of saxophone sounds. For The Bureau Of Both seems like a transitional record. Pieces such as 'Streak' take off from energetic riffs, but again one feels that their hearts are more involved in a big work like the 18-minute 'The Floater'.

(*) The Works Volumes 1 & 2 Soul Note 120176-2 / Black Saint 120186-2 As above. 7–9/94; 8/95.
Volume 1 seemed like a breakthrough record which their subsequent albums have built on. Like any group of long-standing experience, ROVA knew themselves well enough by now to discover new things in old chapters. There are just three compositions here, each a lengthy exploration and each concerned with both minutiae – of timbre, tempo, texture – and long-form considerations, such as the progressive weight of a piece, its sustainable intensities and its capacity to decay. Ochs's 'When The Nation Was Sound' is both one of their most ambitious and one of their most approachable pieces, while the themes by Jack DeJohnette and John Carter are exemplary pieces of repertory and revisionism, ROVA-style.

Volume 2 consists of three long works: Tim Berne's 'The Visible Man' is solid sax band repertory, but the two stronger pieces are Fred Ho's indignant-to-explosive 'Beyond Columbus And Capitalism', an intensely vivid piece of revolutionary rhetoric in sound, and Jon Raskin's fairly monumental 'Appearances Aren't Always What They Seem'. While the Ho piece has its fallibilities, Raskin knows the virtues of the band so well that his piece musters an almost visionary sweep, passing from bright contrapuntalism to fantastical convolutions to a moving coda that is among their most sheerly beautiful moments.

(*) John Coltrane's Ascension Black Saint 120180-2 As above, except add Dave Douglas, Raphe Malik (t); Glenn Spearman (ts); Chris Brown (p); Lisle Ellis (b); Donald Robinson (d). 12/95.
The sheer audacity of trying to re-create 'Ascension' in its entirety is justified by the uplifting result. Augmented by a rhythm section (Ochs takes a solo spin with them on 'Welcome', to introduce the record), the group employ Coltrane's theme but take the inevitable departures with both the solos and what seems to be spontaneous counterpoint. Trane and his men were taking early steps in a new world; these players have a fund of preconceived knowledge. The result is a realization which makes up in assured power what it might lack in 'pure' freedom. Douglas is a crucial element, injecting a lyrical passage before Raskin's almost brutal alto solo, but everyone plays their part. This wasn't to be the end of the story …

CORE COLLECTION

 Bingo
Victo CD 056 Bruce Ackley, Steve Adams, Larry Ochs, Jon Raskin (sax). 9/96.
They've become a great repertory group – the five pieces here are from commissions involving Lindsay Cooper, Barry Guy and Fred Frith, plus one of Larry Ochs's most colourful originals – and they are, if not exactly reinventing themselves, at least reconsidering how they respond to each other, how the balance of their group can change, how they sound when they play soft or loud, how they start and end a piece, and what they can do to make their music new and better. The result is a considered and exceptionally satisfying record which has as much freshness in it as detail and maturity.

(*) The Works Volume 3 Black Saint 120196-2 As above. 3–7/97.
Studio commissions from Muhal Richard Abrams and Robin Holcomb and a live-in-Turkey original by Steve Adams make up this third volume. Holcomb's 'Laredo' is in the Copland tradition and Abrams's 'Quartet #1' is in the modern Chicagoan tradition. Adams's 'The Gene Pool' is a classic ROVA situation, initiatives and responsibilities passed around the quartet quickly and creatively. More than good enough to stand beside the others.

♛  Electric Ascension Atavistic ALP 159 As above, except add Nels Cline (g); Clara Kihlstedt (vn, effects); Jenny Scheinman (vn); Fred Frith (b); Ikue Mori (d machine, sampler); Don Robinson (d); Otomo Yoshihide (turntables, elec); Chris Brown (elec). 03.
If it was daring to approach Colrane's masterpiece once, and succeed, it must seem like insane hubris to tackle it again. Remarkably, the second ascent is even braver, bringing in a huge battery of electronics to fill out what sounds like a vast, seething orchestra. This was a concert performance, recorded on the fly at a broadcast performance for KFJC radio in Los Altos, California, and only cleared for release some time later.

The opening and closing theme is, once again, immediately recognizable, but in between ROVA and friends have taken Coltrane's 'structured improvisation' (as Larry Ochs prefers) and put it through conceptual grids based on nearly 40 years of new freedoms, as well as new technologies undreamt of when Coltrane was alive. The result is still chaotic, still desperately trying to break free of its bounds, but the sense of liberation and transcendence is unmistakable. The two violinists play a vital role, similar in some respects to that undertaken by string-players in the later groups of Albert Ayler, Trane's most original disciple. Cline on electric guitar and the trio of Brown, Mori and Yoshihide (who are credited with the other guests as Rhythm & Noise) stretch the framing theme further still. Fred Frith makes a rare appearance on electric bass.

 Juke Box Suite Not Two MW 786 Bruce Ackley, Steve Adams, Larry Ochs, Jon Raskin (sax). 9/06.

An imaginary or 'virtual' jukebox, filled with themes by Raskin which draw on his wide experience in and passion for musical traditions of all sorts. This is eclecticism taken to the next level, a utopian intermingling of 'styles' and philosophies that moves some distance beyond jazz. The playing is very clean-lined and exact, with a virtuosic interweaving of voices. ROVA go on from strength to strength.

Keith Rowe

GUITAR

Guitarist and founder-member of AMM, Rowe is as much a sound-sculptor as an improviser.

* A Dimension Of Perfectly Ordinary Reality Matchless MRCD19 Rowe (g solo). 89.

 Dial: Log-Rhythm Matchless MRCD36 Rowe; Jeffrey Morgan (as). 97.

There has been an intermittent but often heated debate in British improvisation about 'instrumentalism', about whether music is a function of specific and idiomatically delimited technical resources or whether musical instruments should be an invisible and ultimately dispensable conduit for sound. Keith Rowe – and his colleagues in AMM – work at the sharp end of the debate. To describe him as a 'guitarist' is misleadingly simplistic. Rowe's deconstruction and reinvention of the guitar is one of the most radical sound strategies in contemporary music. He plays the instrument flat on a table and uses a range of articulation devices and electronic interventions to shape the sound – or, rather, to let the sound shape itself.

It's virtually impossible to describe what he does in terms of conventional technique, beyond saying that both these performances are thoughtful, intense and often very beautiful; above all, like the music of AMM, it is quite without expressive ego. The duo with Morgan doesn't strike us as the best starting-point for listeners who have no previous history with either Rowe or AMM. The saxophonist is emphatically his own man and the record is very much a meeting of equals. For a more revealing insight into how Keith Rowe functions, the earlier album is definitive, a whirling, almost violent foray into pure sound. Make some time for it.

 Harsh Grob 209 Rowe (g solo). 99.

The three tracks are somewhat misleadingly labelled since 'Extremely' is less harsh than 'Very' while 'Quite' has some moments of real estrangement. These solo pieces, recorded in Germany, offer as good an account as any of Rowe's tautly disciplined sound-world. This is music that demands attention and will refuse to be consigned to the background.

 The World Turned Upside Down Erstwhile 005 Rowe; Taku Sugimoto (g); Gunter Muller (d, elec). 10/00.

Named after either Christopher Hill's book on the English Civil War or a pub on the Old Kent Road in London, this recital actually took place in Paris, as part of the Instants Chavires festival. The key participant, apart from Rowe, is Muller, who deploys his 'selected percussion' with great delicacy and control. The guitarist is less compelling a presence, though much of Rowe's output for the next couple of years was to be with fellow guitarists. Here he is streets ahead of his colleague in virtually every respect, outthinking and out playing him. Rowe's intensity of concentration is less evident in group situations, but all the more important when he is listening not just to himself but to others.

 Grain Zarek 06 Rowe; Burkhard Beins (perc). 00.

 Weather Sky Erstwhile 018 Rowe; Toshima Nakamura (mixing board). 00.

 Rabbit Run Erstwhile 027 Rowe; Thomas Lehn (syn, elec); Markus Schmickler (sound manipulation). 00.

Rowe's recorded output increased exponentially around 2000. These collaborations are entirely typical of his work of the time but not necessarily his best performances. In company, Rowe's impact seems to be diminished and Nakamura's gentle manipulation of his sound is almost surplus to requirements. More interesting, though ultimately no more relevant, is producer Markus Schmickler's detailed sampling and reshuffling. Your 'Random' button might well be called into play for this one, but whether the aleatory approach makes any more of the music is a matter for debate. Strong records, but not vintage Rowe performances.

 Flypaper Staubgold 32 Rowe; Oren Ambarchi (g). 01.

 Thumb Grob 432 As above; add Sachiko M (elec). 01.

Australian Ambarchi was probably the first to come out as a card-carrying Rowe disciple. Like most such encounters – and one thinks of the late Peter Kowald's encounters with young bassists – these sets waver uneasily between respectful discipleship and a pointless mimicry. Nevertheless, Rowe is incapable of making an uninteresting sound and there is more than enough material on these albums to intrigue anyone concerned with the extended language of guitar.

* Duos for Doris Erstwhile 030 Rowe; John Tilbury (p). 02.

Not to be confused with Stockhausen's very early composition Chore Für Doris. That was dedicated to the composer's wife. This superb duo is dedicated to the pianist's mother, who died just a few days before the recording took place. How much of the emotion that surrounded her death seeped into the music can only be guessed at. However, these are powerful and deeply felt exchanges between two men who have worked together many times as part of AMM but who have never enjoyed a public dialogue quite as close as this one. Tilbury is in superb form, sounding at one moment as if he might be reading from Stockhausen's later Klavierstücke and the next as if conjuring up the spirit of Henry Cowell. Rowe concentrates as ever on small movements and this time a relatively narrow band of sonorities, certainly on the monumental 'Cathnor'. A superb record; thoroughly recommended.

Jimmy Rowles (1918–96)

PIANO, VOICE

Had much big-band experience during the '40s before settling in Los Angeles, where he did years of studio work interleaved with club gigs, occasional feature recordings, and much work as accompanist to singers, including Billie Holiday and Peggy Lee. Decamped for New York in the '70s but eventually returned West. A character player in the music, but a player full of wit and sly humour and with an encyclopaedic knowledge of the American songbook.

(*) Piano Playhouse VSOP 31 Rowles; Carl Perkins, Paul Smith, Lou Levy, Gerald Wiggins (p). 9/57.

 Let's Get Acquainted With Jazz (For People Who Hate Jazz) VSOP 11 Rowles; Pete Candoli (t); Harold Land (ts); Larry Bunker (vib); Barney Kessel (g); Red Mitchell (b); Mel Lewis (d). 6/58.
 Weather In A Jazz Vane VSOP 48 Rowles; Lee Katzman (t); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Herb Geller (as, bs); Bill Holman (ts, bs); Monty Budwig (b); Mel Lewis (d). 12/58.
(*) Our Delight VSOP 99 Rowles; Max Bennett, Chuck Berghofer (b); Larry Bunker, Nick Martinis (d). 4/68.
 Subtle Legend Volumes 1 & 2 Storyville 8287 / 8288 Rowles; Monty Budwig (b); Donald Bailey (d). 1 & 12/72.
 Shade And Light Black & Blue 946.2 Rowles; George Duvivier (b); Oliver Jackson (d). 7/78.
(*) Grandpa's Vibrato Black & Blue 200 Rowles; Jimmy Woode (b); Bobby Durham (d). 7/79.
 Trio Capri 74009 Rowles; Red Mitchell (b); Donald Bailey (d). 8/88.

Rowles's discography is very scattered and many of his own-name records are out of print. This rather motley bunch still include a lot of fine music. Piano Playhouse was an initiative by the Mode label to put five pianists together for an album of solos (ironically, the label went bust before it could be released). Rowles gets to do a blues, a fast 'Jordu', a serene 'That Old Devil Called Love' and a brief 'Laugh Clown Laugh', although the record also has delightful glimpses of Carl Perkins and the others. Acquainted is a kind of ironic primer in jazz and the blues, with a good repertory company on board, varying the instrumentation and the impact of individual tracks. Weather In A Jazz Vane is a fairly conventional West Coast kind of date, arranged by Bill Holman, and the horns make a grander impression than Rowles, who tends to be confined to the rhythm section. Our Delight is a souvenir of one of his regular club gigs of the '60s, at The Carriage House on Burbank, and though the recording is of mediocre amateur standard the surviving pieces have a lot of definitive Rowles, including 'Moon Of Manakoora' and 'America The Beautiful'.

Shade And Light, part of Black & Blue's trove of French recordings, has a knockabout quality best realized in Jimmy's vocals on the likes of 'When The Morning Glories Wake Up In The Morning'. A few more Rowles records around than when our last edition appeared. Subtle Legend doesn't have quite enough great stuff to merit two CDs, but it finds Jimmy at an immaculate-sounding piano and he seems to enjoy caressing the keys. Trio was a find, a perfectly balanced small-combo record with strong writing by Jimmy and Red and a forcefully swinging part for the underrated Bailey. Grandpa's Vibrato (isn't it a great title?) is another of the host of sessions made by Americans for the label in the late '70s and it's among the best of them, a tight, simpatico trio situation with Rowles sounding in pawky form. There may well be other albums on small labels, but for the moment Jimmy's discography looks in better shape than it has been for years.

Gonzalo Rubalcaba (born 1963)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS

A Cuban émigré pianist, Rubalcaba created a minor sensation with his early appearances and was quickly signed up by Blue Note, for whom he recorded through the '90s.

* The Blessing Blue Note 797197-2 Rubalcaba; Charlie Haden (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 5/91.
 Diz Blue Note 830490-2 Rubalcaba; Ron Carter (b); Julio Barreto (d). 12/93.
 Inner Voyage Blue Note 499241-2 Rubalacaba; Michael Brecker (ts); Jeff Chambers (b); Ignacio Berroa (d). 11/98.

Rubalcaba is perhaps the most singular of those Cuban musicians who have made an impact on the American jazz scene of late. While he plays with as much grandstanding power as any of his countrymen, there is a compensating lightness of touch which one sometimes misses in the perpetually ebullient tone of most Cuban jazz. The Blessing was a big step forward for Rubalcaba. The pianist rations his outbursts to a handful and instead negotiates a thoughtful but no less compelling way through a delightful programme. Haden's 'Sandino' emerges with just the right note of troubled dignity, 'Giant Steps' is reharmonized and made new through brilliant use of repetition, DeJohnette's charming 'Silver Hollow' rivals the composer's own version, and 'The Blessing' and 'Blue In Green' remodel Coleman and Evans. Best of all, perhaps, is a beautifully chiselled treatment of 'Besame Mucho' which eliminates all sense of kitsch that the tune may possess, suggesting instead a flinty sort of romanticism. Rubalcaba's touch and finesse are marvellous throughout, and DeJohnette is clearly the ideal drummer for the situation, his unassuming virtuosity meeting all the challenges head-on.

Diz is Rubalcaba's 'pure' bebop album, nine themes from the heartland of the repertory done partly as a tribute to Dizzy Gillespie. Appropriately enough, perhaps, it is not much like any traditional bebop record, infused with suggestions of Latin polyrhythms even when they aren't always directly stated. The dark colours of, say, 'Bouncing With Bud' are the elements that dominate. Yet this is all too knowing a record. Carter's elegant lines work well, but Barreto's drumming is aggravatingly ingenious, and it spurs the pianist on to some pointlessly clever improvising. For all his dazzle, Rubalcaba can be hard to warm to.

Inner Voyage is another side of this interesting if frustrating talent. Played often at a slow-to-mid-tempo, this is trio jazz of surpassing restraint, a somewhat surprising feat of concentration from this frequently explosive musician. Brecker comes in on two tracks and puts matters on edge somewhat, but more typical is the almost tortoise-like pace chosen for 'Here's That Rainy Day'.

(*) Supernova Blue Note 31172-2 Rubalcaba; Carlos Henriquez (b); Ignacio Berroa (d); Luis Quintero, Robert Quintero (perc). 00.

After Rubalcaba's long and difficult sequence of records, listeners may find this a minor revelation. He has never balanced the different sides of his personality as well as he does here with a 'basic' instrumentation; the percussive elements fall neatly into place, and tunes such as 'El Cadete Constitucional' and the title-piece (the latter in two absorbingly different renditions) bring melody and rhythm into a confluence which is both joyful and darkly enigmatic. Henriquez is often almost as impressive as the leader, taking an independent line while still playing for the group. Definitely the best place to start in approaching this restless talent.

* Avatar Blue Note 8418 Rubalcaba; Mike Rodriguez (t, flhn); Yosvany Terry (ss, as, ts); Matt Brewer (b); Marcus Gilmore (d). 5 & 6/07.

Sounds like Rubalcaba has taken a deep breath before this one and let the feeling come through. It's still a technically dazzling performance but 'This Is It' and 'Hip Side' (both written by the brilliant Terry) lift the music onto a new level, astute but liberated from merely technical concerns. The long, long 'Aspiring To Normalcy', by Brewer, is another clever line. Horace Silver's 'Peace' implies another line of descent for Rubalcaba, whose own 'Infantil' sounds like a gloss on Silver's work. The rising star of the band is Rodriguez, who has touches of everyone from Booker Little to Woody Shaw and sounds as if he could walk into a Messengers date tomorrow and blow everyone away.

Also, in brief:

() Discovery: Live At Montreux Blue Note 795478-2. 7/90.
In at the deep end with Charlie Haden (b) and Paul Motian (d). It worked for Geri Allen; it doesn't (quite) for Gonzalo.

() Paseo Blue Note 81832. 4/04.
Disappointing: too much, played too fast, a race to impress that feels like empty virtuosity.

 Solo Blue Note 355534. 6/05.
A bitty, unsatisfying date that again promotes technique over feeling.

Roswell Rudd (born 1935)

TROMBONE, TRUMPET, MELLOPHONE, MBIRA, PERCUSSION, VOICE

Born in Connecticut, he made his professional debut with Eli's Chosen Six and, despite his adherence to the avant-garde, his approach always suggests a return to the primordial simplicities of early jazz, using slurs and growls, blustering swing and a big, sultry tone.

 Roswell Rudd Emarcy 067868 Rudd; John Tchicai (as); Finn von Eyben (b); Louis Moholo (d). 2/65.
 Blown Bone Emanem 4131 Rudd; Enrico Rava (t); Steve Lacy (ss, perc); Kenny Davern (cl, ss); Robin Kenyatta (as); Tyrone Washington (ts); Patti Bown (p); Karl Berger (vib); Louisiana Red (g, v); Wilbur Little, Lewis Worrell, Richard Youngstein (b); Horace Arnold, Paul Motian (d); Jordan Steckel (perc); Sheila Jordan (v). 9/67, 3/76.
Rudd has made frustratingly few recordings of his own since his work with the New York Art Quartet and Archie Shepp in the '60s announced a marvellously vivid and unpredictable spirit on an unfashionable horn. The trombone went pretty much out of favour with bebop; along with Julian Priester, Curtis Fuller and Albert Mangelsdorff, Rudd was one of the few significant exponents between the heyday of J. J. Johnson and the emergence of younger voices like Ray Anderson and Robin Eubanks.

The discographical picture is better now than it has been for years. Rudd's debut recording, made in Europe for the America label, has reappeared on CD. It's a tight, intensely swinging record, best heard as bop with freeish elements. Moholo's drumming is a revelation, even at this vintage, and Tchicai's strident alto is worth comparing with a single sampling of Robin Kenyatta on the next record. The closing 'Pannonica' is the high-point, though Rudd's own themes have an authentic cast.

The work on Blown Bone is mostly from consecutive days in March 1976, with the tight quartet of the first day augmented on the following by extra horns, keyboard and others. The 11-minute 'It's Happening' is almost worth the whole set. It's a brisk, boppish theme, derived from a suite dedicated to Albert Ayler, and driven along by Little and Motian. Rudd's opening solo is no mean thing, but it's knocked for six by Rava's wryly majestic statement and then by a completely outrageous Lacy solo which seems to use the entire range of the horn, right down to tenorish growls, as well as sucked tones, perfectly controlled squeaks and pure breath sounds.

Sheila Jordan, who worked with Rudd on 1974's wonderful Flexible Flyer, is in for the next two tracks, 'Blues For The Planet Earth' and 'You Blew It', conventional enough ecological laments redeemed by Sheila's extraordinary delivery and the free-form accompaniment. A single track from 1967 follows, with Kenyatta on alto, Karl Berger on vibraphone, two basses and percussion. The remainder of the set features a mid-size group. Rava didn't make the date, but Washington and the ever-exploring Davern are both there, with Bown on electric piano. Bata drummer Steckel is on 'Bethesda Fountain' only; on that track, Rudd tinkers with a thumb piano and assorted percussion. The oddity is 'Cement Blues', which is basically a vocal feature for Louisiana Red, but a useful reminder of how rooted Rudd was in vernacular forms. By the same token, 'Street Walking' is old-fashioned swing, with just a few modern accents thrown in and only marred by the celeste-like tinkle of the electric keyboard.

(*) Regeneration Soul Note 121054 Rudd; Steve Lacy (ss); Misha Mengelberg (p); Kent Carter (b); Han Bennink (d). 6/82.
(*) The Unheard Herbie Nichols: Volumes 1 & 2 CIMP 133/146 Rudd; Greg Millar (g, perc); John Bacon (d, vib). 11/96.
Since Herbie Nichols's death in 1963, Rudd has been the most dogged keeper of the spirit, campaigning with Steve Lacy to reverse the great pianist and composer's marginalization. Regeneration is a hugely satisfying tribute, though given Rudd's and Lacy's collaboration in a unit devoted exclusively to Thelonious Monk material, it's no surprise to find three monastic themes among the Nichols pieces.

The CIMP session was an opportunity to concentrate on Nichols entirely and to dig out some of the most obscure themes. There are some surprises in instrumentation. On 'Some Wandering Bushmen', Rudd played trumpet on the first take, before reprising the theme on his usual horn. On the long 'Jamaica' (Volume 1) he plays percussion, and elsewhere on the same disc, gets out the little-used mellophone. He's always been an enthusiastic rather than polished singer and gives his all to 'Vacation Blues' at the end of volume two.

Much of this material is genuinely unknown and unheard, even by those who do know 'Shuffle Montgomery' and 'Lady Sings the Blues'. It seems extraordinary that tunes like 'Freudian Frolics', the far from lightweight 'Tee Dum Tee Dee', 'Prancin' Pretty Woman' and 'Karna Kanji' are not in the wider repertoire. The trio is well-balanced and responsive, with Millar taking much of the accompanist's role. He and Bacon duet on 'Dream Time', leaving Rudd to play 'One Twilight' and 'Passing Thoughts' unaccompanied; the latter is quite remarkable. A valuable insight into two great – and sadly under-documented – artists.

(*) Airwalkers Clean Feed CFCD 066 Rudd; Mark Dresser (b). 05.
Such is the range of his instrument and his own particular 'voice' on it that Rudd has always seemed to have a special relationship with bass-players. These spontaneous compositions seem to have been worked out on the basis of a few basic decisions about metre or style – 'Calypso Lite', 'Lovers' Waltz' – and not much else. Dresser's slightly formal approach suits the setting well, with Rudd seeming to touch on a range of 'world' music styles in the course of the record, and creating some lovely overtones on the title-track, of which two takes are included. It might sound a demanding listen, but there is nothing here that isn't immediately involving.

Also, in brief:

 Broad Strokes Knitting Factory KFCD 276. 3/99, 1/00.
Disappointing tentet project with some good spots from fellow 'bone men Steve Swell and Josh Roseman, but too many vocal 'features'.

(*) Malicool Fontana International 014801. 1/01.
Rudd with kora-player Toumani Diabate and a troupe of West African players with an intriguing but ultimately unsuccessful set that mixes originals, Gershwin, Monk and (!) Beethoven.

 Blue Mongol Sunnyside SSCD 1147. 10/05.
Similar to the above, only it's a Mongolian group, complete with throat singer, that's involved. Mostly traditional fare, and the pitching and rhythms seem to work for Rudd.

Hilton Ruiz (1952–2006)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS

He played at Carnegie Hall aged eight, but got his main start in jazz working with Roland Kirk.

 Piano Man Steeplechase SCCD 31306 Ruiz; Buster Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 7/75.
 New York Hilton Steeplechase SCCD 31094 Ruiz; Hakim Jami, Steve Solder (d). 2/77.
 Steppin' Into Beauty Steeplechase SCCD 31158 Ruiz; Richard Williams (t); Frank Foster (ts); Hakim Jami, Buster Williams (b); Roy Brooks, Steve Solder (d). 2/77.
 Excition Steeplechase SCCD 31078 As above, except omit Jami, Solder. 2/77.
Ruiz's desire to give jazz a Latin accent runs a little deeper than the usual south-of-the-border trimmings. Ruiz has a deep understanding of popular forms – samba, soca, clave – and makes them an integral element in his writing and reworking of standards and classics. Piano Man is a terrific album, performed by a top-flight trio, with Williams's singing bass and Higgins's tuneful drums complementing his own two-handed style. 'Straight Street' and 'Giant Steps' are both ambitious and highly successful performances. The sequel is solid, but without the same finesse.

Steppin' Into Beauty and Excition (sometimes incorrectly given as Excitation) come from the same marathon session, with the larger group sensitively deployed. Ruiz still isn't much in evidence as a writer, but he makes eclectic choices. 'Excition' is a Frank Foster tune and the opening 'Origin' on the second record is by Pharoah Sanders, a seemingly unlikely source for the young pianist. As ever, what one hears from the pianist is a commitment to – almost a faith in – the melody, which is delivered unexpectedly unadorned in each case, and not simply treated as a basis for chordal analysis.

(*) Manhattan Mambo Telarc CD 83322 Ruiz; Charlie Sepulveda (t); Papo Vasquez (tb); David Sanchez (ts, perc); Andy Gonzalez (b, bell); Ignacio Berroa (d, perc); Joe Gonzalez, Giovanni Hidalgo (perc). 4/92.
(*) Heroes Telarc CD 83338 As above, except omit Vasquez; add Steve Turre (tb); Carlos 'Patato' Valdes, Tito Puente (perc). 11/93.
 Live At Birdland Candid CCD 79532 Ruiz; David Sanchez, Peter Brainin (ts); Andy Gonzalez (b); Steve Berrios (d); Giovanni Hidalgo (perc). 6/92.
Ruiz's run of albums for Novus have gone, but with Telarc – always a happy hunting ground for piano-players – he carried on in much the same vein. Manhattan Mambo lines up three incandescent horn-players, all steeped in the idiom, to duck and dive over the rhythms and the thump of the piano. Heroes offers a series of nods to Rollins, Parker, Roach, Miles and the like, while one of the champs in question, Tito Puente, actually plays on the date. The music is more obviously in bebop heartland as far as material is concerned, but Ruiz manages to make it a convincing small-group extension of Dizzy Gilespie's Afro-Cuban music, and with Turre arriving to bolster the horns it all has great panache.

The Birdland group needs a brass-player who can counter the anonymity of the saxophones; Sanchez is having a dull night, and the two of them are only really effective on the two last tunes, 'On Green Dolphin St' and 'Footprints'. Even the worked-up 'Blues For Two Tenors' doesn't have much punch.

 Enchantment Arabesque ARCD 157 Ruiz; Chico Freeman (ts); Lisle Atkinson (b); Marlon Simon (d). 11/00.
Ruiz's life was fated to be a short one and his discography has suffered from extensive deletion. Given that the Steeplechase material comes from one particular period, there is little sense of development or evolution possible. However, it seems clear that he remained as devoted to melody, and often from unexpected composers, to the end. This fine set, with guest spots from old colleague Freeman, is marked out by beautiful versions of Joe Henderson's 'Black Narcussus', Gordon Jenkins's 'Goodbye' and Roland Kirk's roistering 'The Business Ain't Nothing But The Blues', on which one can hear a glimpse of what Ruiz may have learned from his teacher Mary Lou Williams.

Howard Rumsey (born 1917)

BASS

Studied in LA, then formed a small group with Stan Kenton and subsequently joined the Kenton orchestra. Formed the Lighthouse All Stars, who performed regularly at the Hermosa Beach Lighthouse Club, then promoted other Californian concerts in the '50s and '60s.

(*) Sunday Jazz A La Lighthouse Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 151 Rumsey; Shorty Rogers (t); Milt Bernhart (tb); Jimmy Giuffre, Bob Cooper (ts); Hampton Hawes, Frank Patchen (p); Shelly Manne (d). 7/52–2/53.
 Volume 3 Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 266 As above, except add Rolf Ericson (t); Frank Rosolino (tb); Bud Shank (as, f); Herb Geller (as); Max Roach, Stan Levey (d); Carlos Vidal, Jack Costanza (perc). 7/52–8/56.
* Sunday Jazz A La Lighthouse Vol. 2 Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 972 As above, except omit Rosolino, Levey, Vidal, Costanza, Geller, Hawes, Patchen; add Chet Baker (t); Russ Freeman, Lorraine Geller, Claude Williamson (p). 3–9/53.
 Oboe/Flute Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 154 Rumsey; Bob Cooper (ob, cor); Bud Shank (f, af); Buddy Collette (f); Claude Williamson, Sonny Clark (p); Max Roach, Stan Levey (d). 2/54–9/56.
 In The Solo Spotlight Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 451 Rumsey; Conte Candoli, Stu Williamson (t); Frank Rosolino (tb); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Bud Shank, Lennie Niehaus (as); Bob Cooper, Richie Kamuca (ts); Bobby Gordon, Pepper Adams (bs); Claude Williamson, Dick Shreve (p); Stan Levey (d). 8/54–3/57.
 Volume 6 Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 386 Rumsey; Conte Candoli (t); Frank Rosolino (tb); Stu Williamson (vtb); Bud

Shank (as); Bob Cooper (ts); Claude Williamson (p); Stan Levey (d). 12/54–3/55.

 Lighthouse At Laguna Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 406 Rumsey; Frank Rosolino (tb); Bud Shank (as, f); Bob Cooper (ts); Claude Williamson, Hampton Hawes (p); Barney Kessel (g); Red Mitchell (b); Shelly Manne, Stan Levey (d). 6/55.

 Music For Lighthousekeeping Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 636 Rumsey; Conte Candoli (t); Frank Rosolino (tb); Bob Cooper (ts); Sonny Clark (p); Stan Levey (d). 10/56.

 Mexican Passport Contemporary 14077-2 As for OJC 151, 266, 406 and 636 above. 52–56.

 Jazz Rolls Royce Fresh Sound FSRCD 310 Rumsey; Stu Williamson (t); Frank Rosolino (tb); Bob Cooper (ts); Victor Feldman (p, vib); Stan Levey (d); other horns. 10/57.

 Jazz Invention Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 14051 Conte Candoli (t); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Bud Shank (as); Bob Cooper (ts); Stu Williamson (p); Monty Budwig (b); John Guerin (d). 2/89.

Rumsey was of no major significance as a bassist, but he was a canny organizer, and his Lighthouse All Stars – the name which all these CDs go under – offered the pick of the West's best in the mid-'50s. Their Sunday-afternoon concerts are still talked about by veterans of the Hermosa Beach scene, effectively 12-hour jam sessions that started in the afternoon and went on into the small hours. There are live sessions on OJCs 151, 972 and 406 (though the latter was cut at Laguna Beach) and part of OJC 154; the rest are studio dates. To catch the excitement of these sessions, the best is Sunday Jazz A La Lighthouse Vol. 2: a buzzing crowd, bandstands full of the hottest players; with 25 minutes of previously unreleased material, this one's a best buy. Sound is at times more atmospheric than accurate, but it's a terrific document of those sessions. The first volume is also excellent, with some fine work by Hawes, but the Laguna set is more like a formal concert, with a guest spot by Kessel and two tracks by the Hawes–Mitchell–Manne trio.

The studio dates are more in the familiar West Coast language and are rather more efficiently styled. Considering the stellar line-up, In The Solo Spotlight is a shade disappointing, with too many of the features emerging as glib showcases. While none of the others really stand out, followers of the style will find much to satisfy, not least in the consistently superb drumming by Manne and Levey. Mexican Passport compiles the various Latin-esque tracks which the band made across their albums.

Jazz Rolls Royce was effectively the last record made by the group, though there were later attempts to revive the franchise, reflected on the 40th anniversary date (on which Rumsey doesn't play). The title of the 1957 album is well taken. It purrs along quietly, but while it may be stylish, it lacks excitement.

Jimmy Rushing (1903–72)

VOICE

Raised in Oklahoma, he started as a pianist, but began around the South-West in the mid-'20s. His greatest successes were with the Basie orchestra of the '30s and '40s, his huge physical presence partnering the great voice. A gentle and genial man, he worked right up until his death from leukaemia.

* Complete Goin' To Chicago And Listen To the Blues Lone Hill Jazz LHJ 10208 Rushing; Pat Jenkins, Emmett Berry (t); Henderson Chambers, Lawrence Brown, Vic Dickenson (tb); Ben Richardson, Rudy Powell (as, cl); Buddy Tate (ts); Sam Price, Pete Johnson, Clarence Johnson (p); Marlow Morris (org); Roy Gaines, Freddie Green (g); Walter Page, Aaron Bell (b); Jo Jones (d). 12/54–3/57.

These are classic sessions, and even though one can complain about Lone Hill's less than kosher approach to reissues, the music is magnificent. Rushing is in his finest voice for the three sessions, cut over a three-year period, which made up the original Vanguard albums, and with a superb line-up of accompanists across each of them there isn't a bad track here. Jimmy's definitive version of Leroy Carr's blues 'How Long' is alone worth having the disc for, but Rushing admirers and anyone who likes a jazzman singing the blues must have this in their collection.

 Five Feet Of Soul Roulette 81830-2 Rushing; Ernie Glow, Markie Markowitz, Joe Newman, Snooky Young (t); Billy Byers, Jimmy Cleveland, Willie Dennis, Urbie Green (tb); Gene Quill, Phil Woods (as); Budd Johnson, Zoot Sims (ts); Sol Schlinger (bs); Patti Bown (p); Freddie Green (g); Milt Hinton (b); Gus Johnson (d). 1/63.

Five Feet Of Soul was the singer's only session for Roulette (although it was actually issued on Colpix), and really isn't much more than a studio quickie – Al Cohn arrangements for a band full of session-rats, and tunes that Jimmy must have known backwards by 1963. Al copies The Count for the feel and sound, and the likes of Snooky Young and Zoot Sims throw off the righteous obbligatos. He's in hearty voice, though occasionally it gets away from him: he starts 'Trouble In Mind' mightily, but by the end the troubles seem to be getting to the tonsils. Some of them are faster than he'd like – 'Oooh! Look-A-There' is rattled off in a couple of minutes, and you start wondering how much better it might have sounded recast as a slow blues. He saves some of his best for his own lyrics, and 'Please Come Back' and 'Did You Ever' work out just fine. Not vintage Rushing, but, with little enough by him around, a welcome renewal.

 Who Was It Sang That Song? /  Gee Baby, Ain't I Good To You? New World NW 80510-2 / 80530-2 Rushing; Buck Clayton (t); Dicky Wells (tb); Julian Dash (ts); Sir Charles Thompson (p); Eugene Ramey (b); Jo Jones (d). 10/67.

Recorded in a studio that had once been a hotel ballroom, this 'jazz party' is a boisterous affair. The stellar personnel suggest a special occasion, but the pretty awful recording (not helped by the fact that the original stereo masters were destroyed, and the tracks were reconstructed from indifferent mono tapes) and the sometimes ramshackle playing are discouraging. Even so, Rushing is indomitable, Clayton elegant, Wells idiosyncratic, and the unlikely presence of Dash is a surprising plus. The best of it could have been boiled down to a single CD, but there is little enough of LP-era Rushing available to make every surviving disc worth having.

 Every Day I Have The Blues Impulse! 547967-2 Rushing; Clark Terry (t); Dicky Wells (tb); Buddy Tate, Bob Ashton (ts); Hank Jones, Shirley Scott (org); David Frishberg (p); Hugh McCracken, Wally Richardson, Kenny Burrell (g); George Duvivier, Bob Bushnell (b); Grady Tate, Joe Marshall (d). 67–68.

Although Jimmy himself remains in fine voice, this is a misconceived Bob Thiele production. It couples two Impulse! albums which mixed together some genuine blues with faddish tunes such as 'Berkeley Campus Blues' (which complains about student sit-ins) and some attempted funky stuff from the guitarists. The imperturbable Rushing carries on regardless, but this was hardly his ideal setting, although there are compensations in the cameos from Terry, Wells and Tate.

George Russell (born 1923)

COMPOSER, BANDLEADER, PIANO, ORGAN

After graduating in his native Cincinnati, he suffered a long illness during which he overturned much of what he and his teachers had thought about harmonics, and in the early '50s wrote The Lydian Chromatic Concept Of Tonal Organization. It was the direct source of the modal or scalar experiments of John Coltrane and Miles Davis. Russell spent most of the '60s in Europe, reworking his treatise and writing little music. Recognition was slow and hard-won.

[illegible]

 Jazz Workshop
Koch 7850 Russell; Art Farmer (t); Hal McKusick (as, f); Bill Evans (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Milt Hinton (b); Teddy Kotick (b); Joe Harris, Osie Johnson, Paul Motian (d). 3–12/56.

However important Russell's theories are, they are even now not securely understood. Sometimes falsely identified with the original Greek Lydian mode, The Lydian Chromatic Concept is not the same at all. In diatonic terms, it represents the progression F to F on the piano's white keys; it also confronts the diabolic tritone, the diabolus in musica, which had haunted Western composers from Bach to Beethoven. Russell's conception assimilated modal writing to the extreme chromaticism of modern music. By converting chords into scales and overlaying one scale on another, it allowed improvisers to work in the hard-to-define area between non-tonality and polytonality. Like all great theoreticians, Russell worked analytically rather than synthetically, basing his ideas on how jazz actually was, not on how it could be made to conform with traditional principles of Western harmony. Working from within jazz's often tacit organizational principles, Russell's fundamental concern was the relationship between formal scoring and improvisation, giving the first the freedom of the second, freeing the second from being literally esoteric, 'outside' some supposed norm. Russell's theories also influenced his own composition. 'A Bird In Igor's Yard', a celebrated early piece, was a (rather too) self-conscious attempt to ally bebop and Stravinsky – it was also a young and slightly immature work – but it pointed the way forward. Russell's music always sounds both familiar and unsettlingly alien. His versions of staples like Charlie Parker's 'Au Privave', Thelonious Monk's equally precocious 'Round Midnight', and Miles Davis's almost oriental 'Nardis' on Ezz-thetics create new areas for the soloists to explore; in Don Ellis and Eric Dolphy he has players particularly responsive to expansions of the harmonic language (Dolphy in particular preferred to work the inner space of a piece, rather than to go 'out'). 'Ezz-thetic' first appeared on the classic 1956 Jazz Workshop sessions, now restored to CD and currently on the Koch imprint. It is one of the key pieces in an astonishing collection, including several pieces that stand as almost unique avenues of thought in the jazz language: 'Night Sound', 'Round Johnny Rondo', 'Knights Of The Steamtable' and 'Concerto For Billy The Kid', the latter including one of Bill Evans's most remarkable solos on record.

 New York, N.Y. Impulse! 051278-2 Russell; Art Farmer, Doc Severinsen, Ernie Royal, Joe Wilder, Joe Ferrante (t); Bob Brookmeyer (vtb); Frank Rehak, Jimmy Cleveland, Tom Mitchell (tb); Hal McKusick, Phil Woods (as); John Coltrane, Al Cohn, Benny Golson (ts); Sol Schlinger, Gene Allen (bs); Bill Evans (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Milt Hinton, George Duvivier (b); Charli Persip, Max Roach, Don Lamond (d); Al Epstein (perc); Jon Hendricks (v). 58–59.

 Jazz In The Space Age Chess GRP 18262 Russell; Ernie Royal, Al Kiger, Marky Markowitz (t); Frank Rehak, Dave Baker (tb); Bob Brookmeyer (vtb); Jimmy Buffington (frhn); Walt Levinsky, Hal McKusick (as); Dave Young (ts); Sol Schlinger (bs); Bill Evans, Paul Bley (p); Barry Galbraith, Howard Collins (g); Milt Hinton (b); Don Lamond, Charli Persip (d). 5–8/60.

 At The Five Spot / * Stratusphunk Verve 112287-2 / Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 232 Russell; Alan Kiger (t); Dave Baker (tb); Dave Young (as); Chuck Israels (b); Joe Hunt (d). 9/60; 10/60.

 Ezz-thetics Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 070 Russell; Don Ellis (t); Dave Baker (tb); Eric Dolphy (as, bcl); Steve Swallow (b); Joe Hunt (d). 5/61.

(*) The Stratus Seekers Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 365 Russell; Dave Baker, Don Ellis (t); John Pierce (as); Paul Plummer (ts); Steve Swallow (b); Joe Hunt (d). 1/62.

 The Outer View Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 616 Russell; Garnett Brown (tb); Paul Plummer (ts); Steve Swallow (b); Pete LaRoca (d); Sheila Jordan (v). 8/62.

As a very good start to a Russell collection there's a strong case to be made for Ezz-thetics, with its fine Dolphy contributions (coincidentally or not, the year of the saxophonist's death also marked the beginning of Russell's long exile in Europe and a mutual alienation from the American scene). But all these early Russells, with the exception of the slightly less achieved The Outer View, are indispensable. His regular sextet is responsible for most of the music on the various OJCs, and the improvising on Stratusphunk and The Stratus Seekers matches the composing and arranging in terms of insight and creativity.

The best of the lot may be At The Five Spot; despite the implication of the title it's a studio, rather than live, album. Opening with the early Miles Davis blues variation 'Sippin' At Bell's', they get the easy music out of the way first. The rest are originals by Russell and Baker, two early Carla Bley tunes and Coltrane's 'Moment's Notice'. The album was made after three weeks of six-nights-a-week playing, so the players were ready for it, and the fierce (though oddly melodious) complexities of both the themes and the improvising are entirely mastered. Chuck Israels, in the notes, remembers seeing audiences full of fellow musicians and artists: 'jazz at this time was connected to intelligent society, just as the work of writers and painters was'. Perhaps it's no wonder that this little masterpiece has scarcely been available in the 50 years odd since it was released, and even now is only available as a Verve limited-edition release.

The slightly earlier New York, N.Y. and Jazz In The Space Age yoke what sound like conceptual-modern album titles to what is actually the first application of Russell's mature music to a big-band setting. 'Manhattan', from the former, is almost a programme-piece, with a narration by Jon Hendricks that now seems charmingly of its time, and a solo by Coltrane. Both sets apply what's to be heard in the more concentrated sextet music in a more expansive setting. Jazz In The Space Age, in particular, is as fine as any of Russell's music from this period; 'Dimensions', a sequence of freely associated moods indigenous to jazz, outstrips whatever Gil Evans was doing for Miles Davis, and 'The Lydiot', with its framework for solos by both Evans and Bley, is similarly intriguing. To what extent these records are 'important' is, as with all of Russell's work, hard to say, since they have had very little discernible impact on jazz. They remain, however, indispensable music.

(*) The Essence Of George Russell Soul Note 121044/5 2CD Russell; Maffy Falay, Bertil Lövgren, Palle Mikkelborg, Palle Bolvig, Jan Allan, Lars Samuelson, Stanton Davis (t); George Vernon, Gunnar Medberg (tb); Runo Ericksson, Olle Lind (btb); Arne Domnérus (as, cl); Claes Rosendahl (ts, ss, as, f); Lennart Åberg (ts, ss, f); Bernt Rosengren (ts); Erik Nilsson (bs, bcl); Berndt Egerbladh (vib); Rune Gustafsson, Terje Rypdal (g); Bengt Hallberg (p); Arild Andersen, Roman Dylag (b); Jon Christensen (d); Rupert Clemendore (perc). 66, 67.

 Electronic Sonata For Souls Loved By Nature Soul Note 121034 Russell; Manfred Schoof (t); Jan Garbarek (ts); Terje Rypdal (g); Red Mitchell (b); Jon Christensen (d). 4/69.

 Electronic Sonata For Souls Loved By Nature 1980 Soul Note 121009 Russell; Lew Soloff (t); Robert Moore (ts, ss); Victor Gomer (g); Jean-François Jenny-Clark (b); Keith Copeland (d, perc). 6/80.

For all the quality of the performances, these are conceptually woolly and rather abstract works that add no more than grace-notes to Russell's remarkable compositional output. In the triumvirate of great arrangers, Russell is closer to the open texture of Gil Evans than to Quincy Jones's lacquered surface. There is a sense, though, with these performances that surface is all that matters. The original Electronic Sonata, which is included on the big-band Essence as well as on the self-titled small-group recording, has a depth of perspective and firmness of execution that the still-puzzling 1980 revision totally lacks. Conceived for tapes and ensemble, the piece is again chiefly concerned with the relationship between scored and improvised materials.

(*) New York Big Band Soul Note 121039 Russell; Americo Bellotto, Bertil Lövgren (t, flhn); Håkan Hyquist (t, flhn, frhn); Jan Allan (t, frhn); Stanton Davis, Terumasa Hino, Lew Soloff (t); Bengt Edvarsson, Jörgen Johansson, Lars Olofsson, Gary Valente (tb); Sven Larsson (btb, tba); Dave Taylor (btb); Ivar Olsen, John Clark (frhn); Arne Domnérus (cl, as, ss); Jan Uling (f, as, ts); Lennart Åberg, Bernt Rosengren (f, as, ts, ss); Erik Nilsson (f, bcl, bs); Marty Ehrlich (as); Ricky Ford (ts); Roger Rosenberg (ts); Carl Atkins (bs, bcl); Rune Gustaffson, Mark Slifstein (g); Stanley Cowell, Götz Tangerding (p); Ricky Martinez, Björn Lind, Vlodek Gulgowski, Monica Dominique (ky); Stefan Brolund, Bronislaw Suchanek, Lars-Urban Helje, Cameron Brown (b); Lars Beijbom, Leroy Lowe, Warren Smith (d); Sabu Martinez, Babafumi Akunyon (perc); Lee Genesis (v). 77–78.

(*) Live In An American Time Spiral Soul Note 121049 Russell; Stanton Davis, Tom Harrell, Brian Leach, Ron Tooley (t); Ray Anderson, Earl McIntyre (tb); Marty Ehrlich (as, f); Doug Miller (ts, f); Bob Hanlon (bs); Jerome Harris (g); Jack Reilly, Mark Soskin (ky); Ron McClure (b); Victor Lewis (d). 7/82.

New York Big Band includes a vital (in every sense) performance of the epochal 'Cubana Be, Cubana Bop', written in collaboration with Dizzy Gillespie and first performed in 1947. With its structural and not just decorative use of African and Caribbean metres, the piece opened out a whole new direction for jazz writing, paving the way for The African Game 25 years later. Big Band also includes two sections from Listen To The Silence and a wonderful and unexpected 'God Bless The Child' that derives something from Dolphy's long engagement with the piece.

The main piece on Live is a concert performance of 'Time Spiral'. Concerned again with the larger, almost meta-historical movements of human life, the charts have a slightly dense philosophical feel on the studio album, but they open up considerably in a live setting. The album also includes a fine reading of 'Ezz-thetic' and the faintly ironic 'D.C. Divertimento', given force by a (mostly) young and enthusiastic band.

 The London Concerts: Volumes 1 & 2 Label Bleu LBLC 6527 2CD Russell; Stuart Brooks, Ian Carr, Mark Chandler (t); Pete Beachill, Ashley Slater (tb); Andy Sheppard, Chris Biscoe, Pete Hurt (reeds); Brad Hatfield, Steve Lodder (ky); David Fiuczynski (g); Bill Urmson (b); Steve Johns (d). 89.

Somewhat as he had in Scandinavia two decades earlier, Russell found young British players (and some of their elders) hanging on his every compositional idea, and more than willing to work with him. These recordings, originally on Stash, were the first discs since the early part of the decade, a bizarre neglect of the man some would consider one of the half-dozen most important composers to have graced the music. Whether that valuation stands up to these oddly confected discs, which contain another performance of the 'Electronic Sonata', is very much a matter of personal judgement. We tend to think rather not. The band is absolutely on the case, but the material sounds either diffuse or ridiculously knotty, needing something of the looseness and relaxation that Gil Evans got out of British players. It is rather baffling to look back on the Russell discography, since it seems to suggest a brilliant early phase that has almost completely disintegrated into unsuitable and unproductive music. While there are worthwhile things among the later records, as noted, Russell's dazzling small-group music of the '50s and early '60s now seems like a prematurely closed chapter which jazz would do well to take another look at.

Also, in brief:

(*) Othello Ballet Suite / Electronic Organ Sonata No. 1 Soul Note 121014. 1/67.

The Shakespeare music is more stately than passionate, with an almost ritualistic quality and curiously reminiscent of Ravel. The Electronic Organ Sonata is rather superficial, too obvious an essay in Russell's harmonic and structural ideas.

(*) Trip To Prillargui Soul Note 121029. 3/70.

Beautifully played (by a group that includes Jan Garbarek and Terje Rypdal) but sounds curiously emptied of significance, even on repeated hearings.

 Listen To The Silence Soul Note 121024. 6/71.

Episodically fascinating, this series of otherwise untitled 'Events I–IV' has something of the feel of rehearsal material worked up quickly for performance: Garbarek, Rypdal, Andersen, Christensen all play a part.

(*) Vertical Form VI Soul Note 121019. 3/77.

The band is well-drilled and produces a big, generous sound, but the music seems to just sit there like a stone slab, much involved with its own enigma and a few intelligent guesses about its origins.

* The 80th Birthday Concert Concept Publishing no number 2CD. 6/03.

Warm as toast. An unashamed celebration of some of Russell's greatest works, but also a valuable introduction to one of the most important bodies of work in modern jazz composition.

John Russell (born 1954)

GUITAR

Russell came to London in the early '70s with rock stardom in mind. He subsequently worked entirely in the starless environment of free improvisation, and since 1977 has played an acoustic instrument.

(*) The Fairly Young Bean Emanem 4036 Russell; Maarten Altena (b); Terry Day (perc). 3/81.
* Birthdays / (*) The Second Sky Emanem 4010 / 4058 Russell; Roger Turner (perc). 2/96; 1/01.
* From Next To Last Emanem 4071 Russell (g solo). 12/01–2/02.
 Excerpts & Offerings /  Frequency Of Use ACTA 14 / Nurnichtnur Berslton 102 12 31 Russell; Stefan Keune (sno, as). 11/00; 10/02.
(*) Three Planets Emanem 4106 Russell; Ute Völker (acc); Mathieu Werchowski (vn). 11/03.
* Analekta Emanem 4138 Russell; Henry Lowther (t); Garry Todd (ts); Stefan Keune (as); Chefa Alfonso (ss, perc); Philipp Wachsmann (vn, elec); Ashley Wales (p); Ivor Kallin (b); Javier Carmona (perc); Steve Beresford (elec, FX); Nicole Legros, Jean-Michel Van Schouwburg (v). 11/04, 3–6/06.

Scratchy, twiddly, unlovely: Russell's music personifies free improvisation as many detractors would wish to see it – a tuneless, insectoid scrabbling which is wilfully remote from appeasing a listener. Like his fellow acoustic instrumentalist Roger Smith, who also records extensively for Emanem, he has pursued a strikingly individual course in what might be called post-Bailey guitar music. Unlike Smith, though, Russell works as often in group situations as solo and he is, like Paul Rutherford, a very disjunctive improviser, each passage rarely having much in it that relates to what came before or what will come next.

The Fairly Young Bean, nearly 80 minutes of music for a proposed but abandoned 1981 LP, finds him in the congenial company of Maarten Altena and Terry Day. There is a great deal of scuttling interaction and almost all of it at a low volume: it's very easy to drown John out, and playing companions usually defer to his situation. Altena always finds the humour in such settings and, in their dry way, the 26 tracks field a lot of wryly amusing happenings.

The solo record is a useful place to study Russell's techniques and ideas and how they go together to make up his music. The debts to Bailey's playing are more obvious here, perhaps, although his tonalities are even more abstruse and a sense of fractious timelessness – rather than forward impetus – hangs over the improvising, as if he had as much time as he wanted and that bothered him. Five solos recorded in Martin Davidson's living room, on three different guitars, are followed by a recording of an impromptu live set done at the Red Rose as a fill-in.

The association with Turner now goes back some three decades. The first of their duo recordings on Emanem is, for us, one of the finest and most overlooked on the label, a quiet but incredibly intense documentation of two men working together at the limits of their shared understanding. The second CD is equally extraordinary, but it lacks the sheer dramatic impact of the first.

The duets with Keune are primarily concert performances. Like Russell – or, at least, with him – Keune favours an approach which shies away from any long line or obvious evolution. Since he uses either sopranino or the top end of the alto, the sonic variations are even more constricted. Both discs are absorbing but pretty hard work.

Context is always going to be of particular concern with musicians such as Russell, and the chamberish look to Three Planets perhaps disguises what is a tough, focused, dramatic encounter. Völker is one of the few to make much of the accordion in an improvising situation and she suggests that she could be finding a very fresh vocabulary for the instrument. Werchowski's virtuosity is put at the service of the music and Russell is at his liveliest.

The music on Analekta, taken from a two-year period, draws largely on Russell's Mopomoso series of (mostly) duos at the now closed Red Rose in London. The first three pieces are duos with Todd, Lowther (2004) and Alonso, with a longer Quaqua performance involving all the other players. The duos are typical of Russell's uncompromising and determinedly unaesthetic approach; the other is harder to locate, sonically more varied and very successful. A packed programme of fine music.

Luis Russell (1902–63)

PIANO, BANDLEADER

The Panama-born Russell worked in New Orleans in the early '20s, but the break came as resident bandleader at the Saratoga Club in New York in 1928. Between 1935 and 1940, when it was sacked, the group was with Louis Armstrong full-time. At the time of his death he was driving cars and teaching piano.

* The Luis Russell Story Retrieval RTR 79023 2CD Russell; Louis Metcalf, Henry 'Red' Allen, Bill Coleman, Otis Johnson, George Mitchell, Leonard Davis, Gus Aiken (t); Bob Shoffner (c); Kid Ory, J. C. Higginbotham, Vic Dickenson, Preston Jackson, Dicky Wells, Nathaniel Story, Jimmy Archey (tb); Albert Nicholas (cl, ss, as); Charlie Holmes (ss, as); Darnell Howard, Henry Jones (cl, as); Bingie Madison (cl, ts); Barney Bigard, Teddy Hill, Greely Walton (ts); Will Johnson (g, bj); Lee Blair (g); Johnny St Cyr (bj); Bass Moore (tba); George 'Pops' Foster (b); Paul Barbarin (d); Walter Pichon, Sonny Woods, Chick Bullock, Palmer Brothers (v). 1/29–8/34.
* Luis Russell 1926–1929 Classics 588 Similar to above. 3/26–12/29.
* Luis Russell 1930–1931 Classics 606 Similar to above. 1/30–8/31.

Russell led one of the great orchestras of its period, having originally put it together in New Orleans in 1927, with such young local stars as Allen, Nicholas and Barbarin in attendance. Their 18 essential sides from seven remarkable sessions in New York are variously available on the Classics and Retrieval CDs. The band had secured a prime Harlem residency at the Saratoga Club. This was a sophisticated outfit, first because of its soloists – with Higginbotham dominating the earlier sides and Allen, Nicholas and Holmes adding their own variations to the later ones – and second because of its increasing stature as an ensemble. 'Louisiana Swing', 'High Tension', 'Panama' and 'Case On Dawn' all show the orchestra swinging through the more advanced new ideas of counterpoint and unison variation while still offering chances for Allen and the others to shine as soloists.

The first Classics CD fills in various gaps in the Russell discography. There are two small-group sessions from 1926, the first having a Mortonesque sound through the presence of Mitchell, Ory and Nicholas in the front line, the second a fine example of Chicago music moving out of the barrelhouse and into the front parlour. If the later tracks suggest Russell's hard-bitten swing was softening a little with the era of smooth big bands just around the corner, there is still some memorable playing on the likes of 'Hokus Pokus'. However, the two-disc Retrieval set surpasses all previous editions. Though it doesn't include the 1926 tracks, it offers the two sessions which Russell covered to help out King Oliver (under whose name the titles were issued), and Russell-associated dates by the Jungle Town Stompers and J. C. Higginbotham's Six Hicks; 48 tracks in all.

Also, in brief:

(*) Luis Russell 1945–1946 Classics 1066. 45–46.
All but unknown, and deservedly so. An unidentified Eckstine-styled vocalist pours himself over four tracks and there are some strictly routine big-band shouters. Hardcore collectors only!

Pee Wee Russell (1906–69)

CLARINET, TENOR SAXOPHONE

Charles Ellsworth Russell, a jazz original, came from Missouri and played in the New York school of hot music in the '20s, with Nichols, Mole and the others. From the '30s he was better known as a member of the Condon gang, but his later playing suggested his disaffection for that style of jazz, and in his final decade he played in increasingly mainstream-to-modern settings. Alcoholism, illness and depression thwarted him.

 Pee Wee Russell Classics 1204 Russell; Muggsy Spanier (c); Sterling Bose, Louis Garcia, Henry Levine (t); Marty Marsala (t, v); Vic Dickenson, Artie Foster, Lou McGarity (tb); Brad Gowans (vtb); Matty Matlock (cl); Bud Freeman (ts); Ernie Caceres (bs); Spencer Clark, Merrill Kline (bsx); Irving Brodsky, Gene Schroeder, Jess Stacy (p); Cliff Jackson (p, v); Carl Kress (g); Bob Casey, Bob Haggart, Francis Palmer, Sid Weiss (b); Vic Berton, Morey Feld, Joe Grauso (d); Chick Bullock (v). 3/35–5/46.
The long span here suggests how little Russell actually recorded under his own name during these vintage years. Classics' strict constructionism means that few dates other than as leader pass their muster. That said, the first date here is one led by percussionist Vic Berton, a significant figure in the development of jazz drumming – wire brushes, rod cymbals and other innovations. On these Vocalion dates, Vic's playing a kettle drum. There are dates with Bud Freeman's men and with a Greenwich Village Dixieland band, if such an oxymoron can be allowed to pass.

 Jack Teagarden / Pee Wee Russell Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1708 Russell; Max Kaminsky (t); Dicky Wells (tb); Al Gold (ts); James P. Johnson (p); Freddie Green (g); Wellman Braud (b); Zutty Singleton (d, v). 8/38.
Russell's music is tyremarked by his many years in Dixieland, which he came to hate, with the Condon gang, who sent him up for much of the time, and by his own fatalism and poor habits. There's a danger in patronizing his home-made approach to playing, and he was inconsistent, but his best music is exceptional. He began with the New York players of the '20s – Nichols, Mole, Beiderbecke – but was more readily linked with Condon's Chicagoans in the '30s and '40s. The 1938 session (the rest of the CD features a Teagarden-led group) features a surprising line-up on five standards and a blues, two tracks featuring Russell and the rhythm section alone. Kaminsky and Wells are the most confident-sounding voices, but it's Russell's queer sense of line and wobbly pitch that take the ear. His partnership with Johnson is just one of a series of unlikely alliances he formed with pianists on record, and which would later include George Wein and Thelonious Monk.

* Swingin' With Pee Wee Prestige 24213-2 Russell; Buck Clayton, Ruby Braff (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Bud Freeman (ts); Tommy Flanagan, Nat Pierce (p); Wendell Marshall, Tommy Potter (b); Osie Johnson, Karl Kiffe (d). 2/58–3/60.
A valuable and long-awaited reissue of a classic Russell session, Swingin' With Pee Wee is one of his best latter-day records. Clayton handled the arranging duties, and the rhythm section, with Flanagan, Marshall and Johnson, was about the most modernistic Russell had had behind him at this point. The result is a stylish and triumphant assimilation of his clarinet into a vibrant mainstream setting. His dissertation on his great blues, 'Englewood', is but one example of Pee Wee at his best – and Clayton matches him in the calibre of his playing. Even more of a bonus are the tracks from the 1958 date for Counterpoint, Portrait Of Pee Wee, with Braff and Dickenson – not quite as good, but it only adds to the merits of an excellent reissue.

(*) Jazz Reunion Candid CS 9020 Russell; Emmett Berry (t); Bob Brookmeyer (vtb); Coleman Hawkins (ts); Nat Pierce (p); Milt Hinton (b); Jo Jones (d). 2/61.
Russell's quixotic progress is still inadequately represented on CD. The Reunion was with Hawkins – one of the tracks, 'If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight', they'd recorded together as far back as 1929 – and it caught both men in excellent form, Hawkins's solos delivered in his most leathery, autumnal manner, which makes Russell's nagging at notes sound minimalist. Jones, in particular, reads everybody's moves superbly, although Berry and Brookmeyer especially seem rather irrelevant.

 In England Jazzology JCD 355 Russell; Johnny Armatage's Band. 64.

 With Alex Welsh And His Band Lake LACD 157 Russell; Alex Welsh (t); Roy Crimmins, Roy Williams (tb); John Barnes (bs, cl); Fred Hunt (p); Jim Douglas (g); Ron Mathewson (b); Lennie Hastings (d). 11/64–7/66.
These are both better than some of the surviving recordings of visiting Americans with British trad groups, in the main because Russell himself sounds in good fettle, even though he was back to playing the kind of Dixieland which he professed to have become tired of. The date with Armatage (and Sandy Brown!) is in reasonable sound, if a bit sepia-tinted, and Pee Wee sounds like he's having a good time. On the other, at least he gets his own blues, 'Pee Wee's Blues', with just the rhythm section. As so often, Williams is the standout among the local men and the rhythm section is nothing special. Respectable sound.

 Ask Me Now! Impulse! 755742-2 Russell; Marshall Brown (vtb, bt); Russell George (b); Ronnie Bedford (d). 65.
Russell's 'modern' album set him to work on Monk and Coleman tunes and a few standards, with Brown playing what might be termed the Don Cherry role. It's a curious set: Pee Wee plays everything his way, and he blithely walks through Coleman's 'Turnaround' as if he's blowing on standard changes. It's a fun record, and it's strange to reflect that it was made in the same period that he cut the sessions with Welsh listed above. In the end, it sounds as if Russell is telling us that he can play this stuff if he wants to – although it's not, you know, really him.

Paul Rutherford (1940–2007)

TROMBONE, EUPHONIUM, PIANO

A Londoner, Rutherford played in RAF bands, then studied at the Guildhall. A prime mover in both the Spontaneous Music Ensemble, Iskra 1903 and the London Jazz Composers'

Orchestra, as well as playing solo, Rutherford was a major part of British free music.

 Sequences 72 & 73 Emanem 4018 Rutherford; Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths, Paul Nieman, Geoff Perkins (tb); Dick Hart (tba); Dave White (ss, as, bs, bcl, cbcl); Trevor Watts (ss, as); Evan Parker (ss, ts); Howard Riley (p); Derek Bailey (g); Barry Guy (b); Tony Oxley (elec); Maggie Nicols, Norma Winstone (v). 9/72–5/74.

* The Gentle Harm Of The Bourgeoisie Emanem 4019 Rutherford (tb solo). 7–12/74.

The trombone is said to be the musical instrument closest to the human voice. When Paul Rutherford spoke or sang through his horn, it sounded like no instrument anyone had ever heard, a sound as lyrically potent and as expressively stressed and freighted as a whole ensemble.

Rutherford's solo performances, documented on The Gentle Harm Of The Bourgeoisie, are as wryly subversive as the title suggests. Devotedly recorded by Martin Davidson at the Unity Theatre, it's now infinitely more listenable. Rutherford's grasp of multiphonics is already assured; additional sounds and overtones come from mutes, microphone knocks and from spittle in the horn, part and parcel of the process. The two long tracks, 'Elaqust' from July 1974 and 'Osirac Senol' from the week before Christmas, are definitive.

Sequences 72 & 73 is a historic release, a first chance to hear Rutherford's work as composer/conductor. Iskra 1912 never performed in public. The two 'Sequences' (not previously released) were recorded a year apart, while Rutherford recorded the short solo 'Non-Sequence' in the late spring of 1974. The main difference between the main pieces is that Derek Bailey's stereo guitar was overdubbed onto the latter, which also featured Tony Oxley on live electronics, replacing the saxophones of Trevor Watts, who was one of the main soloists on the 1972 session, duetting with Guy. The brass-players are sometimes required to play chorally, sometimes improvising freely. The other main soloist in 1972 was Evan Parker, who is heard on tenor a year later. With no drummer, there is no definite pulse and, as so often in Rutherford's music, it is the human voice, wordless on this occasion, which provides the unifying principle.

(*) Solo In Berlin 1975 Emanem 4144 Rutherford (tb solo). 3 & 11/75.

So closely is Rutherford associated with solo trombone-playing that it is surprising to realize how little of it was actually captured on record. That situation has changed markedly in recent years and this posthumous release improves the situation further. Apart from a short piece issued on an FMP primer, all of this music is previously unreleased, and perhaps withheld because of the rumbustious reception Rutherford received at the 1975 Total Music Meeting in Berlin. Producer Martin Davidson, who has done a wonderful job in cleaning up the tapes, expresses some doubt as to the morality of releasing the CD after Paul's death, lest it be thought he was cashing in. In short, the music here is too important, too beautiful and affirming not to be heard.

(*) Neuph Emanem 4118 Rutherford (tb, euph solo and overdubbed); Judy (howling). 1/78, 4 & 6/80.

A rare project for Rutherford in that he is overdubbed sometimes many times over and on one track improvises against a playback of himself at double speed, pushing the trombones up into cornet territory. It's a fascinating experiment that anticipates some of Evan Parker's work in the same area. It's not quite strictly a solo record in another sense too, in that on 'Paunch And Judies' Rutherford has a real-time collaborator in the shape of a neighbouring dog driven to distraction by his playing. 'Chefor' is a euphonium solo and a fascinating exploration of that relatively unfamiliar sonority. Another valuable reissue.

* Gheim Emanem 4107 Rutherford; Paul Rogers (b); Nigel Morris (d). 7 & 12/83.

Though Emanem is his natural abode, Gheim actually first appeared on the Ogun imprint. The original set included the whole of a trio performance at the Bracknell Jazz Festival, caught in analogue but beautifully detailed. The opening piece weighs in at over half an hour, a long, steadily evolving idea from Rutherford that constantly hints at jazz models without a single discernible quote or allusion.

The set is arguably most important for an early glimpse of bassist Rogers, with whom Rutherford went on to make the duo Rogues in 1988. He's already possessed of a powerful technique, solid and percussive, full of trombone-like slides and jazzy figures but driven by an idiosyncratic logic that is still yielding impressive results. Morris is probably better known as a fusion drummer, but his unmetrical playing is equally effective and the kit has a full share in proceedings.

Bracknell MC Lol Coxhill said there would be no encores, but a few months after the summer gig the same trio was recorded in the studio. Three previously unissued tracks and a valuable glimpse on 'Prindalf' of Rutherford's second-string euphonium work. It's unmistakably the same voice but with a solidity that sometimes overpowers the bassist, who cranks out a steadily unravelling obstinate in response. Rutherford's other great gift is a sense of humour. The trombone has obvious slapstick potential, but you'll come away from this smiling at the sheer joy he takes in making those beautiful, human, inhuman sounds.

 Rogues Emanem 4007 Rutherford; Paul Rogers (b). 11/88.

This involves two thirds of a trio that also included drummer Nigel Morris. The involvement of a percussionist meant that this was a very different set-up from Iskra 1903, in either of its incarnations, and Morris's absence on the 1988 disc changes the language quite considerably. None of this material appeared on LP and it was finally issued almost a decade after the performances, which were recorded at a pub called the Cannonball in Adderley Street, Birmingham. The opening 'Rogues 1' is as riveting as it must have been on the night. The rest of the disc is less compelling.

* Iskra^3 Psi 05.02 Parker; Lawrence Casserley, Robert Jarvis (live processing). 04.

A new stage in Rutherford's remarkable career, which takes the group aesthetic of the original Iskra 1903 and the processing language of the recently reissued Neuph and gives both a fresh, contemporary turn, parallel to the work label boss Evan Parker has been doing with his Electro-Acoustic Ensemble. These are immensely powerful pieces, still dominated by Rutherford's trombone-playing, but now in the context of a highly responsive background that gives the music mass and density as well as line and presence.

* Hoxha Spool 126 Rutherford; Ken Vandermark (reeds); Torsten Müller (b); Dylan Van der Schyff (d, perc). 12/04.

It's not clear why this is named after the late Albanian dictator (if that, indeed, is the intention), but the live performance from Oregon is one of Rutherford's best group outings of recent times. What's most interesting is the trombonist's use of widely varied dynamics. The closing 'Rokurokubi' is extremely quiet, packed at times with soft, almost toneless sounds. Other tracks are frenetic in pace, but there is never a moment when control seems to be lost.

* The Zone Konnex KCD 5176 Rutherford; Torsten Müller (b); Harris Eisenstadt (d, perc). 1/06.
Rutherford continued – scandalously – to play more dates abroad than in his native Britain. This comes from a concert in Santa Fe with the only European bassist who can currently aspire to Peter Kowald's crown and with a young Canadian drummer whose quiet, concentrated approach adds hugely to this superb recording. For long periods on the opening 'Booming Grounds', it is genuinely difficult to separate 'bone squeaks, Müller's creaking-branch effects and the delicate susurrus of Eisenstadt's kit. The sound flows easily and as if from a single imagination – perhaps The Zone is the locus. The title-track begins without Rutherford, and when he comes in it is with absolute logic and authority, playing rich, brassy tones as close to 'idiomatic' trombone-playing as you'll hear from him. A magnificent statement, but does the track just end or has the tape been edited before the applause? On 'Laughing Lizard', Rutherford sets up a didjeridu growl under Müller, and only later moves to open tones. The final piece, 'Schoenberg Swung Am Hardesten', pretty much sums up the rest of the record: again, mostly quiet, with lots of room for drummer and bassist to explore their shared and contentious domain, gnomic wisdoms from the senior player, great collective understanding. (An appreciative liner-note from fellow trombonist Jeb Bishop is a further plus.)

Also, in brief:

(*) Trombolenium Emanem 4072. 86–95.
Almost a decade's worth of solo performance. The sound-quality varies hugely, or rather the acoustics do, and it is interesting to hear how responsive Paul was to different environments.

 RoTToR Emanem 4026. 2 & 4/98.
A collaborative effort with Keith Tippett (p), Julie Tippetts (v) and Paul Rogers (b), it also includes a fine Rutherford solo.

(*) Chicago 2002 Emanem 4082. 4/02.
Live at the Empty Bottle. Paul plays a tremendous 30-minute solo, and that's followed by a septet where he and fellow Briton Lol Coxhill met up with some local guys and two Scandinavian visitors.

Samo Šalamon (born 1978)

GUITAR

Slovenian disciple of Ornette Coleman, making an original contribution on the European scene.

 A Dream Come True Samo SSCD 01 Salamon; Igor Bezget, Matjaz Dajcar, Marko Zaletelj (g); Tomi Erceg (b); Gasper Bertoncelj, Ciril Sem (d). 02.
 Arabian Picnic Samo SSCD 02 Salamon; Vasko Atanasovski (ss, f); Zanago Turica (vn); Samo Pecar (b); Andrej Hrvatin, Nino Mureškič (perc). 02.
* Ornethology Samo SSCD 03 Salamon; Achille Succi (as, bcl); Salvatore Maiore (b); Zlatko Kaučič (d, perc). 04.
* Ela's Dream Splasc(h) CDH 689-2 Salamon; Kyle Gregory (t); Achille Succi (as, bcl); Dave Binney (as); Paolino Dalla Porta (b); Zlatko Kaučič (d). 4/04.
Much admired by his friend and fellow guitarist John Scofield, Salamon released a couple of records on his own Samo label, including Arabian Picnic, which is credited to his Ansasa Trio. The first album is by his eponymous group, augmented on six tracks by guest musicians. 'Blues For Sco' and 'For Susan And John' repay an obvious debt and confirm the strong writing talent which emerges ever more fully formed on subsequent releases.

Even if the home releases are hard to find, Ornethology is worth searching for. The brief, improvised pieces show a brilliant instinct for texture as well as strong lines and unusual chords. 'Does Your Girlfriend Know You Play Free Jazz?' is as wry as it sounds, but the major statements are 'Something Ology', which may be taking a sideswipe at efforts to pigeonhole this music as Adriatic Ornette, the powerful 'Tribeca' and 'Humpty Dumpty'. The relative absence of blues cadences distinguishes the sound from '80s Scofield, but there is no mistaking Åœalamon's modern jazz sensibility.

Recorded live in Ljubljana, Ela's Dream is a cracking record that shows Salamon in a more realistic light than the studio releases. Achille Succi, who made such an impact on Ornethology with his bass clarinet-playing, is back and in fine form and Kyle Gregory's raw wail is individual enough to thwart easy comparison with Don Cherry's work on those classic Atlantics. 'Coffee With A Girl' is the closest it comes to harmolodic pastiche; the rest of the album is more original and idiosyncratic, effortlessly swung by a fine rhythm section and punctuated by ruggedly thoughtful solos from the leader.

 Two Hours Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 238 Salamon; Tony Malaby (ts); Mark Helias (b); Tom Rainey (d). 11/04.
* Government Cheese Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 279 Salamon; Josh Roseman (tb); Dave Binney (as); Mark Helias (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 12/04.
Fresh Sound New Talent CDs aren't always by debutants, but few of the Spanish label's signings have such a substantial track record as Salamon. These were the product of a fruitful period in New York City, and while one wouldn't detract in any way from the groups Åœalamon worked with back home, the advance in quality is evident from the beginning of Two Hours. Helias and Rainey provide a secure base for his terser rhythmic explorations and the bassist gives the slower material real presence. Government Cheese sees Åœalamon integrating his various influences ever more comfortably. 'The Bee And The Knee' and 'Eat The Monster' are still in the eclectic mould of the earlier recordings, but the guitarist has learned the art of arrangement so that the various voices work together, and while Binney is now a familiar component of the overall sound, Roseman and Helias help to give it bottom and stability during some of the faster transitions. Much of the precariousness has gone out of the music but not at the expense of drama.

A. K. Salim

ARRANGER

Originally a saxophonist, Ahmad Katib Atkinson retired from playing in 1943 to concentrate on writing and arranging.

(*) The Modern Sounds Of A. K. Salim: Complete Savoy Recordings 1957–1958 Fresh Sound FSRCD 474 Salim; Nat Adderley (c); Johnny Coles, Kenny Dorham, Jimmy Nottingham, Joe Wilder (t); Buster Cooper, Frank Rehak (tb); Frank Wess, Herbie Mann, Seldon Powell (f, ts); Marshall Royal, Phil Woods (as); Johnny Griffin (ts); Pepper Adams, Howard Austin, Charlie Fowlkes, Sahib Shihab (bs); Eddie Costa, Tommy Flanagan, Hank Jones,

Wynton Kelly (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Paul Chambers, George Duvivier, Wendell Marshall (b); Bobby Donaldson, Osie Johnson, Philly Joe Jones, Max Roach (d); Chano Pozo (perc). 3/57–9/58.
'Modern' sometimes raises an eyebrow of suspicion, suggesting that a jazz arranger has been spending too much time with longhair composers like Bartók and Schoenberg. In fact, Salim's charts are little more than unpretentious and often quite funky swing with an occasional Latin twist. The earliest of these dates majors heavily on the twinned flutes of Mann and Wess ('Duo-Flautists' is written explicitly for them), but with nice, raw parts for Wilder and the other horns. The set brings together Flute Suite, Stablemates and Jazz Is Busting Out All Over, with the tracks from a compilation called Pretty For The People. Salim can't be considered a major composer, but he has a neat touch and the ensembles here are expected to play with the loose swing of a small group.

Perico Sambeat (born 1962)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE

Played on the Valencia scene in the '80s before establishing an international presence.

 Jindungo Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 029 Sambeat; Bruce Barth (p); Joe Martin (b); Jorge Rossy (d). 95.
(*) Ademuz Fresh Sound FSNT 041 Sambeat; Mike Leonhart (t); Mark Turner (ts); Brad Mehldau (p); Kurt Rosenwinkel (g); Joe Martin (b); Jorge Rossy (d); Guillermo McGill, Enric Canada (perc); Enrique Morente (v). 8–11/95.
Sambeat was associated early on with new majors such as Mehldau, Turner and Rosenwinkel, and they're all here on the simmering, thickly textured Ademuz, excitingly delivered, if overcrowded with detail and noise. The percussion team is involved most of the way through and they set much of the feel of the music, from the polyrhythmic undergrowth of the title-track to the more closely argued layers of 'Expedición'. The leader makes as much of an impression as anyone in his solos, often sailing out of the hyperactivity in the rhythm section with aplomb. The other players are sometimes crowded for space and never make the impression they do on their later records, but this is still a charismatic and frequently exciting record.

The earlier disc has Barth as co-leader and is a much more tentative effort because of it. Sambeat still sounds full of confidence and fire but he lacks some of the polish that comes through on the second disc.

 Friendship ACT 9421 2 Sambeat; Brad Mehldau (p); Kurt Rosenwinkel (g); Ben Street (b); Jeff Ballard (d); Carmen Canela (v). 03.
Sambeat's ideas often seem rooted in what his fellow players are doing and right from the beginning of 'Memoria Du Un Sueno' he is locked in tight with Mehldau, who is of course an old sparring partner. In comparison to pianists David Kikoski and Steve Melling, with whom Sambeat has worked before, Brad usually likes to let space and silence do much of the work for him. Here, however, he seems to be striving. Rosenwinkel, Street and Ballard do their stuff competently but without much drama and the record would not have been very different had they missed the subway across town. There is a sameness about the tracks that might have been avoided had Perico picked up his soprano more often. He reserves it for 'Actors', which comes right after the only standard of the set, 'Crazy She Calls Me', and marks a belated change of pace.

There have been a couple of things since, but on inaccessible labels.

David Sanborn (born 1945)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

One of the most widely known instrumentalists of today; his signature, keening alto sound has appeared on hundreds of recordings, though he distances himself from the 'smooth jazz' he supposedly influenced. He learned to play as therapy for a polio-related condition and worked in rock and R&B before moving towards jazz.

 Voyeur Warner Bros 256900-2 Sanborn; Tom Scott (ts, f); Michael Colina (ky); Hiram Bullock, Buzzy Feiten (g); Marcus Miller (b, g, ky, d); Buddy Williams, Steve Gadd (d); Lenny Castro, Ralph Macdonald (perc). 81.
Whatever palatable, easy-listening trimmings are applied to David Sanborn's records, his own contributions always cut deeper than that. 'I'm pushing for the limit', he says about his playing, whether in the studio or on the concert stage. Voyeur is the album that raised the game a notch: the sound assumes a hard gleam, and a tightness that would be constricting for most players replaces any sense of a loose gait. The altoman thrives in the context, cutting sharp circular patterns like a skater on ice, with the prettiness of 'It's You' and 'All I Need Is You' balancing the bright, airless funk of 'Wake Me When It's Over'.

 Backstreet Warner Bros 923906-2 Sanborn; Marcus Miller (ky, g, b, perc); Michael Colina (ky); Hiram Bullock (ky, g); Buzzy Feiten (g); Steve Gadd (d); Ralph Macdonald (perc). 83.
 Straight To The Heart Warner Bros 925150-2 Sanborn; Randy Brecker, Jon Faddis (t); Michael Brecker (ts); Don Grolnick (ky); Hiram Bullock (g); Marcus Miller (b, ky); Buddy Williams (d); Errol Bennett (perc). 84.
(*) Close-Up Reprise 925715-2 Sanborn; Marcus Miller (ky, g, b); Richard Tee, Ricky Peterson (p); Hiram Bullock, Nile Rodgers, Steve Jordan, Jeff Mironov, G. E. Smith, Paul Jackson (g); Andy Newmark, Vinnie Colaiuta, William House (d); Paulinho Da Costa, Don Alias (perc); Michael Ruff (v). 88.
Marcus Miller had been playing and composing for Sanborn's records before, but with Backstreet he began producing as well, intensifying further the almost abstract neo-funk which the saxophonist had behind him in the mix. Backstreet featured some agreeable tunes as well as the beat, though, and in the title-piece, 'A Tear For Crystal' and 'Blue Beach' Sanborn wrung the most out of each situation. His sound was sometimes almost frozen in the still space of the studio, but his tone remained uniquely capable of emoting in this context. Cut before a studio audience, Straight To The Heart simulated one of Sanborn's live shows and, while it has some tedious features, it's a rare chance to hear the leader in more extended solos than usual, and they are strong enough to belie his insistence that a jazz context is inappropriate for him..

Close-Up was a brilliant return to form after the dud A Change Of Heart. This time Miller handled the whole project and turned in tunes and arrangements which took Sanborn to the very limit of this direction. Having experimented with different keyboard and drum-programme sounds on the earlier records, Miller built backing tracks of maze-like complexity which barely gave the saxophonist room to breathe, yet the exciting riff-tune 'Slam', the sweet melodies of 'So Far Away' and 'Lesley Ann', and the staccato snap of 'Tough' squeezed Sanborn into delivering some of his smartest ideas. It's a little like a modernization of West Coast jazz, where soloists were required to put a personal stamp on 16 bars in the middle of a skin-tight arrangement. The sound is artificially brilliant but entirely suitable for the music.

 Another Hand Elektra 61088-2 Sanborn; Art Baron (tb, btb); Lenny Pickett (cl, ts); Terry Adams, Mulgrew Miller (p); Leon Pendarvis (org); Bill Frisell, Marc Ribot, Al Anderson, Dave Tronzo (g); Greg Cohen, Charlie Haden, Marcus Miller (b); Joey Baron, Steve Jordan, Jack DeJohnette (d); Don Alias (perc); Syd Straw (v). 90.

A striking if sometimes uneasy change of direction. After working with a wide range of players on his American TV series, Night Music, Sanborn (and producer Hal Willner) sought out less-familiar territory and came up with this curious fusion of jazz, R&B and the kind of instrumental impressionism which participants Frisell and Ribot have been associated with. Sanborn sounds interested but not entirely sure of himself at some points, and seems happiest on the rhythmically less taxing pieces such as the infectious lope of 'Hobbies' and two tracks with the Millers and DeJohnette. The film music medley arranged by Greg Cohen emerges as a queer pastiche. Possibly more important to its maker than to his audience, but well worth hearing.

(*) Upfront Elektra 61272-2 Sanborn; Earl Gardner, Laurie Frink, Randy Brecker, Paul Litteral, Herb Robertson (t); Dave Bargeron, Art Baron (tb); Stan Harrison (as); Lenny Pickett, Arno Hecht (ts); Crispin Cioe (bs); Richard Tee (org); John Purcell (ts, saxello); William Patterson, Eric Clapton (g); Marcus Miller (b, ky, g, bcl); Steve Jordan (d); Don Alias, Nana Vasconcelos (perc). 91.

Looser, funkier, free-flowing where the last one was bound up in itself, this is Sanborn sounding comfortable and in charge. His own playing doesn't change so much from record to record, but he sounds a lot happier back here in Marcus Miller's grooves than he did on Hal Willner's on the previous disc. The hip, updated treatment of Ornette's 'Ramblin'' works out a treat, with Herb Robertson adding squittery trumpet, but the whole record has a lot of fine playing – in a live-in-the-studio atmosphere – that stands up to plenty of listening.

 Pearls Elektra 61759-2 Sanborn; Don Grolnick (ky); Kenny Barron (p); Marcus Miller, Christian McBride, Mark Egan (b); Steve Gadd (d); Don Alias (perc); Oleta Adams, Jimmy Scott (v); strings. 94.

Sanborn's strings album is an elegant vehicle for his sound. The choice of material is safe rather than surprising, but it's interesting that the old-fashioned pieces – 'Willow Weep For Me' or 'Come Rain Or Come Shine' – don't suit him nearly as well as the 'mature' modern pop of Sade's title-tune – where he gets a nice note of menace in – or Leon Russell's 'Superstar'. Scott and Adams take a vocal apiece, to no great effect, and the sound is glassy rather than warm, but the overall effect is pleasing enough.

 Songs From The Night Before Elektra 61950-2 Sanborn; Randy Brecker (t); John Purcell (bcl, f); George Young (ss, cl, f); Dave Tofani (ts, f); Ricky Peterson (ky); Paul Peterson, Phil Upchurch, Dean Brown (g); Pino Palladino (b); Steve Jordan (d); Don Alias (perc). 96.

Ricky Peterson has worked with Sanborn before, but here he produces a whole set for the nominal leader. The results are just sweet enough for the radio and sufficiently gritty for Sanborn to get creative. An affecting melody like 'Rikke' sits next to a tersely funky take on Eddie Harris's 'Listen Here', and further down the list is Wayne Shorter's 'Infant Eyes'. Sanborn remains peerless at grafting a serious player's heart and soul on to moves that would otherwise be mere fluff: his kind of urban night music, shrewdly suggested by this disc's packaging, can pass by unnoticed but still present an authoritative and lived-in hinterland to 'real' jazz. Like his other recent records, though, this one misses a pressing reason to exist.

(*) Inside Elektra 7559-62346-2 Sanborn; Wallace Roney (t); Michael Brecker, Lennie Pickett (ts); Ronnie Cuber (bs); Gil Goldstein (p); Ricky Peterson (org); Marvin Sewell, Dean Brown, Bill Frisell, Fareed Haque (g); Hank Roberts (clo); Marcus Miller (b, bcl, ky, v); Gene Lake (d); Don Alias (perc); Cassandra Wilson, Sting, Lalah Hathaway, Eric Benet (v). 98.

Sanborn has another go at making heavyweight music that they'll still play on the radio. Back with Marcus Miller at the desk, he gets close to delivering his best record. Warm, without the phoney radiance of smooth jazz, the settings which Miller devises are just idiosyncratic enough to refuse to let the record slip into the background, and if Sanborn himself sometimes drifts through the music rather than commanding it, he plays his parts with real sensitivity and effort. His own tune 'Lisa', one of two writing credits, is the prettiest thing on the record. Miller writes in real horns – Brecker and Cuber play only charts, but they're easy to spot – and plays his brainy-sidekick role just right.

 Timeagain Verve 655782-2 Sanborn; Randy Brecker (t, flhn); Lawrence Feldman (af, bf); Ricky Peterson (ky); Gil Goldstein (p); Mike Mainieri (vib); Russell Malone (g); Christian McBride (b); Steve Gadd (d); Don Alias, Luis Quintero (perc); Lani Groves, Arnold McCuller, David Lasley, Valerie Pinkston (v); strings. N.D.

Now in situ at another jazz label, Sanborn almost goes all the way and nearly makes a full-on jazz record. The listed personnel are together on most of the tracks (Brecker, Feldman and the vocalists aside). The material includes old jazz hits such as 'Cristo Redentor', 'Harlem Nocturne' and Stanley Turrentine's 'Sugar', and the groove they all lock into for 'Comin' Home Baby' is hard to resist. Producer Stewart Levine rekindles memories of his long stint with The Crusaders. And the saxophonist never sounds less than keen. All that said, the music feels regressive: compared to Songs From The Night Before and Inside, this one feels more like an executive's idea of a strong Sanborn project than one conceived by the man and his closest allies, and they're kidding us that these top-price session-players can really act like a band (which The Crusaders were, after all).

 Closer Verve 986319-2 Sanborn; Alex Sipiagin (t); Mike Davis (tb); Sheryl Henze, Bob Sheppard (f); Larry Goldings, Gil Goldstein (ky); Mike Mainieri (vib); Russell Malone (g); Christian McBride (b); Steve Gadd (d); Luis Quintero (perc); Lizz Wright, Joyce Hammann, Belinda Whitney (v). 05.

Sanborn's such a studio guy that he'll most likely never make an 'indoors' record that doesn't sound tight and glossy. Spit-polished grooves and impeccable chops determine the way the music goes, as usual, but he has the nucleus of a great band and there is some very enjoyable music here, on hardcore material such as 'Tin Tin Deo' and 'Senor Blues'. Docked a notch for having vocals by Lizz Wright, which is a corporate convenience.

Also, in brief:

(*) Taking Off /  Heart To Heart Warner Bros 927295-2 / 3189-2. 75; 1/78.

The problem here is context; other than delivering funky instrumentals, there's nothing for him to bite on.

 The Best Of David Sanborn Warner Bros 9362-45768-2. 75–93.
Covers seven Warners albums through the most successful years.

 As We Speak Warner Bros 923650-2. 82.
Sentimental injections from guitarist Michael Sembello spoil Sanborn's day.

 A Change Of Heart Warner Bros 925479-2. 87.
Four different producers and a mishmash of styles; a big hit with 'The Dream', though.

David Sánchez (born 1969)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Born in Guaynabo, Puerto Rico, he played salsa before turning to jazz, and he studied with Kenny Barron.

 Sketches Of Dreams Columbia 508619-2 Sánchez; Roy Hargrove (t); Danilo Perez, David Kikoski (p); Larry Grenadier (b); Adam Cruz (d); Milton Cardona, Jerry Gonzalez, Leon Parker (perc). 94.
When he made his first record (Departure, currently deleted), Sánchez was already in his mid-20s, still young but not a raw and untamed stripling, and there was a callowness in it which is only briefly engaging. Sánchez has a big, broad, old-fashioned sound that some have likened to Johnny Griffin but which in approach borrows much from Rollins and very little from Coltrane, unusually for a player of his generation. Once again, on Sketches Of Dreams, what makes this album is the sterling support from Perez, Grenadier and Cruz, who turn what might have been an exercise in individualist showmanship into a jazz album.

(*) Melaza Columbia 62085 Sánchez; Miguel Zenón (as); Edsel Gomez (p); Hans Glawischnig (b); Adam Cruz, Antonio Sánchez (d); Pernell Saturnino, Hector Matos, William Cepeda (perc). 2/00.
* Travesía Columbia 85948 As above, except omit Cruz, Matos, Cepeda. 5–6/01.
The earlier of these is an overtly political statement from the Puerto Rican. The title of the album refers to one of the island's greatest exports, the molasses that comes from sugar cane, a sweetness that comes not out of strength but out of exploitation and cruelty. Sánchez is a wiser artist than to lard his music with editorialized commentaries, but he does make it clear what passion and anger lie behind these themes.

The working band is now a more than competent vehicle for his ideas and Branford Marsalis's hand at the production desk is a guarantee of quality as well. There are guest percussionists and Adam Cruz sits in for a couple of tunes, but the basic lineup is the key. The sound is rich and detailed, and the writing strong enough to support the ideas being communicated. 'Against Our Will' is a brilliant jazz theme and David's solo is one of his most accomplished to date; it has the feel of a first take – fresh, strong and intense – but also very polished, so it may be that much of this material was worked through carefully beforehand. Glawischnig is the composer of 'Orbitando' which sees David switch to his soprano horn, though the highlight of the number is a storming solo from Pernell Saturnino, who lives up to his name. Miguel Zenón also contributes a track, 'El Ogro', which underlines just how strong a working unit this has become. Diversity and unity of purpose in one coherent package.

Travesía shares a vivid sound and some brilliant compositional ideas. This time it doesn't have the same ideological baggage and in some respects is the better for it, since it delivers a more various and pleasurable product. For the first time quite this explicitly, Sánchez explores aspects of Puerto Rican folk music, casting three pieces in bomba and plena forms and melding them beautifully with the jazz idiom. He also throws in 'River Tales', a brooding melody in double waltz-time. A more than confident consolidation on the strengths of its predecessor.

Also, in brief:

 Coral Columbia 90313. 4/03.
If Wynton can do it ... With Miguel Zenón (as) and the Prague Symphony.

Sten Sandell (born 1958)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS, VOICE

Swedish improviser, probably best known for his work in Gush with Mats Gustafsson and Raymond Strid, but also involved in solo projects, contemporary classical performance and some ethnic musics. Also leader of the Low Dynamic Orchestra.

* Music From A Water Hole Alice ALCD 005 Sandell; Sören Runolf (g); Peter Söderberg (lute, theorbo); Kjell Nordesen, Lise-Lotte Norelius (perc). 91.
 Frames Bauta BAR 9402 Sandell (p, org, hrm solo). 94.
 Behind The Chords LJ LJCD 5216 Sandell (p, ky, v solo). 97.
* Disappeared Nuscope CD 1009 Sandell; Fred Lonberg-Holm (clo); Michael Zerang (perc). 4/98.
 Bio Elektrika LJ LJCD 5226 Sandell (v, elec). 00.
 Songs LJ LJCD 5237 Sandell; Amit Sen (clo). 04.
 Music In The World Of Sten Sandell LJ LJCD5243 Sandell (p, v, elec solo). 6/05.
That Sandell has learned much from playing Cage and Xenakis is evident from just about everything he does. He is now, however, a 'classical' player who slums with improvisers on occasion. His approach to any music is open-minded (often open-throated as well; he's always liable to let loose an impressive yodel or two during an improvisation), intensely aware of context (he's one of the great listeners in contemporary improv) and utterly musical in every gesture.

The Sandell discography is larger than appears here, but much of it under other names, and of course as a member of Gush. Arguably the best of his work is to be found there, but there is equal rapport with Lonberg-Holm and Zerang on the 1998 Chicago date, which bears witness to the strong empathy which has developed between the Swedish and Illinoian scenes. Sandell's preparations, full-on attacks and percussive exchanges sometimes eclipse the other two.

Sandell's interest in other keyboard sounds and ethnic idioms comes through strongly on Music From A Water Hole, which uses similar personnel to his Low Dynamic Orchestra project. Here, as on many of his records, he deploys an organ, harmonium and sampler as well as piano and voice and with the unusual instrumentation of the rest of the group creates a shifting fabric of music – sometimes abstract, sometimes redolent of some unidentified corner of the Middle/Near/Far East – that also manages to communicate an almost rock energy not usually heard quite as explicitly in his work.

The other solo records – Sen only figures on four of the Songs – weave together a similarly eclectic array of musical threads to create what can only be characterized as improvised-virtual world music. An often-quoted similarity to Paul Bley in pianistic terms can be hard to spot until one hears Sandell deploy electronic instruments, when the connection unexpectedly becomes clear. Like Bley, he is a prolific improviser who likes to document each stage in his progress before moving on. The solo records are pretty consistent in quality, though Bio Elektrika stands somewhat apart from the rest, in that it is essentially a voice-based new-music project, with no keyboard input.

(*) Standing Wave /  Flat Iron / * Oval Sofa 504 / 514 / Intakt CD 122 Sandell; Johan Berthling (b); Paal Nilssen-Love (d). 11/99, 10/00; 10/02; 6/05.

This now long-standing outfit might be likened to Alexander von Schlippenbach's trio with Evan Parker and Paul Lytton. There is no question that what is being played is free jazz. There is pulse, harmonic order even if only of the most evanescent sort and a sense of direction and purposefulness that means these are endlessly involving performances. Perhaps the best of the first record is the opening 'Mural' and the title-track. What follows seems to sacrifice musical thought to power and a rather enigmatic reserve. Berthling and Nilssen-Love are key presences from start to finish, and the drummer in particular is just coming into his own on these tracks. One can even hear him develop between the two dates represented.

The October 2002 Umeå performance documented on Flat Iron isn't so much disappointing in itself as very much more of the same. Again, Nilssen-Love is the revelation, taking an ever more proactive role in the music, though it is still unmistakably Sandell's date. The most recent of the trio's recordings, taped in Switzerland in 2005, is also the best, confirming the comparison with the Schlippenbach Trio by virtue of the almost telepathic understanding that now exists between these players.

Mark Sanders

DRUMS, PERCUSSION

Brilliant British free player, widely recorded.

 Swallow Chase Treader trd 003 Sanders (perc solo). N.D.

Sanders has worked widely on the European scene, with a distinctive time-sense that is typical of British players (Eddie Prévost, Steve Noble) and which combines freedom with a deep, strong pulse. Sanders plays with power tempered with delicacy and he wisely keeps these nine improvisations to relatively modest durations, accentuating the shape and trajectory of each piece rather than overpacking them with technique. An impressive showing in a difficult discipline.

Pharoah Sanders (born 1940)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Originally Farrell Sanders (Sun Ra proposed the change), John Coltrane's latter-day playing partner has run the gamut, from stretched-out bop to high-intensity trance music to a late and unexpected role as a disco hero.

 Pharoah's First ESP Disk 1003 Sanders; Stan Foster (t); Jane Getz (p); William Bennett (b); Marvin Patillo (d, perc). 9/64.

(*) Izipho Zam Charly CDGR 226 Sanders; Sonny Fortune (as); Lonnie Liston Smith (p); Sonny Sharrock (g); Cecil McBee, Sirone (b); Howard Johnson (tba); Billy Hart, Majid Shabazz (d); Chief Bey (African d); Tony Wylie (perc); Leon Thomas (v, perc). 1/69.

 Karma Impulse! 051153-2 Sanders; Julius Watkins (frhn); James Spaulding (f); Lonnie Liston Smith (p); Ron Carter, Richard Davis, Reggie Workman (b); William Hart, Freddie Waits (d); Nathaniel Bettis (perc); Leon Thomas (v, perc). 2/69.

 Jewels Of Thought Impulse! 051247-2 Sanders; Lonnie Liston Smith (p, f, perc); Richard Davis, Cecil McBee (b, perc); Roy Haynes (d); Idris Muhammad (d, perc). 10/69.

(*) Deaf, Dumb, Blind, Summun, Bukmun, Umyun Impulse! 051265-2 Sanders; Woody Shaw (t, perc, v); Gary Bartz (as, perc); Lonnie Liston Smith (p, perc); Cecil McBee (b); Clifford Jarvis (d); Nathaniel Bettis (perc, v); Anthony Wiles (perc). 7/70.

 Thembi Impulse! 051253-2 Sanders; Michael White (vn, perc); Lonnie Liston Smith (p, perc); Cecil McBee (b, perc); Roy Haynes (d); Clifford Jarvis (d, perc); Nat Bettis, Chief Bey, James Jordan, Majid Shabazz, Anthony Wiles (perc). 11/70, 1/71.

If the Creator does, indeed, have a master plan, then the role he has written for Pharoah Sanders is a complex one. Like those other great saxophonists Snub Mosley and Bill Clinton, he hails from Little Rock, Arkansas, and in the '60s, while Snub was getting by and Bill was obstinately refusing to inhale, Sanders was swallowing great draughts of air to produce some of the most raucously beautiful saxophone sounds of the decade. Having worked with John Coltrane during the latter's last years, he had acquired licence to stretch harmonics to the utmost, but always, unlike Coltrane, over a hypnotically simple ground, which is why in later years Sanders was able to reinvent himself as the wicked uncle of the club and dance scene.

An ESP Disk recording was almost de rigueur for anyone in the New York avant-garde. Sanders's is better than most, though it suffers from a very anonymous band. As usual, the leader plays with enough intensity to weld metal, albeit with a softer and broader tone than Coltrane's. Like his sometime employer, he was taken up by Impulse! and given a freer hand than was strictly good for him. Unlike the admirably disciplined Trane, Pharoah never knows when an idea has run its course, and the half-hour plus of 'The Creator Has A Master Plan' (which is basically all there is of Karma) palls rather quickly. The saxophone part is pretty much front and centre throughout, and though Bob Thiele's production gives due weight to the other instruments, there is no mistaking that it's Pharoah's gig. The short 'Colors' is a makeweight, but on reflection contains as much of promise as the main event. Like other Impulse! products of the time, it feels like slim pickings at less than 40 minutes; surprising that there wasn't at least some out-take material to pad it out.

Summun, Bukmun, Umyun consists of just two pieces, and it is pretty short measure in contemporary CD terms. Lonnie Liston Smith's adaptation of 'Let Us Go Into The House Of The Lord' is altogether more engaging than the title-piece, which is overstocked with yodelling cries and aimless percussion. Bartz sounds in good voice and it is intriguing to hear Woody Shaw in this company; not his usual turf, though as ever he responds very positively to a free environment.

Izipho Zam is interesting but timelocked, a shambolic and rather undisciplined group performance which doesn't really give any of the soloists except Fortune and the irrepressible Sharrock much room to express themselves. Even well remastered, Thembi obstinately refuses to move us, a bland and strangely mechanical run-through of the familiar ethnic/free clichés of the period, with an over-emphasis on small instruments and not enough on straight playing. This was more about wearing funny hats than making music. Jewels Of Thought is even weaker still, two great slabs of ambient sound which again bear the stamp of Lonnie Liston Smith as co-composer. Perhaps it was his influence that blunted these early records. Certainly Sanders seems all too willing to shed the ferocity and sheer strength of his work with Coltrane.

(*) Black Unity Impulse! 051219-2 Sanders; Hannibal Marvin Peterson (t); Carlos Garnett (ts); Joe Bonner (p); Stanley Clarke, Cecil McBee (b); Norman Connors, Billy Hart (d); Lawrence Killian (perc). 11/71.
Skimpy as to length, but packed with interest. The line-up alone should be tweaking interest already; Garnett, Bonner, McBee and Hart have never enjoyed the celebrity they deserve, and here they contribute to a fascinating collage of sound, dark splashes of colour which never sound virtuosic but which contribute to an intensely vivid and dramatic canvas. Garnett in particular is stunning, a lighter sound almost in alto range. Again, it's tempting to wonder how much material from the session was left on the cutting-room floor. We have two versions of Coltrane's 'Ascension' and a first draft of Ornette's 'Free Jazz', and though the differences are not critical in either case, the fascination remains.

 Shukuru Evidence ECD 22022 Sanders; William Henderson (p); Ray Drummond (b); Idris Muhammad (d); Leon Thomas (v). N.D.
 Live Evidence ECD 22223 Sanders; John Hicks (p); Curtis Lundy (b); Idris Muhammad (d). 4/81.
(*) Heart Is A Melody Evidence ECD 22063 Sanders; William Henderson (p); John Heard (b); Idris Muhammad (d); Paul Arslanian (bells, whistle); Chief Bey, Flame Braithwaite, Cort Cheek, Janie Cook, William S. Fischer, Mira Hadar, Debra McGriffe, Jes Muir, Kris Wyn (v). 1/82.
Henderson becomes a key player in the early '80s, an able and fluent player with a touch of the Herbie Hancock. Sanders appears to be rethinking his strategy around this time, turning back to standards playing for the first time in many years. That tenor saxophonist's shibboleth, 'Body And Soul', on Shukuru is intelligently performed, with few new ideas, but a sympathetic synthesis of much of what has gone on between Byas and Coltrane concentrated into a relatively straightforward melodic response.

The live set was reissued in 2003. Added to the original release material, taped in LA and Santa Cruz, is a long track recorded at around the same time in San Francisco. 'Doktor Pitt' makes the album, a big-voiced, dramatic piece with some of Sanders's best playing from this period. It seems odd that it hasn't been made available before, though bootlegs do exist. Of the other material, another extended improvisation, 'Pharomba', stands out brightly. Still, one can't help feeling that in these years Sanders marked time musically.

 A Prayer Before Dawn Evidence ECD 22047 Sanders; William Henderson (p, syn); John Hicks (p); Lynn Taussig (sarod, chandrasarang); Alvin Queen (d); Brian McLaughlin (tabla). 9/87.
The cover of A Prayer Before Dawn shows the middle-aged Sanders with white fringe beard and anomalously black hair framing a benevolently owlish expression far removed from the contorted scowl of former years. With accommodation has come productivity, a steady string of unscary and mostly very palatable records. The sound is drier and less physical than Timeless had started to give him, but very effective on its own terms. Coltrane cover: 'After The Rain' again – torrential, fresh, brand-new.

 Africa Timeless SJP 253 Sanders; John Hicks (p); Curtis Lundy (b); Idris Muhammad (d). 87.
 Moon Child Timeless SJP 326 Sanders; William Henderson (p); Stafford James (b); Eddie Moore (d); Cheikh Tidiane Fale (perc). 10/89.
(*) Welcome To Love Timeless SJP 358 Sanders; William Henderson (p); Stafford James (b); Eccleston W. Wainwright (d). 7/90.
Henderson and James aren't quite in the Hicks/Lundy mould, but you can readily hear the kind of thing Sanders is after, a hypnotic groove that allows the horn to float almost at will. Interestingly, the saxophonist stays very much on the comfortable side of the chords; even given all the leeway in the world, Sanders no longer wants to tread the outside edge. Moon Child is the straightest jazz album he'd made for years, anticipating the trim, angular contours of the later Crescent With Love. At this juncture, though, he sounds almost restrained, holding out if not holding back. Welcome To Love is more elaborate, embellished, and much of the credit has to go to the estimable Eccleston W. Wainwright, who ought to be executive vice-president of his own firm with a name like that, but certainly can't be short of work playing as he does.

(*) Naima Evidence ECD 22107 Sanders; John Hicks (p); Richard Davis (b); Tatsuya Nakamura (d). 6/92.
Pride of place here goes to Richard Davis's composition 'Mara', which occupies more than ten minutes, but the rest of the programme attests to Sanders's growing interest in more conventional jazz repertory: 'Skylark', 'Greensleeves' (almost a standard), 'Stormy Monday' and 'Over The Rainbow'. The title-piece is given a curious, bluesy twist that you don't hear in the usual, sentimentalized versions. Hicks can be a dull soloist, but he's in fine form here at the heart of Pharoah's New York Unit. Recommended, provided you've banished any expectation of saxophonic excess.

* Crescent With Love Evidence ECD 22099 2CD Sanders; William Henderson (p); Charles Fambrough (b); Sherman Ferguson (d). 10/92.
The 25th anniversary of Coltrane's death spawned a rash of tribute albums, few of them as apostolically convincing as this. A perfectly balanced band, with Henderson growing in stature almost as you listen to him and Fambrough showing once again what a responsive and intelligent player he can be in the right company. Five Coltrane tunes, opening with 'Lonnie's Lament', 'Wise One', 'Naima', 'Crescent' and closing disc two with 'After The Rain', these interspersed with 'Misty', 'Too Young To Go Steady', 'Feeling Good', Pietro Piccioni's 'Light At The Edge Of The World' and one original, Henderson's 'Softly For Shyla'. Sanders sounds thoughtful and even a little wistful, as befits a tribute to his friend, but he never lets his playing drift into sentiment. A strong, creative record, perhaps the only one of the recent batch that can be considered essential..

Also, in brief:

 Elevation /  Love In Us All Impulse! 427402 / Universal International 9103. 9/73.
Towards the end of his time at Impulse! and badly needing a fresh direction. The male chorus on Elevation will put off some, but lovely stuff on 'Love Is Everywhere' on Love In Us All (sic).

 Journey To The One Evidence ECD 22016. N.D.
This became a club classic. Hard to believe.

(*) On Timeless CD SJP 253/326/358 3CD. N.D.
A valuable gathering-in of Pharoah's work for the Dutch label; no additional tracks or out-takes, though.

 Rejoice Evidence ECD 22020. N.D.
Cluttered by vocals, but packed with interesting episodes. The two Coltrane items are 'Moment's Notice' and 'Central Park West', the latter turned into a moody, brooding excursion.

 Finest Dopeness Galore 2005. 87–90.
A pretty good compilation of material from a curious period that needs sensitive filleting.

 Spirits Meta 4. 00.
The most satisfying of recent records: a suite of tone poems for saxophone and percussion, drifting seamlessly from one idea to the next, but constantly evoking some aspect of the African heartland.

* With A Heartbeat Evolver 2015. 03.
A set of improvisations and arrangements played over a recording of a heartbeat made by Dr Jean-Louis Zink. As a side-project for a cardiologist, it must have been a gas; as a jazz record it falls pretty short. Graham Haynes (c, elec) impresses.

Randy Sandke (born 1949)

TRUMPET, CORNET, GUITAR

Born in Chicago, he followed the music of idols such as Bix and Louis. Worked for ASCAP but began playing jazz again and found himself in demand in swing/mainstream circles. In the '90s he took on an ambassadorial role for the styles he loved, but also recorded more outré material on his own records.

 Stampede Jazzology JCD-211 Sandke; Dan Barrett (tb, c); Ken Peplowski (cl); Scott Robinson (bsx, c); Ray Kennedy (p); Marty Grosz (g); Linc Milliman (tba); Dave Ratajczak (d). 12/90.
 Wild Cats Jazzology JCD-222 As above, except omit Robinson, Kennedy, Grosz, Milliman; add Mark Shane (p); James Chirillo (g); Jack Lesberg (b). 7/92.
When it comes to versatility, Sandke's the man, and it lines him up alongside Guy Barker, Wynton Marsalis and a select few in a trumpet section that could play more or less anything in pretty much any style. As ever, the problem with that skill lies in how to sound like yourself. Sandke is getting there, but on some of his earlier records his accomplishments can sound hollow.

This is a repertory group in the manner of those helmed by Marty Grosz and Keith Ingham, and with a similar cast of performers, so there's little to surprise anyone who's heard the many records in this burgeoning genre. Stampede is a bit brisker than Wild Cats, but the latter gives the soloists some extra room and Sandke sounds more relaxed; he constructs a very fetching solo out of 'Wild Cat' itself, for instance. On all four discs there is first-class support from both Peplowski and Barrett, spirits in close kinship to the leader. Sandke himself is rather variable – some of his solos sound almost pernickety in their attempts to please period feel, others better their environment.

 The Re-Discovered Louis And Bix Nagel Heyer CD 058 Sandke; Jon-Erik Kellso, Nicholas Payton (t); Wycliffe Gordon, Dan Barrett (tb); Ken Peplowski (cl, ts); Kenny Davern (cl); Chuck Wilson (as); Scott Robinson (ts, Cmel, bsx); Dick Hyman (p, cel); Howard Alden, James Chirillo (g, bj); David Ostwald (tba); Peter Washington, Greg Cohen (b); Joe Ascione (d). 6–9/99.
With all of his Concords suddenly deleted, it's a bit of a jump to Sandke's next. Other albums by the New York All Stars are listed under that name, but Sandke gets top billing here – as well he might. A stunning bit of revivalism, this aligns eight Armstrong pieces – some little-heard, others virtually unknown and unrecorded – and seven similarly associated with Beiderbecke. It starts with a bristling piece in the Oliver Jazz Band style called 'Papa What Are You Trying To Do To Me I've Been Doing It For Years', moves through Hot Seven and big-band styles to something in the manner of the All-Stars. The Bix material (abetted by Hyman's scholarship) is at least as fascinating, with Goldkette and Venuti material of varying stripes. The playing is little short of superlative by all hands: outside of the great Keith Nichols projects, this kind of living history has seldom been presented with this mix of individual panache and proper homage. One of the best projects this label's realized to date, going several notches above their frequently polite mainstream manners.

(*) Inside Out Nagel Heyer 2025 Sandke; Ray Anderson, Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Ken Peplowski (cl, ts); Marty Ehrlich (ss, cl, bcl, af); Scott Robinson (ss, bs, cbsx, bcl, f, theremin); Uri Caine (p); Greg Cohen (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 1/00.
Had this been released by a major American label it would likely have been greeted with all kinds of ballyhoo. Instead, Sandke's audacious project, aligning himself and Peplowski alongside the likes of Ehrlich, Anderson and Caine, thereby lining up the new mainstream and New York's downtown side by side, barely got a mention in most parts of the jazz press. Sandke put in three of his own tunes and scored 'Creole Love Call' but he also got everyone else to contribute a tune and the compatability of the playing, even when the music's kicking at doors which some of these players don't care to open, is wonderful. As an ensemble they get a gorgeous sound, the reeds making up a voluptuously rich range and the rarity of two trombones in a nine-piece band also makes its mark. One or two of the pieces are more jokey than good-humoured – Gordon's 'Sam Bone' is just a bit of nonsense for himself and Anderson – but Ehrlich's 'Like I Said', Sandke's 'Inside Out' and Cohen's 'Trapianti Di Scimmia' alone make the record special.

 The Mystic Trumpeter Evening Star ES-108 Sandke; Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Scott Robinson (ss, ts, bf); Ted Rosenthal (p); Greg Cohen (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 12/03–9/04.
 Trumpet After Dark Evening Star ES-109 Sandke; Bill Charlap (p); Rosamund Morley, Beverly Au, Lawrence Lipnik, Lisa Terry (viol); Greg Cohen (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). N.D.
 Outside In Evening Star ES-110 Sandke; Ray Anderson, Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Ken Peplowski (cl, ts); Marty Ehrlich (ss, cl, bcl, af); Scott Robinson (ss, bs, cbsx, bcl, f, theremin); Uri Caine (p); Howard Alden (g); Greg Cohen (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 1/05.
After a seemingly quiet period, a flurry of releases for a new label. The Mystic Trumpeter features two pieces, a programmatic setting of Whitman's poem of the same title and 'Symphony For Six', which pursues Sandke's interest in metatonal music (read his book) by creating the outline of a classical symphony for a jazz sextet. Both pieces might be rather heavy going for listeners who enjoyed some of the earlier sets and it's most likely a record that will be of more importance to its maker than his audience. That said, the playing on both pieces is handsome and convincingly performed.

Trumpet After Dark is subtitled 'jazz in a meditative mood' and is an easy-going quartet date with the addition of the four-piece viol consort Parthena. Other than adding a little string colour, they frankly don't do a lot for the situation. But Sandke's own playing is as attractive as usual.

The meatiest record is the return match for the Inside Out band. Most of the charts are by the leader this time, and there are two versions of the all but unknown late Jelly Roll Morton composition 'Ganjam', one in its original form, the other in a Sandke arrangement. The playing is a bit more polished and a shade less exuberant this time, the themes rather more sober and arranged. But it's still a thoroughly enjoyable disc.

Also, in brief:

 The Subway Ballet Evening Star ES 112. 11/05; 98.
In the grand line of American urban dance pieces, this is destined for minor-classic status.

Arturo Sandoval (born 1949)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, KEYBOARDS, PERCUSSION, VOICE

A Cuban expatriate, Sandoval created a storm of interest in the '80s, seeming to ride in on a fresh wave of Latin jazz creativity. His subsequent progress has been much less interesting.

(*) No Problem / Just Music Jazz House JHCD 6601 2CD Sandoval; Hilario Duran Torres (p, ky); Jorge Chicoy (g); Jorge Reyes Hernandes (b); Bernardo Garcia Carreras (d); Reinaldo Valera Del Monte (perc). 8/86–8/88.
(*) Straight Ahead Jazz House JHCD 007 Sandoval; Chucho Valdes (p); Ron Mathewson (b); Martin Drew (d). 8/88.
 Flight To Freedom GRP 059634-2 Sandoval; Ed Calle (ts, f); Chick Corea, Mike Orta, Danilo Perez, Richard Eddy (ky); Rene Luis Toledo (g); Anthony Jackson, Nicky Orta (b); Dave Weckl, Orlando Hernandez (d); Long John, Portinho (perc). 91.
In person, Sandoval is one of the most ebullient trumpet ambassadors since Dizzy Gillespie, his great mentor. On record, this Cuban exile and scintillating virtuoso is a less convincing figure. No Problem is a fair sample of the kind of music he served up at Ronnie Scott's on his regular visits, and while the playing bubbles with Latin fire and brilliance, battle fatigue tends to overtake the listener. Sandoval may be a great technician, but it's often hard to detect any reason for the galloping runs other than a love of showmanship. The band provide zesty accompaniment. In the studio, with Valdes and a British rhythm section, the atmosphere seems calmer until they go into the trumpet machismo of 'Mambo Influenciado', which shows that Sandoval doesn't need a live audience to prod him into going over the top. Just Music (now doubled up as a twofer with the first set) was recorded around the same time and is another mixed bag of kitsch and genuine music-making. The GRP set was his first 'American' statement after defecting to the USA, and the irony is that it often falls into international muzak: GRP house bands provide faceless backing tracks which the trumpeter dances over with a sometimes light but more often crashingly heavy footfall.

 I Remember Clifford GRP GRP-96682 Sandoval; Ernie Watts, David Sánchez, Ed Calle (ts); Felix Gomez (ky); Kenny Kirkland (p); Charnett Moffett (b); Kenny Washington (d). 91.
Tribute albums are becoming a bore, but this is easily the best record under Sandoval's name. The material is all in dedication to Clifford Brown, and most of it emanates from Brownie's own repertoire, including 'Joy Spring', 'Daahoud' and the like. The uptempo pieces are as thrilling as Sandoval can make them: 'Cherokee' is taken at a preposterously fast tempo, and the trumpeter still pulls off a solo which outpaces everybody else. Watts and Sánchez also fire off some exciting solos of their own, and the rhythm section is absolutely on top of it, with Kirkland at his most dazzling. Yet there remains a gloss of routine on the music, which can sound utterly unyielding, and the production decision to create some trumpet parts by feeding them through a harmonizer only adds to the sense of a spirit tamed by the demands of making successful records.

 Mambo Palace Telarc 83662 Sandoval; Jason Carder (t); Dante Luciani, Dana Teboe (tb); Felipe Lamoglia (ts, EWI, perc); Tony Perez (ky); Armando Gola (b); Alexis Arce (d); Tomas Cruz (perc); Cheito (v). 5/07.
At last, a new Sandoval record that can be enjoyed without shame. There's some fine dancing music here, and though the title is a plug for his club, there's no more than a hint of commercial compromise in the actual playing. It's perhaps too early to declare a creative renaissance, but if contemporary Cuban is your thing, you could do a great deal worse.

Also, in brief:

 Best Of Arturo Sandoval Milan/WEA 5050466 3099-2. N.D.
An excruciating 'Maria', and overblown concert treatments of 'My Funny Valentine' and 'A Night In Tunisia'. The closing blues is surprisingly restrained, for Arturo.

 The Latin Train GRP 059820-2. 1/95.
About as feelingful and sincere as a Las Vegas wedding.

Mongo Santamaria (1922–2003)

PERCUSSION

Born in a poor quarter of Havana, Santamaria moved to the USA in 1950, originally to work with Cal Tjader, and became a hugely influential force in hybridizing the rhythms of Latin American music with jazz. In his own groups he adapted the charanga line-up to accommodate saxophones and brasses. His composition 'Afro Blue', still occasionally credited in error to John Coltrane, is a modern classic.

 Sabroso Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 281 Santamaria; Louis Valizán (t); Jose Chombo Silva (ts); Rolando Lozano (f); Vince Guaraldi (p); Cal Tjader (vib); Felix Pupi Legarreta (vn); Al McKibbon, Victor Venegas (b); Willie Bobo (perc); Pete Escovedo, Bayardo Velarde (v). 59.
 Arriba! Fantasy 24738 Santamaria; Rolando Lozano (f); Jose Chombo Silvo (ts); João Donato (p); Felix Pupi Legarreta (vn); Victor Venegas (b); Cuco Martinez (perc); Rudy Calzado (v). 59.
 Our Man In Havana Fantasy FCD 24729 2 Santamaria; Armandito El Fine (t); Julio (f); Paquito (f, p); Nino Rivera (tres); Willie Bobo (perc); Bol, Pepito (b); Gustavito (guiro); Yeyito (perc); Mario Arenas, Carlos Embales, Cheo Junco, Macuchu, Armando Raymact, Luis Santamaria, Merceditas Valdés (v); Cuban All Stars. 60.
Santamaria is now regarded more as a catalyst than as a significant performer in his own right, but his work is well worth hearing, and he has stuck to his last over the years. Sabroso, which includes in the line-up Santamaria's old boss, Cal Tjader, is nicely balanced between traditional charanga, with its flute-and-violin front line, and a more contemporary jazz sound. Bobo and vocalist Escovedo are effectively co-leaders, providing a lot of the drama of the set.

Arriba! sticks doggedly to the same formula, a generous array of 22 themes by the leader, band members Lozano and Legarreta, with the Gillespie–Pozo classic 'Manteca' thrown in as an example of reciprocal influence.

The personnel on Our Man In Havana remains somewhat obscure, largely because many of the players are identified only by their first names. It’s remotely possible that political pressures have something to do with this. The music is certainly very much on first-name terms: hot, intimate and joyous, with a greater admixture than before of traditional elements. The two main vocalists, Embales and Valdés, are classic exponents of the repertoire and flautist Julio and tres player Nino Rivera add to the chemistry.

 Watermelon Man Milestone MCD 47075 Santamaria; Marty Sheller (t); Mauricio Smith (f); Bobby Capers, Pat Patrick (f, sax); Jose Chombo Silva (ts); Rodgers Grand (p); Felix Pupi Legarreta (vn); Victor Venegas (b); Frank Hernandez, Ray Lucas (d); Willie Bobo, Joseph Gorgas, Kako (perc); Rudy Calzado, La Lupe, Osvaldo ‘Chihuahua’ Martinez (v). 12/62, 9/63.

By the first years of the ’60s, Santamaria was working in what was identifiably a jazz idiom, with strong Latin inflexions, rather than the other way round. Herbie Hancock’s ‘Watermelon Man’, played very much in the spirit of the original but rhythmically much looser and more elaborate, delivered the percussionist his first major hit. From this point on, his reputation was firmly established. The horn voicings are very jazz-orientated and the track lengths were carefully tailored to radio and jukebox requirements. It would be good to hear longer versions of almost all of these tunes, not least the Cannonball Adderley–Joe Zawinul collaboration ‘Cut That Cane’. The reissue includes six previously unissued tracks from a live Californian set recorded in 1962. These don’t add much to a record that is already classic Santamaria.

 At The Black Hawk Fantasy FCD 24734 Santamaria; Jose Chombo Silva (ts); Pat Patrick (sax, f); Rolando Lozano (f); João Donato (p, tb); Victor Venegas (b); Willie Bobo (perc); Rudy Calzado (v). 62.

There was still something of a split in Santamaria’s market placing at this time, so Fantasy divided the material from the Black Hawk into two slightly different album packages. The jazz-inflected Mighty Mongo and the more Cuban Viva Mongo! are paired up on this fine CD reissue. Santamaria’s sidemen were also getting used to the idea of playing like jazz musicians, and saxophonist Jose Chombo Silva unveils a range of influences from Hawkins to Coltrane, which makes slightly more sense when you see tunes like ‘Body And Soul’ and ‘All The Things You Are’ slipped into the programme for the first time.

 Mongo At The Village Gate Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 490 Santamaria; Marty Sheller (t); Pat Patrick (as, f); Bobby Capers (ts, f); Rodgers Grand (p); Victor Venegas (b); Frank Hernandez (d); Julian Cabrera, Osvaldo ‘Chihuahua’ Martinez (perc). 9/63.

The live records have always been the best measure of Santamaria’s work, and even though the registration on this Symphony Sid-hosted event isn’t of the absolute best, the whole disc is shot through with a sense of excitement and the tunes are allowed to find their own length rather than be tailored for radio and jukebox. Santamaria’s feature on ‘My Sound’ was the sort of thing that American players from Dizzy Gillespie onwards were to find so inspirational.

 Skins Milestone MCD 47038 Santamaria; Paul Serrano, Marty Sheller (t); Nat Adderley (c); Hubert Laws (f, picc, ts); Al Abreu, Pat Patrick (sax, f); Bob Capers (as, bs); Chick Corea, Rodgers Grand (p); Jose De Paulo (g, perc); Victor Venegas (b); Ray Lucas (d); Julio Collazo, Carmelo Garcia, Wito Kortwright, Osvaldo ‘Chihuahua’ Martinez, To-Tiko (perc); Carmen Costa, Marcellina Guerra, Elliott Romero (v); chorus. 64, 72.

Skins has always been the best place to start for those who are not ready for the undiluted Santamaria of earlier years. The album still has a lot to recommend it, and the presence of Adderley and Chick Corea, who learned a great deal from Santamaria’s music, will recommend it to jazz fans. There is a preponderance of vocal music on the later set which is rather wearing when mixed up as loud as it is; very much in the style of the time but unnatural to contemporary tastes.

 Mongo 70 / Mongo At Montreux Collectables COL 6401 Santamaria; Israel Gonzalez (t); Raymond Maldonado (t, perc); Carter Jefferson, Grant Reed (ts, f); Trevor Lawrence (bs); Roger Glenn (f, vib); Neal Creque, Eddie Martinez (p); Eric Gale (g); Edward Rivera (b); Steve Berrios (d, perc); Angel Allende, Osvaldo Martinez, Armando Peraza (perc). 70.

In their usual way, Collectables put together two albums from the start of the ’70s (note: this is a different Montreux performance from the one below). The 1970 appearance pitted him with cousin Armando Peraza and a steaming band that must have been as good to watch as they are to listen to. The Santamaria magic always worked less well in the studio and there are lapses on the 70 disc.

 Summertime /  Montreux Heat Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 626 / Pablo 5317 Santamaria; Dizzy Gillespie (t); Tommy Villarini (t, perc); Doug Harris (ts, f); Allan Hoist (ts, clo); Toots Thielemans (hca); Milton Hamilton (p); Lee Smith (b); Steve Berrios (d, perc). 7/80.

Coming back to this music after several years, we find our enthusiasm somewhat diminished by what now seems an overlong and indulgent set on which Mongo, Dizzy and Toots stretch out over four tunes, including the percussionist’s otherwise evergreen ‘Afro Blue’ and the title-piece. Dizzy has articulation problems throughout and yet seems bent on hitting the heights every time he takes a solo. The opening tune, Alphonse Mouzon’s ‘Virtue’, is the best thing on the album, its crisp promise unfulfilled.

 Mambo Mongo Chesky 100 Santamaria; Eddie E. J. Allen (t); Jimmy Cozier (as); Craig Rivers (ss, as, ts); Hubert Laws, Dave Valentin (f); Dario Eskenazi (p); Johnny Almendra Andreu (perc); Eddie Rodriguez (perc, v). 3/92.

Later Santamaria albums were arranged and conducted by trumpeter Marty Sheller, who had been part of the early American bands. Here, having switched to a new label, he seems to have captured something like the feel of the old group, but only very episodically and with no consistency, and the record jumps in and out of focus on almost every number. William Allen and Hilton Ruiz are also credited as composer/arrangers, and it is Ruiz’s ‘Caribbean Sunrise’ which gives the first half of the record its optimistic bounce. The group also tackles a composition by Onaje Allan Gumbs, ‘Are They Only Dreams’, a softly dreamlike theme with an edgy second subject which is darker than Santamaria’s usual fare.

(*) Mongo Returns Milestone MCD 9245 Santamaria; Eddie E. J. Allen (t, flhn, as, bs, f); Roger Byam (ss, ts, f); Robert DeBellis (as, bs, f); Mel Martin (picc, f, af, bf); Oscar Hernandez (p, ky); Hilton Ruiz (p); John Benitez (b); Robby Ameen (d); Greg Askew (d, shekere); Johnny Almendra Andreu (d, perc); Louis Bauza, Steve Berrios (perc, g). 6/95.

... and returns to Fantasy Records in some triumph with one of his most vivid sets for some considerable time. Once again, Marty Sheller is in charge of the arrangements, and with Hilton Ruiz on board as pianist and bringing with him the charts for 'Free World Mambo', the stage was set for something quite special. The nods in the direction of pop music are still evident in Stevie Wonder's 'You've Got It Bad, Girl' and Marvin Gaye's 'When Did You Stop Loving Me', but these sound entirely consistent with the style and working practice of the band. A cracking record, recommendable to fans and newcomers alike.

 Brazilian Sunset Candid CCD 79703 Santamaria; Eddie E. J. Allen (t, flhn); Jimmy Cozier (as, bs, f); Craig Rivers (ts, f); Ricardo Gonzalez (p); Johnny Almendra Andreu (d, perc); Eddie Rodriguez (perc). 2/96.
Santamaria's 75th birthday was already behind him when this lovely, low-key record was made. The reprise of 'Watermelon Man' was a forgivable indulgence and 'Summertime' might well have been segued into 'Autumn Leaves', so thoroughly is the record suffused with a ripe nostalgia. Immaculately produced by Alan Bates and Mark Morganelli, it's flawless product, even if a long way removed from the excitement of the early years.

 Mucho Mongo: Soca Me Nice / Ole Ola Concord Jazz CCD 4999 Santamaria; Ray Vega (t, flhn); Bobby Porcelli (as, bs, f); Mitch Frohman (ts, f); Bob Quaranta (p); Johnny Almendra Andreu, Bobbi Cespedes, Claudia Gomez, Humberto Nengue Hernandez (perc); Angelo Mark Pagen (v). 5/88–5/89.
Reissued in 2001, Mucho Mongo is an attractive compilation of characteristic Santamaria material. A couple of pop songs, including the Beatles' 'Day Tripper', are included to leaven the diet of percussion-heavy Latin themes. As so often, there is very little material by Santamaria himself, though there is no mistaking whose personality dominates proceedings.

Also, in brief:

(*) Skin On Skin: The Mongo Santamaria Anthology, 1958–1995 /  Greatest Hits Rhino 75689 / Fantasy 24753. 58–95, 58–63.
SOS is a skilfully selected compilation that picks its way round existing anthologies. Hits rounds up Mongo's first records for Fantasy, up to the point when 'Watermelon Man' propelled him into the pop charts.

(*) Mongo Introduces La Lupe Milestone MCD 9210-2. 63.
The vocalist is an acquired taste. She features on half the tracks, leaving the rest to formulaic instrumentals which Santamaria fans will doubtless treasure.

 Afro-American Latin Columbia/Legacy 62220. 10/68, 3/69.
Shelved until 2000, a decision which, as widely noted on its eventual release, seemed to fly in the face of Carlos Santana's considerable chart success at the time with a commercial Latin hybrid.

 Espiritu Libre / Free Spririt MIL International 22. 85.
By-the-numbers Latin jazz with few signs of the great conguero at his best.

Bernardo Sassetti

PIANO

A Portuguese pianist who spent some time in London in the '90s and is familar to British audiences from his work in the Guy Barker group, Sassetti bases himself in Lisbon.

* Nocturno Clean Feed CF 008 Sassetti; Carlos Barretto (b); Alexandre Frazão (d). 7/02.

 Indigo Clean Feed CF 029 2CD Sassetti (p solo). 7/02, 9/03.
Sassetti's second release (the earlier is not currently available) is a beautiful and unexpectedly compelling record. The young pianist's work with Guy Barker alerted us to his fine touch and lovely melodic sense, but this set trumps all that material. After a rapt reading of 'A Time For Love' to commence matters, it works through seven originals and two pieces (one played twice) by Federico Mompou, each lit by the most luminous touch at the keyboard and enlivened by outstanding work from bassist and drummer. Listeners looking for something a bit more virile and swinging might deem the music to be a little on the light side but it's a measure of the group's working powers that these serene waters actually conceal some quite hard and purposeful musical thinking. Either way, a truly wonderful set from a label which usually specializes in much noisier music.

'Indigo is, for me, the colour of being alone with music.' These solo performances have a suitably twilit quality and the first of these discs is nicely framed by the title-piece, delivered in a thoughtful, romantic style that seems to draw on classical and Spanish models as much as on modern jazz. Among the originals, a few standard and repertory pieces are dotted about: Monk's 'Raise Four' and 'In Walked Bud', both notably original performances; also 'My Funny Valentine', 'My Ideal' and 'Never Let Me Go'. The set actually includes two albums on separate discs. Livre was recorded in July 2002 and it isn't clear why it didn't merit separate release. It off-balances this volume a little, except that one can very simply treat the two discs as entirely separate entities. The other album is dominated by a long, excerpted work, movement one of 'Musica Callada', which has some of Sassetti's best writing to date. There is a Monk cover again, 'Pannonica' and a lovely piece, 'Petit Pays', by Nando de Cruz.

* Unreal: Sidewalk Cartoon Clean Feed CF070 Sassetti; Sérgio Carolino (tba); Perico Sambeat (ss, as, f, fluteophone); José Lopes, José Massarão (as); Mário Marques (ts); Alberto Roque (bs); Rui Rosa (cl, bcl); Nuno Inácio (f); Angelina Rodrigues (f, picc); Jean-Michel Garetti (ob); António Augusto Aguiar (b); José Salgueiro (d); Miquel Bernat, Nuno Aroso, Pedro Oliveira, Rui Rodrigues, Francesco Aparisi, António Sérgio, João Cunha, João Tiago (perc). 12/05–10/06.
A hugely ambitious project that unites Sassetti's jazz-based work with his cinematic projects. It's a collaboration with percussion ensemble Drumming (GP), and on some tracks the Quarteto Saxofinia and Cromeleque Quinteto; the basic group is a fine but unorthodox sextet comprising reeds, flute, tuba, double bass and drums. Sassetti himself works at the keyboard and inside his Kawai Concert Grand and also plays marimba, glockenspiel, steel drums and gongs. The sound is rich, delicate, flowing and constantly inflected in new ways, all laid over a pattering, softly ringing accompaniment.

If jazz is largely concerned with line, trajectory and movement, this is much more like that contemporary cliché, an 'immersive' experience. Nothing clichéd about Sassetti's approach, though, and in the final analysis it is still essentially a jazz record. Sambeat's exquisite line on 'Conjuntivo Plural Do Iniciativo', which follows the abstract prologue, is reminiscent of some of Carlos Ward's spacious, folk-tinged solos. There's even a reading of Monk's 'Evidence', a stop/start interpretation that opens up the original metre and finds acres of new territory to explore. The closing 'Sidewalk Cartoons', which is listed separately to the main course of tracks and begins with what sounds like studio chatter, is almost a new-music piece, and testimony to the precision and careful integration of the ensemble. It's possible to fake an entry on a woodwind instrument, sliding in behind the beat, but quite impossible on percussion – either it's there or it's not.

The pianist's own finest moment comes on the lyrical 'I Left My Heart In Algandros De Baixo', a graceful ballad. Quite the finest work from Sassetti to date, this is music beyond category and, for us, pretty much beyond criticism. The pianist is also responsible for the booklet artwork, a mysterious collage which reflects the aesthetic of the music perfectly. A moving, involving experience.

Tom Saunders

CORNET, VOICE

A Wild Bill Davison disciple who recorded with his mentor on several occasions, he follows in that fiery tradition of hot cornet-playing.

 Call Of The Wild Arbors ARCD 19146 Saunders; Bill Allred (tb); Chuck Hedges (cl); Rick Fay (ts); Johnny Varro (p); Paul Keller (b); Warren Sauer (d). 4/95.

 Exactly Like You Nagel Heyer 023 Saunders; Dick Sudhalter (c, t, flhn); Bill Allred, Roy Williams (tb); Chuck Hedges (cl); Danny Moss (ts); John Barnes (bs, cl); Johnny Varro (p); Marty Grosz (g, v); Isla Eckinger (b); Butch Miles (d); Jeanie Lambe (v). 9/95.

Saunders calls his group the Wild Bill Davison Legacy Band, since much of their material pays tribute to the cornetist. The Arbors date is a studio session brimming with boisterous joie de vivre, running through (and over) some of Bill's favourite tunes, from 'Running Wild' to 'On The Alamo'. There's nothing fancy here, and the band have the chops and the know-how to keep it short of mere Dixieland blarney. Exactly Like You captures a concert from Hamburg in which the band was joined by guests Sudhalter, Williams, Barnes and Grosz for a run-through of some more Davison chestnuts (plus Grosz doing one of his Fats Waller numbers). This is a notch above the usual mainstream jam since most of the players are genuine virtuosos and there is some terrific playing on several of the tunes. 'Exactly Like You' is a strong feature for the reedmen, and the other horns take it in turns in the front line before an all-hands-on-deck finale. Lambe comes on only for, oddly enough, 'Milenberg Joys'. In a close call for individual honours, Allred just takes them ahead of Hedges, but acolytes of the genre will enjoy the whole show.

The Savoy Sultans

GROUP

Al Cooper was a modest saxophonist, but he led the very popular Savoy Sultans for many years, including a residency at New York's Savoy Ballroom from 1937 to 1946.

 Al Cooper's Savoy Sultans 1938–1941 Classics 728 Cooper; Pat Jenkins (t, v); Sam Massenberg (t); Rudy Williams (as); Ed McNeil, Sam Simmons, Irving 'Skinny' Brown, George Kelley (ts); Oliver Richardson, Cyril Haynes (p); Paul Chapman (g, v); Grachan Moncur (b); Alex 'Razz' Mitchell (d); Helen Procter, Evelyn White (v). 7/38–2/41.

The Sultans usually played opposite the Chick Webb band at Harlem's Savoy Ballroom, and visiting bands were wary of competing with them, since they were so popular with the dancers. The records are another matter: simple head arrangements, average solos and merely capable playing make one wonder why they were held in such high regard. However, playing through these 24 tracks, one can hear some of the simple appeal of what wasn't really a big band but a small, mobile, flexible unit which covered whatever base the customers wanted. Pat Jenkins is the best soloist.

Martin Schack born 1975

PIANO

Talented keyboard man with vigorous compositional style.

 Headin' Home Storyville STCD 1014253 Schack; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); John Ellis (ss, ts); Joshua Ginsburg (b); Niclas Campagano (d). 02.

Martin showcases some of his subtle compositions on his debut set. 'The City' is a bustling opening shot, an evocation of New York that doesn't rely on spurious sound-effects. 'Keep Them Chords Comin'' is a clever, convoluted idea, apparently inspired by a comment of Dave Liebman's and written for him and Hal Galper, though taken very confidently here by Ellis and the composer. The obvious plus of the album, leaving aside Schack's own undoubted competence, is the guest appearance of Tom Harrell on four tracks. The best of these is the handsome 'Dedication To Tom Harrell', which gives all the soloists plenty to work on. 'Headin' Home' itself is less engaging, and there are dead spots on 'To Elvin And Cleve', a dedication to the great drummer and one of his talented pupils, Cleve Pozar. Lots to mull over and lots to enjoy on this niftily produced first chapter in what promises to be an interesting career.

Andy Scherrer

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Swiss-born member of the Vienna Art Orchestra, big-toned and an agile improviser.

 Second Step / (*) Remember Mal Waldron TCB 20352 / 24202 Scherrer; William Evans (p); Isla Eckinger (b); Dre Pallemaerts (d). 3/00; 12/03.

 Serenity: A Tribute To Joe Henderson Unit UTR 4157 Scherrer; Matthieu Michel (t, flhn); Jean-Paul Brodbeck (p); Fabian Gisley (b); Dominic Egli (d). 9/03.

Scherrer's solo forays within the VAO were enough to suggest that he was a Coltrane-influenced saxophonist with more than a little to say on his own account. The earlier TCB introduces a group that only begins to shine on the Waldron tribute, but it is an impressive showing all the same. Evans is the only American in the line-up and plays like any number of Midwest pianists. Even so, he's the heart of this outfit, whose features are always well-shaped and elegantly executed. He might be expected to shine on Remember and wisely doesn't attempt to imitate or pastiche Mal's dark broodings. His playing on 'The Seagulls Of Kristiansund' is immaculate.

Eckinger was part of Waldron's group for a while and will be remembered from the inaugural ECM disc Free At Last. He brings a special warmth to 'Blood And Guts' and 'Duquility', a quality that nicely balances Pallemaerts's slightly dry, old-fashioned approach.

Scherrer himself probably fares better on the first album, which features two of his own compositions alongside tunes by Eckinger and the standard 'Stardust'. In sound and approach, he might be a minor Blue Note artist of the early '60s, but none the worse for that.

The tribute to Joe Henderson might be characterized as respectful hubris. It's a good band, if a little correct and proper, but 'Gazelle' and 'If You're Not Part of the Solution ...' have some interesting things going for them.

Alexander von Schlippenbach

(born 1938)

PIANO, TRUMPET

The founder of the vast collective Globe Unity was born in Berlin and studied music there under the composer Bernd Aloïs Zimmermann. He played with trumpeter Manfred Schoof and recorded extensively with other improvisers. The Schlippenbach Trio has been making music for nearly 30 years, though Globe Unity now seems to be in abeyance. Schlippenbach is percussive and intense, but also aware of structure and responsive to traditional jazz piano as well as free music.

 The Living Music Atavistic/Unheard Music Series UMS/ALP231 Schlippenbach; Manfred Schoof (t); Paul Rutherford (tb); Peter Brötzmann (ts); Michel Pilz (cl); Buschi Niebergall (b); Han Bennink (d). 4/69.

Schlippenbach's clean, atonal lines are far more reminiscent of Thelonious Monk than of Cecil Taylor, the figure who is usually adduced as ancestor for this kind of free music. By 1970 Schlippenbach had to some extent turned away from total abstraction and was showing an interest not only in formal compositional principles (serialism, orthodox sonata form, aspects of ricercare) but also in renewing his own initial contact with early and modern jazz, blues and boogie-woogie. These interests were still obvious even underneath the radical freedoms of his influential collective Globe Unity Orchestra. They became much clearer in his work with the later Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra, in which he uses the conventionally swinging drummer Ed Thigpen and trumpeter Benny Bailey among the free men. Schlippenbach's conception of freedom has nearly always resulted in densely layered explorations of tonality, with a pronounced rhythmic slant. It's this that renders him surprisingly accessible as a performer.

Recorded in April 1969 and initially released on his own Quasar label, The Living Music is an important manifesto that lent its name to the influential Free Music Production label's inaugural workshop the following year. The session was taped on the same day as Peter Brötzmann's superb Nipples and the saxophonist is a dominant presence on this disc as well, though comparatively restrained in the context of Schlippenbach's deceptively cool and well-behaved formations. The recording is about on par for the time, which means not much separation and not much detail in the busier sections. An important document, none the less.

(*) Live 1976/77 FMP CD 111 Schlippenbach; Sven-Åke Johansson (b). 4/76–11/77.

* Smoke FMP CD 23 Schlippenbach; Sunny Murray (d). 10/89.

The partnership with Johansson is a long-standing one and this reissue fillets highlights from the LPs Live At The Quartier Latin and Kung Bore. Schlippenbach asserts his own ideas on the tradition in a comprehensive (if ultimately affectionate) deconstruction of two Monk tunes, but mostly this is a rushing music filled with lightning juxtapositions and rapidly evolved pieces that confound normal ideas about development. Johansson's singing on the final track is something which has occupied him more frequently in recent years, to the dismay of some.

Despite being tossed with insulting casualness into that overstuffed category, Schlippenbach is a very different kind of player from Taylor. By the same token, Sunny Murray is a very different kind of player now from what he was when he played with Taylor back in 1960. Smoke is an intriguing collaboration, in which both men hang up their 'free music' armour and get down to what sounds like a set of phantom standards. There are a dozen or more teasing echoes, more elusive than allusive, but only one outwardly identifiable theme, Monk's 'Trinkle Tinkle'. Beautifully recorded and superbly played, it warms slowly from a rather misterioso opening. Only on 'Down The Mission' does the Taylor parallel make complete sense. Elsewhere, Monk and even Herbie Nichols seem more valid points of reference. Murray's 'Angel Voice' uses material that he has developed over two decades; cymbal overtones create an illusion of choral effects, studded by tight accents and the familiar polydirectional lines.

♛ * Pakistani Pomade Atavistic 240 Schlippenbach; Evan Parker (ss, ts); Paul Lovens (d). 11/72.

(*) Hunting The Snake Atavistic Unheard Music Series 213 As above, except add Peter Kowald (b). 9/75.

* Elf Bagatellen / (*) Physics FMP CD 27 / 50 As above, except omit Kowald. 5/90; 6/91.

The Schlippenbach Trio with Parker and Lovens has been one of the most lasting and creative associations in European free jazz. Schlippenbach's catalogue has slumped with the disappearance of FMP's vinyl catalogue; two other great records, Detto Fra Di Noi and Das Höhe Lied, were released on Paul Lovens's small Po Torch label, which may now be difficult to find, and have not been on CD. The magnificent Pakistani Pomade, garlanded with top rating in our first edition, was missing in action for some time, but has now been reissued on John Corbett's invaluable Atavistic imprint. 'A Little Yellow (And Two Seconds Monk)' lays out ideas that Schlippenbach, and Parker too, would be exploring for much of the next 30 years. It's a formidable exercise and one of the best things on the record. The reissue includes outtakes which aren't revelatory in themselves, but help to build a clearer picture of how this vintage group operated and still occasionally operates.

Hunting The Snake admits a previously unheard broadcast, with an extra presence in Kowald's bass. It has a carefree, even slightly humorous (or just well-humoured) quality, at least more so than some of the trio's most intense recordings, and having Kowald on board certainly varies the pace. Elf Bagatellen almost merits Pakistani Pomade's crown, not just for its markedly improved sound, but also for the sheer untrifling intensity of the trio's performances. Like the earlier record, this is a studio performance rather than a live set, and it acts as a very conscious summation of the trio's near two-decade career. It is, inevitably, rather more predetermined than a more spontaneous performance, and there are shards of melody scattered throughout. 'Sun-Luck: Revisited' refers to 'Sun-Luck Night-Rain', one of the finest pieces on the 1972 album, while 'Yarak: Reforged' provides a similar gloss on a piece from Payan, a rare recording for a label other than FMP, in this case Enja. Parker and Lovens have rarely played better together, and if Schlippenbach seems a trifle mild-mannered in places, the richness of the sound more than compensates for a slight drop in pulse-rate. Tremendous stuff.

The more recent Physics by the same trio doesn't quite rise to the heights of its predecessors, but it is a dramatic performance all the same. Taped at the 1991 free-music workshops at the Akademie der Künste in Berlin, it has a freewheeling, exploratory quality which is one of the graces of European improvised music. Schlippenbach structures 'The Coefficient Of Linear Expansion' with magisterial control. At nearly 45 minutes, it has the compression and exactitude of a piece one-tenth that length, and yet it seems to imply all sorts of realities that lie outside the confines of the work.

(*) The Morlocks FMP CD 61 Schlippenbach; Henry Lowther, Thomas Heberer, Axel Dörner (t); Jörg Huke, Marc Boukouya, Sören Fischer (tb); Ute Zimmermann (btb); Tilmann Dehnhard (ts, f, picc); Darcy Hepner (as); Evan Parker (ts, ss); Walter Gauchel (ts); Claas Willecke (bs, f); Aki Takase (p); Nobuyoshi Ino (b); Paul Lovens (d, perc). 7/93.

This is perhaps more strictly a Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra record, but since it consists entirely of Schlippenbach pieces and bears his signature all over it, there is some justification for covering it here. Unlike many of his contemporaries, Schlippenbach has never let go of the term 'free jazz', and it is interesting to compare the harmonic language of many of the pieces here – not least the opening dedication to his companion, Aki Takase – with the work of Ornette Coleman. There are moments in 'The Morlocks' itself when he seems to be playing with the parameters of pitch, duration and attack in a way that is very similar to Ornette's. Elsewhere, as on 'Rigaudon Nr. 2 Aus Der Wasserstoffmusik', he uses graphic scores and a much more gestural approach that now sounds slightly old-fashioned. On the magnificent 'Marcia Di Saturno', though, he constructs a dense landscape that is much closer to the neo-tonality of his American contemporaries; bassist Nobuyoshi Ino introduces it with a brooding grace before saxophonist Gauchel develops the difficult central elements. This record establishes Schlippenbach much more clearly as a composer. It is worth comparing its language to that of the London Jazz Composers' Orchestra under Barry Guy, which is simultaneously more abstract but also more orthodoxly jazz-centred.

(*) Complete Combustion FMP CD 106 Schlippenbach; Evan Parker (ss, ts); Paul Lovens (d, perc). 4/98.

The Schlippenbach Trio is still the best response to the rather trite suggestion that the only improvised music that 'really' works comes as a result of chance encounters. In point of fact, the trio has recorded very rarely down the years, but the players' familiarity and understanding is a key element in the process of creation. To suggest that the relationship is telepathic is to multiply concepts unnecessarily and to drift into the metaphysical. As this remarkable live recording underlines, the real key is dialectic, a testing and synthesis of ideas in the crucible of live performance. Having dabbled with something close to Webernian organization on Elf Bagatellen, the group has gone back to its former freedom but with a new dynamic implicit in Evan Parker's opening and the slow involvement of the other players. The ability of individual players to drop back and listen, to maintain silence and wise counsel has always been one of the group's great strengths. It is evident here on 'Complete Combustion', less so on 'Fuels 1–7', a sequence of shorter pieces that explore other areas of the group's shared language. Taken together, and lest anyone doubt its vitality, they reaffirm the creative energy of free music.

* Digger's Harvest FMP CD 013 Schlippenbach; Tony Oxley (d). 11/98.

Fascinating to compare this with the Schlippenbach–Murray duo that made Smoke a decade before. All but the first and last tracks are very short and highly focused. The titles are drawn from the names of poisonous plants, and there is a sharp and sometimes toxic edge to these improvisations. Oxley is the dominant presence almost throughout, not because he filibusters a more prominent place than his playing partner but quite simply because what he plays is more immediately compelling. Yet Schlippenbach is worth listening to with some care as well. His phrasing on 'Digger's Harvest' and on a couple of the short tracks is quite without precedent in this music: taut, elegant and persuasive without undue rhetoric. A fine record, whoever you buy it for.

[illegible]

* Swinging The Bim

FMP CD 114/5 2CD Schlippenbach; Evan Parker (ts, ss); Paul Lovens (d, saw). 11/98.

Evan Parker's sleeve-note touches on a number of pertinent issues. How can such a long-standing group retain its creative life? How much is new? His counter-assertion is 'that the unknown can only be approached from the known', which is, broadly speaking, what happens on these two sets from Amsterdam's BIM-Huis. We might add that searching for new things to 'say' about such music can often be nearly as frustrating and demanding as the playing of it. So: across two substantial sets, the trio certainly swung the Bim.

(*) Broomriding Psi 03.05 Schlippenbach; Rudi Mahall (bcl); Tristan Honsinger (clo); Paul Lovens (perc). 02.

The presence of material by Eric Dolphy should be no surprise given the instrumentation and at moments this recalls nothing more than a freer and more classically aligned version of Dolphy's work with bassist/cellist Ron Carter. Mahal's bass clarinet is better recorded than Eric could ever have dreamed of and this release on Evan Parker's own label (aided by the redoubtable Martin Davidson of Emanem) is immaculately recorded and mastered, allowing every delicate inflection of piano, cello and percussion to come through as well. An album to savour slowly.

♛ * Monk's Casino Intakt CD 100 3CD Schlippenbach; Axel Dörner (t); Rudi Mahall (bcl); Aki Takase (toy p); Jan Roder (b); Uli Jennessen (d). 6/03, 2/04.

An extraordinary project, executed with vision, humour and considerable intelligence. Schlippenbach had long been fascinated by Thelonious Monk: he featured 'Trinkle Tinkle' on Smoke with Sunny Murray, who joined him again on tour in 1996 for some all-Monk programmes. First conceived in that same year, Monk's Casino was an attempt to go further still and arrange the great pianist and composer's work for a single, whole-evening performance. The idea came to fruition two years later, when Norddeutsche Rundfunk broadcast the work entire. Festival and club appearances followed, including a rendition at A-Trane in Berlin, from which these recordings are taken.

In his liner-note, John Corbett makes a wise distinction between a songbook and an oeuvre. Monk's tunes (or at least the better-known ones) have been a resource for jazz improvisers for 50 years and more. This, though, represents a different take: Monk's music as a highly flexible singularity, articulate in the original sense, and with its own internal motions and logic. How freely Schlippenbach has interpreted the music can be heard in a long, abstract introduction to 'Bemsha Swing' on the first CD, three and a half minutes dominated by Dörner's microscopic trumpet. Just a couple of tracks earlier, 'Stuffy Turkey' had been despatched in just 44 seconds. This is very much the pattern for the set. Some pieces are explored at some length – 'Misterioso'/'Sixteen'/'Skippy' the longest at just over ten minutes – while others ('Raise Four', 'Light Blue', 'Ruby, My Dear' and 'Bye-Ya') get less than 60 seconds.

The instrumentation is pared down to the minimum necessary to get the music across, much as on Monk's own records. The only exceptions are the medley of 'Japanese Folk Song', 'Children's Song' and 'Blue Monk', on which Schlippenbach plays trumpet and Dörner the piano; that and 'A Merrier Christmas', on which Aki Takase plays toy piano. Jennessen's lightly swinging drums are the key element, often left to sound out a cadence while the other instruments lay out for a bar or two. Stylistically, the arrangements range from near-pastiche to the outside treatment of 'Evidence'.

A modern masterpiece, nothing more or less, and not merely of interest to Monk fans. This is a project that asks deep questions about the nature of jazz composition, the identity and persistence of an artist's entire body of work, and what makes a 'standard'. Monk's Casino is essential listening.

(*) Vesuvius Slam CD 262 Schlippenbach; Paul Dunmall (ts); Paul Rogers (b); Tony Bianco (d). 10/04.

This is fire music of a certain sort. 'In the depths of the volcano lived the salamanders who guarded the leviathan': two long pieces that emerge from the heat ever more burnished and strong, but which yet conceal underground secrets. Schlippenbach has rarely played more intensely or more enigmatically. By contrast, Dunmall's tendency to bluster is kept in check; sticking to tenor suits him. Bianco has become an important presence on the British scene. This would have been an automatic gig for Tony Levin at one time, but the other Tony fills his shoes more than capably. Rogers deploys his 7-string bass to the absolute full, a rich, rolling sound that frequently plays off the piano harmonics. Jon Wilkinson gets a superb sound from the quartet.

 Piano Solo: Twelve Tone Tales – Volumes 1 & 2 Intakt CD 115 / 116 Schlippenbach (p solo). 6/05.

There is, of course, nothing new in using dodecaphonic techniques to generate jazz themes. Elements of the practice can be found everywhere, and arguably in the work of Monk and Dolphy, both of whom are covered towards the end of Volume 2. For the most part, though, these are Schlippenbach's own compositions, each of them using the now canonical 'serialist' techniques of inversion and retrograde inversion. Potentially dull stuff in whatever playing medium, but it's what Schlippenbach does with these slight ideas that is so impressive. He adds chordal values, slippages of rhythm here and there in the improvised passages in such a way as to invest potentially abstract music with considerable light, warmth and feeling. A title like 'All Jazz Is Free' sounds a certain clarion. He might as well have called another track 'All Music Is Twelve-Tone', and in a reading of Jerome Kern's 'All The Things You Are' demonstrates that his technique here, tucked away among pieces by those modernist masters mentioned above, is no different to anything in his past work. By way of tribute, he also includes a short arrangement of his former teacher Bernd Aloïs Zimmermann's 'Allegro agitato'. It would be difficult to guess the provenance. This is jazz piano of the very highest order, impeccably recorded, swinging, potent, as entertaining as it is challenging.

 Winterreise Psi 06.10 Schlippenbach; Evan Parker (ts); Paul Lovens (d, perc). 12/04, 12/05.

Evan Parker's liner-note to Swinging The Bim, recorded the better part of a decade earlier than these sessions from the Loft in Cologne, raised the question of creative longevity in an improvising group of this kind. It's useful to bear his comments in mind when approaching Winterreise. This time, it's Schlippenbach who contributes some comments and they are mostly wry and stoical. Listening to the music, one cannot question the group's commitment, intensity or continuity of purpose, but there is something dark and occluded about these two performances, which were taped a year apart. It has nothing to do with Parker's decision to concentrate on tenor, and it has nothing to do with any programmatic connection to Schubert's bleak, elegiac song-cycle. Quite simply, what is wrong here is that the group's undoubted empathy seems to have turned inward. Neither piece communicates much and not, to paraphrase Parker's earlier comments again, because they have moved from the known to the unknown. On the contrary, Winterreise seems embedded in a now relatively familiar discourse. All this said, it's still an infinitely more exciting and interesting record than the majority of contemporary releases, but compared to the group's finest recordings a flat disappointment.

Also, in brief:

 Hamburg '74 Atavistic 248. 11/74.

Fine Globe Unity concert featuring two works by Schlippenbach and Manfred Schoof respectively.

 Light Blue: Schlippenbach Plays Monk Enja 9104. 10/96.

Eclipsed by Monk's Casino, but still fascinating. Fourteen trio cuts with Ino Nobuyoshi (b) and Sunny Murray (d).

* Open Speech Forward 03. 7/03.

Duos with Portuguese flautist Carlos Bechegas, recorded on tour in France. Schlippenbach sleepwalks, as well he might.

Larry Schneider (born 1950)

TENOR, ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Born in New York, he came up as one of the post-bop tenors of the '70s, but decamped to San Francisco, where the weather is better for his other passion, tennis.

() Just Cole Porter / () Blind Date Steeplechase SCCD 31291 / 31317 Schneider; Andy LaVerne (p); Mike Richmond (b); Keith Copeland (d). 8/91; 4/92.

Schneider has played a sideman role in many situations, and these albums commence a belated recognition of an accomplished saxophonist. He's emblematic of a generation of hard-bop tenor-players who came of age in the '70s, before the fashionable new interest in the form, which leaves his playing untainted by technical strivings and nicely weathered by his experience. The album of Cole Porter tunes is close to being a definitive gallery of standards, with Schneider in riveting voice on 'What Is This Thing Called Love?', knowingly tender on 'Every Time We Say Goodbye'. Blind Date brings the quartet together again on four standards, two originals by LaVerne and Charles Mingus's 'Peggy's Blue Skylight'. Schneider likes long improvisations and, more often than not, makes them work. The best solos here, such as the grand, sprawling oratory on the title-tune and the flaring urgency that grows out of 'Autumn Leaves', are usefully anchored by a rhythm section that hears him very clearly, with LaVerne a comparably mature voice.

 Ali Girl Steeplechase SCCD 31429 Schneider; Alexander Sipiagin (flhn); Dave Stryker (g); Jay Anderson (b); Billy Drummond (d). 9/97.

 Ornettology Steeplechase SCCD 31461 Schneider; Scott Wendholt (t); Mike Richmond (b); Billy Drummond (d). 4/98.

Back after a break, Schneider delivers something of a hotchpotch date. Four of the six tunes are done on soprano, on which he again suggests a Konitzian bent: try the first chorus of his solo on 'I'm Old Fashioned'. The tracks extend into long, somewhat rambling excursions, with good work by all hands, but without cutting a deep impression. The next features eight Ornette Coleman tunes, making an interesting pendant to the Charlie Parker record, although this doesn't convince as something that Schneider had any pressing need to record. If anything, the quartet take a rather glib and unruffled path through the likes of 'The Disguise' and 'When Will The Blues Leave'. Energetic playing and creative improvising.

(*) Summertime In San Remo Splasc(h) 809-2 Schneider; Andrea Dulbecco (vib); Sandro Gibellini (vib); Dodo Goya (b); John Arnold (d). 8/97.

(*) Lemon Lips Splasc(h) 833-2 Schneider; Gaspare Di Lieto (p); Dario Deidda (b); Amedeo Ariano (d). 8/00.

Italian air seems to do Schneider some good. Both of these are very satisfying. He plays tenor in San Remo, mostly soprano in Salerno (Lemon Lips, recorded live). The softer mix of the quintet session suits a band where Dulbecco's vibes drift hazily around the edges, although Schneider's favourite Parker blues 'Mohawk' gets a tenor treatment as intense as any he's done. More typical, perhaps, is an almost louche passage through 'You Don't Know What Love Is'. The quartet date is played fast and hard, Schneider's soprano tone full-bodied and convincing, and Di Lieto gets in plenty of stuff of his own.

 It Might As Well Be Spring Steeplechase SCCD 31549 Schneider; Andy LaVerne (p); Mike Richmond (b); Adam Nussbaum (d). 03.

The run continues: uncontroversial, utterly professional, never less than enjoyable, but increasingly difficult to make qualitative differences between these records. This wouldn't be top of our list, but it's Larry's first for a couple of years and so welcome to his fans. There's a fascinating, eleven-minute Bartok arrangement which will intrigue newcomers. The originals are mostly quite workmanlike.

Also, in brief:

 Bill Evans ... Person We Knew /  Mohawk Steeplechase SCCD 31307 / Steeplechase SCCD 31347. 3/92; N. D.

A couple of concept albums. Schneider and LaVerne duet on the Evans legacy with considerable potency while Mohawk tackles nine Charlie Parker tunes, and Schneider turns to the alto for the whole date.

 Jazz Steeplechase SCCD 31505. 3/01.

A bit cheeky using a title like that, but it's jazz all right, not so pure, not so simple, even if the band and chosen material may strike some as entirely generic.

Maria Schneider (born 1960)

COMPOSER, ARRANGER, BANDLEADER

After lessons from Bob Brookmeyer and a stint as assistant to Gil Evans, the lady from Windom, Minnesota, had the best possible grounding in big-band jazz – and yet setting out on her own, as she did in 1989, was brave in the extreme, but a Monday-night residency at Visiones in New York gave her a platform.

 Evanescence Enja ENJ 8048-2 Schneider; Laurie Frink, Greg Gisbert, Tim Hagans, Tony Kadleck (t); Larry Farrell, John Fedchock, George Flynn, Keith O'Quinn (tb); Rick Margitza (ts); Rich Perry (ts, f); Mark Vinci (picc, f, cl); Tim Ries (ss, f, cl); Scott Robinson (bsx, bcl); Bill Hayes (flexatone); Kenny Werner (p); Jay Monder (g); Jay Anderson (b); Dennis Mackrel (d); Emedin Rivera (perc). 10/92.

(*) Coming About Enja ENJ 9069-2 As above, except omit Anderson, Hayes, Mackrel, Rivera; add Rock Ciccarone (tb); Charles Pillow (eng hn, cl); Frank Kimbrough (p); Tony Scherr (b); Tim Horner (d). 11/95.

 Allegresse Enja 3306 Schneider; Dave Ballou, Laurie Frink, Greg Gisbert, Ingrid Jensen (t, flhn); Tony Kadleck (t, picc-t, flhn); Rocky Ciccarone, Larry Farrell, Keith O'Quinn (tb); George Flynn (btb, tba); Rick Margitza (ss, ts, f); Tim Ries (ss, cl, t, picc-t, flhn); Charles Pillow (ss, as, ts, cl, picc, f, ob, eng hn); Rich Perry (ts, f); Scott Robinson (bs, bsx, cl, bcl, af); Frank Kimbrough (p); Ben Monder (g); Tony Scherr (b); Tim Horner (d); Jeff Ballard (perc). 7/00.

Schneider's characteristic voice is closer to her teacher Brookmeyer's than to the more obvious Svengali, a rich fabric of sound that is alert to nuance but still capable of great power. Her use of a relatively straightforward rhythm section belies the sophistication of the metre, and often the horns are playing improbable counts over a basic 4/4. Schneider was blessed from the very start by a team of time-served craftsmen with enough musical individuality to temper the slightly too accurate placing of the charts.

By the time the second album appeared – and this may be implicit in the title – Schneider had the confidence to turn her vessel into the wind and let it go. Her suite 'Scenes From Childhood' is largely written and works well on its own terms, but it is tracks like 'Love Theme From Spartacus', and 'Giant Steps' which really show her mettle.

You'd be forgiven for thinking that Allegresse was a Brookmeyer set, except that there's a freedom and romantic abandon in tunes like 'Hang Gliding' which aren't part of the trombonist's bag. The arrangements here manage to sound both crisply accurate and open-ended, putting more and more weight on the personality of the soloists, almost as if she has been studying classic-period Ellington and emulating his wonderful balance of authoritarianism and laissez-faire. 'Nocturne', the very long, suite-like 'Dissolution' and 'Sea Of Tranquility' are all impressive new charts.

CORE COLLECTION

* Concert In The Garden

Artist Share 5734 Schneider; Laurie Frink, Tony Kadleck, Greg Gisbert, Ingrid Jensen (t, flhn); Keith O'Quinn, Rocky Ciccarone, Larry Farrell, Pete McGuinness (tb); George Flynn (btb, cbtb); Rich Perry, Scott Robinson, Tim Ries, Charles Pillow, Donny McCaslin, Andy Middleton (reeds); Frank Kimbrough (p); Ben Monder (g); Gary Versace (acc); Jay Anderson (b); Clarence Penn (d); Jeff Ballard, Gonzalo Grau (perc); Luciana Souza (v). 7/04.

This is the great achievement of her career so far, a flowing, sometimes enigmatic, more often uplifting set that finally brings together all of Schneider's strengths. A Grammy win helped put the seal on things. The closing 'Buleria, Sole Y

Rumba' is the most obvious acknowledgement of all she learned from Gil Evans, but the 'Three Romances' which make up the middle of the record, with wonderful wordless vocalizing from Luciana Souza, are remarkable too. The only slight disappointment is the long opening title-track, which meanders, though Monder, Kimbrough and Versace trace a lovely path through it. Jensen's 'Pas De Deux' with Pillow is another highlight while McCaslin and Gisbert star on that amazing final track. A contemporary masterpiece.

* Sky Blue ArtistShare 7065 Schneider; Jason Carder, Laurie Frink, Ingrid Jensen, Tony Kadleck (t, flhn); Marshall Gilkes, Ryan Keberle, Keith O'Quinn (tb); George Flynn (btb, cbtb); Steve Wilson (ss, as, cl, f, af); Charles Pillow (as, cl, f, af, bf, picc); Donny McCaslin (ts, cl); Rich Perry (ts, f); Scott Robinson (bs, cl, bcl); Frank Kimbrough (p); Ben Monder (g); Gary Versace (acc); Jay Anderson (b); Clarence Penn (d); Gonzalo Grau (perc); Luciana Souza (v). 1/07.

By now, Schneider seems a Grammy regular, though popular acclaim hasn't in any way blunted her genius as a composer. This is another great record, and perhaps the first that shows virtually no fossil trace of her influences. 'Cerulean Skies' has a glorious role for bird-song, undertaken by members of the ensemble, and there are fine solo spots for McCaslin, Versace and Pillow. Jensen is featured (with electronics) on 'The 'Pretty' Road', one of the finest compositions in Schneider's book, while Wilson's soprano cuts a con-trail across 'Sky Blue'. The ensembles are arranged with precision, but with enough latitude to let the music breathe. If, in retrospect, some of Schneider's earlier work has erred on the side of deliberation, this is her most romantically expressive album so far. Contemporary big-band playing of the highest order. A work of lasting greatness seems only just round the corner.

Rob Schneiderman (born 1957)

PIANO

Born in Boston, Schneiderman grew up in California and moved to New York in 1982, influenced by old-school beboppers. He also has a doctorate in mathematics and teaches the subject at Berkeley.

(*) New Outlook Reservoir RSR 106 Schneiderman; Slide Hampton (tb); Rufus Reid (b); Akira Tana (d). 1/88.
 Smooth Sailing Reservoir RSR 114 As above, except omit Hampton, Tana; add Billy Higgins (d). 2/90.
 Radio Waves Reservoir RSR 120 Schneiderman; Brian Lynch (t); Ralph Moore (ts); Gary Smulyan (bs); Todd Coolman (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 5/91.
 Standards Reservoir RSR 126 Schneiderman; Rufus Reid (b); Ben Riley (d). 3–8/92.
 Dark Blue Reservoir RSR 132 Schneiderman; Brian Lynch (t); Ralph Moore (ss, ts); Peter Washington (b); Lewis Nash (d). 5/94.
(*) Keepin' In The Groove Reservoir RSR 144 Schneiderman; Rufus Reid (b); Akira Tana (d). 1/96.
(*) Dancing In The Dark Reservoir RSR 152 Schneiderman; Brian Lynch (t); Gary Smulyan (bs); Rufus Reid (b); Billy Hart (d). 5/97.
(*) Edgewise Reservoir RSR 165 Schneiderman; Ray Drummond (b); Winard Harper (d). 7/00.
(*) Back In Town Reservoir RSR 178 Schneiderman; Boris Kozlov (b); Jonathan Blake (d). 1/04.

'Beautiful and abstract and I'm curious about it.' Rob Schneiderman was talking about mathematics – more specifically his specialist subject of Low Dimensional Topology, not much investigated by jazz musicians – and making the comparison with music. A Reservoir loyalist (they've also been good to him), he hasn't quite delivered a masterwork yet, but all these records offer a genuine kind of modern bop that can be very satisfying. Slide Hampton was an unusual choice as the sole horn on New Outlook, and his mild-mannered fluency suits Schneiderman's approach perhaps a little too well: the music tends to settle down into blandishments of the kind that have been committed to record many times before. Despite a couple of interesting ideas, such as the prickly waltz tempo chosen for Alec Wilder's 'While We're Young', the music never quite lifts off the ground. Maybe the pianist just prefers the kind of knowing, grooving accompaniment that's second nature to Reid and Higgins, because they all sound much happier on Smooth Sailing, a blithe mix of standards and new tunes.

Good spirits also prevail on the next date, with three horns in the front line. Lynch is a little overwhelmed by the beguiling Moore and the big, tough sound of Smulyan's baritone, but Schneiderman resolves any difficulties with intelligent if sketchy arrangements. But then it's back to the trio for the rather aristocratic treatment of Standards, in which Schneiderman gives up on his own writing for a day at least. Riley is such a wily drummer – very different from Higgins – that he's often barely there, but it suits the occasion. Schneiderman plays interesting things, as he does on all these records, without making one think that it's of great consequence. Dark Blue is soundly professional without generating much excitement, and the preponderance of themes based on blues doesn't lift it far enough out of routine; Lynch and Moore, though, guarantee good value. A beguiling 'People Will Say We're In Love' is the highlight.

The next two are a point ahead. Nothing extraordinary about Keepin' In The Groove, with only one original among a clever choice of jazz tunes, but it's played with such enjoyment that the feel is infectious. Reid and Tana are a winning team – hear the drummer's wonderful brushwork on 'Four' and 'Bebop' – and they light up a trio music which Schneiderman refuses to clutter with awkward lines or mere verbosity. The good form carries on into Dancing In The Dark. The horns make an impeccable duo, and Lynch is at his best – catch his fabulous solo on 'Broken Dreams'. Smulyan doesn't miss out, and Schneiderman brought some of his best writing to the date in 'Broken Dreams', 'Oval Essence' and 'Late Breakthrough'.

Edgewise and Back In Town are both beauties. The trio is surely Schneiderman's best setting – he likes grooving situations, with enough space to develop an argument, and is a man for the co-operative art. Although he'd never before recorded with Drummond or Harper, the threesome sounds happy and in accord. Bud Powell is one of the major texts here: there are three Powell originals, plus Monk's 'In Walked Bud', and the Oscar Pettiford line which Powell loved to play, 'Blues In The Closet', as well as an original by the leader called 'Bud Powell Boulevard'. Yet Schneiderman is as unlike Powell as it's possible to be: a calm logician, with his feelings mostly under wraps, he makes the likes of 'Cleopatra's Dream' into rational vehicles. But that only helps to expose the calibre of the composer's inspiration. On 'Just One Of Those Things', taken at a fast pace, he's still able to expose all the detail of his improvising while carrying us along with the flow. On Back In Town he interrogates 'Never Let Me Go' and 'Chega De Saudade' with considerable melodic invention. The result is a lucid and absorbing essay on bebop as a contemporary language.

David Schnitter (born 1948)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

The forgotten Messenger. His characteristic sound is a dry mix of Dexter Gordon and early John Coltrane, but with a hint of Ornette Coleman as well.

* Sketch Sunnyside 4701 Schnitter; James Zollar (t); Thomas Bramerie (b); Jimmy Madison (d). 2/01.

Dave recorded with the Jazz Messengers in 1977, in a group that included Valery Ponomarev, Curtis Fuller and Bobby Watson; not a vintage line-up, arguably, but unjustly overlooked. He has recorded little under his own name, but this is a revelation. By no means routine or orthodox hard bop, it's a set marked by remarkable eclecticism, taking in everything from early jazz to hard bop. 'Dili Dali' and 'Flirtation With Faust' show what a quirky imagination he brings to bear. The almost minimalist solo on the first of these tracks comes out of the briefest ensemble with Zollar (who contributes 'Sputnik' later) and develops rather slowly and enigmatically. There's no free jazz as such on the set, but Schnitter's phrasing is often skewed in that direction.

Manfred Schoof (born 1936)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

A key figure on the European free scene, he played with Gunter Hampel and the George Russell Orchestra, as well as less structured formations.

 European Echoes Atavistic/Unheard Music Series ALP232 Schoof; Enrico Rava, Hugh Steinmetz (t); Paul Rutherford (tb); Peter Brötzmann, Gerd Dudek, Evan Parker (ss, ts); Fred Van Hove, Alexander von Schlippenbach, Irène Schweizer (p); Derek Bailey (g); Arjen Gorter, Peter Kowald, Buschi Niebergall (b); Han Bennink, Pierre Favre (d). 6/69.

Important as it was in the development of European free music, this first record to be released on the Free Music Production label makes uncomfortable listening. The larger ensembles come across as undifferentiated blocks of sound from which individual contributions are hard to separate. Given Schoof's orchestral style – a hybrid of Richard Strauss and Karlheinz Stockhausen – this may be a description rather than a criticism. There are moments of great beauty, as when Derek Bailey uses his swell pedal to mimic an entire orchestral section or when Schlippenbach, Fred Van Hove and Irène Schweizer play a seemingly scored section towards the end of what was the first LP side, a passage that anticipates some of Barry Guy's later work with Schweizer and the London Jazz Composers' Orchestra. But a difficult and challenging listen all the same and one that will appeal more to initiates of European free than to a casual listener.

Ed Schuller

DOUBLE BASS

Son of Gunter Schuller and at one time a prolific recording artist.

 To Know Where One Is GM 3019 Schuller; Gary Valente (tb); Joe Lovano (ts); Bill Bickford (g); Billy Hart (d). 9/95.

 One Song GM 3047 Schuller (b solo). 7/96–1/01.

Schuller's records for Tutu have had only uncertain circulation of late, leaving this fine, brawling date for GM, and the attractive solo album. On the group record, 'Chazz' is an obvious tribute to main influence Mingus, while other tracks seem to acknowledge the importance of Thelonious Monk. The closing 'Now It Can Be Told' is perhaps Ed's best showing on one of his own dates. The solos are mostly songful and structured rather than free-form and that suits his style just fine. It's not the easiest listen at CD length, but there's enough here to guarantee a regular return.

George Schuller

DRUMS, PERCUSSION

Brother of Ed and a busy figure in the Boston area.

 Tenor Tantrums New World NW 80522 Schuller; Dave Ballou (t); George Garzone, Tony Malaby (ss, ts); Ed Schuller (b). 1/98.

* The Jigsaw 482 Music 1026 As above, except omit Garzone; add Curtis Hasselbring (tb, g), Howard Johnson (tba, bcl), Matt Darriau (ts, cl, bcl), Mark Feldman (vn). 8/98, 10/00.

(*) Hellbent Playscape 111300 Schuller; Tim Berne (as); Tony Malaby (ss, ts); Ed Schuller (b). 11/00.

(*) Round 'Bout Now Playscape 21302 Schuller; Ingrid Jensen (t, flhn); Donny McCaslin (ss, ts, af); Matt Darriau (bcl, kaval); Tom Beckham (vib); Sonny Barbato (acc); David Ambrosio (b). 2 & 3/02.

(*) Like Before, Somewhat After Playscape 060607 Schuller; Donny McCaslin (ss, ts, af); Brad Shepik (g); Tom Beckham (vib); Jamey Haddad (perc). 5/07.

Like his brother Ed (who plays on the first of these), George has also recorded for GM and has a couple of records on Playscape. These, however, seem to be the only survivors. Tenor Tantrums and a band called The Schulldogs may not be the most inviting titles, but the writing and playing are of the highest order. TT opens with Ornette Coleman's 'Free' (some fantastic work from Ballou) and, with the exception of a lovely interpretation of Bill Evans's 'Loose Bloose', is otherwise written by Schuller. There's a lot of fairly pointless gun-play between the two saxophones, which was presumably the point of the date, with old teacher Garzone more convincing when Malaby switches to soprano on 'Boogie Two Shoes'; the brothers are exceptional on this one.

The basic quartet (Ballou, Malaby, 2 x Schuller) is augmented on the later disc with some intriguing guests. The presence of a second saxophonist threatens more tantrums, but Darriau seems more interested in texture than in gunslinging. Feldman, Hasselbring and Johnson all bring quite distinctive voices. The key cuts are 'Ripe', which is precisely that, 'Tip Jar' and the elaborate 'Tense (Suite)', which unfolds in three thoughtful sections.

Hellbent is a cracking live date. The rhythms are fiercely elusive, and the two saxophone frontline leaves everything 'exposed', with no harmonic coachwork to cover up the engine. 'Ripe' is a titanic performance, but they've still got half an hour of music to go when it's over. Exhausting, but worthwhile.

The augmented quintet on Round 'Bout Now seems to reflect an enthusiasm for an ensemble that delivers not just power and line, but also a wider palette of sound. The guests are very effectively deployed, though they never sound merely wheeled-on. It's a Miles tribute that digs into such relatively unexploited material as 'Filles De Kilimanjaro', 'Side Car' and 'Circle In The Round'.

The new record's an equally intriguing visit to the Keith Jarrett back catalogue, with a fine reading of 'Survivor's Suite' and 'De Drums'. Why haven't more leaders looked at this body of work? The band, now called Wide Circle, has a vividly original sound. McCaslin is becoming an essential contemporary player and Shepik brings a range of colours unique to himself.

Irène Schweizer (born 1941)

PIANO

A pioneering figure in European free jazz. She founded her innovative trio in 1963 and has worked with most of the major modernists. Her style is complex, dense and intellectually generous. Also a fine drummer.

(*) Wilde Senoritas / Hexensabbat Intakt CD 071 Schweizer (p solo). 77, 78.

Schweizer has almost inevitably been saddled with a 'female Cecil Taylor' tag, one that has been harder to shift as a result of her series of duets with drummers, encounters which invite all manner of yin–yang nonsense. As a sometime percussionist herself, Schweizer makes instinctive guesses as to how her own keyboard language might meld with untuned instruments. That is evident in her important sequence of recordings with percussionists, but it is also a component of her other work in a variety of groups and as a solo pianist. These important reissues of her FMP LPs help extend the picture back half a decade into her first distinctive performances as a solo player. The title of the second disc conjures up something of her magical power, chaotic, dangerous, but also sexy and alluring. They're nothing like as subtle as later work, but no enthusiast should miss them.

* Live At Taktlos Intakt CD 001/2005 Schweizer; George E. Lewis (tb); Lindsay Cooper (p); Joëlle Léandre (b); Paul Lovens, Günter Sommer (d, perc); Maggie Nicols (v). 84.

* The Storming Of The Winter Palace Intakt CD 03/2000 As above, except omit Cooper, Lovens. 5/86, 3/88.

The first of these was also the first Intakt LP, recorded at the inaugural Taktlos Festival, in which Schweizer had a strong hand. As an introduction to her work, it is hard to beat. Schweizer works brilliantly with drummers, as some of the items below attest, and with Sommer and Lovens severally she is at her very best. The association with Maggie Nicols yields a rare mixture of fun and abstract interest and Léandre has also been a very important associate. Just to round out an ideal set, there is a tiny amuse-gueule featuring Nicols with pianist Lindsay Cooper, just a minute and 20 seconds, but delightful enough to stimulate the appetite for more.

The Storming Of The Winter Palace is another welcome reissue of a classic LP. Recorded at the Moers Festival in 1986 and at the Taktlos Festival in Zurich two years later, it documents a group with formidable powers. Schweizer is very much the key element, assembling and unpicking a series of small-scale themes and ideas like some intellectual tricoteuse. Maggie Nicols's ability to break down narrative song into its constituent elements, semantic nonsense, and still leave you feeling that you've heard a story and been serenaded as well continues to amaze, as does George Lewis's ability to make even a disassembled trombone sound like the most musical thing on the planet. The two 'rhythm' players are supreme craftspersons and crafty supremos of free music. Sommer is not so much a minimalist as a miniaturist, able to invest tiny ideas with enormous significance, as effective in what he does not do as most drummers are in a full-scale assault on the kit. Léandre rumbles away in the background – and, to be truthful, too much in the background acoustically to represent fully her part in this music.

The earlier Moers piece is the most developed of the three included. 'Now And Never' makes few references to any musical forms outside itself, but it quickly establishes its own internal logic and Schweizer sustains a high level of concentration, contention and flow, reinforcing the impression that everything she does is a miniature concerto for piano, like 'Theoria', the piece written for her by Barry Guy and performed with the London Jazz Composers' Orchestra. 'The Storming Of The Winter Palace' is dominated to a degree by Nicols, who is at her most angrily playful. A relatively short piece, it is also highly condensed and impacted, with a great deal of musical information to absorb. 'Living On The Edge', which follows, is more intense but also more verbose and with a few flat moments. Taken together, though, this represents a wonderful documentation of an important group.

 Irène Schweizer/Louis Moholo Intakt CD 006 Schweizer; Louis Moholo (d). 11/86.

* Irène Schweizer/Günter Sommer Intakt CD 007 Schweizer; Günter Sommer (d). 2/87.

(*) Irène Schweizer/Andrew Cyrille Intakt CD 008 Schweizer; Andrew Cyrille (d). 9/88.

* Irène Schweizer/Pierre Favre Intakt CD 009 Schweizer; Pierre Favre (d). 2/90.

These are extraordinarily various in approach, though it seems clear that the Europeans are much closer in basic conception to Schweizer than the two Americans, as one might expect. Sommer and Favre are melodic players, moving round the kit much as she moves across the keyboard. Moholo creates a network of cross-rhythms that Schweizer herself likens to Elvin Jones's playing with Coltrane, but there is nothing to build on it, and one is left with an impression of two artists working at right angles, making beautiful sounds but in isolation one from the other. With Favre, the level of interaction is such that one almost seems to be hearing a meta-instrument, a source of sound which is neither one voice nor the other, but a genuine synthesis of the two. With Sommer, the connection is more dialectical, but the result is still entirely sympathetic: two voices in conjunction, mutually responsive. Andrew Cyrille was a long-standing collaborator of Cecil Taylor's and is a leader in his own right. It is difficult to gauge what is wrong on this session. One senses that Schweizer is very aware of the Taylor lineage and deliberately tries to steer away from it, though the clusters and clumped runs she falls into are immediately and inescapably redolent of the American pianist. This remarkable series of duets was not finished in 1990. A later record with Han Bennink was still to come and is reviewed below, but the bulk of the series was in place by the end of the '80s. Hearing it somewhat later, and transferred to CD, suggests more consistency than difference. Schweizer never for a moment diverges from her robust, assured approach. It is her playing partners who are required to rethink their language.

 Les Diaboliques /  Splitting Image Intakt CD 03 / 048 Schweizer; Joëlle Léandre (b); Maggie Nicols (v). 4/93; N.D.

Three of the most consistently neglected figures on the European scene, united on one powerful record. Schweizer is the centre of gravity to which Léandre and Nicols lean and steer. Her touch is softer and more spacious than on the solo discs, deliberately leaving space open, not packing the time with information but allowing her playing partners room to breathe. Nicols, so often acerbic, gives herself the chance to unpack her sometimes cluttered ideas. Unfortunately, she loses impetus as a consequence. Léandre is well recorded and has a good deal to say, but is inclined to repeat herself. The second record from the same group, who subsequently called themselves Les Diaboliques, is every bit as good. Some evidence that Léandre is jockeying for prominence in what is already a tightly constructed group, but generally the level of interaction is as close and responsive as one might wish. Another intriguing disc, though on balance we'd probably just plump for the first one by the trio.

* Irène Schweizer/Han Bennink Intakt CD 010 Schweizer; Han Bennink (d). 1/95.
Our admiration for Bennink is probably in breach of the second and third commandments. On this, he is supreme, the ideal foil to Schweizer's full-voiced and pointed delivery. Recorded live, as is much of this remarkable series, it shows two artists of markedly different temperament – Schweizer is both more 'serious' and more unaffectedly playful – negotiating a comfortable middle ground. Of all the piano/drums duets, this is the one that sounds as if it might be the result of prior negotiation.

(*) Many And One Direction Intakt CD 044 Schweizer (p solo). 4/96.
The title says it all: a critical moment in a career which seems to have combined an eclectic range of ideas with an absolute solidity of purpose. This solo record is beautifully engineered and played with an immaculate touch. One wonders a little how much Schweizer is attempting to say and how much she simply wants her listeners to luxuriate in the sound. Either way, this is an immensely strong performance, marred only by a reliance on predetermined outlines which she does a good deal to disguise and hide, to no real purpose.

* First Choice: Solo Piano – KKL Luzern Intakt CD 108 Schweizer (p solo). 10/05.
The solo recitals deepen in resonance and technical surety. Schweizer has learned how to make absence and silence work; they're used sparingly but to tremendous effect. The appearance here of a solitary Thelonious Monk composition, 'Oska T', offers a new perspective on her roots in post-bop piano jazz. Great sound.

Also, in brief:

* Piano Solo: Volumes 1 & 2 Intakt CD 020 / 021. 5/90.
Not a natural unaccompanied performer, she needs someone to work against; 'Ballad Of The Sad Café' and 'Sisterhood Of Spit' are outstanding, though.

* Chicago Piano Solo Intakt CD 065. 2/00.
This fourth solo for Intakt was recorded at a concert at Chicago's Empty Bottle; impeccable touch, even attack, crisp phrasing.

* Ulrichsberg Intakt CD 084. 5/03.
Schweizer and Pierre Favre are history all by themselves: as the fascinating sleeve-notes reveal, they go all the way back to Montreux 1966.

* Portrait Intakt CD 105. 84–05.
A fantastic introduction if you don't have the individual CDs. Released to mark her 65th birthday.

Louis Sclavis (born 1953)

BASS CLARINET, TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Born in Lyons, he studied there and toured with the Workshop Of Lyons improvising group. His playing is a blend of free forms, contemporary compositional structures, theatre music and folk.

(*) Chine / Chamber Music Label Bleu 6656/7 2CD Sclavis; Yves Robert (tb); Michel Godard (tba); François Raulin (p, syn, perc); Philippe Deschepper (g); Dominique Pifarély (vn); Bruno Chevillon (b); Christian Ville (d, perc). 7–9/87.
Louis Sclavis has attempted to create an 'imaginary folklore' that combines familiar jazz procedures with North African and Mediterranean music, French folk and music from the bal musette. Chine is a fine and original set of pieces, but its unfamiliar tonal components only partially mitigate an overall lack of development. Chamber Music, as the title implies, throws still more weight on compositional values, but there are signs that Sclavis was working through his dilemmas. In Chevillon he has an understanding and highly effective foil whose rhythmic awareness makes light of settings without a part for a drummer or percussionist.

(*) Rouge ECM 511929-2 Sclavis; Dominique Pifarély (vn); François Raulin (p, syn); Bruno Chevillon (b); Christian Ville (d). 9/91.
* Ellington On The Air IDA 032 As for Chine Chamber Music, except omit Deschepper, Ville; add Francis Lassus (d, perc). 12/91–2/92.
(*) Acoustic Quartet ECM 521349-2 As for Rouge, except omit Raulin, Ville; add Marc Ducret (g). 93.
* Les Violences De Rameau ECM 533128-2 As for Rouge, except add Yves Robert (tb); Francis Lassus (perc). 96.
Sclavis's ECM debut is a challenging and surprisingly abstract set that rarely allows itself to settle into a jazz groove. Rouge establishes Sclavis as an enterprising and thought-provoking composer. If it does so at the expense of rhythmic energy (a strategy consistent with his ambivalence about jazz percussion), it doesn't short-change in other departments. The first four tracks are moodily atmospheric, with a strong suggestion of North African music: 'Nacht' is particularly effective, with dissonant flashes of multitracked clarinet echoed by the softly bouncing thunder of Ville's bass drum, before giving way to an evocative solo by Chevillon. Pifarély comes into his own on 'Reeves', teasing out a long unison statement with Sclavis and then soloing on his own 'Moment Donné'. Several tracks sound as if they are through-composed, and apart from the later stages of 'Les Bouteilles' and a delicious waltz-tag on the title-piece, the emphasis is all on textures and rather brooding melodic outlines rather than on linear development. The longest track, 'Face Nord', echoes 'Reflet' in the way it suspends Sclavis's high, swooping clarinet-lines over a dense chordal background (that on 'Face Nord' suddenly erupts into a convincing simulacrum of a flat-out electric guitar solo, all done on Raulin's imaginatively programmed synth).

The drummerless Acoustic Quartet is listed as co-led by Pifarély, and he certainly plays an increasingly prominent role in the music, as does Chevillon, another long-standing accomplice. Ducret has a less functional role and is used for broad (and not always very subtle) background effects, where a more adventurous leader and/or producer might have preferred a starker profile. Pifarély contributes three compositions, including the long

'Seconde', and the violinist's writing has matured very quickly. However, Sclavis's touch on 'Sensible' and 'Rhinoceros' is flawless, and the brief 'Beata' is incomparably lovely. Attractive as it all is, one misses the edgy, improvisational sound that energizes the Ellington session. The interplay between Sclavis and the admirable Robert adds a dimension that has been missing for some time. The programme is an imaginative exercise in re-creation. Ellington themes are interleaved with associated originals by Sclavis, Chevillon, Raulin and others. 'Jubilee Stomp' yields 'J'Oublie'; though not itself included, 'Mood Indigo' suggests Chevillon's 'Indigofera Tinctoria' and Andy Emler's 'Mode Andy Go'; a snatch of 'Caravan' introduces 'Caravalse'; and so on. The verbal puns aren't screamingly witty, but the music is always intelligently allusive and manages to suggest new angles on Ellington without lapsing into pastiche. Indeed, it's very clear that Sclavis has picked precisely those themes which most emphatically suit his own compositional style.

Nothing could have prepared anyone, though, for his turn to the mysterious music of Rameau for the next record. This is a perfect illustration of his eclectic, omnivorous approach to French music, a virtuosic appropriation of a composer who has never been warmly appreciated outside France but who reveals on closer inspection an almost Gothic concentration of expression which is, yes, violent. A now familiar line-up, augmented significantly by the wonderful Robert, broods through fascinating charts which are neither obscure nor transparent.

* L'Affrontement Des Prétendants ECM 159927 Sclavis; Jean-Luc Cappozzo (t); Vincent Courtois (clo); Bruno Chevillon (b); François Merville (d). 9/99.

A new group sound for Sclavis, with Cappozzo's trumpet very much to the forefront and creating an atmosphere of almost unbearable grief on the long 'Hommage À Lounes Matoub', Sclavis's threnody to the brilliant Algerian political singer who was murdered the year before this recording was made. Trumpet then gives place to cello and it is more than five minutes before the whole band is involved, but what a track it is. Sclavis takes a solo on soprano and manages to nod in the direction of John Coltrane while taking off in his own somewhat classical idiom. Other tracks are more conventional. 'Distances' is a slice of idiosyncratic bebop, while 'Contre Contre' and the title-piece (which lacks an explicit programme) are very much in line with his now familiar polystylistic approach. Immensely impressive and emotionally engaging music from the French master.

(*) Napoli's Walls ECM 1857 Sclavis; Médéric Collignon (pkt-t, hn, perc, elec, v); Hasse Poulsen (g); Vincent Courtois (clo, elec). 12/02.

Between 1987 and 1995, artist Ernest Pignon-Ernest created a body of work inspired by and intended for the streets of Naples, the city you see and die. Its themes were death and decay, the eternal feminine and the continuity of cultures from pagan to Christian to neo-pagan. Sclavis's music perfectly reflects these concerns and in Collignon he has found a collaborator – one part Don Cherry, two parts Herb Robertson – who empathizes totally with his vision. Most of the tracks are dedications – to the artist, to Charles Mingus, to the children of Naples and the world – but the music runs together as a continuous suite that makes complete sense without a programme.

* Roman FMP CD 127 Sclavis; Jean-Marc Montera (g, table-top g, elec). 1/03.

An improvised novel in 12 absorbing chapters. It's inevitably more Robbe-Grillet than Balzac, but the tiny narrative gestures and Montera's mysterious electronic fills create a very consistent atmosphere that gives the project holding power and longevity. Good to see Sclavis back in a freer context.

* L'Imparfait Des Langues ECM 1954 Sclavis; Marc Baron (as); Paul Brousseau (ky, g); Maxime Delpierre (g); François Merville (d). 4/05.

Enjoying a new-found openness in his approach, Sclavis decided to approach a new commission from the Spring Arts Festival in Monte Carlo with an almost entirely new band. Merville is the only one here who has served much time with Sclavis. Baron is a ferociously talented 23-year-old, while Delpierre has a buzz-saw guitar style very different to anything else in the previous Sclavis canon. It would have seemed perverse to give a group convened in this way very formal charts so Sclavis set about writing basic themes and ideas that would challenge his improvisational imagination in new ways. Ironically, the death of Prince Rainier led to the cancellation of the Monaco festival, so Sclavis took his group and new charts into the studio instead. It's a powerful, very spontaneous performance, some of it deliberately sketchy, but featuring some fascinating ideas that might be blues, might be folk tunes, might also be classical tone rows, all transformed by a mint-fresh ensemble.

Also, in brief:

* Clarinettes IDA 004. 9/84–1/85.

Mostly solo, but with some other contributions. 'Le Chien Aboie Et La Clarinette Basse' is a terrific musical joke.

() Trio De Clarinettes Live / () Et On Ne Parle Du Temps FMP CD 39 / 66. 11/90; 7/94.

Sclavis on free ground, although the trio of clarinets is actually quite strictly worked out. There is even a Pierre Boulez piece. In duo with Reijseger (CD 66), he has some of the clearest space ever on record to demonstrate his mastery of the clarinets.

 Ceux Qui Veillent La Nuit Label Bleu LBLC 6596. 96.

Sclavis – here with Bruno Chevillon (b) and François Merville (d) – had not recorded in trio format before.

 Le Phare Enja 9359. 9/97.

Enjoyable collaboration with the Bernard Struber Jazztet.

 Danses Et Autres Scènes Label Bleu 6616. 7/98.

Tiny miniatures that might be dances, might be theatre music, but which work surprisingly well together and on record.

 Dans La Nuit ECM 589524. 10/00.

The soundtrack to a silent movie, this is an attractively low-key and delicate disc from Sclavis which lacks the authority of recent sets.

John Scofield (born 1951)

GUITAR

Studied at Berklee 1970–73, then with Billy Cobham and Charles Mingus on record. With Dave Liebman and under his own leadership, he began recording regularly, then joined Miles Davis in 1982, staying until 1985. Seen by many as the quintessential, most widely read and flexible contemporary jazz guitarist.

() Shinola / () Out Like A Light Enja 4004-2 / 4038-2 Scofield; Steve Swallow (b); Adam Nussbaum (d). 12/81.

* Electric Outlet Gramavision GR 8045 Scofield; Ray Anderson (tb); David Sanborn (as); Pete Levin (ky); Steve Jordan (d). 4–5/84.

 Still Warm Gramavision GR 8508 Scofield; Don Grolnick (ky); Darryl Jones (b); Omar Hakim (d). 6/85.

 Blue Matter Gramavision 18-8702 Scofield; Mitchel Forman (ky); Hiram Bullock (g); Gary Grainger (b); Dennis Chambers (d); Don Alias (perc). 9/86.

 Loud Jazz Gramavision 18-8801 As above, except omit Forman, Bullock; add Robert Aries, George Duke (ky). 12/87.

 Pick Hits Live Gramavision 18-8805 As above, except omit Duke and Alias. 10/87.

(*) Flat Out Gramavision 18-8903 Scofield; Don Grolnick (org); Anthony Cox (b); Johnny Vidacovich, Terri Lyne Carrington (d). 12/88.

John Scofield was perhaps the last of Miles Davis's sidemen to break through to a major career, but his first records for Enja, made prior to his joining Davis in 1982, bespeak a substantial talent already making waves. He had played with a diverse group of leaders – Charles Mingus, Lee Konitz, Gary Burton, Billy Cobham – before forming his own band. The Enja albums come from a Munich show in 1981, just predating his stint with Davis: loose, exploratory, the tunes opening up to solos even as the trio operates as a single probing unit, this was notice that a major figure was arriving. Scofield mustered rock power and jazz chops and made the two – at last – seem compatible. The important thing was that jazz had the upper hand.

Next came the albums for Gramavision. Electric Outlet was a false start: the band seems gimcracked around a dubious idea of highbrow pop-jazz, Sanborn and Anderson are there only for colour, and the attempted grooves are stiff and unyielding. But Still Warm solved matters at a stroke. Steve Swallow's production clarified the sound without overpowering the fluidity of Scofield's arrangements, Grolnick added thoughtful keyboard textures, and Jones and Hakim (colleagues from the Miles Davis band) were tight and funky without being relentlessly so. Scofield's own playing here assumes a new authority: tones are richer, the hint of fuzz and sustain is perfectly integrated, and his solos are unflaggingly inventive: for a single sample, listen to the sharp, hotly articulated solo on 'Picks And Pans'.

The band which the guitarist then formed with Grainger and Chambers bolstered the funk-fusion side of his playing. The drummer, especially, is a thunderous virtuoso in the manner of Billy Cobham, and the next three albums are all fired up with his rhythms. Scofield's writing revolves around ear-catching melodic hooks and a favourite device of a riff repeated over a shifting harmonic base, and the two studio albums are full of naggingly memorable themes. But the music was formulaic in the end. The live record is a feast of hard-nut jazz-funk showmanship, but it starts to sound clenched by the end. Flat Out comes as a welcome change of pace. Vidacovich and Carrington, who split chores between them through the record, are swinging but no less busy drummers: hear the consummately controlled rave-up on 'The Boss's Car' (a cheeky rip-off of Bruce Springsteen's 'Pink Cadillac'). Two standards, a Meters tune and a rollicking turn through 'Rockin' Pneumonia' also lighten the programme.

 Time On My Hands Blue Note 792894-2 Scofield; Joe Lovano (ts); Charlie Haden (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 11/89.

(*) Meant To Be Blue Note 795479-2 Scofield; Joe Lovano (ts, cl); Marc Johnson (b); Bill Stewart (d). 12/90.

Scofield's transfer to Blue Note moved his career and his music substantially forward. Lovano is an inspired choice of front-line partner, renegotiating the jazz roots of Sco's approach without surrendering the feisty attack which the guitarist amplified through his Gramavision records. Time On My Hands provides some of his best writing, including the lovely ballad of 'Let's Say We Did' and the twining melodies of 'Since You Asked'. 'Fat Lip' is acoustic jazz-rock which Haden and DeJohnette jump on with brilliant ferocity. Superb studio sound throughout. If Meant To Be seems a shade less invigorating, it's only because it seems like a second run through the same territory. Both are very highly recommended.

(*) Grace Under Pressure Blue Note 7981672 Scofield; Randy Brecker (flhn); Jim Pugh (tb); John Clark (frhn); Bill Frisell (g); Charlie Haden (b); Joey Baron (d). 12/91.

Though given a mixed reception on its release, this is a strong and thoughtfully realized continuation of Scofield's work for Blue Note. If he's starting to seem over-exposed as a player, turning up in countless guest roles as well as on his own records, the ten themes here display a consistent strength as a writer: variations on the blues, slow modal ballads, riffs worked into melodies, Scofield makes them all come up fresh, and he creates situations where the rhythm players can line the music with intensities and colours of their own. There are hard, swinging solos on the title-track and 'Twang', and if the interplay with Frisell can sometimes seem more like cheese and chalk, there are piquant contrasts which sometimes blend with surprising effectiveness: 'Honest I Do' is the kind of haunting, downbeat melody that Scofield has made his own. The brass are used sparingly to underscore a few tracks.

(*) I Can See Your House From Here Blue Note 827765-2 Scofield; Pat Metheny (g); Steve Swallow (b); Bill Stewart (d). 12/93.

For his second meeting with another leading guitarist, Scofield uncorked some more of his best writing: the title-piece and 'No Matter What' are typically serpentine, elegant, feelingful tunes to which the slick playing only adds. This is far more collaborative than the record with Frisell, with Metheny taking several writing credits himself, and, while it occasionally softens in the face of Pat's tendency to turn to marshmallow, it's good.

 Hand Jive Blue Note 827327-2 Scofield; Eddie Harris (ts); Larry Goldings (p, org); Dennis Irwin (b); Bill Stewart (d); Don Alias (perc). 10/93.

Scofield's final Blue Note albums round off the most enjoyable run of guitar records in recent years. Perhaps no genuinely fresh ground is broken here, but just by shuffling his options the guitarist finds new ways of walking over old paths. The fashion to turn back to the guitar/organ combos of the '60s has already grown stale, but Scofield's take on the genre turns the emphasis around: not surprisingly, it's the guitar-player who takes the limelight rather than a licks-bound organist, and in any case Goldings is the most interesting new organ man on the scene. Hand Jive blends the chugging groove beloved of the old school with the leaner rhythms of Irwin and Stewart, Sco's pop-tune sensibility, Goldings's feel for line and colour, and the surprise choice of maverick tenorman Harris. The result is excellent fun. His final date for the label, Groove Elation, which we slightly preferred of these two, has apparently gone to the dead-letter office.

[illegible]

 Quiet

Verve 533185-2 Scofield; Randy Brecker (t, flhn); Wayne Shorter (ts); Charles Pillow (f, cor, ts); Lawrence Feldman (f, ts); John Clark, Fred Griffin (frhn); Roger Rosenberg (bcl); Howard Johnson (bs, tba); Steve Swallow (b); Bill Stewart, Duduka Fonseca (d). 4/96.

Having already tried numerous settings for Blue Note, Scofield's Verve debut was different again. Playing acoustic guitar exclusively is one departure; setting it against the mournful sound of low brass and woodsy reeds is another. The horn charts are just witty enough to inject a certain wryness and just eerie enough to lend a sometimes other-worldly air to the likes of 'After The Fact'. The addition of Shorter, playing his now unaccustomed tenor on three tracks, seems like an unlikely bonus, but he fits in uncannily well. Scofield's own playing is made to seem less conspicuous by his playing acoustic, yet it lends a certain piquancy to his improvising. And then there is Swallow, co-producing and seeming to direct much of the playing with high, light bass-lines of the utmost ingenuity and relevance. The result comes close to Scofield's finest hour.

(*) A Go Go Verve 539979-2 Scofield; John Medeski (ky); Billy Martin (b); Chris Wood (d). 97.

Opportunism, maybe, but this is a shrewd match, and if the MM&W trio sometimes seem at a loss for substance on their own records, Scofield hands it to them on a plate with his ten originals here. The difference between tunes such as 'Green Tea' and 'Hottentot' and any other organ blues or Bo Diddley shuffle is the degree of harmonic/melodic sophistication which Scofield has slid in. A Go Go emerges as not so much a fun record with brains as a loosely intense essay on the common ground in jazz, rock and funk. The dead drum sound and buzzing keyboards which are the trio's trademarks remain. It's a 'fusion' which suggests that neither side is merely buying in to the other.

 Works For Me Verve 549281-2 Scofield; Kenny Garrett (as); Brad Mehldau (p); Christian McBride (b); Billy Higgins (d). 1/00.

Given a spacious studio mix by James Farber, this one-time-only all-star date seeks to restore Scofield's endangered jazz status. Unfortunately, it's kept out of the top grade by the easy-going, overly respectful mien, as if these guys were so humbled by each other that they forgot to really dig in and play. There is the usual cute-to-clever bag of Scofield compositions, and hearing McBride and Higgins together was always going to be a treat, but this is in the end no more than a nice blow.

 That's What I Say Verve 060249 8805343 Scofield; Earl Gardner (t); Keith O'Quinn (tb); Alex Foster, David Newman (ts); Howard Johnson (bs); Larry Goldings (ky, vib); Dr John (p, v); Warren Haynes, John Mayer (g, v); Willie Weeks (b); Steve Jordan (d, v); Manolo Badrena (perc); Aaron Neville, Mavis Staples, Lisa Fischer, Vaneese Thomas, Meegan Voss (v). 12/04.

Sco plays Brother Ray. As concept albums go, it's not a bad notion, and he's played this kind of elevated backbeat music for long enough to inhabit the grooves and not make it seem like something's wrong. The guest stars stroll on and off as and when they have to and at least the producer left space for the guitarist to do something a little more interesting on 'Cryin' Time' and the solo farewell 'Georgia On My Mind', done on acoustic.

 This Means That Emarcy 1734085 Scofield; John Swana (t); Jim Pugh (tb); Lawrence Feldman (ts, f); Roger Rosenberg (bs, bcl); Bill Frisell (g); Steve Swallow (b); Bill Stewart (d).

Or: bit o' this, bit o' that. This one can't quit decide whether it's a return to more straight-ahead jazz, or another dabble in Sco's rock, funk, whatever bag. It's OK, and the trio with Swallow and Stewart had proved its worth on Quiet. As a narrative, though, the whole thing seems to have slowed down since that 1996 record. This is just footnotes, really, and the horn walk-ons on 'The Low Road' and other tracks have a polite feel rather than any creative edge or authority. Frisell comes in for a 'duel' on 'House Of The Rising Sun'. Hold us back!

Also, in brief:

 Bump Verve 543430-2. 99.

Not bad, but Scofield's edging away from jazz and into a hinterland of rock does seem vaguely disappointing.

 Überjam Verve 589356-2. 01.

Publicity suggested that Scofield sees this as taking jazz to a 'new place'; if so, he might be dismayed to hear that '70s rock got there a long time ago.

(*) Oh! Blue Note 42081-2. 7/02.

This might more properly be listed under Joe Lovano's (ts, ss) name – he's the Blue Note guy here, after all – but Scofield comes first in the supergroup rubric (and there was reputedly plenty of flying fur over that).

Dave Scott

TRUMPET

Mature trumpet stylist with a small body of high-quality work.

 Dave Scott/Tony Malaby Quartet Nine Winds NW 194 Scott; Tony Malaby (ts); Trey Henry (b); Billy Mintz (d). 9/95.

 Song For Amy /  Naiveté Steeplechase SCCD 31561 / 31608 Scott; Rich Perry (ts); Gary Versace (p); John Hebert (b); Jeff Williams (d). 6/04.

An effortless stylist with an individual, contemporary style, Scott hasn't made headlines and will appeal most to those who like their jazz subtle and thoughtful rather than burning. The Steeplechase dates are the more accommodating, though there's still considerable freedom in Scott's harmonics. The title-pieces and 'Vindaloo' on the first record show how inventive he can be with relatively simple materials, a characteristic that's reinforced on 'Ralph And The Redhead' on the second album. The two labels are, on the face of it, quite different in focus, but Scott has worked with Nine Winds boss Vinny Golia in quintet formations and is well adapted to his challenging ethos. The only contemporary player with whom the trumpeter bears real comparison is Dave Ballou, who has the same facility with inside/outside situations.

Hazel Scott (1920–81)

PIANO

Originally from Trinidad, she was a child performer in New York and was playing in clubs while still in her middle teens. She jazzed the classics and sang in an amiable blues style, but her marriage to Adam Clayton Powell brought her into disrepute during the McCarthy era and she retreated to France, before returning to the US around 1960.

 Hazel Scott 1939–1945 Classics 1308 Scott; Nat Natoli, Yank Lawson, Pee Wee Erwin (t); John Owens (tb, t); Danny Polo (cl); Hymie Schertzer (as, bs); Pete Brown (as); Joe Dixon (ts); Ellis Larkins (p); Albert Harris, Carl Kress (g); Pete Barry (b, v); Leonard Gaskin (b); Arthur Herbert, J. C. Heard, Johnny Blowers, Sid Catlett (d). 12/39–5/45.

(*) Hazel Scott 1946–1947 Classics 1448 Scott; Toots Camarata Orchestra. 46–10/47.
 'Round Midnight Fresh Sound FSRCD 497 Scott; Everett Barksdale (g); Sandy Block (b); Jimmy Crawford (d). 56–57.
Scott is largely forgotten today, but she was a V-Disc favourite during the war years and was the first black American woman to have her own TV show. This CD collects her first four sessions for Decca, plus a 1939 sextet set for Bluebird and four titles made for V-Disc. Six numbers feature her jazzing such classics as the Minute Waltz and the Rachmaninov C sharp minor prelude, but more appetizing are boogie-woogie and blues features which show a smart dexterity, although the music is sometimes a bit top-heavy with grace notes. Still, it's charming to hear her having such evident fun with 'Body And Soul', and a duet with the ebullient Sid Catlett on 'C Jam Blues' really swings the house. The Bluebird titles have a nice bluesy feel and good spots for Danny Polo and Pete Brown, although by 1945 she was becoming more of a straight ballad singer as the elegant but mild material on the second volume and the somewhat later Fresh Sound bears out.

Ronnie Scott (1927–96)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Few musician-run jazz clubs have had quite the charisma of Ronnie Scott's in London's Soho. Ronnie's career as proprietor and MC eclipsed his playing, which is a shame because he was a fine tenor-player and, in the opinion of Charles Mingus, quite the best of the 'white boys'.

 Boppin' At Esquire Indigo 2125 Scott; Ralph Sharon (p); Pete Chilver (g); Jack Fallon (b); Jackie Dougan (d). 48.
* Legacy / (*) Jazz Couriers Ember 243 / 245 Scott; Kenny Graham's Afro-Cubists; Jazz Couriers; RS Quartet, Sextet, Orchestra. 12/51–2/58; 57–58.
* When I Want Your Opinion, I'll Give It To You Ronnie Scott's Jazz House JHAS 610 Scott; Stan Tracey (p); Ernest Ranglin (g); Malcolm Cecil, Rick Laird (b); Jackie Dougan, Chris Karan, Ronnie Stephenson (d). 12/63–4/65.
(*) The Night Has A Thousand Eyes Ronnie Scott's Jazz House JCAS 614 Scott; Sonny Stitt (ts); Stan Tracey (p); Malcolm Cecil (b); Jackie Dougan, Ronnie Stephenson (d). 5/64.
Ronnie Scott's was a virtual brand name (and later literally so), but a substantial proportion of the Japanese and American tourists who filed into the Frith Street club never heard him play. Originally Ronald Schatt, he was a pastmaster at the chewish chive, but also a musician soaked in the blues and capable of compelling emotion in a solo. He disliked recording and did it only sparingly.

The early material on Indigo underlines what an able bopper Ronnie was. There had been very few top-flight bop tenor-players, and Ronnie is as convincing as any of the Americans. His solos on 'How High The Moon' and 'Scrapple From The Apple' are particularly effective, with altered chords in some of the choruses that push the limits of the new form. Other tracks are shorter and more intensely focused. Worth setting this one as a blindfold test and seeing how many people plump for a Brit, let alone Ronnie.

The two Ember sets are important in different ways. The earlier is a potted biography of the young Scott and it overlaps in significant ways with the Couriers volume, though no material is repeated. The Couriers with Tubby Hayes was the group that cemented his reputation, but it was clear even from his work with Kenny Graham, as it had been from stints with Ted Heath and Jack Parnell (see below), that he was marked down early for stardom. These are superb sets, of more than historical importance.

When I Want Your Opinion (a typical Scott line) brings together material from the early to mid-'60s when the club really was the crucible of modern jazz in Britain. The various groups, with either Malcolm Cecil or Rick Laird (later to join the Mahavishnu Orchestra and then to give up music for photography) were boppish in idiom, but closer in feel to the swing era. If there is a saxophonist Scott resembles on these tracks, then it must be the Janus-faced Don Byas, who also recorded at the club towards the end of his life. The presence of Ernest Ranglin brings a bouncy playfulness to 'Ronnie's Blues' from December 1963. A couple of months later, he's missing, and Chris Karan has been replaced by Jackie Dougan. Stan Tracey is the piano-player on all the tracks with keyboard (there are two trios, with just Laird and Dougan or Stephenson) and he brings his usual abrupt lyricism to 'Bye Bye Blackbird' (recorded in 1965) and a touch of deadpan humour to 'I'm Sick And Tired Of Waking Up Tired And Sick'.

The great joy of being Ronnie Scott was, of course, being allowed to cry and sing at your own party. The 1964 encounters with Sonny Stitt are the first of his encounters with visiting Americans to be released by Les Tomkins and Jazz House. Just three long tracks, but some roaring Scott performances, which show him to be no slouch in any company. 'The Night Has A Thousand Eyes' kicks off with Sonny's bright, exuberant solo, switches to Scott for a long, beautifully shaped statement which feeds off the American's in the wittiest and most sardonic way, leaving it to Stitt to round out the solos. Unfortunately, tape problems meant that the number has to be faded at the end. Scott takes the initiative on 'A Sonny Day For Ronnie', recorded later in the month, and leaves Stitt eating dust; honours are even again in the exchange of eights, but it's definitely the club owner's moment. Perhaps rightly, Stitt takes charge on 'Bye Bye Blackbird', a performance that throws in some classic bebop phrasing along the way.

* Live At Ronnie Scott's Columbia 494439 2 Scott; Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Chris Pyne (tb); Ray Warleigh (as); John Surman (ss, bs); Gordon Beck (p, org); Ron Mathewson (b); Kenny Clare, Tony Oxley (d). 69.
This was the group known simply as The Band, a house outfit that had the time to develop sophisticated charts and an enviable level of empathy. Ronnie himself is in great form in front of the 'home' crowd. His solo on the opening 'Recorda Me' is up there with any of composer Joe Henderson's and his long, burning statement on 'Macumba' bracket the album beautifully. Warleigh plays with his usual headlong appetite, and Surman's soprano blisters the paintwork on Laurie Holloway's 'King Pete'. Wheeler is as calmly tasteful as ever but, even in this congenial company, manages to suggest a great deal of passion under the unflustered exterior. The rhythm section is fascinating. Beck has never received due credit and remains something of a figure apart. His comping is as solid as railway sleepers, underpinning solos of terse originality. Mathewson switches between upright and electric bass, the latter sounding rather dated in this context. The real key to the band's headlong pace is the twinned drumming of Clare and Oxley; Tony cut his jazz teeth at Ronnie's and provides the turbulent, swirling groove on which the set is constructed. It's possible to hear Kenny laying accents and paradiddles in the middle of Tony's sweeping runs, content to let him do the assault course and to stay laid-back and cool himself. A final word for Chris Pyne, who blows dour and strong on Kenny Wheeler's 'Second Question', using a big virile tone that sounds deeper in pitch than it is just because the tone is so broad. A strong album from a band in top form.

(*) Never Pat A Burning Dog Ronnie Scott's Jazz House JC 012 Scott; Dick Pearce (t); Mornington Lockett (ts); John Critchinson (p); Ron Mathewson (b); Martin Drew (d). 10 & 11/90.
Never Pat A Burning Dog will appeal to those who have worn out their copy of Serious Gold, Scott's late-'70s Pye album, though they may also be surprised at how far his harmonic thinking has developed since then. A muted, almost elegiac set (recorded live at the club) begins with a stunning version of McCoy Tyner's 'Contemplation', full of glassy harmonies and tender, dissonant flourishes. Scott's choice of material is typically adventurous and tasteful: Jimmy Dorsey's 'I'm Glad There Is You', David Sanborn's 'White Caps', Cedar Walton's 'When Love Is New', a slightly unsatisfactory reading of Freddie Hubbard's 'Little Sunflower' with the less than inspiring Lockett in for Pearce, and two standards, 'All The Things You Are' and the under-recorded 'This Love Of Mine'. Scott's tone is deep and subtly modulated, and his phrasing has the kind of relaxed precision and inner heat one associates with Paul Gonsalves or Zoot Sims. Despite the variety of material, it's a remarkably consistent set, perhaps even a little unvaried in treatment.

Also, in brief:

 Great Scott Giant Steps 276 2CD. VARIOUS DATES.
A fascinating compilation of early work, from Ted Heath and Jack Parnell band days to the great Scott nine-piece band.

 Double Event Jazz House JHCD 208 2CD. 63–65, 90.
Useful twofer of Never Pat A Burning Dog and When I Want Your Opinion.

 Boppin' With Scott Properbox 131. VARIOUS DATES.
A fairly comprehensive survey.

Shirley Scott (1934–2002)

ORGAN, PIANO

Born in Philadelphia, she studied trumpet and piano, then began working with Lockjaw Davis and switched to organ. Formed her own trio in 1960, often working with husband Stanley Turrentine. Visible in the '90s on TV with Bill Cosby, when she was still playing organ and piano.

 Trio Classics Vol. 1 Prestige PRCD 24289 Scott; George Duvivier, George Tucker (b); Arthur Edgehill (d). 5/58.
 Workin' Prestige PRCD 24126-2 Scott; Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis (ts); Ronnell Bright (p); Wally Richardson (g); George Duvivier, Peck Morrison (b); Arthur Edgehill, Roy Haynes (d); Ray Barretto (perc). 5/58–3/61.
(*) Like Cozy Prestige PRCD 24258 Scott; George Duvivier, George Tucker (b); Arthur Edgehill (d). 10/58–9/60.
 Legends Of Acid Jazz Prestige PRCD 24200-2 Scott; Stanley Turrentine (ts); Herb Lewis, George Tucker (b); Roy Brooks, Otis Finch (d). 6–11/61.
 Legends Of Acid Jazz – Soul Sister Prestige PRCD 24233-2 Scott; Lem Winchester (vib); Kenny Burrell (g); George Duvivier, Eddie Khan (b); Otis Finch, Arthur Edgehill (d). 6/60–2/64.
(*) Soul Shoutin' /  Blue Flames Prestige PRCD 24142-2 / Original Jazz Classics OJC 328 Scott; Stanley Turrentine (ts); Major Holley, Earl May (b); Grassella Oliphant (d). 1–10/63; 8/65.

Shirley Scott was used to heavy company. In 1955, in her native Philadelphia, she was working in a trio with John Coltrane. Wider recognition came with her association with Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis, which led to dozens of albums for Prestige, Impulse!, Atlantic and Cadet through the '70s. Scott wasn't a knockabout swinger like Jimmy Smith and didn't have the bebop attack of Don Patterson, but there's an authority and an unusual sense of power in reserve which keep her music simmering somewhere near the boil. She is a strong blues player and a fine accompanist, and her right-hand lines have a percussive feel that utilizes space more than most organ-players ever did. Like Cozy is one of the best places to hear her, since there's no horn-player in attendance, and from the opening slink through 'Sweet Lorraine' she sounds fearless about running the show. The original albums (Shirley Scott Trio and Like Cozy) were pitched as late-night sounds and most of the tracks are taken at a slow lope but, with the blues hovering around every measure and Shirley's engagingly odd phrasing (she plays piano on several tracks too), this is a very enjoyable revival. Trio Classics Vol. 1 doubles up the LPs Great Scott! and Shirley's Sounds and is perhaps slightly less engaging but it still sounds fine a few tracks at a time.

She was also married to Stanley Turrentine, and they made a number of records together: Soul Shoutin' brings together the contents of the original albums The Soul Is Willing and Soul Shoutin', and this one gets the nod as the pick of the reissues. The title-track off The Soul Is Willing is the near-perfect example of what this combination could do, a fuming Turrentine solo followed by a deftly swinging one by Scott. In comparison, Blue Flames seems like short measure, but this kind of jazz is perhaps best sampled a few tracks at a time in any case, including these two – nothing more nor less than some cooking tenor and organ on some blues and a ballad or two. Workin' is a compilation of four sessions that cover some of Shirley's earlier dates and includes one bruiser with Lockjaw Davis – good stuff, if a notch below Soul Shoutin'. The two Acid Jazz sets bring back four more of the two dozen or so original LPs that Scott made for Prestige: the first couples Hip Soul and Hip Twist, the second brings together Soul Sister and, oddly, the much later Travelin' Light. The first one has another heaping helping of Turrentine, while the second relies on the not terribly interesting Winchester and the admirable Burrell. Little to choose, really, since while her cast-list varied Scott herself played with unshakeable consistency.

 Talkin' Verve Verve 549539-2 Scott; Thad Jones, Clark Terry (t); Urbie Green, Melba Liston (tb); Phil Woods (as); Jerome Richardson, Stanley Turrentine (ts); Attila Zoller (g); Ron Carter (b); Mel Lewis, Grady Tate (d). 63–71.
Not bad as a compilation of Shirley's work for Impulse! (she was never on Verve, despite the series title). There's a drift towards pop material, and the Oliver Nelson charts seem like leftovers from his work for Jimmy Smith. It also suggests that we're unlikely to see the original albums returning any time soon.

 Blues Everywhere /  Skylark Candid CCD79525 / 79705-2 Scott; Arthur Harper (b); Mickey Roker (d). 11/91.
 A Walkin' Thing Candid CCD79719 Scott; Terell Stafford (t); Tim Warfield (ts); Arthur Harper (b); Aaron Walker (d). 11/92.
Her final sessions were for Candid. For once Scotty handles the acoustic keyboard for an entire date on Blues Everywhere, and what comes out is a fat, funky, authoritative trio date somewhat in the style of Red Garland. Harper and Roker can sleepwalk through this kind of music and, since it keeps on swinging for nearly an hour, it's a tribute to Shirley that they stayed awake. Their second set is laid down on the subsequent Skylark, and one can safely say it's more of the same: two enjoyable records, but only a relative will need both of them. On her final session she was in charge of a hot young group. The feel is vintage Prestige/Blue Note (done at Van Gelder's, unsurprisingly), and if some of the tracks are a bit of a long stretch nobody sounds unhappy about it.

Tony Scott (1921–2007)

CLARINET, BARITONE SAXOPHONE, PIANO, ELECTRONICS, VOICE

Born A. J. Sciacca, he studied at Juilliard, worked as a New York sideman in the '40s and '50s and led his own groups from 1953, playing his own version of bop on the clarinet. Left for Europe and Asia in 1959, and turned to investigating various ethnic musics.

(*) Both Sides Of Cloud 9 61120 Scott; Dick Garcia, Mundell Lowe (g); Milt Hinton, Teddy Kotick (b); Osie Johnson, Shadow Wilson (d). 1/56.

(*) The Complete Tony Scott RCA 74321 421322 Scott; John Carisi, Thad Jones, Jimmy Nottingham, Clark Terry, Wendell Culley, Jimmy Maxwell, Joe Newman, Bernie Glow (t); Henry Coker, Quentin Jackson, Benny Powell, Sonny Truitt, Bill Hughes (tb); Gigi Gryce (as); Frank Foster, Zoot Sims, Frank Wess (ts); Danny Bank, Sahib Shihab, Charlie Fowlkes (bs); Bill Evans (p); Freddie Green (g); Les Grinage, Milt Hinton (b); Osie Johnson, Paul Motian (d). 12/56.

Scott's position as a master of his instrument has never been in question, but it was that instrument's own status which bebop and after was disputing, and excellent records like these have been comparatively lost as a result. Both Sides consists of half a dozen coolly romantic ballads plus a couple of freely improvised pieces, showing how far ahead of the game Scott could be. The other features a dozen miniatures handsomely crafted for a crack studio band, with Scott incisively making his way through and around the music, never encumbered by the task but going at it with a degree more passion than these situations would customarily demand.

* A Day In New York Fresh Sound FSRCD 160/2 2CD Scott; Clark Terry (t); Jimmy Knepper (tb); Sahib Shihab (bs); Bill Evans (p); Henry Grimes, Milt Hinton (b); Paul Motian (d). 11/57.

In 1959 Tony Scott turned his back on America, wounded by the death of several friends (Hot Lips Page, Billie Holiday, Charlie Parker, Lester Young) and by what he considered the 'death' of the clarinet in jazz terms. He became a wanderer, exploring the culture and music of the East, trading in the sometimes aggressive assertions of bebop for a meditative approach to harmony that at its best is deeply moving, at its least disciplined a weak ambient decoration.

Scott enjoyed a close and fruitful relationship with Bill Evans, and perhaps his best recorded work is the session of 16 November 1957 with the Evans trio and guests, tackling a copious roster of originals and well-worn standards (including a lovely 'Lullaby Of The Leaves' with Knepper). The clarinettist's opening statements on Evans's 'Five' are almost neurotically brilliant and a perfect illustration of how loud Scott could play. 'Portrait Of Ravi' and 'The Explorer' are Scott originals, directed towards the concerns that were increasingly to occupy him. Evans's light touch and immense harmonic sophistication suited his approach ideally.

(*) African Bird Soul Note 121083 Scott; Glenn Ferris (tb); Giancarlo Barigozzi (f, bf); Chris Hunter (as, f); Duncan Kinnel (mar); Rex Reason (kalimba); Robin Jones, Karl Potter (perc); Jacqui Benar (v). 81–5/84.

Conceived and performed before 'World Music' had become a sneer, African Bird is a largely convincing synthesis of Scott's African and Afro-American concerns into a suite of songs with an impressive level of coherence and developmental logic. To all intents and purposes it is a solo record, with largely incidental colourations from all but Barigozzi and Kinnel, who both play beautifully. For a flavour of where Scott had been since 1960, this is ideal.

 The Clarinet Album Philology 113 Scott; Massimo Faraò (p); Aldo Zunino (b); Giulio Capiozzo (d). 4/93.

 Poets Of Jazz Philology 90 Scott; Renato Sellani (p). 4/95.

 Homage To Billie Holiday: Body and Soul /  Homage To Lady Day Philology 119/109 Scott; Franco D'Andrea (p); Attilo Zanchi (b); Gianni Cazzola (d). 7/95.

Based in Rome in his later years, Scott recorded a fair amount for the Italian label Philology, which has always had uncertain distribution. The quality control is slightly suspect, too. One wonders why some of the cuts on the ballad-dominated Clarinet Album were considered worthy of release. Scott was a maverick, though, and it may be that he simply didn't see fit to record alternate takes of some of the shakier numbers. The Poets Of Jazz date with Sellani has some nice moments. Scott played mostly rubato and with his alternation of a light, cool tone and a declamatory talking-to-himself style (in part derived from Pee Wee Russell) this made much of his later recorded work sound like off-mic musing. This very quickly becomes background music, but for a couple of nice standard interpretations – 'Embraceable You' and 'My Old Flame' – which incidentally recall his days as a bopper. The two Billie Holiday records, all songs associated with her, were taped on a single day, but Scott refused to play with the backing group, preferring to add his parts as overdubs later. You wouldn't necessarily be able to tell, but D'Andrea sounds stiffer than usual and there is a schematic quality to some of the cuts. The long 'Body And Soul' suffers the same problems as 'Speak Low' on The Clarinet Album, and cries out for some judicious editing.

 A Jazz Life Kind Of Blue 10015 CD/DVD Scott; Shane Endsley (t); Ben Wendel (ts); Adam Benjamin (p, ky); Kaveh Rastegar (b); Nate Wood (d). 2/06.

Recorded a year before his death at the age of 86 and rounded out with footage of the sessions and some interview material, this is not so much a jazz record as a kind of living ancient monument. Scott's intonation is more than shaky, even on the most familiar material (Duke, Monk, Gillespie, several standards) and the flow of ideas is decidedly thin. The group are members of Kneebody, all friends from the Eastman School Of Music on tour in Milan when the session was recorded. If there was a casual assumption that Scott's career had ended decades before when he left the United States, this leaves you thinking that might have been a kinder option. On the other hand, he was a remarkable fellow and clarinet loyalists have been rare in the post-bop era.

Gene Sedric (1907–63)

CLARINET, TENOR SAXOPHONE

He worked for Fats Waller, Don Redman and Mezz Mezzrow. Made a modest splash with a lively and accurate sound.

 Gene Sedric 1938–1947 Classics 1181 Sedric; Herman Autrey, Henry Mason (t); Henry Duncan (p); Freddie Lee Jefferson (p, d); Albert Casey (g); Lincoln Mills (acc, v); Cedric Wallace (b); Wilmore 'Slick' Jones (d); Myra Johnson, Ruby Smith (v). 11/38–1/47.

Good-natured jazz from the man from St Louis. Sedric recorded a few sides on his own account in 1938 and then again in 1946 and that was just about it as far as solo recordings are concerned. He plays and sings some greasy blues and solos briskly on both clarinet and tenor, but he was never a virtuoso and it's hard to get too excited about any of these cuts. It's the association with Ruby Smith towards the end of the period covered that probably works best. 'The Wail Of The Scromph' and 'Music To My Sorrow' are both intriguing originals.

Trygve Seim

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Young Norwegian reedsman with some fresh ideas on life after jazz.

* Different Rivers ECM 159521-2 Seim; Arve Henriksen (t, v, trumpophone); Øyvind Braekke (tb); Hild Sofie Tafjord (frhn); Nils Jansen (sno, bsx, cbcl); Håvard Lund (cl, bcl); Stian Carstensen (acc); Bernt Simen Lund, Morten Hannisdal (clo); David Gald (tba); Per Oddvar Johansen, Paal Nilssen-Love (d); Sidsel Endresen (v). 98–99.

Seim's debut is little short of amazing. Not since Edward Vesala's Lumi has there been such a riveting opening to an ECM session as 'Sorrows'. Seim's music seems to follow a direct route from the great early discs by Garbarek, Arild Andersen and Vesala. There are no guitars and no keyboards; Seim is interested in human breath, the sound in wind instruments. In the magnificent 'Ulrika Dans' he leads nine musicians through a carefully shaded score that's a small masterpiece of writing for horns, hoisted aloft by Johansen's brilliant drum part and illuminated by the leader's own tenor solo. He seems to have a knack for making a band sound conversational and ritualistic at the same moment. 'Different Rivers' itself is a splicing of two versions of the same piece, with the musicians doubling on different instruments, a seamless montage which seems different on every hearing. In the stately procession of 'Breathe', over Sidsel Endresen's recitation, everything is sublimated into long cathedral chords that suggest a never-ending echo. A pretty extraordinary start.

(*) The Source And Different Cikadas ECM 014432-2 Seim; Arve Henriksen (t); Øyvind Braekke (tb); Frode Haltli (acc, b-t); Christian Wallumrød (p); Odd Hannisdal, Henrik Hannisdal (vn); Marek Konstantynowicz (vla); Morten Hannisdal (clo); Finn Guttormsen (b); Per Oddvar Johansen (d). 11/00.

'The Source' is the group led by Seim and Braekke, and the Cikada Quartet are the chief collaborators here. Again, Seim is exploring just how human he can make these instruments, what voicings he can conjure from a hypersensitive (in the best sense) cast of players. When part of a Łutosławski string quartet slips into the programme it fits right in, but jazz survives too, in the stately, dead-slow swing of 'Mmball' or the deadpan amusement of 'Fort-Jazz'. The final improvisation 'Tutti Free' closes the circle, and if it looks as if it was a cop-out bringing in a piano, it should be noted that Wallumrød (superb anyway) plays on only five of 15 tracks. If this isn't quite the transfixing experience which the debut was, it's still very fine.

* Sangam ECM 038122-2 Seim; Arve Henriksen (t); Øyvind Braekke, Helge Sunde (tb); Tone Reichelt (fr hn); Lars Andreas Haug (tba); Håvard Lund (cl, bcl); Nils Jansen (bsx, cl); Frode Haltli (acc); Morten Hannisdal (clo); Per Oddvar Johansen (d); strings. 10/02–3/04.

Reverting somewhat to the immaculate sound-painting of the debut, Seim delivers a magisterial record. There's the finest attention to the detail of breath moving through instruments, with wonderful contributions from Henriksen and from Jansen on bass sax in particular. Much of it is reminiscent of the Scandinavian choral tradition. One might complain that Seim seems less interested in rhythm, but Johansen, when he plays, makes the music shift, and oh-so-delicately introduces swing.

Esmond Selwyn (born 1948)

GUITAR

Londoner who came to notice with Don Rendell.

 Follow That Slam CD 240 Selwyn; Paul Sawtell (ky); Bill Coleman (b); Robin Jones (d). 11/99.

 The Axe Slam CD 265 Selwyn (g solo). 11/04, 2 & 3/05.

Selwyn has a lovely touch and his ballad playing on 'Prelude To A Kiss' is to die for. He's also assembled a very capable and responsive band. Perhaps the music needs a touch more dynamic variation, but no complaints. The debut is easily matched by the solo second disc, which has a richness of harmonic detail that is rare in unaccompanied playing and seldom reached even by the acknowledged masters of jazz guitar. The technique is immaculate with self-accompanied lines of such sophistication it often appears a second guitarist is playing rhythm or that Selwyn is overdubbed. It may be that he hasn't achieved wider recognition simply because he has preferred not to. If so, it makes his achievement all the more extraordinary. If not, time we wakened up to his genius.

Archie Semple (1928–74)

CLARINET

Edinburgh-born, he worked with Alex Welsh's band for some ten years from 1954. A nervous breakdown ruined his career and he played little after 1964.

 Featuring Archie Semple Lake LACD 240 Semple; Nat Gonella (t, v); Colin Smith (t); Roy Crimmins (tb); Fred Hunt (p); Bill Reid, Chris Staunton (b); Johnny Richardson (d); Beryl Bryden (v). 57.

 Night People Lake LACD 187 Semple; Alex Welsh (t); Fred Hunt (p); Jack Fallon (b). 60–61.

Semple had only a few turns in the limelight, and two of them – the LPs Jazz For Young Lovers and Night People – are reissued on the second of these Lakes. Half of the tracks are by Semple, Hunt and Fallon alone, but Archie's old boss Alex Welsh is on the rest. The music may be played by a group of trad stars, but it's more like – as the title suggests – a series of nocturnes, tranquil ballads given a musing and respectful treatment. A lot of the way, the clarinettist hardly bothers to depart from the melodies, and it's all in the breathy, slightly gargled tone which used to call up comparisons with Pee Wee Russell. The tracks with Welsh are a little saltier, and to that end a shade more satisfying; 22 tracks in this vein is perhaps too much of a certain good thing. The earlier record is bittier still and harder to take in one go, but given that it also features the Welsh band (minus Alex; Smith plays trumpet on half the cuts, Gonella on the rest), there's more than enough of interest going on. A nice remembrance of a much-loved figure.

Boyd Senter (1897–1982)

CLARINET, ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

Born in Nebraska, he learned piano, then switched to clarinet. He worked in Detroit during the '30s, eventually selling sports equipment and hardware items as well as playing.

 Jazzologist Supreme 1928–1930 Timeless CBC 1-032 Senter; Phil Napoleon, Mickey Bloom, James Migliore (t); Bill Haukenheiser (c); Tommy Dorsey, Charlie Butterfield, Ray Stilwell, Herb Winfield (tb); Fud Livingston (cl, ts); Jimmy Dorsey (as); Jack Russell, Frank Signorelli (p); Eddie Lang, Carl Kress (g); Dan Calker (bj, g); Ward Lay (b); Vic Berton, Stan King, Walter Meyer (d). 3/28–6/30.

Senter is a wryly beloved figure among collectors of early jazz. The 'Jazzologist Supreme' was shameless in producing some horrible sounds on the clarinet, and his most outlandish playing makes even Ted Lewis sound like Artie Shaw. Yet even in the midst of his barnyard phrasing and jackass effects, one can often discern a surprisingly tough and hard-bitten musician. He must have had some sense of humour about his music – why else would he name his band The Senterpedes? – and on the sessions where he's joined by the likes of Napoleon, Lang and the Dorseys there is the obvious compensation of some hot and classy New York jazz to set beside Senter's vaudevillian routines. In any case, tracks like 'Prickly Heat' and 'Mobile Blues' muster their own peculiar intensity. This is by no means a comprehensive edition of Senter's music (he even recorded several masters for Paramount), but it is a useful and excellently remastered group of his OKeh recordings. Brian Rust's sleeve-notes reveal that The Boss Of The Stomps eventually retired to selling saw blades and fishing tackle in Mio, Michigan.

Bud Shank (born 1926)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, FLUTE, PENNY WHISTLE

Originally a tenor-player, he switched and added flute while working with Charlie Barnet and Stan Kenton. The Ohioan's light, tender touch was a significant component of the Lighthouse All Stars, and the L.A. 4. Later embraced elements of bebop.

 Jazz In Hollywood Original Jazz Classics OJC 1890 Shank; Shorty Rogers (flhn); Jimmy Rowles, Lou Levy (p); Harry Babasin (b); Roy Harte, Larry Bunker (d). 3/54–9/54.

 Cool Fool Fresh Sound FSRCD 148 Shank; Maynard Ferguson (t); Bob Brookmeyer, Bob Enevoldsen (tb); Claude Williamson (p); Joe Mondragon (b); Shelly Manne (d). 54, 55.

 Bud Shank & Bill Perkins Blue Note 93159 Shank; Bill Perkins (as, ts, f); Hampton Hawes, Jimmy Rowles (p); Red Mitchell, Carson Smith, Ben Tucker, Leroy Vinnegar (b); Mel Lewis, Shelly Manne (d). 5/55–58.

 Live At The Haig Candid CCD 71030 Shank; Claude Williamson (p); Don Prell (b); Chuck Flores (d). 56.

 Blowin' Country Blue Note 94846 Shank; Bob Cooper (ts, bcl, ob); Claude Williamson (p); Don Prell (b); Chuck Flores (d). 11/56–6/57.

 Bud Shank Quartet Fresh Sound FSRCD 129 Shank; Claude Williamson (p); Don Prell (b); Chuck Flores, Jimmy Pratt (d). 11/56–4/58.

Bud Shank has been the quintessential West Coast altoman for more than 40 years. He has appeared on numberless sessions but his playing has remained sharp, piercingly thoughtful and swinging in a lean, persuasive way. He was once considered cool to the point of frigidity, and his later work has grown fiercer and more inclined to collar the listener; but the early albums have a kind of snake-eyed ingenuity. The trombones album is material originally released on ten-inch LPs, good for a glimpse of Ferguson and Brookmeyer in their early years but disappointing as a Shank set. Jazz In Hollywood is an interesting find, two rather rare albums for the Nocturne label combined on one disc. One was Shank's debut, with a quintet including frequent partner Rogers; the other features a trio date for Lou Levy. Live At The Haig is a strong set, marked by some fine Shank alto and some very good piano-playing from Williamson. Quartet rounds up some stray TV and South African dates, including one where Shank tries out the penny whistle.

The two Blue Notes, originally on Pacific, were reissued in 1998. Both are effectively co-led sessions with Bill Perkins and Bob Cooper respectively, though the Perkins material is drawn from a number of mid- to late-'50s dates and includes a trio version of 'I Hear Music' with just Hampton Hawes and rhythm. Bob Cooper brings his usual range of alternative horns to his session. The title comes from a Shank tune and doesn't refer to country and western music. Most of the tunes are familiar enough, but the set includes the lovely 'Two Lost Souls', the Steve Allen theme, and a delightful short version of 'I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face'.

* Lost In The Stars Fresh Sound FSRCD 18 Shank; Lou Levy (p). 12/90.

(*) I Told You So! Candid CCD 79533 Shank; Kenny Barron (p); Lonnie Plaxico (b); Victor Lewis (d). 6/92.

 Lopin' Hep CD 134 Shank; Don Lanphere (ts); Denny Goodhew (as); Marc Seales (p); Doug Miller (b); John Bishop (d). 92.

(*) New Gold! Candid CCD 79707 Shank; Conte Candoli (t); Bill Perkins (ts, ss); Jack Nimitz (bs); John Clayton (b); Sherman Ferguson (d). 12/93.

Lost In The Stars is a Sinatra songbook, marked by the quirky brilliance of Levy and by Shank's attractive alto sound which sounds as if it's been in and out of retirement as often as the man himself. 'This Love Of Mine', a much-overlooked standard, is played with just the right balance of sentiment and cynicism.

Lopin' is a nice bright set, taken at a comfortable pace. Goodhew is an underrated player and Seales is worthy of notice too, but it's Shank who dominates, sounding relaxed and unhurried whenever he takes a solo. Nice sound, very faithfully captured, with lots of room round the players.

New Gold! sees him steering comfortably towards his 70th birthday. Shank's own playing is exemplary, but it is Perkins who shapes the music round himself on this date. Though the varied package of songs suits Shank perfectly, he doesn't shine quite as brightly as he had on the previous I Told You So!, a splendidly gritty performance with a fine rhythm section.

 Plays The Music Of Bill Evans Fresh Sound FSRCD 5012 Shank; Mike Wofford (p); Bob Magnusson (b); Joe LaBarbera (d). 3/96.

Bud and Linda Shank were sorting through their music room when they came across a folder of charts which Bill Evans had put together for a date that never happened. This quartet session picked up the threads. Some of the tunes are beautifully handled, and Bud's original 'Evanescent' is a particular highlight. However, some of them are too stridently delivered ('Funkellero' is steamrollered), as if Shank were for once trying too hard.

 Silver Storm RAW 301 Shank; Conte Candoli (t); Bill Perkins (ts); Bill Mays (p); Bob Magnusson (b); Joe LaBarbera (d). 9/99.
Nestled away in the middle is 'Perkolator', a slice of dissonant free-jazz that is as unlike the other tracks on this pretty straightahead hard-bop session as you could imagine. There is nothing low-key about the session, which swings briskly from the off, with all three horn-players anxious to show that they've as much energy as ever. Bud's in great form on Gerry Mulligan's 'Idol Gossip' and he burns through his solos on 'My Shining Hour', 'Cotton Blossom' and 'Yardbird Suite'. Candoli and Perkins are in cracking form, too, and Bill's easy lope on the slower numbers is the perfect foil to Shank's impatience. What about 'Perkolator', though?

(*) Alone Together Fresh Sound FSRCD 5039 Shank; Rein de Graaf (p). 12/00.
A relaxed, but often musically pointed studio encounter recorded in Holland. The title-track is a bit of a chestnut, but Bud brings new life to it, and the pianist has everything he could ever possibly need under his fingers.

 On The Trail RAW 202 Shank; Conte Candoli (t); Jay Thomas (ss, ts); Bill Mays (p); Bob Magnusson (b); Joe LaBarbera (d). 01.
Conte Candoli died just before Christmas 2001. This was the last time he and Shank played together and, while it's by no means a vintage performance, it's a very effective and sometimes moving reminder of their long association. The Count is bright and almost antagonistic on the opening title-number, but for the most part he prefers a lower, softer register and a more spacious approach to theme statements and solos. Perhaps it's wishful hindsight, but Bud seems to give him lots of room, keeping his own solo statements relatively compact except on 'Tommyhawk' and the delightful 'California Medley'.

 Bouncing With Bud And Phil Capri 74071 SACD Shank; Phil Woods (as); Mike Wofford (p); Bob Magnusson (b); Bill Goodwin (d). 11/04.
The two septuagenarians live at Yoshi's. Some two-saxophone dates seem slightly pointless given how similar the players sound. Here, there's a marked difference between Shank's solid, slightly pugnacious sound and Woods's cooler, more Hodges-influenced approach. They're both in great form and the band, Wofford in particular, play a full part in proceedings. It's a good recording, but the SACD option doesn't yield much over regular stereo. The title-tune and 'Nature Boy' are the most familiar themes in an imaginative programme, but there are lines by George Cables and Gigi Gryce as well. Nicely thought out and well played.

 Beyond The Red Door Jazzed Media 1042 Shank; Bill Mays (p). 06.
An attractive but decidedly laid-back pairing that draws on a vast common pool of jazz playing and listening. Combining Russ Freeman's 'The Wind' with Jimmy Rowles's 'The Peacocks' was a fine stroke, but Shank and Mays mostly manage to avoid obviousness in their programme. Saxophone/piano duos can quickly lapse into drab cliché and merely 'conversational' playing. This one avoids that completely.

Also, in brief:

 Theme Music from The James Dean Story Pacific 543 247. 56.
A collaboration with jazz's own James Dean, Chet Baker.

 The Bossa Nova Years Ubatuqui 1053. 62–65.
Nice compilation of Latin material with Sergio Mendes guesting.

 California Concert Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 948. 5/85.
In more recent times Shank deployed a tougher bebop idiom. This is relatively tame, but nice to hear Bud and Shorty Rogers (t) in later years.

(*) By Request Milestone MCD 9273. 97.
The veteran altoman is still in formidable form on this standards meeting with a top-flight contemporary trio.

 After You, Jeru Fresh Sound FSRCD 5028. 12/98.
Other than the title-piece, devoted to Mulligan compositions. Shank's tenderest statement for years will appeal even to those who are unconvinced by his light and undramatic playing.

Charlie Shavers (1920–1971)

TRUMPET, VOICE

Already at work on the New York scene in his teens, he starred with John Kirby's small group and later with Tommy Dorsey. An underrated stylist who could be flashy and vulgar, yet an Armstrong man who could also play with discretion and lyrical beauty.

 Charlie Shavers & Ray Bryant Quartet Complete Recordings 1
Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10182 Shavers; Ray Bryant (p); Aaron Bell, Tommy Bryant (b); Oliver Jackson (d). 58–64.

 Charlie Shavers & Ray Bryant Quartet Complete Recordings 2
Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10183 As above, except omit Tommy Bryant and Jackson; add Roy Burns (d). 10/59–64.

 Charlie Shavers & Ray Bryant Quartet Complete Recordings 3
Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10184 As above, except omit Bell; add Billy Byers (tb), Jerome Richardson (as), Budd Johnson (ts), Bruce Martin (p), George Barnes (g), Tommy Bryant (b), Oliver Jackson, Oliver Johnson (d). 10/60–64.

(*) Horn O'Plenty Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10140 Shavers; Benny Morton, Urbie Green (tb); Buster Bailey, Sol Yaged (cl); Russell Procope (as); Sam 'The Man' Taylor (ts); Buddy Weed, Kenny Kersey, Billy Kyle (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Aaron Bell, Bob Haggart (b); Panama Francis, Specs Powell, Cozy Cole (d); Maxine Sullivan (v). 10/54–58.

 Complete Intimate Interpretations Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10159 Shavers; orchestra conducted by Sy Oliver. 55.
Lone Hill Jazz have reissued almost everything Shavers did under his own name in the LP era. Received wisdom always had it that Shavers was little more than a showbiz show-off, but most of these tracks refute the claim altogether. The various sessions with Bryant are mostly calm and collected. Charlie tends to amble through the music, rarely extending himself to a high C and the sort of thing he was required to do at JATP shows. Instead, there is a lot of pretty playing on projects dedicated to French tunes (Charlie Digs Paree), warhorses (Charlie Digs Dixie, though he does them with good grace) and a stack of standards. Bryant fills in and the rhythm team simply mark time. Inconsequential, but they're a pleasing feature for his horn. The third disc ends with a larger band and a date which was released as Excitement Unlimited, but it's actually very tame, though it's nice to hear Charlie breezing through the Gillespie role on 'A Night In Tunisia'.

Horn O' Plenty is probably the one to get if you want a single example of Shavers. The 1954 sextet date which opens it includes a fairly outrageous 'Dark Eyes', which shows off the great man's exuberance a treat, a fine 'Moten Swing' and 'Story Of The Jazz Trumpet', where Charlie coolly goes through Armstrong, Eldridge, Cootie Williams, Ziggy Elman, Harry James and Gillespie. There are five delightful tracks with Buster Bailey and two vocals by Maxine Sullivan, and the disc ends with a session of Cole Porter tunes, with some surprisingly fine work from Sam Taylor and Sol Yaged. Complete Intimate Interpretations has Charlie playing pretty for the people again, with Sy Oliver's charts cushioning the big sound.

Artie Shaw (1910–2004)

CLARINET

Arthur Arshawsky was born in New York and was a dance-band musician before forming his own ensemble in 1936. Though his orchestra became one of the major swing-era big bands, he resisted commercialism and disbanded several orchestras during the period 1939–44. As a clarinettist, he was as accomplished as Benny Goodman and the major soloist in his own band. He had several marriages, became a gifted writer of fiction and was interested in psychoanalysis. Rarely performed after 1949, though he conducted in the 80s and 90s.

(*) Artie Shaw 1936 Classics 855 Shaw; Willie Kelly, Lee Castaldo, Dave Wade, Zeke Zarchy (t); Mark Bennett, Mike Michaels, Buddy Morrow (tb); Tony Zimmers, Tony Pastor (ts); Fulton McGrath, Joe Lippman (p); Wes Vaughan, Tony Gottuso, Gene Stultz (g); Hank Wayland, Ben Ginsberg (b); Sammy Weiss, George Wettling (d); Peg La Centra (v); Julie Schechter, Lou Klaymann, Sam Persoff, Jimmy Oderich, Jerry Gray, Frank Siegfield, Bill Schumann, Ben Plotkin (strings). 6–11/36.

 In The Beginning Hep CD 1024 As above. 6–12/36.

 Artie Shaw 1936–1937 Classics 886 Shaw; Lee Castle, Zeke Zarchy, John Best, Malcolm Crain, Tom Di Carlo (t); Buddy Morrow, Harry Rodgers, George Arus (tb); Les Robinson, Art Masters, Harry Freeman (as); Tony Pastor (ts, v); Fred Petry (ts); Joe Lippman, Les Burness (p); Tony Gottuso, Al Avola (g); Ben Ginsberg (b); Sam Weiss, Cliff Leeman (d); Peg La Centra (v); Jerry Gray, Sam Persoff, Bill Schumann (strings). 12/36–7/37.

 The Chant Hep 1046 As above. 12/36–8/37.

 Artie Shaw 1937 Classics 929 As above, except omit Castle, Zarchy, Morrow, Masters, Petry, Lippman, Gottuso, Weiss, Gray, Persoff, Schumann, La Cetra; add Jules Rubin (ts); Dolores O'Neil, Nita Bradley, Bea Wain, Leo Watson (v). 8–12/37.

 Non-Stop Flight Hep 1048 As above. 8–12/37.

Shaw's amazing life makes his records seem tame. They form a unique part of the jazz literature, although his real successes were comparatively few and his ambitions always outran his achievements. His sessions for Brunswick, which represent the start of his story on record, have only himself as any kind of soloist, and with haphazard material and the oddly backward rhythm section, it's unsurprising that Shaw was considered minor league at the start of the swing era. But there are glimmers of light, and there is the then extraordinary sound of the string section meeting the band on numbers like 'Sugar Foot Stomp' and 'Sobbin' Blues'. Shaw's second band (his 'New Music') arrived in 1937 and soon sounded like a sleeker and more powerful unit, though the great finesse of the Victor sides was yet to become apparent – even Shaw's playing is hit and miss. 'Nightmare', which would later be his first theme, showed a more interesting direction, and with the hiring of Leo Watson as vocalist, the band seemed a much hipper outfit.

The Classics and Hep releases follow a similar course, but while Hep's transfers are usually clean and clear, the Classics tracks are another motley lot.

(*) Artie Shaw 1938 Classics 965 Shaw; Chuck Peterson, John Best, Claude Bowen, Bernie Privin (t); George Arus, Ted Vesley, Harry Rodgers, Russell Brown, Les Jenkins (tb); Les Robinson, Hank Freeman, George Koenig (as); Tony Pastor (ts, v); Ronnie Perry, Georgie Auld (ts); Les Burness, Bob Kitsis (p); Al Avola (g); Sid Weiss (b); Cliff Leeman, George Wettling (d); Billie Holiday, Helen Forrest (v). 7–12/38.

* Artie Shaw 1939 Classics 1007 As above, except omit Bowen, Vesley, Brown, Koenig, Burness, Leeman, Wettling and Holiday; add Buddy Rich (d). 1–3/59.

(*) Artie Shaw 1939 Vol. 2 Classics 1045 Similar to above. 3–8/39.

(*) Artie Shaw 1939–1940 Classics 1087 Shaw; Chuck Peterson, Billy Butterfield, Harry Geller, Bernie Privin, Charles Margulis, Manny Klein, George Thow (t); George Arus, Les Jenkins, Harry Rogers, Randall Miller, Bill Rank, Babe Bowman (tb); John (Jack) Cave (frhn); Les Robinson, Hank Freeman, Blake Reynolds, Bud Carlton, Jack Stacey, Ben Kanter, Lyle Bowen (as); Tony Pastor (ts, v); Georgie Auld, Dick Clark, Happy Lawson (ts); Joe Krechter (bcl); Morton Ruderman (f); Phil Nemoli (ob); Bob Kitsis, Stan Wrightsman, Lyle Henderson (p); Al Avola, Bobby Sherwood (g); Sid Weiss, Jud DeNaut (b); Buddy Rich, Carl Maus, Spencer Prinz (d); Helen Forrest, Pauline Byrne, Martha Tilton (v); strings. 8/39–5/40.

Although 'Begin The Beguine' made him a success – Shaw switched the original beguine beat to a modified 4/4, and its lilting pulse was irresistible – the huge hit he scored with it was greeted with loathing when it dawned on him what it meant in terms of fawning fans and general notoriety. He never seemed satisfied with his bands, and the four different orchestras on the Bluebird compilation played through a series of break-ups and disbandments by the leader. The second band, with arrangements by Jerry Gray and with Buddy Rich powering the rhythm section, was a harder-hitting outfit than the original Shaw 'New Music'. But best sides are still scattered, although the new Shaw-selected box (listed at the end of this entry) rectifies matters somewhat.

Classics have the first four Victor sessions with its first disc (in reasonable if sometimes rather brutal-sounding remasters). A generous 24 tracks make an impressive disc. It starts with 'Begin the Beguine' and goes on through many of Shaw's most enterprising records. Billie Holiday turns in her one Shaw appearance on 'Any Old Time' and there are ten appealing vocals by Helen Forrest. But it's the gusto of the band and Shaw's piercing solos one remembers, a quite astonishing advance on the music of only a little over a year earlier. This sounds like a swing master close to full command.

Classics 1007 carries on the story in style – these are good-sounding transfers. One is impressed with how often Shaw got a musical result of one sort or another. Listen to the way the band makes the melody line of 'The Man I Love' sing, or how Shaw makes the most of even a bit of hokum like 'The Donkey Serenade'. Only ten of the 22 tracks sport a vocal – a very low strike-rate compared to most other white bands of the day – and even then Shaw could boast the admirable Helen Forrest as his singer. It's sometimes disappointing that there weren't more interesting soloists to emerge from the band, but Shaw by himself is always worth listening to. Track for track, this is a marvellous portrait of a swing band.

Classics 1045 sees a slackening in the quality of the material, but Shaw still delivers some excellent individual records such as 'One Foot In the Groove' and 'Out Of Nowhere', as well as the hit coupling of 'Traffic Jam' and 'Serenade To A Savage'. Even on the more routine songs, the band's accomplished playing draws its own rewards, and Forrest's singing is a further bonus. Classics 1087 has its own share of indifferent material – despite featuring 'Oh! Lady Be Good', a terrific chart and one of Shaw's biggest hits – and Forrest has to sing some real fluff on the first four sessions, after which Shaw broke up the band and retreated to Mexico. He was back in Los Angeles only months later with a new band, this time with strings attached. It was a recording outfit only and never appeared live; but the experiment worked, since it gave Shaw another big hit in 'Frenesi'.

 Artie Shaw 1940 Classics 1127 Shaw; Harry Geller, Manny Klein, George Thow, Billy Butterfield, George Wendt, Jack Cathcart (t); Jack Jenny, Vernon Brown (tb); John (Jack) Cave (frhn); Ben Kanter, Lyle Bowen, Jack Stacey, Bus Bassey, Neely Plumb (as); Happy Lawson, Les Robinson, Jerry Jerome (ts); Joe Krechter (bcl); Lyle Henderson (p); Johnny Guarnieri (p, phchd); Bobby Sherwood, Al Hendrickson (g); Jud Denaut (b); Spencer Prinz, Nick Fatool (d); Pauline Byrne, Jack Pearle, Anita Boyer (v); strings. 5–12/40.

 Artie Shaw 1940–1941 Classics 1167 As above, except omit Geller, Klein, Thow, Cave, Kanter, Bowen, Stacey, Lawson, Krechter, Henderson, Sherwood, Prinz, Byrne, Pearle; add Henry 'Red' Allen (t), Ray Conniff, J. C. Higginbotham (tb), Benny Carter (as), Sonny White (p), Jimmy Shirley (g); Billy Taylor (b), Shep Shepherd (d), Lena Horne (v). 12/40–6/41.

 Artie Shaw 1941–1942 Classics 1206 Shaw; Hot Lips Page (t, v); Lee Castle, Steve Lipkins, Max Kaminsky (t); Jack Jenney, Ray Conniff, Morey Samuel (tb); Les Robinson, Gene Kinsey, Charlie DiMaggio (as); Georgie Auld, Mickey Folus (ts); Johnny Guarnieri (p); Mike Bryan (g); Eddie McKimmey (b); Dave Tough (d); Bonnie Lake, Paula Kelly, Georgia Gibbs (v); strings. 9/41–1/42.

The final session by the West Coast band opens Classics 1127. Then comes the first date by the Gramercy Five, Shaw's new small-group-within-a-big-band, which pursued his chamberish ideals further. 'Special Delivery Stomp' and 'Summit Ridge Drive' were its first titles, and remain two of the best. After this, Shaw formed his fourth new orchestra, and its first four sessions yielded an excellent 'Stardust', Ellington's 'Pyramid' and William Still's portentous but interesting two-parter 'Blues'.

Classics 1167 has more by the Gramercy Five and some very good orchestra tracks – 'Who's Excited' and 'Georgia On My Mind'. The main interest here is in the two-part 'Concerto For Clarinet' – one of the classic set-pieces of the swing era, kitsch though it may have been – and a final all-star session in which Shaw's clarinet features alongside Henry Allen, J. C. Higginbotham and Benny Carter.

Classics 1206 takes the story on into 1942 – and another new orchestra. The jazz content is under tighter control here, and mood pieces of the order of 'Suite No. 8' and 'Beyond The Blue Horizon' bridge Shaw's ambition with his dancers' requirements. But Lips Page's arrival and occasional feature is a warmer ingredient, and there are one or two more swinging charts such as 'Just Kiddin' Around' and 'Deuces Wild'. Throughout all three discs, Shaw's own playing retains its tough consistency, seemingly oblivious to its various settings, or at least, adaptable to any of them. As usual, the Classics transfers are dependable if a little short on overall sparkle.

* Artie Shaw 1945 Classics 1277 Shaw; Roy Eldridge, Stan Fishelson, Bernie Glow, George Schwartz (t); Gus Dickson, Bob Swift, Ollie Wilson, Harry Rodgers (tb); Lou Prisby, Rudy Tanza (as); Herb Steward, Ralph Roselund, John Walton (ts); Chuck Gentry (bs); Dodo Marmarosa (p); Barney Kessel (g); Morris Rayman (b); Lou Fromm (d); Dorothy Allen. 6–9/45.

(*) Artie Shaw 1945–1946 Classics 1330 As above, except add Ray Linn, Paul Cohen, Zeke Zarchy, Clyde Hurley, Manny Klein (t); Fred Fox, Jack Kirksmith, James Decker, Harry Parshal (flhn); Elmer Smithers, Hoyt Bohannon, Joe Howard (tb); Les Robinson, Heinie Beau, Deacon Dunn, Don Raffell, Chuck Gentry, Herman Berardinelli, Joe Krechter, Skeets Herfurt, Harold Lawson (saxes); Harold Lewis (f); Gordon Pope (ob); Jules Seder, Charles Graveer (bsn); Tommy Todd, Mark McIntyre, Milt Raskin (p); Al Hendrickson, Dave Barbour (g); Phil Stephens, Art Shapiro, Morris Rayman (b); Nick Fatool, Lou Singer (d); Kitty Kallen, Hal Stevens, Mel Tormé, The Mel-Tones (v); strings. 7/45–6/46.

 1945 Spotlight Bands Broadcasts Jazz Unlimited 201 2088 Unlisted personnel but likely as above discs. 9–10/45.

The sheer beauty of Shaw's big-band sound comes through most strongly, perhaps, on his mid-'40s dates, and there's hardly a track on Classics 1277 in particular which doesn't luxuriate in it: the reed section is sublime, the trumpets almost golden. There were few vocals to distract (only four on the whole disc) and besides Shaw himself there's Eldridge and Marmarosa, and the set ends on Eddie Sauter's remarkable chart for 'The Maid With The Flaccid Air'. Perhaps the likes of 'Lament' did aspire to be high-quality mood-music, in the then-burgeoning Thornhill manner, but that's Shaw for you.

Classics 1330 isn't quite as good, since half-way through the band depart Victor (where they were handsomely recorded, too) and move to Musicraft, with a newish personnel and banks of strings. The final Victor sessions have some more excellent music, though, and there are four sides with the Gramercy Five. Mel Tormé's arrival doesn't hurt, either. The transfers on both discs sound fine. The Jazz Unlimited set collects five broadcast dates from 1945.

 Artie Shaw 1946–1950 Classics 1368 Shaw; Zeke Zarchy, Clyde Hurley, Manny Klein, Ray Linn, Frank Beach, Don Fagerquist, Don Paladino, Dale Pierce, Victor Ford (t); Si Zentner, Elmer Smithers, Joe Howard, Ed Kusby, Bill Schaefer, Sonny Russo, Porky Cohen, Freddy Zito, Bart Varsalona (tb); Vince DeRosa, James Stagliano, Jack Kirksmith, Richard Perissi (frhn); Skeets Herfurt, Joe Krechter, Harold Lawson, Don Raffell, Chuck Gentry, Jack Mayhew, Herman Berardinelli, Harry Klee, Babe Russin, Bob Lawson, Herbie Haymer, Herbie Steward, Frank Socolow, Al Cohn, Zoot Sims, Danny Bank (saxes); Jules Seder, Charles Graver (bsn); Gordon Pope (ob); Milt Raskin, Mark McIntyre, Dodo Marmarosa, Gil Barriois (p); Dave Barbour, Allen Reuss, Jimmy Raney (g); Art Shapiro, Phil Stephens, Arnold Fishkin, Dick Nivison (b); Nick Fatool, Lou Singer, Irv Kluger (d); Chano Pozo, Jose Manguiel, Ubal Nieto, Robert Rodriguez (perc); Mel Tormé, The Mel-Tones (v); strings. 6/46–1/50.

 Artie Shaw 1951–1954 Classics 1413 Shaw; Money Johnson, Jimmy Nottingham, Bernie Privin, Billy Butterfield, Andy Ferretti, Dale McMickle, Bart Wallace, Chris Griffin (t); Mort Bullman, Bobby Byrne, Henderson Chambers, Bob Alexander, Will Bradley, Kai Winding, Jack Satterfield, Lou McGarity (tb); Jimmy Buffington, John Barrows (frhn); Hymie Schertzer, Milt Yaner, Art Drelinger, Al Klink, Bill Holcomb, Romeo Penque, Manny Thaler (saxes); Stan Freeman, Bob Kitsis, Billy Taylor, Bernie Leighton, Hank Jones (p); Joe Roland (vIb); Danny Perri, George Barnes, Barry Galbraith, Art Ryerson, Tal Farlow (g); Bob Haggart, Sandy Bloch, Trigger Alpert, Tommy Potter (b); Bunny Shawker, Johnny Blowers, Buddy Schutz, Don Lamond, Irv Kluger (d); Trudy Richards, June Hutton, Connee Boswell (v); strings. 1/51–3/54.

Classics' marathon documentation approaches the finish with these three discs. Classics 1368 opens with Shaw's final dates for Musicraft, attractive if inessential music; some of the most agreeable parts are Mel Torme's vocals, which show the young voice in radiant form on the likes of 'They Can't Convince Me'. After yet another disbandment Shaw immersed himself in classical music, and the eventual result was the four titles made for Columbia in 1949, two with a vast orchestra and two with a 'New Music String Quartet', offering 'Rendezvous For Clarinet And Strings'. But there was no musical revolution, just some moody string-and-clarinet music. Six months later the big band was back.

The 1950 disc (see below) is the weakest of the series from a strictly jazz point of view, and Classics 1413 continues in much the same vein, though there are some appealing vocals by June Hutton and Connee Boswell, Shaw's own playing is elegant, and the transfer quality is markedly improved. The disc also ends with six titles by a new Gramercy Five, including Hank Jones, and though Joe Roland's vibes lend a Shearing-like feel to it all, the leader sounds more interested than he has for some time.

CORE COLLECTION

 Self Portrait

Bluebird 09026-63808-2 5CD As discs above; add Roy Eldridge, Stan Fishelson, Bernie Glow, George Schwartz, Manny Klein, Ray Linn, Clyde Harley (t); Harry Rogers, Gus Dixon, Ollie Wilson, Bob Swift, Si Zentner (tb); Rudy Tanza, Lou Prisby, Skeets Herfurt (as); Herbie Steward, Jon Walon (ts); Chuck Gentry (bs); Dodo Marmarosa, Milt Raskin, Hank Jones (p); Barney Kessel, Tal Farlow, Dave Barbour (g); Morris Rayman, Artie Shapiro, Tommy Potter (b); Lou Fromm, Nick Fatool, Irv Kluger (d); Mel Torme, Mel-Tones, Lillian Lane, Ralph Blane, Kitty Kallen (v). 9/38–6/54

Selected by Shaw himself, and discussed by the leader in conversation with Richard Sudhalter, this is an impressive shot at the definitive Shaw collection – even if some of it might be thought subject to its maker's own caprices. He sometimes chooses broadcast versions of tunes over their studio originals, and the notes are boastful and self-deprecating at the same moment – inimitable Shaw. His choices reflect his ambitions, though fortunately that seems to have allowed the inclusion of his greatest hits along the way, and it does take the story up to the final sessions of 1954, which are otherwise currently unavailable. We find the remastering by Dennis Ferrante something of a mixed blessing. The later material sounds excellent, but some of the original Bluebird pressings from the late '30s are very hard to get undistorted sparkle from, and this problem doesn't seem to have been completely overcome.

Also, in brief:

 Hollywood Palladium 1941 /  In Hollywood 1940–41 Volume 2 Hep 19 / Hep 55. 7/40–9/41; 9/40–3/41.

Two further discs of airshots, culled from numerous Hollywood broadcasts, where Shaw was working on films and the Burns and Allen show. Interesting footnotes for the Shaw specialist.

() The Artistry Of Artie Shaw Fresh Sound FSR-CD 397. 12/49.

Considering the personnel and the possibilities – of Shaw meeting the early cool movement, if not bebop – this is a disappointment.

() Artie Shaw 1950 Classics 1397. 1–10/50.

Almost no jazz interest in this oddball collection, which is also marred by faulty sound, including incorrect speed (!) on at least one transfer.

Ian Shaw (born 1962)

VOICE, PIANO

Born in Wales, he studied music in London where since the late '80s he has worked almost constantly. He likes to move between genres.

(*) Ghostsongs / The Echo Of A Song Ronnie Scott's Jazz House JHCD207 Shaw; Mornington Lockett (sax, cl); Iain Ballamy (sax); Simon Wallace (p); John Parricelli (g); Adrian York (p, syn); Geoff Gascoyne (b); Mark Fletcher (d). 95, 96.

These are now available together and somehow work better in bulk. There are fine jazz performances on both. Ian's take on 'Goodbye, Pork Pie Hat' probably reflects an ongoing interest in Joni Mitchell's stylings, but 'Blame It On My Youth' is tinged with the kind of chastened melancholy Art Farmer brings to the old Hayman/Levant theme. They're both from Ghostsongs. The highlight of the later album is the closing 'Goodnight Angel', which is unvarnished vocal expression.

(*) In A New York Minute Milestone 9297-2 Shaw; Iain Ballamy (as, ts); Cedar Walton (p); David Williams (b). 9/98.

The bare-bones accompaniment of Walton and Williams is a setting which would make almost any singer sound good; it takes Shaw close to greatness. Though he's flirted with soul, pop and supper-club styles in the past, he folds all his expertise into a bullseye delivery in these songs. He doesn't really swing in the manner of a Torme descendant and tends to fashion his own tightrope relationship with the beat, which in the past has often seemed jerky. But the urgent mannerisms of 'Standing In the Dark' have taken on a conviction which presents an artist in his maturity and his prime; and the passionate embrace of many of these lyrics recalls a cadre of singers (Mark Murphy is the obvious reference-point) who could mix beat-poetry slickness with torch-song sensuality. The songs are beautifully chosen, from the title-piece (thankfully, Fran Landesmann's song, not Don Henley's lugubrious effort of the same title) to a graceful 'Wouldn't It Be Loverly', to a slow, chastening 'Last Night When We Were Young'. Icing on this cake: Iain Ballamy's sax contributions, which are marvellous.

 A World Still Turning 441 Records 20 Shaw; Eric Alexander (ts); Paul Bollenback (g); Billy Childs (p); Peter Washington (b); Mark Fletcher (d); Mark Murphy (v). 6/03.

How extraordinary that Shaw seems willing to churn out drab standards jazz one moment and then turn in a set as engaged, passionate and musically rewarding as this one the next. The outstanding performance here is 'Rockabye', no relation to the Samuel Beckett play, though possibly inspired by it, which deals with the grief of a bereaved Gulf War mother. A stunning performance. He does the obligatory Radiohead cover right at the end; 'The Tourist' is one of their better songs and this version adds a nice dimension to it. Alexander, Childs (with whom he duos on 'I'm Glad There Is You') and Bollenback are both in great form. A guest spot from Murphy puts Shaw's singing into perspective, though.

(*) Drawn To All Things Linn AKD 276 Shaw; Guy Barker (t); Nigel Hitchcock (sax); Tim Lapthorn, Janette Mason (p); Richard

Cottle (ky); Jim Mullen, David Preston (g); Simon Little (b); Mark Fletcher (d); Miles Bould (perc); Lea DeLaria, Claire Martin (v); Tapestry Strings. 06.

Linn's justifiably admired production gives this project a special gloss. The singing is pretty good as well, with enough of the dry, almost cynical edge that Mitchell brings to her own material. 'Both Sides Now' has been done as everything from a melancholy crawl to a rocked out burner. Shaw pitches it just about perfectly. Similarly with 'Chelsea Morning' and 'Barangrill'. We're not sure the strings were essential, but they bring a lushness to what otherwise might seem a touch bleak.

Also, in brief:

(*) Taking It To Hart Jazz House 1053. 94.

A dreary retro set, with Carol Grimes and Mari Wilson guesting.

 Soho Stories Milestone 9316-2. 9/00.

Joel Siegel's notes won't please patriotic Britons ('British jazz players don't swing'), even if he's meant to be building up Shaw.

Jaleel Shaw

ALTO SAXOPHONE

He saw service in the Mingus Big Band and won an ASCAP Young Jazz Composer Award. John Coltrane and Bobby Watson are both influences.

 Perspective Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 222 Shaw; Mark Turner (ts); Robert Glasper (p); Lage Lund (g); Vicente Arthur (b); Johnathan Blake (d). 2/04.

Shaw has talent by the bucket-load. Deservedly rewarded for 'The Heavyweight Champion', his tribute to Coltrane, he writes well and has an able collaborator in the shape of guitarist Lund. The tone is sometimes less than ingratiating and a more deliberate approach to solo-building might be advisable. Even so, Shaw has set out his stall and is certainly a man to watch.

Woody Shaw (1944–89)

TRUMPET

Father sang gospel music, and young Woody studied trumpet at 11. Worked with the Eric Dolphy band until 1964, then played in Europe, with Horace Silver, Max Roach and eventually, in the '70s, his own regular bands.

 Blackstone Legacy Contemporary 762728 Shaw; Gary Bartz (as); Bennie Maupin (ts, bcl); George Cables (p); Ron Carter, Clint Houston (b); Lenny White (d). 12/70.

(*) Song Of Songs Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1893-2 Shaw; Emmanuel Boyd (ts, f); Bennie Maupin, Ramon Morris (ts); George Cables (p); Henry Franklin (b); Woodrow Theus II (d). 9/72.

Woody made his recording debut with Eric Dolphy at the age of 19 in what are usually thought of as the Iron Man/Jitterbug Waltz sessions. One reviewer was convinced that 'Woody Sho'' was a nom de session for Freddie Hubbard, inexplicably when you listen to his Navarro- and Morgan-inspired attack and phrasing. It was Dolphy who taught Woody to play 'inside and outside at the same time', but it was listening to the classics that awakened a player with perfect pitch to the subtler nuances of harmony. Like all imaginative Americans, Woody was violently stretched between opposites and inexorably drawn to the things and the places that would destroy him. Europe drew him for all the usual non-musical reasons, but there is a sense, too, that Woody's foreshortened career represented a sustained fugue from the racially constrained job-description of the 'jazz musician'.

Woody's best-known composition was actually premiered on Larry Young's Blue Note classic, Unity, but his own version of 'The Moontrane' is currently out of print. The eponymous album, like the rest of Woody's output for Muse, has vanished with the demise of 32 Jazz, leaving the Shaw discography depressingly thin again. Woody's debut as leader was Blackstone Legacy. He'd already recorded Cassandranite/In The Beginning for Muse, but these sides weren't released until the '80s. The 1970 album is a valuable reappearance, but it is very much tied up with a seismic shift in jazz that followed Miles Davis's Bitches Brew experiments and it stands as a rather isolated performance, dense, brooding, over-produced and somewhat slack in execution. Shaw does sound like free-range Hubbard on the title-track and 'New World', but he is already finding a voice of his own, somewhere between Miles and the harder-edged boppers. Bartz and Maupin provide strong support and some lovely textures and Cables demonstrates his underrated mastery of the Fender Rhodes.

Song Of Songs was his second record as leader. Wonderful it is, but also undeniably timelocked, heavily dependent on George Cables's electric piano effects; yet swinging and propulsive too. Woody's four compositions are still not fully assimilated, and not many contemporary players would attempt something as sardonic as 'The Goat And The Archer'. Redundant as it may be to make the point again, had Shaw been picked up by a sensitive label and producer at this point, afforded the players and the studio time his exacting concept demanded, then who knows what he might have achieved. As it is, these two albums are among the best he did until the brief starburst of the '80s.

 Live: Volume 1 High Note HCD 7051 Shaw; Carter Jefferson (ss, ts); Larry Willis (p); Stafford James (b); Victor Lewis (d). 77.

 Live: Volume 2 High Note HCD 7089 As above, except add Steve Turre (tb). 77.

 Live: Volume 3 High Note HCD 7102 As above, except add Mulgrew Miller (p). 77.

Imaginatively kicking off with Joe Bonner's 'Love Dance', the first volume is a strong blowing set from what was at the time a pretty settled band, caught at the Keystone Korner. The interaction with Willis (composer of 'Light Valley') and underrated saxophonist Jefferson works very well indeed, and the only longueur on an otherwise strong disc is Lewis's featured 'Why'. And well we might ask.

We had reservations about the value of another two volumes in this sequence and they have been borne out. There is strong playing on all three sets, notably 'Rahsaan's Run' and 'What Is This Thing Called Love?' on Volume 2 and 'Little Red's Fantasy' on Volume 3, but we'd question that any but committed Shaw fans will want the whole set. A judicious double CD would have sufficed, even if it meant missing some interesting work from Steve Turre and Mulgrew Miller, who sat in for part of the residency.

* Rosewood Columbia CK 65519 Shaw; Steve Turre (tb, btb); Janice Robinson (tb); Carter Jefferson (ss, ts); James Vass (ss, as); Joe Henderson (ts); Frank Wess (f, picc); Art Webb (f); Onaje Allan Gumbs (p); Lois Colin (hp); Clint Houston (b); Victor Lewis (d); Sammy Figueroa, Armen Halburian (perc). 12/77.

Not for nothing was Rosewood voted Best Jazz Album of 1978 in Down Beat. It is one of the most ambitious projects Shaw was ever involved in, and though he wrote only one of the pieces performed by the large-scale Concert Ensemble, his hand is evident throughout a well-balanced and expansive set.

Woody's sole writing credit is the title-piece, an idea to set alongside 'The Moontrane' and 'Song Of Songs' as among his very best. The other titles are Victor Lewis's intriguing 'The Legend Of Cheops', Allan Gumbs's 'Every Time I See You' and Clint Houston's nondescript 'Sunshowers'. Significantly, this last is the only track not to feature the splendid Joe Henderson, who graces both the larger ensemble and the small group which delivers 'Rahsaan's Run' and 'Theme For Maxine', another tribute to Mrs Shaw. In Joe's company, Shaw sounds blithe and thoughtful at the same time, riveting bright points of sound into Joe's leathery tone.

A less thoroughly compelling statement than Song Of Songs, this immaculately produced CBS session underlines what Shaw might have done if health and inclination had lent his career more shape and consistency.

 Live: Volume Four High Note HCD 7139 Shaw; Steve Turre (tb); Larry Willis (p); Stafford James (b); Victor Lewis (d). 81.
Shaw rarely sounded as close to Miles Davis as this. The impression's reinforced by his use of a Harmon mute on three standards here, all taken at Miles's favourite tempo. There is a very different sensibility at work, though. Where Miles camouflaged real anguish with elegance, Shaw seems to pick it apart in an attempt to rationalize it. There are curious harmonic puzzles at work in 'Bye Bye Blackbird' and 'It Could Happen To You'. The original 'Opec' is teed up with a furious salvo from Lewis, which seems to clear the way for some darkly philosophical statements from both Shaw and the wry Turre. All of these men had worked together before and while the group doesn't quite have the limber quality one heard in 1977, there are new dimensions to these performances that make this the most convincing of the series. Individual items are long, possibly too long, and some Teo Macero editing wouldn't have gone amiss, but the thrust of the music is consistently fascinating.

(*) Bemsha Swing Live Blue Note CDP 7243 8 29029 2 Shaw; Geri Allen (p); Robert Hurst (b); Roy Brooks (d). 2/86.
Ten years after his death, Shaw sounds more than ever like a lost genius, someone whose career was never adequately steered or sufficiently appreciated. These live sessions from Baker's Keyboard Lounge in Detroit are dominated by Monk tunes, and it is fascinating to compare Woody's handling of the bebop keyboard legacy with his reinterpretations of Sonny Clark material at the Mount Fuji Jazz Festival later on that same summer. Fascinating, too, to hear him in the presence of a player of Geri Allen's sensibilities. The long unravelling of 'Well, You Needn't' exposes a few longueurs and what seem to be repetitions in Woody's playing. Closer examination, though, suggests that he was deliberately exploring tiny modulations. His improvisations have a shifting, almost fugitive quality by this stage, but it is still easy to overlook their subtleties.

Allen was probably doing some of her most interesting work at this stage, harmonically adventurous, percussive and rhythmically very tight. There are moments when Hurst and Brooks disappear into the background, leaving the piano to carry the load. 'Bemsha Swing' itself is a cracking opener, and there are also strong interpretations of Wayne Shorter's rarely covered 'United', Woody's own 'Ginseng People' and 'In A Capricornian Way', and a closing reading of 'Star Eyes' that shows how much Shaw learned from earlier boppers like Fats Navarro and Howard McGhee. A strong live set.

George Shearing (born 1919)

PIANO, ACCORDION, VOICE

Born blind to a poor London family, he trained as a classical pianist but turned to jazz. He played dance band gigs before settling in the USA in 1946. His quintet won a huge following in a light music smooth-jazz mould. Knighted in 2007.

 The London Years Hep CD 1042 Shearing; Leonard Feather (p); Carlo Krahmer (d). 3/39–12/43.
Shearing's early recordings are in some ways slight, given that he glossed over bop's passion with a tinkling niceness that suggested a clever pianist merely toying with the music. But the occasional parallels with Lennie Tristano suggest the more profound direction Shearing could have gone in; that he chose a more temperate kind of commercial climate leaves one of those might-have-beens that jazz is full of. His earliest records are in any case a showcase of swing piano, recorded in London in the early years of the war. The Hep CD collects 25 tracks and is an enjoyable, witty sequence of solos (there are two early tracks with Krahmer and one with Feather on piano, where Shearing squeezes a few dolorous blues chords out of the accordion). There are many entertaining bits of Tatum, Waller and Wilson in the pianist's style, and these tracks might surprise anyone unfamiliar with his first period.

(*) Verve Jazz Masters: George Shearing Verve 529900-2 Shearing; Marjorie Hyams, Cal Tjader, Joe Roland, Don Elliott (vib); Chuck Wayne, Dick Garcia (g); John Levy, Al McKibbon (b); Denzil Best, Marquis Foster, Bill Clark (d); Armando Peraza (perc). 49–54.
These are the MGM recordings which established the Shearing quintet as a commercial force. Clever rather than profound, appealing rather than attention-grabbing, the front line of piano, vibes and guitar was a refreshing sound which, when allied to memorable themes such as 'Lullaby Of Birdland', proved immensely popular. Shearing had been listening closely to bebop and synthesized what he needed from it to make a cool, modern sound. At this distance, away from any controversy about its standing, the results are smoothly enjoyable on any level. This compilation brings together the expected hits and the slightly more challenging material such as 'Conception', which was once covered by Miles Davis (although Shearing did complain that Miles got the bridge wrong!).

(*) Quintets At Newport Pablo 5315-2 Shearing; Nat Adderley (t); Cannonball Adderley (as); Emil Richards (vib); Toots Thielemans (g); Al McKibbon (b); Percy Brice (d); Armando Peraza (perc). 7/57.
While this is shared with a brief set by the Cannonball Adderley quintet, the Shearing music (from the 1957 Newport Festival) is the more remarkable. They open with a furiously fast Ray Brown tune, 'Pawn Ticket', which is enough to leave the leader out of breath for his following announcement. Thereafter it's more like business as usual until the Adderleys themselves sit in for a tumultuous blues, 'Soul Station', which once again leaves George breathless. Coupled with five strong Adderley numbers, this is all in wonderful high spirits.

(*) The Swingin's Mutual! Capitol 97935-2 Shearing; Eddie Costa (vib); Dick Garcia (g); George Duvivier (b); Walter Bolden (d); Nancy Wilson (d). 6/60–1/61.

Shearing has always been on the periphery of jazz rather than all the way inside it, even when he's been making records with genuine jazz musicians. Someday we will set aside the time to go through all the various Capitol albums of the '50s and early '60s, and make a jazz judgement on them all, but thus far, we still haven't done it. But there can be few arguments about this set, where George shared the billing with Capitol's new star, singer Nancy Wilson. Her jazz status is often about as questionable as Shearing's, but her voice is at its freshest, the mannerisms have yet to take her over, and the remastered sound presents both singer and quintet in splendid light. Eight tracks are added to the original LP.

 Two For The Road Concord CCD 4128 Shearing; Carmen McRae (v). 80.
 Alone Together Concord CCD 4171 Shearing; Marian McPartland (p). 3/81.
 Grand Piano Concord CCD 4281 Shearing (p solo). 5/85.
 Plays The Music Of Cole Porter Concord CCD 42010 Shearing; Barry Tuckwell (frhn); strings. 1/86.
 Breakin' Out Concord CCD 4335 Shearing; Ray Brown (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 5/87.
(*) A Perfect Match Concord CCD 4357 Shearing; Neil Swainson (b); Jeff Hamilton (d); Ernestine Anderson (v). 5/88.
 Piano Concord CCD 4400 Shearing (p solo). 5/89.
 Duets Concord CCD 2121-2 2CD Shearing; Hank Jones, Marian McPartland (p); Jim Hall (g); Neil Swainson, Don Thompson (b); Donny Osborne, Jeff Hamilton (d); Ernestine Anderson, Mel Tormé, Carmen McRae (v). 80–88.

In the '80s Shearing's many records for Concord put some focus on his work and drummed up a few more worthwhile situations. Some of his best playing will be found on records under Mel Tormé's name, but a few others listed here are also worth hearing. When Shearing sets aside his incessant borrowings from other players and eschews middlebrow ideas of what's tasteful to play in the jazz idiom, he can come up with some nice ideas: the partnership with McPartland finds him adapting to the far greater range of that player with some success, and he even holds his own in the trio with Brown and Smith. Carmen McRae's recital finds her in good, typically grouchy form, and Shearing accompanies with deference and good humour.

The albums that lose their way are those where he has to provide most of the musical interest himself. Having said that, the solo disc Piano finds him in an unusually effective, ruminative mood. The Cole Porter set is MOR prettiness. The Duets compilation is a nice stroll through these back pages.

 I Hear A Rhapsody Telarc 83310 Shearing; Neil Swainson (b); Grady Tate (d). 2/92.

A new label and a live album from New York's Blue Note must have galvanized the expatriate Englishman a little. The boppish moments he essays on 'Birdfeathers' and 'Wail' are some of his most convincing in years. Swainson and Tate are right there with him, too.

 Walkin' Telarc 83333 As above. 2/92.
 How Beautiful Is Night Telarc 83325 Shearing; Robert Farnon Orchestra. 93.
 That Shearing Sound Telarc 83347 Shearing; Steve Nelson (vib); Louis Stewart (g); Neil Swainson (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 2/94.

It seems almost impertinent to say it, but Shearing seems to be getting better, at least as far as the calibre of his records is concerned. Certainly Telarc is eliciting some of his most enjoyable music in years. None of these is a masterpiece exactly, but each shows the man's persuasive craftsmanship at its best. Walkin' is a second helping from the Blue Note engagement which produced the earlier disc, and the programme is intriguing – 'That's Earl Brother', 'Pensativa', 'Celia' and, above all, 'Subconscious-Lee', which is dark enough to be genuinely Tristano-esque. Measure for measure, this must be one of his best records. How Beautiful Is Night recalls his Capitol days, although Farnon's arrangements are so luxurious and so sumptuously recorded that one surrenders to the sheer comfort. That Shearing Sound debuts a new band, and with Nelson and Stewart in the line-up it looks very promising. That said, they both bow amiably enough to Shearing's sometimes tyrannical arrangements, which in the main elongate the style of his '40s quintet to double-length tunes. On its own terms, smartly enjoyable.

 Paper Moon Telarc CD-83375 Shearing; Louis Stewart (g); Neil Swainson (b). 3/95.
 Favorite Things Telarc CD-83398 Shearing (p solo). 3/96.

Paper Moon is in dedication to Nat Cole, and when they start 'Straighten Up And Fly Right' with the kind of rocking swing that Shearing enjoys, one looks forward to a felicitous occasion. Somehow, though, as graciously as it's done, the disc in the end falls victim to the routine which is the other side of Shearing's jazz. Stewart seems a bit subdued in support. Favorite Things has a parlour-piece where a touch of Scarlatti turns into the title-song, and when 'Angel Eyes' turns up as a dark and mysterious creature, it again seems like something special's happening. This time, though, there are too many slow ones, and when George gets Garneresque on the penultimate 'P.S. I Love You' it's almost a shock.

(*) Reflections: The Best Of George Shearing 1992–1998 Telarc CD-83513 As various Telarc albums above. 92–98.
 Back To Birdland Telarc CD-83524 Shearing; Don Thompson (vib); Reg Schwager (g); Neil Swainson (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 10/00.

The compilation catches George at his wisest and wittiest most of the way, ending suitably enough on the piece which the MJQ used to refer to as 'England's Carol'. At Birdland again, he's not taking things too hard, and the group looks after him, although he still manages to turn over a few wrinkles even in 'Lullaby Of Birdland'; his introductory routine to this one is worth hearing by itself.

 Like Fine Wine Mack Avenue 1015 Shearing; Reg Schwager (g); Neil Swainson (b). 10/03.

At nearly 85, the maestro is still making charming records. Nothing special or fancy here, and it hardly rates as an essential buy, but the trio sound in fine fettle, and having poked gentle fun at 'My Favorite Things' in the past, this time he settles a bossa nova beat onto 'Giant Steps'.

Jack Sheldon (born 1931)

TRUMPET, VOICE

Florida-born, he moved to LA as a teenager and has been there ever since. He was an anchorman trumpeter in much of the West Coast jazz of the '50s, and in the '60s he did both acting and stand-up comedy as well as jazz.

 The Entertainers VSOP 90 Sheldon; Frank Rosolino (tb); Howard Roberts (g); Joe Mondragon (b); Shelly Manne, Stan Levey (d); Johnny Mercer (v). 3/64–3/65.

 Live At Don Mupo's Gold Nugget VSOP 101 As above, except omit Rosolino, Manne, Mercer. 4/65.
 Playing For Change Uptown 2743 Sheldon; Don Sickler (flhn); Jerry Dodgion (as); Barry Harris (p); Rufus Reid (b); Ben Riley (d). 5/86.
 It's What I Do Butterfly 7708 Sheldon; Joe Bagg (p); Bruce Lett (b); Dick Weller (d). N.D.

Sheldon has been something of a polymath: an ingenious comedian, a very hot cool-school trumpeter, a slight but charming vocalist – and for two of those attributes he owes something to Chet Baker. But he works best with a straight-man, or at least a foil – in the Curtis Counce group of the '50s, or on an early Jimmy Giuffre LP, he fires up on the challenge of the other horns. Still, the two VSOP albums are a truthful record of Sheldon's stage routine in his prime – a probably unique blend of proper bebop, crooning (Johnny Mercer helps out on one disc) and comic patter. The latter is still best sampled on his old Capitol LP, Ooo – But It's Good!, even though it's impossible to find. But the Richard Burton parody (presumably he couldn't do Sean Connery) on 'Creamfinger' from Golden Nugget may still raise a smile, and there is actually some more than capable instrumental work from Sheldon and Howard Roberts on both this set and The Entertainers. It's a unique band that can handle the skit on 'The Girl From Ipanema' one minute and play six minutes of heated bebop on 'Steeplechase' the next. For an even earlier taste of Sheldon, try to find The Quartet And The Quintet (Pacific Jazz 93160-2), released in 1998 in a 'Connoisseur' limited edition. It picks up his 1955 sessions for Jazz:West (very rare in their vinyl form) but disappeared from most racks in a flash.

Playing For Change is no-nonsense small-band bop and, with Dodgion going through the gears and the rhythm section in prime shape, this is crisply cooked and flavoursome playing.

The recent release on his own Butterfly label finds Sheldon playing bebop as if it only just came up: 'Yardbird Suite', 'Steeplechase', 'Well, You Needn't' and 'Freddie Freeloader', all despatched with some aplomb but without much recognition of their previous recorded history. One's never sure whether Sheldon's tongue is in cheek or not.

Brad Shepik (born 1966)

GUITAR, SAZ, BANJO, CUMBUS

Real name: Schoeppach – a New York player who imports various European and Middle Eastern musics into otherwise characteristic metropolitan energies.

 The Loan Songlines 1518-2 Shepik; Peter Epstein (ss); Tony Scherr (b); Kenny Wollesen (d); Seido Salifoski (perc). 5/96–4/97.
 The Well Songlines 1531 Shepik; Peter Epstein (sax); Skuli Sverrisson (b); Michael Sarin (d); Seido Salifoski (perc). 12/98, 11/99.
() Short Trip / () Drip Knitting Factory KFW 290 / 312 Shepik; Scott Colley (b); Tom Rainey (d). 12/00; 5/02.
 Places You Go Songlines 1562 Shepik; Gary Versace (org); Tom Rainey (d). 10/05.

Shepik's band The Commuters (on Songlines) is inspired by 'Turkish, Persian, Balkan and African music traditions'. So far, so world-music takeaway, but at least the guitarist knows his noodles and there's a sprightly, almost carefree feel to much of The Loan, as if the group were only interested in transporting the most joyous aspects of those traditions into their home ground. A piece such as 'Gastibelza', with its bubbling solo lines, reminds us of the helium lift of Afropop guitars, even as they're whirling their way around Eastern scales. Yet they still feel as if they're just visiting, somehow.

The Well has the same problem. Brad goes there with his bucket and comes up with neatly packaged mineral water at a city price. It's attractive enough, but 'authenticity'? In short supply.

The trio purveys a different kind of roots music: Shepik links up with two hardcore jazz club veterans and the playing's right in the guitar trio pocket, with the unflappable Colley casting a huge shadow over the tunes and nimble but muscular Rainey swinging very hard. Shepik leaves his ethnic axes in the closet and aside from the final piece on Short Trip (from the Sudan) plays only his own, straight-ahead stuff. It might sound more conservative but it's the better record.

Brad's variation on the guitar/organ/drums trio is likeable enough in its way, but in contrast to some of the previous records, it lacks a definite concept and isn't strong enough on its own terms to command attention.

Archie Shepp (born 1937)

TENOR, ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, PIANO, VOICE

One of the major intellectuals of modern jazz. A passionate and articulate spokesman for the music, he is also a significant playwright. His early saxophone style resembled Ben Webster with a carborundum edge, but – like Pharoah Sanders – the approach has grown gentler and more lyrical down the years.

* New York Contemporary Five Storyville STCD 8209 Shepp; Don Cherry (c); John Tchicai (as); Don Moore (b); J. C. Moses (d). 11/63.

Archie Shepp once declared himself something 'worse than a romantic, I'm a sentimentalist.' Shepp has tended to be a theoretician of his own work, often expressing his intentions and motivations in off-puttingly glib and aphoristic language. He has, though, consistently seen himself as an educator and communicator rather than an entertainer and is one of the few Afro-American artists who has effected any sort of convincing synthesis between black music and the less comfortable verbal experiments of poets like LeRoi Jones (Imamu Amiri Baraka). The dialectic between sentiment and protest in Shepp's work is matched by an interplay between music and words which, though more obvious, is also harder to assess. A playwright who also wrote a good deal of influential stage music, Shepp devised a musical style that might be called dramatic or, at worst and later in his career, histrionic.

Though strongly associated in most people's minds with John Coltrane, Shepp's most potent influence among the modernists was the radical populism of Ornette Coleman. Unlike Coltrane, the Texan saw no need to dismantle or subvert the tradition in order to use it, and Shepp was much affected by Ornette's rediscovery of the freedoms inherent in earlier forms. Fortunately, early work with The New York Contemporary Five (which grew out of a Coleman-influenced quartet co-led with trumpeter Bill Dixon) is now available on CD. The group had an influence out of all proportion to its brief life-span. As often with Shepp projects, there was no piano-player. The longest piece on the album is non-member Bill Dixon's elaborate 'Trio', but all the front-men are credited composers – Tchicai with 'Mick' and 'Wo Wo', Cherry with 'Consequences' and Shepp himself with 'Funeral' – but the twin presences which define this almost complete reissue of the band's studio work are Ornette Coleman and Thelonious Monk. The horns tackle 'O.C. ' and 'When Will The Blues Leave' with aching intensity, and the absence of a harmonic centre leaves both open to the wildest flights. Shepp establishes himself as the de facto leader with towering solos; Storyville have his name and picture, as they say in Hollywood, 'over the title'. The Monk tunes are treated almost as throwaways, but their influence, melodic, lyrical and nakedly expressive, permeates the album as a whole and points out the direction Shepp would take in later years.

 The House I Live In Steeplechase SCCD 6013 Shepp; Lars Gullin (bs); Tete Montoliu (p); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b); Alex Riel (d). 11/63.

The tenor on The House I Live In is very different from what people normally think of as the Shepp of the '60s. Pre-radical, though, he sounds like a player long steeped in swing and blues. Though primarily of historical interest, this hasn't made the much-needed transition to CD in step with a Gullin rediscovery or a comprehensive reassessment of Shepp's career, and may therefore sound like a rather enigmatic one-off. The opening 'You Stepped Out Of A Dream' is perhaps the best of the set, the closing 'Sweet Georgia Brown' giving off the air of a hastily agreed encore. Shepp and NHØP met again on record in 1980 (see below).

CORE COLLECTION

* Four For Trane

Impulse! 051218-2 Shepp; Alan Shorter (t); Roswell Rudd (tb); John Tchicai (as); Reggie Workman (b); Charles Moffett (d). 8/64.

One of the classic jazz albums of the '60s, and a fascinating glimpse into how thoroughly different what was already thought of as the Coltrane revolution might sound. Shepp immediately sounds more deeply soaked in the blues than the man he is paying tribute to here; Shepp's interpretation of 'Cousin Mary' is stunningly good, and his entry on 'Syeeda's Song Flute' is one of those musical moments that stay embedded in the skin like a bee-sting, painful and pleasurable by turns. Without a harmony instrument, the group has a loose, floating quality which Coltrane himself would never have attempted. The sound is totally open and without walls. Shorter, Rudd and Tchicai (who was to play such a significant part on Trane's Ascension) are all in spanking form, and the altoist's solo on the unforgettably titled 'Rufus (Swung, His Face At Last To The Wind, Then His Neck Snapped)' has a raw urgency that recalls the very roots of this music. This is Shepp's only composition of the set and, following the love-ballad 'Naima' it makes a dramatic end to a set of powerful and committed music, as if Coltrane's dark twin had risen up and gained speech.

(*) Fire Music Impulse! 051158-2 Shepp; Ted Curson (t); Joseph Orange (tb); Marion Brown (as); David Izenzon, Reggie Johnson (b); Joe Chambers, J. C. Moses (d). 2 & 3/65.

One of the best of Shepp's albums (though sounding rather brittle on CD), Fire Music is the saxophonist's most balanced synthesis of agitprop and lyricism, avant-gardism and traditionalist deference. 'Hambone', the long opening track, is a blues-rooted but unconventional theme, cast in irregular time-signatures, tough and citified. At the opposite extreme, there is a slightly kitsch 'Girl From Ipanema' with a reworked bridge; Shepp's colonization of pop tunes is less subversive than Coltrane's (for the most obvious comparison, see 'My Favorite Things' on New Thing, below) because he always remains half sold on the sentiments therein, but he makes a persuasive job of the Jobim tune. 'Los Olvidados' is dedicated to the youthful underclass of the city, the 'forgotten ones', those who will not be beguiled by Sandy Becker's 'Hambone' television character. The main focus of the piece is on Marion Brown's desolate middle passage, conjuring up thwarted promise in a hectic but unheeding environment; Shepp's own solo, as became his norm, is a rather pat summing-up, musical Method-acting, that slightly detracts from the sophistication of the composition. 'Malcolm, Malcolm – Semper Malcolm', scored for just Shepp, Izenzon and Moses and dominated by Shepp's sonorous recitation, is a brief foretaste of the later but no more convincing 'Poem For Malcolm', below. Clipped and re-dedicated from a longer and more ambitious work, it runs a slight risk of being ironized by 'Prelude To A Kiss' and the Jobim tune that follow; Shepp's ironies, though, are maintained not just between but also within compositions.

 New Thing At Newport Impulse! 543414-2 Shepp; Bobby Hutcherson (vib); Barre Phillips (b); Joe Chambers (d). 7/65.

With the classic Coltrane Quartet on the other side of the original album, this gave an explicit and, in the circumstances, slightly ironic blessing to Shepp's emergence as one of the leading lights of the New Thing. Again, the balance of apparently contradictory motivations is just about right, with a less than wholly subversive 'My Favorite Things' set against the inner furies of 'Call Me By My Rightful Name' and 'Skag', and the surreal 'Rufus (Swung, His Face At Last To The Wind …)' from Four For Trane. On the whole, though, the music is far from radical in impact, and Shepp's spoken interpolations serve, as throughout his career, to mitigate any slight shift towards abstraction at this stage. Perhaps because of the circumstances and the eventual packaging of the music, Shepp's Newport performance has been somewhat overrated. Again pianoless, the quartet takes a sharp, percussive edge from Hutcherson's tightly pedalled vibes. Phillips fares deservedly better on the CD and can be heard for the remarkable influence he was on the group. Shepp sounds quite self-consciously like a latter-day descendant of Webster and Hawkins, aggravating swing rhythms and phraseology with devices borrowed from R&B, early rock and Ornette Coleman). On the other side, Coltrane already sounds tired, but with the understandable weariness of a man whose path would be hard to follow.

(*) Mama Too Tight Impulse! 051248-2 Shepp; Tommy Turrentine (t); Grachan Moncur III, Roswell Rudd (tb); Howard Johnson (tba); Perry Robinson (cl); Charlie Haden (b); Beaver Harris (d). 8/66.

'I play music out of an overwhelming need to play …', and yet Mama Too Tight is also the best possible illustration of Shepp the control freak, the master-musician who needs to retain his hold on the reins. The large-ish ensemble, with brasses and clarinet, allows him to develop orchestral textures at the same time as he pushes forward his increasingly lyrical approach. The overlapping trombones on 'Basheer' (one of a group of portraits of black artists) suggest twin preachers, exegete and commentator, and on 'Mama Too Tight' itself the two slide-men could almost be prophets crying in the wilderness, not quite in agreement, but united in adversity. Turrentine's high, chiming sound cuts through the ensembles. The rhythm section, again minus piano, is utterly musical, fulfilling an orchestral function, and Johnson's part on 'A Portrait Of Robert Thompson (As A Young Man)', a suite of pieces which begins with Ellington's 'Prelude To A Kiss', elevates the tuba to the front rank of horns. This is one of Shepp's quieter albums, one on which he is content to take a back seat to the ensemble.

* The Way Ahead Impulse! 051 272 2 Shepp; Jimmy Owens (t); Grachan Moncur III (tb); Charles Davis (bs); Dave Burrell, Walter Davis Jr (p); Walter Booker, Ron Carter (b); Beaver Harris, Roy Haynes (d). 1/68.

A great deal of fuss was made when in the '90s Ornette Coleman used a piano-player for the first time in decades. No less significant was Shepp's reintroduction of a keyboard here, and typically he opts for the maverick traditionalism of Dave Burrell, who brings his usual intelligence and sense of history to the blues 'Damn If I Know'.

This 1998 reissue includes the whole of The Way Ahead with a couple of tracks from the relatively obscure Kwanza, which pitched Shepp up against baritone saxophonist Charles Davis, a somewhat ungainly encounter. The main album stands at a curious point in the career, looking as much back as it does ahead, and Shepp seems to be exploring the potential of free soloing over quite settled harmonic foundations, even if in Burrell's hands, and given the heterodoxy of Moncur and Jimmy Owens, these are more challenging than usual. The trombonist contributes two fine compositions, 'Frankenstein' and 'New Africa', one from each album. And there is also a long version of Cal Massey's 'Bakai'. Historically, this is an important release, filling in a missing part of the picture. Anyone who knows only the later, romantic/sentimental Shepp will certainly recognize the voice, if not its particular mood.

 Yasmina, A Black Woman Le Jazz 51 Shepp; Lester Bowie (t); Clifford Thornton (c); Arthur Jones (as); Hank Mobley (ts); Roscoe Mitchell (bs, bsx); Dave Burrell (p); Malachi Favors, Earl Freeman (b); Philly Joe Jones, Sunny Murray, Art Taylor (d); Laurence Devereaux (balafon). 8/69.

Originally issued on Affinity, this intriguing set brings together members of the Art Ensemble, radical drummer Sunny Murray and, most improbably, hard-bop tenor Hank Mobley, whose driving approach complements Shepp unexpectedly well on 'Sonny's Back'. The title-piece, at 20 minutes, is ambitious in both structure and development and is full of avant-garde gestures, some of which will seem a little dated at this distance. At the opposite extreme, 'Body And Soul' is a generic tenor workout, and yet Shepp manages to stamp a measure of individuality on both ends of the spectrum.

 Blasé / Live At The Pan African Festival Varese 061156 Shepp; Clifford Thornton (c); Lester Bowie (t, flhn); Grachan Moncur III (tb); Dave Burrell (p); Chicago Beau, Julio Finn (hca); Alan Silva, Malachi Favors (b); Philly Joe Jones, Sunny Murray (d); Jeanne Lee (v). 69.

Originally issued on Actuel, this is a ropey recording of a very fine band on a somewhat average and a rather better day for most concerned. Shepp is in wonderful form throughout, though there is distortion here and there on his best solos, but the other front-liners are not at all well represented and the more complex charts are muddied and uneven on the festival cuts. Shepp was already deeply involved in what became his life's project: finding the beauty and delight which nestled in the darkness of the African-American experience. The version of 'There Is A Balm In Gilead' is delightful and affecting, but the long 'Brotherhood' rambles excessively as it drifts across different styles of black music. 'Sophisticated Lady' is an interesting homage to Ellington, lyrical but strangely acerbic as well.

* Attica Blues Verve 654414 Shepp; Roy Burrowes, Michael Ridley, Charles McGhee (t); Cal Massey (flhn); Clifford Thornton (c); Charles Stephens, Kiane Zawadi, Charles Greenlee (tb); Hakim Jami (euph); Marion Brown (as, fl, perc); Clarence White (as); Bill Robinson, Roland Alexander (ts); James Ware (bs); Dave Burrell, Walter Davis Jr (p); Cornell Dupree (g); Leroy Jenkins, John Blake, L. Shankar (vn); Ronald Lipscomb, Calo Scott (clo); Gerald Jemmott, Roland Wilson, Jimmy Garrison (b); Beaver Harris (d); Ollie Anderson, Jumma Santos, Nene DeFense (perc); Henry Hull (as Carl Hall), Joshie Armstead, Albertine Robinson, Joe Lee Wilson, Waheeda Massey (v); William Kunstler, Bartholomew Gray (narration). 1/72.

Often characterized – unheard – as a Mingus-like scream of rage against the authorities who bloodily quelled America's most infamous prison riot, this is actually a much subtler record than that, and that might perversely be why it has dropped from sight for so long. Shepp alternates slow mournful ballads with funkier numbers that reflect things going on elsewhere in black music, and while this isn't On The Corner, it's certainly closer to that aesthetic than anything he attempted in the previous decade. 'Steam' became a regular item in his later sets; sung here by Joe Lee Wilson, it has a curiously archaic quality, a sign perhaps that Shepp was turning his back on the scorched-earth radicalism of the '60s. The more explicit agendas are articulated by civil rights attorney Kunstler but the more effective vocal elements are more oblique, like Cal Massey's daughter's touching delivery on 'Quiet Dawn'. A great album, long overlooked.

(*) Looking At Bird Steeplechase SCCD 31149 Shepp; Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b). 2/80.

Shepp prefers to consider bebop as the baroque period of Afro-American classical music. Given the brutal accretions of his approach, it's an accurate but still slightly misleading designation. His Parker readings are irregular pearls with a raw, slightly meretricious beauty but with only questionable currency as serious re-examinations of the tradition. There is a rather better version of 'Now's The Time' on the later I Didn't Know About You. The great NHØP cut his teeth on this repertoire and sounds completely at home with it, bouncing and singing through a more or less predictable roster of bebop anthems.

(*) Goin' Home /  Trouble In Mind Steeplechase SCCD 31079 / 31139 Shepp; Horace Parlan (p). 4/77, 2/80.

Parlan's raw, bluesy style suits Shepp almost perfectly. The earlier of these, a moving compilation of gospel tunes, is by far the better and more concentrated. Trouble In Mind, which takes the same line on 11 blues staples, is perhaps a little too earnest in its pursuit of authenticity but achieves a chastened dignity.

(*) California Meeting Soul Note 121122 Shepp; George Cables (p); Herbie Lewis (b); Eddie Marshall (d); Royal Blue (v). 5/85.

An intriguing live programme with a very good band. Cables is the co-star, negotiating 'Giant Steps' with what sounds like a bow to Tommy Flanagan along the way. Marshall and Lewis do a very respectable job and, though the vocals won't be to everyone's taste, Shepp is blowing strongly on both tenor and soprano. 'A Night In Tunisia' is one of his strongest performances of the '80s, a reaffirmation of his belief that bop is the baroque phase of modern jazz.

(*) Live In New York Verve 013482 Shepp; Roswell Rudd (tb); Grachan Moncur III (tb); Reggie Workman (b); Andrew Cyrille (d). 9/00.

The rather plain title is presumably meant to remind us of Shepp's and Rudd's '60s encounters, documented on the Impulse! Live In San Francisco. That they haven't recorded together since is less surprising, given the trombonist's virtual disappearance and late renaissance. This set, though, makes the years fall away. Both are palpably older and more mellow. Archie's 'Steam', long a signature piece, now carries a slightly world-weary tinge, and he would hardly have played or sung anything quite as nostalgically lyrical as 'Deja-Vu' back in 1966; but the album is meant to show what both men have been doing more recently. Shepp's 'Hope No. 2', which closes the set, is a major statement, though it bears a more than fleeting resemblance to some of David Murray's work. By the same token, Roswell offers up a long interpretation of 'Slide By Slide', highlighting the recent evolution of his writing and playing.

The band is a joy for anyone who remembers these guys first time round, but even if you don't they all play like masters: a little safe and a little too much under control, but pungent nevertheless. Moncur hasn't sustained much of a presence since his Blue Note years, but he sounds just the same, blowing dark counterpoints to the other two horns and very much fulfilling the pianist's natural role. He's supported by Workman, who couldn't be better or more honourably named; the bassist builds rock-solid edifices for 'Pazuzu' and 'Ujamma', another two recent Shepp compositions. Cyrille isn't as hyperactive as in the old days, but his touch is as deft as ever.

(*) Left Alone Revisited Enja ENJ 9141 2 Shepp; Mal Waldron (p). 2/02.

Waldron has stated that he found playing anything associated with Billie Holiday acutely painful, and yet this set – a first-time encounter on record – is a heartfelt tribute that ends with tenderly spoken lyrics to the title-song. The other items included avoid the obvious, with the exception of 'Lady Sings The Blues', and bring out some wonderful playing from both saxophone and piano. One of the last recordings of Waldron's life, it's full of his usual melancholy beauty and reflects well on Shepp, too.

(*) Gemini Archieball 0701 Shepp; Amina Claudine Myers (p, v); Tom McClung (p); Stéphane Guery (g); Cameron Brown, Wayne Dockery (b); Ronnie Burrage, Steve McCraven (d); Chuck D (v). 7/02, 3/07.

Gemini? Well, he's 24 May, which is about right, but also because this consists of two different sets, the early one with Claudine Myers, Brown and Burrage at the 2002 Souillac Festival, the other his first studio recording with the current quartet. Shepp has these days the air of a man who doesn't get excited about the music any more, happy to turn in a sleepily hot set like the French festival gig, happy to accept the respect of rapper Chuck D, who represents a generation he can to some extent claim to have set free musically. It's a beautifully produced and packaged set, with vivid if naïf artwork, but it gains its small authority from bulk rather than content. If it were two discs, Live In Souillac and The Reverse, we feel at least one of them might be brushed into the 'in brief' section below. Shepp just doesn't seem like a force any more.

 First Take Archieball 0104 Shepp; Siegfried Kessler (p). 5/03.

This was supposed to be the pianist's date, but he suggested Shepp take part. Archie doesn't sound exactly committed in his playing, but they work through his 'Steam' and 'Ujaama' with some degree of mutual understanding, and the Monk and Ellington pieces are pretty good, too.

Also, in brief:

 Live In Antibes, Volumes 1 & 2 Sunspots 534 / 535. 7/70.

Archie and the Full Moon Ensemble in the south of France, during the American avant-garde's great European summer.

() I Know About The Life / () Down Home New York / () Live On Broadway hatOLOGY 603 / Soul Note 121102 / 121122. 2/81; 2/84; 5/85.

Shepp's reputation held up more robustly in Europe than in the USA, but these are tame and sorry records in comparison to the work of earlier years.

* Mama Rose Steeplechase SCCD 31169. 2/82.

Successive recordings of 'Mama Rose' are a useful gauge of Shepp's progress. The version with Jasper Van't Hof (ky) is vulgarly overblown.

() Little Red Moon Soul Note 121112. 11/85.

A mystifyingly dull record, which many will be attracted to on the prospect of hearing Shepp do 'Naima' and 'Whisper Not' in the company of the ever-inventive Enrico Rava.

 St Louis Blues Jazz Magnet 2006. 1/98.

A signature Shepp album: overblown, slightly mawkish, poised between traditionalism and the ragged tatters of the avant-garde.

 Hungarian Bebop Budapest Music 66. 02.

The title-tune isn't really bebop, and one suspects Mihaly Dresch (ss, ts) and his sidemen have a very different perspective on jazz, but the results, recorded on tour in Eastern Europe, are quite engaging.

Andy Sheppard (born 1957)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE

Born in Warminster, he came to some prominence in the '70s bands Sphere and Spirit Level, before spending time in Paris, returning in time to catch star-status in the '80s jazz boom. His reputation settled down in the '90s, with film and TV projects and small-group work with Steve Lodder.

 Learning To Wave Provocateur PVC 1016 Sheppard; Steve Lodder (ky); John Parricelli (g); Chris Laurence (b); Paul Clarvis (d, perc, tabla); Shalda Sahai (tabla). 6/98.

Sheppard's early work for Antilles and Blue Note is frustratingly still out of print and anyone coming to his recent records cold might be surprised to find out what a fine band he led in the '80s and early '90s. A decade adrift stylistically, Learning To Wave is by no means the revelatory shift of direction Sheppard implies. The title refers to a trip to Africa where children would appear out of nowhere to wave at passing cars. Some of that relaxed spontaneity is evident in Andy's contemplative playing, which nowadays is muzzled by a broad fusion reverb. Relaxed as it is obviously meant to sound, there is a tense quality to the album, too much of the embattled, isolated individualist in Sheppard's playing and writing. A few more – and rawer – sessions with strangers might work wonders at this stage. The impression is of a man comfortable with his sound and playing entirely within himself. As previously, his soprano is the more convincing horn, delicately balanced between Wayne Shorter's minimalist gestures and Grover Washington's light, funky groove.

(*) Dancing Man And Woman Provocateur PVC 1020 Sheppard; Steve Lodder (ky); John Parricelli (g); Chris Laurence, Steve Swallow (b); Paul Clarvis (perc); Kuljit Bhamra (tabla). 9/99.

Shrewd and subtle compositions from Sheppard and crisp and committed playing from the band make Dancing a thoroughly compelling record. Andy's range as a writer and player gets broader all the time. There are lots of unexpected rhythms, cranky melodies and some wonderfully inflected musical atmospheres. 'Tippi' (which is reprised at the end), 'Sugar Beach Hotel', 'Oscar And Lucinda' and the title-track make up the bulk of the session and each is memorable in its own way, either bright and funky or more thoughtful and winsome.

 Nocturnal Tourist Provocateur PVC 1029 Sheppard (sax, wind syn, ky, g); Stéphane San Juan (perc). 02.
 P.S. Provocateur PVC 1034 Sheppard; John Parricelli (g). 1/03.
The duo with Parricelli is the result of a long-standing friendship and artistic association. Sheppard's eclectic approach is kept in check by the guitarist's estimably clear and almost pragmatic lines, though in turn he increases his usual level of energy for the gig. Not a free-form gig, but comparable in interesting ways to Andy's set of duets with Keith Tippett. The other album is inspired by collaborations with a whole range of musicians over the last few years, including Northumbrian piper Kathryn Tickell. It sees Sheppard in almost one-man-band mode, exploring wind synthesizer, keyboards and guitar as well as saxophone; he weaves strong melody into found sound and sampled rhythms, mostly on original themes but also including a fine version of the old chestnut 'I Wish I Knew'. Sheppard still sounds very distinctively himself, but with a new range of options that should yield interesting dividends in the years ahead.

Bob Sheppard

REEDS

Respected West Coaster, normally consigned to below the title.

 In The Now Sirocco 1018 Sheppard; Larry Koonse (g); Jeff D'Angelo (b); Mark Ferber, David Hocker (d). 3/02.
Sheppard is a doughty player who graces everything he's on without drawing undue attention to himself. There is an earlier record on Windham Hill, but this is effectively the debut, and it's impressive. On tenor and soprano, Sheppard comes from that familiar Coltrane-via-Brecker source, but with a warmer sound than Michael's. His originals here, 'Bait & Switch' and 'Wouldn't You', are perfectly workmanlike. Better is his take on Wayne Shorter's 'Charcoal Blues' and even his 'Round Midnight', from which he manages to extract something fresh and original.

Jamil Sheriff (born 1977)

PIANO

Born in Bolton. He studied at Leeds College of Music and now leads an acclaimed octet.

 Backchat 33 Records/Jazz Services JSLCD 001 Sheriff; Andrew Colman (t); Kevin Holborough (tb); Joel Purnell (sax); Ben Martin (ts, f); Pat McCarthy (g); Zoltan Dekany (b); John Perry (d). 07.
This is the kind of group one encounters more often on American college campuses, where it's possible to marshall and keep together a mid-size group. One might go further and say Californian campuses, because there's an intriguing West Coast flavour to the Sheriff octet, some of it down to Jamil's elegant writing and voicing of parts, but also to the clear, unclenched brass sound of Colman and Holborough. Early days yet for this group, who're certainly better caught live than on this Jazz Services sponsored (bravo!) recording, but there's not much wrong here.

Sammy Sherman (1914–2003)

TROMBONE, VIOLIN

Spent his life running a restaurant and playing locally in Rhode Island. Father of pianist/singer Daryl Sherman.

 A Jazz Original: Live At Chan's – His Autumnal Statement Arbors ARCD 19302 Sherman; Dan Barrett (c); Russel Devuuyst, Dick Sudhalter, Warren Vaché (t); Loren Schoenberg (ts); Daryl Sherman (p, v); James Chirillo, Gray Sargent (g); Jay Leonhart, Frank Tate, Marshall Wood (b). 1/94–3/04.
Sherman was one of jazz's journeyman enthusiasts, who never had the opportunity to bring his infectious talent to a wider audience. His only record was in preparation when he died in his late 80s, but apparently he saw it through its final stages. Sammy was famous for being able to hit unfeasibly high notes and some of that ability remains in these private recordings. The mostly standards material is nicely paced and the guests do their best to outshine the old guy. Daughter Daryl is featured prominently. The odd dating is explained by a single trumpet feature by Devuuyst, recorded after Sammy's death and included in tribute.

Bobby Shew (born 1941)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Worked in several big bands and Las Vegas groups in the '60s, then settled in California.

(*) Playing With Fire MAMA MMF 1017 Shew; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); Kei Akagi (p); John Patitucci (b); Roy McCurdy (d). 9/86.
 Heavyweights MAMA MMF 1013 Shew; Carl Fontana (tb); George Cables (p); Bob Magnusson (b); Joe LaBarbera (d). 95.
 Salsa Caliente MAMA MMF 1023 Shew; Sal Cracchiolo (t, flhn); Arturo Velasco (tb); Justo Almario (ts, f); Mark Levine (p); Eddie Resto (b); Jose 'Papo' Rodriguez, Ricardo 'Tiki' Pasillas, Michito Sanchez (perc). 5/98.
 Play The Music Of Reed Kotler Torii (no number) 2CD Shew; Gary Foster (as, ts, f, af); Bill Cunliffe (p); Darek 'Oles' Oleszkiewicz (b); Paul Kreibich (d). 01.
A pros' pro, Shew has spent much of his career in top-notch big bands and studio work. These records for MAMA are brimming with virtuoso playing without resorting to soulless cliché. The session with Harrell sat on the shelf for many years until Shew persuaded MAMA to release it. Hastily prepared, the music crackles with ebullience and spontaneity: the choruses on the opener, 'Prelude And Blues', are so exciting that the rest of the date struggles to match up. It does, although here and there one wishes they'd had time to finesse the situation a little more. Still, the two brassmen are as simpatico as blood brothers, and this should go down as a great two-trumpet record.

The meeting with trombonist Fontana is more considered all round: a less explosive rhythm section, and the interplay between the two horns is more about warmth and elegance than fireworks. To that extent it's a less compelling record, but some may prefer the sonorities which Shew and Fontana create almost without trying.

Salsa Caliente is a back-to-my-roots exercise for Shew, who grew up in New Mexico surrounded by Latin music. Sent on its way with a crisply cooked 'Cubano Chant', this is an affectionate and warm-blooded set. Mark Levine brought three attractive originals to the session and the playing is classy, if arguably a little too tailored and clean. Shew is a master at sounding hot and inspired without losing his cool, and he does tend to outclass the other soloists. Also useful: Bobby's recipes for guacamole and red chilli sauce, in the sleeve booklet.

The Torii set (which has no apparent catalogue number) is an indulgence for the composer Reed Kotler, who wrote all 21 tunes on the double-CD and presumably paid for the whole thing too. It's not much more than a long, easy stroll in the park for Shew and Foster and at least the compositions let them play pretty. The horns vary the pace by picking up different instruments from tune to tune, although the preponderance of mid-tempos doesn't encourage riveted listening.

Also, in brief:

 I Can't Say No Four Leaf Clover FLCCD 179. 02.
With a nice, competent Scandinavian band led by Kjell Öhman.

Sahib Shihab (1925–89)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, FLUTE

Born Eddie Gregory. He started playing with Luther Henderson when just in his teens and was first alto with Fletcher Henderson before becoming involved in bebop.

 Sentiments Storyville STCD 8394 Shihab; Danish Radio Jazz Group. 65–71.
On the night of Malcolm X's death, Shihab was playing in Germany. His solo feature consisted of nothing but toneless hissing sounds, as he expressed his anger and disgust at events unfolding back home. Shihab had made his home in Scandinavia for some time. The main group here is a usual-suspects line-up including Kenny Drew and NHØP. The music is highly rhythmic and experimental, but offers only a partial view of a fine multi-instrumentalist who also recorded for Savoy and Atlantic.

Matthew Shipp (born 1961)

PIANO

Born in Wilmington, Delaware, he began on piano at the age of five. Studied at Berklee and the New England Conservatory but didn't begin recording until the '90s. A musician who has absorbed a great deal of music, Shipp is situated in the avant-garde but works in many contexts.

(*) Sonic Explorations Cadence CJR 1037 Shipp; Rob Brown (as). 11/87–2/88.
 Points / (*) Circular Temple Silkheart SHCD 129 / Infinite Zero 32758-2 Shipp; Rob Brown (as on Points only); William Parker (b); Whit Dickey (d). 90, 10/90.
 Zo 213 61 21315-2 Shipp; William Parker (b). 93.
 Prism hatOLOGY 549 Shipp; William Parker (b); Whit Dickey (d). 3/93.
 Critical Mass 213 CD003 As above, except add Mat Maneri (vn). 9/94.
 Before The World FMP CD81 Shipp (p solo). 6/95.
 2-Z 2 13 61 21312 Shipp; Roscoe Mitchell (reeds). 10/96.
(*) Thesis hatOLOGY 506 Shipp; Joe Morris (g). 11/97.
Already in his 40s, Shipp has been around long enough to know what he's about, yet these albums show a steady progress of discovery that suggest he is taking his time in a productive and rather exciting way. The FMP date, for instance, is a record of his first solo concert (in Berlin) and he clearly came to it as a mature yet naturally open player. He has assembled a repertory cast of companions as the personnels suggest and the players clearly know each other's moves pretty well. Sonic Explorations counts almost as an archive release. Though rather more akin to a straightforward free session than some of Shipp's subsequent music, there's much detailed interplay between piano and saxophone, with Brown's beautiful tone and ripping phrasing pushing the pianist into an accompanying role at times. They end on two notably destructive takes on 'Oleo' and 'Blue In Green'.

The two 1990 albums take some cues from the avant-garde past – Taylor, Bley and Shipp's personal favourite, Andrew Hill – while going their own way in a quite dramatic fashion from moment to moment. Shipp likes to worry at individual motifs or gradually to open out blocks and progressions which can take a long and absorbing time in yielding their numerous details. Dickey's light but propulsive rhythms scurry the music along and Brown's fundamentally lyrical lines add further nuances. Points is a shade behind the trio date since it just runs out of steam here and there, while the second disc could if anything be even longer. Zo seems more specifically experimental in that Shipp and Parker seem to want to plunge into the darkest (and sometimes the dreariest) corners they can find, deep left-hand chords set on top of juddering bass vamps; their version of 'Summertime' is a bit excruciating, but some of the improvisations are full of a kind of slow, concentrated energy. Critical Mass takes a similar form, though this one is divided into a tripartite meditation on a church mass, components developed into a quartet music that seems to be both slow and stately and densely churning. Shipp never sprints through his music the way Taylor does, and his decision to use players like Parker and Maneri rather than saxophonists lends a somewhat baroque feel to his ensembles. An interesting record but rather dour work for the listener. The duo with Mitchell is a meeting of generations, and Shipp sounds respectful and happy to take second place for much of it – though the attribution is to his duo with Mitchell as a featured guest – constantly searching for some normative path that might hint at a tonal centre. The pieces are mostly quite short and pointed, though Roscoe does manage to pack a huge amount of information into each.

Prism is a recent appearance, although it was briefly available on a tiny American label called Brinkman. The two long pieces suggest, as usual in this period, that Shipp was trying out, discarding and picking up again all manner of ideas – too many for the listener to impose a clear idea of what he was about. Parts of 'Prism I' certainly have the feel of Shipp as part of a continuum of post-bop piano, while the second piece (after an introductory solo passage which might be the most interesting thing on the record) seems to be all over the place formally and stylistically.

 The Multiplication Table hatOLOGY 516 Shipp; William Parker (b); Susie Ibarra (d). 7/97.
 Strata hatOLOGY 522 Shipp; Roy Campbell (t); Daniel Carter (as, ts, f, t); William Parker (b). 12/97.
 Gravitational Systems hatOLOGY 530 Shipp; Mat Maneri (vn). 5/98.
The trio music of The Multiplication Table is sometimes as dry as its title. Ellington's 'C Jam Blues' is a desiccation across 13 minutes, and 'Autumn Leaves' a turmoil. But this is an absorbing group in other ways, particularly with Ibarra adding her own ideas about free swing to the firmly established Parker–Shipp axis. The problem is with the recording, which has the piano too far back, the drums too far forward and the bass often lost. Strata debuts Shipp's Horn Quartet in a 14-part piece. Campbell is a diehard free-jazz man and he puts some warmth into the surroundings. There are times, though, when even he and Carter seem to find their environment inscrutable. Gravitational Systems is as close to chamber music as Shipp is ever going to get, and when they do a rough-and-tumble 'Greensleeves' early on, it's a strange moment, quickly righted by the following 'Series Of Planes'. Shipp ends with a solo 'Naima', not one of his most remarkable transformations.

(*) Pastoral Composure Thirsty Ear 57084 Shipp; Roy Campbell (t); William Parker (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 1/00.
It's tempting to describe this as Shipp's straight-ahead side. However, his approach to jazz is inevitably somewhat heterodox. Driven along as ever by Parker, and by the superb Cleaver, who seems to alternate between tight, march-like rhythms and free-form playing, Shipp plays some of his most forthright and direct solos on this excellent record. 'Frère Jacques' is an astonishing tour de force on the old nursery rhyme.

 Expansion, Power, Release hatOLOGY 558 Shipp; Mat Maneri (vn); William Parker (b). 11/99.
(*) New Orbit Thirsty Ear THE 57095-2 Shipp; Wadada Leo Smith (t); William Parker (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 01.
While Shipp and Parker are present on both of these, they're entirely different from each other. The trio record functions somewhat in the manner of a classical ensemble, with some Viennese references slipping into the design, but the pianist is at his freshest and most beguiling on what is a compact, smartly delivered set of mostly short pieces. New Orbit is a meeting of masters, stark, sometimes abrasive, with Smith's playing at its most imperial over Shipp's regimen of blocks and clusters, the music gathering a cumulative power across the ten pieces, though never seeming to suggest any formal codification. The music is becoming more obviously accessible, yet more mysterious at the same time – a fascinating agenda.

 Nu Bop Thirsty Ear THE 57114-2 Shipp; Daniel Carter (as, f); William Parker (b); Guillermo Brown (d); Chris FLAM (syn). 1/02.
Shipp is an artistic director at Thirsty Ear and has been involved in other electronic records, but this is his first full-scale try at integrating his own playing with the electronic mixing and programming of FLAM. As a record, it's hit and miss. The mordant piano solo 'ZX-1' doesn't work in the context, and it does seem like a huge and not too productive jump from the music of the previous two records to the splintery funk of 'Nu Bop' and 'Space Shipp', although 'Nu Abstract' sounds like a much more inventive blending of Shipp's most outside ideas with synthetic soundscaping. As an investigative start, fine, but don't expect revelations.

 Equilibrium /  Harmony And Abyss Thirsty Ear THE 571272 / 57152 Shipp; Khan Jamal (vib on Equilibrium only); William Parker (b); Gerald Cleaver (d); FLAM (syn, elec). 03; 9/04.
If the first of these sounds like an advance on the previous Nu Bop, it also holds some of the same question marks and distractions. FLAM never seems fully integrated into music which retains its power through old-fashioned jazz staples such as improvisational interplay (especially between Shipp and Jamal, who rarely finds his right niche on record and sounds good here) and rhythmical momentum – swing, even. Here and there one can even detect Shipp's admiration for Bill Evans, not often talked of as any kind of influence on him. The second record moves out beyond jazz and into a kind of avant-rock/funk.

* One Thirsty Ear THE 57166 Shipp (p solo). 8/05.
However senior he might now appear, Shipp isn't above revisiting his influences and on this extraordinary solo set, his first since Songs (see below), he delves into the worlds of Cecil Taylor, Bud Powell and Thelonious Monk, but without ever once referencing any of these ancestral presences directly. It is as if the terms of the cult forbid those great names from being spoken. In keeping with his instinct for form, these relatively short pieces all seem to have an internal logic and structure, palpable but resistant to analysis. The longer cuts, 'The Encounter', 'Gamma Ray' and 'Module' are the most successful, but it's a near-flawless performance with stacks of tones implying scales that are immediately dispensed with or inverted, and with most of the information coming from single-note runs rather than chordal developments.

Also, in brief:

 Flow Of X Thirsty Ear THE 21326. 96.
Tough free-form quartet with Mat Maneri (vn), William Parker (b), Whit Dickey (d). Seldom more than the sum of its personnel.

 DNA Thirsty Ear THE 57067. 1/99.
A fine series of duets with Parker; the register ranges widely from free things to songlike forms.

 Songs Splasc(h) 840.2. 11/01.
From 'Angel Eyes' to 'Almighty Fortress Is Our God', Shipp's songbook could have been any contemporary pianist's flick back through the archives, although it is, inevitably, sui generis.

Alan Shorter (1932-1987)

TRUMPET

Wayne's elder brother is a significant composer but faded from view after the '60s.

(*) Orgasm Verve 557094 Shorter; Gato Barbieri (ts); Charlie Haden, Reggie Johnson (b); Muhammad Ali, Rashied Ali (d). 9 & 11/68.
* Tes Esat America 067864 Shorter; Gary Windo (ts); Johnny Dyani (b); Rene Augustus (d). 3/70.
The quality of Shorter's writing is evident from the first of these. There is a superficial resemblance in his playing to Don Cherry in the Ornette Coleman group, but Shorter denied the influence and it seems a false trail. Rhythmically and harmonically, Shorter's themes sound like no one else's, though Barbieri had experimented with similar ideas on his In Search Of The Mystery date. The later set takes some of its allure from a limited-edition reissue but also from the presence of such legendary names as Dyani and Windo. The musical language is very much the same and it makes for a demanding listen in places. This was the high-water mark of the American avant-garde in Europe (this and other sets in the series were recorded in France) and it has an appealing period feel.

Wayne Shorter (born 1933)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

He worked with Art Blakey and Miles Davis and recorded on his own account, but for more than a decade he was co-leader (with Joe Zawinul) of Weather Report. In style, he has something in common with John Coltrane, but his characteristic approach is more staccato and elided, and with a delicately lyrical tone on soprano saxophone.

(*) Introducing Wayne Shorter Vee Jay VJ 007 Shorter; Lee Morgan (t); Wynton Kelly (p); Paul Chambers (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 11/59.

 Second Genesis Vee Jay 016 Shorter; Cedar Walton (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Art Blakey (d). 10/60.

 Wayning Moments Vee Jay 014 Shorter; Freddie Hubbard (t); Eddie Higgins (p); Jymie Merritt (b); Marshall Thompson (d). 62.

 All Or Nothing At All Charly 68 As for records above. 10/59–62.

Anyone who has encountered Shorter only as co-leader of Weather Report will know him primarily as a colourist, contributing short and often enigmatic brush-strokes to the group's carefully textured canvases. They may not recognize him as the formidable heir of Rollins and Coltrane (scale up and re-pitch those brief soprano saxophone statements, and the lineage becomes clear). They will emphatically not know him as a composer. As Weather Report's musical identity consolidated, Joe Zawinul largely took over as writer. However, much as Shorter's elided 'solos' (in a group that didn't really believe in solos) still retained the imprint of a more-developed idiom, so his compositions for the early records – 'Tears' and 'Eurydice' in particular – convey in essence the virtues that make him one of the most significant composers in modern jazz, whose merits have been recognized by fellow-players as far apart as Art Blakey, Miles Davis ('ESP', 'Dolores', 'Pee Wee', 'Nefertiti') and Kirk Lightsey (a challenging tribute album).

Known as 'Mr Weird' in high school, Shorter cultivated an oblique and typically asymmetrical approach to the bop idiom. His five years with the Jazz Messengers are marked by an aggressive synthesis of his two main models, but with an increasingly noticeable tendency to break down his phrasing and solo construction into unfamiliar mathematical subdivisions. Working with Miles Davis between 1964 and 1970 (a period that coincides with his most productive phase as a solo recording artist), he moved towards a more meditative and melancholy style – with an increasing dependence on the soprano saxophone – which is consolidated on the fine Super Nova (below), where he also makes unusually inventive use of the Jekyll–Hyde guitar partnership of McLaughlin and Sharrock. Shorter's recordings at this time relate directly to his work on Miles's In A Silent Way and to his work with Weather Report over the following decade.

Shorter's earliest recordings, for Vee Jay, have been available only rather intermittently over the years. The current issue, though, has restored them and re-established their place in the canon, correcting a number of mistakes which surrounded previous releases. On Introducing, he sounds in thrall to the Coltrane of the time, and possibly John Gilmore as well. The 26-year-old, who had seriously considered giving up music altogether, turns in five strong originals and a short but blistering version of Weill's 'Mack The Knife'. This CD version includes four alternatives, which add little to the picture but helpfully reinforce the impression of a searching performer who has sufficient lateral vision to keep himself one step ahead of the game. Morgan was at his best in 1959, playing with punch and fire and, like Kelly, with a grasp of the blues which was never vouchsafed to the session leader.

Second Genesis is unfortunately titled, for it is all too obviously another visit to a well that has already been drained. The band, anchored by the Chief Messenger, is superb, but Shorter himself has little enough to say, pushing through his five originals with nervy attention, a detailed, almost deliberate style very different from later work. He's at his best, interestingly, on the two Richard Rodgers compositions which close the album, 'Getting To Know You' and 'I Didn't Know What Time It Was', the latter almost serving as self-definition for a player who works across the bar-lines and, as often as not, ignores the basic count and tonality.

Wayning Moments catches him on the brink of what was to be a purple patch for Blue Note. Hubbard is a lesser performer than Morgan on this material, though he does bring an occasional flicker of ambiguity which does the music no harm. The original album is padded out with alternative takes for every (very short) track, a rather dull reduplication of effort that will excite only those who are already firmly wedded to this period. Higgins is a drab pianist whose approach to the changes is signalled with lights, flags and telegrams, robbing even these short tracks of any drama whatsoever. Listeners would be well advised to stick to the earlier discs, or to hold fire for the classic Blue Notes.

(*) Night Dreamer Blue Note 84173 Shorter; Lee Morgan (t); McCoy Tyner (p); Reggie Workman (b); Elvin Jones (d). 4/64.

(*) Juju Blue Note 99005 As above, except omit Morgan. 8/64.

Shorter's most individual work remains the group of albums made for Blue Note in the mid-'60s, ending in 1970 with the low-key Odyssey Of Iska. Juju and the undervalued and compositionally daring Night Dreamer pit him with one version of the classic Coltrane quartet. This is Shorter at his most Coltrane-like, and happening across these records again is a slightly startling experience. The lines are much fuller than typical Wayne, with lots of accidentals and grace notes. 'Virgo' on the first record is an object lesson in how Trane influenced slightly younger players, but even on the debut for Blue Note the emphasis falls very much on Shorter the composer. 'Charcoal Blues' and 'Armageddon' are instantly identifiable as his work, and the little exotic accent of 'Oriental Folk Song' is a touch that was to be reproduced in almost all the records which followed.

New takes of 'JuJu' and 'House Of Jade' on the second album (available in a Rudy Van Gelder tribute edition) offer valuable insights into how thoughtful and experimental a player Shorter was at this period, already trying to marry the sheer energy and drive of hard bop with something altogether more lateral and evocative. The Coltrane influence seems less evident four months later, and the absence of Lee Morgan emphasizes a more brooding and melancholy strain which was to become the Shorter signature.

[illegible]

* Speak No Evil

Blue Note 99001 Shorter; Freddie Hubbard (t); Herbie Hancock (p); Ron Carter (b); Elvin Jones (d). 12/64.

For us, this is by far Shorter's most satisfying record. The understanding with Hancock was total and telepathic, two harmonic adventurers on the loose at a moment when, with John Coltrane still around as a tutelary genius, the rules of jazz improvisation were susceptible to almost endless interrogation. This album created a template for a host of imitators, but so far no one has ever produced a like recording with such strength and internal balance. There has always been some controversy about Freddie Hubbard's role on the session, with detractors claiming that, unlike Shorter, the trumpeter was still working the hand dealt him in the Messengers and was too hot and urgent to suit Shorter's growing structural sophistication. In fact, the two blend astonishingly well, combining Hubbard's own instinctive exuberance on 'Fee-Fi-Fo-Fum' with something of the leader's own darker conception; interestingly, Shorter responds in kind, adding curious timbral effects to one of his most straight-ahead solos on the record. As with Adam's Apple (see below), much of the interest lies in the writing. Shorter has suggested that 'Dance Cadaverous' was suggested by Sibelius's 'Valse Triste' (which he plays on The Soothsayer, also below). 'Infant Eyes' is compounded of disconcerting nine-measure phrases that suggest a fractured nursery rhyme, and the title-piece pushes the soloists into degrees of harmonic and rhythmic freedom that would not normally have been tolerated in a hard-bop context. Set Speak No Evil alongside Eric Dolphy's more obviously 'revolutionary' Out To Lunch!, recorded by Blue Note earlier the same year, and it's clear that Shorter claims the same freedoms, giving his rhythm section licence to work counter to the line of the melody and freeing the melodic Hancock from merely chordal duties. It's harder to reconstruct how alien some of Shorter's procedures were because, by and large, he does remain within the bounds of post-bop harmony, but it's still clear that this is one of the most important jazz records of the period.

(*) The Soothsayer Blue Note 84443 Shorter; Freddie Hubbard (t); James Spaulding (ss, as); McCoy Tyner (p); Ron Carter (b); Tony Williams (d). 3/65.

(*) Etcetera Blue Note 33581 Shorter; Herbie Hancock (p); Cecil McBee (b); Joe Chambers (d). 6/65.

(*) The All Seeing Eye Blue Note 24543 Shorter; Freddie Hubbard (t); Alan Shorter (flhn); Grachan Moncur III (tb); James Spaulding (as); Herbie Hancock (p); Ron Carter (b); Joe Chambers (d). 10/65.

* Adam's Apple Blue Note 46403 Shorter; Herbie Hancock (p); Reggie Workman (b); Joe Chambers (d). 2/66.

Adam's Apple would be remembered for 'Footprints' if for nothing else. It's Wayne's one deathless contribution to the repertory and it still pops up in delightful surprise on the CD. In fact, the 1966 record is a series of surprises. Shorter's interest in Latino styles – supposedly 'a departure' when Native Dancer came along – is already well in place with 'El Gaucho', but there is another side on show as well, in the rollicking, head-back laddishness of Jimmy Rowles's '502 Blues'. It takes a moment or two to register who is playing.

The Soothsayer and Etcetera weren't released until the end of the '70s, a sign perhaps that interest in Shorter had switched over almost entirely to his work with Weather Report. Though certainly not of the same quality as the two albums that bracketed them, both are strong and challenging sets. It's no surprise that Etcetera might have frightened the corporate horses; it's certainly Shorter's freest recorded session, powerfully argued and vividly recorded, but demanding when set up against 'Footprints' and 'Fee-Fi-Fo-Fum'. With no extra horns, the emphasis falls squarely on saxophone and piano, though McBee and the redoubtable Chambers go about their work with admirable focus and concentration. As so often, Shorter includes one piece by another composer, this time, intriguingly, Gil Evans's 'Barracudas'.

The sextet also makes for compelling listening. 'Angola' (included in two versions) and 'Lady Day' are definitive Shorter compositions, and the closing arrangement of Sibelius's 'Valse Triste' demonstrates yet again how wide and attentive was his awareness of other musics.

A Rudy Van Gelder edition of All Seeing Eye rounds out the picture of Shorter's Blue Note activity at this time. The music is again dark and brooding, notably on the closing 'Mephistopheles', on which Alan Shorter guests, but it's the opening title-track and 'Genesis' which confirm the quality of the set, which does run out of steam slightly after that point. Apparently no other material from the session, which leaves this CD rather short by present-day standards.

 Schizophrenia Blue Note 32096 Shorter; Curtis Fuller (tb); James Spaulding (ss, as, f); Herbie Hancock (p); Ron Carter (b); Joe Chambers (d). 3/67.

 Super Nova Blue Note 84332 Shorter; Walter Booker, John McLaughlin, Sonny Sharrock (g); Miroslav Vitous (b); Chick Corea (vib, d); Jack DeJohnette (d, perc); Airto Moreira (perc); Maria Booker (v). 9/69.

Schizophrenia is a title that has come back to haunt Wayne Shorter. It's easy and largely pointless to underscore his eccentricity as a performer. He can be gnomic to the point of uncommunicativeness, but the opening 'Tom Thumb' does show him continuing to tread a path between straightforward hard bop and freer elements. With Hancock and Carter again on board, the balance of forces is rock-solid, and the two extra horns are used pretty much in that capacity, filling out ensembles and filling in short, accented statements. Spaulding contributes one original to an album that isn't marked by any of the highs of past discs, though 'Miyako' is a beautiful thing.

 Footprints Live! /  Beyond The Sound Barrier Verve 589769 / 988128-1 Shorter; Danilo Perez (p); John Patitucci (b); Brian Blade (d). 01,02–04.

Recorded on tour in Europe in 2001, Footprints Live! captures Shorter's quartet working through some of his best-known themes – 'Masqualero', 'Sanctuary', 'Footprints' – as well as less-familiar material like the original 'Aung San Suu Kyi' and Sibelius's 'Valse Triste'. There is something slightly truncated and incomplete about some of these performances and Perez is not the ideal piano-player for this very demanding material, but it is great to hear Wayne sounding so open-hearted and in charge.

The later live album looks a bit like a contract-filler in the absence of anything new from the studio. It does, however, feature a more challenging body of recent material than its predecessor and the band sounds more worked-in and aware. Shorter's saxophone tone is now completely, almost effortlessly authoritative, and while he plays more notes than in some previous incarnations, all of them carry some worthwhile information.

(*) Alegría Verve 543558 Shorter; Chris Gekker, Jeremy Pelt, Lew Soloff (t); Bruce Eidem, Jim Pugh, Steve Davis, Papo Vasquez, Michael Boschen (tb); Marcus Roja (tba); Chris Potter (bcl, ts); Brad Mehldau, Danilo Perez (p); John Patitucci (b); Brian Blade, Terri Lyne Carrington (d); Alex Acuña (perc); woodwinds, strings. 02.

Shorter looked to be heading for a technical knockout until Footprints Live! signalled his return to the terse, phlegmatic post-bop of earlier years. All that remained then was the follow-up punch, and the saxophonist's critical comeback would look secure. Alegría is it. With some reservations.

The obvious problem is that Shorter's first all-acoustic studio album for 35 years (!) doesn't present a consistent line-up throughout. There is such a difference between Perez's swinging but slightly one-dimensional playing and Mehldau's more harmonically ambitious approach. The two pianists' differences could have been brokered into an interesting contrast, but instead one feels the album shifting in tone and intention from track to track, which is less satisfactory. That said, the individual components are very good indeed.

The opening could hardly be more promising, with Shorter on soprano kicking into 'Sacajawea' with more power and commitment than has been heard from him in some time. There are older pieces in the set, and the now expected classical essay in the shape this time of Leroy Anderson's 'Serenata' and Villa-Lobos's 'Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5', a theme that lends itself perfectly to Shorter's playing. 'Angola' and 'Orbits' are both familiar ideas given unfamiliar readings, the latter slowed down to the point where the line seems to break down into its components. 'She Moves Through The Fair' seems an odd choice, but it works well and serves as the best possible contrast to the stone groove of the opening track.

Also, in brief:

* The Best Of Wayne Shorter Blue Note 91141. 12/64–3/67.
Earlier versions reflected the enigmatic valuation Blue Note placed on a brilliant but complex talent. As an introduction, or distillation of the Capitol years, it's hard to fault now.

* Great Sessions Blue Note 57472. 8/64–2/66.
Another winning selection from the Blue Note catalogue: 'Ju Ju', 'House Of Jade', 'Speak No Evil', 'Footprints', some good alternates, 22 tracks in all.

 Native Dancer Columbia 467095. 12/74.
A decade to the month after Speak No Evil finds Shorter in a bland samba setting which does more to highlight Milton Nascimento's vague and uncommitted vocal delivery than the leader's saxophone-playing.

 High Life Verve 529224-2. 95.
This return to active duty is a solid, colourful, gregarious session: Marcus Miller produces.

Wally Shoup (born 1944)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Working modestly out of the American Pacific North-West, Shoup is an experienced free player only recently offered much in the way of documentation.

 Fusillades And Lamentations /  Blue Purge Leo CD LR 364 / 412 Shoup; Reuben Radding (b); Bob Rees (d). 3/02; 11/03.
(*) Live At Tonic Leo CD LR 369 Shoup; Paul Flaherty (ts, as); Thurston Moore (g); Chris Corsano (d). 9/02.
(*) Confluxus Leo CD LR 399 Shoup; Brent Arnold (clo); Toshi Makihara (d). 8/04.
(*) The Levitations Shuffle Clean Feed CF073 Shoup; Gust Burns (p); Reuben Radding (b); Greg Campbell (d). 05.
Shoup's playing sounds oddly isolated: he often appears to be working almost privately, glancing off the other players and creating unison statements by accident. He works patiently and fretfully at the horn, making every phrase sound like something he's had to prise free of his instrument. On the earlier trio discs, bass and drums follow him as best they can, and it's absorbing work.

The live session will appeal to those who enjoy Flaherty's habitual roaring, and Shoup stands up to him as best he can. Moore tries to overpower everybody with his usual shedload of feedback and untempered noise, but he sounds like a beginner next to the saxophonists, and the raw live sound doesn't exactly assist.

Like Ornette, Shoup is probably at his best when there is still an element of melody and when the blues aren't too far away, as on 'Gut Luv' on Blue Purge. It's also Rees's most impressive showing, though it's not clear whether some of the sounds are from the kit or produced by Radding, working below his bridge. The bassist also seems to refer to Charlie Haden's 'Song For Che' during his solo. Some of the tracks fall into generic traps, very similar durations being the giveaway, but they are never short of ideas nor do they significantly outstay their welcome. The two where Wally tries to change the pace of the set – 'Hue And Cry' and 'Psyche Knot' – are easily the least effective. The titles might need a bit of work: 'Purgations', 'Depth Charge', 'Moiling' and 'Ruffing It' suggest something much cruder and more cathartic than we're getting here.

Confluxus is by far the most interesting of the Leo records, a much more thoughtful and patient version of essentially the same music. Arnold fulfils a different role to either Radding or Moore – closer to the former, though – and Makihara inflects the rhythm more subtly than his predecessors, even the splendid Corsano.

It's topped (just) by the Clean Feed record, partly because the sound is so good and alert but also because this sounds like the most sympathetic group Shoup has managed to put together for a date. It's still hotter than Hell in July – none of the subtlety of Confluxus – but the fire seems tempered by a kind of shared understanding that makes these seven cuts both impressive and strangely moving, like watching guys have a heated discussion in a language you don't understand, even if you sense the emotion.

Alan Silva (born 1939)

DOUBLE BASS, VIOLIN, CELLO, PIANO, SYNTHESIZERS

Born in Bermuda and raised in New York, where he took lessons in piano and violin, before showing an interest in jazz trumpet. Led into jazz by Donald Byrd, he took up double bass at the late age of 23. He was a member of the Sun Ra Arkestra, but his main body of work has been with his own Celestrial Communication Orchestra.

 Skillfulness ESP 1091 Silva; Becky Friend (f, v); Mike Ephron (p, org); Dave Burrell (p); Karl Berger (vib); Barry Altschul (d); Lawrence Cooke (perc). 68.
 Luna Surface Sunspot 539 Silva; Bernard Vitet (t, frhn); Grachan Moncur III (tb); Archie Shepp (ss); Anthony Braxton (reeds); Kenneth Terroade (ts); Dave Burrell (p); Leroy Jenkins (vn, vla); Malachi Favors, Beb Guérin (b); Claude Delcoo (d). 8/68.
Like many from his community, Silva went to Europe in 1968, in search of political excitement and artistic freedom. The ESP Disk date was a parting shot to America. It's mostly – but inevitably briefly – a good record, with decent playing from some of the group, which included some unidentified or part-identified members. The session anticipates the techniques of his Celestrial [sic] Communication Orchestra, under whose name much of Silva's most distinctive work can be found.

Once he got to Europe, Silva set about working on that aesthetic/social ethic. 'From The Luna Surface' is 42 minutes of free blowing from a mixed ensemble of French and American improvisers, one of those all-in moments which seem to define that place and time. It's not so much a chaotic or abrasive work as one that seems to happen without much rationale and then ebb away again. There is some distinctive playing from some of the principals – Moncur, Shepp, Braxton, Jenkins; Burrell isn't so lucky in the 'mix' – as they float up through the fabric, but it's probably best experienced simply as an event: something that happened once that can be revisited at will.

(*) A Hero's Welcome: Pieces For Rare Occasions – Volume 1 Eremite MTE 017 Silva; William Parker (b). 3/98.

Here, two modern giants of the bull fiddle unite in a project of awesome power. Silva's ambitions to write orchestrally have finally been fulfilled. He uses MIDI keyboards and old-fashioned acoustic piano to create a body of sound that occupies a mid-territory between Duke Ellington or Charles Mingus and Edgard Varèse. The five relatively brief sections might almost be movements in a romantic symphony, were the language and articulation not so unmistakably American.

Parker is by now beyond reproach and beyond categorization; but what is surprising is how thoroughly and how completely Silva still thinks/plays like a bass-player, even if nowadays his imagination ranges right across the strings and beyond.

(*) Alan Silva & The Sound Visions Orchestra Eremite MTE 026 Silva; Roy Campbell (t, flhn); Taylor Ho Bynum, Stephen Haynes, Raphe Malik (t); Art Baron, Steve Swell (tb); Bill Lowe (btb, tba); Mark Taylor (frhn); Elliot Levin (ss, picc); Rob Brown, Ori Kaplan (as); Sabir Mateen (ts, cl, f); Kidd Jordan, Andrew Lamb (ts); Scott Currie (bs); J. D. Parran (bsx, acl); William Connell Jr (bcl, f); Karen Borca (bsn); Mark Hennen (p); Joe Daley (tba); Wilber Morris (b); Jackson Krall (d); Steve Dalachiunsky (v). 5/99.

Some fine moments in the three free-speaking pieces by the orchestra, but judged as a record this one doesn't come over too well. The recording quality simply isn't good enough to handle such a complex entity, and some absorbing solos and ensemble passages get lost in the mix. Silva's synthesizer sits awkwardly with the rest of the ensemble, and Dalachinsky's (barely audible) poetry at the start of the first piece rekindles old beatnik memories.

 Transmissions Eremite MTE 027 Silva; Oluyemi Thomas (bcl, Cmel, f, perc). 10/99.

Silva sticks to bass here, with the elusive Thomas, a free-music veteran who's only seldom recorded. Some of the duos (divided into five, though they run as a continuous sequence), such as 'Lofty Flight', are simple, almost sweetly beatific. Most of the interest, though, centres around Silva's often brilliant work, as in 'Offering To The Exalted One'. Thomas has things to say, but he rarely comes over as a significant force.

Judi Silvano

VOICE

Born in Philadelphia. She is an adventurous singer still unfairly best known for her work on husband Joe Lovano's records.

 Riding A Zephyr Soul Note 121348 Silvano; Mal Waldron (p). 11/00.

There are other records, but they're not easy to find. A minimal accompaniment here, but from one of the great accompanists. Mal's own 'Soul Eyes' is the outstanding track in a quieter and more intimate set than Silvano has previously attempted. The tempos are generally more relaxed, the emotional temperature somewhere between wistful and romantic. There's an awful tribute to Waldron, a piece which might have gone down fine at a party but not on a CD. Apart from that, very hard to fault. Silvano remains a singer to watch.

Horace Silver (born 1928)

PIANO

Born in Connecticut. He toured with Stan Getz in 1950, then moved to New York and worked with Art Blakey from 1952. Formed own quintet from 1956 and he has largely worked in that format as the defining stylist of hard-bop piano and an influential composer.

(*) Horace Silver Trio Blue Note 91725 2 Silver; Percy Heath, Gene Ramey, Curley Russell (b); Art Blakey (d); Sabu Martinez (perc). 10/52–11/53.

(*) Horace Silver And The Jazz Messengers Blue Note 46140-2 Silver; Kenny Dorham (t); Hank Mobley (ts); Doug Watkins (b); Art Blakey (d). 11/54.

Horace Silver's records present the quintessence of hard bop. He not only defined the first steps in the style but also wrote several of its most durable staples, ran bands that both embodied and transcended the idiom, and perfected a piano manner which summed up hard bop's wit and trenchancy and popular appeal. The first outcroppings of that can be heard in the Trio album, with its first versions of 'Horacescope', 'Opus De Funk' and 'Ecaroh' – funkier and less many-noted than the preceding wave of bop pianists. Silver's borrowings from the swing masters are still in evidence here.

The Blue Note Jazz Messengers album might be the one that started it all: two sessions, originally issued as a brace of 10-inch LPs, with a definitive hard-bop cast. While the finest music by this edition of the original Jazz Messengers was probably recorded at the Café Bohemia the following year (listed in Art Blakey's entry), this one is still fresh, smart but properly versed in the new language (or, rather, the new setting for the old language). The album sets out Silver's own expertise: a crisp, chipper but slightly wayward style, idiosyncratic enough to take him out of the increasingly stratified realms of bebop piano. Blues and gospel-tinged devices and percussive attacks give his methods a more colourful style, and a generous good humour gives all his records an upbeat feel.

CORE COLLECTION

* Blowin' The Blues Away

Blue Note 95342-2 Silver; Blue Mitchell (t); Junior Cook (ts); Gene Taylor (b); Louis Hayes (d). 8/59.

Picking a favourite record out of Silver's run of Blue Notes is an invidious task. After many hours of cogitating, we have finally come down on this album, because it seems more than any other to exemplify all his virtues as pianist, composer and leader. The title-track goes off like a typhoon. The ten-bar ballad 'Peace' is one of his most haunting and most-covered themes. 'Sister Sadie' is a soul-jazz classic which other bandleaders were quick to cover. 'The Baghdad Blues' finds him guying various kinds of jazz exoticism. And he ends the record with another version of one of his most durable pieces, 'Melancholy Mood'. It's a typical Blue Note, a characteristic Silver session, but every part of it is powerful enough to transcend what would become clichés of the idiom; and the band all play superbly.

(*) Live At Newport 1958 Blue Note 98070 Silver; Louis Smith (t); Junior Cook (ts); Gene Taylor (b); Louis Hayes (d). 7/58.

Somewhat like Miles Davis, Horace didn't see the merit of live releases. It isn't strictly true to say that this music, issued in 2007, was completely unknown. 'Tippin'', originally an instrumental 45 from the 15 June session, but the longest performance on the Newport set-list, has been available previously on a Swedish Phontastic compilation.

The line-up has an unfamiliar look. Donald Byrd has gone; Blue Mitchell was in the wings. But any thought that Smith is merely a stop-gap is blown away at once. He has a hard, edgy tone, quite unlike his predecessor or successor. Taylor and the perpetually underrated Hayes are consummately professional, driving but springy. Cook's OK, though never quite as interesting as Hank Mobley, and it's the trumpeter who stamps his authority on the date; and on the closing 'Senor Blues', he pushes the leader into one of his best, and most forceful, recorded solos. A lot of archive rediscoveries are just ticks in collectors' boxes. This one has real musical value and high excitement: iconic hard bop.

(*) Six Pieces Of Silver Blue Note 25648-2 Silver; Donald Byrd (t); Hank Mobley, Junior Cook (ts); Doug Watkins, Gene Taylor (b); Louis Hayes (d); Bill Henderson (v). 11/56–6/58.

(*) Further Explorations Blue Note 56583-2 Silver; Art Farmer (t); Clifford Jordan (ts); Teddy Kotick (b); Louis Hayes (d). 5/57.

 Horace-Scope Blue Note 84042-2 Silver; Blue Mitchell (t); Junior Cook (ts); Gene Taylor (b); Roy Brooks (d). 7/60.

(*) The Tokyo Blues Blue Note 53355-2 As above, except omit Brooks; add Joe Harris (d). 7/62.

 Silver's Serenade Blue Note 21288-2 As above, except omit Harris; add Roy Brooks (d). 5/63.

* Song For My Father Blue Note 99002-2 As above, except add Carmell Jones (t); Joe Henderson (ts); Teddy Smith (b); Roger Humphries (d). 10/64.

(*) Cape Verdean Blues Blue Note 76753-2 Silver; Woody Shaw (t); J. J. Johnson (tb); Joe Henderson (ts); Bob Cranshaw (b); Roger Humphries (d). 10/65.

* The Jody Grind Blue Note 84250-2 Silver; Woody Shaw (t); James Spaulding (as, f); Tyrone Washington (ts); Larry Ridley (b); Roger Humphries (d). 11/66.

 Serenade To A Soul Sister Blue Note 94322 Silver; Charles Tolliver (t); Stanley Turrentine, Bennie Maupin (ts); Bob Cranshaw, John Williams (b); Mickey Roker, Billy Cobham (d). 2–3/68.

 The United States Of Mind Blue Note 66745 2CD Silver; Randy Brecker, Cecil Bridgewater (t); George Coleman, Houston Person, Harold Vick (ts); Richie Resnicoff (g); Bob Cranshaw, Jimmy Lewis (b); Mickey Roker, Idris Muhammed (d); Andy Bey, Salome Bey, Gail Nelson, Jackie Vredell (v). 4/70–2/72.

 In Pursuit Of The 27th Man Blue Note 35758-2 Silver; Randy Brecker (t, flhn); Michael Brecker (ts); Dave Friedman (vib); Bob Cranshaw (b); Mickey Roker (d). 10–11/72.

Although Silver went on to record some 25 further albums for Blue Note, only the above are currently available as CD reissues. Six Pieces Of Silver, now in an RVG edition, offers a vintage Silver ballad in 'Shirl', his classic 'Senor Blues' (with a Bill Henderson vocal version from two years later as a bonus), and typical Silver small-combo music in 'Cool Eyes' and 'Camouflage'. It's hard to pick the best of the albums since Silver's consistency is unarguable: each album yields one or two themes that haunt the mind, each usually has a particularly pretty ballad, and they all lay back on a deep pile of solid riffs and workmanlike solos. Silver's own are strong enough, but he was good at choosing sidemen who weren't so characterful that the band would overbalance: Cook, Mitchell, Mobley, Shaw, Jones and Spaulding are all typical Silver horns, and only Johnson (who was guesting anyway) and Henderson on the above records threaten to be something rather more special. Two of the choicest records, though, are surely Song For My Father – with its memorable title-tune, the superb interplay of Jones and Henderson, and the exceptionally fine trio ballad 'Lonely Woman' – and The Jody Grind, which hits some sort of apex of finger-snapping intensity on the title-tune and 'Mexican Hip Dance'. Although Horace-Scope and The Tokyo Blues each have their merits, we might prefer the latter, with its material inspired by a trip to Japan and the band playing at the top of its game. The somewhat earlier Further Explorations marks the start of the long association between Farmer and Jordan, who were still recording together with memorable results in the '80s.

The Cape Verdean Blues presents Henderson, Shaw and Johnson on three tracks for one of Silver's most full-bodied front lines. A more recent reappearance is Silver's Serenade, a typically solid if unremarkable set of Silverisms. His piano solo on the title-piece is a compendium of quotes and licks that he shapes with a kind of diffident aplomb, as if he knows that this stuff comes so easily he could do it in his sleep. The rougher 'Let's Get To The Nitty Gritty' is a more wholehearted groover. In the end, Silver's albums miss the intensity that came as second nature to Blakey's Jazz Messengers: his blues are chirpier, less driven, and to that extent the records feel less significant. But in their in-the-pocket rightness, they perhaps define the Blue Note sound better than any other.

The three final sets document his last period with the label. Soul Sister has titles such as 'Psychedelic Sally', but the music is honest, in-the-pocket Silver, even if this edition of the band (with youngbloods Tolliver and Cobham to the fore) perhaps wasn't one of his best. Turrentine brings some gravitas to three tracks. The United States Of Mind, originally spread across three LPs, is a curious mix of song-cycle, hard-bop protest and political funk, with Andy Bey singing Horace's lyrics. It's his What's Going On, although his own audience were either dismayed or nonplussed. Many years later, the best of it is compelling, but the instrumental passages are often compromised and somehow it never hits home as it might.

In Pursuit Of The 27th Man was one of his final Blue Notes. While the label was going to pieces around him, Silver's constancy was extraordinary: with the Breckers out front, he still cut the better part of a characteristic Horace session, with 'Nothin' Can Stop Me Now' at least woven from all his classic threads. Some tracks, though, follow an MJQ instrumentation, with Silver and vibist David Friedman plaiting their lines.

Also, in brief:

* Retrospective Blue Note 495576-2 4CD. 10/52–11/78.

A superbly chosen anthology of Silver's many albums for Blue Note, with the first three discs full of peerless stuff and the fourth making the most of his patchy and often misdirected later work. Glorious Frank Wolff photography. A perfect introduction to the master.

(*) Paris Blues Pablo 5316-2. 10/62.

Away from Van Gelder's, the Silver group never sounds quite the same. Mitchell and Cook play some beautiful stuff, but it's a holiday date.

Silver Leaf Jazz Band

GROUP

Led by trumpeter Chris Tyle, this is a modern group playing New Orleans and vintage Chicago styles.

(*) Streets And Scenes Of Old New Orleans Good Time Jazz GTJCD-15001-2 Chris Tyle (t, v); David Sager (tb); Jacques Gauthé (cl); Tom Roberts (p); John Gill (d, v). 5/93.

 Jelly's Best Jam Good Time Jazz GTJCD-15002-2 Chris Tyle (t); John Gill (tb); Orange Kellin (cl); Tom Roberts, Jelly Roll Morton (p); Vince Giordano (b); Hal Smith (d). 10/93.

(*) Sugar Blues Stomp Off CD1298 Chris Tyle, Leon Oakley (c); John Gill (tb); Mike Baird (cl); Steve Pistorius (p); Clint Baker (bj); Marty Eggers (b); Hal Smith (d). 4/95.

 Here Comes The Hot Tamale Man Stomp Off CD1311 Chris Tyle (c, v); Mike Owen (tb); Orange Kellin (cl); Tom Fischer (as); Steve Pistorius (p); Craig Ventresco (g, bj); Mike Eggers (b); Hal Smith (d). 3/96.

Chris Tyle leads this group of New Orleans wannabees. Even though the group is based in the city, few of them are authentic NO musicians, and followers of this axis of traditional players will recognize many of the names. They got off to a somewhat ordinary start with Streets And Scenes Of Old New Orleans: the best numbers are the more obscure pieces, including several by Johnny Wiggs. Tunes as hoary as 'Perdido Street Blues' and 'Tin Roof Blues' have been done more vividly elsewhere. But the subsequent Jelly Roll Morton set, Jelly's Best Jam, is much more like the right thing: a shrewd blend of familiar and less hackneyed Morton titles is arranged with enough élan to sidestep mere copycat tactics, and the inclusion of four of Morton's 1938 piano solos offers a ghostly echo of the master's presence.

The two Stomp Off discs follow a similar line of homage without artifice. Sugar Blues is a tribute to King Oliver that walks a very difficult line. Tyle's aim was to fashion the sound of the Oliver Creole Jazz Band and put it to use not only on Oliver's repertoire but also on contemporary tunes that he might have played. It's fascinating to hear them tackle 'If You Want My Heart' and 'That Sweet Something, Dear', two famous 'lost' Oliver records, as well as the cornet/piano duet on 'The Pearls' and set-pieces like 'Eccentric'. Tyle is a shrewd judge of tempos and he gets amazingly close to a hi-fi treatment of Oliver's band sound.

Even tougher to pull off is the Freddie Keppard homage, Here Comes The Hot Tamale Man. With so little surviving evidence to go on, Tyle has still managed to weave together 19 tracks and a sound that seems like a plausible echo of Keppard's terse, often relentless music. His own cornet-playing certainly seems to catch much of the blaring intensity of Keppard himself, and though the rest of the band seem rather less characterful they create convincing treatments of the likes of the title-piece and 'Messin' Around'.

♛ * New Orleans Wiggle GHB BCD-347 Chris Tyle (c, v); Orange Kellin (cl); Steve Pistorius (p); John Gill (d). 99.

The style isn't really Dixieland, revivalism or even 'New Orleans': it's a modern methodology applied to classic principles, and the results are entirely of their own time. The material goes as near in as 'St Louis Blues' and as far out as Lovie Austin's 'Stepping On The Blues' – a mix of populism and connoisseurship which ought to appeal to anybody. Tyle and Kellin play with stinging spirit and not too much finesse, Pistorius finds all the right feeds and stomps with superb élan, but if one player stands out it's Gill, whose tumbling bravado and dazzling sticksmanship make the quartet into an orchestra. Essential.

Gwilym Simcock

PIANO

Gifted and already garlanded British composer.

 Perception Basho SRCD 24-2 Simcock; Stan Sulzmann (ss, ts); John Parricelli (g); Phil Donkin (b); Martin France (d); Ben Bryant (perc). 07.

Simcock has a nice touch with a theme, another in a rich vein of British or British-based pianist composers – Nikki Iles, Richard Fairhurst, Zoe Rahman, Jamil Sheriff, Andrea Vicari, several others – who seem fated to a curious inconsistency of attention, praised as rising stars but rarely listened to with much attention. It's a fate some of their seniors – Gordon Beck, say – will be familiar with and it's pernicious. Simcock's writing and playing are rich and virtuosic. His trio is estimably professional and he deploys his guests with taste, though perhaps there's too much even of the wonderful Sulzmann on a debut record. We want to hear what the piano-player does. The work is much influenced by Keith Jarrett and Chick Corea, but here and there on Perception – on 'Time And Tide' and 'Affinity', for instance – one hears something of the classical influence, anything from Ravel to Shostakovich, that also drives Simcock's strikingly original imagination.

Sonny Simmons (born 1933)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, COR ANGLAIS

Born in Louisiana, he moved to California as a boy and took up alto sax. Made his recording debut with Prince Lasha's group. Associated with the '60s avant-garde but dropped from sight for a couple of decades thereafter. Also a member of Cosmosamatics.

 Music From The Spheres Abraxa/ESP 103 Simmons; Barbara Donald (t); Bert Wilson (ts); Michael Cohn (p); Joony Booth (b); James Zitro (d). 66.

(*) The Complete ESP Disk' Recordings ESP Disk' 4012 3CD As above, except add John Hicks (p); Teddy Smith (b); Marvin Patillo (d). 8/66; 12/66.

A valuable reissue of Simmons's second ESP record, this is immediately marked by the leader's obvious empathy with trumpeter Donald. They work superbly together on the opening 'Resolutions', an enterprising modal composition that sounds like no one else playing at the time. On 'Balladia' the group sound is reminiscent of the classic Ornette–Cherry quartet, though the piano is a giveaway, suggesting a different harmonic approach. Despite that, the main influence on Simmons himself is Eric Dolphy at his most abstract and frantic. Bert Wilson guests on 'Dolphy's Days', but the best thing on the set is the ambitious 'Zarak's Symphony', a strangely vulnerable and elusive idea that isn't allowed to outstay its welcome.

Simmons's first ESP session, Staying On The Watch, is once again available as part of the useful three-CD box which consists very largely of interview tracks with Simmons, including some valuable commentary on Eric Dolphy, Barbara Donald and other contemporaries.

 Manhattan Egos Arhoolie CD 483 Simmons; Barbara Donald (t); Michael White (vn); Juma (b, perc); Kenny Jenkins (b); Paul Smith, Eddie Marshall (d); Voodoo Bembe (perc). 2/69–11/70.
 Burning Spirits Contemporary CCD 7625 Simmons; Barbara Donald (t); Lonnie Liston Smith (p); Richard Davis, Cecil McBee (b); Clifford Jarvis (d). 11/70.
Manhattan Egos is a reissue of the original Arhoolie LP, with four live quartet tracks dating from the following year. Simmons was a powerful exponent of full-on energy playing, and his solos (even on the cor anglais) have retained their fuming energy and directness. The rest of his group is less honoured by the recording, which zeroes in on Donald's fluffs and the clumsy rhythms. The live material fares better in that White's playing, while less relentless than Simmons's, has a raddled elegance to it. A document of its time, every bit as much as Burning Spirits, which features another excellent band playing in what doesn't quite compute as either 'avant-garde' or 'free'. There's certainly more fire about these tracks than there is enlightenment. Simmons's claim that the cor anglais was his first instrument receives some confirmation. One comes away wondering why Barbara Donald isn't more celebrated. And that's about it.

 Live At The Cheshire Cat Hello World! HW02/03 2CD Simmons; Richard Clements (p); Freddie Williams (b); Larry Hancock, Irvin Lovillete (d). 80.
Part of a now wide-ranging documentation of Simmons live dates, this is valuable in coming from the otherwise silent years in terms of surviving records. It's the usual free-blowing stuff, with a supportive but mostly very anonymous band. Collectors will value another glimpse of Simmons, but more casual listeners will wonder what the fuss is about.

(*) Jewels Boxholder BXM 043 Simmons (as solo). 8/91.
This solo session didn't garner an official release until 2004. More than any of his other records, it shows off the rich, textured sound he can get out of the alto sax: much of it has the quality of an operatic recital. His approach is that of a melodic improviser: he rarely strays into extremes of register, preferring to let shadings of timbre and volume make their point. Recorded in a fine-grained close-up, the result is mostly intensely beautiful.

(*) Live In Paris Arhoolie 506 2CD Simmons; Jean-Jacques Avenel (b); George 'Funky' Brown (d). 01.
This is an interesting release, in that it seems to represent an effort on Simmons's part to write himself onto a larger page of jazz history. In addition to his usual, cosmically inclined originals, he includes 'My Favorite Things', 'Hot House', 'Salt Peanuts' and 'Round Midnight' in a long and high-coloured set, playing with a conscious nod to both Parker and John Coltrane. The trio is a high-energy unit, with Avenel playing the rich, flowing bass-lines one is accustomed to from European players (Jenny-Clark and Dave Holland both spring to mind), while Brown lives up to his sobriquet in every bar.

* Transcendence CIMP 113 Simmons; Michael Marcus (stritch, manzello); Charles Moffett (d). 4/96.
(*) Judgement Day CIMP 117 Simmons; Michael Marcus (manzello, Cmel); Steve Neil (b); Charles Moffett (d). 5/96.
Two almost desperately powerful records by an angry man. The sleeve-notes say something about the saxophonist's resolve and intensity, revealing the strained circumstances of both sessions, and the bloody virulence of the playing can at times seem as exhausting to listen to as it was to perform. Moffett's swing- and jazz-time are one leavening agent; the lovely sound of Marcus's horns intertwining with Simmons is another. But these are severely beautiful records altogether, which CIMP's unadulterated sound enhances. The second gets a marginally lower rating if only because Neil sometimes seems an unnecessary addition to the other three. Simmons plays alto on the first, a very dark tenor on the second, and despite evident problems he is awesome.

 I'll See You When I Get There /  Last Man Standing Jazzaway 024 / 032 Simmons; Anders Aarum (p on I'll See You only); Mats Eilertsen (b); Torstein Lofthus (d on Last Man only); Ole-Thomas Kolberg (d). 04–05.
There's a grimly survivalist ring to a title like Last Man Standing and Simmons increasingly plays as if he were the final defender in a siege, beset by the blandness of the wider culture. His group here, with Eilertsen a rising star in his own right, is well up to the task, but stands somewhat apart from Sonny's wilder stuff. The duos with Aarum and the others on the first disc are more measured.

 The Traveller Jazzaway JARCD 011 Simmons; Vidar Johansen (f); Anders Aarum (p); Mats Eilertsen (b); Ole-Thomas Kolberg (d); strings. 12/04–3/05.
A curious collaboration between Simmons and Vidar Johansen, who wrote most of the music and arranged a four-piece string section (at Simmons's request). His pinched tonality on cor anglais and characteristically sweeping alto sit awkwardly in the rather plush context at first, but as the ear adjusts, a bleakly lyrical fusion comes into being. At times it feels as if nobody is quite sure what they're doing. Some arresting episodes along the way.

Also, in brief:

 Tales Of The Ancient East Parallactic 39. 1/01.
Simmons and an unusual quartet (as/eng hn, f/hrm, bcl, syn), working in Paris.

 Live At Knitting Factory Ayler ayl 023. 5/01.
Simmons with Cameron Brown (b) and Ronnie Burrage (d). Great group, but it comes out as free jazz by numbers.

 Live At Rive De Gier /  Ecstatic Nostalgia /  Fourth Dimension Hello World! HW01 /06 / 07. 8 & 12/06; 3/07.
Solo dates from France, mostly on alto and cor. Sonny and his fans obviously think everything that drops from his lips is now of value; these are only questionably so. There are other solo sets on Hello World!. And elsewhere.

Edward Simon (born 1969)

PIANO

Born in Venezuela, Simon has emerged as one of the more innovative Chick Corea disciples on the scene.

 The Process Criss Cross 1229 Simon; John Patitucci (b); Eric Harland (d). 03.
(*) Simplicitas Criss Cross 1267 Simon; Adam Rogers (g); Avishai Cohen (b); Adam Cruz (d); Pernell Saturnino (perc); Luciana Souza (v). 5/04.
Simon has been recorded only very sparingly as a leader (there are two earlier sets – that we know about – in the deleted file from the 1990s). The first Criss Cross is a strong set, with a distinctive Latin tinge that is reminiscent of Chick Corea's less abstract compositions. Simon has a very diligent touch, plays his lines cleanly and keenly and constructs meaningful solos. Fast forward to his 'Woody'N'You' feature on The Process to see how quickly he has advanced harmonically. There, too, he has the sterling advantage of the quicksilver Patitucci, who saw service with the Corea group and understands the idiom inside out.

Simplicitas has bags of energy and excitement. Simon's knack is in presenting quite complex ideas in a direct and communicative format (read the excellent sleeve-notes for his thoughtful commentary on his own writing). The group is required to pull off some quite tricksy twists and turns over the course of the eleven tracks, but what comes across in the main is a mix of joyful executive exuberance and a darker harmonic undertow. Although it is again basically a trio set, Rogers and Souza appear on the appealing 'Unknown Paths', a diversion which suggests that Simon may have a very different but equally interesting kind of record in him.

(*) Unicity Cam Jazz 5019 Simon; John Patitucci (b); Brian Blade (d). 2/06.

A new label for Simon, and we'd dare suggest a more sympathetic berth for his brand of feeling post-bop. Blade and Patitucci stay strongly behind him on this blend of Latin-tinged swingers and occasional more abstract pieces. It's no longer a surprise to find a Mompou composition on a jazz record and the version of 'Prelude No 9' is one of the most convincing. The title track 'Abiding Unicity' is a dedication to Egberto Gismonti, graceful and emotional by turns. The bassist is featured on 'Pathless Path', on an electric instrument, but Simon steals it back with a wonderful, nuanced solo. His most impressive showing yet.

Also, in brief:

 La Bikina Mythology 42759. 98.

Interesting earlier date that might be hard to track down.

(*) Fiestas De Agosto Red 123304. 03.

A fine date with saxophonist David Binney.

Ken Simon (born 1948)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

American saxophonist moving in an uncompromising free-jazz direction, mostly.

(*) The Twilight Of Time Cadence CJR 1082 Simon; Vattel Cherry (b); David Pleasant (d). 7/97.

 Another Side CIMP 217 Simon; Jorge Sylvester (ss, as); Greg Maker (b); Barry Altschul (d). 2/00.

The cover photo of The Twilight Of Time looks like Monument Valley, and Simon and his team are like high plains drifters, free-jazz outlaws in an otherwise lawbound time. Romanticism apart, this isn't all that good: the saxophonist doesn't so much build on Albert Ayler's legacy (specifically recalled in 'Albert's Ladder') as flatten it. He's a brutally aggressive player and, since he doesn't have a great deal to say, it's wearisome. Cherry and Pleasant do their best to illuminate, but it's difficult work.

There's an almost apologetic air about Another Side, since it arose out of a situation where CIMP boss Bob Rusch heard a tape of Simon playing standards. Since two of the four themes worked on are 'Syeeda's Song Flute', and 'Yesterdays', this is almost Simon going pop. Despite the reference points, there's still a considerable amount of windbag playing. Any opportunity to hear Altschul – still masterful – is welcome, though, and at least there's some light, shade and space in the music. Sylvester is more of a free-bopper than the leader, and he's a useful contrast.

Pete (La Roca) Sims (born 1938)

DRUMS

A New Yorker, Sims – he got his nickname through playing in timbale bands – was an accomplished hard-bop drummer who came to prominence in the late-'50s Sonny Rollins group. Dismayed at the decline of jazz in the late '60s, he left music and studied as an attorney; but he has since returned, although not to full-time performing.

(*) Basra Blue Note 875259 Sims; Joe Henderson (ts); Steve Kuhn (p); Steve Swallow (b). 5/65.

(*) Turkish Women At The Bath Fresh Sound FSRCD 1631 Sims; John Gilmore (ts); Chick Corea (p); Walter Booker (b). 5/67.

Blue Note collectors will always remember him as Pete La Roca, the nickname he picked up through his expertise as a timbale player in Latin bands, 50 years ago; but he prefers plain Pete Sims. The unsung hero of many a hard-bop date, his work as leader is once again available with a new RVG edition of the much-liked Basra. The title-track is an intriguing one-chord vamp and seems to draw something from what Pete was doing in timbale bands. Henderson is in grand form, and Kuhn underlines yet again what a fine accompanist he is. Turkish Women At The Bath has had a chequered career, having previously appeared on Douglas, 32 Jazz and Koch. It's an absolutely fascinating line-up. Every glimpse of Gilmore away from the Arkestra is precious and he's in iron-hard form here, though it's Corea's intuitive grasp of Sims's Latin rhythms that makes the date swing. Sims had a minor resurgence in the '90s, reunited with old colleague David Liebman on the agreeable SwingTime, a late return to Blue Note, but it's not an easy record to find now and we haven't listed it here.

Zoot Sims (1925–85)

TENOR, ALTO, SOPRANO AND BARITONE SAXOPHONES, VOICE

A Californian, and one of Woody Herman's 'Four Brothers' saxophonists in the '40s, he continued to play in big-band situations on several tours, but from 1950 was primarily a solo artist who worked in almost countless studio and live situations. One of his most frequent collaborators was fellow tenorman Al Cohn. Instantly recognizable, and among the most consistently inventive and swinging of musicians, Sims was a paradigmatic jazzman. He died of cancer in 1985, having played for as long as he was able.

 Zoot Sims Et Henri Renaud Emarcy 013037-2 Sims; Jon Eardley, Jean Liesse, Nat Peck (t); Phillippe Benson (as); Sandy Moss, André Ross (ts); Jean-Louis Chautemps (bs); Fats Sadi (vib); Henri Renaud, Bernard Peiffer (p); Jimmy Gourley (g); Benoît Quersin, Eddie De Haas (b); Charles Saudrais, Pierre Lemarchand, Jean-Louis Viale (d). 52–56.

 Quartets Original Jazz Classics OJC 242 Sims; John Lewis, Harry Biss (p); Curley Russell, Clyde Lombardi (b); Don Lamond, Art Blakey (d). 9/50–8/51.

 East Of The Apple Jasmine JASMCD 2598 As above, except add Jimmy Woode, Dick Hyman, Gerry Wiggins (p); Simon Brehm, Charlie Short, Pierre Michelot (b); Jack Noren, Ed Shaughnessy, Kenny Clarke (d). 4/50–8/51.

(*) Zoot! Original Jazz Classics OJC 228 Sims; Nick Travis (t); George Handy (p); Wilbur Ware (b); Osie Johnson (d). 12/56.

Like Jack Teagarden, Zoot Sims started out mature and hardly wavered from a plateau of excellence throughout a long and prolific career (oddly enough, Sims's singing voice sounded much like Teagarden's). As one of Woody Herman's 'Four Brothers' sax section, he didn't quite secure the early acclaim of Stan Getz, but by the time of these sessions he was completely himself: a rich tone emboldened by a sense of swing which didn't falter at any tempo. He sounded as if he enjoyed every solo, and if he really was much influenced by Lester Young – as was the norm for the 'light' tenors of the day – it was at a far remove in emotional terms. Quartets sets up the kind of session Sims would record for the next 35 years: standards, a couple of ballads and the blues, all comprehensively negotiated with a rhythm section that strolls alongside the leader: neither side ever masters the other. 'Zoot Swings The Blues' has Sims peeling off one chorus after another in top gear, while a seemingly endless 'East Of The Sun' shares the solos around without losing impetus. The original Prestige recording is grainy. Ten of these tracks are also on East Of The Apple, which is bulked out by two Stockholm sessions and one from Paris. Sound on these isn't too good either (the Paris date is so hissy that everyone will be turning down their treble control) but Sims does his usual cheerful swinging.

Zoot! goes up a notch for the inspirational pairing of Sims and Travis, a minor figure who probably never played as well on record as he does here: 'Taking A Chance On Love' is a near-masterpiece, and Ware and Johnson play superb bass and drums. The Emarcy set belongs more to Renaud than to Sims, since the saxophonist is only on four quartet tracks, with Jon Eardley. Still, they're four fine pieces, after-hours jamming and Sims sounding free as a bird.

(*) The Modern Art Of Jazz Dawn DCD 101 Sims; Bob Brookmeyer (vtb); John Williams (p); Milt Hinton (b); Gus Johnson (d). 1/56.
 Zoot Sims Goes To Jazzville Dawn DCD 103 Sims; Jerry Lloyd (t); John Williams (p); Bill Anthony, Knobby Totah (b); Gus Johnson (d). 8–9/56.
(*) That Old Feeling Chess GRP 18072 Sims; John Williams (p); Knobby Totah (b); Gus Johnson (d). 10–11/56.
The Dawn material has been out in various incarnations, often compiled as one CD, but these are surely the definitive editions, with previously unreleased tracks as a bonus. The Modern Art Of Jazz is a cracking session with Brookmeyer, both horns ebullient throughout, and though the sound is a bit cavernous it's very listenable. Zoot Sims Goes To Jazzville sets him alongside the little-known Lloyd, who does nothing to disgrace himself and has a light though rather short-breathed style. Zoot plays alto on four tracks, and a surprise choice is Monk's 'Bye-Ya'. The original LP programme is bolstered by six extra tracks, four of them 'new'.

That Old Feeling collects two sessions originally released on Argo and ABC-Paramount, including a date where Zoot overdubbed alto and baritone to make a one-man sax section. Unlike other such experiments, this one worked out well. Zoot's utter professionalism, coupled with his easy-going style, seems to have transcended the artifice of the situation, and a couple of tunes – 'Minor Minor' and 'Pegasus' – are lucid gems. But there is also a sumptuous ballad feature on 'The Trouble With Me Is You'.

(*) Plays Alto, Tenor And Baritone Fresh Sound FSRCD 434 Sims; John Williams (p); Knobby Totah (b); Gus Johnson (d). 10 & 11/56.
On the first LP included here, Zoot simply plays tenor, and with a refreshing straightforwardness of purpose. He has a reed problem on 'That Old Feeling', a couple of intrusive squeaks, but for the most part it's elegant solo play, with his feature in '55th And State' and 'The Man I Love' particularly outstanding. The remaining tracks have him overdubbed on all three horns to create a rich ensemble sound that no one will mistake for anything other than a full group. Technical excellence aside, there's some lovely playing, with 'The Trouble With Me Is You' another highlight from the period.

* Down Home Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10198 Sims; Dave McKenna (p); George Tucker, Bill Crow (b); Dannie Richmond, Ed Shaughnessy (d). 11/59–7/60.
This one seems to have been out dozens of times in different editions, but it's a classic Zoot date, with the saxophonist swinging as hard as he ever has and McKenna offering his characteristic full-blooded support. There is a single stray track from an earlier session – not really necessary, since it runs over 70 minutes (there are some alternative takes) as it is.

 Either Way Evidence ECD 22007-2 Sims; Al Cohn (ts); Mose Allison (p); Bill Crow (b); Gus Johnson (d); Cecil 'Kid Haffey' Collier (v). 2/61.
 The Hoagy Carmichael Sessions And More Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10158 As above, except add Nick Travis (t); Jimy Cleveland (tb); Elliot Lawrence (p); Milt Hinton (b); Osie Johnson (d). 57–2/61.
One of the earlier collaborations between these two tenor masters, Either Way suffers from a foggy sound-mix and the less-than-desirable presence of Collier, whose singing on three tunes wastes valuable saxophone time (on what is a short CD anyway). But there is still some great duelling on 'The Thing', 'I'm Tellin' Ya' and a honeyed 'Autumn Leaves', plus the bonus of Allison at the piano. The Lone Hill Jazz set offers the same tracks plus the eight numbers from a rather bland album of Hoagy Carmichael tunes, made a few years earlier.

 Recado: Bossa Nova Fresh Sound FSRCD 189 Sims; Spencer Sinatra (f, picc); Ronnie Odrich (f, cl); Phil Woods (cl); Gene Quill (cl, bcl); Kenny Burrell (g); Art Davis (b); Sol Gubin (d); Ted Sommer, Willie Rodriguez (perc). 62.
An interesting Latin date that pitches Zoot into an ensemble (two different groups are represented) filled with lighter-sounding woodwinds and guitar. It's amiable rather than arresting, but some of the saxophonist's solos are among his best of the period.

 Live At The Half Note Again Lone Hill LHJR 10207 Sims; Richie Kamuca (ts); Roger Kellaway (p); Tommy Potter (b); Mel Lewis (d); Jimmy Rushing (v). 10/65.
This is a relatively undocumented period in the current catalogue, so this is a valuable recovery. Sims sounds like he's finding it all a bit routine, but it's a group to die for and Kellaway and Potter between them drive it along, leaving Lewis to embellish the metre in the subtlest way. Rushing's on hand as a guest star.

(*) Zoot Suite High Note HCD 7170 Sims; Jimmy Rowles (p); George Mraz (b); Mousey Alexander (d). 73.
A fine and previously unreleased date with an elegant rhythm section that allows Sims to play some of his most lyrical material (including a nice soprano feature on 'Rocking In Rhythm') but with a section that also knows how to swing. Mraz is a master in situations like this and Rowles plays with grace and power on 'Honeysuckle Rose' and 'In A Mellow Tone'. Astonishing that a set of this quality has lain on the shelves for so long.

 Zoot Sims In Copenhagen Storyville STCD 8244 Sims; Kenny Drew (p); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 8/78.
A characteristic club date with Zoot. Drawbacks: the rhythm section play well but are too generously featured; the material is stuff Zoot did many times over; the sound is a bit rough here and there. The plus is that Sims is playing close to the top of his latter-day game, which ought to be good enough for anybody.

* Zoot Sims And The Gershwin Brothers Original Jazz Classics OJC 444 Sims; Oscar Peterson (p); Joe Pass (g); George Mraz (b); Grady Tate (d). 6/75.
 Soprano Sax Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 902 Sims; Ray Bryant (p); George Mraz (b); Grady Tate (d). 1/76.
(*) Hawthorne Nights Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 830 Sims; Oscar Brashear (t); Snooky Young (t, flhn); Frank Rosolino (tb); Bill Hood, Richie Kamuca, Jerome Richardson (reeds); Ross Tompkins (p); Monty Budwig (b); Nick Ceroli (d); Bill Holman (arr). 9/76.
(*) Warm Tenor Pablo 2310-831 Sims; Jimmy Rowles (p); George Mraz (b); Mousie Alexander (d). 9/78.
(*) For Lady Day Pablo 2310-942 As above, except omit Alexander; add Jackie Williams (d). 4/78.
 Just Friends Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 499 Sims; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Roger Kellaway (p); John Heard (b); Jimmie Smith (d). 12/78.
 The Swinger Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 855 Sims; Ray Sims (tb, v); Jimmy Rowles (p); John Heard, Michael Moore (b); Shelly Manne, John Clay (d). 11/79–5/80.
 Passion Flower Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 939 Sims; Bobby Bryant, Al Aarons, Oscar Brashear, Earl Gardner (t); J. J. Johnson, Britt Woodman, Grover Mitchell, Benny Powell (tb); Frank Wess (as, f); Marshal Royal (as); Plas Johnson, Buddy Collette (ts); Jimmy Rowles (p); John Collins (g); Andy Simpkins, John Heard, Michael Moore (b); Grady Tate, Shelly Manne, John Clay (d). 8/79–5/80.
* I Wish I Were Twins Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 976 Sims; Jimmy Rowles (p); Frank Tate (b); Akira Tana (d). 7/81.
(*) The Innocent Years Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 860 Sims; Richard Wyands (p); Frank Tate (b); Akira Tana (d). 3/82.
 Blues For Two Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 635 Sims; Joe Pass (g). 3–6/82.
 On The Korner Pablo 2310-953 Sims; Frank Collett (p); Monty Budwig (b); Shelly Manne (d). 3/83.
(*) Suddenly It's Spring Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 742-2 Sims; Jimmy Rowles (p); George Mraz (b); Akira Tana (d). 5/83.
 Quietly There Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 787 Sims; Mike Wofford (p); Chuck Berghofer (b); Nick Ceroli (d); Victor Feldman (perc). 3/84.
 The Best Of Zoot Sims Pablo 2405-406 As above Pablo albums.
When Sims signed to Norman Granz's Pablo operation, he wasn't so much at a crossroads as contentedly strolling down an uneventful path. For a man who could fit effortlessly into any situation he chose – admittedly, he never chose a situation that might cause much trouble – Sims could have spent his final years as a nebulous figure. But his Pablo albums set the seal on his stature, sympathetically produced, thoughtfully programmed and with enough challenge to prod Zoot into his best form. Gershwin Brothers is a glorious sparring match with Peterson, rising to an almost overpowering charge through 'I Got Rhythm' via a simmering 'Embraceable You' and a variation on Coltrane's approach to 'Summertime'. It's the ravishing tone which makes the session with Pass so attractive: with drums and bass cleared away, the tenor sound is swooningly beautiful. A pity, though, that Pass sounds so perfunctory throughout. The sessions with Jimmy Rowles at the piano, though, are indispensable examples of Zoot at his best. Warm Tenor is only a shade behind, and the recently discovered set of tunes associated with Billie Holiday, For Lady Day, is another plum choice, with an amble through 'You Go To My Head' that dispels the happy-sad clouds of Holiday's œuvre with a smouldering lyricism. Suddenly It's Spring is another that betrays Rowles's affection for unlikely material – 'In The Middle Of A Kiss', 'Emaline', even Woody Guthrie's 'So Long' – and though the playing seems a shade too relaxed in parts, it's still delightful music. The Swinger reunites Zoot with brother Ray and they make a joshing, harmless team: 'Now I Lay Me Down To Dream Of You' is sweetness personified. I Wish I Were Twins is at last on CD, and it's another great one. Perhaps new rhythm section Frank Tate and Akira Tana push Rowles a little too much, but there is a little masterpiece in their version of 'Georgia'. The Innocent Years substitutes Wyands for Rowles, and this is a swinging session: Zoot does an earthy blues on soprano, plays 'Over The Rainbow' as a fast samba and takes 'The Very Thought Of You', which was one of his favourite vehicles for soprano, at his patented easy lope.

Soprano Sax was one of his earliest Pablos. Zoot grew to like his second horn and he sounds just like himself on it, a pinchier, tinier Zoot but still a perfect lyricist on 'Baubles, Bangles And Beads' and his favourite 'Bloos For Louise'. Passion Flower features him with a big band scored by Benny Carter on nine Ellington tunes. The charts are frankly functional rather than inspiring, but Zoot tended to find his inspirations from within anyway and he seems chipper enough.

The only real disappointment is Hawthorne Nights, which finds Zoot a tad perfunctory for once on a generally uninspiring set of Bill Holman charts. On The Korner finds him in a San Francisco club, still enjoying himself, with 'Dream Dancing' and the surprisingly urgent soprano rendition of 'Tonight I Shall Sleep' of special interest; Frank Collett plays fine supporting piano. Although only a year away from his death when he made Quietly There, a set of Johnny Mandel themes, Sims was still in absolute command. Feldman's percussion adds a little extra fillip to the likes of 'Cinnamon And Clove', although Sims himself sounds undistracted by anything: his winding, tactile improvisation on the melody of 'A Time For Love', to pick a single instance, bespeaks a lifetime's preparation. The Best Of is a mysteriously ill-chosen retrospective: better to pick any one of the albums with Rowles if a single disc is all that's required.

core collection

* If I'm Lucky

Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 683 Sims; Jimmy Rowles (p); George Mraz (b); Mousie Alexander (d). 10/77.

If I'm Lucky* is, narrowly, the pick from the Pablo stable of recordings, for its ingenious choice of material – '(I Wonder Where) Our Love Has Gone' counts as one of Sims's most affecting performances – and the uncanny communication between saxophonist and pianist throughout.

(*) Love For Sale: Live In Dublin 1978 Nagel Heyer CD 102 Sims; Noel Kelehan (p); Jimmy McKay (b); John Wadham (d). 78.
This must have been a great night for the local boys, who swing with abandon and some authority behind Zoot, who's ancestrally Irish himself. Only found and mastered in 2007, the source sounds as if it's suffered some wear and tear, but the mends are unobtrusive and the music is generally of a high standard. A purple patch in his late years: 'Do Nothing …'/'In A Mellow Tone' is particularly good.

Also, in brief:

 The Complete 1944–1954 Small Group Master Takes: Volumes 1–3 Blue Moon BMCD 1038 / 1039 / 1040. 44–54.
Useful compilation of precocious early material, but it drags over these durations.

(*) Swing King! Proper PVCD 138 2CD. 47–53.
Early sides with Woody Herman, then a mixed bag going up to the 1953 Paris sessions. A useful buy.

 Complete Prestige And Vogue Studio Masters Jazz Factory JFCD 22873. 4/50–8/53.
As it says on the tin, across 21 tracks.

 Zoot-O-Rama Ocium OCM 001. 6/50–9/53.
More or less the same as the above.

(*) Americans Swinging In Paris EMI France 539646-2. 3/56.
Zoot and Jon Eardley (t) in absolutely prime form on a Paris stopover.

 Elegiac Storyville STCD 8238. 11/80.
A live date with Bucky Pizzarelli (g) comes out of the shadows of a large discography.

Alex Sipiagin (born 1967)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Sought-after big-band player with experience in the George Gruntz outfit and the Mingus Big Band.

(*) Steppin' Zone Criss Cross 1202 Sipiagin; Chris Potter (ts); David Kikoski (p); Scott Colley (b); Jeff 'Tain' Watts (d). 6/00.
The Criss Cross debut feels like a homecoming. Much of the huff and effort that lay behind the first record has been brokered into brisk, confident playing, with Alex very much at the heart of the action. The only thing that's been stepped on is a strange version of George Shearing's 'Conception', which is almost unrecognizable. Scott Colley's 'Catalyst' opens and closes the date, two different interpretations that hint at the shifting mood of the album. The longest piece is Kikoski's 'Spacing', which is a latter-day 'Giant Steps' in zero gravity and the thinnest harmonic atmosphere – original, engaging and a great theme to blow on. As on the first record, Sipiagin includes a Pat Metheny composition; 'Missouri Uncompromised' is not as immediately engaging as 'Midwestern Night Dream' on Images, but it has more going for it as an improvisation theme.

(*) Hindsight Criss Cross 1220 Sipiagin; Chris Potter (ts); Adam Rogers (g); Boris Kozlov (b); Gene Jackson (d). 5/01.
No piano this time, but Rogers fits into the mix beautifully, playing horn-like lead lines and the open, capacious chords that fuel the long, blues-inspired title-track. Alex seems to like opening and closing albums with the same theme. Here it's a long, then longer still, version of Bill Evans's 'Very Early', a more obvious curtain-piece than an opener, but beautifully done in both places. Kozlov is a bit of a revelation. His harmonic understanding is best attested on 'Hindsight', but elsewhere his subtle understanding of the rhythm is an important factor in the group's and the album's success. Sipiagin continues to play beautifully, and his duet with Rogers on 'Light Blue' (on flugelhorn this time) is simply gorgeous. We also like what he's done with Mingus's 'Reincarnation Of A Love Bird', familiar material for Alex, but done with a fullness of sound that briefly makes the quintet sound like a Mingus band; Kozlov's well to the fore here as well.

 Returning Criss Cross 1270 Sipiagin; Seamus Blake (ss, ts); Adam Rogers (g); Scott Colley (b); Antonio Sanchez (d). 10/04.
Another brisk and limber set from a leader who now sounds completely comfortable with what he is doing. Alex's soloing is the key element here, with Blake doing little more on some cuts than noisily trying to make himself heard. The trumpeter builds a solid line and then doesn't so much embellish it as lay out all the ways it could have gone. More than once, he seems to deconstruct his own song even as he plays it. Thoughtful contemporary jazz and further proof, too, of Colley's growing mastery. His empathy with Rogers is extremely impressive.

 Prints Criss Cross 1292 Sipiagin; Chris Potter (ss, ts); David Kikoski (p); Scott Colley (b); Antonio Sanchez (d). 10/06.
Sipiagin still dominates and still doesn't really seem to need another horn in the front line. Potter is a less rambunctious player than Blake and so his contributions aren't so intrusive, but what a different and better album this might have been as a quartet. The writing is easily strong enough to survive a barer presentation.

 Out Of The Circle Sunnyside SSCD 1189 Sipiagin; Robin Eubanks (tb); Donny McCaslin (ss, ts, f); Henry Hey (ky); Gil Goldstein (acc); Adam Rogers (g); Scott Colley (b); Antonio Sanchez (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc); Monday Michiru (v). 07.
There's a polished quality to this record that might initially suggest a drift towards a lighter end of the spectrum. In reality, though, it's as tough-minded as anything he's done. A couple of vocals by his wife Monday Michiru don't add much, though they do help to vary the textures further. He dabbles with bass trumpet on 'Sketches Of Myself' right at the end and there's a lot of keyboard texture underpinning the horn- and guitar-lines. Colley again proves indispensable, and delicious in combination with Eubanks's authoritative trombone.

Also, in brief:

 Images TCB 98602. 98.
A lovely tolling version of the traditional 'Novgorod Bells' and a fine original in 'Little Dancer'. Characterful jazz.

 Mirrors Criss Cross 1236. 6/02.
Piano and guitar this time, and a fuller sound, though not quite the killer punch he seemed ready to deliver.

Sirone (Norris Jones) (born 1940)

DOUBLE BASS, WOOD FLUTE

Born in Georgia. A lynchpin of the '60s avant-garde, he played with Albert Ayler, Noah Howard, Cecil Taylor, Gato Barbieri and many others. He is also a key member of the Revolutionary Ensemble.

 Live Atavistic Unheard Music ALP/UMS 253 Sirone; Claude Lawrence (as); Dennis Charles (d). 81.
Seldom heard on his own, but Sirone's deep, bluesy tone and background in horn-playing are evident on this mainly solo performance. Charles and Lawrence are largely present to set up ideas and improvising contexts, though on the last track they play as a trio. Sirone unexpectedly opens on wood flute, a light, dry sound as far as can be imagined from his usual instrument. Then he switches to trombone, which is much more like the thing. Predictably, though, it's his bass-playing that is most revelatory, rich and resonant sounds and some nimbly inventive ideas. Recorded at New York's Public Theatre, the tapes show some signs of wear, but there's nothing intrusively amiss.

 Configuration Silkheart SHCD 155 Sirone; Charles Gayle (as); Billy Bang (vn); Tyshawn Sorey (d). 04.
This is credited to the Sirone Bang Ensemble, but the delight of the set is the playing of 22-year-old Tyshawn Sorey, one of the real finds of recent years. He manages to make an impact from the very first track, but it's on 'Freedom Flexibility', another Bang composition, that he really starts to strut his stuff, giving the three veterans something to think about. The interplay between Bang and Sirone is as fascinating as you'd expect given their shared and several experience and the closeness of their instruments. Gayle surprises by playing alto, though one comes to expect surprise from Charles Gayle. His tone is a little pinched, like a less warm-toned Marion Brown or Noah Howard, but his contribution is absolutely central and he takes a fine spot opposite Bang on 'Notre Dame De La Garde'. A fine set and overdue recognition for one of the key bassists of recent times.

Lars Sjøsten (born 1941)

PIANO

A defining influence on Swedish post-bop of the 1960s onward.

 Early Dragon DRCD 406 Sjøsten; Bertil Lövgren (t); Putte Wickman (cl); Gunnar Bergsten (bs); Bengt Lindqvist (org); Sture Nordin (b); Fredrik Norén, Nils-Erik Svensson (d); Kerstin Bagge, Kerstin Dahl, Annica Risberg, Bjarne Nerem (v). VARIOUS DATES.
 In Confidence Dragon DRCD 197 Sjøsten; Jan Kohlin (t); Bertil Strandberg (tb); Petter Carlsson (frhn); Øystein Baadsvik (tba); Krister Andersson (ts); Gunnar Bergsten (bs); Patrik Boman (b); Nils Danell (d). 11–12/90.
Sjøsten is a deft, economical pianist, conservative as a composer – he might build an idea round a rhythmic oddity or an unusual tonality – but good with groups of any size. He's been recording as a leader since 1971, but there's very little material around on CD. A couple of other Dragons feature him with Lee Konitz, and these are worth seeking out too. The work on In Confidence is pleasing, good-natured and deftly arranged, without hidden depths but not short on basic imagination.

Alan Skidmore (born 1942)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Son of saxophonist Jimmy, he played with big bands and blues groups in the '60s before forming his own groups and freelancing. A Coltrane follower but with the style well assimilated.

(*) Once Upon A Time Vocalion CDSML8407 Skidmore; Kenny Wheeler (flhn); John Taylor (p); Harry Miller (b); Tony Oxley (d). 70.
Skidmore is rather poorly represented on record, though he can also be heard on a growing range of reissued British jazz records from the Golden Age of the late '60s and early '70s. This superb quintet date has been rescued from the Deram archives. The title piece and 'Image' are both by John Surman, 'Majaera' is by the wonderful Oxley, 'The Yolk' by Taylor and 'Old San Juan' by John Warren, leaving just one relatively anonymous composition by Skidmore this time round. It's the saxophone one listens to, though, rather than the theme: a strong, hard-edged sound, redolent of the blues even when they are not implied, and with a definite recall of Coltrane. Wheeler sounds quite fragile on his flugelhorn, but the two horns blend magnificently. Taylor is more abstract than in later years but still in great form. Miller and Oxley might seem a misalliance in some respects, but here (and especially on Ox's tune) it works well.

(*) Tribute To Trane Miles Music MMCD075 Skidmore; Jason Rebello (p); Dave Green (b); Stephen Keogh (d). 2/88.
(*) East To West Miles Music 081 Skidmore; Steve Melling, Stan Tracey (p); Roy Babbington, Mick Hutton (b); Bryan Spring, Clark Tracey (d). 11/89–2/92.
Skidmore had recorded 'Lonnie's Lament' before, but it reappears on Tribute. With typical self-effacement, Skidmore asked that the album, one of a flood marking the 20th anniversary of Coltrane's death, be regarded as a 'thank you' rather than a disciple's homage. The choice of material is interesting. 'Naima' and 'Mr P.C.' make for a more predictable closing sequence but 'Resolution', 'Crescent', 'Bessie's Blues' and 'Dear Lord' suggest the depth of Skid's understanding of the music.

East To West is a solid continuation of the same work. There are three tracks from a Hong Kong club date in 1989, with Tracey's trio in support, and three more from the Scott club in 1992. Skidmore's tenor oratory is as mighty and full-blooded as before, with even Tracey's own 'Funky Day In Tiger Bay' transformed into a thunderous outpouring of saxophone. The later sessions bring further gifts with 'Crescent', 'Wise One' and as thumping a take on 'Mr P.C.' as you'll find outside the master's own records.

Also, in brief:

* After The Rain Miles Music MMCD 084 98.
With Colin Towns's large ensemble and a German orchestra, but Skid still comes through with magisterial authority on another Coltrane-flavoured programme.

 The Call /  Ubizo Provocateur Records PVC 1018 / 1036. 4 & 5/99; 10/02.
A self-confessed drummer manqué, he relished these African collaborations with the Amampondo ensemble. They're not records that wear well, though.

Steve Slagle (born 1951)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Born in LA, his family moved east; studied at Berklee from 1970 and later worked with Lionel Hampton, Woody Herman, Jack McDuff and Carla Bley.

 The Steve Slagle Quartet / (*) Spread The Word Steeplechase SCCD 31323 / 31354 Slagle; Tim Hagans (t); Scott Colley (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 11/92, 4/94.
(*) Reincarnation Steeplechase SCCD 31367 Slagle; Kenny Drew Jr (p); Cameron Brown (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 10/94.
Slagle has hitherto been best known by association, but his albums as a leader deserve a hearing. Quartet features some difficult writing by the leader: 'Leadbelly Sez' is a tricky eight-bar blues, and 'Mondo' might suggest a leaning towards the original Ornette

Coleman quartet. Colley and Hirshfield work very capably behind the horns, and Hagans plays thoughtfully. The quartet return for Spread The Word, and this time it manages to suggest an eloquent kind of free playing that actually owes little to Coleman's quartet. The improvising has an air of long-breathed virtuosity about it, the many-noted solos rooted in bebop but coloured by the freedoms of what came after. If the leader's convolutions suggest a struggle with form, Hagans's calm and lucid playing reconciles structure with freedom, and the contrast between the two styles makes the music compelling and rounded.

Slagle's own work suggests a link between hard-bop stylists and the free players of a generation later, which some of his own sleeve-notes on Reincarnation also allude to. The opening track here is a long, sinewy extemporization on Charles Mingus's 'Reincarnation Of A Lovebird', and Slagle recalls how it struck him as a link between Parker and Dolphy. If you add Jackie McLean to the mixture, it could almost come up as Slagle himself, and this twisting solo is certainly one of the best things he's done on record. There are fine ballads in 'Soultrane' and 'Bess, You Is My Woman Now', and though one misses some of the interaction which Hagans created on the other discs, Slagle takes the weight on his own shoulders very convincingly. Drew's excellent work is a bonus.

(*) Alto Blue Steeplechase SCCD 31416 Slagle; Ryan Kisor (t); Scott Colley (b); Gene Jackson (d). 4/97.
This is Slagle's best record. The music is all blues, either in form or feeling, and with Kisor matching or even outplaying the leader on some pieces the content is way up. Slagle's three originals work beautifully and his flute feature on 'Detour Ahead' is clean as a whistle. Colley and Jackson vary the rhythms and sponsor the horns without getting in their way, and the studio sound catches them all to a tee.

 New New York Omnitone 12005 Slagle; Joe Lovano (ts); Joe Locke (vib); Dave Stryker (g); Cameron Brown (b); Gene Jackson (d). 6/00.
Essentially, a continuation of the Steeplechase work, with a more packaged and considered feel. But Slagle is a typical New York jazzman of today, playing with bands of many stripes, in and out of jazz, and stewing up all this experience when it comes to helming his own date. So there's a juicy amount of rhythmic and textural detail, without quite establishing a defining course or a particularly cathartic moment. It's mostly quartet music, with Locke and Lovano taking a guest turn apiece, the vibesman sounding coolly effective on 'What Goes Around Comes Around'.

Also, in brief:

 Our Sound! Double-Time DTRCD-107. 4/95.
A swinging, genuine date, with plenty of fire and interest.

 Plays Monk Steeplechase SCCD 31446. 1/00.
'Plays Mingus' might have been more Steve's speed, given his experience in the Mingus Big Band, but this is a decent enough set.

Don Sleet (1938–86)

TRUMPET

He worked in California in the '50s and '60s and spent some years with the San Diego Symphony, but his boppish delivery brought him this one date as a leader in the studios.

 All Members Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1949 Sleet; Jimmy Heath (ts); Wynton Kelly (p); Ron Carter (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 3/61.
Long a collectors' favourite, but in truth, no great masterpiece: the quintet play within themselves, Carter's bowed solos are an annoyance, and not much really sticks in the mind. But Sleet, for all his share of fluffs (surprising for someone with as much classical experience), shies away from the obvious. He sounds as if he wants to be Miles Davis for much of the way, with long vibratoless notes and a touch of the Davis preening on ballads, but he'll suddenly throw in an excitable phrase or follow a sequence of short remarks with a long, handsomely executed line. Heath sounds full and resonant in his solos and brought in the title-track; there are also two Clifford Jordan tunes.

Cliff Smalls (born 1918)

PIANO

A career divided between jazz, R&B and soul.

 Caravan Black & Blue 8732 Smalls; Leonard Gaskin (b); Oliver Jackson (d). 78.
Black & Blue helped a lot of American jazzmen record at a time when the business was as slack as unmilled cotton back home. Smalls brings a folksy simplicity to this trio date but shows impressive chops all the way through. The rhythm section are mainly along for the ride.

Bill Smith (born 1926)

CLARINET

Born in Sacramento, he studied under Milhaud at Mills College and at the Juilliard School. He was a member of Dave Brubeck's influential Octet. His advanced ideas are unique and still overlooked.

(*) Folk Jazz Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1956 Smith; Jim Hall (g); Monty Budwig (b); Shelly Manne (d). 2 & 11/59.
Far ahead of its time in its integration of modern modal jazz and folk music, this sees Smith take a group of traditional songs, all the way from 'Greensleeves' to American classics like 'Nobody Knows The Trouble I've Seen', 'Go Down Moses' and 'Nobody Knows You When You're Down And Out', and subjects them to gently swinging, harmonically subtle arrangement. Hall's clean comping takes the place of a piano and sounds more open and folkish, while Budwig plays with typical subtlety. Highpoints of the album include a superb version of 'Black Is The Colour of My True Love's Hair'; Smith's lean clarinet introduction is inch-perfect and the best possible introduction to the clarinettist's work.

Bobby Smith

ALTO SAXOPHONE

He wrote 'Tippin' In' for the Erskine Hawkins band.

 That's For Sure Delmark DD 484 Smith; Erskine Hawkins Alumni. 49–3/54.
A parallel kind of career to Johnny Hodges' with the Ellington orchestra and a similar range of material, though Smith moved from jump themes to straight R&B. Probably the best known of the sidemen is baritone saxophonist Haywood Henry. Pleasant listening, and no surprise to hear him reprising 'Tippin' In'.

Derek Smith (born 1931)

PIANO

Born in London, he worked the British scene for a time, but went to the US in 1957, where he worked in the studios and on TV.

 The Man I Love Progressive PCD 7035 Smith; Scott Hamilton (ts); George Mraz (b); Billy Hart (d). 5/78.

 Love For Sale Progressive PCD 7002 Smith; George Duvivier (b); Bobby Rosengarden (d). 10/78.

 Plays Jerome Kern Progressive PCD 7055 Smith; Linc Millman (b); Ronnie Bedford (d). 3/80.

It's not easy to make too nice a distinction between these powerfully swinging sets by the Englishman, which come in what looks like a uniform edition with the original David Stone Martin cover art. There isn't a big discography, but it's pretty much of a piece. The earliest surviving one was originally a Statiras LP and the sound on it isn't fantastic, though Hamilton cuts through richly and there's nothing wrong with the playing from the others. Smith's preferred material is almost invariably mainstream standards, played in a mixture of medium and fast tempos with not too much dalliance on balladry; sometimes he surprises, though.

(*) High Energy Arbors ARCD 19247 Smith; Nicki Parrott (b); Joe Ascione (d). 10/00.

This is Derek's finest moment. Again, most of the material is pretty familiar; everyone winces when they hear the intro to 'Alone Together', but Smith makes something fresh out of it. He does get somewhat more adventurous with Rollins's 'Soxy' ('St Thomas' ends the album with a smile), Neal Hefti's 'Girl Talk' and a chunk of Rodrigo, from that piece, but again it's unhackneyed, energetic and full of melody. Terrific stuff.

Hal Smith (born 1953)

DRUMS

A pro since the late '70s. He is from Indiana but is associated with many West Coast revivalist groups and New Orleans bands of today, leading the Frisco Syncopators and the Down Home Jazz Band.

 California, Here I Come Jazzology JCD-182 Smith; Chris Tyle (c, v); Bobby Gordon (cl); Frank Powers (ts, cl); Ray Skjelbred (p); Jack Meilahn (g); Mike Duffy (b, v). 11/88.

 Milneburg Joys GHB BCD-277 Smith; Chris Tyle (c); David Sager (tb); Jacques Gauthé (cl, ss); Steve Pistorius (p); Amy Sharpe (bj); Bernie Attridge (b). 6/89.

(*) Portland To San Diego 1983–1998 Jazzology JCD-136 Smith; Chris Tyle (c); Mark Caparone (t); Alan Adams (tb); Bobby Gordon (cl); Richard Hadlock (ss, as); Frank Powers (ts); Butch Thompson, Ray Skjelbred, Bill Mitchell, Chris Dawson (p); Rebecca Kilgore (g, v); Jack Meilahn (g); Mike Duffy, Clint Baker (b). 83–98.

(*) Sweet Little Papa GHB BCD-403 Smith; Duke Heitger (t, v); Mike Owen (tb); Brian Ogilvie (cl); Steve Pistorius (p, v); Tom Saunders (b). 8/98.

 Concentratin' On Fats Jazzology JCD-299 Smith; Marc Caparone (t); Alan Adams (tb); Bobby Gordon (cl); Frank Powers (ts, cl); Chris Dawson (p); Rebecca Kilgore (g, v); Clint Baker (b). 11–12/98.

 Let's Have A Jubilee Jazzology JCD 336 As above, except add John Otto (cl, as, v). 04.

Smith and Tyle were co-leaders of the Frisco Syncopators on Milneburg Joys, one of the several fine American trad groups revisiting the classic repertoire with unusual aplomb. Though they take their cue from Bob Scobey's original Frisco Jazz Band, the group was actually New Orleans-based, and they approach seasoned chestnuts such as 'Skid-Dat-De-Dat' and 'Panama' with enough sharpness to lend a fresh point of view. The rhythm of the group attains a nice blend of sleekness and ragged drive, and in the clean-toned Tyle and the adept Pistorius they have two excellent soloists.

Disc three is by Smith's Rhythmakers and is a reissue of their first (1983) LP, beefed up with seven tracks from three later sessions. The early music is recorded with a real punch and the fast tunes go off like a rocket, with Hadlock's old-fashioned soprano sound a real treat. Becky Kilgore was then in the band primarily as a rhythm guitarist, but she sings on four of the later tracks, including the delightful 'He's The Last Word'. A terrific disc. California Here I Come isn't quite as good, just a little shambling in parts, though the playing is spirited enough. Concentratin' On Fats is set up as a feature for Kilgore, and focuses on the less well-known Fats Waller songs. It's a nice record, though both singer and band have done better.

Sweet Little Papa is by Smith's Creole Sunshine Jazz Band and is conceived as a homage to Kid Ory. The sextet tackle Ory-associated appeal with fine aplomb and in Heitger they have one of the absolute top musicians of today in this genre: he ends the disc with a splendid 'Cornet Chop Suey'.

The Rhythmakers are still going strong on Jubilee, clumping through a hoary programme as if it were all brand-new. Becky Kilgore's in great form and new man Otto has some excellent moments: all presented in good sound.

Harrison Smith

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, BASS CLARINET

British bop-to-free saxophonist with a wide CV.

 Outside Inside Slam CD 231 Smith; Liam Noble (p); Jeremy Brown (b); Winston Clifford (d). 3/98.

Smith belongs to a generation of British players for whom rapid transition between free music and a settled groove presents no difficulty. Sparingly recorded for a musician of his experience, he plays with maturity and presence on this session as leader. Opening with bass clarinet on 'Inside Outside' was a bold stroke, but his long unfolding statement holds the attention throughout. He switches to soprano for 'Adventures With DP', a more tuneful and expressive horn for Smith than the tenor, on which he always sounds a little forced.

A freer conception informs the two-part 'Cliffhanger/For U', and Smith revels in the space to develop a raw-textured but sensitive solo that instantly identifies itself as British and of a certain vintage. The supporting band is always on hand with a complementary idea. Noble has a thoughtful touch and Clifford is unfailingly musical.

Ian Smith (born 1965)

TRUMPET

Cousin of trumpeter Jimmy Deuchar, he started out in rock bands before turning to creative music; a member of the London Improvisers Orchestra and other groups.

* Daybreak Emanem 4059 Smith; Gail Brand (tb); Oren Marshall (tba); Veryan Weston (org); Derek Bailey (g). 01.

If Tryst, his improv debut on Red Toucan, was an impressive starting-point, Daybreak is a small miracle. The basic chemistry is the same – solos, duos and small groups with only occasional use of ensemble – but what a wealth of sound from such unexpected instrumentation. Wherever his sound comes from, namesake Leo Smith, Bill Dixon or the Gabriels of forgotten jazz bands and orchestras, Smith is in love with brass. That comes across on the delicious trio with Marshall and Brand, 'Falange, Flanginha, Falangeta', as well as the opening duet with the brilliant tubist. Weston plays a breathy chamber instrument, and if you know your Wilhelm Reich you'll love the title of 'Function Of The Organ', another of Smith's generous solo-spots-cum-interlude. The veteran Bailey is the trumpeter's partner on 'Coffee' and makes light of being odd man out on this date. It's a stunning album, one of the unexpected treasures of the Emanem catalogue and something that anyone interested in contemporary trumpet-playing and structured improvisation should sample.

(*) K3 Bruce's Fingers BF 58 Smith; Simon H. Fell (b); Harris Eisenstadt (d). 9/03.

At first glance, this is a more conventional situation, in that the line-up follows a more fixed and familiar pattern. The music's anything but ordinary, with visiting man Eisenstadt bringing his typical range of energies and sound-colours and Fell delivering an authoritative line from first to last. Until the arrival on the scene of the brilliant young Peter Evans, Smith was the most exciting trumpet exponent around. Brilliant as Evans is, Smith shouldn't be overlooked

Ishmael Wadada Leo Smith (born 1941)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, PERCUSSION

Born in Mississippi, Smith became part of the radical AACM group before founding the Creative Construction Company with Anthony Braxton and Leroy Jenkins. A subtle theoretician, he has enjoyed a considerable resurgence in recent years.

[redacted]

* The Kabell Years

Tzadik TZ 7610 4CD Smith; Oliver Lake (as); Anthony Davis (p); Wes Brown (b); Pheeroan akLaff (d). 71–79.

* Divine Love

ECM 529126-2 Smith; Lester Bowie, Kenny Wheeler (t); Dwight Andrews (af, bcl, ts, perc); Bobby Naughton (vib, mar, perc); Charlie Haden (b). 9/78.

Since the '70s Smith has organized his music according to the principles of 'rhythm-units', which seem to call for a mystical equivalence of sound and silence, and of 'ahkreanvention', a method of notating improvised music. 'Tastalun' on Divine Love is the first of these pieces Smith had an opportunity to record, three muted trumpets weaving an extraordinary extended spell. So closely integrated is the playing by Smith and guests Wheeler and Bowie that it is probably pointless trying to sort out who is playing which line.

The basic group, on both this record and the one below, is Smith with Naughton and Andrews. Divine Love opens on a long meditation for alto flute, Andrews at his atmospheric best, before Smith's tight, compressed sound comes through. The title-piece is another of his ritual works. Naughton's vibes are a key element on this record, not least because there is no conventional percussion part. He opens the last track pitched against Charlie Haden's bass, marking the pauses that constitute the work's stately rhythm unit. Andrews's bass clarinet intones ancient wisdoms while Smith sounds elevated, rapt, almost tranced.

The Kabell box, compiled by supporter John Zorn's Tzadik, is a kind of prequel. The label was set up by Smith in the early '70s to document his work, and released four LPs, much of it solo work, but also including trios with Davis and Brown, and as New Dalta Akhari with Lake and akLaff. The original discs were Creative Music – 1, Reflectativity (confusingly also used for a 1999 set with Davis), Song Of Humanity and Akhreanvention. Smith's ideas about sonority have something in common with the mysterious classical composer Giacinto Scelsi, but filtered through the hands-on aesthetic of AACM. The solo pieces are devastatingly beautiful, the trio tracks somewhat more essay-like and discursive, but an undeniably important release.

(*) Go In Numbers Black Saint 120053 Smith; Dwight Andrews (af, bcl, ts, perc); Bobby Naughton (vib, mar, perc); Wes Brown (b, odurgyaba f). 1/80.

This is a live recording, from the Kitchen in New York, of the group Smith called New Dalta Ahkri. It consists mainly of two long statements. Naughton and Wes Brown open 'Go In Numbers' with a desolate meditation that sounds like the funeral march of some lost leader. Smith's opening figures seem to contain half-remembered elements of Ives's The Unanswered Question. Elsewhere he sounds uncannily like a slowed-up version of Don Cherry, an influence that was to seem ever more pressing in years to come.

(*) Procession Of The Great Ancestry Chief CD6 Smith; John Powell (ts); Bobby Naughton (vib); Louis Myers (g); Joe Fonda, Mchaka Uba (b); Kahil El'Zabar (d, perc). 2/83.

'Seven mystical poems of jazz in 17 links', dedicated to some of the honoured shades of Afro-America, including fellow trumpeters Miles, Dizzy, Roy Eldridge and Booker Little, with a special paean to Gabriel's right-hand man, the Revd Martin Luther King Jr. As in The Mass On The World, this is conceived as a long seamless ritual, much of it conducted in duet with Naughton's bell-like vibes.

Smith makes no attempt to pastiche any of his musical ancestors. Stylistically, it would be difficult to determine merely by listening who was being celebrated in which piece, except that there is probably more of Miles in the title-track, which begins the procession proper. What Diz would have thought of a title like 'Celestial Sparks In The Sanctuary Of Redemption' is fortunately not recorded.

(*) Rastafari Boxholder BXH 035 Smith; Bill Smith (ss); David Prentice (vn); Larry Potter (vib); David Lee (b). 6/83.

Originally on Sackville, this pits Smith with the Bill Smith Ensemble, a group dedicated to adventurous improvisation and composition. The instrumentation is unique and with Smith's somewhat Steve Lacy-like soprano as second horn there's a nice balance in the sound, with Potter to some extent taking the place of a drummer, and the two strings (perhaps an influence on Smith's later practice) working together in fascinating counterpoints.

(*) Kulture Jazz ECM 519074-2 Smith (solo). 10/92.
Another attempt to commune with the ancestors. The honour'd shades are Billie Holiday, Trane, Ayler and Pops, but this time there is much greater emphasis on Smith's poetic writing, which, like Cecil Taylor's, has become ever more important relative to pure instrumentalism. One longs for more trumpet in place of the barrage of percussion and little instruments that clogs the album.

It was brave of ECM to go back to him after a gap of almost 25 years, but sadly this one dates far more quickly than Divine Love.

(*) Tao-Njia Tzadik TZ 7017 Smith; Dorothy Stone (f, af, picc); Martin Walker (cl, bcl); Vicki Ray (p, cel); Mika Noda (vib, perc); Robin Lorentz (vn); Erika Duke (clo); David Philipson (bansuri, perc); Harumi Makino Smith (v). 11 & 12/95.
 Light Upon Light Tzadik TZ 7046 Smith; Bill Powell, Marty Walker (cl, bcl); Dorothy Stone (picc, f, af); Allan Vogel (ob); Vicki Ray (p); Robin Lorentz (vn); Karen Elaine Bakunin (vla); Erica Duke-Kirkpatrick (clo); Bertram Turetzky (b); Arthur Jarvinen (perc, mar, vib); I. Nyoman Wenten (gender barung); John Parsons (gender parembung); Mark Trayle (elec); Harumi Makino Smith (v). N.D.
In the spring of 1995 Smith unveiled a large-scale, multi-ensemble piece called Odwira. It was the clearest sign of how far he has moved from small-group improvisation to a new conception of himself as a composer, albeit a heterodox one. Recent years have seen him personally and musically involved with Oriental culture, and this is strongly reflected in Tao-Njia, a rich montage of sounds that are at once new and immediately familiar, bearing Smith's stamp from the very first overdubbed passages of 'Another Wave More Waves'. Here, once again, the dominant exchange is between trumpet and vibraphone, no longer Bobby Naughton but Mika Noda, and pairs of low drums played by David Philipson, two members of his Nda-Kulture Ensemble. They are augmented by members of new-music and crossover specialists California E.A.R. for 'Tao-Njia' itself. As on Kulture Jazz, this is essentially a text piece, recited by Harumi Makino Smith against a wind-and-string ensemble, Smith's trumpet and pre-recorded mbira. It's the only questionable part of the record, over-long, slightly indulgent and not always very clearly articulated.

The remainder is taken up by 'Double Thunderbolt', a memorial to Don Cherry. It borrows his 'Symphony For Improvisers' tag for the second and fifth movements, opening with Smith on bamboo flute and ending – 'A Falcon Ascends In A Moonbow Lightbeam' – with magnificent solo muted trumpet. A piece to cherish, utterly true to Cherry's great gifts, and to Smith's.

The second record extends this phase of Smith's compositional career. Two of the pieces are performed by the E.A.R. Ensemble and the New Century Players, one of them, 'Nur', written for bassist Turetzky. 'Hetep: Serenity: Tranquility 2' is for Bakunin's viola, while the last two pieces are complex soundscapes for electronics, samples and Smith's keening trumpet.

(*) Yo Miles! Shanachie 5046 2CD Smith; Bruce Ackley, Steve Adams, George Brooks, Lary Ochs, Jon Raskin (sax); Oluyemi Thomas (bcl); Paul Plimley (p, org); John Medeski (org); Bob Bralove (ky); Nels Cline, Henry Kaiser, Freddy Roulette, Elliott Sharp (g); Chris Muir (g, elec); Michael Manring (b, g); Wally Ingram, Lukas Ligeti (d, perc). 1/98.
Why listen to reprocessed Miles when there is a whole shelfload of the real thing? If the answer seems self-evident, it might be worth spending an hour with Smith guitarist Henry Kaiser and band on this generous two-CD pastiche of Miles's electric phase. Smith's trumpet-playing is rawer and more intense than anything Miles ever attempted. One is tempted to say it is also more harmonically astute. All it lacks is the eggshell fragility of the original.

The material is predictable enough, mostly Jack Johnson and Big Fun vintage funk. Smith turns 'Calypso Frelimo' into a dark, squally ride and the ABC groove of 'Ife' into a sprawling essay in time-changes and minimal harmonics. 'Miles Dewey Davis III – Great Ancestor' is a vividly thoughtful original.

Kaiser's part is harder to quantify and assess. Unlike John McLaughlin and later guitarists, he doesn't command much of a front role, but he underpins the ensembles with real understanding. The guest musicians, who include the members of the ROVA Saxophone Quartet, are used to great effect, and Kaiser and fellow guitarist Chris Muir produce with a feel for the grooves and timbres that Teo Macero would enjoy.

() Reflectativity / () Golden Quartet Tzadik TZ 7060 / 7604 Smith; Anthony Davis (p); Malachi Favors (b); Jack DeJohnette (d on Golden Quartet only). 99; 00.
The Reflectativity session reworks a piece from 1972 which has lain in Smith's work bag ever since, unacknowledged and now recast as a tribute to Duke Ellington. The other dominant influences on this extraordinary record are Thelonious Monk, Charlie Parker and Anthony Braxton, with whom Smith has worked again recently.

On 'Celestial Sky And All The Magic', Smith demonstrates again how much he owes to Miles Davis, but also how far he has travelled beyond. His muted introduction is as delicately moving as his rapid-fire exposition on 'America's Third Century Spiritual Awakening' is rousing. The opening 'DeJohnette' is a Milesian tribute to a band member and affords the drummer lots of space to spread out and show his wares. Jack is an utterly compelling soloist and his ability to understand where Smith is coming from generates the key relationship of the set. Davis is sympathetic enough, but he doesn't quite have the chops to equal Smith.

 Compassion Meta/Kabell 010 Smith; Adam Rudolph (perc). 6/02.
Rudolph's work with Sam Rivers and others has always been impressive and this is an excellent example of how musically he deploys a wide array of percussion instruments, including cymbals and gongs, hand-drums, kalimba, doussn'gouni and others. Apart from Smith's solo 'Song Of Humanity', these are improvised duets, often faintly tentative, gently exploring, nudging at ideas rather than hitting them over the head. Not perhaps the most emphatic or memorable of Smith's recent discs, but a very worthwhile one.

 The Year Of The Elephant Pi Recordings 4 Smith; Anthony Davis (p, syn); Malachi Favors Maghostut (b); Jack DeJohnette (d, syn). 9/02.
A surprisingly straight-ahead jazz record. DeJohnette plays crisp, flowing lines, and Favors, always a fascinating groove player, lays down beefy lines that sound at times more like bass guitar. Smith and Davis are the more 'outside' half of the equation, but the trumpeter tends to restrict himself to yawing, almost anguished figures that on the duet with Davis, 'Kangaroo's Hollow', flirt with abstraction. The opening 'Al-Madinah' promises that this is not going to be an unduly complex or tortuous album, and 'The Zamzan Well A Stream Of A Pure Light' is milder and more circumspect than anything Smith has done in recent years. 'Miles Star In 3 Parts' is interesting, with Davis playing a bass vamp under the trumpet. The pianist and DeJohnette both deploy synthesizers as if they were Hammond organs; unusual and effective.

 Organic Resonance /  Saturn, Conjunct The Grand Canyon In A Sweet Embrace Pi Recordings 6 / 10 Smith; Anthony Braxton (reeds). 4/03, 4/03.

Widely admired on first release, these are curiously disappointing sets that never seem to find the two players on common ground. Both are live recordings. The first consists of two Smith compositions bracketing Braxton's 'Compositions 314/315'. Smith, as ever, paints broad brush, while Braxton's pieces are faster-moving, rhythmically complex tessellations of very simple materials. They seem to have more fun on the second disc, with Braxton doing a curious gutbucket thing on the title-track, and both of them lilting through 'Composition 316'.

* Lake Biwa Tzadik TZ 8008 Smith; Marcus Roja (tba); John Zorn (as); Anthony Coleman, Yuko Fujiyama, Jamie Saft, Craig Taborn (p); Marc Ribot (g); Jennifer Choi, Eric Friedlander (clo); John Lindberg, Wes Brown (b); Gerald Cleaver, Susie Ibarra, Kwaaku Kwaakye Obeng (d). 02–04.

This highlights Smith the composer, who in recent years has explored his own system of notation. The varied orchestra is capable of subtly inflected sound. The title-track sounds composed until Smith enters some minutes in, at which point the language becomes more open and improvisational. Zorn takes a great solo on 'Sanai's Enclosed Garden Of The Truth' and there is strong work from the strings here and on the closing 'Africana World'. Smith's role as a soloist is less prominent than in the past, but his ability to shape large-scale structured improvisations is non pareil.

(*) Snakish Leo CDLR 435 Smith; Miroslav Tadić (g); Mark Nauseef (perc, elec); Walter Quintus (elec); Katya Quintus (v). 03–04.

A curious mix of Smith's Miles-tinged trumpet and pleasant but rather random sounds from the other players. The pieces are all short, which militates against any sense of development but also means that nothing sticks around long enough to become seriously tedious.

* Wisdom In Time Intakt CD 128 Smith; Günter 'Baby' Sommer (d, perc). 06.

As Oliver Schwerdt points out in a short liner-note, trumpet/drums projects do represent a small tradition. Smith's recent work has also incorporated electronics, which ties it more obviously to Bill Dixon's work with Tony Oxley than elsewhere. Smith is in particularly good voice, getting a tight, rich tone out of his flugelhorn in particular, but it's the eternally underrated Sommer who makes this so compelling. His figuration is exact but relaxed, his accompaniments almost melodic. Great stuff from two giants of the music.

 Brooklyn Duos Treader trd007 Smith; John Coxon (hca, g). 12/05.

Recorded at Jamie Saft's Brooklyn studio, this is a long-planned collaboration between the trumpeter and one half of Spring Heeled Jack. Coxon has a remarkably delicate touch and on the long opening number 'Gagaku: Rain' finds a voice that contrasts nicely with Smith's while complementing it in every phrase and transition. Some of the later tracks are less successful and there are moments that sound awkwardly workshopped. By and large, though, a quietly powerful statement.

Also, in brief:

 Condor, Autumn Wind Wobbly Rail WOB 001. 11/97.

A very intimate, almost private musical experience with Harumi Makino Smith (v) that will either command or repel.

* Red Sulphur Sky Tzadik TZ 7070. 01.

This is a devastatingly beautiful solo recital, calling on all of Smith's technique as well as his wonderfully poetic musical personality.

 Luminous Axis Tzadik TZ 7083. 03.

A suite of miniatures and longer improvisations, with the trumpet keening out across spare, almost subliminal electronic backgrounds.

Jabbo Smith (1908–90)

TRUMPET, VOICE

Born Cladys Smith in Pembroke, Georgia, he was a dashing figure in late-'20s Chicago and was signed by Brunswick as a rival to Louis Armstrong. His career was damaged by drink and a poor attendance record, and by 1940 he was barely visible, subsequently taking jobs outside music. Came back in the '70s and was on Broadway in New York in the '80s, reformed and intact.

* Jabbo Smith 1929–1938 Classics 669 Smith; Omer Simeon, Willard Brown (cl, as); Leslie Johnakins, Ben Smith (as); Sam Simmons (ts); Millard Robins (bsx); Cassino Simpson, Kenneth Anderson, Alex Hill, William Barbee, James Reynolds (p); Ikey Robinson (bj); Connie Wainwright (g); Hayes Alvis, Lawson Buford (tba); Elmer James (b); Alfred Taylor (d). 1/29–2/38.

(*) Hot Jazz In The Twenties: Volumes 1 & 2 Collectables COL 6960 / 6961 Smith; Bob Shoffner (t); George Dixon (t, tb, v); Charlie Irvis (tb); Omer Simeon (cl); Willard Brown (cl, as); Elmer Harrell, Cecil Irwin (cl, ts); Benny Waters (cl, as, ts); Fred Howard, George James (as); Edgar Sampson (as, vn); Willard Brown (ts); Zinky Cohn, Charlie Johnson, Cass Simpson (p); Bobby Johnson, Ikey Robinson (bj); Hayes Alvis, Cyrus St Clair (tba); Walter Bishop, George Stafford (d); Monette Moore, May Smith (v). 28–30.

Until his rediscovery in the '60s, Smith was legendary as Armstrong's most significant rival in the '20s, a reputation built almost entirely on the records reissued on these discs. Like Pops, he'd learned to play in an orphanage. He had already made a name for himself with Charlie Johnson's orchestra, but it was the 20 sides he cut with his Rhythm Aces that have endured as Smith's contribution to jazz. The Classics CD includes all of them, together with four tracks from a single 1938 session by Smith's then eight-strong group. Smith's style is like a thinner, wilder variation on Armstrong's. He takes even more risks in his solos – or, at least, makes it seem that way, since he's less assured at pulling them off than Louis was. Some passages he seems to play entirely in his highest register; others are composed of handfuls of notes, phrased in such a scattershot way that he seems to have snatched them out of the air. If it makes the music something of a mess, it's a consistently exciting one. Organized round Smith's own stop-time solos and dialogue with the rhythm, with the occasional vocal – a quizzical mix of Armstrong and Don Redman – thrown in too, the records seem like a conscious attempt at duplicating the Hot Five sessions, although in the event they sold poorly. Simeon is curiously reticent, much as Dodds was on the Hot Fives, and alto-players Brown and James do no more than behave themselves. The livewire foil is, instead, the extraordinary Robinson, whose tireless strumming and rare, knockout solo (as on 'Michigander Blues') keep everything simmering. Shrill and half-focused, these are still lively and brilliant reminders of a poorly documented talent.

Good in Jabbo's centenary year to be able to list another set. The Collectables volumes, licensed from Biograph, are problematic in that Jabbo denied having a presence on some of the material, including 1929 dates with Alex Hill and Lloyd Smith. However, there is some early material here that predates the Classics run, and both the digital engineering and Chris Albertson's liner-note makes this a very desirable collection.

Jimmy Smith (1925–2005)

ORGAN

Studied piano and bass in Philadelphia, but switched to organ in the early '50s and arrived in New York with a trio in 1956. Many albums for Blue Note, 1957–61, and Verve, 1962–73. Opened his own club in 1975 and quit touring, but returned to it in the '80s and performed to the end. His style – bebop lines rooted in the blues, punchily delivered – set the tone for all the organists who came after him, and helped create the soul-jazz genre.

(*) A New Sound ... A New Star ... Jimmy Smith At The Organ Vols. 1–3 Blue Note 57191-2 2CD Smith; Thornel Schwartz (g); Bay Perry, Donald Bailey (d). 2–6/56.

 At Club Baby Grand: Volume ½ Blue Note 92785 / 92786 As above, except omit Perry. 8/56.

 Home Cookin' Blue Note 53360-2 Smith; Percy France (ts); Kenny Burrell (g); Donald Bailey (d). 7/58–6/59.

 Standards Blue Note 21282-2 Smith; Kenny Burrell (g); Donald Bailey (d). 8/57–5/59.

 Cool Blues Blue Note 35587-2 Smith; Lou Donaldson (as); Tina Brooks (ts); Eddie McFadden (g); Art Blakey, Donald Bailey (d). 4/58.

() Crazy Baby Blue Note 84030-2 Smith; Quentin Warren (g); Donald Bailey (d). 3/60.

(*) Open House / Plain Talk Blue Note 84269-2 Smith; Blue Mitchell (t); Jackie McLean (as); Ike Quebec (ts); Quentin Warren (g); Donald Bailey (d). 3/60.

 Back At The Chicken Shack / (*) Midnight Special Blue Note 46402-2 / 84078-2 Smith; Stanley Turrentine (ts); Kenny Burrell (g); Donald Bailey (d). 4/60.

 I'm Movin' On Blue Note 32750-2 Smith; Grant Green (g); Donald Bailey (d). 1/63.

 Prayer Meetin' Blue Note 76754-2 Smith; Stanley Turrentine (ts); Quentin Warren (g); Sam Jones (b); Donald Bailey (d). 6/60–2/63.

 Rockin' The Boat Blue Note 76755-2 Smith; Lou Donaldson (as); Quentin Warren (g); Donald Bailey (d); John Patton (perc). 2/63.

Jimmy Smith got going rather late as a jazz organist. Astonishingly enough, he allegedly didn't even touch the instrument until he was 28, but he quickly established and personified a jazz vocabulary for the organ: tireless walking bass in the pedals, thick chords with the left hand, quick-fire melodic lines with the right. It was a formula almost from the start, and Smith has never strayed from it, but he so completely mastered the approach that he is inimitable. At his best he creates a peerless excitement, which is seldom sustained across an entire album but which makes every record he's on something to be reckoned with.

Smith made a great stack of albums for Blue Note. As with all the long-serving artists on the label, their availability has been frustratingly inconsistent, but it's a fair showing at present. His first three albums have been collected on the twofer, A New Sound, and welcome it is since it catches much of the initial raw excitement that Smith was after. Pet licks and his familar great flourishes, delighting in the noise-making capacity of the organ, still sound at their most fresh and swinging here. Cool Blues sat on the shelf until 1980. Again recorded at Smalls', Lou Donaldson and Tina Brooks guest, with Blakey on drums on a few tracks. More of a potboiler, although any memento of Brooks, even in a routine blowing context, is something to keep. At Club Baby Grand, recorded in Wilmington, Delaware, has reappeared in a new RVG edition like many of these records, though few of them seem dramatically improved, and if anyone already has CDs they shouldn't consider replacing them right now.

It was disappointing, though, to hear how quickly Smith's albums became formulaic. Home Cookin' has the little-known Percy France on tenor, but more significant is the presence of Burrell, the organist's favourite partner. A solid one, with five bonus tracks on the CD edition. Crazy Baby is discouragingly rational. Back At The Chicken Shack has Turrentine confronting Smith to periodically powerful effect – the title-blues in particular blows very warmly – but, for all its 'classic' status, this is an album we've never really been impressed by. Midnight Special was recorded at the same session and is ... more of the same. I'm Movin' On is notable mainly for the sole recorded appearance of Smith with guitarist Grant Green – though the programme never quite gets off the ground and what should have been the big steamer, 'Back Talk', resolves itself into a series of clichés.

Smith rarely recorded with more than one horn in attendance, and the front line on Open House/Plain Talk marked a welcome change of pace. Regulation hard bop, perhaps, but plenty of smoke and cinders, and just as an alternative to the usual Smith programme this is one to hear. Prayer Meetin' is more secular blues than sanctified gospel, but either way Turrentine gets in a righteous blow. Two extra tracks from an abandoned 1960 session fill out the CD. This has now emerged in a new RVG edition, as has Rockin' The Boat, which was actually recorded one day earlier, with Lou Donaldson (making a rare solo appearance on a Smith date) and John Patton apparently playing tambourine. Solid.

Standards is a discovery – seven cuts from a previously unheard 1959 date plus five from earlier sessions, all with Burrell and Bailey. With the tempos mostly idling and the emphasis on ballads, this is almost as much Burrell's album as it is Smith's, and it underlines how fine a partner for the organist the guitarist has always been: economical, bluesy, adroit. A sleeper but a good one.

CORE COLLECTION

 Groovin' At Smalls' Paradise

Blue Note 99777-2 2CD Smith; Eddie McFadden (g); Donald Bailey (d). 11/57.

On Groovin' At Smalls' Paradise Smith is in his element in a club setting and, while McFadden also gets plenty of space (and doesn't do badly, in his modest way), the master's big, sprawling solos are definitive: 'After Hours' is perhaps the classic Smith blues performance, although the entire record works to a kind of bluesy slow burn. The original albums have been turned into a double-CD and, in the Rudy Van Gelder edition remastering, the years fall away. This is the Smith album to get.

* Bashin' Verve 539061-2 Smith; Joe Newman, Ernie Royal, Doc Severinsen, Joe Wilder (t); Jimmy Cleveland, Urbie Green, Britt Woodman (tb); Tom Mitchell (btb); Jerry Dodgion, Phil Woods (as); Bob Ashton, Babe Clark (ts); George Barrow (bs); Barry Galbraith, Quentin Warren (g); George Duvivier (b); Donald Bailey, Ed Shaughnessy (d). 3/62.

 Any Number Can Win Verve 557447-2 Smith; Jimmy Maxwell, Joe Newman, James Sedlar, Charlie Shavers, Snooky Young (t); Jimmy Cleveland, Paul Faulise, Melba Liston, Kai Winding (tb); Jerry Dodgion, Marvin Halladay, Budd Johnson, Seldon Powell, Jerome Richardson, Phil Woods (reeds); Kenny Burrell, Vince Gambella, Billy Mure (g); Bob Bushnell, Art Davis, George Duvivier, Milt Hinton (b); Bobby Donaldson, Ed Shaughnessy (d); Doug Allen, George Devens, Art Marotti (perc). 7/63.

 The Cat Verve 810046-2 Smith; Ernie Royal, Bernie Glow, Jimmy Maxwell, Marky Markowitz, Snooky Young, Thad Jones (t); Billy Byers, Jimmy Cleveland, Urbie Green (tb); Ray Alonge, Jimmy Buffington, Earl Chapin, Bill Correa (frhn); Tony Studd (btb); Kenny Burrell (g); George Duvivier (b); Don Butterfield (tba); Grady Tate (d); Phil Kraus (perc). 4/64.

Smith might have felt, after 20 albums or so, that he'd done all he could do at Blue Note. But one thing he hadn't done was act as a soloist within a big band. Verve's first step with him was to set up just such a situation, and with Oliver Nelson's sinister chart for 'Walk On The Wild Side' Smith immediately struck into exciting new terrain. It's actually only one of four witty and successful charts on the Bashin' album. Just as good is the wryly engaging lope through 'Ol' Man River', for instance, which gives Smith's sardonic humour full rein. The rest of the album is more ordinary small-group workouts, and it's a pity that Nelson, clearly in top form, couldn't have scored the whole thing. In its Master Edition form, this is an essential Smith record.

Somehow, the feel and freshness of this set was never recaptured at Verve. The Cat pits him against Lalo Schifrin charts, which are interesting but never as good. The odd one out here is Any Number Can Win. The charts this time were by Billy Byers and Claus Ogerman, and they did a decent job: 'The Ape Woman' (!) is genuinely menacing and 'Georgia On My Mind' played with much feeling, though the title-track is a pinball-arcade jingle.

(*) The Dynamic Duo /  Further Adventures Of Jimmy And Wes Verve 521445-2 / 519802-2 Smith; Wes Montgomery (g); Grady Tate (d); Ray Barretto (perc); Oliver Nelson orchestra. 9/66.

(*) Walk On The Wild Side: The Best Of The Verve Years Verve 527950-2 2CD As above, plus Steve Williams (hca); George Benson, Arthur Adams, Quentin Warren, Eric Gale, Thornel Schwartz, Vince Gambella (g); Wilton Felder, Ron Carter, Bob Bushnell (b); Buck Clarke (perc); Paul Humphrey, Billy Hart, Bernard Purdie, Mel Lewis (d); orchestras directed by Oliver Nelson, Johnny Pate and Thad Jones; strings. 3/62–2/73.

Smith's meeting with Montgomery isn't so much a battle of the giants as a genial bit of backslapping. The sessions produced enough for two albums and although some of the material is a bit thin – 'Baby It's Cold Outside' and 'King Of The Road' – the sound of the group, Montgomery's funky lyricism matched with Smith's extravagant blues, is a delight and, with Oliver Nelson charts abetting a few tracks, they rekindle some of the excitement of the early Smith Verve dates.

Verve's two-disc best-of is a very useful sweep through what is a very mixed catalogue and, as far as this period is concerned, this should satisfy all but the most obsessive Smith devotee. Aside from obvious choices like the title-tune, the compilers choose a smart mix of small groups and big bands. One or two nuggets, such as an alternative take of 'OGD' from the date with Montgomery, will tempt collectors, and there are a few rescued obscurities: two tracks from the orchestral collaboration with Thad Jones, Portuguese Soul; a live blues from 1972, 'Sagg Shootin' His Arrow', with a band including Arthur Adams and Wilton Felder; the title-track off Johnny Pate's set of charts, Groove Drops; and 'The Boss' with George Benson and Donald Bailey.

(*) Live! Root Down Verve 559805-2 Smith; Steve Williams (hca); Arthur Adams (g); Wilton Felder (b); Paul Humphrey (d); Buck Clarke (perc). 2/72.

A valuable glimpse of Smith at a period where his music was at a comparatively low point, or at least in danger of being bypassed by more fashionable black idioms. Cut at the Bombay Bicycle Club (!) in Los Angeles, the master suffers no loss of energy and has a crew of top LA session-men in tow. Wilton Felder's Jazz Crusaders were probably much more successful than Smith at this point, but Felder sounds as if he's enjoying the gig. Adams plays a mess of rock-funk guitar (plenty of wah-wah licks along the way) and Steve Williams walks on to blow some blues harp on 'After Hours'. As unpromising as it might look, this is actually a terrific Smith date, and a rare example of Smith's idiom in successful transition. Its new incarnation is complicated: all six original tracks were edited for the original LP, but three only have been restored to their full length. There's also a bonus extra version of the title-track, which is two seconds longer than the other take.

(*) All The Way Live Milestone MCD 9251-2 Smith; Eddie Harris (ts); Kenny Dixon (d). 8/81.

An off-the-cuff meeting between Smith and Harris at San Francisco's Keystone Korner produced some delightful music. They stuck to the blues and some standards, and Harris couldn't resist turning on his swaggering circular lines and lexicon of bebop licks. They suit Smith just fine, although, since he plays as imperturbably as ever, one wonders whether he'd change his style even if the ghost of Buddy Petit got up on stage to jam.

 Prime Time Milestone MCD-9176-2 Smith; Curtis Peagler (as, ts); Herman Riley, Rickey Woodard (ts); Phil Upchurch, Terry Evans (g); Andy Simpkins (b); Michael Baker, Frank Wilson (d); Barbara Morrison (v). 8/89.

 Fourmost Milestone MCD-9184-2 Smith; Stanley Turrentine (ts); Kenny Burrell (g); Grady Tate (d, v). 11/90.

Smith has adapted rather cautiously to changing times. He still sticks to straight-ahead Hammond, but he or his producers vary the other ground rules, with mixed results. Prime Time and Fourmost are simple blowing records with muscular solos by the horns on the former and a rather more stately contribution from Turrentine on the latter.

Also, in brief:

 Ultimate Jimmy Smith /  Jimmy Smith's Finest Hour Verve 547161-2 / 543598-2. 62–95.

The first was (supposedly) selected by Grover Washington; the second is in Verve's latest series of rehashes.

() Christmas Cookin' Verve 513711-2. 6/64–9/66.
Great cover art, and the music's OK.

 Got My Mojo Workin' / Hoochie Coochie Man Verve 533828-2. 12/65–2/66.
Pop-to-blues material and most notable for Jimmy's grunted approximation of the lyrics.

() Peter And The Wolf Verve 547264-2. 5/66.
Creed Taylor's hopeless idea.

() Sum Serious Blues Milestone MCD-9207-2. 1/93.
Produced by Johnny Pate and a throwback to the Verve dates.

() Dot Com Blues Blue Thumb 543978-2. 00.
A very modest farewell.

Joe Smith (born 1971)

DRUMS

Studied in Cincinnati; worked in rock as well as jazz.

(*) Happy Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 122 Smith; Benet Palet (t, f); Bill McHenry (ts); Joan Monne (p); Giulia Valle (b). 6 & 11/01.
 Melodic Workshop Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 198 Smith; Bill McHenry (ts); Gorka Benitez (ts, f); Guillermo Klein (p, ky); Chris Lightcap (d, p); Coda (v). 11/03.
There are so many Joe Smiths in jazz and popular music that he probably needs to get himself a nickname like trumpeter Joe 'Fox' Smith. If the experiments on Melodic Workshop take off, he may not need one after all. This is a vividly original album that pushes at the boundaries of contemporary jazz, bringing elements of rock and other forms. The material was showcased at the Barcelona Jazz Festival in 2003 and sounds well worked-in for the album, mixing vigorous post-bop ideas and more ambitious harmonic procedures. The same approach yielded a strong debut on Happy. Old friend McHenry is on hand for that as well, providing the main impetus for Smith's melodic ideas, and capable of turning in a nifty, unpredictable solo when the mood is on him. Highly promising stuff.

Johnny Smith (born 1922)

GUITAR

Not to be confused with Johnny 'Hammond' Smith, the Kentuckyan made his name with 'Moonlight In Vermont'.

(*) Moonlight In Vermont Roulette Jazz 93091 Smith; Stan Getz, Paul Quinichette, Zoot Sims (ts); Sanford Gold (p); Bob Carter, Arnold Fishkind, Eddie Safranski (b); Morey Feld, Don Lamond (d). 3/52, 8/53.
'Moonlight In Vermont' with Stan Getz made Smith a star and kept him in the public eye longer than his quiet, thoughtful jazz would have done otherwise. These early cuts are probably his best work on record, all of them made with formidable sidemen. The jazz content is pretty high, certainly relative to the crossover stuff Smith did later; 'Cherokee' and 'Lullaby Of Birdland' are impeccably crafted, and even when the guitarist tackles pop-classical tunes such as Lehar's 'Vilia', he takes a challenging path through them.

 Walk, Don't Run Roulette 60441 Smith; Perry Lopez (g); Arnold Fishkind (b); Don Lamond (d). 5–9/54.

 The Sound Of The Johnny Smith Guitar Blue Note 31792 Smith; Hank Jones, Bob Pancoast (p); George Duvivier, George Roumanis (b); Mousie Alexander, Ed Shaughnessy (d). 61.
Anyone seriously interested in Johnny Smith has to get hold of the Mosaic box of his Roost recordings. Both of these, though, offer a good appreciation of his quiet and unflusterable talent, a technique honed on violin and viola lessons when a boy. Walk, Don't Run (later a hit for The Ventures) couples a pair of 10-inch albums where Smith is mostly in a dreamy ballad mode, although the playing is as impeccable as usual. The Sound features two different groups, of markedly different quality as you'd guess from the personnel. Smith weaves subtle counterpoints and variations on standards as varied as 'Misty' and 'Embraceable You' to more challenging bop pieces like 'Un Poco Loco' and even a rare version of John LaPorta's 'Blues Chorale'. Smith is often close to the clarinettist's classical vein, but however little he seems to favour orthodox changes, he's still a jazzman to the core.

Joshua Douglas Smith (born 1982)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Gifted young tenorist who's studied with George Garzone.

 Major Incident Steeplechase SCCD 31545 Smith; Adam Fernandez (p); Justin Marx (b); David Christian (d). 4/03.
(*) Unstuck In Time Steeplechase SCCD 31564 Smith; Ben Monder (g); Ron McClure (b); Billy Hart (d). 3/04.
Even if Smith weren't 21, the debut would still be an impressive record. Because he was, the temptation is either to let him off on its few lapses or to pick them apart as assiduously as teachers Garzone and Ron McClure might have done. McClure was responsible for getting the Steeplechase gig, and listening to Major Incident it's pretty clear that this group (collective age still comfortably under the 100) is ready for the studio. Boldly, and possibly wisely since detractors will always pick up on standards-playing, Joshua has gone for an all-original set-list, mostly by himself, but also including Marx's excellent 'Napoleon Complex' and 'Right Coast' and three tunes, including the long title-piece, by Fernandez.

For album two, McClure himself comes on board and Smith has to play in front of a formidable band. Only four originals to go with four standards, and the saxophonist seems at ease and in control, his sound bigger than ever. McClure and Hart are typically excellent although Monder does sometimes choose too many notes.

Keith Smith (born 1940)

TRUMPET, VOICE

London-born, he spent time in New Orleans, California and New York, in traditional and mainstream company, before returning to Britain and running his Hefty Jazz group.

() Keith Smith And His Climax Jazz Band GHB BCD-27 Smith; Mike Sherbourne (tb); Frank Brooker (cl, ts); Jon Marks (p); Brian Turnock (b); Barry Martyn (d). 65.
() Mr Hefty Jazz Lake LACD 67 Smith; Jimmy Archey, Hugh Watts (tb); George Lewis (cl); John Handy (as); Alton Purnell, Lars Edegran (p); George Guesnon, Ron Simpson (bj); George 'Pops' Foster, Alcide 'Slow Drag' Pavageau (b); Freddy Moore (d, v); Cie Frazier (d). 4/65–9/66.

(*) Keith Smith & Jimmy Archey GHB BCD-217 Smith; Jimmy Archey (tb); Dranell Howard (cl); Captain John Handy (as); Lars Edegran, Alton Purnell (p); Ron Simpson (bj); George 'Pops' Foster (b); Freddy Moore (d, v); Cie Frazier (d). 3–9/66.
 Swing Is Here Again Lake LACD 80 Smith; Vic Dickenson, Bob Havens, Tom Artin, Johnny Mortimer, Russell Moore (tb); Peanuts Hucko, Johnny Mince (cl); Bruce Turner (as, cl); Benny Waters, Al Gay (ts); Barney Bates, Stan Greig, Dick Cary, Nat Pierce, Johnny Guarnieri (p); Jim Douglas (g); Peter Ind, Major Holley, Arvell Shaw, Harvey Weston (b); Barrett Deems, John Cox, Bobby Worth, Oliver Jackson (d). 11/78–10/83.
Smith is a British trad-to-swing trumpeter who has often found himself in exalted company, as a look at the personnels of the two Lake compilations will attest. He has had a rather picaresque career (Lake's sleeve-notes tell how he was hustled out of a successsful fish-and-chip shop operation in New Orleans by the local Mafia) and the records are a somewhat motley gathering of tracks. GHB's session by his Climax Jazz Band is very average British trad of the day, enlivened somewhat by guest drummer Martyn, who insists on playing New Orleans style even on inappropriate pieces like 'West End Blues'. Some boisterous playing is sabotaged by a complete lack of finesse. Smith's trumpet style – originally an Anglophile version of Henry Allen, but also soaked in Armstrong and others – is decent enough, but the interest on the other discs is sparked by his companions. Mr Hefty Jazz features three sessions in which Smith was the unlikely kibitzer on dates with Lewis, Archey, Handy and others – in Canada, New Orleans and an attic in Plaistow! Quite good fun, but the recording quality (especially on the five tracks recorded at San Jacinto Hall in New Orleans) is sometimes dreadful. There's more from the Canadian session on Keith Smith & Jimmy Archey, along with five titles cut with a different back line in London the same year. Better sound overall and quite lusty playing, but it doesn't amount to much for a general listener. Swing Is Here Again is a better bet, pulling together 16 tracks from six different dates, and the pearls are the five pieces with the irresistible Dickenson from a session in Nice.

Dr Lonnie Smith

ORGAN

Frequently confused with fusioneer Lonnie Liston Smith. The doctorate is a personal affectation, like the turban.

 Think! Blue Note 563844 Smith; Lee Morgan (t); David 'Fathead' Newman (ts); Melvin Sparks (g); Marion Booker Jr (d); Henry 'Pucho' Brown, Willie Bivins, Norberto Appelaniz (perc). 7/68.
 Turning Point Blue Note 311424 Smith; Lee Morgan (t); Julian Priester (tb); Bennie Maupin (ts); Melvin Sparks (g); Leo Morris (d). 1/69.
These are excellent examples of the genre, tough soul-jazz with a funky Latin feel. Morgan and Newman eat up the charts on Think!, and particularly Hugh Masekela's opening 'Son Of Ice Bag'. The second record has an arguably higher jazz content, and collectors of Priester and Maupin sessions will be delighted by how well they come through in these RVG remasterings. Even so, these are still probably best appreciated by Hammond, rare groove and acid jazz enthusiasts. There are a couple of slightly later Blue Notes, but they're not around at the moment.

 Boogaloo To Beck Scufflin' 8481 Smith; David 'Fathead' Newman (ts); Doug Munro (g). 5/03.
 Too Damn Hot Palmetto 2105 Smith; Peter Bernstein, Rodney Jones (g); Greg Hutchinson, Fukushi Tainaka (d). 1/04.
(*) Jungle Soul Palmetto 2119 Smith; Peter Bernstein, Matt Balitsaris (g); Allison Miller (d, perc). 11/05.
After a familiar route through a dance-oriented style, Smith re-emerged in the present decade, first with a curious project that attempted to turn the alt.rock of Beck Hansen into a new species of soul-jazz – it just about works – and then with a couple of strong dates for Palmetto. The drummers are alternated on Too Damn Hot, but the guitarists are used paired in a lead-and-rhythm combination that propels along a really very good record which apart from Horace Silver's 'Silver Serenade' and 'Someday My Prince Will Come' is all original material. If anything, Jungle Soul works the same formula even better, though interestingly it marks a partial return (one Marvin Gaye tune notwithstanding) to a more standards- and repertory-based approach, with 'Bemsha Swing', 'Freedom Jazz Dance' and 'Willow Weep For Me' all included.

Roger Smith (born 1959)

GUITAR

A member of the Spontaneous Music Ensemble in its later days, he employs a distinctive scrabbled attack and softly percussive tone.

* Spanish Guitar / (*) Unexpected Turns /  Extended Plays Emanem 4083 / 4014 / 4032 Smith (g solo). 1/80–7/97; 12/93–7/96; 93–97.
 S&M Incus CD 24 Smith; Neil Metcalfe (f). 7–12/95.
(*) Green Wood Emanem 4073 Smith (g solo). 1/02.
* The Butterfly & The Bee Emanem 4114 Smith; Louis Moholo-Moholo (d, perc). 8/04.
Though Smith has studied with Derek Bailey and performed alongside him in one version of SME, they could hardly be more different in approach. For a start, Smith favours a gut-strung Spanish guitar, rejects amplification and approaches the music with a good deal more stylistic baggage. Where Bailey sets out with no preset formulae or destination, Smith often seems to be deconstructing something, albeit remote rather than familiar. Occasionally he will seem to be winding up towards some melancholy flamenco theme; elsewhere there is almost an African tinge; quite often, it sounds as though he is picking his way through something heard only fragmentarily and in an unknown idiom, but still recognizably a song.

Heard alone, Smith sounds remarkably delicate, creating lines which seem to head for some point of resolution. Most of the pieces are short, and only on the 11-minute 'Guitar In Top' [sic], one of half a dozen tracks recorded around Christmas 1994, does he seem to ramble. One suspects that Smith is by instinct a miniaturist, which is why the ironically titled Extended Plays both is and is not a good representation of his work.

The duos with Metcalfe see him paired with another unsung acoustic player and fellow member of the SME. Stevens coached his playing colleagues to listen to one another with a particular kind of inattention (he used the analogy of peripheral vision) and it sounds very much as though Metcalfe and Smith have taken that lesson to heart. These are not monologues, but neither are they conversations in any strict sense. Their reactions to each other suggest a melancholy abstraction, like Beckett's tramps. Though in both cases the sound is very faithful, these are lo-fi recordings. Unexpected Turns includes a whole range of ambient effects, from bird chatter to domestic clanks and rumbles. S&M is a little drier, which suits it quite well. This music, though, is not about production values. Green Wood is another home recording, from Smith's kitchen in Wood Green. His central heating system intrudes here and there, in what are otherwise minutely detailed soliloquies. Martin Davidson titled the pieces; the last, 'Arse Myth', is apparently how the artist sometimes signs letters.

Spanish Guitar restores Smith's first solo record, made for the LMC label in 1980, to which Davidson has added five pieces recorded at various gigs from the '90s. It is, in a way, an excellent sampler of his solo work, the often unabashedly lyrical matter of the earlier solos mixing with some more harsh adventures in the later pieces, two of which involve a squeaking chair, traffic noise and (pretty shocking, for Smith) a practice amplifier on one solo.

Smith and Moholo-Moholo had performed together at Freedom of the City in 2004 and so enjoyed the experience they decided to make a studio recording. It's easily the most remarkable of Smith's career and one of the drummer's best, too, full of skittering, sliding rhythms and unexpected sounds from Moholo-Moholo's augmented kit. Arguably, this is a percussion duo; hence the closeness of language, but of course Louis is also a profound melodist, so the poles are very creatively reversed moment to moment.

Steve Smith

DOUBLE BASS

Thoughtful and lyrical player.

 Chantal's Way Double Time DTRCD 148 Smith; Richie Beirach (p); Billy Hart (d). 98.

Smith has sometimes been confused with the drummer of the same name (not least because the bassist has worked with Richie Beirach, while the drummer has recently been associated with Beirach's sometime collaborator Dave Liebman), but this Steve has a quieter, more abstract and one might almost say mystical approach to improvisation. There are nice impressionistic touches on these tracks, and while Beirach tends to dominate at first hearing, subsequent exposure emphasizes the unity and interdependence of the group.

Stuff Smith (1909–67)

VIOLIN, VOICE

Played with Alphonso Trent in the '20s, then in a successful 52nd Street band with Jonah Jones. Career petered out in the '40s, and from the '50s he based himself in California and Europe. A capricious temper and a liking for alcohol did him few favours.

(*) Stuff Smith & His Onyx Club Boys 1936–1939 / * The Complete 1936–1937 Sessions Classics 706 / Hep CD 1085 Smith; Jonah Jones (t, v); Buster Bailey (cl); George Clark (ts); Sam Allen, James Sherman, Clyde Hart, Raymond Smith (p); Bernard Addison, Bobby Bennett (g); John Brown, Mack Walker (b); Cozy Cole, Herbert Cowens, John Washington (d). 2/36–12/39; 2/36–5/37.

 Stuff Smith 1939–1944 Classics 1054 Smith; Jonah Jones (t); George Clarke (ts); Sam Allen, Eric Henry, Jimmy Jones (p); Bernard Addison, Luke Stewart (g); Mary Osborne (g, v); John Brown (b); Herbert Cowens, John Levy (d); Stella Brooks (v). 6/39–9/44.

 The Stuff Smith Trio – 1943 Progressive PCD 7053 Smith; Jimmy Jones (p); John Levy (b). 11/43.

 The Complete 1944 Rosenkrantz Apartment Duo Sets AB Fable 1 2CD Smith; Robert Crum (p). 44.

 Stuff Smith, 1944–1946 Classics 1081 Smith; Billy Taylor, Jimmy Jones (p); Alphonso Trent Orchestra; other personnel. 10/44–46.

(*) Stuff Smith/Dizzy Gillespie/Oscar Peterson Verve 521676-2 2CD Smith; Dizzy Gillespie (t); Wynton Kelly, Carl Perkins, Oscar Peterson (p); Red Callender, Curtis Counce, Paul West (b); Oscar Bradley, Frank Butler, J. C. Heard, Alvin Stoller (d); Gordon Family (v). 1–4/57.

 Cat On A Hot Fiddle Verve MGVS-9067 Smith; Paul Smith, Shirley Horn (p); Red Mitchell, Lewis Powers (b); Sid Bulkin, Harry Saunders (d). 8–10/59.

 Live At The Montmartre /  Swingin' Stuff Storyville STCD 4142 / 8397 Smith; Kenny Drew (p); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b); Alex Riel (d). 3/65.

 Late Woman Blues Storyville STCD 8413 Smith; Henri Chaix (p); Michel Guillemin (b); Wallace Bishop (d). 5/65.

What would have been Hezekiah Leroy Gordon Smith's 90th birthday prompted a certain reassessment of his work. Those who remember his final performances in Scandinavia are themselves fewer on the ground these days, and emphasis has fallen on the earlier and better work. Initially influenced by Joe Venuti, Smith devised a style based on heavy bow-weight, with sharply percussive semiquaver runs up towards the top end of his range. His facility and ease on a swinging 1943 version of Dvořák's 'Humoresque', included on Classics 1054, is jaw-dropping. His interest in classical playing is reflected in the recordings made at home by Baron Timme Rosenkranz in 1944. These were apparently intended for release, though much of the material is marred by extraneous noise and conversation. Like many '20s players, Smith found himself overtaken by the swing era and re-emerged as a recording and concert artist only after the war, when his upfront style and comic stage persona attracted renewed attention. Even so, he had a thriving club career in the meantime, most famously at the Onyx Club on 52nd Street, and managed to hold his ground while the bebop revolution went on around him.

The first Classics disc covers most of the important material, with an unusually long chronological spread for that label. This is when Smith's talent was at its most buoyant. 'I'se A Muggin'' (both parts on the Classics, with an extra alternate and a later, different version on the Hep) and the associated musical numbers game are pretty corny, but they retain their appeal over five decades like all the Vocalion sides, and Smith's astonishing fiddle technique lifts them up out of the mere novelty class. Jonah Jones makes a big impact, with a slithery, burping style that's hard to categorize and which shouldn't fit these sessions as well as it seems to. Sensibly, Classics have restricted the first volume to things Smith made under his own name. Later things with Trent were less individual, though the second Classics includes some excellent small-group sessions made after Smith's return East from the Coast.

The 1943 trio is a good representation of what he was about in the pre-war years, an exhaustive documentation of the session of 17 November. Three full versions of 'Minuet In Swing' suggest that Smith went at a solo in a fairly deliberate way, attempting to maintain an energy level rather than rethinking his approach every time. On the other hand, an unissued 'Bugle Call Rag' shows that he could be thoughtful even on lighter material.

Verve had a gift for picking up artists relatively late in their career and injecting new life into them. The sessions with Diz and Oscar are beautifully recorded, if not sublimely musical, and one values the record for the glimpses of the under-recorded Perkins as much as anything. It was pleasing to find a new reissue of the rare Cat On A Hot Fiddle in 2004, Shirley Horn and Red Mitchell alongside the forgotten Harry Saunders and Sid Bulkin. The session has a cheap feel and Stuff was rather unkindly recorded but there are moments of sly insouciance from the old warrior.

The later European sessions, recorded within a couple of years of Smith's death in Munich, are worth hearing, though the Swiss date is marred by ropey bass-playing.

Also, in brief:

 Time And Again Proper 54. 36–45.
A decent selection of early material.

() Hot Stuff / () Hot Violins Storyville STCD 4170. 3/65, 2/67.
It's a little dispiriting listening to Smith being cut by guys – albeit of Svend Asmussen's quality – who're doing no more than playing his licks back at him. Asmussen does a party-piece with a tenor violin on 'Caravan'.

 Storyville Stuff Smith Storyville STCD 1018506. 3/65–1/66.
Useful compilation of Hot Violins and Live At The Montmartre from the late, European period.

Tommy Smith (born 1967)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

The Scot was something of a legend before he left his teens. He writes complex long-form tunes and plays like nobody but himself: intense, lyrical and thoroughly versed in more of the tradition than most saxophonists manage in a lifetime. Runs Spartacus Records.

 Reminiscence Linn AKD 024 Smith; Terje Gewelt (b); Ian Froman (d). 7/93.
Perversely, Blue Note dispensed with Tommy Smith as soon as he had made one wonderful album – Paris – for them. Returning to Scotland and Glasgow-based Linn, he simply sounds relaxed in the company of Gewelt and Froman, former colleagues in Forward Motion, and able to take some pleasure in his playing. There are still moments which suggest an ambition that outstrips not technique but the maturity to make it count, as on 'Emancipation Of Dissonance', and the awkward 'Ally' (which refers back to an earlier composition). In this rather spare and unforgiving context he can be a little dry and discursive, and his colleagues are no more expansive. However, one does constantly feel that Smith is on the brink of a new direction.

(*) Beasts Of Scotland Linn AKD 054 Smith; Guy Barker (t, flhn); Andy Panayi (as, f); Steve Hamilton (p, syn); Alec Dankworth (b); Tom Gordon (d, perc). 96.
Playfully conceived, but revealing a core of solid invention, this was another poetic collaboration after 1994's Misty Morning And No Time, with the veteran Scottish poet Norman MacCaig (see below, 'in brief'). Edwin Morgan is no less direct and unliterary than MacCaig, but he is also more immediately responsive to the music of his words, and this has allowed Smith to work at a new level again, creating tunes that are miniature tone-poems, evocative of the supposed subject-matter and at the same time utterly separate from it without ever sounding abstract.

He makes no attempt to evoke the fauna and avifauna of Scotland in sound-effects. 'Seal' has a slippery harmonic structure, but no more of it than that relates to the title. By the same token, 'Salmon' and 'Conger Eel' swim free of any programme, taut, elegant structures from Smith that throw up few opportunities for extended improvisation. 'Midge' may require a small gloss for non-Scottish listeners: a tiny insect, troublesome only in the plural and in the female gender, which has a healthy summer appetite for human blood. It's the most appealing idea and music of the set, though we rather liked Morgan's inclusion of the wolf as a beast of Scotland.

(*) Azure Linn AKD 059 Smith; Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Lars Danielsson (b); Jon Christensen (d). 96.
A collaborative album, with compositions by the ever-tougher Christensen and some wonderful playing by Wheeler. As on the early Blue Note sessions, Smith is in some danger of being eclipsed by his 'sidemen', and the album is at some risk of disappearing into sub-ECM impressionism, but the rigour of compositions like the opening 'The Gold Of The Azure' and 'The Calculation' lift the set.

* The Sound Of Love Linn AKD 084 Smith; Kenny Barron (p); Peter Washington (b); Billy Drummond (d). 97.
Who can this wise old man be, with the deep, breathy delivery, the chastened romanticism and the ability to combine passion and introspection? Whatever bruises Smith picked up during the Blue Note days are put right here. A top-drawer American band, seemingly almost unrehearsed, and a bag of songs by Ellington and Strayhorn, from the opening 'Johnny Come Lately', through 'Chelsea Bridge', 'Isfahan', 'Prelude To A Kiss' to a delightful closing 'Cottontail'. Crowd-pleasing romance and a more naked and unaffected Smith than we've ever had a chance to hear before. Barron is a giant of the music, and should be knighted, sanctified and nationalized without delay. His playing on 'Duke Ellington's Sound Of Love' (a Mingus composition and the only non-Duke and Sweet Pea tune on the album) is jaw-dropping: profound, lyrical and totally in tune with both the piece and the saxophonist. Marvellous album. If you can make room for only one by T. Smith, this should be it.

(*) Spartacus Spartacus STS 001 Smith; Kenny Barron (p); James Genus (b); Clarence Penn (d). 9/00.
Smith launched his new label with this elegant New York session that is, appropriately, co-credited to or 'featuring' Kenny Barron. The pianist makes his presence felt from the opening sections of Jimmy Rowles's 'The Peacocks' and is secure, expressive and constantly inventive from there on. The title-track is another typical Smith composition: brooding, complex and unexpectedly airy, effortlessly idiomatic writing for the saxophone. Much of the rest of the session is upbeat and swinging – 'The Lady Is A Tramp', 'I Want To Be Happy', 'Bye Bye Blackbird' – but with some delightful, sepia-tinged passages on tunes like 'It Never Entered My Mind' (a subliminal quote from Coltrane there) and 'When I'm All Alone'.

 Into Silence Spartacus STS 003 Smith (ss, ts, bells). 10/01.
Recorded in Hamilton Mausoleum in central Scotland, this solo set is intensely atmospheric but ultimately quite a tough listen. Other saxophonists have attempted unaccompanied performance in similar settings – Barbara Thompson, for instance – but the obvious influence is Garbarek, except that Smith has given the set his own special stamp, using traditional Scottish themes, original ideas and a cover of Coltrane's 'Naima' which is almost the best thing on the record. The long, long decay – we reckon some 15 seconds – allows him to experiment with harmonics and with multiple lines, but over time the ambience overpowers the playing.

* Bezique / (*) Symbiosis Spartacus STS 007 / 010 Smith; Brian Kellock (p). 07/02; 04..

Brian Kellock's route to jazz stardom was slower and quieter than Smith's, but here the pianist demonstrates his quality with every phrase. Recorded live at the 2002 Edinburgh International Jazz Festival, Bezique was a long-awaited collaboration that delivered magisterially. The choice of material, which includes Chick Corea's 'Bud Powell' and Bill Evans's 'Very Early', looks as though it might have been Brian's, but in performance he keeps for the most part to an uneffusive structural role, blocking in themes and harmonic variations and leaving Smith to explore the outer reaches. 'Parker 51' is a fearsome duet, at every turn a convincing demonstration of their shared ability to react at speed. 'Lush Life' is inevitably something of a coda to such a powerful cut, but it sees both Smith and Kellock back in more familiar roles. The second record is no less absorbing, but there's more of an intimate, conversational quality to it that perhaps involves the listener less.

(*) Evolution Spartacus STS 008 Smith; Joe Lovano (ts); John Taylor (p); John Scofield (g); John Patitucci (b); Bill Stewart (d). 4/03.

The cover picture has a giant Smith throwing up a wave on an otherwise untroubled Scottish loch. There's a slight sense of disproportion to some of the titles and writing as well, typically overwrought charts but with the clout now to hire the very best men to navigate them, and allusions to everything from the siege of Leningrad and the Lisbon earthquake to the astronomical mystery of Barnard's Star. It's a heady brew, but Smith proves equal to it, and to the presence of fellow tenorist Lovano, who by no means bests him. Another very strong record.

* Forbidden Fruit Spartacus STS 011 Smith; Steve Hamilton (p); Aidan O'Donnell (b); Alyn Cosker (d). 05.

This is the first time for many years that Smith has recorded with a young Scottish group. All these guys in some way owe their careers to Smith's presence and example and they do him proud. The opening 'Spirit Of The Fallen Angel' is a long, Coltranesque idea that inevitably dominates the set, but the impetus is maintained every bar of the way. O'Donnell is set to become a giant on his instrument, but Hamilton has grown exponentially in recent years and there is no sign that this is anything other than an organic group rather than saxophone-and-rhythm. Smith's soloing is no longer merely technically impressive. He has real and profound things to say every time he takes a chorus.

Also, in brief:

(*) Misty Morning And No Time Linn AKD 040. 12/94.

Fine writing and a fine group centred round Smith, Guy Barker (t, monette) and Julian Argüelles (sax).

* Blue Smith Linn AKD 110. 1/99.

Another lovely disc, with John Scofield (g) and a superb American rhythm section.

(*) Alone At Last Spartacus STS 004. 00–02.

A haphazard collection of pieces that doesn't cohere as a record, despite contributions from Kenny Barron (p) and Edwin Morgan (v).

 The Christmas Concert Spartacus STS006. 12/01.

The odds were longer on a Wynton Marsalis hip-hop album, but the emphasis is on improvisation rather than Yuletide cheer and there is some astoundingly good playing all round.

The Tommy Smith Youth Jazz Orchestra

GROUP

Further mark of Smith's impact on the Scottish scene.

(*) Exploration Spartacus 119 Smith; Joe Locke (vib); Ryan Quigley, Tom MacNiven, Kim Macari, Liam Heath (t); Michael Campbell, Kieran McLeod, Richard Foote (tb); Michael Owers (btb); Rachel Cohen (ss, as); Adam Jackson (as); Ben Bryden, Joseph Wright, John Fleming (ts); Bill Fleming (bs); Euan Fulton, Alan Benzie (p); Daniel Short (g); Michael Janisch (b); Ross Whyte (d). 2/07.

A fantastically well-drilled young ensemble provides a vivid showcase for Joe Locke's increasingly expressive and charismatic vibes-playing. Locke solos pretty much on every track, in a programme that includes Oliver Nelson's 'Hoedown', Kenny Wheeler's 'Gentle Piece', as well as 'Cottontail', 'A Night In Tunisia' and others. There are guest spots, too, for MacNiven, Quigley and Janisch, but the real triumph here is the orchestra itself.

Warren Smith (born 1934)

PERCUSSION

The Chicagoan has had a long and varied career, including a stint in Max Roach's M'Boom.

(*) Composers Workshop Ensemble Claves 1195 2CD Smith; Johnny Coles (t); Jimmy Owens (t, flhn); Garnett Brown (tb); Jack Jeffers (btb); Vincent Chancey, Sharon Freeman, Julius Watkins (frhn); Howard Johnson (tba, bs); George Barrow (ts, bcl); Al Gibbons (ts); Bross Townsend (p); Herb Bushler (b); Greg Maker (b, ebo); Kenyatte Abdur-Rahman (perc); Omar Clay (perc, vib, v). 68–82.

An interesting initiative, reminiscent of Max Roach's own efforts to wrest back control of the music and also to give a 'jazz' group something of the canonical authority of a classical ensemble. Of course, another model is the Jazz Composers' Orchestra, with which it shares some personnel. Some of the group's material was released on Strata East. A good deal of the writing is meant to highlight Smith's percussion work. 'Sub Structure' was originally written for Johnson's group Gravity, but it translates here well. 'Cricket Song Poem' is another percussion feature, with Smith on what might be a bass marimba. Gibbons is featured on 'Introduction To The Blues' and the perennially underrated Jeffers has his moment on the epic 'Love In The Open'. A marvellous archive recovery.

Willie 'The Lion' Smith (1895–1973)

PIANO, VOICE

A founder-member of the New York stride pianists, Smith served in the First World War, then haunted the toughest New York clubs. He led occasional bands, toured, and became a self-appointed living historian and raconteur in his old age. He wrote Echoes of Spring.

(*) Willie 'The Lion' Smith 1925–1937 Classics 662 Smith; Dave Nelson, Frankie Newton (t); June Clark, Jabbo Smith, Ed Allen (c); Jimmy Harrison (tb); Buster Bailey (cl, ss, as); Cecil Scott, Herschel Brassfield (cl); Prince Robinson, Robert Carroll (ts); Edgar Sampson (as, vn); Pete Brown (as); Buddy Christian, Gus Horsley (bj); Jimmy McLin (g); Bill Benford, Harry Hull (tba); Ellsworth Reynolds, John Kirby (b); O'Neil Spencer (d, v); Eric Henry (d); Willie Williams (wbd); Perry Bradford (v). 11/25–9/37.
* Willie 'The Lion' Smith And His Cubs Timeless CBC 1-012 As above, except omit Clark, Harrison, Robinson, Christian, Benford, Jabbo Smith, Brassfield, Sampson, Horsley, Hull. 4/35–9/37.
 Willie 'The Lion' Smith 1937–1938 Classics 677 Smith; Frankie Newton (t); Pete Brown (as); Buster Bailey (cl); Milt Herth (org); Jimmy McLin (g); Teddy Bunn (g, v); John Kirby (b); O'Neil Spencer (d, v). 9/37–11/38.
(*) Willie 'The Lion' Smith 1938–1940 Classics 692 Smith; Sidney De Paris (t); Jimmy Lane, Johnny Mullins (as); Perry Smith (ts); Joe Bushkin, Jess Stacy (p); Bernard Addison (g); Richard Fulbright (b); George Wettling, Puss Johnson (d); Joe Turner, Naomi Price (v). 11/38–11/40.

One of the great Harlem pianists and an unrivalled raconteur, Willie Smith came into his own when an old man, reminiscing from the keyboard. But these more youthful sessions stand up very well and are surprisingly little-known. Classics 662 opens with two of his few appearances on record in the '20s; each of the pair of sessions is by a pick-up group, both with Jimmy Harrison and one with Jabbo Smith in the front line. Typical small-group Harlem jazz of the period, with Perry Bradford shouting the odds on two titles. The remainder – and all of the Timeless CD – is devoted to sessions by Smith's Cubs, an excellent outfit: with Ed Allen, Cecil Scott and Willie Williams on washboard on the first eight titles, they can't help but sound like a Clarence Williams group, but the next three sessions include Dave Nelson (sounding better than he ever did on the King Oliver Victor records), Buster Bailey, Pete Brown and Frankie Newton, effecting a bridge between older hot music and the sharper small-band swing of the late '30s. Smith plays a lot of dextrous piano – he also has a 1934 solo, 'Finger Buster', a typical parlour show-off piece of the day – and the music has a wonderful lilt and sprightliness. The Timeless transfers are clearly superior and include a lot of alternative takes: this is the disc to get if you just want the Cubs tracks, but the other tunes on the Classics disc are also worth hearing. Classics 677 is made up mostly of tracks by Milt Herth, a Hammond organist who had Smith, Spencer and Bunn making up his group. Herth is always getting in the way, but The Lion usually pushes some decent stride piano into the tunes, and there are two fine 1938 solos, 'Passionette' and 'Morning Air', which show something of his penchant for novelty piano of the Roy Bargy genre. Classics 692 starts with a three-piano date featuring Smith, Stacy and Bushkin, before a marathon session that produced 14 piano solos in one day – originals and show tunes, done in the manner of courteous syncopation that trademarks Smith's style. The rest of the disc includes a rare small-band session and a pair of blues, partnering Smith with Joe Turner.

 Willie 'The Lion' Smith Classics 1229 Smith; Buck Clayton, Max Kaminsky (t); Frank Orchard (tb); Rod Cless, Claude Luter (cl); Jack Lesberg (b); Wallace Bishop, Mac McGrath (d). 6/44–12/49.
 Willie 'The Lion' Smith 1950 Classics 1349 Smith (p, v solo). 1–12/50.
 Willie 'The Lion' Smith 1950–1953 Classics 1392 Smith; Henry Goodwin (t); Jimmy Archey (tb); Cecil Scott (cl, ts); Pops Foster (b); Keg Purnell (d). Myra Johnson (v). 12/50–8/53.

The Lion's Band date from September 1944 was a welcome opportunity to play with a group and Willie takes full advantage of the setting. Otherwise, it's mainly solo cuts on 1229, though there's an interesting epilogue from Paris with Claude Luter and Buck Clayton. The Vogue and Commodore solos from 1950 haven't been readily available for a while and even the slightly grubby sound on these Classics transfers doesn't blunt the personality of Willie's performances, though they do become slightly wearisome over the stretch. The final set (for now) is a very mixed bag indeed, with some further solo cuts, a bizarre piece of bachelor pad music, with party effects in the background, some decent group tracks for Blue Circle and some good duets with Purnell. Willie signs off with a short set of James P. Johnson tunes.

 'The Lion': Live Storyville 8360 2CD Smith; Ernest 'Bass' Hill (b); Wallace Bishop (d). 12/49.

A full concert performance, exhausting at this length but still full of good moments. The solo tracks are better than the trio ones, though 'Bass' and Bishop perform their duties with care and more musicality than the music sometimes deserves.

 Music On My Mind Emarcy 014032-2 Smith (p, v solo). 11/65.

The Lion's irrepressible showmanship often got in the way of his piano-playing when it came to his later records. Most of them were done for whatever label would have him, and as a result most of them are now out of print. In Paris, in 1965, he mixed up 'Shine', James P. Johnson, 'Summertime' and Chopin, alongside a bouquet of his own evergreens. Delicate and boisterous music in good sound.

Paul Smoker (born 1941)

TRUMPET

A Midwest academic who plays free-form jazz of surpassing thoughtfulness.

(*) Halloween 96 /  ... The Sequel CIMP 129 / Nine Winds NWCD 0207 Smoker; Vinny Golia (bs); Ken Filiano (b); Phil Haynes (d). 10/96; 4/97.
(*) Standard Deviation CIMP 186 Smoker; Steve Salerno (g); Thomas Ulrich (clo); Jay Rosen (d). 9/98.

Interesting that the liner-notes to The Sequel record document some difficulties getting the sound right and the group properly balanced. Smoker has always depended on a very careful spatial distribution and a rather subtle internal balance. We're not convinced he got it with Golia, but we're not convinced that the baritonist is his natural playing partner either. Halloween 96 is an entirely free-form set, five longish improvisations played at high temperature but lacking the analytical poise of Smoker's attack on standard material. Golia always has interesting things to say, as does Smoker, but this too often sounds like an amiable encounter between two men who really have nothing musical in common.

The return fixture is this time largely based on composition rather than free improvisation. The exceptions are two brief takes of 'That Was For Albert', a collective composition that bears some wispy traces of Ayler's own open-formed melodies. The sound is much better than on the CIMP, a label that prides itself on rough-hewn immediacy and no polish. The smoother surface does this music no disservice at all.

Smoker subtly adjusts the tonalities on Standard Deviation, which is really what the title is about. 'Speak Low' is shifted into a very unbluesy B major and 'Stormy Weather' into G flat. He also overturns the usual order of head and solo, placing rubato melody statements over strict-time accompaniments and vice versa. All four group members introduce songs and Rosen, who is among the most ubiquitous performers in the CIMP catalogue, is especially good in his introduction to 'Stormy Weather'. Unlike the earlier set with Golia, Smoker modulates the dynamics and expressive range with genuine mastery. 'Speak Low' is as delicate a version as you'll ever hear, and his approach to 'Beyond The Blue Horizon' is exquisitely weighted.

 Large Music 1 & 2 CIMP 219 / 226 Smoker; Bob Magnusson (as, ts); Ken Filiano (b); Lou Grassi (d). 3/00.

(*) Mirabile Dictu CIMP 233 Smoker; Steve Salerno (g); Ken Filiano (b). 9/00.

Magnusson has been all bother and bluster on some of his recordings that we've encountered, but Smoker seems to have been a mollifying presence and he plays with more point on the two Large Music sets, both cut during a marathon at the CIMP studio. Grassi is propulsive enough but he's not the most subtle or imaginative drummer, and with a musician as thoughtful as Smoker his playing won't really do. In spite of the sometimes aggravating surroundings (listen to the difference between Smoker's remarkable low-register playing on 'Hold On, Hold On' and Grassi's insensitive batterings), there's still plenty of food for thought in both CDs.

Mirabile Dictu is a fascinating trio encounter, which reveals all kinds of interesting détente when Smoker is in the chair. The chattering 'Open Season', mood-painting title-piece and 'Elegy' (a homage to Lester Bowie in which Smoker outdoes its dedicatee) all work superbly. There are one or two slow spots elsewhere, but closing on a funereal, entirely straight 'The Meaning Of The Blues' (which probably shocked the CIMP team) was a masterstroke.

 Brass Reality Nine Winds NW 0241 Smoker: Herb Robertson (t, vtb, tba); David Taylor (tb, tba); Phil Haynes (perc). 6/97.

It's as well not to be put off by the seemingly functional titles – 'Solo Prelude', 'Fanfare And Procession', 'Waltz' – or by what might seem like workshop ideas ('Harmon City'). All of these are fully realized and often very powerful statements by three virtuosic players; Haynes is very much in support. Robertson's sheer range of sound is extraordinary and he exploits it to the full on the 'Fractals' tracks and on the delightful 'Alice's Legacy'. Smoker is less of an exhibitionist, but he will convert many with this performance.

 Duocity Cadence CJR 1155/56 2CD Smoker; Dominic Duval, Ed Schuller (b). 5–10/01.

Two live duos taped at the Bop Shop in Rochester, New York. This kind of session can make for tough listening, but Smoker's willingness to mix bluesy wails and smears with entirely abstract patterns, as he does on 'Didgerotics' with Schuller, keeps even uncommitted listeners onside and eventually won over. Schuller is a less lyrical player than his fellow bassman. He alternates tough, hardscrabble figures with didjeridu effects, long slides up and down the scale with precisely plucked melody lines and remote harmonics. The long central piece, 'Hypnotics/Bassoptic Mutetics/Nostematics', is completely virtuosic from start to finish but also rivetingly dramatic. Nothing of quite that ambition or calibre from the duo with Duval, but he is the more obviously listenable of the two bassists and the shorter tracks reveal their structure more readily.

Gary Smulyan (born 1956)

BARITONE SAXOPHONE

Already a veteran of big-band section playing, Smulyan worked with Woody Herman and Mel Lewis before making these leadership dates in the '90s. Very much in the Pepper Adams mould, he's become perhaps the leading American exponent of post-bop baritone.

 The Lure Of Beauty Criss Cross 1049 Smulyan; Jimmy Knepper (tb); Mulgrew Miller (b); Ray Drummond (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/90.

A staunch section player, Smulyan has as good a grasp of baritone technique as any of the younger players of what's still a rare instrument. It was a smart idea to bring Jimmy Knepper to this session, a frequent associate of Pepper Adams and a player whose manner is individual enough to lift the music out of the hard-bop rut which several Criss Cross sessions have fallen into. The group work up a great head of steam on 'Canto Fiesta', the rhythm section grooving hard enough to sustain the feel over more than ten minutes, and there are a couple of pretty (if functional) ballad performances; but at 74 minutes the record could have lost a couple of items and been none the worse for it.

 Homage Criss Cross 1068 Smulyan; Tommy Flanagan (p); Ray Drummond (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/91.

It was a pleasing notion to pay tribute to Smulyan's acknowledged master, Pepper Adams, who wrote all eight themes here. Having Flanagan, an old Detroit friend of Adams's, along as well was another good idea. Smulyan is both similar to and different from the older player, less ornery than Adams but given to a comparable stoniness and scepticism with the tender approach: on a ballad such as 'Civilization And Its Discontents' his refusal to turn to a sanctimonious vibrato adds to the power of the improvising, even with Flanagan's featherbed chords to hand. The hard-bop lines of 'Claudette's Way' are reeled off with unassuming strength: this is a baritone man who understands the weight and gravitas of the instrument without having to insist on it. Smulyan doesn't always convince one that the tunes are that good, but it's an impressively substantial record.

 Saxophone Mosaic Criss Cross 1092 Smulyan; Dick Oatts (ss, as, f); Billy Drewes (as, cl, f); Ralph Lalama (ts, cl, f); Rich Perry (ts); Scott Robinson (bs, bcl); Mike LeDonne (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/93.

 With Strings Criss Cross 1129 Smulyan; Mike LeDonne (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d); strings. 12/96.

 Blue Suite Criss Cross 1189 Smulyan; Earl Gardner, Greg Gisbert, Scott Wendholt (t); John Mosca, Jason Jackson (tb); Douglas Purviance (btb); John Clark, Fred Griffith (frhn); Bill Charlap (p); Bob Stewart (tba); Christian McBride (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/99.

George Coleman's 'Apache Dance', which opens Saxophone Mosaic, features all the horns, but it's the exception. For the most part, Bob Belden's arrangements use this six-sax team for colour, and for something which Smulyan himself can bed down in. He peels off long, heated solos on every track, as if under pressure to make the baritone dominate the line-up, and it's an effective strategy. But here and there one wishes the other horns had taken a greater part, though everyone comes back in again on the closing 'Fingers'.

Baritone plus strings is a rare arrangement. Bob Belden's charts are sound and gracious, and Smulyan does well enough by them, although he hardly strikes one as the ideal player for the situation: Chaloff or Mulligan, perhaps, but Smulyan is more out of the impassive Pepper Adams end of the horn. The programme is mostly built around originals, too, which gives the listener few enough footholds in coming to terms with the tunes.

His final Criss Cross is perhaps all too musicianly. After a brisk charge through Oliver Nelson's 'Interlude', the record is made up of the seven-part 'Blue Suite', composed and arranged by Bob Belden to feature Smulyan in front of big brass and rhythm sections. The material is all based on blues, Smulyan plays with great heart, and Belden sneaks in numerous reference-points – from Ellington, Mingus, Coltrane, Basie and elsewhere – as if he's working the aisles of a jazz supermarket. It's all cleverly done, but what comes out is the kind of date which has the players smiling knowingly and leaving the listeners not quite warmed enough.

 The Real Deal Reservoir RSR 172 Smulyan; Joe Magnarelli (t); Mike LeDonne (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Kenny Washington (d). 8/02.

Smulyan takes over from the late Nick Brignola as Reservoir's baritone man here. It's a no-nonsense blowing date by an accomplished team and feels like a settling-in record for him. There'll be more ambitious music to come, hopefully.

(*) More Treasures Reservoir RSR 190 Smulyan; Mike LeDonne (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Steve Johns (d). 11/06.

Or, the even realer deal, since this one marks a definite step forward, as well as an attempt on Smulyan's part to throw himself into an unsupported front-line role, which his current form suggests is more than tenable. LeDonne actually accompanies only on five of the nine tracks. He makes the most of his time with an exquisitely shaped accompaniment and solo on both 'Chick's Tune' and the Smulyan original 'Beautiful You', which is a superb baritone ballad. He's reaching down for the lowest tones more often than usual on this and the Reservoir engineers and producer have got him very clearly and dead-centre in the mix. Gigi Gryce's 'Sans Souci', Horace Silver's 'Quick Silver', Sal Nistico's rarely covered 'For You', Monk's 'Suburban Eyes' (ditto) and Sonny Rollins's 'Evans' make up the remainder of a fine set. Gary's playing great, and we liked the change that Johns brings to the group, too.

Jim Snidero (born 1958)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

A passionate musical advocate and educator who has created his own latter-day synthesis of hard bop. Credits cover just about everyone from Toshiko Akiyoshi to Frank Sinatra.

() Mixed Bag / (*) Blue Afternoon Criss Cross 1032 / 1072 Snidero; Brian Lynch (t); Benny Green (p); Peter Washington (b); Jeff 'Tain' Watts (d on Mixed Bag only); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d on Blue Afternoon only). 12/87, 12/89.

Washington-born Snidero has never quite managed to locate himself stylistically. We were assured that Mixed Bag, the title, shouldn't be taken too literally, but that is exactly what it is. 'Pannonica' lacks the sort of ironic detachment that Monk requires, and Snidero's introductory cadenza on 'Blood Count', a haunting Strayhorn theme, is one of the very best things he has done, but it stands somewhat apart among this material.

Blue Afternoon is better, not just because it features the splendid Smith, but also because the material is better judged. Wayne Shorter's 'Infant Eyes' and Mal Waldron's 'Soul Eyes' are key peformances, and Snidero's occasional Coltrane-isms are reasonably in keeping with the music being played.

(*) Vertigo Criss Cross 1112 Snidero; Walt Weiskopf (ts); David Hazeltine (p); Peter Washington (b); Tony Reedus (d). 12/94.

Snidero kicks off with some new material, including the excellent original 'A.S.A.P. ', before switching to standards, cracking interpretations of 'Ah-Leu-Cha' and 'Skylark' which open up the band and allow them and tenorist Weiskopf to show their paces as a collective. Hazeltine isn't the most confident soloist on the planet, but he has Washington to lean on, and he turns in a more than competent set.

(*) Standards + Plus Double Time Records DTRCD 139 Snidero; Mike LeDonne (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Kenny Washington (d). 97.

Not clear what is intended by the 'Plus', other than entirely warranted enthusiasm for a strong, vibrant set. All nine tracks – it's a generously proportioned record – are based on standard material, to which Snidero or the label have interestingly and usefully attached dates of composition, ranging from 1929 for Vincent Youmans's 'Without A Song' to Sylvester Kynor's 'Bluesville', penned 30 years later.

He opens with 'You And The Night And The Music', handled in a manner that suggests Coltrane's deconstruction of 'My Favorite Things', the original Atlantic version rather than the more radical live performances which followed on. 'Round Midnight' and Benny Golson's 'Along Came Betty' are almost as good. LeDonne is a very talented accompanist without being distinctive as a solo voice. Confusingly, this time out it's the other (unrelated) Washington on drums – and what a strong and confidence-inspiring presence he is.

(*) Strings Milestone MCD 9326 2 Snidero; Renee Rosnes (p); Cenovia Cummings, Mark Feldman, Joyce Hammann, Sue Lorentsen, Laura Seaton, Paul Woodiel (vn); Kenji Bunch, Ralph Ferris (vla); Tomas Ulrich, Mary Wooten (clo); Paul Gill (b); Billy Drummond (d). 11/01.

It might seem odd to suggest that it was a covers album that exposed Snidero's gifts as a composer/arranger but that was the long-term effect of the Music Of Joe Henderson project (see below, 'in brief'). It prompted a fresh look at some of Snidero's earlier work – which stands up well to a return visit – and it paved the way for this remarkable set, which establishes the saxophonist as a genuinely significant figure in jazz composition.

This is not a 'with strings' project in the usual sense, with a few jazz stylings drenched in maple-syrup section work. The smallish orchestra is tightly drilled and commendably rhythmic. Husband and wife team Billy Drummond and Renee Rosnes anchor every track and, apart from the long-form 'River Suite', which perhaps owes something to Snidero's association with Toshiko Akiyoshi, the individual cuts are well-shaped, tuneful and logical in structure. It isn't a tough listen, but the music is more challenging than at first appears and right from the opening track, 'Slipping Away', Jim is in command. Toning down some of his post-bop mannerisms reveals a mellifluous soloist with touches of Hodges and Paul Desmond.

(*) Close Up Milestone MCD 9341 Snidero; Eric Alexander (ts); David Hazeltine (p); Paul Gill (b); Billy Drummond (d). 5/04.

Another appealing set from the altoist. Alexander's presence on some tracks adds his usual quota of hard bop muscle though there's quite enough going on in the group. Jim's 'Nippon Blue' is a great, loping line over some nice changes, but the standout cut is an unexpected version of Russ Columbo's 'Prisoner Of Love', an old crooner that's been round the track a few times. Drummond's great in these settings, inventive but unshowy and Hazeltine has become one of the best accompanists around.

 Tippin' Savant 422086 Snidero; Mike LeDonne (org); Paul Bollenback (g); Tony Reedus (d). 5/07.
Fifteen years ago, a lot of these guys would have laughed in your face if you'd suggested an old-fashioned, tenor/organ/guitar/drums set-up, but it's back in fashion with a vengeance and Snidero's Turrentine-flavoured lines on some of these cuts sound absolutely comme il faut. The original titles, like 'K2', 'Fried Oysters' and the title-piece, are sufficiently contemporary, though, for Tippin' not to sound like a pastiche. LeDonne is a clever musician and Bollenback always has ideas.

Also, in brief:

(*) San Juan Red Records RR 123265. 10/94.
A strong set of mostly original material, with doughty support from Steve Nelson (vib).

* The Music Of Joe Henderson Double Time Records DTRCD 152. 12/98.
Snidero the jazz scholar comes to the fore on this fine disc, with insightful readings of 'Recorda Me', 'Punjab', 'If' and others.

Valaida Snow (1903–56)

TRUMPET, VOICE

A multi-instrumentalist raised in a musical family, she worked with Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake and enjoyed a stage and film career. At the start of the Second World War she was interned in Denmark by the Germans. After a steady decline, she died of a stroke after coming offstage at the Palace Theater in New York.

 Valaida Snow: 1933–1936 Classics 1158 Snow; Walter Fuller, Duncan Whyte (t); Jock Fleming, Wallace Franklin, Louis Taylor (tb); Jimmy Mundy (ts); Freddy Gordon (as, ts); Darnell Howard (as, cl); Cecil Irwin (ts, cl); Omer Simeon (as, bs); Billy Mason (p); Lawrence Dixon (g); Dick Escott, Alan Ferguson, Sam Molyneux, Quinn Wilson, Joe Young (b); Max Bacon, Wallace Bishop, George Elrick (d). 33–36.
 Valaida Snow: 1937–1940 Classics 1122 Snow; Bengt Artander, Johnny Claes, Gunnar Green, Winstrup Olesen (t); Sture Green (tb); Kai Moeller (cl); Derek Neville (as, bs); Lulle Ellboj, Gunnar Wallberg (as); Reggie Dare, Rudolf Eriksson (ts); Gun Finlay, Leo Mathiesen, Willard Ringstrand (p); Norman Brown, Helge Jacobsen (g); Louis Barreiro, Roland Bengtsson, Christian Jensen (b); Kai Fischer, Olle Stahlin, Ken Steward (d). 37–40.
Revisionist and feminist histories of jazz have occasionally attempted to reawaken interest in Valaida Snow. She was a formidable musician with an occasionally original take on swing, but even with the best will in the world she can hardly be deemed a major figure. These sides, which have also been available on two Harlequin sets, are engaging enough. Some were recorded in London, with competent dance band players; others come from later in Snow's European Wanderjahre. Valaida's own compositions, songs like 'I Want A Lot Of Love' and 'Imagination' on the earlier volume, are less-effective showcases for her talent than more-familiar themes like 'Nagasaki' and 'Tiger Rag' on the second, but they do underline her basic musicality.

Unlike Louis Armstrong, who generously praised her, she is a much less-effective singer than she is a trumpet-player. Her horn sound was rich and full and on 'St Louis Blues', recorded in Scandinavia with saxophonist Lulle Ellboj's band, she makes even the most jaded listener sit up; worth trying this one in a blindfold test. As usual, Classics' mastering is somewhat perfunctory, but anyone interested in the byways of swing will enjoy these two discs, which restore a neglected and curiously engaging figure.

Elmer Snowden (1900–1973)

BANJO

He was the leader of a band called the Washingtonians that after his departure became the Duke Ellington Orchestra. He later worked as an agent, promoter, teacher and occasionally still as a player.

 Harlem Banjo Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1756 2 Snowden; Cliff Jackson (p); Tommy Bryant (b); Jimmy Crawford (d). 12/60.
There's a certain irony in Snowden's choice of 'It Don't Mean A Thing' to kick off this rare LP-era record. His banjo-playing is percussive, tuneful and surprisingly swinging, and the set as a whole is an object lesson for those revivalists who think that a jiggling banjo and soggy drumbeat is all that's required for authentic jazz. The programme is mostly blues and rags. 'Tishomingo Blues', 'Sweet Georgia Brown', 'C Jam Blues', 'Twelfth Street Rag' and 'Bugle Call Rag' are the essential cuts. Not much more than a historical footnote, but a delightful set for anyone who isn't allergic to Elmer's instrument.

Frank Socolow (1923–1981)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

Had a few obscure gigs in his teens but went on to play with Georgie Auld, Boyd Raeburn, Charlie Ventura and Buddy Rich.

 New York Journeyman Fresh Sound FSRCD 387 Socolow; Freddie Webster (t); Eddie Bert (tb); Eddie Costa, Bud Powell (p); Sal Salvador (g); Leonard Gaskin, Bill Takas (b); Jimmy Campbell, Irv Kluger (d). 5/45, 11/56.
The title is refreshingly frank, but it would have been difficult to market this as the work of a neglected master. Socolow made some 78s at the end of the war with Gaskin, Kluger, Bud Powell and Freddie Webster (who made a big impact on Miles but died prematurely of an OD). It is their contributions to the first three tracks – a fourth, 'Blue Fantasy', has unaccountably been omitted – rather than the nominal leader's which catch the ear.

There are stories that Webster and Socolow argued about the material, the trumpeter wanting to play ballads that suited his tone, the saxophonist insisting on more upbeat numbers. Winning the encounter did him little good: 'Reverse The Charges' simply exposes his shortcomings.

The later sextet material is somewhat better, though again there are oddities. Much of this stuff, which was at least released under Socolow's name on Bethlehem, has recently been reissued on Lone Hill Jazz under the names of Eddie Costa and Sal Salvador, a curiously pointless duplication. Again the sidemen are more effective than the leader, but the arrangements are quite interesting and Frank does play decently on 'I Love You' and the closing 'I Cried For You', where he switches to alto and, perversely, sounds much more interesting.

Martial Solal (born 1927)

PIANO

Born in Algiers, Solal moved to France in his early 20s, worked with Django Reinhardt and accompanied visiting or exiled Americans. He is a remarkable composer, creating complex themes out of simple intervals and brief melodic cells. At times, Solal has headed big bands and has written for film, but his main contribution is as a small-group and solo performer.

(*) At Newport 63 RCA 2777 / Cloud Nine 74803 Solal; Teddy Kotick (b); Paul Motian (d). 7/63.

George Wein invited Solal to lead off the festival and the American debut was a massive success. 'Suite Pour Une Frise' is a masterly piece, very different in temper to the standards which ('Nuages' and 'Boplicity' excepted) make up the rest of the set. Solal and Motian would be reunited some years later but here the drummer is in exceptional form, driving the line with great energy and constantly responsive to Solal's sudden changes in direction. The reissue has four previously unreleased cuts from elsewhere, including three takes of 'I Got Rhythm'. These don't appear on the Cloud Nine issue.

(*) Sans Tambour Ni Trompette RCA 7432 137511 Solal; Gilbert Rovere, Jean-François Jenny-Clark (b). 10/70.

As the title suggests, Solal dispensed with the services of both horn-player and drummer to experiment with a new kind of trio: virile, calm but searching, and at every turn indicative of a technique that was still uncovering new areas of concern and ever-wider circles of capability. There was nothing else quite like this in 1970, and had it been performed or recorded in New York, it would have caused a sensation. The two long tracks 'Séquence Tenante' and 'Unisson' might almost be Debussy dancing with Art Tatum. The two bass-players anchor the harmonies, often at some remove one from the other, while Solal dances on top.

(*) En Solo RCA Victor 74321 47789 2 Solal (p solo). 11/71.

Beautifully remastered from a slightly muddy and indefinite recording, this offers yet more testimony to Solal's multi-faceted gifts as an improviser. All but two of the pieces are originals. 'Ah! Non!', 'Mercredi 13' and 'Jazz Antagoniste' are typical Solal ideas, fitted together like mosaic or cloisonné out of tiny shards of melody or sometimes, as on 'Fa Mi Re Do', out of minimal harmonic material. The two standards, 'What Is This Thing Called Love' and 'Darn That Dream', are played with a mixture of reserve and emotion, particularly the latter, which must count as one of Solal's most focused and convincing interpretations of another composer's work.

 Duo In Paris Dreyfus Jazz Line 19016 Solal; Joachim Kühn (p). 10/75.

(*) Bluesine Soul Note 121060 Solal (p solo). 1/83.

Bluesine is a lovely record, and an excellent place to sample Solal's solo style. Though he remains something of a specialized taste, he is utterly distinctive as a piano-player, owing much to Monk and Bud and even, in some lights, to Oscar Peterson, but remaining absolutely his own man. The recording quality here is impeccable: very full and resonant, but with lots of attention to detail as well. A good place to start, with a mixture of original and standard material.

The earlier record with Kühn is more difficult to pin down, largely because these are both players with a markedly individual, not to say idiosyncratic, approach, and hearing them in conjunction can be slightly disconcerting. Kühn is more obviously a romantic; or perhaps that should be a more obvious romantic. He is also, on occasion, an obfuscator. Solal's romanticism is more strait-laced and unaffected, and he comes out of these duos well ahead.

* Plays Hodeir / (*) Martial Solal Big Band OMDCD 5008 / Dreyfus Jazz Line 849230 Solal; big band. 3 & 4/84; 12/83, 5/84.

It's the larger ensembles of the '80s that really stand out in Solal's recording career: the Gaumont Big Band session of 1981 (long deleted) and the truly superb Hodeir set, recorded at Radio France three years later. Trumpeter Roger Guérin is there of course and is, as always, striking, notably on the closing Monk tribute, 'Comin' On The Hudson'. 'Transplantation I' is a companion-piece to 'Flautando' (not included here) and features Debarbat's ringing tenor. 'D Or No' is for sextet and, like the full-band 'Le Désert Recommence', highlights Solal at his most ironically Gallic. It is difficult to judge whether Solal is more effective with the larger unit or whether the angular movement of his compositions sounds better with a small ensemble. Simple preference will probably dictate future choices; both should certainly be sampled if at all possible.

(*) Just Friends Dreyfus FDM 36592 Solal; Gary Peacock (b); Paul Motian (d). 7/97.

* Balade Du 10 Mars Soul Note 121340 2 As above, except omit Peaock; add Marc Johnson (b). 3/98.

When Solal made his American debut at Newport 1963, Paul Motian was in the group. The associaton was revived 25 years later and produced some of the best music of the pianist's career. Martial celebrated his 70th birthday with Paul and Gary Peacock and has rarely sounded more blues-based and swinging, eliding at least some of his subtler, 'European' configurations to produce what is arguably his most straight-ahead album ever. This is not to say that it lacks individuality. No one who has listened to him with any attention will mistake who the soloist is on 'Willow Weep For Me' or 'You Stepped Out Of A Dream', though it is not until halfway through the record, and a markedly original 'Hommage À Frédéric Chopin', that something of a more familiar Solal comes through.

Balade Du 10 Mars is even better. The free-form improvisation on Motian's 'Gang Of Five' is the most outside playing Solal has done on record for many years. 'Round Midnight' is a duet for piano and drums, recalling the same piece on the Newport record, which RCA should think hard about reissuing. Johnson stands in for Gary Peacock on this occasion and, as might be expected, the rhythm is looser and less rugged. As before, echoes of the classic Bill Evans trio are everywhere and it would be wonderful to hear either version of this group tackle 'Gloria's Step' or 'Waltz For Debby'. Martial's touch is as deft and lyrical as ever, but there is a new and welcome hint of wildness to the playing, as if finally he feels relaxed enough in his own technique to cut loose and challenge the harmonic rules. Unusual to hear Solal concentrate so absolutely on standards and jazz repertory. 'Night And Day', 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise', 'Almost Like Being In Love', 'The Lady Is A Tramp' and 'My Old Flame' round out the programme, with a fine, unhackneyed interpretation of 'Round Midnight' and just one other original, 'The Newest Old Waltz', coming in right at the end.

* Contrastes: The Jazzpar Prize Storyville 4242 Solal; Jesper Riis, Benny Ronsenfeld (t); Vincent Nilsson (tb); Tomas Franck, Michael Hove, Flemming Madsen, Ufe Markussen (reeds); Thomas Ovesen, Mads Vinding (b); Daniel Humair, Jonas Johansen (d). 99.

In 1999 Solal won the coveted Jazzpar Prize. The award makes provision for a performance by the winner's group – here a trio with Vinding and Humair – and with the Danish Radio Jazz Orchestra. As a brilliant small-group player and orchestrator, Solal rises to the challenge with utmost confidence and enthusiasm. The trio cuts are as thoughtful and intense as anything he has ever put on record and the ensemble tracks reveal something of his astonishing gift for complex voicings. One can imagine some of these players going off after the event and copying out parts, the like of which they'd never heard before. The two most formidable pieces are 'Ritournelle No. 1', a magnificent conception that hints at Ravel and Debussy, and the more dramatic 'Mythe Décisif', which calls on some virtuosic playing from the pianist.

(*) NY – 1 Live At The Village Vanguard Blue Note 84391-2 Solal; François Moutin (b); Bill Stewart (d). 9/01.

Agreeable to find the great pianist securing one of his rare American releases for such a distinguished label. In his 70s, some of the daring has gone out of his music – or perhaps it has simply become more an accepted part of jazz piano vocabulary. What endures is the sense that he knows everything he's going to do in a performance while keeping the whole thing fresh and spontaneous, that curious sense of inevitability which he has used to underpin even the most outlandish parts of his playing over four or five decades. Moutin and Stewart do their best to keep up, although one feels that in many ways Solal defers to anyone he's playing with.

* Solitude CamJazz 7794-2 Solal (p solo). 4/05.

A near-perfect solo piano recital that combines favourite standards with a central section of originals. 'Darn That Dream' is broodingly romantic, but the romanticism is grounded in complex harmonic development and a deceptively loose metre that gradually pulls together towards the end. The alternate that bookends the record doesn't have quite the same architecture, but it's bolder still in terms of repositioning the original song and chords.

Any sense that this is an old man – he was nearly 80 – musing quietly on well-trodden themes and declining to exert himself is quickly dispelled by the next three tracks. 'Caravan' is breathtaking, spilled out with dash and a kind of dangerous glamour. The fulcrum of 'Our Love Is Here To Stay' is a descending chordal pattern that is all the more dramatic for being so utterly right in context. Then, cleverly, he programmes three originals. 'Chi Va Piano ...' is all angles and determined purpose. 'Medium' might almost be Monk in places, but with hammered chords and sharp left-hand chimes that could be boxing bells. And then 'Bluesine', which remains perhaps the one Solal composition that everyone knows. On that score, he'd be entitled to indulge himself a little, but he takes the pace right down and lets it merely ... happen, brisk triplets, tightly pedalled chords and low, low bottom-end accents. You realize that much as he loves trio playing he can do bass and drums parts pretty much on his own. Superb.

* Rue De Seine Camjazz 7780-2 Solal; Dave Douglas (t). 7/05.

Masters of different generations in an unexpected and utterly compelling collaboration. How spontaneously this studio recording was conceived isn't clear but the format is straightforward enough: three compositions each and then four standards. Douglas's 'Blues For Steve Lacy' has the feel of an impromptu idea given substance by two great musical imaginations, while Solal's delightful 'July Shower' (which may have been conjured up by the walk to the studio) is more polished and canonical in form. They subject 'Have You Met Miss Jones?' and 'Body And Soul' to thorough examination, closing on 'All The Things You Are', in which many elements of the preceding 45 minutes – harmonic, rhythmic, thematic – seem to come together. A compelling set.

(*) Exposition Sans Tableau MFA NTCD 401 Solal; Claude Egea, Eric Le Lann (t); Denis Leloup, Marc Roger (tb); Lionel Surin (hn); François Thuilliez (tba); Jean-Philippe Morel (b); Thomas Grimmonprez (d, perc); Claudia Solal (v). 12/05.

Solal himself is not prominently featured as soloist on Exposition Sans Tableau, really only coming out front for 'Cortancyl'. This is a project for his Decaband, a unique outfit which dispenses entirely (hurrah!) with woodwinds in favour of a tight, rich brass sound that always suggests a bigger band than is actually present. To be strictly accurate, Claudia Solal's vocals, to her own text on 'A Frail Dance', more abstractly elsewhere, often take the place of an alto saxophone, and I was fleetingly reminded of how Mike Westbrook, whose brass voicings are similar, once used Norma Winstone as an extra horn.

The horn soloists – Le Lann, Thiulliez, Leloup and Egea – are all terrific, and the tubist makes a particular impression on 'Western'. Even so, the emphasis here is very much on Solal's writing, which is as ever derived from simple melodic cells and intriguingly inverted harmonic shapes. Significantly, the record comes in at under 50 minutes. Here's a musician who knows what he has to say and scorns excess and waffle. If you haven't previously made his acquaintance – and that's just about possible – or it's been a while since you heard the master at work – and God knows, there are enough noisy pretenders out there, clamouring for attention – this will be hard to beat.

Also, in brief:

* Plays Ellington Dreyfus FDM 36613. 12/97.

Solal with the mid-sized Dodecaband. 'Caravan' is spun out to epic length; '"A" Train' is almost atonal. Solal mostly retains the originals but adds new dimensions.

 Jazz'n' (e)motion BMG/RCA 74321 55935 2. 1/98.

A wonderful writer of film music himself, Martial here explores the screen fantasies of fellow composers, from Charles Trenet's music for the Truffaut classic Baisers volés to 'Over The Rainbow' and 'The Shadow Of Your Smile' from The Sandpiper.

 Portrait In Black And White Nocturne 389. 8/99.

More trumpet/piano duos, this time with Frenchman Eric Le Lann. Fine, but not up to the standard of the Douglas set above.

Gunter 'Baby' Sommer (born 1943)

DRUMS, PERCUSSION, PIANO, OTHER INSTRUMENTS

Key figure on the German free scene.

 Bib FMP CD 51 Sommer; Sylvain Kassap (reeds); Didier Levallet (b). 7/92.

 Sächsische Schatulle Intakt CD 027 Sommer (p solo). 92.

It is astonishing that Sommer has not recorded more under his own name. An extended album of solo percussion and other instruments would be fascinating. The trio was recorded at Workshop Freie Musik in Berlin and very much foregrounds the percussionist's range of instruments, which include marimba and orchestral bells. The longer pieces are generally more effective and Kassap does some interesting work, including simultaneous playing of more than one horn. Levallet sounds a little lost, acoustically if not musically.

The piano record invites the closely associated clichés: a comparison with Cecil Taylor and then Taylor's overquoted line about the piano as 88 tuned drums. Neither quite works for Sommer. There is nothing more 'percussive' about his piano-playing than Stan Tracey's, say, and he is certainly a more adept technician than Anthony Braxton.

* Wisdom In Time Intakt CD 128 Sommer; Wadada Leo Smith (t, flhn, elec). 5/06.

Smith's name is listed first, and the trumpet is usually the dominant voice, but it's Sommer's delicately nuanced play that one listens to most intently on this wonderful record. The opening 'A Sonic Voice Inclosed In The Wind' is a fractured melody spun out over fragments of metre, sudden stillness, pealing bells. 'Tarantella Rusticana' begins with rustling percussion and gong rolls before breaking out into dance. 'Pure Stillness' is very much as it sounds, a piece that derives something from post-Miles jazz. The record becomes if not more predictable, then certainly more familiar in approach and timbre from there on, almost as if Smith's line has legitimized a return to jazz practices. That's not to belittle it in any way. The long 'Bass-Star Hemispheres', a memorial to Peter Kowald, is exquisitely beautiful, and 'Rain Cycles' is almost the best thing on the record, and a vivid use of electronics. An essential disc.

Arnie Somogyi

DOUBLE BASS

Of Transylvanian descent, he is a fine journeyman who has developed interesting ideas of his own.

 Cold Cherry Soup Forged Records 594 Somogyi; Tony Lakatos (sax); Liam Noble (p); Zsolt Bende (g); Winston Clifford (d). 7/00.

Jazz is the perfect job for a Transylvanian, since you only ever have to go out at night. Somogyi has proved to be a versatile and accomplished performer but his eponymous CCS band takes him on a considerable step. Or rather back, since the album was also an exercise in family history, taking Arnie back to his family's home town of Segesvar, coincidentally also the birthplace of Vlad Dracul. There are a dozen jokes to be milked from all this, but the music, road-tested at Ronnie Scott's before the recording, is impeccable and very moving, with traditional themes interwoven through originals by Arnie and the very fine Lakatos. Makes much of the music of his contemporaries sound bloodless.

 Accident And Insurgency Linn AKD 306 Somogyi; Eddie Henderson (t, flhn); Rob Townsend (ts, woodwind, laptop); Paul Booth (ss, ts, cl); Tim Lapthorn (piano, ky, melod); Dave Smith (d). 07.

And that's quite enough Hammer House of Horror jokes. The masterstroke on the follow-up, credited to Arnie's Ambulance group, was to involve Henderson, whose warm trumpet tone and like-Miles-but-different approach is always a benefit to any group project. Much of the writing is by the splendid Lapthorn, whose own career is burgeoning, but all the performances here bespeak a high level of mutual understanding. These guys give each other room to work, and ranged round Somogyi's big but quietly spoken bass they develop an intriguing discourse. One or two brief episodes seem to be spontaneously conceived and performed, but for the most part it's a very orderly and impressively structured date.

SOS

GROUP

Well-loved British all-saxophone trio, formed in 1973; short-lived but influential.

(*) SOS Ogun OGCD019 Alan Skidmore (ts, d, perc); Mike Osborne (as, perc); John Surman (ss, bs, bcl, syn). 1 & 2/75.

They got round the problems of just having three saxophones on stage by having John Surman programme some moody synth patches and getting Alan Skidmore – always a percussionist manqué – in behind the kit for a couple of numbers. The basic formula, though, was a set of unison ostinati, often with folkish themes, out of which one or other member would suddenly swoop off on a solo foray. The basic formula is evident on the opening 'Country Dance', which sounds exactly like that, while the diversified instrumentation is showcased on 'Wherever I Am'. All three players bring a different kind of intensity: Skidmore's Coltrane-tinged harmonics, Surman's already distinctive blend of traditional forms, church music and free jazz, Osborne's almost singing tone. It's a great pity that there isn't some unreleased material to stretch the original session beyond the enchanting 'Calypso', but given how fondly the original LP is remembered, a whole generation of jazz fans will simply give thanks for a playable copy again.

Mark Soskin (born 1953)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS

After playing in rock groups, he studied music in Colorado and at Berklee. His most important jazz association was with Sonny Rollins, with whom he worked through the '80s.

 Five Lands (Cinqueterra) TCB 98402 Soskin; Walt Weiskopf (ss, ts); Joe Locke (vib); John Abercrombie (g); Erik Friedlander (clo); Harvie Swartz (b). 98.

 17 (Seventeen) TCB 2065 Soskin; Tim Hagans (t, flhn); Billy Drewes (ss, ts); Jay Anderson (b); Matt Wilson (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc). N.D.

 One Hopeful Day Kind Of Blue 10019 Soskin; Chris Potter (ts); John Abercrombie (g); John Patitucci (b); Bill Stewart (d). 12/06.

Soskin's ability to swing a jazz tune was evident not just from his work with Sonny Rollins and Billy Cobham, but also from his own early solo records on Vartan and other labels. He's still not often in the studio under his own steam, but these two recent TCB discs are important reminders of his pedigree. Often said to be influenced by Cedar Walton, he often sounds more like a spiced-up Kenny Barron, and it's KB who seems the main influence on the excellent 17 (Seventeen) (we're not clear why the addiction to brackets). On 'Un Poco Loco' he turns the Bud Powell theme inside out, demonstrating some of his own characteristic harmonic devices. Augmented chords and unusual chordal progressions appear in '17' itself, and notably in 'Elysian Fields'. The earlier album is more impressionistic, a set of duos with mostly like-minded players who fail to deliver the same challenge as the group set, or indeed the same intensity of focus as on Soskin's excellent deleted solo record on Vartan. Good stuff, but not so much to our taste.

Surprising that Soskin has never been taken up by a Stateside label. He's probably too subtle for some of the majors, but his track record alone should have guaranteed more interest. The quartet with Potter, Patitucci and Stewart is a strikingly good record, with a couple of fine new themes in 'Strive' (Abercrombie's added for this, under Potter's glorious soprano) and the title-tune, though it leans more heavily than we'd like on a relatively safe diet of Chick Corea, Monk and Richard Rodgers tunes, with just Clare Fischer's 'Pensativa' at the end a surprise.

Eddie South (1904–62)

VIOLIN

He learned violin as a child. Worked on the black theatre circuit in the early '30s as a chamber-jazz act before touring Europe. Starred on radio and even TV in the '40s and '50s.

 Eddie South 1923–1937 Classics 707 South; Jimmy Wade (c); Williams Dover (tb); Clifford King (cl, bcl, as); Arnett Nelson (cl, as); Vernon Roulette (cl, ts); Teddy Weatherford, Antonia Spaulding (p); Walter Wright, Stéphane Grappelli, Michel Warlop (vn); Everett Barksdale (g, bj, v); Django Reinhardt, Mike McKendrick, Roger Chaput, Sterling Conaway (g); Louis Gross (bb); Wilson Myers, Milt Hinton, Paul Cordonnier (b); Edwin Jackson, Jimmy Bertrand, Jerome Burke (d). 12/23–11/37.
 Black Gypsy, 1927–1934 Frog 36 Similar to above. 27–34.
 Eddie South 1937–1941 Classics 737 South; Charlie Shavers (t); Buster Bailey (cl); Russell Procope (as); David Martin, Stanley Facey (p); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Django Reinhardt, Isadore Langlois, Eddie Gibbs, Eugene Fields (g); Paul Cordonnier, Doles Dickens, Ernest 'Bass' Hill (b); Specs Powell, Tommy Benford (d); Ginny Sims (v). 11/37–3/41.

South wasn't simply one of the most accomplished of jazz violinists; he might have been one of the best-schooled of all jazz musicians of his time, given a thorough classical grounding that, unusually, blossomed into a hot rather than a cool improviser's stance. If his reputation rests on his Paris recordings of 1937 (available on Classics 707), there are some interesting footnotes to an unfulfilled career in the other tracks listed here. The first Classics disc starts with a very rare 1923 track by Jimmy Wade's Moulin Rouge Orchestra: awful sound (it was recorded for Paramount), but South's intensely blue violin still cuts through the ensembles.

In 1928 South visited Hungary and became enamoured of gypsy music. From then on, it played an important part in his style and it's very much the key sound on Black Gypsy, a compilation that pretty much duplicates the coverage of the Classics set, though obviously the shorter purview means a more focused look at these Victor recordings of the 1927–34 period. Not much to choose between them in terms of sound or packaging, though the Classics probably has more user-friendly notes.

South's slightly later Chicago and New York sessions are well played if comparatively lightweight – on songs such as 'Nagasaki' or 'Marcheta' he sounds almost like a vaudevillian – but the three sessions with Grappelli and Reinhardt are fascinating, the guitarist driven into his best form, the violinist playing his finest solos on 'Sweet Georgia Brown' and 'Eddie's Blues', and the date culminating in the extraordinary improvisation on Bach's D Minor Concerto for two violins by South, Grappelli and Reinhardt together. A further 1938 session in Hilversum has some more strong playing by South's regular quintet, but his final titles from 1940–41 belabour the material, which seems designed to cast South as a romantic black gypsy and sends him back to vaudeville. He seldom recorded again, despite a fair amount of broadcasting, and must be accounted as a talent out of his time.

 The Dark Angel Of The Fiddle Soundies 4120 South; Billy Taylor (p); Eddie Brown, LeGrand Mason (b); Connie Jordan (d). 58.

A valuable set of radio transcriptions for Standard and Jubilee, these show South in the same vaudevillean mode as earlier recordings, but with his classical technique even more evident. Billy Taylor is an excellent partner, harmonically astute, rhythmically just a little ahead of the boss and dynamically soft enough to keep South pretty much to the forefront. Two versions of 'Rhapsody In Blue', a nice 'Paganini In Rhythm' and a very swinging 'Cherokee' all stand out, but the real hit is the gypsy-inspired 'Tzigani In Rhythm'. A vivid record of an intriguing star.

South Frisco Jazz Band

GROUP

Californian followers of Murphy–Watters, this great institution of its scene began playing in the late '50s and retired at the turn of the millennium.

* Sage Hen Strut Stomp Off 1143 Dan Comins, Leon Oakley (c); Jim Snyder (tb); Mike Baird (cl, ss, as); Bob Helm (cl, as); Robbie Rhodes (p); Vince Saunders (bj); Bob Rann (tba); Bob Raggio (d, wbd). 11/84.
(*) Broken Promises Stomp Off 1180 As above, except omit Helm. 9/87.
(*) Got Everything Stomp Off 1240 As above, except add Bob Helm (cl, ss, v), Jack Mangan (d). 11/89–9/91.
(*) Big Bear Stomp Stomp Off 1307 As above, except omit Helm, Raggio; add Mangan, Lloyd Byassee (d). 10/95.
(*) Emperor Norton's Hunch Stomp Off 1342 As above, except omit Comins, Snyder and Byassee; add Brian Shaw (t), Charlie Bornemann (tb), John Gill (d, v). 2–3/98.

The South Frisco Jazz Band (and by South Frisco they usually mean Los Angeles) have been playing as a group, on and off, since around 1960. Formed in the spirit of the Lu Watters and Turk Murphy groups, they approach traditional material with a zest, flair and ingenuity that shame most British trad groups and manage to combine a faithful feel with a certain irreverence: this isn't corny or the work of pasticheurs, but it's very good fun. The band has made a fair number of records over the years and these CDs are a good representation of what the line-up can do. The two-cornet front line plays a fiercely hot lead on most of the tunes, abetted by Snyder's choleric trombone and Baird's authentically quivering reed parts. Helm, a sideman with Murphy, sits in on two of the discs. The material is all original archaeology. When they play Jelly Roll Morton, it's 'Little Lawrence' or 'If Someone Would Only Love Me' rather than 'Wolverine Blues', and there are tiny tributes scattered through the discs to the likes of Roy Palmer, Richard M. Jones and Natty Dominique. There are plenty of rags, too. Of these discs, Sage Hen Strut takes a very narrow lead for the choice of material and the complete absence of vocals (not quite the group's strong point, though they don't do much singing). Big Bear Stomp doesn't sound like one of their absolute best, but they still turn in enough winners – try Lovie Austin's 'Rampart Street Blues' – to please admirers of the other records.

Emperor Norton's Hunch features three personnel changes, although Gill is a very familiar name in these sorts of surroundings, and sadly it is likely to be their final record: the band members live too far apart to be able to play regularly, and after 42 years they deserve a bit of a rest. So this is a typically spirited farewell – not their greatest, but again liberally sprinkled with hotter-than-that playing. Until the Sage Hen struts again!

Sune Spångberg

DRUMS

Part of the community of Young Turks who made up Swedish modernism in the '50s, he also worked extensively in music education.

(*) Two Absent Friends Dragon DRCD316 Spångberg; Arne Forsén (p); Ulf Åkerhielm (b). 2/96.

 Live At Café Aguéli Dragon DRCD 328 Spångberg; Johan Zetterlind (t); Carl Fredrik Orrje, Göran Strandberg, Claes-Göran Fagerstedt, Åke Johansson (p); Ludvig Girland (vn); Ivar Lindell, Owe Gustavsson (b); Nannie Porres (v). 9/97–8/98.

Spångberg has been a singular witness in the music. He was with Bud Powell at The Golden Circle and he drummed on Albert Ayler's first record. His sleeve-notes to Two Absent Friends muse on a broad vista of Swedish jazz history but pay special note to the two dedicatees who provided the music here, Lasse Werner and Kurt Lindgren. Both composers had much inspiration in them and these 12 tunes are an attractive lot. More than that, one feels the music is haunted by a number of ghosts, not just Werner and Lindgren but also Torbjørn Hultcrantz, Jan Wallgren and Allan Olsson. It's a pity, then, that the results are finally not so distinguished. The trio muster only a rather clumsy empathy, which detracts from the occasion, and Akerhielm's several arco solos seem insecure; nor is the balance, with Spångberg sounding too crisp and up-front in the mix, properly effective. Some fine material is deposited here, but it's not as well served as it might have been.

The live CD, cut at various sessions at the small Café Aguéli, is much more like it. The sound is rough, close-up and atmospheric, and the various combinations of musicians make an interesting match, oldtimers such as Johansson and Fagerstedt next to young players like Orrje and Setterlind. Roots music as it's being played today.

Muggsy Spanier (1906–67)

CORNET

Recording as a teenager, Francis Spanier was off to a quick start in his native Chicago. He worked with Ted Lewis and Ben Pollack in the '20s and '30s, before forming his Ragtime Band in 1939. The records are classics but the band was a commercial failure. He stuck with Dixieland through the '40s and '50s, before moving west to join Earl Hines in 1957 and leading modest small groups up until his death.

[redacted]

* Muggsy Spanier 1939–1942
Classics 709 Spanier; Ruby Weinstein, Elmer O'Brien (t); Ford Leary, George Brunies (tb, v); Rod Kless (cl); Karl Kates, Joe Forchetti, Ed Caine (as); Ray McKinstrey, Bernie Billings, Nick Caizza (ts); George Zack, Charlie Queener, Joe Bushkin (p); Bob Casey (g, b); Pat Pattison (b); Marty Greenberg, Al Hammer, Don Carter, Al Sidell (d), Dottie Reid (v). 7/39–6/42.

Spanier's 1939 Ragtime Band recordings are among the classic statements in the traditional-jazz idiom. Bob Crosby's Bob Cats had helped to initiate a modest vogue for small Dixieland bands in what was already a kind of revivalism at the height of the big-band era, and Spanier's group had audiences flocking to Chicago clubs, although by December, with a move to New York, they were forced to break up for lack of work. Their recordings have been dubbed 'The Great Sixteen' ever since. While there are many fine solos scattered through the sides – mostly by Spanier and the little-remembered Rod Kless – it's as an ensemble that the band impresses: allied to a boisterous rhythm section, the informal counterpoint among the four horns (the tenor sax perfectly integrated, just as Eddie Miller was in the Bob Cats) swings through every performance. The repertoire re-established the norm for Dixieland bands, and even though the material goes back to Oliver and the ODJB, there's no hint of fustiness, even in the rollicking effects of 'Barnyard Blues'. 'Someday Sweetheart', with its sequence of elegant solos, is a masterpiece of cumulative tension, and Spanier himself secures two finest hours in the storming finish to 'Big Butter And Egg Man' and the wah-wah blues-playing on 'Relaxin' At The Touro', a poetic tribute to convalescence (he had been ill the previous year) the way Parker's 'Relaxin' At Camarillo' would subsequently be. His own playing is masterful throughout – the hot Chicago cornet sound refined and seared away to sometimes the simplest but most telling of phrases. The Classics CD adds eight tracks to the definitive 16 by Muggsy's big band, none of them outstanding but all grist to the Spanier collector's mill. Since RCA have let their own edition apparently slip out of circulation, this is the only option.

(*) Muggsy Spanier 1944 Classics 907 Spanier; Miff Mole, Lou McGarity (tb); Pee Wee Russell (cl); Boomie Richman (ts); Ernie Caceres (bs); Gene Schroeder, Dick Cary, Jess Stacy (p); Eddie Condon, Hy White (g); Bob Casey, Bob Haggart, Sid Weiss (b); Joe Grauso, George Wettling (d). 4–10/44.

 Muggsy Spanier 1944–1946 Classics 967 Spanier; Lou McGarity, Vernon Brown (tb); Pee Wee Russell, Peanuts Hucko (cl); Bud Freeman, Nick Caizza (ts); Ernie Caceres (bs); Gene Schroeder, Dave Bowman, Nick Rongetti (p); Eddie Condon, Carl Kress, Hy White (g); Bob Haggart, Bob Casey, Trigger Alpert (b); Joe Grauso, Charlie Carroll, George Wettling (d). 12/44–9/46.

(*) Manhattan Masters Storyville STCD 60-51 Spanier; Lou McGarity, Miff Mole (tb); Pee Wee Russell (cl); Ernie Caceres (bs); Gene Schroeder, Nick Rongetti (p); Carl Kress, Fred Sharp, Allan Hanlon (g); Bob Casey, Jack Lesberg, Bob Haggart (b); Joe Grauso, Charles Carroll (d). 3/45.

 The Complete V-Disc Sessions Jazz Unlimited JUCD 2049 Spanier; Yank Lawson (t); Lou McGarity, Bill Mustarde (tb); Pee Wee Russell (cl, v); Peanuts Hucko (cl); Boomie Richmond, Bud Freeman (ts); Jess Stacy, Dane Bowman, Buddy Weed (p); Hy White, Carmen Mastren (g); Bob Hagart, Trigger Alpert (b); George Wettling, Ray McKinley (d). 10/44–10/45.

Muggsy's sessions for Commodore, V-Disc, Disc and an almost unknown date for Manhattan make a very welcome addition to his CD listing. The Commodores could probably sound better than they do here, but at present this is their only accessible edition. All the music on Classics 907 is vintage Spanier, with standouts including 'Lady Be Good', a superb 'Snag It' and a very fine 'Sweet Sue', with a solo by Miff Mole on the last that proves he was far from the lost soul his post-'20s reputation would have one think. Besides Spanier, the standout player is Pee Wee Russell: connoisseurs of the bizarre will relish his vocal on the V-Disc 'Pee Wee Speaks'. The subsequent volume is just a shade behind, perhaps, although there is so little surviving Spanier that it's a necessary disc for followers. Both docked a notch for unpleasing sound: they should be better than this.

The six Manhattan tracks reappear on the Storyville edition, along with a dozen other pieces which were done at the same sessions, although under the nominal leadership of either Miff Mole or Pee Wee Russell. The tracks were made at the instigation of Nick Rongetti of Nick's in Greenwich Village (he even gets to play a solo on 'That's A Plenty'!). It's Condonesque Dixieland without Condon, and although the principals are all in hearty fettle it doesn't have the spark of greatness about it. But always good to hear Spanier and the excellent Mole, who was well out of the limelight at this stage: his fine solo on 'I Can't Give You Anything But Love' makes one regret his later decline all the more.

The V-Disc material on Jazz Unlimited duplicates the Classics sessions but has a number of extra takes of some titles, and also includes material from four Bud Freeman dates.

(*) Muggsy Spanier 1949–1954 Classics 1405 Spanier; Mann Ware, George Brunies, Harry Graves, Ralph Hutchinson (tb); Bill Reinhardt, Darnell Howard, Phil Gomez (cl); Boomie Richmond (ts); Don Ewell, Floyd Bean, Red Richards (p); Billy Mure (g); Sid Thall, Truck Parham (b); Sid Catlett, Don Chester, Wally Gordon, Barrett Deems, George Wettling (d); Buddy Charles (v). 2/49–9/54.

Some relatively obscure studio dates here for Jazz Limited, Mercury and Decca, with a rather motley group of bands. The March 1950 date is a stormer, with a roof-lifting 'Dixie Flyer' and Sid Catlett driving everyone on from the kit. The later sessions have sometimes unpromising tunes – 'It's A Long Way To Tipperary', 'Oh, Doctor Ochsner!' – but the surprising thing is how strongly Spanier's own playing always comes through, and how much he characterizes the music without having to improvise much. His statement of the melody on 'Moonglow', for instance, is almost overwhelming. The sound on the Mercury tracks is very bright; the Decca material is sometimes cavernous.

(*) In New Orleans 1938–1955 American Music AMCD-109 Spanier; Julian Lane, Ralph Hutchinson (tb); Bujie Centobie, Darnell Howard (cl); Armand Hug, Red Mackie, Floyd Beam (p); Edmond Souchon (g, bj, v); Chink Martin, Truck Parham, Sherwood Mangiapane (b); Monk Hazel, Barrett Deems (d). 38–8/55.

The real surprise here is four previously unknown 1938 transcriptions where Spanier is heard with a New Orleans group (including such stalwarts as Armand Hug, Chink Martin and Monk Hazel) in extended versions of four pieces. Despite the imperfect sound Muggsy comes through loud and clear and he sounds in cracking form: these tracks count as some of his most exciting surviving playing. The 1955 tracks with Mackie, Souchon and Mangiapane are very rough and ready, but as ever Spanier makes some strong remarks. The disc is rounded off by five tracks by the band heard on the above Storyville disc, although these don't duplicate any tunes and they are in excellent sound. A hotch-potch, but quite essential for Spanier fans.

Also, in brief:

 Volume 1: The Alternative Takes – 1939–1944 Neatwork 2027. 7/39–10/44.

We usually only recommend these to serious enthusiasts and collectors, but this one contains more good material than most.

 At Club Hangover 1953–54 Storyville STCD 6033. 4/53–11/54.

Not a great time for Dixieland, but Spanier kept the faith and usually found serviceable bands.

Les Spann (1932–89)

GUITAR, FLUTE

Primarily a guitarist, with a style that blended bop and blues stylings in a very personal way. His associations with Dizzy Gillespie and Quincy Jones brought him some renown.

 Gemini Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1948 Spann; Julius Watkins (frhn); Tommy Flanagan (p); Sam Jones (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 12/60.

Spann's only album as leader is likeable but spotty. When he plays flute, and harmonizes with Watkins on melody lines, it's sonorously effective on the opening 'Smile'. But his guitar got a bad deal in the mix, and it sounds thin and hidden a lot of the way. 'Con Alma' is poor, and 'Q's Dues Blues' is sloppy. Watkins was presumably chosen so as not to overwhelm the leader with a 'real' front-line horn; if so, it was a mistake. All that said, there is some lively improvising, and the curious contrast in the leader's guitar and flute styles is used quite effectively, with a smart rhythm section.

James Spaulding (born 1937)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE

Studied at Chicago Cosmopolitan School and worked with both Sun Ra and Freddie Hubbard. A versatile instrumentalist, much in demand as a sideman.

 The Smile Of The Snake High Note HCD 7006 Spaulding; Richard Wyands (p); Ron McClure (b); Tony Reedus (d). 12/96.
 Escapade High Note HCD 7039 Spaulding; John Hicks (p); Ray Drummond (b); Kenny Washington (d). 4/99.

Spaulding's earlier work for Muse is long deleted and shows no sign of reappearing. These later sessions are marked by the same easy musicianship that has marked his extensive discography. Though he is no writer, Spaulding has a gift for spotting unusual and creative material. He begins The Smile Of The Snake with a Clifford Jordan number, 'Third Avenue', and programmes material by Richard Wyands, Geoff Keezer and Donald Brown, who is composer of the title-track. This is hardly repertory fare and the unfamiliarity of the material is either intriguing or off-putting depending on your level of curiosity. The group performs beautifully, with McClure particularly prominent. Escapade is a less winning set in some respects, but the inclusion of two Kenny Dorham tunes – 'La Mesha' and the title-piece – suggests that Spaulding remains an eclectic who's drawn to a strong melody. A couple of standards, 'Just One Of Those Things' and 'It Could Happen To You', suggest he's less at ease playing changes over relatively familiar terrain, but that shouldn't imply that James is a dull or dilettante player, just that his improvising instincts are set a little left of the norm. A live double set is also around, but it hasn't reached us.

Martin Speake (born 1958)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

He came to prominence in all-sax group Itchy Fingers.

 Trust 33 Records 33 JAZZ 035 Speake; John Parricelli (g); Steve Watts (b); Steve Argüelles (d). 11/96.

Speake's recording debut as leader was in 1994 with a disc called In Our Time on Danny Thompson's short-lived Jazz Label. Trust almost seems like back to square one. It features the same group, sounding very much in sympathy, but cleaving to essentially the same concept. As before, Argüelles is the bedrock for Speake's muscular but tuneful ideas, playing with a bright, clean articulation that comes across very strongly. Tunes like 'Golden Rooster', 'The Heron' and 'The Accidental Flamboyant' are colourful and witty. The ballad forms are less secure, but only because Speake seems inclined to be reserved. It makes sense with this music to have guitar rather than piano. Parricelli's chiming, slightly edgy sound works very well indeed and contrasts nicely with Watts's dark, woody bass-lines.

 Hullabaloo Linn AKD 191 Speake; John Parricelli (g); Mick Hutton (b); Tom Skinner (d). 12/99.

(*) Secret Basho SRCD 3-2 Speake; Nikki Iles (p); Duncan Hopkins (b); Anthony Michelli (d). 10/00.

Speake's delivery works a rather unusual combination of directness and deference. Some have suggested a Konitz connection, but he's more like, say, Richard Tabnik, a Tristano-ite of a more severe bent. His music rarely collars the attention and relies on a purposeful accrual of interesting details and conversational touches. Hullabaloo is about as inappropriate a title as one could get, since the quartet is more interested in playing quietly and carefully. Parricelli is an effective partner for the altoist and they circle patiently around each other, somewhat in the manner of Jan Garbarek and Bill Connors. But there are times when the record could use a jolt of something.

One way to contrast these sessions is to compare the two versions of 'J.T.'s Symmetrical Scale', which is on both discs. That on Secret is much more forceful and pungent, and the later record benefits greatly from the presence of both Michelli and Iles. The drummer's a pushy but not overbearing player and gooses some of the playing just enough to make it fly, when a more discreet player could have left it on the ground. But it's Iles who draws the ear, and the record is as much hers as Speake's, with five of her own originals and playing which really puts substance and weight into what might otherwise turn into spindrift.

 Exploring Standards 33Jazz 090 Speake; Mick Hutton (b); Tom Skinner (d). 4/01.

 My Ideal Basho BRCD 7-2 Speake; Ethan Iverson (p). 12/02.

The 'standards' record is attractively weighted towards a jazz connoisseur's choice of tunes – Paul Bley's 'Big Foot', Frank Rosolino's 'Blue Daniel', Sonny Rollins's 'Strode Rode' – so any sense that this would be some nice album of Gershwin tunes is derailed at the outset. That said, the trio's approach isn't terribly exciting: it's a recital of these pieces rather than any kind of revisionist approach, and Speake seems to almost deliberately distance himself from any sort of plangency of interpretation. The record is coolly attractive in its way, but they have some way to go before they can muster the kind of individuality which the masters of that approach displayed.

The meeting with Iverson is a trifle bizarre. Speake intones the melodies of the chosen standards – this time, a typical songbook selection of 'So In Love', 'Stardust' and the like – while the pianist contrives to subvert and undercut him at every step of the way, with accompaniments which are often extraordinarily imaginative yet far from what one considers supportive. Give Speake his due, he carries on regardless, but his almost hooting timbre and poker-faced delivery do seem a strange counterweight. Here and there – as in 'Loverman' – there's a more conventional dialogue.

(*) Charlie Parker Basho JITCD 0536 Speake; Mike Outram (g); Simon Thorpe (b); Dave Wickins (d). 10/04.

 Change Of Heart ECM 987 4059 Speake; Bobo Stenson (p); Mick Hutton (b); Paul Motian (d). 4/02.

Speake's set of Parker interpretations was conceived after months of (as he admits) rather belated study and intense listening to the senior saxophonist. It's a curious homage, at once involved and remote, which is rather typical of Speake's methods. His own playing, while it has threads of bebop in it, is coolly antithetical to Bird's intensities, and Outram's excellent work often seems more in keeping with its subject matter than the leader's. Yet there are some brilliant things here. 'Donna Lee' is an amazing four-way transformation of Parker's original line, which finally bursts on to the main theme as its finale. There are some interesting derivations of Parker tunes, such as 'Embrace Me', 'The Hymn Revisited' and the closing 'Yardbird'. 'I'm In The Mood For Love' and 'My Old Flame' are eerily effective, alternative views of two favourite Parker standards. Superbly recorded and mixed, this might be Speake's most impressive record.

In a way, the ECM debut – recorded in 2002 but not released for four years – lies somewhere between the previous two. A lot of it settles Speake into a mood-painting role. Careful and considered, the playing has great poise but one waits in vain for something head-turning to take place. A bit disappointing.

Also, in brief:

 Amazing Grace Spotlite SPJ 558. 3/96.

A fine group with Phil Lee (g), Pete Saberton (p) and others.

() The Journey Black Box BBJ 2025. 3/04.

'File Under: Jazz/World Music', it says on the sleeve.

Glenn Spearman (1947–98)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

His death from liver cancer left a sense of things undone and of a major talent not yet properly recognized. His blues-soaked sound bears comparison with anyone from Illinois Jacquet to Archie Shepp.

 Utterance Cadence CJR 1103 Spearman; John Heward (d, kalimba, v). 10/90.

(*) Mystery Project / * Smokehouse Black Saint 120147 / 120157 Spearman; Larry Ochs (ts, sno); Chris Brown (p, DX7); Ben Lindgren (b); Donald Robinson, William Winant (d). 8/92; 11/93.

Spearman was over 40 before the first of these was recorded, so not surprisingly he already sounds settled into a strong and individual voice. He started out as a Coltrane-influenced screamer but quickly recognized that a more thoughtful delivery might well bear dividends. A 1981 duo with drummer Donald Robinson has been compared to Trane and Rashied Ali's Interstellar Space, and Spearman was to return to the same format with Utterance, a sequence of duos with drummer John Heward. By that time Spearman had come under the tutelage of Frank Wright, with whom he had bunked and woodshedded in France, and it was clear that he was striking out in a new direction. The Coltrane influence is still there, but it has been subsumed into something altogether more linear. After a period with trumpeter Raphe Malik's sextet, Spearman founded his Double Trio.

Dedicated to Ornette Coleman (and to the structured freedom on Ornette's Free Jazz), Mystery Project consists of a large three-part suite, in which the direction of the music is dictated not so much by notated passages as by the distribution of the personnel. As in ROVA man Larry Ochs's 'Double Image', the basic group is a palette from which various colours and shadings can be drawn. Spearman's personal colour-code would seem to be black and red. He's a fierce player, overblowing in the upper register and virtually incapable of anything less than full throttle. He never sacrifices subtlety to power, though. This is intelligent music that never palls or sounds dated.

The follow-up record has the same line-up and makes similarly effective use of doubled instruments. It's a long – 75-minute – suite with an intermission built in, not because an LP version required a break, but because the music is so unremittingly present that one couldn't absorb any more without some surcease. Spearman's time in Europe opened up many interesting compositional ideas to him, but these performances are squarely in the tradition of the '60s avant-garde, and their strength comes from Spearman's profound conviction that the ideas adumbrated at that time are far from exhausted but still constitute a lingua franca for improvisation. The 'in-take' and 'out-take' of 'Axe, Beautiful Acts' exude a fierce poetry that is worthy of Cecil Taylor.

 The Fields Black Saint 120197 Spearman; Larry Ochs (ss, ts); Chris Brown (p); Lisle Ellis (b); Don Robinson, William Winant (d). 96.

The Spearman Double Trio was an interesting formal experiment, but it may have foundered on the strong creative personality of his fellow saxophonist, who always seems ready to hijack this session and take it off in a different direction. Ochs's 'Melts' and Spearman's 'Sound Section' are the two main statements on the record, and are kept well apart at the beginning and end respectively. The supporting cast is strong and supportive, though very often the band seem to be playing set charts while the two horns duel in the foreground.

 Live At Fire In The Valley Eremite MTE 10 Spearman; William Parker (b); Paul Murphy (d). 97.

Attributed to Trio Hurricane, this strong festival set derives much of its compelling power from bassist Parker, but it is Spearman compositions which dominate. 'Initiation' and 'Blue For Frank And John' almost exhaust the energies of the group, with each of the three members receiving generous solo space, but the enthusiasm of the crowd spurs them on and an improvised encore is a worthwhile bonus. Some of the playing is a little opaque, and here and there Spearman surrenders expression to sheer dynamic force.

 Blues For Falasha Tzadik TZ 7130 Spearman; Larry Ochs (ss, ts); Chris Brown (p); Lisle Ellis (b); Don Robinson, William Winant (d). 6/97.

Few artists better represented the cultural collisions of John Zorn's 'Radical Jewish Culture' imprint than Spearman, whose parents were Jewish and black. Unlike some titles in this Tzadik series, there is little overtly Judaic music played, most of it on 'Rituals', which seems to be Spearman's attempt to think his way back into a forgotten ancestry for the blues. 'The Old Book' makes explicit reference but does less with it musically, and the rest of the album is familiar enough from Spearman's earlier work with the Double Trio.

Also, in brief:

(*) Free Worlds Black Saint 120207. 94, 95.

Justified as a posthumous release, but more instructive than genuinely satisfying.

(*) th CIMP 148. 5/97.

A co-led improv with drummer John Heward: challenging, but stark.

(*) Working With The Elements /  First And Last CIMP 181 / Eremite MTE015. 7/98.

Spearman died less than three months after this duo with Dominic Duval (b on Elements) and trio with Matthew Goodheart (p) and Rashid Bakr (d) and his rapidly failing health is all too evident.

Chris Speed (born 1967)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, CLARINET

Studied classical piano and clarinet, then added sax in high school. Pachora is a regular group.

 Yeah No / (*) Deviantics Songlines SGL 1517-2 / 1547-2 Speed; Cuong Vu (t); Skuli Sverrisson (b); Jim Black (d). 7–12/96; 10/98.

A valuable sideman, he seems fragmentary and unachieved on his own projects. On Yeah No, the frantic 'Scribble Bliss', the ghostly 'The Dream And Memory Store', the intense and purposeful 'Merge' – each uses the resources of the quartet to good ends without quite suggesting a particular vision. On its own terms, this is a sharp, funny exploration of some of the musics that Speed's come across – jazz and everything else. In many ways the key player is Black, whose nutty rhythms are what really bring the group to life, as boisterous as the horns are.

Deviantics pushes the ideas a little harder into a more coherent shape. This has elements of post-bop in it, but Vu is a strange player, as likely to play against the grain of whatever's going on as to follow it, and the stew of influences is getting thicker and richer. Sverrisson's odd 'Tulip' is a very curious mélange, and the following 'Wheatstone' is a storming modal blow. 'Valya' has an East European feel.

(*) Emit Songlines SGL 1532 Speed; Cuong Vu (t); Skuli Sverrisson (b); Jim Black (d, melod). 3/00.

Emit is harsh, and there seem to be some electronics bubbling away at the bottom of the mix on a few tracks, unless it's Sverrisson or Black fiddling with an effects unit. Speed's knack for a clarion melody, though, stops matters from getting too dark or abstract – 'Constance And Georgia' is one such example. Black can play with what sounds like absolute fury, but somehow without overwhelming everyone else, and Vu continues a one-man advance in trumpet sound and technique. Speed often referees more than dominates.

 Astereotypical Winter & Winter 910082-2 Speed; Brad Shepik (g, sax); Skuli Sverrisson (b, g); Jim Black (d). 2/02.
Credited to Pachora, but Speed takes the lion's share of the writing, and it's really the same band as last time except Shepik comes in for Vu. That said, the music often trades in the Balkan-terpsichorean feel which Shepik delights in, even if it does develop some of the threads from Speed's earlier sets. With a dozen pieces despatched in just over 50 minutes, there's no hanging about, and with Speed exclusively on clarinet the tracks settle into what might be called a hip idea of Balkan wedding music. The line to earth is Black, who often finds his way back to a basic rock feel.

(*) Swell Henry Squealer 40 As for Emit, except add Rob Burge (acc); Jamie Saft (ky). 03.
This is the best thing to date and pay-off for a lot of promise and not so much delivery on past records. The quartet combines a rockish intensity, quickly evident on the second track, 'Last Beginning', with considerable harmonic subtlety. Some of the tunes seem to be delivered almost perfunctorily, and half as many tracks played at twice the length might have made a still more interesting record. It was wise to introduce a couple of additional voices: Burger's accordion steers the music back into Pachora's pan-cultural territory, while Saft's use of a mellotron (!) gives the music a curious timeless dimension.

Martin Speicher

ALTO SAXOPHONE, CLARINET

A spontaneous composer of markedly individual stamp.

 Shapes And Shadows Clean Feed CF084 Speicher; Georg Wolf (b); Lou Grassi (d). 1/06.
As a title, Shapes And Shadows is somehow immediately redolent of Ornette Coleman and the trio format here is strongly reminiscent of one of Ornette's most celebrated groups. This is free music though, and Speicher's hard but full tone is very much his own, so the similarity evaporates before 'Please, Confirm!' – the most Ornettish track, is halfway done. It's a long, involved piece, very different from the softer and more introspective quality of 'Le Star'. The only piece to examine extremes of sonority and non-idiomatic articulations is 'Claire's Net', which is, arguably, the least successful track of the set. 'Your Hope' revives some comparison with Ornette's guess-the-next-note pointillism. 'Alors! Bill Dit' is again sotto and mysterious, while 'Shapes And Shadows' bookends the set with a second long improv. Wolf and Grassi are equal partners, the drummer sounding more focused here than on some of his recent American dates. It's a satisfying record, and whets the appetite for more of Speicher's work.

Russ Spiegel

GUITAR

A rugged individualist, who can occupy the mainstream or flirt with danger at will. Previous records fall outside our remit.

 Chimera Steeplechase SCCD 31622 Spiegel; David Smith (t); Arun Luthra (sax); Nick Mancini (vib); Gary Wang (b); Anthony Pinciotti (d). 07.
Spiegel has a background in rock and it occasionally resurfaces here, as on the long 'The Last March', which must be the most out-there thing in the recent Steeplechase catalogue, a burner that only reveals its subtle percussion interplay on subsequent hearings. Spiegel's label debut (recorded with minimal rehearsal, though he knew the players) opens with a fairly orthodox hard-bop idea on the title-track, with Mancini prominent in an idiom that one associates (on this label at least) with Joe Locke. 'Polychrome World' is a quieter acoustic idea, with strong hints of bossa rhythm. Perhaps the most intriguing and challenging item on the set, though, is a reworking of 'Cherokee' over Coltrane changes, a very clever idea that skips over that song's iconic place in the foundation of bebop and lands it in a still later evolution. 'Wo Bleibt Die Seele' is another sonic attack, but Luthra's winding soprano-line (again out of Coltrane, but with other, harder to locate influences) is the most effective aspect. 'Good Night' bips along cheerfully, but 'Herr Boehnke' sees the album out on a note of maximum entropy. An intriguing set; perhaps a bit all over the place to be entirely effective, but not something you'd forget in a hurry.

Simon Spillett

TENOR SAXOPHONE

British newcomer: school of Tubbs.

 Introducing Woodville WVCD 116 Spillett; John Critchinson (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Martin Drew (d). 8/06.
The title is charmingly old-fashioned and plain for a debut, but Spillett doesn't shake you by the hand so much as grab you by the throat. He has all of Hayes's headlong power, and while he can deliver a ballad with genuine affectingness ('But Beautiful' most obviously), his more distinctive register is a hard yomp through the changes. The closing 'Cherokee' is outrageous, though Critchinson manages to show that he's seen it all before. An impressive debut.

The Spirits Of Rhythm

GROUP

Originally the Sepia Nephews and the Five Cousins, the group was expanded in the early '30s with the arrival of Teddy Bunn. Favouring humorous or nonsense lyrics with use of the tiple (a kind of small Latin American guitar with variable tuning). The group did not disband until the end of the war.

 The Spirits Of Rhythm 1933–1945 Classics 1028 Leonard Feather (p); Teddy Bunn, Ulysses Livingston (g); Leo Watson, Wilbur Daniels, Douglas Daniels (tiple, v); Wilson Myers, Wellman Braud, Red Callender (b); Virgin Scoggins, Georgie Vann (d, v); Red McKenzie, Ella Logan (v). 10/33–1/45.
The Spirits are now treasured largely for nurturing the guitar-playing of Teddy Bunn, one of the undoubted giants of the instrument in jazz before Charlie Christian and Wes Montgomery revolutionized it, ironically often smoothing out the very features which made it different from the horns and piano. Derek Bailey pointed to Bunn as an early influence. The Spirits were, however, essentially a singing group, not quite a novelty act but not a million miles from it. Watson and the two Daniels boys sang jovial scat lines, accompanying themselves on tiples, while Bunn kept up a solid but ever-changing background. The sound is light and delicate, an almost harp-like backing for voices. Like Freddy Guy, for whom he once depped in the Ellington band, and Freddie Green, who did a similar job for Basie, Bunn understood the workings of a group instinctively and, despite being wholly self-taught, had the uncanny ability to anticipate even non-standard changes.

The Classics set contains the group's entire output. There are two versions of 'I Got Rhythm', both of them featuring Bunn quite strongly; but the outstanding track is 'I'll Be Ready' on which he plays crisp melodic breaks without a single excess gesture. Watson's full-on madness was better displayed elsewhere, but he has his moments here (one bizarre piece from 1934, 'Dr Watson And Mr Holmes'). There are three titles with the 'Swingin' Scots Lassie' Ella Logan and a final date from 1945, where Bunn is the only survivor from the original line-up.

Spontaneous Music Ensemble

GROUP

One of the most radical and thoughtful improvisation groups to emerge on the British scene in the '60s, SME (sometimes changed to Orchestra) evolved, like AMM, out of free jazz and quickly developed a performance philosophy that eschewed any predetermined structure or materials and any of the familiar supports of melody, harmony or rhythm. That said, at the heart of the group were a melodist and a master of rhythmical pulse, co-founders Trevor Watts and John Stevens. In later years, Watts's central position fell to Roger Smith and saxophonist John Butcher, but Stevens stayed at the helm until his untimely death.

 Challenge Emanem 4053 Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Paul Rutherford (tb); Trevor Watts (ss, as, picc); Evan Parker (ss); Bruce Cale, Jeff Clyne, Chris Cambridge (b); John Stevens (d). 3/66 & 4/67.

 Withdrawal Emanem 4020 Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn, perc); Paul Rutherford (tb, perc); Trevor Watts (as, f, ob, perc, v); Evan Parker (ss, ts, perc); Derek Bailey (g); Barry Guy (b, p); John Stevens (d). 9 & 10/66, 3/67.

(*) Summer 1967 Emanem 4005 Evan Parker (ts, ss); Peter Kowald (b); John Stevens (d). 67.

* Karyobin Chronoscope CPE 2001 Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Evan Parker (ss); Derek Bailey (g); Dave Holland (b); John Stevens (d). 2/68.

Asked to say what had been important to him about 1968, Derek Bailey made the typically perceptive and clear-sighted point that the year of revolutions had really made much less difference to the way things were, in either politics or culture, than a whole string of dates in the previous decade. For admirers of British improvised music, though, 1968 saw the emergence of the SME from the rather constricting cocoon of 'free jazz' into an approach that placed all its weight on a collectively generated, non-hierarchical sound with no preconceived structures of any sort.

The publication of 11 previously unissued SME tracks in 1997 was something of a nostalgia trip for anyone who has followed the British improvisation scene with affection. What is instantly noticeable is that the personnel then corresponds exactly to the front rank of senior players now, with the sad exception of the late John Stevens. Even more striking is that all of them, with the partial exception of Watts, have continued to mine the same musical lode for most of the intervening 30 years. Withdrawal, though, does catch them on the cusp. The group had made an LP for the now extinct Eyemark label in the spring of 1966, working in a vein that was unmistakably free jazz. It has now been rescued from obscurity by the redoubtable Martin Davidson, and Challenge helps to fill out an important gap in the documentation of SME, and in turn the development of British free music. There is still a strong emphasis on written material, much of it palpably influenced by Eric Dolphy, whose jittery, thoughtful style is the obvious source of Watts's already distinctive approach. Stevens is a strong writer, and 'Little Red Head' is an idea that someone should consider dusting down; tough and direct, it smacks strongly of the drummer's musical personality. Interestingly, it's Rutherford – that chronically overlooked genius of the trombone – who is the most distinctive soloist; like Watts, he sounds deeply rooted in the blues, but he also knows how to use huge portamento effects which give an orchestral richness to the group. Parker was not yet on board, but an extra track, 'Distant Little Soul', features him for the first time, recognizable but still somewhat diffident on soprano, contributing to a piece on which Stevens and Watts have already struck out for new territory, marking the shift away from free jazz to free music.

A matter of months later, creating music for a 35-minute film made by George Paul Solomos, they seem to have moved out into new and more abstract territory. Part One is very much a feature for Kenny Wheeler, who had been sceptical about becoming involved in free music. It is far from dry, this startling sound, but it is already a long way removed from even a distant memory of bebop or swing. Guy provides dark shifting drones; Parker is not yet quite the skyscraping genius of later years, and it is the still undervalued Rutherford and Watts (who took over the running of the SME during Stevens's sojourn on the continent) who dominate the ensembles. Bailey performs on some of the later tracks only, having been invited to join SME after its inception. Remarkable as the music is, the photographs (by Evan Parker and Jack Kilby) are a delight. Parker was reportedly overawed by his playing companions; it may be that he was also having second thoughts about the Zapatisto moustache.

Summer 1967 is significant not just in documenting one of Evan Parker's earliest recordings; it also preserves his and Stevens's first meeting with a player whom both were later to credit with opening up whole new areas of improvisational language to them. Kowald is a central figure in the European free movement, a generous, open-minded player who never for a moment stops listening to what is going on around him. This doesn't happen in a confrontational-conversational way, but with a constant awareness of what is going on in what Stevens was later to describe, using an analogy from his other art-form, as 'peripheral vision', an ability to pick up fleeting clues and render them as significant as the apparent focal point. That to a degree is what the SME has always been about, whatever its exact personnel and instrumentation.

Until Martin Davidson's excavations in the tape archive, the first significant product of the SME's change in philosophy was Karyobin, a strikingly light-toned and unaggressive exploration of group identity that lasts 49 minutes but contains within it arrays and patterns of musical sound which suggest infinity. The title is the collective name of the birds which inhabit paradise, living in harmony with one another. Karyobin has been a collectors' item on vinyl for many years. It transfers to CD pretty well, de-emphasizing the horns and drums slightly and letting Holland and Bailey come through with a bit more definition.

(*) Frameworks Emanem 4134 Kenny Wheeler (flhn); Paul Rutherford (tb); Trevor Watts (ss, bcl); Ron Herman (b); John

Stevens (d, perc, v); Norma Winstone (v); Julie Tippetts (v, g). 7/68, 4/71, 10/73.

A fascinating sampling of music from unusual SME line-ups. The most substantial piece here, illustrating Stevens's interest in establishing frameworks that would lead to group improvisation, is the 'Familie Sequence' for three horns, voice and percussion, with Wheeler and Rutherford in familiar roles, but with Watts playing bass clarinet. Winstone's vocals are remarkable and reflect an often overlooked aspect of Stevens's concept, which put the human voice at the centre of the action, even if implicitly, as in Watts's strongly vocalized tone. The second piece, from 1971, has Tippetts in the vocal role, with Stevens, Watts more familiarly on soprano, and the brilliant Ron Herman (who died prematurely) on bass. It's already a more evolved but also more simplified language, not perhaps as immediately stirring as the earlier group, with its echos of Stevens's most extreme pieces, but certainly very effective. A fuller representation of SME as a Stevens–Watts duo can be heard on the item below, but as a bonus this CD contains an ultra-minimal duo performance from the Little Theatre Club in 1973; 'Flower' is a genuine SME rarity, like a plain but hitherto uncatalogued orchid, very precious.

* Face To Face Emanem 4003 Trevor Watts (as); John Stevens (d). 73.

For a period, SME functioned as a duo. Stevens and Watts were later to part company, somewhat acrimoniously, but for the duration of their partnership they created music of astonishing power. Unlike For You To Share (see below, 'in brief'), Face To Face is a strong session, marked by the delicacy of Stevens's percussion and Watts's keening cries; if he was uneasy about the ensemble's musical language and direction, he sounds wholly committed to it here. As a set it exerts an emotional pull that makes nonsense of attempts to re-label this sort of music 'abstract'.

 Mouthpiece Emanem 4039 John Stevens; no personnel listed. 5–11/73.

(*) SME+ = SMO Emanem 4062 Evan Parker, Bob Turner, Trevor Watts (ss); Robert Calvert (sno); Dave Decobain, Herman Hauge, Ye Min (as); Martin Mayes (frhn); Chris Turner (hca); Peter Drew (p); Ian Brighton (g); Robert Carter, Nigel Coombes, Stephen Luscomb (vn); Lindsay Cooper, Jane Robertson, Colin Wood (clo); Angus Fraser (b); John Stevens (perc, c). 1/74.

The October 1973 performances are credited to the Spontaneous Music Orchestra, which was essentially SME plus the members of a larger workshop group known as Free Space. No definite details about the musicians involved are known or given, but anyone familiar with this period in British improvisation will be able to make informed guesses about at least some of the players. As with much of Emanem's recent catalogue, all these performances are previously unissued, so they strike with something of the force of the original concerts, which were all in and around London; the two most substantial works were recorded at the SME's spiritual home, the Little Theatre Club, and at Ealing Technical College. Since much of the music was workshopped, there is on occasion a faintly tentative air and sometimes, as in the two versions of 'Sustained Piece', too dogged an application to a single informing idea, on this occasion quite literally the sustaining of blown or sung tones. 'One Two' is the closest the group came to a fixed beat or groove, with players opting whether to play on the first or second count. 'Mouthpiece' required the orchestra to begin with unvoiced mouth sounds, move on to vocalized sounds and only then to their instruments. This is perhaps the least involving part of the disc, albeit a valuable documentation of John Stevens's working philosophy.

The later of the two records again features an augmented SME, and the work of two consecutive nights, first at the Little Theatre Club and then at St John's, Smith Square, part of an evening devoted to the two different aspects of Stevens's music: jazz-based and improvised. The St John's performance was previously issued, the other not; and this latter piece is an edit that cuts out what Martin Davidson refers to as an 'unsatisfactory' start. The main piece, though, is satisfactory in every regard and is wonderful to hear again. It begins in a soft mêlée of tight, high horn sounds with growling drones behind, a structured section in which individual players are required to 'Search & Reflect', listen and respond to the work of players around them. This then develops into a 'Sustained' passage of longer-held tones. Evan Parker is very prominent, but gradually Trevor Watts unfreezes the tableau and leads the music to a powerfully joyous climax. A remarkable work, and one of SME/SMO's finest documented moments.

CORE COLLECTION

* Quintessence

Emanem 4217 2CD Evan Parker, Trevor Watts (ss); Derek Bailey (g); Kent Carter (clo, b); John Stevens (perc, v). 10/73, 2/74.

Kent Carter first came to Britain in 1973 with Steve Lacy (who was himself to become an important overseas player in Derek Bailey's Company project). Despite coming from a radically different musical background, Carter fitted into the SME concept quite seamlessly. He recorded with Stevens and Watts at the Little Theatre Club in October of that year, and then joined the quintet form of the SME for the Institute of Contemporary Arts concert held the following February. Formerly available on two separate CDs, this music has now been brought together in a single package, which should be an essential purchase for every collection. The first disc and the first ten minutes of the second bring together all the ICA material, arguably a high-water mark in British improvisation. The remainder of the second disc consists of three trios (Stevens, Watts, Carter) from the Little Theatre and two duos (Stevens, Watts) recorded at the same venue a week earlier and including a first version of 'Daa-oom', a piece ostensibly inspired by African pygmy music and by Albert Ayler, and featuring Stevens's scarifying vocals.

The stereo separation of the two sopranos, cello and guitar leaves Stevens's kit very much in the foreground, and there are moments when the performance sounds almost like a concerto for percussion. The drummer's lifelong interest in the aural equivalent of 'peripheral vision' seems already to be in play here, and it makes for fascinating listening. His awareness of his colleagues' playing is instinctive, but it is not studied. He seems to respond to them almost as someone might who is reading during conversation, not rudely or detachedly, but because he is able to. The trio sessions don't quite match up in quality and are rather disappointing, though once again not because Carter is out of sympathy with the music.

 Biosystem Psi 06.07 John Stevens (perc, c); Nigel Coombes (vn); Roger Smith (g); Colin Wood (clo). 77.

A new line-up for SME and with the emphasis very strongly on strings. Some have suggested that, following personal disputes with Watts and others, Stevens wanted a group that did not remind him in any way of past associations. However, as the title here suggested, he was also interested in a music where glissandi, complex harmonics and double-stopped lines generated a music that seemed to evolve organically, analogous to the processes of nature. That's not quite achieved here, though the addition of a further 35 minutes from the original session does offer important insights into the kind of language Stevens was searching for. Less immediately appealing than the exactly concurrent release of previously unissued material from 1968, 1971 and 1972 (see Frameworks, above), this is still an important and involving session.

* A New Distance Emanem 4115 John Butcher (ss, ts); Neil Metcalfe (f); Roger Smith (g); John Stevens (d). 2/93, 1 & 5/94.
Recorded in the last year of Stevens's life, these are vintage sessions. They come from three sources: a long live piece from Conway Hall, named 'Stig' after an African drummer John admired and had befriended; four pieces from a date at the Red Rose; and two studio recordings made for the BBC Radio 3 programme Impressions, with Neil Metcalfe added on flute. These last pieces are unusual in that Stevens did discuss material in advance of playing, particularly on 'Peripheral Vision', which he suggests as an analogy to the kind of peripheral hearing or 'aural vision' that seemed to him an ideal activity during improvisation; 'more like a discipline than a composition … really demanding, really hard work'. John can be heard discussing these ideas in interview with presenter Brian Morton. All but these final cuts and speech inserts were previously available as an Acta CD. A decade on, these seem as fresh and subversive as ever. There would be memorials in plenty, but this album stands as a living monument to a remarkable career cut off just as it seemed to be moving in new directions.

Also, in brief:

 For You To Share Emanem 4023. 1 & 5/70.
Audience members get involved, but this wasn't one of the strongest SME dates.

 Low Profile Emanem 4031. 11/77, 2/84, 10/88.
A mixed bag of SME performances, recorded in performance over a decade. More of a useful primer than a major document.

 Hot And Cold Heroes Emanem 4008. 80, 91.
Again a bit of a curate's egg, but valuable enough in its way.

Larry Stabbins (born 1949)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

He has dabbled in most contemporary forms and has paid a price for versatility.

(*) Monadic Emanem 4093 Stabbins (ts solo). 02.
Larry's belated debut is in a harsh discipline. For every For Alto or The Snake Decides, there are a dozen egotistical nightmares, front-room rehearsals posing as product. At first glance, Monadic looks likely to fall into that trap. Beginning with 'Breathing' and some toneless exhalations, it only gets around to 'Playing' 13 tracks later and the only live-with-audience piece of the set, which was recorded in an otherwise empty Red Rose in London. However, the titles shouldn't be off-putting because Stabbins is too thoroughly musical a performer ever to fob us off with mere exercises. There are nods throughout to others who have gone down this tough road – Braxton and Evan Parker, of course, also Steve Lacy – but the sheer expressiveness of tracks like 'Thinking', 'Shaking', 'Speaking' and 'Playing' bespeak an underexposed musical imagination. Our rating has gone up. This is a timeless record, and one that yields fresh satisfactions every time.

Jess Stacy (1904–94)

PIANO

Born in Missouri, he worked in Chicago until he joined Benny Goodman in 1935, with whom – aside from a spell with Bob Crosby – he stayed for a decade. He later became a Condonite but left music to sell cosmetics in 1961. He returned to the festival circuit in the '70s.

* Jess Stacy 1935–1939 Classics 795 Stacy; Billy Butterfield (t); Les Jenkins (tb); Hank D'Amico, Irving Fazola (cl); Eddie Miller, Bud Freeman (ts); Allen Hanlon (g); Israel Crosby, Sid Weiss (b); Gene Krupa, Don Carter (d); Carlotta Dale (v). 11/35–11/39.
* Ec-Stacy ASV AJA 5172 Stacy; Bobby Hackett, Muggsy Spanier (c); Charlie Teagarden, Harry James, Ziggy Elman, Chris Griffin, Yank Lawson, Lyman Vunk, Max Herman, Billy Butterfield, Pee Wee Irwin, Anthony Natoli, Nate Kazebier, Bunny Berigan, Ralph Muzillo (t); Floyd O'Brien, Red Ballard, Joe Harris, Murray McEachern, Elmer Smithers, Buddy Morrow, Will Bradley, Jack Satterfield (tb); Benny Goodman, Johnny Hodges, Pee Wee Russell, Danny Polo, Hymie Schertzer, Bill De Pew, Dick Clark, Arthur Rollini, George Koenig, Vido Musso, Bud Freeman, Dave Mathews, Noni Bernardi, Matty Matlock, Art Mendelsohn, Eddie Miller, Gil Rodin, Sal Franzella, Henry Ross, Larry Binyon, Julius Bradley, Arthur Rando (reeds); Nappy Lamare, Allan Reuss, Frank Worrell, Ben Heller (g); Israel Crosby, Sid Wess, Artie Shapiro, Harry Goodman, Bob Haggart (b); Specs Powell, Gene Krupa, George Wettling, Ray Bauduc, Mario Toscarelli, Buddy Schutz (d); Lee Wiley (v). 11/35–6/45.
One of the great piano masters of the '30s gets his due at last with these two very strong compilations of his early work. There is a duplication of three of the early solo pieces, but the chronological Classics compilation concentrates on Commodore and Varsity material from 1938–9, while the ASV disc covers sideman work with Benny Goodman, Bob Crosby, Lionel Hampton, Bud Freeman and Pee Wee Russell for an exceptionally well-rounded portrait of a man who appeared in many interesting situations. His unassuming virtuosity went with a deceptively romantic streak – 'the intensity of Hines with the logic of Bix', as Vic Bellerby puts it – and his impeccable touch and undercurrent of blues feeling, even if tempered by a rather civilized irony, give him a rare position among the piano-players of the era. The Classics set includes two splendid blues-based fantasies in 'Ramblin'' and 'Complainin'', the excellent solo session from 1939 and two engaging band dates, while the ASV offers several rarities, including an aircheck version of Beiderbecke's 'In A Mist', three 1944 duets with Specs Powell and the beautiful 'Down To Steamboat Tennessee' with Muggsy Spanier and Lee Wiley.

 Stacy Still Swings Chiaroscuro CR(D) 133 Stacy (p solo). 7/74–7/77.
The veteran quit professional music in the '50s but came back to festivals and studios very occasionally. This congenial, easy-going set of solos was among the last he made: nothing much has changed over the years except the tempos, and even then he was never exactly a tornado at the keyboard. His own tunes, such as 'Lookout Mountain Squirrels', are charming but robust; his standards are an old-fashioned choice.

Terell Stafford (born 1966)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

American trumpeter with his own take on the post-bop vernacular.

 Time To Let Go Candid CACD 79702 Stafford; Tim Warfield (ts); Steve Wilson (as, ss); Edward Simon (p); Steve Nelson (vib); Michael Bowie (b); Victor Lewis (d); Victor See-Yuen (perc). 95.
* Centripetal Force Candid CACD 79718 Stafford; John Clark (frhn); Ron Blake, Tim Warfield (ts); Russell Malone (g); Stefon Harris (vib); Stephen Scott (p); Ed Howard (b); Victor Lewis (d); Daniel Moreno (perc). 10/96.
Stafford was a regular member of Bobby Watson's group Horizon, which also numbered Simon and Lewis, and he came to the debut project with a sensibility very much marked by Watson's small-group/big-sound idea. The opening 'Time To Let Go' is an emphatic statement of intent, and the other two originals, 'Qui Qui' and 'Why?', are in the same bag. Stafford isn't just another latter-day run-of-the-mill bopper. Though he draws on a range of influences running from Fats Navarro and Clifford Brown to mid-period Miles and Lee Morgan, he already has a distinctive inflexion and on Stephen Scott's lovely 'Was It Meant To Be' he carves out a very personal phraseology which points onward to the follow-up disc.

Centripetal Force is exactly what's at work here, a group which is working very closely and sympathetically. Again Tim Warfield brings his clean, youthful sound, but on just one track this time. A version of 'Daahoud' is a special dedication, but it also points up the Brown influence again. Though the whole band is never heard together, the richer palette suits the trumpeter admirably and he produces some magnificent statements on 'I'll Wait' and 'Skylark', a back-to-back pair that are as sheerly refreshing as anything from the last few years. Thad Jones's 'A Child Is Born' is for trumpet and guitar, and 'My Romance' is an elegant trumpet solo.

 Fields Of Gold Nagel Heyer 2005 Stafford; Antonio Hart (as); Bill Cunliffe (p, org); Kiyoshi Kitagawa (b); Rodney Green (d). 00.
Stafford goes funky on 'Ms Shirley Scott', though it's Cunliffe's organ which pays the most explicit tribute; it goes cool and almost modal on 'I Believe In You' and brings a completely original sound and presence to the traditional 'If I Perish', which has a chilling beauty and delicacy of touch. Of the originals, Hart's 'Flashdance' and the leader's 'Dear Rudy' are the most plausible, though Terell isn't yet an entirely fledged composer. A nod, though, to Kitagawa, whose credit for 'Sagittarius' is perhaps more generous than strictly good programming; as an accompanist, however, the bass-player is very impressive – strong-voiced, disciplined and firmly across the beat.

(*) New Beginnings Max Jazz 402 Stafford; Jesse Davis, Dick Oatts (as); Steve Wilson (ss, as); Harry Allen (ts); Mulgrew Miller (p); Derrick Hodge (b); Dana Hall (d). 6/03.
It's not clear how this represents new beginnings. As a consolidation of Stafford's work, though, it's hard to fault. He sounds assured, relaxed and on top of his material. The saxophones bed his sound nicely in the ensembles, and the trade-off of solo ideas is thoughtful and exciting by turns. There aren't too many players of his generation who'd start an album with a Fletcher Henderson composition. 'Soft Winds' is a lovely thing, but it conceals some surprises in Stafford's opening statement. He throws down the gauntlet to Jesse Davis (ever more polished) and the genial Harry Allen before taking the theme up and out. The only disappointment on the record is the three-part 'New Beginnings Suite', which begins with a dreary funk theme called 'Selah' and doesn't really recover. The spiritual 'He Knows How Much You Can Bear' (usually 'We Can Bear' and associated with Mahalia Jackson, Solomon Burke and others) is handled with delicate stoicism and there's another Stephen Scott arrangement on 'Kumbaya'. This is a very polished and elegant record.

 Taking Chances: Live At The Dakota Max Jazz 405 Stafford; Tim Warfield (ts); Bruce Barth (p); Derrick Hodge (b); Dana Hall (d). 1/05.
A working band and a regular night on the stand. This is an agreeable hard-bop date, but scarcely an epochal record, and one wonders whether it's simply a holding operation, intended to keep his fans on-side while Stafford works out what he really meant by new beginnings. He digs into his solos with journeyman application, but it's Barth who does a lot of the interesting stuff and one wants to hear more from the trio. 'Jesus Loves Me' and 'Blues For JT', both overlong, sound a lot like space-filling to us.

Mattias Ståhl

VIBRAPHONE

Young Swedish vibesman leading a new quartet.

(*) Ståhls Blå Dragon DRCD 361 Ståhl; Joakim Milder (ss, ts); Filip Auguston (b); Thomas Strønen (d). 6/01.
Anyone looking at the instrumentation and expecting a nice, easy-going chamber session will be knocked down straight away by the explosive 'Blues För Mor', which opens the disc like an unruly typhoon. They're an interesting brew of personalities: the patient, occasionally blustering Milder, the unpredictable Ståhl, and a rhythm section that can play flat out as easily as it does simple, limber swinging. The key man here may be Strønen, yet another in a new breed of Scandinavian drummers (see also Per Oddvar Johansen and Jarle Vespestad) who can play hard and fast and light and easy, at any dynamic, without any apparent effort.

Marvin Stamm (born 1939)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Studied in Texas and saw service in Stan Kenton's infamous Mellophonium Orchestra. These days a battle-hardened big-band man.

 Live At Birdland NYC Jazzed Media 1006 Stamm; Bill Mays (p); John Abercrombie (g); Rufus Reid (b); Ed Soph (d). 9/03.
 Alone Together Jazzed Media 9002 CD/DVD As above, except omit Abercrombie. 11/06.
The first of these is a co-led 'project' (why? it's just a band) with Soph. The drummer kicks off Marvin's lovely and unexpected 'Samba Du Nancy' with an intriguing solo, and much of the other material is unusual and original, too, with tunes by Mays and Reid occupying much of the space. The bassist's closing 'The Meddler' is a bit of a showstopper. Abercrombie's in for four numbers. Must have been a good couple of nights.

The second one is simply credited to Stamm's quartet, which makes us wonder irritably about that title again. Our mood's not helped by the title (a moratorium, please on 'Alone Together'!) or by the thought of having to watch these guys as well as listen.

As a hard-bop disc, it's fine, but couldn't they have named it after 'Invitation', which is a far superior performance. Good stuff, again, from Reid and Mays, the former an undervalued composer.

Tomasz Stańko (born 1942)

TRUMPET

One of the central figures and influences in Polish jazz, leading his own groups since 1962 and effecting his own blend of inside and out, mainstream and avant-garde.

 Music For K Power Bros 00131 Stańko; Zbigniew Seifert (as); Janusz Muniak (ts); Bronislaw Suchanek (b); Janusz Stefanski (d). 1/70.

(*) Balladyna ECM 1071 Stańko; Tomasz Szukalski (ts, ss); Dave Holland (b); Edward Vesala (d). 12/75.

Stańko's imagination is fired as much by words and by visual images as by music. He is certainly not confined to jazz formulae, and at first hearing his music might seem to have more kinship with the abstract experimentalism of the Polish avant-garde than with orthodox or even free jazz. This is deceptive, for the trumpeter is deeply versed in the defining elements of jazz. His first big influence was Chet Baker, he says, though subsequently Miles Davis would become almost as important.

Totally free playing has never played a large part on the Polish scene and even when the setting is abstract there is still an underlying jazz 'feel', expressible both as a pulse and as dimly familiar harmonies and structures. Though some important records for Edward Vesala's Leo Records in Finland have not appeared on CD, the even earlier Music For K is still around, a forceful, sometimes inchoate session, with as much emphasis on Seifert's raw, emotive alto as there is on Stańko's own rather fragile sound. The rhythm section is not really up to the task, though Stefanski is an accurate and unfussy percussionist, always absolutely on the beat. 'Cry' is the closest thing to American jazz of the time, but it is 'Music For K', dedicated to the late Krzysztof Komeda (see Litania) which really establishes Stańko's credentials as composer and auteur. He dominates this piece entirely, even when not in the foreground, and it points forward to the quieter, slower conception that he shares with the Finnish percussionist, who joins him on the 1975 disc.

Stańko had jammed with Vesala some time previously and shyly revealed himself as a composer. It was to be some time, though, before his quality as both writer and performer became more widely known. Balladyna was his breakthrough album, a very personal statement given a high production gloss by ECM. Szukalski is a workmanlike player with, one suspects, a somewhat limited range. Stańko was fortunate in his other colleagues, however. Vesala is cautious in his approach to free music, but Holland seems to move between freedom and structure without a blink. The collectively written 'Tale' is rather weak, but Vesala's 'Num', three more Stańko compositions and an improvised duet with Holland give the record a solid impact and set the scene for the masterful ECM sessions of the '90s.

(*) Bluish Power Bros 00113 Stańko; Arild Andersen (b); Jon Christensen (d). 10/91.

There is a gap in the story which accounts for most of the '80s. When this superb record appeared, Stańko was still largely unavailable, with Balladyna not yet on CD and little available on widely distributed labels. The Rybnik-based Power Bros did manage to broker some distribution outside Poland, and Bluish awakened many listeners to the buried treasure that awaited them in Stańko. Working with northern Europe's premier rhythm section, he sounds more effusive than ever before, though with the same melancholy edge that made him such a haunting successor to both Chet and Miles.

The opening 'Dialogue' with Andersen recalls the duo with Holland on the earlier record. Stańko is not playing entirely free but is certainly not working within a fixed metre and his long, meditative lines are very compelling. The title-piece begins in a more straightforward idiom, before breaking down into a superb solo from Christensen which is marked by hesitations and silences.

Part two of 'If You Look Enough' is an eerie, out-of-tempo meditation, punctuated by brass smears and growls. The first part has the same chordal structure with a nagging insect-like chitter from Christensen. The drummer creates remarkable effects with damped cymbals on the long 'Bosanetta', a tune that recalls one of Vesala's tango pastiches, as does the succeeding 'Third Heavy Ballad', on which Stańko plays with a quiet lyricism that is reminiscent of Kenny Wheeler.

* Bossanossa And Other Ballads GOWI CDG 08 Stańko; Bobo Stenson (p); Anders Jormin (b); Tony Oxley (d). 3 & 4/93.

This group was the highlight of the 1993 Jazz Jamboree in Warsaw, playing the material recorded on this record. Most of the material had been around for some time. 'Sunia' had been a staple of sets with Freelectronic, Stańko's free/fusion group. This is the definitive version, with wonderful interplay between Stańko's frail lead line and Oxley's metallic patterns. The Englishman resembles Vesala in his ability to register strong pulse in an otherwise free setting, but he is a lighter, more abstract player and ideal for this material, which is both unremittingly sombre and more playful.

Stenson was to become a key element in Stańko's musical thinking. Here he brings an uneasy cast to 'Maldoror's Love Song' and 'Die Weisheit Von Isidor Ducasse', two pieces which reflect Stańko's fascination with the proto-surrealist and arch-decadent Lautréamont. The trumpeter uses a big, unfettered tone and long sinuous lines that anticipate and overlap the pianist's statements by several bars, creating a shifting surface across which the group lays out its sound.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * Leosia

ECM 531693-2 Stańko; Bobo Stenson (p); Anders Jormin (b); Tony Oxley (d). 1/96.

Leosia is one of the finest jazz records of recent times, a work of immense creative concentration made by a band at the peak of its powers. Stańko has probably played better, but never with such instinctive support from his colleagues. As was the norm with ECM sessions at this time, considerable emphasis is put on the component members of the ensemble and on subdivisions of the basic group. Oxley, Jormin and Stenson are the begetters of 'Trinity' and bassist and drummer collaborate on the similarly constructed 'Brace'. 'No Bass Trio' is self-explanatory, and very fine, but the real action comes around these tracks, on the numbers drawn from Bossanossa and on the long title-piece which ends the album on a creative high, a long, perfectly weighted theme that seems to have no beginning or end.

* Litania ECM 537551-2 Stańko; Bernt Rosengren (ts); Joakim Milder (ts, ss); Bobo Stenson (p); Terje Rypdal (g); Palle Danielsson (b); Jon Christensen (d). 96.

Stańko had been a key member of Krzysztof Komeda's group in the '60s, and given an increasing awareness of the pianist's eminence as a composer, some kind of tribute record had long seemed on the cards. For Litania, he summoned up a remarkable septet, co-fronted by the veteran Rosengren (one of the giants of European jazz) and the younger Milder, who is perhaps the weak link on the session.

They kick off with Komeda's 'Svantetic', one of his most lateral ideas and one of his best. There are three versions of 'Sleep Safe And Warm' from the soundtrack to Rosemary's Baby (only two of them involving Rypdal) and a striking performance of 'Ballada' from Knife in the Water, another Roman Polanski film for which Komeda wrote music. No room for 'Crazy Girl' or 'Astigmatic', which may be held in reserve for a follow-up session. What we have, though, is the clearest evidence both of Komeda's skill as a composer and of Stańko's ability to convey both the atmospherics of this neglected music and its ironclad structure. He is playing with absolute conviction and immense authority, and with a tone that conveys technical mastery coupled with total self-confidence.

Milder earns his place as a second-string soloist. Stenson and Christensen make one another play harder and with a more abrupt attack. Little of the pianist's tendency to drift off the pace, and certainly a very emphatic performance from Christensen. As a now-legendary London performance amply proved, the absence of Rypdal would make little difference. He is included as a colourist, and while he makes some lovely shapes on 'The Witch' and 'Sleep Safe And Warm', he is by no means integral to the music. Stańko's finest hour came with Leosia, but this is still an important, even historic record.

* From The Green Hill ECM 547336-2 Stańko; John Surman (bs, bcl); Dino Saluzzi (bandoneon); Michelle Makarski (vn); Anders Jormin (b); Jon Christensen (d). 8/98.

Leosia was Stańko's apotheosis as composer and bandleader. Litania was a full-hearted tribute to his great mentor and friend. From The Green Hill is quite simply the most beautiful record he has ever made, a fragile, almost folkish disc, which is also a wonderful group performance. Reprising Komeda's 'Litania' as a bandoneon solo, with Saluzzi playing organ chords, was a stroke of genius, emphasizing the suite-like nature of the record and its continuity with Stańko's recent work.

The association with Surman is particularly happy. The saxophonist opens and signals the end of the album with his own theme 'Domino', which takes him back to a signature hybrid of folk and church music. He also leads into Stańko's 'Quintet Time' with a bass clarinet figure which recalls the old days with the Trio, before the track opens out into a restless free form that allows Christensen to express a quiet fury. The trumpeter plays some mournful high notes and smears reminiscent of the classic cornet-players, though the dynamic of the piece is his usual brooding synthesis of Miles and Chet. 'Pantronic' sees Stańko donning Komeda's compositional mantle, while the title-piece might almost be a nod of appreciation in Surman's direction, so similar is it to some of the saxophonist's own themes.

Makarski is used rather sparingly, which is a pity, but probably wise. Her role in the group is episodic rather than structural and, if anything, she gains from being slightly marginalized. Jormin has emerged as a considerable player and composer, but he has a quieter time as well, some of his strengths cancelled out by the presence of Saluzzi.

(*) Soul Of Things / * Suspended Night / * Lontano ECM 016374-2 / 000229202 / 987 7380 Stańko; Marcin Wasilewski (p); Slawomir Kurkiewicz (b); Michal Miskiewicz (d). 8/01; 7/03; 11/05.

The first is almost a Stańko 'genre' record, 13 variations on an original theme, with the trumpeter exploring each melodic delicacy as it emerges from the design, sometimes with an almost studied vulnerability, sometimes momentarily fierce. His Polish team play it straight and supportive, though the leader allows space for their own musings too.

The second follows the same pattern, with the opening 'Song For Sarah' followed by a series of 'Suspended Variations'. At first glance, this might seem like an attempt to work new angles on a single theme, but it does seem that each 'variation' is based on a new idea or area of concentration devised by Stańko and the trio. The mood is more upbeat and expressive than last time and there's more warmth in the sound.

The most recent of the three is different, largely by virtue of having been recorded at the end of a long Far East tour on which the group seems to have explored a more open approach. Stańko revisits Komeda's 'Kattorna' to great effect, but the long title-track, organized in three sections, is the main event. Apparently improvised by the group, it shows off their mutual understanding to great effect. For a long time, Stańko was saddled with the reputation of being the Miles Davis of the Vistula. That's still true here, and useful as a reminder that Miles's frail lyricism had its own 'predatory' character; it's this aspect that Stanko replicates most effectively. A fine album, harder-edged than we've come to expect from the trumpeter in recent years.

Also, in brief:

 Matka Joanna ECM 531693-2. 5/94.

Not hugely compelling music, written for a 1960 film by Jerzy Kawalerowicz. Stańko uses this found text as a basis to create 'images' for the Leosia group.

* :rarum: Selected Recordings ECM 000180202

Highlights include 'Balladyna', Komeda's 'Litania' and the collaboration with Edward Vesala, 'Together'.

Johnny St Cyr (1890–1966)

GUITAR, BANJO

Born in New Orleans, he recorded with Armstrong and Morton, but then mixed music with work as a plasterer. Latterly played with revivalist groups on the West Coast.

 Johnny St Cyr American Music AMCD-78 St Cyr; Thomas Jefferson (t, v); Percy Humphrey (t); Jim Robinson, Joe Avery (tb); George Lewis (cl); Jeanette Kimball (p, v); Leo Thompson (p); Ernest McLean (g); Richard McLean, Fran Fields (b); Paul Barbarin, Sidney Montague (d); Jack Delany, Sister Elizabeth Eustis (v). 7/54–5/55.

The doyen of New Orleans rhythm guitarists was seldom noted as a group leader, but American Music have pieced together a CD's worth of material. The first two tracks are rather dowdy treatments of 'Someday You'll Be Sorry' by a band with Percy Humphrey, Lewis and Robinson; but more interesting are the five previously unheard pieces by a quintet in which protégé Ernest McLean is featured rather more generously than Johnny himself, both men playing electric. The rest of the disc is jovial New Orleans music, fronted by the hearty Jefferson and the imperturbable Percy Humphrey. St Cyr, as always, is no more inclined to take any limelight than Freddie Green ever was, so it's nice to have a disc under his name.

Colin Steele

TRUMPET

Scottish trumpeter mixing post-bop with native strains.

(*) Twilight Dreams Caber 024 Steele; Julian Argüelles (ts, as); Dave Milligan (p); Brian Shiels (b); John Rae (d). 9/00.

* The Journey Home Caber 029 As above, except omit Shiels; add Aidan O'Donnell (b). 12/02.

The first record is full of stylish themes and crisply committed playing, just occasionally settling into a merely capable routine but taking much from the strong front line of Steele and Argüelles, the latter turning in some of his most constructive and melodious work on record. It's trumped, though, by the superb The Journey Home. Steele notes that after years searching for a voice in 'the American jazz idiom', he's simply looked back to personal roots and measured his steps in local country. In the epic-length title-track he brings it all back home with a vengeance. The 'Lament For Miles' sounds more like something with a whiff of Islay air about it, and when Argüelles – outstanding again throughout – has the audacity to throw in an uillean skirl or two along the way, the lament has travelled a long way from Alton, Illinois. Topping it off is Milligan, who finds orchestral comps and solos of delicious poise and inventiveness, and Rae, the Scottish Art Taylor.

(*) Through The Waves ACT 9436-2 Steele; Michael Buckley (ss, ts); Dave Milligan (p); Aidan O'Donnell (b); Stu Ritchie (d); Tom Bancroft, David Robertson (perc). 10/04.

It would be interesting to gauge the reaction of the international audience likely to be hearing Steele for the first time, with this debut on the leading German independent. Good as the record is, something seems less vivid about the music, as if the almost triumphant spirit of The Journey Home had been tamed a little by Steele's new surroundings. Buckley replaces Argüelles, a tough call in itself, and the leader's writing sounds and feel more personal than ever. Maybe the next one will marry that stamp to a more outgoing performance.

Joan Steele

VOICE

An interesting stylist, making a small showing on CD.

 'Round Midnight Audiophile 94 Steele; Leroy Vinnegar (b); Don Alberino (d). 72–75.

Hard to know quite what to make of her. The voice doesn't sound bluesy, but she seems to have an instinct for a blues line, as well as more-familiar late-night material. For the most part, it's Porter, Gershwin and, less common in such settings, Stephen Sondheim: our favourite 'Send In The Clowns' after Glynis Johns. Spare accompaniment: worth a try.

Hugh Steinmetz (born 1943)

TRUMPET

A pioneer on the Danish free scene in the '60s, he played in The Contemporary Jazz Quartet but later played in more conventional studio and big-band dates, though he still leads an 'experimental' large band.

 NU! Steeplechase SCCD 36027 Steinmetz; Karsten Vogel (as); Niels Harrit (ts, f); Per Aage Brandt (p); Steffen Andersen (b); Bo Thrige Andersen (d). 3–4/66.

This couples the original Debut album NU! with six essentially rehearsal tracks which have never been previously issued, so there are basically two versions of the same set of music here. While this scarcely counts as a forgotten classic, it's a thoroughly worthwhile rediscovery which fills in a little history. Certainly any admirer of, say, the New York Contemporary Five or early Amalgam will find plenty to take in here. Steinmetz agrees that he was working under a strong Don Cherry influence, 'but it was within my own style', and some of the keening melancholy which came to typify Scandinavian timbres during the '70s comes through in the likes of 'NGO' and the very Colemanesque 'One For Carl'. Harrit, these days a chemist and teacher, is a strong contributor and there's some thoughtful work from Brandt, now a distinguished professor of linguistics, who had one of the most difficult roles in the group but makes a good fist of what he needed to do. Steinmetz himself is more obviously lyrical. One of the more challenging records to appear on Steeplechase.

Bobo Stenson (born 1944)

PIANO

Born in Våsterås, Sweden, Stenson has been a major figure on the Stockholm post-bop scene since 1966. Work with Jan Garbarek and Charles Lloyd was the prelude to his own considerable ECM albums.

 Very Early Dragon DRCD 304 Stenson; Anders Jormin (b); Rune Carlsson (d). 86.

For a time at least, Stenson was the de facto house pianist at ECM, adding his effortlessly eclectic touch to the groups of Charles Lloyd, Tomasz Stańko and others. If this isn't quite the mainstream, it's certainly closer to it than seemed likely at one time. As co-founder of Rena Rama in 1971, he seemed embarked on an effort to hybridize jazz with Balkan and Indian folk music, a somewhat quixotic enterprise which coloured his work for many years. Stenson's career began with Börje Fredriksson, and after a brief apprenticeship under the Swedish tenor saxophonist he branched out with high-profile gigs for Stan Getz (in Africa, of all places) and Red Mitchell. Increasingly in the last ten years he has been associated with ECM's efforts to reshape and redefine modal jazz.

Very Early is a rare chance to hear him away from ECM and it is a wonderful record. The repertoire ranges from original themes, notably 'Coming On A Bike', to repertory compositions by John Coltrane (a fine modal 'Satellite'), a favourite Ornette Coleman ('Ramblin'') and Bill Evans's title-track, which is as fine a piece of piano trio jazz as you'll hear in many a long year. Stenson substantially reworks the theme and develops harmonic ideas beyond any Evans explored. His own writing shows little of the interest in Asian musics that had influenced his early career.

* Reflections ECM 523160-2 Stenson; Anders Jormin (b); Jon Christensen (d). 5/93.

A much earlier ECM date, Underwear, remains out of print, which is a pity. Reflections is as fine a performance as one would have expected, given the more than telepathic understanding between these players. Stenson and Jormin are temperamentally so close as to function almost like a single creative organism, an effect perhaps most noticeable on the bassist's two compositions, 'NOT' and 'Q', enigmatic titles which reflect his rather oblique musical personality. The title actually refers to Duke Ellington's 'Reflections In D'. The only other non-original is 'My Man's Gone Now', played as if through the prism of Miles and Gil Evans.

Stenson's two main compositions are 'The Enlightener', a shape-shifting meditation erected on a tricky mode which oddly (and not just the title) recalls recent work by Geri Allen, and '12 Tones Old', a clever reworking of age-old harmonic ideas. The final and longest piece, 'Mindiatyr', is the closest to how this group might sound in a club context. It's to be hoped that it might be possible to hear such a recording in the not too distant future.

* War Ophans ECM 539723-2 Stenson; Anders Jormin (b); Jon Christensen (d). 5/97.
The trio blossoms. Stenson's approach to two more Ornette themes, including the title-track, shows how thoughtfully he approached (for a pianist) challenging repertoire like this. He frequently changes the key and tonal character of a piece completely and in that Jormin is an able collaborator, developing the melody and adding his own counter-themes. Christensen is faultless throughout, one of the most thoroughly musical percussionists of his generation. The opening 'Oleo De Mujer Con Sombrero' by Silvio Rodriguez is a surprise and a delight.

[illegible]

* Serenity
ECM 543611 2CD Stenson; Anders Jormin (b); Jon Christensen (d). 4/99.
This is a towering achievement. The integration of free jazz, serialism and atonality, elements of bebop and a folkish lyricism yield a double-set of great power and almost inexhaustible invention. The pianist and his two associates both contribute originals, and there is a wonderful version of Wayne Shorter's 'Swee' Pea', but it is the reworking of themes by Charles Ives, Alban Berg and Hanns Eisler that impress most thoroughly.

In Berg's 'Die Nachtigall', Stenson takes the basic row and transforms it into a softly lyrical jazz theme that sounds like nothing else in the canon. He does something similar with Eisler's 'Die Pflaumenbaum', though here the music already seems more susceptible to such treatment. It is interesting how French some of the leader's keyboard strategies are; the sources notwithstanding, his harmony seems to draw on Debussy and Ravel more than anyone and his melodic touch owes little to the Austro-German school.

Jormin and Christensen, both of whom are represented early on by strong compositions – 'T.' and 'North Print', and 'East Print', respectively – add their idiosyncratic touches to a sequence of pieces that demands patient and attentive listening.

 Bobo Stenson/Lennart Åberg Amigo 892 Stenson; Lennart Åberg (ss, ts). 4/03.
A pleasant enough set of duets, but with too little drama to sustain attention for long. Åberg is an elegant stylist and one can see how the relationship might have been forged. The mood is thoughtful, sometimes a touch introverted, and here and there almost melancholy. They open, conventionally enough, with 'Nature Boy', but it's the cover of Monk's 'Trinkle Tinkle' and a rare interpretation of Lars Gullin's ballad 'Gabriella' that make the record potentially collectable.

* Goodbye ECM 1904 Stenson; Anders Jormin (b); Paul Motian (d). 4/04.
Both Jormin and Motian contribute tunes to this, but the interesting extras include a piece by the Argentinian Ariel Ramírez, 'Alfonsina', Sondheim's 'Send In The Clowns', Tony Williams's 'There Comes a Time', Henry Purcell's 'Music For A While' and Ornette's breezy 'Race Face'. Motian changes the dynamic of the group somewhat but the quality is well up on that of its predecessor.

Also, in brief:

 Miles By Five Touche Music 026. 06.
A fascinating group date co-led with Palle Danielsson (b), but with Joakim Milder (ts) in particularly good form.

 :rarum: Selected Recordings ECM 014214-2. 71–99.
A good survey of Stenson's work for the label, including dates with other leaders – Garbarek, Lloyd and Stańko – but also touching on some of his own finest performances.

Chip Stephens (born 1964)

PIANO

Born and still based in Ohio, he studied with Pat Pace and has served time with Maynard Ferguson and with the Glenn Miller and Woody Herman orchestras.

 Bootcamp Azica AJD 72202 Stephens; Bob Fraser (g); Jeff Halsey (b); Mark Gondor (d). 96.
 Fields Of My Youth Azica AJD 72209 As above, except add Arturo Sandoval (t, flhn, timbales). 5/97.
The cover of Bootcamp shows a close-up of battered piano keys, greyed with grime and with the ivory stripped off. That gives quite a nice sense of Stephens's raw style. It's not without intelligence, though, and often evokes influences as far afield as Bill Evans and Paul Bley. Indeed, everything he has recorded gives off the same restless, probing quality; his label interestingly characterizes him as 'anxious', and there's an edgy overtone to most of the solos. He is capable of lyrical turns, too, as on 'Song For The Chocolate Grandson' and the beautiful 'Lover's Raindanse'. Cleveland-based Fraser's an important element on the first disc, especially on the opening 'Polish Boy & Dirty Rice'.

The title-track of the second record is a further instance of how much harmonic complexity Stephens can build into a fairly basic line. There are lots of unexpected stepwise progressions, often topped and tailed by detailed trills and arpeggiations. Halsey is particularly good this time out, on a programme that mixes originals and bebop themes ('Ah-Leu-Cha', 'Manteca'), but the addition on some tracks of Sandoval, with whom Stephens recorded on Hot House, while undoubtedly a joy to the players, doesn't make the record any more special.

(*) Holding On To What Counts Capri 74082 Stephens; Ken Walker (b); Todd Reid (d). 2/06.
The baby's hand on the cover and the lapse of a few years may point to a maturer artist, and so it turns out. With a new core group behind him, Stephens turns in his most thoughtful performance yet, perhaps best represented on a lovely read of McCoy Tyner's 'Passion Dance' and by the superb closing medley of 'Up A Lazy River', 'Sweet Georgia Brown' and Miles's 'Dig'. Hard to fault any of the rest, though 'Epistrophy' is curiously pitched and paced. Walker and Reid never merely go through the motions but are almost unobtrusive and a couple of tracks might just as readily have been played solo. Excellent all round, though.

Mike Stern (born 1954)

GUITAR

Came to Miles Davis's comeback band via Blood, Sweat & Tears and Billy Cobham. Often loud and unsubtle and beset with personal problems, but a durable player.

(*) Give And Take Wounded Bird 3036 Stern; David Sanborn (as); Michael Brecker (ts); Gil Goldstein (p); John Patitucci (b); Jack DeJohnette (d); Don Alias (perc). 97.
Curiously unremarked, but one of Stern's most straight-ahead sets, now rescued from Atlantean oblivion by Wounded Bird. It might be thought he overreached himself playing a set that begins with Cole Porter's 'I Love' You and ends with 'Giant Steps', Hendrix's 'Who Knows?' and 'Oleo', but Mike acquits himself creditably, even if he is upstaged by Sanborn's and Brecker's appearances. The trio tracks are pretty good and the disc as a whole deserves a better shake than it usually gets.

(*) Play Atlantic 7567-83219-2 Stern; Bob Malach (ts); John Scofield, Bill Frisell (g); Jim Beard (ky); Lincoln Goines (b); Ben Perowsky, Dennis Chambers (d). 12/98–1/99.
Perhaps Stern has still not quite shaken off his association with Miles Davis, where he created a mixed impression as something of a metalhead guitarist in the early '80s. But his own discography is considerable by now, even though his Atlantic catalogue has been drastically downsized of late. Of the Jim Beard productions for Atlantic Play was both tougher and more colourful than many of its predecessors, and a candidate for Stern's very best at the label. Beard's shrewd keyboard touches set aside any wispiness in Stern's writing besides getting a real presence out of all the players on each track. The first three have the leader swapping punches with Scofield, and four of the next seven have Frisell as conversationalist. Stern has continued to hone his knack for coming up with fetching, hooky tunes, and pieces such as 'All Heart' can double as smart mood-music as well as players' vehicles. Malach gets off some burning solos on 'Tipatina's' and 'Link', which in the context seem like an unlooked-for bonus.

 These Times ESC 4911 Stern; Kenny Garrett (ss, as); Bob Franchesini, Bob Malach (ts); Jim Beard (p, ky); Jon Herington (g); Béla Fleck (bj); Will Lee, Victor Wooten (b); Richard Bona (b, perc, v); Dennis Chambers, Vinnie Colaiuta (d); Don Alias, Arto Tunçboyaciyan (perc); Elisabeth Kontomanou (v). 1–5/03.
Despite all the obvious trappings of commercial pop-jazz, this is really rather a good record, though the gift of Kenny Garrett is thrown away on just three numbers. Stern seems to have found a point of equilibrium that allows him to experiment a little again, and Bona helps develop some unusual pan-cultural ideas. It's still all a bit smooth and shaven, but there's some music to be enjoyed, and the combination of Stern and Fleck on 'I Know You' is genuinely touching.

 Who Let The Cats Out Heads Up 3115 Stern; Roy Hargrove (t); Bob Franceschini, Bob Malach (ts); Grégoire Maret (hca); Jim Beard (ky); Anthony Jackson, Me'Shell Ndegeocello, Victor Wooten (b); Kim Thompson, Dave Weckl (d); Richard Bona (b, v). 5/06.
Poor Mike's fated to be upstaged by his 'sidemen'. Here, the date's pretty much a showcase for Bona, whose singing is very much an acquired taste. Elsewhere, it's the usual revolving door of rhythm men and guest horns. There are some nice touches from Malach and Maret and Ndegeocello always adds a touch of excitement, but it's a mystery to us: why doesn't he go back to the formula of Give And Take, hubristic as it notionally was, and deliver a decent jazz record rather than a polystylistic confection?

Also, in brief:

 Between The Lines Atlantic 82835-2. 95.
Diminishing returns; it scores big on texture and 'Wing And A Prayer' is pretty, but the parts don't add up.

 Voices Atlantic 7567 83483-2. N.D.
A Jim Beard record in all but name; expert pop-jazz.

John Stetch (born 1968)

PIANO

A Canadian of Ukrainian descent.

 Carpathian Blues Terra Nova TNC 9007 Stetch; Seamus Blake (ss, ts); Jesse Murphy, Ugonna Ukegwo (b); Jorge Rossy, Gene Jackson (d). 11/93, 1/94.
Stetch's idiom is advanced hard bop, with compositional ideas that seem to come from early Chick Corea, but with touches of Monk here and there as well. 'Phun Toon' looks at first glance as if it might be an exotic 'oriental' idea, but is exactly what it claims to be, an extended performance that bespeaks sheer exuberance at the keyboard. Blake adds some nicely sour touches and the two rhythm sections offer their own spins on strong ideas.

* Green Grove Justin Time JUST 8473 Stetch; Kieran Overs (b); Ted Warren (d). 10 & 11/98.
* Heavens Of A Hundred Days Justin Time JUST 145 Stetch; Bill McHenry (ts); Ben Street (b); Jeff Ballard (d). 2/00.
* Ukrainianism Justin Time JUST 187 Stetch (p solo). 12/01.
After winning a couple of prestigious awards in Canada, Stetch began recording for Justin Time and has maintained a steady flow of records since. The title-track of the trio is another exuberant idea, but it's the two standards, 'What Is This Thing Called Love?' and 'Body And Soul', that give the set substance. The title-piece of the quartet disc deserves some kind of compositional award, so good that Stetch plays it again solo at the end of the record. There's also a titanic 'Love For Sale'. McHenry has seen service with Joe Smith and others but here he's slightly anonymous, apparently looking for something outside the basic count and key that the rest of the group doesn't want to pursue.

The solo record continues the purple streak and somehow rounds off a period of development. As the title perhaps suggests, Stetch works in a couple of traditional airs from his homeland, 'Rye, Not Wheat' and 'Sitting By The Window', which he does in a manner reminiscent of Milcho Leviev (who is, admittedly, from a different corner of the world), but he saves the killer punch for the closing 'Children Of Chornobyl' [sic].

* Exponentially Monk Justin Time JUST 206 Stetch (p solo). 10/03.
The danger of any Monk homage is pastiche, and Stetch entirely avoids that on this remarkable programme. He almost satirizes some of the tunes, but more importantly adds his own signature folksy wit and a few modernist devices like plucking and sweeping the strings directly. It isn't in any way a revisionist interrogation of the Monk canon, but it does use those familiar themes in arresting and highly creative ways.

* Bruxin' Justin Time JUST 8525 Stetch; Sean Smith (b); Rodney Green (d). 10/05.
'Bruxin" is grinding your teeth. No danger of that here, not in dismay or discomfort, at least. Stetch and trio deliver an elegant set of mostly inventive originals, including a stunningly beautiful ballad for the leader's wife called 'The Girl In The Hemp Skirt', the complex, shifting 'Green Grove' (already familiar), the delightful 'Heavens Of A Hundred Days' (move over, Keith Jarrett) and, just so we know he can still swing a basic common-time line, the closing 'Rectangle Man'. Welcome, after some shuffling of the feet, to a major jazz talent.

Also, in brief:

 Rectangle Man /  Stetching Out Terra Nova TNC 9004 / 9013. 92; 11/95, 2/96.
The pianist's other TN releases are equally good, with considerable wit in amongst the clever writing.

(*) Standards Justin Time 190. 12/01.
Some brave interpretations for a solo disc, including two Parker themes.

John Stevens (1940–94)

DRUMS, PERCUSSION, BUGLE

Worked in RAF bands, 1958–64, and then in London's modern scene, becoming interested in completely free playing and co-founding Spontaneous Music Ensemble. Led other bands – Splinters, Dance Orchestra, Away, Freebop, Folkus – in the '70s and '80s and was tireless in his encouragement of young players. A difficult and tempestuous man but one of the most significant figures of his age.

 Application, Interaction And ... / () No Fear / () Mining The Seam: The Rest Of The Spotlite Sessons Hi 4 Head HF002 / HF001 / HF006 Stevens; Trevor Watts (as); Barry Guy (b). 72; 5/77; 5/77.
Stevens was one of the key British jazz musicians of his era, a protean figure who seemed at ease in a bewildering range of musics, from hard-edged free improvisation, through semi-rock and traditional jazz, and even latterly encompassing classical composition. He was also a gifted educator who has left his mark on a whole generation of young British players. He came from an art school background, and several CD covers bear witness to his skill as a graphic artist. Initially inspired by Phil Seamen, his most obvious stylistic debts are to Kenny Clarke's proto-bop and to Elvin Jones. His Spontaneous Music Ensemble/Orchestra (see separate entry) was one of the most influential improvising groups of its period, while other Stevens groups such as Splinters, the rock-defined Away and the Dance Orchestra were more concerned with prestructured forms. Stevens, it has to be said, claimed never to see any difference.

The early Application, Interaction And ... is an excellent example of the empathy that once flowed between Stevens and Watts, whose strong, emotive alto sound is one of the definitive voices of British free jazz. This unit also worked and recorded as Amalgam, sometimes with Jeff Clyne on bass, so the music drew on a wide and common experience. The two long improvisations and 'encore' were, like No Fear, recorded for a '70s Spotlite release. Remastered, they sound fresh and direct, with the music moving steadily from tonal centres towards complete freedom, though never the ecstatic abandon of American fire music.

The same trio is in great form on the May 1977 set, which is now completed with Mining The Seam (note 'rest of', not 'best of', though that's also arguable). 'No Fear' is one of the best recorded moments in British free jazz, a pungent and fiery theme that shouts defiance. 'The Id' is spontaneously improvised and frankly a bit shambolic compared to the written pieces, of which the next best is Watts's delightful 'Speed From The Light'. Repeated listens demonstrate how central Guy (often poorly audible on the early releases) was to this music. His constant reconfiguration of harmony and his brilliant grasp of long pulse define many of these tracks.

* Corner To Corner / The Longest Night Ogun OGCD 22 / 23 Stevens; Evan Parker (ss, ts). 12/76; 6/93.
Parker has spoken feelingly about Stevens's interest in exploring every possible musical situation from swinging jazz to free projects and about how intense, and therefore occasional, this duo situation was. The Longest Night was recorded over the longest night of 1976, an intense, occasionaly brooding, sometimes volatile duo that is subtly different in approach and substance from the more measured, arguably more settled language of Corner To Corner. This was a relationship that evolved over time. One senses that some of the 'awe' Parker felt when he first dealt with Stevens had not so much receded as been replaced by a clear sense of his own language and position within the free-music community by the later date. He's certainly in absolute command for much of the way, with Stevens often sounding as if he's trying to broker a personal space in the music. An important document in British free and a powerful, if ultimately exhausting experience.

 Integration Loose Torque LT 005 Stevens; Bob Calvert (sax); Martin Holder, Nigel Moyse (g); Nick Stephens (b). 2/78.
In the mid-'70s and especially at a time when he was recovering from a serious knee problem, Stevens began to listen to rock and funk. He eventually founded Away, a powerful jazz-rock group that momentarily won him a larger and broader audience. Integration is a live set recorded at the Plough in London's Stockwell. It's fairly representative of a group that never stopped feeling its way towards an idiom that would satisfy hardcore fans as well as more casual listeners. 'Relative Space' and 'Home' are longer improvisations, but the majority of the tracks are short, even quite terse and blend the Black American styles Stevens was fascinated by with some of the energy of punk.

 Live At The Plough Ayler aylCD-007 Stevens; Mike Osborne (as); Paul Rogers (b). 3/79.
A precious glimpse of one of the many weekly gigs which John ran at the Stockwell, South London, pub in the late '70s. This is a typical Plough set of swinging, ragged but hugely compelling free bop. As soon as the drummer kicks into his shuffle-beat on 'Blue Rondo', underscoring Ossie's wailing, the years roll back. Sadly, this is only from a poor amateur tape – Rogers is often close to inaudible, and it needs a sympathetic ear all round. But the music is still memorably intense, the British equivalent perhaps of New York's Loft Jazz of a similar era.

 Late For Lunch Loose Torque LT 006 Stevens; Steve Topping (g); Nick Stephens (b). 2/81.
Another cassette recording rescued by Nick Stephens, who plays electric bass on this session. The music was recorded in studio down-time and has the fascinating, unfinished feel of a session never intended for public consumption. That's not to say it's sub-standard, but it might take even seasoned Stevens fans a moment or two to work out the provenance. The rock experiments are still in the background, but so too is the abstract language of the Spontaneous Music Ensemble.

* Fast Colour – Antwerp 88 Loose Torque LT 001 Stevens; Harry Beckett (t); Annie Whitehead (tb, v); Dudu Pukwana (ss, as); Evan Parker (ts); Nick Stephens (b); Pinise Saul (v). 88.
Nick Stephens launched his label with this valuable rediscovery, a cassette copy of a WIM concert given in memory of bassist Johnny Mbizo Dyani. Fine as it is, its historical value lies in the fact that there are no other recordings of this group. Originally conceived as a quintet to include Harry Beckett, Annie Whitehead and Dudu Pukwana, it was augmented on this occasion by Evan Parker (on tenor only) and vocalist Pinise Saul. Her contributions are the most problematic, repetitive chants in the main that only manage to generate the right emotional charge on the long 'John Dyani's Gone', where she also joins the horns with some powerful vocal improvisation. Beckett and Pukwana are both in searing form, with Whitehead and Parker providing a darker commentary in the main. Nick Stephens plays some beautiful solos, but as so often it is the drummer who holds the set together and gives its six-part structure a coherence and logic. John's muffled funeral drums run all the way through 'John Dyani's Gone', giving the piece an almost ritual air. Powerful stuff and surprisingly well rendered in Stephens's digitalized reworking.

 Playing Incus CD14 Stevens; Derek Bailey (g). 8/92.
Arguably the two most influential figures in British free music, engaged in intense, committed conversation. The studio recording picks up every detail and nuance of these nine mostly quite short pieces. Only the closing title-track is seriously extended, but it has such episodic detail it too almost seems like a procession of shorter cuts.

* New Cool Emanem 4117 Stevens; Byron Wallen (t); Ed Jones (ts); Gary Crosby (b). 8/92.
To the end of his life, Stevens continued to bring forward gifted young players. The SME evolved constantly, as its specific ethos demanded, but so too did Stevens's other groups, and New Cool, recorded at the Crawley Jazz Festival, is an excellent example of how seriously he took his mission to lead younger musicians at an accelerated pace through some of the major epiphanies of his own career. Of the four tracks, two are reworkings of Ornette and John Coltrane material, 'Ramblin'' and 'Lonnie's Lament' respectively. The listener doesn't need to be aware of this to enjoy or appreciate this music, which is immensely accessible, but it adds a significant dimension once the connection becomes obvious. As always, Stevens is thinking about old friends as well, in this case the two South Africans, Johnny Mbizo Dyani and Dudu Pukwana, whose own early deaths he was to echo all too soon after.

(*) One Time Incus 22 Stevens; Derek Bailey (g); Kent Carter (b). 11/92.
To our knowledge, this is the only documented encounter between these three. Carter's low-tuned bass is the unexpected element, but it provides the fulcrum for some quiet and detailed performances that rank among Stevens's best of the time. Bailey's ants-marching scribble creates a line that the others follow in their own way, especially on 'Not A Dry Glass In The House', but again it is Carter who reels things in.

 Blue That's Jazz 2008 Stevens; Byron Wallen (t, flhn); Paul Rutherford (tb, euph); Iain Ballamy, Ed Jones, Evan Parker (ss, ts); Mike Pyne (p); Phil Lee (g); Jeff Clyne, Ron Mathewson (b). 92.
Posthumously released, this ensemble set takes a bit of getting used to. The blues hover round it, not least when Paul Rutherford is playing, but there is no obvious structure to hang on to and some of the solo passages are rather attenuated. Curiously, for a musician of Stevens's dynamism, the ideas being developed are also quite monolithic. For years, he had been interested in the notion of peripheral hearing (rather than vision), noting and responding to events that took place at the very edges of conscious attention. That discipline works well with a small ensemble, but there are signs here that the players have too much to absorb, an excess of input restricting the output.

Herbie Steward (born 1926)

ALTO, SOPRANO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, CLARINET

Perhaps the least celebrated of the Four Brothers.

 The Three Horns Of Herbie Steward / Marky's Vibes Progressive PCD 7124 Steward; Irwin 'Marky' Markowitz (t, flhn); Al Cohn (ts); Urbie Green (tb); John Bunch, Smith Dobson, Tee Carson (p); Eddie Duran (g); Milt Hinton, John Mosher (b); Mousie Alexander, Eddie Moore (d). 71, 81.
The reissue is shared with a Markowitz sextet date, which is also worth having. Personnels are collective, but Eddie Duran is the key sideman on Herbie's date, which finds him playing alto, soprano and clarinet rather than his more familiar tenor. There are some lovely, unexpected touches, like a three-quarter time 'Take The "A" Train' and a delicious 'Serenata'. Both this and the Markowitz date were originally on Famous Door.

Jamie Stewardson

GUITAR

Inspired by '70s fusion, he studied at Berklee and with John Abercrombie, Joe Maneri and Mick Goodrick, but John McLaughlin sounds like his main influence.

 Jhaptal Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 233 Stewardson; Tony Malaby (ts); Alexei Tsiganov (vib); John Hebert (b); George Schuller (d). 6/03.
Stewardson's debt to McLaughlin seems to extend to a shared interest in Indian music, as the title and title-track of this debut record suggest. We're not talking about Shakti, though, but a nicely assimilated harmonic feel and extended rhythmic range. The basic language of the group is still tough modern post-bop, with Tsiganov's floating vibes providing a shifting background for the two front players. Malaby has wrought away for years, largely unsung, and is in great form here, showing an unexpectedly lyrical touch on the closing ballad. Paired with the tenor, Stewardson evokes some memories of classic Scofield line-ups, though his rugged, unsettled playing on 'Rest Area' suggests a different provenance. He's not a man who can be reduced to his influences, though. As 'Dig Muse' and 'Cruel Traps' suggest, this is a time-served player with an original and inviting voice that isn't without ambiguity or threat.

Bob Stewart (born 1945)

TUBA

The man from Sioux Falls has challenged Howard Johnson's crown as tubist of choice.

(*) First Line Winter & Winter 919014 Stewart; Stanton Davis Jr (t); Steve Turre (tb, shells); Kelvyn Bell (g); Idris Muhammad (d); Arto Tuncboyaciyan (perc). 87.

 Goin' Home Winter & Winter 919026 Stewart; Earl Gardner, James Zollar (t); Steve Turre (tb); John Clark (frhn); Jerome Harris (g); Ed Blackwell, Buddy Williams (d); Frank Colon (perc). 12/88.

Stewart has the ideal combination of sounds for a tuba lead. His rhythm lines are snappingly strong and full-voiced, while his upper register is bright and burnished. Even so, very few specialists on this instrument have ever managed to sound like any other than a slowed-down trombone and it's the speed and clarity of Stewart's articulation which is so impressive. First Line is now more than 20 years old, but reappeared as part of W&W's comprehensive reissue of the JMT catalogue. It's good that they're making space for work like this. The three-brass front line was an interesting idea at a time when the saxophone was king once again, but Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy had paved the way and there's a cheerful confidence to Stewart's group. Turre is as fine as ever (even if he overdoes the conches) and Davis is an exceptional player. Muhammad delivers his usual funky thing. There are a couple of originals, including the brief opening track, which serves as a statement of intent. The best things, however, are a couple of traditional themes, including 'Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child', and a pair of compositions by Arthur Blythe, Stewart's one-time employer and a too rarely heard composer. Bob saves the best for last, with the haunting 'Hambone'.

The second album doesn't quite match up to the same standard. The playing is superfine and the choice of repertoire – 'Sweet Georgia Brown', Billy Harper's 'Priestess', a couple of good charts from the leader – is as inventive as before. It just lacks zing and surprise, almost as if the First Line Band had found a formula and was happy to merchandise it one more time.

Grant Stewart (born 1971)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

The Canadian is one of Criss Cross's posse of gunslinging tenormen, now throwing down challenges ever wider afield.

 Downtown Sounds Criss Cross 1085 Stewart; Joe Magnarelli (t); Brad Mehldau (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 92.

 More Urban Tones Criss Cross 1124 Stewart; Chris Byars, Jay Collins (ts); Peter Bernstein (g); Peter Washington (b); Billy Drummond (d). 10/96.

 Buen Rollo Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 053 Stewart; Fabio Miano (p); Chris Higgins (b); Marc Miralta (d). 00.

 +4 Criss Cross 1269 Stewart; Joe Cohn (g); Paul Gill (b); Willie Jones III (d). 10/04.

With some vintages, you can judge the contents very accurately by looking at the label. That was the feeling when Stewart's debut came out. It's tough-tender hard bop, played with intelligence and resolutely unsurprising. 'Smada', 'Sweet And Lovely' and 'Intimacy Of The Blues' are the most interesting tracks, while the original themes are fairly generic. The second album is, if anything, more callow than the first, and the tenor-heavy format doesn't do Stewart himself any real favours. But a nice enough hard-bop record, played as if Alfred Lion were still alive. The Fresh Sound date exposes Stewart more than before and by and large he comes out on top, but he's not a player you'd pick out of a crowd. That's also the impression from +4 where he's often outgunned even by the quiet Joe Cohn. A nice record, though.

 Tenor And Soul /  Estate VideoArts Music 1272 / 1282 Stewart; Ryan Kisor (t); Joe Cohn (g); Joel Forbes (b); Phil Stewart (d). 3/05; 12/05.

Stewart continues to mature and is now an effective, though rarely startling, interpreter of American songbook material. This Japanese-produced date works some interesting variations on 'Willow Weep For Me' and 'On Green Dolphin Street', but Stewart also tackles Mingus's 'Tijuana Gift Shop' and does so like a small bullock in the china department. He's an invigorating player when he relaxes and cuts loose. The originals are still a bit lumpy, but 'Systems', right at the start of Estate, is a cracker. The Martino standard is given the briskest of rub-downs and there's a lovely version of Strayhorn's 'Raincheck'.

 In The Still Of The Night Sharp Nine 1038 Stewart; Tardo Hammer (p); Peter Washington (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 10/06.

New label but near-identical cover art to the old imprint and, reassuringly, the same multi-noted approach. The title might lead you to expect a quieter, ballad-driven album, but the personnel would lead you to question that expectation even before the title-tune gets booted around. 'Lush Life' and 'Autumn In New York' are equally vigorous. Monk's 'Work' is a telling choice by the saxophonist, a rarely heard classic, while from another realm entirely comes Richard Rodgers's 'Loads Of Love'. Stewart even makes a convincing and swinging (though that has unfortunate connotations in this context) case for Bacharach's 'Wives And Lovers', which rarely stands up to such examination. A big noise, as ever, but steady signs that Stewart is slowly reshaping his craft and making that broad tenor sound reach into subtler territory.

Rex Stewart (1907–67)

CORNET, KAZOO, VOICE

The good-natured Philadelphian had two stints with Fletcher Henderson, interrupted by doubts about his own ability to fill the shoes of Louis Armstrong. A pioneer of half-valving and of a loquacious, vocalized style.

 An Introduction To Rex Stewart: His Best Recordings, 1926–1941 Best Of Jazz 4005 Stewart; Langston Curl, Joe Smith, Russell Smith, Bobby Stark (t); Ed Cuffee, Jimmy Harrison, Claude Jones, Benny Morton (tb); Don Redman (cl, as); Benny Carter, Edward Inge (as); Coleman Hawkins (cl, ts); Prince Robinson (ts); Fletcher Henderson (p); Todd Rhodes (p, cel); Charlie Dixon, Dave Wilborn (bj); Ralph Escudero, Billy Taylor (b); Cuba Austin, Kaiser Marshall (d). 5/26–11/30.

(*) Rex Stewart: 1934–1946 Classics 931 Stewart; Stafford Simon (t); Lawrence Brown, George Stevenson, Sandy Williams (tb); Tyree Glenn (tb, vib); Earl Bostic, Tab Smith (as); Barney Bigard, Rudy Powell (cl, as); Pete Clarke, Bingie Madison, Al Sears (ts); Cecil Scott (ts, bs); Harry Carney (bs, cl); Mike Colucchio, Johnny Guarnieri, Eddie Heywood, Billy Kyle, Roger 'Ram' Ramirez, Dave Rivera (p); Brick Fleagle, Ulysses Livingston (g); Wellman Braud, Wilson Myers, Junior Raglin, Billy Taylor, Sid Weiss (b); J.

C. Heard, Jack Maisel, Bazeley Perry, Keg Purnell, Dave Tough (d). 12/34–2/46.

(*) Rex Stewart And The Ellingtonians Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1710 Stewart; Lawrence Brown (tb); Barney Bigard (cl); Billy Kyle (p); Brick Fleagle (g); Wellman Braud, John Levy (b); Cozy Cole, Dave Tough (d). 7/40–46.

(*) Rex Stewart: 1946–1947 Classics 1016 Stewart; Lawrence Brown, Sandy Williams (tb); John Harris (cl, as); Al Sears, Vernon Story (ts); Harry Carney (bs); Don Gais, Eddie Heywood, Jimmy Jones, Billy Kyle (p); Ulysses Livingston (g); Simon Brehm, Fred Ermelin, John Levy, Junior Raglin (b); Uffe Baagh, Cozy Cole, Ted Curry, Keg Purnell (d); Honey Johnson, Joya Sherrill (v). 1/45–12/47.

(*) Rex Stewart: 1947–1948 Classics 1057 Stewart; Sandy Williams (tb); Hubert Rostaing (cl); John Harris (cl, as); Vernon Story (ts); Don Gais (p, cel); Django Reinhardt, Jean-Jacques Tilché (g); Ladislas Czabanyck, Lucien Simoëns (b); Ted Curry (d); Honey Johnson, Louie Williams (v). 12/47–1/48.

For trumpeters of the '20s, Louis Armstrong was a model and a challenge. His achievement was so primal and so pre-eminent that it was extraordinarily difficult to see a way round or over it. Rex Stewart, a self-confessed Armstrong slave (though he also loved Bix), experienced the problem more directly than most when he took over Armstrong's chair in the Fletcher Henderson orchestra.

The early material on Best Of Jazz gives little real impression of what was to come, except that Stewart's solo forays are bright and peppy, with a chattery, button holing quality that makes them stick out from the ensemble. Other cuts have him with McKinney's Cotton Pickers and the Ellington band, before the cornetist began to make records under his own name in the mid-'30s. There are inevitable overlaps in the compilations which follow, but this is a decent introduction to his work over a relatively long period, and it is more evenly remastered than the Classics discs.

In reaction to the inevitable but invidious comparisons, Stewart developed his distinctive 'half-valving' technique. By depressing the trumpet keys to mid-positions, he was able to generate an astonishing and sometimes surreal chromaticism which, though much imitated, has only really resurfaced with the avant-garde of the '60s. As a maverick, Stewart was ideal for the Ellington orchestra of the mid-'30s, though the Black & Blue sessions seem, despite the august company, to step back a generation to the sound of the Hot Sevens. Stewart was never to lose that loyalty. On the Prestige, he can be heard singing in authentic imitation of Pops, but also taking in a good deal of what he had learnt with Henderson.

The early Classics disc brings together all the material Stewart recorded under his own name over a busy decade in which he spent most of his time working for other leaders. The very earliest cuts, with George Stevenson and Rudy Powell, were made for Vocalion just before Christmas 1934. There is no mistaking Stewart, even at this early period and even before he developed the harmonic richness of later years. It's only somewhat later, in the recordings of the mid-'40s, that he manages to combine it with the fullness of tone that was to be his trademark. Recording in turn for Keynote, Capitol, Parlophone and Mercury, Stewart created a body of work that was tantalizingly individual, out of all proportion to its actual amount.

As an original Ellingtonian, Stewart was revered in Europe and in 1947 went back to France and Scandinavia, where he laid down sessions for Blue Star, Cupol and Baronet. These represent the greater bulk of the two later Classics sets, credited to Rex Stewarts Orkester and other groups. The only additional material consists of four cuts done in New York for the short-lived HRS, and anomalously on the volume dated 1946–1947, a single, rejected take of 'Blue Jay' for Capitol recorded with the Big Eight in Los Angeles in January 1945. Half a dozen effective standards included on the same disc were recorded at the Salle Pleyel in Paris and originally released on three 78rpm discs. On these Rex sounds in buoyant and enthusiastic form, punching out the notes like a stapler. Generally, though, the voice was mellower, and the December 1947 tracks on Classics 1057 are the most relaxed and conversational work yet heard from him on record. Difficult to pick out individual tracks, largely because these sessions work best by accretion, piling on anecdotal detail at a leisurely pace rather than going for the big dramatic finish or large-scale romancing. Hard not to pick out his encounter with Django Reinhardt on 10 December 1947 for a brace of matey cuts. With Hubert Rostaing also on board, 'Confessin'' and 'Night And Day' are minor classics of post-war swing.

Stewart's vocalized style had few imitators, though Clark Terry gave it a more contemporary slant, bridging the gap with the modernists. In later life, Stewart became one of the most persuasive writers on jazz and his Jazz Masters Of The '30s is required reading for students of the period.

Also, in brief:

 Trumpet Jive! Prestige PCD 24119. 7/45–3/60.
Produced by Rudy Van Gelder, Rex sends himself up on 'Rasputin' and 'Tell Me'.

 Rex Stewart, 1948–1949 /  1949 Classics 1164 / 71284. 48–49.
A relatively obscure period, largely spent in Europe and working with some odd bands, like the Hot Club of Berlin.

 Baden 1966 & Montreux 1971 Sackville 2061. 6/66, 6/71.
Rex was dead in 1971, but the Henri Chaix orchestra (shortly to disband) had accompanied him five years earlier.

Slam Stewart (1914–87)

DOUBLE BASS, VOICE

Studied in Boston; heard violinist Ray Perry singing along to his own line and adapted that to his bass-playing. Worked in a duo with Slim Gaillard and with Art Tatum and many others.

(*) Slam Stewart 1945–1946 Classics 939 Stewart; Erroll Garner, Billy Taylor, Johnny Guarnieri (p); Red Norvo (vib); Bill D'Arango, Mike Bryan, Chuck Wayne, John Collins (g); Harold 'Doc' West, Morey Feld (d). 1/45–4/46.

 Slam Bam Black & Blue 861 Stewart; Milt Buckner (p); Jo Jones (d). 4/71.

 Slamboree Black & Blue 888 Stewart; Wild Bill Davis, Gene Rodgers (p); Al Casey (g); Jo Jones, Joe Marshall (d). 6/72.

Stewart was already a star when he appeared in the movie Stormy Weather in 1943. During the '30s he had been a stalwart of the New York scene, playing with Art Tatum and forming an evergreen partnership (love it, hate it; it sold records) with Slim Gaillard which exploited the less serious side of Stewart's virtuosic self-harmonizing on bass and vocals. However corny he now seems, few modern bass-players have taken up the technical challenge Stewart posed (though Major Holley had a stab), and the purely musical aspects of his work are of abiding value. The Classics disc shuffles together five early sessions under his own name. Erroll Garner was working for Slam at The Three Deuces when they made the January 1945 date, which has its apotheosis in the absurd 'Dark-Eyesky'. There are a dozen tracks with a quintet including Red Norvo, and Stewart is relatively back-seat on these for at least some of the time. For the most part, these sessions impart a harmless kind of chamber-jazz which is frankly boring after a few tracks. The very oddity of Stewart's technique is initially off-putting, but on repeated listening its complexities begin to make an impact. It's perhaps a shame that Stewart wasn't able – or didn't choose – to record with more of the younger modern bassists. If Mingus and Pettiford are now thought to have set the instrument free, much of what they did was already implicit in Stewart's work of the '30s. By the early '70s, though, Stewart was stuck in a manner rather than a style. The Black & Blues are almost self-parodying in places, but good fun in small doses.

Loren Stillman (born 1980)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Hailed as something of a prodigy, the youngster has real writing talent and every sign of staying power.

 Cosmos /  How Sweet It Is Soul Note 121310 / Nagel Heyer 2031 Stillman; Russ Lossing (p); Scott Lee (b); Bob Meyer (d). 2/96; 5/01, 1/02.

(*) It Could Be Anything Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 230 Stillman; Gary Versace (p); Scott Lee (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 04.

Stillman was only 15 when he made Cosmos, which guaranteed his debut a certain level of attention. His light, agile tone is sometimes likened to Lee Konitz's and like the older man he's dabbled in free playing, as on the title-piece, but he rarely finds anything genuinely interesting to articulate and one is left, inevitably, marvelling at his youth rather than absorbing what he's saying.

The second album is more of the same, though the quartet dynamic has matured somewhat. This time, Stillman claims all the credits and shines here and there with bright ideas. Again, though, they don't seem to go anywhere and the album has a still-born feel. There's a lot more coherence to the third, on which Loren's eight compositions sound interrelated, if not in any sense a formal suite then at least a body of tunes that explore similar, or consciously contrasting, harmonic and melodic material. A couple of other pieces are by the faithful Lee, who's been around from the beginning and increasingly sounds like Stillman's Horatio – reliable, quietly heroic, occasionally impatient of the prince's hesitations and prevarications. Sounds odd to ask it of one so young, but what's going to blow the cobwebs away and let in a little light and air?

 The Brothers' Breakfast Steeplechase SCCD 31586 Stillman; Gary Versace (org); Vic Juris (g); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 4/05.

Everyone's doing them these days again, but the sax/organ/guitar format strips a lot of the individuality out of Stillman's sound and approach. It's undeniably exciting, and Versace and Juris are contemporary masters, but there's nothing much here that will excite an uncommitted listener. Monk's 'Gallop's Gallop' is arguably the best thing on the date, which is telling.

(*) Trio Alto: Volumes 1 & 2 Steeplechase SCCD 315806 Stillman; Steve LaSpina (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 4/05.

At one level, this sounds a rather schematic, almost workshoppy set of standards and a few repertory pieces and originals, laid down with efficiency rather than drama or passion. Heard again, though, it becomes clear just how much thought and application is going into Loren's playing. Even on a warhorse like 'Body And Soul' (Volume 1), he's concentrating hard on how the changes are negotiated in a notably stripped down and unforgiving situation. LaSpina feeds him the odd get-out, but for the most part the saxophonist digs in and does his own spadework. It's very impressive: contemporary vertical-harmony jazz of a high order.

* Blind Date Pirouet PIT 3024 Stillman; Gary Versace (p); Drew Gress (b); Joey Baron (d). 6/06.

A band to die for, elegant sound engineered by Jason Seizer and Stephan V. Wylick, and a batch of fine new compositions from Loren. It all adds up to a cracking contemporary jazz record. His alto sound has the kind of edge at the extremes of register that makes you wonder why he doesn't double (notably) on 'Shape Shifter' and 'Theme For A New Regime', but at the same time glad that he sticks to his guns. Gress and Baron make a great partnership, tight and springy, and Versace keeps the ideas buoyant and alert. Hard to beat on the contemporary scene.

Sonny Stitt (1924–82)

ALTO, TENOR AND BARITONE SAXOPHONES, VOICE

It is open to dispute how much he absorbed from Charlie Parker and how much he developed for himself. He played tenor in a band co-led with Gene Ammons from 1950, and thereafter drifted between that and the alto, occasionally picking up the baritone. A definitive example of the 'road musician', he made scores of records and, arguably, diluted his reputation with an approach simultaneously dedicated and careless.

 Sonny Stitt/Bud Powell/J. J. Johnson Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 009 Stitt; J. J. Johnson (tb); Bud Powell, John Lewis (p); Curley Russell, Nelson Boyd (b); Max Roach (d). 10/49–1/50.

(*) Prestige First Sessions Vol. 2 Prestige 24115 Stitt; Alfred 'Chippie' Outcalt, Matthew Gee (tb); Gene Ammons (bs); Kenny Drew, Duke Jordan, Junior Mance, Clarence 'Sleepy' Anderson (p); Tommy Potter, Earl May, Gene Wright (b); Art Blakey, Teddy Stewart, Wesley Landers, Jo Jones (d); Larry Townsend (v). 2/50–8/51.

(*) Sonny Stitt 1950–1951 Classics 1291 Similar to above. 2/50–2/51.

 Kaleidoscope Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 060 Stitt; Bill Massey, Joe Newman (t); Kenny Drew, Charles Bateman, Junior Mance, John Houston (p); Tommy Potter, Gene Wright, Ernie Shepard (b); Art Blakey, Teddy Stewart, Shadow Wilson (d); Humberto Morales (perc). 2/50–2/52.

 Sonny Stitt 1951–1953 Classics 1378 As above, except add Don Elliott (mel); Kai Winding (tb); Sid Cooper (ts, picc); George Berg (ts, bs); Jerry Sanfino (f); Fletcher Peck, Horace Silver, Al Williams (p); John Simmons, Charles Mingus (b); Jo Jones, Don Lamond (d); Santa Miranda (perc). 5/51–11/53.

Stitt took every opportunity to record, often with undistinguished pick-up groups, and while his impassive professionalism meant that he seldom sounded less than strong, his records need careful sifting to find him genuinely at his best. Originally, he was acclaimed as a rival to Charlie Parker, and the derivation of his style, which may have been arrived at quite independently of Bird, is a famously moot point. Whatever the case, by the time of the 1949 sessions on OJCCD 009, he was in complete command of the bop vocabulary and playing with quite as much skill as any man in the milieu. This disc finds him exclusively on tenor, which he plays with a rather stony tone but no lack of energy. Powell contributes some superb playing on such uptempo pieces as 'All God's Children Got Rhythm', and the 1950 group with Johnson and Lewis, though less obviously hot, finds Stitt at his best on the urgent improvisation on 'Afternoon In Paris'. Both the Prestige collection and Kaleidoscope bring together bits and pieces from the early days of the label and, though some of the tracks sound foreshortened, Stitt dominates throughout both discs. He occasionally played baritone, too, and there's a surprisingly full-blooded ballad treatment of 'P.S. I Love You' on Kaleidoscope which suggests that his use of the bigger horn was by no means offhand. The boxy sound of the originals carries over into all the CD issues. Classics 1291 is pretty much a straight duplication of the Prestige material, as is the first half of Classics 1378, which then moves into three rather better dates for Royal Roost, two with a band led by Johnny Richards, whose Byzantine charts pose the players a few problems. Interesting music, though.

(*) New York Jazz Verve 517050-2 Stitt; Jimmy Jones (p); Ray Brown (b); Jo Jones (d). 9/56.
 Personal Appearance Verve 523314-2 Stitt; Bobby Timmons (p); Edgar Willis (b); Kenny Dennis (d). 8/57.
Still young and at the peak of his powers – 'lean, plunging Sonny Stitt', Nat Hentoff's note calls him – this is the Stitt that's most worth remembering and listening to again. He is helter-skelter on 'I Know That You Know', casts lyrical alto spinners on 'If I Had You' and cruises through 'Alone Together' in lightly bruised tenor mode. It's lushly melodic, yet the different astringencies he gets out of alto and tenor put an acidly personal edge on the improvising. Here and there one still gets the notion that he's just laughing at both us and the material, but this is surely the real Stitt. Personal Appearance perhaps isn't quite as good (and Willis and Dennis are no match for Brown and Jones) but Sonny still sounds fine.

(*) Sonny Stitt Sits In With The Oscar Peterson Trio Verve 849396-2 Stitt; Oscar Peterson (p); Herb Ellis (g); Ray Brown (b); Ed Thigpen, Stan Levey (d). 10/57–5/58.
A memorable meeting. Stitt plays alto and tenor here, and sounds unusually at ease with a pianist who might have brought out his most sparring side. Instead, on the likes of 'Moten Swing' and 'Blues For Pres', they intermingle their respective many-noted approaches as plausibly as if this were a regular band (in fact, they never recorded together again). The CD includes three tracks from a session a year earlier, previously unreleased, with a storming 'I Know That You Know' emerging as the highlight.

 Don't Call Me Bird! Fresh Sound FSR CD 467 Stitt; Lou Levy (p); Leroy Vinnegar (b); Mel Lewis (d). 12/59.
These were Verve dates, released as Saxophone Supremacy and Swings The Most, just two in a welter of average-to-good Stitt dates from the end of the '50s, when he seemed to in the studios whenever he wasn't out on the road, playing from city to city. There is something heroic about his consistency and with this excellent West Coast group behind him at Radio Recorders in Hollywood, he delivers exactly the kind of set you'd expect. As to the title: well, would anyone really think this was the shade of Charlie Parker? The material is personalized standards ('I Cover The Waterfront', 'There Is No Greater Love') and blues-based originals. Tenor and alto feature in even measure.

 Sonny Stitt And The Top Brass Atlantic 80802-2 Stitt; Reunald Jones, Blue Mitchell, Dick Vance (t); Jimmy Cleveland, Matthew Gee (tb); Willie Ruff (frhn); Perri Lee (org); Duke Jordan (p); Joe Benjamin (b); Philly Joe Jones, Frank Brown (d). 7/62.
A slight departure from what would become Stitt's '60s routine, this set of charts by Tadd Dameron and Jimmy Mundy has him fronting a brass-heavy band. Still no masterpiece, but it's pleasing to hear Stitt being asked to make his way through 'On A Misty Night' rather than his usual book of standards and blues; and Blue Mitchell also has a few moments to himself.

 Stitt Plays Bird Atlantic 8122-73716-2 Stitt; John Lewis (p); Jim Hall (g); Richard Davis (b); Connie Kay (d). 1/63.
This had the makings of a classic: nobody knew Bird's music better than Stitt, and with an outstanding group behind him there might have been some defining thesis on this material in the offing. Yet Sonny doesn't really nail it, as if he can't be bothered a lot of the way. The articulation is slurred here and there and the contrast between his workaday intensities and the customary precision of Lewis (as well as Hall's ingenuities) is not a fruitful one. Still, even when he's coasting Stitt has rewards to offer – he's fine on 'My Little Suede Shoes', especially – and the band give him warm support. The booklet for this new edition includes some little-seen and excellent photos of Stitt.

(*) Sonny Stitt Meets Brother Jack Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 703 Stitt; Jack McDuff (org); Eddie Diehl (g); Art Taylor (d); Ray Barretto (perc). 2/62.
 My Mother's Eyes Groove Hut GH 66705 Stitt; Charles Kynard, Don Patterson (org); Ray Crawford (g); Billy James, Doug Sides (d). 5/63, 9/66.
 Soul People Prestige PRCD 24127-2 Stitt; Booker Ervin (ts); Grant Green, Vinnie Corrao (g); Don Patterson (org); Billy James (d). 8/64–9/69.
 Stitt Goes Green Gambit GCD 69212 Stitt; Bennie Green (tb); Bunky Green (as); Bobby Buster, Odell Brown (org); Joe Diorio, Bryce Roberson (g); Dorel Anderson, Maurice White (d). 3/64–4/66.
 Made For Each Other Delmark DD-426 Stitt; Don Patterson (org); Billy James (d). 7/68.
Whatever the state of jazz's declining fortunes in the '60s, Stitt worked and recorded incessantly, if often carelessly. A lot of run-of-the-mill albums for Roulette and Cadet are currently unavailable; these Prestige dates scarcely break the mould. With McDuff in tow, Stitt strolls unblinkingly through a programme of rootless blues. The Groove Hut material pairs up a couple of funky sets. Soul People has some natty sparring with Booker Ervin, never one to shirk some cheerful sax fisticuffs, and though the ballad medley is a bit dragging, 'Flying Home' isn't. A 1969 'Tune Up' and one number with Patterson in the chair fill up the disc. Stitt Goes Green doubles up a pair of Argo LPs, one with Bennie Green and one with Bunky Green. The two-sax set is rather funkier and better – another saxophonist in the band always gave Stitt the impetus to play that bit harder, and sure enough he digs in more than he does with Bennie. Made For Each Other is a desperately routine set of tracks that Stitt plays his varitone sax on throughout: missable. Not much really changes across the seven years these discs span, although the later group is the more self-consciously funky and garners a lower mark as a result. Stitt himself never had to pretend about soul.

 Tune Up! + Constellation Gambit GCD 69269 Stitt; Barry Harris (p); Sam Jones (b); Alan Dawson, Roy Brooks (d). 2 & 6/72.
Stitt's insistence that he was a 'public servant in music' is quoted in the liner-notes here and it's a role that seems relevant to these quietly crowd-pleasing sessions of boppish jazz. Harris has been promoted to co-leader for the issue, but the records were originally under Sonny's name alone. To be truthful, by this stage he's so laid back about work that it hardly makes any odds. Welcome returns to circulation, but nothing that radically revises the consensus.

() Back To My Own Home Town Black & Blue 59574-2 Stitt; Gerald Price (p); Don Mosley (b); Bobby Durham (d). 11/79.
 The Good Life Evidence ECD 22088-2 Stitt; Hank Jones (p); George Duvivier (b); Grady Tate (d, v). 11/80.
Stitt died in 1982 from cancer, but he betrayed only a few signs of failing powers up to the end. Although he went right on recording through the '70s, there's not that much around just now. The pick-up date in France (Black & Blue) is as rote as one might imagine. The Good Life was recorded in Japan and works out better. Stitt could hardly have felt more comfortable than with this rhythm section; it's a pity, given his vast knowledge of standards, that they couldn't have chosen a more interesting set of tunes to play on. 'Angel Eyes' is a splendid tenor performance and with the title-ballad it makes up a pleasing valediction.

Also, in brief:

 Sax O'Bebop Proper PROPERBOX 65 4CD. 46–52.
An indiscriminate bargain box.

 Soul Classics Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 6003. 2/62–2/72.
Tracks from eight sessions over a decade and is a truthful picture of Stitt's ups and downs. Four tracks feature the saxophonist with his varitone horn, a gimmick which didn't last.

 Night Letter / (*) Legends Of Acid Jazz /  Legends Of Acid Jazz Vol. 2 Prestige PRCD 24165-2 / 24169-2 / 24236. 9/63–10/69; 1/71; 9/68.
These sound like compilations but they bring together no fewer than six complete Stitt dates. Acid Jazz Vol. 2 has a Sonny date with Don Patterson (org) and a Patterson date with Sonny, recorded a day apart!

() Sonny's Blues Jazz House JHAS 603. 5/64.
Sonny at work in London, with variations on the Ronnie Scott house band – Dick Morrissey sits in on a long blues and Ernest Ranglin on another.

 The Boss Men / (*) Brothers-4 Prestige PRCD 24253 / 24261. 9–12/65; 9/69.
More sweepings from Stitt's endless round of '60s sessions, all with Patterson.

Kathy Stobart (born 1925)

TENOR, BARITONE AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

First lady of British saxophone-players.

 Saxploitation Spotlite Jazz SPJ 403 Stobart; Joe Temperley (ts, bs); Mike Pyne (p); Dave Olney (b); Tony Mann (d). 3/76.
(*) Arbeia Spotlite Jazz SPJ Stobart; Harry Beckett (t, flhn); Martin Blackwell (p); Harvey Weston (b); Tony Mann (d); Marion Williams (v). 2 & 3/78.
In recent times more closely associated with Humphrey Lyttelton's band, Kathy recorded this cheerfully swinging Spotlite set back before then. Her multi-instrumentalism has rarely been commented upon, but it's very impressive, especially when she hefts the bulky baritone. It's good, solid English fare, or Scots/English if you take account of Joe Temperley's strong contribution and, at a time when only the British avant-garde were garnering much attention, a sign that mainstream was thriving alongside it. There's more edge to the set with Beckett, a sunny player who also managed to assimilate a lot of what was going on elsewhere. The rhythm section is a bit stiff and the electric piano sounds dated on its tracks, but another nice disc.

Stockholm Jazz Orchestra

GROUP

Founded in 1983 under the general leadership of Fredrik Norén, the SJO frequently invites guest conductors and soloists.

 Jigsaw Dragon DRCD 213 Jan Kohlin, Fredrik Norén, Peter Asplund, Stig Persson, Gustavo Bergalli (t, flhn); Anders Wiborg, Mikael Råberg, Bertil Strandberg, Mats Hermansson (tb); Johan Hörlén (ss, as, cl, f), Dave Castle (ss, as, cl); Ulf Andersson, (ss, ts, cl); Jan Levander (ts, cl, f); Joakim Milder (ts); Hans Arktoft (bs, bcl); Jim McNeely (p); Jan Adefeldt (b); Martin Löfgren (d). 3/91.
 Live At Jazz Club Fasching Dragon DRCD 269 As above, except omit Milder, McNeely, Löfgren; add Bob Mintzer, Per Johansson (ts); Neta Norén (bs); Göran Strandberg (p); Jukkis Uotila (d); Rafael Sida (perc). 4/94.
 Sound Bites Dragon DRCD 311 As above, except omit Mintzer, Johansson, Neta Norén, Strandberg, Sida, Levander, Kohlin, Persson, Andersson, Arktoft; add Patrik Skogh (t, flhn); Dick Oatts (as); Hector Bingert, Marcus Lindgren (ts); Alberto Pinton (bs, bcl); Jim McNeely (p). 9/95.
The SJO recorded the first CD to celebrate working with a guest arranger, in this case Jim McNeely. One gets the feeling that McNeely is a more meticulous and thoroughgoing composer than Bob Brookmeyer, a previous guest in this role, but a less inspirational one. The modern orchestral bop of 'Off The Cuff', for instance, or the concerto for Milder in 'The Decision' are convincing and tersely wound set-pieces, but the freewheeling demeanour of the earlier record is missed. Still, it may suit some tastes better. Sound Bites is a second turn for McNeely, and with guest soloist Oatts the orchestra sounds in vigorous spirits at a Stockholm concert. Although McNeely brought four of his own themes to the concert – the opening 'Pete's Feet' is probably the best – the most interesting scores are 'Yesterdays', scored with accumulating power around Oatts's soprano, and 'In A Sentimental Mood', something of a concerto for Hörlén. Oatts aside, there are few soloists: this is one band where the ensemble itself is what counts.

The live club album has Bob Mintzer as guest conductor-soloist. The stays are a bit looser and there's a frolicsome feel to some of the music, although Mintzer's scores are rather tough and sometimes unyielding; so it winds up as much like their studio work. Star soloist: Peter Asplund on 'Elvin's Mambo'.

 Lakes Dragon DRCD 352 Fredrik Norén, Patrik Skogh, Peter Asplund, Magnus Broo, Gustavo Bergalli (t, flhn); Bertil Strandberg, Björn Samuelsson, Magnus Svedberg, Anders Wiborg (tb); Johan Hörlén (ss, as, f); Magnus Blom (as, cl, f); Magnus Lindgren (ts, cl, f, af); Karl-Martin Almkvist (ts, cl); Neta Norén (bs, bcl); Göran Strandberg (p); Martin Sjöstedt (b); Jukkis Uotila (d); Rafael Sida (perc). 3/00.

(*) Homage To Mel Lewis And Thad Jones Dragon DRCD 389 As above, except omit Skogh, Samuelsson, Blom, Neta Norén, Sida; add Marcus Ahlberg (tb); Dick Oatts (ss, as, f); Gary Smulyan (bs). 3/03.

 Sailing Dragon DRCD 400 As above, except omit Bergalli, Ahlberg, Oatts, Smulyan; add Patrik Skogh, Karl Olandersson (t, flhn); Fredrik Ruud, Karin Hammer (tb); Magnus Blom, Par Grebacken, Robert Nordmark, Krister Andersson, Neta Norén (reeds); Mikke Nilsson (perc). 5/04.

(*) Waves From The Vanguard: Live At Jazzclub Fasching Dragon DRCD 403 Peter Asplund, Gustavo Bergalli, Magnus Broo, Fredrik Norén, Karl Olandersson (t, flhn); Markus Ahlberg, Fredrik Ruud, Bertil Strandberg, Magnus Svedberg, Anders Wiborg, Magnus Wiklund (tb); Johan Hörlén, Dick Oatts (f, ss, as); Karl-Martin Almqvist (cl, ts); Magnus Lindgren, Robert Nordmark (f, ts); Gary Smulyan (bs); Göran Strandberg (p); Martin Sjöstedt (b); Jukkis Uotila (d). 3/03–9/05.

The Orchestra have continued to build a fine body of work for Dragon. Göran Strandberg is in charge for Lakes, which has standout work from the soloists, a notably unusual chart for 'Ol' Man River' and some pastel-pieces more in the Scandinavian tradition. It sounds fine, but it's all rather shown up by the Homage record, which nominally doffs its cap to Thad and Mel but is basically about Jones's remarkable big-band scores. The SJO have the benefit of former Lewis sidemen Oatts and Smulyan being on hand and they play Thad's marvellous scores with authentic power.

Strandberg returns to the helm for Sailing, and again it's a little unfortunate for him that the record is sandwiched between the previous disc and the energizing live disc which follows. Sailing features a lot of thoughtful writing but tends to dwell in Scandinavian mists for just a fraction too long. Whereas the live disc returns the band to the Thad Jones book and the Orchestra, again with Oatts and Smulyan in the fold, are clearly enjoying themselves. The only blemish is the rather effortful 'Fingers', which runs for some 20 minutes and offers the inevitable drum solo.

Phil Stockli

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

Said to be influenced by Wayne Shorter ...

 Third Eye Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 168 Stockli; Pete Rende (p, ky); Mike Moreno (g); Matt Penman (b); Jeff Ballard (d); Matthias Kunzli (perc); Barbara Mendes (v). 9/02.

If 'Body And Soul' is still some kind of test-piece for saxophonists, Stockli comes away from this not just with a pass, but a distinction. The ethereal title camouflages a record of real quality and straightforwardness, marked by some Latin flourishes on the standard and 'Moment's Joy' and a curiously powerful vocal on the opening cut. Stockli builds a solo out of fairly simple materials, and isn't afraid to use space and even silence to create drama.

Göran Strandberg (born 1949)

PIANO

A Stockholm native, he's been busy on his local scene since the early '70s.

 Gentle Stream Dragon DRCD 322 Strandberg; Hans Backenroth (b); Bengt Stark (d); Rafael Sida (perc). 5/98.

 How 'Bout Now Dragon DRCD 383 Strandberg; Bertil Strandberg (tb); Joakim Milder (ts); Filip Augustson (b); Fredrik Rundqvist (d); Berit Andersson (v). 03.

Strandberg appeared in our early editions with some vinyl entries but this characteristically self-effacing player has had a quiet time of it since, at least as a leader. Our verdict on the earlier records – 'stripped-down hard bop' – still holds good to some extent, but on this mix of standards and originals he takes a generally more expansive course. Encouraged perhaps by Stark, who's a more knockabout drummer than Rune Carlsson was, the pianist takes a looser, less stitched-up progress through 'Danny's Return', which borrows a lick from 'Londonderry Air', and finds a humorous side to 'King Porter Stomp'. Strandberg may have softened some of the more pointed aspects of his playing, and not everything here really compels the attention, but it's a satisfying set. The later date's fine, too. The horns are used sparingly, so essentially it's a trio disc ('Cry To The Stars' is a solo) with vocals. Very pleasing.

Billy Strayhorn (1915–67)

PIANO, COMPOSER, ARRANGER

He began writing for Duke Ellington in 1939, first as lyricist, then as collaborator. He occasionally played piano while Duke directed, and made some own-name band recordings in the '50s and '60s.

(*) Great Times! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 108 Strayhorn; Duke Ellington (p); Wendell Marshall, Lloyd Trottman (b); Oscar Pettiford (b, clo); Jo Jones (d). 9–11/50.

 The Stanley Dance Sessions Lone Hill Jazz LHJCD 10191 Strayhorn; Shorty Baker, Cat Anderson, Bill Berry, Howard McGhee, Ed Mullens (t); Quentin Jackson, Lawrence Brown (tb); Chuck Connors (btb); Russell Procope (cl); Johnny Hodges (as); Jimmy Hamilton (ts, cl); Paul Gonsalves (ts); Harry Carney (bs); Jimmy Jones (p); Al Hall, Aaron Bell (b); Oliver Jackson, Sam Woodyard (d). 4/59–12/61.

It's now very difficult, given the closeness of their relationship and their inevitable tendency to draw on aspects of the other's style and method, to separate which elements of an 'Ellington–Strayhorn' composition belong to each; but there is no doubt that Swee' Pea, as Ellington called him, made an immense impact on his boss's music. Even if he had done no more than write 'Lush Life' and 'Take The "A" Train', Strayhorn would still have been guaranteed a place in jazz history.

Strayhorn was not an outstanding pianist by himself and he wasn't, of course, an instinctive performer. In fairness, the 1950 Great Times! may be credited to Strayhorn's account. In performance terms he's overshadowed by his boss, playing much more 'correctly' and inside the key than the Duke found comfortable. It's easier to separate them on the inevitable '"A" Train' and 'Oscalypso', when Strayhorn switches to celeste.

The Lone Hill Jazz disc reissues one of the classic mainstream sessions, Cue For Saxophone, where Strayhorn nonchalantly directed an Ellingtonian small group (Hodges masquerading under the name 'Cue Porter') and came up with a foot-perfect example of the idiom. It's coupled with the tracks from the later Verve set Johnny Hodges With Billy Strayhorn And The Orchestra, although this is available separately as a 'proper' Verve reissue.

Co Streiff (born 1959)

SOPRANO AND ALTO SAXOPHONES, PERCUSSION

Gifted Swiss composer.

() Twin Lines Intakt 073 Streiff; Irène Schweizer (p). 7/99–8/00.

 Qattara Intakt 078 Streiff; Christof Gantert (t, perc); Tom Varner (frhn); Tommy Meier (ts, bcl, pipe); Ben Jeger (p, ky, acc); Christian Weber (b); Fredi Flükiger (d). 7/02.

The biggest and most unexpected influence on Streiff's sextet writing is the Art Ensemble Of Chicago. On Qattara, she includes themes by Roscoe Mitchell ('Nonaah') and Joseph Jarman ('Blues For Zen'), as well as fragments by Sun Ra and the like-minded Andrew Cyrille, but the bulk of the writing is her own and fellow saxophonist Tommy Meier's. The album draws something from an eye-opening (and nearly fatal) trip through the Egyptian and Libyan deserts, but one suspects that more straightforward music influences are paramount. There is a pervasive African feel, not just in the use of bass drones, balafon and Meier's shawm-like bagpipe chanter, but also in Streiff's preference for short, almost folksy thematic statements.

Meier is the more obviously jazz-based player, perhaps because he is playing tenor. Streiff has a wilder and more erratic tone, which suits material like 'Darb El-Mahashas' perfectly. The horns play intriguing unison lines on 'Message From Thule' and the title-track. The Sextet is a highly thoughtful working unit and Qattara is a powerful statement of Streiff's collaborative approach.

The duo album is either attractively low-key or disappointingly undramatic, depending on your point of view, and, critically, your expectation of fellow Swiss Irène Schweizer, who has rarely sounded more constrained. Here she seems happy to play straight accompaniment to Streiff's attractively uncomplicated melodies. The effect is pleasant but unmemorable. Dry as the landscape is, Qattara seems a much more refreshing place to start.

Marcus Strickland (born 1979)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

New York saxophonist, part of a burgeoning wave of players in what may formulate itself as a fresh modern mainstream.

 At Last Fresh Sound FSNT 101 Strickland; Robert Glasper (p); Brandon Owens (b); E. J. Strickland (d). 8–12/00.

 Brotherhood Fresh Sound FSNT 152 As above, except add Jeremy Pelt (t). 4/02.

Strickland's foggy, almost diffident sound isn't the sort of playing set to buttonhole anybody's attention, but there are plenty of details and wrinkles which suggest that he'll have much more to say than he does on the comparatively uneventful quartet date. Significant, perhaps, that the only covers he chooses to play are from Wayne Shorter and Joe Henderson, both quizzical musicians with a kinship to his own manner. His brother E.J. plays tight, propulsive drums, but the most interesting player here may turn out to be Glasper, whose 'Three For Her' and 'Joy Song' are absorbing pieces.

Album two is basically by the same group, although Pelt arrives for two tracks. He livens up Strickland to the extent that one wishes the whole album might have been a quintet set, although that clearly isn't what the leader's after. It's music where a cerebral intensity tries to sit comfortably with more visceral playing, and credit to Strickland for giving a tough task a good shot.

(*) Twi-Life Strick Muzik 001 2CD Strickland; Robert Glasper (p); Lage Lund (g); Vicente Archer, Brad Jones (b); E. J. Strickland (d). 06.

 Open Reel Deck Strick Muzik 002 Strickland; Keyon Harrold (t); Mike Moreno (g); Carlos Henderson (b); E. J. Strickland (d); Malachi (v). 4/07.

After the basic hard-bop format of his first groups as leader, Strickland started to experiment with something funkier and more plugged-in. His basic language hasn't changed, though the manner of its delivery arguably has. The first of the Twi-Life records documents the transition: Strickland fields two different quartets – the first with Glasper fulfilling a role that's yielded results on his own records, combining jazz and hip-hop rhythms in intriguing ways; the other replacing piano with guitar, and Archer's acoustic bass with a bass guitar and a harder sound. Twin brother E.J. anchors both groups and, to be truthful, the difference is more cosmetic than actual. The 'acoustic' tracks have real fire and presence; the electric sides have every bit as much sophistication, twisting themes and complex harmonies. We prefer the earlier record, which seems less fussy in conception and Malachi's 'poetic' contributions don't help Open Reel Deck.

String Trio Of New York

GROUP

Led by bassist Lindberg, the Trio represents a dogged refusal to accept the casual consensus that a jazz group necessarily includes a horn, a piano and a set of drums. The personnel has changed – and changed very successfully – but the group's future was threatened when Lindberg suffered serious wrist damage, now successfully overcome.

 First String /  Area Code 212 Black Saint 120031 / 120048 Billy Bang (vn); James Emery (g); John Lindberg (b). 79.

 Common Goal / (*) Rebirth Of A Feeling Black Saint 120058 / 120068 Billy Bang (vn, yokobue, f); James Emery (g, soprano g, mand); John Lindberg (b). 11/81; 11/83.

The first two albums are fresh, bright and still eminently listenable, but there is a slight feeling that the members are pulling in too many directions at once. It took some time for STNY to establish a collective identity on record.

Rebirth Of A Feeling claims the attention more than any of the previous or later discs. Centred round Bang's 'Penguins An' Other Strange Birds' (a gloriously wacky piece) and the long, rather more brooding 'Utility Grey', which was written by Lindberg, it's a superb record which can be recommended warmly to anyone who hasn't yet encountered the STNY.

() Intermobility / () Octagon / (*) Blues ...? Arabesque AJ018 / Black Saint 120131 / 120148 As above, except omit Bang; add Regina Carter (vn). 7/92; 11/92; 10/93.

Carter is a consistently interesting player and Intermobility restores a little of the buzz and fire, a few of the raw edges. Octagon is ambitious, too, covering a startling range of contemporary compositions (Marty Ehrlich, Muhal Richard Abrams, Mark Helias, Leo Smith and Bobby Previte), and Carter's own 'Forever February' is one of the loveliest things they've done.

Not clear what the question mark is about on Blues ...?, except that the Trio seems to be interrogating the form rather than merely rehashing it. 'Cobalt Blue', 'Red Shift' and 'Speedball' represent a toughening of the band's sound, while an intriguing montage of Charlie Parker tunes suggests how readily this personnel adapts to bebop as well. The addition of an elegiac 'Freddy Freeloader', Miles's blowing theme from Kind Of Blue, adds a further dimension.

* Faze Phour Black Saint 120168 As above, except omit Carter; add Diane Monroe (vn). 11/97.

Another change of personnel, but also a token of successful recovery from Lindberg's career-threatening arm injury. The idea of Faze Phour is a retrospective of what is now two decades of activity, with re-recordings of three earlier pieces alongside new material. As ever, the group also covers some repertory material, on this occasion Monk's 'Straight, No Chaser' (highly successful), Duke's 'In A Sentimental Mood' (oddly not), and Mingus's tone-poem 'Pithecanthropus Erectus' (which succeeds on pure cheek). Monroe fits very comfortably into a now settled partnership. By no means a player of Bang's dramatic presence, she is none the less capable of fireworks, on the opening 'Frozen Ropes' and her own 'Groovin' Roots'.

(*) Gut Reaction Omnitone 12202 As above, except omit Monroe; add Rob Thomas (vn). 5/01.

The personnel keeps evolving, but Thomas seems like a good sort and this live record is distinguished by two major works, Lindberg's 'Nature, Time, Patience' and Dave Douglas's 'In So Many Worlds', a tribute to Jaki Byard. Thomas has a more muscular sound than his immediate predecessors and though some of this music has a chamber feel, there's no mistaking the hard improvisational core and Emery's strong development as a composer.

Byron Stripling

TRUMPET, VOCAL

A fine mainstream stylist with an approach as youthful as his surname. Has seen service with the Basie band and a latter day Woody Herman outfit.

 If I Could Be With You Nagel Heyer 1010 Stripling; Randy Sandke (t); Joe Helleny (tb); Kenny Davern, Allen Vaché (cl); Johnny Varro (p); Greg Cohen, Bob Haggart (b); Joe Ascione (d). 11/95.

 Stripling Now! /  Byron, Get One Free Nagel Heyer 2002 / 2016 Stripling; Wycliffe Gordon (ttb on Get One Free only); Dave Glasser (as on Now! only); Frank Wess (ts); Bill Charlap (p); Peter Washington (b); Ira Coleman (b on Get One Free only); Dennis Mackrel (d). 12/98, 12/00.

Big-band duties have probably denied Stripling more opportunity to record on his own account. There's an exuberance to Now! that suggests that's been a loss but that he's intent on making up time. Byron has the kind of clear tone that is ideal for section work but it's flexible enough to make his playing interesting in a small group, albeit one with strong guests in support. Glasser is great from the opening 'Greasy Livin'' and he writes well, too ('Basie And Bean', 'Rebop'). Byron does a couple of vocals, the best of which is on 'Tired Of Pretty Women', which we assume is a favourite on club dates, though not necessarily a PC statement. Grisly pun apart, the third title is another delight, with essentially the same band. Gordon was a great recruitment, providing middle and bottom to a comparatively light sound.

The earlier record is of a concert in Hamburg celebrating the life and work of Louis Armstrong. It's billed as 'and friends' and it has to be said that Byron takes second place to Davern (a wonderful solo on the title-track) and even to Sandke, who arranged the whole event. 'Big Butter And Egg Man' is a cracking read of a Dixieland standard and Byron does enough imitation of Pops to keep the whole thing light and smiling.

Thomas Strønen (born 1972)

DRUMS

Member of Food with Iain Ballamy. Eclectic and highly intelligent.

 Humcrush Rune Grammofon 2039 Strønen; Ståle Storløkken (ky). 03.

(*) Parish ECM 987 0376 Strønen; Fredrik Ljungkvist (ts, cl); Bobo Stenson (p); Mats Eilertson (b). 4/04.

(*) Pohlitz Rune Grammofon 2051 Strønen (perc, elec solo). 05.

There are so many sides to Strønen's drumming that any generalization will prove right and misleading. The live duo with Supersilent keyboardist Storløkken is full of dense, dark, punchy rhythms, while the later record on ECM is more floating, and reminiscent to some of the (drummerless) Jimmy Giuffre trio. On the second RG disc, he dispenses with a collaborator and weaves a real-time collage of percussion, samples and other sounds. It's heady stuff, more coherent but less driven and energetic than the first album, where he had someone else to play off. The ECM disc is more conventional in format, but the 'Webernesqe' limpidity of these short pieces is very different to the high-energy approach of the other albums. Strønen still sounds like an artist dabbling in as many contexts as possible.

Frank Strozier (born 1937)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Born in Memphis, and subsequently moved to Chicago, New York and LA, never quite making it as a big name; briefly switched to piano.

 Fantastic Frank Strozier Vee-Jay 012 Strozier; Booker Little (t); Wynton Kelly, Billy Wallace (p); Paul Chambers, Bill Lee (b); Jimmy Cobb, Vernell Fournier (d). 12/59–2/60.

() Cool, Calm And Collected / () Cloudy And Cool Koch 8552 / Vee-Jay 013 As above, except omit Little, Kelly, Chambers, Cobb. 10/60; 60.

Strozier's early work for Vee-Jay has come back into circulation. Apart from Kelly's 'WK Blues' and Little's 'Waltz Of The Demons' almost all the material on the debut album is Strozier's own and in a fairly orthodox hard-bop idiom. 'A Starling's Theme' hints at his quiet originality, while 'Runnin'' is almost self-consciously generic. It may also have been a reference to the fact that he was working with Miles Davis's rhythm section. They blend together beautifully, leaving it to Strozier and the remarkable, ill-fated Little to roughen up the surface with some dramatic playing.

The extra material is pretty lame and forgettable, but any additional glimpses of Strozier in this period have to be welcome. That pretty much goes for the whole of Cool, Calm And Collected and the well-named Cloudy And Cool, two more sessions for Vee-Jay that weren't actually released until the early '90s. Because all the takes are included, the first of the pair set is extremely repetitive and ultimately rather dull. Surely a good double-CD culling the best of this period might have been a better option.

(*) Long Night / March of the Siamese Children Milestone MCD 47095 Strozier; George Coleman (ts); Pat Patrick (bs, f); Chris Anderson, Harold Mabern (p); Bill Lee (b); Al Dreares, Walter Perkins (d). 9/61–3/62.

There was probably a touch of wilful perversity about Frank Strozier's career. Who else made a jazz standard out of 'March Of The Siamese Children' from The King And I? Who else promised so much only to disappear so completely into obscurity? These two albums were made with Orrin Keepnews, and hearing them again does raise the question why they have remained out of catalogue for so long. Strozier came to rely on Mabern and Spike Lee's father Bill, but another curiosity of this compilation is the work of Pat Patrick, best known as a Sun Ra acolyte.

Long Night is by far the better of the pair. George Coleman is in superb form, revealing with every chorus what an original grasp of harmony he has. 'Happiness Is A Thing Called Joe' is another of the rarities Frank digs up for the date, and Coleman is inside the tune like a terrier. Strozier doubles on flute effectively. The later tracks don't have the same punch, though the themes are equally oddball, but taken together this adds a significant dimension to the career.

 Remember Me Steeplechase SCCD 31106 Strozier; Danny Moore (flhn); Howard Johnson (tba); Harold Mabern (p); Lisle Atkinson (b); Michael Carvin (d). 11/76.

 What's Going Out Steeplechase SCCD 31420 As above, except omit Johnson, Atkinson, Carvin; add Stafford James (b); Louis Hayes (d). 77.

As an album title, Remember Me has a slightly plangent sound when you think that Strozier hadn't made a record in his own name since 1962. All the stranger when one hears how original his sound could be, especially in this augmented format, with lots of action in the lower registers. Strozier himself liked to play around the low end of his horn, punctuating these passages with gospelly wails that are somewhat reminiscent of Jackie McLean. Moore and Mabern accentuate that impression and the redoubtable Howard Johnson brings his unique touch to the bass-lines, though Atkinson is no mean performer or writer. It's very much Strozier's gig, though. 'For Our Elders' is a remarkable piece, post-bop of a unique stamp and a good place to begin the rehabilitation of a neglected reputation.

The second Steeplechase date feels like something of an afterthought. There is nothing of the sheer power of 'For Our Elders', and only 'Chelsea Drugs' and the feeling 'Psalm For John Coltrane' match up to the previous album. There is still some excellent playing, though, and the recruitment of Hayes at the drumkit was an inspired stroke; a much more swinging delivery than Carvin.

Dave Stryker (born 1957)

GUITAR

Born in Omaha, he began playing in local rock bands. Moved to LA, then to New York in 1980. Worked with Jack McDuff, Lonnie Smith, Jimmy Smith and Stanley Turrentine.

 Stryke Zone Steeplechase SCCD 31277 Stryker; Marc Cohen (p); Ron McClure (b); Ronnie Burrage (d). 10/90.

* Passage Steeplechase SCCD 31330 Stryker; Steve Slagle (ss, as); Joey Calderazzo (p); Jay Anderson (b); Adam Nussbaum (d). 3/91.

(*) Blue Degrees Steeplechase SCCD 31315 Stryker; Rick Margitza (ts); Larry Goldings (org); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 4/92.

 Full Moon Steeplechase SCCD 31345 Stryker; Steve Slagle (as, f); Jay Anderson (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 10/93.

Stryker did long service in the pressure-cooker atmosphere of Jack McDuff and Jimmy Smith groups, and while he prefers a slightly blurred tone over the crisp lines of many modern guitarists, he has a knack for cutting through any ensemble. 'Jungle' on Passage is an example of how he digs into a solo – the leering bent notes and swaggering delivery are a startling display. But the fast, bop lines of 'It's You Or No One' on the same record show he has the necessary language down pat. Consistently energetic and persuasive, there's little to choose between these records as regards his own playing. Stryke Zone is a shade behind for a rhythm section that doesn't quite strike best sparks, and the next two Steeplechases are the place to start. Passage is an all-round programme – there's a brief, pretty 'I Fall In Love Too Easily' as a nice change of pace – with both intensity and finesse. Blue Degrees is just a touch cooler – Goldings, the only organ-player ever to feature on a Steeplechase date at that point, is more of a pastel player than a bar-burner – but the undervalued Margitza is a welcome presence, and Stryker is full of ideas again.

Full Moon is perhaps a mite disappointing as the next in the sequence. Ornette Coleman's 'The Sphinx' makes a hurried, splashy opening, Coltrane's 'Wise One' is mush for flute and acoustic guitar, and not till Slagle's 'Leadbelly Sez' do they really dig in. But there's still some marvellous playing on Wayne Shorter's 'Deluge' and two slow-to-mid blues.

 Stardust Steeplechase SCCD 31362 Stryker; Joey DeFrancesco (org); Adam Nussbaum (d). 10/94.

 Nomad Steeplechase SCCD 31371 Stryker; Randy Brecker, Bill Warfield, Bob Millikan, John Eckert, Tony Kadleck, Bud Burridge (t); Tim Sessions, Jeff Nelson (tb); Steve Slagle, Andy Fusco, Bob Hanlon, Alex Stewart, Walt Weiskopf, Bob Parsons (reeds); Joel Weiskopf (p); Scott Colley, Lynn Seaton (b); Jeff Hirshfield, Grisha Alexiev (d). 8/94.

(*) The Greeting Steeplechase SCCD 31387 Stryker; Bruce Barth (p); Scott Colley (b); Tony Reedus (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc). 11/95.

 Blue To The Bone Steeplechase SCCD 31371 Stryker; Brian Lynch (t); Conrad Herwig (tb); Rich Perry (ts); Bob Parsons (bs); Bruce Barth (p, org); Jay Anderson (b); Billy Drummond (d). 3/96.

Stryker's good run continues on these latest Steeplechases, though there's a certain sense of diminishing returns, and not many will want to own all of these. Stardust sets him up with Joey DeFrancesco on the kind of gig he cut his teeth on, and with the organist in his usual bumptious form the session slips by in friendly style, though it presses few demands on the listener. Nomad is perhaps the most disappointing record, given that this was a rare opportunity to be a featured soloist with a big band. There's nothing wrong with the record, yet there seems so little to remember: the arrangements feel perfunctory, if not exactly hurried, and soloists like Brecker and Slagle do no more than they have to. Stryker plays handsomely enough, but it feels like a mishandled project. The Greeting is more satisfying in every way: Stryker's originals are a sound lot, Barth is a good new companion, and the guitarist finds his most melodic and purposefully aggressive form, though the closing cover of a Sonny Sharrock tune scarcely competes with that departed master.

Blue To The Bone tries another variation by sticking to straight-up blues with a horn section and Barth turning to the organ. Again, Stryker knows this terrain well, and there's no lack of feeling or grit in the delivery: his bottleneck intro to 'Bayou

Blues' is an arresting touch, and Slagle's chart for 'Messenger' is very sharp. In the end, though, this feels like an LP-length project getting tuckered out over a CD's duration.

 Shades Of Miles Steeplechase SCCD 31480 Stryker; Brian Lynch (t); Steve Slagle (ss, as); Billy Drewes (ss, ts, bcl); Marc Copland, Larry Goldings (org); Terry Burns (b); Billy Hart (d); Manolo Badrena (perc). N.D.
(*) Changing Times Steeplechase SCCD 31510 Stryker; Steve Slagle (ss, as); Bill Morning (b); Tim Horner (d); Manolo Badrena (perc). 12/99.
Turning the Miles Davis early-fusion music into a repertory exercise doesn't seem like a great idea, and though the band is stuffed with good players, as an ensemble they have nothing particular to say. Lynch steers well clear of Davis-isms, to his credit, and the soloists work capably when tracks such as 'Topaz' and 'Sienna' come to the boil.

Changing Times is better and simply returns Stryker to his strengths: thoughtful small-combo music, with no special agenda, but deftly coloured and smartly played. Horner's not too tasteful a drummer and Badrena puts in some odd amusing touches, so the session's usefully roughed-up, which suits Slagle as well.

 Shades Beyond Steeplechase SCCD 31559 Stryker; Steve Slagle (ss, as); David Berkman (p, org); Terry Burns (b); Lenny White (d). 8/01.
(*) Big City Mel Bay MB 06562 Stryker; David Kikoski (p); Ed Howard (b); Victor Lewis (d). 11/04.
Shades Beyond feels like a regular blowing record: hot band, top chops, but there's an aimlessness about it which suggests that Stryker needs some new strategy. What felt exciting on Passage seems to have ebbed away. The album for Mel Bay (basically a publishing house, but just starting with records) might be the answer. Everything feels fresher and better. Stryker's solos have finesse and bite, Kikoski, who always seems to work well with guitarists, does some superb work in support and as soloist, and Howard and Lewis row right in.

Stryker and Slagle also have a couple of records out as joint leaders on Zoho, which are worth investigating.

Also, in brief:

 All The Way Steeplechase SCCD 31455. 4/97.
Stryker grasps the nettle of a trio session, mystifyingly described as 'a seldom-explored milieu' in the notes. The playing is comely and expansive.

(*) Blue To The Bone II /  Blue To The Bone III Steeplechase SCCD 31465 / 31524. 4/98; 3/01.
There's something to enjoy here, but these are both too polite for the genre and never quite convince.

 The Chaser Mel Bay 212. 11/05.
Generic guitar/organ jazz; entertaining but a bit vacuous.

() Strike Up The Band Steeplechase SCCD 31637. 07.
Received only as we went to press. Sounds up to scratch, but more next time.

Dick Sudhalter (born 1938)

CORNET, TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

A jazz writer of great distinction, his lyricism owes much to Bix, of whom he has written the definitive biography.

 With Pleasure Audiophile ACD-159 Sudhalter; Dan Barrett (tb); Bob Reitmeier (cl, as, ts); Dan Levinson (cl, ts); Joe Muranyi (cl); David Frishberg (p, v); James Cirillo (g); Howard Alden (g, bj); Putter Smith (tba, b); Bill Crow (b); Eddie Locke, Dick Berk (d). 3/81–4/94.
 After Awhile Challenge CHR 70014 Sudhalter; Roy Williams (tb); Jim Shepherd (tb, bsx); John R. T. Davies (as); Al Gay (ts); Keith Nichols (p, tb); Mick Pyne (p); Nevil Skrimshire, Paul Sealey (g); Dave Green, Jack Fallon (b); Allan Ganley, Jack Parnell (d); Chris Ellis (v). 5–6/94.
Sudhalter's Bixian brass stylings have tended to take a back seat to his jazz scholarship, but he is a lyrical player and a rare example of a musician/historian who can make his enthusiasms take on a personal cast when he plays. These good-natured sessions make no great demands on the listener, but they're enjoyable for all that. The first reissues a 1981 date with eight extra, subsequent tracks, and it blends the echoes of a vanished Chicago with a few more-modern licks: Sudhalter cuts from such ancient cloth as 'Madame Dynamite' and 'Boneyard Shuffle' and reshapes a Beiderbecke legacy such as 'Slow River' into a winsome duet with Frishberg. The Challenge album goes to the other side of the Atlantic – to the Bull's Head in Barnes, in fact – and brings on an English team for a similarly inclined session. The material isn't quite so arcane here, but the playing probably isn't quite as vivacious either.

 Melodies Heard ... Melodies Sweet Challenge CHR 70055 Sudhalter; Roger Kellaway, Sy Johnson (p); Frank Vignola, James Chirillo (g); Ed Saindon (vib); Marshall Wood (b); Joe Cocuzzo (d); Barbara Lea (v). 5–8/98.
It is, indeed, sweet and melodious music, and Sudhalter's own playing has never sounded better. Six duets with his old friend Kellaway are good enough to wish for an entire album by the duo, and the concept – songs by jazzmen – is lightly worn, since the tunes are an unhackneyed and likeable lot. But it never feels like much more than an amiable time-passer, graciously though everyone plays – perhaps too graciously. Lea sings two lyrics, and the others come and go at the leader's suggestion.

Ira Sullivan (born 1931)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, PECKHORN, SAXOPHONES

An enigma, a transitional figure between bop and free music whose restless style and intriguing multi-instrumentalism may well have had an impact on the nascent AACM generation in Chicago.

(*) Nicky's Tune Delmark DD 422 Sullivan; Nicky Hill (sax); Jodie Christian (p); Vic Sproles (b); Wilbur Campbell (d). 58.
 Blue Stroll Delmark DD 602 As above, except omit Hill; add Johnny Griffin (ts). 59.
 Bird Lives! Koch 8553 Sullivan; Nicky Hill (ts); Jodie Christian (p); Don Garrett (b); Dorel Anderson, Wilbur Campbell (d). 3/62.
 After Hours Go Jazz 6052 Sullivan; Bill Carrothers, Bobby Peterson (p); Billy Peterson (b); Kenny Horst (d). 5/96, 6/98.
Sullivan started out as a bopper, but one who assiduously avoided the basic, standards-based repertoire in favour of new material; this, it seems, was the condition he imposed when he went on the road with Red Rodney. These two albums for Delmark are all that's generally available of his fairly modest own-name output.

The earlier of the pair is dedicated to the equally enigmatic Nicky Hill, one of those catalytic players who remained little known outside a small circle. Like all of Ira's output, it's a slightly puzzling and forbidding experience if you approach it expecting basic changes and contrafacts on 'I Got Rhythm', 'Cherokee' and 'How High The Moon'. Ira's harmonic sense is unimpeachable and his understanding with the excellent Christian is intuitive and sympathetic. Trumpet is the dominant voice on both records, but the saxophones and peckhorn are deployed to excellent effect. This was the period when Ira was losing patience with the formulae of bebop, even his own individual brand, and was striking out in the direction of free jazz. There are atonal and polytonal episodes on Nicky's Tune, fewer on the set with Griff, who barges and blusters his way through his solos, tossing out tags and quotes as if to remind the others what else was going on in the world.

Bird Lives! was recorded at a Parker memorial concert at the Birdhouse in Chicago. 'Si Si' is the unexpected high of the first disc, but there's now a range of previously unissued material (none of it Parker-written) on the second side, including a fine interpretation of 'Milestones' and an excellent, unexpected 'Omicron' by Donald Byrd.

The later material simply underlines how neglected Sullivan has been outside Chicago. Taken from two sessions a couple of years apart, the disc highlights his tenor-playing and centres on a great reading of 'Ira's Blues'.

Joe Sullivan (1906–71)

PIANO

Studied and worked in Chicago until he joined Crosby in 1936, but was sidelined by illness. Worked in group and solo situations in the '40s and '50s but drifted into obscurity.

 Joe Sullivan 1933–1941 Classics 821 Sullivan; Ed Anderson (t); Benny Morton (tb); Edmond Hall, Pee Wee Russell (cl); Danny Polo (ts, cl); Freddie Green (g); Billy Taylor, Henry Turner (b); Yank Porter, Zutty Singleton, Johnny Wells (d); Joe Turner, Helen Ward (v). 9/33–3/41.

This collects all of Sullivan's piano solos of the period, plus the two dates by his Café Society Orchestra and a 1941 trio date for Commodore with Pee Wee Russell and Zutty Singleton. Sullivan had a terrific left hand and his style was a personal blend of boogie-woogie and stride language, imbued with a shot of local Chicago blues. Not a great melodist, perhaps, which gives some of the dozen solos here a certain sameness, and the band tracks are nothing very special; but the intensity of Sullivan's style has weathered the years well enough and his bluff passion gives the music bite.

(*) Joe Sullivan 1944–1945 Classics 1070 Sullivan; Archie Rosatie (cl); Ulysses Livingston (g); Artie Shapiro (b); Zutty Singleton (d). 11/44–12/45.

Twenty of these 24 tracks are solos, and they're some of Sullivan's best work. Two obscure sides for Sunset are rocking boogie-woogie pieces. There are eight tracks made for Capitol EPs and an undated session that was later issued on Folkways. Sullivan's virtues shine through – his almost violent swing, the Irish humour, the no-nonsense improvising – and it's an enjoyable disc. Four quintet tracks are nothing special. This sound isn't terrible, but don't expect hi-fi.

Also, in brief:

(*) Piano Solo Storyville STCD 8234. 8/53.

Joe worked at Club Hangover in San Francisco and this catches him there, when you can hear him over the crowd. Also includes a private recording by Richard Hadlock, who writes a touching liner-note.

Maxine Sullivan (1911–87)

VOICE

Born Marietta Williams, she started a craze for jazzing folk material when Claude Thornhill did arrangements of a couple of Scottish songs for her. Worked with John Kirby, Benny Goodman and others, then as a solo, before retiring to be a nurse during the '50s. She came back around 1960 and kept singing (and sometimes playing valve-trombone) into the '80s.

 Maxine Sullivan 1937–1938 Classics 963 Sullivan; Manny Klein, Charlie Spivak, Frankie Newton, Charlie Shavers (t); Bobby Hackett (c); Jack Lacey (tb); Buster Bailey (cl); Jimmy Lytell, Paul Ricci (cl, as); Toots Mondello, Jess Carneol, Pete Brown (as); Babe Russin (ts); Eddie Powell (bs, f); Claude Thornhill (p); Artie Bernstein, John Kirby (b); Chauncey Morehouse, O'Neil Spencer, Buddy Rich (d). 6/37–6/38.

(*) Maxine Sullivan 1938–1941 Classsics 991 Sullivan; Bobby Hackett (c); Lloyd Reese, Charlie Shavers, Doc Cheatham, Lincoln Mills, Sidney De Paris (t); Vic Dickenson, Jimmy Archey, Joe Britton (tb); Slats Long, Chester Hazlett (cl, as); Buster Bailey, Leo Trammel, Reggie Merrill, Eddie Powell (cl); Benny Carter (t, as); Floyd Turnham, Russell Procope, Ernie Purce, Eddie Barefield (as); Bud Freeman, Buddy Banks, Fred Williams, Ernie Powell (ts); Carl Prager (bcl); Harold Goltzer (bsn); Mitch Miller (ob); Milt Rettenberg, Eddie Beal, Walter Gross, Billy Kyle, Sonny White (p); Ken Binford, Herb Thomas (g); Ed Brader, Red Callender, Frank Carroll, John Kirby, Charles Drayton (b); Ed Rubsam, Oscar Bradley, Cary Gillis, O'Neil Spencer, Al Taylor (d). 12/38–4/41.

 More 1940–1941 Circle CCD-125 Sullivan; Charlie Shavers (t); Buster Bailey (cl); Russell Procope (as); Billy Kyle (p); John Kirby (b); O'Neil Spencer (d). 10/40–11/41.

(*) Maxine Sullivan 1941–1946 Classics 1020 Sullivan; Charlie Shavers, Emmett Berry, Shorty Rogers, Joe Newman, Neal Hefti (t); Al Grey, Trummy Young, Alton Moore, Sandy Williams (tb); Buster Bailey, Hank D'Amico (cl); Russell Procope (as); Willard Brown (as, bs); Tony Scott (cl, as); Dexter Gordon, Don Byas (ts); Billy Kyle, Kenneth Billings, Teddy Wilson, Sonny White (p); Samuel Persoff, Samuel Rand, Joseph Breen (vn); Laura Newell (hp); Everett Barksdale, Freddie Green, Tony Colucci (g); Red Norvo (vib); John Kirby, Cedric Wallace, Billy Taylor, John Simmons, Harry Patent (b); O'Neil Spencer, Morey Feld, Specs Powell, J. C. Heard (d); strings. 6/41–46.

(*) The 'Le Ruban Bleu' Years Baldwin Street BJH-303 Similar to above, except add Ellis Larkins (p); Everett Barksdale (g); Beverley Peer (b); Jimmie Lunceford Orchestra (personnel unidentified). 44–49.

'Loch Lomond' was the novelty hit which launched Maxine Sullivan's career, part of a faintly ludicrous vogue for turning folk tunes and 'light music' into swing vehicles. The song (and 'Darling Nellie Gray', 'It Was A Lover And His Lass' and so forth) still works, though, because of Sullivan's transparent, almost ghostly singing. She didn't really swing her material so much as give it a lilting quality, floating it on phrasing that was measured and controlled without sounding excessively polite. Her version of 'St Louis Blues' sounds mousy next to a voice like Bessie Smith's, but the demure melancholy with which she invests it is surprisingly compelling. She also finds a particular tranquil beauty in 'Easy To Love', 'Moments Like This' and 'Spring Is Here'. All these are on Classics 963, which covers her successful first years in the studios. A disc's worth of this is a lot in one go, though, and we find the Classics transfers inconsistent and surely muddier than they should be.

Classics 991 picks up the story and starts with three sessions for Victor, then two with John Kirby's small group, which was an almost ideal setting for Max. There are some good, forgotten songs here such as 'I'm Happy About The Whole Thing' and 'Kinda Lonesome', as well as the expected updates of such as 'Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes'. But the Kirby dates, with their gentle jig-jog rhythms and pastel tones, suit her wonderfully well. 'If I Had A Ribbon Bow' is a definitive piece of Sullivan. Classics 1020 carries on with ten more charming titles with Kirby, before an interesting and obscure date for Beacon, two titles with Teddy Wilson, four with a Benny Carter band and six with a chamberish group that remade several of her earlier successes. The sound on these last titles is very muddy, on the rest average-to-good. Sullivan's singing remains rather demure and unconfected but, taken a few tracks at a time, she is irresistible.

The Baldwin Street release (Le Ruban Bleu was a supper club where Sullivan sang for several seasons from 1943) duplicates many of the tracks with Classics 1020 but also adds six splendid tracks with an Ellis Larkins trio (in surfacey sound), a pair of songs with a 1949 studio orchestra ('Cry, Buttercup, Cry' a choice rarity) and some AFRS transcriptions with the Lunceford orchestra. A collectors' delight!

The Circle CD collects a series of transcriptions by the John Kirby group, six of which feature Sullivan. Some of them continue the folk-towards-jazz theme, and Kirby's willowy band are perhaps all too suitable as a backing group, but the music exudes an undeniable period charm. Excellent sound, given the source.

CORE COLLECTION

 Close As Pages In A Book
Audiophile 203 Sullivan; Bob Wilber (ss, cl); Bernie Leighton (p); George Duvivier (b); Gus Johnson Jr (d). 6/69.

Sullivan retired in the '50s but later returned to regular singing (she also played flugelhorn and valve-trombone) and by the '80s was as widely admired as she had ever been. Her manner didn't change much but, as recording improved, her intimate style and meticulous delivery sounded as classic as any of the great jazz singers. In her 70s there was inevitably a decline in the strength of her voice, but careful production ensured that her albums sounded very good. This record was long a collectors' favourite, and it makes a welcome return on CD. The dozen songs are perfectly delivered – thoughtful, graceful, introspective without being introverted, this is peerless jazz singing, and the accompaniments by Wilber and his team are as simpatico as one could wish.

 Sullivan Shakespeare Hyman Audiophile 250 Sullivan; Rusty Dedrick (t, flhn); Dick Hyman (p, hpd); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Milt Hinton (b); Don Lamond (d). 6/71.

 The Queen: Like Someone In Love Kenneth CKS 3402 Sullivan; Bent Persson (t); Jens Lindgren (tb); Göran Eriksson (as); Erik Persson, Claes Brodda (ts); Björn Milder (p); Mikael Selander (vn, g); Ronie Holmqvist, Anders Rabe (g); Olle Brostedt (b, g); Göran Lind (b); Sigge Dellert (d). 10/78–5/83.

(*) The Queen: Something To Remember Her By Kenneth CKS 3406 Sullivan; Bent Persson (t); George Vernon (tb); Claes Brodda (cl, ts); Göran Eriksson (as); Erik Persson (ts, bs); Björn Milder (p); Mikael Selander (g); Olle Brostedt (g, b); Göran Lind (b); Sigge Dellert (d). 10/78–7/84.

The Shakespeare collection was the last word on Sullivan's 'Elizabethan' direction and it sounds better, at least, than Cleo Laine's efforts in this field. The pick of these, though, may be the beautiful Something To Remember Her By collection on Kenneth, cut in Sweden with local players. The sessions cover a six-year period, but Maxine sounds entirely at ease throughout, whether swinging on 'You Were Meant For Me' or strolling through 'Thanks For The Memory'. The band are very fine, too, with Brodda's Websterish tenor and Eriksson's sinuous alto particularly impressive. Like Someone In Love is drawn from the same sessions but isn't quite as good.

 Enjoy Yourself! Audiophile ACD 154 Sullivan; Herman Foretich (cl, ts); Sil Austin (ts); Dardanelle (p, v); Dan Wall (p); Bob Shaw (g); Ike Isaacs, Bob Haggart (b); Steve Ellington, Bryan Childers (d). 2/78–5/85.

(*) Love ... Always Baldwin Street BJC-201 Sullivan; Seldon Powell (ts, f); Dick Hyman (p); Major Holley (b); Mel Lewis (d). 12/85.

(*) Spring Isn't Everything Audiophile ACD 229 Sullivan; Loonis McGlohon (p); Jim Stack (vib); Terry Peoples (b); Bill Stowe (d). 7/86.

 Highlights In Jazz Storyville STCD 8276 Sullivan; Doc Cheatham (t); Bill Watrous (tb); Phil Bodner (cl); Buddy Tate (ts); Derek Smith (p); Milt Hinton (b); Butch Miles (d). 3/87.

Max never slowed down: she recorded 16 albums in the '80s, and Spring Isn't Everything, one of her last sessions, features a 'songbook' recital (the tracks are all by Harry Warren) which finds her still in excellent shape. Unfortunately the studio balance doesn't favour her at all. Enjoy Yourself! pairs a farly routine 1978 session with a group led by Ike Isaacs with a superior 1985 set under Bob Haggart's watchful eye, which goes with a good swing. She's given marvellous support on Love ... Always, with Hyman in top form and the admirable and unjustly neglected Seldon Powell filling in many of the backgrounds. She makes as much of more modern songs like 'He's Got Away' and 'Two For The Road' as she does of the more-familiar standards: a fine example of latter-day Sullivan. The Storyville set is a New York concert, cut only weeks before she died. The studio records are better, but it's hard to listen to this set and not be moved by her still indomitable artistry, which here closes with a ten-minute 'St Louis Blues'.

Stan Sulzmann (born 1948)

TENOR, ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, ALTO FLUTE

An enduring and inspirational presence on the British scene. Big guy, too.

 Treasure Trove ASC CD 7 Sulzmann; Nikki Iles (p); Martin Pyne (perc). 10/95.

A classic case of a Talent Deserving Wider Recognition who has failed to break through to the audiences his ability and commitment would seem to merit. Sulzmann's showing in the CD era has been consistently self-effacing and underachieved. Treasure Trove benefits from the presence of Nikki Iles. She has something of Geri Allen's richness of texture and rhythmic awareness and, good as she is in a larger group setting, she comes across most formidably in settings like this one. Pyne is restricted to just one number, on which Sulzmann also airs his beautifully toned alto flute, and it was a good notion not to clutter this partnership with any other guest slots. The range of Sulzmann's reeds and Iles's intelligently varied attack, in combination with fascinating material (all originals, except Paul Simon's 'I Do It For Your Love' and Bill Evans's 'Since We Met'), contribute to a satisfying set that could perhaps have done with a bit more studio presence.

 Birthdays, Birthdays Village Life 99108VL Sulzmann; Patrick White, Henry Lowther, Noel Langley, Kenny Wheeler, Derek Watkins (t); Mark Bassey, Pete Beachill, Jeremy Price, Nichol Thomson, Richard Henry, Sarah Williams (tb); Ray Warleigh, Martin Hathaway, Julian Siegel, Pete Hurt, Mick Foster (sax); Pete Saberton (p); Frank Ricotti (vib); John Parricelli (g); Tim Wells (b); Paul Clarvis (d). 7–8/99.

Sulzmann conducts and composes but plays very little on this record (he's credited only with 'toy saxophone' on a single track). Played with great gusto by a strong team of British pros, the music is expertly put across if somewhat hard to follow at times: 'Little Dog' seems like a bundle of bits and pieces, and the bebop line of 'Newness' searches for a context for itself. Some of the scores sound overcrowded with incident. But when, as on the ingenious 'Midnight', everything locks into place, the results are impressive. Stan should have given himself more to do as a player, too.

 The Jigsaw Basho SRCD 10-2 Sulzmann; Marc Copland (p, ky); Larry Grenadier (b); Bill Stewart (d). 04.

Stan's association with Copland has been a happy one and on this set, recorded in New York, they share the composing honours to some extent. The saxophonist's 'Jack Stix' is a terrific line and the band have some fun with it. Another of the standouts is Kenny Wheeler's title-piece, which comes in at the end, almost as a kind of summing up. Sulzmann is in good voice throughout this, playing with what can only be described (lamely) as relaxed fire. It's a sound that comes out initially lulling, but you wouldn't mess with the player on 'Maudley' or 'Not A Ballad', which is co-credited with Stewart, who presumably set the underlying pulse. A fine set that sees Sulzmann working on an international stage; not before time.

Sun Ra (1914–93)

PIANO, CLAVIOLINE, CELESTE, ORGAN, SYNTHESIZER

Either a fearsome avant-gardist or a traditionalist in the line of Fletcher Henderson, for whom he arranged early in his career. The truth about Sun Ra was that he was both those things. The man born Herman 'Sonny' Blount in Alabama grew up steeped in the blues. Even when he founded his famous Arkestra, with its theatrical approach to jazz, and became a leading presence on the Chicago improvisation scene, his work was always grounded in melody and in blues changes. Sun Ra's claim to come from Saturn was one of the great metaphors of Black American music.

(*) Sound Sun Pleasure!! Evidence ECD 22014 Sun Ra; Hobart Dotson, Akh Tal Ebah, Art Hoyle (t); Bob Northern (flhn); Marshall Allen, Danny Davis (as); John Gilmore (ts); Charles Davis, Pat Patrick (bs); Danny Ray Thompson (reeds); Stuff Smith (vn); Ronnie Boykins, Victor Sproles (b); Robert Barry, Nimrod Hunt, James Jackson, Clifford Jarvis (d); Hatty Randolph, Clyde Williams (v). 53–60.

(*) Supersonic Jazz Evidence ECD 22015 Sun Ra; Art Hoyle (t); Julian Priester (tb); James Scales (as); Pat Patrick (as, bs); John Gilmore (ts); Charles Davis (bs); Wilburn Green, Victor Sproles (b); Robert Barry, William 'Bugs' Cochran (d); Jim Herndon (perc). 56.

(*) Visits Planet Earth / Interstellar Low Ways Evidence ECD 22039 Sun Ra; Phil Cohran, Art Hoyle, George Hudson, Lucious Randolph, Dave Young (t); Julian Priester, Nate Pryor (tb); James Spaulding (as); Marshall Allen (as, f); Pat Patrick (as, bs, space f, bells, solar d); John Gilmore (ts, bells, solar d); Charles Davis (bs); Ronnie Boykins, Victor Sproles (b); Robert Barry, William 'Bugs' Cochran, Edward Skinner (d); Jim Herndon (perc). 56, 58, 60.

 We Travel The Spaceways / Bad And Beautiful Evidence ECD 22038 Sun Ra; Art Hoyle, Walter Strickland (t); Phil Cohran (t, space harp, perc); Julian Priester, Nate Pryor (tb); James Scales, James Spaulding (as); Marshall Allen (as, bells, flying saucer, perc); John Gilmore (ts, cosmic bells, perc); Pat Patrick (bs, perc); Ronnie Boykins, Wilburn Green (b); Tommy Hunter (d); Robert Barry (d, perc); Edward Skinner (perc). 56, 58 OR 59, 59 OR 60, 61.

 Angels And Demons At Play / The Nubians Of Plutonia Evidence ECD 22066 Sun Ra; Bill Fielder, Lucious Randolph (t); Phil Cohran (t, zither); Bob Bailey, Julian Priester, Nate Pryor (tb); James Spaulding (as); Marshall Allen (as, f); Pat Patrick (as, bs); John Gilmore (ts, cl, bells); Charles Davis (bs); Ronnie Boykins, Wilburn Green (b); Robert Barry, Jon Hardy (d); Jim Herndon (perc). 56, 60.

Uncertainty about Sun Ra's seriousness (and sanity) tended to divert attention from a considerable three-decade output, which included well over 100 LPs. Because much of it remained inaccessible during his lifetime, critical responses were apt to concentrate on the paraphernalia associated with his Arkestra big band, rather than on the music. Nevertheless, he was one of the most significant bandleaders of the post-war period. He drew on Ellington and Fletcher Henderson, but also on the bop-derived avant-garde, and was a pioneer of collective improvisation.

Above all, Sun Ra maintained a solitary independence from the music industry, a principled stance that certainly cost him dear in critical and commercial terms. The El Saturn discs were reissued in toto by Evidence, a colossal project. Sound-quality is remarkably good, given the often shaky balance of the original masters and the fact that they've been subjected to uncertain storage conditions. The original titles have been preserved wherever possible, even when this has led to rather cumbersome doubling up. One of the drawbacks of Evidence's programme is the out-of-sequence pairing of sessions, rendering a strictly chronological review impossible.

The '50s were in many respects a golden age for Sun Ra and the Arkestra. The music is frankly experimental and the sci-fi apparatus was already part and parcel of American culture through the latter half of the decade. Chants like 'We Travel The Spaceways' began to sound more artful and mannered as the years went by, but for now they manage to sound almost spontaneous. There was always a suspicion that titles like 'Rocket Number Nine Take Off For The Planet Venus' were simply a diversionary addition to a fairly conventional jazz tune.

The original Sound Sun Pleasure!! has been filled out for CD by material from the '50s which was released in 1973 as Deep Purple. The earliest material appears to come from as early as 1953, a useful round-number indicator of Sun Ra's remarkable longevity, and features violinist Stuff Smith on the lo-fi, home-recorded title-track. Supersonic Jazz comes from the same period.

Again, it is a set of originals combining conventional harmony and orchestrations with a thoroughly individual 'voice' (conveyed in occasional devices like Wilburn Green's use of electric bass on 'Super Blonde' and the closing 'Medicine For A Nightmare') and a striking gentleness that contrast sharply with the often brutal aspect of contemporaneous hard bop. So good is Julian Priester's own brief 'Soft Talk' (the only non-Sun Ra composition) that one immediately wishes for more.

Bad And Beautiful, recorded during 1961, is thought to be the first Arkestra disc to be made in New York City. Chronologically it belongs after the last of the Chicago discs, Fate In A Pleasant Mood. There is no doubt that the pace slackened somewhat after this point, allowing greater concentration on detail and on refining the Arkestra sound. Compare the version of Sun Ra's bluesy 'Ankh' here with a harder-edged performance on Art Forms For Dimensions Tomorrow (see below). There are three standards on the session – the Previn/Raksin title-track, 'And This Is My Beloved' and 'Just In Time' – played in a rather more mannered and deliberate style than later in his career, but with no outer-space embellishments.

core collection

♛  Jazz In Silhouette

Evidence ECD 22012 Sun Ra; Hobart Dotson (t); Julian Priester (tb); Marshall Allen, James Spaulding (as, f); John Gilmore (ts); Charles Davis (bs); Pat Patrick (bs, f); Ronnie Boykins (b); William 'Bugs' Cochran (d). 58.

This marvellous record will surely some day be recognized as one of the most important jazz records since the war. The closing 'Blues At Midnight' is sheer excitement. The baritone solo on the short 'Saturn', most probably Patrick, is an extension of Sun Ra's brilliantly individual voicings. The great surprise of this recording (though presumably no surprise to those who have taken the Saturnian aesthetic fully on board) is its timelessness. Listening to 'Enlightenment', given an uncharacteristically straightforward reading, it's very difficult to guess a date for the performance. As Francis Davis suggests in a useful liner-note, it is ideal 'blindfold test' material that might have been recorded at any point from the '40s to the late '80s. Only the long drum passage on 'Ancient Aiethopia' and the astonishing Dotson solo and chants that follow sound unequivocally 'modern'. Inevitably, the next track, 'Hours After', is orthodox swing.

 Sound Of Joy /  Sun Song Delmark DS 414 / 411 Sun Ra; other personnel uncertain. 7/56.

As with other recordings of this period, the exact personnels are not definitively known. It seems that Julian Priester was only involved on a couple of tracks on Sound Of Joy and there is some argument as to whether he even played on them; Delmark have suggested that John Avant was the slide-player. There were also extra cuts made with singer Clyde Williams. These, though, are discographical quibbles. The music is classic period Arkestra and 'El Is A Sound Of Joy' and 'Overtones Of China' are important early recordings, strangely reminiscent in conception and structure of some of Ellington's more impressionistic pieces.

Sun Song may be a confusing title to those who collected Sun Ra LPs, because this one used to be called Jazz By Sun Ra. It has also appeared on Sonet and possibly other labels. It's a good-quality studio recording, apparently made at Universal in Chicago in July 1956. Revel's 'Possession' was a favourite item at the time, with a similarly spacey sound, but 'Street Named Hell', 'Future' and the (new) title-track are all excellent.

 The Singles Evidence ECD 22164 2CD Sun Ra; regular Arkestra personnel and soul/R&B groups; others unidentified or uncertain. 54–82.

An eye-opening title to be sure, but from the early '50s to the mid-'70s Sun Ra issued a huge array of singles, aiming to some extent for a jukebox market and airing his never-to-fade enthusiasm for doo-wop, R&B and funk. This is a key document in African-American music, underlining how much of a continuum there is between popular forms and the avant-garde, even during a period when separatist tendencies seemed to dominate. Included are sessions made in the later '60s with the 'space-age vocalist' Yochanan, with early groups like the Nu Sounds and the Cosmic Rays, and for vocalists like Lacy Gibson. Everyone will find favourites. Ours include a 1968-ish basement recording (without Sun Ra himself) and then a later radio station recording of 'I'm Gona Unmask The Batman', a glorious piano/drums duo with Luqman Ali on 'Rough-House Blues', 'Great Balls Of Fire' with the Arkestra in 1958, and the outrageously hokey 'Daddy's Gonna Tell You No Lie' with the Rays a couple of years earlier. Sound quality is as variable as elsewhere in the Saturn canon, but the sheer energy and verve of the performances more than make up for technical deficiencies. Jazz In Silhouette still remains our recommended Sun Ra record, but this runs it a close second, and it has the sterling advantage of tracing the Arkestra's and its leader's progress over more than two decades.

 Music From Tomorrow's World Atavistic Unheard Music 237 Sun Ra; Phil Cohran (c); George Hudson (t); Gene Easton (as); Marshall Allen (as, f); John Gilmore (ts); Ronald Wilson (bs); Ronnie Boykins (b); Robert Barry, Jon Hardy (d); Ricky Murray (v). 60.

A fascinating pair of sessions from 1960, rescued from oblivion by Atavistic curator John Corbett. The first set is a live date from the well-named Wonder Inn; the other was taped at Chicago's Majestic Hall, and is presumably a rehearsal, like so many of the Arkestra's recorded sessions. Sound-quality is variable, particularly on the latter set, and there is a certain amount of dinner-hour interruption on the first date, but the music is consistently interesting throughout and it's remarkable to think of diners sitting down to these sounds in 1960. Having said that, Ricky Murray's vocal on ''S'Wonderful', a long-term Sun Ra favourite, is absolutely conventional, though the Arkestra's vocal accompaniments are cheerfully eccentric. Sun Ra plays piano and electric piano throughout, with none of the space-organ effects of later years. There are also versions on the earlier date of 'How High The Moon' and 'It Ain't Necessarily So', though the highlight of that portion of the album is the opening 'Angels And Demons At Play', a never bettered performance. On the Majestic date, 'Possession' is a composition by Harry Revel, who also took an interest in the exotic and the cosmic.

(*) When Angels Speak Of Love Evidence ECD 22216 Sun Ra; Walter Miller (t); Marshall Allen (as, ob, perc); John Gilmore (ts, perc); Pat Patrick (bs, perc); Robert Cummings (bcl); Ronnie Boykins (b); Clifford Jarvis (d). 63.

One of the best albums of this period and the title-track is one of his best compositions; it resurfaces on the label's Greatest Hits package. The record wasn't released for some years after recording, presumably for budgetary reasons, but it must have arrived in the middle of a music scene rather more ready for these outer-edge sounds than it would have been in the otherwise unexpectedly conservative year of 1963. Having said that, this is by no means the most way-out of Sun Ra's discs of the period and as such may appeal more to jazz fans who find the chants and pink noise mystifying. The leader's free-form playing is tempered by some lovely, almost balladic touches.

 Monorails And Satellites Evidence ECD 22013 2 Sun Ra (p solo). 66.

There has always been a convention that Sun Ra's 'real' instrument was the collective sound of the Arkestra itself. While it has been contextualized with reference to the Henderson and Ellington orchestras or, looking forward, to Gil Evans and AACM, it's very rare to find the leader's piano-playing contextualized in the same way. With that in mind, it's worth noting that in the year Monorails And Satellites was made, Andrew Hill released Andrew! and Cecil Taylor Unit Structures on Blue Note; Chick Corea released his debut, Tones For Joan's Bones; Solo Monk had appeared the year before, and fellow Chicagoan Muhal Richard Abrams's Levels And Degrees Of Light was still some months away. How does Sun Ra fare, compared to these? The immediate and obvious response is that Monorails And Satellites sounds rather old-fashioned, but at a second hearing there are aspects which are entirely unprecedented: great blocks of pure sound, a tonal richness and uncertainty that suggest Scriabin rather than James P. Johnson. There are few warp-speed runs on Monorails: rather, a gently spacey version of 'arranger's piano' that always seems to suggest cues for an absent band. The title-track certainly sounds like a direct transcription of Arkestra charts, as does the opening 'Space Towers'. 'The Galaxy Way', though, is entirely pianistic, a remarkable performance by any measure. Only one standard this time around: a surprisingly smooth version of 'East Street'.

 Fate In A Pleasant Mood / When Sun Comes Out / * Cosmic Tones For Mental Therapy / Art Forms For Dimensions Tomorrow / * Other Planes Of There Evidence ECD 22068 / 22036 / 22037 Sun Ra; regular Arkestra personnel and others. 60, 62–63; 61–62, 63; 64.

This is where the outer-space stuff begins with a vengeance. Sun Ra briefly experimented with the Hammond, producing huge, blocky areas of sound. Curiously, it wasn't an instrument that greatly attracted him, and recorded instances are surprisingly rare (there is another on We Travel The Spaceways). He coaxes extraordinary percussive effects from it on 'Moon Dance', the first highlight of Cosmic Tones. The other, unquestionably, is John Gilmore's long solo on 'Adventure-Equation'. It's a rare outing for Gilmore on bass clarinet (duties normally assigned to Robert Cummings), the only instrument he's credited with on this album. There has to be some doubt about this, as about most of these personnel details; but there is no doubt about the quality of the solo, which is his most compelling on record until 'Body And Soul' on Holiday For Soul Dance, several years later. The album is awash with echo effects and thunderous reverb, apparently devised by drummer Thomas Hunter, who claimed production and engineering credits. The 1961–2 Art Forms material is a good deal more straightforward in terms of pure sound, and the playing is absolutely up to standard. The band turns in a sterling performance of 'Ankh' (see Bad And Beautiful, above) which includes steaming solos from Patrick and trombonist Ali Hassan.

Fate/Sun is a less appealing compilation but it does catch the Arkestra at a critical juncture. Fate In A Pleasant Mood documents the last Arkestra to be based in Chicago; it therefore strictly precedes the first of the New York sessions, Bad And Beautiful, which is listed above. Following a trip to Canada in the spring of 1961, a long-standing Arkestra began to break up, leaving only a rump of loyal adherents: Gilmore, Allen, Boykins and, despite having set out on a solo course, Pat Patrick, who signed up for a second term. Sun Ra began recruiting new members, including the teenage Danny Davis, who makes a solid impact on When Sun Comes Out. Gilmore sounds jaded and tentative on this record, and there is little of the spark of the earlier band, less still of its inspired weirdness. The appearance of Theda Barbara on 'Circe' is a foretaste of how important singers like June Tyson were to become in years to come.

Other Planes Of There is a long-overlooked masterpiece, but certainly also an oddity in the canon. In effect, it is Sun Ra's concerto for Arkestra. His own piano introduction touches bases all the way from Bud Powell to Cecil Taylor, and there are wonderful solos from Danny Davis, Gilmore and Marshall Allen (on oboe). The rest of the record consists of shorter, jazzier segments, with another thoughtful solo from Gilmore on 'Sketch' and a more sensuous statement from Patrick on 'Pleasure'. Other Planes stands apart from the other recordings in this group. The instrumentation is straighter and the structures more obviously polyphonic. It shows how adaptable Sun Ra's concept still was in the mid-'60s.

 The Heliocentric Worlds Of Sun Ra: Volumes 1 & 2 ESP/Calibre 1014 / 1017 Sun Ra; Chris Capers, Walter Miller (t); Teddy Nance (tb); Bernard Pettaway (tb, btb); Marshall Allen (as, picc, perc); John Gilmore (ts, tympani); Pat Patrick (bs, perc); Danny Davis (f, af); Ronnie Boykins (b); Jimmy Johnson (perc, tympani). 4 & 11/65.

For a time, these were the only Sun Ra records generally known. In retrospect, neither volume of The Heliocentric Worlds seems earth-shaking, and yet this is probably the best work of the period. Sun Ra's range of space effects is extraordinarily vivid; as well as piano, he plays electronic celeste, marimba, cello and tympani. On 'The Sun Myth' (Volume 2) he introduces part of the theme on bongos. Otherwise, the mood is sombre, ritualized and mysterious. John Gilmore's tympani duet with bassist Ronnie Boykins on 'Of Heavenly Things' (Volume 1) is, perversely, one of the best and most dramatic things the saxophonist ever did. Percussion dominates throughout both volumes, though there is a shift on the second part towards a more discursive and linear style of composition, and a feeling that some of these tracks have not been quite as fully worked out as on the first disc.

 The Magic City

Evidence ECD 22069 Sun Ra; regular Arkestra personnel and others. 65.

This record is about a futuristic place trapped in the present, rather than a past civilization swallowed up by history. 'The Magic City' was a promotional slogan for Birmingham, Alabama, to boost it as a commercial centre. References to slavery and race in an accompanying poem are bound up with imagery borrowed from the Bible or Paradise Lost, suggesting the rootedness of Sun Ra's fantastical vision in contemporary reality and in Afro-American tradition. The piece itself was collectively improvised, though the confident synchronization of small-group sections within the main piece strongly suggests either an element of 'conduction' or of predetermined sequences. This was the period of Ornette's Free Jazz and, more to the point, of Coltrane's huge Ascension, and The Magic City stands up remarkably well in that company.

* Atlantis Evidence ECD 22067 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah, Wayne Harris (t); Ali Hassan, Charles Stephens (tb); Bob Northern (frhn); Marshall Allen (as, ob, Jupiter f, perc); Danny Davis (as); John Gilmore (ts, perc); Robert Cummings (bcl); Pat Patrick (bs, f, perc); Robert Barry, Clifford Jarvis (d, perc); James Jackson (perc). 67, 69.

As befits its majestic programme, the 22-minute 'Atlantis' is for the biggest Arkestra yet. Sun Ra himself plays (often simultaneously) both piano and clavioline. He claimed the latter gave him the 'purest' sound he'd ever had from an electric instrument. Oddly, though economics may have had something to do with it at the time of this recording he was using squeaky little keyboards like the Hohner Clavinet or the Gibson Kalamazoo organ. Atlantis gained wider-than-usual currency, following reissue on the Impulse! label. Four tracks are for Sun Ra with Gilmore, Robert Barry and Clifford Jarvis only. A fifth, 'Bimini', adds Allen, Patrick and Jackson on percussion. These were supposed by some observers to be Sun Ra's nod in the direction of Thelonious Monk, but Cecil Taylor seems a more likely point of reference. The main piece starts in medias res and rumbles hellishly before Sun Ra kicks in with a quite extraordinary organ solo that must count as one of his most significant instrumental passages. Ali Hassan plays a dadaist trombone solo before the piece is turned on its head with a skittish beat and the chant: 'Sun Ra and band from outer space have entertained you here ...'

(*) Holiday For Soul Dance Evidence ECD 22011 Sun Ra; Phil Cohran (c); Danny Davis, Hobart Dotson, Akh Tal Ebah, Wayne Harris (t); Ali Hassan (tb); Marshall Allen, Danny Ray Thompson (as); John Gilmore (ts); Pat Patrick (bs, b); Robert Cummings (bcl); Bob Barry (d); James Jackson, Carl Nimrod (perc); Ricky Murray (v). 68–69.

 My Brother The Wind, Volume II Evidence ECD 22040 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah, Kwame Hadi (t); Marshall Allen (as, ob, f); Danny Davis (as, acl, f); John Gilmore (ts, perc); Pat Patrick, Danny Ray Thompson (bs, f); James Jackson (ob, perc); Alejandro Blake (b); Clifford Jarvis, Lex Humphries (d); Nimrod Hunt (hand-d); William Brister, Robert Cummings (perc). 69, 70.

Predictably, My Brother The Wind, Volume II was followed many moons later by volume one. Sun Ra's organ really does sound 'intergalactic' on this one, but he also checks out that ubiquitous squealer of the late '60s, the Mini-Moog. His approach, inevitably, is heterodox in the extreme. Instead of making the synth sound like anything else, he homes in unerringly on its 'own' sound – shrill, with loads of vibrato – and then pushes all the buttons to get right into its uptight psyche: angry bleeps, TV shut-down hiss, off-station crackles. The band, unfortunately, have begun to plod a bit, though the (uncredited) appearance of June Tyson on 'Walking On The Moon' – no relation to the pop hit – marks a hitherto undocumented association that was to last until the '90s (Tyson died shortly after Sun Ra in 1993).

Holiday is a more appealing album, largely because the band get their act together. It's entirely a standards set, but for the brief snippet of cornetist Cohran's 'Dorothy's Dance', which may have been conceived in homage to Oz. Sun Ra's opening solos on 'Holiday For Strings' and 'I Loves You, Porgy' amply confirm his bona fides as a 'straight' swing soloist. He shows a surprisingly light touch and gently alternates emphasis on left- and right-hand figures which again bear only a fleeting and misleading resemblance to Monk's. Gilmore's solo on 'Body And Soul', the tenor saxophonist's proving-ground, suggests something of what Coltrane found in his work. Much less well-known, Hobart Dotson also emerges strongly as an underrated player deserving of reassessment. Boykins's unexplained absence leaves the bottom end a bit straggly. Alejandro Blake is at best only a stop-gap replacement and sounds lost.

(*) Nuits De La Fondation Maeght: Volumes 1 & 2 Universe 80 / 81 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah (t, c); Kwame Hadi (t); Absolom Ben Shlomo (as, f, cl); Danny Davis (as, f, perc); Marshall Allen (as, f, cl, ob); Pat Patrick (as, ts, bs, f, cl, bcl, perc); John Gilmore (ts); Danny Ray Thompson (bs); Robert Cummings (bcl, d); James Jacson (f, cl, ob, perc); Danny Thompson (f, bsn); Alan Silva (b, vn, clo); Nimrod Hunt (d); Rashied Salim IV (d, vib); John Goldsmith, Lex Humphries (d, perc); June Tyson, Verta Grosvenor, Gloristeena Knight (v). 6/70.

Like Cecil Taylor and Albert Ayler, Sun Ra played one of his most stirring live sets at this prestigious Provence arts centre. These are fantastic recordings, once available on Jazz View but out of circulation for a time. 'Enlightenment' is sung by Sun Ra and June Tyson. The short keyboard piece 'The Stargazers' is an opportunity to hear Sun Ra solo, but it's what follows in the titanic 'Shadow World' that makes the first volume so compelling. So much of the talk about the Arkestra's soloists falls on John Gilmore that there's too little said about Marshall Allen's brilliance. In sound, he sits somewhere between Johnny Hodges and Eric Dolphy; his solo here is simply stunning and one of the highlights of the whole Arkestra canon. The final track of Volume 1, 'The Cosmic Explorer', is a disappointment, a whirl of seemingly random noise in places.

Volume 2 is more shambolic, but there are fine Sun Ra moments on 'Spontaneous Simplicity' and the multi-part 'Black Myth'. It makes sense to have both and with some judicious editing this would make a fine single CD, but if the budget presses, Volume 1 stands well on its own.

(*) Space Is The Place Evidence ECD 22070 Sun Ra; Kwame Hadi (t, vib, perc); Wayne Harris (t); Marshall Allen (as, f, ob, bsn, kora, perc); Danny Davis (as, f, acl, perc); Larry Northington (as, perc); John Gilmore (ts, perc, v); Eloe Omoe (bcl, perc); Danny Ray Thompson (bs, perc); Lex Humphries (d); Ken Moshesh (perc); June Tyson (v). 72.

In 1968, Sun Ra and the Arkestra made their first trip to the West Coast. Perhaps surprisingly, they were met with a wholly lukewarm response. Three years later, Sun Ra taught a course entitled 'The Black Man in the Cosmos' at the University of California, Berkeley. Sun Ra felt rejected by the university and by California in general, and he returned East in high dudgeon.

However, Sun Ra had been spotted by producer Jim Newman, who suggested making a feature film loosely based on the mythology implicit in the Berkeley course. Space Is The Place cast Sun Ra as a cosmic equalizer, locked in combat with the Overseer, an interplanetary super-pimp who symbolizes the exploitation of the black races. As with a lot of experimental cinema of the time, the soundtrack was far more interesting than the film itself. Using material from the previous few years – 'Outer Spaceways Incorporated', 'Calling Planet Earth', 'Space Is The Place' – Sun Ra compiled a brisk montage of Arkestra music. Sixteen tracks was unusually quick turnover, but it works remarkably well and the playing is tight and enigmatic. Tracks like 'Mysterious Crystal' were almost unprecedented in the Arkestra canon, combining a huge array of elements into something that simply cannot be characterized by reference to any other music. A setting like this was tailor-made for June Tyson, who sings hypnotically on 'Blackman'. Marshall Allen switches from his occasional oboe to bassoon to suggest the creaking evil of 'The Overseer', while Danny Davis switches to alto clarinet. The movie may still be circulating in obscure art-houses.

(*) Space Is The Place Impulse! 051249-2 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah (t, flhn); Kwame Hadi (t); Marshall Allen, Danny Davis

(as, f); John Gilmore (ts, v); Danny Ray Thompson (bs, v); Pat Patrick (bs, b, v); Eloe Omoe (bcl, f); Lex Humphries (d); Atakatune, Odun (perc); Cheryl Banks, Judith Holton, June Tyson, Ruth Wright (v). 10/72.
This one, entirely different from the record above, was engineered by Baker Bigsby for the Blue Thumb label and issued under those auspices in 1972, at a moment when Sun Ra seemed on the brink of mainstream recognition. It's a rather smooth performance by Arkestra standards, and almost too formulaically representative of what the group was about. Sun Ra plays piano only on 'Images', a small-group performance with Tal Ebah and Gilmore in close attendance, but with Patrick on bass. Elsewhere he plays the Farfisa 'Space' organ, and perhaps what is lacking on the album as a whole is the range of sounds that he might have been able to add with a Mini-Moog or some other synth of the time. To describe a Sun Ra album as 'spacious' is to risk being misunderstood, but that is how it comes across, open-textured, uncluttered and rather proper.

 Concert For The Comet Kohoutek ESP/Calibre 3033 Sun Ra; personnel similar to above. 10/73.
Those young enough only to remember the arrival of Hale-Bopp will not be aware that the appearance of Kohoutek (which appears on the cover of Weather Report's Mysterious Traveller) was a cause for much foreboding and anxious speculation about the fate of the planet. Typically, Sun Ra greeted the planetary wanderer with cheerful gusto. This is one of the best live dates from the Arkestra of this period, a similar group to the Ann Arbor line-up, and with every bit as much energy. There is some very drab passage work and the chants are as irritating as ever, but buried away in this session is some of the music that makes Sun Ra a great American outsider.

 The Great Lost Sun Ra Albums: Cymbals / Crystal Spears Evidence 22217 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah, Kwame Hadi (t, perc); John Gilmore (ts); Marshall Allen (as, f, picc, ob); Elmo Omoe (bcl, perc); Ronnie Boykins (b); Clifford Jarvis (d); Odun (perc). 73.
 Pathways To Unknown Worlds / Friendly Love Evidence 22218 As above, except add James Jackson (d). 73–74.
In the early '70s Sun Ra struck a deal with Impulse! Records to release both new material and back-catalogue Saturn albums. The understanding was inevitably short-lived, given the composer's incurable perversity and the label's desire to turn a small profit, even on marginal material. These two records are making their first (official) appearance on CD in this format. Both may have had some circulation before as unofficial releases. Neither is 'great' nor quite as 'lost' as the blurb would have it and neither substantially changes the picture of Sun Ra at this period. What impact they might have had if they had managed to get release at the time is imponderable, but one suspects that Sun Ra would have continued to plod his lonely course as an outsider figure.

Cymbals is interesting in that it is effectively a small-group recording, mostly played quietly and intimately, a moment of downtime in the bowels of the mothership. Ra's keyboard effects are less baroque than usual; grander gestures are saved for the ensembles of Crystal Spears, which thumps along very familiarly. 'Sunrise In The Western Sky' is a rousing anthem and perhaps the most extravagantly beautiful thing on the record.

The other disc brings together some material that had already seen the light of day, but the remaining tracks that should have made up Friendly Love were seemingly rejected by Impulse! and are only now being heard. Robert L. Campbell has done sterling work in reconstructing these sessions and some of the extremely unusual instrumentation involved, which includes space mellophone and Neptunian libflecto!

 The Solar Myth Approach: Volumes 1 & 2 Varese 061159 Sun Ra; Akh Tal Ebah (t, mel); Kwame Hadi (t); Ali Hassan, Charles Stevens (tb); John Gilmore (ts, perc); Marshall Allen (as, picc, f, ob); Pat Patrick, Danny Ray Thompson (bs, f); Ronnie Boykins (b); Lex Humphries, Clifford Jarvis (d, perc); James Jackson (d, perc, f, ob); Nimrod Hunt (perc); Artie Jenkins (v). 75.
This is a very good way into Sun Ra's work as an innovative electronic keyboardist. The emphasis is for once very much on the leader and less so on the ensembles. Even such luminaries as Gilmore and Allen are relatively out of the picture, though both create typically powerful solos from time to time. It is Sun Ra's shimmering organ and Moog figures which capture the ear. It seemed at the time – and this was recorded for the European Byg/Actuel stable – that the Arkestra's music might well soundtrack the latest phase of the cultural revolution, but it never quite made it into the mainstream. The reissue of material like this underlines how very much of his moment Sun Ra could be: there are echoes here of everything from progressive rock to some of the classical experiments of the time.

(*) Live At Montreux Universe 75 / P-Vine 22032 Sun Ra; Ahmed Abdullah, Chris Capers, Al Evans (t); Vincent Chauncey (frhn); Reggie Hudgins (ss); Marshall Allen, Danny Davis (as, f); John Gilmore (ts); Pat Patrick (bs, f); Eloe Omoe (bcl); James Jacson (bsn, perc); Tony Bunn, Hayes Burnett (b); Larry Bright, Clifford Jarvis (d); Stanley Morgan (perc); June Tyson (v). 7/76.
Long out of print, and surprisingly so, since this is a very fine live date and infinitely superior to some of the lo-fi recordings that have circulated freely over the years. There are some edits on the set, and an unexpected fade towards the end of 'On Sound Infinity Spheres', though only very serious collectors will be troubled by this. The show the Arkestra gave in Switzerland is much superior to the one released on hatART some years later. It's pretty much standard fare, all of it heading for the curtain call of 'We Travel The Spaceways' (but managing to touch on 'Take The "A" Train' along the way), which begins with a fine piano introduction and includes a superb alto solo from Allen. 'House Of Eternal Being' and the rambunctious 'Gods Of The Thunder Realm' are the best of a good set.

 A Quiet Place In The Universe Leo CD LR 198 Sun Ra; probably Ahmed Abdullah (t); Akh Tal Ebah (t, v); Craig Harris (tb); Vincent Chauncey (frhn); Marshall Allen (as, picc); Pat Patrick (as); John Gilmore (ts); Danny Ray Thompson (bs, f) Luqman Ali (d); Atakatune, Eddie Thomas (perc); Eloe Omoe (bcl, f); James Jackson (bsn, f, perc); June Tyson (v). 76–77.
We have to declare ourselves a touch confused about this one. According to a liner-note, tracks 3–6 ('Images', 'Love In Outer Space', 'I'll Never Be The Same' and 'Space Is The Place') have already been released on A Night In East Berlin, CD LR 149. The last of these four is ubiquitous, but none of the other tracks matches, and the listed personnels differ, and the suggested dates differ, so we are in the dark. This tape was no more illuminating than usual, found with just a number but believed (by expert Chris Trent) to be 1976 or 1977. If so, and it seems likely, this fills a long gap in the current discography. The sound is murky and congested, and there is considerable to-ing and fro-ing even though it does appear to be a concert documentation. 'I Pharaoh' is a slice of music-theatre which homes in close on the leader and sounds to us as if it may not have been recorded at the same time or from the same position as the rest ...? The plus, as always, is the Gilmore solo, this time on the title-track, which is unusually arranged and followed by a french horn solo from Vincent Chauncey.

 Lanquidity Evidence ECD 22220 Sun Ra; regular Arkestra personnel. 78.

An unusual item in the Sun Ra discography, since it is to all intents and purposes an album of relatively conventional grooves over which the leader and a couple of the horns lay some out-of-whack lines. Originally recorded for the small Philly Jazz label and long out of circulation, it's more of a curiosity than a key Arkestra recording, but it's certainly worthy of a listen. The title-track is oddly moving, almost elegiac, and 'Twin Stars Of Thence' has some lovely playing by the leader.

 Nuclear War Atavistic Unheard Music 40242 Sun Ra; unknown personnel. 9/82.

This was supposed to have been issued in England by Y Records, who went out of business before the record could be pressed. Originally released in Greece and later licensed by John Corbett of Atavistic, this is a worthy enough later-period Arkestra record. 'Drop Me Off In Harlem', 'Sometimes I'm Happy' and 'Smile' are fascinating examples of his standards arrangements of the period. By contrast, the originals are fairly dull.

(*) Cosmo Sun Connection Recommended ReR SR1 Sun Ra; regular Arkestra personnel; others unidentified. 84?

The story on this undated but apparently 1984 recording is an interesting one. Recommended imported a good deal of Sun Ra material into Europe during the '70s and '80s. Pressings were paid for up front, but on one occasion money had been so tight in the Arkestra that ReR's front man, Chris Cutler, arrived to find his advance had been spent and no discs were forthcoming. To purge his debt, Sun Ra gave Cutler the master-tape of Cosmo Sun Connection; Cutler in turn began turning over proceeds to the Arkestra as a gesture of respect and to help a group which now found itself leaderless and in no small debt.

Musically, it isn't a classic, though performances of 'Fate In A Pleasant Mood' and the title-track are absolutely typical of what the group was doing in this period. Gilmore makes a commanding figure throughout, though it's Marshall Allen (better recorded and sounding full of beans) who steals his thunder on occasion. Hints of funk and rock-influenced, straight-eight patterns give the record an immediate impact that will recommend it to those who find some of the floatier, ritual stuff hard to swallow.

(*) Live At Praxis '84 Leo/Golden Years Of New Jazz GY 5 2CD Sun Ra; Ronnie Brown (t, flhn, perc); Marshall Allen (as, cl, f, ob, kora, perc); Eloe Omoe (as, bcl, contra-acl, f, perc); John Gilmore (ts, cl, perc, v); Danny Ray Thompson (bs, as, f, perc); James Jackson (bsn, f, ob, perc, v); Rollo Radford (b); Don Mumford (d, perc); Matthew Brown, Salah Ragab (perc). 2/84.

Trimmed down from a triple LP recorded in concert in Athens, Greece, this double set is one of the best live recordings of the Arkestra at any period, certainly in terms of giving an accurate impression of how a set developed round swing standards, free-for-all improvisation and ritual chanting. The ability to swing from 'Mack The Knife', 'Cocktails For Two' and 'Satin Doll' back to 'Theme Of The Stargazers' is consistently jaw-dropping and the band had rarely sounded as exuberant, with some of the more intriguing textures coming from what are described as 'electric valve-instruments'. There is less emphasis than even five years before on Sun Ra himself as an instrumentalist. Increasingly, he seemed to be the dramaturge and guiding spirit who held the whole remarkable thing together.

(*) A Night In East Berlin / My Brothers The Wind And Sun No. 9 Leo CD LR 149 Sun Ra; Michael Ray, Ahmed Abdullah (t); Tyrone Hill (tb); Pat Patrick (as); Marshall Allen (as, f); John Gilmore (ts, perc, v); Danny Ray Thompson (bs, perc); Kenny Williams (bs); Eloe Omoe (as, bcl); James Jackson (bsn, perc); Bruce Edwards (g); Billy Bang, Owen Brown Jr (vn); June Tyson (vn, v); John Ore, Rollo Radford (b); Luqman Ali, Earl Buster Smith (d); ? Pharoah Abdullah (perc); Art Jenkins (v). 6/86, 1/88 OR 90.

In true Leo Records style, the origins of these tapes are shrouded in uncertainty, and the disc fades in on the opening of the East Berlin set, as if the mics weren't on quick enough. Whatever the technical shortcomings, there's no mistaking the quality or beauty of the music. 'Mystic Prophecy' highlights two of the Arkestra's pillars, Marshall Allen and John Gilmore, and Gilmore is pressed into vocal duty with his boss in the absence of June Tyson, who seems not to have made the trip on this occasion.

The material on My Brothers The Wind And Sun No. 9 was originally released in an extremely limited edition on an El Saturn white-label release with just a number and (in some cases) a few handwritten comments. Like the East German material, titles weren't known till later. It's thought this may have been recorded at the Knitting Factory in New York City, and there is apparently further material from that time. Good news, because this is a steamingly good band, fierce and propulsive in the slipstream of Sun Ra's synth and with the additional bonus of Billy Bang in the ensembles and soloing. Regrettably, this being samizdat-land, it's interrupted by the end of the tape. The most valuable single item on the disc is the quasi-atonal 'The Shadow World', a most unexpected conception even for this most unexpected of groups. No surprise that it should again feature Allen and Gilmore.

 Reflections In Blue / (*) Hours After Black Saint 120101 / 120111 Sun Ra; Randall Murray (t); Tyrone Hill (tb); Pat Patrick (as, cl); Marshall Allen (as, f, ob, picc); Danny Ray Thompson (as, cl, bcl); John Gilmore, Ronald Wilson (ts); James Jackson (bsn, African d); Carl LeBlanc (g); Tyler Mitchell (b); Thomas Hunter, Earl 'Buster' Smith (d). 12/86.

 Love In Outer Space Leo CD LR 180 Sun Ra and his Arkestra; no personnel details. 12/83.

The '80s were a period of steady and often unimaginative consolidation. Sun Ra's music had, at last, become a style. Even so, the Arkestra were still able to create an astonishing impact in performance. There are powerful moments on Love In Outer Space, which was recorded at a concert in Utrecht. The closing 'Space Is The Place' still sounds positive and challenging, and there are outrageous versions of 'Big John's Special' and 'Round Midnight'.

Of later '80s performances, Reflections In Blue and, from the same sessions, Hours After concentrate exclusively on mainstream composition (though the latter is punctuated by a chaotic 'Dance Of The Extra Terrestrians' and 'Love On A Far Away Planet', which are more typical of past snippets from the Arkestra's anarchic shows).

 Second Star To The Right: Salute To Walt Disney /  Stardust From Tomorrow Leo CD LR 230 / 235/6 2CD Sun Ra; Michael Ray (t, v); Tyrone Hill, Julian Priester (tb); Marshall Allen (as, cl, f); Eloe Omoe (as, cl, bcl); Noel Scott (as, cl, f); James Jackson (bsn, ob, v); Bruce Edwards (g); Arthur Joonie Booth (b); June Tyson (vn, v); Earl 'Buster' Smith (d); Elson Nascimento Santos (perc). 4/89.

Sun Ra plays Disney. Initially this sounds so perverse as to go all the way round to being inevitable. A&M had done an album of Disney covers which included the Arkestra doing 'Pink Elephants

On Parade' from Dumbo, but this Austrian concert goes the whole hog. Marshall Allen provides alto solos of surreal beauty in the opening chant on 'Forest Of No Return' and to the Sun Ra-introduced 'Someday My Prince Will Come'. The leader even quotes a couple of Miles Davis tags on his long, delicate opening, before horns, vocalists June Tyson and a falsetto Michael Ray, and then the rhythm, come in behind him. 'Frisco Fog' isn't Disney and, perversely, it's the best band track on the date, a driving, train-time number that gets the sections properly worked out. 'I'm Wishing' is pretty good but takes an age to get under way. The title-tune gives Hill a lot of space, and 'Hi Ho! Hi Ho!' features Scott on alto and clarinet. Sun Ra experts seem to think 'Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah' is from Sleeping Beauty but, apart from that, it's good to have what is effectively a private bootleg recording so fully documented. The sound is awful; someone coughs right in the mic at one point and there is only a rather artificial balance on some tracks. The piano is clearly audible, though, and no complaints about the quality of the music.

Stardust From Tomorrow was recorded in concert at the Jazzatelier in Ulrichsberg, Austria. It's a fascinating document of the Arkestra at work and in its pomp. The mix of material is breathtaking: untitled composition/improvisations by the leader, 'Prelude To A Kiss', Noble Sissle and Fletcher Henderson's 'Yeah, Man' and the crowd-pleasing 'We Travel The Spaceways' to round off the night. It sounds as if it has been recorded through the mixing desk, and while the balance is pretty decent, there's too much emphasis on horns and percussion and not nearly enough on the main man.

* Mayan Temples Black Saint 120121 Sun Ra; Ahmed Abdullah, Michael Ray (t, v); Tyrone Hill (tb); Noel Scott (as); Marshall Allen (as, f); John Gilmore (ts, perc); James Jackson (bsn, perc); Jothan Callins (b); Clifford Barbaro, Earl 'Buster' Smith (d); Ron McBee, Elson Nascimento Santos, Jorge Silva (perc); June Tyson (v). 7/90.

As Francis Davis points out in his liner-note, this studio session restores the emphasis to Sun Ra's piano-playing. Illness would shortly curtail his ability to play acoustic keyboards this crisply. His introductions and leads are absolutely in the line of Ellington, and the voicings are supple, open-ended and often quietly ambiguous, leaving considerable emphasis on the soloists. As always, Gilmore is a giant and Marshall Allen's searing solo on 'Prelude To Stargazers' is a model of controlled fury. Ra re-records 'El Is A Sound Of Joy' (see Supersonic Jazz, above), a late-'50s theme that sounds completely contemporary and brings a freshness and simplicity to 'Alone Together' that is quite breathtaking. 'Discipline No. 1' is a lovely ballad, illustrating Sun Ra's ability to give simple material an unexpected rhythmic profile (Davis rightly points to the example of Mingus in this case) and the closing 'Sunset On The Night On The River Nile' is one of his very best space anthems. Few Sun Ra albums give a better sense of his extraordinary versatility.

(*) Live At The Hackney Empire Leo CD LR 214/215 2CD Sun Ra; Michael Ray (t, v); Jothan Callins (t); Tyrone Hill (tb); Marshall Allen (as, f, picc, ob); Noel Scott (as, bcl); John Gilmore (ts, cl, perc, v); Charles Davis (bs); James Jackson (bsn, perc); India Cooke (vn); Kash Killion (clo); John Ore (b); Clifford Barbaro, Earl 'Buster' Smith (d); Talvin Singh (perc, v); Elson Nascimento Santos (perc); June Tyson (v). 10/90.

This concert was recorded as part of a documentary project originally for Britain's Channel 4 television. Originally, there was a projected backdrop and other effects, but so far the finished work – by Chris Foster and Dave Hayes – has not materialized. It has nevertheless bequeathed us some excellent music, if unsurprising in content by Arkestra standards, until the second set, at any rate. All the familiar names are present and all in good form: Gilmore, Allen (glorious on 'Prelude To A Kiss') and Tyson. Disc two begins with a violin improvisation, before Davis, Cooke, Allen and others solo over 'Discipline 27-II'. There is then a version of 'East Of The Sun' (vocalist, Gilmore), a beautiful rendition of a Sun Ra favourite, 'Somewhere Over The Rainbow', and a rapid charge through the Sissle/Henderson anthem 'Yeah Man!' and 'Frisco Fog'.

(*) Friendly Galaxy Leo CD LR 188 Sun Ra Arkestra; no personnel details. 4/91.

 At The Village Vanguard Rounder 12125 Sun Ra; John Gilmore (ts); Chris Anderson (p); Bruce Edwards (g); John Ore (b); Earl 'Chinna' Smith (d). 91.

The rest should have been silence, but just as the concert appearances continued to the bitter end, so too will offcuts and live sessions continue to emerge. Few of the later dates do Sun Ra's memory any credit. Ill and tired, he plays a largely symbolic role in the proceedings, fronting shrunken ensembles that no longer seem to have the concentration to play ensemble music. The absence of Gilmore on the last session, whatever the reason, has to be seen as symbolic. He is present on the Rounder Records disc, which documents the moment when Sun Ra led a sextet at the Village Vanguard. The leader is doing little more than adding shades and gestures to the group, and the presence of guitarist Bruce Edwards probably renders most of them irrelevant. The plaudits go to Chris Anderson, who sounds very much as Sun Ra must have done in the Fletcher Henderson years, hooked confidently into swing, but looking ever outward for something new. Gilmore makes his presence known in brief flashes, but the old dark fire has gone.

There will be other releases, and continued debate about the enigma that was Sun Ra. As for his place in history, one must conclude that, for the moment at least ... destination unknown.

Also, in brief:

 Spaceship Lullaby Atavistic 243. 54–60.

A fascinating documentation of rehearsals with soul/R&B bands the Nu Sounds, Lintels and Cosmic Rays. Another dimension (!) to an extraordinary career.

 Greatest Hits: Easy Listening For Intergalactic Travel Evidence ECD 22219. 56–73.

Since there weren't any chart hits – in the terrestrial charts at any rate – these selections were apparently made from fans' choices.

 The Sensational Guitars Of Dan And Dale: Batman And Robin Universe 16. 66.

After the Disney album who'd be surprised. Sun Ra and the Blues Project with some ZAP! POW! action.

 It's After The End Of The World Universe 070. 10 & 11/70.

Live in Berlin. Not a vintage showing, but eminently collectable.

 The Sun Ra Arkestra Meets Salah Ragab In Egypt Leo/Golden Years Of New Jazz GY 1. 71, 72–74, 75, 83, 84.

Given that Egyptology was meat and drink to him, this was an inevitable association. Ragah was a drummer and later head of Egypt's military music.

 Live In Paris At The 'Gibus' Universe 79. 73.

A certain cult reputation made Arkestra performances a big draw and in Europe his eclectic mix of free jazz and swing was enthusiastically accepted.

 Solo Piano Recital: Teatro La Fenice, Venezia Golden Years Of New Jazz GY 21. 11/77.
A tape of bootleg quality, with additional deterioration in storage, but solo performances are rare and precious.

(*) Sunrise In Different Dimensions hatOLOGY 568. 2/80.
Live in Switzerland, this isn't the most inspiring of his albums of the time.

() Pleiades Leo CD LR 210/211 2CD. 10/90.
Recorded in Paris, but in lamentable sound that recalls the snack, crackle and pop of the old El Saturns.

(*) A Song For The Sun El Ra 99021. 99.
The ghost band, run by Marshall Allen: a copycat outfit without much originality.

Monty Sunshine (born 1928)

CLARINET

A key figure in British trad. He was a featured soloist in the Chris Barber band, and his departure in 1960 to form his own group and play in a relatively strict New Orleans style was a minor sensation at the time. He enjoys a huge following in Europe, particularly Germany.

 The Full Monty Sunshine Upbeat URCD 184 Sunshine; Rod Mason, Ian Hunter-Randall (t); Graham Stewart (tb, v); Charlie Galbraith (tb); Johnny Parker, Barney Bates (p); Dickie Bishop (bj, g); Duncan Chalmers (bj); Gerry Salisbury (bg, tba); Ron Russell (b); Nick Nicholls, Geoff Downs (d); Beryl Bryden (v, wbd); George Melly (v). 7/61–4/67.
(*) The Sunshine Of Your Blues Lake LACD 191 Sunshine; Rod Mason (t, tbs); Gerry Salisbury (t); Geoff Sowden, Graham Stewart (tb); Johnny Parker (p); Diz Disley (g); Dickie Bishop (bj, g, v); Gerry Salisbury, Dick Smith, Jack Fallon (b); Nick Nicholls, Graham Burbidge, Lennie Hastings (d); Beryl Bryden (v). 8/61–3/62.
An auld licht traditionalist, Sunshine stood firm when the Chris Barber band began to shift its ground in the late '50s to accommodate the growing vogue for skiffle and the blues. Sunshine had contributed materially to the group's success and was the featured soloist on the big hit, 'Petite Fleur'. Leaving Barber certainly punched holes in his marketability, but he has commanded a loyal following in both Britain and continental Europe throughout the past three decades.

The earlier Sunshine is well-represented on Chris Barber records and on some useful trad compilations, but to some extent he has remained in the shadow of more eminent colleagues. Lake's excellent The Sunshine Of Your Blues compiles the pick of his recordings for Denis Preston's Lansdowne operation. It shows the two sides of Monty's approach very effectively: belters such as 'Tuxedo Rag' are as hot as anything the Trad Boom would produce, but wistful soliloquies such as 'Jacqueline' (originally a flop sequel to 'Petite Fleur') are unusually personal. Beryl Bryden joins in the fun on some tracks and the whole CD is indecently playable.

The Full Monty Sunshine takes three snapshots of the band as it stood at the beginning and in the middle of the '60s. A 1961 BBC broadcast finds the group in enjoyably rowdy form, with a couple of mighty vocals from Beryl Bryden for good measure, although when asked for a bit of finesse on 'I Keep Calling Your Name' the group sounds a bit woeful. Three titles from a year later (with George Melly guesting this time) are a little smarter, but the ten 1967 titles (from an NDR radio session) are handled much more crisply and authoritatively, even if some of the excitement of the earlier days has been tempered. The BBC material is a little rough soundwise, but the German tracks are bright and clear.

 New Orleans Hula Lake LACD 47 Sunshine; Alan Gresty (t); Johnny Beecham (tb); Barry Dew (bj, v); Tony Bagot (b); Geoff Downs (d). 4/85.
Originally released (on vinyl) on Stomp Off, this catches the 1985 edition of the Sunshine band in good fettle. At this point, Gresty had already been in the group for many years and the line-up had settled down into a form which has largely remained constant since. In his notes, Paul Adams suggests that it's the 'danceable' feel of the playing which sets the Sunshine band apart, and the easy-going jog which they like to work at certainly finds an effective point between plodding and belting along. The set could use a track which really collars the listener, but it's a likeable session.

Klaus Suonsaari (born 1959)

DRUMS

A Finn who led one of his country's leading groups, Blue Train, in the '80s.

(*) Reflecting Times Storyville STCD 4157 Suonsaari; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); Bob Berg (ts); Niels Lan Doky (p); Ray Drummond (b). 3/87.
 Inside Out Soul Note 121274 Suonsaari; Scott Wendholt (t, flhn); Scott Robinson (ts, ss, f); Renee Rosnes (p); Steve Nelson (vib); Ray Drummond (b). 3/94.
A Finnish drummer who sounds not a bit like Edward Vesala (but is a physical ringer for Bill Frisell). The Storyville record obviously gains visibility from the other band members, but it is the leader's clean, unaffected swing, reminiscent of Billy Hart or Billy Higgins, that strikes even the casual listener straight away, and it has become clear that he is not just a facile time-keeper but is also a very thoughtful musician, contributing several numbers to Inside Out, a very polished record which is disappointing only relative to earlier promise. Something doesn't quite gel about it. Despite the bright opening, we have not heard the best from him yet.

 Something In Common Storyville STCD 4218 Suonsaari; Jukka Perko (ss, as); Jerry Bergonzi (ts); Niels Lan Doky, Jarmo Savolainen (p); Mike Mainieri, Severi Pyysalo (vib); Ray Drummond, Eerik Siikasaari (b); Bobby Sanabria (perc). 98.
Another powerful set from the drummer, this time with a larger group and some quite adventurous arrangements. Two basic groups are involved, similarly configured but each with its own definite character. The combination of saxophone, vibes and percussion defines much of the record, an intensely rhythmic sound that also allows a sophistication of harmonics as well, especially when a bassist of Ray Drummond's stamp is involved in the ensembles. Pyysalo's 'Burning Bridges', Bergonzi's 'Jab', Savolainen's 'Inseparable' and the standard 'If I Were A Bell' are the only tracks not by Suonsaari, whose writing is, as usual, inventive and unexpected. 'Motion', 'Blues For G' and 'Happy People' are worth sampling. Klaus has a good website with some interesting musical downloads.

(*) With Every Breath I Take Storyville STCD 4241 Suonsaari; Scott Robinson (Cmel, ts, bsx, theremin); Geri Allen (p); Jules Thayer (b). 99.

The title-piece is a delightful thing, artfully executed and completely idiomatic, but it's the originals and arrangements (including a theme by Shostakovich) which catch the attention here. 'Skar' is collectively improvised and very impressive. 'The Amorphous Them' and 'Imaginary Day' are showcases for the drummer, as is 'Visions', though it has a more elaborate structure. Robinson creates a wide range of sounds on his horns and theremin, but it is Geri Allen who holds the set together with some of her most straightforward playing in years, almost as if she is happy to subsume personal considerations for the duration. 'Subsumption' opens the set and prompts the thought that all the players involved were happy to leave egos and other agendas parked at the door. Attractive, selfless music that reflects well on all concerned.

John Surman (born 1944)

BARITONE AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, BASS AND ALTO CLARINETS, SYNTHESIZERS, PIANO, RECORDER

Born in Tavistock, Devon, he studied in London and quickly came to prominence as a leading force in the new British jazz of the '60s. Major associations with Mike Westbrook, Mike Gibbs, John McLaughlin and SOS, as well as his own solo records, before the sequence of ECM albums which has brought him further renown in the '80s and '90s.

 John Surman Deram 844 884-2 Surman; Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths, Paul Rutherford (tb); Tom Bennellick (frhn); Mike Osborne (as); Russell Henderson (p, b); Dave Holland, Harry Miller (b); Stirling Betancourt, Alan Jackson (d); Errol Phillip (perc). 69.

(*) Way Back When Cuneiform RUNE 200 Surman; Mike Osborne (as); John Taylor (p); Brian Odgers (b); John Marshall (d). 10/69.

(*) How Many Clouds Can You See? Deram 844 882-2 Surman; Harry Beckett (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths, Chris Pyne (tb); George Smith (tba); Mike Osborne (as); Alan Skidmore (ts); John Warren (bs, f); John Taylor (p); Harry Miller, Barre Phillips (b); Alan Jackson, Tony Oxley (d). 70.

♛ * Tales Of The Algonquin Deram 844 883-2 Surman; Harry Beckett, Martin Drover, Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Danny Almark, Malcolm Griffiths, Ed Harvey (tb); Mike Osborne (as, cl); Alan Skidmore (ts, af); Stan Sulzmann (as, ss, f); John Warren (b, f); John Taylor (p); Harry Miller, Barre Phillips (b); Alan Jackson, Stu Martin (d). 71.

John Surman first came to notice in Mike Westbrook's group, and it was a direct result of his performances on the Westbrook albums Celebration and Marching Song that persuaded producer Peter Eden to record him for Deram. The first of these makes slightly unexpected listening, being largely devoted to calypso jazz in the Sonny Rollins mode, played accurately and with some exuberance but hardly representative of what are now thought to be Surman's great strengths.

At the same time Surman was developing a more individual style in a trio with Dave Holland and Alan Jackson, and the second half of the debut record was devoted to large-scale arrangements of trio material. Unfortunately that is very much the impression the album creates. The ensembles sound padded-out rather than organic, though by the closing 'Dance', inspired by Coltrane's Africa/Brass, the mix is a good deal richer and more coherent.

How Many Clouds Can You See? marks a dramatic step forward. The slow, brooding opening track, 'Galata Bridge', builds steadily to a climax of frenzied energy before calming and then building again to a more measured peak, almost as if the ensemble have crossed the bridge in question, which is in Istanbul and straddles two very different cultures. The Middle Eastern influence is replaced by a folksy Celticism on 'Caractacus', the name of the Pictish chieftain who faced down the Romans; this is a feature for Surman and drummer Jackson. After that comes a first Surman collaboration with the Canadian composer John Warren, who was to play an important part on the third and last Deram recording. 'Premonition' is a powerful trade-off between free jazz and more classically orientated structures and was an important pointer to what was to come later.

The final two tracks, the multi-part 'Event' and the title-piece, are small-group pieces, reflecting the kind of work Surman was doing with The Trio. The closing part of 'Event', 'Circle Dance', is powered along by drummer Oxley's vivid use of dynamics and his ability to combine a strong pulse with apparent freedom from steady metre. It is another key moment, and one regrets that Surman was to have few chances in future years to work in this vein with players of Oxley's and Phillips's stature.

Surman's time with Deram ended with his very best album to date, a full-scale collaboration with Warren. Tales Of The Algonquin is a masterpiece, conceived on a grand scale, meticulously executed and marked by superb soloing from Surman, Skidmore and the always wonderful Osborne. The set opens with four unrelated themes by Warren. Surman produces a boiling soprano solo on the uptempo 'With Terry's Help', which exploits double-time and displaced harmonies. 'The Dandelion' is perhaps the standout track of the album, though it is Mike Osborne's plaintive, keening solo which gives it its power. By contrast, the connected pieces which give the album its title are slightly too fey and impressionistic. 'Shingebis And The North Wind' is adventurous even by the standards of those blithely experimental days. Again Surman takes a back seat, this time to trumpeter Harry Beckett, who solos with an elemental sadness. Surman sounds most sure-footed in the immediate company of his Trio colleagues Phillips and Martin and produces his own most effective playing with them on 'The Adventures Of Manabush'. Tales is a record that has enjoyed almost legendary status among British jazz fans.

The final item of the group was a late discovery. The tapes of Way Back When only resurfaced in 2003; previously just a few test pressings of this largely spontaneous session at Tangerine studios were known to exist. Surman was set to leave the UK to develop The Trio with Stu Martin and Barre Phillips and the 7 October date was intended as a kind of farewell. It speaks clearly and movingly across the intervening years; not a great record, but one that takes a snapshot of British improvised music at the end of a decade.

* Where Fortune Smiles Sequel Records NED CD 302 2CD Surman; John McLaughlin (g); Karl Berger (vib); Dave Holland (b); Stu Martin (d). 71–76.

In 1971 Surman left Europe for the USA, apparently exhausted by his touring schedule with The Trio and anxious to break new creative ground. He had already worked with Dave Holland and had been an important presence on John McLaughlin's debut recording, Extrapolation. He had also met and worked with Karl Berger, who makes such a significant contribution to Where Fortune Smiles. Once, this album was spoken of in the same breath as McLaughlin's My Goal's Beyond, which documented the guitarist's commitment to Sri Chinmoy and his philosophy, but Extrapolation is a far better point of comparison. It has the same mix of torrential intensity and sweet, song-like gentleness. The opening two tracks are the best point of comparison. Surman's 'Glancing Backwards' is a fiery 12-note figure, traded between saxophone, guitar and vibes, marked by the feedback-laden rock sound of Jimi Hendrix and his followers. Ironically, McLaughlin's 'Earth Bound Hearts' is a gentle, semi-acoustic feature for Surman's soprano.

The album never quite regains its initial intensity. Much of its energy is burnt out in the first nine minutes. The title-piece is introduced by Berger, whose solo sounds like Fender Rhodes, and developed by a laid-back McLaughlin; no Surman at all. As on the opening track, Holland is masterly and is now mixed very far forward for CD. The closing 'Hope' is a solemn chorale for baritone and accompaniment, a fitting end to an oddly balanced but still entrancing record.

The brief second half of this budget-priced twofer is a duo session which technically belongs to drummer Stu Martin and is derived from music he wrote for radio. We have covered it in more detail under Martin's name. The two discs don't quite sit comfortably together. If we were bound for a desert island – and with rising sea levels who knows where the next edition will be datelined? – a two-CD set of Where Fortune Smiles with Extrapolation would be a priority purchase.

 Westering Home FMR CD 19 Surman (all instruments). 72.
(*) Morning Glory FMR CD 21 Surman; Malcolm Griffiths (tb); John Taylor (p); Terje Rypdal (g); Chris Laurence (b); John Marshall (d). 73.

Westering Home was an early and only intermittently convincing version of the multitracked solo projects that Surman was to make his staple in the '70s and '80s. He uses a variety of horns, piano and percussion to construct an evocative collage which, despite the pibroch and hornpipe elements, remains centred in jazz. It is a record that should perhaps be dusted down only now and again, as a reminder of the many and complex elements that go into the making of this very gifted artist.

Morning Glory was the name of and sole release by an unfortunately short-lived group that could and should have been allowed to develop further. Surman is both front-man and chief composer, though he seems to have gone through some sort of creative crisis at this time, abandoning his signature baritone in favour of soprano and bass clarinet. Rypdal is the colourist and decorator, providing great washes of sound. Griffiths's brass tones seemed unfashionable in 1973 but sound much more idiomatic and relevant now. As so often, Laurence and Marshall – two absurdly underrated players – provide the dynamism.

 Upon Reflection ECM 825472-2 Surman (ss, bs, bcl, syn). 5/79.
(*) The Amazing Adventures Of Simon Simon ECM 829160-2 Surman; Jack DeJohnette (d, perc, p). 1/81.
(*) Such Winters Of Memory ECM 810621-2 Surman; Karin Krog (v, ring modulator, tambura); Pierre Favre (d). 12/82.
 Withholding Pattern / (*) Private City /  Road To St Ives ECM 825407-2 / 835780-2 / 843849-2 Surman (ss, bs, bcl, rec, p, syn). 12/84; 12/87; 4/90.
* Adventure Playground ECM 511981-2 Surman; Paul Bley (p); Gary Peacock (b); Tony Oxley (d). 9/91.
(*) The Brass Project ECM 517362-2 Surman; Henry Lowther, Stephen Waterman, Stuart Brooks (t); Malcolm Griffiths, Chris Pyne (tb); David Stewart, Richard Edwards (btb); Chris Laurence (b); John Marshall (d); John Warren (cond). 4/92.

Surman turned an absence of satisfying commissions to advantage on a series of multitracked solo projects on which he improvised horn-lines over his own synthesizer accompaniments. In the early '60s he had modernized baritone saxophone-playing, giving an apparently cumbersome horn an agile grace that belied its daunting bulk and adding an upper register much beyond its notional range.

Upon Reflection quickly established the rather withdrawn, inward mood that became almost a vice on Withholding Pattern, but it also revived the folkish mode of Surman's solo Westering Home, which had mixed free passages with piano songs and even a sailor's hornpipe. Surman's work of the '80s under the aegis of ECM has updated that experiment and allied it to the stark and unadorned 'Northern' sound associated with Jan Garbarek and the better parts of Rypdal. This is at its coolest and most detached on Private City, which was based on dance scores and lacks impact outside that context.

Withholding Pattern is a curious combination of mock jauntiness ('All Cat's Whiskers And Bee's Knees') and abstraction, with some of his best baritone-playing for years, marred by bland waterdrop synthesizer patterns. 'Doxology' reflects an early interest in church music which re-emerges in the 'organ' opening to 'Tintagel' on Road To St Ives. The 1990 album isn't intended to be directly evocative of places, but it is one of Surman's warmest and most humane performances, in which the absence of 'live' accompaniment seems less constricting.

This wasn't a problem on Surman's live and studio collaborations with percussionist and keyboard player Jack DeJohnette. The Adventures Of Simon Simon re-creates the quasi-narrative style of Surman's collaborations with Stu Martin, who died suddenly in 1980. DeJohnette's more explicit jazz background gives the music a more linear thrust, and less of the '(with)holding pattern' stasis that sometimes creeps into it and creeps again into the otherwise excellent collaboration with singer Sheila Jordan and percussionist Pierre Favre.

The Brass Project presented a first opportunity to work in the studio with Canadian composer-arranger John Warren since Tales Of The Algonquin. Surman's gently bucolic themes are played with just the right mixture of exuberance and reserve, and the voicings are often very subtle.

Any sense that Surman had spent the decade profitably marking time in an idiom that suited ECM's high-shine production was shattered by Adventure Playground, not so much a Surman album as a series of intimate collaborations in a freer mode than has been the saxophonist's norm over the past few years.

(*) Stranger Than Fiction ECM 521850-2 Surman; John Taylor (p); Chris Laurence (b); John Marshall (d). 12/93.

This was very nearly a re-formation of the Morning Glory group. Without a second horn or Rypdal's clangorous guitar-playing, the emphasis is very squarely on Surman and Taylor and on light-footed country airs with a countervailing shadow. The long 'Triptych', with which the record closes, is a masterpiece of abstract invention, relieving any doubt that they are content merely to spin out uncomplicated melodies. Careful listening suggests that Laurence and Marshall are much more important to the group than appears at first sight, supplying an unshakeable foundation and a subtle hint to the front-men.

* Nordic Quartet ECM 527120-2 Surman; Vigleik Storaas (p); Terje Rypdal (g); Karin Krog (v). 8/94.

Surman and long-time partner Krog are a gifted team. The interesting thing about this record is how much of the emphasis is devolved to the little-known but elegant Storaas and to even-handed group improvisation. Krog's voice is much jazzier than the setting strictly suggests, and her phrasing imposes a certain discipline on the opening 'Traces', 'Unwritten Letter' and 'Wild Bird'. Surman often functions as her accompanist and commentator, working off the vocal line. Rypdal is, as usual, more detached and abstract, but there is a compelling logic to the music that overcomes its cool detachment.

CORE COLLECTION

(*) A Biography Of The Rev. Absalom Dawe
ECM 523749-2 Surman (solo). 10/94.

Dawe was an ancestor of Surman's and his part in this is limited to providing a certain thematic glue to a further set of solo improvisations which nowadays place less emphasis on synthesized ostinati and much more on the detailed interplay of horn-lines. Adding alto clarinet to his armoury has given Surman an important new timbre and pitch, and many of these pieces seem to be lighter and more plain-spoken than some of the earlier ECMs. It is the same mix of jazz, folk and church themes, however, the only difference lying in the more relaxed, less stressed opposition of tension and release, and in the significance accorded to individual lead-lines.

(*) Coruscating ECM 543033-2 Surman; Rita Manning, Keith Pascoe (vn); Bill Hawkes (vla); Nick Cooper (clo); Chris Laurence (b). 1/99.

This is almost a double concerto for Surman and long-time friend and partner Chris Laurence. They are the main soloists in a string-based suite which was written to celebrate 30 years of ECM and only recorded after a thorough workout during the summer festival season. Given that, the performances are lovely and beautifully integrated, with just the right weight and dynamic. Combined with the instrumentation, the pastoral quality of the writing means that it is not the most funky of swinging albums you'll ever hear, but we defy anyone not to be moved by the sheer beauty of 'At Dusk', 'An Illusive Shadow' or 'Crystal Walls'. No electronics this time out, but Surman dabbles in exotica with an outing for his contrabass clarinet, an instrument previously only associated with Anthony Braxton. Typically, John makes it sound like a piece of delightful old farm technology, a mill wheel or feed grinder turning slowly ... Lovely stuff.

() Invisible Nature / () Free And Equal ECM 016376 / 017065-2 Surman; Jack DeJohnette (d, elec perc, ky); London Brass (on Free And Equal only). 11/00; 6/01.

This is now a long-standing and very sympathetic partnership. DeJohnette's range of sound is enormously impressive and he often takes the lead on these tracks – especially 'Song For World Forgiveness' – leaving Surman to create ostinati and free-form lines in the background ... though strictly there is no background and no foreground in music as spontaneously conceived and executed as this. Surman is magnificent on 'Mysterium', a deeply spiritual theme that sounds very close to some of the saxophonist's classic compositions of the '70s, combining classical harmonies with jazz energy.

Free And Equal marks a dramatic and successful extension of the long-standing partnership, and draws on John's lasting love of brass and brass choirs. Once again, it's a live recording, from the Meltdown Festival on London's South Bank, and this may be the key to its success, since one can't imagine a piece like 'Back And Forth' or indeed the title-track working quite as well in a studio atmosphere. Surman's improvising is immaculately true to the line of each composition, not so much an embellishment as a completion of its logic.

 The Spaces In Between ECM 1723856 As for Coruscating. 2/06.

This picks up on the challenge of the previous record with string quartet and builds on it triumphantly. The integration of strings and saxophone – with Laurence again providing a vital bridge – and between written and improvised parts, always a difficult balance to strike, is near-perfect here and the record as a whole has a strong, arching quality whose fulcrum is the centrally placed title-track, a stunningly beautiful violin feature for Rita Manning. The string group – now known as Trans4mation – plays superbly as a whole, but Surman's own comment about the ensemble is telling: that, after a period of time working together after Coruscating, it felt like a settled group rather than an ad hoc ensemble. The material seems to have been written over a longish period and for a variety of purposes, which makes the CD's coherence all the more satisfying.

Also, in brief:

 Glancing Backwards: The Dawn Anthology Castle 143 3CD. 71, 75.

If you don't have The Trio, Conflagration, the classic Where Fortune Smiles, and Live At Woodstock Town Hall, here they all are, neatly packaged up.

 :rarum: Selected Recordings ECM 014197-2. 76–99.

Listening to these tracks in isolation prompts an unexpected recognition of how well Surman albums, and not just the solo projects, have been constructed over the years.

 Proverbs And Songs ECM 537799-2. 1/96.

Richly and resonantly recorded in the magnificent acoustic of Salisbury Cathedral, with John Taylor (p) and the Festival Chorus, but flat and desiccated for all that.

Ralph Sutton (1922–2001)

PIANO

Played with Jack Teagarden while still a college student, and after the war worked for many years as Eddie Condon's intermission pianist. A founder member of The World's Greatest Jazz Band in 1968, he enjoyed an Indian summer of recording and gigging in the '80s and '90s.

 Oh Baby Sackville SKCD2-2063 Sutton (p solo). 11/49–6/53.
 Wondrous Piano Arbors ARCD 19297 Sutton; Hugh Cregg (d). 10/61.
 Quartet With Ruby Braff Storyville STCD 8243 Sutton; Ruby Braff (c); Milt Hinton (b); Mousie Alexander (d). 2/68.
 Live At Sunnie's Rendezvous 1969 Storyville STCD 8286 Sutton; Al Hall (b); Cliff Leeman (d). 2/69.
(*) Live At Sunnie's Rendezvous Vol. 2 Storyville STCD 8281 As above, except add Bob Wilber (ss, cl). 2/69.
 Rendezvous At Sunnie's 1969 Arbors ARCD 19284 As above, except omit Wilber; add Dick Cary (t, alt hn). 2/69.

Sutton was one of the premier stride- and swing-piano players in jazz for 50 years, although it's only comparatively recently that he got on record as a leader in a big way. Oh Baby offers some of his earliest solos. The first 15 titles are all original ragtime, while the final eight were cut at a session in London in 1953. The rags are played with a jazzman's thump and swing, rather than the more scholarly approach which became fashionable decades hence, and the later pieces are stride in what would, in its turn, become the standard Sutton manner.

Wondrous Piano is a recent retrieval from a cache of family recordings; Sutton running through some tunes in a bar, with Hugh Cregg (actually a doctor) playing modest drums. A nice example of his early-mature style on a bunch of songs he'd carry on playing for decades more.

The Storyville sessions date from a period when he performed at a club run by his wife in Aspen. The sound is imperfect on each, and the relaxations of a club set mean that they lack the focus of his studio dates. Nevertheless this is swinging music. Braff sounds typically forthright and unpretentious on his appearance, tersely handling the dozen repertory tunes with his hard-bitten lyricism. There are too many solo spots for Hinton, but the rhythm section do well. The trio date is marginally better for Sutton himself: a lot of Waller tunes here, though the best thing is the suitably aggressive 'Dog Ass Blues'. The second helping from Sunnie's adds Bob Wilber to the fun, and he is in excellent enough form to hitch this one up a notch: 'Dardanella' is divine. The Arbors record comes from the same engagements. Cary isn't on Braff's level but he is a clever and musically witty playing-partner and there's much to enjoy.

 Trio And Quartet Storyville STCD 8210 Sutton; Lars Blach (g); Hugo Rasmussen (b); Svend-Erik Nørregaard (d). 5/77.

 Last Of The Whorehouse Piano Players: The Original Sessions Chiaroscuro CR(D) 206 Sutton; Jay McShann (p); Milt Hinton (b); Gus Johnson (d). 12/79.

(*) In Concert Nif Nuf 43/016 Sutton; Ruby Braff (c); Rob Jeffery (b); Laurie Kennedy (d). 10/81.

(*) Partners In Crime Sackville SKCD 2-2023 Sutton; Bob Barnard (t); Milt Hinton (b); Len Barnard (d). 8/83.

* At Café Des Copains / (*) More At Café Des Copains Sackville SKCD2-2019 / 2-2036 Sutton (p solo). 6/83–1/87; 1/88–1/89.

(*) It's So Nice It Must be Illegal Nagel Heyer 094 Sutton (p, v); Michael Silva (d). 11/88.

(*) Eye Opener Solo Art SACD 122 Sutton (p solo). 4/90.

 Easy Street Sackville SKCD2-2040 Sutton; Bob Barnard (t); Len Barnard (d). 5/91.

Sutton was a great favourite with British audiences. Eye Opener was recorded (on a Steinway) at a church hall in Woking, and besides Sutton chestnuts like the title-piece (a famous piece of virtuosity) there is a charming Willard Robison medley and mothballed stride fantasies such as 'Rippling Waters' and 'Clothes Line Ballet'. This one was last listed on J&M but has been reissued on Solo Art.

The quartet date with the Barnard brothers has a timeless feel, since the trumpeter seems wholly unselfconscious about an Armstrong influence, and their opening romp through 'Swing That Music' shows how beautifully swing repertory can turn out when delivered in the right hands. Sutton's accompaniments are as sharp as his solos: when he leans in and clears the decks, his huge two-handed manner gives the clearest impression of what stride masters such as Waller and Johnson would have sounded like if they'd been recorded on contemporary equipment. Easy Street is a rematch with perhaps just the slightest shine taken off: there's some handsome playing, but a vague sense of routine about some of the tunes. The solo record from Café Des Copains, drawn from a series of broadcasts over a five-year period, uses scarce material – 'Russian Lullaby', 'Laugh Clown Laugh' and a rollicking 'Somebody Stole My Gal', with its rhythms cunningly displaced – which Sutton relishes, acknowledging the melodies but steamrollering past them into areas of what might be called 'pure' stride piano. The second helping on More concentrates on two shows a year apart and gets a slightly lower mark since the material is rather more familiar this time.

The 1979 date was originally issued as two LPs on ChazJazz and it also includes two previously unreleased tracks. The meeting of Sutton and McShann is the occasion for much musical backslapping, and while their styles aren't exactly complementary, Sutton tones down enough to make McShann's wry kind of blues seep through. They both sing, although Ralph sticks to Fats Waller ham on 'Truckin''. Lots of fun.

The Nagel Heyer set is an interesting discovery, pairing Sutton with drummer Silva, a Harlem man who recorded little and died not long after their partnership was set down, but whose skill at the traps is obvious from the off. The music offers a typical Sutton programme and is mostly drawn from a French gig by the team, with two rehearsal tracks included. There are plenty of strong Sutton records but this one is worth seeking out.

The Nif Nuf record features a duet concert with Braff which was the last date of an Australian tour, this one coming from Thebarton Town Hall in Adelaide. Ruby is in an extravagant good humour, judging from his announcements, and the pairing is completely simpatico. For some reason, Jeffery and Kennedy arrive for the final track.

Storyville have reissued Trio And Quartet after several years in the vinyl scrapyard. Recorded on one of Ralph's Scandinavian tours, this is a typically amiable encounter which finds Blach, Rasmussen and Nørregaard as capable if not especially effective bystanders. Sutton tends to go his own way.

 Sunday Session Sackville SKCS2-2044 Sutton; Milt Hinton (b); Butch Miles (d). 12/92.

 Echoes Of Swing Nagel Heyer CD 038 2CD Sutton; Jon-Erik Kellso (t); Bill Allred (tb); Antti Sarpila (cl, ss); Jack Lesberg (b); Gregor Beck (d). 3/97.

Sackville's disc was recorded in Switzerland, and it sets the trio to work on another familiar programme of jazz tunes and standards. Good stuff, but even though Miles is a surprise choice of drummer (and he does fine), there's much that is polished routine about the occasion. At this point Sutton was never going to do anything startling, but with so many CDs of his around, this is really just another one. So too the Nagel Heyer concert disc, even though recording Sutton with a band was something of a rarity. The horns play handsomely and good spirits abide across both discs, but with so much mainstream being recorded, again this falls into the middleweight bracket.

 Sweet Sue /  The Music Of Fats Waller Vol. 2 Nagel Heyer CD 057 / 086 Sutton; Jon-Erik Kellso (t); Brian Ogilvie (cl, ts); Marty Grosz (g, v); Dave Green (b); Frank Capp (d). 10/99.

A set of Waller tunes given a good going-over in one of the regular Nagel Heyer concerts/record dates. Sutton takes a relatively minor role as band pianist and the spirited work of Kellso and Ogilvie takes precedence, although Grosz does his usual scene-stealing, dedicating 'It's A Sin To Tell A Lie' to Kenneth Starr (historians will be scratching their heads over that one soon enough). Volume 2 is much the same again, although it sounds as if the well was starting to run dry as far as the best performances were concerned.

 Revelations Nif Nuf 43/012 Sutton; Kenny Davern (cl); Bill Polain (d). 8/88.

 At Bob Barnard's Jazz Party 1999 Nif Nuf 43/003 Sutton; Bob Barnard (c); Peter Gaudion (t); Ed Wilson (tb); John McCarthy (cl); Kenn Jones, Danny Moss (ts); Marty Grosz, John Scurry (g); Len Barnard (d). 4/99.

Sutton was a regular visitor to Australia and these sets come from two of his trips. Revelations is in the main a duet record with Davern (recorded on a day off in Bridgewater Mill), with local man Polain sitting in on four tracks. Davern doesn't quite sound at his best, but Sutton sweeps all before him and there is one rarity, 'Should I?'. Alternative takes pad out what was originally a cassette release.

There are several CDs available now made up from various sets at Bob Barnard's regular Jazz Parties, and this is Ralph's entry. There are duo, trio and small-group performances and the music brims with festival good humour, although the unwary should be warned that there are some wild swings in fidelity and volume: one of us nearly had his ears blown off in the transition between tracks two and three.

 A Pair Of Kings Arbors ARCD 19245 Sutton; Johnny Varro (p); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz Jr (d). 1/00.

The expected high jinks in a concert of piano duets, with Flanigan and Metz along for the ride. Ralph gets to do a 'Farewell Blues' by himself, which, given his passing, seems a poignant choice on what is at present the last disc in this listing.

Tierney Sutton (born 1963)

VOICE

Singer trying to mix standards with genuine jazz material.

 Introducing Tierney Sutton A Records AL 73111 Sutton; Buddy Childers (flhn); Christian Jacob, Michael Lang (p); Trey Henry (b); Ray Brinker (d). 8/95–4/96.

 Blue In Green Telarc CD-83522 Sutton; Christian Jacob (p); Trey Henry, Ken Wild (b); Ray Brinker, Joe LaBarbera (d). 11/00.

Ms Sutton's star potential doesn't seem to have developed much since this release: her big, rangy voice, on this showing, limited only by a fairly conservative approach to some reasonably adventurous material. That she has the capacity to tackle it more imaginatively is hinted at at every turn. A medley of Wayne Shorter's 'Footprints' and 'My Favorite Things', coming late in the set, was an opportunity to cut loose and try something different. Chick Corea's 'High Wire' was another strong choice, though probably the best two things are the closing 'If I Were A Bell' and 'In The Wee Small Hours Of The Morning', on which Lang co-stars.

The Telarc album is a belated follow-up. Sutton does have some head-turning mannerisms: singing a phrase half through her mouth, half down her nose; swallowing a word just as it's about to emerge; rushing and then laying back on the beat; going from coy to seductive inside one phrase. Given all this apparent artifice, it's surprising that any songs emerge unscathed, but several of these are handled with great skill, not least the title-track – a jazz untouchable which Sutton puts her fingerprints all over. It is, in fact, a Bill Evans tribute record, and it's Evans at his most hushed and interior which suits her best. A very individual vocal set.

 Something Cool Telarc CD-83548 Sutton; Christian Jacob (b); Trey Henry (b); Ray Brinker (d). 3/02.

 I'm With The Band Telarc CD-83616 As above, except add Kevin Axt (b). 3/05.

(*) On The Other Side Telarc CD 83650 As above, except add Jack Sheldon (t, v). 07.

The title-track is another untouchable, if you're any kind of June Christy fan, and it's similarly hard for her to put any kind of mark on 'Walkin' After Midnight' or 'The Best Is Yet To Come'. Yet minus strings, fancy charts or superstar guests, Sutton gives it all her best shot, and the record is likeable in its way. Too many of these are either overly familiar or tied to another voice: she needs to figure out a set-list which is neither.

I'm With The Band is drawn from gigs at Birdland in New York. If it was set up as a proving ground for her chops, it works fine: she seems fearless, and there is some ambitious singing. But she does tend to turn every song into some kind of melodrama, or aria, or something that has 'performance' stamped all over it. For certain tastes, she may be among the best singers of her style; others might want to approach with care.

Business Week compared On The Other Side (favourably) with In The Wee Small Hours, Sketches of Spain and The White Album; we have the cover sticker that claims as such, but while it's not possible to go that far, it's certainly her best record. The theme is happiness, or, as she makes clear, the bittersweet pursuit thereof, which is the only thing guaranteed to an American by the Founding Fathers. So 'Haunted Heart' is there as well as 'You Are My Sunshine', 'Glad to be Unhappy' as well as 'Happy Days are Here Again', two versions of 'Get Happy' and a final, quietly devastating 'Smile'. Sometimes both bassists are used simultaneously, which is interesting, and Sheldon brings a touch of Californian sun. A fine record, but we have it lagging about a block and a half behind Frank's conceptual classic.

Esbjörn Svensson (1964–2008)

KEYBOARDS

Born in Västerås, he studied music in Stockholm and began working in the local scene in the mid-'80s. He formed his trio in 1993.

 When Everyone Has Gone /  Mr And Mrs Handkerchief Dragon DRCD 248 / Prophone PCD 028 Svensson; Dan Berglund (b, whistle); Magnus Öström (d, v). 7–9/93; 3/95.

* Trio Plays Monk ACT 9010-2 As above, except add Ulf Forsberg, Ulrika Jansson, Elisabeth Arnberg, Ulrika Edström (strings). 96.

Svensson's early records are comparatively modest, but he was already telling an attractive story at the piano. The sound of When Everyone Has Gone is lightly impressionistic post-bop, nodding at Keith Jarrett's Standards Trio but scaling down the grand gestures to a more manageable size. The trio play together in a loose but cleanly focused way that gives a degree of relaxation to themes which might sound merely uptight. 'Mohammed Goes To New York Part Two' is a catchy piece of Scandinavian funk, much in the style of Niels Lan Doky, but Svensson's heart is probably more in the ballads: 'Waltz For The Lonely Ones' is particularly charming. He also uses the electronic keyboards with such restraint that they acquire an almost ghostly quality at the back of the music. Mr And Mrs Handkerchief dispenses with the electronics, but this time Svensson alternates between upright and grand pianos: the homely quality of the upright lends an oddly clattery quality to his work, an almost perverse note when one hears the delicacy of his touch on, say, 'The Day After'. As if in compensation, Berglund plays with a degree more urgency this time.

Any reservations about the trio's calibre are brushed aside by the superlative Monk tribute album. Svensson chooses nothing unusual from the canon – only 'Eronel', given a beautifully lyrical turn, might be deemed scarce – so it's all the more astonishing what freshness and urgency he and his partners bring to the material. The secret is in the rhythmic frameworks, each of them unexpected to some degree: march, funk or parade times are introduced to melodies which have otherwise grown stale in the jazz repertory, and it's amazing what this does to the likes of 'I Mean You' and 'Rhythm-A-Ning'. There is a choice string arrangement lent to 'Round Midnight' which is in all ways wholly unhackneyed, while they even manage to find a right-sounding pulse for the intractable 'Little Rootie Tootie'. Svensson is no genius at the keyboard, but he comes up with some glorious ideas: he seems to think no further ahead than the next note in every part of the extended 'Bemsha Swing', yet so spontaneous is the improvisation that it carries all before it. Berglund and Öström, recorded in a kind of hot close-up, are just as fine. An outstanding disc.

 Winter In Venice / * From Gagarin's Point Of View
Superstudio 74321 539612 / ACT 9005-2 Svensson; Dan Berglund (b); Magnus Öström (d). 10/97; 5–11/98.

These are surely Svensson's best records. Working in comparative isolation in Stockholm, he was here producing piano trio records ready to take on the best of whatever the rest of the jazz world can retaliate with. Winter In Venice is a radiant set. The Jarrett comparison comes up again (in one way unfortunately so, as Svensson has some of the singalong bug) since the meditative beauty of the title-piece, for one, recalls the pared-away melodicism of the old master's mid-period improvising. And a track such as 'At Saturday' even suggests a smidgen of gospel-funk. But Svensson is content to adopt a less-is-more position almost throughout. Many would have taken the opportunity to turn several of these pieces into marathon shows of rhetoric, but the trio let only one track break the six-minute barrier. Berglund and Öström are by now fully in tune with the group conception and they're superbly responsive, the drummer finding almost pinpoint details in his playing.

From Gagarin's Point Of View continues in the same vein, perhaps even more inventively. If jazz musicians are going to effect any kind of rapprochement with rock or dance music, then one way might be via the kind of fusion which the trio suggests in 'Dodge The Dodo', where Öström plays a sort of hip-hop beat at the kit and Svensson still lets the melodious theme determine the end result. It's just one of 11 diverse, ingenious compositions. The shaping of these episodes into a sequence may strike some as a bit too artful, but it's the act of musicians who are of a generation that knows about their vast range of options and still want to play acoustic jazz. At any rate, Svensson does more than enough here to show why, along with such performers as Jason Moran, Guus Janssen, Yosuke Yamashita and Brad Mehldau, he's helping to keep the piano trio situation full of new music.

(*) Good Morning Susie Soho /  Strange Place For Snow
ACT 9009-2 / 9011-2 As above. 3–4/00; 4–12/01.

Good Morning Susie Soho develops the work of the previous records, perhaps not to quite such a high level, but it can scarcely be called a disappointment. 'Thoughts Of A Septuagenarian' alone would make the record substantial, and in 'The Wraith' Svensson continues to explore how a dappling of electronics might embellish and amplify what he's doing at the piano. 'Do The Jangle' is virtuosity placed at the service of the music, and underlines how important Berglund and Öström are to the overall result.

But Strange Place For Snow feels as if the balance is shifting towards a more pat, less organic and spontaneous kind of jazz. Svensson has always been in danger of flirting with pop mannerisms – he does the Jarrett singalong when he feels like it, and a few of his gospel and blues licks could easily grow tiresome if he doesn't keep a vigilant grip on himself – and on a number of tracks here, the music either outstays its welcome or hints at a crowd-pleasing cliché. The finale of the title-track, for instance, is charming, but it could have been lifted off a Camel record.

 Viaticum + Live In Berlin ACT 6001-2 2CD As above. 8/04–4/05.

Berglund and Öström have grown into larger presences as the group has evolved, so there is no calling them the Esbjörn Svensson Trio any longer. Democracy aside, there is an often unsatisfactory tension between the more conservative piano trio stuff and the carefully 'strange' effects which are introduced into some tracks, such as the electronic noise on 'The Unstable Table & The Infamous Fable', which reminds us of nothing so much as Jimmy Page and his guitar-bow. At least when Mehldau does Radiohead, he's doing them in his language. E.S.T. increasingly sound like they just want a piece of the prog-rock action. It's interesting music, but it hardly seems as absorbing as the place they were in a few years ago. We are listing the so-called 'Platinum' edition of the album, which includes an extra disc of some live tracks from a Berlin show and a studio out-take.

 Tuesday Wonderland ACT 9016-2 As above. 3/06.

The opening 'Fading Maid Pendulum' does the usual thing: stately piano opening, then in crash the bass and drums and craziness ensues. It was a cliché even before they made it a cliché and here it starts to sound as tired and mainstream as the procession of award nominations that greeted this. Fans will gobble it up. Sceptics like ourselves will increasingly revert to the quasi-classic E.S.T.s of a decade past.

Also, in brief:

 E.S.T. Live ACT 9295-2 2CD. 3/95–7/99.

A resurrected concert from the early days, plus a later track with four years of startling growth.

 Seven Days Of Falling ACT 9012-2. N.D.

A successful trio consolidating its success. Exhilarating but slightly contrived.

Ewan Svensson

GUITAR, GUITAR-SYNTHESIZER

Contemporary Swedish guitarist, seeking his own path through the fusion and modal-bop fields which are currently the instrument's main areas.

 Present Directions Dragon DRCD 218 Svensson; Palle Danielsson (b); Magnus Gran (d). 9/90–6/91.

Anyone fluent in the vocabulary of Scofield and Abercrombie will find Svensson's conversation easy to follow. If he seldom sounds strikingly individual, he follows the language with great skill. Across 12 compositions and over an hour of music on Present Directions, he alternates between fast, neatly picked solos and broader, expressive washes via the guitar-synthesizer. What makes the difference is the exacting support offered by Danielsson, as strong a bassist as one could ask for in this setting, and Gran's busy and intelligent drumming.

 Reflections Dragon DRCD 239 Svensson; Ove Ingemarsson (ts); Harald Svensson (p); Matz Nilsson (b); Magnus Gran (d). 11/92–1/93.

 Next Step Dragon DRCD 284 As above, except omit Harald Svensson. 11/94.

More mood(y) electric jazz from Svensson, this time abetted by Ingemarsson. The compositions are thoughtful, if rather lacking in melody, but the duet with Harald Svensson on 'Boat Trip' is very pretty, and the leader has plenty to say beyond the usual unreeling of fast licks. The subsequent Next Step pares the music back to a quartet, Ingemarsson sticking to straight-ahead tenor; and his bluff authority cuts through any chaff that Svensson might have been tempted by. They move very easily through the 11 tunes. Nothing special to make the record stand out from its predecessors, though.

 Streams Dragon DRCD 291 Svensson; Yasuhito Mori (b); Magnus Gran (d). 9/95–2/96.

In his unemphatic way, Svensson has put together a strong catalogue of records, even if none of them stands out as an essential. Back in the trio format, and alternating only between a cool-toned electric and (on two tracks) an acoustic instrument, he patiently explores another 13 tunes with Mori's lines shadowing his and with Gran the soul of discretion. The writing, however, sounds particularly enticing: anonymous though the title might be, 'Piece IV' is ingeniously memorable, and some of the mood-pieces are done at precisely the right temperature.

 Figures Dragon DRCD 356 As above. 11/99–12/00.

Recorded at two sessions over a year apart, Svensson's latest continues his patient progress. An original such as 'Still Raining' personifies his melodious, faintly melancholy style: with his electric tone now a clean, big, resonant chime, his arpeggios can sound like a clarion of bells. Sometimes, though, he'll find an unexpectedly arresting line or two, as in his surprisingly tough extemporization on Bill Evans's 'Time Remembered'. It's not startling, but it keeps the listener interested, even if the record hardly qualifies as memorable. Mori is becoming a more assertive member of this group and some of his solos take the initiative from the leader.

(*) Meeting Dragon DRCD 356 Svensson; Ove Ingemarsson (ss, ts); Matz Nilsson (b); Magnus Gran (d); Ensemble Ginestra. 04.

Svensson does himself no market or critical favours by continuing to play such delicate and sophisticated music. We're admirers, but it's hard for a record as nuanced as this to make much noise in the marketplace. With a string quartet on board – and very much on board – the sound of the guitar shifts somewhat, but Svensson has devised interesting ways of making it all work together. Very satisfying.

Steve Swallow (born 1940)

BASS GUITAR

Early work with Paul Bley and Jimmy Giuffre, then with Stan Getz and Gary Burton for the rest of the '60s. Spent some time in California before returning East and switched from double bass to bass guitar as his sole instrument. Latterly a central figure in the Carla Bley circle. His own records are musicianly but often suggest that he's not that bothered about them.

(*) Home ECM 513424-2 Swallow; David Liebman (ss, ts); Steve Kuhn (p); Lyle Mays (syn); Bob Moses (d); Sheila Jordan (v). 9/79.

 Carla XtraWatt 833492-2 Swallow; Carla Bley (org); Larry Willis (p); Hiram Bullock (g); Victor Lewis (d); Don Alias (perc); Ida Kavafian (vn); Ikwhan Bae (vla); Fred Sherry (clo). 86–87.

(*) Swallow XtraWatt 511960-2 Swallow; Steve Kuhn (p); Carla Bley (org); Karen Mantler (ky, hca); Gary Burton (vib); Hiram Bullock, John Scofield (g); Robby Ameen (d); Don Alias (perc). 9–11/91.

 Real Book XtraWatt 521637-2 Swallow; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); Joe Lovano (ts); Mulgrew Miller (p); Jack DeJohnette (d). 12/93.

 Deconstructed XtraWatt 537119-2 Swallow; Ryan Kisor (t); Chris Potter (sax); Mick Goodrick (g); Adam Nussbaum (b). 95.

Swallow is one of the most accomplished bassists of recent times. A man of real generosity of spirit, he has largely sublimated his own ambitions in the service of others, not least his partner Carla Bley. The writing on Carla barely reflects the quality of classics like 'Arise Her Eyes' and 'Hotel Hello', which represent Swallow's other main contribution to modern jazz. But for the absence of the dedicatee's abrasive melodic mannerisms, this might just as well be a Carla Bley album (which will be sufficient recommendation for Bley fans).

For Home Swallow set a group of poems by Robert Creeley, tiny snapshots of ordinariness that deliver their meanings precisely and without embellishment. Much the way Swallow plays. It might be that these pieces would work better with a less developed accompaniment, perhaps just voice, bass and piano, but the scoring is never allowed to overpower the lyric.

There's a touch of sameness about the writing on the eponymous Swallow, but the bassist's arrangements are impeccable and he's seldom sounded better. The tunes are mostly mid-tempo Latino grooves with plenty of solo scope. Guest players Burton and Scofield don't figure all that prominently and the most arresting voice is Karen Mantler's harmonica; her brief solo on 'Slender Thread' sets the bassist up for one of his delicate, single-note constructions, built up over Bley's organ chords and a soft shuffle beat. It could do with just one ripping tune, but that isn't Swallow's forte. On its own perfectly respectable terms, this is a beauty.

Real Book is a modest adventure for an all-star (though arguably over-familiar) band of heroes. Harrell and Lovano are dependably excellent, and the session has class and aplomb from moment to moment; but this kind of meeting of heavyweights isn't necessarily Swallow's best thing, and the music misses some of his most interesting quirks.

Deconstructed is an attempt to strike some new chords. Using a trumpeter and saxophonist of airier bent makes a difference to the shape of the songs, and spreading the harmonic business across two guitars gives the music a spacious quality which is very appealing. However, nothing develops and there is hardly a tune which goes anywhere more interesting than its own initial premisses.

 Always Pack Your Uniform on Top ECM 543506 Swallow; Barry Ries (t); Chris Potter (ts); Mick Goodrick (g); Adam Nussbaum (d). 4/99.

Steve's intro to the opening track, 'Bend Over Backward', is about the most prominent thing he does on the whole album; he prefers as ever to stay very much part of the ensemble. Yet there is no doubt whatsoever that it is Swallow who is steering the music and guiding it into territory that challenges his fellow players without throwing down a confrontational gauntlet. The second track, 'Dog With A Bone', is as fast-paced and boppish as anything the bassist has recorded and the crowd at Ronnie Scott's in London must have put down their drinks and moved to the front of their seats to see if the band really could pull it off. It does and returns with 'Misery Loves Company', which is rhythmically subtle and full of unexpected colourations. Steve also plays an unaccompanied introduction on 'Reinventing The Wheel', but thereafter he is happy to slip back into the group, its motor and fifth column all in one.

 Damaged In Transit XtraWATT 11 Swallow; Chris Potter (ts); Adam Nussbaum (d). 12/02.
Swallow's self-effacing tactics may in some senses be admirable, but here he is really pushed into the background: this set is all about Potter, and to some extent his dialogue with Nussbaum, with the compositions and bass-playing a poor third. Potter's tenor work here is individual and purposeful, and in some of his interactions with the drums he is building on some very distinguished prior jazz traditions. But one may well ask – why is all this happening on a Steve Swallow record?

 L'Histoire Du Clochard (The Bum's Tale) Palmetto PM 2103 Swallow; Russ Johnson (t); Jacob Garchick (tb); Ohad Talmor (ts); Greg Tardy (cl); Meg Okura (vn). 04.
Our immediate impression of this extraordinary cycle of Swallow tunes, arranged and in some cases virtually recomposed by co-leader Talmor, was that it was strongly reminiscent of Stravinsky's A Soldier's Tale. It's reassuring to learn that this was Talmor's intention. The obvious difference is that he has dropped percussion (an interesting decision) and substituted his own tenor for bassoon. It makes for a fascinating sound-palette and Steve's themes are sufficiently robust and eclectic to lift the record out of any bland 'crossover' box. Pieces like 'Chelsea Bells', 'Sweeping Up' and 'Hullo Bolinas' are among the strongest in his catalogue. It won't be to every taste, perhaps too 'written' for purists, but it's well worth sampling.

* So There XtraWatt 000793202 Swallow; Steve Kuhn (p); Cikada String Quartet; Robert Creeley (v). 3/05.
Swallow and Black Mountain poet Robert Creeley were long-term friends. Their musical companionship was illustrated as far back as Home, where Sheila Jordan sang a number of Creeley works. In the final years of the poet's life, Swallow recorded him reading a large number of works, with a view to selecting some for musical setting. The project was still not realized when Creeley died in 2005, but Swallow pressed ahead with the available speech recordings. That, of course, is a not entirely satisfactory description, because Creeley's writings and delivery were always marked by a jazz-influenced, almost boppish cadence.

The set opens with the minimal 'Oh No', but the track that follows, 'Names', is stunning, with the string quartet beautifully placed behind, but in no way under the voice, and the piano engaged in some of the most stretching music of the date. Kuhn, a superb vocal accompanist, is a key component, and some of his simplest and most powerful playing reflects – in spirit, if not in execution – the Bud Powell music Creeley used to like as a background for writing. Only four of the tracks exceed four minutes in length (and one of them is a medley of two but one gets no sense that these are miniatures. Each is fully conceived and richly performed; with Swallow sounding positively exalted in places, at others down in a sombre blues mood, as he is on 'Sufi Sam Christian'. 'Return' and 'Riddle', two of the longer tracks, are among the best of the set, but there is a sense of logic and order to the whole proceeding and a wonderful modulation of mood, which takes in thoughts of impending death, nostalgia for a more vivid past, simple love lyrics like the closing 'A Valentine For Pen' and some crisply emphatic playing that keeps this from drifting into the doldrums.

John Swana (born 1962)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Raised in Philadelphia, where he still lives, he began listening to jazz in high school, then sat in at the local clubs.

 Introducing John Swana Criss Cross 1045 Swana; Billy Pierce (ts); Benny Green (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/90.
 John Swana And Friends Criss Cross 1055 Swana; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); Billy Pierce (ts); Mulgrew Miller (p); Ira Coleman (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/91.
Swana is a staunch modern traditionalist, firmly in the mould of such bygone masters as Lee Morgan and Kenny Dorham, and though he also cites Tom Harrell as a key influence, it's his silvery tone and ready fluency that mark him out as an accomplished player. These are meaty, enjoyable records that just miss out on indispensability: little about the first two lingers long in the mind. Introducing pairs him with a near-perfect companion in the useful Pierce, who manages to play muscular tenor without quite falling into muscle-bound moves. The rhythm section are characteristically full of brio, but the material comes out sounding the same, even with such diverse composers as Wayne Shorter, Kenny Dorham and Swana himself. John Swana And Friends adds Harrell to the front line, and his arrangements of some of the jazz tunes – a tart reharmonization of 'Oleo', for instance – introduce a fresh twist. Yet the music never quite catches fire as it might, and Harrell's lovely playing on 'Darn That Dream' puts Swana in the shade.

(*) In The Moment Criss Cross 1119 Swana; Steve Davis (tb); Eric Alexander (ts); Kenny Barron (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 12/95.
Swana has been lucky in his sidemen, and that proves true again here: the rumbustious Davis and Alexander are a sound contrast in styles to the leader's more wistful and cajoling manner, and the rhythm section is absolutely blue-chip. The originals are a quite characterful lot, particularly the engaging ballad 'Martha', and the muted set-piece for the leader on 'Ballad Of The Sad Young Men' has genuine class about it.

(*) Philly–New York Junction Criss Cross 1150 Swana; Joe Magnarelli (t, flhn); Eric Alexander (ts); Joel Weiskopf (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 6/98.
(*) Tug Of War Criss Cross 1163 Swana; Chris Potter (ts, ss, f); David Hazeltine (p); Dwayne Burno (b); Byron Landham (d). 12/97–12/98.
Both of these are, in their way, no more than massively confident genre entries, rendered skilful by the great expertise of the players and informed by their pleasure at playing together; but the lack of a grand concept – which is the Criss Cross 'what you hear is what you get' trademark – adds to rather than subtracts from the results. The sextet session benefits from the piquancy of having Swana and Magnarelli together in the front line, and the horns are used in some interesting ways across the course of the date; but the quality of the solos, plangent but relaxed, is what you remember. Sample the title-track to hear how much they extract out of a relatively straightforward blowing tune.

Tug Of War is distinguished not only by the partnership of Swana and Potter, five years on from The Feeling's Mutual (see below, 'in brief'), but also by the excellent original material, idiomatic within a fairly conservative hard-bop tack, but fresh and imaginative, too. For once a 70-minute record doesn't seem too long – it's neatly paced, and even though the two halves of the record were made almost exactly a year apart, there's nothing disjointed between the dates. Swana and Potter both play some beautiful solos, but they are often almost aced out of it by Hazeltine's ability to surprise.

(*) On Target Criss Cross 1241 Swana; Jesse Van Ruller (g); John Patitucci (b); Eric Harland (d). 12/02.
'Philly Jazz' is a hometown tribute, a clever late-night burner that is deceptively unsophisticated until it's been heard once or twice. Indeed, that's very much the impression of the album as a whole. Swana is the main voice out front, but Patitucci and Van Ruller break up the rhythmic and harmonic expectations, allowing him to range freer and lighter than before. Harland replaces Byron Landham and Kenny Washington and brings a springier metre which makes sense of the new material. The opening 'Through My Eyes' is a naggingly familiar slice of Blue Note hard bop (Swana notes an unintended echo of Donald Byrd), which gives way to the delicate sophistication of 'Mud Puppy' (muted) and 'Sweet Sadness'. The title-track is a brisk and striking theme from an increasingly confident composer.

 Bright Moments Criss Cross 1301 Swana; Eric Alexander, Grant Stewart (ts); David Hazeltine (p); Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 4/07.
Another chapter of freewheeling hard bop. There's not much indication of effort or strain on this, just a machine-tooled session with familiar personnel and no stylistic quirks of any sort. Alexander phones in his features and it's more often Stewart (and more unexpectedly Hazeltine) who adds some additional drama to the leader's clanging solos. The opening sequence of 'Wilbert', 'Chillin'', 'Road Trippin'' looks more generic on paper than it is in practice, to be fair, but this is very much a repertory date, aimed at fans, unconcerned with making new converts, and to that degree fine.

Also, in brief:

(*) The Feeling's Mutual Criss Cross 1090. 12/93.
With Chris Potter (ts, as, f) and a couple of friends from Philly on board, a nice step forward.

 Philly Gumbo /  Philly Gumbo Volume 2 Criss Cross 1203 / 1260. 6/00; 4/04.
Another genre entry: reports from the 'local' scene – seems all's well.

Steve Swell (born 1954)

TROMBONE

Born in Newark, and going his own way through free and post-bop styles.

(*) Observations CIMP 108 Swell; Chris Kelsey (ss). 2/96.
(*) Out And About CIMP 116 Swell; Roswell Rudd (tb); Ken Filiano (b); Lou Grassi (d). 6/96.
 Moons Of Jupiter CIMP 149 Swell; Mark Whitecage (as, cl); Dominic Duval (b); Jay Rosen (d). 5/97.
Fine records helmed by a distinctive and impassioned improviser. Swell isn't a virtuoso trombonist in the manner of Rutherford or Christmann, but he's a powerful, vocal player whose energies ignite each of these occasions. The duo with Kelsey is a long-standing rehearsal partnership, and they read each other's moves with brilliant empathy. These are long, almost Tristano-like lines of counterpoint, each following a determined plan that has the feel of extemporization, and if the format is a little monochromatic there's nothing routine in their conversation. Out And About sets up an encounter with a godfather of free trombone. Rudd seems less than the force he was, and Swell is clearly the stronger participant, but the music is more an affectionate, collaborative joust than a cutting contest. Swell's tone has a raucous, overheated timbre when he warms up, and set beside Rudd's more constricted delivery, the results are more reminiscent of a couple of old Dixieland tailgaters going at it than anything 'avant-garde'. Filiano and Grassi enter into the spirit with the necessary gusto.

Moons Of Jupiter gets off to a tumultuous start with the overwhelmingly powerful 'For Henry Darger'. The rest of the record never quite measures up to the opening; as good as the horns are, they don't quite click with the long-standing partnership of Duval and Rosen, and it turns out as a free-bop date with flashes of brilliance. As so often with CIMP releases, both Duval and (on the previous disc) Filiano suffer from inaudibility – these records simply don't give the bassist a chance.

 Atmospheels CIMP 184 Swell; Will Connell (as, cl, bcl); Lou Grassi (d). 8/98.
 Flurries Warm And Clear CIMP 203 Swell; Ned Rothenberg (as, cl, bcl); Tomas Ulrich (clo). 7/99.
Two different trios. Connell is an unexposed veteran – now in his 60s, he came up through the Horace Tapscott groups of the '60s and has recorded only rarely – and he plays buzzsaw solos on alto which are rampant in a not very purposeful way. With no bassist, Grassi seems unsure of how to make the music go forward, and it tends to clump around his bass drum pedal. That said, there are still some corking improvisations from the leader, such as his long, blaring take on 'Folk Tune'.

Track three, 'Acoustic Rumble', pretty much sums up the second disc. It's chamber-jazz of a growly, unbeautiful temperament. Ulrich drones and slides around the other two, and a lot of the music is a dense weave. Three duos lighten the texture, and briefer, snappier pieces such as 'Consume This' perk the listener up.

 Particle Data Group Cadence CJR 1139 Swell; Bruce Eisenbeil (g); Gregg Bendian (vib). 9/00.
A unique instrumentation for sure, and an altogether strange record: several tracks (with titles such as 'Diagnostic Placements') barely break the one-minute barrier, while others drift hazily on towards eight minutes or so. It doesn't feel like free jazz, even though all the tracks are apparently improvised: it's more like modern composition where the lines and responses are absolutely articulated and decided. Spacious, stark, but sometimes soothingly melodious, it recalls some of the earlier experiments of Leo Smith, without the serenity.

 This Now! Cadence CJR 1159 Swell; Matt Lavelle (t); Jemeel Moondoc (as); Cooper-Moore (p); Wilber Morris (b); Kevin Norton (d). 11/01.
A talented group – or, at least, a group full of talented players – boiling through a gig at New York's Roulette one November night. Of the three pieces, the most interesting is the middle one,

'BA-1', which features some particularly creative interplay between everyone bar Norton, who keeps quiet a lot of the way and lets the various voices rise and fall. Having Cooper-Moore in the group introduces the rarity of a piano into Swell's music and he plays in a neoclassic free-jazz style which actually works very well. 'Tryarhythmic' rattles along as a kind of free-bop boogaloo – too long, but a nutty adventure as far as it goes.

 Still In Movement CIMP 285 Swell; Tom Abbs (b, tba); Geoff Mann (d, c). 3/03.
Unsurprisingly, the trio situation of Still In Movement works better. Swell's tunes are utilitarian pieces to get the group into a mood or a groove, and they battle it out across nine pieces. The problem may be that Swell eventually runs out of enough ammunition to sustain his role as sole horn across the whole record (a needlessly marathon 71 minutes): at halfway, you feel they've said their piece, and the rest traverses similar ground.

 Slammin' The Infinite /  Remember Now Cadence CJR 1174 / Not Two MW772 Swell; Sabir Mateen (as, ts, f, cl, acl); Matthew Heyner (b); Klaus Kugel (d). 12/03; 06.
 Live At The Vision Festival Not Two MW780-2 As above, except add John Blum (p). 6/06.
Mateen's broad range of instruments varies the sonic palette of Slammin' The Infinite with refreshing results. Despite the aggressive title, the music has an agreeably folksy feel in parts, pieces such as 'With The Morning, Hope' taking on an alfresco humour. But when they do get agitated, confusion tends to reign. Same applies on the Not Two disc. 'MB-1 (for Marion Brown' is superb, but there are too many moments when the music descends into noisy jostling. The addition of Blum for the live NYC date doesn't, for us, add anything of great substance. He's a fine player who sometimes struggles to make himself heard and understood in what's becoming a settled band. Three large slabs of sound give the disc an undifferentiated feel, though the closing threnody for Frank Lowe suddenly seems to acquire coherence.

Also, in brief:

(*) Poets Of The Now CIMP 272. 7/02.
This was meant as a showcase for pianist Ursel Schlicht, but Swell gets a co-credit as leader.

 Suite For Players, Listeners And Other Dreamers CIMP 292. 7/03.
Too many players for CIMP's system of 'natural' recording.

 Double Diploid CIMP 352. 06.
Swell and fellow 'bonist David Taylor in a limited edition rerun of their earlier Not Just under DT's name.

Craig Taborn

PIANO, KEYBOARDS, LAPTOP

Out of Detroit, and best known for his work with James Carter, but developing his own profile all the time and exploring musics outside jazz as well.

 Trio DIW 618 Taborn; Jaribu Shahid (b); Tani Tabbal (d). 4/94.

 Light Made Lighter Thirsty Ear THE 57111 Taborn; Chris Lightcap (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 10/01.
* Junk Magic Thirsty EAR THE 57144 Taborn; Aaron Stewart (ts); Mat Maneri (vla); Dave King (d). 4/04.

Taborn's debut on DIW prompted the thought that for the foreseeable future fans would have to search out his best work on records by other leaders. For all that album's nicely eclectic approach, with nods to Coltrane, Ornette and Horace Silver as well as strong original material, that proved to be the case. Light Made Lighter sets him on course with confidence. The presence of two takes each of the title-track and the opening and closing 'Bodies We Came Out Of' gives the set a rounded-out quality, almost as if it was conceived as a continuous performance. There are hints of nursery rhyme and calypso on the opening track which suggest a certain personal resonance, and which inevitably recalls some of Andrew Hill's Caribbean stuff, but elsewhere the tone is more sombre. 'I Cover The Waterfront' is just a great standard cover, effortlessly understood and then imaginatively dismantled.

Junk Magic dives headlong into another realm altogether. Though the basic language is still jazz, Taborn brings in a whole range of sampling procedures, confirms the laptop as the synth of the '00s, and recruits Maneri to give the whole thing a vibrant microtonal gloss. The title is apposite, since it does resemble something beautiful and even slightly forbidding created out of the remnants of a throwaway culture, like the Watts Towers, perhaps. 'Bodies At Rest And In Motion' follows up what seems to be a Taborn obsession, while the closing 'The Golden Age' is his most significant statement yet, thoroughly original and intensely moving.

Aki Takase (born 1948)

PIANO

Once a student of Yosuke Yamashita, Takase emerged in the '80s as a pianist working in an area which touched on post-bop but more often looked towards an entirely free vocabulary. Married to Alexander von Schlippenbach.

(*) Piano Duets Live In Berlin 93/94 FMP OWN-90002 Takase; Alexander von Schlippenbach (p). 3/93–12/94.
Takase rises out of jazz piano history with unique intensity and panache. Her earlier music suggested a pianist who was involving herself in earlier methods only reluctantly – most of the music leapt into the darkness of free playing at the earliest opportunity.

The record with her husband is meticulously balanced, opening with two long pieces by AVS, centred with four Monk tunes and ending with two extended variations on Takase themes. Even the two pairs of compositions share affinities: 'Na, Na, Na, Na … Ist Das Der Weg?' and 'Tales Of Something' both come out of overlapping, building-block figures that achieve a terse complexity, and 'The Morlocks' (recorded before the orchestral version on the FMP CD of that title) and 'Chapelure Japonaise' are whirlwinds of prepared-piano turbulence. The Monk tunes – each pianist takes one solo – are like a breathing space, and Frank Zappa's 'You Are What You Is' is like a roistering encore.

(*) Duet For Eric Dolphy / * The Dessert Enja 91209-2 / Leo CDLR 370 Takase; Rudi Mahall (bcl, cbcl). 5/97; 03.
Mahall is by no means intimidated by the fact that David Murray has already played this duettist role on a Takase record. He's a mercurial player, making light of the lumbering reputation of the bass clarinet, with a slightly pinched tone and a quacking approach to a line. Ten Dolphy tunes – a big chunk of his œuvre, in fact – are whistled through, along with three originals and a peg-leg treatment of 'I'm Confessin''. Miniaturized into briefly explosive or bittersweet episodes, it's an inventive, droll record.

Five years on their merrymaking remains infectious. Most of the tracks are named for something likely to be served at table and the playing is suitably flavoursome and impeccably cooked. Thirteen compositions all have their own special detail and quality, and some of the performances, such as 'Panna Cotta', are so beautifully modulated that one can't imagine them being bettered. As a kind of encore, they uncork four brief improvisations, whose scattershot qualities underscore how fastidiously the preceding tunes were performed.

(*) Le Cahier Du Bal Leo CDLR 319 Takase (p solo). 1/01.
In dedication to her friend the dancer Anzu Furukawa: 'I just thought of her, as if she were dancing on the keyboard instead of my fingers, jumping, stopping, bending gently.' Percussive as ever, Takase doesn't have fairy fingers, and while some of her spontaneous melodies have their delicacy, they're picked, chopped, hammered and chiselled out of the keyboard. They whirl, they pirouette … what a dazzling sound!

* St Louis Blues Enja ENJ 9130 Takase; Nils Wogram (tb); Fred Frith (g); Rudi Mahall (bcl); Paul Lovens (perc). 6/01.
(*) Plays Fats Waller Enja ENJ 9152 As above, except omit Frith; add Thomas Heberer (t), Eugene Chadbourne (g, bjo, v). 6/03.
Waller is the perfect subject for someone of Takase's quirky humour and fast thinking, but how does she tackle the blues? The honest answer is: with complete conviction. The Handy tune and the others are given a clownish lugubriousness that manages to be both funny and very moving. The relationship with Mahall is now very secure, but Wogram fits into the picture very well indeed and it's great to have Frith involved in something like this. He's missed on the Waller record, though Chadbourne has personality to spare and is a formidble musician in any genre or style. 'Handful Of Keys', 'Vipers Drag' and 'Ain't Misbehavin'' are all terrific, but Aki's own 'Any Tune, But Fats Tune' just about steals the show. A great pair of records.

* Lok 3 Leo CD LR 427 Takase; Alex von Schlippenbach (p); DJ Illvibe (samples, turntables). 04.
The title refers to Lokomotive 03, which thanks to Illvibe's juggling of sounds transports Takase and Schlippenbach to a series of exotic destinations. It's a heady mix of styles and procedures as you might expect, with the usual wit and mischief thrown in, but it's Takase's rippling approach which really steals the set.

 Tarantella Psi 06. 03 Takase; Aleks Kolkowski (vn); Maurice Horsthuis (vla); Tristan Honsinger (clo); Nobuyoshi Ino (b). 9/97.
There are, of course, distinguished precedents for a piano quintet with bass instead of a second violin. It certainly gives the group a more resonant tonality and allows Takase in places to play something like the role of first fiddle, with Kolkowski exploring some of the contrapuntal stuff. Like Schlippenbach, Takase seems very much taken up with Eric Dolphy's legacy and with Monk, so 'Hat And Beard' here has a wonderful flavour of them both, appropriate in that the theme was inspired by the great pianist. Honsinger is superb here. Ino has his moment on Charlie Haden's 'Song For Che', though the piece doesn't quite work as a whole. Takase also pays tribute to Carla Bley with two fine interpretations and in fact the only weak link on a generally excellent album is her own title-track, which overcooks a good idea.

(*) Spring In Bangkok Intakt CD 110 Takase; Lauren Newton (v). 9/04.
Actually recorded in Berlin, but a date that once again allows Takase to explore a whole world of exotica with the kind of exuberance and, as Bert Noglik points out in his liner-note, sense of humour that has characterized much of her work to date. In this, Newton is a more than willing partner. They virtually create a language in the course of this set. It's made up of surreal juxtapositions, passages that don't conform to any known harmonics or rhythm – or which dispense with the idea of both altogether – but by the end one feels one's part of an intimate discourse that could feasibly continue indefinitely. Great stuff.

Horace Tapscott (1934–99)

PIANO

Tapscott's music and his views on integration and racial equality cannot be separated, and yet he rarely composed anything resembling programme or agit-prop music, preferring to let the free flow of creativity do the job of discourse for him. Inevitably, given his views, he was held apart from the critical mainstream and, despite a substantial body of recording from the time of his comeback in 1978 onwards, most of it was for his own Nimbus label. He remains, perversely, best known for the compositions and arrangements on Sonny Criss's 1968 album Sonny's Dream.

 Dial 'B' For Barbara Nimbus West 1147 Tapscott; Reggie Bullen (t); Gary Bias (as); Sabir Mateen (ts); Roberto Miranda (b); Everett Brown Jr (d). 81.
* Live At Lobero: Volume 1 Nimbus West 1369 Tapscott; Roberto Miranda (b); Sonship Theus (d). 11/81.
(*) Dissent Or Descent Nimbus West 509 Tapscott; Fred Hopkins (b); Ben Riley (d). 84.

♛ * The Dark Tree hatOLOGY 2-2053 2CD Tapscott; John Carter (cl); Cecil McBee (b); Andrew Cyrille (d). 12/89.
There was, inevitably, a darker side to the cool 'West Coast sound' and to the conventionally sunny image of California. One hardly thinks of Eric Dolphy or Charles Mingus as 'West Coast' players, yet that is what they were, and they conveyed a fundamental truth about the region's culture that is reflected in Horace Tapscott's still painfully unrecognized work. Tapscott was first and always a community musician. His decision to remain in Los Angeles as a performer/activist undoubtedly thwarted wider recognition, but so too did the fact that he conformed to no readily marketable pigeonhole; 'West Coast Hot' was considered something of a pleonasm in the business, and there was a measure of suspicion regarding Tapscott's political agenda. In 1961 he helped establish the Union Of God's Musicians And Artists' Ascension, out of which grew the Pan-Afrikan People's Arkestra, both attempts to find uncompromised work for talented, young, black musicians. Their work is fiercely disciplined, built up out of deceptively simple elements, but with subtle polychordal shadings that reflect Tapscott's solo work and his intriguing duos and trios with members of the PAPA. Much of this work has been issued on his own Nimbus label, but its status and availability have always been troublingly hard to pin down.

Dial 'B' For Barbara is an exception, though even it will be quite difficult to find. Tapscott's sextet of the time somewhat resembles Andrew Hill's '60s groups, in that it touches on areas of harmony and rhythm that might be termed 'avant-garde' while retaining a very approachable groove and verse–chorus structure. A huge version of 'Dem Folks' dominates the set, and sometimes Tapscott himself seems a little eclipsed by his saxophonists, but there is no mistaking the group empathy or the quality of the music.

The earlier of the trio sets throws Tapscott's playing into sharp and effective focus. He has the remarkable ability, even on a swinger like 'Sketches Of Drunken Mary', to give even the lightest material a dark tonality without ever compromising on the essential energy of the line. There is also a superb version of 'The Dark Tree', which is perhaps Tapscott's best-known composition. Miranda and Theus both provide sterling support, the former a much underrated player and a loyal interpreter of Tapscott's work who might have found a more lucrative career elsewhere.

Interestingly, the pianist seem less assured with Riley and Hopkins, though between them they seem to represent the aesthetic polarities – Monk and the avant-garde respectively – which bookend Tapscott's style. He offers a lovely solo interpretation of 'Ruby, My Dear' here, and is more clearly audible without the other instruments – a very awkward mix elsewhere – but the high-points of the set are the long readings of 'To The Great House' (a nice illustration of Tapscott's ability to weave gospelly ideas into a modernist idiom) and Clifford Jordan's 'Spell Bound'. The set itself is bookended by 'As A Child', one of his loveliest ideas, and 'Chico's Back In Town', one of his most vociferous. The latter begins awkwardly, seemingly directionless, but once it hits a groove it's unstoppable. Not the best recording and not the best Tapscott performance, but a fine record all the same.

The Dark Tree is special in having two neglected giants of modern jazz working with instinctive sympathy, intelligence and bottomless expression. Both pianist and clarinettist are entirely at ease with brusque, angular melodies and more sweepingly lyrical passages. Tunes like 'Lino's Pad' exploit unusual and often difficult time-signatures, combinations of metre which present no problems to players as deft as McBee and Cyrille. Alternative versions of 'The Dark Tree' can be found elsewhere, on the trio disc above and on a valuable Novus/BMG compilation called West Coast Hot which pops up every now and then and is well worth the search. These two versions, though, are the key statements; one can't say 'definitive' of a piece that is defined by its fugitive, experimental quality, but the interplay between Carter and Tapscott is astonishing and one's only regret is that they didn't choose to tape or release a duo version as well. According The Dark Tree the clinching accolade of a crown might seem belated enthusiasm, but the record was out of circulation for some time and returned in the wake of Horace's death with redoubled impact. The recording sounds as fresh and densely textured as ever. A genuinely important reissue.

(*) aiee! The Phantom Arabesque AJ0119 Tapscott; Marcus Belgrave (t); Abraham Burton (as); Reggie Workman (b); Andrew Cyrille (d). 6/95.

(*) Among Friends Jazz Friends 4 Tapscott; Sonny Simmons (as); James Lewis (b); John Betsch (d). 7/95.

(*) Thoughts Of Dar Es Salaam Arabesque AJ 0128 Tapscott; Ray Drummond (b); Billy Hart (d). 96.

Arabesque took on Tapscott in the mid-'90s, perhaps conscious that time might be slipping away for one of the sleeping giants of the music. The oddly named aiee! The Phantom is unmistakable Tapscott: big, pounding motifs, with horns punching away over the top. The long pieces, 'Mothership' and a reprise of an older theme, 'Drunken Mary/Mary On Sunday', are very impressively voiced and crafted, almost like scaled-down versions of big-band arrangements. The only quibble relates to Burton, who usually punches his weight but sounds out of place here. It isn't that he can't keep pace with Tapscott's slewing harmonics and rapid-rotation rhythm: it's simply that he doesn't have much to add in his own voice.

Tapscott had never shied away from standards but he rarely played them in common times. That's evident on the friendly summit with Simmons, who occupies a similar, marginal position in most maps of American jazz. 'Milestones', 'So What' and 'Body and Soul' are all subtly repositioned. The slightly strange thing about Thoughts Of Dar Es Salaam is that there is scarcely an oblique or asymmetrical time-signature to be heard. Despite a trio perfectly capable of tackling anything he threw at them, Horace stays in ordinary metres throughout, leaving Hart and Drummond to embellish and vary at will, but not straying on his own account. Recent years had seen him re-examining aspects of bebop. 'So What' on Among Friends is a vivid example, and 'Now's The Time' on the trio record is a powerful restatement of how much unexplored acreage Horace had found in bop. Some of the tunes would seem pointlessly cranky when executed in any way other than straightforwardly, and Tapscott seems to have wakened to the potential of clear and clean-edged melody. For many listeners, Thoughts will be a first exposure to his work. As such, it's potentially misleading, and they should certainly not neglect to follow through with The Dark Tree.

Gregory Tardy (born 1966)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET

A stop-start recording career, but the New York tenorman is consolidating.

(*) Abundance Palmetto PM 2075 Tardy; Miguel Zenon (as); George Colligan (p); Sean Conly (b); Woody Williams (d). 3/01.

(*) The Truth Steeplechase SCCD 31583 Tardy; Marcus Printup (t); Helen Sung (p); Sean Conly (b); Jaimeo Brown (d). 3/05.

Tardy's progress on record unfortunately was in keeping with his name, since Impulse! didn't stick with him after a ballyhooed signing earlier in the '90s. A belated follow-up, Abundance is a New York quartet record of class and power. The leader pushes his sound much harder, shouting at some phrases and generally getting away from any notions of major-label accessibility. Whether that entirely suits him or not is contentious. The opening 'Plan B', with counterpoint from Zenon in his only appearance of the date, feels rather crudely violent at first, but the hook sticks in the mind and repeat plays reveal subtleties. Colligan is an asset to seemingly any situation, and he plays a strong part in the record's success. The originals aren't exactly an immortal bunch, but as props for the improvising they do their job; and the neoclassic interlude, 'The Very Thought Of You', overcomes its tepid pace with an immaculate performance.

The grand title of the Steeplechase record conceals a series of themes titled to reflect spiritual beliefs. The album has a patient, musing quality and Tardy seems almost reluctant to be the lead voice, letting Printup dominate the opening track and giving plenty of space to the others all through. Compared to previous work this is very distilled, but there's unmistakable power in reserve and in the end the record is quietly impressive.

(*) Steps Of Faith Steeplechase SCCD 31610 Tardy; Marcus Printup (t); Logan Richardson (as); Luis Perdomo (p); Sean Conly (b); Jaimeo Brown (d); Joanne Tady (v). 1/06.

There's a strong religious faith running through Tardy's personality and work, and it becomes most overt here on this gospel-tinged album, which has a deep collective pulse that suggests a group in common purpose and spirit. The original 'Standing On The Solid Rock', a virtual call to arms or to prayer, is followed unexpectedly by Shorter's 'Toy Tune' but pretty much everything else is his own, and on the later sequence 'Born Of Water And The Spirit', 'Road To Emmaus' and 'Da Vinci Deception' Tardy reaches for an intensity of writing and expression he hasn't achieved before. The basic hard-bop situation has a Latin tinge here and there, but neither overt nor intrusive. The other horns, both leaders now, are in good voice and there's a sense of mutuality, rather than just Buggins' turn, in the solos. At time of writing, a new Tardy CD, He Knows My Name, was on the slips for Steeplechase.

Buddy Tate (1915–2001)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, CLARINET

He replaced the late Herschel Evans in the Basie band, which shows how much faith the Count placed in his high-register work. Born in Sherman, Texas, he'd worked with the Clouds Of Joy before that and was later to become a solo artist, though most of Buddy's solos are scattered over recordings by others.

 Buddy Tate 1945–1950 Classics 1207 Tate; Emmett Berry, Forest Powell (t); Ted Donnelly (tb); J. J. Johnson, Glenn Tyree, Charles Q. Price (as, v); Frank Sleet (as); Charlie Thomas (ts); Bill Doggett, Frank Whyte (p); Louis Speiginer, Freddie Green (g); Benny Booker, Walter Page, John Simmons (b); Edward Smith, Chico Hamilton, Pete McShann, Shadow Wilson (d); Jimmy Witherspoon (v). 8/45–4/50.

Buddy Tate was one of the greatest and most durable of swing tenormen, a major performer for over half a century and a much-loved and amiable man; but the records under his own name are perhaps a little disappointing in the light of his grand reputation, and his reticent standing as a leader may be the reason why he's never quite secured the wider fame of some of his peers. His great records were made with Basie – whom he joined following Herschel Evans's death in 1939 – and his old friend from the band, Buck Clayton; in 1947 he was still with the band but did some moonlighting in an anonymous ensemble which cut 12 of the 25 tracks here (the others are by even less identifiable groups, though there's a nice early blues from Witherspoon). The music is unpretentious but mostly forgettable jump band music, typical of the day, although there's an interesting Karl George session with some fine work by J. J. Johnson which raises the interest level.

 Buddy & Claude Prestige PRCD 24231 Tate; Emmett Berry (t); Clark Terry (t, flhn); Tommy Flanagan, Claude Hopkins (p); Larry Gales, Wendell Marshall (b); Osie Johnson, Art Taylor (d). 3 & 10/60.

Claude appears on only half of these cuts. Flanagan is obviously of a younger generation and approaches things without Hopkins's strong stride feel, but Tate seems equally comfortable with both of them and the two sessions sit together surprisingly well. The material is fairly bland, though enlivened by Terry on the later sessions, but Tate has the familiar intimate sound running through his solos and they're mostly very effective.

 And His Buddies Chiaroscuro 123 Tate; Roy Eldridge (t); Illinois Jacquet (ts); Mary Lou Williams (p); Steve Jordan (g); Milt Hinton (b); Gus Johnson (d). 6/73.

Time was, Mary Lou was the first gal you called for this kind of jam date, but opportunities were fewer and further between in later years. She clearly enjoys the session and plays some terrific solos around the horn guys. Clayton's 'Rockaway' and Buddy's own 'When I'm Blue' are strongly featured. Buddy sits back among the potted plants on the cover, and that's very much the impression you get from the playing.

(*) Jive At Five Storyville STCD 5010 Tate; Doc Cheatham (t); Vic Dickenson (tb, v); Johnny Guarnieri (p); George Duvivier (b); Oliver Jackson (d). 7/75.

Tate's records in the '70s have a desultory, pick-up feel to them, but there's still plenty of ingratiating music in some of them. Perhaps the best of them is the all-star date on Jive At Five, which benefits from a perfectly balanced front line: the upright, proper Cheatham, the louche Tate, the almost lascivious-sounding Dickenson. Each man's ballad feature is a treat, and Guarnieri supports and embellishes beautifully.

 Tate A Tete At The Fontaine, Copenhagen Storyville STCD 8228 Tate; Tete Montoliu (p); Finn Ziegler (vn); Bo Stief (b); Svend-Erik Nørregaard (d). 9/75.

It was worth pairing them up just for the punning title, but Tate seems to get along just fine with Tete, underlining once again just how adaptable a player he could be. There's an epic reading of 'In A Mellow Tone' which is a useful study point for anyone interested in how Tate built a solo: three notes provide the key to this one. Ziegler makes some interesting interventions on violin and is at least more audible than the luckless Stief.

(*) The Legendary 1977 Encounter Chiaroscuro 165 Tate; Abdullah Ibrahim (p); Cecil McBee (b); Roy Brooks (d). 8/77.

This, of course, was billed 'meets Dollar Brand' on first release. It's not clear how much the pianist enjoyed the outing, for he seems to disappear every now and then when Tate is soloing, though instinct suggests out of admiration rather than irritation. The piano accompaniment – on standard material – is pretty skeletal, but Tate often seemed to thrive on that, and it's a fine and collectable set which also includes a couple of tracks for just trio, apparently recorded after Buddy had gone.

(*) The Ballad Artistry Of Buddy Tate Sackville SKCD-3034 Tate; Ed Bickert (g); Don Thompson (b); Terry Clarke (d). 6/81.

The Ballad Artistry is surely Tate's best latter-day record. By sticking mostly to slow tempos and never forcing the pace, the supporting trio provides just the right sort of intimacy and cushioning detail to let Tate relax and, though he still has his doubtful moments, most of his solos are controlled, ruminative, nicely eloquent. It's much like a vintage Ben Webster date. Bickert is in excellent form, unobtrusively filling all the harmonic space round the saxophonist, and Thompson and Clarke both play well. An immaculate 'Darn That Dream' and the pleasing choice of Ellington's 'Isfahan' provide the highlights.

(*) Tate Live Nagel Heyer 80 Tate; Hendrik Meurkens (vib); Otto Weiss (p); Dieter Gützkow (b); Torsten Zwingenberger (d). 4/88.

Buddy never learned how to pronounce Zwingenberger, but he toured with the young drummer more than once and seemed to enjoy the experience. There's a nice warm atmosphere to this date, with some funny vocals and some first-rate playing. Tate seems to feed off Meurkens's subtle lines and they do some great parallel work on 'Tangerine'. There's also a rare outing for Buddy's flute, but it's edited, presumably for technical reasons.

Also, in brief:

 Groovin' With Tate Progressive PCD 24152. 12/59, 2/61.

A relaxed swinging set from a good period in Buddy's career.

 When I'm Blue Black & Blue 866. 12/67.
In company with Milt Buckner (p), whose block chords and unfussy harmonics throw Buddy lots of cues.

() Just Jazz Reservoir RSR CD 110 4/84
Dependable playing from Tate and Al Grey (tb). .

 After Dark Progressive PCD 7028. 12/85, 1/86.
Buddy and Sweets with a fine English group including Brian Lemon (p). Tate saves the best for last with 'Prisoner Of Love'.

Frank Tate

DOUBLE BASS

Journeyman mainstream-to-swing player, who always delivers.

(*) Live In Belfast Nagel Heyer 00069 Tate; Harry Allen (ts); Dave McKenna (p); Howard Alden (g); Butch Miles (d). 11/96.
Mainstream jazz played by a bass-led group in the Northern Irish capital: it doesn't necessarily sound like the kind of set that would paint the town red. But, look at that amazing line-up and spare a moment for Frank's leadership of a Rolls Royce rhythm section. He, McKenna and the usually show-off Miles (but not here) are central to the success of this terrific jazz record. From the opening 'Four Brothers' to the closing 'O Grande Amor', only a curmudgeon could possibly not enjoy it.

Grady Tate (born 1932)

DRUMS, VOICE

A highly musical, sophisticated percussionist who also sings.

 TNT: Grady Tate Sings Milestone MCD 9193 Tate; Bill Easley (reeds); Mike Renzi (ky); Ron Carter (b); Dennis Mackrel (d). 91.
Tate took a shot at pop-jazz stardom with a 1966 LP called Windmills Of My Mind. Fortunately for all those who've called on his services since, he didn't make a smash with it. Tate has persisted, though, and TNT sees him come out from behind the kit again and croon his way through a lovely and mostly unfamiliar set. 'You Got To My Head' is more a singer's standard than a horn-player's vehicle, but who else of this period was tackling things like Doc Pomus's 'Lonely Avenue' or Bob Dorough's title-track. Mackrel does a very decent job at the traps, but somehow you miss Grady's touch there, even when he's out in the spotlight. A lovely record.

Also, in brief:

 Body & Soul /  All Love Milestone MCD 9208 / 441/Village 9. 10 & 11/92; 1/02.
Two more nice, unpredictable trawls through the American songbook.

Art Tatum (1910–56)

PIANO, CELESTE

Born in Toledo, Ohio, and almost blind from birth, he travelled widely in the '30s, recording as a soloist and accompanist until he formed a trio in 1943. A master of every kind of jazz piano style, he nevertheless was not interested in composing himself and preferred to work infinitesimal variations on standard material. He fell victim to uraemia, at just 45.

(*) Art Tatum 1932–1934 Classics 507 Tatum (p solo). 3/33–10/34.

(*) Art Tatum 1934–1940 Classics 560 Tatum; Lloyd Reese (t); Marshal Royal (cl); Bill Perkins (g); Joe Bailey (b); Oscar Bradley (d); Adelaide Hall (v). 10/34–7/40.
The scale of Tatum's achievements makes approaching him a daunting proposition even now. His very first session, cut in New York in 1933, must have astonished every piano-player who heard any of the four tracks (available on Classics 507, and also the Columbia reissue listed below). 'Tiger Rag', for instance, becomes transformed from a rather old-fashioned hot novelty tune into a furious series of variations, thrown off with abandon but as closely argued and formally precise as any rag or stomp at one-quarter of the tempo. If Tatum had only recorded what is on these first CDs, he would be assured of immortality; yet, like Morton's early solos, they are both achievements in their own right and sketchbooks for the great works of his later years.

There are just a few distractions in the music leading up to 1940: Adelaide Hall sings a couple of vocals on one session, and Tatum's Swingsters record one 1937 session (which also includes Tatum on celeste).

 The Standard Transcriptions * The Standard Transcriptions 1935–1945 Music & Arts CD-919 2CD / Storyville STCD 8260/1 2CD Tatum (p solo). 35–45.
Tatum's transcription discs for radio were made at different sessions over a period of several years and have survived as rather indifferently stored acetates. They are as valuable in their way as the later sessions for Norman Granz: briefer, many solos almost casually tossed off, and some blemished by the poor recording (Tatum never received the kind of studio sound which his work demanded), but it's a magnificent archive, spread over two lengthy CDs. Some of them, such as 'I Wish I Were Twins', have the melody abstracted into a monstrously fast chunk of stride piano; others, like 'The Man I Love', become tender but firm ballads, while others begin at a medium tempo before hurtling forward in double-time. Trifles such as Dvořák's 'Humoresque' are treated with Tatum's peculiar knowing gaucheness, while his versions of such pieces as 'I'm Gonna Sit Right Down And Write Myself A Letter' are like destructive tributes to such colleagues as Waller and Johnson: immensely superior in terms of technique, Tatum nevertheless pays them a kind of offhand homage by adopting elements of their manner to his own vast vocabulary. 'All God's Chillun Got Rhythm', meanwhile, prefigures Powell and bebop intensity. Highly recommended … however, collectors now face a tricky choice between the Music & Arts set and a new Storyville edition of the same music. It's complicated by what seems to be an inconsistency between the sets. The earlier solos are better served by the Storyville set, but after that, honours are difficult to award; while Don Asher's essay on the Music & Arts set is highly entertaining, some may prefer the more scholarly Storyville notes. In the end, either set should provide much pleasure to Tatum admirers, although those expecting hi-fi should be warned that many of the tracks (on each set!) still suffer inferior sound.

(*) Art Tatum 1940–1944 Classics 800 Tatum; Joe Thomas (t); Edmond Hall (cl); Oscar Moore, John Collins, Tiny Grimes (g); Billy Taylor, Slam Stewart (b); Eddie Dougherty, Yank Porter (d); Joe Turner (v). 7/40–44.

 Art Tatum 1944 Classics 825 Tatum; Tiny Grimes (g); Slam Stewart (b). 5–12/44.

(*) Art Tatum 1945–1947 Classics 982 Tatum (p solo). 5/45–1/47.

Tatum's 1940 solos are another superb sequence. There is a first revision of 'Tiger Rag', which first appeared at his debut session, and particularly imaginative interpretations of 'Lullaby Of The Leaves', 'Moon Glow' and, improbably enough, 'Begin The Beguine'. The Classics 1940–1944 disc goes on to take in ten trio tracks with Grimes and Stewart, a format that took up much of the pianist's time in the '40s. It didn't so much cramp his style as push it into a formula to a degree that some will be dissatisfied by. In a sense, though, it was characteristic of the man. Grimes and Stewart were mere mortals next to the pianist, but their earthbound playing kept Tatum within reach of a paying audience. The 1944 Classics disc covers trio sessions for the Asch and Comet labels in rather murky sound, as well as a single solo date for Asch that includes a version of 'Sweet And Lovely', one tune he never recorded commercially again. The low-fi sound keeps this one within specialist realms.

These are also on Classics 982, which is otherwise filled out by 11 solos for V-Disc and a January 1947 session for Victor. It is oddly moving to hear Tatum himself introduce his V-Disc solos and hope that the servicemen enjoy hearing the tunes, whatever they may think of the piano-playing. One or two unusual choices, such as '9.20 Special' and 'I'm Beginning To See The Light', make these solos of extra interest, and the Victor date is valuable because Tatum was recorded this well only rarely.

(*) The Art Of Tatum ASV AJA 5164 Tatum; Oscar Pettiford (b); Big Sid Catlett (d). 8/32–10/44.

A useful collection of early Tatum solos, with a single concert track with Pettiford and Catlett to round it off. The compilers have taken a generous sample, and though some will still find ASV's remastering rather fudgy, this may appeal to any who want only a single example of the man's earlier work.

(*) In Private Fresh Sound FSR-CD 368 Tatum (p solo). c. 48.

 The Complete Capitol Recordings Of Art Tatum Capitol 821325-2 2CD Tatum; Everett Barksdale (g); Slam Stewart (b). 7/49–12/52.

In Private comes from a tape allegedly made at Buddy Cole's house around 1948. There are many stories of Tatum doing even more impossible things at after-hours sessions, but he must have felt he was being watched at this one, since there is nothing strikingly different from his everyday genius here. But the disc comes in unusually clean sound: there is a notably fine 'Over The Rainbow', and a couple of tunes – 'You're Driving Me Crazy' and 'Sittin' And A Rockin'' – are ones he didn't often record.

The Capitol sessions date from the period when Tatum was working with a trio, but Barksdale and Stewart actually appear on only some of the tracks. These are mostly fine rather than great Tatum performances: from most other pianists they would be astonishing work, but ranked next to his other recordings these are on a lower flame. There are hints of the routine which he would often settle into on particular tunes, and one or two tracks where he sounds relatively indifferent to the occasion. On others – 'Someone To Watch Over Me' or 'Somebody Loves Me', both on the first disc – he is the great Tatum.

(*) Masters Of Jazz Vol. 8: Art Tatum Storyville STCD 4108 Tatum (p solo). 8/32–1/46.

(*) Over The Rainbow Dreyfus 36727-2 Tatum (p); Tiny Grimes (g); Slam Stewart (b). 4/40–9/49.

The Storyville disc is a hotch-potch of solos covering the '30s and '40s. The music is unimpeachable but it makes little sense as a chronological compilation. Dreyfus's Over The Rainbow is another matter. Concentrating on Tatum's '40s solos (only four tracks out of 21 are by the trio), it's well-programmed, attractively packaged and agreeably remastered, and makes an introduction that should intrigue a generation that knows nothing of Tatum.

(*) Live 1944–45 Storyville 101 8332 Tatum; Tiny Grimes (g); Slam Stewart (b); Murray McEachern Orchestra; Mel Tormé, The Mel-Tones, Jack Martin, Martha Stewart (v). 8/44–10/45.

() Live 1945–49 Storyville 101 8333 Tatum (p solo). 45–11/49.

() Live 1949–1951 Storyville 101 8334 Tatum; Bill Carter (t); Bill Povey (as); Johnny Ord (ts); Ned Ciashine (acc); Murray Lauder (b); Don Hilton (d). 11/49–7/50.

Storyville's archive releases of live Tatum material take in broadcasts of every description – on shows fronted by Mildred Bailey, Perry Como, Faye Emerson and others – with occasional guest bands or vocalists, but in the main featuring Tatum as a solo act. Most of the 1944–45 sessions are in decent enough sound, but thereafter quality is very modest: on the 1945–49 disc, nine tracks made at a party are top-notch Tatum, but the sound isn't much better than dreadful, and on the 1949–1951 discs there are Toronto recordings and a 1950 set from Café Society Downtown which are similarly harsh. If you can deal with the fidelity there's the expected payload of impeccable playing, but these are really for Tatum diehards only.

* The Art Tatum Solo Masterpieces Volumes 1–7 Pablo 2405 432–438 Tatum (p solo). 12/53–56.

♛ * The Complete Pablo Solo Masterpieces Pablo 4404 7CD As above seven discs. 12/53–1/55.

Tatum's extraordinary achievement was set down in no more than four separate sessions over the course of a little over a year. Twenty years after his first solo records, this abundance of music does in some ways show comparatively little in the way of 'progression': he had established a pattern for playing many of the tunes in his repertoire, and changes of inflection, nuance and touch may be the only telling differences between these and earlier variations on the theme. But there are countless small revisions of this kind, enough to make each solo a fresh experience, and mostly he is more expansive (freed from playing-time restrictions, he is still comparatively brief, but there can be a major difference between a 2½-minute and a four-minute solo) and more able to provide dynamic contrast and rhythmic variation. He still chooses Broadway tunes over any kind of jazz material and seems to care little for formal emotional commitments: a ballad is just as likely to be dismantled as it is to be made to evoke tenderness, while a feeble tune such as 'Taboo' (Vol. 7) may be transformed into something that communicates with great power and urgency. Tatum's genius (these records were originally known as The Genius Of Art Tatum) was a peculiar combination of carelessness – even at his most daring and virtuosic he can sometimes suggest a throwaway manner – and searching commitment to his art, and those contradictory qualities (which in some ways exemplify something of the jazz artist's lot) heighten the power of these superb solos.

While it is invidious to single out particular discs, we suggest that the uncommitted start with discs four and six. The boxed-set edition includes all the music, and demands its crown. It is tantalizing to conjecture what Tatum might have done in contemporary studios, for his whole discography is marred by inadequate recording – even these later solos are comparatively unrefined by the studio – but the CD versions are probably the best to date. Still, surely this is a moment to go back to the best original sources and give us a new overview of this profound body of work.

 20th Century Piano Genius /  Ultimate Art Tatum Verve 531763-2 2CD / 559877-2 Tatum (p solo). 4/50–7/55.

Even though these were privately recorded at the home of Tatum admirer Ray Heindorf, the sound is a lot better than on many of his regular sessions – a reminder of one of the most unfortunate aspects of jazz on record, that we cannot hear Tatum in hi-fi on a good piano. Out of 39 performances, 13 come from a 1950 occasion and the rest date from July 1955, late in the pianist's life, though he shows no lessening of his powers. The quite crisp fidelity lets one hear the precision and exactness of Tatum's runs, his mercurial fingerings and his almost offhand genius rather better than usual, and in, say, 'Yesterdays', he seems to be thinking, creating and moving on so quickly that one understands anew all the disbelieving praise that has helped to build his legend. For all its informality, this isn't a bad place to start hearing Tatum, though the Pablo discs remain the cornerstones. The Ultimate collection is well chosen by Hank Jones, but it's somewhat pointless, given that the two-disc set gives everything here plus plenty more.

 The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 1 Pablo 2405-424 Tatum; Benny Carter (as); Louie Bellson (d). 6/54.

(*) The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 2 Pablo 2405-425 Tatum; Roy Eldridge (t); Larry Simmons (b); Alvin Stoller (d). 3/55.

(*) The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vols. 3 and 4 Pablo 2405-426 / 2405-428 Tatum; Lionel Hampton (vib); Buddy Rich (d). 8/55.

(*) The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 5 Pablo 2405-428 Tatum; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Lionel Hampton (vib); Barney Kessel (g); Red Callender (b); Buddy Rich (d). 9/55.

 The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 6 Pablo 2405-429 Tatum; Red Callender (b); Jo Jones (d). 1/56.

 The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 7 Pablo 2405-430 Tatum; Buddy DeFranco (cl); Red Callender (b); Bill Douglass (d). 2/56.

 The Complete Pablo Group Masterpieces Pablo 4401 6CD As Volumes 1–7 above and Volume 8 below. 6/54–8/56.

Having set down the astonishing solo sessions, Granz then embarked on a project to record Tatum in a variety of group situations. The overall quality isn't so consistently intense, since Tatum's partners are sometimes either relatively incompatible or simply looking another way: the cheery Hampton and Rich, for instance, work well enough in their trio record, but it seems to lighten the music to an inappropriate degree. Yet some of this music is undervalued, particularly the trio session with Callender and Douglass, the group working in beautiful accord. The sextet date with Edison, Hampton and Kessel is comparatively slight, and the meeting with Eldridge, while it has moments of excitement, again sounds like two virtuosos of somewhat contrary methods in the same room.

The meetings with Carter, DeFranco and Webster, though, are unqualified masterpieces. The Carter session is worth having just for the astonishing 'Blues In C', and elsewhere Carter's aristocratic elegance chimes perfectly with Tatum's grand manner, their differing attitudes to jazz eloquence a rare match. With DeFranco, whose virtuosity is not so different from Tatum's own, the way the ingenuities of each man unfold can make one chuckle out loud; Tatum must have loved this session. As music to study, live with and simply enjoy, this is the most approachable of all of Tatum's series of recordings: he finds the company stimulating and manages to vary his approach on each occasion without surrendering anything of himself.

CORE COLLECTION

 The Tatum Group Masterpieces Vol. 8
Pablo 2405-431 Tatum; Ben Webster (ts); Red Callender (b); Bill Douglass (d). 9/56.

The meeting with Webster might on the face of it have been unlikely, but this time the contrasts in their styles create a moving alliance, the heavy, emotional tenor floating poignantly over the surging piano. The new 24-bit reissue of the Webster session (apparently only in Europe) is, to our ears, inferior to the 1990 mastering, and reminds us that the various bit-upgrades which CD is going through at present are not the cure-all they're often marketed as.

Art Taylor (1929–94)

DRUMS

Began working on the New York scene in 1950 and became one of the most prolific drummers of the hard-bop movement. He moved to Europe in 1963 and collected musician interviews for his book Notes and Tones. He returned to New York in the '80s.

 Taylor's Wailers Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 094 Taylor; Donald Byrd (t); Jackie McLean (as); John Coltrane, Charlie Rouse (ts); Ray Bryant, Red Garland (p); Wendell Marshall, Paul Chambers (b). 2–3/57.

(*) Taylor's Tenors Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1852 Taylor; Charlie Rouse, Frank Foster (ts); Walter Davis (p); Sam Jones (b). 6/59.

Art Taylor was a prolific visitor to the studios in the '50s, drumming for Red Garland, John Coltrane, Miles Davis and many others on countless sessions, most of them for Prestige. The company gave him a few shots at a leadership date, and while the first is a well-cooked hard-bop session, it doesn't go much further than that. The album is actually compiled from two sessions, one with Coltrane, who works up his patented head of steam on 'C.T.A. ', and another with Rouse, whose more circumspect passions are rather well caught in his solo on 'Batland'. 'Off Minor' and 'Well You Needn't' feature in Thelonious Monk's own arrangements, but the band sound no more committed here than elsewhere, with Byrd his usual blandly confident self. The leader's own playing is authoritative, although some of his mannerisms leave him a degree short of the single-minded drive of Art Blakey.

Taylor's Tenors is a cracker. Rouse didn't often have to play in two-tenor situations, but he acquits himself with honour against Foster, who moves like a particularly dangerous big cat through Taylor's flashing rhythms. 'Rhythm-A-Ning' and 'Little Chico' both go off like a rocket, 'Cape Millie' and 'Straight No Chaser' cool off, but the pots are on again for 'Dacor'. Forty minutes or so of this sort of thing is enough; and this is just right.

Billy Taylor (born 1921)

PIANO

Born in North Carolina but moved to New York in the '40s and worked in various contexts, eventually running a trio for most of the '50s. From the '60s he was more involved in teaching and generally broadcasting the good word about jazz, a role he has followed with peerless energy.

 Billy Taylor 1950–1952 Classics 1344 Taylor; John Collins, Chuck Wayne (g); Oscar Pettiford (clo); Aaron Bell, Al Hall, Earl May, George Duvivier (b); Kelly Martin, Shadow Wilson, Jo Jones, Sid Bulkin, Charlie Smith (d); Frank Conlon, Zoot Sims, Manny Oquendo (perc). 1/50–7/52.
(*) Cross-Section Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1730 Taylor; Earl May (b); Percy Brice (d); Charlie Smith, Jose Mangual, Ubaldo Nieto, Machito (perc). 5/53–7/54.
 Billy Taylor 1952–1953 Classics 1383 As above, except add Charles Mingus (b), Marquis Foster (d). 11/52–11/53.
 The Billy Taylor Trio With Candido Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 015 Taylor; Earl May (b); Percy Brice (d); Candido (perc). 9/54
 Billy Taylor Trio Prestige 24285-2 Taylor; Earl May (b); Percy Brice (d). 12/54–4/55.
 Billy Taylor Trio Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10227 Taylor; Earl May (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 10–12/57.
 Custom Taylored Fresh Sound FSRCD 205 Taylor; Henry Grimes (b); Ray Mosca (d). 3/60.
While he has become best known as one of the most experienced and respected forces in jazz education in America, Billy Taylor's talents as a piano-player should be recognized more than they are. He played with everyone from Stuff Smith to Charlie Parker on 52nd Street in the '40s, and having worked with Machito stood him in good enough stead to make the early Latin-flavoured outings with Candido sound plausible. Taylor's affinities are essentially with bop, but his sensibility is akin to Teddy Wilson's: cultivated, gentlemanly, his improvisations take a leisurely route through his surroundings, alighting only on points which are germane to the setting, but managing to suggest a complete grasp of the material and task at hand.

Classics 1344 rounds up sessions for Brunswick, Atlantic – a bouncy quartet date – and Royal Roost, the latter including four Afro-Cuban titles which have the oddity of Zoot Sims playing maraccas. Sound is rather variable. There is no dramatic sense of Latin–jazz fusion on either of these records, just a calm and logical pairing of one genre with another. Classics 1383 mostly duplicates Cross Section (see below, 'in brief') and some other Prestige tracks, but there is also music from a session recorded at Boston's Storyville, with Charles Mingus and Marquis Foster, and Billy sounds in great fettle here.

The Prestige Trio couples a pair of sets by Billy's regular group of the day, one recorded live at New York's Town Hall, which closes on a marathon 'How High The Moon', the other at Rudy Van Gelder's. The studio set is typical Taylor: unfancy, brightly swinging and seldom looking for anything more profound than a few chipper melodic lines over some helpful chords; the three minutes of 'It's A Grand Night For Swinging' just about sums him up. The Lone Hill Jazz Trio rounds up tracks made for ABC and Atlantic by the combo with Ed Thigpen at the drums. Some of these tracks are rather more developed and ambitious than usual: 'Sounds In The Night' is an enigmatic original, 'Round Midnight' is cool and dark, and 'Titoro' is one of his best variations on a Latin groove. A pity that the studio sound is very flat and lacking any real ambience – poor, even for 1957.

The trio fly through the dozen originals on Custom Taylored with fine aplomb. Originally done for a radio transcription service, and curtailed in running time, the crispness and snap of these blues and riff pieces come fizzing through. Lightweight, maybe, but one of Billy's most enjoyable sessions.

 Live At MCG MCG Jazz 1025 Taylor; Gerry Mulligan (bs); Chip Jackson (b); Carl Allen (d). 10/93.
This sounds like an old pals night at the Manchester Craftsmen's Guild in Pittsburgh. Hard to judge whether the tunes were called on the stand, but they romp into 'Stompin' At The Savoy' with a will, and even when it turns later to 'Line For Lyons', 'Back Home In Indiana', 'Body And Soul', 'Come Sunday' and 'Laura', there's enough spontaneity to suggest that they'd had no more than a brief conversation backstage. That's not to say it's sloppy or causal. There's great warmth in the playing and Taylor is in especially good form on the upbeat numbers, perhaps less revealing on the ballads.

 Music Keeps Us Young Arkadia 71601 Taylor; Chip Jackson (b); Steve Johns (d). 8/96.
A lot of Taylor's music is out of print at present. It's back to straight-ahead for this trio date, and Taylor gives no suspicion of boredom, even when he gets to his old favourite, 'I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel To Be Free'. A couple of tracks find him wandering to no special purpose, but when given a melody like 'Wouldn't It Be Loverly' he knows how to make it sing.

 Ten Fingers – One Voice Arkadia 71602 Taylor (p solo). 8/96.
Billy celebrated his 75th by delivering a rare solo album. He's such a genial, big-hearted player that even when he's doing little more than ornament a melody, he's very listenable. There's not much to get excited about with 'Tea For Two' or 'Laura', but the original ballad, 'Can You Tell By Looking At Me?', could charm a statue.

Also, in brief:

(*) Cross-Section Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1730. 5/53–7/54.
Eight tracks by his trio with May and Brice and four with Machito's rhythm section: daintily cast, but carefully prepared.

 Know Your Jazz Lone Hill LHJR 10276. 56.
Brings together the title LP plus My Fair Lady Loves Jazz.

(*) Billy Taylor With Four Flutes Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1830. 7/59.
One of the sillier ideas of the day, though Billy keeps urbane order.

Cecil Taylor (born 1930)

PIANO, VOICE

He learned piano at the age of six and went on to study at the New York College and New England Conservatory. Worked in R&B and swing-styled small groups in the early '50s, then led his own band with Steve Lacy from 1956. Became the most daring of artists, with his music leaving tonality and jazz rhythm and structure behind. Occasional records, trips to Europe and finally, from 1969, a steady group with more international bookings allowed him more exposure. In the late '70s and '80s, his poetry and writing (and a measure of dance in performance) came to the fore

[illegible]

* Jazz Advance
Blue Note 84462-2 Taylor; Steve Lacy (ss); Buell Neidlinger (b); Dennis Charles (d). 9/56.

Taylor's first record remains one of the most extraordinary debuts in jazz, and for 1956 it's an incredible effort. The pianist's '50s music is even more radical than Ornette Coleman's, though it has seldom been recognized as such, and, while Coleman has acquired the plaudits, it is Taylor's achievement which now seems the most impressive and uncompromised. While there are still many nods to conventional post-bop form in this set, it already points to the freedoms in which the pianist would later immerse himself. The interpretation of 'Bemsha Swing' reveals an approach to time that makes Monk seem utterly straightforward; 'Charge 'Em' is a blues with an entirely fresh slant on the form; Ellington's 'Azure' is a searching tribute from one keyboard master to another. 'Sweet And Lovely' and 'You'd Be So Nice To Come Home To' are standards taken to the cleaners by the pianist, yet his elaborations on the melodies will fascinate any who respond to Monk's comparable treatment of the likes of 'There's Danger In Your Eyes, Cherie'. Lacy appears on two tracks and sounds amazingly comfortable for a musician who was playing Dixieland a few years earlier. And Neidlinger and Charles ensure that, contrary to what some may claim, Taylor's music swings.

(*) Hard Driving Jazz Gambit 69221 As above, except add Kenny Dorham (t), John Coltrane (ts), Chuck Israels (b), Louis Hayes (d). 9/56–10/58.

The session with Coltrane and Dorham has, rather surprisingly, been rare on CD. Though it is hardly an epochal encounter, with both Taylor and Coltrane basically playing hard bop in a temperate context, it's an intriguing listen. Here it has been coupled with most of Jazz Advance, although one track ('You'd be So Nice To Come Home To') is missing.

(*) Looking Ahead! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 452 As above, except omit Lacy; add Earl Griffith (vib). 6/58.

The most pensive of Taylor's early records may be the best place to start in appreciating his music. The A minor blues of 'Luyah! The Glorious Step', Griffith's charming 'African Violet' and the remarkable fantasy on 'Take The "A" Train', 'Excursion On A Wobbly Rail', mark the pianist's transitional explorations of jazz form, while 'Toll' embarks on a new journey towards his own territory. 'Wallering', named in tribute to Fats Waller, is a wonderfully constructed improvisation on 'two improvised figures that are simultaneous', as Taylor says in the sleeve-note. Griffith combines edginess with inborn lyricism, which works surprisingly well in context, and Neidlinger and Charles swing the music without inhibiting Taylor's search for rhythmical freedom.

(*) Love For Sale Blue Note 94107-2 Taylor; Ted Curson (t); Bill Barron (ts); Buell Neidlinger (b); Dennis Charles (d). 4/59.

The three Cole Porter songs that open the record are starting-points for interpretations which are as radical as any standard had been subjected to at this point in jazz. Taylor keeps a toehold on melody or harmony, but no more than that, and, as his phrase-lengths become ever more unpredictable, his shaping of the material transforms not just the songs but the way jazz after bop could improvise on received forms. Even Coleman's version of 'Embraceable You' is nothing like as dramatic as what Taylor does with 'Get Out Of Town'. The three originals that close the disc, with Curson and Barron joining the group, are in some ways less striking, since the horns remain tied to hard-bop language, even though Curson is clearly more responsive than the awkward Barron. Another fascinating stop in the patient transition from jazz orthodoxy to Taylor's mature music.

* The World Of Cecil Taylor / (*) Air Candid CCD 79006 / 79046 As above, except omit Griffith; add Archie Shepp (ts). 10/60; 1/61.

* Jumpin' Punkins / () New York City R&B / () Cell Walk For Celeste Candid CCD 79013 / 79017 / 79034 As above, except add Clark Terry (t); Roswell Rudd (tb); Steve Lacy (ss); Charles Davis (bs); Billy Higgins (d). 1/61.

The 1961 recordings for Candid – some of them under the nominal leadership of Neidlinger – secure a final balance between Taylor's insistent unshackling of familiar organization and his interest in standards material. The World Of Cecil Taylor introduced Shepp into the pianist's difficult universe, and it is a memorable encounter: Shepp's scrawling tenor battles through 'Air' with courageous determination, but it's clear that he has little real idea what's going on, and Taylor's own superbly eloquent improvisation makes the saxophonist seem like a beginner. It's even more apparent on the alternative takes of the piece (there were 18 attempts at it in the studio), many of which are on the Mosaic boxed set of this music (now out of print) and three of which are on Air (a collection of alternatives which includes two different takes of 'Number One' and one of 'Port Of Call'). But the same sessions also included the lovely and (for Taylor) surprisingly impressionistic 'Lazy Afternoon' and the blues fantasy of 'O.P. '. The larger band tackles only two tunes, both by Ellington: 'Things Ain't What They Used To Be' and 'Jumpin' Punkins', though they sound more like the Monk ensembles of Monk's Music than any Ellington band. Finally, there are the trio pieces: 'E.B. ', which approximates a sonata and includes a superb piano improvisation, and the wholly improvised yet seemingly finished 'Cindy's Main Mood' are outstanding. The original records are The World and New York City R&B, but the various collections of out-takes are equally revealing.

♛ * Nefertiti, The Beautiful One Has Come Revenant 202 2CD Taylor; Jimmy Lyons (as); Sunny Murray (d). 11/62.

It's taken a long time for these recordings to appear on CD, and many newcomers to the music may wonder why they caused such fascination. The drawbacks are numerous: the original recording was never very effective; Taylor seems to be playing one of the poorest pianos Copenhagen had to offer; Murray's drums sound thin and rattly a lot of the time. Nevertheless, these sessions from the Café Montmartre should be accounted among the greatest live recordings in jazz. Taylor is still working his way out of jazz tradition and, with Murray at his heels, the playing has an irresistible momentum that creates its own kind of rocking swing, the pulse indefinable but palpable, the rhythm moving in waves from the drummer's kit. Lyons shapes his bebopper's vocabulary into gritty flurries of notes, a man caught in a squall and fighting his way through it and over it. He would become Taylor's most dedicated interpretative colleague, but here he is sharing in the discovery of a fierce new world. Melody has a part to play: the two versions of 'Lena' measure out a beleaguered lyricism, for instance. Group interaction is a matter, sometimes, of clinging tight and hanging on, but this was a trio that had already done a lot of work together, and in the multiple layers of the monumental 'D Trad, That's What' and 'Call' the musicians seem to touch on an inner calm to go with the outward intensity. The Revenant release runs to two discs and includes some previously unheard extra material (admittedly in even more terrible sound!).

(*) Unit Structures Blue Note 84237-2 Taylor; Gale Stevens Jr (t); Jimmy Lyons (as); Ken McIntyre (as, bcl, ob); Henry Grimes, Alan Silva (b); Andrew Cyrille (d). 5/66.

Unit Structures is both as mathematically complex as its title suggests and as rich in colour and sound as the ensemble proposes, with the orchestrally varied sounds of the two bassists – Grimes a strong, elemental driving force, Silva tonally fugitive and mysterious – while Stevens and McIntyre add other hues and Lyons improvises with and against them. The title-piece is a highly refined but naturally flowing aggregation of various cells which create or propose directions for improvisation, combinations of players, and tonal and rhythmical variations. Blue Note's recording wasn't ideal for this music, but it's good enough.

* Conquistador! Blue Note 76749 Taylor; Bill Dixon (t); Jimmy Lyons (as); Cecil Taylor (p); Henry Grimes, Alan Silva (b); Andrew Cyrille (d). 10/66.
An all but flawless record. Dark, difficult, unique, yet operating at an artful tangent to some of the other 'difficult' Blue Note music of the period, this is Taylor at his most devious. Dixon and Lyons are deployed as a kind of 'classic' Blue Note front line, while still playing music which, say, Freddie Hubbard and even Eric Dolphy would have found close to impossible. It still suggests a level akin to but distant from the other 'avant-garde' record which appeared on the label at this time.

(*) Dark To Themselves Enja 2084-2 Taylor; Raphe Malik (t); Jimmy Lyons (as); David S. Ware (ts); Marc Edwards (d). 6/76.
(*) Air Above Mountains Enja 3005-2 Taylor (p solo). 8/76.
Originally edited to fit LP length, Dark To Themselves is a complete set from the 1976 Ljubljana Festival. With no bassist, Taylor supplied all the bottom end himself, and the horns parade themselves over his figures. Edwards works hard, although he is scarcely a match for the drummers who've held down this role before and since. More than in many of Taylor's concert recordings, the music here suggests not darkness but incandescence – the flaring trumpet of Malik has a prominent role in the first 20 minutes, and the brilliance of Taylor's playing in this section is radiant.

Two months later, Enja also recorded Taylor at the Moosham Castle Open Air Festival in Austria, with 73 minutes of solo piano (once excerpted for LP release). Decent recording but a so-so piano. Still crowded, colossal.

* Cecil Taylor Unit / * 3 Phasis New World NW 201 / 203 Taylor; Raphe Malik (t); Jimmy Lyons (as); Ramsey Ameen (vn); Sirone (b); Ronald Shannon Jackson (d). 4/78.
This was a superb group, full of contrast but bursting with the spirit of Taylor's music and exultant in its ability to make it work. The two New World albums are studio recordings, but they're performed with the intensity of a live set. These are colourful records: Ameen is a key member of the group, his fiddling vaguely reminiscent of Michael Sampson with Albert Ayler (a group which Jackson also played in), and there are moments when he aspires to a very close kinship with the pianist. But textures are only one part of this music. Malik and Lyons play bright or wounded or bitingly intense lines, and they play their part in a group chemistry which sometimes has the players contrasting with one another, sometimes combining to push the music forward, sometimes providing a textured background to Taylor's own sustained flights of invention. After the ferocity of his playing and organization in the late '60s, there is more obvious light and shade here, the freedoms more generously stated, the underlying lyricism more apparent. If there's a slight problem, it's with Jackson, who – ingenious and masterful though he is – hasn't quite the same grasp of Taylor's designs as Sunny Murray or Andrew Cyrille.

* Winged Serpent (Sliding Quadrants) Soul Note 121089 Taylor; Enrico Rava, Tomasz Stańko (t); Jimmy Lyons (as); Frank Wright (ts); John Tchicai (ts, bcl); Gunter Hampel (bs, bcl); Karen Borca (bsn); William Parker (b); Rashid Bakr (d); Andre Martinez (d). 10/84.
An important and insufficiently recognized record. Taylor's four compositions here begin from melodic cells: an eight-note motif starts 'Taht', a sort of riff (which at one point seems ready to turn into a locomotive piece, very much in an Ellingtonian tradition!) emerges in 'Womb Waters', but mainly these are exploding, brilliantly coloured ensemble improvisations where the horns (all very well caught by the recording) make superbly euphoric collective statements. Densely characterized though Taylor's music is, these musicians make their way into it with the highest courage, and the results are extraordinarily compelling.

[illegible]

* For Olim

Soul Note 121150 Taylor (p solo). 4/86.

By now, Taylor had built an impressive discography of solo recordings and there is nothing rote in this further addition to it. 'Olim' is the only long piece at some 18 minutes in duration; the others are sometimes only a couple of minutes long, isolating an idea, delivering it up, and then closing it down. What emerges most clearly from such a session is the refinement of his touch, sometimes obscured by the messier live mixes he's had to contend with, the absolute integration of favourite devices – clusters, call and response – into a peerless mastery of the techniques available to the pianist, and his communicative abilities: nothing here does anything but speak directly to an attentive listener.

 Live In Bologna /  Live In Vienna Leo LR 100 / 174 Taylor; Carlos Ward (as, f); Leroy Jenkins (vn); William Parker (b); Thurman Barker (d, mar). 11/87.
Carlos Ward is hardly the man one thinks of when citing Taylor's saxophonists, and he is scarcely a match for Jimmy Lyons; but his more directly responsive and familiar lines make an agreeable change in their way, and Jenkins is a formidable presence on both records, adding rustic colours and primeval textures to the mix, which also includes marimba and bell sounds from Barker. Frankly, though, these concert sets haven't worn well, and we must admit that there are many better examples of Taylor's work in this entry.

* Erzulie Maketh Scent FMP CD 18 Taylor (p solo). 7/88.
* Pleistozaen Mit Wasser FMP CD 16 Taylor; Derek Bailey (g). 7/88.
* Leaf Palm Hand FMP CD 6 Taylor; Tony Oxley (d). 7/88.
* Spots, Circles And Fantasy FMP CD 5 Taylor; Han Bennink (perc, etc.). 7/88.
* Regalia FMP CD 3 Taylor; Paul Lovens (perc). 7/88.
* Remembrance FMP CD 4 Taylor; Louis Moholo (d). 7/88.
* The Hearth FMP CD 11 Taylor; Evan Parker (ss, ts); Tristan Honsinger (clo). 7/88.
* Riobec FMP CD 2 Taylor; Günter Sommer (d). 7/88.
 Legba Crossing FMP CD 0 Heinz-Erich Godecke (tb); Ove Volquartz (ss, ts, bcl); Joachim Gies (as); Brigitte Vinkeloe (as, ss, f); Daniel Werts (ob); Sabine Kopf (f); Harald Kimmig (vn); Paul Plimley (p); Alexander Frangenheim, Uwe Martin, George Wolf (b); Lukas Lindenmaier, Peeter Uuskyla, Trudy Morse (v). 7/88.
* Alms/Tiergarten (Spree) FMP CD 8/9. Taylor; Enrico Rava (t, flhn); Tomasz Stańko (t); Peter Van Bergen (ts); Peter Brötzmann

(as, ts); Hans Koch (ss, ts, bcl); Evan Parker (ss, ts); Louis Sclavis (ss, cl, bcl); Hannes Bauer, Wolter Wierbos, Christian Radovan (tb); Martin Mayes (frhn); Gunter Hampel (vib); Tristan Honsinger (clo); Peter Kowald, William Parker (b); Han Bennink (d). 7/88.

This unprecedented set of records still seems like a towering achievement, and it may stand as the apex of Taylor's latter-day work, creating resonances and establishing links and influences which may reverberate through European free playing for years to come. A document of his visit to a celebratory festival of his music in Berlin, it matches him with several of the finest European improvisers in a series of meetings that had, at that time, relatively few precedents. Although groupings such as Derek Bailey's Company had allowed a certain amount of Euro-American co-operation among improvisers, it was rare indeed for a player of Taylor's magnitude to be involved in such a celebration. An unparalleled inspiration to all these players, the fact of his presence seems to make most of them play above themselves.

Originally issued as a single boxed set, and now available as individual records, no collection should be without at least some of these, as examples of the expressive power and liberating energy which this central figure has introduced into jazz and 20th-century music in general. We would single out the encounters with Bailey, Parker/Honsinger, Oxley, Moholo and Bennink as particularly brilliant examples of Taylor's adaptive capabilities and his partners' own contributions, but every one of these records is both thought-provoking and individually inspiring to any listener prepared to give themselves over to Taylor's music.

Only the Workshop record, Legba Crossing, which Taylor merely directs, is in any way less than essential, although even here it is absorbing to follow how Taylor's methodology is brought to bear on the situation. The climactic concert with the full orchestra, Alms/Tiergarten, is a monumental event, the colossal sonic impact tempered by Taylor's own unflinching, instinctual control and a grasp of dynamics and dramatic possibility which is breathtaking. It is also, in the circumstances, deeply moving. So often in this area of jazz, above all others, the rewards for the players are minimal beyond the satisfaction in the music itself. The force of Taylor's presence in this situation has a legitimizing power which will remain an emotional matter to both the musicians and the hardy followers of this neck of the jazz woods, for ever off the familiar, accepted paths. As a collective achievement this stands as one of the major jazz recording projects and, were the original boxed set still available (it is now a prized collectors' item in its original form), we would have no hesitation in awarding it a crown.

* In East Berlin FMP CD 13/14 2CD Taylor; Günter Sommer (perc). 6/88.

* Looking (Berlin Version) FMP CD 28 Taylor (p solo). 11/89.

(*) Looking (Berlin Version) Corona FMP CD 31 Taylor; Harald Kimmig (vn); Muneer Abdul Fataah (clo); William Parker (b); Tony Oxley (d). 11/89.

* Looking (The Feel Trio) FMP CD 35 Taylor; William Parker (b); Tony Oxley (d). 11/89.

The duets with Sommer were recorded a month prior to the Berlin sessions: thunder and lightning, light and shade, and brimful of music, even across two long CDs. The three editions of Looking take a Rashomon-style look at the same piece of music, one solo (dense, heavily contoured, lots of pedal-sustain), one trio (magnificent interplay with Parker and Oxley, who became a frequent Taylor confrère), and one with the somewhat more awkward string stylings of Kimmig and Fataah, the latter meshing unconvincingly with Parker. The incredible richness of event continues, with barely a pause, in what was a remarkable period for the man.

* Celebrated Blazons FMP CD 58 Taylor; William Parker (b); Tony Oxley (d). 6/90.

Does Taylor swing? The old litmus test comes to mind, since Taylor's ever-widening horizons sound more in touch with and touched by jazz tradition than ever. Oxley's drumming is a more European flavour than anything Taylor's other regular drummers have created, yet it only serves to emphasize the huge rhythmic resources of the leader's own playing. Where Cyrille's magnificent breakers would sometimes obscure the keyboard, Oxley's playing – a unique blend of lumpen momentum and detailed percussive colour – reveals more of it. Parker, too, is coming into his own, deflecting off what the others do while speaking his own piece. Nearly an hour of music, and it swings.

* Olu Iwa Soul Note 121139-2 Taylor; Earl McIntyre (tb); Peter Brötzmann (ts, targato); Frank Wright (ts); Thurman Barker (mar, perc); William Parker (b); Steve McCall (d). 4/86.

On the shelf for eight years before release, and with Wright and McCall both gone in the interim, this already has the feel of history about it. Some of the music, too, has one reflecting on Taylor's own history: the presence of Barker's marimba harks back to Earl Griffith on the ancient Looking Ahead!, and the small group with horns reminds one of Unit Structures (see above). But the two sprawling pieces here (the first is almost 50 minutes; the second, where the horns depart, is nearly 30) have moved far on from those days. Alternately hymnal, purgatorial, intensely concentrated and wildly abandoned, the first theme is a carefully organized yet unfettered piece that again disproves Taylor's isolation (it's firmly within free-jazz traditions, yet sounds like something no one else could have delivered). The second, despite the absence of the towering Brötzmann, superb in the first half, is if anything even more fervent, with the quartet – a one-time appearance for this band on record – playing at full stretch. Another great one.

* Double Holy House FMP CD 55 Taylor (p, v, perc). 9/90.

Taylor's quietest, most beguiling record ever is a profound meditation on some of the well-springs of what he does. It starts with a beautiful prelude at the piano before an extended recitation of poetry, accompanied by tiny splashes of percussion, and eventually a return to the piano – although the voice and percussion were actually recorded later, the act seems spontaneously whole. Eventually the accustomed intensity of Taylor in full flow breaks through, and with his accompanying cries the music searches through vocal and non-vocal tradition with a master's aptitude. Outstanding, again.

(*) Melancholy FMP CD 104 Taylor; Tobias Netta (t); Jörg Huke, Thomas Wiedermann (tb); Wolfgang Fuchs (sno, bcl); Harri Sjöström (ss); Volker Schlott (as); Evan Parker (ts, ss); Thomas Klemm (ts); Barry Guy (b); Tony Oxley (d). 9/90.

* Nailed FMP CD 108 Taylor; Evan Parker (ss, ts); Barry Guy (b); Tony Oxley (d). 9/90.

A performance by the Workshop Ensemble, and to that extent perhaps only a rough cut of the kind of big-scale group music which Taylor might achieve, given limitless time and resources. But it is still enough to have other composers and arrangers slack-jawed, with three pieces that put an evolving structure through complex changes and developments. If the middle section, 'Sphere No. 2', seems like a bonding of improvisers, then 'Sphere No. 3' expands to a glorious reconciliation of free solos and composed and implicit structures. Besides Taylor himself, superb contributions from Guy, Parker and Klemm – but it's as a group performance that this works best.

Nailed is the third episode from the same event. Parker and Guy are frequent playing partners, and although Oxley works with them comparatively rarely, they have much shared history; and he is a regular Taylor confrère too. As a quartet, they make a distinguished group, and only a few minutes into the first of two pieces, 'First', it's clear that the music has a special ration of power and exercised skills. Free-jazz blowouts have been commonplace for decades, but the exciting thing about the intensity which the quartet reaches ten minutes into this piece is the clarity, even at such a tumultuous level of activity. For once, FMP secures a recording of fine accuracy and detail, and the consequence is a mighty document indeed.

CORE COLLECTION

 The Tree Of Life
FMP CD 98 Taylor (p solo). 3/91.

A gorgeously lyrical and handsomely realized recital, decently recorded, and one of Taylor's most sheerly enjoyable records. For readers who aren't prepared to entertain the pianist on the basis of the sheer amount of work involved – and it's a viewpoint which even we have some sympathy with – this might even be the record to start with. It's no great departure for the man, 70 minutes or so of often rapt and sometimes even quizzical playing, and it tends towards the distilled feel of much of his latter-day music: having got much of the thunder behind him, or having the means to explore it via his various larger groupings, by himself he seems more content to sit and muse on aspects of a voluminous art. And this is the result.

 Always A Pleasure FMP CD 69 Taylor; Longineau Parsons (t); Harri Sjöström (ss); Charles Gayle (ts); Tristan Honsinger (clo); Sirone (b); Rashid Bakr (d). 4/93.

As always, there are marvellous moments. But we would count this among Taylor's less successful group concerts (Berlin, again, in 1993). While Honsinger, Sirone, Bakr and – surprisingly – Parsons seem right in tune, Sjöström isn't, and Gayle is frankly completely in the wrong world for this occasion. He simply can't get through the way he does on his own records, and he's reduced to what seems like ranting from the sidelines. The closing segment lets the group find a sort of peaceful reconciliation with itself, and it's nearly worth sorting through some of the prior confusion to get to the coda.

 2 Ts For A Lovely T Codanza 1 10CD Taylor; William Parker (b); Tony Oxley (d). 95.

The Feel Trio, recorded over five nights during a single residency, with a total of ten unedited sets. It's rare that Taylor has been documented at such length, and the results will repay study by all his admirers. The late Richard Cook was executive producer on this edition, a brave and inevitably uncommercial release that affords a unique opportunity to hear one of the great jazz groups of all time in extended performance.

(*) Qu'a: Live At The Iridium Volumes 1 & 2 Cadence CJR 1092 / 1098 Taylor; Harri Sjöström (ss); Dominic Duval (b); Jackson Krall (d). 3/98.

The instrumentation for these New York club sets goes back to Taylor's first group with Steve Lacy. Sjöström at times seems to be thinking about that, some of his remarks having a playful irony that suggests his illustrious forebear, but in other respects the music is inevitably a long, long way distant from such ancient history. The saxophonist does better here than he did on the earlier, FMP session without finally making a convincing case for his presence. Duval isn't particularly well placed in the mix, and his arco playing has an unpleasant buzz which suggests a tinny bass amplifier. Krall, though, is inventive and often delicately propulsive: his brushwork halfway through the first set is impeccable. Taylor's intensity seems as trenchant as ever.

(*) Algonquin Bridge 9146 Taylor; Mat Maneri (vn). 2/99.

It would be difficult to judge without knowing the context whether this Library of Congress commission were an improvised piece or a formal composition. In point of fact, Taylor produced a notional 'score' and Maneri worked out his part from that. Knowing the circumstances perhaps does make a difference, because one inevitably though perhaps wrongly looks for more order or logic of development in a scored work. It's never clear here what ideas are evolving and what is being abandoned along the way. It's probably best judged as an intriguing experiment on which the jury will remain permanently out.

 The Willisau Concert Intakt CD 072 Taylor (p solo). 9/00.

One of the pleasures of recent times has been superior piano sound on gramophone records, and the opportunity to hear Cecil Taylor in as excellent fidelity as this, in concert, on an excellent piano, reminds one of all the missed opportunities of his early years, when such an acute keyboard practitioner had to settle for poor pianos and even poorer recordings. Never mind: here he is at 71 (!), the music-making still something to marvel at, the energy levels amazing, and the results fine enough to account for a lot of enjoyable future study. Or just play it once, as John Cage might have advised, and be overwhelmed.

 All The Notes Cadence CJR 1169 Taylor; Dominic Duval (b); Jackson Krall (d). 2/00.

Three improvisations from a concert in Minneapolis. Duval never seems like the right bassist for a Taylor group, seemingly off in his own world a lot of the time, and the average sound doesn't do the much more interesting Krall many favours.

Also, in brief:

(*) Mixed Impulse! 051270-2. 10/61.

Originally released under Gil Evans's name as Into The Hot, this also includes a Roswell Rudd session sans Taylor. Confusing provenance, but fascinating music.

() Chinampas Leo CD LR 153. 11/87.

A disc of fascinating poetry.

 Almeda FMP CD 126. 11/96.

A set at the Total Music Meeting in Berlin: a 76-minute transcendent live set that doesn't transfer well to CD.

 The Owner Of The Riverbank Enja/Justin Time 3307. 9/00.

A collaboration with the Italian Instabile Orchestra. Reminiscent of his earlier work with JCO.

() Cecil Taylor/Bill Dixon/Tony Oxley Victo 082. 5/02.

A strange one, from Victoriaville, Dixon (t) noodling with electronics that cut him off from the other two.

David Taylor (born 1944)

BASS TROMBONE, TROMBONE, VOICE

A specialist in the low-brass range, he's a busy sessioneer who is as likely to be found on a contemporary-composition date.

(*) Doppelgänger /  Morning Moon CIMP 269 / 307 Taylor; Dominic Duval (b); Jay Rosen (d). 5/02 / 3/04
 Not Just ... CIMP 321 Taylor; Steve Swell (tb); Billy Bang (vn); Tomas Ulrich (clo); Ken Filiano (b). 1/05.

This prolific musician usually works under someone else's orders. but the association with CIMP has raised his profile. On the first one the trios rattle through 14 tracks and the feel is somewhat reminiscent of an old FMP date from the '70s. So some of it works, and a lot doesn't. Curiously, some of the short tracks sound as if they should be longer, while the longer ones could use some pruning. Taylor is master of the bass trombone, but he seems to think in sentences rather than paragraphs and when he's stuck for his next move he tends to bluster. Duval and Rosen make appropriate noises, and at least there's some humour, often a rare commodity in CIMP releases.

Almost exactly the same things could be said about the follow-up, but it works better as an album. Taylor does a nice line in ranty vocals, as on 'Bred In Bithynia', and there are curious similarities between some of these cuts and Roswell Rudd's early experiments and even his collaboration with Sheila Jordan on Flexible Flyer. Rosen has developed a nice line in free metres and it's often left to the sober-sounding Duval to hold things together.

The 'bones and strings formula on Not Just ... works very well indeed. Taylor has more to work against and while he still seems to work in discontinuous ideas, which rarely add up to sequential narrative, there's a graspable logic to the whole which is sometimes lacking on previous releases. One suspects much fun was had making this; it just about communicates on CD.

John Taylor (born 1942)

PIANO

A Mancunian, he arrived in London in 1964. Led his own groups in the late '60s and '70s and co-formed Azimuth in 1977 with ex-wife Norma Winstone and Kenny Wheeler.

 Blue Glass Jazz House JHCD 020 Taylor; Mick Hutton (b); Steve Argüelles (d). 6/91.

Much admired, Taylor is under-recorded as a leader, though one should also weigh his work with Azimuth in the balance. He started out as an accompanist, established and sustained a reputation with his first wife, Norma Winstone, and is still routinely described as if his gifts are best suited to a supportive role. In fact, Taylor is a riveting solo performer and an exceptional writer. Typically, he likes to spin out long lines of melody, braced by a firm but flexible rhythmic base. He sounds effortlessly fluent but never less than thoughtful.

Blue Glass is a live set from Ronnie Scott's jazz club. Like 'White Magic', 'Blue Glass' is a good example of Taylor's gifts as a sound-painter, but it is his treatment of standards – 'Spring Is Here', 'How Deep Is The Ocean' – that catches the attention first time around. There is also a new version of 'Clapperclowe' from the no longer available Ambleside Days, cast very differently for the trio format.

(*) Rosslyn ECM 1599 Taylor; March Johnson (b); Joey Baron (d). 4/02.

One rather hoped that having a former Bill Evans bassman in the trio Taylor might consider programming some Evans material, particularly given that he has been compared to the American many times. In fact, what one gets is a set that is Evans-like in temperament rather than content. Taylor doesn't pack this first solo set for ECM with original material, but brings in compositions by Ralph Towner (the lovely 'Tramonto') and Kenny Wheeler ('Ma Bel') as well as a standard, 'How Deep Is The Ocean', to which he gives a slyly Jarrett-like spin. His original themes, each of them with a folkish tinge, are swung much harder by this group than one imagines would be the case with British sidemen, and Taylor seems to be lighter in spirit and faster in response here than on previous records. However, all Rosslyn really does is clinch his pedigree as one of the finest pianists in Europe (and he spends much of his time in Europe rather than England).

* Insight Sketch 1064 Taylor (p solo). 4/03.

Insight may be the kind of title, and those pastoral evocations exactly the kind of track, that put off jazz snobs. The important thing to register about this superb release is that Taylor has never sounded so completely like a jazz player. Even when he alludes to Bartók or Debussy, even when his inspiration is a long way removed from the blues, his playing has never been more aware of tradition and never more completely individual. 'Evans Above' is a miracle of harmonic invention, while Taylor's interpretation of Steve Swallow's 'Vaguely Asian', complete with strums inside the sound-box, is quietly virtuosic. The other highlight, perhaps pointedly meant, is Kenny Wheeler's 'Everybody's Song But My Own'. A magnificent album, superbly paced and recorded.

(*) Songs And Variations CamJazz 7772 / Taylor (p solo). 2/04, 3/05.

This is a bittier and less successful record, viewed simply as a piece of product; however, the playing track by track is faultless and Taylor's explorations are as intriguing and involving as ever.

* Angel Of The Presence / * Whirlpool CamJazz 7768 / 7802 Taylor; Palle Danielsson (b); Martin France (d). 10/04.

Two further exquisite trio sets from the Englishman, elevated by Danielsson's singing bass-lines and by some notably sensitive drumming from France. John's own 'In Cologne' (where he teaches) is testimony to the rigour of his writing, but Steve Swallow's 'Vaguely Asian' is the outstanding cut, with the pianist sustaining apparently contradictory developments in perfect balance and with no hint of strain. Whirlpool consolidates the group's identity even more securely. There are three Kenny Wheeler tunes in the set, testimony to that creative relationship, and a fascinating reworking of Holst at the end: interesting, this, because the composer's distinctive blend of 'Englishness' and almost mystical exoticism is a perfect analogy for Taylor's own practice.

Martin Taylor (born 1956)

GUITAR

Associated with Stéphane Grappelli in his later years, he has shown an instinctive feel for the Hot Club De France idiom while simultaneously carving out a richly expressive solo sound that draws on every aspect of the jazz guitar tradition. He veers between unaccompanied performance and a more spacious group sound.

(*) Taylor Made Wave CD 17 Taylor; Peter Ind (b); John Richardson (d). 79.
 Triple Libra Wave CD 24 Taylor; Peter Ind (b). 81.

Awesomely but unassumingly gifted, Taylor is the kind of artist who gives the music a good name. In straightforward technical terms, he is probably a match for any guitarist of today. His lines seem so cleanly articulated that there is no distance between thought and execution. Perhaps too much so. These aren't very exciting records; the studio sound is as blemish-free as the playing, and one never quite gets that little flicker of danger that would lift them up a notch. The debut album confirms all of that. Precocious, able, even facile, but not yet with a story to tell. Taylor tackles 'On Green Dolphin Street' with an assurance that is uncanny and brings a crisp precision to George Benson's 'My Latin Brother', a more contemporary sound. Taylor only really begins to sound like himself on the follow-up, Triple Libra, where he chips in with 'Green Eyes', an early sign of compositional gifts, along with a superb version of Chick Corea's 'Windows'. Long out of circulation, these records are a welcome addition to the catalogue, though – relative to what follows – they should be considered a priority only for confirmed Taylor fans.

 Sketches – A Tribute To Tatum P3 014 Taylor (g solo). 78, 83.
Recorded in Edinburgh (and in the case of the final three tracks, in London five years before), these catch Taylor at the end of his precocious youth and on the cusp of turning into the formidable star of today. His technique is dazzling and his interpretations of such things as 'Ol' Man River' and 'Honeysuckle Rose' are to die for. The bonus tracks from 1978 are 'All The Things You Are', 'Cotton Tail' and 'Misty', of which only the last betrays a whiff of callowness, forgivable at 22.

 Don't Fret Linn AKD 014 Taylor; David Newton (p); Dave Green (b); Allan Ganley (d). 9/90.
 Change Of Heart Linn AKD 016 Taylor; David Newton (p); Brian Shiels (b); John Rae (d). 6/91.
Change Of Heart includes a blues, 'You Don't Know Me', that Taylor takes to the cleaners, but the anodyne brilliance of the playing takes some of the pith out of the playing, and certainly undermines the conviction of the rock-orientated 'Angel's Camp'. The earlier record is more solidly in the jazz camp, thanks mostly to Ganley's civil adaptation of Art Blakey's beat; but the more four-square Rae does no harm to the second session. Taylor was advancing by leaps and bounds all through the '80s and the contrast between these and the Wave sessions above is breathtaking. Technically there isn't much in it. Expressively, he's already on a different plane.

* Spirit Of Django Linn AKD 030 Taylor; Dave O'Higgins (ts, ss); John Goldie (g); Jack Emblow (acc); Alec Dankworth (b, cabassa); James Taylor (perc). 6–8/94.
Given the association with Grappelli, the naming of this group was no surprise, and nor was much of the repertoire. Taylor had decided to give up unaccompanied performance for a while and concentrate on a group sound. It must have been difficult to sustain the level of highly exposed creativity he was bringing to solo concerts. What the group allows him to do is work within a much bigger harmonic and timbral framework, allow his guitar to thread together ideas rather than sustain them all. In Dave O'Higgins (one of the best of the younger generation of British saxophonists) and the seasoned Jack Emblow, he has partners who are absolutely in sympathy with what he is doing. In Dankworth, he has a bass-player who can sustain the tempo in a drummerless group (son James has only a bit part at this stage) but who can also lend himself to the other parameters of the music as well. On 'Night And Day' and 'Honeysuckle Rose', he is creating as much of the musical movement as anyone else. Taylor intended the record to be a tribute to his own father, as well as to the artistic parent namechecked in the title. Playing acoustically and in a setting that juxtaposes Django material ('Nuages', 'Minor Swing', 'Swing 42') against originals and Taylor's own celebrated reworking of Robert Parker's 'Johnny And Mary' theme, he sounds very different from the solo artist, less busy and layered, but instantly identifiable as himself.

(*) Portraits Linn AKD 048 Taylor; Chet Atkins (g). 7–12/95.
Notwithstanding Taylor's apparent desire to leave this kind of thing aside for a while, this is an excellent record, and the chance to play with another of the great legends of modern music must have been irresistible. Atkins went around afterwards saying what a privilege it had been for him to play with Martin, when everyone might have supposed the gratitude flowed the other way. They're first heard together on 'Sweet Lorraine' and one can hear at once where some of Taylor's clean-picked lines come from – not from Django after all. He tries a couple of interesting overdubs, but as before it is the solo tracks where the real action lies. A version of Earl Klugh's 'Kiko' and a closing version of Bill Evans's lovely 'Very Early' are the real gems.

(*) Years Apart Linn AKD 058 Taylor; Gerard Presencer (flhn); Dave O'Higgins (sax); John Goldie (g); Stéphane Grappelli (vn); Jack Emblow (acc); Terry Gregory (b); James Taylor (perc); Claire Martin (v). 96.
The second Spirit Of Django album lacks the impact of the first, but it's still a highly appealing and beautifully crafted performance. The basic group plays wonderfully well, but one wonders if, Grappelli aside, the guest performances from Presencer and Martin (and a further cameo from son James) don't dilute the whole rather than enhance it. 'Manoir De Mes Rêves' is worth waiting for, sealing a habit of finishing albums with the strongest number. The title-piece is wonderful, too, with one of Taylor's most nakedly expressive lines.

 Gypsy Linn AKD 090 Taylor; Dave O'Higgins (sax); Jack Emblow (acc); John Goldie, Terry Gregory (g); James Taylor (perc). 96–97.
The most recent disc from Spirit Of Django has a steady-as-she-goes feel. The group is now well enough established to have struck off in some new directions, but Gypsy, which was recorded on tour in England with three studio tracks added, has a faintly recycled quality. Taylor is as good as always, and these cuts have presumably been selected to show him at his best. However, the group doesn't always gel and the two subsidiary guitarists go about their business with a slightly grim determination, as if they were being paid by the chord.

 Kiss And Tell Columbia 495387 2 Taylor; Randy Brecker (flhn); Jay Ashby (tb, v); Kirk Whalum (ss, ts); George Garzone (ts); Matt Rollings (p, org); Brian Siewert (ky); Pat Bergeson (g); John Catchings (vn); Kristin Wilkinson (vla); David Davidson (clo); Eddie Gomez, Chris Kent (b); Al Foster (d); Eric Darken (perc). 99.
Major-label interest was long overdue, but Taylor wastes no time in flash grandstanding and instead delivers a musical set that covers just about every aspect of his playing approach. His solo style is represented on 'Mona Lisa', a performance that would have made his dad proud. There are ancestral influences, too, on the guitar/piano duet 'Ginger', an old tune written for his great-grandfather, the boxer Ginger Stewart, and on 'The Nearness Of You', a duet with tenor saxophonist Kirk Whalum, who played it with the dying Arnett Cobb. And there is a hint of godparental influence on 'Sunstep', which revives memories of the association with Grappelli.

 In Concert Milestone MCD 9306 Taylor (g solo). 6/98.
Having broken his duck as far as live releases were concerned with Gypsy, Taylor repeated the experiment with a new label. Whether or not Milestone producer Jay Ashby had anything to do with the selection of material, this is a very much more straight-ahead set than usual. Martin sticks to standard material throughout – no pop songs or Hot Club repertoire – and plays in a relatively conventional, Joe Pass-influenced style. The best of the songs are very good indeed. A brief, brisk 'I Got Rhythm' demonstrates how completely on top of his material he is. Taylor had moved away somewhat from unaccompanied playing at this time, but this gig, recorded at Manchester Craftsmen's Guild, is a near perfect example of what he is capable of in this format. Delightfully recorded in a clear and warm acoustic, this is quintessential jazz guitar, effortlessly musical and intelligent.

Also, in brief:

 Reunion Linn AKD 022. 92.
Or: Old Art And Young Hector. A lovely meeting with Grappelli.

 Gold Linn AKD 064. 90–97.
Magnificently remastered career retrospective on special, gold-coated pressings offers a good selection of tunes and pristine, shiny sound.

 The Linn Box Linn AKD 115. N.D.
The first three records for Linn. In a box.

(*) Stepping Stones Linn AKD 166. 90–97.
A nice selection from Taylor's years with the Scottish label.

 Two's Company Linn AKD 081. 97.
Ostensibly a duets album, but to all intents a solo project.

 Artistry Linn AKD 020. 5/92.
Recorded with superb polish and clarity, this solo recital is almost too good to be true, its main virtues technical rather than musical.

* Nitelife Sony 85909. 00.
We would not grudge Martin a measure of commercial success, but this is an over-produced mish-mash of fashionable gestures and poppy arrangements which only mask the unalloyed beauty of his guitar-playing.

() Gypsy Journey P3 1056. 11/02.
A bland and formulaic album; much better is the guitar showcase on the same label in the company of rock hero Steve Howe.

Mike Taylor (1938–69)

PIANO

Short-lived genius of British jazz, who went through the Royal Air Force already a fine musician and recorded briefly in the '60s. His death by drowning in the Thames remains unsatisfactorily explained.

(*) Pendulum Sunbeam 5034 Taylor; Dave Tomlin (ss); Ron Rubin (b); Jon Hiseman (d). 10/65.

(*) Trio Impressed Re-pressed 9866894 Taylor; Jack Bruce, Ron Rubin (b); Jon Hiseman (d). 67.
For a brief, intoxicating period, Columbia had money to spend on British jazz. Pianists seemed to be favoured, which gave Stan Tracey and Howard Riley a moment in the sun. Had he lived, Mike Taylor might have enjoyed similar eminence in later years. The promise of Pendulum is staggering, and the maturity of writing – on 'Pendulum' and 'To Segovia' particularly – remarkable for a man still only 27. The title-tune has a weaving, harmonically ambiguous cast that proved to be a challenge in big-band arrangements. Taylor (or Columbia) insisted on opening the album with a sequence of standards or repertory tunes, of which the nearly 14-minute 'A Night In Tunisia' is outstanding in its deviations from the original.

Trio is equally idiosyncratic in its treatment of standards, 'All the Things You Are' and 'Stella By Starlight' this time, but it's Taylor's own music, and in particular the glorious 'Abena', which makes the set special. It also serves as a reminder of what an excellent jazz bassist Bruce was, occasionally joined or spelled here by Rubin.

 Mike Taylor Remembered Dusk Fire DFCD103 Taylor; Greg Bowen, Ian Carr, Tony Fisher, Henry Lowther (t, flhn); David Horler, Chris Pyne (tb); Ray Premru (btb); Barbara Thompson (ss, f, af); Ray Warleigh (as, f); Stan Sulzmann (ss, as, f); Bob Efford (ts, ob, bsn); Dave Gelly (ts, cl, bcl); Bunny Gould (bcl, bsn); Peter Lemer (p, syn); Alan Branscombe (vib); Chris Laurence, Ron Mathewson (b); Jon Hiseman (d, perc); Norma Winstone (v); Neil Ardley (dir). 6/73.
As the date makes clear, Taylor was already dead when this recording was made. It has lain unreleased for 30 years and appears now remastered from Neil Ardley's original tapes. When Mike Taylor died, he had been in a poor condition for some time, largely through drug abuse. He did, however, make a singular impact on British music at the time, co-writing material with Ginger Baker for Cream, and releasing his own Pendulum whose title-track became a staple for Ardley's New Jazz Orchestra and is included here. 'Jumping Off The Sun', also included, was also recorded by Colosseum. Taylor's writing was eclectic, with folkish tinges on 'Timewind', 'Folk Dance 2' and 'Black And White Raga', but with a strong blues tonality throughout. Winstone's voice is an important component of these ensembles, emphasizing the song-like cadences of Taylor's most distinctive compositions. These are faithful and respectful renditions of a suddenly eclipsed talent.

John Tchicai (born 1936)

ALTO, SOPRANO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, FLUTES, BASS CLARINET

The saxophonist is half-Danish, half-Congolese. He started out on violin and, after switching to saxophone, was noticed by Archie Shepp and others on the European festival circuit. Played with Coltrane on Ascension. Originally rather dry and papery in tone, Tchicai has become more emotionally nuanced over the years.

 The Real Tchicai Steeplechase SCCD 31075 Tchicai; Pierre Dørge (g); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b). 3/77.
 Ball At Louisiana Steeplechase SCCD 31174 Tchicai; Pierre Dørge (g). 11/81.
 Timo's Message Black Saint 120094 Tchicai; Thomas Dürst, Christian Kuntner (b); Timo Fleig (d, perc). 2/84.
 Grandpa's Spells Storyville STCD 4182 Tchicai; Misha Mengelberg (p); Margriet Nabrier (syn); Peter Danstrup (b); Gilbert Matthews (d). 3/92.
Tchicai moved to the United States in the early '60s and joined Archie Shepp and Bill Dixon in the New York Contemporary Five; but he went on to lead a more significant, if less well-known, group, known as the New York Art Quartet, with percussionist Milford Graves and trombonist Roswell Rudd. In the following year he played alongside fellow altoist Marion Brown (whom he somewhat resembles in approach) on John Coltrane's epic Ascension, before returning to Europe to work on a number of individual projects.

Tchicai has now been a presence in the European avant-garde for more than a quarter of a century, although his few records and occasional appearances have marginalized him more than somewhat. Though most obviously influenced by Ornette Coleman and, to a lesser extent, Eric Dolphy, Tchicai's very individual tonality has more often been likened to that of Lee Konitz, and his performing style has followed a similar trajectory, turning away from a rather cool and dry approach towards a rootsier and more forceful delivery. The two Steeplechases are rather dry affairs in which the moments of beauty feel as forced as hothouse blooms. Dørge and NHØP try to eke some energy out of the saxophonist, but he often seems curiously ill at ease. That said, there are some striking moments, especially on some of the ballads on the later disc, on which NHØP is absent.

The '80s saw Tchicai shift away from alto saxophone. His tenor and soprano work was initially competent but rather anonymous, and it really came into its own only during the following decade, as on the excellent Grandpa's Spells. For the most part, the '70s had been a time of consolidation, of teaching and of research into Eastern musics, but he returned to performance with a group called Strange Brothers. Among the more recent material, there is a fine 'Stella By Starlight' on Timo's Message, but again the weight of interest falls largely on Tchicai's now quite varied compositional style, which includes calypso and rock elements.

Grandpa's Spells foreshadows Tchicai's growing interest in electronics. The basic quartet is augmented with intelligently deployed sequences that give pieces like 'Community Bells' a rich, almost orchestral texture. There are two old-fashioned improvisations from the group, with Mengelberg well to the fore, a hint of the 'fusion' direction on 'Heksehyl', some folky stuff using traditional melodies ('Fran Engeland Till Skottland'), a touch of Carl Nielsen, and two Jelly Roll Morton compositions.

 Love Notes From The Madhouse 8thhb 80001 Tchicai; Aaron Getsug (bs, v); Margriet Naber-Tchicai (ky, v); Jeff Parker (g, v); Fred Hopkins (b); Benita Haastrup (d, perc, v); Yusef Komunyakaa (v). 9/97.

Jazz and poetry have been long-standing bedfellows, but this remarkable collaboration between Tchicai and poet Yusef Komunyakaa redefines the relationship. With the exception of Billy Strayhorn's 'Bloodcount', everything is conceived by the players. 'Dolphy's Aviary' is a remarkable musical and verbal history of recent jazz, and the terse, allusive lyrics are wonderfully complementary to the music. Not suited to every taste, but worth exploring.

 Infinitesimal Flash Buzz 76010 Tchicai; Francis Wong (ts, f); Adam Lane (b); Mat Marucci (d). 99.

The opening 'Kippiology', a Johnny Dyani theme, is full-flushing energy music, which might suggest that Tchicai has gone full circle; but thereafter the quartet follow more diverse paths. The partnership with Wong offers some interesting wrinkles, with the Chinese-American taking a major compositional role, and also adapting the traditional melodies 'Autumn Moon' and 'Alishan', which prove to be effective vehicles for Tchicai's soprano and tenor respectively. That said, neither saxophonist really cuts that deeply, and the sleeve-note suggestion that they're akin to a Marsh–Konitz dialogue is distinctly flattering.

 Big Chief Dreaming Soul Note 121385-2 Tchicai; Tino Tracanna (ss, ts); Garrison Fewell (g); Paolino Dalla Porta (b); Massimo Manzi (d). 6/03.

An interesting ensemble set, in which Tracanna has as much solo space as Tchicai and with some important statements from the always interesting Fewell as well. The music is quite accommodating, and slightly retro in feel, but the original writing on things like 'Bassetto' (Tracanna's) and 'Prayer For Right Guidance' (Tchicai's) is a nice balance of tradition and innovation.

* Good Night Songs Boxholder BXH 050/051 Tchicai; Charlie Kohlhase (as, ts, bs); Garrison Fewell (g, perc, etc). 12/03.

There's a lot of music on this set. None of it is screamingly dramatic, nor does it ever seem to reach into expressive depths. Much of it appears to be composed to a degree, somewhat in the manner of some of Anthony Braxton's earlier small ensembles. And yet it has all the virtues it seems to eschew: a real empathy and instinctive responsiveness between the three players, some degree of horns-against-rhythm, roots in blues and Latin music, and a certain rawness of delivery. Tchicai plays his bass clarinet and sings as well as wielding that now familiar tenor. The underrated Kohlhase modulates his sound beautifully, and Fewell provides a consistent flow of supportive ideas, as well as showing impressively in solo spots. Above all, it communicates. The choicest cuts are the opening 'Floating', 'On Fait La Taille', 'X-Ray Vision' and 'Lilanto Del Indio', but there isn't a makeweight on the set.

Also, in brief:

 Anybody Home? Orchard 809972. 9/90.

Sometimes hard-to-find live date with mixed ensemble.

 On Top Of Your Head Ninth World 24. 5/01.

A collaborative album with some fascinating fellow Scandinavians, but very much in line with recent Tchicai essays.

 Hope Is Bright Green Up North CIMP 278. 10/02.

Tchicai and Pierre Dorge (g) are old colleagues and some of their dialogue is rewarding, but the record is completely unbalanced by Lou Grassi, who thrashes inattentively.

 Hymne Til Sofia Calibrated 12. 12/05.

Powerful sacred music for choruses and soloists, followed by a nice set of improvs for organ, saxophone and percussion. Different to his usual run of things, but highly effective.

Jack Teagarden (1905–64)

TROMBONE, VOCAL

A Texan, he took the trombone to new levels, with his impeccable technique, fluency and gorgeous sound, allied to a feel for blues playing which eluded many of his white contemporaries. He was also a fine, idiosyncratic singer. He was with Ben Pollack for five years from 1928, with Paul Whiteman in the '30s, and finally led his own swing orchestra, though it left him broke in the end. He joined the Armstrong All-Stars in 1946, stayed till 1951, then toured for the rest of a life increasingly wedded to alcohol.

 I Gotta Right To Sing The Blues ASV AJA 5059 Teagarden; Leonard Davis, Red Nichols, Ray Lodwig, Manny Klein, Charlie

Teagarden, Ruby Weinstein, Sterling Bose, Dave Klein, Harry Goldfield, Nat Natoli, Frank Guarente, Leo McConville, Charlie Spivak (t); Jack Fulton, Glenn Miller, Ralph Copsey, Bill Rank (tb); Benny Goodman (cl); Mezz Mezzrow, Arthur Rollini, Charles Strickfadden, Benny Bonaccio, John Cordaro, Chester Hazlett, Jimmy Dorsey, Art Karle, Eddie Miller, Matty Matlock, Joe Catalyne, Pee Wee Russell, Max Farley, Happy Caldwell, Arnold Brilhart, Bernie Day, Sid Stoneburn, Babe Russin, Larry Binyon, Gil Rodin, Irving Friedman, Adrian Rollini, Min Leibrook (reeds); Red McKenzie (kz, v); Fats Waller (p, v); Joe Sullivan, Jack Russin, Lennie Hayton, Arthur Schutt, Gil Bowers, Joe Moresco, Roy Bargy, Vincent Pirro, Howard Smith (p); Joe Venuti, Matty Malneck, Mischa Russell, Harry Struble, Walt Edelstein, Alex Beller, Ray Cohen (vn); Carl Kress, Jack Bland, Nappy Lamare, Eddie Lang, Dick McDonough, Perry Botkin, Mike Pingitore, George Van Eps (g); Treg Brown (bj, v); Eddie Condon (bj); Artie Bernstein, Art Miller, Jerry Johnson, Harry Goodman, Al Morgan (b); Norman McPherson (tba); Ray Bauduc, George Stafford, Herb Quigley, Stan King, Gene Krupa, Josh Billings, Larry Gomar (d). 2/29–10/34.

Teagarden's star is somehow in decline, since all his greatest work predates the LP era and at this distance it's difficult to hear how completely he changed the role of the trombone. In Tea's hands, this awkward barnyard instrument became majestic, sonorous and handsome. By the time he began recording in 1926 he was already a mature and easeful player whose feel for blues and nonchalant rhythmic drive made him stand out on the dance band records he was making.

This compilation features 12 different bands and 18 tracks, which points up how easily Teagarden could make himself at home in bands of the period. One celebrated example is the treatment meted out to a waltz called 'Dancing With Tears In My Eyes', under Joe Venuti's leadership: Teagarden contravenes everything to do with the material and charges through his solo. Two early sessions under his own name have him trading retorts with Fats Waller on 'You Rascal You' and delivering his original reading of what became a greatest hit, 'A Hundred Years From Today'. Stricter jazz material such as two tracks by The Charleston Chasers is fine, but no less enjoyable are such as Ben Pollack's 'Two Tickets To Georgia', where Teagarden's swinging outburst suggests that he treated every setting as a chance to blow. One or two of the transfers are noisy, but most of the remastering is agreeably done.

 Jack Teagarden 1930–1934 Classics 698 Teagarden; Charlie Teagarden, Claude Whiteman, Sterling Bose, Frank Guarente (t); Pee Wee Russell, Benny Goodman (cl); Chester Hazlett, Jimmy Dorsey, Rod Cless (cl, as); Joe Catalyne, Max Farley, Dale Skinner, Mutt Hayes (cl, ts); Frankie Trumbauer (cmel); Bud Freeman (ts); Adrian Rollini (bsx); Casper Reardon (hp); Fats Waller (p, v); Joe Meresco, Terry Shand, Charlie LaVere (p); Walt Edelstein, Joe Venuti, Lou Kosloff (vn); Nappy Lamare (g, v); Dick McPartland, Perry Botkin, Frank Worrell (g); Artie Bernstein, Eddie Gilbert, Art Miller (b); Stan King, Bob Conselman, Larry Gomar, Herb Quigley (d); Gene Austin (v). 10/30–3/34.

 Jack Teagarden 1934–1939 Classics 729 Teagarden; Charlie Teagarden, Charlie Spivak, Carl Garvin, Alec Fila, Lee Castaldo (t); Jose Gutierrez, Mark Bennett, Charles McCamish, Red Bone (tb); Benny Goodman (cl); Clint Garvin, Art St John (cl, as); John Van Eps, Hub Lytle (cl, ts); Ernie Caceres (cl, ts, bs); Frankie Trumbauer (Cmel); Terry Shand, John Anderson (p); Casper Reardon (hp); Allan Reuss (g); Art Miller (b); Herb Quigley, Cubby Teagarden (d); Meredith Blake, Linda Keene (v). 9/34–7/39.

The two Classics discs take their usual chronological survey of Teagarden's work up to the middle of 1939. The tracks by the 1931 band are mostly spirited stuff: a hot 'Tiger Rag', a couple of items in which Fats Waller and Tea swap banter – and some feeble tracks with Gene Austin singing. The 1933 date is another heated one, with a front-rank group of Chicagoans on hand, although Classics 698 ends on a couple of dreary sessions. Classics 729 opens with Casper Reardon's famous harp party-piece, 'Junk Man', before moving to the first sessions by the big band Teagarden formed after leaving Paul Whiteman. He never had much luck as a bandleader, but this wasn't a bad group: decent if second-division swing, always suddenly illuminated when the leader took a solo.

(*) Jack Teagarden 1941–1943 Classics 874 Similar to above, except add Billy May, Art Gold (t); Jimmie Noone, Heinie Beau (cl); Dave Matthews (ts); Joe Sullivan (p); Dave Barbour (g); Artie Shapiro (b); Zutty Singleton (d); Bing Crosby, Mary Martin (v). 1/41–11/43.

Three more sessions by the big band, a couple of tracks with Bing Crosby and two small-group dates for Capitol make up this CD. It's a curious jump from 'Prelude In C Sharp Minor' to 'Chicks Is Wonderful', but the three Decca sessions are among the best vehicles for Teagarden, who plays and sings with serene authority on 'Blue River', 'Black And Blue', 'The Blues Have Got Me' and especially 'Nobody Knows The Trouble I've Seen'. The seven titles by The Capitol International Jazzmen bring together an unlikely band – May, Teagarden, Noone (making his farewell on record), Matthews, Sullivan – but it worked out very well, with the various soloists shining in different degrees. One of the best of the Classics Teas.

(*) Jack Teagarden 1944–1947 Classics 1032 Teagarden; Bobby Hackett (c); Clair Jones, Bob McLaughlin, Val Salata, Tex Williamson, Max Kaminsky, Ray Norden, Jerry Rosen, Andy Marchese, Jerry Redmond, Nyles Davis, Lee Castle, Carl Garvin, Frank Ryerson (t); Fred Keller, Ray Olsen, Wally Wells, Palmer Combatelli, Jack Lantz, Chuck Smith, Kenny Martin, Mark Bennett, Eddie Dudley, Jose Gutierrez (tb); Art Lyons, Peanuts Hucko (cl); Ernie Caceres, Vic Rosi, Clint Garvin (cl, as); Dale Stoddard, Bob Derry, Dale Jolley, Bert Noah, Merton Smith, Ray Skieraski, Leon Radcliffe, Ray Tucci (as); Howard Gilbertson, Ken Harpster, Nick Caiazza, Johnny McDonald, Cliff Strickland, Hub Lytle, John Van Eps (ts); Clark Crandall, Art St John (bs); Don Seidel, Bill Clifton, Norma Teagarden, Bob Carter, Nick Tagg, Gene Schroeder, Jack Russin (p); Herb Ellis, Charles Gilruth, Eddie Critchlow, Chuck Wayne, Allan Reuss (g); Jimmy Lynch, Felix Giobbe, George 'Pops' Foster, Lloyd Springer, Jim Hearne, Jack Lesberg, Bonnie Pottle (b); Frank Harrington, Cozy Cole, George Wettling, Bobby Fisher, Dave Tough (d); Wingy Manone, Christine Martin (v). 11/39–10/47.

Starting with a couple of 1939 V-Discs that were missed off an earlier volume, this is a mix of rare and familiar Teagarden. His 1944 session for Commodore includes a duet with Wingy Manone on 'Rockin' Chair'. There are six sides from his own label, Teagarden Presents, two Dixieland titles and four by his latest big band. A V-Disc of 'Body And Soul', with a largely unknown rhythm section, is classic Tea. Four Victor titles by Teagarden's Big Eight, including Kaminsky and Hucko, swagger along, and Tea sounds in good heart. A hotch-potch but an excellent one.

 Club Hangover Broadcasts Arbors ARCD 19150/1 2CD Teagarden; Jackie Coon (t); Jay St John (cl); Norma Teagarden, Lil Hardin Armstrong, Don Ewell (p); Kas Malone (b); Ray Bauduc (d). 4/54.

Four broadcasts by a Teagarden small group in San Francisco. With the big band and the Armstrong All-Stars behind him, Tea sounds settled enough, though there are no vocals from him – a by-product of an old cabaret tax law. The material is all Dixieland chestnuts and the band suffers a little under Ray Bauduc's crashing drums, but there are some nice glimpses of the leader at his best, even if they are only glimpses (and often ones where Tea isn't very well mic-ed). Clean sound, though Coon and Bauduc (and Malone) usually sound louder than everyone else. Ewell and Armstrong are the intermission pianists and get a couple of solos each.

(*) Mis'ry And The Blues Verve 9860310 Teagarden; Don Goldie (t); Henry Cuesta (cl); Don Ewell (p); Shay Torrant (org); Stan Puls (b); Barrett Deems (d). 6/61.

Tea's final great album is a welcome addition to the catalogue. By this time his career had settled into a routine of one-nighters which he seemed to care little for, and his working and recording bands were scarcely becoming for him. Yet this date worked out exceptionally well. Goldie has often been criticized, and he can't help showing off on the likes of 'Basin Street Blues', but it would have been no good having a trumpet in the front line sounding as tired as the leader, and he does bring a James-like energy to proceedings. Ewell is very good, Cuesta does nothing to disgrace himself, and even Deems is on his best behaviour. Creed Taylor secured an excellent studio sound, which is attractively brought out in the remastering. Best of all, the material is unhackneyed enough to persuade Tea into giving it his best shots: 'Froggie Moore' and 'Dixieland One-Step' were already ancient history, but a lot more interesting than 'The Saints' and 'I Don't Want To Miss Mississippi', and the title-track especially inveigles some fine singing from him.

Also, in brief:

() Jack Teagarden 1939–1940 /  Jack Teagarden 1940–1941 Classics 758 / 839. 3/39–2/40; 2/40–1/41.

Teagarden was struggling to find success with this band. Most of the records tend towards undemanding, commercial swing.

* Jack Teagarden And His All Stars Jazzology 199. 58.

Teagarden drifting his way through the final years in a way that looks as slipshod as some of Pops's later efforts; too many visits to 'St James Infirmary'; too much time in his 'Rockin' Chair'.

Joe Temperley (born 1929)

BARITONE AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, BASS CLARINET

Born in Fife, he played in dance bands in the '50s before spending seven years with Humphrey Lyttelton from 1958. In 1965 he moved to New York and has enjoyed an Indian summer in the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra.

 Nightingale Hep CD 2052 Temperley; Brian Lemon (p); Dave Green (b); Martin Drew (d). 4/91.

 Concerto For Joe Hep CD 2062 As above, except add Steve Sidwell, Eddie Severn, Gerard Presencer (t); Gordon Campbell, Nichol Thomson (tb); Peter King (as); Duncan Lamont (ts); Brian Kellock (p); Alec Dankworth (b); Jack Parnell (d). 9/93–7/94.

Temperley has seldom figured in record dates in the UK since his move to America and there has been very little under his own leadership, but Nightingale was an opportune session. A seamless, singing manner belies the difficulties of the instrument and, though his sometimes bubbly timbre at fast tempos may not be to all tastes, there's a genuineness about his improvisations. There's a beautiful Ellington rarity in 'Sunset And A Mocking Bird', in which Temperley's sound never makes one think of Harry Carney. He ends on an a cappella 'My Love Is Like A Red, Red Rose' that sums up the sound he can get from the horn. The weakness lies in the rhythm section: nothing very wrong, but the sheer ordinariness of the playing is unfortunate. Concerto For Joe is an agreeable continuation. Jimmy Deuchar's composition for Temperley is the centrepiece of the record, performed by the saxophonist with the big group, and it's a substantial if not quite deathless performance. Elsewhere there are more quartet tracks with the previous group. Temperley sounds well enough but, in the end, as with the previous disc, a certain flavour of routine militates against its acquiring essential status.

 Easy To Remember Hep CD 2083 Temperley; Toby Coe (ss); Frank Griffith (cl); John Pearce (p); Andy Cleyndert (b); Steve Brown (d); strings. 4/01.

A sweetly melodious jog around a string of familiar standards – perhaps too familiar, with 'Just Friends', 'That Old Feeling' and 'East Of The Sun' the kind of things which listeners will know as well as the players at this point. Frank Griffith's charts do well enough by the soloists (Coe as much as Temperley), but, as with the first record listed, it's at the very end that Temperley has his finest moment: a poignant 'Hielan' Laddie' in memory of his brother.

 Cocktails For Two Sackville SAK2CD 3071 Temperley; Harry Allen (ts); John Bunch (p); Greg Cohen (b); Jake Hanna (d). 10/06.

Taped at Sunny Sutton's Rocky Mountain Jazz Party, where Temperley and Allen had worked together for the first time a couple of years before. A nice, fresh opening with 'Cocktails For Two' and 'Blues In The Closet', and not much sign of cliché or overworked warhorse as the date progresses. Allen mostly defers to the older saxophonist, but Joe's happy to mix it in the ensembles and on some traded choruses. Both the horns are featured alone on one piece: Joe steers a fresh and original course through 'Polka Dots And Moonbeams', while Allen takes a more conventionally emotive line on 'Everything Happens To Me'.

Jacky Terrasson (born 1966)

PIANO

Born in Berlin, of French and American parents, he grew up in Paris and attended the Lycée Lamartine. He moved to New York in 1990 and won the Thelonious Monk Competition in 1993.

 Jacky Terrasson /  Reach Blue Note 829351-2 / 835739-2 Terrasson; Ugonna Okegwo (b); Leon Parker (d). 7–8/94; 95.

Terrasson gathered much acclaim from an early stage, and these debut records as a leader are notably single-minded efforts. He never approaches a tune from any predictable point: on the first disc, there are versions of 'I Love Paris', 'My Funny Valentine' and 'Bye Bye Blackbird' which are so revisionist as to be almost unrecognizable at times. Yet he sticks to otherwise familiar paths of harmony and rhythmic patterns which call to mind influences ranging from Ahmad Jamal to Bill Evans. The problem with both discs is a slightly exasperating ingenuity which seems less at the service of the music and more about creating a sensation. Terrasson's writing has a greater showing on the second set, Reach, though it often sounds to be more about motifs and vamps than full-scale structures. Okegwo and Parker perform well, but theirs is a largely subsidiary role, rather than one where a true trio music is called for.

(*) Rendezvous Blue Note 855484-2 Terrasson; Lonnie Plaxico, Kenny Davis (b); Mino Cinelu (perc); Cassandra Wilson (v). 1–4/97.

Anyone expecting something of the order of, say, The Intimate Ella from this collaboration is likely to be sorely disappointed. Perhaps it's inevitable, with two such self-regarding artists as Terrasson and Wilson, that their shared record is simultaneously inflated and introverted, to the virtual exclusion of an audience. There are quite preposterous versions of 'It Might As Well Be Spring' and 'If Ever I Would Leave You' which take melodic and rhythmic displacement to extraordinary lengths and, while they get away with 'Old Devil Moon' and 'Tennessee Waltz', the rest of the record is pretty much a trudge, including Terrasson's own features. Wilson's following may find this a lot more entertaining than we do, possibly, but this isn't a record to convert anybody.

 Alive Blue Note 859651-2 As above 6/97.

Caught live at New York's Iridium Club, the Terrasson trio deliver a typically larger-than-life set. The music has much presence and numerous surprising moments, but again we are unconvinced by Terrasson's musical decisions. His attractive original 'Cumba's Dance' is gradually speeded up to a nonsensical tempo. Tony Williams's 'Sister Cheryl' goes from quiet reflection to great intensity, but with no real logic, and 'Nature Boy' is made merely eccentric. At its best, as on the opening 'Things Ain't What They Used To Be', the trio offer a persuasive revision of their materials. But for a lot of the time Terrasson appears to be such a crowd-pleaser, conscious or otherwise, that the uncommitted will be bewildered by his music.

 What It Is Blue Note 98756 As above, except add Michael Brecker (ts); Jay Collins (f); Adam Rogers (g); Mino Cinelu (perc); Xiomara Laugarts (v). 99.

A departure, as Jacky seems to move off into world music territory. He obviously has the chops to do it, but there's a tasteless exoticism and a surplus of flavour to most of these cuts, and despite the best efforts of Brecker and Rogers, the mix doesn't come out quite right.

(*) Kindred Blue Note 27320 Terrasson; Stefon Harris (vib); Tarus Mateen (b); Terreon Gully, Idris Muhammad (d). 01.

That this is successful at all is down to the excellent Harris and the rhythm section, and it would be interesting to hear the young vibist on his own with them. Terrasson seems to have lost any sense of direction, and while he's capable of turning in the odd disc of this quality, it often nowadays looks more by luck than judgement or more by the grace of his colleagues than through his own prodigal talents.

 A Paris ... Blue Note 27637 Terrasson; Stefano di Battista (sax); Biréli Lagrène (g); Grégoire Maret (hca); Ugonna Ukegwo, Rémi Vignolo (b); Terreon Gully, Leon Parker (d); Minino Gara (perc); other percussion. 2/01.

Terrasson had started his first album with a version of 'I Love Paris' and he reprises it here in an interestingly funky version. It's the obvious peg for what's intended as a musical collage devoted to the city of his upbringing. There are some nice moments, often courtesy of the guests, while Terrasson shifts from acoustic to Fender Rhodes on occasion. Lagrène guests on the title-track and creates a nice atmosphere, while 'Ne Me Quitte Pas' and 'La Vie En Rose' push the atmospherics just a little bit too far. Terrasson's problem is that he has ideas but seems unsure how to develop them, so they are swathed in concept and left sounding simultaneously raw and hyper-sophisticated, an unhappy mixture. Okegwo and Parker from the first records are back briefly, but enough to prompt regret that Jacky didn't pursue that approach longer and with more conviction.

 Mirror Blue Note 366774 Terrasson (p solo). 12/06.

There's much to enjoy here, even a version of 'America The Beautiful', but Terrasson's opening read of 'Caravan' is pointlessly idiosyncratic and only on 'Just A Gigolo', where he alludes to Thelonious Monk's versions, and 'Cherokee' does one sense him thinking through a piece rather than simply embellishing a core idea. It's a lovely-sounding record, though, and Terrasson fans will be well pleased with it.

Also, in brief:

(*) Rendezvous Blue Note 855484-2. 1–4/97.

Perhaps it's inevitable, with two such self-regarding artists as Terrasson and Cassandra Wilson, that their shared record is simultaneously inflated and introverted, to the virtual exclusion of an audience.

(*) Smile Blue Note 42413. 6/02.

Terrasson continues to take on standards with the grace and discretion of a bulldozer. There are lighter moments which suggest that Jacky's future might be with smooth jazz.

Clark Terry (born 1920)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Known as 'Mumbles' after his famously indistinct scat style, the most cited artist in this book (sic) was born in St Louis and managed to hold down a seat in both the Basie and Ellington bands, before disappearing into the studios. He reappeared in the '70s, with expressive flugelhorn added to his armoury.

 Serenade To A Bus Seat Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 066 Terry; Johnny Griffin (ts); Wynton Kelly (p); Paul Chambers (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 4/57.

Though not reducible to his 'influences', Terry hybridizes Dizzy Gillespie's hot, fluent lines and witty abandon with Rex Stewart's distinctive half-valving and Charlie Shavers's high-register lyricism; he is also a master of the mute, an aspect of his work that had a discernible impact on Miles Davis. Miles, though, remained unconvinced by Terry's pioneering development of the flugelhorn as a solo instrument; later in his career he traded four-bar phrases with himself, holding a horn in each hand. An irrepressible showman with a sly sense of humour, Terry often fared better when performing under other leaders. His encounter with the Oscar Peterson Trio in 1964 is often judged his best work, and it's hard to see where and when he played better. The 'early' – he was 37 – Serenade To A Bus Seat combines a tribute to civil-rights activist Rosa Parks with pungent versions of 'Stardust' and Parker's 'Donna Lee'. Terry isn't an altogether convincing bopper, but he's working with a fine, funky band, and they carry him through some slightly unresolved moments.

* Daylight Express Chess GRP 18192 Terry; Paul Gonsalves (ts); Mike Simpson (sax, f); Willie Jones (p); Remo Biondi (g); Jimmy Woode (b); Sam Woodyard (d). 7–8/57.

Slotted into the middle of his contract with Riverside, these insecurely dated sessions from the summer of 1957 yielded two LPs for Argo: Out On A Limb and (under Gonsalves's name) Cookin'. The ten tracks with the saxophonist, which include the previously unissued 'The Girl That I Call Baby', are far and away the most interesting things on the record. Clark sounds rather restrained in his presence, concentrating on a quietly lateral lyricism, whereas on the early session, produced by Daddy-O Daylie, he goes for broke every time, demonstrating an iron lip on 'Trumpet Mouthpiece Blues' and positively ripping up tunes like 'Daylight Express' and 'Taking A Chance On Love'. The songs are all very short, with the exception of the 'Mouthpiece' feature, and the impact is not dissimilar to having an express train shoot past in front of you.

 Duke With A Difference Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 229 Terry; Quentin Jackson, Britt Woodman (tb); Tyree Glenn (tb, vib); Johnny Hodges (as); Paul Gonsalves (ts); Jimmy Jones, Billy Strayhorn (p); Luther Henderson (cel); Jimmy Woode (b); Sam Woodyard (d); Marion Bruce (v). 7 & 9/57.

In 1957 Terry was most of the way through his eight-year stint with Ellington and was bound for a staff job with NBC, the first black man to get his feet under that table. He struck up a successful partnership with trombonist Bob Brookmeyer. It's the slide-brass men he cleaves to on this mildly impertinent tribute to his boss. He undercuts both Jackson and Hodges on a beautifully arranged 'In A Sentimental Mood' (which features Strayhorn on piano and Luther Henderson on celeste) and cheerfully wrecks 'Take The "A" Train' in spite of Gonsalves's best efforts to keep it hurtling along the rails.

* In Orbit Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 302 Terry; Thelonious Monk (p); Sam Jones (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 5/58.

Terry's solitary excursion on Monk's Brilliant Corners, a vivid 'Bemsha Swing', underlined the degree to which Monk himself still drew sustenance from swing. In Orbit is firmly Terry's album. If the material is less stretching, the arrangements are surprisingly demanding, and the interplay between flugelhorn (used throughout) and piano on 'One Foot In The Gutter' and the contrasting 'Moonlight Fiesta' is highly inventive.

 Clark Terry And His Orchestra Featuring Paul Gonsalves Storyville STCD 8322 Terry; Paul Gonsalves (ts); Raymond Fol (p); Jimmy Woode (b); Sam Woodyard (d). 59.

Clark was in the final stages of his association with Duke Ellington when this small group session was made in Europe. The competent Raymond Fol was in Duke's chair and does a very decent job. The set kicks off with the life-on-the-road epic 'Serenade To A Bus Seat', includes a couple of takes of Monk's 'Pannonica' and some jammed material. Gonsalves is an ideal playing partner: his rich harmonic awareness coaxes ever more adventurous ideas out of Terry and their duels on 'Clark Bars' and the second, previously unreleased take of the Monk tune are enormously impressive.

* Color Changes Candid CCD 79009 Terry; Jimmy Knepper (tb); Julius Watkins (frhn); Yusef Lateef (ts, f, eng hn, ob); Seldon Powell (ts, f); Tommy Flanagan, Budd Johnson (p); Joe Benjamin (b); Ed Shaughnessy (d). 11/60.

Terry's best record, and ample evidence that swing was still viable on the cusp of the decade that was to see its demise as anything but an exercise in nostalgia. What is immediately striking is the extraordinary, almost kaleidoscopic variation of tone-colour through the seven tracks. Given Lateef's inventive multi-instrumentalism, Powell's doubling on flute and Terry's use of flugelhorn and his mutes, the permutations on horn voicings seem almost infinite. 'Brother Terry' opens with a deep growl from Terry, a weaving oboe theme by composer Lateef and some beautiful harmony work from Watkins who interacts imaginatively with Knepper on Terry's 'Flutin' And Fluglin''. Again arranged by Lateef, this is a straightforward exploration of the relation between their two horns; Terry has written several 'odes' to his second instrument, and this is perhaps the most inventive. 'Nahstye Blues', written by and featuring Johnson, in for the unsuitably limpid Flanagan, comes close to Horace Silver's funk. Terry is slightly disappointing, but Lateef turns in a majestic solo that turns his own cor anglais introduction completely on its head. The closing 'Chat Qui Pêche' is an all-in, solo-apiece affair that would have sounded wonderful in the Parisian boîte it celebrates and brings a marvellous, expertly recorded record to a powerful finish.

(*) Mellow Moods Prestige PCD 24136 Terry; Lester Robertson (tb); Budd Johnson (ts); George Barrow (bs); Junior Mance (p); Eddie Costa (p, vib); Joe Benjamin, Art Davis (b); Charli Persip, Ed Shaughnessy (d). 7/61, 5/62.

Following on from the last item, this confirms that a purple patch was in progress. A calmer, less frantic record all round, it showed off Terry's abilities as a balladeer as well as a fast action man. Mance is a good accompanist on the earlier session, a quartet with just Terry and rhythm. Inevitably there is slightly less of him on the other date, but this almost-big band generates an impressive body of noise when it gets going, and the settings laid out for him on 'If I Were You' and 'It's Fun To Think' are completely irresistible.

 Live At The Wichita Jazz Festival Vanguard 79335 Terry; Greg Bobulinski, Dave Carley, Paul Cohen, Oscar Gamby, Jimmy Nottingham (t); Chuck Connors, Sonny Costanzo, Janice Robinson, Jimmy Wilkins (tb); Jack Jeffers (tb, btb, tba); Frank Wess, Chris Woods (as); Jimmy Heath, Ron Odrich, Ernie Wilkins (ts); Charles Davis (bs); Arnie Lawrence, Phil Woods (reeds); Duke Jordan, Ronnie Matthews (p); Wilbur Little, Victor Sproles (b); Ed Soph (d, perc). 74.

 Live! At Buddy's Place Universe 60 Similar to above. 74.

A surprisingly modern programme from the revitalized Terry. On the first he includes Kenny Dorham's 'Una Mas' and, even more unexpectedly, Wayne Shorter's complex 'Nefertiti', alongside the easy swing of 'Take The "A" Train' and the delightful 'Mumbles'. The arrangements are by Ernie Wilkins, Phil Woods, Jimmy Heath and Allan Foust, and the last also contributes the long curtain-piece, 'Cold 'Tater Stomp'. The section aren't always entirely together and there is some definite slackness in the horns, but, like many a festival gig, it relies more on atmosphere than on formal accuracy. This was the outfit he called the Big B-a-d Band. It was both of those things.

 Live At Montmartre, 1975 Storyville STCD 8358 Terry; Ernie Wilkins (ts); Horace Parlan (p); Mads Vinding (b); Bjarne Rostvold (d); Richard Boone (v). 6/75.

Wilkins didn't have quite the cachet in this room that Dexter Gordon built up over the years, but in company with Clark he was still quite a draw. It's Boone who does the best of the vocal work on this, though the best of the playing comes on the three long tracks, 'Bye Bye Blackbird', 'Satin Doll' and 'Misty', all of which are exquisite. Clark is playing with great enthusiasm and Parlan opens up possibilities for him that a more literal piano-player would not spot. Vinding is a master at this kind of gig and even if Alex Riel wasn't on hand, Rostvold is a worthy replacement. Clark's best solo is on the opening track, which seems a pity, but he's in fine form.

(*) Intimate Stories Challenge CHR 70050 Terry; Horace Parlan (p); Red Mitchell (b). 7/78.
By contrast, this is a straightforward instrumental set, with some astonishingly good playing from all three members of this drummerless group. Parlan can blow hot and cold, but is superb on 'What Will I Tell My Heart?', 'Blue Moon' and 'Days Of Wine And Roses'. Mitchell resists the temptation to sing, as does Clark except for a bit on 'The Perils Of Pauline', and collectors will enjoy every note of it.

 Swiss Radio Days Jazz Series: Volume 8 – Lucerne 1978 TCB 2082 Terry; Chris Woods (as, f, v); Horace Parlan (p); Victor Sproles (b); Bobby Durham (d). 12/78.
This is a familiar series that maintains a pretty high quality. The band is interesting, with Woods's boppish alto and flute blending well with Terry's warm brass tone and some inspired playing from Parlan, who was going through a purple patch around this time. The tracks are mostly quite short, presumably for scheduling reasons, but the best of them contain some strong soloing from Clark. He couldn't resist singing and there is a strong version of 'I Want A Little Girl' as well as some daft back-and-forth stuff with Woods on 'Lemon Drop'.

CORE COLLECTION

* Memories Of Duke
Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 604 Terry; Joe Pass (g); Jack Wilson (p); Ray Brown (b); Frank Severino (d). 3/80.
Obvious, really, but exquisitely done. The interplay between Pass and Brown touches unsuspected areas of 'Cotton Tail' and 'Sophisticated Lady' and, though Severino might have been dispensed with for at least a couple of the softer tracks, the overall sound is excellent.

(*) Live At The Village Gate Chesky JD 49 Terry; Jimmy Heath (ts, ss); Paquito D'Rivera (as); Don Friedman (p); Marcus McLaurine (b); Kenny Washington (d). 11/90.
Recorded three weeks short of Terry's 70th birthday, this is a good-natured set of uncomplicated jazz. Terry alternates his trumpet ('my driver') and flugelhorn ('putter'), favouring a soft, blurred-edge tone that in no way compromises the clarity of his bop-influenced lines. Jimmy Heath is dry without being sterile and takes a lovely solo on 'Pint Of Bitter', a dedication to the late Tubby Hayes. D'Rivera shows up for only a single track, the appealing 'Silly Samba'. The recording is impeccably handled, with a light sound that still captures the live ambience; on 'Keep, Keep, Keep On Keepin' On', Terry has the entire audience singing along, and so he can't resist throwing them 'Hey Mr Mumbles' at the end. 'If Sylvester Stallone can make Rocky 3, 4, 5, I don't see why I can't make "Mumbles 8, 9 and 10."'

(*) The Hymn Candid CCR 79770 Terry; Jesse Davis (as); Don Friedman (p); Marcus McLaurine (b); Sylvia Cuenca (d). 93.
A pretty archetypal set from Clark, recorded at Birdland. He kicks off with the fast swing of the title-tune, throws in 'Ow!', some trumpet and flugelhorn juggling on 'On The Trail', and even finds time to do some serious harm to the vocal of 'On The Sunny Side Of The Street'. Young Davis plays well in his boppish manner and the rhythm section, all of whom were to get to know Terry pretty well, do their jobs with aplomb. A fine record of a great entertainer still in his prime.

 Shades Of Blues Challenge CHR 70007 Terry; Al Grey (tb); Charles Fox (p); Marcus McLaurine (b). 5/94.
Apart from the closing trilogy ('Parker's Mood', McShann's 'Hottie's Blues' and Handy's 'St Louis Blues') and a mostly polite early inclusion of Al Grey's 'Salty Mama', all of the themes are original blues, simple and unpretentious but played with maximum variation. Clark's vocal on 'Whispering The Blues' is very much in the 'Mumbles' tradition, light, buoyant and deceptively clever. The interplay with Grey is more challenging than might at first appear, with every conceivable variation on conventional blues changes.

 Top And Bottom Brass Chiaroscuro 347 Terry; Don Butterfield (tba); David Glasser (as); Red Holloway (ts); Jimmy Jones, Willie Pickens (p); Sam Jones, Marcus McLaurine (b); Sylvia Cuenca, Art Taylor (d). 11/95.
Red Holloway can't spend much time ashore these days, having tapped into the jazz cruise sector. In a curious way, though, the key element here is the 'bottom brass' of tubist Don Butterfield. Clark's chocolatey flugelhorn is the main voice, and his quarter-hour ballad medley will be a constant source of delight. Recorded on the SS Norway, the music seems brisk and oxygenated – or ozoned – and Terry is in cracking form.

(*) One On One Chesky 198 Terry; Monty Alexander, Geri Allen, Kenny Barron, Tommy Flanagan, Don Friedman, Eric Lewis, Marian McPartland, Junior Mance (p). 99.
Something of the range and sophistication of this lovely album of trumpet and piano duets can be gauged from the roster of accompanists. A word of advice: buy it, stick it in the machine and sit back without the notes. Second time around, you can start to work out who's at the piano. Given that at least two of Clark's partners are – seemingly deliberately – playing out of character, it won't be as easy as you might think. And that's all the help you're getting.

 Live On QE2 Chiaroscuro 365 Terry; David Glasser (as); Don Friedman (p); Shirley Horn (p, v); Marcus McLaurine (b); Sylvia Cuenca (d); Etta Jones, Vanessa Rubin, Carrie Smith (v). 5/00.
 Herr Ober Nagel Heyer 68 As above, except omit Horn, Jones, Rubin, Smith. 99.
The cruise-ship circuit has become a happy hunting-ground for musicians of Clark's generation and this sounds like a very relaxed and easy set on the big liner. The guest singers will be the main draw for many purchasers and Shirley Horn's spot on 'But Beautiful' is a definite high point. Etta Jones makes a lovely job of 'East Of The Sun, West Of The Moon' and 'Etta's Fine And Mellow Blues'. Clark himself eases solos out of his flugelhorn as if he were drawing taffy. Parker's 'The Hymn' is an unexpected inclusion and very effective it is too.

Herr Ober catches the old fellow back in Germany with an appearance at the Birdland Neuburg. The group is very strong and responsive to the leader. Clark scats like a youngster on two takes of the title-track, but the main attractions are versions of 'Jumpin' At The Woodside' and 'Taking A Chance On Love'. Well up to scratch.

(*) Friendship Eighty Eights/Columbia 51086 2 Terry; Don Friedman (p); Marcus McLaurine (b); Max Roach (d). 3/02.
A meeting between two old masters. Terry and Roach duet on several tracks, including the startling opening 'Statements' which sounds like an angelic summons. There are also a number of group tracks, on which Friedman is featured fairly prominently, possibly to cover for Clark's shaky articulation; he doesn't quite pull off the opening theme of 'Let's Cool One' and some of his notes aren't absolutely hit on the head. 'Brushes And Brass' is another duo track, which touches on 'Salt Peanuts', 'Singing In The Rain' and even hints at Miles's 'Jean-Pierre'. 'Simple Waltz' is delightful and could only be by those two great men, with Roach splintering melodies from his cymbals, Clark finding a rich, warm sound for a simple but lovely line. Producer Yasohachi '88' Ito gets a nice, intimate sound for the duos, though the piano seems up very high on the group tracks.

(*) George Gershwin's Porgy And Bess A440 Music 9002 Terry; Chicago Jazz Orchestra; Jeff Lindberg (arr). 10/03, 2/04.
Not since Miles Davis and Gil Evans created their classic version had a jazz musician attempted such a comprehensive interpretation of Gershwin's opera. Terry's flugelhorn sound gives the music a chastened warmth and elegance that Miles would probably not have understood, let alone attempted. These are the musings of a much older man, who clearly knows the canonical version(s) very well indeed, but who brings his own vast body of experience to bear. He sings 'Here Comes De Honey Man' with easy humour, but his muted solo on 'Summertime' has to be considered the highlight of a remarkable set. Lindberg's arrangements are straightforward enough, more conventional than Evans's and thus closer to the original, but with unmistakable imagination and flair. At 83 – he celebrated his birthday while the record was in production – Terry still sounds at the top of his powers.

 Live At Marihan's Chiaroscuro 212 Terry; Young Titans Of Jazz. 5/04.
Clark explains the concept on the interview tracks, but this is a bold selection of material, including 'The Serpent's Tooth', an epic 'Bella Blue' and for once no 'Mumbles'. The band is excellent, justifying Terry's confidence in the contemporary scene. It's not much more than an elder statesman showcase, but impeccably put together and very nicely played.

Also, in brief:

 Top And Bottom Brass Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 764. 2/59.
The title is self-explanatory – trumpet with tuba and two basses – the results patchy.

 Spanish Rice Impulse! 143602. 7/66.
Co-led by Chico O'Farrill and inevitably slanting towards Latin tunes this is a jolly set, enlivened by Clark's full-voiced trumpet and flugelhorn.

 Yes, The Blues Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 856. 1/81.
Dominated byEddie Vinson's (as) raw blues line this isn't the best place to catch up with Terry, but it is a hugely entertaining album.

 The Clark Terry Spacemen Chiaroscuro 309. 2/89.
Often with Chiaroscuro, the closing 'Jazzspeak' interview is almost the most interesting aspect of the set. Here, the music matches up to the anecdote pretty well.

(*) Squeeze Me Chiaroscuro CRD 309. N.D.
Some nice ensemble arrangements, but the sound strips the solos of individuality.

 Express Reference 73. 12/95.
Amiable big-band swing with a few modern touches from Terry and the well-drilled DePaul University Big Band.

 The Good Things In Life Mons 874437. 2/96.
Recorded live in Switzerland with a local small group, and a great deal of fun.

 Jazz Matinee /  Ritter Der Ronneburg, 1998 Hanssler Classics 93036 / Mons 874335. 5 & 9/98.
In mellow form in Germany (Stuttgart and a castle) with the SWR Big Band and Paul Ruhn Orchestra respectively.

 Uh Oh! Nagel Heyer 2003. 6/99.
This is strictly a Dave Glasser (as) record with Terry and Barry Harris (p) as star turns, so the line-up varies from track to track. Some fine stuff, but Clark sounds tired.

 Chilled & Remixed Vivicom 71045. 9/04.
There's been a frosting on the moustache for a while, but here's Clark at his coolest. Don't be surprised if Eminem does 'Mumbles' next and Clark takes a stab at 'Stan'.

TEST

GROUP

New York improvisers playing hardcore free jazz.

() TEST / () TEST / (*) Live / TEST Ecstatic Peace 84 / AUM Fidelity AUM012 / Eremite MTE 021 Daniel Carter (as, ts, f, t); Sabir Mateen (cl, as, ts, f); Matthew Heyner (b); Tom Bruno (d). 8/98; 8/98; 11/98.
This quartet seem ready to spearhead a back-to-the-roots exercise in New York free jazz, playing long and loud (though not unlyrical) sets of unfettered improvisation. Tom Bruno set the project in motion. The notes to the AUM Fidelity release (the titles are slightly confusing and it seems that the records were released out of chronological sequence) suggest that TEST can be heard at the corner of 57th and 5th, and they've also been known to do subway gigs. This is classic street music: tough, sweepingly passionate, but informed and articulate playing. The Eremite disc has one long set from Baltimore and a brief postscript from a Boston show which is a riotous coda to the disc. Rough, live sound, but the spirit is unquenchable and there is some feelingful and exciting interplay among the four players, each of whom suggests that he has a good grasp of long form in improvising. TEST isn't much less intense, although there's a serene interlude called 'Alen's Flight Preparation' where the horn-players pick up flutes and play a whispery dialogue. Carter, who occasionally turns to the trumpet but is more often on sax, and Mateen are both driven but not without their melodious side, and it sweetens or at least lightens what might otherwise have been an overdose of grim.

Henri Texier (born 1945)

DOUBLE BASS

Influenced by the great Wilbur Ware, he has a strong, full sound that nearly always sounds better at lower tempos, when its sheer weight and fullness become more evident. Like Charlie Haden, though, he can also play nimbly and melodically.

 La Companera Label Bleu LBLC 6525 Texier; Michael Marre (t, flhn); Louis Sclavis (cl, ts); Philippe Deschepper (g); Jacques Mahieux (d). 2/83.

 Paris-Batignolles Label Bleu LBLC 6506 As above, except omit Marre; add Joe Lovano (ts). 5/86.

The earlier of these records was noted as much for Sclavis's contribution as for the leader's. In 1983, he was not much known outside France, but there were already mutterings about his ingenious and fiery, folk-based improvisations. Interesting as he was at this stage, it's only when Marre makes up the complement that the record really catches light. Paris-Batignolles is higher-octane stuff from the start. Lovano's remarkably traditional sound melds perfectly with this group, both on the faster dance tunes and on the brooding laments. Texier isn't caught so well or so fully on this live recording from the Amiens Jazz Festival, but his presence is consistently evident in the reactions of fellow players, who always seem easier and open-hearted in his presence.

* Izlaz Label Bleu LBLC 6515 Texier; Joe Lovano (ts, ss, cl, f, perc); Steve Swallow (b); Aldo Romano (d). 5/88.

 Colonel Skopje Label Bleu LBLC 6523 As above, except add John Abercrombie (g). 7/88.

Texier's Transatlantik Quartet allowed a promising relationship with Lovano to cement and brought in the rock-tinged, free-swinging bass guitar of Steve Swallow. The sound is wonderfully open and unstuffy. 'Ups And Downs' is superb, though it bears no relation to Bud Powell's composition of that name, and the only quibble about this set is that the sound-mix is awry, pushing up bass and drums too far and making Lovano sound as if he's out back somewhere, waiting to get in. Colonel Skopje is a ragbag, too various to hang together convincingly, though Abercrombie's presence guarantees some interesting moments, as always.

(*) Respect Label Bleu LBLC 6612 Texier; Bob Brookmeyer (vtb); Lee Konitz (as); Steve Swallow (b); Paul Motian (d). 4–5/97.

Superior, beautifully crafted jazz from a dream line-up. The interplay between Texier and Motian is immaculate, particularly on the drummer's own 'In The Year Of The Dragon', and the blend of horns has a dreamy precision. Konitz is well settled into a purple patch, spinning off quicksilver lines on his own 'Thingin'', which manages to sound as if it was made up on the spot. Brookmeyer's cool, slightly reserved approach probably won't appeal to everybody, but it's combined with a flawless sense of structure and a certain wry humour. Certainly the pairing of voices on 'Lee And Me' is as tongue in cheek as 'Idyll', Bob's other composition, is sincere and unalloyed. Texier himself has seldom been heard to greater advantage. The acoustic in Amiens's Studio Gil Evans is both intimate and capacious, and the bass, which never calls for much in the way of electronic boosting, is as resonant and present as if he were standing between your speaker cabinets, playing live.

 Mosaic Man /  Strings' Spirit Label Bleu LBLC 6608 / 6648/9 2CD Texier; Glenn Ferris (tb); Sébastien Texier (as, cl); Bojan Zulfikarpašić (p); Tony Rabeson (d). 9/98; 03.

This is the Azur Quintet, nowadays very much centred on Texier and his son, Sébastien. The bass still remains the axis on which the music turns, freeing up Bojan Z's role considerably and allowing the two horns to range quite widely. Apart from 'Mosaic Man' itself and 'Cap D'Espérance', the songs on the first disc are mainly quite short. As ever, Henri doesn't indulge himself in long solo features, preferring to register a presence with rich, double-stopped chords and fleet, muscular melody-lines. The second record highlights Ferris more and confirms his standing as one of the most inventive trombone-players around, a worthy heir to the late Albert Mangelsdorff, though Texier later replaced him with a less adventurous spirit on the slide horn.

 (V)ivre Label Bleu LBLC 6668 Texier; Guergoi Kornazov (tb); Sébastien Texier (as); François Corneloup (sax); Manu Codjia (g); Christophe Marguet (d). 05.

A new group for Texier, which he calls the Strada Sextet, and apparently a fresh attempt to rough up the sound and push off in new directions. The title is a pun on 'to live' and 'drunk' and there's an abandon in the play which is new and heady. Much of the material is written by the newcomers, with Codjia's 'Gandhi' particularly fine. Sébastien continues as the link with earlier groups and continues to evolve as a soloist.

 Water Alert Label Bleu LBLC 6698 As above. 6/07.

This has somewhat dark and alienating qualities, that begin with the cover and stretch into 'Alerte De L'Eau' and some of the other themes. For the first time, Texier has formed a group that completely reflects his musical vision and delivers a performance that is as powerful as the ideas fuelling it. Sébastien Texier and Corneloup blend seamlessly with the brass-player in the front line, and Codjia fills in the harmonies in a deliciously ambiguous way. A wonderful contemporary record.

Also, in brief:

 Mad Nomad(s) Label Bleu LBLC 6568. 95.

Ambitious and idiosyncratic group music.

 Remparts D'Argile /  Holy Lola Label Bleu LBLC 6638 / 6678. 00; 04.

Two film-associated projects, the first with a trio (Sébastien and Rabeson), the second with a larger group featuring Louis Sclavis (cl).

Toots Thielemans (born 1922)

HARMONICA, GUITAR, WHISTLING

If you were a young Belgian jazz fanatic in the early '40s, you took up guitar in emulation of Django. Thielemans recorded 'Bluesette' in 1961, after working with George Shearing; his first hit had him playing guitar and whistling, but he subsequently became the pre-eminent harmonica-player in jazz.

(*) Man Bites Harmonica Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1738 Thielemans; Pepper Adams (bs); Kenny Drew (p); Wilbur Ware (b); Art Taylor (d). 12/57.

 Blues Pour Flirter Emarcy 549403-2 Thielemans; Georges Arvanitas (p); Roland Lobligeois (b); Philippe Combelle (d). 61.

Thielemans frequently finds himself in the awkward and unsatisfactory position of coming first in a category of one or consigned to 'miscellaneous instruments'. Though ubiquitous in the blues, the harmonica has made remarkably little impact in jazz, and there are no recognized critical standards for his extraordinary facility as a whistler. Thielemans's pop and movie work has tended further to downgrade his very considerable jazz credentials. Surprisingly, to those who know him primarily as a performer of moodily atmospheric soundtrack pieces (Midnight Cowboy pre-eminently) or as composer of the undemanding 'Bluesette', his roots are in bebop and in the kind of harmonically liberated improvisation associated with John Coltrane. That's perhaps most obvious in the dark, Chicago-influenced sound of Man Bites Harmonica, which includes a wonderful 'Don't Blame Me'. The rather dark-toned group is not the setting one expects for him, but it is wonderfully effective. The 1961 Paris session is inevitably sunnier, and though the tracks feel a little undeveloped, the playing of both Thielemans and Arvanitas is brisk and beguiling.

 Aquarela Do Brasil Verve 830391-2 Thielemans; Elis Regina (v); Orquesta Elis Cinco. 69.
This belongs as much to the singer as to Toots, but for lovers of Latin jazz it's a jewel of an album, lush and over-produced, but full of enchanting moments, from the inevitable Jobim ('Wave') to Toots's little posy, 'Five For Elis'. There is a light and joyous touch to everything the two principals attempt and it's almost a pity that this couldn't have been recorded with just a couple of guitarists and a melodic bass-player. 'Honeysuckle Rose' is robbed of much of its intimacy by the big sound.

(*) Images Candid CCD 71007 Thielemans; JoAnne Brackeen (p); Cecil McBee (b); Freddie Waits (d). 9/74.
(*) Live Polydor 831694 Thielemans; Wim Overgaauw, Joop Scholten (g); Rob Franken (electric p); Victor Kaihatu, Rob Langereis (b); Bruno Castellucci (d); Cees Schrama (perc). 4/75.
 Live In The Netherlands Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 930 Thielemans; Joe Pass (g); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b). 7/80.
These live sets appear to confirm a long-standing belief that Thielemans is not always a successful studio performer but needs the resistance and charge of a live audience. Images is one of the best records he ever made. The group is stunningly inventive and the version of 'Giant Steps' is all the proof anyone will ever need of the chromatic harmonica's place in the jazz canon. Other compositions are by Toots and pianist Brackeen, who is in very good form. The Netherlands trio is a record that grows in stature with every hearing, and Toots's bop-tinged solos on 'Thriving On A Riff' and 'Someday My Prince Will Come' are a revelation. NHØP and Pass are both in splendid form and the interplay of melodic lines creates entirely new contrafacts out of familiar materials. Ellington's 'The Mooche' is a guitar solo, brief but evocative and with a steely edge.

The second of the group stands up less well as the years go by, largely because the accompanying musicians are so sturdy and unresponsive. Toots delivers his usual unflappable set, but the backgrounds could certainly be more exuberant.

* Only Trust Your Heart Concord CCD 4355 Thielemans; Fred Hersch (p); Marc Johnson, Harvie Swartz (b); Joey Baron (d). 4–5/88.
The later '80s marked a considerable revival of Thielemans's jazz playing. A studio jazz recording led by Thielemans was by then a rarity, but Only Trust Your Heart is his masterpiece. Restricted on this occasion to harmonica, the playing is superb. The choice of material (and Fred Hersch's arranging) is impeccable and challenging and the production first-rate, with Thielemans front and centre and the band spread out very evenly behind him. The set kicks off with a marvellous reading of Wayne Shorter's 'Speak No Evil', and includes 'Sophisticated Lady', Monk's 'Little Rootie Tootie' and Thad Jones's 'Three And One', transposed unfamiliarly high to bring it within the range of Thielemans's instrument, which takes on the slightly yodelling timbre of soprano saxophone. Throughout, Thielemans's solo development merits the closest attention, particularly on the original 'Sarabande', the better of two duets with Hersch. The pianist's other composition, 'Rain Waltz', deserves wider distribution. Allegedly nearly all first takes, each of the dozen tracks represents Thielemans's undervalued art at its finest.

 Concerto For Harmonica TCB 94802 Thielemans; Matthie Michel (t, flhn); Michel Weber (as, cl); Yvan Ischer (ss, ts); Christian Gavillet (bs, bcl); Fred Hersch (p); Antoine Ogay (b); Big Band de Lausanne. 12/95.
Christian Gavillet's 'concerto' for Toots is really just a suite of thematically connected melodies with very little structural logic beyond that. That, though, is sufficient to conjure one of the Belgian's finest performances, though he saves the really good stuff for a couple of encores with just Hersch in accompaniment. As ever, the sound of the harmonica floats away above the well-drilled Swiss band, which is under the direction of Charles Papasoff. Other featured soloists include Gavillet himself, a fine baritonist in a pre-Mulligan style, and trumpeter Michel, who has a soft, almost liquid tone. A delightful evening's music.

(*) Toots Thielemans & Kenny Werner Uptown/Universal 014722 Thielemans; Kenny Werner (p, syn). 6/01.
There are some wonderful performances on this live (but exceedingly clean) recording. Toots tackles modern jazz classics like Hancock's 'Dolphin Dance' and Bill Evans's 'Time Remembered' and 'Very Early' with the greatest aplomb, but also adds something unique to Chaplin's 'Smile' and to medleys saluting Sinatra, Michel Legrand and the movies of Walt Disney. Werner alternates piano and synthesizer, but rarely allows his electronic keyboard to crowd the sound, leaving plenty of space for Toots's plangent sound to swell and settle. Astonishingly for a live recording, there are no audience interruptions and no detectable edits or dubs. A very fine record indeed, and testimony to a very sympathetic partnership.

Also, in brief:

 The Silver Collection: Toots Thielemans /  Jazz Masters 59 /  Hard To Say Goodbye Polydor 825086 / Verve 535271-2 / Emarcy 560384-2. 74–75; 53–89; N.D.
Compilations almost outnumber original albums in Universal's Thielemans catalogue. All three of these are enjoyable: Jazz Masters is mostly early stuff, Silver Collection is from the '70s, and the third covers later music and guest star roles.

(*) The Live Takes Just Jazz NIC 90016. 3/94–10/98.
A gentle, perhaps rather too laid-back compilation of concert performances.

 One More For The Road Verve 661402. 06.
A procession of guest stars and cross-over names. Dull.

Ed Thigpen (born 1930)

DRUMS

The label was named in honour of Woods, and Paolo Piangiarelli has frequently recorded his hero. Discs drift in and out of circulation. There are earlier and more recent examples, but these were all recorded in May 2000, an example of Piangiarelli's devotion. Follow the stars.

 Easy Flight Stunt STUCD 19912 Thigpen; Johnny O'Neal (p); Tony Purrone (g); Marlene Rosenberg (b). 11/89–1/90.
(*) It's Entertainment! Stunt STUCD 19816 Thigpen; Carsten Dahl (p); Jesper Bodilsen (b). 5/98.
(*) The Element Of Swing Stunt STUCD 01222 As above, except add Joe Lovano (ts, bcl). 10/01.
 # 1 Stunt STUCD 04012 Thigpen; Jens Winther (t); Tomas Franck (ts); Kasper Villaume (p); Jesper Bodilsen (b). 8/03.
A master of crisp, swinging drumming, Thigpen dominates these sessions but in a generous way: he plays for the music, and while the drumming is a masterclass in itself, the results are always enjoyable. The first set was made in Chicago and is more routine, although the quartet plays well; but It's Entertainment! is a cracking live set from the Copenhagen Jazzhouse. Dahl and Bodilsen introduce telling variations on standards such as 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise', but it's Thigpen – using brushes much of the time – who really puts the heart and power into the music. His long improvised journey on 'Cosmic Voyage' is a lot more entertaining than many more serious free-form episodes.

The gig with Lovano came at the end of a brief tour. The saxophonist is in prime form, imperious on his own 'Emperor Jones' and traditionally inclined on 'Chelsea Bridge', though again the drummer keeps scene-stealing without overdoing it: follow his impeccable brushwork on 'Emperor Jones', as one example.

Ed debuts his Scantet on # 1, with the experienced voices of Franck and Winther lining up alongside the younger Bodilsen and Villaume. It's a typically taut, upfront, swinging set of boppish material, with five originals by Thigpen and the likes of 'Reets And I' and Duke Pearson's 'Is That So' filling in the rest. Quality jazz entertainment.

Jesper Thilo (born 1941)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, CLARINET, TRUMPET

From Copenhagen, he was working in the Danish mainstream from the early '60s and is a big-sounding player, almost equally influenced by swing and bop styles.

(*) Jesper Thilo Quintet Featuring Hank Jones Storyville STCD 4178 Thilo; Hank Jones (p); Doug Raney (g); Hugo Rasmussen (b); Svend-Erik Nørregaard (d). 3/91.

 Jesper Thilo And The American Stars Volumes 1 & 2 Storyville 101 8391 Thilo; Clark Terry, Harry Edison (t); Al Grey (tb); Kenny Drew, Ole Koch Hansen, Sir Roland Hanna (p); Ole Ousen (g); Jesper Lundgaard (b); Billy Hart, Svend-Erik Nørregaard, Aage Tanggaard, Alex Riel (d). 80–87.

 Strike Up The Band Sackville SAKCD 2050 Thilo; Bob Barnard (c); Henri Chaix (p); Stephan Kurmann (b); Romano Cavicchiolo (d). 8/98.

 Snap Your Fingers Music Mecca 4005 Thilo; Søren Kristiansen (p); Thomas Ovesen (b); Mikkel Find (d). 10/02.

Thilo plays the kind of straight-ahead swing that the Scandinavians have now virtually patented: a tenorman in the noble tradition, a plain speaker and a reliable journeyman who at his best swings with enormous power.

The catalogue isn't in particularly good order but Storyville have put together two compilations which take in meetings with various US guests, although neither the Terry nor Edison sessions showed Jesper at his absolute best. The meeting with Hank Jones benefits hugely from Hank's benign but slyly alert presence, whether prodding a soloist or taking a typically suave improvisation of his own. Raney, too, plays very well.

The quintet date on Sackville shows Thilo off very well indeed, and marks him down as a good ballad player as well as a barn-burner. It's a fascinating international line-up, caught live in Baden, though you'd have to see the personnel listing to spot that it wasn't an American band.

The Music Mecca set puts the senior man in with a group of young(er) Turks who're intent on giving him a workout. As before, though, the title doesn't entirely reflect a set that's nicely balanced between burners and more modulated ballad forms. Thilo's tone is still big and muscly and on the closing 'Eternal Triangle' he gives the Sonny Stitt line a thorough shake. An impressive reminder that he's still top Scandinavian dog for this repertoire.

Gary Thomas (born 1961)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, FLUTE

Thomas was one of the most assertive and acerbic of the M-Base musicians, with a punchy, insistent tone that is most forceful on his own records but which has also contributed materially to records by other leaders, including Uri Caine, Peter Herborn and John McLaughlin.

 By Any Means Necessary Winter & Winter 919031 Thomas; Greg Osby (as); Tim Murphy, Geri Allen (ky); Mick Goodrick, John Scofield (g); Anthony Cox (b); Dennis Chambers (d); Nana Vasconcelos (perc). 5/89.

 While The Gate Is Open Winter & Winter 919037 Thomas; Greg Osby (as); Kevin Eubanks (g); Anthony Cox, Dave Holland (b); Dennis Chambers (d). 11/89.

 Found On Sordid Streets /  Pariah's Pariah Winter & Winter 910 002 / 910 033 Thomas; George Colligan (org); Paul Bollenback (g); Howard Curtis (d); Steve Moss (perc); Pork Chop, No Name (v on Found only). 2/96; 99.

Thomas's first record for the newly founded W&W label wisely attempted to do no more than consolidate the sound he had been trading in for years at JMT. As if to prove it, the early JMTs have been reissued and the first of them here is the archetypal M-Base record, rhythmically rugged, harmonically subtler than it sounds at first, ultimately less alienated from the post-bop mainstream than you might think. The surprise on While The Gate Is Open was that Thomas, seemingly so resistant to anything not as fresh as today's papers, was still willing to work with standards. His readings of 'Epistrophy' and 'Star Eyes' are wonderfully engaging. The work has matured considerably by the time of Found On Sordid Streets. Thomas reworks 'Exile's Gate' (see below, 'in brief') and includes Terri Lyne Carrington's 'The Eternal Present', a tune that sounds as if it's been around longer than any of these guys. The follow-up album is no less tough and uncompromising, but without the raps Thomas's tenor comes through stronger than ever, and on 'Zero Tolerance' and 'Vanishing Time', which represent the real climax of the album, he is playing at his peak, phrasing fast and with real control and definition.

Also, in brief:

 The Kold Kage Winter & Winter 919049. 3–6/91.

Its excitements are fleeting. In retrospect, this seems a polystylistic shambles.

 Till We Have Faces Winter & Winter 919057. 5/92.

As dated as the rest of Thomas's foreshortened catalogue.

(*) Exile's Gate Winter & Winter 919066. 5/93.

Reissued in 2005 to a gale of indifference. A period piece.

 Overkill Winter & Winter 919079. 5/94, 8/95.

A so-so package that sounds betwixt and between but not usefully 'transitional'.

René Thomas (1927–75)

GUITAR

The Belgian made his mark on the Parisian scene of the '50s, before stints with Stan Getz and Eddie Louiss brought him wider exposure.

 The Real Cat Emarcy 549400-2 Thomas; Serge Monville (ts); René Urtreger, Roland Ronchaud (p); Benoît Quersin, Jean-Marie Ingrand (b); Jean-Louis Viale, José Bourguignon (d). 54–56.
 Guitaristic Fivefour 22 As above, except add Buzz Gardner (t); Christian Kellens (tb); Jean-Louis Chautemps, Andrea Ross (ts); Jacques David (d). 4/54–3/56
(*) Guitar Groove Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1725 Thomas; J. R. Monterose (ts); Hod O'Brien (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 9/60.
 Meeting Mr Thomas Emarcy 549812-2 Thomas; Jacques Pelzer (as, f); Lou Bennett (org); Gilbert Rovère, Benoît Quersin (b); Charles Bellonzi (d). 3/63.

A fatal heart attack cut short a career that was already rather overshadowed by a more colourful and charismatic guitarist, Thomas's Belgian compatriot Django Reinhardt. Though Django must have been the unavoidable comparison when Thomas moved to North America, there really wasn't very much in common between them and Thomas's modernist credentials allowed him to fit into the American scene more comfortably than his illustrious predecessor. Guitar Groove is a fine product of his American sojourn and is one of the high-points of a poorly documented career. The original, 'Spontaneous Effort', combines firm, boppish melody with an easy swing. Monterose is too raw-throated for 'Milestones' but slots into 'Ruby My Dear' with impressive ease. He sits out for 'Like Someone In Love' and O'Brien joins him on the bench for the duration of 'How Long Has This Been Going On?'. The sound is better balanced on these tracks than when the horn is present, but overall it sounds very good indeed.

The two Emarcy reissues and the 2007 Fivefour reissue are a welcome showing of material recorded either side of Thomas's American sojourn. It's all very cool and very light, a restraint which carries over into the 1963 sessions as much as in the briefer, just slightly less relaxed 1954–6 quintets. Lou Bennett adds a little bluesy heat to the later dates, but it's very little, and the point of interest on both discs is how cleanly Thomas appropriated the nutrients in the Farlow–Raney axis – no garlicky grooves, just frothily enjoyable bopping.

Barbara Thompson (born 1944)

SAXOPHONES, FLUTES, SOPRANINO RECORDER, KEYBOARDS

Joined Neil Ardley's orchestra in 1964 and met her future husband, Jon Hiseman, who has co-led Paraphernalia for three decades.

 Shifting Sands Intuition INT 3174 2 Thompson; Pete Lemer (ky); Billy Thompson (vn); Paul Westwood (b); Jon Hiseman (d). 98.
 Thompson's Tangos Intuition 3290-2 As above, except omit Westwood; add Dave Ball (b). 00.
 In The Eye Of A Storm / (*) Chapter And Verse: The Best Of Paraphernalia 1982–2001 Intuition 3338-2 / 33902 As various discs above. 83–03; 82–01.

Thompson encompasses straight-ahead jazz, rock and fusion, and regularly introduces interesting harmonic effects to her powerful solos by playing two instruments simultaneously. Shifting Sands is very much a family affair, with Billy Thompson joining the line-up and acquitting himself extremely well. As often, Barbara has assembled a loosely themed programme, concerned with change and decay, illusion and continuity. The last of these, at least, is the key to her work, a steady and clear-sighted application to creative music.

Thompson's Tangos starts with four pieces in the mode suggested by the title, and proceeds through a pensive reading of 'Naima' and some further originals which depend significantly on Lemer's keyboard colourings. It's an entertaining set, if not quite one of her best, and it's sad to report that illness has lately interrupted her career, although she is once again working more frequently. In The Eye Of The Storm is a compilation from some 20 years of work, but despite the title it's based around Barbara's ballad playing, and some excellent tracks would have been more interestingly counterpointed by some of her brisker material.

Chapter And Verse solves the problem of which one to get if one only wants a single Paraphernalia record. As always, there are quibbles over one or two choices and omissions, but it's a very playable compilation.

Lucky Thompson (1924–2005)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

He has always seemed an outsider, drawing on the swing era, involved in bebop, but also prefiguring much of what went on in the '60s and '70s, after his playing career was effectively over. He was an early reviver of the soprano horn

* Accent On Tenor Sax Fresh Sound FSCD 2001 Thompson; Ernie Royal (t); Jimmy Hamilton (cl); Earl Knight, Billy Taylor (p); Sidney Gross (g); Oscar Pettiford (b); Osie Johnson (d). 54.
 Lucky Thompson With Gerard Pochonet & His Quartet Fresh Sound FSR CD 86 Thompson; Martial Solal (p); Michel Hausser (vib); Jean-Pierre Sasson (g); Pierre Michelot, Benoît Quersin (b); Gerard Pochonet (d). 3/56.

Thompson's disappearance from the jazz scene in the '70s was only the latest (but apparently the last) of a strangely contoured career. A highly philosophical, almost mystical man, he eventually turned his back on the music business. Though his upbringing was harsh – he had to raise siblings by himself and legend has him practising saxophone fingerings on a broom handle before he had a proper horn – the beginning of the career was garlanded with promise. He recorded with Charlie Parker just after the war (a rare example of that chimera, the bebop tenor-player), but then returned to Detroit, where he'd grown up, and became involved in R&B and publishing. Like Don Byas, whom he most resembles in tone and in his development of solos, he has a slightly oblique and uneasy stance on bop, cleaving to a kind of accelerated swing idiom with a distinctive 'snap' to his softly enunciated phrases and an advanced harmonic language that occasionally moves into areas of surprising freedom.

The very earliest work is covered on the compilations listed below and looked at in detail in our last edition. Thompson's best performances as leader are always when he has first-rate partners to bounce off, as with Accent On Tenor Sax. His rich, driving style coaxes some astonishing playing out of Jimmy Hamilton, who contributes 'Mr E-Z' to the session. Thompson's tenor has a smooth, clarinet quality on 'Where Or When', gliding over the changes with total ease. One curious characteristic is Thompson's preference for soloing at least a couple of choruses without harmonic accompaniment, a device that is most obvious on Lord, Lord (see below) but is common to all the records to some degree. Though very far back in the mix, Pettiford and Johnson play superbly, and the bassist checks in with one fine composition, 'Kamman's A'Comin''. For the last four tracks, including a superb 'Mood Indigo', Ernie Royal comes in on trumpet and Earl Knight replaces the guesting Billy Taylor.

(*) Meets Oscar Pettiford Fresh Sound FSRCD424 Thompson; Jimmy Cleveland (tb); Don Abney, Hank Jones (p); Skeeter Best (g); Oscar Pettiford (b); Osie Johnson (d). 1 & 12/56.
Lucky liked these sessions and felt he had assembled the group he wanted. The fiery bassist provided a harmonic and rhythmic foundation on which Thompson and whatever other player was on hand – Jones or Abney on the quartets, Best on the drummerless trio – could build something. Two sessions from January, one with just Best and Pettiford which includes the peerless 'Tricotism' and a fine 'Body And Soul', the other with Cleveland, though ironically the date hits its peak when the trombonist sits out for 'A Lady's Vanity', an extraordinary Thompson solo that's among the best evidence for his neglected greatness. Compare it with his booting statement on 'Old Reliable'. Here's a musician pursuing his own distinctive language.

(*) Modern Jazz Group Emarcy 159823 Thompson; Fred Gerrard, Roger Guérin (t); Benny Vasseur (tb); Jean-Louis Chautemps (ts); William Boucaya (bs); Henri Renaud (p); Benoît Quersin (b); Christian Garros (d). N.D.
(*) Lucky In Paris High Note HJCD 7045 Thompson; Martial Solal (p); Michel Hausser (vib); Gilbert Gassin (b); Gérard Pochonet (d); Gana M'Bow (perc). 1/59.
Originally released in France and France only on Symphonium Records, Lucky In Paris catches Lucky in a transitional phase, sounding broody and reflective but also revelling in the company of Martial Solal and Gérard Pochonet, and still playing his soprano in the limber, expressive way that sets his approach to the instrument apart from what would become the orthodoxy of John Coltrane's style. Thompson sounds much closer to Johnny Hodges and, in places, to Lester Young, as in his wonderfully lyrical interpretation of 'We'll Be Together Again'. This was, strictly speaking, Pochonet's group and he commands his fair share and more of the spotlight, even on a short track like 'Tea For Two'. The interplay of piano and saxophone on 'Pennies From Heaven' is exquisite. Why this record was never released internationally seems incomprehensible. It catches Lucky ranging more freely than ever over the chords and reshaping melodies like that of 'Have You Met Miss Jones?' but already betraying a reticence that would all too shortly become permanent.

The Emarcy release is part of a larger series celebrating the work of American musicians in Paris. It finds Lucky in strong and relaxed form, blowing some exquisite bop solos but also stretching out into something altogether more challenging. The accompaniments are well-crafted and well-rehearsed, testimony to the quality of musicianship round Paris at the time.

* Lord, Lord, Am I Ever Going To Know? Candid CCD 79035 Thompson; Martial Solal (p); Peter Trunk (b); Kenny Clarke (d). 61.
This is the Lucky Thompson record to have, eight originals recorded in Paris with musicians who understood his wants and shared his musical and spiritual values. It is astonishing that this material has lain unheard for so long; only the title-track had been issued before and the other song titles were chosen by Alan Bates and Mark Gardner for release in 1997. The title-track is a loping tenor blues, crafted with great care and sophistication. The ballad that follows, 'Love And Respect', is the first of the soprano numbers, light-toned and limber. The real tour de force is the unaccompanied 'Choose Your Own', which has Lucky switching back and forth between tenor and soprano with seamless precision. As Gardner points out, with great justice, Thompson never believed he had even scratched the surface in his career, a statement denied by the vivid and intense improvisation on the final number, which Bates and Gardner have called 'Scratching The Surface'. It's an extraordinary piece, and one that it would be interesting to play blindfold to some jazz commentators. Almost all will guess at a later date than 1961 and suggest someone in the nascent avant-garde, though it's by no means an 'outside' performance itself. The CD opens with a recording made in 1968, a message from Thompson to delegates at what was to have been a symposium in Coventry dedicated to Lucky's work. What we hear is a man of surpassing modesty, but with a burning conviction as well. He asks us to rethink our priorities and take a more careful look at some of our idols' feet. He offers blessings and warm wishes and the next thing we hear is 'Lord, Lord, Am I Ever Gonna Know?'. Presumably he found his own answer to that. The sorry tailpiece to the story is that the planned symposium was cancelled for lack of interest.

* Lucky Strikes Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 194 Thompson; Hank Jones (p); Richard Davis (b); Connie Kay (d). 9/64.
Thompson had made significant bounds in his understanding of harmonic theory since Accent On Tenor Sax, and he attempts transitions that would have been quite alien to him a decade earlier. All his characteristic virtues of tone and smooth development are in place, though. He subtly blurs the melodic surface of 'In A Sentimental Mood' (a curious opener) and adjusts his tone significantly for the intriguing 'Reminiscent', 'Midnite Oil' and 'Prey Loot'.

(*) Happy Days Prestige PRCD 24144 Thompson; Tommy Flanagan, Hank Jones (p); Wendell Marshall, George Tucker (b); Dave Bailey, Jack Melady, Walter Perkins (d). N.D.

 Lucky Meets Tommy Fresh Sound FSRCD 199 Thompson; Tommy Flanagan (p); Frank Anderson (org); Wally Richardson (g); Willie Ruff (b); Oliver Jackson, Walter Perkins (d). 65.
Flanagan was the ideal piano partner for Thompson, a fluent melodist who doesn't lack for rhythmic drive and who constantly flirts with harmonic freedom. He's easily the more convincing of the two piano-players on Happy Days, as upbeat and joyous a session as the name suggests, but with a softer and more poignant side as well. 'Long Ago And Far Away' and 'Dearly Beloved' are among the best things Thompson recorded; his own solos are crafted with intelligence and taste and he's never less than wholly responsive to those around him. The Fresh Sound disc bring together New York sessions originally released as Lucky Is Back and Kinfolks Corner on Rivoli. It also replaces an earlier, identical compilation called Lucky Meets Tommy And Friends. The idiom is bebop, with Thompson on soprano for all but seven of the 16 tracks. The final three numbers are funkier things from a 1966 date, with no Flanagan on hand, and guitar and organ providing an R&B accompaniment. 'Poor Butterfly' and 'Kinfolks Corner' have a lot of charm, but it isn't classic material. Though he lived for another 30 years, Thompson dropped out of music in 1974, after recording a final album, I Offer You on Musidisc, long since deleted.

Also, in brief:

 Smooth Sailing /  The Chronological Lucky Thompson: 1944–1947 /  The Beginning Years Indigo IGO CD 2104 / Classics 1113 / IAJRC CD 1001. 12/44–6/47.
Lucky emerging under other leaders and making his autumn 1945 debut as front man with J. J. Johnson. See previous edition for full details.

 Live In Switzerland, 1968/69 Jazz Helvet 03. 68/69.
Might be hard to find, but a decent concert set from the European years.

 Soul's Nite Out Ensayo ENYCD 3471. 5/70.
Recorded in Barcelona, where Lucky enjoyed a cult following, this finds him mostly on soprano, switching to the big horn for Duke's 'I Got It Bad'. Tete Montoliu shines in the rhythm section.

Malachi Thompson (born 1941)

TRUMPET, VOICE

Mixing hard bop with free playing in about equal measure, he is of the generation which fuelled the new music of Chicago in the '60s, although he took a fundamentally more conservative line.

 The Jaz Life Delmark DD-453 Thompson; Joe Ford (ss, as); Carter Jefferson (ts); Kirk Brown (p); Harrison Bankhead (b); Nasar Abeday (d); Richard Lawrence (perc). 6/91.
With 20 years of recording behind him and no real recognition on a world stage, Thompson quietly built up a catalogue of records for Delmark in his home base of Chicago. Despite a serious illness diagnosed as lymphoma in 1989, he has come back with a personal take on new Chicagoan developments which bespeaks a courageous outlook. If he is not an especially outstanding technician or any kind of innovator, his music is a skilled synthesis of several threads from the Chicagoan repertory. None of the records really stands out as a classic. All have strengths, and some disappointments. The Jaz Life was almost a comeback album after his illness and peaks on the splendid swagger of Thompson's arrangement of the Ray Charles chestnut 'Drown In My Own Tears'. Jefferson is, as ever, a key element.

 Lift Every Voice Delmark DE-463 Thompson; David Spencer, Kenny Anderson, Bob Griffin, Elmer Brown (t); Edwin Williams, Bill McFarland, Ray Riperton (tb); Steve Berry (btb); Carter Jefferson (ts); Kirk Brown (p); Harrison Bankhead (b); Ayreeayl Ra (d); Richard Lawrence, Enoch (perc); voices. 8/92.
 New Standards Delmark DE-473 Thompson; Steve Berry (tb); Joe Ford (as); Ron Bridgewater, Sonny Seals, Carter Jefferson (ts); Kirk Brown (p); Yosef Ben Israel, John Whitfield (b); Ayreeayl Ra, Nasar Abaday (d); Dr Cuz (perc). 4/93.
Lift Every Voice is the first album to feature his big brass ensemble, which shares duties with his regular Freebop Band, and 'Elephantine Island' and 'Old Man River' make sonorous waves. Sometimes, though, it seems as if Thompson isn't sure what to do with the orchestra. He is back on safer ground with New Standards, which looks at some choice pieces of modern repertory. Freebop's slightly ragged edges are at least a change from the smart orthodoxy of most modern revivalists, but they could use a grain of extra finesse here and there. This was Jefferson's last album (he died in 1993) and his fine tenor improvisation on Booker Little's 'We Speak' is a poignant farewell.

 Buddy Bolden's Rag Delmark DE-484 Thompson; David Spencer, Kenny Anderson, Phillip Perkins, Lester Bowie, Zane Massey (t); Edwin Williams, Bill McFarland, Ray Riperton, Steve Berry (tb); Ari Brown (ts); Harrison Bankhead (b); Darryl Ervin (d); Richard Lawrence, Dr Cuz (perc). 94.
 47th Street Delmark DE-497 Thompson; Steve Berry (tb); Joe Ford (ss, as); Carter Jefferson, Billy Harper, Ron Bridgewater (ts); Kirk Brown (p); Harrison Bankhead, John Whitfield (b); Dana Hall, Nasar Abaday (d); Dr Cuz (perc); Marian Hayes, Mae Koen, Dianne Madison, Byron Woods, Dan Porter (v). 4/93–9/96.
Buddy Bolden's Rag brings back Africa Brass, with Bowie, Massey and Ari Brown as guests: Brown gets off a knockout solo on 'Harold The Great', Bowie makes some mysterious noises on a revised 'Nubian Call' and the brass play with real enthusiasm. Though one still feels that Thompson's collaring of this genre misses some of the visionary clout which Brass Fantasy has brought to this kind of big-band music, and the leader's own solos miss the ripe authority of Bowie himself, it's an entertaining set. 47th Street is a dedication to Chicago's black community and the title-piece and 'Mystery Of Jaaz [sic] Suite' feature the singers, to rather merry effect. Thompson has a strong band here – though there are four tracks left over from 1993, including Jefferson's final recordings – and even if, as before, there's a faulty, sometimes unkempt feel to the ensembles, the music has spirit. Thompson's own playing seems to have got slower and more thoughtful, and hence more effective. His little chorus with the mute on 'CJ's Blues' is very beguiling.

 Freebop Now! Delmark DE-506 Thompson; Steve Berry (tb); Billy Harper, Sonny Seals, Carter Jefferson (ts); Oliver Lake (as); Kirk Brown (p); Harrison Bankhead, John Whitfield, James Cammack (b); Richard 'Drahseer' Smith, Nasar Abadey, Hamid Drake (d); Tony Carpenter (perc); Amiri Baraka, Larry Smith, Sharese Locke (v). 4/93–5/98.
Thompson continues an interesting if erratic series of discs. Freebop Now! is half good, and the good's mostly in the first half, with Berry and Harper turning in some spirited work in celebration of some 20 years of the Freebop Band. But the record turns awkward in the latter stages, with a long piece based around a science fiction story which in turn is based on an Amiri Baraka poem. It's not something to return to.

 Talkin' Horns Delmark DD 532 Thompson; Oliver Lake (as); Hamiet Bluiett (bs); Willie Pickens (p); Harrison Bankhead (b); Reggie Johnson (d). 3/99.
What's evident from this is that Thompson's recent work has been more conventionally grounded than that of his two guests here. Bluiett's threnody to bassist Fred Hopkins is a high-point, but there are great things from Lake as well and Thompson's rugged rhythm section cranks through the material with artisanal skill.

(*) Blue Jazz Delmark DE 548 Thompson; Kenny Anderson, Elmer Brown, David Spencer (t); Steve Berry, Bill McFarland, Kirk Tracy (tb); Gary Bartz (ss, as); Ari Brown (ts, cl); Gene Barge, Billy Harper (ts); Kirk Brown (p, org); Harrison Bankhead (b); Leon Joyce (d); Dee Alexander, the Big DooWopper (v). 2/03.
This is effectively his curtain call, and it's a terrific record on every level. The writing is great, with everything but 'Footprints' a Thompson original and that exception a brilliant big-band arrangement; the sections are packed with fine players and soloists; the charts are mobile and inventive without being avant-garde; and the sound delivered by Delmark engineers is true and accurate. This is Africa Brass, but it's the saxophonists who probably catch the ear first – Bartz and Harper, Brown and local legend 'Dr G' Barge. 'Black Metropolis', 'Blues For A Saint Called Louis' and 'Genesis/Rebirth' are all powerful ideas, and even the smaller, rootsier tracks like 'Po' Little Louie' and 'Get On The Train' bespeak a great composing talent who died relatively unrecognized and still not finished with his work.

Also, in brief:

 Spirit Delmark DD-442. N.D.
Relatively sketchy, but a long association with Carter Jefferson (ts) provides a confident front line and Albert Dailey's dignified piano parts lend extra weight.

 Timeline Delmark DE-421. 5/72–8/88.
A retrospective of '70s and '80s work. A lot of it has dated badly: pseudo-fusion keyboards, singers and poetry that might best have been left in the notebook.

 Rising Daystar Delmark DE-518. 8/97–6/99.
Three different groups on show, with bardic scats, unhappy pop-soul and some good straight jazz.

Sir Charles Thompson (born 1918)

PIANO

Journeyman pianist and arranger who helped define the new 'mainstream' of the '50s; recently enjoyed an Indian summer.

 Takin' Off Delmark DE 450 Thompson; Buck Clayton, Taft Jordan, Joe Newman (t); H. B. Mitchell (tb, tba); Pete Brown, Charlie Parker (as); Bob Dorsey, Dexter Gordon (ts); Tate Houston, Leo Parker (bs); Danny Barker, Freddie Green, Hank Morton (g); Jimmy Butts, John Simmons (b); J. C. Heard, Shadow Wilson (d). 9/45–12/47.
These represent quite a send-off for a player who was managing to broker a modernized version of the Basie style into a new mainstream orthodoxy which seemed to sit neatly between bebop and the old swing style, with enough durability to be still serviceable more than 50 years later when Thompson began to be noticed again. The earlier date has Thompson with an extraordinary sextet (Buck, Bird and Dex) doing his own title-track, '20th Century Blues', and 'Street Beat', then later a more conventional swing group on 'Mad Lad' and 'Sir Charles's Boogie' and others that convey Thompson's terse, almost clipped approach to themes and solos. There's nothing here that stands out as a revisionist classic, but in total it's a very impressive body of work indeed.

(*) For The Ears Vanguard 79604 Thompson; Emmett Berry, Joe Newman (t); Benny Morton, Benny Powell (tb); Pete Brown, Earle Warren (as); Coleman Hawkins (as, ts); Skeeter Best, Steve Jordan (g); Aaron Bell, Gene Ramey (b); Osie Johnson (d). 54–56.
Thompson's vintage sessions for Vanguard – harbingers of the entire mainstream style – have never been satisfactorily available on CD for very long, and share the now-you-see-them fate which seems to attend everything cut for that label. This, then, is a valuable bulletin from Thompson's highly personal journey through the frontier land of swing and bop. There's some interesting material from 1956 with just Best and Bell (no drums) that includes a terrifically individual 'Stompin' At The Savoy', but the main interest is bound to be the tracks with Hawkins, who's in imperious form. He gets second billing on the date, though. It's emphatically Thompson's music, original, individual and sharply flowing, with hardly a phrase wasted.

 Robbins' Nest Live At The Jazz Showcase Delmark DE-526 Thompson; Art Hoyle (t); Eric Schneider (ts, as, cl); Eddie de Haas (b); Charles Braugham (d). 8/00.
 I Got Rhythm Delmark DG-537 As above, except omit Hoyle. 5/01.
Sir Charles is broadly in the Basie lineage but he's busier and heftier with it, and while he sustains trio and small-group music plausibly enough, these aren't sensational records. Twenty-six years on and into his 80s, the old man's still in good nick, opening with his great hit 'Robbins' Nest' and going through some standards and jazz pieces from his own heyday. The trio tracks are, in truth, nothing special at all, but when Schneider sits in on five tracks (and Hoyle on one) everything goes up a notch, his beefy sound really stirring the coals. He does the same thing on the subsequent set, recorded in the following year at the same venue.

Also, in brief:

 When Swing Meets Bop Ocium 9. 9/45–6/48.
Useful compilation from the post-war period.

 Hey There Black & Blue 922-2. 3/74.
A swinging performance by Ed Thigpen, which gets Thompson working harder than usual.

Claude Thornhill (1909–65)

PIANO, ARRANGER

Formally trained, he began working for New York bands in the mid-'30s before touring with his orchestra from 1940. After war service, he re-formed the orchestra in 1946 and hired Gil Evans and Gerry Mulligan to write many of the band's arrangements.

 Snowfall /  Buster's Last Stand Hep CD 1058 / 1074 Thornhill; large orchestra. 9/40–7/41; 3/41–7/42.
(*) Autumn Nocturne Hep CD 1060 Thornhill; large orchestra. 8/41–2/42.
 The Crystal Gazer: The Later Recordings Sounds Of Yesteryear 656 Thornhill; large orchestra. 8/46–8/56.
(*) Transcription Performances 1947 /  ... 1948 /  ...1949–1953 Hep CD 60 / 17 / 80 Thornhill; orchestras include Johnny Garisi (t); Lee Konitz, Gerry Mulligan, Brew Moore (reeds); Barry Galbraith (g); many others. 9–12/47; 4–10/48; 49–53.
With the revival of interest in mood-music mandarins like Martin Denny and Arthur Lyman, it's not inconceivable that Thornhill's work could catch the ear of those seeking something in the classic easy-listening style. His band was never a striking commercial success, though Thornhill's interest in a meticulousness of sound – subtle section-work, carefully filtered reed textures, the static bass harmony provided by Bill Barber's tuba parts – resulted in little classics like his theme, 'Snowfall'. But his relationship to jazz is rather hazy, given the formalized tone of the band, and though there were major cool-school players in the orchestra and it features much of the early work of Gil Evans and Mulligan as arrangers, many of the recordings are exotically ephemeral.

The earliest studio recordings have been restored to print by Hep's excellent compilation, Snowfall, and from the first tracks it's clear why Thornhill was so popular with audiences seeking sweet music. There seems to be the scent of freesias and the feel of lace-work around such scores as 'Alt Wein' and 'Love Tales', dappled by the leader's piano. He stacks up clarinets, quietly, or threads the reed section around simple brass comments which can't even be called riffs. A piece such as 'Portrait Of A Guinea Farm' is as exotic as society music would ever get. 'Snowfall' itself is a flawless miniature. But there are also numerous vocal features, such as 'Mandy Is Two', which may bring on impatience in the listener. The sleeve-note suggests that Thornhill's band was 'too musical' to secure wider success, but that was not a problem which bothered such musical orchestras as Ellington or Goodman. Buster's Last Stand takes the story a step further, and though the track listing looks unpromising – 'Funiculi-Funicula', 'Pop Goes The Weasel' – these titles actually bring on some of the band's most spirited playing, with some surprising solos as well as strong ensemble work. Several of the 1942 sessions have a lugubrious feel which can be traced to the post-Pearl Harbor climate, but the title-piece, credited jointly to Evans and Thornhill and arranged by Evans, is extraordinary. Though ostensibly a straightforward riff-tune, it stands as a kind of homage to Basie (via Thornhill's deft piano interlude) and Ellington, played with almost shrill intensity.

Autumn Nocturne fills in more gaps, although it is probably the least interesting of the sets in jazz terms: most of it is in Thornhill's primmest light-orchestral mode, and even the Gil Evans charts have very little going on.

The first volume of transcriptions is the best place to follow Thornhill's placid truce between jazz – either late swing or early bebop – and a more circumspect kind of orchestration. 'Robbins' Nest' is Basie done by stealth; 'Anthropology' is bebop tied up in a chocolate box. These are two of the 11 Gil Evans charts on the CD, intriguing examples of his early work and already showing departures from everyone else's thinking. There are also a couple of Gerry Mulligan arrangements, though these are somewhat green, and the rather raffish version of 'Oh You Beautiful Doll' shows that Thornhill had a sense of humour too. Hep CD 17 continues the story, with further transcriptions in excellent sound (better than that on the 1947 disc). There is a further treatment of 'Anthropology', Mulligan's first take on 'Godchild', and a number of standards relayed through the veils of sound which continued to be Thornhill's speciality. One feels, though, that the pieces he liked best were things like 'Spanish Dance', 'Adios' and 'La Paloma', where his aspirations to have a unique-sounding group weren't troubled by any mild leanings towards bop terminology. 'Royal Garden Blues' is a jazz standard almost as Mantovani might have played it.

Clifford Thornton (1936–89)

TROMBONE, TRUMPET

Grew up in Philadelphia, studied with Donald Byrd, but more influenced by Coltrane.

(*) Freedom & Unity Atavistic Unheard Music ACP/UMS 225 Thornton; Creative Jazz Ensemble. 7/67.

 The Panther And The Lash America 30AM6113 Thornton; François Tusques (p); Beb Guerin (b); Noel McGhie (d). 11/70.

Freedom & Unity was apparently recorded the day after John Coltrane's funeral. If that was the point where Albert Ayler took up the mantle and set about restoring the relationship between avant-garde jazz, R&B and older, more primitive forms, then Clifford Thornton seemed anxious to go in the other direction. The obvious later parallel might be Anthony Braxton; both taught at Wesleyan. Thompson's fleet, almost sinuous trombone style was like nothing else at the time, but the instrument wasn't fashionable and he remained a somewhat peripheral figure. John Corbett has rescued Freedom & Unity from obscurity, and now Thornton's other fine record, The Panther And The Lash, has put in an unexpected reappearance. The young Joe McPhee had appeared with Thornton's 1967 group; the 1970 band are almost all undeservedly obscure, though these guys were making a new thing happen in France at the turn of the new decade. Much of the material is African-traditional, there is some material from Tusques, and Thornton contributes just a couple, including 'Huey Is Free'. That, along with the Langston Hughes title, is enough to nail down the record's political agenda, but it's strong, undated music that restores Thornton's almost vanished reputation to a large degree. He died neglected in Switzerland.

Henry Threadgill (born 1944)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, BASS FLUTE

Formerly leader of Air and New Air, the Chicagoan started to create denser and more carefully structured compositions in the '80s, using bizarre instrumentations and voicings, yet with visceral playing.

(*) Spirit Of Nuff ... Nuff Black Saint 120134 Threadgill; Curtis Fowlkes (tb); Edwin Rodriguez, Marcus Rojas (tba); Masujaa, Brandon Ross (g); Gene Lake (d). N.D.

Threadgill's Very Very Circus appears to be the culmination of a cycle in his work. Spirit of Nuff ... Nuff (his titles are nothing if not enigmatic) deploys the band in a way that recalls '60s experiments with structures and free improvisation, but with far more discipline. Threadgill's writing has been quite muted in emotional timbre; 'Unrealistic Love', in which Threadgill's solo is announced by a long guitar passage, is typical. The arrangements on 'First Church Of This' (on which he plays flute) and 'Driving You Slow And Crazy' (which opens with a fractured chorale from the brasses) are consistently inventive, but it's increasingly clear that Threadgill, like Anthony Braxton, has now almost reached the limits of what he can do with a more or less conventional jazz instrumentation. It will be interesting to see whether he is able to develop a new instrumental idiom or whether he will choose – or be forced – to remain within the conventions.

(*) Song Out Of My Trees Black Saint 120 154 Threadgill; Ted Daniel (t); Myra Melford (p); Amina Claudine Myers (org, hpd); James Emery, Ed Cherry, Brandon Ross (g); Dierdre Murray, Michelle Kinney (clo); Jerome Richardson (b); Gene Lake, Reggie Nicholson (d). 8/93.

Song Out Of My Trees is for the most part dominated by strings, though the title-track is played over organ (Amina in testifyin' mood) and guitar. By using soprano and alto guitars in addition, tracks like 'Crea' take on a rich harmonic colouration that is quite difficult to pin down. On the superb 'Grief', Threadgill switches to a line-up of accordion, harpsichord and two cellos, a dazzling mixture of sounds and textures. Perhaps structural concerns have been downplayed to some extent here in the search for a new timbral language. It's a fascinating process to watch at close quarters, but slightly wearying after a few listens.

(*) Everybody's Mouth's A Book Pi 1 Threadgill; Brandon Ross (g); Bryan Carrot (vib, mar); Stomu Takeishi (b); Dafnis Prieto (d). 01.

 Up Popped The Two Lips PI 2 Threadgill; Jose Davila (tba); Liberty Ellman(g); Tarik Benbrahim (oud); Dana Leon (clo); Dafnis Prieto (d). 01.

The PI label has offered some patronage to a musician who has been fairly disastrously neglected by American labels and currently has scandalously little in the catalogues. Two sharply contrasting bands illustrate different stages of Threadgill's current practice. Make A Move is an amplified unit, hinged on Brandon Ross's and Stomu Takeishi's electric guitars and sounding not unlike a freaked-out version of Ornette's Prime Time, if such a thing is imaginable. The writing is as quirky and cranky as ever, with some delirious playing from the leader on alto and flute. 'Don't Turn Around' is amazing, a headlong flurry of sound from start to finish but governed as ever by Henry's unquantifiable musical vision.

The other group represented on these debut PI releases is Zoo-Id. It's a lighter and more acoustic sound, with an emphasis on strings and brasses, and the improvising language is even less obviously Western as a result; except when on 'Do The Needful' he seems to push early jazz through some strange prism. 'Dark Block' and 'Around My Goose' are somewhat confused stylistically. We are sceptical about Up Popped The Two Lips, but the Make A Move set is a winner. Nothing since that has come our way.

The Three

GROUP

One-off supergroup.

 The Three Test of Time 12 Joe Sample (p); Ray Brown (b); Shelly Manne (d). 11/75.

The mid-'70s were a difficult time for jazz musicians. Here was one attempt to keep two of the senior rhythm section men in view by pairing them with a Crusader. It's a lively enough set, kicking off with Oliver Nelson's 'Yearnin'' and including such staples as 'Satin Doll', 'Manha Do Carnaval', 'Round About Midnight', 'On Green Dolphin Street' and an improvised 'Funky Blues'. The reissue has alternates of all six tracks, and surprisingly they reveal a lot of interesting stuff going on in the studio. Sample is hugely impressive throughout and Manne is a small-group maestro.

The Three Sounds

GROUP

Busy recording light bop and blues from 1955 to the '70s.

 Black Orchid /  Standards Blue Note 821289-2 / 821281-2 Gene Harris (p); Andy Simpkins (b); Bill Dowdy (d). 10/59–6/62.

At one time, every jazz label had a piano trio like this – Red Garland at Prestige, Erroll Garner at Columbia, Ramsey Lewis at Chess. Harris, Simpkins and Dowdy were the Blue Note version. Standards, simple variations on the blues or mild gospelesque outings, a steady, steady tempo that the drummer simply ticked off on number after number, and the pianist never letting the melody get too far away from the listener. This is as easy-going as jazz after bebop has ever been, and it's undeniably pleasant on the ear. But it's hard to imagine anyone wanting more than one Three Sounds album, as popular as they were; and even though vintage Blue Note vinyl remains in high demand among collectors, this is the group that nobody much collects. One reason is, they recorded an awful lot of sessions for the label. The original programme for Black Orchid has been expanded with seven previously unissued tracks, doubling the length of the disc, while Standards has nearly an hour of never-before-released. The Three Sounds are perhaps the one remaining Blue Note group yet to be accorded extensive CD restoration.

Bobby Timmons (1935–74)

PIANO, ORGAN, VIBRAPHONE

He wrote 'Moanin'', the gospelly tune that became a Messengers hit. Otherwise, haunted by self-doubt and alcoholism, the Philadelphian rarely lived up to his potential.

 This Here Is Bobby Timmons /  Easy Does It Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 104 / OJCCD 722 Timmons; Sam Jones (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 1/60; 3/61.

 Soul Time Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 820 Timmons; Blue Mitchell (t); Sam Jones (b); Art Blakey (d). 8/60.

(*) In Person Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 364 Timmons; Ron Carter (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 10/61.

 Sweet And Soulful Sounds Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 928 Timmons; Sam Jones (b); Roy McCurdy (d). 6–7/62.

(*) Born To Be Blue Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 873 Timmons; Ron Carter, Sam Jones (b); Connie Kay (d). 8–9/63.

 The Prestige Trio Sessions Prestige 24277-2 Timmons; Sam Jones, Keter Betts (b); Ray Lucas, Tootie Heath (d). 6–8/64.

 Workin' Out Prestige 24143-2 Timmons; Wayne Shorter (ts); Johnny Lytle (vib); Keter Betts, Ron Carter (b); Jimmy Cobb, William Peppy Hinnant (d). 10/64–1/66.

 From The Bottom / * Moanin' Blues Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1032 / Prestige 11016 Timmons; Sam Jones (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 64; 1/60–10/64.

(*) The Prestige Trio Sessions Prestige 24277 Timmons; Charlie Byrd (g); Keter Betts (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 6 & 8/64.

This Here is a pun on 'Dat Dere', Timmons's second-best-known tune, to which Oscar Brown Jr subsequently added a lyric. Timmons will for ever be remembered, though, as the composer of 'Moanin'', recorded by The Jazz Messengers in 1958. This Here was recorded two years later, just before his second stint with Art Blakey. It features both the hit tracks; as a disc, it is probably less good value than Moanin' Blues, which includes material from the January 1960 session, together with excellent tracks recorded over the next three years. Easy Does It is slightly shop-soiled and untidy round the edges, though 'Groovin' High' is splendid.

Timmons's characteristic style was a rolling, gospelly funk, perhaps longer on sheer energy than on harmonic sophistication. The live In Person is surprisingly restrained, though Timmons takes 'Autumn Leaves' and 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise' at an unfamiliar tempo. The drummer is probably better suited to Timmons's style than Cobb, but there's nothing between Carter and Jones. Timmons's handling of more delicate material here is rather better than expected and certainly better than on This Here; there, 'My Funny Valentine' and 'Prelude To A Kiss' leave a lot to be desired, and the unaccompanied 'Lush Life' is uncomfortably slewed. Traces of Bud Powell in his approach at this time slowly disappeared over the next few years. 'Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child', from an August 1963 session on the Milestone Moanin', is perhaps the most typical if not the best trio performance on record.

Timmons never sounds quite right in a group with horns, which is why Soul Time and the Prestige material with a young Wayne Shorter seem so unsatisfactory. There are excellent things on Born To Be Blue and on Sweet And Soulful Sounds, and there are even things to take out of From The Bottom, where Bobby turns to organ for a retread of ‘Moanin’’ and to vibes for the delightfully paced ‘Quiet Nights’ and ‘Someone To Watch Over Me’. These were recordings made late in the Riverside story and not released until some time later; they have had to wait even longer for CD reissue. Prestige Trio Sessions doubles up a couple of albums which had a negligible impact at the time. Timmons sounds good, playing bluesy variations on the soul-jazz formula, but he never makes as much of an impression as Horace Silver in this repertoire and he can't muster Red Garland's implacable calm.

The second Trio Sessions brings together the excellent Little Barefoot Soul and Chun-king, the latter featuring Charlie Byrd in one of his most swinging dates of the period.

Also, in brief:

 The Best of Bobby Timmons Riverside 5719. 8/60–64.
Pretty much duplicates what's on Moanin' Blues by way of big hits. Whether it's preferable for other things is a matter of taste.

 The Soul Man! / Soul Food Prestige PRCD 7465. 1/66; 9 & 10/66.
Respectable set, distinguished by some fine Wayne Shorter (ts) solos.

 Quartets And Orchestra Milestone 47091-2. 67–68.
Despite the distinguished cast, a sad finale.

Keith Tippett (born 1947)

PIANO, OTHER INSTRUMENTS

Bristol-born Tippett has been a key figure of the British avant-garde for more than 30 years. He played bebop and traditional jazz before attempting a more experimental course with Ovary Lodge, Ark, the huge Centipede and more recently the collective Mujician. In solo performance, he uses spontaneous ‘preparations’ to turn his piano into a whole orchestra of effects.

(*) You Are Here … I Am There Disconforme 226 Tippett; Marc Charig (c); Nick Evans (tb); Elton Dean (as); Jeff Clyne (b); Alan Jackson (d). 69.
 Dedicated To You, But You Weren't Listening Disconforme 227 Tippett; Marc Charig (c); Nick Evans (tb); Elton Dean (as); Gary Boyle (g); Roy Babbington, Neville Whithead (b); Phil Howard, Bryan Spring, Robert Wyatt (d); Tony Uta (perc). 71.
Tippett is unique among contemporary piano improvisers. He shows little interest in linear or thematic development but creates huge, athematic improvisations which juxtapose darks and lights, open-textured single-note passages and huge, triple-f ostinati in the lowest register. On Mujician III, his most accomplished work, these sustained rumbles persist so long that the mind is drawn inexorably towards tiny chinks in the darkness, like points of light in a night sky.

You Are Here … I Am There was a disappointment, though it's a collectable item these days. Its reappearance helps complete a picture of Tippett poised between rock and jazz. Apart from Dean's ‘Stately Dance For Miss Primm’, there's a strained cast to much of the music, possibly too ambitious for its own good, but not yet with the breadth of vision or the responsive players needed to lift it. The next album paves the way for the ambitious big, bigger and biggest band experiments of the next few years. When critics discuss the harmonic inventiveness of modern jazz and the experiments of big-band composers on both sides of the Atlantic, no one ever mentions pieces like ‘Gridal Suite’ (an Elton Dean term) and ‘Green And Orange Night Park’. Tippett knew the sound he was after and knew the players who might deliver it. This was his first real attempt to go after it.

 Septober Energy Disconforme 1034 Tippett; Marc Charig (c); Nick Evans (tb); Elton Dean, Dudu Pukwana (as); Karl Jenkins, Gary Windo (reeds); John Marshall, Robert Wyatt (d); many (!) others. 71.
A masterwork or a shambles, depending on your point of view. The idea was to assemble an ensemble of 50 players (called Centipede: 100 legs) to follow through Tippett's vision of a massive free-jazz ensemble that would have the friendly spontaneity of a small group. It didn't quite work out like that, but it was a magnificent achievement in its way. We've found it more or less unlistenable now, and it's a record that's more talked about than listened to, but cherished as a unique moment in modern British music.

(*) Blueprint BGO BGOCD634 Tippett; Roy Babbington (b); Frank Perry, Keith Bailey (perc); Julie Tippetts (v). 72.
A total contrast to Centipede, this group was closer in spirit to the soft collective voice of Ovary Lodge. Perry and Bailey use mostly bells and soft percussion devices rather than a kit, while Julie's voice floats in and out of the piano, almost like keyboard overtones; but then, he sounds as if his quieter playing might actually be produced by her voice, so very much a couple in spirit.

(*) Frames: Music For An Imaginary Film Ogun 010/011 2CD Tippett; Marc Charig (t, thn, thumb p); Henry Lowther (t); Dave Amis, Nick Evans (tb); Elton Dean (as, saxello); Trevor Watts (as, ss); Brian Smith (ts, ss, af); Larry Stabbins (ts, ss, f); Stan Tracey (p); Steve Levine, Rod Skeaping, Philipp Wachsmann, Geoffrey Wharton (vn); Tim Kramer, Alexandra Robinson (clo); Peter Kowald (b, tba); Harry Miller (b); Louis Moholo (d); Frank Perry (perc); Maggie Nicols, Julie Tippetts (v). 5/78.
The reappearance of Frames was the first in a wave of valuable Tippett reissues, where previously the discography had depended almost entirely on his solo recordings. Like Centipede, the big band he called Ark went in pairs of players, a huge, warm-hearted sound which has been expertly remastered by Steve Beresford. This vast soundtrack in four parts has the seamless, orchestral quality of the solo performances, but with a vastly enlarged palette of sound. Pointless to identify soloists in music as selfless as this, but a word for the twinned basses of Peter Kowald and the late Harry Miller near the beginning, and for the astonishing percussion-plus-electric-violin passage that begins Part Two, originally the second side of the LP release.

* Mujician I / II / * Mujician III (August Air) / (*) Une Croix Dans L'Océan FMP CD 56 / 12 / Victo CD 046 Tippett (p solo). 12/81, 6/86, 6/87, 95.
Tippett is still best heard as a solo and duo performer. It may turn out that the three Mujician albums made for FMP during the '80s (the word was his daughter's childish version of her father's vocation) will be regarded as among the most self-consistent and beautiful solo improvisations of the decade and a significant reprogramming of the language of piano. Tippett has always insisted that listeners should not concern themselves with how particular sounds are made in his performances, but absorb themselves in what he clearly sees as a spontaneous expressive process in which 'technique' is not separable from the more instinctual aspects of the music. In addition to now relatively conventional practices like playing 'inside', he makes use of distinctive sound-altering devices, such as laying wood blocks and metal bars on the strings, producing zither and koto effects. Though there are similarities, this is very different from John Cage's use of 'prepared piano'. Cage's effects, once installed, are immutable; Tippett's are spontaneous and flexible.

The long 'August Air' is one of the essential performances of the decade. It seems to complete a cycle whose development can only be experienced and intuited, not rationalized. The transfer of the two first Mujician discs to CD allows the sequence to be heard as a whole and, though a goodly span of time separates the three records, they make sense heard as a continuous sequence, an extended dialogue with the piano and with Tippett's musical sources.

(*) Twilight Etchings FMP CD 65 Tippett; Willi Kellers (d); Julie Tippetts (v). 10/93.
* Couple In Spirit II ASC CD 12 Tippett; Julie Tippetts (v). 96.
Both of these were recorded in Germany, at the Total Music Meeting in Berlin in 1993 and at the Stadtgarten in Cologne three years later. Tippett's performances with his wife Julie are always rather special, and both of these records bespeak the closest empathy and understanding. The addition of Kellers does nothing to blunt it, and indeed he seems to have an intuitive grasp of what drives these two deeply committed musicians, adding his own commentaries, his wilfully insistent pulse and his unfailing instinct for the appropriate gesture.

 Friday The 13th Resurgent 4737 Tippett (p solo). 6/97.
One of the most majestic and sonorous of Tippett's solo piano performances, this one was recorded in Japan, where you might have expected him to reduce the dynamics and play in the quieter, filigree mode he sometimes favours. Not a bit of it. From the opening, Keith pounds away at the bass end, creating a tidal wave of sound. It's also a very beautiful recording, which delivers its subtleties slowly and almost covertly.

(*) Live At Le Mans Red Eye 008 2CD Tippett; Marc Charig, Jim Dvorak, Gethin Liddington, Pino Minafra (t); Dave Amis, Malcolm Griffiths, Paul Rutherford (tb); Oren Marshall (tba); Elton Dean, Lee Goodall, Gianluigi Trovesi (as); Paul Dunmall, Simon Picard, Larry Stabbins (ts); Paul Rogers (b); Tony Levin, Louis Moholo (d); Vivien Ellis, Maggie Nicols, Julie Tippetts (v). 98.
Tippett never gave up on the ambitions represented by Centipede or Frames. This astonishing music was supposed to have been subsequently recorded in studio for the BBC, but, surprise, surprise, funding dried up. It's a monumental piece, full of swirling ensembles, darkly meditative passages and wild but logical solos from a sterling personnel. This time, the ensemble went under the name of Tapestry Orchestra, which fits in with Tippett's notion that individual sounds can be used almost as threads in an overall musical fabric, abstractly beautiful in close-up but only revealing their full significance when experienced at a certain distance.

 Linückea FMR CD70 0600 Tippett; string quartet; Martha Sheppard (v). 3/00.
Tippett has long been drawn towards a more classical idiom and this long-form piece – 'Linuckea' weighs in at 36 minutes, the other item, 'Let The Music Speak', at less than ten – is an intriguing exploration of piano with string quartet. All the signature Tippett devices are present: rolling melodic figures, pure sound and some treatment of the piano; but what is striking is how much more formal and architectural he sounds in this context. The recording quality is superb and Tippett is ideally balanced with the quartet.

Also, in brief:

 The Bern Concert FMR 08. 93.
Paired with Howard Riley, whose piano language bears strong similarities, but also enough differences to give this drama.

Cal Tjader (1925–82)

VIBRAPHONE, DRUMS, PERCUSSION, VOICE

Though originally from St Louis, he based himself in California and, after high-profile stints with Dave Brubeck and George Shearing, led his own groups from 1954. His essentially lightweight blend of Latin, Cuban and bebop styles became popular in the late '50s and '60s, and he helped pioneer the salsa idiom, at least from a jazz perspective.

 Extremes Fantasy 24764 Tjader; Allen Smith (t); Vince Guaraldi, John Marabuto, Hank Jones (p); Jack Weeks, Monty Budwig (b); Shelly Manne (d). 8/51–9/77.
 Mambo With Tjader Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 271 Tjader; Manuel Duran (p); Carlos Duran (b); Edgard Rosalies, Bayardo Velarde (perc). 9/54.
 Tjader Plays Mambo Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 274 Tjader; Dick Collins, John Howell, Al Porcino, Charlie Walp (t); Manuel Duran (p); Carlos Duran (b); Edgard Rosalies, Bayardo Verlade (perc). 8–9/54.
 Tjader Plays Tjazz Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 988 Tjader; Bob Collins (tb); Brew Moore (ts); Sonny Clark (p); Eddie Duran (g); Al McKibbon (b); Eugene Wright (vib); Bobby White (d). 12/54–6/55.
 Cal Tjader Quartet Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 891 Tjader; Gerald Wiggins (p); Eugene Wright (b); Bill Douglass (d). 5/56.
 Latin Kick Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 642 Tjader; Brew Moore (ts); Manuel Duran (p); Carlos Duran (b); Luis Miranda, Bayardo Velarde (perc). 56.
(*) Jazz At The Blackhawk Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 436 Tjader; Vince Guaraldi (p); Gene Wright (b); Al Torres (d). 1/57.
 Monterey Concerts Prestige P24026 Tjader; Paul Horn (f); Lonnie Hewitt (p); Al McKibbon (b); Willie Bobo, Mongo Santamaria (perc). 4/59.
 Blackhawk Nights Fantasy 24755 Tjader; Jose 'Chombo' Silva (ts); Vince Guaraldi, Lonnie Hewitt (p); Al McKibbon, Victor Venegas (b); Willie Bobo (d); Mongo Santamaria (perc). 59.
 Plays Harold Arlen & West Side Story Fantasy 24775-2 Tjader; Buddy Motsinger (p); Al McKibbon, Red Mitchell (b); Willie Bobo, Johnnie Rae (d); orchestra arranged by Clare Fischer. 6–10/60.
Cal Tjader was a great popularizer whose musical mind ran rather deeper than some have allowed. As a vibes-player, he was an able and not quite outstanding soloist, but his interest in Latin rhythms and their potential for blending with West Coast jazz was a genuine one, and his best records have a jaunty and informed atmosphere which denigrates neither side of the fusion. He made a lot of records, and many of them have been awarded reissue, which makes it difficult to choose particular winners. Tjader helped to break Willie Bobo and Mongo Santamaria to wider audiences, and the steps towards an almost pure salsa sound are documented on most of the records listed above. The earlier records are feet-finding, in a way, but they have a freshness which later became more of a routine. Tjader plays either vibes or percussion, but he's the kit drummer on Tjader Plays Tjazz, which has four very flat ballad features for quartet but sparkles a bit more on six quintet tunes with Sonny Clark and Brew Moore. Tjader's excellent solo on 'Jeepers Creepers' shows how good he could be in a straight-ahead small band, but that was not his destiny. Cal Tjader Quartet is the most conventional of all his records, but in the end it's little more than a capable vibes-plus-rhythm date.

Latin Kick, which has Brew Moore again guesting on tenor, is a good one, and Jazz At The Blackhawk is another un-Latin event in which Tjader sounds at ease on standards material. Blackhawk Nights couples the original A Night At The Blackhawk with Live And Direct, which is at least a money-saving option. Tjader's live recordings aren't much more charged than his studio ones and display how he relied as heavily on bop language as anything 'Latin'. Not bad. Plays Harold Arlen & West Side Story couples the two sessions suggested by the title. The first is a typical Tjaderization of the Arlen songbook, but the second finds him secreted within Clare Fischer arangements for a full orchestra, and the results, if you can imagine it, are like an astringent lounge music.

Extremes is an interesting conceit on Fantasy's part. It couples Tjader's first two sessions, which were issued as a single 10-inch LP, with his last for the label, Breathe Easy, which was originally released in 1977. The early tracks have a novelty feel to them, with Tjader playing bongos on one track and kit drums on another, and they're over very quickly. The later session has elements of prototype-smooth about it, with Hank Jones on electric piano part of the time, but some of it ('When Lights Are Low' especially) is much more vigorous, and it's all so melodious that it stands fast.

 El Sonido Nuevo Verve 519812-2 Tjader; Barry Rogers (tb, perc); Julian Priester, Jose Rodriguez, Mark Weinstein (tb); George Castro (f, perc); Jerry Dodgion (f); Derek Smith (org); Lonnie Hewitt, Chick Corea, Eddie Palmieri, Al Zulaica (p); unknown (g); Stan Appelbaum (cel); Bobby Rodriguez, Stan Gilbert, George Duvivier (b); Tommy Lopez, Manny Oquendo, Carl Burnett, Grady Tate (d); Armando Peraza, Ismael Quintana, Ray Barretto (perc). 11/63–3/67.

Held in high esteem as the album which commenced the real fusion of Latin and jazz called salsa, El Sonido Nuevo (here with six extra tracks picked from Breeze From The East and the otherwise unavailable Along Comes Cal) draws its power more from pianist Eddie Palmieri and his arrangements than anything Tjader does. The title-track illustrates the difference: Tjader embellishes the percussive onslaught below with pretty figures, then Palmieri comes in and intensifies it with his hard, percussive piano parts. Many of the tracks are still too short, in the fashion of the day, and one longs for a decisive blast from the ensemble; but next to much of Tjader's work it's impressive. The bonus tracks are softer and a good deal sweeter.

 Soul Sauce Verve 521668-2 Tjader; Donald Byrd (t); Jimmy Heath (ts); Lonnie Hewitt (p); Kenny Burrell (g); John Hilliard, Bob Bushnell, Richard Davis (b); Johnny Rae, Grady Tate (d); Armando Peraza, Willie Bobo, Alberto Valdes (perc). 11/64.

() Soul Bird: Whiffenpoof Verve 549111-2 Tjader; Paul Griffin, Lonnie Hewitt (p); Terry Hilliard (b); Johnny Rae, Sol Gubin (d); Armando Peraza (perc). 65.

 Soul Burst Verve 557446-2 Tjader; Jerry Dodgion, Sledon Powell, Jerome Richardson (f); Chick Corea (p); Attila Zoller (g); Bobby Rodriguez, Richard Davis (b); Grady Tate (d); Patato Valdez, Jose Mangual, Victor Pantoja (perc). 66.

Tjader's Verve albums have been rather spottily reissued. Soul Sauce is one of his better entries: there's enough jazz content here to keep the interest quotient high, and there is one track which features a different band altogether – including Byrd, Heath, Burrell, Davis and Tate – on an upbeat 'Afro Blue'. Soul Bird is a lot thinner, and manages to include a version of 'The Whiffenpoof Song'. Soul Burst has a battery of flute-players and features Oliver Nelson arrangements, which at least put a different spin on his sound.

 Here And There Fantasy 24743 Tjader; Clare Fischer (p); Bob Redfield (g); Rob Fisher (b); Pete Riso (d); Poncho Sanchez, Carmelo Garcia (perc). 9/76–6/77.

(*) Cuban Fantasy Fantasy 24777-2 As above, except omit Garcia. 6/77.

Tjader returned to Fantasy in 1970, after his spell with Verve, and pretty much picked up where he'd left off. Here And There couples the original LPs Guarabe and Here, the former studio, the latter live; this was an effective partnership with Fischer, even if the material sticks to Tjader's preference for the soft option. However, the leftover live tracks which make up Cuban Fantasy push the more polite music of the studio albums to one side and really hit a very hot groove: this has claims to be one of the best of Tjader's later sessions, even if the music didn't emerge until 2004!

() La Onda Va Bien Concord CCD 4113 Tjader; Roger Glenn (f, perc); Mark Levine (p); Rob Fisher (b); Vince Lateano (d); Poncho Sanchez (perc). 7/79.

 Cool Fire Concord CCD2-2205-2 2CD As above, except add Gary Foster (f, ss, as), Ramon Banda (perc). 82–84.

Tjader had something of a comeback when he joined Concord, though the music wasn't that different from what he'd been doing 20 years earlier. Cleaner, crisper recording and highly schooled musicianship put a patina of class on these records, but it still emerges as high-octane muzak from track to track. Cool Fire reissues the live albums A Fuego Vivo and Good Vibes: not much change from the studio music, really, although the solos tend to be a bit more prolix.

(*) Cal Tjader's Greatest Hits Fantasy 24736 Tjader, plus personnel as Fantasy and OJCCD albums listed above. 54–76.

Purists may prefer El Sonido Nuevo, but for us this is the Tjader album to have, 20 of his most characteristic pieces covering the modest spectrum of his work.

Also, in brief:

 Los Ritmos Calientes /  Black Orchid Fantasy FCD-24712-2 / FCD-24730-2. 54–57.

The residue of Tjader's Fantasy sessions from the period, split between authentic Latin themes (24712) and Tjaderized jazz and show-tune standards (24730). Not bad.

* Latin Concert Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 643. 9/58.

Formulaic with-strings date.

* Amazonas / (*) The Grace Cathedral Concert Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 840 / Fantasy 9677. 6/75; 5/76.

Some heavyweight names (Pascoal, Gismonti), but lightweight music.

Skeets Tolbert (1909–2000)

CLARINET, ALTO SAXOPHONE, VOICE

Born in Charlotte, North Carolina, he moved to New York and gigged around during the early '30s. He formed his Gentlemen Of Swing in 1939 and made a success of the group until he decided to move to Houston, Texas, in the mid-'40s, when he became involved in union work and teaching rather than playing.

 Skeets Tolbert 1931–1940 Classics 978 Tolbert; Lester Mitchell, Joe Jordan, Carl Smith (t); Leslie Johnakins (as, bs); Lem Johnson (ts, cl); Otis Hicks, Ernest Parham (ts); Freddy Jefferson, Jimmy Gunn, Clarence Easter, Red Richards (p); Guy Harrington (bj, v); Harry Prather (tba, b); Bill Hart, Hubert Pettaway (d); Babe Hines, Babe Wallace (v). 5/31–3/40.

 Skeets Tolbert 1940–1942 Classics 993 As above, except add Wingy Carpenter (t, v), Buddy Johnson, Herbert Goodwin (p), John Drummond (b), Larry Hinton (d), Nora Lee King, Jean Eldridge, Yack Taylor (v); omit Johnakins, Mitchell, Jordan, Jefferson, Gunn, Easter, Harrington, Prather, Hart, Hines and Wallace. 10/40–7/42.

An interesting footnote in New York's swing era, Tolbert's career on record began with the territory band of Dave Taylor, who cut the two early tracks which start the first Classics CD. The remaining sides on both CDs are very different: upmarket, black, small-group swing. Tolbert's style is a polished variation on the kind of material that might otherwise have gone to Fats Waller or Louis Jordan. His groups were drilled but relaxed outfits and they featured some good players: the outstanding one is probably trumpeter Carl 'Tatti' Smith, but Tolbert himself was no slouch on alto, and the rhythm sections are able, swinging teams. Wingy Carpenter turns up on two later sessions and Buddy Johnson is on one. When they play a blues, as on 'Harlem Ain't What It Used To Be' (an ironic title, since Tolbert never played in Harlem), they do it with some sensitivity, not slickness. Most of the material is made up of relatively undistinguished novelty songs, but nothing descends to any sort of embarrassment and Tolbert's music had no mugging in it.

Charles Tolliver (born 1942)

TRUMPET

A Floridan who studied at Howard and served an apprenticeship with Gerald Wilson, he later founded the Strata East label. A distinctive stylist, he is consistently overlooked in surveys of modern jazz.

 Grand Max DA Music 760145 Tolliver; John Hicks (p); Reggie Workman (b); Alvin Queen (d). 8/72.

 Live In Tokyo Snapper 114 Tolliver; Stanley Cowell (p); Clint Houston (b); Clifford Barbaro (d). 12/73.

Tolliver has recently returned to prominence, working with another once neglected figure, Andrew Hill. The trumpeter's reputation has largely been contingent on the fate of the Strata East catalogue, which has been intermittently available. Much of the released work consisted of live shots, for economic reasons. The first of these was taped at the Loosdrecht Jazz Festival. The title-track is a tiny prelude to a subtle and involving set that includes Tolliver's own powerful 'Our Second Father', as well as Stanley Cowell's 'Prayer For Peace' and an unexpected but effective reading of Neal Hefti's 'Repetition'.

The somewhat later disc first appeared on an obscure Japanese label and was subsequently reissued on Strata East. It's a pretty awful recording and even remastered it doesn't sound great. Tolliver himself is particularly ill-served. His originals are fascinating, though, and he lays back nicely on Cowell's 'Effi'. The outstanding cut, though, is a tune that Tolliver would return to in years to come, notably on the 2006 big-band record that cemented his comeback. 'Round Midnight' has rarely been so imaginatively rethought.

* With Love Mosaic/Blue Note 69315 Tolliver; Chris Albert, David Guy, Keyon Harrold, David Weiss, James Zollar (t); Joe Fiedler, Clark Gayton, Jason Jackson (tb); Aaron Johnson (btb, tba); Todd Bashore (as, cl); Jimmy Cozier (as); Craig Handy (ss, as, cl, f); Billy Harper (ts); Bill Saxton (ts, cl); Howard Johnson (bs, bcl); Stanley Cowell, Robert Glasper(p); Chet Tolliver (g); Cecil McBee (b); Victor Lewis (d). 6/06.

All too often, when a senior figure who has experienced a measure of industry neglect or oversight returns to prominence, the results are disappointing. Sometimes the fires are out; sometimes the belated moment in the spotlight is tinged with rancour and bitterness; sometimes the level of expectation is too high to deliver on. That was certainly the case when Andrew Hill returned to active recording in the few years before his death. Tolliver's contribution to Hill's comeback was one of its high-points, and he certainly doesn't disappoint here.

The album is a joint production by Blue Note and Mosaic, who have always wanted to get involved with producing new music as well as preserving the archive. 'Right Now' (first recorded by Jackie McLean) and 'Mournin' Variations' are both more than 30 years old, but Tolliver and the revamped Music Inc. Orchestra – now known as the Charles Tolliver Big Band – make them sound brand-new and fresh. Most of the remaining material was written for the session and has the same harmonic complexity within relatively conventional forms. The highlight, unexpectedly, is a fantastic reworking of 'Round Midnight', which turns the old groaner in a completely new direction. The personnel speaks for itself and the quality of soloing is high. Cowell and Glasper played at different sessions and there are some variations among the horns; also, Tolliver Jr only plays on 'Suspicion', but a nice spot. It isn't a revelatory session, but the leader clearly relishes the opportunity and plays with a nice balance of enthusiasm and economy.

Also, in brief:

 Mosaic Select: Charles Tolliver Mosaic MS020 3CD. 71–73.

We don't normally list these, but this compilation of the historic Slugs' dates and material from Japan still available elsewhere makes it in even if only to fill out Tolliver's eroded discography.

Viktoria Tolstoy (born 1974)

VOICE

Eclectic Swedish singer, dabbling in the genres.

(*) Blame It On My Youth Kaza/EMI 532620-2 Tolstoy; Jakob Karlzon (p, org vib, marim); Mattias Svensson (b); Rasmus Kihlberg (d); strings. 7/01.

 Shining On You ACT 9701-2 Tolstoy; Nils Landgren (tb, v); Toots Thielemans (hca); Bror Falk, Esbjörn Svensson, Daniel Karlsson (p); Lars Danielsson (clo, b); Christian Spering, Dan

Berglund (b); Wolfgang Haffner, Jonas Holgersson, Magnus Öström (d); strings. 6–9/03.
 My Swedish Heart ACT 9705-2 Tolstoy; Nils Landgren (tb, v); Ale Möller (f, mandola); Jacob Karlzon (p); Ulf Wakenius (g); Lars Danielsson (b, clo); Christian Spering (b); Peter Danemo, Wolfgang Haffner (d); Bohuslän Big Band. N.D.
 Pictures Of Me ACT 9712 Tolstoy; Tore Brunborg (sax, f); Jacob Karlzon (p, ky); Lars Danielsson (clo); Hans Andersson (b); Peter Danemo (d, perc); Xavier Desandre Navarre (perc). 9/06.
Though she looks like the classic Swedish blonde, Tolstoy's voice isn't in the ice-maiden bracket and she has a firm, clear style which doesn't go in for affectation. Blame It On My Youth is mostly standards, but gains individuality from Joakim Milder's inventive production and the superb playing by Karlzon's trio – as well as the singer's communion with the material. 'Midnight Sun' gets an imaginative and dramatic reworking, the title-piece is very well sung, and though we could have done without Elvis Costello's hateful 'Baby Plays Around' there aren't many steps that could be counted as false.

The first ACT album is all originals and is, unfortunately, much more chilly. Esbjörn Svensson wrote the music and it's not quite as interesting as his trio material. Tolstoy does her best with it and at least it gravitates towards art-song rather than mere pop material.

My Swedish Heart has a lot of appeal, without quite transcending what feels like an awkwardly contrived idea. The songs are a mix of new originals and fragments of the Swedish jazz past, in dedication to Jan Johansson, Lars Gullin, Bengt-Arne Wallin, Monica Zetterlund and Börje Fredriksson. Karlzon's return is a plus and the music continues to reach towards a rapprochement between a jazz feel, art-song and some thread of singer-songwriter music. A few pieces, such as 'From Above', are genuinely haunting. The two Esbjörn Svensson songs are again rather disappointing.

The latest one treads a sensible line between new jazz and pop material, though the presence of Prince, Seal (!), Alan Parsons (!!) and Peter Gabriel among the credits might raise some eyebrows. It's a very different record to the last one, with Karlzon adding some muscle to his accompaniments and Danielsson extending his cello part in a very attractive way. Lovely stuff and one in the eye for jazz purists.

Tolvan Big Band

GROUP

Contemporary Swedish band from the region around Malmö; directed since 1979 by saxophonist Helge Albin.

* Plays The Music Of Helge Albin Naxos Jazz 86025-2 Peter Asplund (t, flhn); Roy Wall, Anders Gustavsson, Christer Gustavsson, Fredrik Davidsson (t); Vincent Nilsson, Olle Tull, Ola Åkerman, Ole Nordqvist (tb); Björn Hängsel (btb); Per Bäcker, Helge Albin (as, f); Cennet Jönsson (ss, ts, bcl); Inge Petersson (ts, f); Bernt Sjunnesson (bs, f); Jörgen Emborg (p); Lars Danielsson (b); Lennart Gruvstedt (d). 11/97.
(*) Code Red Proprius PRCD As above, except omit Davidsson, Backer, Emborg, Danielsson; add Ulf Holmström (as, af); Jacob Karlzon (p); Patrik Albin (b). 4/07.
Amazing detail: a country with fewer people than New York City is home to 500 big bands. Hard to say where the Tolvan crew rank in the list, but it must be pretty close to the top, and it's disappointing that at present their occasional records have largely slipped into obscurity. At least Naxos here snapped up a terrific session for their 'new' jazz label, which unfortunately they have since abandoned. Helge Albin wrote everything here and it is as rich, eventful and satisfying an orchestral record as you could wish to find in the current jazz environment. Albin keeps everyone on their toes by involving the orchestra as a constantly shifting entity, sections working together or in contrast, brass and reeds in sumptuous counterpoint or brawling opposition, and though he is missing a couple of the best soloists from the earlier records, there is ample compensation in the presence of Asplund.

The later disc is just as good and rendered in superior sound, with every solo voice nicely bedded into its context. All seven cuts are by Albin and other band members, which bespeaks a good deal of writing and arranging talent acquired over the years. Jonsson and Karlzon are the other two writers, and the saxophonist/bass clarinettist is also strongly featured as a soloist on 'Subconscious C', written by Albin, who's quieter this time, though with a nice spot on Jönsson's 'Cats And Dogs'. Karlzon takes front stage on the title-tune and his own 'Ups And Downs'. A terrific band record, but the cheap-as-chips Naxos is still an attractive proposition.

Alan Tomlinson

TROMBONE

A brilliant deconstructionist of his instrument, he plays free improvisation with intelligence and humour.

 Trap Street Emanem 4092 Tomlinson; Steve Beresford (elec); Roger Turner (d, perc). 02.
Astonishingly, this is Tomlinson's first album for more than 20 years. It is strictly a trio project, but Beresford and Turner are somewhat better represented on record and Trap Street offers what for some will be a first glimpse of the trombonist's technique, which is not so much extended as elastically stretched.

He conjures a vast range of sounds from his instrument, few of them conventionally associated with brass-playing. There are clicks, whistles and long, flatulent tones; more rarely, he explores the trombone's vocal properties with what sounds like rarefied speech. Beresford is a brilliant pianist and arranger, but here he concentrates on tiny electronic effects, while Turner largely gives his drumkit the day off and contents himself with a grab-bag of sound-producing objects.

The tracks, named after London postal districts, are short but not enigmatically so. Each seems to have its own logic and its own natural duration. Like label-mate Paul Rutherford, Tomlinson has managed to combine abstract improvisation with genuine drama and feeling.

Jim Tomlinson

TENOR SAXOPHONE

His style is cool, post-Lester. His wife is Stacey Kent.

 Only Trust Your Heart Candid CCD 79758 Tomlinson; Guy Barker (t); John Pearce (p); Colin Oxley (g); Simon Thorpe (b); Steve Brown (d); Stacey Kent (v). 10/98.
(*) Brazilian Sketches Candid CCD 79769 As above, except omit Brown; add Dave Newton (p); Chris Wells (d). 01.
Humphrey Lyttelton's sleeve-note describes Tomlinson's sound as 'softly articulated but capable of becoming steely at moments, in a way reminiscent of Stan Getz'; and that Getzian feel is the saxophonist's starting-point. Some may feel it's where he finishes up, too, since he seldom departs from the shadow of the inspiration, and the programme is based around a ballad feel that rarely moves above mid-tempo. Tomlinson's comely sound is so unwavering that the entire record is a pleasure, but it could arguably use a little more of that steel. His group plays with impeccable discretion, Oxley having a more central role than Pearce, but when Guy Barker comes in on three tracks his more experienced demeanour adds a fresh dimension. The outstanding track features their collected thoughts on a Johnny Mandel tune called 'Just A Child'. Stacey Kent's three vocals are suavely accomplished, although she tends to distract from the balance of the record.

The Brazilian follow-up is eventually a bore. This time Tomlinson seems to invite the Getz analogy more than ever while trying to set himself just sufficiently aside from the source. Despite some graceful playing the record ends up sounding like muzak much of the way.

Mel Tormé (1925–99)

VOICE, DRUMS

A child performer, he graduated from radio work to touring, and his group, the Mel-Tones, were popular in the '40s. A gifted and versatile songwriter, passable drummer and capable arranger, he was enduringly popular and prolific until a stroke stopped him.

 The Best Of The Capitol Years Capitol 799426-2 Tormé; Red Norvo (vib); Howard Roberts, Tal Farlow (g); Peggy Lee (v); studio orchestras. 1/49–5/52.

The young Tormé's voice was honey-smooth, light, limber, ineffably romantic and boyish; and it's amazing how many of those qualities he kept, even into old age. His '40s material for Musicraft seems to be back in the deletion racks, but this is a pleasing miscellany from his tenure with Capitol, very cleanly remastered. There are four previously unreleased tracks with Norvo and Farlow in support and a couple of duets with Peggy Lee, as well as two songs that find Mel himself at the piano. Some of the material is less than top-of-the-line, and most of the arrangements heave rather than glide, but Tormé's rhythmic panache and tonal sweetness turn back the years.

(*) Tormé Verve 44006556628 Tormé; Marty Paich Orchestra. 6/58.

 Olé Tormé! Verve 314589517-2 Tormé; Billy May Orchestra. 3–4/59.

(*) Swingin' On The Moon Verve 511385-2 Tormé; Russell Garcia Orchestra. 60.

This is arguably Tormé's greatest period on record, and it captures the singer in full flight. His range had grown a shade tougher since his '40s records, but the voice is also more flexible, his phrasing infinitely assured, and the essential lightness of timbre is used to suggest a unique kind of tenderness. Marty Paich's arrangements are beautifully polished and rich-toned, the french horns lending a distinctive colour to ensembles which sound brassy without being metallic. There may be only a few spots for soloists but they're all made to count, in the West Coast manner of the day.

Swingin' On The Moon is a more rote affair and a record of one 'moon' song after another may strike some as a concept that belongs in outer space; but everything Tormé did in this period was delightful, and so is this.

The two earlier discs are a recent revival. Tormé is like a dry run for Shubert Alley (below), and it's not far behind – how rarely have singers been so simpatico with the jazz orchestra that's been backing them. Even the miserable 'Gloomy Sunday' gets a respectable treatment. Designed as a low-key sort of record, it's only the preponderance of downbeat songs that keeps this off the top rating. Contrariwise, the Billy May charts for Olé Tormé! are flippant, but Mel dignifies them with careful and detailed singing, strolling right past the tasteless chart for 'Malaguena' and salvaging most of the others. At this point it was inconceivable that Tormé could make a poor record.

CORE COLLECTION

 Mel Tormé Swings Shubert Alley

Verve 8215812 Tormé; Al Porcino, Stu Williamson (tb); Frank Rosolino (tb); Vince DeRosa (frhn); Art Pepper (as); Bill Perkins (ts); Bill Hood (bs); Marty Paich (p); Red Callender (tba); Joe Mondragon (b); Mel Lewis (d). 1–2/60.

Shubert Alley is loaded with note-perfect scores from Paich and a couple of pinnacles of sheer swing in 'Too Darn Hot' (a treatment Tormé kept in his set to the end) and 'Just In Time', as well as a definitive 'A Sleepin' Bee'. Deleted, shamefully enough, in Europe, but it should still be in American print.

 Prelude To A Kiss Fresh Sound FSR-CD 109 Tormé; Don Fagerquist (t); Vince DeRosa (frhn); Hynie Gunker (as, cl); Ronnie Lang (as, bs, cl); Bob Enevoldsen (ts, bcl); Stella Castellucci (hp); Bill Pilman (g); Joe Mondragon (b); Mel Lewis (d); strings. N.D.

Vinyl collectors will remember this one with some affection, issued on minor labels at budget price for several years. Originally interspersed with dialogue between Mel and an unnamed female admirer (sadly expunged from this release, though a little of it survives before the final track), the music and singing are actually pretty marvellous, arranged by Marty Paich in the style of the great Bethlehem and Verve sessions. Mel sounds terrific on the likes of 'One Morning In May' and 'I'm Getting Sentimental Over You'. Docked a notch for brevity, and for cutting the chat.

 Comin' Home Baby! Atlantic 81227-31822-2 Tormé; Shorty Rogers orchestra. 62.

The title-track is a period classic and got Tormé back in the charts. There is jazzier stuff in 'Green Dolphin Street' and 'Dat Dere', but the album walks a line between soft and hard a little awkwardly.

(*) Sunday In New York Atlantic 81227-33362-2 Torme; orchestra. 12/63.

One of our favourites. Charts by Shorty Rogers and Johnny Wiliams, and a programme of 'New York' songs, with Mel at his best on the likes of 'Manhattan', 'Harlem Nocturne' and 'Lullaby Of Birdland'.

 That's All Columbia CK 65165 Tormé; studio orchestras directed by Robert Mersey, Dick Hazard, Mort Garson, Pat Williams. 64–66.

() Right Now! Columbia CK 65164 Tormé; studio orchestras directed by Mort Garson, Shorty Rogers, Ernie Freeman, Arnold Goland. 66–67.

Tormé didn't look back kindly on his '60s recordings, and there's an apologetic air about both these packages; even so, there's a lot of very appealing singing. That's All was a ballad album of some distinction, with lovely versions of 'P.S. I Love You' and 'The Nearness Of You', and it is extended by various singles and rarities to a 24-track disc. 'I Remember Suzanne' is a pretty period piece and there's one of his sweetest readings of 'The Christmas Song'; the rest shows quality control thinning a little. Right Now! is less distinguished, a set of contemporary pop covers to which Tormé brings his customary care and diligence; in the end one wonders why anyone thought such a refined singer should be trying to make a go of the likes of 'Secret Agent Man'. Worth keeping, though, are 'All That Jazz' and 'Wait Until Dark'.

 At The Red Hill / Live At The Maisonette Rhino R2 7295 Tormé; Jimmy Wisner (p); Ace Tesone (b); Dave Levin (d); Al Porcino Orchestra. 3/62–9/74.

A couple of live situations, a dozen years apart. At Pennsauken, New Jersey, home of the Red Hill, Mel delivers a typical club set: one might compare the two versions of 'Mountain Greenery', the first a hepcat's delivery, the second a showbiz master's. Both sets are great fun but neither really counts as classic Tormé.

 An Evening With George Shearing And Mel Tormé Concord CCD 4190 Tormé; George Shearing (p); Brian Torff (b). 4/82.

 Top Drawer Concord CCD 4219 Tormé; George Shearing (p); Don Thompson (b). 3/83.

 An Evening At Charlie's Concord CCD 4248 As above, except add Donny Osborne (d). 10/83.

 A Vintage Year Concord CCD 4341 Tormé; George Shearing (p); John Leitham (b); Donny Osborne (d). 8/87.

 In The Studio And In Concert Concord CCD2-4928-2 2CD Tormé; Warren Luening, Jack Sheldon (t); Bob Enevoldsen (vtb); Lou McCreary (tb); Gary Foster (as); Ken Peplowski (ts); Bob Efford (bs); Pete Jolly (p); Jim Self (tba); Chuck Berghofer (b); Jeff Hamilton (d); Joe Porcaro, Efrain Toro (perc). 8/88.

 Two Darn Hot Concord CCD2-2118-2 2CD Tormé; John Campbell (p); Bob Maize (b); Donny Osborne (d); Frank Wess Orchestra. 8–11/90.

 Mel And George Do World War Two Concord CCD 4471 Tormé; George Shearing (p); John Leitham (b). 90.

 The Complete Concord Recordings Concord CCD7-2144-2 7CD As various discs above. 4/82–2/90.

Tormé's contract with Concord gave him the chance to record a long run of albums that should provide his final legacy as a singer. Even though most singers would be thinking about easing up at this stage, Tormé's workload and enthusiasm both seemed limitless. The voice has throttled back a little, and there is a greyness at the edges, but he still makes his way to high notes very sweetly and will sometimes cap a song with an extraordinary, long-held note that defies the rules on senior singers.

If there's a problem with these records, it's the formulaic settings which Concord tend to encourage for some of their regulars. The duo setting with Shearing is actually a good one, since both men seem to admire each other's work to the point where some of the sessions threaten to slip into mutual congratulations; and context is given to both Shearing's sometimes dinky playing and Tormé's romantic sweeps. Of their records together, both Top Drawer and An Evening With are splendid, and An Evening At Charlie's isn't far behind; but there are too many live albums here, when Tormé can slip into an ingratiating showmanship and an intrusive audience distracts from what is really a close and intimate kind of jazz singing. The World War Two disc founders on the terrible material, charmingly though the principals deal with it.

The two 1990 concert sessions find Tormé in ebullient form, delivering a gorgeous 'Early Autumn' and two equally distinctive ballads in 'Wave' and 'Star Dust' on Two Darn Hot.

The Complete edition with Shearing is loaded with great music, and we give it a rather modest mark only because seven discs is a long haul for anybody and it would be useful for the label to spend some time sitting down and preparing a genuinely effective compilation from their work together..

* The Mel Tormé Collection Rhino R2 71589 4CD Tormé; various orchestras and small groups. 44–85.

Rhino's four-disc retrospective of one of the most accomplished of vocalists is so consistently enjoyable that one overlooks the sometimes spotty remastering and occasionally idiosyncratic selection. It starts with mid-'40s work with the Mel-Tones, picks some of his best Musicraft sides, then follows with some of the finest of his Capitol, Bethlehem and Verve sides, before going choosily through the '60s. The '70s are largely ignored altogether, while the '80s are covered by a handful of cameo appearances. There are many delights along the way, including a lovely 1947 transcription of 'Three Little Words', the singer at his youthful peak; some of his best work with Marty Paich; three tracks from the disgracefully ignored Tormé Meets The British Philips album of 1957; a previously unheard 'Walkin' Shoes' with Shorty Rogers; a virtuoso live Gershwin medley from 1975; and his extraordinary guest appearance with Was (Not Was) on 'Zaz Turned Blue'. One is impressed over and over again by Tormé's musicianship, but the most agreeable aspect of the set is his enjoyment of the singer's art, an effortless pleasure that he insists we share.

Also, in brief:

(*) Live At The Maisonette Atlantic 8122-73321-2. 74.

A hotel gig from 1974, from one of his bleakest periods – pop material that he knows he shouldn't be doing.

(*) Mel Tormé–Rob McConnell And The Boss Brass Concord CCD 4306. 5/86.

A low-key ecounter with the Canadians.

 Nothing Without You Concord CCD 4516. 3/91.

Mawkish collaboration with Cleo Laine.

(*) Christmas Songs Telarc CD-83315. 4/92.

He wrote the best one, so he was entitled, but this is a whole album.

(*) Sing, Sing, Sing Concord CCD 4542. 11/92.

Live in Japan, but not one of his best.

(*) The Great American Songbook Telarc 83328. 10/92.

Another live one; 'Stardust' is a beauty.

 Velvet And Brass Concord CCD 4667. 7/95.

A rematch with the Boss Brass, nicely done.

Cy Touff

BASS TRUMPET

A solid presence in the Woody Herman brass section, making a rare foray as (co-)leader.

 Primitive Cats Fresh Sound FSR CD 2237 Touff: Harry Edison, Conrad Gozzo (t); Matt Utal (as, bs); Richie Kamuca (ts); Russ Freeman, Pete Jolly (p); Leroy Vinnegar (b); Chuck Flores (d). 55.

Bass trumpet is something of an anomaly and jazz exponents of it are rare indeed. Touff manages to give it some individuality, sounding a little like a valve trombonist (Enevoldsen, Brookmeyer) but with a snappier articulation. There are quintet and octet sides in these sessions co-led with Kamuca, and Cy's playing has some pleasing and thoughtful moments; two takes of 'A Smooth One' and stomping versions of 'It's Sand, Man' and 'Keester Parade' stand out.

Paul Towndrow

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Towndrow is a Tommy Smith protégé who's been to Berklee and studied with George Garzone and Joe Lovano.

 Colours FMR CD124-J0603 Towndrow; Ryan Quigley (t); Paul Harrison (p); Ross Hamilton (b); Alyn Cosker (d). 03.

(*) Out Of Town Keywork KWRCD 006 Towndrow; Steve Hamilton (p); Michael Janisch (b); Alyn Cosker (d). 3/05.

(*) Six By Six Keywork KWRCD 008 As above, except add Tom MacNiven (t); Konrad Wisniewski (ts). 9/07.

Towndrow's Colours feels raw and not quite there, but it's an argumentative and often exciting set that outdoes many a more polished session. Cosker pushes the band hard and the saxophonist responds with lithe and unusually contoured solos that sound as if they shouldn't be hanging together – but do. He takes an aggressive stance at both fast and medium tempos and his sound has a suitably worldly toughness and astringency. No British folksiness here.

Both Colours and the maturing follow-up Out Of Town have a good showing of original tunes (although 'Fallout', the only track to feature Quigley, is pretty dreary), and Hank Mobley's 'This I Dig Of You' was an interesting choice of cover. He likes to save his soprano for the ballad pieces and he has the sense to enlist an excellent pianist on each session: both Harrison and Hamilton bring gravitas and a sure harmonic centre to the music.

The sextet date is full of bright and buoyant ideas. Towndrow's soloing has acquired new authority and in the two additional horns he has among the best young soloists working in Scotland (a burgeoning scene) at the present. A marked step forward in an already impressive career.

Ralph Towner (born 1940)

CLASSICAL GUITAR, 12-STRING GUITAR, PIANO, SYNTHESIZER

Studied music at Oregon University and guitar in Vienna in the '60s; then in New York from 1969, playing in various groups, coming to prominence in Oregon. Has also pursued a solo career as stand-alone acoustic guitarist and occasional pianist, with a long sequence of ECM discs to his name (*) Trios/Solos ECM 833328-2 Towner (solo) and with Paul McCandless (ob); Glen Moore (b); Collin Walcott (tabla). 11/72.

* Diary ECM 829157-2 Towner (solo). 4/73.

'Only tenuously connected with jazz', it says in Grove, so what's he doing here, and at this length? Two things cement Towner firmly to this music, both of them occurring at the start of the '70s. The first was an astonishing 12-string solo on 'The Moors', a stunning guest spot by the 31-year-old on Weather Report's I Sing The Body Electric, still one of the finest fusion records ever made. The second was the formation of Oregon, a group which brought to a jaded scene a fresh acoustic sound – not unmixed with technical awareness – and a hint of other improvising traditions. There had never been (and probably never again will be) a group quite like it: four earnest, professorial types from the far North-West, playing oboe, cor anglais, french horn, gut-strung guitar, stand-up bass, tabla and sitar; indeed Grove suggests some '60 to 80' instruments in all (why the imprecision in the count isn't clear).

The other important thing that happened to Ralph Towner was the emergence of the ECM label. If anyone creates what has sometimes been parodied as 'the ECM sound' – cool, acoustic, European, very spacious and classical in intent – then it's surely Towner. Trios/Solos was effectively an Oregon record, documenting some of the sub-pairings that presumably went on in the rehearsal room and certainly featured in concerts. Though not usually standards or jazz repertory players, Towner and Moore give a persuasive reading of Bill Evans's 'Re: Person I Knew', though curiously it's Moore who almost steals the album with his solo 'Belt Of Asteroids', a fantastic unaccompanied performance.

The other album is a genuine solo performance. Like the abstract blues '1 × 12' and 'Suite: 3 × 12' on Trios/Solos, it finds him trying to cut a trail between the two great 'twelves' of modern music: the blues and Viennese dodecaphony, which he studied in Europe in 1963 and 1967; the addition of 12-string guitar gives the mix an almost mystical quality. Diary is for some fans the Ralph Towner record. It is certainly very beautiful and, as with Oregon, there is no anxiety about using studio effects (apart from the churchy ECM acoustic) when required; 'Icarus' is a highly effective overdub. 'Silence Of A Candle', though, one of the genuine classics from the early days of Oregon, is almost thrown away on piano, a little too heavy-handed for such a glorious piece. This is odd, because Towner aims to play guitar 'pianistically'. He once told Joachim Berendt that his aim was to treat his first instrument as if it was a piano trio – not piano, violin and cello, presumably, but a trio like Evans's. His ability to work simultaneous lines, sustain rich harmonics and drones (especially on the 12-string) and even get a percussive counterpoint out of the snap of the strings and the thud of the sound-box is what makes his solo playing so rich and multi-dimensional.

* Solstice /  Sound And Shadows ECM 825458-2 / 829386-2 Towner; Jan Garbarek (ts, ss, f); Eberhard Weber (b, clo); Jon Christensen (d). 12/74; 2/77.

Solstice was an attempt to hybridize the Oregon aesthetic, unmistakably American, with the new European jazz that ECM was sponsoring. Almost every separate element was both in place and subtly transformed: Paul McCandless's keening oboe into Garbarek's taut, stressed soprano sound; Moore's huge, woody bass into Weber's multiphonic sound; Walcott's unusual counts into Christensen's uninterruptable flow.

'Distant Hills', on the later and rather disappointing Sound And Shadows, is the best point of comparison between the groups, and one surely has to come down in favour of the original. It's only really when Weber and Christensen are given their head, as on the bassist's marvellous 'Piscean Dance', that the pace exceeds the most accommodating medium tempo, but this isn't theme-and-solos jazz, but a new and still not quite secure hybrid. Garbarek sounds wonderful throughout, alternating tenor and soprano, as Towner moves between guitar and piano. This must have been a riveting group live.

 Matchbook ECM 835014-2 Towner; Gary Burton (vib). 75.

Odd title for a record #1. What resonances do book matches have? ... throwaway advertisement, fugitive memories, perhaps of faraway places, a touch of something illicit, a spark of flame? There is nothing of that here. It's been suggested that some of the best material on the session was ditched because it was too raw. If so, then some pungent bathwater was thrown away to rescue a very douce baby indeed. Towner often does little more than accompany Burton's nagging, slightly troubled melodies, and even these fail to catch light. A decade later, the sparks still wouldn't fly …

(*) Batik ECM 847325-2 Towner; Eddie Gomez (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 78.

As a title this was equally unfortunate, for quite clearly the aim was to relocate Towner in what was unmistakably a jazz context, much as was to happen to Jan Garbarek with Star in 1991. The results are patchy but good. DeJohnette has some difficulty adjusting to the minimalist approach and he sounds impatient here and there, before his impeccable musicianship reasserts itself. It's meat and drink to Gomez, however, who sounds closer to Glen Moore than anyone might have expected, recalling some of their finest moments together. 'Batik' itself is overlong and slightly shapeless, but it does maximize the space for improvisation, and it includes some strong exchanges between Towner and Gomez in particular. We had quibbles about the original sound, but the balance is ideal on CD, with Towner pushed well forward.

() Solo Concert / () Blue Sun ECM 827268-2 / 829162-2 Towner (g solo). 10/79; 12/82.

Towner never seemed to be a natural stage performer, certainly not without the mutual-support mechanism of the group. Working alone, he could seem and sound diffident and introverted. Not so on the 1979 disc, recorded at concerts in Munich and Zurich. There is fire and some passion in the playing. Miles Davis's 'Nardis', a rare jazz piece, is idiomatic but also unmistakably Towner's conception, and one can almost hear the trumpet-line come floating in over the top at a couple of points. 'Ralph's Piano Waltz', written for Towner by John Abercrombie, has rarely sounded better. None of the tracks outstay their welcome, with the possible exception of the opening 'Spirit Lake', not one of his stronger ideas; don't be put off by it, for what follows is very good indeed. Blue Sun is a frank disappointment, an album with almost no character and none of the intensity of the earlier solo disc.

 City Of Eyes ECM 827754-2 Towner; Markus Stockhausen (t, picc t); Paul McCandless (ob, eng hn); Gary Peacock (b); Jerry Granelli (d). 90.

At first blush, this is very close to Old Friends, New Friends. Stockhausen is a masterful performer, with instinctive taste and a greatly under-appreciated ability to bury himself in other people's ideas (perhaps a legacy of his apprenticeship with Papa Karlheinz). The blending of wind sounds is often quite exceptional, unfamiliar as they are in this sort of context. Peacock is very much in the same mould as Gomez, and they are probably the two double-bassists who give Glen Moore his sound. Granelli remains the weak point, a formulaic player who either hasn't a clue what is expected of him here or else who chooses to stick to his own tried-and-tested patterns, irrespective of what's going on around him.

(*) Lost And Found ECM 529347-2 Towner; Denny Goodhew (ss, sno, bs, bcl); Marc Johnson (b); Jon Christensen (d). 5/95.

Sorry, but look at that line-up. If this isn't another attempt to recapture – forget about 'the ECM sound' – 'the Oregon sound', then frankly we give up. It's even constructed very much the way early Oregon records were, with tiny carved images (one track is called 'Scrimshaw') interspersing longer, almost narrative pieces. And as has become ECM's practice in recent years, the leader opens the set himself, a solo 'Harbinger' that doesn't quite prepare one for the astonishing 'Trill Ride' with Johnson, a duo which avoids all the pitfalls of Open Letter (see below, 'in brief') and which yet manages to make the guitarist sound tough and aware. Johnson himself is simply masterful, and if anyone wants a crash course in one branch of modern bass-playing Towner's discography affords some valuable reference points. Goodhew and Christensen don't put in an appearance until 'Elan Vital', but they make an immediate difference to the sound. Goodhew is a bright, propulsive player with a delightful touch on the higher horns and a nice judgement of space on the baritone and bass clarinet. He leads off the collaborative 'Soft Landing' on sopranino and contributes two strong pieces elsewhere, 'Flying Cows' (a baritone feature and quite the jazziest thing Towner's been involved with for years) and 'Midnight Blue … Red Shift', which deserve to be covered. 'Soft Landing' is one of the freer things Towner has done in recent years, and he should be reassured that it's an experiment worth repeating. As so often before, though, the real drama is what passes between guitar and bass. No piano these days; in the presence of a player like Johnson, it really isn't necessary.

* A Closer View ECM 531623-2 Towner; Gary Peacock (b). 12/95.

A wholly involving and deeply resonant set, two great string-players meditating on their instruments. Peacock has an immense tone, but it's the detail that one notices primarily, shakes, soft strums (as on 'Moor'), delicate harmonics and bent tones (on 'Infrared' and the seemingly improvised 'From Branch To Branch' and 'Postcard To Salta'). As with much of ECM's recent output, this is a genuinely collaborative project, and Towner often sounds as though he is playing accompaniment to the contrabass. He is also playing with firmer attack and a greater use of dissonance than usual, and there are signs too that he may have been listening to classical flamenco, evidenced not so much in the harmonic shapes he uses as in the overall shape and texture of his performances. A fine album.

(*) Ana /  Anthem ECM 537023-2 / 543814 Towner (solo). 3/96; 2/00.

To mark 25 years with the label – an astonishing achievement in itself – Ana is a quietly magisterial release that will delight anyone who enjoys Towner's music and will surprise no one, whether they admire him or not. Again, there is no piano part and no overdubs, simply a recital of virtuosic guitar-playing. The set closes with a sequence, 'Seven Pieces For Twelve Strings', which sums up much of what Towner has done over the years. Phrase-shapes reminiscent of 'The Moors' with Weather Report swap places with rich passages entirely in harmonics and, on 'Sage Brush Rider', an almost country feel. There is, to be fair, one surprise: 'Veldt', a strummed, percussive piece which might almost be something by South African composer Kevin Volans. It rounds off the first half of a highly effective record. Towner's ability to tell stories, and tell them quietly and without rhetoric, remains unchecked.

Anthem is a starker record and almost professorial in its stripped-down approach to guitar-playing. Indeed, Towner almost seems to be laying bare the architecture of his whole technique in these exquisite tracks which are mostly presented in the form of miniatures. 'Anthem' itself and 'Simone' are more-substantial pieces, and there are a lovely reading of Scott LaFaro's 'Gloria's Step' (which works beautifully on guitar) and a closing reading of 'Goodbye, Pork Pie Hat'.

* Time Line ECM 987 5911 Towner (g solo). 9/05.
A supremely professional record, mostly done in miniatures which couldn't be improved by so much as a note. An opening sequence of brief songs and sketches has the exact trajectory and weight of an old LP side, a definite chapter-end. Titles like 'Oleander Etude' may curl the toes, but it's a far more substantial thing as played than it looks on paper. Similarly the 'Five Glimpses', only the first of which breaks a minute, and even then only 61 seconds. These are almost sublimely good and the koto-like final one is the most unexpected thing Towner has ever put on a record.

After that the album changes direction again. 'The Lizards Of Eraclea' is something of a technical exercise, but this final section includes two standards, a still relatively unusual practice for Towner. 'Come Rain Or Come Shine' is deeply influenced by Bill Evans's versions. It emerges over a softly rocking rhythm and subtle harmonics, both greatly enhanced by the acoustic at Propstei St Gerold, now a favourite ECM location. The real clincher, though, is 'My Man's Gone Now', which is soaked in the blues but surrounded by chords of orchestral richness that bears comparison with Miles Davis's and Gil Evans's Porgy & Bess.

Also, in brief:

 Old Friends, New Friends ECM 829196-2. 7/79.
With Kenny Wheeler, David Darling, Eddie Gomez and Michael DePasqua, a record that has worn well. Gomez stars, Kenny Wheeler solos forcefully, Towner tries out some unusual articulations.

(*) Slide Show ECM 827257-2. 5/85.
Odd title for a record #2. Fleeting images, no real narrative flow or development. Yes, pretty much the same again, a decade on, from Towner and Burton.

 Open Letter ECM 511980-2. 7/91.
Duos between Towner and drummer Peter Erskine which seem to trade in everything each is good at, in favour of a drab 'jazz' style which suits neither.

Colin Towns (born 1948)

KEYBOARDS, ARRANGER

Born in London, he taught himself music and began writing as a teenager. Worked in rehearsal bands and jazz-rock groups, but won a reputation in film before founding the Mask Orchestra in 1991 and later starting his own Provocateur label.

* Nowhere And Heaven Provocateur PVC 1013 2CD Towns; John Barclay, Graham Russell, Henry Lowther, Guy Barker, Gerard Presencer (t); Mark Nightingale, Richard Edwards, Peter Beachill, Pat Hartley (tb); Roger Williams (btb); Peter King (as); Jamie Talbot (as, ss, cl); Alan Skidmore, Nigel Hitchcock (ts, ss); Alan Barnes (bs); Julian Argüelles (bs, ss); Phil Todd (bcl); Andrea Hess (clo); Dudley Phillips (b); Clark Tracey (d); Maria Pia De Vito (v). 96.

 Still Life Provocateur PVC 1015 Towns; Julian Argüelles (ts, ss); John Parricelli (g); Dudley Phillips (b); Ralph Salmins (d). 98.

(*) Dreaming Man With Blue Suede Shoes Provocateur PVC 1017 As above discs, except add Dave Hartley (p), Norma Winstone (v); strings, brass, woodwind. 97–98.

The Mask Orchestra collects many of the best London-based players, and they're given some tremendous challenges by these imaginative and uncompromising scores. The simple charge would be that Towns is writing jazz film music, something meant to accompany something else, but even if that were true it would be a welcome departure from the familiarities of modern big-band albums. Instead, an example such as the title-track to Nowhere And Heaven is a fully formed and stand-alone score for a team of jazz players working within a strikingly personalized idiom. Towns constantly involves the orchestra, rather than resigning it to a subsidiary role behind soloists or making it a trained animal going through practised tricks. He subtly differentiates tonal colour and space, balances the weight of different sections within a composition, and has a fine grasp of dynamics – the ear is constantly teased, without any recourse to avant-garde flourishes. Towns keeps an absolute grip on what he wants his players to do, so there's nothing 'free' in this music.

Perhaps most telling of all is Towns's understanding of modern studios: the ingenious recording of all of this music is shaped as often by his way with a studio desk as it is by the inflexions of the players, with occasional keyboard flavourings and mixes that throw fresh light on what can sound quite different in a live context. The two-disc Nowhere And Heaven is a huge sprawl of almost two and a half hours, not all of similar calibre, but there's enough here to fascinate and return to time and again for fresh listening. Still Life is more song-based and features Maria Pia De Vito throughout: the appeal may depend on how one responds to her voice. This is a less ambitious undertaking for Towns; but the quintet's playing is full of character, and Argüelles and Parricelli are both outstanding.

Dreaming Man With Blue Suede Shoes is different again, introducing the Mask Symphonic with a full orchestral complement as well as the basic Mask Orchestra. The title-track is a self-portrait, the least this generous entrepreneur can allow himself. It's also an extraordinarily complex and big-scale integration of soloists, jazz rhythm section, rock electricity and improvising soloists, a theme which to a greater or lesser degree is followed throughout the record. Most such projects founder on hubris. Just slightly, here and there, the ambitions of this one threaten to topple it over, but what other composer-arranger is trying anything like this (as well as paying for it himself)? Bravo!

(*) Another Think Coming Provocateur PVC 1028 Towns; John Barclay, Derek Watkins, Graham Russell, Henry Lowther, Guy Barker, Stuart Brooks (t, flhn); Andy Wood, Mark Nightingale, Pete Beachill, Richard Edwards, (tb); Roger Williams (btb, tba); Peter King, Andy Mackintosh (ss, as); Alan Skidmore, Nigel Hitchcock (ts, ss); Phil Todd (bs, bcl, ss, as); Dave Hartley (p); John Parricelli (g); Dudley Phillips (b); Ian Thomas (d); Paul Clarvis (perc). 7/01.

(*) The Orpheus Suite Provocateur PVC 2004 Towns; Nathan Bray, Graham Russell, Martin Shaw, Guy Barker, Henry Lowther, Andy Gobson (t); Barnaby Dickinson, Liam Kirkman, Pat Hartley, Roger Williams, Peter King, Simon Allen (ss, as); Iain Dixon (ss, ts, cl); Alan Skidmore (ss, ts); Jay Craig (bs, bcl); David Hartley (p); Steve Lodder (ky); John Parricelli (g); Dudley Phillips, Thad Kelly (b); Ian Thomas (d); Paul Clarvis, Kevin Earley, Paul Parker, Dominic Hackett (perc). N.D.
Towns sets his players extraordinary tasks – the brass writing in the opening 'Heated Think Tank' alone must have taxed to the max the collective lip of that section – but he likes to have fun with his music, too, and Another Think Coming is perhaps his wildest record to date. The transformation of 'I Am The Walrus' is something its composer would surely have enjoyed, full of leering horns and replete with a staggered ending which just hangs together. The immediate contrast comes with 'Prayer', over a secular, martial beat, which is more quietly sinister than penitent. 'Andrew Hill And Far Away' takes a lick from that composer and turns it into something else. 'Hot Lips' is three minutes of expert raving. Towns puts enough into these records that they repay many plays with new finds, but even as one-off experiences they're hard to resist. The players are among the best Britain has to offer, as usual.

The Orpheus Suite, a commission from Birmingham Royal Ballet and something inspired by Ellington, continues to assert Towns as the most strong-willed composer in British jazz. Like Ellington, he fashions the orchestra as his instrument, but he uses his players as technicians rather than individual personalities: they are there to execute his scores, which can be fiendishly tough. The merit of this is there's no rambling, in a tight 44 minutes; the difficulty for some listeners may be the density and mass of musical incident.

 Lend Me Your Ears Provocateur PVC 1038 Town; NDR Big Band. 9/06.

Admirers of slipstream big-band playing will enjoy what the NDR outfit does, but there's a chilliness around this project which one never sensed with Towns's mainly British orchestras on previous discs. The writing, almost needless to say, is fine and strong, and there's considerable sophistication to the brief but evocative 'Voyage Around Vladyslav' suite, miniature writing of a high order. The best things, though, are 'Tango Teaser' and 'Blue Period', which at least allow the music to develop some inertial energy and a spot of heat.

Laura Toxvaerd (born 1977)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

This promising Danish improviser studied at the Rhythm Music Conservatory, also in Paris and with Barry Guy.

 Laura Toxvaerd No 1 ILK127 Toxvaerd (as, elec); Frederik Thaae (prod). 7/04.

A fascinating project that includes a solo saxophone performance made for Danish radio and a collaboration with producer Thaae in which saxophone sounds are multilayered and electronically manipulated to create a large-scale 'composition'. In this latter case, she seems closer to the improv/composition procedures of Roscoe Mitchell than to any other example, but Toxvaerd's distinctive sound – light, but with real muscle – sets this exciting record apart.

Clark Tracey (born 1961)

DRUMS

The younger Tracey began playing drums in his father's group from 1978, and over many years he's developed into a failsafe and superbly accomplished drummer in a tough, straight-ahead style.

(*) Full Speed Sideways 33 Jazz 018 Tracey; Mark Nightingale (tb); Nigel Hitchcock (as); Dave O'Higgins (ts); John Donaldson (p); Arnie Somogyi (b). 2/94.

An exciting straight-ahead record by a group abrim with talent. Tracey's tunes are meaty enough to give the players plenty to chew on, and they set up one knockout solo after another from the three horns, with the more studious Donaldson acting as the cool drink of water. It's unfancy, and some would call it routine, but it would take a real sourpuss to sneer at the likes of 'The Revenge Of Sam Tacet', even if Hitchcock gets so over-excited in his fast solos that he sounds like he's about to fall off the stand. Clark's own playing is copybook, refining a Blakey influence to the point where inessentials are banished and the remaining tools are sharp, cutting and wholly right for the job.

(*) Stability Linn ADK 159 Tracey; Guy Barker (t); Andy Sheppard, Tommy Smith, Tim Garland (ts); Iain Ballamy (ss, ts); Nigel Hitchcock (as); Gareth Williams (p); Arnie Somogyi (b); Christine Tobin (v); Locrian String Quartet. 12/00.

A stellar line-up of British talent, and hearing the tenors and Barker getting stuck into 'Gone' offers a formidable start to the record. If the programme feels a bit too deliberately diverse, Tracey cramming in everything he can think of doing (leading, drumming, arranging, writing and even playing a solo piano on 'Melancholia', plus doing five string quartet charts), there's not much wrong with any of it. The muscle and swing of his straight-ahead work is channelled into a wider frame of reference, and it might almost be a mature player's manifesto for further research. And there's the bonus of hearing several of the finest British horn-players in their unselfconscious pomp: Smith on 'The Peacocks', Barker on 'Ugly Beauty', Ballamy on 'Lounge Blues'.

(*) The Calling / * The Mighty SAS Tentoten TTT CDS 750 Tracey; Mark Armstrong (t, flhn); Simon Allen (reeds); Zoe Rahman (p); Peter Billington (b). 6/03; 10/05.

* British Standard Time Tentoten TTT CDS 751 Tracey; Gareth Williams (p); Arnie Somogyi (b). 04.

(*) Given Time Tentoten TTT CDS 758 As above, except add Brandon Allen (sax). 06.

Like many musicians of his generation, impatient at the lack of corporate investment in jazz, Tracey has launched his own imprint. These are all strong, well-considered discs, not simply diary entries issued as finished 'product'. The quintet is a well-drilled and highly accomplished unit, with Rahman's comping a key element. On the first of the pair, 'Live Fast, Die Young', 'The Hitchhiker' and a tribute to fellow drummer Tony Williams are all quality ideas. The second album is better still, more even in conception and with some genuinely inventive work from the horns. The trio is a brilliantly simple idea: covers of classic British jazz compositions, taking in everyone from Tubby Hayes ('Off The Wagon') to Victor Feldman ('Joshua'), Don Weller ('Juice'), to Tommy Smith ('Springtime'), and of course Stan Tracey as well. Much of the weight inevitably falls on Williams, who contributes his own 'Evans The Piano'. Given Time extends the concept, and if the marking looks diffident, it isn't so much poorer a record; it's just that it lacks the delicious surprise of the first one. 'Seven Steps To Heaven' is the key piece (Feldman again), but there's room for Django Bates, Ray Noble, David Newton, Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse as well. Great stuff, and Allen brings a nice new dimension to it, even if he very slightly dilutes one's concentration on that great trio.

Stan Tracey (born 1926)

PIANO, CELESTE, SYNTHESIZER, VIBRAPHONE

Worked in dance bands before playing jazz in the '50s and working with Ted Heath, 1957–9. House pianist at London's Ronnie Scott's club 1960–67, backing many visiting players, and then a group leader of numerous units, from trio and quartet to big band. The pioneer modernist and composer-leader in post-war British jazz, and one of its most significant figures for close on five decades.

 Little Klunk / Showcase Jasmine JASCD 639 Tracey; Ike Isaacs, Ray Dempsey (g); Kenny Napper, Johnny Hawksworth (b); Phil Seaman, Ronnie Verrell (d). 5/58–5/59.

* Under Milk Wood Jazzizit 9815 Tracey; Bobby Wellins (ts); Jeff Clyne (b); Jackie Dougan (d). 5/65.

Stan Tracey is one of Britain's few genuinely original contributions to world jazz. The persistent notion that Tracey only plays a rather second-hand, olde-worlde version of his original mentors, Duke Ellington and Thelonious Monk (or what one critic called 'white man's blues'), is completely misleading. While elements of Monk's style – the insistent, percussive left hand, the quirky melodism – and of Duke's capacious structural understanding remain components of Tracey's work in all its various forms and outlets, he has brought something entirely original to the music.

The surprise reappearance here is of the first two sessions under Stan's name, now reissued as a two-on-one on Jasmine. While more than 'prentice work, the standards treatments of Showcase (where Tracey plays vibes on some tracks) and the originals of Little Klunk find him still working towards the style which would be in more authoritative hands on his '60s Columbias. He is at his most Monkian on the likes of 'Li'l Ol' Pottsville', but his improvising doesn't yet have the mastery of variation which he later displayed. The other players are also more serviceable than inspiring.

Later and live versions exist, but none have surpassed the original. Under Milk Wood remains one of the most distinctive records of its era, a setting of Dylan Thomas which uses spare, unadorned jazz material to somehow evoke the eccentric light of the original play. A pioneering work which is a rare instance of jazz accommodating an outside inspiration in a way that honours the qualities of each side of the equation. Its leanness is a Tracey characteristic which has sometimes been dissipated by his big-scale orchestrations. Wellins's somewhat legendary solo on 'Starless And Bible Black' remains compelling, but it shouldn't overpower the impact of the rest of a record which should be listened to in its entirety.

 Laughin' And Scratchin' Jazz House JHAS 608 Tracey; Rick Laird (b); Ronnie Stephenson, Bill Eyden (d). 8–10/65.

A surprisingly rare glimpse of Stan on his regular gig at Ronnie Scott's, in the period when he led what was effectively the house rhythm section. The sound is scruffy, with drums thin and bass often scarcely registering, but it's the piano we want to hear and it comes through clearly enough. The blues improvisation 'At Random' shows what Tracey could conjure out of the elementals, and the methodical break-ups of 'Sweet And Lovely' and 'I'm Getting Sentimental Over You' are object lessons in digging into the matter of standards without merely getting as remote from them as possible. Solos by the others are a distraction and the audio quality is tiresome, but this is in other respects two nights of work from a fine vintage.

(*) Alice In Jazzland Resteamed 102 Tracey; Kenny Baker, Eddie Blair, Les Condon, Ian Hamer, Kenny Wheeler (t); Keith Christie, Keith Smith, Wally Smith (tb); Alan Branscombe (as); Ronnie Baker (as, cl); Tubby Hayes, Ronnie Scott, Bobby Wellins (ts); Harry Klein (bs); Jeff Clyne (b); Ronnie Stephenson (d). 3/66.

Ah, the heady days when British jazz musicians were being recorded by the likes of Columbia. This has taken some time to reappear, but it affords a fine glimpse of Stan working with a set of original charts and arrangements and with a hand-picked big band and associated small groups. The small group 'Pig And Pepper', with just Ronnie Scott and rhythm, is a high-point, and so is 'Summer Hallucination', which is arranged for saxophones and rhythm, but the large-scale charts are every bit as impressive in their way. The sound is pretty good, too, with a nice balance between soloists and ensemble.

(*) With Love From Jazz Trio TR569 Tracey; Bobby Wellins (ts); Lennie Bush, Dave Green (b); Jackie Dougan, Ronnie Stephenson (d). 10/67.

Reissued on bassist Andrew Cleyndert's label, this helps the slow restoration of Stan's early recordings. The classic 'Milk Wood' quartet is still pretty much in place, though Dave Green replaces Jeff Clyne; Ronnie Stephenson is at the drums for just one track, as Lennie Bush. There is one oddity, 'Three Times Loser Three Times Blueser', on which Stan plays vibes, and there is a police whistle as well. He moves to celeste for the opening of 'Amoroso Only Moreso', a delicate ballad which showcases Wellins's tenor in its most distinctive voice. Always a fuller-voiced player on record than on the stand, he boots through the tough 'Lover's Freeway' and gives 'Two Part Intention' the kind of detailed reading it needs. Green doesn't substantially alter the sound of the group, though he is probably a simpler player than Clyne. Much else from this period awaits rediscovery, but this is a welcome return and a further fine showcase for Tracey's Monk-inspired playing.

 Return Of Captain Adventure Tentoten 753 2CD Tracey; Art Themen (ss, ts); Dave Green (b); Bryan Spring (d). 11/75.

The reappearance of this old favourite fills a hefty gap in the surviving discography. Themen had developed a sound and approach all his own, with nice, angular attacks and an air of authority every time he steps forward. Recorded at the 100 Club in London, this reappears with seven previously unreleased cuts. Nothing, though, that stands up to the quality of the original LP and to stuff like 'See Meenah' and the title-track. Green and Spring are, as ever, as reliable as a firm of lawyers, though a good deal more mischievous.

* Supernova Resteamed RSJ 105 Tracey; Keith Tippett (p). 8/77.

There are moments on the closing 'Conjunction' when one might almost be listening to electronics, so fast are Tippett's upper-register ripples and runs. There are moments elsewhere when a whole string orchestra seems to have swept in. This, though, is just (!) a piano duo, recorded live at the ICA in London and unheard since that day. The astronomical titles – 'Veil Nebula', 'Parallax', 'Vela Pulsar' – seem perfectly appropriate for music on this scale. Tracey is the more obvious 'jazz' player of the two, with his Monk and Ellington influence, but Tippett isn't just a colourist. There are places where two melodic lines seem to run together and interweave in a dazzling way that suggests some measure of predetermination, except the context is so clearly improvised. A remarkable modern record, all the more so for having lain in the archive for thirty years.

 Genesis Steam SJCD 114 Tracey; Guy Barker, Steve Sidwell, John Barclay, Henry Lowther, Alan Downey (t); Malcolm Griffiths, Geoff Perkins, Pete Smith, Pete Beechel (tb); Peter King, Jamie Talbot (as); Tony Coe (ts, cl); Art Themen (ts); Phil Todd (bs); Roy Babbington (b); Clark Tracey (d). 1/87–8/89.

 We Still Love You Madly TAA 004 2CD As above, except add Chris Pyne (tb), Alan Skidmore (ss, ts); omit Downey, Smith, Beechel, Coe. 7/86–12/88.

Genesis is still the only one of Tracey's large-scale suites to be available on CD at this juncture. Unlike Milk Wood, which makes no obvious attempt to be programme music (a re-recorded vocal version with a later band was signally unsuccessful), to a large extent Genesis is constrained by its attempt to express the Creation myth as sound. There are moments of pure invention, as on 'The Sun, Moon & Stars', with Themen and Guy Barker to the fore, but there is something slightly plodding about the rest. One wonders, if Tracey had simply been writing nine discontinuous pieces with no overarching theme, whether they would not have been executed more successfully.

The Ellington set reissues two albums, one of orchestral treatments and the other of solo and (with Roy Babbington) duo interpretations. The orchestral pieces are played with fine spirit but sometimes get bogged down in too many long solos by the horns. The playing has a rackety quality which Duke might have enjoyed more than many a more pompous homage, although there are arguably too many over-familiar choices from the canon. The duo record is more personal, and on the solos in particular (especially 'Prelude To A Kiss'), Stan and Duke work closely together. But the session is sabotaged by a pretty awful piano sound which the CD remastering has done little to improve. The producers should have done better than this.

(*) For Heaven's Sake Cadillac SGCCD 04 Tracey; Gerard Presencer (t); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d). 9/95.

Billed as 'The New Stan Tracey Quartet', this set was cut before they'd played any gigs, and its freshness, even on a set made up largely of standards and Monk tunes, is very appealing. As ever, it's the spareness in Tracey's music which makes the deepest impression; Monk is winnowed down to his essence in 'Crepuscule With Nellie' and 'Bright Mississippi', and the pianist sets out standards such as 'Just Friends' as skeletal keyboard blueprints, which the other players decorate to give the music its light. Presencer, then 23, is mercurial but already mature, his own 'Blah De Blah De Blah' a modest but intriguing original, and his solos beautifully toned and supple. Cleyndert and Clark read the old man's moves handsomely. Very little waste, and one can only regret that the quartet didn't make another record when they'd played some more.

(*) Solo: Trio Cadillac SGCCD 06 Tracey; Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d). 1–6/97.

When you get right down to it, the only true way to hear Stan Tracey is solo. He does the bass; he does the percussion; he does the rip-note, blue-edge melody lines. He does the lot. The solo tracks here are the best available example of Tracey's rough and chunky style. Monk's 'Ask Me Now' bruises lesser players, and the harmonic permutations of 'Body And Soul' are so deeply stacked that only someone of Tracey's individuality can seem to work something entirely new. The trios aren't quite as compelling, and there are a couple of tracks – the original 'Lover's Freeway' and a duff 'Round Midnight' (on which we have declared a moratorium) – which really don't cut the mustard. No fault of the rhythm players, who are spot-on. It would just have been good to have had more of the main man.

(*) Duke Ellington – The Durham Connection 33 Jazz 049 Tracey; Tony Fisher, Henry Lowther, Gerard Presencer, Derek Watkins, Patrick White (t); Malcolm Griffiths, Mark Nightingale, Roger Williams (tb); Alan Barnes (cl, as); Peter King (as); Mornington Lockett, Art Themen (ts); Jay Craig (bs); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d); Tina May, Niall Hoskin, Teresa Troiani (v); Durham Cathedral Choir. 2/98.

Not our favourite among Tracey's heftier projects. This is a collection of Ellington's sacred music, and while the playing is as fine as the personnel would lead you to expect, the singing (May excepted) is all too British and buttoned-up. We would much prefer to hear the pianist's own big-scale works given this kind of recording.

(*) Suspensions And Anticipations / * Crevulations psi 04.02 / psi 05.04 Tracey; Evan Parker (ts). 9/03; 7/04.

We continue to fret at the unavailability of so much of Stan's best work – from the Columbias of the '60s to various Steam LPs of the '70s and '80s – but here he is at 77, mixing it up with one of the few British musicians who can lay equal claim to rightful space on a global stage. Pianist and saxophonist are both readily identifiable as themselves, even though neither plays in his most accustomed style: Parker is trimmer, less voluminous; Tracey is elliptical and set aside from his familiar rough-and-tumble swing. Sometimes they circle watchfully round one another, sometimes they're chummily gladiatorial, but it's a dialogue where there are few blind turnings and much bounteous discourse. On the first record three solos – two for piano, one for tenor – let each man stretch his legs before the next bout.

Crevulations is better still, a perfectly weighted 52 minutes of thoughtful improvisation recorded in Ancient Space at St Michael's Church in Appleby, Yorkshire. A Kathleen Jones poem, inspired by a Roman tomb inscription at Hexham, gives the set a kind of thematic coherence, speaking of long effort, some privation, pride and the sadness of small, remote places. It seems to impart a misty narrative to the opening 'Bendalingo's Dream', on which Tracey plays some of the most effectively minimalist passages of his career. Parker mostly defers, but his roster of low tones, percussive slaps and unusual harmonics is the perfect foil. Strongly recommended.

* Just You, Just Me Avid 793 Tracey; Danny Moss (ts). 10/03.

A big-band player of considerable experience, Moss has rarely been featured out on his own. This makes you wonder why, and with Stan toying grouchily with the metre and punching out deceptively blocky chordal statements that are actually highly melodic, it's a winning combination. Outstanding tracks include 'Indian Summer' and 'Good Queen Bess', but the little Ellington mini-suite that comes towards the end is a must-have. Great stuff and wonderful to hear the veteran Moss in this setting.

(*) The Last Time I Saw You Trio TR 00 566 Tracey; Peter King (as); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d). 1 & 7/04.

Peter King continues to fascinate as his sound evolves. On Sam Rivers's 'Beatrice', he seems to be playing tenor, which he has done from time to time, though it isn't credited. The saxophonist's own 'Cool Street' is a retro masterpiece, fast, breezy bebop that puts a whole new complexion on Tracey's alleged devotion to Monk and Ellington. Here he is closer to Dodo Marmarosa. Jobim's 'Chega De Saudade' is also quite delicious, idiomatic and idiosyncratic in equal measure.

 Let Them Crevulate Trio TR 573 Tracey; Guy Barker (t); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d). 6/05, 2/06.

 For All We Know Trio TRCD574 As above, except omit Barker. 05.

The first is a relaxed and easy-going set that never quite gets to the rolling boil of the old stuff. It's Barker's doing, every bit as much as Stan's, though Guy's composition 'Copper Kiss' does bring much-needed heat to the date. The trio is now as completely sympathetic a backing group as any in Stan's career, and while one might miss the solidity and sheer mischief of Dave Green and Bryan Spring, who're not well-represented in Stan's current discography, there are other virtues here. The bassist grows in stature with almost every recording, and those lucky enough to hear him regularly report a growing authority night to night, so perhaps there's scope for something more challenging from the same group.

Also, in brief:

 Comme D'Habitude Jazzizit JITCD 16. 98 98.
Bobby Wellins co-fronts this delightful Sinatra songbook. The less than obvious 'Guess I'll Hang My Tears Out to Dry' is the high-point.

 Under Milk Wood Trio TR 00570. 5/00.
Again with the peerless Wellins, the latter-day rhythm section and Philip Madoc as narrator, it still stands up well, but who'd trade it for the original?

 Zach's Dream /  Seventy Something: On Tour Trio TR 00560 / 00563. 03.
Bassist Cleyndert runs the label and has set out to redress years of discographical neglect. The first one was recorded live in Wakefield; the second, just as good, is distinguished with a stunning 'There Is No Greater Love'.

Theo Travis (born 1964)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, FLUTE

British saxophonist moving easily between post-bop, fusion and, most recently, free idioms.

 2 a.m. 33 Records 33JAZZ 011 Travis; David Gordon (p); Mark Wood (g); Rob Statham (b); Ichiro Tatsuhara (d); Robin Jones (perc). N.D.
 View From The Edge 33 Records 33JAZZ 019 Travis; Tony Coe (ts, bcl); David Gordon (p); Mark Wood (g); Jeff Clyne, Rob Statham (b); John Marshall, Ichiro Tatsuhara (d). 6/94.
(*) Secret Island 33 Records 33JAZZ 033 Travis; David Gordon (p); John Etheridge (g); Rob Statham, Dave Sturt (b); Marc Parnell, Andrew Small (d); Gary Hammond (perc). 5–6/96.
An able composer as well as improviser, Travis contributes all but one tune to his debut CD. He plays the eclecticism card a little too forcefully but impresses with tunes which range from the hectic clatter of 'Sex, Food And Money (Part Two)' and 'Nightmare In New York' to the calmer lyricism of 'Shore Thing', a strain which comes out more strongly on Secret Island.

The two follow-up albums are poised and confident and allow Travis to settle down to making well-rounded sets rather than showcasing as many disparate aspects of his talent as possible. View From The Edge is closer to the dynamic of the first album. Guest appearances from Coe, Clyne and Marshall are an additional fillip, and the addition of guitarist Wood points forward to a later trio for the same label. With the exception of 'Love For Sale', all the pieces are by Travis, and the set is dominated by the long, opening 'Fort Dunlop' (the great tyre factory in Birmingham), 'Freedom' and the closing 'The Purple Sky', which includes all the guest performers except Coe.

Secret Island is a mellower and less abrasive record than the other two. John Etheridge is a key presence, with a folksy approach to jazz playing. None of the other guests, Hammond, Sturt or Small, make anything like the same impact. As with all of 33's catalogue, the sound is good, but with too much emphasis on volume at the expense of subtlety.

 Passion Dance Jazz House JHCD 059 Travis; David Gordon (p); Andy Hamill (b); Marc Parnell (d). 7/99.
 Berlin Vibe Symbol 20001201 Travis; Roger Beaujolais (vib); Stefan Weeke (b); Björn Lücker (d). 12/00.
(*) Heart Of The Sun 33JAZZ 063 Travis; Palle Mikkelborg (t, flhn); Stuart Curtis,(cl, bcl); David Gordon (p, org); Mark Wood (g); Stefan Weeke, Andy Hamill (b); Björn Lücker, Marc Parnell (d). 6/00–5/01.
Passion Dance is a live set from Ronnie Scott's – a progress report from Travis's quartet, nothing very fancy, with one or two old favourites such as 'Nightmare In New York' given a going-over and nice takes on Tubby Hayes's 'Off The Wagon' (on flute) and McCoy Tyner's title-piece.

Berlin Vibe was made after a tour by the band, and its appeal may depend on one's taste for the use of vibes: it brings out the sunniness in Travis's music, and an obvious vehicle such as 'Bags' Groove' is confected into something sweet but blues-less. A mild, enjoyable listen, but hardly essential.

Theo's heart is in darker places if the tone of Heart Of The Sun is anything to go by. A lot of this is close to ECMish mood-painting, and when the huge sound of the tenor looms out of the speakers on the opening 'All I Know', it's a bit of a surprise after some of the lighter climes of the recent records. Mikkelborg is a heavyweight guest and appears on four tracks, but Travis goes toe-to-toe with him and makes at least as strong an impression; the gritty late-Miles sound of 'Fast Life' is particularly effective. The sound of the record is a curious hybrid of atmospheric distances and instruments in very hot close-up – intriguing, and surprisingly effective for the music.

(*) Double Talk 33 Records 33JAZZ166 Travis; Mike Outram (g); Robert Fripp (g, elec); Peter Whittaker (org); Roy Dodds (d, perc).
Travis has shown a consistent genius for aligning himself with a fondly remembered period in British progressive music, working with a Soft Machine legacy group, recording with John Marshall, recruiting Richard Sinclair from the Canterbury scene. The only danger with the presence of Robert Fripp here is that his appearance becomes the story of the record when in fact it's a highly subtle set of compositions that sees Travis move into a new range of work which synthesizes influences from rock as before but in the service of writing that transcends genre. His deployment of various horns, including wah-wah sax, sometimes leads one to wish that he'd simply blow less promiscuously. That, too, misses the point; increasingly, all these seem like aspects of a single improvising voice. It's very powerful and the next step will be fascinating to watch.

(*) Earth To Ether 33 Records 33JAZZ115 Travis; Simon Colam (p); Andy Hamill (b); Marc Parnell (d); Richard Sinclair (v). 05.
The most recent disc offers further testimony to Travis's gifts, without quite delivering the knockout punch he seems able to provide in live performance. The distinctive feature here is an appearance by Richard Sinclair, one of the revered figures of the 'Canterbury scene'. He's not essential to the disc, but does give it an immediacy and surprise factor that it somewhat needs. Colam is an interesting player, with a set of influences that are hard to pin down as they gradually blend into his own conception.

Also, in brief:

 Bodywork 33 JAZZ 036. 9/97.
'Wholly spontaneous improvisations', but Travis can't shake off the forms of late Coltrane and John Marshall (d) has an unfailing time-sense. Clever and attractive pieces, though.

(*) For The Love Of Open Spaces Pillow Mountain PMR 0014. 7/03.
Lusciously beautiful without descending into New Age claptrap, these duos with Steve Lawson (b) walk an awkward line with great confidence.

The Trio

GROUP

A group of brief but significant life, who galvanized British listeners with their 1970 debut and became a 'power trio' benchmark.

* The Trio BGO BGOCD 231 John Surman (bs, ss, bcl); Barre Phillips (b); Stu Martin (d). 3/70.
 Conflagration Sequel Records NED CD 303 As above, except add Harry Beckett, Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Marc Charig (c); Nick Evans, Malcolm Griffiths (tb); Mike Osborne (as, cl); Stan Sulzmann (as, f); Alan Skidmore (ts, ss); Chick Corea, John Taylor (p); Dave Holland (b); John Marshall (d). 71.
(*) The Dawn Sessions Castle 72169 As above. 70–71.
Like John McLaughlin's Extrapolation, on which Surman also played, The Trio was an iconic moment in 'British' jazz. Though occasionally discussed as if it was a Surman record, this was a genuinely collaborative group, with all three members – and Phillips particularly – contributing material. Reissued on CD, it will captivate new listeners as well as those who spent the early '70s nodding sagely to 'Incantation' and 'Caractacus', the evergreen 'Green Walnut' and '6's And 7's', 'Silvercloud' and 'Dee Tune'. Surman's multi-instrumentalism isn't overdone and Phillips's melodic bass is always tasteful. The late Stu Martin is the least-known member of the group, his career cut short by a fatal heart attack. This wasn't necessarily his personal finest hour, but he contributes in full measure to a classic recording.

If a big-band version of The Trio sounds like a bad Irish joke, things had gone seriously awry by the time Conflagration was recorded. The album was billed as 'featuring' John Surman, and whether it was his own project, a trio encounter or a collaborative big band remains unclear. It has always been a record that yields slightly less than the sum of its admittedly impressive parts. The presence of Chick Corea was a sign of the saxophonist's growing international reputation, but Corea's addition adds little light and not much heat. The British improvisers represented are not having the best of days either, though honourable mentions to the brilliant Mike Osborne, trumpeter Harry Beckett and drummer John Marshall, all of whom shine through the heat-haze.

The Castle set put it all together in a reasonably attractive way, though we'd only consider the original trio record to be indispensable.

Trio Beyond

GROUP

Superstar tribute to Tony Williams and Lifetime.

 Saudades ECM 9897 6530 2CD Larry Goldings (org); John Scofield (g); Jack DeJohnette (d). 11/04.
There's a Larry on organ and a John playing guitar but this is really the drummer's project. An unusual record for the ECM catalogue, though not its first dabbling with an organ trio, Saudades re-examines material associated with Tony Williams's Lifetime – 'Allah Be Praised', 'Spectrum', 'Big Nick', 'Emergency' – as well as some other things associated with Williams. Of these, 'Seven Steps To Heaven' is the most obvious and successful. Scofield is a bluesier guitarist than John McLaughlin and there's certainly more jazz and less rock than on the original Lifetime stuff. Goldings favours clarity over Larry Young's huge clusters and discords but isn't any less exciting as a result, and his solo on 'Big Nick' is exemplary. DeJohnette is that throughout, playing with fire but not compromising on detail. The very live feel of the disc isn't something you associate with ECM either, but it works fine in context and it's the kind of record that will appeal to nostalgics and newcomers equally. They apparently didn't ask Jack Bruce to come along and add some wobbly bass and vocals: Allah be praised.

Lennie Tristano (1919–78)

PIANO

Blinded as a child, he learned piano, saxophone and cello and studied music in Chicago. Worked with various groups but gradually abandoned live work for full-time teaching from 1951. Created a doctrinal school of thought which placed rigorous thought and construction ahead of mere emotion.

* The Complete Lennie Tristano Mercury 830921-2 Tristano; Billy Bauer (g); Clyde Lombardi, Bob Leininger (b). 10/46–5/47.
() Live At Birdland 1952 Jazz Records JR-1CD Tristano; Lee Konitz (as); Warne Marsh (ts); Billy Bauer (g); Arnold Fishkind (b); Jeff Morton (d). 45–52.
() Wow Jazz Records JR-9 As above, except omit Fishkin and Morton. 50.
(*) Live In Toronto Jazz Records JR-5 As above, except add Peter Ind (b), Al Levitt (d). 6/52.
(*) Manhattan Studio Jazz Records JR-11 Tristano; Peter Ind (b); Tom Weyburn (d). 55–56.
* Lennie Tristano / The New Tristano Rhino/Atlantic R2 71595 Tristano; Lee Konitz (as); Gene Ramey, Peter Ind (b); Jeff Morton, Art Taylor (d). 55–61.
 Continuity Jazz Records JR-6 Tristano; Lee Konitz (as); Warne Marsh (ts); Henry Grimes, Sonny Dallas (b); Paul Motian, Nick Stabulas (d). 10/58–6/64.
 Note To Note Jazz Records JR-10 Tristano; Sonny Dallas (b); Carol Tristano (d). 64–65.
If Charlie Parker is the Schoenberg of modern jazz, then Tristano is its Webern; he represents its 'difficult' phase. Whereas most horn-led post-bop delved into uncomfortable psychic regions and cultivated a scouring intensity, Tristano ruthlessly purged his music of uncontrolled emotion. Perhaps because his basic instruction to his horn-players – most obviously Lee Konitz and Warne Marsh – was that they should use a deliberately uninflected and neutral tone, concentrating instead on the structure of a solo, Tristano has remained a minority taste, and a rather intellectual one. This is a pity, because Tristano's music is always vital and usually exciting. Though he abandoned the rhythmic eccentricities of bop in favour of an even background count, his playing is far from conventional, deploying long sequences of even semiquavers in subtly shifting time-signatures, adding sophisticated dissonances to quite basic chordal progressions. There is also a problem for the newcomers in the nature of the Tristano discography, much of which involves indifferent live recordings and posthumously released private tapes. However, far from being the cerebral purist of legend, the blind Tristano was fascinated by every possibility of music-making and was a pioneer in studio overdubbing and in speeding up half-speed recordings to give them a cool, almost synthesized timbre.

The key track in this regard was 'Requiem', perhaps the most striking item on the 1955 Atlantic sessions, reissued on the indispensable Rhino CD. His overdubbing and multitracking would influence Bill Evans. But the latter part of the album offers a rare club date with Lee Konitz: the saxophonist sounds dry and slightly prosaic on 'If I Had You' and much more like his normal self on a beautiful 'Ghost Of A Chance'. Tristano's own solos are derived, as usual, from the refined and twice-distilled code of standards material. The original Atlantic LP has also been reissued as Lennie Tristano, as listed below.

This is the essential Tristano CD, but the early sessions on the Mercury disc are almost as important. They catch Tristano just before bebop – specifically, Powell and Parker – had had a significant impact on his playing, so his style, refracted through Tatum and Hines, is like a mysterious, charged yet inscrutable distillation of swing piano's most elaborate settings. One is sometimes reminded of Tatum's (or Nat Cole's) trio recordings, yet Tristano's ideas, while harmonically dense, adapt bop's irresistible spontaneity better than either of those peers. Eleven of the 19 tracks are previously unreleased alternative takes, and the five versions of 'Interlude' (alias 'A Night In Tunisia') are as varied as Parker's Dials. In Bauer he had one of his most sympathetic partners: often lost to jazz history, the guitarist's lines are unfailingly apt yet fresh. Comparison between each take shows how insistent Tristano already was on making his music new from moment to moment. Some of the surviving masters were in imperfect shape, with occasional high-note distortions, but it won't trouble anyone used to music from this period.

The New Tristano is an essential record. The multiple time-patterns secured on most of the tracks suggest a vertiginous, almost mathematical piano music that moves beyond its scientific sheen to a point where the ingenuities acquire their own beauty: 'I can never think and play at the same time. It's emotionally impossible. ' Howsoever the conjoining of technique, interpretation and feeling may work for the listener, this is remarkable piano jazz, and the contrasting ballads of 'You Don't Know What Love Is' and 'Love Lines' suggest a world of expression which jazz has seldom looked at since.

The Jazz Records releases are from tapes kept in the Tristano family archive. Both Live At Birdland 1952 (which also includes four early piano solos from 1945) and Wow are tarnished by terrible sound, the discs apparently made from wire recordings: more's the pity, since both showcase some masterful music. That becomes clearer on the considerably superior sound of the 1952 Toronto concert. Any who might doubt Tristano's ability to outswing any of the regular bebop pianists should lend an ear to the astonishing solo on the first piece, his favourite 'Lennie's Pennies'. Throughout, the group work with uncanny accord, improvisations moving seamlessly from one man to the next, yet set within a palpable groove by Ind and Levitt.

Manhattan Studio derives from worktapes from Tristano's New York studio over a year or two. Much of this is prime Tristano, the uptempo pieces especially: 'Momentum', 'I'll Remember April' and, above all, 'All The Things You Are', which is like a working primer on bebop piano, are riveting examples of the man's artistry, and he's assisted by Ind's simply melodic solos and Weyburn's steady beat. This was previously available on an Elektra LP, New YorkImprovisations.

The concert fragments on Continuity are in better sound. There are four pieces from 1958 with Marsh, Grimes and Motian, including an 'Everything Happens To Me' which fades after 50 tantalizing seconds, and some 24 minutes from 1964 with Marsh, Konitz, Dallas and Stabulas. The playing is of a typically high order, with a fine '317 East 32nd', but the snapshot documentation is finally frustrating.

The duos with Dallas date from the early '60s. Five improvisations cover 40 minutes, and the overdubbed drums fill out an otherwise rather dry recording. Like all the Jazz releases, there's a half-finished quality: rigorous though Tristano was, such notebook survivals inevitably lack the precise brilliance of such as The New Tristano. But there are insights enough here to make this a valuable pendant to the other solo music.

[illegible]

 Lennie Tristano

Atlantic 7567-80804-2 Tristano; Lee Konitz (as); Gene Ramey, Peter Ind (b); Art Taylor, Jeff Morton (d). 55.

Perhaps the best way to sample Tristano is in the almost distilled form of this classic record, discussed above. While the coupling with The New Tristano offers more music, in this latest mastering and minus excess baggage, here is the purest of the purist, with his most sympathetic collaborators.

Also, in brief:

* Lennie Tristano: 1946–1947 /  ... 1947–1951 Classics 1184 / 1290. 8/46–12/47; 12/47–10/51.

Poor sound-quality compounded here. Not recommended.

(*) Intuition Blue Note 52771. 3/49, 10/56.

Shared with a Warne Marsh date, but including what for some are the first free improvisations in recorded jazz, the title-track and 'Digression'.

 Concert In Copenhagen Orchard 7945. 10/65.

A good disc for Tristano sceptics, since it's packed with lively playing and familiar tunes and changes.

 Intuition Proper 1355 / 1356 4CD. VARIOUS DATES.

A valuable trawl, quite nicely packaged.

Baptiste Trotignon (born 1974)

Born in Paris, he studied in Nantes and switched to jazz at 16 and entered the prestigious National Conservatoire Supérieur at 19.

(*) Fool Time Naïve NV 811311 2CD Trotignon; David El-Malek (sax); Darryl Hall (b); Dre Pallemaerts (d). 9/06.

Regrettably, Trotignon's earlier records on Naïve have not made their way to us. This live double album from the Duc Des Lombards in Paris is a vivid reminder of what we've been missing, but it also serves to introduce the burgeoning talent of the saxophonist, who has been making waves of his own. At moments, El-Malek sounds like a guest artist with a settled trio, which is essentially what he is, but when he integrates fully, the group sound is pungent, idiosyncratic and very exciting. El-Malek's writing, on the Miles-inspired 'Bass On Top' and 'Le Chemin Du Serpent' is influenced by other world musics as well as jazz. Hints of Trotignon's classical background peep through on the rather too formal structure of 'Shadow Of A Doubt' at the start of disc two, but for the most part he swings righteously and doesn't overload his lines.

We have heard parts of a Trotignon solo CD and also Fluide. We look forward to making fuller acquaintance.

Gianluigi Trovesi (born 1944)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, ALTO AND BASS CLARINETS, PICCOLO

Studied at Bergamo from 1960 and in a jazz environment was first noticed as a member of Giorgio Gaslini's groups in the '70s. His own music is a deeply personalized take on jazz, classical and native Italian music of several sorts.

(*) Roccellanea Splasc(h) H 506-2 Trovesi; Paolo Fresu (t, flhn); Giancarlo Schiaffini (tb); Paolo Damiani (b); Ettore Fioravanti (d). 12/83.

Trovesi is a key figure in Italy's new jazz, as performer, composer and organizer. Roccellanea, for instance, came about as part of a research project into jazz and its relationship with indigenous Mediterranean culture. That issue has been largely taken up since by the splendid efforts of Peppo Spagnoli's Splasc(h) label to document the Italian scene in all its variety, and it's appropriate that the session in question appears in the label's Italian Jazz Classics series. Co-credited to Trovesi and Damiani, the disc consists of two long-form pieces in which the quintet explore a score that offers a superbly vivid blend of writing and improvising. Originally played by the two leaders with Manfred Schoof, Connie Bauer and Günter Sommer, the three locals who substituted on the recording session are more than up to the job. Since Damiani uses an amplified bass that sounds rather like one of Eberhard Weber's old set-ups, the music has a pleasantly dated feel which the playing refutes: the three horn-players criss-cross to great effect, Fresu's more conventional lines ameliorating the expressionism of the other two.

* From G To G Soul Note 121231-2 Trovesi; Pino Minafra (t, flhn, didjeridu, v); Rodolfo Migliardi (tb, tba); Marco Remondini (clo); Roberto Bonati, Marco Micheli (b); Vittorio Marinoni (d); Fulvio Maras (perc). 5/92.

From G To G is a small classic. Without sacrificing any of his intensities, Trovesi has created a colourful, unpredictable, brilliant marshalling of devices drawn from jazz and far beyond. While there are hints of Italian folk music and remote echoes of ancient masters of Italian composition, the synthesis leads inexorably to a real Italian jazz. 'Herbop' uses two themes which are split and reshaped continuously through 18 minutes of music, soloists and ensemble set in perfect balance. 'Now I Can' and 'Hercab' are satirical without being heavy-handed and without losing an underlying severity which Trovesi uses to pare off any fat in the music. But the finest piece is probably 'From G To G' itself, a long, serenely effective dirge in memory of a friend, with a memorable solo from Minafra. The brass-player turns in some of his most lucid work here, Migliardi is rumbustious on tuba and urgently expressive on trombone; but it's Trovesi himself who leads from the front, his alto solos elegantly moving forward from Dolphy and Coleman into a sonority that again suggests the tradition of Italian song. Very fine indeed.

 Let Splasc(h) H 429 Trovesi; Giancarlo Schiaffini (tb, euph, elec); Walter Prati (elec); Fulvio Maras (perc, elec). 1/92.

This deconstructivist free-with-electronics session isn't really Trovesi's forte, and he plays more of a willing second fiddle to Schiaffini, whose short-breathed monologues and wheezing electronics (abetted by Prati) fill in most of the space. Pitched somewhere between improvisation and shapeless sound-blocks, the music aspires to dialogue here and there – notably in the horn conversation of 'Allegro, Adagio, Quasi Vivo' – and climaxes in the epic 'Canzona Duodecima', which seems to reprise everything else that's happened in 11 packed minutes.

(*) Les Hommes Armés Soul Note 121311-2 As for From G To G. 5/96.

For all its ingenuities, this is just a degree less welcoming and appealing than its predecessor. Much of it revolves around the ancient European melody of 'L'Homme Armé', out of which came pieces by numerous composers (and Trovesi makes direct reference to the Kyrie from Dufay's Mass on the theme at one point). Five tunes – 'Tango', 'Tengo', 'Tingo', 'Tongo' and 'T'Ungo' – are used to interlude the big pieces, which are themselves broken up into diverse fragments; and then there's a crackpot version of 'Mood Indigo' and a tribute to Eric Dolphy, based on a reharmonization of 'Miss Ann'. Trovesi's team play with their usual aplomb but, as delightful as it often is from moment to moment, the record never quite coheres or compels the way From G To G did.

* Around Small Fairy Tales Soul Note 121341-2 Trovesi; Emilio Soana (t); Andrea Dulbecco (vib); Marco Esposito (b); Vittorio Marinoni (d); Orchestra di Camera di Nembro Enea Salmeggia; Bruno Tommaso (cond). 1/98.

Wonderfully vivid and colourful music, informed by jazz but just as much in debt to the strains he associates with his birthplace of Nembro, this is fashioned somewhat as a suite, the eight pieces arranged by Bruno Tommaso to feature the orchestra alongside the rhythm section and Trovesi's own solos. Swooningly romantic in places, but usually with a hint of tartness underneath via Trovesi's own parts, this is enjoyable as soundtrack escapism or as an intelligent and highly crafted blending of consonant ingredients.

(*) Dedalo Enja 9419 Trovesi; Markus Stockhausen (t, flhn); Tom Rainey (d); Fulvio Maras (perc); WDR Big Band. 5–6/01.

There's a dazzling studio sound, Markus Stockhausen on hand to put in some fine solos, and outstanding rhythm from Rainey and Maras. But this is one of Trovesi's finest hours. Some of these themes – 'From G To G', 'Dance For A King' – will be familiar from earlier records, but the invincible skills of the WDR Big Band are a great boon to such a situation: they're not mavericks like the Vienna Art Orchestra, or regimentally drilled in the manner of many American big bands, but a supremely accomplished ensemble that know European music. Maybe they're less completely simpatico than the group on Around Small Fairy Tales, but this is a different kind of record. Energizing, surprising, impolite and completely entertaining.

* Fugace ECM 066583-2 Trovesi; Massimo Grego (t, elec); Beppe Caruso (tb); Gianluigi Trovesi (picc, acl, as); Marco Remondini (clo, elec); Roberto Bonati, Marco Michell (b); Vittorio Marinoni (d); Fulvio Maras (perc, electronics). 6/02.

In concert, this is a rowdy, knockabout group, but the studio tempers and polishes them and refines Trovesi's material into something memorable and even unique. Four examples of the 'Siparietto' (or 'Curtain-Call') break up the action latterly, which suggests how this is all designed for stage performance, but any of these pieces can stand alone too. The Ottetto boasts typically bumptious Italian-school soloists in Greco and Caruso, but it's perhaps the abundant string- and rhythm-players which really make the group motor. Electronics play a greater role than in any previous Trovesi recording, and they're integrated into compositional concerns that round up the world and folk music elements of earlier projects and subsume them into an overall design which is in the end more juicily jazz-directed than many of Trovesi's previous albums. And the maestro himself is in fine fettle as an instrumentalist.

(*) Vaghissimo Ritratto ECM 1709774 Trovesi; Umberto Petrin (p); Fulvio Maras (perc, elec). 12/05.
A curious 'European songbook' project that ranges back and forth across history without much obvious logic, concentrating largely on Piatti though taking in everything from Monteverdi to Brel. Trovesi sticks to alto clarinet, a rich, reedy voice that floats across its range with commendable authority. Petrin maintains a gorgeous lyrical line and Maras is a full sharer. Lovely music, but very 'ECM'.

Also, in brief:

(*) Les Boîtes À Musique Splasc(h) H 152. 3/88.
A lugubrious mix of electronics and soulful reeds.

() Radici / () In Cerca Di Cibo / (*) Round About Weill Egea SCA 050 / ECM 543034-2 / 982 4131. 95; 2/99; 7/04.
Trovesi on clarinets, Gianni Coscia on accordion: a gently harmonious collaboration, sustained over time.

Erik Truffaz (born 1960)

TRUMPET

Born on the Franco-Swiss border, Truffaz has often worked in Geneva but counts himself French. Began in a modal post-bop style, but has more recently experimented with electronic textures.

 Nina Valéria Plainisphare/Elephant EL 2204 Truffaz; Maurice Magnoni (ss, ts); Pierre-Luc Vallet (ky); Marcello Giuliani (b); Marc Erbetta (d). 92.
 Out Of A Dream /  The Dawn / (*) Bending New Corners /  The Walk Of The Giant Turtle Blue Note 855855-2 / 493916-2 / 522123-2 / 583885-2 Truffaz; Cyrille Bugnon (as, ts on Dream only); Patrick Muller (p); Marcello Giuliani (b); Marc Erbetta (d); Nya (v on Dawn and Bending only). 97; 4/99.
The dreamy and attractively melodic acoustic music of the Plainisphare set (now on Elephant) didn't altogether suggest that Truffaz was going to go the way he has – although even there he investigated a dance-directed beat in 'Paysage D'Ombres'. More typical was the pretty ballad feel of 'Patience D'Azur' and the title-track, his own muted playing having a Milesian introversion. The Blue Note debut carried on in this vein. If anything, it isn't quite as strong compositionally as Nina Valéria, although the sound is undeniably fuller and brighter. But there's nothing here that marks much of an advance on the earlier set, and Bugnon makes little impression. The Dawn is altogether different. The album is barely under way before in comes Nya, an awkward hybrid of rapper, beat poet and talkover artist. The only thing that dates quicker than hipsterese is a recorded rapper. The music, though, is an often strikingly effective translation of mild hip-hop beats – played in real time – to a fundamentally acoustic small-group sound. What makes it work is the starkness of the sound: there's no distracting keyboard clutter, Truffaz has to play the sole horn, and his own delivery is quite skinned-back and pointed. The improvised groove of 'Round-Trip' is bleakly effective.

Bending New Corners picks up the thread. Muller makes more extensive use of Fender Rhodes, often with thick sustain and wah-wah to grant it an even more fashionably retro sound. All but one of the themes are credited as group compositions, and there's a sense that the band grow these tracks out of collective blowing on simple motifs. If anything, Truffaz himself takes an even lower profile as soloist-leader and, although some of the music sounds like a cleaner, sweeter edition of a lot of old electric Miles Davis stuff, the abstractions of 'More' – followed by the beatbox noodling of 'Less' – are looking towards something else. Even Nya sounds more confident and genuine on his four appearances. Difficult to see how this music will develop without either descending into self-parody or changing into dance music (the group have already been playing at rock festivals), but that's for Truffaz to figure out, as Miles did before him.

The Walk Of The Giant Turtle starts at an appropriately slow pace and occasionally, though not all that often, gets out of first gear. The best episodes are the ambient-styled tracks, where Truffaz decorates a pretty veil of sound with Milesian musings. It's nice, but it's hard to feel passionate about music which is as determinedly retro as any revivalist bop session.

 Mantis Blue Note 35101 Truffaz; Manu Codjia (g); Anouar Brahem (oud); Michel Benita (b); Philippe Garcia (d); Mounir Troudi (v). 3/01.
The new element here is Codjia's wired guitar, though ironically his most effective moment of the set is in acoustic duet with Truffaz on 'Yasmina'. The fine 'Nina Valéria' returns, this time as a duet with Brahem, while 'Magrouni' is a feature for the other Tunisian guest, who takes full advantage of the spotlight to deliver an impassioned vocal. For the rest, it's a heady mixture of melody and beats.

Also, in brief:

 The Mask Blue Note 26427. 00.
A pleasant enough quartet record, but gave little indication of where Truffaz was bound next.

Frankie Trumbauer (1901–56)

C-MELODY AND ALTO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, CORNET, VOCAL

'Tram' was one of the master saxophonists of his era, coming to prominence with the Benson Orchestra of Chicago in the early '20s and striking up a famous partnership with Bix Beiderbecke. He spent his later years working in aviation and playing only rarely.

* Frankie Trumbauer 1927–1928 Classics 1186 Trumbauer; Bix Beiderbecke (c); Charlie Margulis (t); Bill Rank (tb); Pee Wee Russell (cl); Jimmy Dorsey (cl, as); Don Murray (cl, bs); Doc Ryker, Charlie Strickfaden (as); Adrian Rollini, Min Leibrook (bsx); Paul Mertz, Itzy Riskin, Frank Signorelli, Tom Satterfield (p); Matt Malneck (vn); Eddie Lang, Carl Kress (g); Chauncey Morehouse, Harold McDonald (d); Seger Ellis, Irving Kaufman, Jerry Macy, John Ryan, Les Reis, Bing Crosby (v). 2/27–1/28.
(*) Frankie Trumbauer 1928–1929 Classics 1216 Trumbauer; Bix Beiderbecke, Andy Secrest (c); Charlie Margulis (t); Bill Rank (tb);

Charles Strickfaden (as); Izzy Friedman (cl, ts); Min Leibrook (bsx); Rube Crozier (bsn); Lennie Hayton, Roy Bargy (p); Kurt Dieterle, Miscah Russell, Matt Malneck, Joe Venuti (vn); Eddie Lang, George Rose, Snoozer Quinn (g); Harold McDonald, Stan King, Chauncey Morehouse, George Marsh (d); Scrappy Lambert, Noel Taylor, Marlin Hurt, Smith Ballew (v). 4/28–5/29.

 Frankie Trumbauer 1929–1931 Classics 1245 Trumbauer; Charlie Margulis, Nat Natoli, Harry Goldfield (t); Andy Secrest (c); Bill Rank (tb); Rosy McHargue (cl, as); Charles Strickfaden (as); Izzy Friedman, Fud Livingston (cl, ts); Min Leibrook (bsx); Matt Malneck, Mischa Russell, Kurt Dieterle (vn); Lennie Hayton, Dave Rose, Hoagy Carmichael (p); Eddie Lang (g); John Tobin (bj); Dan Gaybe (b); Bob Conselman, George Marsh (d); Smith Ballew, Art Jarrett (v). 9/29–6/31.

 Frankie Trumbauer 1932–1936 Classics 1275 Trumbauer; Max Connett, Vance Rice; Nat Natoli, Charlie Teagarden, Bunny Berigan, Ed Wade (t); Joe Harris, Jack Teagarden, Glenn Miller (tb); Johnny Mince (cl); Gail Stant, Mac Elstead, Benny Bonacio, Charles Strickfaden, Artie Shaw, Joe Cordaro (cl, as); Harold Jones, Mutt Hayes, Larry Binyon (ts); Herman Crane, Roy Bargy (p); Leon Kaplan, Frederick Saping (vn, g); Craig Leitch, Dick McDonough, Lionel Hall, George Van Eps (g); Charles McConnell, Art Miller, Artie Bernstein (b); Leroy Buck, Herb Quigley, Jack Williams, Stan King (d); The Nitecaps, Helen Rowland, Johnny Blake, Johnny Mercer, Dick Robertson (v). 4/32–4/36.

(*) Frankie Trumbauer 1936–1946 Classics 1331 Trumbauer; Ed Wade, Charlie Teagarden, Russ Case, Dick Dunne, Howard Lamont, Pee Wee Erwin (t); Wayne Williams (t, v); Jack Teagarden (tb, v); Del Menton, Bernie Bahr, Jack Lacey (tb); Artie Shaw, Matty Matlock (cl); Joe Cordaro (cl, as); Bill Stegmeyer (cl, ts); Mutt Hayes, Eddie Miller (ts); Johnny Ross, Joe Sches, Joe Kiefer, Connie Blessing (cl, as, ts); Carl Kress, John Kreyer (g); Roy Bargy, Rene Faure, Dave Bowman (p); Art Miller, Trigger Alpert, Bob Haggart (b); Stan King, Ray Bauduc, Dave Becker, Johnny Blowers (d); Fredda Gibson (aka Georgia Gibbs) (v). 4/36–3/46.

These five discs contain what amounts to a complete edition of Trumbauer's music under his own name. An influence on Benny Carter (who felt he was never Trumbauer's equal) and Lester Young, he still sounds remarkable on his best records: a cool, almost neutral tone, and a way of slipping through the most contorted phrases in such a way as to make them graceful and as natural as breathing. It's a moot point as to whether it's his solo or Bix's which makes 'Singing The Blues' (1927) the classic it is. The first two discs here include all his sessions with Beiderbecke, and even though many of the sides get bogged down in poor vocals, effects and even blackface hokum (as in 'Dusky Stevedore' and the like), the best music is as good as white jazz got in the '20s: they often save the best for the ride-out chorus, which usually goes with a real swing, and besides Bix and Tram there's Bill Rank, Min Leibrook and Eddie Lang to listen to. These sides are easily available elsewhere in Beiderbecke editions, but this isn't a bad way to get them.

The later music is discouraging in the way it declines in quality, but what happened to Trumbauer was the same thing that happened to many of his peers: the times passed him by, and he belonged to an age before the swing era. Classics 1245 is the first without Beiderbecke and although there are still some good sides – 'Manhattan Rag', 'Happy Feet', 'Choo Choo' – the sound is slipping towards dance band routine. In 1932, Trumbauer assembled a new orchestra of his own (up till this point he'd been a fixture in the Paul Whiteman Orchestra) and their only eight titles open Classics 1275. In their way they're pretty extraordinary: 'Sizzling One-Step Medley' includes an orchestration of a typical Tram solo which takes the breath away, and there's quite a vocal by Johnny Mercer. Some of the other sides are pop tunes, but 'Business In Q' is exciting and Trumbauer's solos suggest that, given time, he could have taken his music much further. The 1934–6 tracks are by what was basically a studio aggregation drawn from Whiteman's band and there are plenty of good moments for both Tram and Teagarden, although in the end the records – almost forgotten today – are sidebars in the swing era. The final disc starts out in the same vein, but the 1940 tracks are dreary and a closing octet session from 1946 sounds inevitably anachronistic, Tram's era seemingly long gone. Considering how renowned his early music was, it's still surprising to reflect on how little-known the later sessions remain.

Assif Tsahar (born 1969)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Israeli-born saxophonist, who's made himself into a significant leader and organizational figure in New York circles.

(*) Shekhina  Ein Sof Eremite MTE04 / Silkheart SHCD 148 Tsahar; William Parker (b); Susie Ibarra (d). 7/96; 1/97.

Passionate free playing that runs dry on Tsahar's lack of variation. His delivery is all post-Ayler howling and wailing – the relatively pacific 'Hidden Heart' on Shekhina is a piece of bruised lyricism and a welcome change – and he does it well enough, but the constant overblowing turns into what seems like the same phrase in gruelling rotation. The redoubtable Parker and the interesting Ibarra do their best to shift the scenes around him, but it's heavy going. Recorded at the Fire In The Valley festival in Amherst, Massachusetts. There's a quieter, more measured approach on Ein Sof, though a sequence of titles like 'Ephemeral Symbiosis, Parts 1–6' (played out of order!) rather makes the heart sink. Tsahar gets off some fine playing on the title-piece, the other two are good, but one senses a group situation where a lot of playing is done at high energy in order to invoke some music: a demanding discipline but not a happy listening experience.

 The Hollow World Hopscotch HOP 3 Tsahar; Herb Robertson, Cuong Vu (t); Vincent Chancey (frhn); Chris Jonas (ss); Rob Brown (as); Joe Daley (tba); Susie Ibarra (d). 3/99.

The Brass Reeds Ensemble is responsible for this one, a live New York concert from 1999. Tsahar seeks no startling breakthroughs in terms of group sound or organization: much of it derives straight from the language of free jazz as it stood at least 30 years earlier, even if there's a sense of knowing which was either denied to or ignored by their illustrious forebears. As a kind of repertory exercise, it provides plausible material for these skilled and experienced performers. If there's a wild card in the troupe, it might be Chancey, whose impolite sounds keep breaking past the others. But the most powerful presence is surely Ibarra, who develops a never-ending solo with a simultaneous concern for the momentum of each piece and the needs of her fellow players.

(*) Fragments Hopscotch 27. Tsahar; New York Underground Orchestra (similar to above). 6/04.

A winning blend of studio and live pieces, woven together with no separate track titles into a convincing and coherent whole. Tsahar has interesting ideas bubbling under, but he's still searching for a context that will express them adequately. This, though, is a marked improvement on past large-ensemble projects and has the happy side-effect of making some of the earlier albums fall into place.

(*) Lost Brother Hopscotch 33 Tsahar; Cooper-Moore (plucked instruments); Hamid Drake (perc). 9/05.
Our favourite Tsahar disc to date. Cooper-Moore is as enigmatic and intriguing as ever. He plays a variety of twangable things, but manages to make music on them all, while Drake works away insistently at a range of open metres, pure-sound episodes and sometimes quite direct lines. As for Tsahar, he seems, at last, to have found some kind of personal narrative. It's sometimes repetitive, sometimes repetitive in its obvious desire to avoid going the same way twice, but mostly it convinces and he does at least acknowledge that the horn has lower and quieter registers.

 Solitude Hopscotch 36 Tsahar; Tatsuya Nakatani (perc); string quartet. 05.
If Tsahar imagines that all it takes to forge a new direction is a string quartet and a Duke Ellington tune, it doesn't quite come off. He has some experience working with strings, but they don't seem to know what to do around him and, apart from occasional moments (particularly on bass clarinet), it doesn't gel. 'Solitude' is nice, though, and it would be genuinely good to hear Tsahar tackle a bunch of repertory pieces, just as an experiment.

Also, in brief:

(*) MA Hopscotch 15. 02.
A fine collaborative trio with the late Peter Kowald (b) and Sunny Murray (d). Tsahar is graciously outgunned.

 The Labyrinth Hopscotch HOP 12. 2/02.
The New York Underground orchestra, following ten 'paths' composed and conducted by Tsahar. Nice textures, but often stiff and slow-moving.

 Tells Untold Hopscotch 30. 03.
A duo with Cooper-Moore (p, etc). Too many 'little instruments', not enough focus.

Mickey Tucker (born 1941)

PIANO

Journeyman player with a CV that includes work with Bill Hardman, Junior Cook and Roland Kirk.

 Blue In Five Dimensions Steeplechase SCCD 31258 Tucker; Ted Dunbar (g); Rufus Reid (b); David Jones (d). 6/89.
(*) Hang In There Steeplechase SCCD 31302 Tucker; Greg Gisbert (t); Donald Harrison (as); Javon Jackson (ts); Ray Drummond (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 12/91.
 Gettin' There Steeplechase SCCD 31365 Tucker (p solo). 4/94.
A somewhat overlooked player, who's worked away doggedly below the critical radar, Tucker has never quite delivered as a leader. Unfortunately, all one can say about the first of these – there are a few earlier dates on Muse and Xanadu – is that the blues may be in five dimensions but the playing is in one only. Dunbar's usually an asset in a situation like this, but he's fairly dull here.

The solo record doesn't reveal a stylist of any particular idiosyncrasy, but Mickey picks a challenging programme, including Shorter's 'Paraphernalia' and a sequence of Coltrane tunes, and he handles them all with the same thoughtful care. It's quite difficult to square the pianist on Gettin' There with the rather plain and uninflected group leader on the first record, or even the orthodox hard-bopper on Hang In There. The sextet plays well and Tucker gets some terrific stuff out of the horns. But it sounds a bit like a decent club gig transferred to the studio.

Alexi Tuomarila

PIANO

Finnish and studied at Espoo, but his parents live in Belgium and he continued studies at the Royal Conservatory in Brussels.

 02 Warners 602345 Tuomarila; Nicolas Kummert (ss, ts); Christophe Devisscher (b); Teun Verbruggen (d). 02.
(*) Constellation Jazzaway JARCD030 Tuomarila; Mats Eilertsen (b); Olavi Louhivuori (d). 06.
A deft and highly promising talent, Tuomarila has the work ethic and imaginative range to get past the hurdle of early awards and accolades and build a solid career for himself. There is an earlier record, and 02 seems to have been made over a period of time, rather than dashed, which is perhaps why it sounds so confident and accomplished. The band works as a unit, and while the writing is still a bit stiff and formulaic, there's plenty of the promise that begins to be delivered on Constellation, an exciting, thoughtful trio date. Louhivuori was noticed with the Ilmiliekki group and has continued to make way, but the key here is the leader's writing and endlessly suggestive playing. Recommended.

Bruce Turner (1922–93)

CLARINET, ALTO SAXOPHONE

Born in Saltburn, he joined the Humphrey Lyttelton Band in 1953, which outraged trad purists. He formed his own Jump Band in 1957, then disbanded it and joined Acker Bilk in 1966. He rejoined Lyttelton in 1970.

 That's The Blues, Dad Lake LACD49 Turner; Kenny Baker, Terry Brown (t); Keith Christie (tb); Wally Fawkes (cl); Jimmy Skidmore (ts); Harry Klein (bs); Dill Jones, Lennie Felix, Al Mead (p); Ike Isaacs, Cedric West, Fitzroy Coleman (g); Frank Clarke, Jim Bray, Major Holley, Danny Haggerty (b); Benny Goodman, Stan Greig, Don Lawson, Phil Seamen, Billy Loch (d). 2/55–1/58.
(*) The Jump Band Collection /  Jumpin' For Joy Lake LACD 184 / 159 Turner; Terry Brown, John Chilton (t); Pete Strange (tb); Bruce Turner (cl, as); Al Meade, Collin Bates (p); Danny Haggerty, Jim Bray (b); Billy Loch, John Armatage (d); Long John Baldry (v). 8/57–2/62; 62–63.
 The Dirty Bopper Upbeat 147 Turner; Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Eddie Taylor (d); Humphrey Lyttelton Band. 85.
Turner was a much-loved fixture in British trad-to-swing circles. In later years he became more like the modernist that trad fans were afraid had been imported into the Humphrey Lyttelton band in the early '50s, but on these dates his affection for Hodges, Carter and other masters of swing alto is more obvious. Paul Adams's meticulous compilation That's The Blues, Dad puts together tracks by groups co-led by Turner and Fawkes, the Jazz Today group with Kenny Baker and Keith Christie, and Turner's own Jump Band. None of these bands were destined for immortality, and Fawkes and Turner stand out like beacons of inventiveness, but they all made light, amiable work out of a small corner of the music.

Better still, though, is the surprising discovery of the tracks on The Jump Band Collection. This makes a much stronger case for Turner's Jump Band as an important and relatively neglected part of British jazz. It is hard to define the band's sound, since it seems to flicker between allegiances to Ellington, Basie, the Vanguard sessions and – with unexpected choices of material such as 'Cushionfoot Stomp' – echoes of the trad background which Turner had largely left behind. His playing on both alto and clarinet has the chameleonic quality which Lyttelton always most valued him for, and the start of any solo opens an enjoyable guessing game as to who he's going to sound like here. The other players also acquit themselves well, even if the personnel on the seven tracks from 1957 is itself speculative. The other volume features a similar personnel, but the music's less buoyantly compelling and there are a few flat spots like 'Donegal Cradle Song'. A must for collectors of the period, though.

Turner kept on going through the years, wearing his 'Dirty Bopper' label like a cross between a stigma and a badge of honour. It's hard to hear what the fuss was about, listening to him on the Upbeat reissue of a Calligraph release from 1985. It's a nice contemporary band, but the plus is some Lyttelton tracks from the Bull's Head.

Joe Turner (1907–90)

PIANO, VOICE

Born in Baltimore, Turner played piano in New York in the '20s but spent much of the '30s in Europe. After military service he returned to Europe and seldom went back.

(*) Stride By Stride Volume 1 /  Still Stridin' Along Volume 2 Solo Art SACD 106 / 109 Turner (p, v). 12/60.

Turner was one of the least well-known of the great Harlem stride pianists, since he did very little recording in the USA and decamped for Europe in the '40s. His albums reveal an often self-effacing, gentlemanly stylist, fond of an occasional vocal but concentrating on the keyboard, playing the tunes with a modest amount of elaboration and voicing his lines with a certain restraint: he seldom goes for the hurricane kind of stride, and when he plays something like 'Boogie' it's relatively perfunctory. 'Tea For Two' was one of his favourites: there's a memorable version on volume one from a Swiss club session, and this is the best place to hear him. Volume 2 has some nice things, but there's little else.

Mark Turner (born 1965)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Raised in California, he took up alto in high school and switched to tenor before attending Berklee. He moved to New York in 1990.

 Yam Yam Criss Cross 1094 Turner; Seamus Blake, Terence Dean (ts); Brad Mehldau (p); Kurt Rosenwinkel (g); Larry Grenadier (b); Jorge Rossy (d). 12/94.

(*) Consenting Adults Criss Cross 1177 Turner; Brad Mehldau (p); Peter Bernstein (g); Larry Grenadier (b); Leon Parker (d). 12/94

(*) Two Tenor Ballads Criss Cross 1182 Turner; Tad Shull (ts); Kevin Hays (p); Larry Grenadier (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/94.

Turner's debut album was almost nothing like the traditional tenor/rhythm date and he has the character to make such a contrary effort almost entirely successful. Warne Marsh is his most acknowledged influence, and the sinuous lines of most of his improvisations are both like and unlike that tenor master. His own tunes are off-centred, oblique, never quite going the way one expects; with the equally unpredictable Rosenwinkel as the other main horn – if one discounts the superlative Mehldau, that is – the music emerges as a seamless yet intriguingly episodic sequence. In one striking departure, the tenors of Blake and Dean join in on 'Zurich' in a remarkable, almost ghostly interweaving of saxophone sound. This was certainly a very impressive start.

Recorded during the same week but both unreleased until 2000, the other Criss Cross discs are a welcome addition to the Turner canon. Consenting Adults is credited to MTB, and while its pick-up nature places it behind both the debut and the discs listed below, there's still much impressively achieved playing here. Parker introduces some unexpected touches, such as the rocking pulse with which he underpins the second version of 'Little Melonae', and Mehldau squeezes in a coolly spacious trio ballad. Two Tenor Ballads is more like a typical Criss Cross blowing date, even if pitched at a deliberately laid-back level, but Turner and Shull make a surprisingly compatible team, the more classic sound of the latter a piquant counter to Turner's timbre.

 Mark Turner Warner Bros 9 46701-2 Turner; Joshua Redman (ts); Edward Simon (p); Christopher Thomas (b); Brian Blade (d). 12/95.

Turner's first for a major (though it was produced by Gerry Teekens, like the last one – so was originally meant for Criss Cross?) is not quite the departure the debut was: it's more in a specific tenor-plus-rhythm vocabulary, perhaps. But what a vocabulary! Redman guests on three tracks and creates a quite sublime contrapuntalism, complementary rather than competitive, though some terrific sparks are struck on the fade to the opening 'Mr Brown'. Maybe the solos on this one reach a tad self-consciously for the limits, but these are players who know what they're doing. Tristano's '327 East 32nd Street' is another fine pair-off, but the grandest set-piece is on a rather obscure Ornette Coleman tune, 'Kathelin Gray'. Simon contributes a gorgeous solo to this one and the tenors work together like their operatic counterparts, stately, full-throated and in rapturous counterpoint.

Turner has the rest of the date to himself – though Simon, Thomas and Blade are the most resourceful of teams behind him – and, while there's no more of his own writing, the improvisations on 'Autumn In New York' and Coltrane's '26-2' are proof of his composer's mind. He has one of the most appealing tenor sounds of recent times, flitting around the highest reaches of the horn without sounding thin or stretched, and hearing him nourish a melody line with it is very satisfying.

 In This World Warner Bros 9362-47074-2 Turner; Brad Mehldau (p); Kurt Rosenwinkel (g); Larry Grenadier (b); Brian Blade, Jorge Rossy (d). 6/98.

A superb continuation, with Turner and Mehldau seemingly reading each other's minds at some points. An original such as 'Lennie Groove' is straight out of its inspiration, yet settled squarely into a more contemporary, multi-levelled climate of expression. Turner's confidence in his altissimo range is growing all the time, his tone lean but never under strain, and when he improvises at speed the absence of cliché can be thrilling, even as he projects an implacable sense of calm. Rossy sits alongside Blade on the final pair of tracks, while Rosenwinkel is on only three but is also a telling contributor. Quite a dense and demanding record, but immensely satisfying. Sadly, the other discs are deleted and there's been nothing since.

Steve Turre (born 1948)

TROMBONE, SHELLS

An in-demand brassman throughout the '70s, '80s and '90s, Turre's occasional albums as leader have investigated a series of increasingly fanciful fusions of idiom, with his shell-playing often taking a strong role.

 In The Spur Of The Moment Telarc CD-83484 Turre; Ray Charles, Stephen Scott, Chucho Valdes (p); Peter Washington, Buster Williams, Andy Gonzalez (b); Peter Turre, Jack DeJohnette, Horacio 'El Negro' Hernandez (d); Quartette Indigo. 8–10/99.
 TNT Telarc CD-83529 Turre; James Carter, Dewey Redman, David Sanchez (ts); Mulgrew Miller, Stephen Scott (p); Buster Williams, Peter Washington (b); Victor Lewis, Lewis Nash (d); Giovanni Haidalgo (perc). 11/00.

Turre's albums have always been mix 'n' match affairs, and his new efforts for Telarc are no exception. In The Spur Of The Moment pulls off the coup of bringing Ray Charles into a quartet setting for four tracks. There are two other trios in support of Turre as well: the one with Chucho Valdes is predictably souped-up, with the pianist sounding like he's been at the rocket fuel again, while the one with Stephen Scott is the best of the lot, and 'Something For John' is the outstanding piece on the whole set. Good bits and pieces, but as an album it doesn't really hang together.

Nor, frankly, does TNT. Again, it's three groups (though Scott, Washington and Nash are common to two) and three tenors, but the obsessive variation in sound and style merely distracts from the good stuff on the record, which includes a nicely chirpy 'Puente Of Soul' with Sanchez. Turre himself sounds bleary on the slower pieces and the tenormen tend to traipse on and off without really getting into whatever spirit was supposed to fuel the thing.

 One4J Telarc CD-83555 Turre; Joe Alessi, Steve Davis, Robin Eubanks, Andre Hayward, Douglas Purviance (tb); Renee Rosnes, Stephen Scott (p); Peter Washington (b); Victor Lewis (d); Abou M'Boup (perc). N.D.

Not bad. Turre tips his slide to J. J. Johnson, and brings along five fellow bone-men to help him out. Joe Alessi, who is lead trombone for the New York Philharmonic, does rather show up some of the others in terms of tone and technique. Mostly it's about celebrating the trombone as a plausible front-line instrument, with tracks involving the sort of two-bone workouts which Kai and J. J. once did, as well as all of them getting stuck into 'El Camino Real' and a nippy 'Wee Dot' for four horns. Besides the playing, the record does remind one of Johnson's composing skills, since eight of the tunes are by him. The album does eventually pall a bit, even though it's perhaps meant to prove the trombone's staying power.

(*) The Spirits Up Above Half Note 7130 Turre; James Carter, Vincent Herring (reeds); Dave Valentin (f); Mulgrew Miller (p); Buster Williams (b); Winard Harper (d); chorus. 5/04.

A delightful tribute to Rahsaan Roland Kirk, with some clever reinventions of themes which have rarely been handled by anyone else. 'Three For The Festival' is a great opener, followed by the only Turre composition of the set, a short tribute to the great multi-instrumentalist. Other highlights – though everything this band does is at a high – include 'Serenade To A Cuckoo' medleyed with 'Bright Moments' and with a nice flute part, and the closing 'Volunteered Slavery', which is titanic. Note that it takes three horns (and a woodwind) to get even close to the Kirk wall of sound.

 Keep Searchin' High Note HCD 7159 Turre; Xavier Davis (p); Stefon Harris (vib); Akua Dixon (vn); Gerald Cannon, Peter Washington (b); Dion Parson (d). 4/06.

Turre's search for a sympathetic label seems to be over for the moment. The run of High Notes is proving to be a happy one for the trombonist, a chance to blow with a sympathetic and creative band, but without the pointless elaboration that overtook some of his major label projects. One senses that Turre has settled for a role as band player rather than superstar. There's a workmanlike modesty to his playing on parts of this, a new spirit which we rather like. Grachan Moncur's 'Thandiwa' and 'My Funny Valentine' would be our picks, but Turre's own compositions are attractive enough and merit return visits.

Stanley Turrentine (1934–2000)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Father Thomas played with the Savoy Sultans, and brother Tommy was a hard-bop trumpeter. 'Mr T' worked in R&B bands in the '50s before joining Max Roach and then cutting albums for Blue Note from 1960, and with Shirley Scott for Prestige. Had crossover success in the '70s but moved back to more straight-ahead playing and latterly divided his time between both situations.

 Blue Hour – The Complete Sessions Blue Note 24586-2 2CD Turrentine; Gene Harris (p); Andrew Simpkins (b); Bill Dowdy (d). 6–12/60.
(*) Up At Minton's Blue Note 28885-2 2CD Turrentine; Horace Parlan (p); Grant Green (g); George Tucker (b); Al Harewood (d). 2/61.
 That's Where It's At Blue Note 11495-2 Turrentine; Les McCann (p); Herbie Lewis (b); Otis Finch (d). 2/62.
(*) Never Let Me Go Blue Note 76750-2 Turrentine; Shirley Scott (org); Major Holley, Sam Jones (b); Al Harewood, Clarence Johnston (d); Ray Barretto (perc). 1–2/63.
 Hustlin' Blue Note 84162 Turrentine; Shirley Scott (org); Kenny Burrell (g); Bob Cranshaw (b); Otis Finch (d). 64.
 Joyride Blue Note 37766 Turrentine; Herbie Hancock (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Bob Cranshaw (b); Grady Tate (d); orchestra conducted by Oliver Nelson. 4/65.
 Rough 'n' Tumble Blue Note 24552-2 Turrentine; Blue Mitchell (t); James Spaulding (as); Pepper Adams (bs); McCoy Tyner (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Mickey Roker (d). 7/66.
(*) The Spoiler Blue Note 74224 Turrentine; Blue Mitchell (t); Julian Priester (tb); James Spaulding (as, f); Pepper Adams (bs); McCoy Tyner (p); Bob Cranshaw (b); Mickey Roker (d). 9/66.

Turrentine's bluesy soul-jazz enjoyed considerable commercial success in the '60s and after. His forte was the mid-tempo blues, often in minor keys, played with a vibrato as broad as his grin. A long sequence of Blue Note albums started as far back as 1960 (Look Out!) and ended in 1969 with Ain't No Way, but their availability seems to confound expectation, and Stan The Man's records seem to come and go from that catalogue with bemusing rapidity. So snap up Rough 'n' Tumble quickly if you want it. Typical Turrentine, the big blue sound sailed over Duke Pearson's functional but effective horn charts, with Green and Tyner getting in some artful fills here and there. Very enjoyable, if scarcely any kind of classic.

At least the twofer Up At Minton's seems to be more of a fixture, the original pair of albums spread across a mid-price double-CD. A pity that brother Tommy, who'd been on Jubilee Shout a month earlier, didn't make the date, but it's a fine opportunity to hear Stan stretching out with a willing team, as well as some splendid work from Green, whose star seems to have risen dramatically again in the last few years – sad that it had to be a posthumous acclaim. Blue Hour offers the 1960 date where The Three Sounds backed Turrentine on his debut session (originally shelved because the producer felt Mr T had outplayed his hit act) and all the tracks from Blue Hour itself: Harris does sound more subdued than usual here and there, and two discs of low-flame cooking is a bit of a marathon, but track for track it's soulful and satisfying.

Never Let Me Go is one of our favourites out of his many records: the fast numbers go with a muscular bounce, and there's a simply gorgeous treatment of 'God Bless The Child' which is like a duet for Stan and Shirley. That's Where It's At is interesting for a rare sighting of Les McCann on Blue Note, in what was almost the only time he and Turrentine recorded together. The programme is nearly all blues and it could use a little more variety, but the playing is very chipper.

A few further reissues since our last edition. Hustlin' sounds very handsome in its new RVG edition; 'Love Letters' and 'The Hustler' are good examples of the Stan/Shirley chemistry. Joyride's a rumbustious big-band date with Stan booming out over a top-drawer orchestra which boasts some fine players in rather anonymous roles; Oliver Nelson did the charts. The Spoiler is another good record. Reacquaintance promotes it among our very favourites, though again the all-star band could be a bunch of by-the-hour pros for all the attention they get. Duke Pearson's arrangements are spot-on.

Also, in brief:

 A Bluish Bag Blue Note 85193. 2 & 6/67.

Received close to press-time. A useful compilation of Stanley Turrentine and New Time Shuffle, which were only released in the mid-to-late '70s.

 Sugar CTI/Epic 5051732. 11/70–7/71.

'Post-boogaloo'? Well, certainly in transition from hard-bop to pop.

 Pieces Of Dreams /  Everybody Come On Out / (*) The Best Of Mr T Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 831 / 911 / Fantasy 7708. 7/74; 3/76; N.D.

Despite a partial return to jazz in later decades, Stan moved over almost permanently to pop and there are only a few identifiable phrases poking through the candied, synthetic gloom on these.

Dick Twardzik (1931–55)

PIANO

Best known for his 'Yellow Waltz'. Died of a heroin overdose.

(*) Complete Recordings Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10120 Twardzik; Carson Smith (b); Peter Littman (d). 54.

Best known for his work with Charlie Mariano, Serge Chaloff and Chet Baker, Twardzik did manage to record a few things, solo and in trio, for Pacific, and Lone Hill have managed to compile these with a couple of rehearsal extracts and concert tapes. The quality is inevitably variable but as a snapshot of a lost talent it's hard to beat.

Charles Tyler (1941–92)

BARITONE AND ALTO SAXOPHONES

Met Albert Ayler in Cleveland and followed him to NYC. Though possessed of a big, boisterous sound, he rarely gained the spotlight.

 Charles Tyler Ensemble ESP 1029 Tyler; Charles Moffett (vib); Joel Friedman (clo); Henry Grimes (b); Ronald Shannon Jackson (d). 2/66.

 Eastern Man Alone ESP 1059 Tyler: David Baker (clo); Brent McKesson, Kent Brinkley (b). 1/67.

There's not much music on these early ESPs, less than half an hour on the first of them, but Tyler's booming sound and the fascinating combination of instruments keeps the interest level high. The second album is half as long again, but unfortunately this innovative line-up doesn't sustain interest quite as long. ESP's standing as a laboratory of new jazz is confirmed in these. They have a workshop feel, but Tyler's ideas, often seeming to derive from Eastern music as much as bebop or free jazz, have some durability.

 Autumn In Paris Silkheart SH118 Tyler; Arne Forsén (p); Ulf Åkerhielm (b); Gilbert Matthews (d). 88.

Two decades on, Tyler is still a distinctive solo voice, but somewhat like Archie Shepp has traded in the fierce innovation of early records for a more romantic and accommodating sound (on alto now), and for a career on the European circuit with variable bands. The so-called Brus Trio do him proud on this set, which remains fresh after several hearings. Much of the writing is left to other group members, but Tyler's 'Twing Twang Twiddle All Night Long' is a delightful curiosity, as is the opening 'Song Of Outlaws'.

McCoy Tyner (born 1938)

PIANO, KOTO, DULCIMER, FLUTE, PERCUSSION

Born in Philadelphia, he worked locally before meeting John Coltrane in 1959. A member of the classic quartet for six years, he also made his own records and later continued leading medium-sized groups as well as working in a trio situation. In the '80s and '90s he made records for several labels, in solo, small-group and big-band settings. His grand style and rich tonality remain a major influence.

(*) Inception Impulse! 051220-2 Tyner; Art Davis (b); Elvin Jones (d). 1/62.

 Nights Of Ballads And Blues Impulse! 051221-2 Tyner; Steve Davis (b); Lex Humphries (d). 3/63.

(*) Plays Ellington Impulse! 051216-2 Tyner; Jimmy Garrison (b); Elvin Jones (d); Willie Rodriguez, Johnny Pacheco (perc). 12/64.

Tyner was still with John Coltrane's group when he started making records under his own name. While these early sessions add little to what he was doing with the saxophonist, they do reveal what the pianist was doing more clearly than the engine-room of the Coltrane band could allow. Impulse! have now reorganized his output into a clear sequence of single-disc reissues. Inception was Tyner's debut as a leader. He had yet to build his playing into the massive, orchestral concept which came later. His variations on his own 'Inception' and 'Blues For Gwen' are beautifully bright and lively, echoing Coltrane's own comment in the sleeve-note on how the pianist would use unusual clusters to illuminate his structures. Reaching Fourth came back briefly but has been deleted again. Nights Of Ballads And Blues is all jazz standards or pop tunes, and it is perhaps a degree more ordinary, yet the playing is unfailingly strong. The Ellington album is disappointing: Tyner's romanticism emerges, but his interpretative bent seems untested by the likes of 'Satin Doll' – it works better on the Ballads And Blues version – and the addition of the percussionists on four tracks seems like nothing but a gimmick. This is a very attractive sequence in the Impulse! digipak format, and though we find that Rudy Van Gelder's piano sound remains cloudy and unsympathetic, the records probably sound as good as they ever will.

 The Real McCoy
Blue Note 97807-2 Tyner; Joe Henderson (ts); Ron Carter (b); Elvin Jones (d). 4/67.

A key album in Tyner's discography. On the face of it, the music might be a direct extension of the Coltrane group, with Henderson substituting for Trane. But with Tyner calling the tunes, it sounds quite different: dynamics are much more varied, form is more finely articulated, and while the band pushes at the limits of tonality and metre alike, it never quite breaches them. The opening 'Passion Dance' is a definitive Tyner composition: structured round a single key but pounding through a metre which the leader noted as 'evoking ritual and trance-like states', it gathers power through the piano and saxophone statements until it sounds ready to explode; yet the concluding regrouping and subsequent variations are resolved immaculately. 'Contemplation', 'Four By Five' and 'Search For Peace' explore this brinkmanship further, through 3/4, 4/4 and 5/4 rhythms and fragments of melody which are enough to fuel all of the band's manoeuvres. Henderson is superbly resolute in avoiding cliché, Carter and Jones work with dramatic compatibility, and Tyner's own playing exults in some of his discoveries learnt over the previous three years. His grand pedal-chords and fluttering right-hand lines establish the classic patterns of call and response which have dominated his manner ever since, and the sound he gets is peculiarly translucent, enabling one to hear through the clusters and follow all of his complex lines. Very highly recommended. It has been remastered as part of the Rudy Van Gelder Edition and sounds better than ever.

 Time For Tyner
Blue Note 63840 Tyner; Bobby Hutcherson (vib); Herbie Lewis (b); Freddie Waits (d). 5/68.

This wasn't the first time Tyner and Hutcherson had recorded together, but it set the tone for a partnership which has been intermittently convened ever since, and the record is a powerhouse performance from first to last. 'African Village' swarms with music and ideas, vibes and keyboard seeming to rush over one another; 'Little Madimba' works off a classic Tyner vamp; 'May Street' reworks another of his signature ideas. There are a warm reading of 'I Didn't Know What Time It Was', the melody offset by a recurring bass motif; a trio version of 'Surrey With The Fringe On Top'; and a final piano solo treatment of 'I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face'.

 Sahara Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 311 Tyner; Sonny Fortune (ss, as, f); Calvin Hill (b, perc); Alphonse Mouzon (d, t, f). 1/72.

Another important record for Tyner. After leaving Blue Note (several of his last sessions for them are currently missing), his career floundered until he was signed by Milestone: his first release, Sahara, was a poll-winning record which established his course for the '70s. Mouzon couldn't have played the way he does but for Elvin Jones, yet his choked cymbals and relentless emphasis of the beat are very different from Jones's polyrhythmic swells. Fortune plays with uproarious power and velocity, and his solo on 'Rebirth' is electrifying; but his is essentially a decorative role, while the pianist drives and dominates the music. The group acts as the opposing face to Cecil Taylor's brand of energy music: controlled by harmonic and metrical ground-rules, nobody flies for freedom, but there is a compensating jubilation in the leader's mighty utterance. 'Sahara' and 'Ebony Queen' best express that here, although the piano solo, 'A Prayer For My Family', is a useful oasis of calm. Later Tyner records would be better engineered and realized, but this one remains excitingly fresh.

 Song For My Lady Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 313 As above, except add Charles Tolliver (flhn); Michael White (vn); Mtume (perc). 9–11/72.
(*) Echoes Of A Friend Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 650 Tyner (p solo). 11/72.
(*) Enlightenment Milestone MCD-55001-2 Tyner; Azar Lawrence (ss, ts); Juni Booth (b); Alphonse Mouzon (d). 7/73.
(*) Atlantis Milestone MCD-55002-2 Tyner; Azar Lawrence (ss, ts); Juni Booth (b); Willy Fletcher (d); Guilherme Franco (perc). 8–9/74.
 Trident Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 720 Tyner; Ron Carter (b); Elvin Jones (d). 2/75.
(*) Focal Point Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1009 Tyner; Gary Bartz (cl, sno, ss, as); Joe Ford (ss, as, f); Ron Bridgewater (ss, ts); Charles Fambrough (b); Eric Gravatt (d); Guilherme Franco (perc). 8/76.
 Counterpoints Milestone MCD 9339-2 Tyner; Ron Carter (b); Tony Williams (d). 7/78.

Following the success of Sahara, Tyner embarked on a regular schedule of recording and found himself a popular concert draw at last. The music certainly sounded at home among 'progressive' trends in rock and beyond, although the pianist's beefy romanticism had a lot more profundity in it than most such music-making. Song For My Lady varied the cast of the previous disc by adding Michael White and Charles Tolliver to two open-ended pieces, but it was the lyricism of the title-track and Tyner's solo outing, 'A Silent Tear', which were most impressive. Echoes Of A Friend is a solo tribute to John Coltrane which resounds with all the grand exhortation which the pianist can wring from the keyboard. Atlantis and Enlightenment are two huge, sprawling concert recordings which will drain most listeners: Tyner's piano outpourings seem unstoppable, and Lawrence comes on as an even fierier spirit than Fortune, even if both are in thrall to Coltrane. The Enlightenment set, cut at Montreux, is marginally superior, if only for the pile-driving 'Walk Spirit, Talk Spirit'. But Atlantis is still very strong, with a majestic turn through 'My One And Only Love' and another torrential group performance on the title-piece.

It was this kind of incantatory concert form which began to make Tyner's output sound overcrowded with effort: without the ability to soar away from structure, the music could seem bloated, as if packed with steroids. His other Milestone records of the period compensate with varied settings. Trident reunited Tyner with Elvin Jones, but the results were genial rather than passionate. Focal Point looks to secure the firepower in the studio which the band generated in concert; the horns are made even more massive via overdubbing, and this sometimes leads to stiffness in the ensemble sound. 'Parody' is an exultant duet for piano and drums. A neglected album in Tyner's canon, and we were a little surprised to find how well it's aged in this new CD edition.

Counterpoints offers music from the 1978 concert which was also the source for a record called Passion Dance. Williams tends to overplay, as if competing with Tyner rather than conferring with him, and some of the pieces suffer from the familiar problem of too many notes; but the grandeur of the playing is sometimes enough by itself.

(*) Supertrios Milestone MCD 55003-2 Tyner; Ron Carter, Eddie Gomez (b); Tony Williams, Jack DeJohnette (d). 4/77.
 Quartets 4 × 4 Milestone MCD-55007-2 Tyner; Freddie Hubbard (t); Arthur Blythe (as); Bobby Hutcherson (vib); John Abercrombie (g); Cecil McBee (b); Al Foster (d). 3–5/80.
Shrewdly balanced between show-tunes, jazz standards and Tyner originals, the double-trio event, with Tyner meeting Gomez and DeJohnette on one date and Carter and Williams on the other, is a memorable one. Almost 15 years after his first trio records, Tyner's methods have taken on an invincible assurance, and with musicians like these he is working at his highest level. The session with Carter and Williams is slightly the more invigorating, with pianist and drummer working trenchantly through 'I Mean You' and 'A Moment's Notice', which stands out among many versions the pianist has played.

The album of quartets, with Abercrombie, Hubbard, Blythe and Hutcherson taking turns as the star guest, is pretty disappointing, given the personnel. Everyone plays politely rather than with any pressing need to communicate anything, and as a result it's perhaps the meeting with Hutcherson, most thoughtful of musicians, which comes off best.

(*) Uptown/Downtown Milestone MCD 9167 Tyner; Virgil Jones, Earl Gardner, Kamau Adilifu (t); Robin Eubanks (tb); Steve Turre (tb, didjeridu); John Clark (frhn); Joe Ford, Doug Harris (ss, as); Ricky Ford, Junior Cook (ts); Howard Johnson (tba); Avery Sharpe (b); Louis Hayes (d); Steve Thornton (perc). 11/88.
A memorable departure for Tyner, which he built on with his subsequent Birdology albums. The six charts here amplify the sweep of his groups of the '70s, and the miracle is that it comes across as expansive and uncongested. Although he hardly seems like a big-band pianist, his own solos seem able to raise the already grand sound of the orchestra to an even higher level, and the choice of horn soloists – Joe Ford, Turre, Cook, Ricky Ford – makes for a thrillingly coloured and barnstorming effect. Five of the pieces are Tyner originals, the sixth is by Steve Turre, and nothing misfires; even the live sound is good enough to expose the few touches of under-rehearsal which slip through.

* Soliloquy Blue Note 796429-2 Tyner (p solo). 2/91.
Tyner's third solo outing for Blue Note completes a triptych that sums up his art: rushing, open-hearted, grand of gesture, ineffably romantic, muscular, florid. He still takes every chance to overplay his hand, but that is his way: 'Willow Weep For Me', for instance, is about as aggressive a version of this tune as has ever been recorded. Yet his best melodies – either written or improvised out of tunes by Powell, Coltrane and, surprisingly, Dexter Gordon – are as communicative as they are powerful. He has written for long enough to make his own choices of tune a reflection on his own dynasty: 'Effendi' dates back to his earliest Impulse! sessions, 'Española' – a haunting use of the Spanish tinge – is brand new, and both are performed with fine evocative skill. Like its predecessors the album was recorded at Merkin Hall in New York, and the piano sound is superb.

 Warsaw Concert 1991 Fresh Sound FSRCD 185 Tyner (p solo). 10/91.
A fêted appearance at the famous Jazz Jamboree from later that same year. Tyner's appearance at the Sala Congresowa had the hallmarks of a manifestation, and he delivered a set of originals, Monk tunes and standards that left the crowd rapt and rapturous. Some of that great presence comes across, even on a relatively indifferent recording, though the piano sound is mostly quite true.

* Manhattan Moods Blue Note 828423-2 Tyner; Bobby Hutcherson (vib, mar). 12/93.
They've met before with auspicious results, but this encounter is pure bliss from first to last. Instead of the instruments cancelling each other out, as is often the case in this kind of situation, the keyboard and vibes entwine to create textures of ecstatic beauty – limpid, resonant, revealing. Tyner allows Hutcherson to take centre stage for much of the time, even if the piano is slightly the more forward in the mix, and Bobby responds with some of his most rapt playing. One could complain that they might have chosen some fresher tunes to play, but the results tend to sweep aside reservations. The closing look at 'For Heaven's Sake' is on a par with Hutcherson's superlative version with Kenny Barron (discussed under the pianist's name).

 Infinity Impulse! 11712 Tyner; Michael Brecker (ts); Avery Sharpe (b); Aaron Scott (d); Waltinho Anastacio (perc). 94.
 Prelude And Sonata Milestone MCD-9244-2 Tyner; Joshua Redman (ts); Antonio Hart (as); Christian McBride (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 11/94.
Infinity marked the return of Impulse! as a 'new' jazz label, and it's fitting that it should be Tyner who started it off. This isn't one of his greatest: Brecker could have been the fall-guy here, cast in the Coltrane role, but he manages to sidestep too many of the comparisons without finally convincing that he needn't walk in giant steps. Prelude And Sonata is basically a ballad album, bookended with pieces of Chopin and Beethoven; it's interesting to note that McBride and Smith – for all their star status – are no more an appropriate match for Tyner than the undervalued Sharpe and Scott. The saxophonists play well, but this kind of session has become a commonplace which Tyner doesn't respond to especially well. He plays professionally on both records without ever getting into his top gear.

(*) McCoy Tyner And The Latin All-Stars Telarc CD-83462 Tyner; Claudio Roditi (t, flhn); Steve Turre (tb, shells); Gary Bartz (ss, as); Dave Valentin (f); Avery Sharpe (b); Ignacio Berroa (d); Giovanni Hidalgo, Johnny Almendra (perc). 7/98.
He's gone to yet another new label, and it's amusing to find that this fresh start has found him, if anything, returning to his glory days of the '70s Milestone bands. Bartz goes all the way back to Asante (see below, 'in brief'), and the rest of the group know better than to try and upstage the master. If anyone can make a 'Latin-Jazz' album without submitting to the tyranny of that rhythm, it's Tyner – all he really does is fit the expected sunshine-shuffle into his own thunderous drive, and the result is his most characteristic set for years. Valentin plays a few silly solos, but he's largely rendered harmless by the situation, and there's some excellent work from the other horns, especially Turre. Tyner's latest thoughts on 'Afro Blue' are a highlight, and the farewell parade through 'Blue Bossa' sends us out with a cheer.

(*) McCoy Tyner With Stanley Clarke And Al Foster Telarc CD-83488 Tyner; Stanley Clarke (b); Al Foster (d). 4/99.
All-star again, underlined by all three names appearing in the album title. Clarke divides his time between electric and stand-up instrument, and one piece, 'I Want To Tell You 'Bout That', gets a version with each option (predictably, the 'electric' rendition is zippier). These are three individual stylists still in top fettle, and the record is no disappointment, even if it's clear that at this point McCoy is going to spend the rest of his career musing on what he's already achieved.

(*) Jazz Roots Telarc CD-83507 Tyner (p solo). 6/00.
Whatever music Tyner has left in him, it feels like its most personal cast is going to come out when he's playing solo. If there's little left for him to discover in a group situation, by himself he can touch on reserves and refinements which are going to brighten and invigorate even a tired old concept like this, a homage to 'the jazz piano legends of the 20th century'. There are bows made in the direction of Powell, Evans, Hines, Tatum, Jarrett and Corea; although none of them sound like McCoy 'doing' the player in question, even if he gets, say, the Hines insouciance down pretty well on 'Blues For Fatha'. It's the great ebullience, the intensely dark sonorities lit up by sudden fireworks and the big man's tenderness (especially on the finale to 'My Foolish Heart') which really strike home.

(*) Land Of Giants Telarc CD-83576 Tyner; Bobby Hutcherson (vib); Charnett Moffett (b); Eric Harland (d). 12/02.
The title recalls an old lament, 'there were giants in those days', and it might suggest a poignant nod to a jazz continuum passing into history. After all, Tyner and Hutcherson, once the fieriest of young turks, are suddenly elder statesmen with their groundbreaking days far behind them. And some of these tunes are the matter of autumnal reflection, for sure: 'December', 'For All We Know' and 'Contemplation' among them. But Moffett and Harland are young(ish) men with remits of their own, and they play some stirring stuff behind the old masters – at times the music reaches a very fast boil. The drummer in particular overplays, although one feels that that has to be better than mere respectful timekeeping, which would send everything to sleep. Jack Renner's engineering creates a big stage with depth and immediacy, and helps sort out what must be a crowded live sound. Maybe it is, in the end, just a jog round the park for virtuoso players, but it's a very satisfying listen.

 Illuminations Telarc CD-83599 Tyner; Terence Blanchard (t); Gary Bartz (as); Christian McBride (b); Lewis Nash (d). 11/03.
In a way, this is more of the same. More than one generation involved, and varying levels of seniority and star appeal. They could have coasted through it, and maybe they do, here and there. But it's a pleasure to hear Blanchard back in a straight-ahead role, Bartz, who can sound sardonic when the mood takes him, is fully committed, and the trio is as unimpeachable as you'd expect.

* McCoy Tyner Quartet McCoy Tyner 924533 Tyner; Joe Lovano (ts); Christian McBride (b); Jeff 'Tain' Watts (d). 12/06.
What a burden of history and weight of expectation must have fallen on Lovano, McBride and Watts over this post-Christmas residency at Yoshi's in Oakland. But is this a 'classic quartet' in the manner of its most obvious model? Certainly, Lovano approaches the date with the gravitas and commitment appropriate to such an impression, but there's nothing showy or ritualistic about the performance. Tyner's sidemen respond to his music with considerable intelligence and Lovano's work on 'Sama Layuca', a part originally written for flute, is disciplined and exemplary. 'Walk Spirit, Talk Spirit' makes for a fascinating opener, with Tyner's rich harmonic language flooding the space with the familiar blend of familiarity and strangeness. It's almost impossible not to improvise off these chords and progressions, and all three group members seem to find it inspirational.

Also, in brief:

 Asante Blue Note 93384-2. 7–9/70.
A transitional record, not released at the time, which sees him feeling his way towards a more pan-cultural feel.

(*) Song Of The New World Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 618. 4/73.
A big orchestra, but not deployed to any bountiful purpose.

 Fly With The Wind Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 699. 1/76.
The strings seem to paper over any energy.

 Plays John Coltrane: Live At The Village Vanguard Impulse! 589183. 9/97.
A predictable enough project, delivered with unsurprising authority, but no great revelations.

 Afro Blue Telarc 83862. 98–03.
A nice compilation of Tyner's work for the label over a five-year period.

Hiromi Uehara (born 1979)

PIANO

A Japanese piano scholar who was turned on to Oscar Peterson by her mother, but now an Ahmad Jamal protégée working in the US.

() Another Mind Telarc SACD-63558 Uehara; Jim Odgren (as); David Fiuczynski (g); Mitch Cohn, Anthony Jackson (b); Dave DiCenso (d). 9/02.
 Brain / (*) Spiral Telarc SACD 83600 / 63631 Uehara; Tony Grey, Anthony Jackson (b); Martin Valihora (d). 04; 06.
 Time Control Telarc 83655 As above, except add David Fiuczynski (g). 10/06.
The SACD sound on the mostly acoustic Telarc debut is stunning, but the music's more numbing than anything. Uehara (although her record company would prefer her first name to be highlighted) presides over what's really a tumultuously busy fusion record, driven into hyperdrive by DiCenso's infuriatingly overcooked drumming. By accenting her left-hand lines more than usually, she at least gets a heavier texture than one normally expects from the piano/bass/drums trinity. Mostly, though, this is energy and technique flailing all over the place. The closing piano solo makes a welcome respite.

The follow-ups take her off into wild and uncharted territory, weaving together crossover sounds into a soundscape that increasingly defies categorization and sometimes tests patience. 'Music For Three Piece Orchestra' on Spiral is a multi-part piece that's probably too pretentious for its own good, though the pretentiousness doesn't necessarily stretch far beyond the title. The addition of 'Fuze' on Time Control varies the group sound a bit, but, by and large, Hiromi has devised her language – often exciting, sometimes maddeningly self-referential and different-for-the-sake-of-it – and for the moment she and her label are content to mine the seam. A Live At Pershing for the 00s? We somehow doubt it, though Ahmad Jamal insists she's heir to that constituency.

Federico Ughi (born 1972)

DRUMS, VOICE

Grew up in Rome, moved to England and then the US, where he studied with Paul Bley. He leads After Breakfast and has a long association with multi-instrumentalist Daniel Carter.

 The Space Within Slam CD 236 Ughi; Steve Buckley (as); Rachel Musson (ts); Matthew F. Morris (bs). 10/98.

Ughi is a notably delicate player, much more interested in the accidentals and overtones he can conjure from his kit than he is in power and circumstance. His duets with Carter (still perhaps to be found on 577 Records) are superb. Saxophones are very much in the foreground on The Space Within, a series of duets recorded in London before Ughi's departure for America. These are patchy sessions, sometimes brilliant as when he locks horns with Buckley, occasionally drab and uncommunicative, but no one can miss the enthusiasm and care with which Ughi approaches any playing situation. Nothing from him for some time: how's he faring?

Birgit Ulher (born 1961)

TRUMPET

Raised in Nuremberg and based in Hamburg since 1982, where she organizes the Real Time Music festival. Originally studied visual arts, but has developed an impressive new language for trumpet which almost completely eschews open sounds. Also a member of the groups UNSK, PUT and Nordzucker.

 Air Mail Hybrid HMP CD 13 Ulher; Wolfgang Ritthoff (perc). 4 & 6/96.

(*) Slants Unit UTR 4142 Ulher; Ernst Thoma (live elec). 4/03.

 Landscape: Recognizable Creative Sources CS 037 Ulher; Lou Mallozzi (turntables, etc); Michael Zerang (d, perc, etc). 6/04.

* Sputter Creative Sources CS 042 Ulher; Gino Robair (energized surfaces). 11/04.

* Sperrgut Balance Point Acoustics Bpa 009 Ulher; Damon Smith (b); Martin Blume (perc). 10/04.

* Scatter Creative Sources CS 054 Ulher (t solo). 4/05.

The Steve Lacyish titles give some sense of Ulher's tightly compressed but resolutely non-idiomatic approach to trumpet playing. Unlike others – Axel Dörner, say – who have explored radical techniques, she does always retain something of the instrument's timbral quality, even when, as on the magnificent Scatter, the material is devoid of recognizable attacks and familiar pitch patterns.

Gebhard Ullmann (born 1957)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, BASS CLARINET, FLUTE, BASS AND ALTO FLUTES, PICCOLO

An eclectic reedman who shuttles between Berlin and New York.

(*) Basement Research Soul Note 12171-2 Ullmann; Ellery Eskelin (ts); Drew Gress (b); Phil Haynes (d). 11/93.

Ullmann's albums from the '90s are a diverse lot. The meeting with the Eskelin/Gress/Haynes trio on Basement Research is different again. Ullmann is stepping into a trio environment where the players already know one another well, and he's welcomed cautiously, though there's some provocative duelling for space. If Eskelin is the further out of the two players, Ullmann's primarily cool extremism is still cutting-edge, and the tracks in which the two both play tenor have a splendidly combative element.

 Tá Lam Songlines SGL 1520-2 Ullmann; Dirk Engelhardt (ss, ts, bcl); Thomas Klemm (ts, f); Jürgen Kupke (cl); Joachim Litty (acl, bcl, as); Heiner Reinhardt (bcl); Volker Schlott (ss, as, f); Hans Hassler (acc). 8/91–3/94.

What an extraordinary record Tá Lam is. Ullmann summons a great phalanx of reed-players (and overdubs himself on five other tracks, playing nine different horns) in a collection of pieces that blend free-for-all uproar with a lumbering, symphonic delivery that is sometimes too weighty for its own good. A bizarre arrangement of 'Mack The Knife' will turn enough heads, but what about the crescendo (and diminuendo) of 'Think Tank', or the way odd-man-out Hassler scampers in and around the saxophone army? Beautifully recorded, this is an intriguing disc, and its ration of near-misses shouldn't stop the curious from investigating. Confusingly, there is a slightly earlier set with the same title (see below, 'in brief').

(*) Kreuzberg Park East Soul Note 121371-2 Ullmann; Ellery Eskelin (ts); Drew Gress (b); Phil Haynes (d). 5/97.

A return match for Basement Research. Stylistically, this is a more diverse record, with Ullmann the composer keen to display his range, which stretches from the stealthy whisperings of 'Flutist With Hat And Shoe' to the vertiginous contrapuntal melodies of 'Almost Twenty-Eight'. It's all meat and drink to Eskelin and the others, who remain unfazed by whatever the leader throws their way. Good-humoured and rarely without an absorbing moment.

 The Clarinet Trio Oct. 1, '98 / (*) Translucent Tones Leo Lab CD 058 / Leo LR 339 Ullmann; Jürgen Kupke (cl); Theo Nabicht (bcl). 9–10/98; 8/01.

(*) Translucent Tones Leo LR 339 As above. 8/01.

* Ballads And Related Objects Leo LR 415 As above, except omit Nabicht; add Michael Thieke (cl, acl). 8/03.

Clarinet and two bass clarinets, in another packed record of miniatures – 19 despatched inside 55 minutes. There is some overdubbing here and there to give the reeds even more weight, but mostly they rely on the attractive ambience of an old chamber-music hall in Berlin. Since nothing outstays its welcome, none of the pieces have their impact blunted; though dropping in 'Tea For Two' halfway through is a flippancy which doesn't really chime with an otherwise often severe outlook. For specialist tastes, but well done. As is the successor: since it's not a band convened all that often, one suspects, it's hard to detect what might be considered conventional growth and maturing, but the wit is an ounce sharper, the ballad lines a degree warmer, the reflexes a measure quicker.

Album three introduces a new recruit to the team in Michael Thieke. A baker's dozen of pieces, but, as Ullmann says, it's performed as a single suite. And they just get better. There's something less appealing about their free music, possibly because when they put solos on top of arranged counterpoint, it can often be bewitchingly beautiful, and that's what the group does best.

 Basement Research: Live In Münster Not Two MW 773 Ullmann; Tony Malaby (ts); Drew Gress (b); Phil Haynes (d). 10/99.
A fine, high-energy date from the quartet, with the consistently marvellous Malaby holding his own in this eldritch but not unsubtle setting. 'Blaues Lied' is great and the set never quite lives up to the fantastic start, though others have identified 'Kreuzberg Park East' as the highlight. Another strong release from the eclectic Polish label.

(*) Variations On A Master Plan Leo LR 371 Ullmann; Michael Jefry Stevens (p); Joe Fonda (b); Han Bennink (d). 3/01.
 Final Answer Soul Note 121391-2 As above, except omit Bennink; add Matt Wilson (d). 5/00.
(*) Spirals 482 Music 482-1028 As above, except omit Wilson; add George Schuller (d). 3/03.
Ullmann calls this group Conference Call. The first record gets off to a very slow start which Bennink seems to be trying to kick some life into. Thereafter it does rather meander along, and Ullmann seems curiously reluctant to take any kind of lead, as if he weren't sure what the point of the group was. Schuller arrives for the third record and immediately takes a strong role: he contributes the first and last pieces, and they're two of the longest. Ullmann again sounds oddly bleary and the group doesn't suggest itself as one of his better vehicles. However, the Soul Note, which eluded us until now, is probably the best of the three. Wilson's 'Final Answer' is one of the better pieces in their book (there is a sort of reprise of it at the end) and Stevens's carefree 'Could This Be A Polka?' shows the group has a sense of humour.

 BassX3 Drimala DR 04-347-07 Ullmann; Chris Dahlgren (b, elec); Peter Herbert (b). 6/01.
This drops the frequencies down into the dungeons with some extraordinary low, low sounds from the two bassists: the opening 'Nummer Sieben', with Ullmann prowling around the other two on bass flute, is superb, and the record doesn't improve past it.

 Die Blaue Nixe Between The Lines btl 71617 Ullmann; Art Lande (p); Chris Dahlgren (b). 12/03, 9/04.
An oddly bland record that never quite rises above an impression of unhurried musing on minimalist ideas. Lande – not much seen nowadays – never manages to grab the attention and most of the interest is generated by Ullmann's exchanges with the loyal Dahlgren.

(*) New Basement Research Soul Note 121491 Ullmann; Steve Swell (tb); Julian Argüelles (ss, bs); John Hebert (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 07.
Ullmann marked his 50th birthday with a new variation on the Basement Research group. Bringing in Argüelles was a masterstroke, though we continue to have doubts about Swell's activities. Here, at least, he is able to contribute to the gorgeously moving chorale on 'Gospel', but elsewhere he seems to deploy power for the sake of power. 'D Nee No' reappears (again) and receives a definitive interpretation. Almost without anyone noticing, Ullman has become a significant figure on the contemporary scene. If you haven't caught up with him, here's an excellent place to start.

Also, in brief:

 Tá Lam 99 Records 2117. 8–9/91.
Mostly Ullmann solo but with overdubbing and some other instrumental parts.

(*) Cut It Out Leo LR 457
A noisy and astringent trio with Chris Dahlgren (b, elec) and Jay Rosen (d). 3/00.

 The Big Band Project Soul Note 121471-2. 2/01.
Another disc more important to its maker than his potential audience. Obese and lumbering charts by various hands.

 Desert Songs & Other Landscapes CIMP 315. 6/04.
A CIMP adventure for Gebhard and Steve Swell (tb).

James Blood Ulmer (born 1942)

GUITAR, VOICE

Born in South Carolina, Ulmer sang gospel, played in funk groups, and then studied with Art Blakey and Ornette Coleman in turn; the former influence is often understated by commentators on his music, but it is certainly there. Some of the guitarist's work borders on the hard-edged black rock sound of bands like Living Color, but his jazz and blues chops are undeniable.

CORE COLLECTION

* Odyssey
Columbia 485101 Ulmer; Charles Burnham (vn); Warren Benbow (d). 3–5/83.
Often described as a student of Ornette Coleman's still-unassimilated 'harmolodics' – a theory which dispenses with the normal hierarchy of 'lead' and 'rhythm' instruments, allowing free harmonic interchange at all levels of a group – Ulmer had actually started to devise similar ideas independently. In the late '60s he played with organists Hank Marr and Big John Patton, promoting a harsh modern derivative of soul-jazz. His work with drummer Rashied Ali (who rejoined one of the more abstract of Ulmer's late-'80s bands, Original Phalanx/Phalanx) brought him to the attention of Ornette Coleman. Ulmer's contract with Columbia petered out after three albums, and so far only the final one has made it to CD. It's a classic New York record of the period. Given a beefy, upfront sound (at last), Ulmer slimmed his group down to a bassless trio, added the almost shamanistic sound of Charles Burnham's fiddle, and set the group to rock and roll over eight rootsy chunks of American music. 'Church' and 'Little Red House' reach back to gospel, blues and country dance as transmogrified into electrical storms, the whine of the violin mingling with the bite and twang of Ulmer's chording to superb effect. 'Are You Glad To Be In America?' (from the 1980 record of the same name) reappears as a kind of slow lament. The essential Ulmer record.

(*) Memphis Blood: The Sun Sessions Label M 5728 Ulmer; Vernon Reid (g); Charles Burnham (vn); David Barnes (hca); Aubrey Dayle (d). 4/01.
In 2001 Ulmer and band began to tour not clubs and concert halls but some of the legendary studios of American music. The Sun session is – at last – a confrontation with the early fathers of the blues. The date opens with a version of 'Spoonful' and includes a further five Willie Dixon songs, as well as material by Sonny Boy Williamson (including 'Fattening Frogs For Snakes'), T-Bone Burnett and John Lee Hooker. Black rocker Vernon Reid almost steals the show here and there, but he is mixed somewhat behind Blood; he takes the lead on Otis Rush's 'Double Trouble'. Burnham is astonishing on 'Little Red Rooster', using a wah-wah pedal on his violin. The overall impression is of familiar melodies and structures passed through a prism. The distortions are most effective when they are least mannered, and Ulmer is by now sussed enough to know when not to push his luck. A vivid and intense record from a player at the top of his powers.

(*) Birthright Hyena 9335 Ulmer (g, f, v solo). 5/05.
It's a wonder no one has seen fit to record Ulmer on his own before this. Ironically, the track one misses is the obvious duet with producer Vernon Reid. Despite the title and the inclusion of Willie Dixon's 'I Ain't Superstitious' and the traditional 'Sittin' On Top Of The World', all these are originals, harmolodic variants on the Delta blues. 'Take Me Back To The Church' is an effective opening, dark and louring, but the highlights are 'The Evil One' and 'Geechee Joe', which come together in the final third of the album. The sound is thick and tarry, leavened only by Ulmer's flute, but the impact is undoubted.

(*) Back In Time Pi Recordings 18 Ulmer; Charles Burnham (vn) Warren Benbow (d). 5/05.
This is credited to the Odyssey band, without Ulmer's name being picked out. It certainly sounds like a group project, with guitar and violin weaving in and out of Benbow's raw, spare drum sound. Violinist and drummer get one composition credit apiece, but James's writing is so dark and strong it's not more than a token acknowledgement. 'Love Nest' doesn't sound like a serenade and like most of the tracks is marked by waves of overtones that suggest an almost Middle Eastern provenance. 'Let's Get Married' is equally unromantic, but they're both highlights of a notably powerful set.

 Bad In The City: The Piety Street Sessions Hyena 9355 Ulmer; Leon Gruenbaum (ky, cl); Vernon Reid (g); Charles Burnham (vn, mand); David Barnes (hca); Mark Peterson (b); Aubrey Dayle (d, perc); Irene Datcher (v). 07.
Ulmer's a great one for giving his records a sense of historical occasion with these 'sessions' datelines. This one derives something from being recorded in New Orleans. Vernon Reid is at the controls, so the content is a mix of jazz and black rock. 'Survivors Of The Hurricane' might well refer to Ulmer's listeners as well as to residents of post-Katrina New Orleans. Unfortunately, the music has a slightly forced quality, as if it is trying to be more momentous than its substance will allow. 'This Land Is Nobody's Land' and a fine version of 'Backwater Blues' are about the best things. James is still a presence, but he's having to work harder just to keep up.

Also, in brief:

 Blue Blood Innerhythmic Foundation 005. 00.
Fantastic line-up that includes Amina Claudine Myers, Bernie Worrell and Bill Laswell, and the now familiar bag of black funk-blues-rock.

 No Escape From The Blues: The Electric Lady Sessions Sindrome 9312. 02.
Shambolic, but full of energy, and a good reprise of 'Are You Glad To Be In America'.

Tomas Ulrich (no dates)

CELLO

Widely recorded improviser, beginning to establish his own identity.

 T.E.C.K. String 4tet Clean Feed CF089 Ulrich; Carlos Zingaro (vn); Elliott Sharp (g); Ken Filiano (b). 06.
The group name doesn't take much decoding. It's an interesting, though hardly unique, variation on the classical line-up. Though Zingaro is, on occasion, the most prominent voice, it's the other three who make the set and it's a pity that there wasn't more opportunity to explore subdivisions of the group in more detail. A set of Ulrich–Sharp, Sharp–Filiano duos would be fascinating. The cellist has a pronounced tone, somewhat reminiscent of Hank Roberts in some moods, but very much his own man. 'Swapfield' and 'Hard Evolution' are our picks.

Hans Ulrik (born 1965)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, BASS CLARINET, HARMONICA

Copenhagen-based modernist who spent time in America in the '80s.

 Strange World Stunt STUCD 19406 Ulrik; Lars Jansson (p); Lars Danielsson (b); Anders Kjellberg (d); Marilyn Mazur (perc); Mona Larsen (v). 5/94.
(*) Jazz And Mambo Stunt STUCD 19818 Ulrik; Jacob Christoffersen (ky); Niclas Knudsen (g); Anders Christensen (b); Mikkel Hess (d); Rune Olsen, Ignacio Guerra Acosta (perc). 6/98.
 Shortcuts Stunt STUCD 00032 Ulrik; John Scofield (g); Lars Danielsson (b); Peter Erskine (d). 3/99.
Ulrik's writing marries jazz thinking with a feel for an instrumental pop hook. Strange World has the considerable plus of Lars Jansson in the band, and in a likeable set of tunes Ulrik banks on catchiness, overdubbing saxophone-lines and employing Larsen's wordless voice on two tracks. Mazur's presence is more of a cameo than anything, and the music hinges on the give and take between saxophonist and pianist. It's a pleasing record, but it could use a knockout punch somewhere in the dozen tracks.

Jazz And Mambo feels so different that it might be by another leader altogether. The material is almost all standards – Ulrik sneaks in one original at the end – and the band plays off a crunching rather than a light mambo beat, with Knudsen's hard-nut guitar and Christoffersen's Hammond licks all over the music ('Moon River', done on clarinet, is a sweet intermission). The record's mix is completely different, too – upfront and in your face. It doesn't assert Ulrik as any more of an individual, but it's the most enjoyable set under his name.

Shortcuts is one of the records made under the ongoing sponsorship of the Jazzpar Prize, with Ulrik getting his chance at an all-star session. Very good, but with the ubiquitous Scofield on hand, we feel we've heard it all before. At least Ulrik feels like he's balancing the sound of his earlier and later records with confidence.

(*) Danish Standards Stunt STUCD 03092 Ulrik; Niclas Knudsen (g); Nicolai Munch Hansen (b); Mikkel Hess (d); Lisbeth Diers (perc). 1–3/03.
 Blue And Purple Stunt STUCD 04115 Ulrik; Peter Dahlgren (tb); Fredrik Lundin (ts, bf); Jacob Christoffersen (org); Jonas Westergaard (b); Mikkel Hess (d). 6/04.

(*) Tin Pan Aliens Stunt STUCD 05022 Ulrik; Steve Swallow (b); Jonas Johansen (d). 10/04.

The Jazz And Mambo group is reconvened for Danish Standards, and they make an interesting fist of what appear to be folk tunes done in a style that bridges jazz with something more worldly. The surprise comes on 'En Lille Nisse Rejste', where Ulrik plays harmonica and does so very well. They take a humorous line on some of the pieces and the disc is in the end very enjoyable. Blue And Purple puts him back in a more familiar setting, though a line-up of trombone, two tenors and organ isn't anybody's norm. Some of the tracks feel a bit tired, as if Ulrik wasn't quite sure what to do with his group, but the better ones suggest that this is a group with a stronger record to come.

Tin Pan Aliens is loose, funky, often funny – Ulrik has a nicely deadpan streak in a lot of his writing, and both Swallow and Johansen, who also contribute several pieces, seem of a mind to go the same way. Each of the tracks feels as long as it has to be and nothing goes on too long. Swallow is as reliably inventive as always and this might be Ulrik's most playable set.

 Tribal Dance Stunt STUCD 0609 Ulrik; Jacob Christoffersen (p); Mikkel Hess (d). 4/06.

Again, it's music with a smile on its face, wry and witty in a way that is hard to put one's finger on. The group with Swallow and Johansen remains a staunch favourite, but this has much to recommend it, too.

UMO Jazz Orchestra

ENSEMBLE

Founded in 1975, one of the world's great jazz orchestras: inch-perfect section-work, some genuinely individual solo voices, and an intriguing leaven of guest musicians.

 UMO Plays The Music Of Muhal Richard Abrams UMO CD 101 Anders Bergcrantz, Chuck Findley, Heiki Haimila, Esko Heikkinen, Simo Salminen (t); Juhani Aaltonen, Mikael Långbacka, Mircea Stan, Markku Veijonsuo (tb); Kari Heinilä, Eero Koivistoinen, Pentti Lahti, Pertti Päivinen, Teemu Salminen (sax); Seppo Kantonen (p); Kirmo Lintinen (syn); Lars Danielsson (b); Klaus Suonsaari (d); Mongo Aaltonen (perc). 5/88.

This is at the chewier and more adventurous side of UMO's remit. Since the composer himself supervised the sessions, we have to assume that he was relatively pleased with the results, but the results are rather flat and mechanical and without the fire that a Chicago outfit might have brought to the proceedings. But then, the Windy City hasn't been in any rush to offer Abrams recording opportunities of this sort. Among the pieces included are 'Ritob', 'Fotex', 'Melancholia' and 'Symtre' and there is a fine Abrams arrangement of Duke's 'Melancholy' for contrast. As ever, the section-work is impeccable and there are some good solo spots from the likes of Lahti and Bergkrantz.

(*) UMO Jazz Orchestra Naxos Jazz 86010 Anders Bergcrantz, Esko Heikkinen, Teemu Mattsson, Timo Paasonen, Mikko Pettinen (t, flhn); Markku Veijonsuo (tb); Mikko Mustonen (tb, euph); Pekka Laukkanen (tb, tba); Mikael Långbacka (btb); Eero Koivistoinen (ts, ss); Manuel Dunkel (ts, f); Jouni Järvelä (as, ss, cl); Pentti Lahti (as, ss, f); Pertti Päivinen (bs, bcl, f); Teemu Salminen (ts, bcl, cl, f); Seppo Kantonen (p); Kirmo Lintinen (syn); Markku Kanerva, Jarmo Saari (g); Hannu Rantanen, Pekka Sarmanto (b); Markus Ketola (d); Mongo Aaltonen (perc); Bina Nkwazi, Jarmo Saari (v); Kari Heinilä, Kirmo Lintinen (cond). 5/97.

All credit to the team at Naxos Jazz as well. This was an enterprising signing and it could prove to be good business for both Naxos and UMO. Most of the material is original, with compositions from conductor Heinila and saxophonist Koivistoinen the most prominent. There are two arrangements of jazz tunes, Miles's 'All Blues' (a feature for excellent trumpeter Bergcrantz and vocalist Nkwazi) and a more unexpected version of John Coltrane's 'Equinox' on which Koivistoinen manages to avoid the remotest hint of pastiche. Nicely paced, with a well-judged selection of tunes, and at a throwaway price.

* Electrifying Miles A Records AL 73153 Tim Hagans (t); Esko Heikkinen, Teemu Mattsson, Timo Paasonen, Mikko Pettinen (t, flhn); Pekka Laukkanen, Mikko Mustonen, Markku Veijonsuo (tb); Mikael Långbacka (btb); Pentti Lahti (ss, as, f); Jouni Järvelä (ss, as, cl); Teemu Salminen (ts, cl, bcl, f); Janne Murto (ts, f); Pertti Päivinen (bs, bcl, f); Jukka Hakokongäs, (elec p, org); Jarmo Savolainen (p, elp, syn); Raoul Björkenheim (g); Harri Rantanen, Pekka Sarmanto (b); Markus Ketola, Anssi Nykänen (d); Mongo Aaltonen (perc); Eero Koivistoinen (cond). 4/97.

Guest soloist Tim Hagans did his apprenticeship in the Stan Kenton band, and if this Miles Davis tribute has another stylistic source it is the Kenton orchestra. The most effective aspect of the project is that Hagans is able to suggest enough of Miles's spirit without sounding like a slavish acolyte. He solos on every track, most effectively on 'Spanish Key' and 'Sanctuary', where he shares the front line with the second tune's arranger, Raoul Björkenheim. It, of course, is a Wayne Shorter composition, as are 'Prince Of Darkness' and 'Nefertiti', and it seems that conductor Eero Koivistoinen (a trumpeter himself) was drawn rather to these more complex, long-lined items in the Miles œuvre than to the trumpeter's own rather less elaborate themes. 'What It Is' is a Miles/John Scofield collaboration, played briefly and simply as a feature for Hagans.

Other soloists acquit themselves well. The Olympic Rhythm Section, led by Björkenheim and the two keyboard-players, is a fair simulacrum of the Bitches Brew band. Pertti Paivinen's Maupin-influenced bass clarinet on 'Spanish Key' is very effective, and he returns with fresh ideas on 'Calypso Frelimo' right at the end of this fine album, which is one of the very best large-scale Miles tributes on the shelves.

(*) Ellington Tribute Finlandia 3984 27857-2 Esko Heikkinen, Teemu Mattsson, Timo Paasonen, Tero Saarti (t); Pekka Laukkanen, Vesa-Matti Mattsson, Mikko Mustonen, Markku Veijonsuo (tb); Jouni Järvelä, Mikko Järvinen, Pentti Lahti, Janne Murto, Pepa Päivinen, Teemu Salminen (reeds); Kirmo Lintinen (p); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Mikko Hassinen, Markus Ketola (d). 7–8/97.

In 1985, UMO performed a programme of Ellington compositions with Mercer Ellington wielding the baton, an association which he repeated in 1995, not long before his death. UMO's grip on the charts is hard to fault, though again there is a soulless clank to some of the playing, relieved only by sterling solos from Lahti, Heikkinen and the underrated Mustonen. Taking the Williams part in 'Concerto For Cootie', the trumpeter shows his true mettle and his thoughtful absorption of the classic recordings.

The overture blends together 'Things Ain't What They Used To Be', 'Sophisticated Lady', and a great reading of 'Perdido'. They save '"A" Train' for last, which confirms an upbeat tone for this early and prescient centenary tribute. Concentrating on the more rhythmic side of Duke's legacy is no bad thing, but it would have been good to have had a greater admixture of moodier themes and solos.

 Selected Standards Beta BECD 4029 Esko Heikkinen, Timo Paasonen, Antero Priha, Simo Salminen (t, flhn); Markku Johansson (flhn); Pekka Laukkanen, Mikael Långbacka, Mikko Mustonen, Markku Veijonsuo (tb); Pentti Lahti (ss, as, picc, f); Jukka Perko (ss, as, cl); Sonny Heinilä (ts, f); Teemu Salminen (ts, f, cl); Pertti Päivinen (bs, bsx, bcl); Kirmo Lintinen (p); Jarno Kukkonen (g); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Markko Timonen (d); Mongo Aaltonen (perc); Bill Carson (v). N.D.

It does exactly what it says on the spec. A set of bright, elegantly executed standard themes, somewhat lacking in surprises but marked out by fine musicianship right through the band. Päivinen's baritone solo on 'My Shining Hour' is a revelation, and Kukkonen's complementary solo makes this the outstanding track of the set, though a rascally 'Love For Sale' (complete with rap) and a feeling interpretation of 'Darn That Dream' round out an excellent if slightly mechanical album.

(*) Day Dreamin' FSR FSRCD 02 Esko Heikkinen, Timo Paasonen, Mikko Pettinen, Tero Saarti (t); Mikael Långbacka, Pekka Laukkanen, Mikko Mustonen (tb); Ulf Johansson (tb, p, v); Jouni Järvelä, Pentti Lahti, Janne Murto, Pepa Päivinen, Teemu Salminen (reeds); Mikael Jakobsson (p); Larry Coryell (g); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Markus Ketola (d); Ricardo Padilla, Yamar Thiam (perc); Annika Hultman (v); Kirmo Lintinen (cond). 4/98.

Never slow to capitalize on a winning formula, UMO followed up the fine Ellington tribute with a set devoted to Billy Strayhorn. Larry Coryell isn't the first and most obvious guest soloist, but he fits into place with almost casual ease, playing beautiful solos on 'Day Dream', 'Absinthe' and 'Blood Count', and in duo with fellow soloist Johansson on 'Lotus Blossom', the trombonist momentarily switching to piano.

The other important element is the vocal styling of Annika Hultman. A slightly characterless singer when intense emotion is called for, she has an elegant and buoyant approach to harmony, which makes her an exceptional band vocalist. Drifting back and forth across the beat doesn't always do her favours and occasionally makes her seem mannered, but there is no doubting her musicianship.

(*) One More Time Challenge 75027 As above, except add Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Norma Winstone (v). 00.

(*) Transit People Naxos 86067 Similar to above. 00.

UMO's association with creative modern composers means that a project fronted by Canadian trumpeter Kenny Wheeler was almost a dead certainty. One More Time is very largely devoted to Wheeler compositions, though vocalist Winstone is also represented by 'Sea Lady'. The charts are beautifully arranged and executed and, as solo voices, Wheeler and Winstone are absolutely perfect for the UMO sound. Less obviously challenging than some of their releases to date, this is nonetheless a wonderful opportunity to hear the band doing what it does best..

UMO continue their exploration of the modern jazz canon on Transit People, with covers of Mongo Santamaria's 'Afro-Blue' and John Coltrane's classic 'Naima', the latter a theme that lends itself gracefully to big-band arrangement. There are originals as well from band members Savolainen, Sarmanto and Koivistoinen, but what one remembers is the sheer authority of the playing, which would lift almost any material. UMO are flying high and it seems only a matter of time before they receive the international recognition they so obviously deserve.

The University Six

GROUP

A New York studio band, playing hot dance music.

 The University Six Retrieval RTR 79047 2CD Bill Moore, Roy Johnston, Chelsea Quealey (t); Abe Lincoln, George Troup, Carl Loeffler (tb); Bobby Davis (cl, as, ss); Sam Ruby (ts); Adrian Rollini, Spencer Clark (bsx, gfs, xy); Irving Brodsky (p); Ray Kitchingman, Tommy Fellini (bj); Stan King, Herb Weil (d); Arthur Hall, Ed Kirkeby, Hal White (v). 7/24–8/27.

A spin-off from the California Ramblers, with whom Davis and Rollini also played, their many records are collected on this handsome Retrieval reissue, 48 sides made for Harmony (the first four are actually credited to The Little Ramblers). It's all hot dance music in the style of the time: tempos scarcely vary throughout, and the performances are taut rather than jerky, as they are sometimes characterized (jerky was no good for dancing). The solos are neat in their way, although, as Richard Sudhalter's sleeve-note eloquently suggests, the only outstanding musician in the band was Rollini. A solo such as his chorus on 'San' is certainly a country mile ahead of his colleagues' work.

Massimo Urbani (1957–93)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

A bop prodigy, who emerged at 17 in Giorgio Gaslini's quartet, he was also prodigal with his own health and died of a heroin overdose.

 360 Degrees Aeutopia Red RR 123146-2 Urbani; Ron Burton (p); Cameron Brown (b); Beaver Harris (d). 6/79.

(*) Dedications To Albert Ayler And John Coltrane Red RR 123160-2 Urbani; Luigi Bonafede (p); Furio Di Castri (b); Paolo Pellegatti (d). 6/80.

(*) Easy To Love Red RR 123208-2 Urbani; Luca Flores (as); Furio Di Castri (b); Roberto Gatto (d). 1/87.

(*) Out Of Nowhere Splasc(h) H 336-2 Urbani; Paul Rodberg (tb); Giuseppe Emmanuele (p); Nello Toscano (b); Pucci Nicosia (d). 4/90.

* The Blessing Red RR 123257-2 Urbani; Maurizio Urbani (ts); Danilo Rea (p); Giovanni Tommaso (b); Roberto Gatto (d). 2/93.

Urbani's senseless death robbed Europe of a player whose records are a flawed testament to a bopper of enormous guts and facility. Marcello Piras describes him as a 'wastrel genius' in his notes to the Splasc(h) issue. Certainly Urbani's earlier records sometimes failed to live up to the reputation he had as a Wunderkind in the '70s, and the surviving discography is spotty; there's a shadow discography of dubious provenance as well. The opening of the first Red album consists of an astonishing outburst of alto on 'Cherokee', at a suitably hectic tempo, and though matters cool off somewhat from that point, Urbani's grip seldom lets go. Cameron Brown is superb at the bass, but Beaver Harris's splashy drumming isn't right for the group. The Dedications set poses an intriguing premiss, although Urbani never really tackles Ayler head-on, except in some of his distortions. It's more about linking Parker and Coltrane. There is a lustrous, acerbic 'Naima' as well as one of his fighting bebop miniatures in 'Scrapple From The Apple'. Easy To Love is a relatively straightforward programme of standards, apart from the opening 'A Trane From The East'; Urbani burns through them.

The final offerings, both taken down almost by chance, are a memorable and even chastening last statement. The Splasc(h) record, cut at Rodberg's studio with the trombonist sitting in on two tunes, is simple, standards fare, with a very modest rhythm section, but Urbani's herculean playing comes through all the more strongly as a result, utterly tempestuous on 'There Is No Greater Love' and surprisingly lyrical on 'Alfie'. Highly recommended; but the final session for Red is even stronger. For all the glances in the direction of Coltrane, Urbani was a diehard bopper to the end; but his brother, Maurizio, looked forward in other directions, and his two appearances offer a tart contrast in styles on a pair of originals by Tommaso. Otherwise Urbani's coruscating tone and energy command all the attention, even with the impressive Rea in the group: two takes of 'What's New' are brimming with ideas, and a solo 'Blues For Bird' is an astonishing tribute to Parker.

René Urtreger (born 1934)

PIANO

French veteran with a Bud Powell influence bordering on obsession.

(*) Jazz In Paris: Joue Bud Powell Universal/Emarcy 14182 Urtreger; Benoît Quersin (b); Jean-Louis Viale (d). 2/55.

 Move Black & Blue 864 Urtreger; Yves Torchinski (b); Eric Dervieu (d). 95.

 Onirica Sketch SKECD 329 Urtreger (p solo). 6/00.

René's Bud thing has stayed with him throughout his career. You'd never think it was the original playing, but the spirit is caught perfectly. The solo record is quite interesting, but the trios are better and the early date, originally on Barclay and now larded with Ernest Hemingway quotes, is a lovely slice of Parisian jazz when the city did seem a moveable feast. 'Dance Of The Infidels' and 'Budo' are both splendid and René has a nice original as well, just to show his obsession has some bounds.

Billy Usselton (1926–94)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Free-swinging West Coaster who seems fated to 'footnote' status.

 Complete Sextet Recordings Fresh Sound FSRCD 2220 Usselton; Bob Burgess (tb); Abe Aaron (bcl); Paul Moer (b); Larry Bunker, Buddy Clark, Mel Pollan (b); Frank Capp, Mel Lewis, Lloyd Morales (d). 6–10/56.

One wonders how many groups like this beavered away in rehearsal rooms and tiny studios, only to disappear unremarked. Only specialists know much of Usselton, who none the less has a persuasive drive to his solos and a warm, clean-edged tenor sound. These dates all come from a single, concentrated period. The line-up is somewhat unusual, but Aaron is used almost like a baritone saxophone, though the soft timbre of the bass clarinet and the blurry edges of the trombone give the music a surprisingly distinctive cast. Worth checking out.

Allan Vaché (born 1953)

CLARINET

The younger of the Vaché brothers is a dextrous sideman and leader.

 Swing Is Here Nagel Heyer 026 Vaché; Antti Sarpila (cl, ss); Mark Sahen (p); Len Skeat (b); Joe Ascione (d). 10/95.

 Summit Meeting Nagel Heyer 027 As above, except add Ken Peplowski (cl, ts). 10/95.

 Allan Vaché's Florida Jazz Allstars Nagel Heyer 032 Vaché; David Jones (c); John Allred (tb); Johnny Varro (p); Bob Leary (g); Bob Haggart (b); Ed Metz Jr (d). 3/96.

Hitherto less well-known than his brother Warren, Allan Vaché seems to be taking his place in the fold of mainstreamers looked after by Nagel Heyer and Arbors. A fluent technician, he gets all over the clarinet with indecent rapidity and can handle the most overheated of tempos with no apparent trouble. If anything, his playing seems to egg on the rhythm section into going ever faster. On the first, live album above, it helps him to hit a few clinkers along the way, but even when he gargles a note it just gets swallowed up in the flow. The songbook of the '20s and '30s (with the occasional later tune) is what he loves and, while he sometimes chooses a comparative rarity, most of these tunes will be well-known to even the uninitiated.

Florida Jazz Allstars is our favourite, if only for a quite beautiful treatment of Bob Haggart's 'My Inspiration': Vaché should work at this tempo more often. Jones and Allred have their own moments of exultation, too. Swing Is Here is rather exhaustingly full of clarinet, and a problem with both this and Summit Meeting is the sound, which has very little bottom (Skeat often disappears altogether). The last, though, has the bonus of Peplowski joining in, sometimes on tenor, to add further piquancy to the front line: his gorgeous solo treatment of 'These Foolish Things' smokes the other two. The tempos are sometimes almost manically fast and the record's too long at almost 80 minutes, but there's lots to enjoy.

(*) Revisited! Nagel Heyer 044 Vaché; David Jones (c); Bob Leary (g, v); Phil Flanigan (b). 6/97.

 Raisin' The Roof Nagel Heyer 054 Vaché; Jim Galloway (ss); John Bunch (p); Howard Alden (g); Michael Moore (b); Jake Hanna (d). 12/98.

The group subject to the revisitation is the Bechet–Spanier Big Four, and this is one re-creation which works out exceedingly well. For once, Vaché's full-flushing manner doesn't seem overpowering, even in this slimmed-down context: Bechet himself was no shrinking violet, and he might have approved of some of the clarinet fusillades on offer. Jones plays the Muggsy role very well. Neither man is a ringer for his respective forebear, so the record is more than just a slavish homage.

Raisin' The Roof is another good one, but again there's an impression that there's just too much playing going on here, and a little restraint wouldn't have hurt. Galloway gets caught up in it and his normally more relaxed style gets squeezed, while the otherwise imperturbable campaigners in the rhythm section sail serenely on. 'Dream' is nice, but at nine minutes it's far too long.

(*) Allan And Allen Nagel Heyer 074 Vaché; Harry Allen (ts); Eddie Higgins (p); Phil Flanigan (b); Eddie Metz (d). 1/00.

 Strike Two! Nagel Heyer CD 088 Vaché; David Jones (c); Bob Leary (g); Phil Flanigan (b). 7/99.

 Ballads, Burners And Blues Arbors ARCD 19288 Vaché; Ed Polcer (c); Dan Barrett (t); Vanessa Vaché (cl); Mark Shane (p); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz (d). 04.

Allen likes a slugging match as much as anybody and this one does go with a real punch. Nothing you won't have heard before from either man and the opening steam through 'Lover Come Back To Me' says it all inside seven minutes, but even if you just take it as pure showboating it's fine entertainment. If anyone takes first playing honours it's probably Eddie Metz, who keeps things swinging hard without losing his cool for a second.

The Big Four reconvene for another look at the Bechet legacy with Strike Two! They don't really do anything they didn't do as well on the earlier disc, which accounts for our slightly lower rating, but it's an entertaining listen. Ballads, Burners And Blues is a curiously mixed bag: there are some beautiful things, such as the duet version of 'I'm Glad There Is You', along with some misjudgements of material which seem inexplicable.

 With Benny In Mind Arbors ARCD 19338 Vaché; Christian Tamburr (vib); John Sheridan (p); Vincent Corrao (g); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz Jr (d). 3/06.

It's a very predictable programme but the band is interesting and in Tamburr they may have uncovered a star of the future. His feature on 'Flying Home' is rather special, respectful but far from Hamp pastiche. Sheridan does the arrangements and he's given the group that same sort of balance, so that these are in the tradition but conspicuously fresh and individual interpretations.

Also, in brief:

 Swing And Other Things Arbors ARCD 19171. 6/96.

His penchant for noodling in the highest register is annoying; the tone goes thin as a pencil. But there's good stuff as well.

 Jazz Im Amerika Haus: Vol. 3 Nagel Heyer 013. 8/94.

Too many live album longueurs, but it's a good place to hear the brothers working together at length.

Warren Vaché (born 1951)

CORNET, TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, VOICE

Son of bassist Warren Sr. He was deeply influenced by Louis Armstrong and has worked with the Benny Goodman Band, in the house band at Condon's, and with Scott Hamilton. His slightly dry, pungent tone is estimably controlled; even when he opts to play slightly sharp.

 First Time Out And Encore '93 Audiophile ACD 196 Vaché; Kenny Davern (ss); Bucky Pizzarelli, Wayne Wright (g); Michael Moore (b); Connie Kay (d). 11–12/76, 4/93.

Warren Vaché came to prominence re-creating the solos of Bix Beiderbecke and ever since has been addicted to the backward glance. He is one of the leading swing players of the last couple of decades and is arguably the first cornetist since Ruby Braff (with whom he has shared a couple of labels over the years) to try to build on the example of Pops. But whereas Ruby is always incisive, pugnacious and sometimes downright filthy, Vaché has a curiously mild approach to swing which consistently fails to excite. He has the facility to play extremes of pitch very quietly and with estimable control, but this is not the same as being equipped to play great jazz. For us, he remains a triumph of technique over content.

'Nepotism be damned!' cried his father, writing the sleeve-note for young Warren's debut. Paired with an 'encore' from a decade and a half later, the 1976 session presents a calm and competent young brass-player with a thoroughly old-fashioned delivery. It doesn't suggest much more than that. The duo tracks with Bucky Pizzarelli stem from both dates, and there is nothing to choose between the two. 'When It's Sleepy Time Down South' from 1993 is a brilliant closer, but by then it's hard to be excited. The group tracks with Davern, Moore and Kay, recorded a fortnight after the debut, are more adventurous, and Davern is in splendid form, but there is little to get the teeth into.

* Iridescence Concord CCD 4153 Vaché; Hank Jones (p); George Duvivier (b); Alan Dawson (d). 1/81.

The peacock feather on the cover might suggest self-regarding display. The contents offer no such thing, just wonderfully mellow jazz. Vaché's tone is almost creamy here, but the single kind, nothing too cloying. These are superb cuts, with not a dull spot anywhere and this is unhesitatingly a library must-have. 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise' is innocent enough to begin with, but Warren's solo lifts it dramatically, as he does with virtually everything that follows. Jones and Duvivier are authoritative and the bassist is particularly well captured, seeming to shadow the cornet in ensembles and adding extra buttresses of harmony on Hank's title-tune and the closing 'Autumn In New York'. It remains a Vaché triumph, though, and all one wishes for is a cameo from brother Allan on 'The More I See You', which seems to cry out for a second horn-line.

 My Shining Hour Nagel Heyer 5006 Vaché; Allan Vaché (cl); Brian Lemon (p); Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Allan Ganley (d). 6/94.

A great set from the Hamburg club, featuring Warren and his brother with a British rhythm section of the highest quality. There are some shaky moments, particularly when Allan is featured (perhaps he was having reed problems), but the overall quality is high and the best of the tracks – 'Poor Butterfly', 'Isfahan' – are as good as any Warren has committed to record.

* Shine / Memories Of You /  Jumpin' Zephyr ZECD24 / 21 / 27 Vaché; Tony Coe (ts, ss, cl on Shine only); Alan Barnes (as, bs, cl); Brian Lemon (p); Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Allan Ganley, Clark Tracey (d). 1 & 5/97; 5/97.

Glorious stuff, though mostly because Barnes and Coe are in such good form. Shine begins and ends with versions of 'Shine' itself, and Zephyr's recent practice of including alternatives makes complete sense. Vaché's tone seems particularly relaxed and conversational in this company, and his soloing on 'Stella By Starlight', 'Pee Wee's Blues' (the great Erwin was his teacher) and 'Don't Get Around Much Any More' are exemplary. We have emoted sufficiently elsewhere about this rhythm section. They are hard to beat on a session of this kind, but with a front line of genuinely international quality, even they have to take a back seat. Coe is missed on the second album but the chemistry with Barnes is sufficient to see it through, and rarities like 'You're Mine, You' from two of the creators of 'Body And Soul' and 'Serenata' make this an intriguing listen for students of traditional jazz and swing.

(*) Remember Nagel Heyer 5013 Vaché; Allan Vaché (cl); Eddie Higgins (p); Howard Alden (g); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz Jr (d). 2/98.

This one stayed in the tape library for nearly a decade before release. It's hard to judge why, since it's a near-ideal opportunity to hear the brothers together on a programme of relatively unusual material. The climax is Duke's and Strayhorn's 'What Am I Here For', which you don't often hear in this kind of playing context. 'Londonderry Air' cements the nostalgic feel and 'Just Friends', which leads off, underlines how much shared experience there is when siblings play together. Some of the interchanges seem to work at a completely unconscious level. Great stuff.

* Mrs Vaché's Boys Nagel Heyer 50 As above. 9/99.

The opening 'Just Friends' is as thrilling a performance as you'll hear from a family band, and it's a pity that nothing that follows quite matches it. Warren is in fantastic form on a new version of Miles Davis's 'All Blues' and his flugelhorn/piano reading of 'London By Night' with Higgins is equally wonderful. Indeed, you run out of superlatives for this set. The brothers' interplay is boundless and the rhythm section, with Alden very much to the fore, exudes excitement. Glorious.

(*) What Is There To say? Nagel Heyer 056 Vaché; Joe Puma (g); Murray Wall (b); Eddie Locke (d). 5/99.
(*) The Best Thing For You Zephyr ZECD 31 Vaché; Brian Lemon (p); Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Allan Ganley (d). 2/01.
Warren is going through a very purple patch, and even if this kind of mainstream has been very exposed by these labels of late, one can hardly complain about the calibre of the music. The quartet date for Nagel Heyer features a working group, and Puma is the kind of player Vaché works with particularly well, finding surprising harmonic feeds when another might just strum away. Their duet on the title-track is a beauty. Back with the Zephyr gang, it's the cornetist who ensures that the music goes up a notch from the typical mainstream jog, and it restores some of the more lively elements of small-group swing before it was smoothed out. Nice to find someone reviving 'Sweet Pumpkin', too.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * 2gether
Nagel Heyer 2011 Vaché; Bill Charlap (p). 12/00.
An unqualified delight. 'We wanted to play some nice old tunes, and at tempos you don't hear any more. Guys I admire did it – maybe it's because nobody dances.' Vaché's remarks recall an era in jazz now gone, as does the music – except, then or now, it was rarely played with as much finesse, joyous invention and unassuming charm as this. Many of these pieces are as close to perfection as you can imagine a duet could ever be. Warren's tone, whether tightly muted or luxuriously open, speaks directly to the listener, and his playing has taken on a mantle which goes back past Braff and Hackett, maybe to Armstrong himself. Yet it's modern music – there's no whiff of mustiness, or stale old repertory here. Charlap, who sometimes seems like a merely fail-safe executant on some records, is equally inspired, turning in swinging accompaniments at every tempo, every line logical but never falling in quite the place you expect. Few recent records have given us more pleasure. One of the great discs of the CD era.

(*) Dream Dancing Arbors ABRCD 19289 Vaché; Bill Charlap (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Eddie Locke (d). 5/03.
Another great opening sequence that somehow fails to sustain long enough to yield another classic. The first (muted) solo on 'Close Your Eyes' is vintage Vaché, and he follows up with more open work on 'Too Late Now' and Charlie Parker's 'Quasimodo', which is eased back closer to its standard changes origins. The band is terrific, but again Charlap falls back on solidity when one hopes for a little more adventure.

 Don't Look Back Arbors ARCD 19318 Vaché; The Scottish Ensemble. 6/05.
With arrangements by the octogenarian Bill Finegan, Vaché's immaculate shaping of solos and utterly idiomatic playing by the Scottish Ensemble (who've always shown an interest in non-canonical projects), this is very hard to fault. 'It Was Written In The Stars', 'Molly On The Shore', 'Valse Chromatique' and the exquisite, elegiac title-track: not a cliché in sight. The lowly marking only reflects a certain absence of drama.

Also, in brief:

 My Shining Hour Nagel Heyer 5006. 6/94.
A good live date from Hamburg with Allan (who has some shaky moments) and a fine British section.

 Stardust Zephyr ZECD19. 95.
Another fine swing record with a British group. Derek Watkins (t) is in great shape.

* An Affair To Remember / (*) Warren Plays Warren Zephyr ZECD 8 / Nagel Heyer CD 033. 12/95; 5/96.
A love affair with the music of Harry Warren documented in duo with Brian Lemon (p on Zephyr) and with a group co-fronted with Randy Sandke (t) and anchored by Jimmy Cobb (d)!

 Live At The Vineyard Challenge CHR 70026. 10/96.
A luscious concert date from the Vaché trio.

 Swingtime! Nagel Heyer CD 059. 1/00.
Vaché ushered in the new century with an unashamed exercise in swing nostalgia. A beautifully balanced band, with a lot of middle weight.

Kid Thomas Valentine (1896–1987)

TRUMPET

Although originally from elsewhere in Louisiana, Valentine became one of New Orleans's most characteristic trumpeters, leading his Algiers Stompers from 1926, working extensively with George Lewis, then playing at home and on tour for the rest of a very long and busy life.

* Kid Thomas And His Algiers Stompers American Music AMCD-10 Valentine; Bob Thomas, Harrison Barnes (tb); Emil Barnes (cl); George Guesnon (g, bj); Joseph Phillips (b); George Henderson (d). 9/51.
 At The Tip Top American Music AMCD-97 Valentine; Louis Nelson (tb); Edmund Washington (as); Joe James (p); Burke Stevenson (b); Sammy Penn (d). 6/57.
 Dancing Tonight American Music AMCD-115 Valentine; Charlie DeVore (t); Louis Nelson (tb); Emanuel Paul (ts); Joe James (p); Burke Stevenson (b); Sammy DeVore (d). 8/57.
 The Dance Hall Years American Music AMCD-48 Valentine; Louis Nelson (tb); Emanuel Paul (cl, ts); Joe James, James 'Sing' Miller (p); Burke Stevenson, Joseph Butler (b); Sammy Penn (d); 'Pa' (v). 59–3/64.
(*) Kid Thomas Valentine's Creole Jazz Band American Music AMCD-49 Valentine; Louis Nelson (tb); Emanuel Paul (ts); Joe James (p); George Guesnon (bj); Alcide Pavageau (b); Sammy Penn (d). 5/59.
(*) Sonnets From Algiers American Music AMCD 53 Valentine; Louis Nelson (tb); Paul 'Polo' Barnes (cl); Emanuel Paul (ts); Joe James (p); George Guesnon (bj); Sammy Penn (d, v). 7/60.
 Kid Thomas And His Algiers Stompers Original Jazz Classics OJC 1833 As above, except add Emil Barnes, Albert Burbank (cl); Homer Eugene (p). 8/60–1/61.
(*) Kid Thomas And His Algiers Stompers Original Jazz Classics OJC 1845 As above, except omit Burbank, Eugene. 1/61.

 Kid Thomas And Emanuel Paul With Barry Martyn's Band GHB BCD-257 Valentine; Cuff Billett (t); Pete Dyer (tb); Emanuel Paul, Bill Greenow (ts); Richard Simmons (p); Terry Knight (b); Barry Martyn (d). 64.

Thomas Valentine arrived in New Orleans rather late, in 1922. By the time he made his first records, almost 30 years later, he had led bands all over Louisiana but remained based in the city, where he continued to play for a further 35 years. He approached this awesome career with a Zen-like simplicity, reducing the New Orleans sound to its essentials and creating a lifetime's work from them. A fascinating lead-trumpeter, his methods – including a severe observance of the melody, a blunt, jabbing attack and a vibrato that sounds like an angry trill – manage to create high drama and lyrical depth alike, and though he seldom took solos he was such a strong lead voice that he tended to dominate every band he played in.

He made a lot of records during his long life. The first (1951) sessions have survived in excellent sound and find Valentine and Barnes in their first prime. There are two trombonists, since Bob Thomas had to leave after three numbers, and the changed balance of the front line tells much about the sensitivity of the New Orleans ensemble. Alden Ashforth's excellent notes chronicle the whole session in detail. The most characteristic is The Dance Hall Years, where Thomas plays with his regular working band (usually called The Algiers Stompers) at a couple of dance sessions, one identified only to the late '50s, the other dated precisely to March 1964. The material is familiar New Orleans stuff and a few blues. The seven earlier tracks are dustily recorded but the remainder sound good, although there seems to be no audience present. Nelson and Paul are in strong form and the band drives along with the ramshackle but perfectly appropriate rhythm that makes this music tick.

Two recent 'discoveries' on American Music are of somewhat dubious merit. At The Tip Top is in very shabby sound and the performances are ramshackle in the extreme. The main saving grace here is the hugely entertaining sleeve-notes by Charlie DeVore. Dancing Tonight is only slightly better, a neighbourhood dance (one wonders how anyone came to even record it) where Valentine's band do their stuff but little is created that makes one want to go through it again, some 50 years later. Much better is Kid Thomas Valentine's Creole Jazz Band. This time the band gets an excellent sound, which shows up all their problems as well as their virtues, and one can hear saxophone and brass timbres which a jazz band will most likely never sport out front again. The whole band play well and the session is a tribute to the enthusiasm of the English jazz fan Mike Slatter, who made it happen in the first place.

The two OJCs are more from Riverside's New Orleans: The Living Legends series, and they're surprisingly disappointing in some ways. Though clearly recorded, the band sound shrill – especially the clarinets – and some of the tempos seem either too hurried or down to a crawl. OJC 1833 is the better of the two. Better still, though, is the almost contemporaneous Sonnets From Algiers. This time the slightly acid and very upfront sound catches the raw charisma of the group, and the familiar set-list includes some particularly characterful takes on 'Ballin' The Jack' and 'Milenberg Joys'. The session with Barry Martyn and his British team is a spirited, affectionate meeting between men of vastly different backgrounds, and while Martyn anchors the pulse, his colleagues don't do so well, with Dyer especially blasting all before him to no real purpose. Thomas and Paul, though, fashion a more graceful partnership.

CORE COLLECTION

♛  Kid Thomas–George Lewis Ragtime Stompers GHB BCD-5 Thomas; Jim Robinson (tb); George Lewis (cl); Emanuel Sayles (bj); Alcide 'Slow Drag' Pavageau (b); Sammy Penn (d). 11/61.

This wonderful session could stand as the perfect introduction to classic New Orleans playing. For one thing the sound is superb, better than on most of Valentine's other records, and it lets us hear the balance of the front line – Valentine's curt lead, Lewis's lovely rococo embellishments, Robinson's doughty support. The rhythm team is unimpeachable. The tunes are obvious, but just what was needed for the day. As a group, the sextet swing along with the indefinable rightness which this music, at its best, delivers like no other style of jazz. Essential!

(*) The December Band Volumes 1 & 2 GHB BCD-197 Valentine; Jim Robinson (tb); Sammy Rimington (cl); Captain John Handy (as); Bill Sinclair (p); Dick Griffith (bj); Dick McCarthy (b); Sammy Penn (d). 12/65.

() Red Wing GHB BCD-189 Valentine; Big Bill Bissonnette (tb); Sammy Rimington (cl, as, ts), Bill Sinclair (p); Dick Griffith (bj); Dick McCarthy (b); Art Pulver (d). 3/66.

(*) Kid Thomas At Moose Hall GHB BCD-305 Valentine; Bill Connell (cl); Dick Griffith (bj); Dick McCarthy (b); Big Bill Bissonnette (d). 67.

 Kid Thomas In California GHB BCD-296 Valentine; Big Bill Bissonnette (tb, v); Captain John Handy (as); Cyril Bennett (p); Jim Tutunjian (b); Sammy Penn (d); Carol Leigh (v). 2–3/69.

It was quite an occasion at Moose Lodge Hall in December 1965 when Valentine and confrères took to the stage. From the 23-year-old Rimington to the venerable Valentine and Robinson, the band swung mightily through their sets, spread rather generously across two CDs. Handy especially seems in unquenchably high spirits, Rimington isn't overawed once, and the comparatively youthful rhythm section sound as if they were prepared to play all night. As one example, listen to the tempo that develops on 'Ice Cream'. Great New Orleans music, and we regretfully hold back a single notch owing to the sometimes disappointing sound-quality, which often has soloists disappearing off-mic.

At Moose Hall and In California were both recorded by Bissonnette, a stalwart crusader for New Orleans jazz who usually worked out of Connecticut. Forced to switch from his usual trombone to drums for the earlier session, he drafted in local hero Connell and booked Thomas to play the session, which suffers from an imperfect location sound and plenty of clinkers by the players, yet still offers much great Thomas. He was obliged to play more solos than usual, which he never liked doing, but somehow he took to the task with great relish, even though the rhythm section plays a lot faster and with more bounce than he was used to. As Bissonnette notes, there is more Kid Thomas on this one record than on two or three of his regular dates.

In California is one of the best available discs. Bissonnette secured a very good sound, recording mostly at Earthquake McGoon's, and the front-line partnership of Thomas and Handy strikes many sparks. 'Say Si Si' and 'Rose Room' are tunes less often encountered in the Thomas discography, and Penn's drumming is an outstanding show of maverick New Orleans timekeeping. Carol Leigh contributes two sweet-toned but convincing vocals. Highly recommended.

The dud in this batch is Red Wing. Yet another date at Moose Hall, but the band sound a bit out of sorts, Bissonnette is very poor on trombone, and the sound is scruffy. Only Rimington, reliable as usual, does well.

 Kid Thomas & Earl Humphrey With Orange Kellin's New Orleans Joymakers GHB BCD-353 Valentine; Earl Humphrey (tb); Orange Kellin (cl); Lars Edegran (p); Sylvester Handy (b); Lester Alexis (d). 70.

 Live In Denmark Volumes 1–4 Storyville STCD 6026–6029 Valentine; Louis Nelson (tb); SørenSørenson (ts); Erik Hansen, Jon Marks (p); Niels Richard Hansen (bj); Derek Cook (b); Keith Minter (d). 12/72–1/74.

Kid Thomas was an inveterate traveller to the end of his life, and there are plenty of surviving tour recordings. The GHB disc was cut in South Carolina and is the only opportunity to hear Valentine with the third of the famous Humphrey brothers, trombonist Earl. Perhaps not the most immortal of sessions, but with Thomas away from his usual sidemen, he plays a little more sideways than normal, and with Humphrey responding there's plenty of interest. The Danish session is selected from five nights of recording in Copenhagen and has Valentine and Nelson together with a European outfit. Sørensen sounds like he learned to play at Emanuel Paul's knee, and he helps make up a boisterous front line; but listen to Valentine's circumspect playing on 'Yellow Dog Blues' to hear how, at 77, he was still formidably inventive. The second volume includes eight previously unheard tracks. Excellent sound.

Colin Vallon (born 1980)

PIANO

Born in Lausanne and trained at the Berne Music School. He formed his own trio when he was still in his teens.

 Ombres Unit UTR 4145 Vallon; Lorenz Beyeler (p); Raphael Pedroli (d). 1/04.

 Ailleurs hatOLOGY 636 Vallon; Pat Moret (b); Samuel Rohrer (d). 06.

The debut record reveals a player of spectacular technique and a nice line in compositional ideas which suggests an even-handed familiarity with rock, jazz and some ethnic forms. He doesn't wear his musicology too prominently or showily, though, and the group sound, though not as good as on the second disc, is well-balanced and co-operative, rather than piano-plus-accompaniment. Though little known outside Switzerland, these are highly professional players.

The hatOLOGY album starts with the moody 'Le Paradis Perdu', which wouldn't be out of place on an ECM session, but the pace is well-varied with upbeat ideas like 'Mardi' and the almost Eastern European sound of 'Babylone'. His colleagues are, if anything, more strikingly original than the leader, Moret coming on at times like a young Scott LaFaro, Rohrer showing an ability to work at any tempo and metre. Like many young players, Vallon tries to show his facility in as many styles as possible and calls on Rohrer for a rock backbeat on 'Zombie'. Perhaps too various a record to work in its entirety, it's none the less an impressive start for a label that has a fine recent track record in talent-spotting piano-players.

Ken Vandermark (born 1964)

SAXOPHONES, CLARINETS

Born in Warwick, Rhode Island. Vandermark played trumpet into his teens, then switched to saxophone. Studied and led bands in Boston and Montreal, then relocated to Chicago, where he is now a leading inspiration on the jazz and free scene.

(*) International Front Okkadisk OD 12005 Vandermark; Kent Kessler (b); Curt Newton (d). 9/94.

 Blow Horn Okkadisk OD12019 Vandermark; Mats Gustafsson (ts, bs, flageolet); Kent Kessler (b); Steve Hunt (d). 10/95.

(*) Single Piece Flow Atavistic ALP47 Vandermark; Jeb Bishop (tb, g); Mars Williams (saxes); Kent Kessler (b); Tim Mulvenna (d). 8/96.

Vandermark has charged straight to the front of free music in America – and not from New York, either. One could call him an archetypal post-modernist, working in rock, R&B and jazz alike, except with Vandermark there's nothing cool or once-removed about his expressiveness. He's a full-on energy player a lot of the time, a canny organizer of groups and musical forms, a man perhaps destined to make things happen. While he's primarily a tenor saxophonist, he often picks up both bass and B-flat clarinets, and he espouses European models as readily as American ones – Evan Parker arabesques might invade a solo as plausibly as Dolphyesque skirlings and Lockjaw Davis-like pugilistics. Vandermark likes structure – most of these records start off from compositions, sometimes of considerable complexity – but his music can take off into the most provocative and open-ended byways. He also knows a lot of great players, most of them stalwarts of a scene which Vandermark himself has been crucial in documenting and bringing to wider attention.

Names are often dropped all over these records, but when someone like George Clinton or Witold Lutosławski is cited it never means that Vandermark is about to get either funky or neo-classical. What he loves is jazz language in the raw, and this is how the earlier discs sound. Some of his early stuff is out of print by now. International Front is by the trio Steelwool. With long-time compadre Kessler (also a colleague in the NRG Ensemble) in great fettle, it's a roughly shod power-trio that finds each man vying for attention: muscular, exhilarating, unrepentant.

Blow Horn is a day at Uberstudio in Chicago. Gustafsson more usually crosses horns with Vandermark from his position in the AALY Trio, and 'Dedication' carries on that shouting tradition. Hunt and Kessler sometimes get drowned out (not something one can often say about a drummer going full tilt), although they're good enough to listen to by themselves, which happens on the first two minutes of 'Blow Horn For Service' at least. Not our favourite of these records, but still plenty of action.

Single Piece Flow debuts The Vandermark Five, with Jeb Bishop an intriguing booking. Almost temperate in parts, there's some exemplary use of the group as a unit, with a piece like 'The Mark Inside' offering a sort of jaundiced twist on jazz tradition. When Vandermark offers dedications to the likes of Johnny Hodges and Gil Evans, it's the tribute of a fan, but one isn't always sure what homage he's paying. As prolific as he has already been in a short space of time, there's little to suggest a man who'll be content to be a career jazz musician.

(*) The DKV Trio With Fred Anderson Okkadisk OD 12014 Vandermark; Fred Anderson (ts); Kent Kessler (b); Hamid Drake (d). 12/96.

() Baraka/ () Live In Wels & Chicago 1998 Okkadisk OD 12012/ OD12030 2CD As above, except omit Anderson. 2/97; 11/98.

This is the DKV Trio, one of Vandermark's most regularly assembled projects. The album with Anderson is beautifully focused. The older man is a less multi-faceted player than either Vandermark or some of the other hornmen on these records, but he fits gracefully into the trio's set-up and there is some muscleman playing which doesn't descend into posturing. Baraka has its moments of stasis – the title-track runs for more than 35 minutes, and it needs plenty of resources to sustain that – but there is still an awful lot to listen to. Wels & Chicago features two concerts, recorded in the same month but geographically a continent apart – and the music is sometimes prone to traversing a great distance without saying a great deal. The 30-minute 'Open Door' is out of steam well before the end. But the Wels set, basically framed around Don Cherry's 'Complete Communion Suite', is a stunning example of free repertory, the original materials ingeniously transplanted to this situation.

(*) Target Or Flag Atavistic ALP106 Vandermark; Jeb Bishop (tb, g); Mars Williams (saxes); Kent Kessler (b); Tim Mulvenna (d). 10/97.

* Simpatico Atavistic ALP107 As above, except omit Williams; add Dave Rempis (as). 12/98.

More reports from The Vandermark Five. This seems to be Vandermark's principal outlet as far as writing and arranging are concerned. Dedications to the likes of Shelly Manne, Jack Montrose and Curtis Counce betray his affection for the urbane precision of prime West Coast jazz, and his own pieces make the point of following some of the precepts (counterpoint, tonal contrast) which that school lived by. Except they're channelled through a combative and inclusive perspective which takes in all the more expected freedoms. Obsessive work is making the band (and its leader) into ever more expressive and capable players, so a tough slice of free bop such as 'Attempted, Not Known' on Target Or Flag holds no terrors. Bishop seems to be as at home on guitar as he is on trombone (one of the less frequently encountered examples of doubling). Rempis is a surprise substitute for Williams on Simpatico, and since he plays only alto it slightly narrows the tonal palette – though this supercharged and superbly focused set is surely the group's best to date.

(*) Design In Time Delmark DE-516 Vandermark; Robert Barry, Tim Mulvenna (d). 99.

Vandermark goes through the card here, playing jump band tenor on 'Green Chimneys', unchained howling on 'Angels', even New Orleans clarinet on 'Cut To Fit'. Barry and Mulvenna make an unapologetically swinging team, playing at least as much time as they do free, and with Coleman, Monk and Ayler among the composer-credits, this is an amenable place to acquaint a newcomer with Vandermark's methods.

 Transatlantic Bridge Okkadisk OD 12040 Vandermark; Axel Dörner (t); Jeb Bishop (tb); Dave Rempis (as, ts); Jim Baker (p); Fred Lonberg-Holm (clo); Kent Kessler (b); Paul Lytton, Tim Mulvenna (d). 2/00.

 Spaceways Incorporated/  Version Soul Atavistic ALP 120/132 Vandermark; Nate McBride (b); Hamid Drake (d). 1/00; 8/01.

The nonet music of Transatlantic Bridge is Vandermark at his most composerly, although he seems to back off from a really detailed involvement with directing the group, since the four long pieces have extended solos which pad out the music: more interesting would have been to hear the ensemble minus the lengthy extemporizing. 'RM' may catch out the unwary since it features a minute of silence halfway through (Marcel Duchamp, the dedicatee, may have enjoyed the point).

Spaceways Incorporated offers 'thirteen cosmic standards' by Sun Ra and George Clinton. The Ra pieces have a melodious folky feel, Vandermark often playing them in a mild clarinet setting, while the Clinton tunes are given a rollocking via electric bass, Drake thundering out funk beats and Vandermark in R&B tenor mode. Might have been interesting to have heard them the other way around. The encore set is this time all-original. 'Reasonable Hour' is a beautiful dedication to Serge Chaloff, and there's funk in more than one style ('Meters', for instance). A light sidebar in the oeuvre.

() Burn The Incline/ () Acoustic Machine Atavistic ALP 121/128 Vandermark; Jeb Bishop (tb, g); Dave Rempis (as, ts); Kent Kessler (b); Tim Mulvenna (d). 12/99; 1/01.

(*) Acoustic Machine Atavistic ALP 128 As above. 1/01.

* Airports For Light Atavistic ALP 140 As above, except omit Mulvenna; add Tim Daisy (d). 8/02.

The Vandermark Five continue to be the leader's keynote ensemble. The records are settling almost into a repertory feel: for all the sometimes flaming intensity (actually notably pared back on these two sets), the quintet could be a variation on the classic hard-bop band. Vandermark's tunes certainly rise to the challenge that nobody's writing catchy jazz pieces any more: 'Roulette' on Burn The Incline or 'Fall To Grace' and 'Coast To Coast' on Acoustic Machine easily hook into the memory. His dedications often contain a note of mimicry: 'Coast To Coast', for Stan Getz, isn't so far from the Getz–Brookmeyer group, and 'License Complete' is very akin to 'Hard Blues'-era Julius Hemphill. New recruit Dave Rempis fits right in, and Bishop picks up the guitar for some of Burn The Incline. Airports For Light goes further and deeper, with Bishop especially in top fettle. A modern-day band for the jazz ages.

* Crossing Division Okkadisk OD 12037 Vandermark; Jeb Bishop (tb); Ingebrigt Håker Flaten (b); Paal Nilssen-Love (d). 3/00.

The group which toured Europe in 2003. This might be the closest to straightforward freebop Vandermark's been in recent times, though the superb work from bass and drums tends to explode conventions, and throws the melodious soloing into sharper relief. There are a couple of Roswell Rudd tunes, but Bishop's 'Bookworm' is even better. A classic entry.

(*) Two Days In December Wobbly Rail WOB012 2CD Vandermark; David Stackenas (g); Sten Sandell (p); Raymond Strid (d); Kjell Nordeson (perc). 12/01.

Just two days playing with these guys: Vandermark plays one set with each man. 'There are elements of styles defined as Free Jazz, Free Improvisation, New Music, Blues, Jazz etc, but there are many times I think we found something which is personal and does not fit into the categories that are set by 20th-century expectations.' It is easy to both agree and diasagree: they don't find their way to anywhere 'new' here, yet, like everything Vandermark seems to put his fingers on, it's definitely his and their own.

() Dual Pleasure/ () Dual Pleasure 2 / (*) Seven Smalltown Supersound STS 068/ 085 / 093 Vandermark; Paal Nilssen-Love (d). 7/02; 9/03; 05.

Europe's premier drummer meets Chicago's leading ambassador. It's some conversation. Listening to Nilssen-Love by himself is exhilarating; with Vandermark going full tilt alongside for an hour (well, they're not at full blast all the time), it's dizzying, if not quite deafening. Bravo! Just for an encore they did it all again, a year later, both live and in the studio, and put out two more discs of the encounter. And then again, a bit further on. They could probably put out an interesting record every week.

 Furniture Music Okkadsik 12046 Vandermark (cl, bcl, ts, bs solo). 8/02.

All by himself. But Vandermark thrives so much on the interactions of group playing, especially with drummers, that one might anticipate some dry bones here. His dedications to Parker (Evan) and Brötzmann do have a certain copycat feel, too. Elsewhere, though, the ruminative Vandermark comes out. 'Immediate Action' is one small gem among several.

(*) Furnace Wobbly Rail WOB013 Vandermark; Havard Wiik (p); Ingebrigt Håker Flaten (b). 10/02.

Here he goes with yet another trio, Free Fall – and the dedication should be obvious, with a glance at the instrumentation. Ken sticks to B-flat and bass clarinets and the echoes of the great Giuffre trio are loud enough. Still, has anyone else thought of emulating and building on that distinguished group? Wiik is a more interventionist pianist than Bley, and of course Vandermark doesn't settle for chalumeau and woodsy shadows. The result is a fascinating departure and homage in one.

(*) Gambit Clean Feed CF019 Vandermark; Nate McBride (b); Curt Newton (d). 8/03.

Seems like Vandermark can go anywhere and get an interesting result. Here he's with the Boston partnership of McBride and Newton, who've worked together often and make a formidable pairing, the bassist's big sound complementing the drummer's keen, aggressive polyrhythms. Vandermark tries several strategies with them: folksy clarinet on 'Barker Waters', fuming tenor on 'Hydro'. McBride wrote both of those, and can take equal credit for an absorbing record.

 Elements Of Style/ * The Color Of Memory Atavistic ALP 150/ 166 Vandermark; Jeb Bishop (tb); Dave Rempis (sax); Kent Kessler (b); Tim Daisy (d). 7/03; 7/04.

We aren't in the business of who-is-the-greatest; we evaluate records. But it's difficult to think of another jazz combo currently active that is working to this incredible standard. Both of these annual reports from the V5 are utterly compelling from first to last. The compositions explore new terrain even as they value their various toeholds on the tradition. The supportive nature of the group is democracy in profitable action, even as the band is driven by Vandermark's vision. It's rarely solos that you remember, fine as they individually are, it's the music of a living organism that relishes detail and enjoys throwing its weight around. If you aren't tuning in, right now, why on earth not?

Fred Van Hove (born 1937)

PIANO, CHURCH ORGAN

Classical studies in his native Antwerp, then he worked in dance orchestras before becoming interested in free jazz, playing extensively with Peter Brötzmann in the '60s and early '70s.

(*) Complete Vogel Recordings Atavistic Unheard Music UMSCD2292 Van Hove; Cel Overberghe (ts). 72–74.

Van Hove's almost ancestral status in European free music isn't reflected in his available discography, which makes this such a valuable reappearance. The solo discs are better than the duo album with Overberghe, who sounds at moments like a cut-price Brötzmann on an off day. For serious collectors, the set also includes a rare 7-inch by the duo. The solo pieces are quizzical and sardonic, possibly too unshowy to capture the imagination, but definitely worth exploring.

 Lust Wimprotwee 100494 Van Hove; Ivo Vander Borght (d). 4/94.

 Passing Waves / (*) Flux Nuscope CD 1001 / Potlatch P 2398 2CD Van Hove (p solo). 5/97; 1/98.

The scarcity of his records is compensated for by their dense, sometimes super-concentrated content. Interesting to conjecture whether he learned from Taylor, or if – like Brötzmann – he arrived at his style mostly independent of American influence. Either way, as far back as the earliest FMPs he was projecting a fiercely individual aesthetic on free-jazz piano, and by now it is quite his own, while inevitably steeped in the unorthodoxies of the style. The two solo sets are quite unalike, since the Potlatch (live) is made up of two long, continuous sets while the Nuscope is a more prepared set of ten studio pieces. The latter takes a specific starting-point for most of the tracks – a billiard ball on the strings or the qualities of an arpeggio – and fashions it quite deliberately. The former simply lets Fred go at the keyboard, and he works through big structures with the kind of block-follows-block linearity that marks him out, perhaps, as old school. That said, his pianism (on which Georg Graewe comments admiringly in a sleeve-note to Passing Waves) is so refined that the concert disc in particular is mostly spellbinding. Some of Passing Waves is more interesting for its formal ideas than for their execution, but Flux is often as exciting as it is profound.

Lust came out of a theatre-piece of the same title. As with many such documents, one feels that there's a vital element missing, and the brief vocal intrusion of the actors on one track underlines it. Taken simply as a sequence of duets, though, there are some absorbing dialogues, which Borght is more than up to playing his part in: 'Tafeltjesballade', for instance.

 Suite For B... City FMP CD 88 Van Hove; Axel Dörner (t); Konrad Bauer, Paul Rutherford (tb); Benoît Viredaz (tba); André Goudbeek (as, bandoneon); John Butcher (ss, ts); Ivo Vander Borght (d); Annick Nozati (v). 4/96.

Commissioned for a festival in Middelheim, but presumably a portrait of Brussels, though this version was performed in Berlin. The large group affords Van Hove a rare chance to work with a substantial ensemble and the sound he gets is unique, even though many of these players are quite familiar on their own. There is some lovely passage work on the attractively titled 'Bollocks City', which weighs in at nearly half an hour and brings the whole sequence to a climax. It must have been great in concert, but it's slightly dry on disc.

 PijP WIMprovier 140497 Van Hove; Johannes Bauer, Konrad Bauer (tb). 4/97.

The only record of trombone and church organ duets in the catalogue, we suspect. Johannes and Connie do one each, and Fred takes a solo in the middle. Van Hove recorded improvisations on an organ in the '70s, so this isn't exactly new ground for him. The horn-players battle manfully against what are basically impossible odds, and it's all amusing high jinks, really. The solo sounds like a horror film soundtrack.

 Facetten a/l/l 012 Van Hove; Wolfgang Fuchs (bcl). 11/04.

Though the under-recorded (and recently ailing) Fuchs is represented by two tracks on this, with Van Hove on harpsichord and accordion respectively, the key component of the session is a huge rolling solo piano improvisation in the middle. Fred is in astonishingly good form, creating a great architecture of sound out of relatively simple materials, with little recourse to sheer dynamics. The shorter pieces are worth having, too, but one feels they belong on a different record.

Jesse Van Ruller (born 1972)

GUITAR

Promising young Dutchman.

 Here And There Criss Cross 1217 Van Ruller; David Hazeltine (p); Nat Reeves, Franz Van Geest (b); Joe Farnsworth, Willie Jones III (d). 1/02.

 Circles Criss Cross 1235 Van Ruller; Seamus Blake (ts); Sam Yahel (org); Bill Stewart (d). 12/02.

 Views Criss Cross 1273 As above. 10/05.

Van Ruller plays flowing, efficient jazz guitar without too much embellishment and with a certain impatience for complexity where simplicity will do just as well. Konitz's 'Subconscious-Lee' on the first album is a good indication of how his mind works, but there are even better tracks, such as the opening 'The Best Things In Life Are Free' and Buster Williams's delightful and rarely covered 'Christina'. A brief version of Monk's 'In Walked Bud' is marked by wit and intelligence. The two rhythm sections are broadly similar in conception, though Jones is probably the more propulsive and effective drummer.

The second album steams straight into sax/guitar/organ soul-jazz, but demolishes expectations with a set of Van Ruller originals which emphasize the subtler side of this particular configuration. 'Zoab', '33 Waltz' and the closing 'Secret Champ' are all fine themes, each with a touch of mystery. The group sounds well-rehearsed and sympathetic, and only on the solitary standard, 'Gone With The Wind', is there any sign of flagging. The only other tune not by Van Ruller is Blake's very good 'Black Dahlia'.

Views reconvenes the same personnel and runs out to pretty much the same record. As with its predecessor, the set-list is all original, and the feel of the music is unemphatic and slightly enigmatic. Hardly disappointing, but not exactly an advance, either.

Jasper Van't Hof (born 1947)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS, DRUMS

Though sometimes showy and over-effusive, the Dutchman has a powerful sense of structure and writes challenging charts.

(*) Blue Corner ACT 9228 Van't Hof; Bob Malach (ts); Wayne Krantz (g); Nicholas Fiszman (b); Philippe Allaert (d). 92.

Malach turned out to be a highly responsive partner and is even more dominant in the group with Krantz, an imaginatively constituted outfit that should have recorded more. Van't Hof favours long, ripplingly arpeggiated lines and richly augmented chords, but he is also capable of playing spare, funky lines. It may seem like a very long shot, but play their duets back to back with David Murray's collaborations with Dave Burrell: there is the same stark melody combined with harmonic elegance and daring.

(*) Tomorrowland Challenge CHR 70040 Van't Hof; Bob Malach (ts); Jean-François Jenny-Clark (b). 9/96.

Jasper made very substantial claims for this record, suggesting that it represented a new genre, related to but different from African-American jazz. Bold as the writing is, and splendidly as it is executed, it's hard to swallow his claim that VOJ – as he chooses to call this new style – has made a qualitative step beyond bebop. The writing is, as one would expect, both thoughtful and intense, and three longish tracks spaced through the record – 'Wildcard', 'Round About' (Monkish) and 'The Quiet American' – are all markedly individual. Jenny-Clark and Malach are admirably responsive. The bassist has never enjoyed the kind of attention his attentive, detailed playing deserves. Like Barre Phillips, he is able to combine an old-fashioned sound and unfailing swing with a high degree of freedom. Malach, too, follows no known school, and the drummerless trio has a marked independence of direction that is consistently fascinating. The harmonic language and experimental metres are food for thought – but as to founding a new idiom, we don't think so.

(*) Un Mondo Illusorio Challenge CHR 70059 Van't Hof (org solo). 8/98.

(*) Un Incontro Illusorio Challenge CHR 70072 Van't Hof; Joey Baron (d). 01.

Completely sui generis, these astonishing records are certainly at the boundaries of jazz, VOJ, or any other identifiable idiom. Van't Hof has long included organ in his armoury, but these performances on the instrument at Chiesa di Santa Maria delle Rose in Bonefro, Italy, are unique, provocative and sometimes bewilderingly idiosyncratic. The first consists of 17 short études or thematic improvisations, exploring an astonishing range of tonalities and timbres, from the percussive snaps and clicks of 'Dimenarsi Da Maniaco' to huge, shimmering tone-clusters reminiscent of classical composer-organists Jehan Alain and Olivier Messiaen. The mood of the recording is almost entirely thoughtful and reflective, with little in the way of dynamic variation. Van't Hof's concentration is palpable, but so too is his shrewd sense of humour. While these are far from lightweight pieces, there is a sense of play about them, a quality accentuated when the wonderful Baron comes into the picture on the second disc. Even so, we are a long way from Art Tatum, and anyone who demands an element of swing will be put off from the outset.

Also, in brief:

(*) At The Concertgebouw – Solo Challenge CHR 70010. 12/93.

Boxing Day 1993 and the most prestigious concert venue in the Netherlands. Jasper rises to the occasion grandly.

 Tempo Brutto Intuition INT 3309. 01.

Not strictly a Van't Hof album at all but a series of collaborative duos with Charlie Mariano (as) and Steve Swallow (b).

Tom Varner (born 1957)

FRENCH HORN

At work in the New York scene for some 20 years, the Missourian pursues a rare specialty.

 Tom Varner Quartet Soul Note 121017-2 Varner; Ed Jackson (as); Fred Hopkins (b); Billy Hart (d). 8/80.

 Motion/Stillness Soul Note 121067 As above, except omit Hopkins; add Ed Schuller (b). 3/82.

 Jazz French Horn Soul Note 121176-2 Varner; Jim Snidero (as); Kenny Barron (p); Mike Richmond (b); Victor Lewis (d). 10/85.

* The Mystery Of Compassion Soul Note 121217-2 Varner; Steve Swell (tb); Dave Taylor (btb); Matt Darriau, Ed Jackson (as); Rich Rothenberg, Ellery Eskelin (ts); Jim Hartog (bs); Mark Feldman (vn); Mike Richmond (b); Tom Rainey (d). 3/92.

* Martian Heartache Soul Note 121286-2 Varner; Ed Jackson (as); Ellery Eskelin (ts); Pete McCann (g); Drew Gress (b); Tom Rainey (d); Dominique Eade (v). 3/96.

Varner's decision to apply french horn as a weapon in the New York avant-garde might once have seemed improbable, but with every kind of instrument pressed into service in that milieu, no longer. There is the inevitable feel from time to time that it's a trombonist we're listening to, but Varner has taken pains to develop his own vocabulary on an often intractable brass instrument. The Quartet album and its live successor are more like uneventful free bop, depending on satisfying solos to make a modest impact. Jazz French Horn continued along similar lines, but the band is excellent and even as a repertory exercise it's very well done.

The later Soul Note records are something else entirely. On The Mystery Of Compassion, Varner's alarming juxtapositions make coherent sense without losing their capacity to surprise, and the players involved respond with a passionate intensity which is rare even among these driven musicians. The central group is a quintet made up of Varner, Jackson, Rothenberg, Richmond and Rainey. On all-out barnstormers like 'How Does Power Work?' and '$1000 Hat' they play with unstinting panache. 'The Well' is a concerto-like piece for Feldman, and 'Death At The Right Time' uses a tentet to create a bemusing recall of Coltrane's 'Ascension'. Varner's own improvising has never been better – he actually makes the instrument assert its personal qualities – and he closes the record on a sombre antiphonal piece for low brass called 'Prayer' which makes a moving coda to the rest.

Martian Heartache is probably even better. Varner packs 15 pieces into the record, again based around the core quintet, with McCann arriving only for the fascinating 'Erva Etc'. Sculpted with absolute precision but loose and swinging in feel, the music never turns fragmentary or episodic; even the shortest pieces are fully realized, composed and uncluttered. Varner plays a gracious role as leader, offering terrific opportunities for the horns to make characterful statements, without letting anybody blemish their book by spinning out rhetoric. Jackson and Eskelin are more than equal to the task.

* The Window Up Above New World 80552-2 Varner; Dave Ballou (c); Mark Feldman (vn); Pete McCann (g); Steve Alcott, Lindsey Horner (b); George Schuller (d); Thirsty Dave Hansen (v). 5/98.

A complete departure for Tom, but just as powerful and surprising a record. It's a ramble through 200 or so years of American songwriting, going as far back as the earliest public-domain folk tunes and as far forward as Ellington, George Jones and Hank Williams (the latter two voiced by Thirsty Dave Hansen). If he treats 'I Got It Bad' relatively straight, it's to emphasize the lieder element in the tune. 'Kingdom Coming' gets a blues injected into it, and 'When Jesus Wept' is gradually, but logically, broken down into a strange lament. 'Abide With Me' gets its first jazz treatment, as a sweet waltz, since Monk's horn arrangement. And so on. No track seems silly or forced, and Varner makes every melody count. Excellent work from the little-known McCann, playing a Frisell-like role a lot of the way, and cameos from Feldman and Ballou add to the pleasure of a mature and beautifully sustained record.

* Swimming Omnitone 11903 Varner; Dave Ballou (t); Tony Malaby, Steve Wilson (sax); Pete McCann (g); Mark Feldman (vn); Cameron Brown (b); Tom Rainey (d). 6/99.

Unaccountably overlooked in our last edition, this set of hefty cuts and miniatures is distinguished by a virtuosic deployment of instrumental forces. 'Mark At The Circus' and 'Mark Goes Minimalist' give an impression of what's going on, and Feldman is certainly the star of the show; his playing on 'Memory of One Nashville Gig' is beyond extraordinary. 'Samuel Gets the Call', one of the longer tracks, has a strange, offset form, with the criminally underappreciated Brown prominently featured. 'Strident' is one of the most amazing things Varner has done, almost aggressive and bordering on the funky. We missed it before, but this must be one of Varner's best records, possibly the best of all.

* Second Communion Omnitone 12102 Varner; Dave Ballou (c); Tony Malaby (ts); Pete McCann (g); Cameron Brown (b); Matt Wilson (d). 9/00.

A brilliant piece of repertory, recasting Don Cherry's entire Complete Communion in a fresh interpretation by an admirable band. Ballou's finest moment probably comes on 'Cherryco', but he takes the Cherry 'role' with individual aplomb and Varner himself has rarely played with more decision and adventure, pushing the horn into difficult areas with great skill. Brown and Wilson, crucially, evoke the kind of smart but free-flowing swing which kept Cherry's music buoyant, and there is a poignant farewell to the trumpeter which Varner plays solo.

Johnny Varro (born 1930)

PIANO

An overlooked mainstream player, who replaced Ralph Sutton as intermission pianist at Condon's in 1957.

 Everything I Love Arbors ARCD 19114 Varro; Dave Stone (b); Gene Estes (d). 9/92.

 Swing 7 Arbors ARCD 19138 Varro; Randy Sandke (t); Dan Barrett (tb); Harry Allen (ts); Phil Bodner (cl, as); Frank Tate (b); Joe Ascione (d). 9/94.

 Say Yes: Arbors Piano Series At Mike's Place -Volume 2 Arbors ARCD 19178 Varro (p solo). 11/96.

(*) Afterglow Arbors ARCD 19198 As for Swing 7, except omit Allen, Bodner; add Tommy Newsom, Ken Peplowski (cl, ts). 12/97.

(*) Swingin' On W. 57th Street Arbors ARCD 19242 Varro; Randy Sandke (t); Dan Barrett (tb); Ken Peplowski (as); Harry Allen, Scott Robinson (ts); Phil Bodner (cl, as); Michael Moore (b); Joe Ascione (d). 8/00.

(*) All That Jazz Arbors ARCD 19243 Varro; Jon-Erik Kellso (t, puje); Nicki Parrott (b); Joe Ascione (d). 8/00.

An unabashed jazz entertainer, Varro is a living archivist of song. On the first of these, he moves from 'Love Is A Simple Thing' (how often do you hear that called?) to 'Waltz For Debbie' to 'All By Myself'. Say Yes is named after a Waller song hardly anyone else seems to play. It all comes along so fast you've no time to worry that not much is happening beyond embellishment of the melody and a few conventional harmonic exercises. That somehow misses the point of this music. The Swing 7 date benefits immeasurably from Sandke's buoyant, salty guest appearance and nice harmonization with Barrett; by contrast, the reeds seem a bit plodding. The second of the 7 dates, with Newsom and Peplowski, is much better. Inventive material, fine ensemble playing, and some great spots from the reedmen. The group are even better on W. 57th St. Robinson fits right in; Moore seems the perfect man for the job, and Peplowski delights with an unexpected turn to alto on 'On The Sunny Side Of The Street'. There's the usual classical arrangement – Tchaikovsky this time – a Waller tune, Duke's 'Black Butterfly' and some standards. Irresistible if you enjoy the genre; probably grating if you don't.

Varro's Teddy Wilson influence comes out strongest in the quartet with Kellso, who plays his hybrid trumpet/cornet in addition to a regular instrument. It's another madly eclectic set, delivered at a faintly uncritical clip, but the brassman makes sure it's kept thoughtful as well as pacey.

Also, in brief:

 Just You: Just Me & Two Pianos Solo Art SACD 127. 00.
By-the-numbers swing piano with Mark Shane. For collectors only.

(*) Pure Imagination Arbors ARCD 19293. 1/04.
A disappointing trio record, though much of the blame lies with the group.

Sarah Vaughan (1924–90)

VOICE, PIANO

Studied piano as a child, then joined the Earl Hines band in 1943 as vocalist. Left with Billy Eckstine to sing in his new band and went solo in the late '40s. Had many crossover hits during that decade but was always seen as a jazz vocalist, one of the most gifted, with a big range and variety of tone, a bopper's way with scat – though she rarely used it – and the stage presence of a forbidding diva. Unaccountably, never as popular as Holiday or Fitzgerald.

 Sarah Vaughan 1944–1946 Classics 958 Vaughan; Dizzy Gillespie, Freddy Webster, Shorty McConnell, Gail Brockman, Boonie Hazel, Clarence Brereton, George Treadwell, Al Aaron, Danny Blue, Art House, Al Porcino, Neal Hefti, Sonny Rich, George Schwartz (t); Gerald Valentine, Trummy Young, Tracy Allen, Mike Datz, Rude De Luca, Gus Dixon, Johnny Mandel, Taswell Baird, Howard Scott, Alfred 'Chippie' Outcalt, Dicky Wells (tb); Aaron Sachs, Buster Bailey, Tony Scott (cl); Charlie Parker, Scoville Brown, Leroy Harris, John Jackson, Bill Frazier, Russell Procope, Lou Prisby, Gene Zanoni, Leroy Harris, Sam Zittman (as); Don Byas, Dexter Gordon, Gene Ammons, Flip Phillips, Ben Webster, Al Cohn, Irv Roth (ts); Cecil Payne, Serge Chaloff, Leo Parker, Cecil Scott (bs); Al Haig, Jimmy Jones, Bud Powell, Leonard Feather, John Malachi, Billy Kyle, Freddy Jefferson, Roy Kral, Harvey Leonard, Tadd Dameron (p); John Collins, Remo Palmieri, Bill D'Arango, Connie Wainwright, Chuck Wayne, Barry Galbraith (g); Al McKibbon, Curley Russell, Ted Sturgis, Tommy Potter, Jack Lesberg, John Kirby, Gene Ramey, Ted Sturgis, Joe Pillicane, Ed Cunningham (b); Pete Glover, Big Sid Catlett, Kenny Clarke, Art Blakey, Morey Feld, Max Roach, Bill Beason, Ed Nicholson, Art Madigan (d). 9/44–7/46.

(*) The Essential Sarah Vaughan Metro CD 573 2CD As above, except add Miles Davis, Billy Butterfield, Taft Jordan, Andrew Ferretti, Bernie Privin, Yank Lawson, Carl Poole, Ziggy Elman (t); Will Bradley, Jack Satterfield, William Rausch, Bennie Green, John D'Agostino, William Pritchard (tb); Tony Scott (cl); Hymie Schertzer, Art Drelinger, George Kelly, Toots Mondello, Al Klink, Bill Versaci, Richard Banzer, Bill Hitz, Budd Johnson (sax); Jimmy Jones (p); Freddie Green, Al Caiola, Mundell Lowe (g); Frank Carroll, Eddie Safranski, Jack Lesberg, Billy Taylor, Bob Haggart (b); J. C. Heard, Terry Snyder, Norris Shawker, Bill Coles (d); strings; studio orchestras led by Percy Faith, Paul Weston and Norman Leyden. 1/49–1/53.

Her vocal on the 1946 Dizzy Gillespie Sextet record of 'Lover Man' was Sarah Vaughan's banner arrival. Yet she'd already cut several fine sides – four with a Dizzy Gillespie small group, including a fine vocal version of 'Night In Tunisia' – and there were several other scattered appearances, all of which seem to have been gathered up on the intriguing if finally slightly disappointing Classics CD. A later session with Bird and Dizzy includes a terrific 'Mean To Me', with Parker shadowing her almost like Lester with Billie, but the remaining sessions are motley in nature and Vaughan seems to get only doleful ballads to sing. 'All Too Soon', with a Tony Scott group, is a nice one, with some lovely Ben Webster, and overall the best performances earn the stars, although remastering seems very spotty. But her sessions for Musicraft and Columbia were her first significant body of records, following her stint with the Billy Eckstine Orchestra.

The Metro set supplants the previously listed compilation, The Divine Sarah Vaughan, and is more or less the same, although it also has some of the pre-Columbia titles. The bulk of the Columbias are scarcely jazz-orientated sessions, with full orchestras and hefty ballads, but two sessions from May 1950 put Vaughan in front of a small band that included Miles Davis, Tony Scott and Budd Johnson for eight fine tracks. Vaughan's musical insight – she was a more than capable pianist – and involvement with bop's early days gave her a hip awareness that went with a voice of vast range and power, and her early Billy Eckstine influence – both singers use vibrato to the same enormously ripe effect – makes her sound like a close relation of Eckstine on all these tracks. Far from disguising the operatic qualities of her voice, Vaughan insists on them, sometimes dispersing the sense of a lyric while luxuriating in the depth of her own voice. Luckily, the material on the Columbia sessions is good enough to withstand such indulgence, and it's a very enjoyable double set, acceptably if not outstandingly remastered.

[illegible]

♛ * Sarah Vaughan
Verve 543305-2 Vaughan; Clifford Brown (t); Paul Quinichette (ts); Herbie Mann (f); Jimmy Jones (p); Joe Benjamin (b); Roy Haynes (d). 12/54.

The session with Clifford Brown was a glorious occasion, and the kind of date that occurred far too infrequently during the rest of Sarah's career. A blue-chip band (even Mann doesn't disgrace himself) on a slow-burning set of standards that Vaughan lingers over and details with all the finesse of her early-mature voice: 'Lullaby Of Birdland' (the master take is a composite, and there is a 'partial alternative' take here too) is taken at a pace that suspends time or lets it drift, and the very slow pace for 'Embraceable You' and 'Jim' doesn't falter into a trudge. In the past we have wondered if the many slow tempos were perhaps too many, but in this superb new remastering it is very difficult to find any flaw in what should be recognized as one of the great jazz vocal records. We are upgrading it to crown status as a result.

* Swingin' Easy Emarcy 514072-2 Vaughan; Jimmy Jones, John Malachi (p); Richard Davis, Joe Benjamin (b); Roy Haynes (d). 54–57.
Swingin' Easy isn't far behind, though. With just a rhythm section in support, Vaughan is at her freest and most good-humoured:

it's worth having just for the cheeky, sublime 'Shulie A Bop', but there's also a gorgeous 'Lover Man' and a shivery 'Linger Awhile'.

(*) Sings George Gershwin Verve 557567-2 2CD Vaughan; Hal Mooney Orchestra. 57.
 Golden Hits Mercury 824891-2 Vaughan; Hal Mooney Orchestra. 58.
() Sings Broadway: Great Songs From Great Shows / () Jazz Masters 42: The Jazz Sides Verve 526464-2 2CD / 526817-2 As above discs. 3/54–1/56; n.d.

Vaughan's later Mercury sessions are sometimes a shade self-conscious – not in any sense an embarrassment to Vaughan but in the way that she can get hung up on the sound of her own voice, the criticism most often levelled at her. Musicality and the comparative brevity of each piece usually win through, though, and while her 'songbook' collections miss some of the simple swing and infectiousness of the contemporaneous Ella Fitzgerald records in the same style, Vaughan's grandness and the lavish Mercury recording make these rich sonic experiences. At the moment Universal seem to be rethinking their Vaughan holdings, and the individual albums which are out there are few in number. The Gershwin set competes but loses out to the Fitzgerald counterpart, though that is scarcely a disgrace. Golden Hits offers a fine cross-section of material, although the occasional stuffiness of the studio orchestra discourages any hint that Vaughan might use the occasions as springboards for more idiomatic jazz singing. Her coloratura tones and sweeping phrasing work instead to a different aesthetic, and one that is as individually creative.

Sings Broadway is an intelligent compilation from this era, with a 'songbook' approach to the material and scarcely a dud track among it all. Some may prefer the Jazz Masters choice from her more jazz-directed sessions, but it's still no substitute for Sarah Vaughan or Swingin' Easy.

(*) Sassy Swings The Tivoli Mercury 832788-2 2CD Vaughan; Kirk Stuart (p); Charles Williams (b); George Hughes (d). 7/63.

The Tivoli date is very good rather than great. It's a solid balance between the unbridled grandeur of her range and the more loose-limbed jazz musician stance; despite the grandiloquence of her voice, most of her best records have been done with small groups rather than orchestras.

* After Hours Roulette 855468-2 Vaughan; Mundell Lowe (g); George Duvivier (b). 7/61.

A comparatively little-known record, yet one of her finest. With the skeletal accompaniment of Lowe (who plays only a single solo on the date) and Duvivier, Vaughan muses over 11 standards (there is a previously unheard try-out take on 'Through The Years'), which find her by turns playful and profound. A light, gorgeous 'Easy To Love' looks back to her bebop days, there's a starkly effective 'My Favorite Things', and 'Vanity' – just one among several fascinating choices of song – is immaculately modulated. The remastering gets the most out of the great voice.

(*) Snowbound / The Lonely Hours EMI 855394-2 Vaughan; orchestras arranged and conducted by Don Costa and Benny Carter. 63–64.
 Sweet 'N' Sassy Roulette 31793-2 Vaughan; Lalo Schifrin orchestra. 6/63.
(*) Ballads Roulette 37561-2 As Roulette albums above. 60–63.

The first album has Vaughan getting indecently comfortable in Costa's very deep-pile orchestrations; the second has her finding a soupçon of civilized blues in Benny Carter's charts. Carter is scarcely trying too hard here, but he still finds a few interesting quirks, such as the low brass for 'You're Driving Me Crazy', and Vaughan is at her most perfectly controlled on 'Look For Me, I'll Be Around'. The Costa tracks are a shameless wallow by all concerned. As a coupling, this works rather well in showing off Vaughan's two sides of the time.

Sweet 'N' Sassy is typical of the Roulette output: a mixed bag of familiar songs and try-outs, some of which are pretty trying. She gives them all her best attention, pro that she was, but Lalo Schifrin's charts don't do a tremendous amount to help. 'Lazy Afternoon' buzzes with junebug sound effects. She sounds ready to throw everything into 'I Got Rhythm' but the track's over inside two minutes. Bold remastering, though.

The Ballads collection makes an appealing buy. Roulette may not have encouraged Sarah's most creative side, but their microphones caught much of the luxuriance of her mature voice, and there's nothing less than enjoyable here.

 Sarah Vaughan Sings The Mancini Songbook Verve 558401-2 Vaughan; Bud Shank (as); Bob James (p); strings, choir. 63–64.
 It's A Man's World Verve 589487-2 Vaughan; Joe Mooney Orchestra. 1/67.

A pair of albums originally made for Mercury. The Mancini collection has some ripe ballads and even riper orchestrations from Robert Farnon, but Sarah sounds comfortable. The concept for the other one is songs with 'Man' in the title (or, at least, a man's name). It's not recorded what Sassy thought about that. In the wasteland of her '60s records, this one's as fair as any. 'Trouble Is A Man' and 'Jim' are given regal embellishments, and the Mooney group at least has some decent jazz players in it.

(*) How Long Has This Been Going On? Pablo 2310-821 Vaughan; Oscar Peterson (p); Joe Pass (g); Ray Brown (b); Louie Bellson (d). 4/78.
(*) Duke Ellington Song Book One / ... Book Two Pablo 2312-111 / 116 Vaughan; Waymon Reed (t, flhn); J. J. Johnson (tb); Eddie 'Cleanhead' Vinson (as, v); Frank Wess (ts, f); Frank Foster, Zoot Sims (ts); Jimmy Rowles, Mike Wofford (p); Joe Pass, Bucky Pizzarelli, Pee Wee Crayton (g); Andy Simpkins, Bill Walker (b); Grady Tate, Charles Randell (d); big band. 8–9/79.
* Copacabana Pablo 2312-125 Vaughan; Helio Delmiro (g); Andy Simpkins (b); Grady Tate (d). 10/79.
* Crazy And Mixed Up Pablo 2312-137 Vaughan; Sir Roland Hanna (p); Joe Pass (g); Andy Simpkins (b); Harold Jones (d). 3/82.

Vaughan's Pablo albums will endure as some of her most finely crafted music. How Long Has This Been Going On? introduced a new note of seriousness into her recording career after several years of indifferent efforts and a seemingly careless approach to the studios. The voice has never been better or more closely recorded, and the picked session players and uniformly strong material make these albums the most consistent of her career. How Long has the odd flaw, but there are beautiful readings of 'I've Got The World On A String' and the title-tune, and when Vaughan takes it in turns to do a duo with each member of the band it's a marvellous display of her ability. The Ellington albums gave her – at last – the opportunity to stamp her identity on the greatest of jazz songbooks, and while again there are a few disappointments – a second-class 'Solitude' that should have been a classic, the sometimes overbearing heft of Bill Byers's arrangements and the slightly problematic balance – there are some exceptionally bountiful treatments, of 'In A Sentimental Mood', 'I'm Just A Lucky So-And-So' and 'Chelsea Bridge' to cite three. Both discs stand as a worthy counterpoint to Fitzgerald's celebrated Ellington collaboration. Copacabana is the neglected album of the bunch, with the sparest of accompaniments to support the great, glowing voice, and the bossa/samba material proving unexpectedly strong for Vaughan. Best of all, perhaps, is Crazy And Mixed Up, a disappointingly short (about 32 minutes) but ideally paced and delivered set of standards with the most sympathetic of accompaniments.

(*) Linger Awhile Pablo 2312-144-2 Vaughan; Waymon Reed (t); Frank Foster (ts); Jimmy Jones, Roland Hanna, Mike Wofford, Jimmy Rowles, Oscar Peterson (p); Joe Pass, Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Richard Davis, Andy Simpkins, Ray Brown (b); Roy Haynes, Grady Tate, Louie Bellson (d); Count Basie Orchestra. 7/57–2/81.
The first eight tracks are quite a discovery, Vaughan live at the 1957 Newport Festival. Girlish and almost flirtatious at some points, the dark mocha tones are there on 'Black Coffee' and the virtuosity of 'All Of Me' is inimitable. The rest offers eight alternative takes from her Pablo albums, many of them fine enough to make one want to return to the neglected original albums. As an album it doesn't really hang together, but as a feast of rare Vaughan for devotees it's excellent.

Also, in brief:

 Sarah Vaughan 1951–1952 Classics 1296. 1/51–12/52. One lush ballad after another, the great voice almost smothered by the orchestrations.
() Ultimate Sarah Vaughan/ () 'Round Midnight: Sarah Vaughan / (*) Verve Jazz Masters: Sarah Vaughan Verve 539052-2 / 510086-2 / 518199-2. 54–67.
None of these hold a candle to either Sarah Vaughan or Swingin' Easy, even though they take tracks from both.

 Send In The Clowns Pablo 2312-230. 2–5/81.
With the Basie orchestra minus Basie; the hard power of the band and her superhuman voice secure a coldness rather than warmth.

Charlie Ventura (1916–92)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Born Venturo in Philadelphia. He worked a day job in a navy yard but jammed after hours with local players. Worked with Gene Krupa, 1942–6, then ran his own big band and small group, as well as making JATP appearances. Led a 'Bop For The People' group from the late '40s.

 Live At The Three Deuces High Note HCD 7066 Ventura; Bill Harris (tb); Ralph Burns (p); Bob Leininger, Curley Russell (b); Dave Tough (d). 47.
 Live At The Three Deuces Vol. 2 High Note HCD 7082 As above, except add Ray Abrams (ts); Ed Shaughnessy (d); Teddy Walters (v). 47–52.
 Charlie Ventura 1945–1946 Classics 1044 Ventura; Howard McGhee, Red Rodney, Buck Clayton (t); Barney Bigard (cl); Willie Smith (as); Arnold Ross, Bill Rowland, Harry Fields (p); Barney Kessel, Dave Barbour, Eddie Yance (g); Artie Shapiro, Red Callender, Billy Hadnott, Al Hall, John Levy (b); Specs Powell, Nick Fatool, Gene Krupa (d). 3/45–3/46.
 Charlie Ventura 1946–1947 Classics 1111 Ventura; Red Rodney, Neal Hefti, Stan Fishelson, Jack Palmer, Al Stearns, Fern Caron, Charlie Shavers (t); Bob Ascher, Al Lorraine, Leo Checchi, Saul Kaye, Bill Harris (tb); Tony Scott, Aaron Sachs (cl, as); Barney Bigard (cl); Charlie Kennedy, Ed Scalzi, Murray Williams (as); Dan Cappi, Nick Jerrett, Barney Marino (ts); Tony Ferina (bs); Tony Aless, Milt Raskin, Teddy Napoleon, Ralph Burns, Hank Jones, Mary Lou Williams (p); Marjorie Hyams (vib); Allan Reuss, Billy Bauer, Bill D'Arango (g); Red Callender, Clyde Lombardi, Curly Russell, Chubby Jackson (b); Dave Tough, Nick Fatool, Ellis Tollin, Stan Levey (d); Marianne Dunne, Jack Palmer, Buddy Stewart, Lilyann Carol (v). 4/46–4/47.
(*) Charlie Ventura 1947–1948 Classics 1149 Ventura; Norman Faye, Conte Candoli (t); Kai Winding, Bennie Green (tb); Boots Mussulli (as, bs); Ben Ventura (bs); Lou Stein, Roy Kral (p); Bob Carter, Gus Cole, Chubby Jackson, Kenny O'Brien (b); Shelly Manne, Ed Shaughnessy (d); Buddy Stewart, Jackie Cain (v). 9/47–4/49.
(*) Charlie Ventura 1949 Classics 1215 Ventura; Conte Candoli (t, v); Bennie Green (tb, v); Boots Mussulli (as, bs); Roy Kral (p, v); Teddy Kaye, Dave McKenna (p); Kenny O'Brien, Red Mitchell (b); Ed Shaughnessy (d); Jackie Cain, Betty Bennett, Beverley Brooks, Jimmy Vanelli (v). 4–9/49.
 Charlie Ventura 1949–1951 Classics 1309 Ventura; Stan Fishelson, Johnny Mandel, Dale Pierce, Red Rodney, Conte Candoli, Ed Bagley, John Cabot, Dick Sherman, Rolf Ericson, Pete Ventura (t); Mort Bullman, Bennie Green, Bart Varsalona, Bob Ascher, Billy Byers, Jack Hitchcock (tb); Ray Beckenstein, Frank Socolow, Andy Cicalese, Tom Mace, Art Friedman, Charlie Kennedy (as); Al Cohn, Al Young, Hervey Estrin (ts); Manny Albam, Ben Ventura (bs); Lou Stein, Joe Scusa, Tony Aless, Jimmy Wisner, Ralph Burns (p); Barry Galbraith, Sam Herman (g); Curley Russell, Jimmy Johnson, Ace Tesone, Chubby Jackson (b); Ed Shaughnessy, Chick Keeny (d); Lucy Reed, The Honeydreamers, The Blentones, Betty Bennett (v). 12/49–8/51.
(*) Bop For The People Proper PROPERBOX 41 4CD As above discs. 3/45–8/51.
Ventura was very popular in his day, but has since been entirely marginalized in jazz's history. Unfairly so, on the evidence of the early sessions, since his playing had chutzpah and skill, even if he was entirely derivative of Coleman Hawkins and took on the bop vernacular as only a sideline to his main swing language. Classics 1044 collects five sessions for Sunset, Black & White, Savoy and Lamplighter, and while his own playing is enjoyable, there is rather more interesting playing from McGhee, Rodney and even the young Barney Kessel. The first Black & White session sounds rough, but otherwise the transfers seem good.

As Ventura progressed through the '40s, he began to build an audience and a style which managed to make some kind of integration between bop and the 'swingtet' music which was one of the 52nd Street threads of the period. Classics 1111 is a transitional set, since it includes two sessions by quite a commercial big band, plus sextet/septet dates for Crystalette, Emarcy and National – featuring swing players such as Shavers, Bigard and Bill Harris – as well as one with Red Rodney. It was the Ventura septet, sometimes billed under the banner 'Bop For The People', which really brought him a following. Classics 1149 includes several of the group's key sessions, but at this distance the principal ingredient is the singing of Jackie Cain and Roy Kral. Buddy Stewart's bopping tones are heard on the first session (including a nice 'Baby, Baby All the Time'), but it's the harmonizing of Jackie and Roy which really gives these sessions their flavour, bop lines as pop tones. As such, they've retained a lot of period charm and, with Ventura's own brief solos making their mark (listen to the way he bubbles up out of 'F.Y.I. '), the music holds up very well. Ventura signed to Victor in 1949, and his first session yielded Cain's classic reading of 'Lullaby In Rhythm', with 'For Boppers Only' to follow.

Much of Classics 1215 is taken up with Ventura's set from a 1949 Gene Norman concert, and you can believe that the cats were swinging. One might argue that this is bop with all the passion and, perhaps, blackness steamed out of it but the sheer high spirits of the gig are still infectious, and besides Ventura, Cain and Kral there is sterling stuff from Conte Candoli and Bennie Green. The set is rounded out with two further studio dates for Victor: tongue-twisting fun on 'Boptura' and 'Ha!', and a very early appearance from Dave McKenna at the piano. Ventura's music in his period has sometimes been called vulgar, but it's hardly any such thing. In comparison, Classics 1309 is almost tame, with the first 14 titles (all for Victor) smoothing the way from bebop to dance orchestra. Six quintet titles for Clef (with Conte Candoli) follow, which are so-so, but the quartet date which ends the disc has Charlie blowing smooch tenor while backing singers coo along behind him.

The Three Deuces sets are airshots in very average sound (and the provenance of some of them is suspect, since at least one track actually comes from a Carnegie Hall concert!). But the music is fascinating: rare glimpses of the superb Bill Harris at some length, and very strange piano from Ralph Burns, who comes on as a mixture of Monk and Garner. The final track on disc two is from five years later and is a long jam on 'Broadway'.

The Proper set duplicates the Classics material and squeezes the best of it on to four discs. As usual with this series, attractive documentation and at the price an obvious bargain.

 Complete 1949 Pasadena Concert Fresh Sound FSRCD Ventura; Conte Candoli (t); Bennie Green (tb); Boots Mussulli (as, bs); Roy Kral (p); Kenny O'Brien (b); Ed Shaughnessy (d); Jackie Cain (v). 5/49.

A famous occasion at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. Ventura's introduction of the musicians (to 'The Peanut Vendor') gives some indication of this group's crowd-pulling quality. All the obvious stuff is featured, including 'High On An Open Mike', 'How High The Moon', 'Body And Soul', 'Lullaby In Rhythm' and 'Birdland', standard Bop For The People fare delivered by the septet with carefully drilled swing. A nicely preserved moment.

 Complete 1951–1952 Verve Studio Sessions Definitive DRCD 11202 Ventura; Conte Candoli (t); Ralph Burns, Marty Napoleon, Jimmy Wisner (p); Max Bennett, Ace Tesone (b); Chubby Jackson (b, v); Mel Tormé (d); Buddy Rich (d, v); Blentones (v). 3/51–12/52.

 Charlie Ventura 1951–1953 Classics 1213 As above, except add Hank Jones (p); Roy Kral (p, v); Bob Carter (b); Sonny Igoe, Jo Jones (d); Jackie Cain (v); strings. 8/51– 10/53.

These were popular sides in their day: nothing radical or extraordinary but better than their subsequent eclipse would suggest. The Big Four, with Napoleon, Jackson and Rich, was a splendid small group, but Rich had ambitions of his own. The curious listing above for Tormé is explained by the fact that Rich insisted on singing 'Love Is Just Around The Corner', leaving the other man – and the better singer – to man the kit. Working with Norman Granz was obviously a fillip for Ventura, both creatively and commercially, even if he did drift towards romantic mood-music towards the end of the period. No one can make a case for any of this as classic jazz, but Ventura's saxophone-playing, on baritone particularly, is worthy of comparison with most of his peers and contemporaries, and doesn't often come out wanting. Cain and Kral were a popular package whose appeal has waned. They probably get more space on the Classics set than anyone nowadays would want, but it's a vivid snapshot all the same.

 High On An Open Mike Fresh Sound FSR-CD 314 Ventura; Dave Hildinger, Dave McKenna (p); Billy Bean (g); Richard Davis (b); Mousie Alexander (d). 57.

The thrill isn't exactly gone, but Ventura's day was over as far as jazz prominence was concerned by the time of these 1957 sessions. If his own playing is more capable than pleasing at this point, there are moments for McKenna, Bean and even Davis that are worth hearing.

Joe Venuti (1903–78)

VIOLIN, PIANO

Born in Philadelphia (the legendary practical joker claimed it was on board a ship bound for the USA), he befriended Eddie Lang as a boy and they worked together on the New York dance band and small-group jazz recording scene until Lang's death. Formed his own band in the '30s, then returned from war service to feature regularly on radio. Made a comeback in the later '60s.

 Joe Venuti 1926–1928 Classics 1211 Venuti; Manny Klein, Fuzzy Farrar, Leo McConville (t); Charlie Butterfield (tb); Arnold Brilhart, Max Farley, Jimmy Dorsey (cl, as); Fud Livingston (cl, ts); Herb Spencer (ts); Don Murray (cl, bs); Adrian Rollini (bsx, gfs, hfp); Rube Bloom (p, v); Arthur Schutt, Frank Signorelli (p); Eddie Lang (g); Tony Colucci (bj); Hank Stern, Joe Tarto (b); Paul Graselli, Justin Ring, Chauncey Morehouse (d); Scrappy Lambert, Billy Hillpot (v). 9/26–7/28.

 Joe Venuti 1928–1930 Classics 1246 As above, except omit Murray, Colucci, Stern, Ring, Lambert, Hillpot; add Andy Secrest, Charlie Margulis, Harry Goldfield, Ray Lodwig (t); Bill Rank, Glenn Miller, Jack Teagarden, Tommy Dorsey (tb); Izzy Friedman (cl, ts); Charles Strickfaden (as, bs); Rube Crozier (ts, ob); Lennie Hayton (p); Stan King (d); Smith Ballew, Irene Beasley, Frank Luther (v); 9/28–9/30.

* Joe Venuti 1930–1933 Classics 1276 Venuti; Charlie Teagarden, Manny Klein, Ray Lodwig (t); Jack Teagarden (tb, v); Tommy Dorsey (tb); Pete Pumiglio (cl, bs); Jimmy Dorsey (cl, as, bs, t); Arnold Brilhart (as); Bud Freeman (ts); Adrian Rollini (bsx, gfs, p, vib); Frank Signorelli, Lennie Hayton, Irving Brodsky, Phil Wall (p); Eddie Lang, Dick McDonough (g); Joe Tarto, Ward Lay (b); Paul Graselli, Neil Marshall (d); Harold Arlen, Hoagy Carmichael, Smith Ballew (v). 10/30–5/33.

 Joe Venuti 1933 Classics 1348 Venuti; Max Kaminsky, Red Bone (tb); Bud Freeman, Max Farley, Jimy Dorsey, Wallace Blumberry, Benny Goodman, Pat Davis, Adrian Rollini (reeds); Joe Sullivan (p); Dick McDonough (g); Chauncey Morehouse, Neil Marshall (d); Don Elton, Dolores Reid (v). 5–12/33.

Venuti wasn't the only violinist to play jazz in the '20s, but he established the style for the instrument as surely as Coleman Hawkins did for the saxophone. He was a key figure on the New York session scene of the era and appears on many dance band records alongside Beiderbecke, Trumbauer and the Dorseys; but his most important association was with Eddie Lang, and although their partnership was curtailed by Lang's death in 1933, it was a pairing which has endured like few other jazz double-acts.

Classics are now well into their Venuti survey. These are mostly duo and Blue Four titles to start with, though there are six rather dreary titles by the Venuti New Yorkers, where the large dance band play very stiff and ordinary charts. Again, the transfers don't have much sparkle.

Classics 1246 follows a similar pattern, although there are some super tracks: Rube Bloom taking the most extraordinary vocals on 'The Blue Room' and 'Sensation', Frankie Trumbauer playing bassoon on 'Runnin' Ragged', and Jack Teagarden's sensational solo on the otherwise half-dead 'Dancing With Tears In My Eyes'. Classics 1276 follows on with sessions for Victor, OKeh, Columbia and Vocalion. Besides the strange feat of having two of the greatest American songwriters as featured vocalists, there's a greater emphasis on small groups here, and there are at least two classic dates: the magnificent tracks by the Lang–Venuti All Stars from October 1931, and the February 1933 session where Jimmy Dorsey played trumpet – and where Lang and Venuti played together for the last time. Classics 1348 sees the interest level drop somewhat. Although there are a handful of later Blue Five/Six tracks, including a superb 'Jazz Me Blues', there are also some more ordinary tracks which see matters shifting towards a functional dance music.

(*) Joe And Zoot And More Chiaroscuro CRD 128 Venuti; Zoot Sims (ss, ts); Spencer Clark (bsx); Dill Jones, Dick Wellstood (p); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Milt Hinton (b); Cliff Leeman (d). 9/73–5/74.

(*) Joe Venuti And Zoot Sims Chiaroscuro CRD 142 Venuti; Spiegel Wilcox (tb); Zoot Sims (ts); Dick Hyman, John Bunch (p); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Milt Hinton (b); Cliff Leeman, Bobby Rosengarden (d). 5/74–5/75.

* Alone At The Palace Chiaroscuro CRD 160 Venuti; Dave McKenna (p). 4/77.

Venuti's Indian summer in the studios is currently represented by only a few records. He remained in such good form to the end of his playing life that all his final records are worth hearing at least. Perhaps the partnership with Zoot Sims has been a shade overrated, since Sims's bluff swing is no different from anything he plays on his own records and occasionally sounds a little glib, whereas Venuti's own playing – coloured by unexpected bursts of pizzicato, oddball kinds of bowing and resinous streams of melody that seem to go on for ever – is of a different order. A second set from this unlikely but effective partnership has surfaced since our last edition and Joe & Zoot & More might be the preferred choice.

Alone At The Palace is Venuti's valedictory masterpiece. McKenna's granitic swing and authority are just the kind of bedrock the violinist loved, and whether they play 'At The Jazz Band Ball' or 'Runnin' Ragged' (almost exactly 50 years after Venuti's original version) or a slush-free 'Send In The Clowns', it's all superbly achieved. The CD reissue of the original LP includes four new tracks and three alternative takes, all equally welcome, and the sound is admirably clear.

Javier Vercher (born 1978)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Madrid-born, he studied at Berklee and won his spurs with Bob Moses' group.

 Introducing The Javier Vercher Trio Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 206 Vercher; Robert Glasper (p); Chris Higgins (b); Brannen Temple, Rakalem Bob Moses (d). 11/03, 2/04.

 Wheel Of Time Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 286 Vercher; Lionel Loueke (g); Ferenc Nemeth (d, perc); Chip Taylor (narr). 06.

Moses gives his blessing to a former employee on two tracks of the debut record, including his own 'Pollack Springs', which is played twice, once by the group, again as a duo. Vercher also programmes another of the drummer's compositions. He kicks off with Ornette's 'Bird Food' and somewhere between those two influences you might locate his restless, slightly idiosyncratic style. The addition of Glasper on two tracks (significantly the longest of the set) doesn't entirely suit the free-floating, very linear approach and the young saxophonist sounds at his best when just playing with his trio.

Since recording the first album, Vercher has worked with Sebastian Noelle and others and he sounds more road-tested and responsive on the second disc for the Spanish start-up label. Interestingly, the new one takes the saxophone/drums idea a step further on. Nemeth is no Bob Moses, lacking the deep musicality and unfailing time-feel, but the collaboration has to be accounted a success. The Benin-born Loueke, who was worked with Wayne Shorter, adds some very attractive colours and Taylor's poetry has always been interesting. No single track stands out, but this is one of those rare albums that genuinely is more than the sum of its parts. Recommended.

Gary Versace

ORGAN

Versatile keyboard man, always with a winning touch.

 Time And Again Steeplechase SCCD 31572 Versace; Rich Perry (ts); John Abercrombie (g); Billy Hart (d). 12/04.

 Many Places Steeplechase SCCD 31589 Versace; Dick Oatts (ss, as, ts); Matt Wilson (d). 05.

 Reminiscence Steeplechase SSCD 31631 Versace; Vic Juris (g); Adam Nussbaum (d). 06.

 Outside In Criss Cross 1298 Versace; Donny McCaslin (ts); Adam Rogers (g); Clarence Penn (d). 4/07.

Each of the tunes on Time And Again is given a pretty thorough investigation, though Abercrombie's 'Excuse My Shoes' deservedly gets the most space. Gary's very much a hired gun, turning on organ or piano on a wide variety of dates. It's probably held back his own career a bit. The other Steeplechases have a hasty, squeezed-in feel, as if done in down-time between other projects, but with the move to Criss Cross Versace suddenly sounds like he's going places on his own account. There are some very good themes here, including the 'The Grand Inquisitor', which belie any feeling that organ/guitar/sax jazz is all about good times. These are thoughtful compositions rather than merely run-down heads – the 'outside in' label actually means something – and the record deserves close attention.

Edward Vesala (1945–99)

DRUMS, PERCUSSION, OTHER INSTRUMENTS

Grew up in rural Finland, taking up drums at 20. Played rock and studied music before travelling through Asia and returning to the local Finnish jazz scene. Toured with Tomasz Stańko, 1975–80, then with his own Sound And Fury Ensemble. His sudden death was a sharp blow.

(*) Nan Madol ECM 829376-2 Vesala; Kaj Backlund (t); Mircea Stan (tb); Charlie Mariano (as, f, nagaswaram); Juhani Aaltonen (ts, ss, f); Pentti Lahti (ss, bcl); Seppo Paakkunainen (ss, f); Sakari Kukko (f); Elisabeth Leistola (hp); Juhani Poutanen (vn, alto vn); Teppo Hauta-Aho (b). 4/74.

(*) Rodina Love Records LRCD 189 Vesala; Tomasz Stańko (t); Mircea San (t, tb); Juhani Aaltonen (ss, as, ts, picc, f, af); Pekka Pöyry (ss, as, f, cl); Tomasz Szukalski (ss, ts); Pentti Lahti (bs, bcl); Pekka Rechardt (g); Esa Helasvuo (p); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Irina Milan (v); strings, choir. 5/76.

Vesala was one of the few percussionists capable of sustaining interest as a solo performer; an early '80s recording of extracts from the Finnish epic Kalevala rivets the attention despite the minimalist accompaniment and the fact that no English translation is provided. Despite this, Vesala was sparing of solo tracks on his records – the brief 'Call From The Sea' on Nan Madol is an exception – preferring to elevate his light, pulse-driven but often non-metrical drumming until it occupies the forefront of a piece. Recording later with ECM greatly enhanced his capacity in this regard. Vesala's groups have a unique sound compounded of folk and popular references with a grasp of orchestration that, for all his commitment to themes and solos, is more typical of through-composed concert music. He favours extremes of timbre, alternating very dark themes that exploit sombre modes and tonalities with light, airy arrangements of flutes, soprano saxophones and harp. Typically, though, he reverses the expressive polarity, investing light-toned pieces like 'The Wind' (on Nan Madol, re-recorded later) with a sinister quality, often reserving darker instrumentation for tongue-in-cheek compositions based on popular forms.

Rodina has been reissued on the Finnish Love Records label and is a welcome reminder of the percussionist's larger ambitions of the time and his early embrace of a bold 'world music' strategy which incorporated Turkish, African and Oriental elements. Broad, string-based compositions at slow, sweeping tempos, sit alongside relatively free improvisations (the duet 'Dady And Komba' with Stańko is a CD bonus) and powerful recitations. Vocalist Irina Milan is something of an acquired taste, and the opening track, 'Lapsellein', is rather too close to soft art-rock to appeal to every listener or to many jazz purists; but it is entirely of a piece with Vesala's aesthetic. The disc has many high-points, but the high, fanfare-like trumpet calls of 'Satujen Satu' have a heart-breaking majesty and beauty, underpinned by almost Aboriginal drones.

[redacted]

♛ * Lumi

ECM 831517-2 Vesala; Esko Heikkinen (t, picc t); Tom Bildo (tb, tba); Pentti Lahti (as, bs, f); Jorma Tapio (as, cl, bcl, f); Tapani Rinne (ts, ss, cl, bcl); Kari Heinilä (ts, ss, f); Raoul Björkenheim (g); Taito Vainio (acc); Iro Haarla (hp); Häkä (b). 6/86.

Vesala produced one unqualified masterpiece, Lumi. Even its cover, of a shrouded, Golem-like figure on an empty road under a threatening sky, suggests something of Vesala's distinctive combination of almost Gothic intensity and sheer playfulness. A re-recording of 'The Wind' shows how much he has advanced since 1974. It is spare, subtly voiced, less dependent on literal reference than its predecessor, but not a whit less evocative. 'Frozen Melody' is a superb exercise in static harmony; Vesala works variations on a descending repetition of four notes of the same pitch, gradually unpicking the rhythmic implications.

* Ode To The Death Of Jazz ECM 843196-2 Vesala; Matti Riikonen (t); Jorma Tapio (as, bcl, f); Jouni Kannisto (ts, f); Pepa Päivinen (ts, ss, bs, f, cl, bcl); Tim Ferchen (mar, bells); Taito Vainio (acc); Iro Haarla (p, hp, ky); Jimi Sumen (g); Uffe Krokfors (b). 4–5/89.

* Invisible Storm ECM 511928-2 Vesala; Matti Riikonen (t); Jorma Tapio (as, bcl, f, bf, perc); Jouni Kannisto (ts, f); Pepa Päivinen (ts, ss, bs, f, af); Jimi Sumen (g); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Marko Ylönen (clo); Mark Nauseef (perc). 5–6/91.

 Nordic Gallery ECM 523294-2 Vesala; Matti Riikonen (t); Tapani Rinne (cl); Jorma Tapio (as, bcl, acl, bf); Jouni Kannisto (ts, f); Pepa Päivinen (ts, ss, bs, bsx, f, af, picc); Iro Haarla (hp, p, ky, acc, koto); Petri Ikkelä (acc); Jimi Sumen (g); Pekka Sarmanto (b); Kari Linsted (clo). 93–94.

Vesala worked slowly and never recorded prolifically, although a lack of resources to prepare and create his music also took its toll. Each of his records was a superb balance of careful organization and arrangment and all-out freedom.

'A Glimmer Of Sepal', on Ode To The Death Of Jazz, is based on tango rhythms and illustrates Vesala's interest in extreme stylistic repetitions. This is evident in 'Winds Of Sahara', which begins in spooky 'ethnic' mode, wobbles a bit, and then breaks into a camel-racing flag-waver of Maynard Ferguson proportions. 'Calypso Bulbosa' evokes similar incongruities. The opening four tracks of Invisible Storm contain the most powerfully dramatic music Vesala committed to record. It opens with an extraordinary recitation, 'Sheets And Shrouds', a cracked voice in an unfamiliar tongue (Finnish has a quality that is both ancient and curiously Asian) before giving way to 'Murmuring Morning', a slow chorale highlit by Ylönen's cello, and then exploding in the thudding fury of 'Gordion's Flashes'. The fourth piece – and each is successively longer – also features a spoken vocal; 'Shadows On The Frontier' is in English but preserves the tranced quality of the opening. Though there is no explicit reason to connect them, they do seem to cohere in a way that later tracks do not. Of these, 'Somnamblues' is another of Vesala's brilliant generic parodies, and the closing 'Caccaroo Boohoo' is drily witty. The longest single item, 'The Wedding Of All Essential Parts', and the title-track are less impressive, but only relative to Vesala's now absurdly high standard. His melodic inventiveness grows apace, concentrating on sinuously extended figures that evade conventional rhythmic resolution but underneath which there beats a powerful, even dramatic, pulse.

The final disc of the group was the only real disappointment. Newcomers may well still be entranced by the sheer unexpectedness of Vesala's sound-world in this series of still landscapes and wry portraits, but anyone who has followed his course over a few discs will surely find Nordic Gallery formulaic and repetitive, a reworking of elements rather than anything new.

Vienna Art Orchestra

ENSEMBLE

The brainchild of composer and arranger Matthias Rüegg, and founded in 1977, VAO synthesize jazz and 20th-century compositional language, avant-garde and vernacular; a convocation of soloists rather than a conventional big band.

* The Minimalism Of Erik Satie hatOLOGY 560 Bumi Fian, Hannes Kottek (t, flhn); Christian Radovan (tb); Harry Sokal (ss, ts, f); Wolfgang Puschnig (bcl, as, sno, f); Roman Schwaller (ts, cl); Woody Schabata (vib); John Sass (tba); Wolfgang Reisinger (perc); Lauren Newton (v); Matthias Rüegg (cond). 9/83–3/84.

A classic of its era – though in some ways its impact has been dispersed by subsequent work by others, it remains a benchmark recording and a welcome reissue. Most of the tracks briefly articulate a Satie theme before proceeding to work variations on it. The orchestral voicings are bright and spare, with most of the space devoted to solo material. The most remarkable sections are devoted to essays on Vexations, which are by a 'minimalist' VAO – only Lauren Newton, in a Berberian-derived vocalise, Roman Schwaller's tenor sax and Wolfgang Puschnig on bass clarinet, each duetting with vibesman Woody Schabata, who maintains a steady chordal pulse below. The closing passage with Puschnig, easily his finest hour on record, is extraordinary.

 All That Strauss TCB 20052 Thorsten Benkenstein, Matthieu Michel, Rudi Pitz, Bumi Fian (t); Robert Bachner, Christian Radovan (tb); Charly Wagner (btb); Arkady Shilkloper (frhn); Michel Portal, Wolfgang Puschnig, Klaus Dickbauer, Florian Bramböck, Harry Sokal, Andy Scherrer, Heinrich von Kalnein, Herwig Gradischnig (reeds); Bertly Mayer (hca); Alegere Correa (g); George Breinschmid (b); Mario Gonzi (d); Ingrid Oberkanins (perc); Anna Lauvergnac (v); Matthias Rüegg (cond). 1/00.

 Artistry In Rhythm TCB 01102 As above, except omit Pitz, Wagner, Portal, Puschnig, von Kalnein, Mayer, Correa, Breinschmeid, Gonzi, Oberkanins, Lauvergnac; add Jurain Bartos, Thomas Gansch (t); Tom Varner (frhn); Adrian Mears, Christian Muthspiel (tb); Ed Partyka (tba); Franck Tortiller (vib); Wolfgang Muthspiel (g); Robert Riegler (b); Jojo Meyer (d); Patrice Héral (perc); N.D.

 Duke Ellington's Sound Of Love TCB 99802 Thorsten Benkenstein, Bumi Fian, Thomas Gansch, Matthieu Michel (t); Robert Bachner, Christian Muthspiel (tb); Charly Wagner (btb); Arkady Shilkloper (frhn); Florian Bramböck, Klaus Dickbauer, Andy Scherrer, Harry Sokal (reeds); Wolfgang Muthspiel (g); George Breinschmid (b); Mario Gonzi (d); Anna Lauvergnac (v). 99.

 A Centenary Journey Quinton 0104 As above, except omit Wagner, Wolfgang Muthspiel; add Ed Partyka (tb); Herwig Gradischnig (reeds); Martin Koller (g); Robert Riegler (b); Thomas Lang (d). 11/00.

 Art & Fun 25 Emarcy 017 072-2 2CD As various discs above. 77–02.

The better part of 20 years of VAO work is currently in the deletions file, which does give this entry a foreshortened feel at present. Rüegg carries on, though, with many of the long-standing members of the team still in tow. The TCB albums aren't especially pitched as major VAO works. The Strauss set has its moments (guest stars include Portal and the returning Puschnig) and is thrown out as a counterpart to the traditional New Year's Day concert in Vienna. But Strauss doesn't yield so easily to Rüegg's irreverent ministrations, and some of this is either too much or too little. Artistry In Rhythm is a whistlestop European tour – in fact, it doesn't stop at all until the end, since all the pieces run together. The titles suggest a jokiness ('Madrid Madness', 'London Rushes In The Tube'), but humour isn't Rüegg's strong point and a lot of this sits rather mildly in a continuum of jazz orchestration.

Having said that, there's a refreshing verve and sardonic grimace to the album of Ellington covers. As the title implies, this is Duke through a very specific filter, though the Charles Mingus composition which gives the album its title isn't actually included in the set. The highlights are brash, unapologetic readings of such revered classics as 'Blood Count', usually played slower in memory of composer Billy Strayhorn, 'Come Sunday', 'Warm Valley' and 'Mood Indigo', though you know you're not in the presence of another run-of-the-mill Ellington set when the VAO kick off with 'Red Garter' and then run the 'A' train off the rails with a wildly out of control interpretation driven by Dickbauer's bass clarinet and Breinschmid's roiling bass. We feared last time that Matthias Rüegg might be running out of creative steam. Listening to the horns gathering for a final rough wooing of 'Sophisticated Lady' you suspect he's found a second wind. There's a suspicion, however, that creating a remix album out of the VAO's back catalogue might be an admission of creative block, or else a symptom of superficial trendiness. Art & Fun justifies its title, though. Rüegg has re-arranged many of the Orchestra's past successes and morphed them into a brand new musical reality. There's also a genuine remix disc masterminded by Martin Koller.

The 'centenary journey' isn't (yet) the band's 100th birthday, but that of the music they play and in this set, with its competing/complementing rhythm sections – acoustic and electric – the VAO attempt nothing less than a surreally potted history of jazz all the way from Jelly Roll Morton to the rock and hip-hop flavoured crossovers of recent years. It's a less successful experiment than, say, The Minimalism Of Erik Satie – not because the charts are less effective and the soloists less compelling, but really because the element of surprise has gone. This should be and often is a plus. When in the middle of 'Roll On Jelly' and 'Steam Stomp' the register seems to switch radically, seasoned listeners will no longer feel disorientated.

Steen Vig (1946–94)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

The exuberant Swede covered many styles but died unseasonally..

 Blue Boat Storyville STCD 4192 Vig; Mighty Flea Conners, Ole 'Fessor' Lindgreen (tb, v); Cornell Dupree (g); Hugo Rasmussen (b); Thorkild Møller (d). 4/93.

He didn't live long enough to establish a reputation outside Scandinavia, but this set conveys something of the warmth, sense of fun and sheer musicality of Steen Vig. He opens with the Bechet rarity of the title and continues with a programme of classic, traditional and repertory pieces that gives a fine band lots to do. Dupree is a key component of the sound, but it is Vig's bossy tenor and Bechet-inspired soprano which dominate proceedings, when he can get a word in edgeways round the trombones. Nothing profound or provocative; just entertaining music. Nine months later, on the first day of 1994, Vig passed away.

Frank Vignola (born 1965)

GUITAR, BANJO

Frank is a smoothly accomplished guitar-player. There is only a slight and subtle rock influence on his playing style.

(*) Off Broadway Nagel Heyer 2006 Vignola; Randy Sandke (t); Frank Wess (ts, f); Roland Hanna (p); John Goldsby (b); Joe Ascione (d). 12/99.

Vignola's smooth and unstressed sound disguises a wealth of subtlety that emerges only over time. His Concord records are currently unavailable, but here Frank reconvenes his set-up at Nagel Heyer, Europe's new centre of mainstream, and if you started at track two, a perfectly respectful treatment of 'Stars Fell On Alabama', you might think that this is entirely in the label's most familiar midstream pocket. Actually, it's a surprising, even unguessable set as it goes from track to track. Six of the 15 tracks are originals by Ascione, with the blazing 'The Return' and the staccato funk of 'Sing That' only two of the several startling episodes. Sandke and Wess are carefully positioned at various points: Wess has to execute a popping flute-line on the title-piece, and they're asked to play a smart, fat-free treatment of Horace Silver's 'Cookin' At The Continental'. Vignola himself shows off a lot of chops – on both electric and a twangy acoustic – without actually crossing the border into merely showing off. Brushing up against the 80-minute barrier, it's probably too much on one disc – but high marks to the leader for a lot of pungent music-making.

(*) Blues For A Gypsy Acoustic Disc 43 Vignola (g solo). 6/01.
The gypsy in question might be Django Reinhardt, except that this lovely set of acoustic blues and jazz is so unpretentiously universalized that Vignola's title-tune could stand as a quiet anthem for all outsiders and displaced peoples. It's a lovely thing, and a gentle surprise after the scurry of the opening 'Donna Lee'. There's a nice mix of familiar material – 'Laura', 'Limehouse Blues', 'Misty', Django's 'Manoir De Mes Rêves' – with originals like 'Fishing With Django' and 'Train Ride' (the last of which has a threatening pulse that suggests it refers to the last train ride many of Reinhardt's people ever took). Frank plays supremely well.

 Plays Gershwin Mel Bay 10122 Vignola: Corey Christiansen (g); Tom Kennedy (b); Joe Ascione (d). 7/06.
The only problem with this is that the concept seems tame, even a bit craven. With Christiansen playing rhythm, Frank works through the George & Ira book patiently and with considerable fidelity, but there isn't a moment when you feel he's doing anything truly original.

Mads Vinding (born 1948)

BASS

Performing since his teens at Copenhagen's Café Montmartre, where he has probably played with every jazz visitor to Denmark.

(*) The Kingdom (Where Nobody Dies) Stunt STUCD 19703 Vinding; Enrico Pieranunzi (p); Alex Riel (d). 3/97.
(*) Daddio Don Stunt STUCD 19813 As above, except omit Pieranunzi; add Roger Kellaway (p). 3/98.
 Six Hands Three Minds One Heart Stunt STUCD 00052 As above, except omit Kellaway; add Carsten Dahl (p). 6/99.
They're his gigs, but the admittedly slight overplaying of the bassist's role in these sessions stops them short of reaching the highest level – a piano trio does tend to depend on the pianist taking the leading steps. Still, there's lots to listen to. The contrast between the first two discs is particularly interesting: Pieranunzi's aristocratic-romantic touch is inimitable, but Riel and Vinding don't let him wander off down too many introspective byways, and the surprisingly tough and individual treatment of 'My Foolish Heart', for one, begs for the repeat button. Kellaway is entirely different – extravagant, mercurial in his thinking, and humorously elaborate on standards such as 'How Deep Is The Ocean'. But there's rarely been a more deeply thought-out version of 'Blue In Green' as the one which starts the session, and 'Daddio Don' and 'Seven' are typical Kellaway originals, making light work of their unorthodox feel. Two absorbing sets.

Dahl is an impressive younger talent, though inevitably he finds it hard to displace the memory of what his predecessors at the keyboard managed. This feels like a more self-consciously 'modern' date, Dahl extracting ideas which tend to encrypt the likes of 'I Hear A Rhapsody' and 'All Blues' rather than opening them out. Since it was recorded live (at Copenhagen Jazzhouse), showmanship plays a part too. Worthwhile, but start with the other two.

Leroy Vinnegar (1928–99)

DOUBLE BASS

Moved to California in the '50s and became one of the most in-demand session-men in LA studios, playing on a vast number of jazz and pop sessions alike.

(*) Leroy Walks! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 160 Vinnegar; Gerald Wilson (t); Teddy Edwards (ts); Victor Feldman (vib); Carl Perkins (p); Tony Bazley (d). 6–9/57.

 Leroy Walks Again! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 454 Vinnegar; Freddie Hill (t); Teddy Edwards (ts); Mike Melvoin (p); Victor Feldman (p, vib); Roy Ayers (vib); Ron Jefferson, Milton Turner (d). 8/62.

 Jazz's Great 'Walker' Vee Jay VJ 022 Vinnegar; Mike Melvoin (p); Bill Goodwin (d). 64.

(*) Walkin' The Basses Contemporary OJCCD 14068 Vinnegar; Geoff Lee (p); Mel Brown (g); Curtis Craft (d). 92.

 Integrity: The Walker Live At Lairmont Jazz Focus JFCD009 Vinnegar; Gary Harris (ss, ts); Dan Faehnle (g); Mel Brown (d). 5/95.
Given the unimaginative range of titles, it seems almost redundant to say that Vinnegar was one of the great exponents of walking bass, his talent an ability to invest a solid four beats to the bar with a seeming infinity of harmonic and rhythmic variations. Indianapolis-born, he moved to Los Angeles in the '50s and established himself as first-call bass-player for jazz and even the occasional rock gig; he even once did sessions for the bassless Doors.

The Vee Jay album opens with a textbook demonstration of Vinnegar's double-stopping, playing two notes simultaneously. Merely doing this is impressive enough; investing it with a degree of musicality is something else entirely. Because he rarely solos, here or on the OJCs, much of the interest rests on what his band members are doing, but CD has been generous to him, pushing the bass up in the mix.

The earliest of the albums is probably still the most appealing. Gerald Wilson went on to find his forte in bandleading and large-scale arrangement, but, compared to the bland cut-outs which pass for solos from Hill on the 1962 session, his solos are well-crafted and full of ideas and Edwards is as urbane and funky – if you can be both urbane and funky – as ever.

Vinnegar returned to recording as leader in 1992 with Walkin' The Basses. There had been stories of ill-health, perhaps even of retirement, but the Lairmont set, recorded in Bellingham, Washington, sees those lines pumping out with the regularity of a Stairmaster. It's basically a bebop set, with Bird's 'Segment', Hampton Hawes's 'Me Ho' and a cracking version of Freddie Hubbard's 'Little Sunflower'. Persuasive testimony to one of the unsung giants of the music.

Eddie 'Cleanhead' Vinson (1917–88)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, VOICE

Played in swing bands in the '30s and '40s, but later best known as an R&B-directed altoman and singer, although he wrote the bop staple 'Tune Up'.

 Cleanhead And Cannonball Milestone MCD 9324 Vinson; Nat Adderley (c); Cannonball Adderley (as); Joe Zawinul (p); Sam Jones (vb); Louis Hayes (d). 9/61–2/62.
 Jumpin' The Blues Black & Blue 959.2 Vinson; Jay McShann (p, v); Gene Ramey (b); Paul Gunther (d). 3/69.
(*) Kidney Stew Is Fine Delmark 631 Vinson; Hal Singer (ts); Jay McShann (p); T-Bone Walker (g); Jackie Sampson (b); Paul Gunther (d). 5/69.
 Kidney Stew Southland 29 Vinson; Ted Easton Jazz Band. 4/76.
 Redux: Live At Keystone Korner Savant 2052 Vinson; Larry Vuckovich (p); James Leary (b); Eddie Marshall (d). 1/79.
 I Want A Little Girl Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 868 Vinson; Martin Banks (t); Rashied Jamal Ali (ts); Cal Green (g); Art Hillery (p, org); John Heard (b); Roy McCurdy (d). 2/81.

A hugely entertaining singer and saxophonist, Vinson became a festival favourite in the '70s, guesting with anyone who thought they could take his pace, and playing Parker-tinged R&B with disconcerting self-possession. Some claim to find a Louis Jordan influence in Vinson's work, but this may have more to do with his performing personality than with any stylistic borrowing.

It's a very repetitive discography, with some songs ('Kidney Stew' notoriously) cropping up in just about every live set; album titles might be confusing as well. He was going through a rough patch when he made the record with the Adderleys, and sounds as if he was more than pleased to have been asked. It's probably no more than typical fare for both men, but the quintet accommodate Cleanhead amicably and it's an entertaining session. The Paris set with McShann is more about the pianist than Vinson, who doesn't even come on until nearly halfway, then delivers 'Mr Cleanhead Blues', which was inevitable even in 1969.

They're together on the Delmark and the presence of T-Bone Walker makes it a unique encounter. Both it and the Southland record are examples of how often Vinson simply worked permutations on familiar material, to an almost redundant extent, but still managed to come up with something entertaining.

The OJC features Vinson the festival personality with slightly heavy-fisted bands. I Want A Little Girl runs through a bag of blues numbers and contains a surprising 'Straight, No Chaser' and an excellent version of Pettiford's 'Blues In The Closet'. The Keystone Korner date has some great cuts, including 'Cherry Red' and 'Tenderly' as well as Eddie's own 'Non-Alcoholic' and 'Alimony Blues'. Some fine boppish playing.

Also, in brief:

 Eddie Vinson, 1945–1947 /  ... 1947–1949 Classics 5017 / 5042. 12/45–4/47.
R&B sides for Mercury and King, though the presence of Lockjaw Davis (ts) and Wynton Kelly (p) adds some jazz interest.

 Blues, Boogie & Bebop / Meat's Too High JSP 804. 5/80, 3/82.
A load of fun and some fine boppish saxophone as well.

 Kidney Stew Blues: A Proper Introduction /  Very Best Of Proper 2056 / Collectables 2893 VARIOUS DATES.
As good as any for the casual buyer.

(*) Honk For Texas JSP 7760 4CD. VARIOUS DATES.
A staggering 103 tracks, but the last 35 of them, the final CD in fact, are by the relatively obscure Jim Wynn, so either short change for Vinson obsessives (who won't feel shortchanged by the good sound) or a nice sidebar introduction to a less well-known figure.

Miroslav Vitous (born 1947)

DOUBLE BASS, GUITAR, SYNTHESIZERS

Studied classical music in his native Prague before going to Berklee. He worked with a variety of leaders, including Art Farmer and Miles Davis, before joining Weather Report as founding bassist. A professor and sometime head of jazz at the New England Conservatory, Vitous has maintained a quiet career, recording somewhat sporadically in later years.

(*) Infinite Search Collectables COL 6176 Vitous; Joe Henderson (ts); Herbie Hancock (p, ky); John McLaughlin (g); Joe Chambers, Jack DeJohnette (d). 10/69.

After leaving Weather Report in 1973, having recorded three classic albums (he appears only briefly on Mysterious Traveller, the group's fourth release), Vitous experimented with various 'lead' and 'piccolo' basses, but he doesn't seem to have acquired the confidence in their use that made Stanley Clarke and a later Weather Report member, Jaco Pastorius, such charismatic figures (compare Vitous's and Pastorius's work with guitarist Biréli Lagrène, and that becomes clear).

It took Vitous some time to re-establish the musical identity stamped all over his marvellous pre-Weather Report solo debut, Infinite Search, long deleted but now available again as a Collectables reissue. The line-up is a usual suspects of jazz fusion, and the sound, produced by Herbie Mann, draws heavily on the energy of Miles's Bitches Brew and Herbie Hancock's own early crossover experiments. For some reason, the reissue rejigs the track listing, putting Eddie Harris's 'Freedom Jazz Dance' first. It's certainly the most familiar and accessible item on the set, but not necessarily the most characteristic, since most of the rest is an experiment in atmospheres rather than a blowing session. The tiny 'Mountain In The Clouds' lent its name to an Atlantic reissue; beware discographies which imply these are different albums. Vitous is at his best on another long track, 'I Will Tell Him On You', where his bass-playing delivers the kind of impact that persuaded Joe Zawinul and Wayne Shorter he was the man to anchor Weather Report.

(*) First Meeting ECM 519280-2 Vitous; John Surman (ss, bcl); Kenny Kirkland (p); Jon Christensen (d). 5/79.
* Journey's End ECM 843171-2 Vitous; John Surman (ss, bcl, bs); John Taylor (p); Jon Christensen (d). 7/82.
(*) Emergence ECM 827855-2 Vitous (solo). 9/85.

The first of the ECMs is a return to the thoughtful music-making of Infinite Search (which was once reissued as Mountain In The Clouds). Once again Vitous attempts to reintegrate the classical and folk-impressionistic elements on the earlier record into a much more coherent performance. Kirkland sets aside his electronic keyboards and turns in a performance of rippling grace. No problems with the recording quality on Journey's End – the sound is rich and warm. That's also true of First Meeting, except that Kirkland's approach doesn't seem altogether appropriate for tunes like 'Silver Lake' and 'Beautiful Place To', too obviously jazz-based and funky and lacking Taylor's floating lyricism. Surman still wasn't playing any baritone when the first record was made, and its deep, rich sound is much missed. Emergence is both a step forward and a summation. 'Morning Lake Forever' relates back to a composition on the first Weather Report record, and there's a new solo version of 'When Face Gets Pale' from Miroslav Vitous Group, which still hasn't appeared on CD. It begins with an 'Epilogue', which suggests a degree of self-reassessment, and though the 'Atlantis Suite' is rather too floating in conception (like the pretentiously titled 'Concerto In Three Parts' on First Meeting), there is a new solidity of purpose to his playing.

* Universal Syncopations ECM 038506 2 Vitous; Wayne Bargeron (t); Valery Ponomarev (t, flhn); Isaac Smith (tb); Jan Garbarek (ts); Chick Corea (p); John McLaughlin (g); Jack DeJohnette (d). 3/00– 3/03.

(*) Universal Syncopations 2ECM 2013 Vitous; Randy Brecker (t); Gary Campbell (ss, ts); Bob Mintzer (ts, bcl); Bob Malach (ts); Daniele di Bonaventura (bnd); Adam Nussbaum, Gerald Cleaver (d); Vesna Vasko-Caceres (v). 11/04– 4/05.

It's been a decade since Miroslav's last studio album and with the first of these he came back with a bang. Universal Syncopations feels almost like a career survey, recorded over nearly three years and bringing back together some of the key players and associations of the bassist's career. The most important of all is, of course, with ECM Records, and label-mate Jan Garbarek is the key presence on the album. His solos, particularly on 'Univoyage' and, out of character, on 'Tramp Blues', are breathtaking enough to recue and listen to again and again.

McLaughlin and DeJohnette are back from the band that made Infinite Search some 35 years (!) ago, though it seems that Herbie Hancock couldn't be persuaded to take part. His replacement is Chick Corea, who brings a much lighter, brighter and more thoughtful line to pieces like 'Beethoven', which one can imagine Herbie cutting up, and 'Bamboo Forest', which is saved from impressionism by some beautifully structured ensemble playing. The brass-players are less familiar in this kind of idiom and company, but they acquit themselves magnificently, content for the most part to lay down big metallic sheets of harmony over which Vitous's latter-day post-fusion dances gracefully along.

The second volume is neither a reworking nor strictly a sequel, so it isn't clear why he's been so uninventive with titles, unless he does consider this work to be part of a cycle. The first of the pair benefited from being the first significant Vitous album for a time. This one doesn't have that impetus of anticipation. It's a fine piece of work, though, impressionistic and free in equal measure and with a lot of space left for Brecker and the others to work their own spells. Ghostly voices emerge out of the ensemble and fade back again. Vitous's bass sings at the centre of things. The whole project has a shifting, elusive quality that's irresistibly beautiful.

Also, in brief:

() Magical Shepherd Wounded Bird 2925
An ill-advised bid for crossover success. Awful.

(*) Guardian Angels Evidence 22055
Impressionistic jazz-rock.

Eric von Essen (1954–97)

DOUBLE BASS, CELLO

Of Swedish and East Indian descent, he was an overlooked genius of modern music, who contributed enormously to a wide range of projects before dying in his sleep of a heart attack.

(*) The Music Of Eric Von Essen: Volumes 1–3 Cryptogramophone 103 / 108 / 111 Broadbent; Stacy Rowles (t, flhn); Chuck Manning (ts); Jeff Colella, Alan Pasqua, Tom Garvin, Theo Saunders, Dave Witham (p); Nels Cline, Larry Koonse (g); Jeff Gauthier (vn); Dave Carpenter, Michael Elizondo, Ken Filiano, Joel Hamilton, Putter Smith, Tom Warrington (b); Peter Erskine, Kendall Kay, Paul Kreibich (d); Alex Cline (d, perc); Kate McGarry. 99–01.

The fine West Coast bassist died in 1997 at the appallingly early age of 43, but leaving behind a substantial body of work and some highly fruitful associations, with Jeff Gauthier, Alex and Nels Cline, the Lighthouse All Stars and Alan Broadbent. This generous tribute features much of his compositional work performed by a variety of past associates and friends. Almost impossible to pick out high-points, but the Clines' work on '9/8/29' (Volume 2) is a definite standout, as is 'Unresolved' and 'The Good Doctor' (again involving Nels, Volume 3). On balance, the two later records are better than the first. It will take considerable time to understand just how significant a spirit von Essen was, but these performances offer an inkling of his gifts as a composer of post-bop and more impressionistic music and it seems likely that much of this work will enter the modern repertory.

Cuong Vu (born 1969)

TRUMPET

The son of a Vietnamese pop singer mother and multi-instrumentalist father, he moved to Seattle when he was six. He swapped saxophone for trumpet and developed a remarkably powerful voice. In style, his recorded work ranges freely between Miles-influenced impressionism and a species of advanced rock, with a few more abstract soundscapes interspersed.

 Bound OmniTone 12002 Vu; Jamie Saft (ky); Stomu Takeishi (b); Jim Black (d, perc). 8/99.
(*) Pure /  Come Play With Me Knitting Factory KFWCD 266/298 Vu; Stomu Takeishi (b); John Hollenbeck (d); Laurent Brondel (g, lap steel on Come Play With Me only). 00; 5/01.
(*) Vu-Tet ArtistShare0073 Vu; Chris Speed (ts, cl); Stomu Takeishi (b); Ted Poor (d). 7/07

Cuong Vu has yet to improve on his debut recording, which opens with some of the fiercest trumpet-playing you'll hear ('Two') and manages an easy transition to pop sweetness on the title-track, which was co-written with Holly Palmer and features a surprisingly effective vocal. 'Our Bridge' finds him in yet another mode, darker and more mysterious. Saft's Fender Rhodes has a thoroughly fresh and contemporary quality, but regular collaborator Takeishi always sounds as if he's just blown in from a '70s tribute gig. Black is essentially a rock drummer, but his successor Hollenbeck is always interesting to listen to.

The two subsequent albums are not up to the same standard, and there is a troubling and not fully explained emphasis on birth, childhood and innocence running through the titles:

'Amniotic', 'Vini's Lullaby' and 'Safekeeping' (Come Play With Me). Guitarist Laurent Brondel sits in for the first of these, on electric and lap steel, an interesting variation of sound that might have been developed further. The album opens very lamely indeed with the impressionistic 'Dreams, Come Play With Me', which goes nowhere, and both records see Cuong Vu settle into some of the formulae associated with '70s jazz-rock: soft tones and arpeggiations build to a chaotic climax and then revert to stillness and silence again.

There are a couple of additional records, with Bill Frisell on board and still available via the artist's website, but it's good to have a new Vu record to report. The quartet with Speed is already more interesting and arresting than the ones with Saft and Frisell. The two-horn front line conjures up inevitable memories of the Ornette/Don Cherry group and to some extent takes its language from that. But Vu is as uncategorizable as his main influence and Speed's rapid thinking keeps him ahead of cliché all the way.

Philipp Wachsmann (born 1944)

VIOLIN, VIOLA, ELECTRONICS

Born in Uganda. He studied with Nadia Boulanger and went on to devise his own form of neo-classicism within free music. A brilliant sound-sculptor, he has mainly been heard in other leaders' improvising ensembles.

* Some Other Season ECM 557366-2 Wachsmann; Paul Lytton (perc, elec). 10/97.

The two brightest sparks in Parker's Electro-Acoustic Ensemble went back into the studio as a duo. Lytton dusted off a lot of his old percussion and together they cut a modern masterpiece. The unexpected jazz feel creeps in again, notably on 'Shuffle' and 'Whispering Chambers', though it's the latter (and not 'Shuffle', as producer Steve Lake suggests) which bears the obvious kinship to Monk.

As expected, and as is now very much part of the ECM ethos, both solos and duos were recorded. Lytton does some wonderful things, 'Leonardo's Spoon', 'Nu Shu' and 'Shell', while Wachsmann seems more comfortable this time out working in partnership, though he saves his very best and straightest playing of the set for the penultimate solo, 'From The Chalk Cliffs'.

 Refractions In Air Bead CD06 Wachsmann; Michael Bunce (elec, sampling). 11/03.

Wachsmann can fairly claim to be a pioneer in electronic manipulation of an instrument in free music, since he started exploring the possibilities in the early '70s. Thirty years on, this duo collaboration with Bunce, who works primarily here as someone who can 'simultaneously capture, treat and re-perform sounds', gets a basic mark of 'interesting'. A lot of it barely passes muster as music and almost none of it as jazz, but Wachsmann has a cunning way of bringing the ear back just as you've all but given up.

 Refugium Ninth World NWM 039 Wachsmann; Peter Ole Jørgensen (d, perc, home-made instruments); Jakob Riis (laptop). 2/05.

An unusually ramshackle sound for a Wachsmann project, but it leaves the workings showing enough to offer insights into his musical philosophy. Riis is an interesting laptopper, as opposed to the usual kind.

Ulf Wakenius (born 1958)

GUITAR

Swedish guitarist moving between mainstream and more fusion-oriented situations.

(*) Enchanted Moments Dragon DRCD 278 Wakenius; Lars Jansson (ky); Lars Danielsson (b); Raymond Karlsson (d). 10/95–3/96.

 Live Dragon DRCD 347 Wakenius; Åke Johansson (p); Yasuhito Mori (b); Magnus Gran (d). 4/99.

 The Guitar Artistry Of Ulf Wakenius Dragon DRCD 373 Wakenius (g solo). 01.

Wakenius's playing impresses without quite suggesting a recording artist of striking originality. As a technician, he plays the electric instrument with a precision and attention to tone that imply a cool head no matter what the situation. The first Dragon date specifically turns down the intensity with Wakenius sticking to acoustic over a series of sometimes anodyne backings. His treatment of 'Blame It On My Youth' on First Step (Spice of Life – deleted) presaged the quiescent music of this second disc, but some of it is all too pretty and unembellished. Yet when he gives himself the space to improvise a chorus, as on the translucent version of 'Cry Me A River', one wonders why he bothers with the smooth-jazz prettiness of much of the rest.

Live opens with a dedication to Wes Montgomery, 'The Greatest Of Them All', and by himself Wakenius creates a benign pastorale. But that's quickly displaced by 'Notes To J.C.', some 20 minutes of full-on hard-bop quartet music. Wakenius doesn't really sustain these long solos beyond their sheer momentum, but it's exciting to hear when propelled by Mori and the bullish Gran. Plenty to enjoy.

The solo record doesn't suggest any need to rethink Wakenius's standing as a fine middle-order guitarist. Its quiet acoustic delivery of swing, bop and Latin themes sometimes recalls Barney Kessel, and it's agreeable enough but meets no one's definition of major.

 Forever You Stunt STUCD 03192 Wakenius; Carsten Dahl (p); Lars Danielsson (b, clo, p); Morten Lund (d). 5/03.

 Tokyo Blue Spice Of Life SOL SC-002 Wakenius; Carsten Dahl (p); Yasuhito Mori (b); Morten Lund (d). 1/03.

Wakenius sticks to an acoustic instrument for his Stunt debut, and a programme of lyric pieces is despatched in handsome style. Metheny's 'Always And Forever' is a typical selection and, as gracefully played as it is, it does suggest that the music's in hock to records already made by more-renowned players and groups – specifically, much of this sounds like Metheny working with a vintage Jarrett trio (and Dahl's singalong style reinforces the impression). Tokyo Blue goes much the same way: the music falls very sweetly on the ears, but it hardly grips the attention.

 Notes From The Heart ACT 9435-2 Wakenius; Lars Danielsson (b, p, clo); Morten Lund (d). 5/05.

Interesting to hear a guitarist taking on the Keith Jarrett book, although we don't entirely agree with Wakenius's complaint that we are 'in a world where real melodies seem to be disappearing from contemporary music'. Still on acoustic, he finds an appealing variety of approaches, with a lick of funk, the occasional rock beat from Lund, and some deft improvising. His basically gentle approach does tend to keep the music in the background, though.

Terry Waldo (born 1944)

PIANO, VOICE

Veteran Ohio-based traditionalist.

 Hot House Rag Delmark DE-239 Waldo; Roy Tate (t); Jim Snyder (tb); Frank Powers (cl, ts); Bob Sundstrom (bj); Mike Walbridge (tba); Wayne Jones (d). 1/71.

 Kinky And Sweet Stomp Off CD 1339 Waldo; Dan Levinson (cl, as); Craig Ventresco (g, bj); Marty Eggers (b); Pete Devine (wbd, perc). 6/97.

(*) Let It Shine Stomp Off CD 1377 Waldo; Peter Ecklund, Simon Wettenhall (t); Tom Artin (tb); Dan Levinson (cl, Cmel); Peter Martinez (cl, as, ts); Evan Christopher (cl, as); Craig Ventresco (g, bj); Cynthia Sayer (bj); Tom Marion (bj, g, mand); Greg Cohen (b); Paul Monat, Mike Wallbridge, Louise Anderson (tba); Pete Devine (d, wbd, jug); Janet Kline, Colleen Hawks, Eddy Davis, The Subway Trio (v). 8/81–9/01.

Waldo's various bands – this is just a sampling – certainly make some noise. He's not the most dainty of pianists and that certainly suits The Gutbucket Syncopators, the band that play quite furiously throughout Hot House Rag, which was recorded live at Deibel's Bier Stube in Columbus. The music's often incredibly clunky, but the head of steam which they get up on the likes of 'At The Jazz Band Ball' is about as exciting as this kind of revivalism gets. The two Stomp Offs present various other kinds of nostalgia. Kinky And Sweet has Terry guesting with the trio Bo Grumpus, and they basically play rags and '20s music in a string-band style: frolicsome, although 20 tracks of this sort of thing will strike most as a bit much. Let It Shine is better: a nice mix of groups (including a nod back to an old track by the Syncopators), much more jazz-oriented, and the sensational vocal by Janet Kline on 'Happy Feet' is alone worth having the CD for.

Mal Waldron (1926–2003)

PIANO

He had two careers, divided by a nervous breakdown in 1963. Up to that point, he had worked with Ike Quebec, Charles Mingus and Billie Holiday, with whom he stayed until her death in 1959. After his illness he had to begin his solo career afresh, emerging from the shadows with a new sound: percussive, minor-keyed and long-lined.

 Mal – 1 Original Jazz Classics OJC 611 Waldron; Idrees Sulieman (t); Gigi Gryce (as); Julian Euell (b); Arthur Edgehill (d). 11/56.

 Mal – 2 Original Jazz Classics OJC 671 Waldron; Bill Hardman (t); Jackie McLean, Sahib Shihab (as); John Coltrane (ts); Julian Euell (b); Art Taylor, Ed Thigpen (d). 4–5/57.

 Mal – 3: Sounds Original Jazz Classics OJC 1814 Waldron; Art Farmer (t); Eric Dixon (ts); Calo Scott (clo); Julian Euell (b); Elvin Jones (d). 58.

(*) Mal – 4 Original Jazz Classics OJC 1856 Waldron; Addison Farmer (b); Kenny Dennis (d). 9/58.

* Impressions Original Jazz Classics OJC 132 Waldron; Addison Farmer (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 59.

An immensely gifted and prolific player whose professional roots are in the raw soul-jazz of Big Nick Nicholas and Ike Quebec, Waldron typically builds up solos from relatively simple ideas paying great attention to colour and shading, and to space. He favours block chords rather than rapid single-note runs. Though it's clear that Waldron's main influences are Bud Powell and Thelonious Monk, he has developed independently and sounds quite unlike either.

Despite Sulieman's and Gryce's bursting expressiveness, the first OJC is a low-key selection from Waldron's Prestige period, which saw the pianist concentrating on sophisticated harmonic patterns and cross-rhythms. The sound – as they used to say about serving girls – is no better than it should be, but given the anonymity of the rhythm section not much is lost. A fine 'Yesterdays' picks things up a bit at the end. All the same material can also be found on a high-gloss Coltrane On Prestige set (16 CDs for Gold Card types) and, if anything, sounds rather sharper there.

The later tracks with Coltrane and McLean are inevitably of greatest interest. Waldron made substantial strides as a composer towards the end of the '50s and that's reflected in his solo construction, too. In 1957, Coltrane had finally decided to rid himself of a deeply rooted drug and alcohol dependency. It isn't reading too much into basically conventional performances to suggest that his solos have a new maturity, coupled with an emotional vulnerability, which McLean seems to comprehend better than the rather single-minded Shihab, but round which Waldron steals with unfailing tact and supportive ease. No classic tracks, though 'Don't Explain' (with McLean) and 'The Way You Look Tonight' (with Shihab) are a cut above the rest.

Mal – 3 already shows signs of the tremendous stresses and tensions that make Impressions such a darkly wonderful record; there is even a track at the beginning of the 1958 disc called 'Tension', as if to signal what's coming. There is something extremely uncomfortable about listening to Waldron at this period. The echoes of Bud Powell are unmistakable and faintly sinister, given the breakdown in Waldron's health just a couple of years later. 'Champs Elysées' and 'With A Song In My Heart' are both outwardly sanguine but, all the way through, Waldron is inverting harmonies, throwing in minor-key variations, generally changing the emotional temper. It's a stern experience, but a rewarding and chastening one. Mal – 4 skins the line-up back to a trio and is again rather Janus-faced in its delivery: compare the opening 'Splidium-Dow' with the subsequent 'Get Happy' (!), interestingly enough another favourite of Powell's.

(*) Free At Last ECM 831332-2 Waldron; Isla Eckinger (b); Clarence Beckton (d). 11/69.

Waldron rarely wrote memorable tunes, concentrating instead on subtly coded tonal cells out of which longer and longer improvisations can be developed. Free At Last was a conscious attempt to come to terms with free jazz; in Waldron's own words, it represented his desire to play 'rhythmically instead of soloing on chord changes'. At the same time, Waldron utterly rejects any notion of free jazz as 'complete anarchy or disorganized sound'. At first glance, these half-dozen tracks are disappointingly constrained and modest in scope. The long 'Rat Now' and 'Rock My Soul' point a way forward for extended improvisation that does not depend on chord sequences; but, interestingly, both have the same 'feel' as more conventionally harmonic music because Waldron's clusters always seem to gravitate towards specific resolutions. This was ECM's first release; Waldron made a habit of launching new labels.

* Live At Dreher hatOLOGY 4-596 4CD Waldron; Steve Lacy (ss). 8/81.

These are the encounters that rekindled one of the most fruitful relationships in either musician's life. Lacy's dry, intense sound was perfectly complemented by Waldron's darker sonority, though each shared enough of the other's characteristics (notably a wicked sense of humour) to ensure that this was never merely a union of opposites. The two original discs – The Peak, Round Midnight – are now amalgamated in a four-CD set which covers the span of their residency at Dreher and allows the closest possible examination of their interplay on themes like 'Hooray For Herbie', 'Let's Call This' and 'Herbe D'Oublie' (two very different versions of the latter tunes, three of 'Round Midnight'). Monk is obviously the common ground between the two: Lacy was a pioneering exponent of Monk compositions and Waldron has the dark blue intensity to bring them alive.

 Sempre Amore Soul Note 121170-2 Waldron; Steve Lacy (ss). 2/86.

Sempre Amore is dedicated to Ellington–Strayhorn material, which must have made an intriguing change from Lacy's specialized diet of Monk.

(*) The Git Go / * The Seagulls Of Kristiansund Soul Note 121118 / 121148 Waldron; Woody Shaw (t, flhn); Charlie Rouse (ts, f); Reggie Workman (b); Ed Blackwell (d). 9/86.

Two top-flight sets from a single night of a fine week's engagement at the Village Vanguard in New York City. All six compositions are Waldron's and his playing is supremely economical, sketching in tonal centres with a minimum of elaboration, soloing on the faster tracks with a positive touch, shading beautifully on the slow 'Seagulls Of Kristiansund'. This shows a side of Waldron's work which some critics have likened to American minimalism: a slow accretion of almost subliminal harmonic and rhythmic shifts steadily pile up until the music seems ready to overbalance. Perhaps oddly – for subsequent releases from live or studio sessions rarely match up to the original albums – the second album is more appealing. The Git Go consists of no more than the title-piece and an overlong 'Status Seeking', which seems to have lost much of the terse discipline Waldron brought to it on (the long-deleted) The Quest. On the second album, Waldron kicks off 'Snake Out' with a menacing bass pulse that builds up almost unbearable tension before loosing Woody Shaw on one of his most unfettered solos. Rouse's solo is more compact and provides a taut bridge between Shaw and Waldron, who plays lyrically over a bleak vamp. Blackwell and Workman both solo effectively, though the drummer's finest moment comes at the end of 'Judy', the middle track of the set and a tribute to Waldron's great supporter, Judy Sneed. Shaw's solo is astonishing. Blackwell shines again on 'Seagulls', producing non-metrical effects on his splash cymbal; Workman's foghorn and seabird effects are straight out of Mingus's bag. The Git Go has some longueurs, but its successor is thoroughly and straightforwardly enjoyable, and should be tried for size.

 Our Colline's A Tresure Soul Note 121198-2 Waldron; Leonard Jones (b); Sangoma Everett (d). 4/87.

Still on a high. Waldron's handling of 'The Git Go' is markedly different from that on the Village Vanguard sessions, tighter in conception, if not in length, and with most of the solo space inevitably restored to the composer. The opening 'Spaces' is a superb example of direct motivic improvisation and lets in Jones for the first of several fine contributions. Everett, a neighbour of Waldron's in Munich, is less well-known but sounds more than ompetent. The title-piece is dedicated to a young French friend of Waldron's, who may grow up to 'tresure' the beautiful waltz-tune better than she will the picture on the cover.

 Crowd Scene / (*) Where Are You? Soul Note 121218 / 21248 Waldron; Sonny Fortune (as); Ricky Ford (ts); Reggie Workman (b); Eddie Moore (d). 6/89.

'Crowd Scene' is a large-scale piece that attempts to capture the point at which individual elements begin to cohere and act in unison, as a collectivity. Waldron has always liked to describe himself as a parcel of disparate elements, held together by chance, everyday necessities, good luck, rather than by any pressing philosophy; and something of that seems to underline this piece. 'Yin And Yang', the other long track, perhaps represents a more specific and settled viewpoint, but one that in no way contradicts the first. Like 'Crowd Scene', it's held together by riffs and ostinati, rather than by any single principle of development. The two saxophonists, who managed to dramatize a sense of diversity and questioning plurality in the first piece, are not so much opposites as two sides of a single reality in the second, playing in close intervals but with markedly different timbres. The effect is very powerful, and engineer Kazunori Sugiyama has done a marvellous job capturing it so accurately. For once, it's good to have Waldron in the studio. Much would have been lost in a club or concert hall. There's a bit of padding on the second disc; only a second and longer take of 'Where Are You?' takes it up over the 50-minute mark. However, what there is is so good that no casual purchaser will feel short-changed. 'Waltz For Marianne' is gorgeous, with Workman playing a prominent role.

(*) Waldron–Haslam /  Two New Slam 305 / 306 Waldron; George Haslam (bs, tarogato). 2/94; 4/95.

Spells of indifferent health slowed up Waldron's recording regimen. These engaging duet records with British baritone-man Haslam don't have the gravitas and sheer monumentality of the best Waldron, but their friendly dialogue has its own rewards and at some moments – especially in the two improvised pieces on the first disc, 'Catch As Catch Should' and 'Motion In Order' – there is the trademark dry, lyrical intensity which is in all of the pianist's best work. Though Haslam might have been outclassed, especially in having to step into the shoes of some of Waldron's other horn partners, his light, flexible lines make an attractively serene counterpoint.

 One More Time Sketch SKE333023 Waldron; Steve Lacy (ss); Jean-Jacques Avenel (b). 02.

Towards the end for both of the principals here, but as they revisit an old and warm relationship all sorts of new things emerge: a boppish thing in Waldron's right-hand figures, a certain lightening of his chords (perhaps because Avenel is present), and in Lacy a partial return to the phrasing of his earliest, Dixieland days. An intriguing memento of a great and lasting partnership.

Also, in brief:

 Soul Eyes: The Memorial Album Prestige PRCD 11024. 12/55–9/62.

A beautifully judged selection from a fertile period. The title-track is a genuine jazz classic.

 With The Steve Lacy Quintet America 067862. 5/72.

A dispatch from the American diaspora in Paris.

 Up Popped The Devil Enja ENJ 2034. 12/73.

One of Waldron's darker and more intense sessions, with few glimpses of the light and humour that often pervaded his work.

 Dedication Soul Note 121178-2. 11/85.

An enjoyable oddity. David Friesen's floating, soft-edged basslines actually work rather well over Waldron's dark mutterings.

(*) Update Soul Note 121130-2. 3/86.
A further solo essay/polemic in contemporary 'free' playing: 'Free for C.T.' and 'Variations On A Theme by Cecil Taylor' are the key tracks.

 Into The Light Materiali 90116. 99–00.
Mal enjoyed a creative association with vibist Christian Burchard, heard here in trio with drummer Dieter Serfas.

 Travellin' In Soul-Time BVHaast CD 9701. 96.
Recorded live in Tokyo, Nagasaki and Kobuchizawa, this remarkable trio – Toru Tenda (f), Jeanne Lee (v) – combines traditional Japanese material with some of Mal's jazz.

Dan Wall

ORGAN

Influenced by – but independent of – Jimmy Smith and Larry Young.

(*) On The Inside Looking In Double-Time DTRCD 175 Wall; Jerry Bergonzi (ts); Mick Goodrick (g); Billy Drummond (d). 4/00.
Wall was excellent on Bergonzi's albums for the same label, and the tenorman returns the favour here. With Goodrick playing lines of nearly pernickety precision and Drummond's sensible time and groove, the music sits as something almost rarified, a professorial distillation of the organ/tenor combo tradition. But the sense of power idling in reserve introduces a keenness into the music which is surprisingly persistent. Even unpromising titles such as 'The New Blues' and '5 Minute Funk' offer up fresh ideas.

Greg Wall

REEDS

An exponent of John Zorn's 'radical Jewish culture'.

 Later Prophets Tzadik TZ 7816 Wall; Shai Bachar (ky); Gary Lucas (g); Aaron Alexander (d). 9/03.
There's now a flourishing sub-genre of sets like this, drawing on traditional Jewish themes and applying modern jazz procedures to them. The novelty value has worn off, which is why it's interesting that Wall's record stands out. The instrumentation is relatively unusual. Lucas only guests here and there, so the basic sound is reeds, keyboards and drums, a quite sparse and floating sound that lifts the material but leaves sufficient ambiguity and intrigue. A happy debut; not yet followed up.

Thomas 'Fats' Waller (1904–43)

PIANO, ORGAN, VOICE

The son of a clergyman. He worked in vaudeville until the mid-'20s and began composing with lyricist Andy Razaf. His fame came with the 'Fats Waller And His Rhythm' sessions for Victor, which began in 1934 and yielded hundreds of titles. A nonpareil humorist and lampooner of trite pop, his own best songs have remained in repertory. His piano style, which emerged from stride, was percussive and swinging, delicate and whimsical. He died of pneumonia on an overnight train.

() Classic Jazz From Rare Piano Rolls Biograph BCD 104 Waller; James P. Johnson, Lawrence J. Cook (piano rolls). 3/23–1/29.

 Low Down Papa Biograph BCD 114 Waller; James P. Johnson (piano rolls). 5/23–6/31.

Thomas Waller was already deputizing for James P. Johnson and playing film and stage show accompaniments when he started making piano rolls for the QRS company in 1923. These two discs transfer some of his many rolls to CD. Most of the tunes are typical light blues novelties of the day, and they're played with a crisp, courtly demeanour, although individuality is to some extent suppressed by the machinery of the roll system: certainly Waller's first piano records show much more idiosyncrasy than any of these tracks. There are a couple of items with Johnson, Waller's great mentor, and one on the earlier disc which was credited to Waller but is actually by Lawrence Cook. Ebullience and good humour are persistent here to the point of becoming exasperating, and perhaps these pieces are best sampled a few at a time: there are only a few genuinely Walleresque touches, such as the abrupt doubling of tempo in 'Your Time Now' on Low Down Papa. The rolls have been brightly recorded, although Low Down Papa is less glassy and generally has the better selection of themes.

* The Complete Early Band Works 1927–9 Halcyon HDL 115 Waller; Tom Morris (c); Charlie Gaines, Henry 'Red' Allen, Leonard Davis (t); Jack Teagarden, Jimmy Archey, J. C. Higginbotham (tb); Arville Harris (cl, as, ts); Albert Nicholas, Charlie Holmes (cl, as); Larry Binyon (ts); Bobbie Leecan (g); Will Johnson, Eddie Condon (bj); George 'Pops' Foster, Al Morgan (b); Eddie King, Gene Krupa, Kaiser Marshall (d); The Four Wanderers (v). 5/27–12/29.

() Fats Waller 1926–1927 Classics 674 As above discs, except add Alberta Hunter, Maude Mills (v). 11/26–6/27.

 Fats Waller 1927–1929 Classics 689 As above discs, except add Bert Howell (vn, v); Lou Raderman, Howard Nelson (vn); David Martin (clo); Chuck Campbell (tb); J. Lapitino (hp); Gene Austin, Andy Razaf, Juanita Chappelle (v). 11/27–6/29.

(*) Fats Waller 1929 Classics 702 As above discs. 6–12/29.

Waller doesn't sing anywhere on the Halcyon disc, and given the nightmarish vocals by The Four Wanderers on two tracks, perhaps he was numbed into silence. The seven tracks by Fats with Tom Morris's Hot Babies are a garish mismatch of pipe organ and cornet-led hot band, and since the resonances and overtones of the organ tamp down everything the other players do, it's hard to imagine how anyone could have thought that the group would work. The eight tracks by Fats Waller & His Buddies are merely loose-knit New York jazz of the period (1929).

The Classics discs go forward with Waller's 1926–1927 organ solos – beautiful, lilting creations – as well as some of the Morris Hot Babies tracks and more accompaniments to Mills and Hunter. There is some very strange stuff on Classics 689 – three tearful tributes to the lately departed Florence Mills, where Waller plays respectful piano, and a version of 'Chloe' with violin, organ and piano. It ends with Gene Austin singing 'Maybe – Who Knows?'. In between, though, are several classic piano solos and 'I Ain't Got Nobody', one of the best of his organ records. Remastering on all these is mixed but quite an improvement over Classics 674. The 1929 disc offers a great run of his finest piano solos (see below): still not the best sound, but it's a strong one-disc primer on early Waller.

() You Rascal You /  Fats Waller 1929–1934 ASV AJA 5040 / Classics 720 Waller; Henry 'Red' Allen, Leonard Davis, Bill Coleman, Herman Autrey, Charlie Gains, Charlie Teagarden, Sterling Bose (t); Jack Teagarden (tb, v); Charlie Irvis, Tommy Dorsey, J. C. Higginbotham, Charlie Green (tb); Arville Harris, Ben Whittet, Artie Shaw, Albert Nicholas, Larry Binyon (cl, as); Gene Sedric, Larry Binyon (cl, ts); Bud Freeman (ts); Al Casey, Dick McDonough (g); Eddie Condon (bj); Billy Taylor, George 'Pops' Foster, Artie Bernstein (b); Stan King, Kaiser Marshall, Harry Dial (d). 3/29–11/34; 12/29–11/34.

Waller's early band sides, picked out in the ASV cross-section of 1929–34 sessions, suggested a mercurial talent pondering on its ultimate direction. The two sides by Fats Waller's Buddies are frantic small-band New York jazz of the day (1929), with little of the slyness of the Rhythm sides represented by seven 1934 tracks. The guest-star role he takes on a Jack Teagarden version of 'You Rascal You' offers little more than inspired mugging, entertaining as it is. A few solos, including the enchanting 'My Fate Is In Your Hands', suggest the other side of Waller's art, and the complexity of his personality. Mixed reproduction again, alas: some sides sound very dull, others are clear and strong. Much the same applies to the Classics version of this material.

 Fats Waller 1934–1935 Classics 732 Waller; Herman Autrey, Bill Coleman (t); Floyd O'Brien (tb); Gene Sedric (cl, ts); Mezz Mezzrow (cl, as); Al Casey (g); Billy Taylor, Charles Turner (b); Harry Dial (d, vib). 9/34–1/35.

(*) Fats Waller 1935 Classics 746 As above, except omit Mezzrow, Taylor; add Rudy Powell (cl, as); James Smith (g); Arnold Bolling (d). 1/35–6/35.

(*) Fats Waller 1935 Vol. 2 Classics 760 As above, except omit Coleman, Sedric, Dial. 6–8/35.

(*) Fats Waller 1935–1936 Classics 776 As above, except omit Powell, Smith; add Benny Morton (tb), Emmett Matthews (ss), Bob Carroll, Gene Sedric (ts), Hank Duncan (p), Yank Porter (d). 11/35–2/36.

 Fats Waller 1936 Classics 797 As above, except omit Morton, Matthews, Caroll, Duncan; add Slick Jones (d). 6–9/36.

 Fats Waller 1936–1937 Classics 816 As above, except omit Bolling, Porter. 11/36–3/37.

 Fats Waller 1937 Classics 838 As above, except add Bunny Berigan (t); Tommy Dorsey (tb); Dick McDonough (g); George Wettling (d). 3–6/37.

Waller worked hard in the studios, and though his material has been traditionally looked down upon, he did usually make the most of it, even if the relentless clowning, yelled asides, importuning of soloists and general mayhem obscured much of what his hands were doing at the keyboard. This is often knockabout music, but whenever he gets to a good melody or does one of his own better tunes – such as the 12-inch master of 'Blue Turning Grey Over You' – its underlying seriousness rises to the surface. Autry and Sedric, the most ubiquitous yet least recognized of horn-players, are always ready to heat things up. Bill Coleman's presence on a few early sessions introduces some of his elegant horn, and the almost forgotten Rudy Powell replaced Sedric on several of the 1935 dates.

Much order has now been imposed on these sessions. Classics have set out a comprehensive survey of Waller's Rhythm recordings and his various solos. The Classics CDs are easy to follow, but three deleted RCA sets of this material were attractively packaged and the remastering (much improved on the earlier standards of the Bluebird reissues) is generally better. Waller fans may want to seek these out, though it's possible that the parent company may redo them yet again.

Classics 732 includes four piano solos as well as the session which produced 'Serenade For A Wealthy Widow'; 'Baby Brown' is another good one. Classics 746 has 'Rosetta', 'I'm Gonna Sit Right Down And Write Myself A Letter', the outstanding 'Dinah' and 'Sweet And Slow'. Either this or the following Classics 760 might be a good one to sample: the latter includes several more of the best Rhythm tracks, with one of the best ever versions of 'Somebody Stole My Gal'. Classics 776 has the fruits of a session involving a 12-piece band, which even has a second pianist, Hank Duncan, who brings on a joshing cutting contest on 'I Got Rhythm'. Also on this disc is a particularly fine session that produced 'The Panic Is On', 'Sugar Rose' and 'West Wind'. There is still a decent quota of good music on Classics 797, but this and the next two see the Rhythm formula wearing dangerously thin and some truly dreadful material coming under assault. There are many pickings here, but they're camouflaged by a lot of nonsense. By the time the Classics sequence reaches its end, this stands as a fairly monumental set, but follow the stars in the meantime for Waller's better moments.

(*) Fats Waller 1937 Vol. 2 Classics 857 Waller; Herman Autrey, Paul Campbell (t); Gene Sedric, Caughey Roberts (cl, ts); Al Casey, Ceele Burke (g); Charles Turner, Al Morgan (b); Slick Jones, Lee Young (d). 6–12/37.

 Fats Waller 1937–1938 Classics 875 As above, except add John 'Bugs' Hamilton, Courtney Williams (t); George Robinson, John 'Shorty' Haughton (tb); William Alsop, James Powell, Fred Skerritt (as); Lonnie Simmons (ts); Cedric Wallace (b). 12/37–7/38.

 Fats Waller 1938 Classics 913 Waller; Dave Wilkins, Herman Autrey (t); George Chisholm (tb); Alfie Kahn, Gene Sedric (cl, ts); Ian Sheppard (ts, vn); Al Casey, Alan Ferguson (g); Len Harrison, Cedric Wallace (b); Hymie Schneider, Edmundo Ros, Slick Jones (d); Adelaide Hall (v). 8–12/38.

 Fats Waller 1938–1939 Classics 943 Waller; Herman Autrey (t); Gene Sedric (cl, ts); Coco Heimel, Al Casey (g); Candy Hall, Cedric Wallace (b); Slick Jones, Johnny Marks (d). 12/38–4/39.

 Fats Waller 1939 Classics 973 As above, except omit Heimel, Hall, Marks; add John 'Bugs' Hamilton (t), Chauncey Graham (ts), John Smith (g), Larry Hinton, Max Lewin (d). 6–11/39.

Waller's progress with his Rhythm is documented further here. The humour grows less manic, more formulaic, and sometimes even gentle in its delivery; the material continues to be a mix of worthy and throwaway; and the tenor of each session is usually rather light and fresh, since Waller disliked doing more than the minimum rehearsal before setting down a take. Classics 857 starts with five rather sweetly engaging solos, including 'Keepin' Out Of Mischief Now' (an almost definitive version), and some excellent Rhythm tracks make this one a very good entry in the series. Classics 875 includes eight titles where the Rhythm group was augmented into an orchestra. Waller is uncharacteristically reserved on some of his vocals but there are fine versions of 'Skrontch' and 'The Sheik Of Araby'. There's also a curious date where Ceele Burke plays steel guitar and Waller sings 'Why Do Hawaiians Sing Aloha?'

Waller visited Europe twice in the late '30s, and he recorded in London on both trips. Two sessions in 1938 found him handling organ and piano with a British band, cutting six organ solos (including a surprisingly bleak and unsettling 'Deep River') and backing Adelaide Hall for two further songs (all on Classics 913). Two Rhythm dates back in New York round off the disc. The following year, he worked alone or with drum-only support. There are six wistful miniatures, the 'London Suite', and a rather mournful 'Smoke Dreams Of You', which go to suggest the reflective side of Waller's art which rarely made it to record yet which is always touted by supporters as his shamefully overlooked inner self. Whatever the case, these are slight but charming pieces, and they're on Classics 973, along with three more dates with the Rhythm. On one, they do a polite remake of 'Bond Street' from the 'London Suite'. Classics 943 includes a bizarre two-title date where Waller plays electric organ behind Gene Austin, who sounds like he's doing a Waller impersonation. It also offers three very rare tracks from his 1939 London visit, including 'Cottage In The Rain' – unfortunately dubbed from a very poor master. Transfers tend to be respectable rather than outstanding.

 Fine Arabian Stuff High Note HCD 7053 Waller (p, org, v solo). 11/39.
Waller plays the likes of 'The Old Oaken Bucket', 'Oh! Susanna' and 'Go Down Moses', guying the lyrics without mercy yet often playing the melodies with improbable delicacy. These are 16 transcription performances for radio programming and much of the way it's vintage Fats, but the sound has a thick mist of echo over it which isn't very appealing.

 Fats Waller 1939–1940 Classics 1002 Waller; John 'Bugs' Hamilton (t); Gene Sedric (cl, ts); John Smith, Al Casey (g); Cedric Wallace (b); Slick Jones (d); Una Mae Carlisle (v). 39–40.
 Fats Waller 1940–1941 Classics 1030 As above, except omit Smith, Carlisle; add Catherine Perry (v). 7/40–3/41.
(*) Fats Waller 1941 Classics 1068 As above, except omit Perry; add Herman Autrey, Bob Williams (t); George Wilson, Ray Hogan (tb); Jimmy Powell, Dave McRae (as); Bob Carroll (ts); Charles Turner (b); Arthur Trappier (d). 5–12/41.
 Fats Waller 1942–1943 Classics 1097 Waller; Herman Autrey, John 'Bugs' Hamilton, Joe Thomas, Nathaniel Williams, Benny Carter (t); Herb Flemming, George Wilson, Slim Moore (tb); Gene Sedric, Gene Porter (cl, ts); Jackie Fields, George James (as); Bob Carroll (ts); Al Casey, Irving Ashby (g); Cedric Wallace, Slam Stewart (b); Arthur Trappier, Zutty Singleton (d); Deep River Boys, Ada Brown (v). 3/42–9/43.
If Waller was ultimately trapped by his non-stop funny-man image, the routine of the Fats Waller And His Rhythm records at least helped to focus a talent that was sometimes in danger of merely running ragged. The dozens of throwaway tunes he lampooned may have had little intrinsic merit, and he often falls back on favourite lines and devices, but like Armstrong in the same period Waller remains an inimitable talent, and the space limitations of the records often result in performances full of compressed excitement. The later sessions are unpredictable in this respect, since he often goes gentle when one expects a shot of uproar. It is certainly untrue to say that the Rhythm recordings declined in quality. The 1941–42 sessions include some of the finest sides the band made, and Hamilton, Sedric and Autrey, all minor figures who nevertheless played handsomely at the right moment, lend a more urgently swinging touch to the music than anything provided by, say, the Louis Jordan band. (Compare Waller's 'Your Socks Don't Match' or 'Don't Give Me That Jive' (both on Classics 1068), two very Jordanesque tunes, with any of the altoman's records. Next to Jordan's calculating burlesques, Waller's wit sounds wholly spontaneous.)

Since RCA's multi-disc overview is now long gone, these Classics volumes – which finally complete the Waller story after 21 CDs! – take first place. Pick of the four is surely Classics 1068, which has the Rhythm augmented by horns for the session that produced the terrific 'Chant Of The Groove', as well as five piano solo tracks and superior singles such as 'Buck Jumpin'' and 'Clarinet Marmalade'. Classics 1097 offers the final four Victor dates and includes Fats singing 'That's What The Well Dressed Man In Harlem Will Wear' in front of the Victor First Nighter Orchestra and Benny Carter playing trumpet on the last session. Ten titles for V-Disc, with Fats alone at the piano or the organ, make a fine conclusion to the series, with the chilling farewell of 'Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child' making an eerie finale to his career on record. Sound is mostly more than acceptable on all four discs.

Also, in brief:

(*) Fats Waller 1922–1926 Classics 664. 10/22–4/26.
Fantastically obscure music: 19 tracks of classic blues and vaudeville singers accompanied by Waller, plus two 1922 solos and two tracks with the kazoos of the Jamaica Jazzers.

(*) Misbehavin' Badly Giant Steps G15T006. 29–43.
A hotch-potch of Victor sessions and V-Discs, all available elsewhere.

Jan Wallgren (1935–96)

PIANO

Originally from Norway, he spent most of his life in Sweden. A bopper in the '50s and '60s, he was an eclectic with a deep knowledge of classical and folk forms.

(*) Standards And Blueprints Dragon DRCD 246 Wallgren (p solo). 4/87–2/93.
* Raga, Bebop And Anything Dragon DRCD 303 Wallgren; Magnus Broo (t); Nils Landgren (tb); Håkan Broström (ss, as); Jonas Knutsson (ss, as, bs); Lennart Åberg (ss, ts); Christian Spering (b); Anders Kjellberg (d). 4/95.
Wallgren's Blueprints is an album we have returned to often. The veteran bebopper-turned-composer wore his heart on his sleeve here, with the jazz pieces sitting beside dedications to Berg, Webern and Schoenberg, and while it is principally a recital of tiny miniatures – some of which might blow away on a puff of wind – the beauty of his touch brings most of it to life, with the dozen 'Hints And Suggestions' particularly fine. His version of the Lennon–McCartney tune 'Blackbird' is about as eloquent as the Beatles have ever been in a jazz setting.

The group record takes its title from an advertisement once placed to advertise a Wallgren concert ('Wallgren: Raga, bebop and anything'). Like so many Scandinavian composers, his music is inseparable from a heritage that a jazz vocabulary has only tempered. Chorale and passacaglia forms are as prevalent here as the blues, and in company with a front-rank band the leader sets out a rich programme of nine themes, none of them alike. Cancer took him in the summer of 1996, and this stands as a memorial to a rare imagination. There are other fine Wallgren recordings which await CD restoration: Steel Bend Rock, Love Chant and Ballade An Der Ruhr among them.

Per Henrik Wallin (1946–2005)

PIANO

An explosive post-bop stylist, the Swede led many record dates during the '70s and early '80s but was badly injured in a 1988 accident and has since recorded only occasionally.

(*) The Stockholm Tapes Ayler AYL 032 Wallin; Lars-Göran Ulander (as); Peter Olsen (d). 75–77.

 Burning In Stockholm Atavistic Unheard Music Series 249 Wallin; Johnny Dyani (b); Erik Dahlbäck (d). 1/81.
 Deep In A Dream Dragon DRCD 290 Wallin (p solo). 5/85.
* Coyote Dragon DRCD 320 Wallin; Tørbjörn Hultcrantz (b); Erik Dahbäck (d). 8/86–10/87.
(*) Where Is Spring Dragon DRCD 390 Wallin; Torbjörn Hultcrantz (b); Leif Wennerström (d). 86–87.
(*) Dolphins, Dolphins, Dolphins Dragon DRCD 215 Wallin; Mats Gustafsson (ss, ts, bs); Kjell Nordeson (d). 8/91.

Wallin's extensive discography is still seriously depleted. He was a fascinating pianist, taking whatever he wanted from free- and post-bop piano language. A bravado delivery, involving tumultuous climaxes and moment-by-moment contrast, makes him hard to follow or even like at times, but he was surely a European original. Coyote documents some radio sessions by his power trio of the '80s. Massive pieces like 'The Strange Adventures Of Jesper Klint' go through lightning changes of mood, spinning through amazing pyrotechnics from the keyboard but always under precarious but particular control. Compared to some of his other groups, the bassist and drummer are much in tune with his style and help rather than hinder. A belated but splendid release. The Stockholm Tapes goes back even earlier, to a mid-'70s trio with saxophonist Ulander, and this is about as far-out as Wallin's music ever went, the threesome powering along almost as if they were a New York loft-jazz outfit rather than a team from the north end of Europe. It's exhilarating music. The same for the Atavistic recovery of a long improv involving Wallin with Mbizo and regular collaborator Dahlbäck. Again, the provenance could be downtown New York.

Even when he plays standards, as on Deep In A Dream, the language is open and enriched with ideas from outside conventional harmonic jazz. It's a very beautiful record, but not something you can put on as background and expect to appreciate. Where Is Spring isn't quite so compelling, but it's a highly desirable record if you've dabbled in Wallin's brand of magic.

Hospitalized after a crippling accident in 1988, Wallin astonishingly came back with seemingly none of his power depleted. The shade most closely evoked here is Thelonious Monk, since 'Nu Nu Och Då Nu Går Då Och Nu' sounds like a perversion of 'Round Midnight', and other Monkish melodies drift through the remaining tunes. But the level of interplay here – confrontational and conspiratorial in equal proportion – goes against the impression given by much of his earlier work that Wallin is best by himself, although his long solo 'J.W.' is a wonderfully expressive tribute to a painter friend. Gustafsson is gothically powerful and jagged, Nordeson works with military intensity, and it's all splendidly recorded.

 Blues For Allan Flash Music FLCD-8 Wallin; Peter Janson (b); Leif Wennerström (d). 4–12/98.

His second record of the '90s finds Wallin at Club Fasching with a new trio – Janson, who plays in the Aaly Trio, is a great find. 'Thelonious' is so dramatically reharmonized that Monk himself might have raised an eyebrow. For once, Wallin's playing is too relentless: the pair of blues pieces are almost teeth-grindingly tensed up. 'Ryssland' is a desolate tribute to the Russian people. 'Sweet And Lovely' is neither, although the record as a whole is a good antidote to too many perfumed piano recitals.

 9.9.99 Stunt STUCD 00202 As above. 9/99.

As ever, Wallin picks over his Monk songbook obsessively: there are six more renditions here. When he does Bud Powell's 'Elegy', it seems disorientating, because it feels it should be a Monk credit. In the end this is no primed masterpiece but (as the title suggests) a day's work, as singular as any other day's. Wallin isn't likely to settle for making himself into repertory, but it depends how he's documented from this point onwards.

(*) Proklamation I & Farewell To Sweden hatOLOGY 563 2CD Wallin; Peter Janson (b); Leif Wennerström, Sven-Åke Johansson (d). 3/00–2/01.

A duo set with Johansson recorded in Wallin's apartment and a trio session at the Bimhuis in Amsterdam. The ten improvisations by the duo (really a single piece, banded on the CD) are conciliatory, rather different from the battleground which Wallin sometimes makes out of his preferred standards and jazz themes, although hints of Ellington and Monk keep breaking in. At the Bimhuis it's more like business as usual for the trio. Janson and Wennerström have grown into their roles and the group sounds like a purposeful entity even in a piece as difficult as Monk's 'Work'. They also centre what would otherwise be badly scarred versions of 'Embraceable You' and 'Answer Me My Love'. It's hard to tell if Wallin is smiling inside at this kind of creative desecration. A track at a time, it's certainly exhilarating.

(*) One Knife Is Enough Caprice CAP 21722 Wallin (p solo). 1/82–3/03.

Caprice have reissued Wallin's 1982 solo set under this title and added another eight tracks cut in 2003. One way to compare them is to try out the two versions of 'April In Paris'. The lick which he uses almost as a punctuation device in the earlier treatment is entirely absent, and maybe he's a little kinder on the melody, but otherwise he sounds as vehement as he was 20 years earlier. Wallin is a hard listen as a soloist: crabby, stubborn and not a great one for letting in light, he pounds his way through the compositions. Taken a couple of tracks at a time, though, the results are undeniably compelling, and when he does soften just a little – as on 'My Pearl Just Left' – a strange poignancy comes out.

(*) Mandelstam Moserobie 023 Wallin; Magnus Broo (t); Mats Äleklint (tb); Sven Larsson (btb); Håken Nyquist (frhn); Anders Ekholm, Stefan Isaksson, Jonas Kullhammar, Fredrik Ljungkvist, Bernt Rosengren (reeds); Steve Reid, Harry Wallin (d); Thomas Eby (perc). 10/03.

A late live excursion by Wallin, still sounding commanding and full of ideas, and his younger (though not entirely – the great Bernt Rosengren is there) 'Gang'. All the pieces are his; they're not just run down but properly rehearsed and thought through and the knowledge of his impending death at this time makes the set a poignant one. 'Tiveden', 'Harry's Idea' and the moving title-track are all powerful charts and the soloists do them full justice. Wallin's still seriously unappreciated as a composer.

George Wallington (1924–93)

PIANO

Born Giacinto Figlia in Sicily, he was involved in the first wave of bebop. He subsequently left the music business but recorded an album and gave a few concerts in the mid-'80s.

(*) The George Wallington Trios Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1754 Wallington; Chuck Wayne (mandola); Charles Mingus, Oscar Pettiford, Curley Russell (b); Max Roach (d). 9/52–5/53.

More so even than Joe Albany or Dodo Marmarosa, George Wallington is the underrated master of bebop piano: he's best known for his 'Lemon Drop' and 'Godchild'. His speed is breathtaking, his melodies unspooling in long, unbroken lines, and he writes tunes which are rather more than the customary convoluted riffs on familiar chord-changes. The OJC Trios disc is all piano, bass and drums, and there are marvellous, flashing virtuoso pieces like the ultrafast 'Cuckoo Around The Clock', although the elegance of 'I Married An Angel' is a harbinger of Wallington's later work.

 Live! At Café Bohemia /  Complete Live At The Bohemia Original Jazz Classics OJC 1813 / Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10280 2CD Wallington; Donald Byrd (t); Jackie McLean (as); Paul Chambers (b); Art Taylor (d). 9/55.
 Jazz For The Carriage Trade Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1704 Wallington; Donald Byrd (t); Phil Woods (as); Teddy Kotick (b); Art Taylor (d). 1/56.
(*) The New York Scene Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1805 Wallington; Donald Byrd (t); Jackie McLean (as); Paul Chambers (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 3/57.
Some of these are merely serviceable hard-bop entries, prosaic stuff after the fine fierceness of the earlier records; but some of the music takes exception. Wallington's playing seemed to turn inwards and his improvisations are at an altogether cooler temperature. Byrd muddles through the first two dates and is approaching his faceless self on the later one, yet this anonymity throws some of Wallington's own contributions into sharper relief – almost like Freddie Hubbard on some of the more outré Blue Notes of the next decade. Woods hits every note he needs to with his usual accuracy on his appearances; McLean is his customary tart mid-'50s self on the earliest date. Café Bohemia (now delivered full length by Lone Hill) and Carriage Trade are tough and darting but finally straight-ahead in their demeanour; it's The New York Scene that looks a little further out, thanks to Wallington's material and his own solos, which have begun to skin bebop language back to something more elemental.

(*) The Prestidigitator Wounded Bird 4004 Wallington; Jerry Lloyd (b-t); J. R. Monterose (ts); Teddy Kotick (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 4/57.
We're sentimentally fond of this because, first, the title sums up Wallington's fast-fingered style better than anything we could offer; second, because the recording comes so close before his retirement from the scene; and, last but not least, because it also adds to the still-small discography of Monterose, a particular favourite of ours (he came up with the title). It's also unusual in that it brought several compositions of Mose Allison's into the repertory, though they've rarely been covered since. In essence, it's sophisticated hard bop, and Mose's touch with a melody comes across on 'Rural Route' and 'Promised Land'. An intriguing, sophisticated record.

 Leonard Feather Presents VSOP12 Wallington; Idrees Sulieman, Thad Jones (t); Phil Woods (as); Curley Russell (b); Denzil Best, Art Taylor (d); Baird Parker (v). 7 & 9/57.
The simplest clue that this is 'second generation' bebop is that the guest vocalist is Charlie Parker's son Baird, 'singing' 'Salt Peanuts' two years after his father's death. For the most part, the rest of it is fairly generic bop. Wallington's the most distinctive voice, though Woods's post-Bird approach makes for one or two striking solos

 The Pleasure Of A Jazz Inspiration VSOP 84 Wallington (p solo). 8/85.
Tempted back into the studios, Wallington created this 'jazz tone poem' in eight parts. Bebop figures drift through some of the themes: 'Writing In The Sand' is very like Powell's 'Parisian Thoroughfare'. But the slower pieces are unusually dark, with the harmonies of 'Memory Of The Heart' almost impenetrably dense, and there's a hint of sourness that goes with the pleasure. Wallington sounds rusty here and there, and much of the old exhilaration has dissipated, but it's an interesting if eccentric postscript to a frustrating career.

Also, in brief:

 Knight Music Koch 8543. 9/56.
A fine trio version of his 'Godchild' and some good standards covers as well.

Bob Wallis (1934–91)

TRUMPET, VOICE

A Yorkshireman, he moved to London and played with Acker Bilk before forming his own Storyville Jazzmen. Latterly moved to Switzerland.

 1957 GHB CD 252 Wallis; John Mortimer (tb); Les Wood (cl); Pete Gresham (p); Hugh Rainey (bj); Stu Wimsey (b); Ginger Baker (d). 57.
(*) The Pye Jazz Anthology / * Ol' Man River Castle CMDDD 484 2CD / Lake LACD 91 Wallis; Avo Avison (tb); Doug Richford (cl); Al Gay (cl, ts, ss); Pete Gresham (p); Hugh Rainey (bj); Brian Kirby (b); Ken Buckner (d). 60–63; 5/60–3/61.
 Live In Leipzig 1976 Dine-A-Mite DJKCD-002 2CD Wallis; Mike Sherbourne (tb); Andre Beeson (cl, as); Ian Armit (p); Ken Ames (g, bj); Bernie Cash (b); George Collier (d). 9/76.
Wallis was a bit of a second-division leader in the trad years, at least next to the Three B's, but he did manage a couple of hits and worked steadily enough. The Storyville Jazzmen recorded for Bill Colyer's 77 label (the stuff's on the GHB reissue) and made several records for Pye; the Castle set collects most of them. Bob's singing gets a bit wearisome and the studio tracks never really capture the pandemonious feel the band could usually generate live, but it's a fair souvenir of their work. The Lake disc, which restricts itself to Ol' Man River and the best of Travellin' Blues, is rather better since it doesn't try to include too much.

The Leipzig live set was not recorded at a very propitious period for British trad, but the music is surprisingly better than expected. The faster pieces go off at a scatterbrained pace yet everyone manages to keep up, even if Ian Armit has to contend with a modest piano. Too many vocals again, but Wallis fans will understand.

Jack Walrath (born 1946)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN, VOICE

The Montana-born Walrath worked in Charles Mingus's group during the '70s, after Berklee and a stint in R&B. Strongly influenced by bebop, he has a clear-edged and intense sound and great humour.

(*) In Europe Steeplechase SCCD 31172 Walrath; Glenn Ferris (tb); Michael Cochran (p); Anthony Cox (b); Jimmy Madison (d). 7/82.
Walrath is a brassy, upfront kind of trumpet-man and has been a stalwart in some strong repertory bands. As a leader, he's never had tremendous impact on record. The brass front line on the Steeplechase is ringingly present, and Ferris's old-fashioned tone is a huge asset on 'Duesin' In Duesseldorf' and 'At Home In Rome', two of four Walrath originals on a relatively short-measured release that will leave most purchasers calling for more. Cox and Madison make an interesting partnership, not always absolutely squarely on the metre, but lateral enough to keep a step ahead of a notably capricious leader.

 Hipgnosis TCB 01062 Walrath; David Fiuczynski (g); Hill Green (b); Cecil Brooks III (d); Dean Bowman (v). 3/95.
* Solidarity ACT 9241 Walrath; Ralph Reichert (sax); Buggy Braune (p); Christian Havel (g, v); Andreas Henze (b); Joris Dudli (d). 8/95.

Walrath's long-standing passion for horror films is reflected in the name of his working band, The Masters Of Suspense. They are featured on Hipgnosis, an unusual set in that it puts considerable emphasis on lyrics and vocal performance. These suggest that Walrath remains under the influence of the great Charles Mingus, at whose former home he wrote the piece 'Mingus Piano'. The 'Sweet Hip Gnosis' suite which it brings to an end is much involved with Walrath's other fascination in esoteric philosophy, a rich and complex group of distantly related pieces that cohere more and more securely each time they are heard. The Mingus association is cemented by 'Eclipse' but is omnipresent, detectable even on a Walrath original like 'Blues Sinistra'.

Solidarity is a blues-soaked and – as Jack points out – very American-sounding recording that could again almost be a Mingus offshoot. Reichert's father owns the Hamburg club where the recording was made; it's an atmospheric place and a strong, smouldering set. The two-part 'Hamburg Concerto' and the title-track bespeak anew Walrath's ability to give long forms the immediacy and the visceral punch of a simple blues, while 'Hot-Dog For Lunch', 'Political Suicide' and 'Psychotic Indifference' underline his more capricious and satirical side. Reichert claims joint honours, and his father's production yields up a sound which favours the horns over the rest of the group – not overwhelmingly so, but with a definite edge. Good stuff.

(*) Journey, Man! Evidence ECD 22150 Walrath; Bobby Watson (as); Craig Handy (ss, ts); Kenny Drew Jr (p); Ray Drummond (b); Victor Lewis (d). 11/95.

Jack called this band Hard Corps and used it to mark a return to pretty orthodox hard bop. Whether this was out of frustration or a genuine desire to explore that slightly tired idiom is hard to determine, but the playing on Journey, Man! – from the horns in particular – suggests an exuberant embrace of the old style. 'Butt! (Tails From The Backside)' veers close to parody, but 'Pete's Steps', derived from Coltrane's 'Giant Steps', is both generic and spot-on. 'Bouncin' With Ballholzka' flirts with elements of freedom, while 'When Love Has Gone (It Comes Out Like This)' is an exquisite ballad, pitched in a middle register and showing a side of Walrath's playing that is all too rarely highlighted.

(*) Get Hit In Your Soul ACT 9246 2 Walrath; Bill Bickford (g); Miles Griffith (v); WDR Big Band. 96–98.

A joyous celebration of the music and the spirit of Charles Mingus, which of course Walrath experienced at first hand. Miles Griffith serves to remind us that Mingus's recitations and songs were never an incidental aspect of what he was about but were absolutely central to it, and 'Oh Lord, Don't Let Them Drop That Atomic Bomb On Me' is the proof: passionate, wry and intense. However, the real surprises on the album are Jack's compositions. The opening 'Motley As An Amorphous Hangdown' is brassy and roiling, while his arrangement of the famous Egyptian 'Hymn To Aten' alongside Psalm CIV touches new areas of expression for the trumpeter.

 The Invasion Of The Booty Shakers Savant 2038 Walrath; Bill Bickford (g, perc, v); Dwayne Dolphin (b); Cecil Brooks III (d); Art Baron (perc, didjeridu, serpent); Dean Bowman, Miles Griffith (v). 01.

Unfortunately, rock band Parlet beat Jack to it on this title. Unfortunately, too, his sophomoric humour – which some generously liken to Frank Zappa's – is wearing a little thin in middle age. A strange, impressionistic track here is called 'Da Thrill Of Vasectomy, Da Agony Of Da Feet'. Griffith's singing is still something of an acquired taste. The Masters Of Suspense have had better days in the studio, but for fans this is a wack treat.

Danny Walsh

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

Bright newcomer who made an impact with vibist Joe Locke.

 D's Mood Steeplechase SCCD 31428 Walsh; Joey Calderazzo (p); Dave Stryker (g); Jay Anderson (b); Billy Drummond (d). 00.

Walsh is relatively unusual in doubling alto and tenor saxophones. He doesn't have a particularly distinctive voice on either, but the keener, more plangent sound of the alto suits him better, in this setting at least. He can be forgiven 'Danny Boy', which he's probably been playing since the beginning of his career, and he makes good on his early promise with fine readings of 'Shiny Stockings' and a long 'You Stepped Out Of A Dream'. Shame there's been no follow-up.

Priska Walss (born 1964)

TROMBONE, ALPHORN

A delightful new voice, and since 1991 half of Duo Frappant with college friend Gabriela Friedli.

* Intervista Intakt CD 087 Walss; Gabriela Friedli (p, org). 00–02.

This is as fresh and inviting a disc as any to appear on the European scene in recent years. Walss's trombone technique has little to do with the deconstructions of players like George Lewis and Vinko Globokar. Instead, she favours a bright, vocal tone, sometimes almost in tailgating style, which contrasts sharply with the mournful drones of the alphorn on tracks like 'Furggelti' and 'Lisblueme', the latter a wonderful duet between thundercloud and pianistic waterdrops. On 'Clara', Priska uses her mute to create a bluesy wah-wah in the middle distance over Friedli's meditative one-note 'accompaniment' (which actually sits well forward of the horn); she then has her moment for a short Daffy Duck monologue before Friedli comes back in canon to bring the piece to an unexpectedly conventional but satisfying end. Organ is used sparingly, as in the wheezy pulse running through 'Fil Bleu', and throughout the attention falls squarely on the horn-player, who is going to be one of the most interesting new voices of coming years. Find her also on Urs Voerkel's Intakt work, but catch up with this one without delay.

Cedar Walton (born 1934)

PIANO

After a stint in the military, the Dallas-born Walton worked with Kenny Dorham and J. J. Johnson before joining (and later rejoining) the Jazz Messengers. He also served a tour as house pianist for the Prestige label. He has a confident feel for the blues but favours a kind of angular lyricism.

(*) Cedar! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 462 Walton; Kenny Dorham (t); Junior Cook (ts); Leroy Vinnegar (b); Billy Higgins (d). 7/67.

(*) Soul Cycle Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 847-2 Walton; James Moody (ts, f); Rudy Stevenson (bs); Reggie Workman (b); Albert 'Tootie' Heath (d). 68.

(*) Cedar Walton Plays Cedar Walton /  Spectrum Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 6002 / Prestige PRCD 24145-2 As Cedar!, except add Blue Mitchell (t); Clifford Jordan (ts); Bob Cranshaw, Richard Davis (b); Jack DeJohnette, Mickey Roker (d). 7/67–1/69.

Walton has only slowly been recognized as a significant jazz composer. Tunes like 'Bolivia', 'Ojos De Rojo', 'Maestro' and 'Ugetsu' rival McCoy Tyner's work for sophisticated inventiveness. During the '70s Walton was anchoring Clifford Jordan's Magic Triangle band. They seem to have struck up an immediate rapport on these earlier sessions, made for Prestige. Plays contains a useful sample of the earlier quartet and quintet stuff with Dorham and Cook, but the compilation misses a fine trio, 'My Ship'. Paired with the characteristically blunt Mitchell, Jordan takes the direct route to goal, with no sign of his irritating tendency to mark time in mid-solo. 'Higgins Holler' and 'Jake's Milkshakes' also feature sterling work by DeJohnette, who still sounds rather eager to please. There's an excellent trio performance of Walton's 'Fantasy In D', related to 'Ugetsu', with Roker and Cranshaw. Though there's good stuff on OJC 462, the compilation has to be a better bet. By and large Spectrum runs a few variants on the same sessions and the same material and, heard afresh, it has much to recommend it; but the reappearance of Soul Cycle, with Moody and Stevenson, is the real find, a brisk, expressive session which is paced just about perfectly and contains one gem of a performance in 'My Cherie Amour'.

() First Set / () Second Set /  Third Set Steeplechase SCCD 31085 / 31113 / 31179 Walton; Bob Berg (ts); Sam Jones (b); Billy Higgins (d). 1 & 10/77.

This was a vintage period for Walton. This is the band that went out as Eastern Rebellion, though these discs seem to be credited to Walton alone. His European gigs were models of tough contemporary bop and, though the incidence of covers is higher than one might expect, given the strength of his writing, the standard of performance is consistently high, and for once Steeplechase's exhaustive documentation seems justified. Berg, who replaced George Coleman in the group, turns in an excellent performance of Coltrane's 'Blue Train' on Second Set, avoiding the usual pastiche of Trane's lonesome solo and turning the theme into something altogether tougher and more locomotive. There are several good Monk performances, but the opening 'Off Minor' on First Set is the most dynamic.

 Among Friends Evidence ECD 22023 Walton; Bobby Hutcherson (vib); Buster Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 7/82.

This was never intended as a release recording. Walton was working with Bobby Hutcherson's group at the Keystone Korner and opened for the vibist most nights with a few solo performances and some trios. There is a magnificent solo medley here – 'Ruby My Dear', 'My Old Flame', 'I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face', wryly adult love songs – tucked away at the end of the record, but also in a sense its climax. Cedar also does some tunes with the rest of the rhythm section and is joined by Hutcherson on 'My Foolish Heart'. All of which makes this a very attractive package indeed.

 Bluesville Time Criss Cross 1017 Walton; Dale Barlow (ts); David Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 4/85.

Williams and Higgins were the ground floor of Walton's fine '80s groups. The drummer's ability to sustain and develop a pattern became increasingly important to the pianist as he simplified and reduced his delivery. Barlow compares very favourably with the inventive Bob Berg, who had played for a time in Walton's other group, Eastern Rebellion (see above). The material is excellent – 'Naima' and 'I Remember Clifford' alongside distinctive originals like 'Rubber Man' and 'Ojos De Rojo' – but the playing, Higgins apart, isn't quite crisp enough.

(*) The Trio: Volumes 1–3 Red RR 123192 / 123193 / 123194 Walton; David Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 3/85.

Recorded live in Bologna, these represent a compelling mixture of originals ('Ojos De Rojo', 'Jacob's Ladder', 'Holy Land'), standards ('Lover Man', 'Every Time We Say Goodbye') and challenging repertoire pieces (Ellington's 'Satin Doll', Fred Lacey's 'Theme For Ernie', S. R. Kyner's 'Bluesville'). Walton's brilliant phrasing and inbuilt harmonic awareness keep thematic material in view at all times, and his solos and accompaniments are always entirely logical and consistently developed. About Higgins there is very little more to add but that he has inherited and fully deserved the mantle of Elvin Jones. Williams offers firm, unobtrusive support but isn't a very exciting soloist.

(*) Cedar Walton Plays Delos 4008 Walton; Don Sickler (t); Steve Turre (tb); Kenny Garrett (as); Lou Orensteen (ts); Charles Davis (bs); Ron Carter (b); Billy Higgins (d). 9/86.

An ambitious-looking project for the pianist that disappoints only to the degree that the mid-size band does little more than accompany for most of the record's span. Given that there are some formidable soloists here – Orensteen is more obscure, but has worked with Clifford Jordan and others – it's a shame that they aren't more creatively deployed. Walton himself is in very good shape and the trio crackles along on Bud Powell's 'Hallucinations' and Nellie Lutcher's 'He's A Real Gone Guy'. Some other cuts are more interesting for the arrangement, like the opening 'Willow, Weep For Me' and an extended interpretation of Cole Porter's 'So In Love'. The highlight remains the read of Benny Golson's too rarely covered 'Out of the Past': Walton at his funky, thoughtful best.

* Manhattan Afternoon Criss Cross 1082 Walton; David Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 12/92.

(*) Cedar's Blues Red Records RR 123179 2 As above, except add Curtis Fuller (tb); Bob Berg (ts). 93.

 Off Minor Red Records RR 123242 2 Walton; David Williams (b). 93.

Manhattan Afternoon is a tremendous record. With just two originals tucked away in the middle of the set, Walton sticks to a programme of fairly routine standards and repertoire pieces – Monk's 'I Mean You' isn't his most played piece, though – and despatches them all with consummate skill. His very first solo, on 'There Is No Greater Love', is replete with unexpected angles, and the soft harmonic displacements recur later on John Lewis's 'Afternoon In Paris'. Williams and Higgins fit the music like a glove. Strongly recommended.

The quintet record was recorded live in Bologna. It showcases four Walton themes, including a brief but powerful take of 'Ugetsu' and an unexpectedly romping 'Fiesta Espanola'. The only standard of the session is 'Over The Rainbow', executed without a shred of sentimentality. Berg is on fine form, but it's Fuller, so often the bridesmaid, who captures the attention, even when slightly off-mic.

The duos with Williams are strongly tinged with Monk's angular harmonics. The bass-player is a rich source of harmonic ideas as well as being a strong, rhythmic anchor. A highly effective record, though probably only of interest to converts.

 The Art Blakey Legacy Evidence ECD 22190 Walton; Philip Harper (t); Steve Turre (tb); Lou Donaldson (as); Javon Jackson (ts); David Williams (b); Billy Higgins (d). 8/93.
Cedar occupied the piano chair with the Messengers for three years in the early '60s and has by that alone earned the right to claim a place in the descent. 'Blues For Buhaina' is a heartfelt tribute, co-written with guest Lou Donaldson, but it's 'Caravan', 'Whisper Not' and Horace Silver's 'Split Kick' that contain the real meat in this heady brew of hard-bop stalwarts. Argument will rage as to whether these younger guys are up to their 1961/2/3 equivalents. Phooey to that. Javon Jackson could easily have cut it in that vintage band and isn't remotely upstaged by the ever-funky Donaldson.

* The Composer Astor Place TCD 4001 Walton; Roy Hargrove (t); Vincent Herring (as); Ralph Moore (ts, ss); Christian McBride (b); Victor Lewis (d). 1/96.
Not since Cedar Plays Cedar has there been such a full-blooded attempt to establish Walton's credentials as a writer, and yet what one remembers from this crisply recorded set isn't the writing at all but some fantastic playing from a band that sounds as if it works together every week. 'Hindsight' and 'Underground Memoirs' are both crafted and well-scaffolded, but it's the horns that make it, and often Walton lies back and comps while the youngsters flutter about in the foreground. It's well worth concentrating on his line for a moment or two, doing what he does and filtering out any extraneous signal in favour of a direct line to the chords.

* Roots Astor Place TCD 4010 Walton; Terence Blanchard (t); Scott Whitfield (tb); Don Sickler (t, flhn); Bobby Porcelli (as); Joshua Redman (ts); Willie Williams (ss, ts); Gary Smulyan (bs); Ron Carter (b); Lewis Nash (d); Ray Mantilla (perc). 1/97.
As on the previous Astor Place set, Walton sticks to original material, confident now that his pianism is not just a technical resource but the basis of a broad musical vision. Unlike the previous album, though, this is a retrospective of compositions that go back many years. 'Mode For Joe', 'Ojas De Rojo' (which features Josh Redman in great form), and 'Fantasy In D' (which includes one of three fine contributions from Whitfield) are all well-known from previous records, but here they have a fresh and incisive quality that makes them sound new-minted. The larger ensemble is of the highest quality, building on the strengths of a magnificent trio. Carter is allowed to come forward strongly in the mix and Nash, kept off to the side, is less intrusive than on some of his recorded appearances. Walton's arrangements are sure-footed and confidently shaped and, even when fully voiced, sound as stark and raw-boned as any blues.

 Latin Tinge High Note HCD 7099 Walton; Cucho Martinez (b); Ray Mantilla (perc). 6/02.
Cedar went back to his own book for three of the Latinate pieces here, and filled in the gaps with the likes of 'Tres Palabras' and 'Besame Mucho'. It's a light, airy record, not much more than a repertory exercise, but enacted with good grace.

 Underground Memoirs High Note HCD 7119 Walton (p solo). 1/05.
Apart from the title-track, this is all repertory and standards-based material. 'I Want To Talk About You' is classic Walton, lyrical but somehow edgy, too, and his interpretations of 'Con Alma' and 'On Green Dolphin Street' have a similar cast. Not a classic record, but good sophisticated modern jazz.

(*) One Flight Down High Note HCD 7157 Walton; Vincent Herring (as, ts); David Williams (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 4/06.
This begins with a backward glance, new versions of two older Walton compositions, 'The Rubber Man' and the title-track (interestingly, Herring plays tenor on both of them), but then continues in a more obviously nostalgic vein with a magnificent Billy Strayhorn medley. So far, so intriguing. What follows, though, is real highlight in the recent Walton discography, a magnificent version of Sam Jones's 'Seven Minds'. The piano solo is breathtaking, but almost upstaged by Williams's brilliant feature, almost good enough and certainly melodic enough to have been by his namesake Buster. 'Time After Time' is curiously unembellished, but there are some deft touches in Walton's treatment. He closes in upbeat mode again with Wayne Shorter's 'Hammer Head' and a lovely version of Freddie Hubbard's 'Little Sunflower'. What a treat for anyone who hasn't yet sampled a Walton album; this one is vintage.

Also, in brief:

 Naima Savoy Jazz 17247. 1/73.
Live at Boomer's, with Clifford Jordan (ts) revisiting an old acquaintance. The Trane tune is fine, but 'St Thomas' is wonderfully rollicking.

 Live At Yoshi's Monarch 1005. 4/89.
Nice trio set, with Billy Higgins (d) in cracking form, but why are they wearing visored helmets on the cover? Surely not a reference to Cedar's 'Ironclad'?

(*) The Promise Land High Note HCD 7081. 3/01.
The missing 'd' is correct, and this is a sure-footed set from a veteran leader, with Vincent Herring (as) in top form.

 Manhattan After Hours Twinz 933. 5/03.
A nice trio set with Dale Barlow (ts) attracting attention with some nifty solo work.

Ben Waltzer

PIANO

Young stylist who also writes and does television and MD work.

 For Good Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 013 Waltzer; Reid Anderson (b); Jordi Rossy (d). 96.

 Jazz Is Where You Find It Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 021 Waltzer; Bill McHenry (ts); Alexis Cuadrado (b); Jo Krause (d). 97.

(*) In Metropolitan Motion Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 082 Waltzer; Bill McHenry (ts); Chris Lightcap (b); Gerald Cleaver (d); Mohammed Naseehu Ali (d, djembe). 10 & 12/99.

(*) One Hundred Dreams Ago Fresh Sound New Talent FSNTCD 184 Waltzer; Matt Penman (b); Gerald Cleaver (d). 6/03.
Fresh Sound were quick in the frame with Waltzer and have let his career develop under the label's nurture. There are signs right from the start that he needs more careful handling. The first record is fine in terms of raw material, but some of the performances sound either tentative or somewhat unfinished, and it may be that longer studio time and rehearsal would have delivered something even more satisfying. Waltzer writes well, though, and while some of the themes on For Good are no more than workmanlike and serious, there's enough mileage in them for improvisation.

Few other musicians have remained so associated with FSNT, but Bill McHenry is arguably another of the house stars, and the jointly led quartet is an interesting record, marking a turn towards standard and repertory material for the moment. It's hardly hackneyed fare: Bird's 'Quasimodo', a rare John Lewis, 'As Long As There's Music', 'The Touch of Your Lips' and just one line from Ben, 'The Thick Plottens'. Good support from the band, but the bassist and drummer don't sound as easy with the material and often drift a bit. McHenry guests on in Metropolitan Motion, which marks a significant leap for Waltzer, restoring his own writing to the foreground, and moving into a mature phase, but also mixing his own slightly quirky lines with things like a Shostakovich prelude and 'Kira Da Anshi', a fascinating collaboration between Ali and Cleaver.

The latest of the group – and activities may have been overtaken by writing and television work for the moment – is a sophisticated and confident disc which suggests a musician who continues to absorb music from all around. Nothing that would attract so belittling an adjective as 'eclectic', but just a hint that Ben absorbs other sonics from the air around him. His touch is increasingly modulated, and though he can hit the keyboard with authority, he's learning to play nuance as well: his take on 'U.M.M.G.' is grown-up and measured. A fine body of work in a crowded field. Let's hope to hear more soon.

David S. Ware (born 1949)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, SAXELLO, STRITCH

Studied in Boston but settled in New York and played with Cecil Taylor in the '70s. Drove taxis in the '80s before a comeback with European recordings which over the next decade led to something like star status in the American avant-garde, culminating in a record deal with Columbia.

 Passage To Music Silkheart 113 Ware; William Parker (b); Marc Edwards (d). 4/88.
(*) Oblations And Blessings Silkheart 145 Ware; Matthew Shipp (p); William Parker (b); Whit Dickey (d). 95.

Ware grew up in New Jersey, attended Berklee for a couple of years at the end of the '60s and then formed his own group, Apogee, before moving to New York City. He has worked extensively with drummer Andrew Cyrille and with Cyrille's mentor, Cecil Taylor. Other leaders have included trumpeter Raphe Malik and pianist Barry Harris. Since the late '80s, though, Ware has recorded a good many albums under his own name, all of them in a fierce, modernist style that makes much use of overblowing and multiphonics. The Ayler influence is evident on the first of the reissued Silkhearts, but with touches of Roland Kirk, too, in the use of stritch. The later of the Silkhearts is a titanic record, with Ware seemingly unstoppable on it and dominating every track completely.

Beaver Harris's 'African Drums' is in double waltz-time, but seems awkwardly pitched throughout. The originals are mostly free in structure but based on identifiable chords. Lloyd's 'Sweet Georgia Bright' and 'Glorified Calypso' coax some fine playing out of the leader and some great exchanges with Shipp.

(*) Corridors & Parallels Aum Fidelity 19 Ware; Matthew Shipp (org, syn); William Parker (b); Guillermo E. Brown (d). 2/01.

In sharp contrast to the disappointing Surrendered (see below, 'in brief'), this explores new sonic territory. The most obvious outward change is Shipp's unfamiliar use of electronic keyboards to create great swirls and whorls of sound-colour, very different even from his usual polytonal accompaniment. Driven along by Brown and the redoubtable Parker, the band sounds as if it might have been hanging out in some of New York's trendier downtown clubs before going into the studio.

Many of the pieces are short, some as little as half a minute, and the impression is of an album built up in mosaic, brightly coloured fragments of musical information gradually cohering into something much larger. Outstanding among the new writing is 'Straight Track', the moment on the record when you recognize that David is involved in something new; but equally impressive are the dance-like 'Superimposed' and the eulogy, 'Mother, May You Rest In Bliss', which is clearly a very personal and deeply felt theme.

* The Freedom Suite Aum Fidelity 23 Ware; Matthew Shipp (p); William Parker (b); Guillermo E. Brown (d). 7/02.
(*) Threads Thirsty Ear THI 57137 2 As above, except add Daniel Bernard Roumain (vn); Mat Maneri (vla). 10/03.

There have been reworkings of John Coltrane's A Love Supreme and Eric Dolphy's Five Spot recordings with Booker Little, so why not a re-exploration of Sonny Rollins's barely pioneered Freedom Suite? Recorded in 1958, Rollins's trio masterpiece edged into areas of harmonic and rhythmic freedom that make it one of the most important records of its era and also one of the least securely understood. Ware's decision to add Matthew Shipp was a wise one. The pianist probes the implications of the line much more quickly than a trio without harmony instrument would have done, though it has to be said that Parker is working at quantum speed in every passage, finding overtones and rhythmic cells that nobody else could have anticipated.

The string ensemble record works some further variations on the same ideas, except that Shipp's switch to synthesizer and the addition of Roumain and Maneri extend the harmonic and timbral potential of the group a hundredfold. Ware seems surprisingly contained here, and there are few flights on the saxophone. For the most part, he seems content to direct a powerful ensemble through some intricate passage work. 'Sufic Passages' is the key piece, an exciting groove that gets everybody on board and whirls away to who knows where. As with the earlier record, Brown's drumming is a key element: solid but relaxed, powerful but still capable of great subtlety.

* Live In The World Thirsty Ear THI 57153.2 3CD Ware (ts); Matthew Shipp (p); William Parker (b); Susie Ibarra, Hamid Drake, Guillermo E. Brown (d). 98–03.

The title can be read two ways, as a straightforward description of these live dates from Switzerland and Italy, but also as injunction not to overlook the near-at-hand. For all his mysticism Ware is profoundly committed to the basic mechanics of the music.

There's some older material here – 'Elder's Path' from the Silkheart Passage To Music, 'Co Co Cana' from the mid-'90s – but the approach has changed almost as much as the titles. 'Freedom Suite' is a later, more universalized attempt on the same ground as the 1995 Dao. 'The Way We Were' has been a Ware staple since his Columbia debut, Go See The World. Much of the rest calls on a shared pool of ideas and structures that have been worked on many times by the group. Shipp fulfils his usual function, bending and splitting the harmonics in exactly the same way the percussionists multiply the rhythms. Parker stands his ground, and both pianist and bassist are richly featured on the second and third parts of 'Freedom Suite'.

Ware himself ventures less often into the altissimo range than he used to. One of the more obvious differences between the 1998 material and the Italian tapes five years later is how even and contained his articulation has become. There's no less fury, but his lines have become much less abstract. It was cynically assumed, and we were guilty of it, that the more 'inside' approach on Ware's disappointing final Columbia record, Surrendered, was at the behest of the label. It may well be that he was moving in that direction entirely on his own account. By the same token, Guillermo Brown's unemphatic performance – compared to Edwards's tymps and bells, Ibarra's delightful exuberance – was probably just what was ordered. He fulfils that impression here, and the clincher is when the third CD plays out with a bonus track from the earlier line-up, at Chiasso in 1998.

It was David's mother who gave him the title Go See the World. That was her blessing and mission for him when he was a baby. He said farewell to her on 2001's Corridors & Parallels with 'Mother, May You Rest In Bliss', and here he takes that promise on one more step.

(*) BalladWare Thirsty Ear 57153 Ware; Matthew Shipp (p); William Parker (b); Guillermo E. Brown (d). 99.

The very idea of a ballad album from Ware is, of course, so unexpected and counter-intuitive that one's expectations are off-balance from the very start. In reality, it's not so very different from the rest of his output and contains many items, including 'Autumn Leaves', which he included on the Japanese release Third Ear Recitation with very much the same group (Whit Dickey was in for Brown at that stage), that have figured in his work before. 'Godspelized' is here again, but it is reinvented as a much more inward and hymn-like piece. 'Tenderly' and 'Yesterdays' are similarly reworked, to the point where the second in particular is closer to one of Ware's own compositions – 'Dao', for example, which is also included here – than it is to the original 'standard'.

The group sounds very comfortable with this quieter and more thoughtful approach, and Brown gets better with every outing, but beware of thinking that this is Ware-lite. There's a formidable thread of thought running through the seven tracks and only 'Angel Eyes', too long at 15 minutes, is questionable in any way.

* Renunciation Aum Fidelity 042 As above. 6/06.

Suddenly, comparisons with the classic John Coltrane quartet seem not just possible, but unavoidable. This live recording from the Vision festival in New York City ranks among Ware's best works and confirms that for all the 'avant-garde' procedures, far-flung dissonance and out-of-line metres, his most distinctive work emerges, like Coltrane, directly out of the blues (most obviously on 'Mikuro's Blues'), church music and song. 'Ganesh Sound' is reprised later in the set, but the first version is the stronger in terms of group performance. Parker and Brown have forged a strong bond and unlike some of Jimmy Garrison's work for Trane the bassist is always clearly audible. The three part 'Renunciation Suite' doesn't quite work as a unified whole, if indeed that is its purpose, but its elements offer Ware a huge spectrum of possibilities and he exploits them to the full. Like Coltrane again, his tone has hardened even as his expression has become more lyrical and every note comes out gem-hard and scintillating. The brief coda 'Saturnian' is fascinating, a tiny slice of post-hard bop that underlines just how close Ware cleaves to the modern tradition in jazz, even as he seems determined to break out of it and soar away.

Also, in brief:

(*) Surrendered Columbia 63816. 99.

The final Columbia record has a rather tired, derivative quality, reminiscent of Charles Lloyd in self-indulgent mood.

(*) Live In The Netherlands Splasch 43297. 00.

Forty minutes of concentrated solo improvisation, but not the most communicative of Ware's records.

Jabbo Ware (born 1942)

ARRANGER

Influenced by Ellington and possibly Charles Mingus and Gil Evans, he directs the Me, We & Them Orchestra.

(*) Vignettes In The Spirit Of Ellington Y'all of New York 005 Ware; Me, We & Them Orchestra. 7/01.

 Something Is Coming Y'all Of New York 007 Ware; Me, We & Them Orchestra. 05.

Like nothing else around at the moment, Ware's orchestra is a subtle mix of carefully written-out material and apparent freedom. He uses horns and strings with the mastery of an orchestral composer, but still manages to make the whole thing swing like a small group. The long 'Don't Forget Who I Am', which closes the Ellington album, is an astonishing tour de force. Arguably, the band needs more polish, but there are some fine name soloists in there and the quality does peep through. Unusual and special.

Wilbur Ware (1923–79)

DOUBLE BASS

Self-taught, he played swing and bop in the '40s, hard bop in the '50s, most famously with Thelonious Monk.

(*) The Chicago Sound Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1737 Ware; John Jenkins (as); Johnny Griffin (ts); Junior Mance (p); Wilbur Campbell, Frank Dunlop (d). 10–11/57.

Though much of what Ware did stemmed directly from Jimmy Blanton's 'Jack The Bear', he developed into a highly individual performer whose unmistakable sound lives on in the low-register work of contemporary bassists like Charlie Haden. Ware's technique has been questioned but seems to have been a conscious development, a way of hearing the chord rather than a way of skirting his own supposed shortcomings. He could solo at speed, shifting the time-signature from bar to bar while retaining an absolutely reliable pulse. Significantly, one of his most important employers was Thelonious Monk, who valued displacements of that sort within an essentially four-square rhythm and traditional (but not European-traditional) tonality; the bassist also contributed substantially to one of Sonny Rollins's finest recordings. He grew up in the sanctified church and there is a gospelly quality to 'Mamma-Daddy', a relatively rare original, on The Chicago Sound. The only other Ware composition on the record, '31st And State', might have come from Johnny Griffin's head; the saxophonist roars in over the beat and entirely swamps Jenkins, whose main contribution to the session is a composition credit on two good tracks.

Though the Ware discography is huge (with numerous credits for Riverside in the '50s), his solo technique is at its most developed on his own record. 'Lullaby Of The Leaves' is almost entirely for bass, and there are magnificent solos on 'Body And Soul' (where he sounds huge) and 'The Man I Love'.

Tim Warfield

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Brings a classic hard-bop style up to date, with a full, emphatic tone which oscillates between terse R&B and a loquacious version of Wayne Shorter's gnomic approach.

 A Cool Blue / (*) A Whisper In The Night Criss Cross 1102 / 1122 Warfield; Terell Stafford (t); Cyrus Chestnut (p); Stefon Harris (vib on Whisper only); Tarus Mateen (b); Clarence Penn (d). 12/94; 12/95.

 Gentle Warrior /  Jazz Is ... Criss Cross 1149 / 1227 Warfield; Terell Stafford, Nicholas Payton (t); Cyrus Chestnut (p); Stefon Harris (vib on Jazz Is ... only); Tarus Mateen (b); Clarence Penn (d). 12/97; 1/01.

Warfield's four Criss Cross records are as solidly accomplished as anything on the label but are also rather lacking in personality. Stafford always sounds like a man who wishes he were in charge of things and his contributions have an impatient quality that is briefly engaging on A Cool Blue, less effective subsequently. The second record is by some way the shortest and most concentrated of the four, and one feels that quality control has won out. The two standards – 'Speak Low' and 'Bye Bye Blackbird' – give the set a balance that isn't reflected elsewhere, but it also benefits from two of Warfield's best compositions, 'Tin Soldier' and 'I've Never Been Blue Before', which are definitive of his approach.

While we like Gentle Warrior and admire its softer and more subtly inflected approach, it cries out for a reprise of Harris's wonderful vibes-playing, and the alternation of trumpet-players is less than effective, largely because Payton and Stafford are too similar in approach. After something of a gap, he's returned with Jazz Is ... The unanswered question hangs over the music, too. It feels like a very written record: Payton and Harris play well, but they're obliged to work through difficult and rather charmless pieces which Warfield has some trouble in communicating to the unconvinced listener. It's much more about Warfield the composer than the improviser, although there is still some powerful stuff from an impressive line-up.

Huw Warren (born 1962)

PIANO, ORGAN, ACCORDION

Studied with John Tilbury and later worked with Loose Tubes. An eclectic with impressive range.

(*) A Barrel Organ Far From Home Babel BDV 9718 Warren; Steve Buckley (as, bcl, whistles); Mark Lockheart (ss, ts); Peter Whyman (cl); Sonia Slany (vn); Maria Lamburn (vla); Ben Davis (clo); Dudley Phillips (b); Steve Argüelles (d). 97.

(*) Infinite Riches In A Little Room Babel BDV 2132 Warren (p solo). 01.

 Hundreds Of Things A Boy Can Make Babel BDV 2242 As above, except omit Buckley, Argüelles, Davis; add Mark Feldman (vn); Richard Bolton (clo); Peter Herbert (b); Martin France (d). 01.

 Everything We Love And More Babel BDV 2561 Warren; Peter Herbert (b). 05.

Warren's music is uncategorizable, a blend of jazz, folk, Welsh chapel music and other more fleeting things. The result is a blend that sometimes fails to spark but more often creates its own atmosphere, as on the debut Barrel Organ. It's a tender, almost elegiac record, inspired by Depression-era photographs, and much of that mood pervades the other discs. Hundreds Of Things evokes a pre-electric world of model kits and crystal radios, but somehow manages to suggest a nostalgia for the future, since the past they evoke is so refreshingly contemporary. The solo record and the duos with Austrian bassist Herbert evoke a similar spirit and Warren's evocations of early-English music (Dowland, in particular) put through the prism of bebop are worth exploring in some depth. The 'little room' is presumably the piano but the range of reference is an Eliot-like juxtaposition of one Elizabethan age against another less colourful one.

Also, in brief:

 Duw A Wyr (God Only Knows) Babel BDV 2558. 02.

Beautiful arrangements of Welsh hymn tunes with Mark Lockheart (ts) and Lleuwen Steffan (v).

Tom Warrington

DOUBLE BASS

Co-founder of Jazz Compass and a player of great subtlety.

 Corduroy Road / (*) Back Nine Jazz Compass JC1002 / 1014 Warrington; Larry Koonse (g); Joe LaBarbera (d). 8/99; 7/04.

Warrington has a lovely rounded tone and an agile approach to melody. Koonse is a responsive partner and as always LaBarbera whips up an irresistible metre. Couple of nice standards on each of these in amongst the more atmospheric originals, but it's 'Whisper Not' on Back Nine that gives it the nod.

Dinah Washington (1924–63)

VOICE

Born Ruth Lee Jones in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. She joined Lionel Hampton in 1943, then went solo, finally aspiring to a grand torch singer role in the '50s. She finally referred to herself as 'The Queen', and her gospel-and-blues methodology undeniably influenced the next generation of soul singers. Married seven, eight or nine times. She died from an accidental pill overdose.

 Mellow Mama Delmark DD 451 Washington; Karl George (t); Jewell Grant (as); Lucky Thompson (ts); Milt Jackson (vib); Wilbert Baranco (p); Charles Mingus (b); Lee Young (d). 12/45.

Whether or not she counts as a 'jazz singer', Washington frequently appeared in the company of the finest jazz musicians and, while she was no improviser and stood slightly apart from such contemporaries as Fitzgerald or Vaughan, she could drill through blues and ballads with a huge, sometimes slightly terrifying delivery. Her start came with the Lionel Hampton band, and after leaving him she made these dozen tracks for Apollo Records in the company of a band organized by Lucky Thompson. While Washington herself sounds comparatively raw and unformed, the jump-blues material doesn't demand a great range, and she swings through the likes of 'My Voot Is Really Vout' as well as the more traditional 'Beggin' Mama Blues'. Thompson's team sound as if they're having fun.

 Complete 1943–1951 Mercury Master Takes Jazz Factory JFCD 22841 4CD Washington; groups and orchestras led by Gus Chappell, Tab Smith, Gerald Wilson, Chubby Jackson, Dave Young, Rudy Martin, Teddy Brannon, Lionel Hampton, Cootie Williams, Mitch Miller, Teddy Stewart, Jimmy Carroll, Walter Buchanan, Nook Shrier and Ike Carpenter; The Ravens (v). 12/43–10/51.

In the absence of any issue of this material by the Verve Group, this Spanish release is the only option. Washington was given some dreary material and a lot of 'jive' pieces of the order of 'Shuckin' And Jivin'', and the accompanying groups range from awful to hot to sweet. Only a real fanatic will want all this music, but the great voice never flags.

 Queen Of The Juke Box 'Live' 1948–1955 Baldwin Street BJH-310 Washington; Wynton Kelly, Junior Mance (p); Percy Heath, Keter Betts (b); Art Blakey, Al Jones, Ed Shaughnessy, Jimmy Cobb (d); Dizzy Gillespie Orchestra; Paul Williams's Hucklebuckers (v). 10/48–7/55.

Not quite as good as the later Baldwin Street airshot collection (see below), but this is still a must-have discovery if you're a Dinah admirer. Two songs from the Royal Roost with a woozy-sounding Dizzy Gillespie band, then four Birdland dates with Wynton Kelly. She tells Symphony Sid to 'take your teeth out' and fends off requests for 'Tennessee Waltz' ('I didn't bring my ukulele'). Some of the songs are forgettable, but she does a terrific 'Cold Cold Heart'. Two songs from a soundtrack and a Basin Street session from 1955 fill out the disc. Sound is about average for this kind of material.

(*) After Hours With Miss D Verve 605622 Washington; Clark Terry (t); Gus Chappell (tb); Rick Henderson (as); Eddie Chamblee, Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis, Paul Quinichette (ts); Clarence 'Sleepy' Anderson, Junior Mance (p); Jackie Davis (org); unknown (g); Keter Betts (b); Ed Thigpen (d); Candido Camero (perc). 6/53–6/54.

A neglected record, overdue for reissue in this form, which vies with the next disc for a place as the essential Washington disc for the jazz library. 'Blue Skies' (here in two extended versions) and 'Bye Bye Blues' are fast swingers which Dinah smokes through, and crisp, jukeboxy singles such as 'Pennies From Heaven' offer her style in smaller but no less well-cooked portions. Terry and Jaws help out in the blowing department and one stand-out is Junior Mance, who really plays hard. A welcome revival.

(*) Dinah Jams Emarcy 814639-2 Washington; Clifford Brown, Clark Terry, Maynard Ferguson (t); Herb Geller (as); Harold Land (ts); Junior Mance, Richie Powell (p); Keter Betts, George Morrow (b); Max Roach (d). 8/54.

Washington's major 'jazz' record is fine, but not as fine as the closely contemporary Sarah Vaughan record with a similar backing group, and therein lies a tale about Washington's abilities. She claimed she could sing anything – which was probably true – but her big, bluesy voice is no more comfortable in this stratum of Tin Pan Alley than was Joe Turner's. Still, the long and luxuriant jams on 'You Go To My Head' and 'Lover Come Back To Me' are rather wonderful in their way, and there is always Clifford Brown to listen to.

(*) For Those In Love Emarcy 514073-2 Washington; Clark Terry (t); Jimmy Cleveland (tb); Paul Quinichette (ts); Cecil Payne (bs); Wynton Kelly (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Keter Betts (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 55.

 Dinah! Emarcy 842139-2 Washington; Hal Mooney Orchestra. 55.

(*) The Swingin' Miss D Verve 558074-2 Washington; Quincy Jones Orchestra. 55.

 In The Land Of Hi-Fi Emarcy 826453-2 Washington; Hal Mooney Orchestra. 4/56.

 The Fats Waller Songbook Emarcy 818930-2 Washington; Ernie Royal, Johnny Coles, Joe Newman, Clark Terry (t); Melba Liston, Julian Priester, Rod Levitt (tb); Eddie Chamblee, Jerome Richardson, Benny Golson, Frank Wess, Sahib Shihab (reeds); Jack Wilson (p); Freddie Green (g); Richard Evans (b); Charli Persip (d). 10/57.

 Sings Bessie Smith Verve 538635-2 Washington; Blue Mitchell, Fip Ricard, Clark Terry (t); Melba Liston, Quentin Jackson, Julian Priester (tb); Eddie Chamblee, Harold Ousley (ts); Charles Davis, McKinley Easton, Sahib Shihab (bs); Wynton Kelly, James Craig, Jack Easton (p); Paul West, Robert Lee Wilson (b); Max Roach, James Slaughter (d). 12/57–7/58.

 What A Diff'rence A Day Makes! Verve 543300-2 Washington; studio orchestra, including Jerome Richardson (reeds); Charles Davis (bs); Joe Zawinul (p); Milt Hinton (b); Panama Francis (d). 59.

 Unforgettable Mercury 510602-2 Washington; studio orchestra. 59–1/61.

(*) Verve Jazz Masters: Dinah Washington /  Verve Jazz Masters: Sings Standards Verve 518200-2 / 522055-2 As above Emarcy discs, plus Quincy Jones Orchestra. 55–61; 52–58.

 'Round Midnight: Dinah Washington /  Ultimate Divas: Dinah Washington Verve 510087 / 539053-2 As above, except add Nook Shrier Orchestra, Eddie Chamblee Orchestra, Tab Smith Orchestra, Jimmy Cobb Orchestra. 10/46–12/61; 52–61.

* The Dinah Washington Story Mercury 514841-2 2CD As above discs. 43–59.

Washington's studio albums for Emarcy are a good if fairly interchangeable lot: the quality of the backing doesn't much affect the calibre of her singing, and a frowsy studio orchestra is as likely to generate a great vocal as a smoking jazz ensemble. For Those In Love is a stand-out from this pack, since the accompaniment is as classy as that on the Dinah Jams session, and at least one track – a perfectly realized 'I Could Write A Book' – is a stone classic. The new edition of What A Diff'rence A Day Makes! sounds particularly glowing, in audio terms, but the usual problems with Washington's albums apply: a fine performance of 'I Thought About You' is marred by the cooing backing vocals, and Belford Hendricks's arrangements are little more than feebly functional. Fewer problems with The Swingin' Miss D, since Jones uses a crack jazz orchestra, and though Dinah doesn't seem to be any more excited by them than by any of her other accompanists, it's a record full of classy, genuine music-making. Sings Bessie Smith, which couples a studio date with an Eddie Chamblee orchestra and three live tracks from a Newport session, is something of a curio. It's never as good as the similarly directed session by Lavern Baker for Atlantic, and as ever Washington seems ambiguous about her material: as if singing blues is beneath her, she almost camps it up at times. But there are some dark, truthful moments too.

The Dinah Washington Story still sweeps the board as a first choice from this area: a 40-track double set that creams off all the most interesting songs from the period, with a few from her earliest days to round out the picture. The other compilations will do fine for anyone wanting a one-disc representation of Dinah's albums from this period. Anyone wanting a complete Washington collection from her Mercury years is directed to the several multi-disc sets available in the USA comprising The Complete Dinah Washington On Mercury Volumes 1–7. Each is a three-disc set, and in total they cover the period 1952–61 as comprehensively as anyone would wish.

(*) Live At Birdland 1962 Baldwin Street BJH 301 Washington; Joe Zawinul (p); Jimmy Rouser (b); Al Jones (d). 61–62.
A fascinating postscript to the Washington discography, this collects three Birdland broadcasts, two with the listed trio, one with unknown tenor, organ and drums. The great voice is scaled down, more intimate and more moving. There are several medleys – she liked to talk to friends when working Birdland, so she would try to shorten sets by stringing as many songs together as possible! – and Zawinul is clearly keeping his ears wide open so as not to miss any cues. Symphony Sid jumps in here and there with announcements. One of her most likeable entries and something that will surely delight Washington admirers: sound is a bit boxy and flat, but very listenable.

Also, in brief:

 The Queen Sings Proper PROPERBOX 43 4CD. 12/43–10/51.
The nasty-girl R&B palls over 109 tracks, but if that's the Dinah Washington you want …

() In Love / () Back To The Blues /  The Best Of Dinah Washington Roulette 797273-2 / 854334-2 / 799114-2. 61–63.
The Roulettes document a disappointing decline; she sounds curiously alone and friendless on a lot of tracks, but there are flashes of 'The Queen' here and there.

Grover Washington Jr (1943–99)

ALTO, SOPRANO, TENOR AND BARITONE SAXOPHONES

His early death was a shock. That joyous, soaring saxophone had turned up in some unexpected contexts over the years, but the man from Buffalo was an underrated improviser who enjoyed commercial success.

 Discovery: The First Recordings Prestige 11020-2 Washington; Virgil Jones, Gary Chandler (t); Sonny Phillips, Butch Cornell, Leon Spencer Jr, Charles Earland, Johnny 'Hammond' Smith (org); Boogaloo Joe Jones, James Clark, Maynard Parker, Melvin Sparks (g); Jimmy Lewis (b); Jesse Kilpatrick, Bernard Purdie, Eddie Gee, Idris Muhammed (d); Buddy Caldwell (perc). 9/70–8/71.
The title and packaging are a bit of a cheat, since they hint that this may be a newly found set of Washington recordings. In fact, it's his first appearances on albums by Johnny 'Hammond' Smith, Boogaloo Joe Jones and Charles Earland. Admirers of the suave voice of the later music may be dismayed to hear the honking, aggressive stylist of these blustering sets of organ combo R&B. Joe Jones's 'No Way' in particular is an almost manic performance.

(*) Inner City Blues Motown 530577 Washington; Bob James (arr); collective personnel. 9/71.
* Mister Magic Motown 530103 Washington; Randy Brecker, Jon Faddis, Marvin Stamm (t); Eric Gale (g); Gary King, Ralph Upchurch (b); Harvey Mason Sr (d); Ralph MacDonald (perc). 11/74.
 The Millennium Collection Motown 157617 Washington; large collective personnel. VARIOUS.
Much exploited for television signature-tunes, programme stings and advertising, Washington's brand of smooth, contemporary soul-jazz rarely won over the more sober jazz critics, who like to think he's just another pop musician. There is, however, no getting away from Washington's consummate musicianship and taste. He has a lovely, melting tone, even on the treacherous soprano, and is capable of writing simple, beautiful ballads, like the Grammy-winning 'Just The Two Of Us', which appeal to pop and jazz fans alike.

The Marvin Gaye covers on Inner City Blues and a delicate interpretation of Bill Withers's 'Ain't No Sunshine' pushed the album in the direction of a younger pop and soul audience, but there is no mistaking the leader's jazz background. Washington derives much from Cannonball Adderley and Earl Bostic, and his solos are logically shaped and suffused with the blues.

Mister Magic is pure pleasure. The title-track has a soaring, timeless quality that still makes people smile. The theme is held suspended just so long and then it's as if someone has shaken a storm of butterflies out of a basket. Billy Strayhorn's 'Passion Flower' is the other key performance and a sign that Washington could bring something special and individual to repertory material; one wishes passionately that he had made more records in this vein.

(*) Paradise Elektra 60537 Washington; James Sid Simmons (p); Tyrone Brown, Richard Lee Steacker (g); John Blake (vn); Millard Vinson (d); Doc Gibbs (perc). 79.
 Winelight Rhino 78350 Washington; Paul Griffin, Richard Tee (p); Bill Eaton, Ed Walsh, Raymond Chew (syn); Eric Gale (g); Marcus Miller (b); Steve Gadd (d); Robert Grenidge, Ralph MacDonald (perc); Bill Withers, Hilda Harris, Yvonne Lewis, Ullanda McCullough (v). 6–7/80.
 Come Morning Elektra 562 Washington; Richard Tee (p); Paul Griffin (syn); Eric Gale (g); Marcus Miller (b); Steve Gadd (d); Ralph MacDonald (perc); Grady Tate, Yvonne Lewis, Vivian Cherry, Ullanda McCullough, Frank Floyd, Zack Sanders, William Eaton (v). 6–9/81.
 The Best Is Yet To Come Elektra 60215 Washington; Jon Faddis (t); Frank Wess, Alex Foster (ts); Mona Goldman-Yoskin (f); Teddi Schlossman, Richard Tee (p); James Lloyd, Paul Griffin, Billy Childs, Dexter Wansel (ky); James Herb Smith, Eric Gale, Lee Ritenour, Richard Lee Steacker (g); Marcus Miller, Cedric Napoleon, Abe Laboriel (b); Yogi Horton, Harvey Mason, Darryl Washington (d); Victor Feldman, Kevin Johnson, Leonard Gibbs, Ralph MacDonald (perc); Patti Labelle, Bobby McFerrin, Carla Benson, Evette Benton, Lucille Jones (v). 82.
A time-served session-man with Prestige, Washington tended to make albums the way American football is played. Players are called on for cameo performances in highly specialized roles and are then dispensed with. The sound is teased and plucked and sprayed into shape but manages, unlike most commercial pop product, to sound relatively unconfected and even, on some of the earlier discs, quite spontaneous. We've never warmed to Paradise, which is thinly arranged and produced. Winelight and Come Morning at least sound as if they have had some money spent on them, though not necessarily in the most tasteful way possible. The only real constant is Washington himself. He phrases a little like Cannonball Adderley, who was the main inspiration behind 1975's wonderful Mister Magic. Listening again to the likes of 'Winelight' and 'Just The Two Of Us' reminds of how much Grover managed to sneak some genuinely soulful playing into what were otherwise anodyne early-'80s black-pop settings. If he sounds smooth – and this kind of music did set the controls for the awful blight which is the smooth-jazz movement – it's never slick, and minus some of the merely mundane pieces on the regular studio albums, this set offers a lot of simple pleasure.

 All My Tomorrows Columbia CK 64319 Washington; Eddie Henderson, Earl Gardner (t, flhn); Robin Eubanks (tb); Bobby Watson (as); Bobby LaVell (ts); Jimmy Cozier (bs); Hank Jones (p); Romero Lubambo (g); George Mraz (b); Billy Hart, Lewis Nash (d); Freddy Cole, Jeanie Bryson (v). 94.
A look at that personnel is enough to make one think that Washington had recanted. Mostly these are sensible, lush (well, we'd hardly expect 'harsh') charts by dependable hands such as Slide Hampton, placing Grover in a more jazzed environment than usual but not doing anything to trip him up or let him come to harm. It merely underlines the smooth appeal of his saxophone-playing, here displayed on soprano, alto and tenor alike. And we wouldn't wish anything else: we have enough hard-bop saxmen as it is. If Grover could put even a drop of soul into the smooth-jazz scenario, there was no point standing in his way.

 Soulful Strut Columbia CK 57505 Washington; various personnel. 96.
Just because classic Blue Notes didn't carry credits for 'grooming' doesn't mean we should be too snooty about this one, which does. The ten tracks, which lean heavily on arranger Gary Haase, are a touch too primped and correct, but the authority of Grover's saxophone cuts through even the most viscous of background arrangements and 'I Can Count The Times' and 'Mystical Force' are positively honeyed. As so often, he is the only truly individual solo voice, though Washington and Haase have attempted to pull some of the horns up through the mix.

 Aria Sony 61684 Washington; Terence Blanchard (t); Billy Childs (p); Ron Carter (b); Orchestra Of St Luke's. 99.
Apparently, Washington had always dreamed of making an album of operatic highlights arranged for the saxophone. It's a strange set, complicated by the fact of posthumous release. He must have read some of these scores when at music school and probably listened to them a thousand times. The melodies are all caught very simply and without much variation, which works for most of the Puccini pieces. Some of the others are more challenging, like Massenet's 'Pourquoi Me Reveiller?' and the Delibes 'Flower Duet', but, despite some fine interaction with Blanchard on a solitary Gershwin selection – 'My Man's Gone Now' – and some great work with Carter and Childs, it doesn't feel very much like a jazz record.

Also, in brief:

 The Best Of Grover Washington Jr /  Prime Cuts – The Columbia Years 1987–1999 / () The Ultimate Collection /  Les Incontournables /  Anthology Of Grover Washington Jr / () Love Songs Motown 530620 / Columbia 69722 / Hip-O 53888 / WEA International 34797 / Elektra 60415 / Warners 8122-76693-2. 71–86; 87–99; 11/99; 03/00; VARIOUS DATES; VARIOUS DATES.
A plethora of Washington compilations around, probably a good option for anyone who only wants to sample one period or who perhaps likes just a couple of songs.

(*) Feels So Good /  Feels So Good / A Secret Place Motown 5177 / Raven 153. 75; 76.
These float by at speed, but with some arresting moments: Bob James's 'The Sealion', Grover's 'Knucklehead' and Hancock's 'Dolphin Dance'.

 Live At The Bijou Motown 37463 0239 2. 78.
Live albums by Grover Washington are rare indeed, and this one could have done with some judicious editing.

() Strawberry Moon / () Then And Now /  Time Out Of Mind Columbia CK 40510 / 44256 / 45253. 87; 88; 89.
There are parallels between Washington's move to Columbia and Miles Davis's move from Columbia to Warner Bros. In both cases, the logic seemed to be to throw as much production as possible at the album, get as much of the personnel plugged in as the studio boards would take and then crank up all the levels.

(*) Next Exit Columbia CK 48530. 92.
Much of the emphasis is on guest vocalists Nancy Wilson and the Four Tops – but there is enough instrumental interest on 'Take Five (Take Another Five)' and elsewhere to sustain attention.

 Breath Of Heaven – A Holiday Collection Sony 68527. 97.
As Christmas albums go, this is a winner.

Benny Waters (1902–98)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, VOICE

He studied in Boston before spending several years from 1925 with Charlie Johnson, then with Henderson, Hopkins, Lunceford and others through the '30s and '40s. From 1955 he was mostly in Europe, touring relentlessly.

 When You're Smiling Hep 2010 Waters; Roy Williams (tb); Joe Temperley (bs); Alex Shaw (p); Ron Mathewson (b); Martin Drew (d). 8/80.
(*) Hurry On Down Storyville STCD 8264 Waters; Paul Sealey (g); Erica Howard (b); John Cox (d). 4/81.
 Benny Waters–Freddy Randall Jazz Band Jazzology JCD-124 Waters; Freddy Randall (t); Jim Shepherd (tb); Stan Greig (p); Paul Sealey (g, bj); Tiny Winters, Mike Durrell (b); Laurie Chescoe (d). 12/82.
Waters was an indomitable personality, among the oldest practising jazzmen, and though his later records tended to be too accommodating for a man who doesn't like to act his age, there is much vigorous work on clarinet and alto. Like Benny Carter or Doc Cheatham, he sounds like a survivor from another age, raising his voice among us with few concessions to his surroundings. His tone, vibrato and delivery are antiquarian, but none of this suggests frailty, more an enduring style.

These British recordings, made when Waters was a mere lad and only pushing 80, are likeable stuff. When You're Smiling is prime British mainstream, courtesy of Williams, Temperley and the rhythm section, and even without Waters there would be plenty to listen to. Benny is in grand spirits on the title-piece and Williams has three features where he makes trombone-playing seem like the easiest thing on earth. Hurry On Down, with respectable if sometimes charmless backing from Paul Sealey's trio, is all right, but Waters usually sounds better with another hornman standing at his elbow. The meeting with Freddy Randall and a more trad-orientated crew is good enough, though some of the rhythms plod and there's too much solo space given to the sidemen; Randall's brusquely hot solos and Waters's sometimes impish humour are the reasons to listen.

Doug Watkins (1934–62)

DOUBLE BASS

A cousin by marriage of Paul Chambers.

 Soulnik Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1848 Watkins; Yusef Lateef (ts, f, ob); Hugh Lawson (p); Herman Wright (b); Lex Humphries (d). 5/60.

Watkins dabbled and apparently acquired his cello only a couple of days before this recording. It's a slightly plaintive sound, without the weight and presence of his bass, but it helps put him at the forefront of this recording. The record has been reissued under Lateef's name and there are two compositions by the saxophonist and multi-reed man with just 'Andre's Bag' as an example of Doug's writing.

Trevor Watkis

PIANO

Brother of singer Cleveland Watkis and part of that same early 90s cohort of British jazz players.

 Straight Ahead ... Ride For Tone! Blue Soundscape 102 Watkis; Darren Bennett (t); Steve Wilson (ss, ts); Reuben Rogers (b); Lewis Nash (d). 06.

Watkis's debut was unaccountably slow in the gestation, but the wait was worth it. This New York-recorded date teams him with a strong American group who're well up to the challenge of his writing. 'Khadija's Peace' is an effective opener, with a chordal introduction that could well come from an Impulse! date of the late '60s. 'In Case You Missed It First Time' follows up briskly, and then there's a strong interpretation of Stevie Wonder's 'Passionate Raindrops', which underlines the impression that jazz wasn't Watkis's only listening in his teens. There's a Latin feel to much of the set, noticeably on 'Summer Evening Dream', more subliminally elsewhere. The trumpeter punches out the notes and Wilson works both his horns to maximum effect, with a great soprano part on the Stevie Wonder tune.

Bobby Watson (born 1953)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Watson learned his trade as saxophonist and musical director with the Jazz Messengers, establishing himself as a soloist of real authority, with a keening, blues-drenched sound. Most of his recording has been for European labels.

 Jewel /  Gumbo Evidence ECD 22078 Watson; Melton Mustafa (t on Gumbo only); Mulgrew Miller (p); Steve Nelson (vib on Jewel only); Curtis Lundy (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d); Dom Um Romão (perc on Jewel only). 12/83.

 Round Trip /  Appointment In Milano Red RR 123187-2 / 123184 Watson; Piero Bassini (p); Attilio Zanchi (b); Giampiero Prina (d). 2/85; 6/85.

 Beatitudes Evidence ECD 22178 Watson; John Hicks (p); Curtis Lundy (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 87

 The Year Of The Rabbit Evidence ECD 22210 Watson; Irving Stokes (t); Art Baron (tb); Bill Easley (ts, cl); Jim Hartog (bs); Mulgrew Miller (p); Lawrence Lucie (g); Curtis Lundy (b); Kenny Washington (d). 2/87.

Few contemporary saxophonists are more instantly recognizable than the brilliant Kansan. Watson's hard, bright sound and trademark descending wail were first acclaimed in a vintage Jazz Messengers line-up. Watson went on to work in Charli Persip's Superband and to co-found the 29th Street Saxophone Quartet. Though the quartet has been internationally successful, Watson's recording career has been intermittent to say the least. However, the very good Beatitudes, co-led with Lundy, and Gumbo, with the Horizon band, are still around. With typical perversity, both his Blue Note discs with Horizon are deleted, leaving Red to save the day.

Round Trip is a slightly disappointing record and certainly contains no inkling of the majesty of Love Remains, but hindsight invests it with an impressive confidence. The Ornette-composed title-track kicks off a set which contains almost nothing of Watson's own – only the closing 'All The Thing Of Jo Maka' bears his name – and not enough of his signature blues. Miles's and Bill Evans's 'Blue In Green' and Lee Morgan's 'Ceora' don't seem quite the right repertoire for this group, however confidently they're played. He's featured as composer on Appointment, though a couple of the themes aren't much more than blowing heads, and predictably it's 'Watson's Blues' that stands out.

The Year Of The Rabbit is a heartfelt, beautifully disciplined tribute to Johnny Hodges. All the great songs are there and, not surprisingly, it's 'Isfahan' that steals the show, one of the most evocative and sympathetic accounts of that great song not performed by Rabbit himself.

CORE COLLECTION

♛  Love Remains

Red RRCD 123212 Watson; John Hicks (p); Curtis Lundy (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 11/86.

Love Remains is Watson's one certain masterpiece, a startlingly poised performance. From the Parker-influenced 'Mystery Of Ebop' to the solemnly funky 'Dark Days (Against Apartheid)', it has a complete unity of purpose. The title-piece, jointly credited to Bobby and Pamela Watson, is built round a three-note motif which means the same thing in any language. Hicks's solo is a perfect foil for Watson's plangent second entry, while Lundy and Smitty Smith sustain a dark bass pulse. Lundy's 'Sho Thang' is the only non-Watson composition, a weak interlude before Pam Watson's 'The Love We Had Yesterday' rounds off a wonderful set.

(*) This Little Light Of Mine Red RR 123250 Watson (as solo). 93.

The solo saxophone album was a challenge Watson had resisted for many years. The results are inevitably patchy, and it isn't the kind of set that makes for comfortable listening straight through. Better to concentrate on one track at a time and savour Watson's deft phrasing and sinuous developments. A few of the pieces are little more than workouts: 'These Foolish Things', 'Body And Soul', and a quick run through the 'Giant Steps' changes. 'Misterioso', 'Donna Lee' and Joe Henderson's 'Recorda Me' are more developed, but some of the most interesting ideas emerge out of traditional material: there are two takes of Apostoloy Kaldara's 'Mes'Tou Bosporou' and the title-track is an old spiritual Watson's preacher grandfather used to sing.

 Quiet As It's Kept Red RR123284-2 Watson; Terell Stafford (t); Orrin Evans (p); Lenny Argese, Greg Skaff (g); Curtis Lundy (b); Ralph Peterson (d); Marlon Simon (perc); Pamela Watson (v). 98.

The hair is grizzled these days but, a decade on from Love Remains, Watson is playing with the same maturity and grace. He was never a turbulent player, but the distinctive keening swoop which used to punctuate solos has given way to a mellower and more measured slide down the scale. The calm reflection of 'Always A Friend' represents a new dimension in his music. The title-track is vintage Watson, identifiable from the very first bars and as ably constructed as ever. 'Nubian Breakdown' is a more fragmentary and alienated piece, and perhaps a nod in the direction of Arthur Blythe, though it also resembles some of Sonny Fortune's African-inspired pieces. The mood of 'Back Home Again With You' and 'Watch The Children Play' is touchingly sombre. Stafford is used on only three tracks, including 'Nubian Breakdown' and the intriguing folk-song arrangement 'Nanatsu-No-Ko'. For balance, that seems about right, for Terell is a dominant presence wherever he plays and this is an album which truly belongs to Bobby Watson. The use of guitar is something of a departure, and it's elegantly done; Skaff's rapid articulation on the first track is revelatory. As in the past, Pamela Watson shares in the plaudits, credited as co-composer on 'Concentric Circles' and adding a vocal to 'Afternoon In Ottobrun'. A remarkable musical partnership. Quiet isn't a classic, but it is a very special record, easily Watson's best for years.

 Live And Learn Palmetto 2083 Watson; Orrin Evans (p); Curtis Lundy (b); Montez Coleman (d). 9/01.

A label debut and a solid return to form. Though he has been consigned to minor imprints for most of his career, Watson is still capable of delivering a magisterial performance every time he enters a studio. On tunes like 'Landmarks Lost' and pianist Evans's composition 'Why Not' (which seems to make reference to Miles's 'So What'), he plays with presence and authority. Evans isn't a John Hicks, but he solos with logic and with something to say. Lundy, as ever, is the mainstay, a firm, sure-footed player who combines reliable timekeeping with beauty of tone and the occasional flash of brilliance, as on 'Landmarks Lost'. A fine album, though not yet the devastating statement Watson has always seemed capable of.

 Horizon Reassembled Palmetto 2102 Watson; Terell Stafford (t); Edward Simon (p); Essiet Essiet (b); Victor Lewis (d). 1/04.

If Horizon was (re)conceived as a Messengers for the '00s, then it both works and doesn't work. To the extent that Watson has produced an authentic mix of hard bop and blues, it's fine, but it fails to go the extra yard and offer up anything beyond that. This is a very competent blowing band but again promises much more than it delivers.

(*) From The Heart Palmetto 2130 Watson; Leron Thomas (t); Harold O'Neal (p); Warren Wolf (vib); Curtis Lundy (b); Quincy Davis (d). 1/07.

The alto sound is still immediately recognizable, though there are fewer of those signature smeared descents and popped tones than in the Red days. Watson's relatively lowly standing in the current jazz league is a source of constant surprise to us. It's to some degree a function of career choices, and to some a reflection on a critical and market consensus that considers Charlie Parker and John Coltrane the paradigmatic saxophone sound, not Willie Smith and Johnny Hodges. Watson still shapes a solo with songful elegance, and the playing on 'Deep Pockets' and 'Climbing The Stairs' is among his best on record. As to the group, as long as Lundy is there, and he's back, you're guaranteed a certain authority. In fact, the young guys are very good. O'Neal, Wolf and even Davis get to see their names in the writing credits, even if the vibist's 'For Milt' is pro forma. More important at this stage, all three acquit themselves like members of a working band and with as much authority as youthful confidence.

Also, in brief:

 In The Groove Challenge 18754. 99.

Live at the Gouvy Festival in Belgium with a good European section.

(*) Live At Someday In Tokyo Red 123290. 00.

Watson's Tailor Made group re-created with a Japanese personnel. The results are extraordinary, with long passages of free-form improvisation and some absolutely riveting ensemble work.

 Old Friends – New Point City Light 4. 01.

A cheesy vocal set with David Basse and Angela Hagenbach.

Eric Watson (born 1955)

PIANO

American expatriate, living in Europe.

(*) Silent Hearts Free Flight 1434 Watson; Mark Dresser (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 10/98.

Watson is an interesting player, but he's hard to characterize: influences such as Monk, John Lewis and Mal Waldron seem to drift in and out of his music, 'classical' influences stand in the margins, and his composing favours dark, sluggish structures that mysteriously relax into moments of pure lyricism. Intriguing – but sometimes hard to take over the course of a record, and the hint of gallows humour suggested by his titles ('New Canaan Con Man', 'Substance Abuse') never really surfaces.

Much of his early work has disappeared, but this is Watson's best record by a mile up to this point. Centred by the swinging rhythms of Dresser and Thigpen – an unlikely but superb combination – the pianist comes up with eight strong originals and allows himself the indulgence of memorable melodies and considerable amounts of light and shade. That renders the thunderous explosion which takes place halfway through the one marathon performance, 'Punchin Paich Patch', all the more effective. A terrific piano trio record.

* Full Metal Quartet Owl 159572-2 Watson; Bennie Wallace (ts); Mark Dresser (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 12/99–1/00.

Bennie Wallace joins in the fun and his bleary, hollering sound soon locks in with the trio's work. The music here is ostensibly some kind of suite, though the nine components sound perfectly able to function by themselves, and the balance between solo, quartet and rhythm section music is secured with real mastery. By himself, Wallace can get discomfortingly turgid – as we have said above – but that's never an option with Dresser and Thigpen, the 'out' tendencies of the former impeccably balanced by the unfussy, deep swing of the veteran drummer. Wallace wouldn't have been anybody's first thought for this gig, yet he eats up the complexities in a piece such as 'Wear And Tear', and in what might have been an excessively brainy, inward-looking session he adds blood and fire. A superb quartet record.

 Sketches Of Solitude Night Bird 1005 Watson (p solo). 8/01.

Watson's experience in classical recital always seems to put a difficult spin on his solo playing. 'The Peacocks' honours Jimmy Rowles's melody but, stretched across ten minutes, the reading is eventually airless. 'Blue In Green' is a requiem, and the gentler plains of Mal Waldron's 'Left Alone' suit him better. The last four tracks are all his own originals, and if titles such as 'The Girl Who Never Sang' and 'Daughter Of Darkness' suggest that Michael Mantler's nodding in approval, the music is harmonious enough, if often crawlingly slow. If your taste is rooted in keyboard sonority, Watson's your man.

 The Memory Of Water / (*) Soundposts: Works For Piano And Double Bass Label Bleu LBLC 6335 / Music & Arts 4920 Watson; John Lindberg (b). 6 & 9/90; 4/96.

 Road Movies ACT 9429 Watson; Christof Lauer (ts); Claude Tchamitchian (b); Christophe Marguet (d). 03.

(*) Jaded Angels ACT 9452 Watson; Peter Herbert (b); Christophe Marguet (d). 06.

The title and title-track of Road Movies get it about right. Watson writes and plays as if he were directing some grainy black-and-white film about a journey packed with strange encounters, passages of philosophical ennui, a few abrupt moments of violence. ACT has a curious reputation as a label, but Siggi Loch's creative choices are always just that: they don't simply follow fashion and they always seem refreshingly creative. Watson isn't a man you'd naturally pick out of the current crop. His touch is moody and abstract, and there are few streety elements to his playing. We've given Jaded Angels (another Wenders-ish) title the nod because the earlier record is as much Lauer's as it is Watson's but also because it again teams the pianist with a very strong bass-player, which, having no very distinctive left hand, he needs. The duos with Lindberg, posing as quasi-classical études on the latter record, confirm that impression, but again these belong as much to the bassist as to Watson.

Lu Watters (1911–89)

TRUMPETER, BANDLEADER

Founded his Yerba Buena Jazz Band in emulation of King Oliver.

 Doing The Hambone At Kelly's: Volumes 1 & 2 Jasmine JASMCD 2571 / 2590 Watters; Yerba Buena Jazz Band: Don Noakes, Warren Smith (tb); Wally Rose (p); Pat Patton (bj); Clancy Hayes (bj, v); Dick Lammi (tba); Bill Dart (d, wbd); & Clancy Hayes' Washboard Five (on Volume 2 only). 12/49–6/50.

 Live At Hambone Kelly's: Volumes 1–3 GHB 93 / 97 / 119 Similar to above, except add Don Kinch (t); Turk Murphy (tb); Jerry Stanton (p). 50.

Lucious Watters was a true believer and his West Coast revivalists (Yerba Buena was the old Spanish name for San Francisco) purveyed an enthusiastic brand of Dixieland that achieved a remarkable level of authenticity as well as an enthusiastic following. Watters retired from music to work as a geologist and subsequently as a chef, but for a time he was the closest thing most Californians would have heard to a genuine New Orleans jazz group, and his historical importance outweighs the actual musical quality of these sides. Only serious enthusiasts need to get involved in the differences between these options; for all but specialist collectors one or the other will provide a generous introduction to Yerba Buena (and to Hayes's spin-off Washboard Five).

Ernie Watts (born 1945)

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Influenced by Coltrane, but essentially a romantic player. He was a member of Charlie Haden's Quartet West, but his own records won't stay in circulation.

(*) Spirit Song Flying Dolphin 1002 Watts; David Witham (p); Bruce Lett (b); Bob Leatherbarrow (d, vib). 4/05.

 Analog Man Flying Dolphin 1005 Watts; Christof Saenger (p); Rudi Engel (b); Heinrich Koebberling (d); Patricia Watts (temple bells). 06.

There's dismayingly little of Ernie around under his own name. The fine CTI Afoxé turns up from time to time but its availability is limited. At least there are a couple of newer things to report. Spirit Song catches the 60-year-old with a working quartet. Hearing him tackle Shorter's 'Pinocchio' is a reminder of how thoroughly aware he is of the modern saxophone repertory, and one would like to hear maybe a couple of Henderson and Coltrane tunes in there for comparison. With Watts, one listens first to the sheer beauty and strength of the sound, rather than to any harmonic adventure, but it's there all the same, and some of these originals are testing. Saenger, another relatively little-known Californian, turns in a lovely line on Analog Man, which won a prize for independent jazz releases in 2007; 'Paseando' features Watts on his soprano, a relatively unusual outing for him, but a beautifully crafted solo. Watts likes to say of himself that he's an analog man in a digital age. As a self-description, it fits, and it makes a certain nonsense of recent attempts to suggest that he's a Mike Brecker disciple. For a start, Ernie's been playing like this for too long for the 'influence' to make sense; more important, he's warmer than that and almost mystical, as witness the tenor and temple bell duo which ends the record. He also includes his own ballad 'A Lilac Grows' and the Rickie Lee Jones song 'Company'. He and his wife are now running Flying Dolphin; with luck, it'll result in a belated stream of releases.

Jeff 'Tain' Watts (born 1960)

DRUMS, VOICE

Watts emerged from the group of players centred around the Marsalis brothers in the '80s, an association which continues, although he has also subsequently worked in a wider circle.

 Megawatts Sunnyside 1128 Watts; Kenny Kirkland (p); Charles Fambrough (b). 7/91.

(*) Citizen Tain Columbia CK 69551 Watts; Wynton Marsalis (t); Delfeayo Marsalis (tb); Kenny Garrett (as); Branford Marsalis (ss, ts); Kenny Kirkland (p); Eric Revis, Reginald Veal (b). 6–8/98.

 Bar Talk Columbia 508157-2 Watts; Ravi Coltrane, Branford Marsalis, Michael Brecker (ts); Grégoire Maret (hca); David Budway, Joey Calderazzo (p); Henry Hey (ky); James Genus, Eric Revis (b); Robert Thomas Jr (perc). 12/01–1/02.

(*) Detained – Live At The Blue Note Half Note 4255 Watts; Kenny Garrett (as); Marcus Strickland (ts); David Kikoski (ky); David Gilmore (g); Eric Revis (b). 04.

 Folk's Songs Dark Key Music 3360 Watts; Marcus Strickland (ss, ts); David Kikoski (p); Henry Hey (ky); David Gilmore (g); Christian McBride (b); Samuel Torres (perc). 12/06.

Watts stood out as one of the leading new drummers of his time when he worked in the first Wynton Marsalis quintet, and since then he's become among the most eminent sticksmen of his generation. Watts always makes noise as a player, not as a composer, and his favourite devices – thumping interpolations on the toms, crash-cymbal strokes that seem to linger in their own time, and an iron-faced swing – are well in evidence on his every appearance. Megawatts is an odd one; it has also appeared as a Fambrough disc and serves as a memorial to pianist Kirkland, who's probably the record's star. For Citizen Tain, Watts not only manages to reassemble the Marsalis family for the final track (when producer Delfeayo also sits in), but he writes some good tunes, has Wynton and Branford recalling the explosive excitement of their original quintet on 'The Impaler', and provides settings for Kirkland that make one regret that fine player's early death. Some of the music is a shade too keen to impress the listener, but this is in most respects a powerful and assured document of these players at this time.

Bar Talk has a lot of similar muscle-flexing but somehow comes out less impressive, possibly because the Brecker–Coltrane–Marsalis front line (diffused across various tracks, of course) do their usual thing, and nobody feels the need to do much more than turn up and play. Given the virtuosity on show, that doesn't hurt, but it doesn't make for immortal results, either.

The live record blazes along, but, credit to Watts, it's under control, and a line-up that could have resulted in one virtuoso marathon after another works together with concentrated chops. Garrett misses the first two tracks but walks away with main solo honours, while Gilmore and Kikoski play for the band and it's musical and exciting. Even Tain's vocal outing is forgiveable.

The most recent record is credited to Tain And The Ebonix. Apart from the branding, it's not so very different from the work of the previous decade and a half. McBride is able to funk up a line on his electric bass and Gilmore and Hey thicken the mix in ways you can't imagine Wynton approving. It's OK, but it feels like an ordinary hard-bop record tricked out to catch the eye rather than the ear.

Trevor Watts (born 1939)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

Played in RAF bands in the early '60s, then moved in London free-music circles and co-founded SME. More recently, in his Moiré Music group, has investigated fusions of jazz with other musics.

(*) The Original Trevor Watts Drum Orchestra: Drum Energy! Hi 4 Head HFHCD006 Watts; Peter Knight (vn); Ernest Mothle (b); Liam Genockey (d); Kofi Adu, Nana Tsiboe (perc). 89.

 A Wider Embrace ECM 521351-2 Watts; Colin McKenzie (b); Nana Tsiboe, Nee-Daku Patato, Jojo Yates, Nana Appiah, Paapa J. Mensah (perc). 4/93.

(*) Moiré Intakt CD 039 Watts; Colin McKenzie (b); Paapa J. Mensah (d, perc, v). 3/95.

A stalwart of the British free-jazz scene, and a founder member of both Amalgam and the Spontaneous Music Ensemble (both listed separately), Watts has to some extent turned his back entirely on abstract music in order to explore the strongly rhythmic, non-European language of his two main groups of the '80s, the Drum Orchestra and Moiré Music. The word 'moiré' refers to the shimmering patterns one sees in watered silk, and what Watts was trying to do was to create such patterns musically by overlaying rhythmic patterns and textures in live performance.

Moiré Music performances have tended to be either entrancing or dull. Encountering the 1989 Drum Orchestra album afresh (it was reissued in 2008), we rather came down on the other side. It's a curiously bloodless affair, not helped by very average sound. The ECM album inclines the same way but is still eminently listenable, and techno buffs can marvel at the way engineer Gary Thomas and Steve Lake at ECM managed to get so many drums sounding good. Watts's studies in African percussion music have occasionally resulted in illustrated lectures. While there is a wealth of ethnomusicological detail attached to this recording, it is altogether more flowing, and Watts is playing singingly and with passion.

The tight, fierce trio on the Intakt disc gives a better sense of how his current work relates back to British free-movement projects like Amalgam. Mensah is a big presence, bringing a pungent vocal attack as well as wild percussion, and McKenzie's bass-lines weave to and fro like oiled rope.

(*) Live at the Athens Concert Hall Arc CD 08 Watts; Colin McKenzie (g); Greg Leppard, Marc Parnell (d); Ali Iaazane, Roberto Pla (perc); Nana Tsiboe (perc, v); Paapa J. Mensah (djembe). 2/98, 11/99.

Supplemented with 'Mrs Robinson', which was recorded in Beijing more than a year later, this Greek appearance features the basic Moiré Music group with Tsiboe and Parnell on percussion; Mensah and Pla appear only in China. Live, the group is even more compelling than in the studio. Watts sounds entranced on 'Seamless', 'Tribute To Don Cherry' and 'Gentle Love' and his soprano-playing can rarely have been so compelling. McKenzie is hugely inventive, rhythmically supple and driven, sometimes reminiscent of Steve Swallow but with hints of Jack Bruce's rolling-thunder approach as well.

* Trevor Watts and the Celebration Band Arc CD 010 Watts; Rob Leake (ss, ts); Marcus Cummins (ss, as); Amy Metcalf (ts); Geoff Sapsford (g); Roger Carey (b); Giampaolo Scatozza (perc); Jamie Harris (djembe, djarabouka, perc). 4/01.

The Moiré concept transferred to something much closer to the multi-horn lines of Watts's earlier groups. This sounds very unlike orthodox British free bop but the basic idiom is still audible in the rich, shifting mix. Guitar and bass guitar thicken up the harmonies wonderfully and Sapsford is a real find. '8 In 7' kicks off proceedings in the most arresting way; at 13 minutes it could hardly be more ambitious, and yet it passes as vividly as a jewelled miniature. 'Spring Sunrise' is more reflective but 'Out Of The Street' restores the energy, bringing an outstanding album to a climax.

 6 Dialogues Emanem 4069 Watts; Veryan Weston (p). 02.

And a real surprise in this one, too. Weston and Watts have been working together for some time, notably in the Moiré Music project. This, though, is Trevor's first free-improvisation record since the '70s. When he parted company with John Stevens, he took a very different musical road, and enthusiasts for British improvisation of the 'Golden Age' will immediately warm to the sound of Watts's plangent alto following an uncharted course on 'Unrest Assured'. The companion piece, 'Rest Unassured', is better still, as is the soprano outing on 'Split Frequencies', all of which shows that his chops haven't been in any way compromised by more than two decades of playing riffs and minimal ostinati. Weston has immediate rapport and understanding and when the two nudge away at a single idea for some minutes, as they do on the three closing tracks, it's hard to resist.

Also, in brief:

(*) World Sonic Hi 4 Head HFHCD04. 2 & 4/05.
A bold effort to construct a solo saxophone record on the basis of repetition.

 Live In São Paolo, Brasil Hi 4 Head HFHCD05. 7/05.
Souvenir of a Brazil concert with percussionist/vocalist Jamie Harris. Trevor sounds in good heart. There's also a Watts–Harris disc called Ancestry on Entropy. Or is it the other way round?

Chuck Wayne (1923–97)

GUITAR, BANJO

Much involved on 52nd Street in the '40s and later played in George Shearing's quintet and with Tony Bennett. Latterly a CBS staffer and teacher.

(*) Morning Mist Original Jazz Classics OJC 1097 Wayne; Joe Williams (b); Ronnie Bedford (d). 12/64.
This Prestige date is as unassuming as its leader's career. Wayne had good bop chops but rarely took the Tal Farlow course of high speed around all the turnbacks, and his delivery is nice and easy without ever losing a certain piquancy: on 'Li'l Darlin'', for instance, he picks a slightly quicker tempo than usual and throws off a witty, bluesy solo. There's a lot of octave playing of the melodies throughout, but nothing meant to send a listener to sleep, and Williams and Bedford are asked to stay surprisingly on their toes. As a final flourish, Wayne picks up the banjo for the last track, Stephen Sondheim's 'Lovely', and actually plays convincing bebop on it. The only disappointing thing is the album's duration, which doesn't even reach a miserly 30 minutes.

Weather Report

GROUP

Key players in the development of fusion music. The spare atmospherics of the early albums gave way to a funkier and more dance-based approach, largely determined by Joe Zawinul's rock-solid, harmonically subtle bass-lines and chord progressions and by Wayne Shorter's minimal approach. The personnel kept changing, but the basic concept remained consistent and strong for 15 years.

 Weather Report Columbia 468212 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Miroslav Vitous (b); Alphonse Mouzon (d); Airto Moreira (perc). 71.
(*) I Sing The Body Electric Columbia 468207 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Miroslav Vitous (b); Eric Gravátt (d); Dom Um Romão (perc); with Ralph Towner (g); Wilmer Wise (t, picc t); Hubert Laws (f); Andrew White (eng hn); Joshie Armstrong, Yolande Bavan, Chapman Roberts (v). 72.
* Live In Tokyo Columbia 489208 2CD Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Miroslav Vitous (b); Eric Gravátt (d); Dom Um Romão (perc). 1/72.
Weather Report is one of the great jazz groups of its time. 'Birdland' on Heavy Weather (see below) is one of only a tiny handful of contemporary jazz tunes that everyone seems to have heard. Though it has tended to overshadow the rest of the group's output, it encapsulates perfectly the formula that made the group so successful: solid part-writing from Joe Zawinul, Wayne Shorter's enigmatic saxophone sound, a free-floating personnel round the Zawinul–Shorter cadre, and great product marketing (Weather Report covers were consistently eye-catching and aesthetically pleasing). A much talked-about boxed set of all the group's Columbia recordings seems unlikely to ever appear, although the individual albums have been steadily upgraded, a few at a time, in new masterings.

From its inception until its demise in 1986, Weather Report was a flexible ensemble. After the first album, it was unmistakably Zawinul's flexible ensemble. From that point, Zawinul claimed the majority of composition credits (though Shorter, Pastorius and others chipped in) and steered the band's increasingly rhythm-orientated conception. Zawinul compositions are typically riff-centred bass-clef ideas, built up in layers by the rest of the band. Those who had followed Shorter's developing career were alternately baffled and horrified by the exiguous squeaks and tonal smears that suddenly were passing for solos (solos, it had been pointed out, were not the Weather Report way: 'we always solo and we never solo'). The first album was a set of fey acrylic sketches, clearly derived from the pastel side of the 1969–70 Miles Davis band (in which both Zawinul and Shorter saw service) but much rawer in tone.

Everything about I Sing The Body Electric was very 1972: the title lifted from Whitman via Ray Bradbury, the brilliant sci-fi artwork (an overdue hand, please, for Ed Lee, Jack Trompetter and Fred Swanson), the psychobabble liner-note ('There is flow. There is selflessness'). There was also a band on the brink of premature extinction. Side one of the original LP release is more or less an extension of the debut album. The (presumably) anti-war 'Unknown Soldier' is almost prettified. The only thing that redeems it from banality is a tense cymbal pulse that on the live second side erupts into some of the most torrential and threatening percussion of the period. Zawinul is on record as thinking that Gravátt was the finest drummer the group ever had. On 'Vertical Invader' he plays with a clubbing hostility that somehow intensifies the impression that the group was heading off in four or five (Dom Um Romão was only a part-timer) directions at once.

Listening to Live In Tokyo over the span of two whole discs confirms for sure that at this point this was not merely a studio-confected band, good on atmospheres but lacking in sheer fire and funk. The ferocity of Gravátt's drumming, the soaring brilliance of Vitous's bass-playing, and (as always) the Zawinul–Shorter axis made this one of the great groups of the time. Much of the second disc was drawn from the group's first album, and though 'The Moors', medleyed with 'Eurydice', hasn't the frail beauty of the studio version it has certainly acquired a new strength and gravitas.

(*) Sweetnighter Columbia 485102-2 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Miroslav Vitous (b); Alphonso Johnson, Eric Gravátt (d); Dom Um Romão (perc). 73.
Sweetnighter was in some ways a consolidating record, though nowadays it yields up considerable treasures, not least the stunning 'Boogie Woogie Waltz', which is the band's single most accessible track before 'Birdland'. The tracks were subject to a degree of post-production which was much more marked than that on the first records, and the glistening studio sound, given an almost juicy reverb on the keyboards and percussion, suddenly brought the group's sound on to much firmer ground, and made the point that from this marker onwards this was very much a band whose best work would be done in studios. 'Boogie Woogie Waltz' and '125th Street Congress' were seemingly endless jams that secured a suitably hypnotic feel, and Vitous's farewell piece 'Will' is peculiarly beautiful, circling around Zawinul's piano lick.

[illegible]

 Mysterious Traveller
Columbia 507657-2 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Miroslav Vitous (b); Ismael Wilburn (d); Dom Um Romão (perc). 73–74.

This is still perhaps the most sheerly beautiful of the Weather Report records, from the wild joy of 'Nubian Sundance' with its synthed crowd-noises to the quietness of 'Blackthorn Rose', a lyrical, delicate piece of music that suggests this may have been the point of maximum closeness between the band's onlie begetters, Zawinul and Shorter. Some of the material was recorded at Zawinul's home, with his kids romping in the background, and only later put together in the studio, and it is this balance between improvisational immediacy and brilliantly crafted overdubbing that gives the record its lasting freshness and power.

(*) Tale Spinnin' Columbia 507656-2 As above, except omit Vitous, Romão, Wilburn; add Alphonso Johnson (b); Leon Ndugu Chancler (d); Alyrio Lima (perc). 74.

(*) Black Market Columbia 507658-2 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Alphonso Johnson, Jaco Pastorius (b); Chester Thompson, Narada Michael Walden (d); Alex Acuña, Don Alias (perc). 76.

(*) Heavy Weather /  Weather Report /  8:30 Columbia CK 65108 / 48824 / 476908 2CD Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ts, ss); Jaco Pastorius (b); Alejandro Neciosup Acuña (d, perc); Manolo Badrena (perc). 76; 82; 83.

 Procession /  Sportin' Life Columbia CK 65453 / 39908 Joe Zawinul (ky); Wayne Shorter (ss, ts); Victor Bailey (b); Omar Hakim (d); Jorge Rossy (perc). N.D.; 84.

Ever afterwards, Weather Report albums were inclined to look like audition sessions for new drummers. Steve Gadd, Tony Williams and Peter Erskine all played on Mr Gone (see below, 'in brief'), suggesting a band that was going in too many directions at once. Tale Spinnin', in its fresh mastering, sounds fresher and more vibrant than we had previously remembered, with the epic melody of 'Lusitanos' a forgotten Shorter highlight and Zawinul relishing his keyboard effects on 'Freezing Fire'. Black Market seems to combine the virtues of earlier albums: atmospheric tone-poetry, thudding, joyous rhythms. With Pastorius arriving in time to cut the funky 'Barbary Coast', Zawinul has the engine-room tuned to his obvious satisfaction. 'Black Market' is a wonderful, thunderous tune that completely blows out Shorter's rather wimpy 'Three Clowns' and piffling figures; galling, because on 'Cannon Ball', dedicated to Julian Cannonball Adderley – for whom Zawinul played and wrote 'Country Preacher' and 'Mercy, Mercy, Mercy' – Shorter signs in again with some chunky tenor.

Heavy Weather was the breakthrough album in market terms. It allegedly shifted in excess of 400,000, largely on the strength of 'Birdland', a whistleable, riffy tune dedicated to the New York jazz club. No one had ever danced to 'Orange Lady' or 'Surucucú'; suddenly, Weather Report was big – a fact that comfortably disguised the detail that, 'Birdland' and 'A Remark You Made' apart, Heavy Weather was nothing much. Onstage, the band went decidedly nouveau riche, tossing around techno-nonsense, indulging in pointless virtuosity.

The decision to repeat the eponymous title of the first album for the 11th was, on the face of it, puzzling; but in some ways this overlooked record does hark back to the first couple, where atmosphere and degree of abstraction were still very much the key.

The final settled line-up still created some decent work. Procession is particularly good, though often overlooked, and the electronically distorted voices of Manhattan Transfer on 'Where The Moon Goes' reprises their imaginative and still stirring intepretation of 'Birdland'.

(*) Live And Unreleased Columbia Legacy C2K 65526 2CD Wayne Shorter (ss, ts); Joe Zawinul (ky); Victor Bailey, Alphonso Johnson, Jaco Pastorius (b); Peter Erskine, Omar Hakim, Chester Thompson (d); Alex Acuña (d, perc); Manolo Badrena, Jorge Rossy (perc). 75–83.

Though half of I Sing The Body Electric was a concert recording (since completed on a separate CD release), Weather Report didn't issue a full-scale live album until 8:30 in 1980. These present tapes have been closely supervised by Zawinul and Shorter but so good are they and so electrifying was WR as a touring outfit that one wonders why there haven't been more live sessions over the years. The only thing missing here is the torrential drumming of Eric Gravátt; otherwise an exemplary representation of the band in its best years. The reappearance of early material like 'In A Silent Way' (segued with 'Waterfall' from the first album), mini-medleys of compositions like 'Dr Honoris Causa' (dedicated to Herbie Hancock), 'Directions', a rumbustious 'Cucumber Slumber' and a stupendous 'Man In The Green Shirt' make this an essential purchase for WR fans.

Also, in brief:

 The Jaco Years / * The Best Of Weather Report Columbia CK 65451 / 507659-2. 75–80; 73–84.

The second of these is exceptionally well-chosen – only two tracks from post-76! – but the first one seems redundant, given that real fans will have all this stuff anyway. A number of the band's CDs are also available in a handsome box.

() Mr Gone Columbia 468208. 78.

The title might refer to Shorter, who wisely remains silent for much of the band's worst record.

 Night Passage Columbia 468211. 80.

An improvement on Mr Gone, but still at the fag-end of 'the Pastorius years'.

 This Is This Columbia CK 40280. 85.

Zawinul and Shorter shake hands in farewell on the back cover. A drab curtain-call and a slightly sad farewell.

Chick Webb (1909–39)

DRUMS

Born in Baltimore. This tiny man was already an experienced bandleader when he took over at the Savoy Ballroom in 1933, hiring Ella Fitzgerald two years later. He kept the most competitive band in New York for six years, but TB of the spine eventually killed him.

 Chick Webb 1929–1934 / (*) Rhythm Man 1931–1934 Classics 502 / Hep CD 1023 Webb; Ward Pinkett, Louis Bacon, Taft Jordan (t, v); Edwin Swayzee, Mario Bauza, Reunald Jones, Bobby Stark, Shelton Hemphill, Louis Hunt (t); Robert Horton, Jimmy Harrison, Sandy Williams, Ferdinand Arbello, Claude Jones (tb);

Hilton Jefferson, Louis Jordan, Benny Carter (cl, as); Pete Clark, Edgar Sampson (as); Elmer Williams (cl, ts); Wayman Carver (ts, f); Don Kirkpatrick, Joe Steele (p); John Trueheart (bj, g); Elmer James (bb, b); John Kirby (b); Chuck Richards, Charles Linton (v). 6/29–11/34; 31–34.

(*) Chick Webb 1935–1938 Classics 517 As above, except omit Bacon, Swayzee, Jones, Hemphill, Hunt, Horton, Harrison, Arbello, Carter, Kirkpatrick, Richards, Linton; add Nat Story, George Matthews (tb); Chauncey Houghton (cl, as); Ted McRae (ts); Tommy Fulford (p); Bill Thomas, Beverley Peer (b). 6/35–8/38.

Between them, these CDs include virtually all of Webb's studio recordings aside from those with vocals by Ella Fitzgerald, which Classics have released under her name. The two tracks by The Jungle Band of 1929 sound almost primitive in comparison to the ensuing sessions, driven as much by Trueheart's machine-like banjo-strumming as by Webb; but its use of the reeds and Webb's already exciting playing point a way out of the '20s, and by the time of the 1931 session – which includes a memorable arrangement by Benny Carter of his own 'Blues In My Heart' and a valedictory appearance by Jimmy Harrison, who died not long afterwards – Webb was running a great band, which eventually (in 1933) won him a long-running residency at Harlem's Savoy Ballroom. Edgar Sampson handled the best of the earlier arrangements, and the leader could boast fine soloists in Taft Jordan (later to join Ellington), Sandy Williams, Bobby Stark and Elmer Williams, as well as a rhythm section that was almost unrivalled for attack and swing. Webb's own mastery of an enormous drumkit allowed him to pack a whole range of percussive effects into breaks and solos which never upset the momentum of the band. His distance from the showmanship of Gene Krupa, who would far surpass him in acclaim, was complete. Some of the best examples of what he could do are on the second Classics disc, including the terrific drive of 'Go Harlem' and the breaks in 'Clap Hands! Here Comes Charley'. Once Fitzgerald had started singing with the band and began to secure a wider fame, though, some of the zip went out of their playing, and although the weakest material is confined to the Fitzgerald CDs, the closing tracks on Classics 517 show them cooling off.

Choosing among these discs is a matter of individual taste. The two Classics CDs offer uninterrupted coverage, but their reproduction, though quite listenable, is second-best to the Hep disc. Hep's excellent survey covers only the period 1931–4 and misses many of the best tracks, but it is still a fine set in excellent sound.

George Webb (born 1917)

PIANO

The Godfather of British trad. He formed his first jazz band in 1941 and early protégés were Humphrey Lyttelton, Eddie Harvey and Wally Fawkes.

() George Webb's Dixielanders Lake LACD 128 Webb; Owen Bryce, Reg Rigden, Humphrey Lyttelton (c); Eddie Harvey, Tony Finnis (tb); Wally Fawkes (cl); Buddy Vallis (bj); Art Streatfield, (tba); Bill Bramwell (b); Roy Wykes, Derek Bailey, Roy Hartley (d). 12/45–47.

These might as well be the Dead Sea Scrolls of British traditional jazz. Webb began leading groups while the war was still on and his Dixielanders were the first regular band of their ilk to work on the scene in and around London, in such legendary venues as The Red Barn, Barnehurst. A glance at the personnel will show some of the young tearaways involved and the surviving music has all the spirit, if not much of the finesse, of a righteous involvement with tunes such as 'New Orleans Hop Scop Blues'. There are 21 tracks, all of them taken from acetates, and most of them sound pretty dreadful by any hi-fi standard. The playing has its blemishes too, but in a curious way one can almost hear the groups improving track by track.

Eberhard Weber (born 1940)

BASS, CELLO, OCARINA, KEYBOARDS

Learned cello as a boy but switched to bass and played part-time gigs while he worked in film and television. Early associations with Wolfgang Dauner and Volker Kriegel led to his own composing and bandleading, and a long tenure with ECM beginning in 1973. He was a pioneer in using bass with electronics, playing an adapted upright model.

(*) The Colours Of Chloe ECM 833331-2 Weber; Ack Van Rooyen (flhn); Rainer Brüninghaus (ky); Peter Giger, Ralf Hubner (d); strings. 12/73.

Having played straight-ahead jazz bass through the '60s, Weber delivered this uncannily beautiful album to Manfred Eicher's ECM operation and won himself an award or two. If some passages now suggest a cooler version of Tubular Bells, with the overlapping themes of 'No Motion Picture' hinting at the tranquillizing pomposity of progressive rock, the singular beauty of the textures and Weber's discovery of a new world based around massed cellos and subtle electronic treatments remain insidiously affecting. While the improvisational content is carefully rationed against the measure of the themes, Brüninghaus and Weber himself emerge as thoughtful and surprisingly vigorous virtuosos. If the CD offers few improvements over the excellent original vinyl edition, the recording itself still sounds splendid.

[illegible]

* Yellow Fields

ECM 843205-2 Weber; Charlie Mariano (ss, shenai); Rainer Brüninghaus (ky); Jon Christensen (d). 9/75.

Weber's masterpiece is essentially a period piece which nevertheless still seems modern. The sound of it seems almost absurdly opulent: bass passages and swimming keyboard textures that reverberate from the speakers, chords that seem to hum with huge overtones. The keyboard textures in particular are of a kind that will probably never be heard on record again. But there's little prolixity or meandering in this music. Weber builds keenly around riffs and rhythmical figures, and solos – Mariano sounding piercingly exotic on the shenai, heartbreakingly intense on soprano – are perfectly ensconced within the sound-field. The key element, though, is the inspirational series of cross-rhythms and accents which Christensen delivers, rising to an extraordinary crescendo towards the close of 'Sand-Glass', a sprawling performance built from simple materials. And the leader's own bass never sounded better.

 Silent Feet ECM 835017-2 Weber; Charlie Mariano (ss, shenai); Rainer Brüninghaus (ky); John Marshall (d). 11/77.

Silent Feet introduced John Marshall, formerly of Soft Machine, into the Colours band which Weber was touring with and, while his stiffer virtuosity wasn't the same thing as Christensen's sober flair, he restored some of the punch to Weber's music. The record hasn't the memorable tunes and perfect empathy of the earlier discs, though.

(*) Little Movements ECM 159492-2 Weber; Charlie Mariano (ss, f); Rainer Brüninghaus (ky); John Marshall (d). 7/80.

Little Movements was a return to form. Some of its worldly metres and textures (especially in 'Bali' and 'Dark Spell') have become a commonplace, perhaps even a cliché in recent years, but at the time it felt like fresh ground and the quality of the playing by all hands has kept its lustre. The opening 'The Last Stage Of A Long Journey' remains especially fine, and Weber has gone back to this piece in the last few years (see below).

(*) Chorus ECM 823844-2 Weber; Jan Garbarek (ss, ts); Manfred Hoffbauer (cl, f); Martin Kunstner (ob, cor); Ralf Hübner (d). 9/84.

 Orchestra ECM 837343-2 Weber; Herbert Joos, Anton Jillich, Wolfgang Czelusta, Andreas Richter (tb); Winfried Rapp (btb); Rudolf Diebetsberger, Thomas Hauschild (frhn); Franz Stagl (tba). 5–8/88.

Weber has lacked a valuable context in recent years: having patented one of the most gorgeous of bass sounds, he doesn't seem to have much else to say with it. Chorus is heavy on the brooding-spirit element, with Garbarek delivering some of his most stentorian commentaries on what are less than riveting themes, as Weber and Hubner toil away in the background. As a sequence of mood-music cameos, it may appeal strongly to some, but it's a depressing listen over the course of an entire record. Orchestra may disappoint any who've attended Weber's highly entertaining solo concerts. He splits the album between bass soliloquies and counterpoint with a chilly brass section, yet the prettiest piece on the disc is the synthesizer tune 'On A Summer's Evening'.

* Pendulum ECM 519707-2 Weber (b solo). 93.

Weber's second solo record is all bass this time and finds much of the beguiling and unexpectedly light-hearted feel of his one-man concerts. Ironically, it is much more studio-orientated: where Orchestra was overdub-free and essentially live, Pendulum, while remaining a solo meditation, is carefully edited for maximum effect. Weber's bass remains a unique sound in the music, and here he finds an almost perfect balance between the mixed blessing of bass opulence and the sing-song quality of his best melodies. Overlapping riffs or vamps counter the steady onward flow of the improviser's ideas, and in 'Street Scenes', 'Children's Song No. 1' and 'Pendulum' itself he secures a marvellous, patient equilibrium.

 Endless Days ECM 013420-2 Weber; Paul McCandless (ob, cor, bcl, ss); Rainer Brüninghaus (ky); Michael DiPasqua (d). 00.

Weber told his band that 'you can play anything, as long as it doesn't sound like jazz', a recipe which we admire if not exactly condone. The old firm duly work their way through music which seems to have had its improvisational element thinned to the point of absence, yet it is unmistakably Weberian. McCandless's reeds aren't exactly jazzy to start with and DiPasqua (who is otherwise in retirement!) has a role which sometimes resembles a tympanist more than a kit drummer. Weber fans will, of course, want to hear it and have it, but we miss the sense of melodious power which used to light up Eberhard's older records. At least the closing 'The Last Stage Of A Long Journey' sends us on our way rejoicing.

 Stages Of A Long Journey ECM 1920 Weber; Jan Garbarek (ss, ts); Rainer Brüninghaus, Wolfgang Dauner (p); Gary Burton (vib); Reto Weber (d): Marilyn Mazur (perc); Nino G (human beatbox); Stuttgart Radio Symphony Orchestra. 3/05.

A lifetime achievement award of a record, with a handpicked roster of soloists and a big orchestra let loose on Eberhard's charts. Ironically, and much like the work of Oregon, who've had similar treatment, this lush music sounds best when played with very minimal forces. The effect here is often quite congested and the stark beauty of Weber's lines disappears when delivered by the large ensemble. That said, there are some very effective individual contributions – we'd single out Garbarek and Mazur on the opening, slowly emerging 'Silent Feet', the best thing by a long way – and the record will be catnip for anyone who loves the bassist's albums.

Also, in brief:

(*) :rarum: Selected Recordings ECM 014202-2. 12/74–4/00.

A surprise selection, with nothing from The Colours Of Chloe or Yellow Fields.

 The Following Morning ECM 829116-2. 8/76.

A lulling disappointment, rhythmically dead and texturally thin.

(*) Fluid / Rustle ECM 829381-2. 1/79.

Enervating.

(*) Later That Evening ECM 829382-2. 3/82.

Shades of Pat Metheny prog-lite jazz-rock on this.

Ben Webster (1909–73)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Born in KC. He played violin, then piano, before taking up sax at Budd Johnson's suggestion. Joined Bennie Moten in 1931 and worked with many bands before gaining his greatest eminence with Duke Ellington from 1940. Left in 1944, rejoined 1948–9, then freelanced through the '50s. Settled in Europe from 1964 and eventually died in Amsterdam, unpredictable but beloved. His unique timbre on the tenor – breathy, swooningly romantic – is high on most lists of favourite sounds in jazz.

 The Horn Progressive PCD-7001 Webster; Hot Lips Page (t); Clyde Hart (p); Charlie Drayton (b); Denzil Best (d). 2/44.

 Ben Webster 1944–1946 Classics 1017 As above, except add Emmett Berry, Dick Vance (t); Walter 'Foots' Thomas, Budd Johnson (ts); Marlowe Morris, Johnny Guarnieri, Jimmy Jones (p); Oscar Pettiford, Al Hall, John Simmons (b); Big Sid Catlett, Cozy Cole, David Booth (d). 2/44–1/46.

(*) Ben Webster 1946–1951 Classics 1253 Webster; Idrees Sulieman, Bill Coleman, Richard Smith, Maynard Ferguson (t); Tony Scott (cl); Benny Carter (as); Argonne Thornton, Al Haig, Jimmy Jones, Buster Moten, Gerry Wiggins (p); Bill De Arango, Johnny Rogers (g); John Kirby, Lloyd Anderson, Al Hall, John Simmons (b); Sid Catlett, Denzil Best, Jesse Price, George Johnson (d). 5/46–12/51.

* King Of The Tenors Verve 519806-2 Webster; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Benny Carter (as); Oscar Peterson (p); Barney Kessel, Herb Ellis (g); Ray Brown (b); Alvin Stoller, J. C. Heard (d). 5–12/53.

* Soulville Verve 521449-2 Webster; Oscar Peterson (p); Barney Kessel, Herb Ellis (g); Ray Brown (b); J. C. Heard, Stan Levey (d). 5/53–10/57.

* Ben Webster Meets Oscar Peterson Verve 521448-2 Webster; Oscar Peterson (p); Ray Brown (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 59.

Approaching four decades after his death, his sound still haunts every tenor saxophonist who tackles a ballad. Ben Webster, often identifiable via a single, signature note, played jazz like few other musicians ever have. As he got older and less partial to any tempo above a very slow lope, he pared his manner back to essentials which still, no matter how often one hears them, remain uniquely affecting. Sometimes, all he does is play the notes of a melody, in a time that is entirely of his own choosing, and still he makes it uniquely absorbing. The best of his early work is with Duke Ellington – he remained, along with Paul Gonsalves, one of only two tenormen to make a genuine impression on Ducal history – but his records as a solo player, from the early '50s onwards, are a formidable legacy.

The Horn is a collection of WBC transcriptions featuring Ben as nominal leader of a quintet with Hot Lips Page. The flow of the music is somewhat jolted by the programme, which includes various false starts and alternatives for the sake of completeness, and Lips Page takes a subsidiary role; but Webster's playing is already graceful and creating its own time and space. The remastering is occasionally cloudy but mostly good. Classics 1017 starts with the same session, minus the various alternatives, then proceeds through some excellent small-group music. There's a rare glimpse of Marlowe Morris on two 1944 titles (with lots of surface noise), before four titles by Walter Thomas – nice jump band music; four quartet titles for Savoy, including an 'I Surrender Dear' which prefigures the great ballad interpretations of the '50s; and four titles by an Al Hall quintet with Dick Vance on trumpet – not very remarkable. Webster collectors will want to hear this music, but the remastering isn't up to much. Classics 1253 moves the story on as far as his first Mercury session in 1951. There are small-group dates for Haven, Wax and Capitol with some interesting sidemen (Bill Coleman, although he seems to be on the other side of the studio, and Tony Scott). The four titles with Bus Moten are good bluesy fun. By the time of the Mercury date, he's moving towards his grandest years, and 'Old Folks' is a vintage performance.

By 1953 Webster was ready to make his mark on the LP era – 78rpm duration was too short for such a patient improviser – and Norman Granz began recording him for his labels. King Of The Tenors blends a date with Oscar Peterson plus rhythm section with another where Edison and Carter sit in too, though the spotlight is always on Webster. 'Tenderly' has never been more tender, 'That's All' is sheer heaven, but 'Jive At Six' is a good piece of studio knockabout. Peterson may seem an unlikely partner, but just as Webster played superbly next to Art Tatum, so he mastered the potentially open floodgates of Peterson's playing. On Soulville there are lustrous ballads in 'Where Are You' and an eerily desolate 'Ill Wind', while 'Boogie Woogie' brings out the raucous side of the tenorman. Three previously unissued tracks from the sessions are also included on the CD. Meets Oscar Peterson is just as fine, with two melting ballads in 'The Touch Of Your Lips' and 'In The Wee Small Hours Of The Morning' and a lissom 'This Can't Be Love'. In its latest incarnation, as a Verve Master Edition with excellent sound, it stands as one of the indispensable mainstream jazz albums of the '50s.

* Music For Loving

Verve 527774-2 2CD Webster; Harry Carney (bs); Teddy Wilson, Billy Strayhorn, Leroy Lovett (p); Billy Bauer (g); Ray Brown, George Duvivier, Wendell Marshall (b); Jo Jones, Osie Johnson, Louie Bellson (d); horns and strings. 3/54–9/55.

Impeccably prepared, this and the following two-disc reissues are among Webster's most handsome records. The strings sessions, mostly arranged by Ralph Burns, may sound a little thin to ears used to digital grandeur, but the writing is beguiling, and Webster sweeps through what must have been an ideal setting for him. Hidden away at the end of the package, almost as a bonus, is the rare album which Harry Carney recorded with strings, a fine date in its own right.

* The Soul Of Ben Webster Verve 527475-2 2CD Webster; Art Farmer, Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Roy Eldridge (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Johnny Hodges (as); Harold Ashby (ts); Jimmy Jones, Oscar Peterson, Billy Strayhorn (p); Mundell Lowe, Barney Kessel, Herb Ellis (g); Milt Hinton, Ray Brown, Jimmy Woode (b); Dave Bailey, Alvin Stoller, Sam Woodyard (d). 3/57–7/58.

The Soul Of Ben Webster puts together three original LPs: the title-album, Harry Edison's Gee Baby Ain't I Good To You, and Johnny Hodges' Blues A-Plenty. With three superb bands on hand, the music is a blueprint for small-group swing, and Webster contributes some of his most rounded and accomplished playing: the mesmerizing drift through 'Chelsea Bridge', for instance. His own date featured Ashby as second tenor, and there's a palpable camaraderie. Some of the Hodges titles are a bit slight, but this is altogether an indispensable issue.

(*) Ben Webster And Associates Verve 543302-2 Webster; Roy Eldridge (t); Coleman Hawkins, Budd Johnson (ts); Jimmy Jones (p); Les Spann (g); Ray Brown (b); Jo Jones (d). 4/59.

A belated arrival for a blustery, swaggering jam session for Ben and some top-dog pals. Tempos such as those chosen for 'De-dar' and 'Young Bean' are much faster than he would have liked but, with Hawkins and Johnson on hand, he wasn't going to take anything lying down, and the playing is vociferous and full of splendour. 'Time After Time' is a peerless Ben ballad. The remastering has left a lot of tape-hiss intact, but the music has great presence.

(*) The Warm Moods Warner Bros 8122-73721-2 Webster; Donn Trenner (p); Alfred Lustgarten, Lisa Minghetti (vn); Cecil Figelski (vla); Armond Kaproff (clo); Don Bagley (b); Frank Capp (d). 1/60.

This rather scarce and somewhat forgotten date goes about as far as anyone could in pushing the Webster envelope. The strings amount to no more than a quartet (unless you count Don Bagley's bass, but he plays it like a jazzman does). They're arranged by Johnny Richards, a man who was never satisfied unless he gave his players a tough assignment. The tunes are a queer lot: 'The Sweetheart Of Sigma Chi'? 'The Whiffenpoof Song'? Still, Ben just moseys through it. This was 1960, and he wasn't quite as indolent as he later became: he's pretty near the beat, and the notes which are more like huffs of air than something somewhere on the scale were yet to take over his phrasing. He can't be bothered to do much more than embellish the melodies, although here and there, as on the closing chorus of 'But Beautiful', he starts out on a promising solo – and then the song's over. The remastering is particularly excellent.

 At The Renaissance Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 390 Webster; Jimmy Rowles (p); Jim Hall (g); Red Mitchell (b); Frank Butler (d). 10/60.

At The Renaissance finds Webster in unusual company and, while Rowles reads him like a good book, the others sometimes sound a little too smartly present and correct. 'Gone With The Wind', though, is a beauty.

 Soulmates Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 390 Webster; Thad Jones (c); Joe Zawinul (p); Richard Davis (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 9–10/63.

Soulmates offers a strange pairing with the young Joe Zawinul, with Jones sitting in on four tracks, although Webster was happy with any pianist who stood his ground. Highlights include a poignant reflection on Billie Holiday's 'Trav'lin' Light' and the title-blues.

(*) At Montmartre 1965–1966 Storyville STCD 101 8347 Webster; Kenny Drew, Atli Bjørn (p); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b); Alex Riel, Rune Carlsson (d). 1/65–5/66.

Vintage Ben from a place he loved to play in, with men he could trust. The rhythm section do little other than frame the great sound, but that's what we've come to hear. The fidelity flickers in and out of focus at times, though no serious problems.

 Ben And Buck Storyville STCD 8245 Webster; Buck Clayton (t); Camille De Ceunyck (p); Tony Vaes (b); Charlie Pauvels (d). 6/67.

Webster and Clayton could have been a dream team, but they actually don't play together all that much here. Most of the set is a feature for one or other of them and, when they do work together, it's usually at the kind of tempo Webster didn't like (anything over slow). Still, the individual features are often wonderful, and it's a shame that the inadequate sound doesn't catch the range of Clayton's lovely tone.

 Masters Of Jazz Vol. 5: Ben Webster Storyville STCD 4105 Webster; Palle Mikkelborg, Perry Knudsen, Palle Bolvig, Allan Botschinsky (t); Per Espersen, Torolf Moolgaard, Axel Windfeld, Ole Kurt Jensen (tb); Uffe Karskov, Jesper Thilo, Dexter Gordon, Sahib Shihab, Bent Nielsen (reeds); Ole Kock Hansen, Kenny Drew (p); Ole Molin (g); Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen, Hugo Rasmussen (b); Ole Steenberg, Albert 'Tootie' Heath, Bjarne Rostvold (d); strings. 68–70.

 Plays Ballads Storyville STCD 4118 As above, except add Erling Christensen, Flemming Madsen (reeds); William Schiøpffe (d); John Steffensen (perc). 7/67–11/71.

 Live At Stampen Storyville STCD 101 3861 Webster; Roffe Ericson, Arne Ryskog (t); Lasse Sjösten, Teddy Wilson (p); Sture Nordin, Red Mitchell (b); Fredrik Norén, Ed Thigpen (d). 8/69–3/73.

 Baden 1972 TCB 02102 Webster; Dexter Gordon (ts); Kenny Drew (p); Bo Stief (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 11/72.

Webster's final years found him based in Copenhagen, and his manner was by now so sui generis that it's tempting to view the later work as a single, lachrymose meditation on the same handful of favourite ballads and Ellington tunes. But Ben's own subtle variations on himself create felicitous differences between each stately rendition of 'Prelude To A Kiss' or 'Old Folks'. He was lucky in his accompanists; while several of the rhythm sections sound anonymous in themselves, Webster's knack of helping them raise their game elicits some exceptionally sympathetic playing from almost everybody. The two Storyville albums collect scatterings from several sessions over a five-year period, including dates with strings, some heavenly ballads and a couple of dates with Teddy Wilson at the piano; both mixed bags, but plenty of vintage Webster. The Stampen material is drawn from three different sessions. Mostly Ellington material and not too special, but there is a lovely 'How Long Has This Been Going On' which is vintage Webster. The radio broadcast from Baden is a potboiler, and though Ben enjoyed Dexter's company, this probably wasn't his sort of thing at this stage. That said, there's some lovely playing on a 'Blues In F', and Gordon does a surprisingly bleak turn on 'Didn't We'. Ed Thigpen kicks off 'Sunday' at an insane tempo, and Webster doesn't seem best pleased, but he gets through it. Anyone who loves the sound of Ben Webster will find something to enjoy in all these records.

Also, in brief:

(*) Verve Jazz Masters 43: Ben Webster Verve 525431-2. 12/51–11/59.

A choice selection from the Verve years.

(*) Live! Providence, Rhode Island, 1963 Storyville STCD 8237. 12/63.

Local band; amateur tape; but Ben has a good time.

(*) My Man Steeplechase SCCD 31008. 4/73.

Late night at the Café Montmartre, and very middling.

James Weidman

PIANO

Associated with M-Base in earlier days, but ploughing his own furrow since.

 People Music TCB 96302 Weidman; Hiram Bullock (b); Marvin 'Smitty' Smith (d). 8/96.

 All About Time Contour 40928 Weidman; Jay Hoggard (vib); Ed Howard (b); Marcus Baylor (d); Charene Dawn (v). 04.

Weidman's originals are fresh and unhackneyed, but lack any distinctive character. It's a tight and funky trio, with Smitty drilling away hyperactively in places and Bullock doing a solid job blocking in the lower end. The Contour record has too many elements to be an ideal showcase for James, but the addition of Hoggard probably makes it a more distinctive set, all told.

Aaron Weinstein (born 1986)

VIOLIN

A youthful prodigy, working in a swing-mainstream style.

 A Handful Of Stars Arbors ARCD 19316 Weinstein; Houston Person (ts); Bucky Pizzarelli, John Pizzarelli (g); Nicki Parrott (b); Joe Ascione (d). 1/05.

 Blue Too Arbors ARCD 19355 Weinstein; John Pizzarelli (g). 4/07.

If Aaron looks like he ought to be on a high school poster, billed as the new Heifetz, he's an earthier presence than that: the kid can swing, and if the reference to his age seems patronizing, time's going to take care of that. Arbors throw him in with a stellar crew on the first of these, and he comes through it confidently but without undue swagger. 'Samba De Orfeu' is the only weak track, and it was a bad choice in the first place. By the time they get to jam on 'Do Nothing Till You Hear From Me', he's won you round.

Arbors didn't rush him back into the studios, and the duo date with Pizzarelli sees him deliver a resolutely unflashy set of the kind that might be described as a 'consolidation'. That doesn't mean dull, but it lacks the gala feel of the label debut. They stick to material that falls under the fingers and Aaron shapes his solos with care. The title-track's a worked-up idea, but who else calls for George Van Eps's 'I Wrote It For Jo'? Bravo.

Joel Weiskopf (born 1962)

PIANO

Syracuse-born, this New York-based midstream-modernist has wide experience, including a year with the Woody Herman orchestra.

 The Search Criss Cross 1174 Weiskopf; Peter Washington (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/98.
 New Beginning Criss Cross 1204 Weiskopf; John Swana (t); Walt Weiskopf (ts); John Patitucci (b); Jeff Brillinger (d). 1/01.
 Change In My Life Criss Cross 1232 Weiskopf; John Patitucci (b); Brian Blade (d). 02.
 Devoted To You Criss Cross 1293 Weiskopf; John Patitucci (b); Eric Harland (d). 11/05.

The younger of the two Weiskopf brothers is a sunny player. On The Search his treatments of Shorter ('Edda'), Gershwin ('Bess You Is My Woman Now') and Monk ('Criss Cross') aren't so much lightweight as light-filled, the melodies articulated with a free, zesty airiness. His original 'Song For The Lost', with its unusual melodic structure, is the most inventive of his own pieces: on the title-track he tends to get a bit lost in rhetoric, and the tune outstays its welcome. He has superb co-players in Washington and Drummond, the latter's cymbal-play in 'Song For The Lost' being especially ear-catching.

New Beginning is about Weiskopf's spiritual enlightenment, and it does tend towards perkiness rather than anything tougher: 'One For Gerry' is the prissiest kind of blues. Planting Weiskopf with a reputation as the Ned Flanders of Criss Cross isn't entirely fair, though: the playing throughout is crisp and smart. Change In My Life would seem to have the same or similar agenda. This is a first chance to hear him in a hornless trio and some of the restrictions of his playing become evident. Again, there isn't much blues feel, just a faux-toughness that creeps into the solos once or twice. That's all gone on Devoted To You, and it's a relief to be able to break the run of two-cheers reviews. Harland likes a bit of drama, and while he plays for the band, he also gees up Weiskopf, who makes his points this time without flab or fuss. A couple of intriguing 'standards' on the set, including a spiritual and Martin Luther's 'Ein' feste Burg'.

Walt Weiskopf (born 1959)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

He was an alto-player until, aged 20, he was offered a tenor chair in the Buddy Rich band.

* Simplicity Criss Cross Jazz 1075 Weiskopf; Conrad Herwig (tb); Andy Fusco (as); Joel Weiskopf (p); Peter Washington (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/92.

Weiskopf is an experienced section-player (with Buddy Rich and Toshiko Akiyoshi) but these records are a lot more ambitious than the usual sideman-steps-out date. A couple of satisfying sessions for the small indie Iris led him to Criss Cross, where he opened his account with the splendid Simplicity. More than ever, Weiskopf chooses to assert his writing over his playing, with his own solos relatively discreet and deferential. The brimming, complex melodies of 'Subordination', the artfully overlapping horns of 'Brazilia' and the wholly original revision of 'Lazy Afternoon' are among the most interesting moments, but there's nothing here to disappoint. Fusco and Herwig are modest personalities too, but their relative mildness lets the calibre of Weiskopf's writing come through, and his rhythm section, ably led by brother Joel, is keenly alert.

(*) Song For My Mother Criss Cross 1127 Weiskopf; Joe Magnarelli (t); Conrad Herwig (tb); Jim Snidero (as, f, af); Anders Bostrom (f, af); Scott Robinson (bs, bcl, f); Joel Weiskopf (p); Peter Washington (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/95.

Song For My Mother returns him to a nine-strong line-up. There's a surprise emphasis on Bostrom's flute, though he's not especially remarkable as a soloist; and it's the varied ways the leader marshals his horns that make the session well out of the ordinary for Criss Cross blowing. 'Where Is Love' is spine-tingling ballad playing, and 'High Noon' a real head-turner.

(*) Anytown Criss Cross 1169 Weiskopf; Renee Rosnes (p); Joe Locke (vib); Doug Weiss (b); Tony Reedus (d). 12/98.

Weiskopf says that his aim this time was to try and sustain longer solos than on his previous records – a recipe for trouble, given the existential meanderings of too many saxophonists. But the seven originals are among his most absorbing work too, and the band is absolutely off the top shelf. The title-track is a furiously paced start which cools off only for the first part of Rosnes's solo. 'Blues In The Day' isn't a blues but a complex unison theme, 'Scottish Folk Song' is a folkish melody cleverly harmonized, and the 'Naima'-like 'Adrienne' is a tender but unsentimental ballad line. Here and there Reedus makes too much noise, but there is very little to find fault with on another great Weiskopf session, longer solos and all.

(*) Siren Criss Cross 1187 Weiskopf; Joe Magnarelli (t, flhn); Conrad Herwig (tb); Jim Snidero (as, f); Anders Bostrom (f, af); Scott Robinson (bs, bcl); Joel Weiskopf (p); Doug Weiss (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/99.

Back to the nonet, and with all these voicings at his disposal, the leader adds and subtracts players in a way that might feel overworked, as if obliged to keep everybody involved. But he knows large-group music well enough to skirt that problem. The writing is instead dedicated to a kind of connoisseurship. There's a rather ingenious harmonizing of 'Baby Won't You Please Come Home' for the horns, while the piano takes the chance for an extravagant solo underneath; a teasingly brief essay in minimalism, 'Glass Eye'; and lush playing situations in 'Sire' and 'Separation'.

(*) Man Of Many Colours Criss Cross 1219 Weiskopf; Brad Mehldau (p); John Patitucci (b); Clarence Penn (d). 12/01.

We unaccountably leapfrogged over this one last time, and it's not half bad, which makes the omission slightly galling. Say what you like about Mehldau, he's a generous and supportive group player, content to take his spots whenever the leader clears a way for him, but certainly not claiming co-leader status, as his reputation might otherwise dictate. Walt's 'Triangle Dance' is a double-waltz that skips away delightfully, but doesn't get away from these players. 'Haunted Heart' reasserts the saxophonist's lyricism, while 'Man of Many Colors' weaves a complex and thoughtful story out of relatively orthodox changes.

(*) Sight To Sound Criss Cross 1250 Weiskopf; John Mosca (tb); Andy Fusco (as); Joel Weiskopf (p); Doug Weiss (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/03.

(*) Tea For Two Criss Cross 1265 As above, except omit Weiss, Mosca; add Paul Gill (b). 10/04.

Weiskopf's albums continue to provide a rebuttal of the idea that Criss Cross is basically a blowing-session label. Both of these show much care and pre-preparation. Sight To Sound is a ten-part suite dedicated to graphic artists, and though the different parts don't seem especially linked, they suggest that Walt has plenty of ideas as a writer. His longest suit is in making simple unisons seem fresh and head-turning: little details of orchestration that make the sextet feel large and sonorous. The leader, Mosca and Fusco all play meaty solos and brother Joel, as usual, is a perfect fulcrum.

Tea For Two is more conventional, but again there are some interesting arrangements of familiar material: 'So In Love' in particular is entirely rethought. Fusco's slightly sweeter delivery goes well with the tenorman's more broad-shouldered drive and the smaller ensemble doesn't lack for power.

 Day In, Night Out Criss Cross 1300 Weiskopf; Michael Leonhart (t, flhn); John Mosca (tb); Andy Fusco (as, cl, f); Gary Smulyan (bs); Peter Zak (p); Doug Weiss (b); Kendrick Scott (d). 4/07.

Walt's background in big bands gives him an instinct for how to weight a mid-size unit like this, and, to be fair, Criss Cross have given him a rich but uncluttered sound for these robust originals. Nearly everything goes directly to the point, even if the group is asked to play in off-centre time-signatures and a couple of times in keys that seem to challenge the horns. We did wonder why a couple of numbers, 'City Of Sin' and 'Walk In The Woods', were called in quite the form we've got them. It would be interesting one day to see if they were run down in different keys and faster and slower respectively. Walt's sounding grand in his solos and he doesn't waste too many notes.

Also, in brief:

 A World Away Criss Cross 1100. 12/93.

The guitar/organ setting isn't right for him; a rare dead spot.

(*) Night Lights Double Time DTRCD 106. 10/95.

Tenor, rhythm, standards; and further confirmation that the siblings make a great team.

David Weiss

TRUMPET

New York-born, he led the 'After Hours' Sessions at the Blue Note.

 Breathing Room /  The Mirror Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 110 / 204 Weiss; Craig Handy (as on Breathing Room only); Myron Walden (as on Mirror only); Marcus Strickland (ts); Xavier Davis (p); Dwayne Burno (b); E. J. Strickland (d). 2/01; 2/04.

Already known for his film and session work and for the New Jazz Composers Octet disc issued on the same label a couple of years earlier, Weiss has nothing to prove and takes this 'debut' set very much in that spirit. Seemingly influenced by Wayne Shorter (he includes two of Wayne's more impenetrable themes here), he favours lateral chord progressions and unfamiliar tonalities. 'Getaway' is stunning and if it's the shape of things to come, it's a very exciting prospect, a thick, dark piece with something for everyone to do. Handy comes in for four tracks and makes an immediate impression, though the tenor-playing Strickland is a more than competent player.

Shorter figures again on the second disc, which is executed in very much the same relaxed manner. Walden's probably a less arresting player than Handy; otherwise a pleasant retread.

Michael Weiss (born 1958)

PIANO

A thoughtful, somewhat sombre stylist.

 Presenting Michael Weiss Criss Cross 1022 Weiss; Tom Kirkpatrick (t); Ralph Lalama (ts); Ray Drummond (b); Kenny Washington (d). 4/86.

(*) Milestones Steeplechase SCCD 31449 Weiss; Paul Gill (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 5/99.

(*) Soul Journey Sintra 2003 Weiss; Ryan Kisor (t, flhn); Steve Davis (tb); Steve Wilson (as); Paul Gill (b); Joe Farnsworth (d); Daniel Sadownick (perc). N.D.

It's hard to know whether Weiss has been more influenced by Bill Evans or early Herbie Hancock. There's a definite strain of melancholy, but when you hear what he does with 'My Melancholy Baby' at the top of Presenting, you wonder how deep it runs. He doesn't seem the kind of piano-player who'd relish the hard-bop format of that first record, but he pulls it off in style.

And so to Steeplechase, and at last a piano trio album. This is the first occasion on which one feels Weiss shakes off his torpor and produces something that really reflects his talents. It's marked by some unexpected charts, like McLean's 'Walter Davis Ascending' and 'Little Melonae', both of which sit beautifully for the piano, as well as Kenny Dorham's 'Buffalo'. Farnsworth is now part of the operation and the same strictures apply, though so does the same enjoyment of his beetling style.

And having got that out of his system, and worked through a few of his compositional mentors, Weiss turns in a septet album packed with his own compositions. These are not earth-shaking, and with most of them an ancestral strain is evident. What's wonderful about them is the arranging, with every line clearly voiced. 'Soul Journey', 'Cheshire Cat' and 'El Camino' are the outstanding cuts.

Sebastian Weiss

PIANO

Adventurous post-bopper.

 Polaroid Memory /  Momentum Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 085 / 114 Weiss; Miguel Zenon (as on Momentum only); Bob Bowen III (b); Dan Weiss (d). 00; 02.

The trio record – and the drummer is not a kinsman – showcases Weiss's formidable writing very nicely. 'Change Of Pace' suggests he also listens to other contemporary sounds, but for the most part his music draws on a wide range of jazz idioms, with a cool, slightly academic touch in places. The addition of Zenon at the start of Momentum suggests Weiss may be looking for a more exciting and upbeat sound, but the best of the new album is again the trio work, and 'Returning For More' is arguably the best thing on either record.

Don Weller (born 1940)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

A much-liked fixture on the British club scene for 30 years with his groups Major Surgery and the Weller–Spring Quartet.

(*) 'Live' 33JAZZ 032 Weller; Gerard Presencer, Henry Lowther, Steve Waterman, Patrick White (t); Mark Nightingale, Malcolm Griffiths, Pete Beachill, Andy Fawbert (tb); Peter King, Nigel Hitchcock (as); Art Themen, Mornington Lockett (ts); Alan Barnes (bs); David Newton (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Bryan Spring (d). 10/96.
* The Way You're Going To Look Tomorrow Morning Trio TR 562 Weller; David Newton (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Dave Barry (d). 7/03.
(*) Nine Songs Trio TR 577 Weller; Bobby Wellins (ts); Alan Barnes (as, bs); Mark Edwards (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Spike Wells (d); clarinet choir; string quartet. 07.

The most sterling of sidemen and a formidable leader too, Weller was thinly represented on CD until very recently, and the present crop isn't exactly over-generous for a player of his stature. 'Live' set the ball rolling with a splendid and unexpected initiative: a big band of British majors playing only Weller originals. Alternately rousing, hummable and charmingly songful, the material is exceptionally strong, and makes one wish that Don had had this opportunity before now. Passages such as the collective shout on 'Four By Three' and the tenor solo threaded against the ensemble on 'Bongate Song' are both exhilarating and thought-provoking. A relatively rough live recording and a sometimes wayward relationship between horns and rhythm section (and some under-rehearsal) makes the record short of a triumph. They have done other live work since, and the music deserves a well-resourced studio recording.

There are romantics who make records with titles like The Way You Look Tonight and then there's the rough-diamond romanticism of Don Weller and The Way You're Going To Look Tomorrow Morning! He's been stuck away in big bands for so long, it's great to hear him in a small group of his own, sounding like he's just come off shift somewhere and wants to blow the dust away. The trio clings on behind part of the way, but Newton always has ideas of his own and nobody does romantic better. Of course they do 'The Way You Look Tonight', and beautifully, but it's things like 'Gloesy Roe' (it ends a set begun by the standard) that stay in the mind. Weller's formidable skills as a writer are only now being recognized.

A major label would have made a mess of Nine Songs, or at least blunted it with over-production. Not much danger, because neither Weller nor fellow tenor Wellins (try saying that in a hurry) have been in any danger of that over the years. Together, they sound like some yin-yang meeting of deceptive opposites: Weller all bruising honesty and rugged romance; the Scot breathier and deceptively lightweight, but with a musical intelligence like a tucked-away shiv. The addition of Barnes, clarinets and a few strings might sound like over-egging it, but the formula works perfectly and the songs – including 'Cabin In The Sky', 'Soul Eyes', 'Chelsea Bridge', 'Killing Me Softly With His Song' and even a classical piece – couldn't be better chosen.

Bobby Wellins (born 1936)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

A veteran Glaswegian modernist, Wellins won renown with the Stan Tracey group of the '60s and has worked his personal variations on small-group hard bop since.

 Making Light Work Hep 2070 Wellins; Pete Jacobsen (p); Kenny Baldock (b); Spike Wells (d). 83.

In 1965, Bobby Wellins guaranteed his moment of jazz immortality with a solo on Stan Tracey's Under Milk Wood. 'Starless And Bible Black' remains the key reference-point for Wellins, a moment of brooding lyricism not without a hint of self-mockery, and it is a characteristic common to the residents of Llareggub and Glasgow that they don't take themselves too seriously, even when they are pouring their hearts out. Wellins is a consummate ballad player, breathy and very immediate, with, as fellow Scot and fellow saxophonist Tommy Smith has pointed out, a lot of 'air', not so much in his tone as in his shaping of a solo.

Unfortunately Wellins's health and career went off the grid for a good many years, and so the discography is startlingly thin. Comeback discs like Birds Of Brazil, reviewed in an earlier edition, are no longer available, and only with his 60th birthday did Wellins begin to establish himself as a recording artist. The 1983 Hep has made a reappearance with a couple of good bonus tracks. It's worth having not just for Bobby's delightfully chastened romanticism, but also because Jacobsen is one of the best accompanists in Europe, though rarely mentioned in despatches.

 Nomad Hot House HHCD 1008 Wellins; Jonathan Gee (p); Thad Kelly (b); Spike Wells (d); Claire Martin (v). 4/92.
* Don't Worry 'Bout Me Cadillac SGCCD 05 Wellins; Graham Harvey (p); Alec Dankworth (b); Martin Drew (d). 2/96.

Nomad is frankly disappointing, not so much because the saxophonist is below par as because the group behind him lacks definition and a bit of colour in its cheeks. To be fair to them, Wellins has picked some fairly chewy material: Hank Mobley's 'This I Dig Of You', Brownie's 'Sandu' and Monk's 'Little Rootie Tootie'. He doesn't hang around waiting for stragglers on any of them.

The Cadillac disc was recorded live at the Vortex in north London, and it has all the presence and intimacy of that upper room. No American player could map out any more of the side-tracks and byways of these seven standards (a Wellins original, 'Tracery', closes the set) with any more subtlety, and yet not lose contact with the song itself. 'How Deep Is The Ocean' is masterful: beauty, exhilaration and the abyss all compressed into 12 minutes; even 'Lover Man' has a kind of majesty.

* The Satin Album Jazzizit JITCD 9607 Wellins; Colin Purbrook (p); Dave Green (b); Clark Tracey (d). 7/96.
 The Best Is Yet To Come Jazzizit JITCD 124 Wellins; Liam Noble (p); Simon Thorpe (b); Dave Wickins (d). 7/00.
 Fun Jazzizit JITCD 0434 Wellins; Mark Edwards (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Spike Wells (d). 04.

The Satin Album is an extended gloss on Billie Holiday's 1958 LP Lady In Satin. This is an altogether stronger group than on the Hot House release, and Wellins's interplay with Green is remarkable. 'I Get Along Without You Very Well' has the familiar self-possession and humour; but what follows, 'For All We Know', a wry plea of carpe diem, lifts the album at mid-point to a new height of emotional and philosophical sophistication.

The Best ... is a tribute to Tony Bennett, who though no kind of jazz singer has something of the same feel and presence as Wellins, a voice that always sounds up close and personal, always with a message for each specific listener, incapable of blandness or generality. The same singing quality shines through on Fun with a more recent working band. Well up to scratch.

(*) When The Sun Comes Out Trio Records TRCD572 Wellins; Mark Edwards (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Spike Wells (d). 6/05.
As good a description as any of hearing Wellins play. There is a depth of warmth, not just superficial heat, to all of his solos from the 2005 Appleby Festival, and he turns 'When You Wish Upon A Star' into something of rare and unsentimental beauty. Edwards and Wells (and Cleyndert on the title-track) have become settled and sympathetic collaborators and there is an ease and confidence to the whole group.

Dicky Wells (1907–85)

TROMBONE

Worked with various New York bands in the early '30s before spending eight years with Count Basie from 1938. Alcohol made him inconsistent but he was a gifted writer and was still playing in the '80s

---

* Dicky Wells 1927–1943 Classics 937 Wells; Bill Coleman, Shad Collins, Bill Dillard, Kenneth Roane, Gus McLung (t); Frankie Newton (t, v); John Williams, Fletcher Allen (cl, as); Cecil Scott (cl, ts, bs); Howard Johnson (as); Lester Young (ts); Don Frye, Ellis Larkins (p); Django Reinhardt, Roger Chaput, Freddie Green (g); Hubert Mann, Rudolph Williams (bj); Chester Campbell, Mack Walker (tba); Richard Fulbright, Al Hall (b); Lloyd Scott, Bill Beason, Jo Jones (d). 1/27–12/43.
(*) The Stanley Dance Sessions Lone Hill Jazz LHJR 10190 Wells; Buck Clayton (t); Vic Dickenson, Benny Morton, George Matthews (tb); Rudy Rutherford (cl, bs); Buddy Tate (ts, bs); Skip Hall (p, org); Kenny Burrell, Everett Barksdale (g); Major Holley (b); Jo Jones, Herbie Lovelle (d). 2/58–4/59.
The important tracks here are the dozen Wells headed up in Paris on two memorable July days in 1937. The first two groups feature the trombonist with Bill Coleman and Django Reinhardt, with Dillard and Collins making up a three-man trumpet section on three titles. With no piano and Reinhardt driving all before him, the ensembles have a sound at once mercurial and light and limber, with quite magnificent playing from Coleman and Wells. There isn't a note out of place on 'Between The Devil And The Deep Blue Sea', 'Sweet Sue', the blues 'Hangin' Around Boudon' and 'Japanese Sandman'. The next session is comparatively lightweight, but it ended on what were effectively two trombone solos with rhythm accompaniment, and Wells's seven choruses on 'Dicky Wells Blues' make up one of the great pieces of trombone improvisation on record. His sound introduces a sober gaiety into the instrument's lugubrious temperament, and his vibrato and sudden shouting notes make every chorus fresh and surprising.

The disc opens with seven tracks with which Wells made his debut, with Lloyd Scott and Cecil Scott: lively if unexceptional New York jazz of the '20s. It ends on a septet date for Signature, from 1943, with Coleman, Young and Larkins (playing the Basie role). They take 'I Got Rhythm' far too fast, but there's compensation in the next three titles, with Dicky playing a beautiful slow introduction to 'I'm Fer It Too'.

Wells can be heard to useful effect on many Basie records, but he rarely had his name above the marquee again. The exceptions were the two Stanley Dance-produced albums Bones For The King and Trombone Four In Hand, all of which – bar one track which couldn't be squeezed on – are on the Lone Hill Jazz reissue. If you like trombones, the disc is a must, and there is a lot of good-natured joshing – both instrumental and vocal, on the hilarious 'Sweet Daddy Spo-De-O' – among the four bonemen. The music has a rather frowsy feel to it but it's great fun.

Dick Wellstood (1927–87)

PIANO

Worked in Chicago and New York in the '50s and became a young upholder of swing and mainstream values, prized as band player and accompanist. A witty writer and dry humourist, and his early death when still in great form was a loss to the music.

 Uptown & Lowdown Prestige PRCD 24262 Wellstood; Herman Autrey (t); Gene Sedric (cl, as); Milt Hinton (b); Tommy Benford, Zutty Singleton (d). 7/60.
 Alone /  This Is The One – Dig! /  Live At Hanratty's Solo Art SACD 73 / 119 / Chiaroscuro 108 Wellstood (p solo). 70, 71; 75; 81.
 And His All-Star Orchestra Featuring Kenny Davern Chiaroscuro CRD 129 Wellstood; Kenny Davern (cl, ss); Bobby Rosengarden (d). 81.
A jobbing musician who was content to play supper-club dates, parties and tribute recordings to great predecessors like Waller, James P. Johnson and Art Tatum, Dick Wellstood is easily underestimated. Always up for a gig though he may have been, he was also a practising lawyer, and his easy, engaging stride approach masks a steel-trap understanding of every wrinkle of piano jazz, an eclecticism that allows him to play in virtually every idiom, from early ragtime to quasi-modal compositions from the shores opposite bop. He has a decent touch with a Monk tune, as he shows on the second of the discs above. Regrettably, much of his work has bloomed and faded in highly unappreciative settings and company, and he is not well-represented in the current catalogue. The early CD is actually shared with Cliff Jackson, but there's some fascinating archive in the shape of Wellstood playing with Jelly Roll Morton's drummer, Tommy Benford; worth it, too, for the tracks with Autrey, Sedric, Hinton and Singleton.

At the keyboard, he sounds most like a younger version of James P. Johnson, setting up big and forceful alternations in the left hand against a characteristic tremolo in the melody line. He favours huge, raw bass-figures and counters their jagged outlines with wonderfully subtle fills and footnotes. The Hanratty's date is a joyous romp with a brilliant medley dropped in amongst the short tracks. The 'orchestra' tracks with Davern are actually duos, with Rosengarden in for a few tracks towards the end. He liked a joke, did Dick, which explains 'Fat As A Bastard'. In his late fifties he tempered his approach slightly, enough to admit an occasional ballad, though often in very improbable keys.

(*) A Night In Dublin Arbors ARCD 19241 Wellstood (p solo). 2/77.
What it says on the box: Dick in an Irish bar, recorded by Ralph O'Callaghan on his then new reel-to-reel tape recorder, the tape sitting on his shelf for the next 23 years until Kenny Davern found it. He does 'Giant Steps' and a Paganini theme, alongside the more familiar 'Carolina Shout' and 'Maple Leaf Rag'; Trane's test-piece, 'Giant Steps', gets taken to the cleaners. Not quite as good as the Sticky Wicket marathon (below), but it's not far off, and the sound has been neatly cleaned up.

* Live At The Sticky Wicket Arbors ARCD 19188 2CD Wellstood (p solo). 11/86.
How often do we manage to laugh aloud in the course of the lonely pilgrimage that is the Penguin Guide To Jazz Recordings? Frankly, not that often, which makes this a particularly well-loved point in the journey. Wellstood's undentable good humour, lacking the sardonic bite of a Mose Allison or the surreal waywardness of a Slim Gaillard, has nevertheless warmed us many times over the past few years. Intended as a memorial and retrospective, this long set was recorded at the eponymous club in Hopkinton, Massachusetts, a location unknown to us, but graced by the great man's presence on this night. The programme is remorseless: 'St James Infirmary', 'Ain't Misbehavin'', 'The Entertainer', 'Maple Leaf Rag', 'Prelude To A Kiss' – in fact, 32 tracks that cover a vast gamut of jazz history, played with unaffected exuberance. A sheer delight from start to finish.

Alex Welsh (1929–82)

CORNET, VOICE

Despite the surname, he was a Scot. A fine cornetist, influenced by Wild Bill Davison (though he emphatically denied this). When Welsh died in 1982, Humphrey Lyttelton described the Welsh band's impact as a combination of 'romanticism and rage'.

(*) Live At The Royal Festival Hall 1954–55 Lake LACD 8 Welsh; Roy Crimmins (tb, v); Ian Christie, Archie Semple (cl); Fred Hunt (p); Nevil Skrimshire (g); Frank Thompson, Tom Page, Chris Staunton (b); Pete Appleby, Lennie Hastings (d). 10/54–4/55.
 It Has To Be Lake LACD 145 As above, except add George Melly, Dickie Valentine (v). 4–11/55.
 Vintage Alex Welsh 1955–1956 Lake LACD 179 Welsh; Roy Crimmins (tb); Archie Semple (cl); Fred Hunt (p); Nevil Skrimshire (g); Hugh Carey, Billy Lock, Tom Page, Chris Staunton, Frank Thompson (b); Lennie Hastings (d); George Melly, Neva Raphaello (v). 2/55–4/57.
 Dixieland To Duke Lake LACD 92 Welsh; Roy Crimmins (tb); Archie Semple (cl); Fred Hunt (p); Nigel Sinclair (g); Chris Staunton (b); Billy Lock, Johnny Richardson (d). 2/57–3/58.
 Music Of The Mauve Decade Lake LACD 62 Welsh; Roy Crimmins (tb); Len Doughty (vtb); Archie Semple (cl); Harry Gold (bsx); Fred Hunt (p); Bill Reid (b); Johnny Richardson (d). 59.
(*) Vintage Alex Welsh Band 1962 Jazzology JCDo-308 Welsh; Roy Crimmins (tb); Archie Semple (cl); Fred Hunt (p); Tony Pitt (g); Bill Reid (b); Lennie Hastings (d). 1/62.
The Welsh band was a unique and much-loved part of British jazz for many years. Lake have brought back most of the '50s recordings, which are often disconcertingly mixed: the Festival Hall sets are crashingly enthusiastic and will rekindle some happy memories, but some of the studio sessions on the likes of Dixieland To Duke and Mauve Decade walk an awkward line between crude Dixieland, trad and a more personal, bluesy synthesis. A good best-of from the period would probably be a welcome solution, provided it included 'New Orleans Masquerade' and 'You've Been A Good Old Wagon' from the 1955–1956 set by the Dixielanders. Jazzology have turned up a 1962 session from West Bridgeford's Dancing Slipper – foggy recording doesn't help, and the band aren't as together as on some nights, but Alex has some decent moments and it's loaded with atmosphere.

(*) Strike One Lake LACD 107 Welsh; Roy Williams (tb); John Barnes (as, bs, cl, v); Fred Hunt (p); Jim Douglas (g, bj); Ron Mathewson (b); Lennie Hastings (d). 6/66.
 Just One More Chance Upbeat Jazz URCD 191 Welsh; Roy Williams (tb); John Barnes (as, bs, cl); Al Gay (ss, ts); Fred Hunt (p); Jim Douglas (g, bj); Ron Mathewson, Ronnie Rae, Harvey Weston (b); Lennie Hastings (d). 66–72.
 Eddie Miller With Alex Welsh Jazzology JCD-298 Welsh; Roy Williams (tb); John Barnes (as); Al Gay (ts, cl); Eddie Miller (ts); Fred Hunt (p); Jim Douglas (g); Ron Rae (b); Lennie Hastings (d). 4/67.
The band changed markedly in approach during the '60s, a period during which the once teetotal Welsh acquired a famous thirst for vodka, moving away from the ragged, Chicagoan 'Condon style' towards a more orthodox swing approach. The sessions on Just One More Chance were recorded for the BBC's Jazz Club. Though the rhythms seem quite mechanical, there is some formidable playing throughout the band: notably from Welsh himself, with the mute, on 'I Wished On The Moon', from Roy Williams on that same tune and from the wonderful Barnes. The band's enormous success at Antibes in 1967 and at later American festivals seemed to do no more than reinforce internal divisions. The sets Welsh recorded for Lake are pretty much definitive of what the band was about, and Strike One is a cracking listen by any standard. Eddie Miller joined the band for a 1967 gig in Manchester: he squeaks all over 'Oh Baby', but things settle down after that, and by the end the band sound in great heart.

Also, in brief:

 Bones For The King Upbeat URCD 193. 66–72.
Another dig in the BBC archives. Some nice individual performances and some solid guest turns, but something of a sameness.

(*) Oh, Baby! Upbeat URCD 175. 12/79–10/81.
A couple of BBC broadcasts from the end of Alex's life. He still commands respect but there's a sad air of pointlessness.

Scott Wendholt (born 1965)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Contemporary post-bop trumpeter leading his own variations on a familiar theme.

 The Scheme Of Things Criss Cross Jazz 1078 Wendholt; Vincent Herring (ss, as); Kevin Hays (p); Dwayne Burno (b); Billy Drummond (d). 1/93.
 Through The Shadows Criss Cross 1101 Wendholt; Don Braden (ts, f); Bruce Barth (p); Ira Coleman (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/94.
 From Now On ... Criss Cross 1123 Wendholt; Steve Armour (tb); Steve Wilson (as); Tim Ries (ts, ss); Bruce Barth (p); Larry Grenadier (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/95.
 Beyond Thursday Double-Time DTRCD-128 Wendholt; Dave Berkman (p); Tony Scherr (b); Adam Watson (d). 6/97.
 What Goes Unsaid Double-Time DTRCD0164 Wendholt; Eric Alexander (ts); Anthony Wonsey (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Billy Drummond (d). 12/99.
Wendholt built up a solid little discography, which seemed to peter out around the turn of the decade. In almost 70 minutes of good, substantial post-bop on The Scheme Of Things there is plenty to enjoy, yet not much to remember. The most striking thing is the contrast with Herring, who has had a working quintet with the trumpeter: the saxophonist's sour, blue playing is a piquant alternative to the polished, processional manner of some of Wendholt's solos. The leader isn't terribly well served by the recording, and he sounds a bit thin on Freddie Hubbard's 'Birdlike', the sort of tune where a trumpeter should stand tall. But there is some impressive improvising, and his favourite device, a fast trill, comes in for clever use.

The writing on Through The Shadows is one point of advance; the other is the band, which man for man is arguably no stronger than the first but seems a more purposeful group for Wendholt's ideas. 'Totem' and the title-piece are especially strong, and the mid-tempo for Duke Pearson's 'You Know I Care' elicits a solo of real finesse and control by Wendholt. The third Criss Cross date is split between sextet tracks with Armour and Wilson and a quartet with Ries. Some of this sounds a bit rushed, as if the label's usual one-day-in-the-studio strategy put a strain on both groups, but there's little gainsaying the skill and crispness of the best playing.

Beyond Thursday is another one-day quickie, reuniting Wendholt with a rhythm section he used to play with at Augie's in New York. Being sole horn is a challenge he seems to rise to: this is probably his best showcase as a soloist, and the mix of clean, long notes and bubbling phrases which he pursues on 'The Party's Over' becomes the thematic thread of the date. Berkman plays Fender Rhodes, and its interesting sonorities work unexpectedly well, dark one moment, light and pneumatic the next. There's nothing extraordinary here, but it's handsomely done.

What Goes Unsaid goes back to unflashy post-bop of a conservative nature. Alexander sounds comparatively quiet here next to some of his own recent outings, and it's Wendholt himself who ranks as the most creative player on the date. The inward-looking cast of his playing, though, perhaps suggests why he's faded from view as far as leadership is concerned.

Kenny Werner (born 1951)

PIANO

A Brooklynite, Werner studied at Manhattan School and Berklee, then went to Brazil, before returning to gigs with Archie Shepp and, in the '80s, the Mel Lewis band. Led his own trio from 1981.

(*) Unprotected Music Double-Time DTRCD-139 Werner; Marc Johnson (b); Joey Baron (d). 12/97.

Werner is a beguiling player, perfectly at home in either a solo, trio or rhythm-and-horns date, and if on his earlier discs he can seem a little becalmed in his playing, it does gradually draw an attentive listener in.

A spare day of studio time brought forth this session of trio improvisations, new ground for Werner as far as an entire date is concerned, although there's one standard ('It's Alright With Me'), 'Greensleeves' is tailgunner for 'Hell Realm', and 'Tribute To Sonny' turns out to be akin to a Rollins calypso. Not free as in European improv, then; but these are more like wide-ranging thinkers than blank-canvas players anyway. Though titles such as 'Vague Wanderings' don't inspire confidence, Werner's lyricism resonates throughout, and it's a show of three considerable musicians enjoying themselves.

 Form And Fantasy /  Beat Degeneration Night Bird NBM 1001-2 / 1009-2 Werner; Johannes Weidenmüller (b); Ari Hoenig (d). 11/00.

Live sets from Paris. Werner's frustrating taste for light music invades too many of the tracks on the first disc, and when he does Eric Clapton's 'Tears From Heaven' you feel like paying your tab and leaving – but then you would miss a power-packed finale on 'Lonnie's Lament'. A very mixed bag, but the good stuff is enticing.

The second set is all originals. Werner's fast ones are a lot more useful than the slower pieces, which tend to send him back to his Bill Evans shoes and make the listener droop. There are some curious juxtapositions, rhythmically speaking, and a sense that something highbrow is going on. Again, certainly not a record to miss if you're a Werner admirer, but difficult to recommend generally.

(*) Peace Half Note 4516 As above. 4/03.

Back home at the Blue Note, Werner and trio turn in a more rugged set. The opening medley of Wayne Shorter's 'Pinocchio' and 'Fall' suggests that no prisoners will be taken and that there will be no lite-music compromises. As 'All Things Are You' (the source is obvious) unfolds, one suddenly realizes that Werner's problem is that he's so musically intelligent, he can be pretty much who and what he wants. Here, fortunately, it's Bud Powell and Thelonious Monk. 'Evidence' is a great reading and Horace Silver's title-tune is despatched with authority. In addition to the contrafact, Werner throws in a tribute to Billy Hart ('Jabali') and another lovely ballad ('Chach') of his own. Weidenmüller's terrific on the second of these.

* Democracy Half Note HNCD 4528 Werner; Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Matt Shulman (t); David Sanchez (ts); Scott Colley (b); Brian Blade (d). 2/06.

This one's as enigmatic as the cover, which has Kenny in a Stars and Stripes bow-tie but wearing shades and inscrutable. And how to read the opening 'Democracy Now'? Does he still believe in it, or is this a send-up? The writing's great, very strong, and this is a palpably fine band – we know Shulman from a Nneena Freelon record but he hasn't registered much apart from that – with power to spare but a certain delicacy as well. The closing 'Hedwig's Theme' is by James Williams, but it's Kenny's opening cadenza that makes it, and elsewhere it's his writing – 'One For Joni', 'Fish Gotta Fly' and 'Untitled Lament' (which seems expressively and musically related to the opener) – that makes this such a strong set. The Blue Note's a happy hunting ground for Werner. He's on fire for this.

* Lawn Chair Society Blue Note 74896 Werner; Dave Douglas (t); Chris Potter (ts); Scott Colley (b); Brian Blade (d). 3/07.

Kenny's face is covered here, too, behind a small sampling keyboard, but there's no mistaking the emotion that runs under this extraordinary record. The pianist lost his teenage daughter in a car accident and his grief (and pride and love) come through overwhelmingly on 'Loss' and 'Uncovered Heart' (which was originally written to mark her birth). Almost in compensation, there are harder-edged, more angular things, with elements of electronics. At first hearing, 'burble_burble-splerk' and 'west_coast_variant' seem to belong on a different record, and 'New Amsterdam' is funk. 'Lawn Chairs (And Other Foreign Policy)' revives the faintly satirical vein that runs underneath parts of Democracy. Subsequently, though, it all seems to make sense together. Douglas and Potter are squarely on board with the concept, the trumpeter playing some of his best stuff on another leader's record for years. Colley and Blade are one of the great contemporary bass and drums combinations. An essential modern album.

(*) The Delirium Blues Project: Serve Or Suffer Half Note HNCD 924534 Werner; Randy Brecker (t); Ray Anderson (tb); James Carter (ts); Geoff Countryman (bs); Adam Rogers (g); John Patitucci (b); Rocky Bryant (d); Roseanna Vitro (v). 8/07.
Werner and Vitro are friends and in the aftermath of his family tragedy they got together to tackle a new challenge (for him) and a return to some highly creative roots (for her), a set of songs that celebrate the blues as a wellspring for contemporary music. Vitro has a Texas and Arkansas background and her knowledge of a range of material covered here from Tower Of Power and Nina Simone to Joni Mitchell is strongly coloured by that background. The band's very fine too, with enough weight in the horns to deliver a real punch and, with Rogers chiming in at all the right spots, enough of a funk/rock/soul feel, too. A sidestep in Werner's career, but given how remarkable his work of recent years has been, an intriguing one.

Also, in brief:

(*) Beyond The Forest Of Mirkwood Enja 9121. 2/80.
Some nice playing, but the concept's shaky: how can you enjoy piano jazz when you fear meeting a hobbit at any moment?

() Meditations / () Copenhagen Calypso Steeplechase SCCD 31327 / 31346. 12/92; 10/93.
Brave and nondescript by turns, these solo recitals turn more than once to Coltrane, but rarely deliver a punch.

Frank Wess (born 1922)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, FLUTE

The Kansan became a stalwart of the Basie band and an impressive solo star. His tenor approach is somewhat influenced by Lester Young, and perhaps by Don Byas as well, but Wess's real importance is in making the flute a valid solo voice. He plays with a strong, correct tone and is a nimble improviser.

(*) Wess Point Fresh Sound FSRCD 469 Wess; Thad Jones, Joe Wilder (t); Henry Coker, Urbie Green, Bennie Powell (tb); Hank Jones, Jimmy Jones (p); Charles Mingus, Oscar Pettiford (b); Kenny Clarke, Osie Johnson (d). 54.
 The Frank Wess Quartet Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 11032 Wess; Tommy Flanagan (p); Eddie Jones (b); Bobby Donaldson (d). 5/60.
These might seem extravagant ratings for relatively early work, but Wess was already an experienced player when he made the dates for Commodore and Debut that are gathered on the excellent Fresh Sound compilation. This is the kind of material that often maligned label was born to make available again. 'Basie Ain't Here' is a significant title (included in two takes). The interest lies largely in the way Wess places himself relative to the trombonists and, with two of the solidest bass-players in the business working away below, it's a rich and resonant sound. Frank's solos are alternately lyrical and tearaway. His playing on Thad Jones's 'Bitty Ditty' is fantastic and the flute duo 'You're My Thrill' with Jimmy Jones is just great.

Wess's flute is a thing of beauty, a subtle, tender improvising voice. The first cut on the OJC (formerly Moodsville) is Alec Wilder's 'It's So Peaceful In The Country', a delightful rarity that is the perfect vehicle for Frank. Later, he tackles 'Stella By Starlight' (a switch to tenor), 'But Beautiful', 'Gone With The Wind', 'Star Eyes' and his own 'Rainy Afternoon'. Flanagan is at his most melodious and responsive and the bassist and drummer fit the bill perfectly.

 The Long Road Prestige 24247 Wess; Thad Jones, Al Aarons (t); Oliver Nelson (ts); George Barrow (bs); Tommy Flanagan, Gildo Mahones (p); George Duvivier, Buddy Catlett (b); Osie Johnson, Roy Haynes (d); Ray Barretto (perc). 3/62–1/63.
Wess's Prestige albums are little known and it's no surprise that they've waited this long for reissue. This disc couples Southern Comfort and the curiously titled Yo Ho! Frank Wess/Poor You, Little Me. Neither is, frankly, anything that special: the first employs an eight-strong line-up, but Oliver Nelson's writing is routine and little more than a prop for the solos, while the second is mostly about Wess's prettifying flute solos, with the CD's title-track taking an appropriately long time to get done.

 Going Wess Town Crier 518 Wess; Bobby Forrester (org); Clarence 'Tootsie' Bean (d). 9/93.
Wess hadn't recorded in this format previously and the results are a quiet delight. Forrester is very far removed from the Jimmy Smith style of organ playing, favouring a light and limber touch that is closer to regular pianism. Even so, he grooves convincingly and Bean is an amiable collaborator. Moving between tenor and flute, Frank creates a set that contains no big surprises, just pleasing music. Highlight: the closing 'Cotton Tail'.

 Surprise! Surprise! Gemini GMCD 84 Wess; Norman Simmons (p); Joe Cohn (g); Lynn Seaton (b); Jackie Williams (d). 8/93.
 Surprise! Surprise! Chiaroscuro CRD 350 2CD Wess; Frank Foster, Jimmy Heath, Flip Phillips (ts); Richard Wyands (p); Lynn Seaton (b, v); Winard Harper (d). 95.
The Gemini disc was recorded at Oslo's Rainbow Studio and engineered by Jan Erik Kongshaug, who is responsible for most of ECM's output. Predictably, it sounds as good as they get, even though on this occasion the band Wess assembled has some creaking elements. It would be unfair to point to individuals, beyond saying that the rhythm section don't sound so much unrehearsed as rather stiff and unswinging. Wess switches to flute for the brand-new 'Equal Parts', but for once he fails to convince, and it is his tenor solo on Ettore Stratta's 'Forget The Woman' which takes the laurels. Joe Cohn, son of saxophonist Al, wins credit for his elegant soloing and solid accompaniment.

Confusingly, the Chiaroscuro set has the same title as the earlier disc. This double set was recorded as part of a jazz cruise and the addition of a couple of guest stars lifts the gently relaxed mood up a notch. Among the walk-ons is Jimmy Heath on a long, long version of 'All The Things You Are', while the veteran Flip Phillips turns the engines back to full ahead for a steaming version of 'Cottontail'. The outstanding moment, though, is the renewed partnership with old Basie compadre Frank Foster for a powerfully sweeping version of 'My Funny Valentine', a showcase for Wess's flute. Seaton takes a couple of vocals and Wyands makes his presence felt with some excellent solo choruses, notably on 'Friendship' … which is probably the keynote of the album.

 Without A Doubt Koch 7896 Wess; Mark Egan (ts); Frank Vignola (g); Joe Ascione (d). 10/00.
Frank was approaching 80 when this was recorded. It's nominally co-led with guitarist Vignola, who's done everything from this kind of bop-tinged jazz to pop music, but always seems to produce his best when so challenged. Wess sticks to flute for much of the way, largely because Egan handles the tenor parts, but his flute-playing is so idiomatic and so characterful that there's no feeling he's stuck to a 'second' instrument. Boldly, most of the material is new, but it sounds well-seasoned and played in.

Ken Wessel (born 1956)

GUITAR

From White Plains, NY. He made a mark in various improvising situations.

 Jawboning CIMP 318 Wessel; Ken Filiano (b); Lou Grassi (d). 9/04.

Wessel made an impression on previous visits to the CIMP studio, but this was a surprise: a lovely, thoughtful version of Arthur Schetzinger's 'I Remember You' and a completely unexpected round-the-houses approach to 'Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise'. As if to balance that, Ken included his own ballad 'Sunset', a highlight of the set. Somehow, one doesn't associate the label with this kind of music, but it suits the philosophy well. Filiano and Grassi offer dedicated support, the bassist's clipped phrases and rolling lines neatly interspersed as context dictates.

Bugge Wesseltoft (born 1964)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS, ELECTRONICS, VOICE

Active as a keyboard-player in Norwegian jazz since the beginning of the '90s, Wesseltoft is seeking out new fusion forms with his own groups.

(*) New Conception Of Jazz Sonet 537251-2 Wesseltoft; Jens Petter Antonsen, Erlend Gjerde, Sjur Miljeteig (t); Vidar Johansen (ss, bcl); Trude Eick (waldhorn); Ingebrigt Håker Flaten, Sveinung Hovensjø, Bjørn Kjellemyr (b); Audun Kleive (d, elec); Rune Arnesen, Anders Engen (d). 1/95–8/96.

 It's Snowing On My Piano ACT 9260-2 Wesseltoft (p solo). 10/97.

 Sharing Jazzland 538278-2 Wesseltoft; Erlend Gjerde, Nils Petter Molvaer (t); Vidar Johansen (ss); Ingebrigt Håker Flaten (b); Anders Engen, Paal Nilssen-Love (d); DJ Olle Abstract, DJ Pål Strangefruit (turntables); Jan Bang (d prog); Sidsel Endresen (v). 98.

Wesseltoft first made an impact at the start of the '90s, when he recorded with Arild Andersen and Jan Garbarek. Those associations give only a partial impression of what he is about, for alongside the classically tinged filigree he has created his own intriguing synthesis of jazz, funk and hip-hop, a project which goes out under the umbrella title New Conception Of Jazz.

There is nothing on either NCOJ record which would have astonished Miles Davis or perturbed the M-Base collective in its heyday. Wesseltoft's strength doesn't lie in the originality of the approach so much as in the distinctive character of the soundscapes he creates, intimate and lyrical with a strangely off-kilter quality which is either immediately beguiling or irritating. The earliest record is certainly the most adventurous, a sometimes edgy, questioning album that, in 'Spectre Supreme' and 'Modular' in particular, asks fascinating questions about where jazz is going at the end of the '90s. Though the emphasis is largely on texture and pure sound, there is also some great linear playing, as on 'Trio' with Kjellemyr and Arnesen.

Sharing is content to rest on a settled formula – or, rather, a settled eclecticism. It's a much more polished record, technically assured and superbly cast. Sidsel Endresen, with whom Bugge has recorded before, and since on Out Here In There, contributes a delightful vocal to 'You Might Say', one of the less heavily treated items on the set. A bonus three-track disc came with the limited-edition first release. It included one all-acoustic track, 'Tune In', which underlines once again what a god Miles was and is to this generation of Scandinavian players. Not so much a matter of sound or syntax, more the confidence to place sounds and gestures and let them stand for nothing but themselves. Saxophonist Vidar Johansen is a sensitive and responsive partner with a very similar approach, but it would have been good to have heard more of Nils Petter Molvaer, who has gone on to make his own new synthesis of styles. The young trumpeter is magnificent on 'Breen'n'Glue'.

The other album is Wesseltoft's debut as a solo pianist. It is, ahem, a Christmas record, a mixture of traditional themes like 'Stille Nacht', 'O Little Town Of Bethlehem' and 'In Dulci Jubilo' and original compositions. Magnificently recorded by Jan Erik Kongshaug at Rainbow Studios in Oslo.

Also, in brief:

 Moving Jazzland 013534-2. 11/01.

He tries to inject tough musical thinking into music tyrannized by beats; soft, insidious details are asked to count for possibly too much.

(*) Film'Ing Jazzland 9866123. 02.

Bedroom-album soundscapes and a brisk Nordic version of Milesian jazz-funk.

 Im Jazzland 1743585. 11/07.

With Mari Boine (v); strange and atmospheric, but increasingly removed from our concerns.

Kate Westbrook

VOICE, TENOR HORN, PICCOLO

Although closely associated with her husband's work, Kate is a fine writer and performer in her own right, with a brilliant approach to text.

(*) Goodbye, Peter Lorre Jazzprint VP 346 Westbrook; John Alley, Mike Westbrook (p); Fine Trash (v). 96.

* Cuff Clout Voiceprint VP 310 Westbrook; Stuart Brooks (t); Andy Grappy (tba); Tim Holmes (sno, ss); Barbara Thompson (ss); Peter Whyman (ss, as); Alan Barnes (as); Chris Biscoe (ss, as); Mike Carr (org); Laka Daisical (p, ky); John Alley, Errollyn Wallen (p); Pete Lemer (syn); Billy Thompson (vn); Steve Brown, Jon Hiseman, Sebastian Rochford (d); Neil Percy (perc); John Winfield (v). 11/01.

* The Nijinska Chamber Voiceprint 383 Westbrook; Karen Street (acc). 07.

We have always been rather curmudgeonly about Kate Westbrook's highly theatrical vocal style. Out of context, it can jar. In its place, though, it is a powerful vehicle for strong lyrics, better at tough affirmation than at more reflective inscape. Kate has worked most frequently in the context of husband Mike's various groups, but she has also run her own group, the Skirmishers.

Goodbye, Peter Lorre is an odd, awkward hybrid, recommendable only to established fans, but Cuff Clout is another matter. Alarmingly subtitled a 'neoteric music hall', this astonishing piece of work is a loosely organized entertainment by Kate's

Skirmishers, a group of doughty (ir)regulars who snipe away at all signs of pretension, injustice and cruelty. Hence pieces about the invention of barbed wire, a narrative turning of the tables that makes Toad's washerwoman the heroine rather than the overblown amphibian himself, along with sundry bittersweet love songs. The composers concerned (all working to Kate's texts) are as various as Eleanor Alberga, Barbara Thompson, Jenni Roditi, James MacMillan and Errollyn Wallen. A floating personnel supports Kate and fellow vocalist John Winfield. Starring items are Thompson's strange rock-rap 'Oceans, Straits, Currents And Seas' and Chris Biscoe's 'Joseph F. Glidden Of De Kalb, Illinois', a tale of the man who first exploited mankind's cruellest invention. It's all stirring and moving stuff, and one looks forward to seeing it staged.

The life of choreographer Bronislava Nijinska provides the inspiration for the most recent piece, a collaboration with composer Mike Westbrook and accordionist Karen Street. It's a moving piece, and Kate's voice has attained an intriguing balance between high drama, genuine pathos and a kind of emotional equilibrium not always encountered in previous work.

Mike Westbrook (born 1936)

COMPOSER, PIANO, TUBA

Studied painting but turned to music and, on arriving in London in 1962, set about composing and arranging for groups of many different shapes and sizes. Worked widely in theatre and occasionally in TV, and has frequently worked on major, revisionist settings of British icons from Blake to the Beatles.

 Celebration / (*) Release Universal 9866890 / Deram 844 851-2 Westbrook; Dave Holdsworth (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths (tb); Paul Rutherford (tb on Release only); Dave Perrottet (vtb on Celebration only); Tom Bennelick (frhn); George Smith (tba on Celebration only); John Surman (ss, bs, bcl); Mike Osborne (as); Bernie Living (as, f); Dave Chambers (ts, cl on Celebration only); George Khan (ts on Release only); Harry Miller (b); Alan Jackson (d). 7–8/67; 8/68.

(*) Marching Song Deram 844 853-2 2CD As above, except omit Perrottet, Smith, Chambers; add Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Greg Bowen, Tony Fisher, Ronnie Hughes, Henry Lowther (t); Mike Gibbs, Eddie Harvey (tb); Martin Fry (tba); Alan Skidmore (ts, f); John Warren (as, bs, f); Brian Smith (ts); Barre Phillips (b); John Marshall (d). 69.

Britain's neglect of one of its most distinguished contemporary composers amounts to a national disgrace. Westbrook's regular groups have drawn from a startling range of musical and performance backgrounds.

The Concert Band was probably the most straightforwardly jazz-influenced of all, Ellingtonian in sound and in intention, profoundly engaged and committed – as the anti-war agenda of these early discs underlines – and already theatrical in ways that suggested Westbrook had been listening to Charles Mingus's long-form works as well. Like both Mingus and Ellington, Westbrook has the ability to make what on paper look like relatively conventional horn voicings sound utterly original. The more abstract and expressionist tone-poems of subsequent years, and most notably Metropolis, retreated slightly from that dramatic premiss, but it has never been absent in 30 years' music-making.

Westbrook's early recordings for Deram still sound fresh and vigorous on CD. He had founded his original Concert Band as early as 1958, recruiting John Surman shortly thereafter, and then expanding the group to something like the ensemble that started giving concert performances of Celebration and Marching Song, both of which were shortened for recording.

Surman is the main soloist and co-composer on the first album, mostly on baritone, but checking in with a roiling soprano solo on 'Awakening', which also features Mike Osborne. Ossie, sounding close to his best on these recordings, is the main soloist on another Surman composition, 'Image'. Hints of Westbrook's later interest in the possibilities of rock rhythms surface on 'A Greeting'. By contrast, his limited exploration of free improvisation is evident on 'Echoes And Heroics', an intense ostinato over which Surman and Osborne, Malcolm Griffiths and Dave Holdsworth improvise at high intensity.

As the title hints, Release extended Westbrook's interest in freedom. Though hailed by his admirers as an advance on Celebration, it has always seemed to us a less accomplished album, rather bitty and perhaps rather too intent on dramatic impact. A continuous concert linked by cadenzas, it this time mixes in standards as well: 'Lover Man', 'Flying Home', 'Gee, Baby, Ain't I Good To You', 'Sugar' and, unexpectedly, 'The Girl From Ipanema'. Two versions of 'Folk Song' and 'Take Me Back' confirm the absolute importance of John Surman to the mission, and it's still the saxophone-players who take the bulk of solo space.

As its military theme perhaps dictates, brass begins to dominate on Marching Song: a long, fraught exploration of how patriotism corrodes into horror and disillusion. First heard at the Camden Festival in the spring of 1969, it may well have been inspired by 50th-anniversary commemorations the previous November of the end of the First World War. In the opening sequence, over a background of crowd noises, the band marches off round the stereo field while trumpeter Dave Holdsworth expresses the individual soldier's enthusiasm for the cause. A quieter section immediately follows, almost as if doubts and fears are already present. Bernie Living's overdubbed solo has a restless, almost schizophrenic quality. The twinned basses create a bed for Surman and Osborne, performing powerfully again. Huge ensemble chords signal a further change of mood, opening up a singing soprano feature by Surman which seems to nod in the direction of John Coltrane. Paul Rutherford is the featured soloist on 'Other World', before the drums kick in with 'Marching Song' itself. The drama is kept balanced until, in 'Conflict', the apocalypse is unleashed. This is some of the most violent music you'll encounter within these pages, an angry, despairing statement which is all the more powerful for its sheer physicality. George Smith's tuba solo is a quite remarkable statement. 'Requiem' and 'Memorial' document the inevitable aftermath, but with a weary, disillusioned tonality which is far more disturbing even than what has gone before.

(*) Love Songs Dutton Vocalion CDSML 8407 Westbrook; Dave Holdsworth (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths, Paul Rutherford (tb); Mike Osborne (as); George Khan (ts); John Warren (bs); Chris Spedding (g); Harry Miller (b); Alan Jackson (d); Norma Winstone (d). 3 & 4/70.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, Westbrook's brand of love song is a bit different to the usual. These are intriguingly chastened, containing no bitterness but the possibility of bitterness, edged with experience as much as rapture and shaped by real life rather than art. The cast is nostalgically familiar to anyone who follows British jazz of the period and Winstone's vocals are among her best on record of the period. Powerful work from Osborne and the two trombonists as well.

 Metropolis BGO CD 454 Broadly similar to sets above. 8/71.
We always considered this a modern classic, a near-perfect example of Westbrook's ability to create musical structures and contexts flexible enough to be performed by anything from a conventional small combo to the largest big band. The material that makes up Metropolis had been played by forces ranging from a quartet to 25 musicians by the time it was recorded. In retrospect, it sounds strangely bitty, fragmentary rather than cohesive, and much less securely rehearsed and performed than the Deram records above on which Westbrook's reputation rests.

Essentially, it is a further attempt on that modernist cliché, a sonic evocation of the urban dream/nightmare. It opens with a chaotic septet improvisation, two plangent trombones, two saxophones and rhythm, before kicking off into a driving, rock-tinged riff which surfaces here and there throughout the record, opposed to a softly questioning, rising figure which has always seemed to us a latter-day version of the nightingale in Berkeley Square.

The suite restarts with a second improvisation in which Ray Warleigh's flute segues seamlessly into Norma Winstone's voice, which is used instrumentally throughout. Malcolm Griffiths, Henry Lowther and, before them, Alan Skidmore and Dave Holdsworth all solo effectively in the early stages of the disc. Where Charles Mingus would have cheerfully mixed genres and juxtaposed elements, Westbrook tries to create a work out of whole cloth. Heard again after a gap of some years, Metropolis comes across as repetitive and episodic, an awkward hybrid of free jazz and fusion. Its moments of beauty – like Winstone's first entry, Skidmore's first solo and Harry Beckett's mournful coda – are breathtaking, but the album as a whole has lost its early impact.

 Solid Gold Cadillac / Brain Damage BGO BGOCD 471 2CD
Westbrook; Malcolm Griffiths (tb); George Khan (ts, elec sax, f); Fiachra Trench (p, org, v); Brian Godding, Dick Morecambe, Chris Spedding (g); Roy Babbington (b); Butch Potter (b, g); Alan Jackson (d, perc); Phil Minton (v, t). 72–73
Fondly remembered, these were Westbrook's response to contemporary rock. They stand up surprisingly well, though the sound is pretty ugly by contemporary standards, despite Trench's sterling efforts as producer. A pungent live band, Solid Gold Cadillac never quite worked in the studio, though George Khan's lusty saxophone and the cranked-up guitars do generate some energy.

 Citadel/Room 315 BGO BGOCD Westbrook; Nigel Carter, Derek Healey, Henry Lowther, Kenny Wheeler (t); Paul Rutherford (tb, euph); Malcolm Griffiths (tb); Geoff Perkins, Alf Reece (btb); Mike Page (as, f, bcl); John Holbrooke (ts, f); John Warren (bs, f); Dave McRae (p); Brian Godding (g); Chris Laurence (b); Alan Jackson (d); John Mitchell (perc). 75.
This, for some reason, hasn't worn quite as well as Metropolis, though it has the Ellingtonian richness of the earlier groups married to a new and more abstract energy. The brasses are magnificent and as so often at this period dominate the music entirely in places, with the saxophones filling a choral sound in the middle register. Fine stuff and an excellent composition, but contemporary recording standards didn't flatter it.

(*) Mama Chicago Voiceprint JPVP139 Westbrook; Phil Minton (t, v); Malcolm Griffiths (tb, btb); Kate Westbrook (thn, picc, v); Mick Page (ss, ts, bs); Chris Hunter (ss, as, f); Dave Barry (d, perc). 79.
Originally commissioned by the Crucible Theatre, Sheffield, as a musical about Al Capone, this wonderful jazz cabaret is among the most completely satisfying of Westbrook's works, which makes its long absence all the more galling. It stands up well after nearly 30 years, with a fine mixture of high drama and excellent, thoughtful music. Westbrook's melodic sophistication was at its height in this period and this vintage version of the band delivers the charts with roguish authority.

CORE COLLECTION

* On Duke's Birthday
Voiceprint JPVP138 Westbrook; Phil Minton (t, v); Stuart Brooks (t, flhn); Danilo Terenzi (tb); Chris Biscoe (reeds); Brian Godding (g); Dominique Pifarély (vn); Georgie Born (clo); Steve Cook (b); Tony Marsh (d); Kate Westbrook (v, thn, picc). 5/84.
Westbrook's finest hour: not because the album somehow draws its authority from the Ellington association but because it does not. If this were called New Compositions it would still be remarkable, and might even be admired more by those who rather casually took it as a self-important bid for Ellington's eminence. Truth is, Westbrook's writing here is very much in that great tradition, but with a generation of further musical thought and a wide sweep through the tradition put behind it. The opening piece, 'Checking In At Hotel La Prieure', manages to contain an extraordinary range of harmonic and melodic variation within passages of flailing swing. The writing on 'East Stratford Too-Doo' and the Gil Evans-like title-track, which form the main section of the piece, are harmonically sophisticated, rigorously arranged and played with dazzling liberty by the soloists: Westbrook imposes Ducal discipline on his 'sections' but offers commensurate liberty. A modern masterpiece, returned to circulation after a long delay.

 The Orchestra Of Smith's Academy Enja ENJ 9358-2
Westbrook; orchestra includes Andy Grappy (tba); Chris Biscoe, Alan Barnes, Peter Whyman, Alan Wakeman (sax); Pete Saberton (ky); Anthony Kerr (vib); Dominique Pifarély (vn); Steve Berry (b); Peter Fairclough (d); Kate Westbrook (v). 9/92–7/95.
In 1992 Westbrook was offered a retrospective at the Catania Festival in Sicily. This album represents the middle night of three and music all written round the matrix of what he calls the 'Smith's Hotel Chord', which Westbrook discovered at the hostelry of that name in Glasgow during a 1983 tour. Developing materials out of the chord, Westbrook often liked to place different rhythmic cycles side by side, as on the innovative recreation of 'I.D.M.A.T. (It Don't Mean A Thing)' and the exquisite harmonies of 'So We'll Go No More A-Roving', which reworks Westbrook's original 'Smith's Hotel Chord' as a feature for Chris Biscoe's emotive alto.

The most interesting aspect of the set is its dependence on the blues, albeit in heterodox forms. 'Checking In', a feature for Anthony Kerr, Dominique Pifarély and Pete Saberton, has a 24-bar structure. 'Measure For Measure' is a bizarre 12-bar form grafted onto classical sonata with free elements superadded. Very strange. 'Blighters' is another feature for Kate Westbrook, adapted from a text by Siegfried Sassoon.

Kerr and Pifarély are reunited to front 'Viennese Waltz'. As throughout the album, solos are recorded much less effectively than ensembles, and the violinist in particular sounds as if he is standing on the brink of a vast empty water tank.

(*) Stage Set ASC CD 9 Westbrook; Kate Westbrook (v). 11/95.
(*) Bar Utopia ASC CD 13 Westbrook; Andy Bush, Noel Langley (t); Paul Edmonds, James McMillan (t, flhn); Mark Bassey, Tracy Holloway, Adrian Lane (tb); Andy Grappy (tba); Dave Bitelli (as, ts, cl); Peter Whyman (as, ss, cl); Chris Biscoe (as); Alan Wakeman (ts); Karen Street (ts, acc); Chris Caldwell (bs); Anthony Kerr (vib); Stanley Adler (clo); Steve Berry (b); Peter Fairclough (d); Kate Westbrook, John Winfield (v). 10/96.

The Westbrooks have continued to plough what seems a lonely furrow in the mid-'90s. Their particular brand of music theatre, whether miniaturized and personalized, as in Stage Set, or else scaled up ambitiously, as in Bar Utopia, consistently receives critical garlands … and no support. (There are other sets, including Cortège and Bright As Fire – the Blake – which are not reviewed in this edition.) The big-band set has all the Westbrook signatures: subtle ideas, bravura theatrical writing and ample space for improvisation. The overture is dedicated to Jelly Roll Morton and his 1926 recording 'The Chant', a household god who doesn't entirely explain what happens subsequently. The three distinct groups who perform on 'Bar Utopia' itself are nicely distributed, and solo space throughout the record is always subordinate to structural dictates.

We are not great fans of Stage Set. Hampered by Kate Westbrook's increasingly mannered singing and by the rather sparse setting, it engages neither mind nor emotions, as Bar Utopia does on occasion.

(*) Platterback PAO 10530 Westbrook; Kate Westbrook, John Winfield (v); Karen Street (v, acc); Stanley Adler (v, clo). 98.

As before, the piece draws on a whole range of styles, from Ellington-tinged jazz to cabaret song and quasi-serial structures. It evokes a landscape crowded with story and with cultural associations. John Winfield's voice is an engaging foil to Kate Westbrook's and, with three other vocalists in the line-up, the emphasis is very largely on texts and words; but it is their integration with an often minimalist backing that makes them so powerfully effective.

* Chanson Irresponsable Enja 9456 2 Westbrook; Stuart Brooks (t, flhn); Jane Hanna (frhn); Chris Biscoe (as, acl); Peter Whyman (as, ss, cl, bcl); Karen Street (ts, acc); Dave Bitelli (bs, cl); Neil McTaggart, Mark Wilson (vn); David Lasserson (vla); Chris Allan (clo); Tim Harries (b); Sebastian Rochford (d); Matthew Sharp, Kate Westbrook (v). 02.

This musically ambitious work takes as its starting point the distinctive song of one of the most popular bird migrants to Britain, the sedge warbler. Westbrook's transcription and transformation of its song aren't Messiaen-like, in either intent or outcome, but have something of the same concentration and mystery. The vocalists and saxophonists develop the song and the piece moves through the various stages of the birds' reorientation and nesting. It ends with one of them being killed by a domestic cat and the New Orleans-style funeral that follows. The texts, by Kate, are sung in a variety of European languages. It's a clever and funny idea and musically one of the Westbrooks' most interesting works for some years, a purple patch that also yielded Kate's Cuff Clout.

(*) L'Ascenseur/The Life Jazzprint JPVP 130 Westbrook; Chris Biscoe (ss, as, ts, bs, picc); Kate Westbrook (thn). 9/02.

To mark the 20th-anniversary tour, a journeying set that sees the Westbrooks and their adopted range far afield – Rome, Duisburg, Western Australia – absorbing impressions of places, plants and people. The original conception was by Kate, but the piece was developed by the trio and it has a cheerfully eclectic cast, along with a good deal of harmonic subtlety. It's perhaps less raw and more polished than works of the past, but marks another fascinating stage in the couple's creative evolution.

(*) The Waxeywork Show (And All That Jazz) Voiceprint 140 Westbrook; Mike Brewer (t); Sam Smith (tb); Kate Westbrook (thn, v); Stan Willis (as); Gary Bayley (ts). 07.

The Village Band is obviously an evolution out of the old Brass Band, and the premiss that here are a bunch of instrumentalists you might be able to convoke for something on the village green in South Devon (from where these guys all hail), is an attractive one. The charts, needless to say, have nothing to do with that kind of amateurism, in however positive a sense. They're demanding and sophisticated, and while Westbrook's brand of bruised pastoralism can sometimes be wearing, it's perfectly pitched and weighted here. A genuinely beautiful record with real musical substance.

Also, in brief:

 Love Songs Vocalion CDSML 8407. 70.

A relatively forgotten item in the Westbrook canon, but usefully revived. Words by Carole Mennis; vocals by the peerless Norma Winstone.

 Piano Impetus IMP 17624. 76.

A rare glimpse of Westbrook the solo pianist. The ideas are nice; the playing doesn't have much character.

 Pierides Jazzprint JPVP 119. 86.

A fine mid-'80s set by the Dance Band. Mythological pun, ahoy!

West Jesmond Rhythm Kings

GROUP

Formed in Newcastle in 1986, under the stewardship of Mike Durham, they're one of the most effective of the current British trad groups.

 Shake 'Em Loose Lake LACD 45 Mike Durham (t, v); Bob King (tb); Derek Fleck (cl, ss, as); Danny Dunbar (cl); Brian Chester (p); Keith Stephen (bj); Philip Rutherford (sou); Jim Stewart (d). 3/94.

 Chicago Buzz Lake LACD 74 As above, except omit Dunbar, Stewart; add Norman Field (cl, as, ts); Peter Soulsby (d, wbd). 9/96.

 Jazz Lips Lake LACD 119 As above, except omit Field, King; add Barry Soulsby (cl); Brian Chester (p,tb). 1–2/99.

(*) Jubilee Stomp Lake LACD 173 As above, except omit Peter Soulsby, Barry Soulsby; add Ron Horton (d, wbd); add Keith Nichols (ss, p). 6/02.

The WJRK are a superior example of the sometimes maligned genre of British traditional jazz. Mike Durham's scholarship ensures that the band has something like 600 tunes in its book, and they are among the very few such outfits to take on American revivalists at their own game when it comes to unearthing scarce repertoire; very few warhorses and a great many rarities here.

There's nothing ragged about the group's playing, but if there's a want of anything, it's a certain abandon: they never really let rip the way some of their American counterparts do, and a lot of the time the playing sounds a bit too careful. We give Jubilee Stomp a token extra notch since the presence of guest Keith Nichols seems to raise their game a whit: at least it takes some of the pressure off Brian Chester, who otherwise has to play the difficult double of piano and trombone.

Randy Weston (born 1926)

PIANO

Strongly influenced by lessons with Monk, the impressively proportioned Weston – he is 6'5", hence 'Hi-Fly' – spent the late '60s and early '70s in North Africa, an experience that coloured his playing from then on.

(*) Solo, Duo, Trio Milestone MCD 47085 Weston; Sam Gill (b); Art Blakey (d). 4/54, 1/55.

Weston cuts such an impressive figure that his marginal critical standing remains an enigma. Though dozens of players every year turn to the joyous 'Hi-Fly' theme, few of them probe any deeper into Weston's output.

These sides were originally released on 10-inch and 12-inch Riverside sets. The duos with Sam Gill were issued as Plays Cole Porter In A Modern Mood and even now they are startling reinventions of well-trodden material. Weston's percussive delivery and rhythmic hardness transform the tunes and Gill's fine melodic sense creates a second tier of interest even in the most seemingly literal interpretation, as on 'In The Still Of The Night'.

The trios with Blakey are inevitably yet more upbeat and the influence of Monk and Tadd Dameron is immediately obvious. Weston's soloing is sonorous, intensely logical but never predictable, and harmonically adventurous. These are important restorations to the discography and strongly recommended to lovers of piano jazz who are not willing to pay Mosaic prices for early Weston.

 Get Happy Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1870 Weston; Sam Gill (b); Wilbert Hogan (d). 8/55.

 With These Hands ... Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1883 Weston; Cecil Payne (bs, as); Ahmed Abdul-Malik (b); Wilbert Hogan (d). 3/56.

(*) Jazz A La Bohemia Original Jazz Classics OJC 1747 Weston; Sam Gill (b); Al Dreares (d). 10/56.

 The Modern Art Of Jazz Dawn DCD 107 Weston; Ray Copeland (t); Cecil Payne (as, bs); Ahmed Abdul-Malik (b); Wilbert Hogan, Willie Jones (d). 11/56.

For the clearest sense of what Weston gained – harmonically, rhythmically, spiritually – from his trip to Africa, it's necessary only to compare his work of recent years with these earlier sets. It isn't the case that Weston passively 'discovered' African rhythms and tonalities on one of his early-'60s study trips. As one can clearly hear from the Africanized inflexions of the Riverside sessions, Weston went in search of confirmation for what he was already doing. Abdul-Malik had a turn of phrase that was very different from anyone else of the time. 'You Go To My Head' on A La Bohemia has a quality quite unlike the average standards performance of the time, and Payne's solemn baritone here and on the other 1956 recordings suggests a Central African drone.

After his Riverside contract expired, Weston recorded for Dawn with a somewhat augmented band. The Modern Art of Jazz might be less appealing than the preceding discs, but it does represent an important step in Weston's development as a 'world' artist, and the originals, 'Loose Wig', 'A Theme For Teddy' and 'J.K. Blues', are all foretastes of a vein he was to refine in coming years.

(*) Trio & Sextet: From 52nd Street To Africa Fresh Sound FSRCD 433 Weston; Ray Copeland (t); Frank Haynes (ts); George Joyner. Bill Wood (b); G. T. Hogan, Lenny McBrowne (d); Big Black (perc). 7/58, 10/66.

A valuable reissue, in that it fills a long chronological gap in the Weston discography. The subtitle is slightly misleading, but listening to this music reinforces the impression that Weston's sojourn in Africa did not so much open his eyes and ears to something new as confirm directions he was already taking. The first half-dozen tracks are taken from the Newport Festival in 1958 with Joyner and Hogan (and a couple of overlong announcements from MC Allan Morrison): brisk, bright playing with a strong rooting in bop but with a cadence and three-quarter time feel that sharply distinguishes these performances from the superficially similar Monk. 'Hi-Fly' is appropriately joyous and there is an interesting excerpt from the Bantu Suite. The remaining pieces are workmanlike blues. A small group of sextet performances from the Both/And Club in San Francisco nearly a decade later do seem to reflect a more subtle and individual performer, but even in these longish tracks Weston sounds overpowered by the arrangements and by some rather unsubtle horn soloing. Even so, these help round out a valuable selection.

 African Nite /  Nuit Africaine Owl 014 732 2 / Enja ENJ 2086 Weston (p solo). 9/75.

The Owl disc is distinguished by lovely sound and what sounds like a rather special piano. 'Jejuka' anticipates some of what lay ahead; 'Portrait Of Myriam Makeba' (sic) is an affectionate backward glance. The Enja is equally nicely produced, but 'Little Niles' is the standout, a warm dedication to his son.

 Ancient Future / Blue Mutable Music 17508/2 2CD Weston (p solo). 3/83–6/01.

At first blush, Weston sounds similar to the Abdullah Ibrahim of the period, but listen longer to things like 'Isis' and 'Ballad For T' (both on Ancient Future) and it's clear that all sorts of other inputs are at work. Apart from anything else, Weston does not follow Ibrahim's practice of reinforcement by repetition; he allows melodic figures to do their work and then lets them go. This is a very attractive package packed with 23 mostly short tracks.

 Earth Birth Verve Gitanes 537088 Weston; Christian McBride (b); Billy Higgins (d); strings. 7/95.

 Khepera Verve 557821-2 Weston; Benny Powell (tb); Talib Kibwe (as, f); Pharoah Sanders (ss, ts); Alex Blake (b); Victor Lewis (d); Chief Bey (perc, v); Neil Clark (perc); Min Xiao Fen (pipa, gong). 2/98.

It might be mischievous to say it, but Earth Birth confirms a certain prejudice about Canada. The (excellent) trio is backed by members of the Montreal Symphony, who sound as if they are reading the notes in a very cold room. Classic tunes like 'Hi-Fly', 'Little Niles' and 'Pam's Waltz' are robbed of presence and passion, and though Weston's only solos are well up to scratch, the formula (Melba Liston arrangements notwithstanding) fails to catch light.

Weston's Verve catalogue is now much diminished. Khepera is more or less a world music project, with very little space for jazz improvisation. 'Anu Anu' and 'The Shrine' are the tracks which maintain most connection with Weston's earlier career, but this time he seems bent on an 'ethnic' sound and feel. The results are perfectly attractive and the record isn't unsubtle, but it's not the most compelling performance by the pianist himself.

* Spirit: The Power of Music Sunnyside SSCD 3015 Weston; Benny Powell (tb); Talib Kibwe (as, f); Alex Blake (b); Neil Clarke (d, perc); Master Gnawa Musicians Of Marrakech And Tanger. 9/00.

This reunion with the Gnawa Masters, whom he knew from his time in North Africa, was recorded in Brooklyn, but far from being a carefully packaged rerun of a successful collaboration it feels like a climactic encounter that clinches a lot of unfinished business. Weston begins the set alone on 'Receiving The Spirit', which serves as ritual prologue to the truly astonishing music that is to follow. He is joined by the band, who build up the energy still further, Kibwe in particularly vibrant form. Then the Moroccans enter and the music audibly lifts onto a new plane. There is genuine spirit in these performances, which are difficult to verbalize and impossible to forget.

Also, in brief:

 African Rhythms Comet CD 028. 6/69.
This reissues a couple of obscure French trio-plus-percussion dates. Niles Weston lines up with Dad.

 Zep Tepi Random Chance 27. 12/05.
Weston and his African Rhythms Trio celebrate his 80th year.

Veryan Weston (born 1950)

PIANO, ORGAN

Moved to London from Cornwall and freelanced as a jazz pianist before moving into improvisation and other fields. Co-founder of Stinky Winkles. A supremely gifted improviser who has a Satie-like delicacy of touch.

 Mercury Concert 1998 / (*) Gateway To Vienna Emanem 4028 / 4214 Weston; John Edwards (b); Mark Sanders (d). 6/98; 5/02, 12/03.
 Unearthed 33 Records 33JAZZCD110 Weston; Tony Grieve (ts); John Edwards (b); Stu Butterfield (d). 6/98.
The first of these approach as close as you'll find the Weston of later years coming to a conventional jazz piano trio. It is no such thing, of course, though there are moments when one might be listening to a Bill Evans group put through some kind of sonic grid. The interplay between the three is immense, and Weston palpably listens to what his colleagues are doing, moment to moment. The later record has a richness of detail and intensity that recommends it over its predecessor, but as always with Weston it's interesting to follow the development of a creative relationship.

The quartet is interesting in affording a rare chance to hear Weston playing standards on record. It's a fascinating programme – 'In A Mellotone', 'Come Sunday', 'Yesterdays', 'Killer Joe', 'April In Paris' – but inevitably these long readings are by no means conventional changes exercises. Weston's deftness and delicacy of touch is challenged in places by some fairly orthodox chording, but he always manages to find new angles of entry and new emotional facets to these well-worn themes. A strong band, too, though Grieve is not the most charismatic of soloists.

 Five Shadows Emanem 4048 Weston; Caroline Kraabel (as). 12/99, 5/00.
This documents a series of concerts given by the duo in an array of English burghs. One piece is selected from each performance and with the first piece from the first date (Colchester) and the last piece from the last date (Walthamstow) given in order, it offers a condensed view of how a strong musical relationship developed along the way. Again, Weston's attentiveness is striking.

(*) Tessellations For Lutheal Piano Emanem 4095 Weston (lutheal p). 3/03.
A unique performance in the Museum Of Musical Instruments in Brussels, using the only historical example of Cloeten's remarkable pianos which has a facility for plucking strings and generating overtones as well as playing conventionally. What is remarkable is how natural Weston sounds on the instrument, almost as if it expresses an already formed part of his musical nature. The tessellations (a term that is best described by the example of interlocking tiles) have an inevitably somewhat repetitive quality, but the shimmer and internal movement of this music makes it irresistible.

Petter Wettre (born 1967)

TENOR, ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, BASS CLARINET

Norwegian saxophonist whose small-group work sets a formidable standard in terms of modern post-bop-into-free playing.

(*) Pig Virus Curling Legs CD 28 Wettre; Håvard Wiik (p); Terje Gewelt (b); Per Oddvar Johansen (d). 9/96.
* Meet The Locals Resonant RM3-2 Wettre; Ingebrigt Håker Flaten (b); Jarle Vespestad (d). 98.
(*) In Color Resonant RM 5-2 As above, except add David Liebman (ss, ts). 10/99.
Wettre is some saxophonist. While he can drive with enormous power and velocity, his ability to throttle back, stop on a dime or simply enunciate a difficult line with almost insolent ease sets him aside from mere overblowing merchants of freedom. The quartet music of Pig Virus sets a demanding agenda to start with – check the two-minute manifesto of 'Sann' which opens the disc, Wettre and Johansen rolling up their sleeves and going off at express pace. The subsequent tracks calm down a little, but there's a menacing sense of something waiting to explode in even the quieter corners of this music. Wettre has a beautifully clear, open tone that lets him articulate his lines so sweetly that their blowtorch qualities are at times mollified.

Meet The Locals must go down as one of the most attention-grabbing group debuts in years, and played blindfold it should have listeners everywhere demanding to know who this is. That it actually emerges from Oslo, where the most internationally familiar tone has been set by Jan Garbarek's plaintive wail, is all the more startling. This is clipped, tough, overdriven saxophone trio music, deriving from quite closely wrought hard-bop structures yet all but bodily hurled into free space by the fantastic impetus which the threesome work up on 'Meet The Locals', 'Chasing The Girl' (a scarcely recognizable derivative of Joe Henderson's 'Inner Urge') and 'Cold Turkey'. Vespestad is the most swinging drummer imaginable for the situation, pushing the other two as hard as he can possibly go (and that includes when he's going at a simply brushed four), while the supremely assured Wettre peels off line after line. It may sometimes be pattern-playing at this kind of velocity, but Wettre keeps his cool to an amazing degree, the tone utterly secure and the breath-control phenomenal. Flaten stands his ground in the middle and even gets in a growling feature of sorts with 'A Bored Broad Abroad'. Maybe the concluding 'The Epidemic Of Self-Pity' is, at 32 minutes, an ounce overweight, but the record has already earned its four stars.

If In Color seems like a disappointment, that may be because the livid excitement of the debut is too much affected by the presence of Liebman. Always the consummate professional, the American digs the situation, but he adds little to the occasion except extra weight and sometimes even gets in the way. That proviso aside (and Liebman is only on five of ten tracks anyway), it's another hothouse of excitement. The very close-up sound which the group favours puts an intimacy on a style of playing which too often now is recorded with a festival stadium respectability. It works best if the band feels as if it's on top of you; on, say, 'Next Level', the crispness and deep bottom of the sound involve the listener as few such records do. These are fabulous records: get them.

(*) Household Name Household DAA 001 Wettre; Håvard Wiik (p); Palle Pesonen (g); Per Zanussi (b); Anders Mogensen (d). 4/02.
 Live At Copenhagen Jazzhouse Household DAA 002 Wettre; Anders Christensen (b); Anders Mogensen (d). 11/02.
Wettre's such a powerful player that he sets himself problems – the right fellow players, situations, material, context. The quintet of Household Name (none of them are) offer some new challenges. Wiik accompanies the tenor alone on a monumental 'Lush Life', and there's the wry feel of tracks such as 'Former Teen Sensation'. While coming up with material isn't a problem, making it strong enough to withstand the delivery may be. The live set is good enough but, again, some of the delirious velocity and impact of the first record has gone astray.

Also, in brief:

 The Only Way To Travel /  The Mystery Unfolds BP 00007 / 01009. 00; 2/01.
The first is a set of duets which only occasionally drift towards Coltrane territory; the other has lots of timbral variety, and plenty of instrumental walk-ons, but remains vaguely disappointing.

What We Live

GROUP

A striking improvisational group, driven by strong empathies and formidable technique.

(*) What We Live Fo(u)r Black Saint 120156-2 Larry Ochs (sno, ts); Glenn Spearman (wood f); Ben Goldberg (bcl); Paul Plimley (p); William Winant (vib); India Cooke (vn); Miya Masaoka (koto); Lisle Ellis (b); Donald Robinson (d). 6/94.
(*) Never Was Black Saint 120169 As above, except omit Spearman, Goldberg, Plimley, Winant, Cooke, Masaoka. 6 & 7/96..
() Trumpets / () Quintet For A Day Black Saint 120189-2 / New World 80553-2 As above, except add Dave Douglas, Wadada Leo Smith (t). 11/96, 3/98; 4/98.
 Especially The Traveller Tomorrow Metalanguage MLX 2002 Larry Ochs (sno, ts); Lisle Ellis (b); Donald Robinson (d). 4/00.
(*) SoundCatcher Fire Museum (no number) As above, except add Saadet Turkoz (v). 06.
The trio was formed in 1994 in the Bay Area, always with the proviso that other participants would become involved as circumstances dictated. The first (deleted) album and Never Was are the only two on which the founding members play without guest spots. The language is intense but surprisingly relaxed, as if the high intensity of East Coast free jazz were tempered with Californian sunshine. There is hardly a note on either album on which one feels the group is straining for effect.

Ellis is the main composer and his ideas sound very much like a milder version of Cecil Taylor's ferocious polytonality. Ochs is a much more impressive soloist than any of his colleagues in the ROVA saxophone quartet, and he is one of the very few contemporary players who has managed to make a decent fist of the treacherously pitched sopranino saxophone. The main pieces on Never Was are fierce and intense, but also compellingly lyrical. The understanding between Ochs and Ellis on 'Strength In Numbers' recalls some of the exchanges between Taylor and Jimmy Lyons, and Robinson has certainly listened carefully to the torrid playing of '60s innovators Sunny Murray, Andrew Cyrille and Milford Graves.

We find the guest-studded 1994 album shambolic and unfocused. It seems perverse to get the late Glenn Spearman in and then restrict him to wood flute. Few of the other cameos add a great deal to the sum. The two trumpet sessions are a different matter. On Trumpets the two hornmen appear on alternate tracks, Smith's burning intensity chequered with Douglas's thoughtful cool; Dave's playing on 'Orbital' and 'Song Of Roland' is breathtaking. They play together on every track on Quintet For A Day and here there is a more measured texture, a combination of long and short, almost imagistic tracks.

The 2000 record returns the group to its basic trio format. Ochs seems almost wilfully addicted to a sound that keeps its distance from lyrical saxophone beauty, yet taken a frame at a time the music sounds severely beautiful. The rigour and wasteless feel of the playing are satisfying yet curiously puritanical, like a Coltrane group purged of its exultation and dependent on a step-by-step path to enlightenment.

Ian Wheeler (born 1931)

CLARINET, SOPRANO AND ALTO SAXOPHONES

A long-serving sideman, first with Ken Colyer and then with Chris Barber, Wheeler has made just a handful of recordings as a leader.

 Reed All About It Cake CACD 085 Wheeler; Sammy Rimington (cl, as, f); Ralph Laing, Dick Wellstood, Richard Simmons (p); Wayne Chandler (g, bj); Harvey Weston, Peter Ind, John Johnson (b); Tony Allen, Barrie Nicholls, Norman Emberson (d). 2/77–7/78.
This reissues a session originally made for Keith Smith's hefty Jazz label. Wheeler and Rimington make for a congenial front line and the music walks a line somewhere between New Orleans tradition and more swing-styled music. There's a rare chance to hear Rimington on flute and Wheeler on both alto and soprano. The rhythm section is pretty dull, though. A pair of tracks feature Wheeler by himself with Wellstood and Ind, and two more (very dustily recorded) find Rimington at the 100 Club.

Kenny Wheeler (born 1930)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

The brilliant Canadian trumpeter and composer moved to London in the '50s and very quickly became associated with the avant-garde, playing in some of the most advanced groups of the day. It was clear, though, that his limpid, very pure tone was also amenable to other styles and that his interests veered to composition every bit as much as to free improvisation. Wheeler's body of work for the ECM label is definitive of its devotion to advanced musical language, great purity of sound and a constant trade-off between experimentalism and accessibility.

(*) Gnu High ECM 825591-2 Wheeler; Keith Jarrett (p); Dave Holland (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 6/75.

* Deer Wan ECM 829385-2 Wheeler; Jan Garbarek (ts, ss); John Abercrombie (g, electric mand); Ralph Towner (12-string g); Dave Holland (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 7/77.

(*) Double, Double You ECM 815675-2 Wheeler; Michael Brecker (ts); John Taylor (p); Dave Holland (b); Jack DeJohnette (d). 5/83.

 Flutter By, Butterfly Soul Note 121146 Wheeler; Stan Sulzmann (ss, ts, f); John Taylor (p); Billy Elgart (d). 5/87.

* The Widow In The Window ECM 843198-2 Wheeler; John Taylor (p); John Abercrombie (g); Dave Holland (b); Peter Erskine (d). 2/90.

Wheeler has been a fixture on the British jazz scene since 1952, when he emigrated from his native Canada and did section-work with some of the best bandleaders of the time, joining John Dankworth in 1959 and staying until the mid-'60s. Initially influenced by the bop trumpet of Fats Navarro and his equally short-lived descendant Booker Little, Wheeler also took on board the clipped abstractions and parched romanticism of trumpeter and flugelhorn-player Art Farmer. Under this combination of interests, Wheeler turned towards free playing, joining John Stevens's influential Spontaneous Music Ensemble, Alexander von Schlippenbach's Globe Unity Orchestra and Anthony Braxton's superb early-'70s quartet. Wheeler played with Norma Winstone and her pianist husband, John Taylor, in the impressionistic Azimuth, and he became the latest permanent recruit to the United Jazz + Rock Ensemble in 1979.

It was possible in 1990 to wonder at Wheeler's threescore years because he became a leader only rather late in his career. Famously self-critical, the trumpeter seemed to lack the basic ego-count required to front a working band. Association with Manfred Eicher's musician-friendly ECM made an enormous difference to Wheeler's self-perception, and since 1975 he has regularly recorded for the label whose painstaking technical virtues match his own. With ECM, Wheeler has also made enormous strides as a composer; standards are now very rare in his recorded work and the Dietz–Schwartz 'By Myself' on Music For Large And Small Ensembles (see below) seems a significant exception. 'Ana', on The Widow In The Window, had already been given a notable reading by the Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra (ECM 841777-2).

Significantly, Around 6, the most abstract of the albums he has made for the label, is currently deleted. The best of those that remain is undoubtedly Deer Wan. It includes Wheeler's most atmospheric brass effects and some of his most unfettered playing. The opening 'Peace For Five' is a straightforward blowing theme, with fine solos by each of the players. The three remaining tracks are more elliptical but no less impressive, and only the relatively brief '3/4 In The Afternoon', featuring one of Ralph Towner's off-the-peg 12-string spots, is a mild disappointment.

Deer Wan's predecessor on ECM is distinguished by being Keith Jarrett's last session as a sideman. There is some evidence that the pianist was less than happy with the music, but he produces three startling performances that are matched by Wheeler's distinctive phraseology and impeccable tone. An important album for the trumpeter, it's still marked by a degree of diffidence which persists through the later work. Flutter By utilizes the softly falling figures one has heard in Wheeler's work from the outset but which increasingly play a structural role in the composition. Widow In The Window recaptures – but for Garbarek – the sound of Deer Wan, while adding a new solidity of conception. This group of records (and Ensembles below) signal Wheeler's emergence as a major jazz composer. Late in the day by some standards, but none the less welcome.

[illegible]

* Music For Large And Small Ensembles

ECM 843152-2 2CD Wheeler; Alan Downey, Ian Hamer, Henry Lowther, Derek Watkins (t); Hugh Fraser, Dave Horler, Chris Pyne, Paul Rutherford (tb); Julian Argüelles, Duncan Lamont, Evan Parker, Ray Warleigh (sax); Stan Sulzmann (ts, f); John Taylor (p); John Abercrombie (g); Dave Holland (b); Peter Erskine (d); Norma Winstone (v). 1/90.

Music For Large And Small Ensembles contains some of Wheeler's most distinctive scores and is perhaps the best place to gain an understanding of how Wheeler's particular grasp of tonality and instrumental colour works in a mixture of scored and improvised settings. As in Azimuth, he uses Norma Winstone's voice to increase the chromaticism of his arrangements and further humanize unwontedly personal and self-revealing pieces, full of folk echoes and deeply embedded North American themes (the 'Opening' to 'Sweet Time Suite' sounds like a variant on a cowboy tune, and there's a wide-open quality to the voicings that can be heard in fellow Canadian Leonard Cohen's eclectic jazz–buckskin–musette–rock syntheses). The trios that conclude disc two (there are also three duets which do not involve Wheeler as a player) are closer to his free-abstract work than to the thematic improvisations on his best-known ECM records.

* Angel Song ECM 533098-2 Wheeler; Lee Konitz (as); Bill Frisell, Dave Holland (b). 95.

(*) Siren's Song Justin Time JTR 8465 Wheeler; John Taylor (p); Norma Winstone (v); Maritime Jazz Orchestra. 96.

Two misconceptions here. First, Angel Song was widely thought to be a co-led project with Konitz; while it is as collaborative as a lot of the label's recent output, with much emphasis on internal relationships within the group, it has Wheeler's stamp all over it: a delicate, floating sound with a sting and hard ideas scattered through it. By the same token, Siren's Song (a seeming paucity of album title ideas at the moment) is not really an Azimuth project and is not so billed. What it is is a form of jazz concerto grosso with the trio ranged against a well-schooled and precise Canadian orchestra. They provide texture and depth of focus, but they also feed and re-feed Wheeler's more searching musical cues, creating a back and forth of ideas that is actually a lot more thoughtful than first appears. Angel Song is the one to have from this period, and it is probably the more accessible too. Frisell's soft-edged phrasing melds with Holland's unusually deep-rooted figures, creating a symmetry that fires both hornmen to some of their best recorded work in years.

(*) Dream Sequence psi 03.04 Wheeler; Ray Warleigh (as, f); Stan Sulzmann (ts); John Parricelli (g); Chris Laurence (b); Tony Levin (d). 9/95–1/03.

Pieced together from sessions across a four-year spell and then topped off with a solo cut in 2003, this is a predictably eloquent, lyrical, slightly mournful Wheeler session. Nothing surpasses the beautiful opener, 'Unti', one of those stop-start Wheeler compositions where every melodic motif is carefully weighted in the line, each cadence voiced with pristine assurance. The other pieces all have their merits, although some of them do tread water in Kenny's own immaculate realm, and the solo piece does suggest again that the once incomparable sound has tarnished a little. Sonic star turn: Ray Warleigh's flute-playing.

 It Takes Two! Camjazz CAMJ 7786-2 Wheeler; John Abercrombie (flhn); John Parricelli (g); Anders Jormin (b). 7/05.
A very laid-back section indeed, with the two guitarists playing mostly acoustically, and Jormin giving the music some much-needed bottom weight. Wheeler sticks to flugelhorn throughout and its softer intonation suits this repertoire, which is nearly all original stuff. The exception is a version of 'Love Theme From Spartacus', arranged without trumpet and as a feature for bass. Wheeler seems content to take a back seat elsewhere as well, not getting involved on 'Comba #3' for some time. On the other hand, 'Fanfare' is all flugelhorn(s), subtly overdubbed. A nice enough disc, but if this was the first time you'd come across Wheeler you'd wonder what all the fuss was about.

Also, in brief:

 Moon EGEA SCA 086. 2/01.
A long-standing partnership with Gabriele Mirabassi (cl) yields some fine moments, but there's a sense of an impeccable jog around the track at this point. John Taylor (p) is also on hand.

(*) Where Do We Go From Here? CamJazz CAMJ 7764. 2/04.
Fine duos with Taylor in a mostly reflective mood. Apart from the opening 'Summer Night', they are the only composers featured, with Wheeler's 'One Two Three' outstanding.

Harry Whitaker (born 1942)

PIANO

Repertory pianist who's still able to spring surprises.

 The Sound Of Harry Whitaker Fresh Sound FSRCD 5034 Whitaker; Pat O'Leary (b); Craig Wuepper (d). 02.
 Thoughts (Past And Present) Smalls 26 Whitaker; Omer Avital (b); Dan Aran (d). 6/07.
The piano trio market is so crowded that it takes something to establish a distinct identity. The title of the Fresh Sound disc suggests Whitaker might be highly distinctive. It's more subtle than that. Over the span of a CD he creates a quiet impression of thoughtful musicality rather than anything dramatic or idiosyncratic. That he finds something new to say about 'A Gal In Calico', 'Moonlight In Vermont' and the bop staple 'Wee' is testimony to his skills. Worth a look.

The Smalls disc is all original material, reflecting a busy career in the studios, working in everything from straight jazz to pop. Whitaker can touch on myriad moods in just a handful of tracks. We particularly liked 'The Children And The Warlock' and 'Steppin' With The Lord'. All the tracks have associative dates and it's fascinating to follow Harry on his journey.

Rodney Whitaker (born 1968)

DOUBLE BASS

Wynton Marsalis once autographed a fragment of score for Rodney with the words: 'Listen to Jimmy Blanton'. He teaches at Michigan State University and plays in the Lincoln Center Orchestra. A copper-bottomed soloist with a big (Blantonish) tone.

(*) The Brooklyn Session: Ballads And Blues Criss Cross 1167 Whitaker; Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Ron Blake (ss, ts); Stefon Harris (vib); Eric Reed (p); Carl Allan (d). 12/98.
The Detroit jazz community is said to be one of the tightest in the United States, built on mutual support and respect. Rodney Whitaker was quickly picked out as a young man to watch and foster, and his early reputation won him a place in Donald Washington's group Bird/Trane/Sco/Now!, a cumbersome handle for a working band, but a reasonable shorthand for the influences at work. Whitaker is quite open about his own biggest influence: the intense, short-lived genius of Paul Chambers informs much of what he does.

The debut for Criss Cross is very much a tribute to Rodney's greatest single ancestral influence, the precocious but ever more impressive legacy of Chambers. Mr P.C. is represented by three tracks, the ubiquitous 'Whims Of Chambers', which every bass-player takes in with his mother's milk, 'Ease It', and 'The Hand Of Love', the last of which is a long way from the prevailing bebop idiom of the time, and a delicately phrased song which bears surprising kinship to the Motown material Rodney grew up with. Like many young players of his generation, he has kept an active lookout for new 'standards' and perhaps the most striking solo performance on the record is Whitaker's arco phrasing on the Carly Simon song 'The Way They Always Said It Should Be'. Miles would have approved. Crisply recorded with a nice live feel, Ballads And Blues is a sterling performance which represents a bright young talent at his very best.

 Yesterday Today And Tomorrow Sirocco Jazz SJL 1007 Whitaker; Wynton Marsalis (t); Wycliffe Gordon (tb); Wessell Anderson (sno, as); Victor Goines (ss, ts, bcl); Farid Barron (p); Herlin Riley (d); Dianne Reeves (v). 12/99.
Whitaker doesn't impose too much of himself on this date – only five of the 12 tunes are his originals, and extended bass features are noticeable by their absence. It's an outgoing record in feel, even with the heavyweight company of several of the LCO regulars, notably boss Wynton on three tracks (Anderson is credited only with sopranino, but he presumably handles the alto parts on two other tracks). Goines is the most featured voice, a polished-mahogany sound on tenor, and every track seems to boast a particularly pointed solo or statement by the ensemble. Overall, though, we felt that the music could use a little more relaxation. Marsalis, as so often these days, seems to be conducting some sort of masterclass when he solos and some of that propriety seeps into the whole enterprise. The most peppery moment comes in Gordon's solo on 'Hurricane Andrew', although Reeves takes an effectively sultry cameo on 'Mood Indigo'.

 Winter Moon Sirocco 1026 Whitaker; Ron Blake (ts); Eric Reed (b); Carl Allen (d). 9/02.
Again, you'd form no real impression that this was the bassist's date. Rodney makes his main statement on the opening dedication to Jimmy Garrison, but for the most part he plays for the group and keeps to a solid, but constantly moving time-feel, which is also a speciality of Allen's. Reed, by contrast, tends to be more static, and when the two approaches work in fruitful tension, this is a lovely record. Here and there, as on 'Spring Birth', the tension isn't quite so creative. Nice to have a more recent record to report, but it's a while now since he made a studio date of his own.

Carla White (1951–2007)

VOICE

Originally intended to be a jazz dancer, but she took lessons with Lennie Tristano and Warne Marsh. Died prematurely and still not widely recognized as a genuinely original singer.

 Listen Here Evidence ECD 22109 2 White; Lew Tabackin (ts); Pete Madsen (p); Dean Johnson (b); Lewis Nash (d). 9/91.
Carla White was never merely an effective 'interpreter' of jazz standards. She had a genuine instinct for improvisation and her earlier work for Milestone tackled such adventurous material as 'Yardbird Suite' and Bob Dorough's 'Love Came On Stealthy Fingers'. Tabackin was a regular accompanist and he brings an engaging sense of big band excitement to this characteristic date, which is the only White CD you're likely to find around, though one or two others may be available in Japan. Her attraction to Dorough's work is reflected in the opening 'Devil May Care', but the highlight of the session is a voice/bass duet with Johnson on 'It's Only A Paper Moon', a clever idea that asks to be compared to similar things by Sheila Jordan. White has a less resonant but arguably more nimble approach.

Dr Michael White (born 1954)

CLARINET

From a musical New Orleans family, he's dedicated to the original music of his home, playing in the grand traditions of the city.

 Shake It & Break It 504 CDS 6 White; Greg Stafford (c); Reginald Koeller (t); Freddie Lonzo (tb); Sadie Goodson Cola (p, v); Frank Moliere (p, v); Les Muscutt (g); Walter Payton Jr, Chester Zardis (b); Frank Parker, Stanley Stephens (d). 1/81–5/87.
We were rather cool in our first edition on what was White's debut recording, and Frank Moliere's piano still sounds awful, but perhaps we've grown more tolerant of New Orleans 'idiosyncrasies' down the years. The music is played with undeniable spirit, and there is now the bonus of five tracks from a 1987 session, recorded in the cavernous-sounding Olivier House, with Cola and Zardis (who had played together in Buddy Petit's band, 60 years earlier!) in attendance. Stafford plays carefully and the stage belongs mostly to White, who sounds very good.

 A Song For George Lewis Basin Street BSR0501 White; Greg Stafford (t, v); Mark Braud (t); Lucien Barbarin (tb); Rickie Monie (p); Detroit Brooks (bj); Kerry Lewis (b); Shannon Powell (d). 2/00.
 Jazz From The Soul Of New Orleans Basin Street BSR 0502 As above, except omit Braud, Powell; add Clyde Kerr (t); Steve Pistorius (p); Herman Lebeaux (d); Thais Clark, Juanita Brooks (v). 2/02.
 Dancing In The Sky Basin Street BSR 0503 White; Mark Braud (t); Greg Stafford (t, v); Lucien Barbarin (tb); Steve Pistorius (p); Detroit Brooks (bj, g); Mark Brooks (b); Kerry Lewis (b, tba); Herman Lebeaux (d); Thais Clark (v). 1 & 2/04.
White made a couple of records under the Antilles imprint in the '90s, but these seem to be his only recent showing as a leader. Made as a homage to Lewis on the occasion of his centenary, the baker's dozen tunes will be familiar to acolytes of the clarinettist, though there are two originals by White. It's one of the better things to appear on the New Orleans label Basin Street. The difficult thing about playing this old-time sound is making it true to its spirit of entertaining a crowd without succumbing to slickness or showboating. Sometimes White and his men sound as if they might be playing down to their material a little, and on a test-piece such as 'Burgundy Street Blues' the clarinettist seems to be deliberately avoiding Lewis as a direct model. But it's still good to hear this music smartly recorded and played with obvious skill and affection.

The follow-up carries the torch onwards. White is clearly steeped in the right stuff, but to suggest that he's any kind of maverick leader would be a mistake. The presence of Pistorius, who plays in many such bands, underscores the sense that White's music has to take its turn with every other revivalist group. It's good enough. Dancing In The Sky is pretty much of the same, with a similar repertory cast. White still doesn't quite convince as a soloist – we're convinced he plays a little sharp – but his enthusiasm and commitment are palpable and he passes those qualities on to his men.

Mark Whitecage (born 1937)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, ALTO AND SOPRANO CLARINETS, SYNTHESIZER, ELECTRONICS, VOICE

A free-thinking alto saxophonist who made some discs in the '70s with John Fisher, Bobby Naughton and Leo Smith; his idiosyncratic methods move between chamber-like forms and entirely free improvisation.

 Split Personality / (*) Free For Once GM 3038 / CIMP 106 Whitecage; Dominic Duval (b); Jay Rosen (d). 10/95; 1/96.
* Caged No More CIMP 119 As above, except add Tomas Ulrich (clo). 7/96.
Whitecage is a somewhat reclusive figure whose appearances on record have been rare. On alto he plays long, almost pure streams of melody that impart a graceful beauty to a free-bop methodology which makes these discs both exciting and serenely attractive. Even when he's playing at a heated full stretch, Whitecage seems to want to talk about agreeable things, and it makes these fundamentally uncompromising sessions temperate enough to avoid the raging exhaustion that sometimes afflicts this area of jazz. Split Personality is a great-sounding record, compared to the parchment-dry sound he got saddled with later in his return to active duty. His saxophone sound benefits from a bit of sweetening. Free For Once is still a shade too long, but there's an almost terpsichorean feel to the music which Rosen and Duval pick up on (it's not only on 'Two Horn Tango' that they fall into a tango rhythm). Whitecage has so much to say on the horn that he sustains the date. Caged No More is a notch better, though, and Whitecage was right to feel proud of it. Ulrich's cello adds pith and sinew to the group's sound, and the players frequently hit a stride that balances lyricism, intensity and creative flux in an unusually harmonious accord.

 3 + 4 = 5 CIMP 155 As above, except add Joseph Scianni (p). 6/97.
(*) Consensual Tension CIMP 157 Whitecage; Sabir Mateen (as, ts, cl, f); Joe Fonda (b); Harvey Sorgen (d). 7/97.
 Research On The Edge CIMP 193 Whitecage; Sabir Mateen (as, ts, cl, f); Chris Dahlgren (b); Jay Rosen (d). 2/99.
Having found a patron in Robert Rusch of Cadence/CIMP, Whitecage made up for lost time as far as record-making is concerned. 3 + 4 = 5, recorded at Dunn Hall in Potsdam, NY, continues the good work of the previous disc, but the balance of the group is sent slightly askew by the addition of Scianni and, for all its 'naturalness', the recording is unkind to both Ulrich and Duval, who simply can't be heard properly for much of the session.

Consensual Tension introduces Whitecage's 'Other Quartet', and a splendid one it is: Mateen is a more restless and argumentative soul, and while Whitecage adds lyrical and sometimes rococo flights to the mix, Mateen is gritty and cutting. Fonda and Sorgen – they manufacture a nice, slithering shuffle on 'Joe's Groove' – fill in the backgrounds and sometimes push their way to the front. It's very free, but the way they play 'Oleo', a spontaneous fancy in the studio, proves how this thinking has plenty of formal knowledge stirred into it.

Whitecage's 'Other Other Quartet' (we hardly dare guess what the next group will be called) picks up the baton for Research On The Edge. This is more like unvarnished energy music: the first three tracks are huge blow-outs ('Green St. Rundown' runs almost half an hour) and, mightily as the four men play, there are passages when sound and fury stand in for communicable creativity, or so it seems. Not that they are playing full-tilt all the time: there is the usual cycle of attack and decay in each piece. When they do 'Well, You Needn't' at the end, the music almost gets funky, and it freshens the listener up. Enjoyable, but probably not the best representation of Whitecage's work. He has quite an extensive body of work on his own label, Acoustics, some of which we listed last time: but most of it we find to be prolix and self-indulgent.

Annie Whitehead (born 1955)

TROMBONE

Began with the Ivy Benson All-Girls Band. Now a stalwart on the British scene, playing everything from free to funk, and even the Spice Girls.

 Mix-Up Jazzprint 121 Whitehead; Louise Elliott (sax, f); Laka Daisical (p); Simon Edwards (b); Roy Dodds (d). 84.

 The Gathering Provocateur PVC 1022 Whitehead; Steve Lodder (ky); Ian Maidman (g); Steve Lamb (b); Liam Genockey (d); Robert Wyatt (v). 9/00.

 Airplay Provocateur PVC 1032 Whitehead; Alistair Anderson (acc); Chris Stout (vn); Ian Maidman (g); Liam Genockey (d). 9/02.

A kind of national treasure, Annie seems able to perform at her best in any given musical context and with equal pleasure. Her own records don't always reflect the best she is capable of, which is perhaps a function of her ability to shine in the few gaps left in someone else's concept. Mix-Up sounds dated now, but was streets ahead of much of what passed for jazz-rock at the time. Whitehead's singing voice isn't much to write home about it, but the album has energy and even anthems like 'Freedom Marching', which smacks very much of a Daisical idea, have strength and authority.

Long fascinated with Robert Wyatt's music, and a guest on some of his recent records, Annie invited him to guest vocal on The Gathering, yielding some touching encounters between her big-toned horn and his high, almost papery voice. The second album was a collaboration with Anderson under the name Northern Lights. It's a sign of Whitehead's developing confidence as a composer that she is prepared to tackle something as eclectic as this and still manage to keep it in a largely improvised context.

Also, in brief:

 This Is ... Rude Jazzprint 125. 94.

Intriguing quartet with Harry Beckett (t) and some vivid free-funk themes.

 Home La Cooka Ratcha 102. 6/00.

There have been better records from Annie, but some interesting moments with keyboard man Jasper Van't Hof.

Tim Whitehead (born 1950)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Born in Liverpool. He studied law but turned to music in the '70s. Early groups South Of The Border and Borderline brought him local renown; then a spell with Loose Tubes, followed by his own small bands in the '90s.

 Silence Between Waves Jazz House JHCD 033 Whitehead; Pete Jacobsen (ky); Arnie Somogyi, Steve Watts (b); Dave Barry (d). 1–4/94.

(*) Personal Standards Home Made HMR047 As above, except omit Watts; add Liam Noble (p); Davide Mantovani, Sam Burgess (b); Milo Fell (d). 98–99.

(*) Too Young To Go Steady Home Made HMR051 Whitehead; Liam Noble (p); Oli Hayhurst (b); Milo Fell (d). 7/07.

Whitehead has fashioned a convincing and evocative English tone to his playing and writing. Although recorded in the less than pastoral surroundings of Ronnie Scott's club, Silence Between Waves is quartet music that is redolent of Albion's greenest meadows as well as market-town England. Jacobsen is a willing collaborator, his hard-bitten solo on 'Southend' no less effective than his meditative introduction to 'The Sky Seas Me', but it's otherwise very much the saxophonist's show, traversing the range of the tenor saxophone with broad-shouldered ease and drawing long, melodic lines in his solos rather than falling back on licks. That said, the record is far too long and could comfortably have surrendered 20 of its 80 minutes, heightening the impact of the best playing.

Personal Standards suffers the same drawback, to a degree: Whitehead can sustain long solos persuasively enough, but some of these pieces still outstay their most effective duration. Nevertheless a very impressive record overall. The saxophonist selected pop material for the most part, 'My Girl', 'Dancing In The Street', 'Lovely Day' and 'What's Going On' being among the most familiar choices, and while these are conservative interpretations they showcase a magnificent saxophone timbre: the leader has never had a better sound in a studio. Although the other players give their best, Whitehead is an almost overpowering presence in this company, and the hallmark of the record is the way he personalizes what is sometimes unpromising material.

Great to have a new record from Tim and such a good one. His interpretation of the title standard is mature and poised, the work of a saxophonist who hasn't just secure technique but has something to say for himself. That stretches to the originals as well, and in particular the fine closing 'Race Against Time', and it's interesting to note that in the currently fashionable-again habit of choosing improvisation material from contemporary pop, Whitehead should have demonstrated his taste and judgement by selecting 'Love Fool' by The Cardigans, one of the most inventive groups of the last generation, and Sweden's finest since Abba. The live sound from Pizza Express presents some challenges but Chris Lewis has done wonders with the source and every member of a fine group – and particularly the great Liam Noble – should be so clearly audible.

Tommy Whittle (born 1926)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, FLUTE

Born in Grangemouth, and long a stalwart on the British mainstream circuit. Singer Barbara Jay is Mrs Whittle.

 Grace Notes Spotlite SPJ 548 Whittle; Keith Ingham (p); Jeff Green (g); Jim Richardson (b); Bobby Worth (d). 5/03.

A typically elegant set from a man now over 80 but sounding as full of energy as ever before. Tommy's intonation remains light, true and utterly musical. His phrasing is impeccable, and though he solos very much around the melody, he does so with considerable subtlety.

Putte Wickman (1924–2006)

CLARINET

One of the godfathers of post-war Swedish jazz, he styled himself a swing player at first but – despite the unfashionable nature of his instrument – he increasingly adopted a personal take on the cooler side of bebop language.

 The Sound Of Surprise Dragon DRCD 289 Wickman; Lars Sjøsten (p); Sture Nordin (b); Pelle Hultén (d). 1/69.
(*) The Very Thought Of You Dragon DRCD 161 Wickman; Red Mitchell (b). 12/87–1/88.
* Some O' This And Some O' That Dragon DRCD 187 Wickman; Roger Kellaway (p); Red Mitchell (b). 6/89.
 Fine Together Dragon DRCD 210 Wickman; Visby Big Band. N.D.
 Time To Remember Dragon DRCD 378 Wickman; Hal Galper (p); Steve Gilmore (b); Bill Goodwin (d). N.D.

An impeccable swing player who followed cool developments in the '50s, Wickman spent time away from jazz but to the end of his long career he seemed fully aware of every kind of development in the music. There is at present disappointingly little left of an extensive and wide-ranging discography. The Sound Of Surprise goes some modest way towards filling in a large gap in the Wickman story on record. A snapshot of a 1969 quartet show at Stockholm's Pawnshop Club, in front of an irresponsibly noisy audience, this finds Wickman (at probably the least fashionable point in jazz history for his kind of music) in a rich vein of invention. Like his contemporary Buddy DeFranco he seems to have the gift of playing jazz on the instrument that transcends its time-frame. The surroundings are discouraging but the music has a doggedly creative spirit.

The later Dragons find Wickman in splendid fettle. The duo set with Mitchell is momentarily troubled by the bassist's capricious streak: his fascination with the lowest register sometimes strays into indulgence, and the huffing momentum won't be to all tastes. But Wickman goes on spinning out memorable improvisations, and they devise some unexpected variations on the (standard) material: Basie's 'Topsy' becomes rather intense and brooding, and the Ellington themes have no sniff of routine in them. When Kellaway joins in, the music spreads itself out (eight pieces take 72 minutes here, whereas there are 13 in 68 minutes on the duo record), and Kellaway's extravagant imagination is perfectly checked by Wickman's insidious, wily lines. The recording is sometimes a little flat, since both discs were made in Red Mitchell's apartment rather than a studio, but it suits the intimacy of the music.

The big-band date and the quartet with Galper are obviously sharply different. Wickman always sounded as if he were straining for effect in front of a larger orchestra, and though there are good things in the set it's not an obvious first choice. His occasionally tart tone and clipped phrasing on Time to Remember are nicely offset by Galper's romanticism. The pianist knows his way around the changes, though, and there's nothing indulgent about the playing.

Wolter Wierbos (born 1957)

TROMBONE

Grew up among country bands in the Netherlands, but favours the avant-garde and is a charter member of ICP Orchestra and other groups.

 Wierbos /  X Caliber Data 824 Wierbos (tb solo). 9/82, 12/01; 10 & 12/95.

A joyous and technically superb run-through of Wolter's many voices on the horn, from the low-register rumbles of 'Oink-Oink' to the fleeter, scuttering sound of other tracks. The dateline may be misleading. To pad out the original LP material, Wierbos has added one extra later track. It's many times the length of the others and curiously pedestrian. A pity that such a fine album peters out so lamely. X Caliber is OK. Its three tracks are named 'A Demonstration', 'Of Extreme', and 'Trombone Techniques', and indeed Wierbos runs through just about every device available to him, but again with palpable enjoyment rather than out of artistic duty. It's all quite exhilarating, though only staunch supporters and trombone scholars will want both of these.

Chris Wiesendanger

PIANO

Talented young Swiss musician, who hasn't yet found a focus.

 Urban Village Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 134 Wiesendanger; Mark Turner (ts); Ben Street (b); Nasheet Waits (d). 9/00.
(*) We Concentrate hatOLOGY 626 Wiesendanger; Christian Weber (b); Dieter Ulrich (d). 11/04.

The New York date suits Wiesendanger's approach much better than the dull tinkering with Carla Bley and Annette Peacock tunes on We Concentrate. The pianist needs a strong metre and a firm bass presence to pull his admittedly sophisticated ideas into line, and he doesn't get that from his compatriots. The sound is reminiscent of Marilyn Crispell at her most Trane-influenced and the best compositions on Urban Village are strongly reminiscent of her variations on 'After The Rain' and others.

Gerald Wiggins (born 1922)

PIANO

The New Yorker made most of his music on the West Coast.

(*) Gerald Wiggins 1950 Classics 1218 Wiggins; Pierre Michelot, Buddy Banks, Jean Bouchety (b); Kenny Clarke, Chico Hamilton (d). 6–9/50.

 The Gerald Wiggins Trio VSOP 28 Wiggins; Joe Comfort (b); Bill Douglass (d). 56.

(*) Music From Around The World In Eighty Days In Modern Jazz / * The King And I Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1761 / Fresh Sound FSRCD53 Wiggins; Eugene Wright (b); Bill Douglass (d). 56–57; 58.

 Wiggin' Out Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1034 Wiggins; Harold Land (ts); Jackie Mills (d). 9/60.

 Relax And Enjoy It! Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 173 Wiggins; Joe Comfort (b); Jackie Mills (d). 61.

Gerry Wiggins began with swing big bands, but he has pursued much of his career as an accompanist, originally with Lena Horne. On his own, with an appropriate rhythm section, he plays light, undemanding but beguiling swing-to-cool piano, rarely challenging the listener and preferring to make a few well-chosen remarks rather than dramatically refashioning a tune. The Classics CD covers his earliest titles under his own name (most of them were actually issued as by 'Jerry Wiggins'), cut in Paris for Swing and Vogue. Wiggins sounds more boppish on some of these titles and there is a rather peculiar vocal by Chico Hamilton on 'By The River Sainte Marie'. Unfortunately the music is mostly in poor to average sound.

Trio, originally on the Tampa label, suggests a keen kinship with Garner and Peterson. Ellington's 'I Don't Know What Kind Of Blues I Got' is authoritative, and all the uptempo pieces are played with dexterity and plenty of punch. The Eighty Days and King And I material is typical of many records that were worked up from popular contemporary film and show material, and while they're not bad they sound as perfunctory as most such genre entries; the Rodgers & Hammerstein tunes on the latter at least have a certain jazz currency. Relax And Enjoy It! has worn well enough, although this amiable recital of a few standards will probably appeal only to the piano trio collector who must have everything.

Wiggin' Out is something different: Wig plays Hammond organ on this one, with the surprise presence of Harold Land. It's the tenorman who earns the stars, mostly, since Wiggins isn't exactly Jimmy Smith at the organ and the music is a bit lead-footed under Mills's stewardship. But some pleasing moments survive – catch Land's lean and pointed solo on 'A Night In Tunisia'.

(*) Wig Is Here Black & Blue BB 952.2 Wiggins; Major Holley (b); Oliver Jackson, Ed Thigpen (d). 3/74–3/77.

This is the second CD edition of this material, and we were rather pleased to be reacquainted with it. There's nothing here to startle or even surprise, but as a faithful documenting of Wig's rocking swing, his chuckling good humour and unaffected bluesiness, it works uncommonly well. Thigpen drums on the earlier session, Jackson on the later one, and there's little to choose between them in terms of quality. The latest remastering brings exceptionally clean and upfront sound.

 Celebrating Wig's 80th At The Jazz Bakery Madwig 0006 Wiggins; Bobby Rodriguez (flhn); John Campbell, Bill Cunliffe, Benny Green (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Jeff Clayton, Paul Humphrey (b); Paul Kreibich, Bob Maize (d). 4/02.

The old chap does a turn with the trio of Humphrey and Maize, but it's a token appearance in all honesty and just a small component of a friendly night of celebration. There's nothing here that's likely to be of much interest to anyone who wasn't actually there – unless you were meant to be and missed it – but it's amiable enough.

Bob Wilber (born 1928)

SOPRANO, ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, CLARINET

Born in New York. He studied with both Bechet and Tristano. Worked in various Dixieland–swing–bop situations in the '50s and '60s, before joining the World's Geatest Jazz Band in 1968 and forming Soprano Summit in 1973 with Kenny Davern. He announced his retirement in 1995 but still seems to be recording.

 Live At The Illiana Jazz Club Storyville STCD 8254 Wilber; Kenny Davern (ss, cl); Marty Grosz (g); Eddie De Haas (b); Bob Cousins (d). 11/76.

 Vital Wilber & Lilting Lind Phontastic 8857 Wilber; Ove Lind (cl); Björn Milder (p); Lars Erstrand (vib); Rolf Berg (g); Arne Wilhelmsson (b); Pelle Hultén (d). 4/77.

 Original Wilber Phontastic 8870 Wilber; Dave Mckenna (p); Lars Erstrand (vib); Bill Crow, Arne Wilhelmsson (b); Connie Kay (d); Pug Horton (v). 4 & 11/78.

Once upon a time everyone tried to play soprano sax like Sidney Bechet. Now that everyone tries to play soprano like either Coltrane or Steve Lacy, Bob Wilber seems something of a throwback. Since he actually played with Bechet and has done more than anyone to keep that master's music in circulation, there's no 'authenticity' problem here. Wilber still seeks the wide, singing tone of his mentor, but he long since became his own man, and even where there is a specific homage – as in On The Road (see below), which was made by his band, Bechet Legacy – he still sounds like himself. This is an impressive run of records. Soprano Summit was a popular double-act on the small horn with Davern; Live At Illiana finds the two of them on a good night in Chicago, and it's a lot of fun.

The two Phontastics fill in something of a gap in our previous listing. Wilber was touring and recording widely during the Soprano Summit years, often appearing on Dixieland repertory projects. These are decent records with enthusiastic support, but they don't shout to be heard and you can almost sense Bob's another-day-another-session attitude here and there, good as he usually is when it comes time to blow.

() Summit Reunion / () Yellow Dog Blues Chiaroscuro CR(D) 311 / 339 Wilber; Kenny Davern (cl); Dick Hyman (p); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Milt Hinton (b); Bobby Rosengarden (d). 5/90; 3/95.

 Summit Reunion – Jazz Im Amerika Haus Vol. 5 Nagel Heyer 015 Wilber; Kenny Davern (cl); Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Bobby Worth (d). 9/94.

The band was dissolved for a while, and in the interim Davern chose to give up soprano in favour of clarinet alone. Their reunion album is very strong, the more piquant since there's a regular contrast between the horns rather than a doppelgänger effect. The group carried on into the '90s, though the concert set from the Amerika Haus is a potboiler – Wilber and Davern seem to be jogging through this one rather than striking sparks. However, Yellow Dog Blues is much more like it; everyone seems in the highest of spirits and Davern and Wilber run good-natured rings round each other; listen also for the marvellous things Hyman is playing in the ensembles. Three perfect choices: 'I'll See You In C-U-B-A', 'Hindustan' and 'The Japanese Sandman'.

(*) On The Road Jazzology JCD-214 Wilber; Glenn Zottola (t); Mark Shane (p); Mike Peters (g, bj); Len Skeat (b); Butch Miles (d). 11/81.

 Ode To Bechet Jazzology JCD-142 As above, except omit Skeat; add Vic Dickenson (tb, v); Reggie Johnson (b); Joanne 'Pug' Horton (v). 8/82.

(*) The Duet Progressive PCD 7080 Wilber; Dick Wellstood (p). 3/84.

 Bechet Legacy Challenge CHR 70018 Wilber; Randy Sandke (t); Mike Peters (g); John Goldsby (b). 1/84.

* Dancing On A Rainbow Circle CCD-159 Wilber; Wallace Davenport (t); David Sager (tb); Clarence Ford (cl, ts, bs); Dave Bodenhouse (p); Danny Barker (g); Dewey Sampson (b); Freddie Kohlman (d); Joanne 'Pug' Horton (v). 12/89.

Wilber's other projects are perhaps rather more interesting. On The Road is a very fine salute to Bechet, uncovering many rarities in the material and with top-notch support from Zottola in particular. The CD remastering is a bit bright. Ode To Bechet, though it welcomes Vic Dickenson to the ranks in a guest role, is a slight disappointment: the material seems a bit taut, and Dickenson can't really find an effective way in. Bechet Legacy puts similar material into a concert situation, and though Sandke isn't much like Muggsy Spanier, the instrumentation inevitably evokes the Bechet–Spanier small group. Another astute piece of revivalism. Better still, though, is Dancing On A Rainbow. This is an exemplary mainstream outfit, with Sager's quirky trombone and Ford's ripe gallery of reeds lending character as well as precision, and Wilber's Ellington archaeology is spot-on. It was a shrewd idea to bring back 'Love In My Heart' and 'Charlie The Chulo', but all the material turns out well.

The 1984 duets with Dick Wellstood have made a welcome transition to CD. Wellstood's slightly macabre imagination might not be to all tastes, as in his transformation of 'I've Got You Under My Skin' into a stride showcase, but he was a thinking player and had the executive powers to match. Wilber, more of a literalist, makes a nice balance, and the disc has some superb moments, although on a recent reacquaintance we admit we found the studio sound very fierce.

 Horns A-Plenty Arbors ARCD 19135 Wilber; Johnny Varro (p); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz Jr (d). 3/94.

(*) Bean Arbors ARCD 19144 Wilber; Harry Allen, Tommy Whittle, Antti Sarpila (ts); Mick Pyne (p); Dave Green (b); Clark Tracey (d). 10/94.

(*) Nostalgia Arbors ARCD 19145 Wilber; Ralph Sutton (p); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Bob Haggart (b); Butch Miles (d). 3/95.

 The Hamburg Concert – Tribute To A Legend Nagel Heyer CD 028 Wilber; Randy Sandke (t); Mark Shane (p, v); Dave Cliff (g); Dave Green (b); Butch Miles (d); Joanne 'Pug' Horton (v). 10/95.

 Bufadora Blow-Up Arbors ARCD 19187 Wilber; Charlie Bertini, Wendell Brunious, Jon-Erik Kellso, Bob Merrill (t); Dan Barrett, George Masso, Paul O'Connor (tb); Shoeless Henry Aaron, Jerry Jerome, Brian Ogilvie, Scott Robinson, Chuck Wilson (sax); Dick Hyman (p); Howard Alden (g); Phil Flanigan (b); Ed Metz Jr (d); Joanne 'Pug' Horton (v). 3/96.

(*) What Swing Is All About Nagel Heyer 5007 Wilber; Antti Sarpila (cl, ts); Mark Shane (p); Phil Flanigan (b); Joe Ascione (d); Joanne 'Pug' Horton (v). 9/96.

Although Wilber had announced his retirement from active duty, he seems to have been busier than ever with making records. These are rather a mixed lot. Horns A-Plenty finds him switching between clarinet and four saxes on a typically arcane set of tunes, with a few lightweight originals floating in among the likes of 'Just A Rose In A Garden Of Weeds'. Not bad, but the music's pleasantries tend to leave no impression. Bean puts a four-man tenor team through its paces on a tribute to Coleman Hawkins. Wilber concentrates on Hawk's music from the '30s and early '40s, and there are some ingenious reductions and embellishments on what are in several cases neglected originals. The team is recorded in a dry but very effective acoustic, and some of the unison passages are played wonderfully, with Wilber and Whittle emerging as the most Hawk-like. Nostalgia is mostly ballads and tunes from bygone albums. If Wilber were British, he might have thought twice about doing 'The Lambeth Walk' here; and a couple of the classical pieces recall the days of Rudy Wiedoft. Stately stuff. If Wellstood were still alive, he might have lent a Machiavellian touch at the piano, but Sutton, admirable though he is, is no such ironist.

The Hamburg Concert is another Bechet Legacy project, with a string of tunes associated with the great man and played with the expected brio by the band – a little too much brio, perhaps. Butch Miles is on his most bumptious form, and though that actually gives the music a sometimes welcome kick, it occasionally seems to egg the normally meticulous Sandke into overplaying what he seems to be hearing as a supercharged Armstrong role. It's still agreeable to hear a contemporary band playing 'Egyptian Fantasy' and 'Dans La Rue D'Antibes'.

The big-band date comes from Wilber's feature spot at the 1996 March Of Jazz Festival in Florida. It falls easily on the ear, and as a soloist Wilber works sunnily in this context, but his writing for the band is nothing very special – he likes the reed section, and that's about it. A better choice is What Swing Is All About, another concert set on Nagel Heyer but measured with particular grace and balance by Wilber and confrères. Sarpila proves to be very simpatico in the front line and the material, though saddled with a few overbaked chestnuts, comes up fresh.

 You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet! Jazzology JCD-328 Wilber; Kenny Davern (cl); Mark Shane (p); Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Frank Tate (b); Hal Smith (d). 4/99.

(*) Summit Reunion In Atlanta Jazzology JCD-385 Wilber; Kenny Davern (cl); Johnny Varro (p); James Chirillo (g); Frank Tate (b); Joe Ascione (d). 4/01.

As with (in another field) Fairport Convention, this band has so many reunions that it seems like it's on permanent recall. The rhythm section is, though, subject to change. You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet! is all Jolson-associated material, although it doesn't, alas, do 'Mammy' (or 'Yaaka Hula Hickey Dula', or 'Quarter To Nine', or ...). Tightly organized, with most pieces around the four- or five-minute mark, the set percolates nicely enough but could use a little more abandon – it's not as if Jolie was exactly a reserved performer, after all.

The Atlanta set (the packaging suggests it's a live set, but it was done in a studio) is much more like it, with both principals in very warm order. Chirillo could use a better sound in the microphones, especially as he's generously featured, but Varro fits in in fine style and it's the horns everyone's come to hear.

(*) Fletcher Henderson's Unrecorded Arrangements For Benny Goodman Arbors ARCD 19229 Wilber; Jean Imbert, Eric Robert, Phillippe Luadet, Ron Dixon, Jacques Sallent (t); Laurent Hotta, Didier Pascal, Michel Chalot (tb); Paul Chéron, Stéphane Lourties (as); Michel Pastre (ts); Guy Robert (bs); Tierry Ollé (p); Henri Chéron (g); Pierre-Luc Puig (b); Jean-Luc Guiraud (d). 7/99.

(*) More Never-Recorded Arrangements For Benny Goodman Arbors ARCD 19282 As above, except omit Pastre; add Jean-François Bonnel, Gérard Barbie (ts, cl). 10/02.

The Tuxedo Big Band assist Wilber on these first-time (re-) creations, explained by the somewhat prosaic titling. The orchestra secure an amazingly lifelike copy of the vintage Goodman orchestra on the first disc, and with a trove of 'new' charts by his most formative arranger the old master's sound comes convincingly back to life here. On disc two, it's a wider range of hands involved – including Benny Carter, Eddie Sauter and Buck Clayton – but handled with the same aplomb. Wilber is the principal soloist, but the rest of the band are no slouches and get plenty of feature spots along the way. Any Goodman fan will surely welcome these records, and the sound is exemplary on both. A nice collaboration between a French band and (for once) an American label.

Also, in brief:

 Bob Wilber And The Scott Hamilton Quartet Chiaroscuro CR(D) 171. 6–7/77.
Good, solid mainstream, and little more.

 The Music Of King Oliver GHB BCD-201. 5/81.
Inexplicably dull homage.

 Memories Of You: Lionel And Benny Black & Blue 897-2. 11/95.
Amiable canter through the Goodman–Hampton book.

 A Perfect Match Arbors ARCD 189193. 8/97.
OK Hodges tribute, with Dick Hyman on organ.

 Everywhere You Go There's Jazz Arbors ARCD 19202. N.D.
The International March Of Jazz All Stars – big name, moderate music.

Joe Wilder (born 1922)

TRUMPET

A fine lead man, he was hidden in section and studio work for many years, but enjoyed an Indian summer in straight-ahead jazz again.

 The Pretty Sound/Jazz From 'Peter Gunn' Collectables COL 7550 Wilder; Urbie Green (tb); Phil Bodner, Jerome Richardson (reeds); Hank Jones (p); Al Casamenti (g); George Duvivier, Milt Hinton (b); Don Lamond, John Cresci (d). 12/58–1/59.

A pair of Columbia albums, which made up the Collectables reissue, and a single date for Savoy were Joe Wilder's only albums under his own name from the LP era. The Collectables pairing is nothing special, really – one set of pretty tunes aimed at the bachelor-pad market, and one of themes from the then-popular Peter Gunn TV series – but Joe brings his dedicated professionalism to bear on both, and the lovely sound of his trumpet-playing is reason enough to hear them. Both muted ('Brief And Breezy') and open ('Joanna') he sounds wonderful, particularly on Henry Mancini's music. Hank Jones, a great pal in the studios, plays on both sessions.

(*) Alone With Just My Dreams Evening Star ES-101 Wilder; James Williams (p); Remo Palmieri (g); Jay Leonhart (b); Sherman Ferguson (d). 8/91.
 No Greater Love Evening Star ES-103 Wilder; Seldon Powell (ts, f); Bobby Tucker (p); James Chirillo (g); Milt Hinton (b); Sherman Ferguson (d). 8/93.
(*) Among Friends Evening Star ES-106 Wilder; Warren Vaché (c); Frank Wess (ts, f); Chris Neville, Bill Charlap, Skitch Henderson (p); Russell Malone, Bucky Pizzarelli (g); Steve LaSpina, Jerry Bruno (b); Chuck Redd, Joe Cocuzzo (d). 8–9/02.

Joe's command has faded a little but his choice of notes and august delivery are wonderful to hear. The first is the best: on 'Struttin' With Some Barbecue' he evokes memories of a lost generation of hot trumpetmen, but the ballads are special and the closing 'What A Wonderful World' will melt hearts of stone. No Greater Love varies the playing situations with duo, trio and sextet tracks – Joe's ingenious chorus on the title-tune is a delight – but one misses the simplicity and straightforwardness of the previous record. But Among Friends, with Joe celebrating his 80th in the company of players of his own and some younger generations, is fine: the sheer warmth and vivacity of the playing make one overlook the slight shortcomings.

Barney Wilen (1937–96)

SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR AND BARITONE SAXOPHONES

Born in Nice, Wilen made a big impact on Parisian audiences when still a teenager and played with Miles Davis in 1957. A stop-start career saw him working as an engineer and film-maker as much as playing sax. Toyed with free and jazz-rock but returned to straight-ahead playing in the '80s.

(*) Jazz Sur Seine Emarcy 548317-2 Wilen; Milt Jackson (p); Percy Heath (b); Kenny Clarke (d); Gana M'Bow (perc). 58.
 Newport '59 Fresh Sound FSRCD 165 Wilen; Clark Terry (t); Toshiko Akiyoshi, Bud Powell, Ewald Heidepriem (p); Tommy Bryant, Eric Peter, Karl Theodor Geier (b); Roy Haynes, Kenny Clarke, Eberhardt Stengl (d). 59.

Basically a tenor-player, Wilen made his name when Miles Davis chose him to play in a group he was fronting in Europe in 1957. But Wilen had already garnered a reputation with visiting Americans for a considerably accomplished technique and a real mastery of hard-bop forms. At last one of his French albums has come back, on Emarcy; the rhythm section is familiar, but Milt Jackson plays piano. There's some beautiful playing by the saxophonist, his tone veiled but wonderfully singing, on the blues 'Nuages' and 'Epistrophy'. Wilen's subsequent visit to play at Newport in 1959 is commemorated by the Fresh Sound CD, although there's only 20 minutes of music from that occasion. Akiyoshi plays exuberant bebop piano in support and Wilen's even, supple tenor works patiently and impressively through 'Passport' and 'Barney's Tune', with what was then a rare appearance of the soprano on 'Round Midnight', in which his tonal control is impressive. Two other tracks of unclear date find him with Powell (very subdued), Terry and Clarke; Wilen's solo on 'No Problem' is typically artful – since the recording is subject to some vagaries of balance, he seems to emerge from the shadows here. There is also another 'Round Midnight' with a German rhythm section.

Don Wilkerson (1932–86)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Not strictly a 'Texas tenor', the Louisianan might just as well have been. A veteran of blues and R&B sessions with the likes of Ray Charles and B. B. King, he also recorded hard bop and soul-jazz as a leader.

 The Texas Twister Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1950 Wilkerson; Nat Adderley (c); Barry Harris (p); Sam Jones, Leroy Vinnegar (b); Billy Higgins (d). 5/60.

Wilkerson's debut as leader came thanks to the enthusiasm of Cannonball Adderley, who produced sympathetically. The Texas Twister isn't quite as headlong as the title suggests and there are subtleties to be found amid the blowing-session clichés. A superb line-up guaranteed a very professional product, with Nat Adderley and pianist Harris in especially good form. Wilkerson's only writing credit is the predictable 'Jelly Roll'. He comes across better on more challenging ideas, notably Adderley's breezy title-track.

(*) The Complete Don Wilkerson On Blue Note Blue Note 24555 2CD Wilkerson; Johnny Acea, Sonny Clark (p); Grant Green (g); John Patton (org); Lloyd Trotman, Butch Warren (b); Willie Bobo, Ben Dixon, Billy Higgins (d). 5 & 6/62, 7/63.

Don's three sessions for the Blue Note label, which relied as heavily on this kind of fare as on more advanced music, are handily gathered onto one set. The three sets he made with Alfred Lion and Rudy Van Gelder were actually released out of sequence. Elder Don was recorded a month before the cuts on Preach, Brother! but released only somewhat later, and one can see why. The playing on the latter record is much crisper and more together, almost as if the band melded only after that first 'rehearsal'. Sonny Clark is also a much more compelling player than Johnny Acea, while Billy Higgins is a more appropriate rhythm man than the talented but miscast Willie Bobo.

The outstanding cut on the May 1962 session is a beautiful reinterpretation of Bob Wills's Texas swing classic, 'San Antonio Rose', which sits delightfully with Wilkerson's own 'Lone Star Shuffle'. His writing confidence is much higher on Preach, Brother! and, while there are no lost classics in the set-list, 'Camp Meeting', 'Homesick Blues' and 'Pigeon Peas' are all strong items.

The final session for Blue Note was recorded a year later and saw Don return to a more straightforward format and a simpler accompaniment. Green is still present and still playing with a forceful grace, but Patton and Dixon offer a more secure and predictable platform for the leader. No particularly outstanding tracks from this session; but if you've bought into the concept, much to enjoy.

Ernie Wilkins (1922–99)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, ARRANGER

A clever and distinctive chartsman, he moved to Copenhagen in 1979 and launched his Almost Big Band there.

 The Swingin' Ernie Wilkins Orchestra: The Big New Band Of The 60s Fresh Sound FSRCD 398 Wilkins; Thad Jones, Joe Newman, Ernie Royal, Clark Terry, Charlie Shavers, Richard Williams, Snooky Young (t); Henderson Chambers, Paul Faulise, Al Grey, Mickey Graume, Jack Rains (tb); Earl Warren (as); Marshall Royal (as, cl); Yusef Lateef, Frank Wess (as, ts, f); Benny Golson, Paul Gonsalves, Seldon Powell, Zoot Sims (ts); Charlie Fowlkes (bs); Walter Bishop, Jimmy Jones (p); Eddie Costa (vib); Kenny Burrell, Freddie Greene (g); Ron Carter, Eddie Jones (b); Charlie Persip (d). 12/59, 1 & 4/60.

These sessions were released by Everest as The Swingin' Mr Wilkins and The Big New Band Of The 60s. At the threshold of the decade, Ernie certainly tried to buck the trend by putting together a large ensemble at a moment when only small groups and studio orchestras made any commercial sense. The quality of personnel is obvious and while Wilkins was never a charismatic front-man, he had first call on enough world-class soloists to give these records the frosting they'd need to catch the eye and ear in 1960. The material on the first disc was mostly very safe – 'Stompin' At The Savoy', 'Makin' Whoopee', 'The Continental' – but the invention is in Wilkins's voicings, which are the essence of modern swing, often using altered and augmented chords, with interesting elements of voice-leading and other devices. The fare is more varied on the later (April) dates but the two sit together surprisingly well on this valuable package.

 Montreux Steeplechase SCCD 31190 Wilkins; Allan Botschinsky, Willie Cook (t); Vagn Elsberg (t, flhn); Erling Kroner (tb); Per Goldschmidt (ts, bs); Bernt Jaedig, Jesper Thilo (ts); Kenny Drew (p); Mads Vinding (b); Aage Tanggaard (d). 7/82.

(*) On The Roll Steeplechase SCCD 31225 Wilkins; Jeff Davis, Benny Rosenfeldt, Jens Winther (t); Erling Kroner (tb); Jan zum Vohrde (as); Per Goldschmidt (ts, bs); Bernt Jaedig, Jesper Thilo (ts); Kenny Drew (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 86.

Wilkins seemed to settle very happily in Scandinavia and his Almost Big Band became a favourite, powerful enough to generate a solid wall of noise, but subtly inflected and mobile enough to preserve the virtues of small-group playing, as contemporary taste dictated. No nonsense about french horns or extra keyboards. Wilkins kept his arrangements sounding rich and nuanced by the way he positioned his players, keeping the rhythm supple but loose. 'Hi-Fly' is a fantastic opener on the Montreux album, one of the best readings on record of Weston's classic composition, which is constructed on fifths, a device that obviously appeals to Ernie. His own work here and on the subsequent Steeplechase reflects a similar approach: everything kept clean and uncomplicated; the solos don't outstay their welcome; the sound is typically good. A shame there isn't anything later of Ernie's to report: a couple of Japanese issues, and no sign yet either of more of the early stuff being reissued.

Andreas Willers (born 1957)

GUITAR

Fine Austrian player with a distinctive sound.

 Tin Drum Stories Between The Lines btl 10179 Willers; Horst Nonnenmacher (b); Horst Griener (d, dictaphone). 12/00.

 In The North Between The Lines btl 10196 As above, except omit Griener; add Yves Robert (tb); Paul Bley (p). 10/02.

 Montauk Between The Lines btl 71208 Willers; Dominique Pifarély (vn); Alain Grainge (clo); Michael Griener (d, perc). 12/04.

Anyone chancing across the first album might think they were listening to Joe Morris or, glimpsing the cover, a freer and funkier than usual disc by label-mate James Emery. In fact, this trio set, which follows a couple of earlier Sound Aspects records, is inspired by Günter Grass's great novel Die Blechtrommel. Quite how it's inspired and how these terse lines tie up with Grass's tale of the imagination and control can't be determined easily, but it's a very engaging set. Griener is an interesting player, who may have been given a tin drum on his fourth birthday, but it's Willers's single-note lines which keep the set from complete abstraction, cutting trajectories across Nonnenmacher's moaning bass.

The appearance of 'The Train And The River' and variations on his 'Yggdrasil' on In The North makes the album a kind of tribute to Jimmy Giuffre. Bley has rarely sounded more rarefied in recent years, closer to his own free-jazz self than the modified bop of most of his current projects. That's not to say it's not engaging and entertaining music, but it requires a determined suspension of expectations to make it work. Cool and thoughtful as you'd expect.

Montauk's a lovely record. With Pifarély and Grainge, the sound is that of a heterodox string trio. Griener is all subtlety and exactness, even when conjuring up imaginary landscapes, and Willers's own array of guitar and banjos creates a sonic world of quiet vividness. Perhaps too many miniatures: some more-extended playing would be welcome.

Baby Face Willette (1933–?)

ORGAN

Born Roosevelt Willette in either New Orleans or Little Rock (no one seems to know for sure), he moved to Chicago and then New York. After a brief career, he pretty much disappeared.

 Face To Face Blue Note 93180 Willette; Fred Jackson (ts); Grant Green (g); Ben Dixon (d). 1/61.

(*) Mo'Rock / Behind The 8-Ball Groove Hut 66702 Willette; Ben White (g); Eugene Bass, Jerold Donovan (d). 3, 4 & 11/64.

Willette began his career as a pianist in R&B and gospel, and though Jimmy Smith was his main model something of a pianist's touch remained in his playing. The debut set is solid soul-jazz, unremarkable as far as any stylistic innovation is concerned but marked by some strong original writing. Alternates of 'Somethin' Strange' and the title-track suggest an imaginative, responsive player, able to vary his own conception at will, but Jackson is a drab soloist in the Gene Ammons mode and only a few flourishes from Green add much to the leader's own statements.

Willette's best record, Stop And Listen, is perversely not available at the moment, though there was a 1995 CD reissue. The later material is taken from two Argo sets, Mo'Rock and Behind The 8-Ball, neither of them in any way revelatory, though neither badly enough executed nor so out of touch with the times as to explain Willette's subsequent disappearance.

Bruce Williams

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Vivid player; comes out of bebop but with free and funky overtones.

 Brotherhood Savant 2004 Williams; Russell Gunn (t); Alan Palmer (p); Dwayne Dolphin (b); Cecil Brooks III (d). 7/97.

 Altoicity Savant 2025 As above, except omit Palmer, Dolphin; add Marc Cary (p); Gerald Cannon (b). 5/00.

Williams isn't well-known and can be slightly anonymous in a solo, but his two issued albums are worth having for the sheer energy and dexterity he brings to mostly original programmes. The first group, anchored by Savant man Brooks, is probably the better of the two by a whisker, mostly because the material is more inviting. On McLean's 'Jackie's Tune', he lifts the curtain on one obvious influence. 'Portrait Of Jennie', 'Out Of Nowhere' and 'I Can't Get Started' are all despatched with some thought, but it's originals like 'Memory Of Waterford' and 'Ichi-Wuda' which stick in the mind.

The replacement of Palmer with Cary adds a measure of sophistication to the rhythm section, but that isn't necessarily what this music needs. Williams's lines are strong and simple enough to deserve relatively unembellished performance. If you enjoyed the first date, and the leader's burnished tone, you'll probably want the second disc as well.

Buster Williams (born 1942)

DOUBLE BASS

Born in Camden, New Jersey. Originally coached in drums as well as bass, he has a rock-solid theoretical grounding gained at the Combs College of Music, Philadelphia. His eventual career was mapped out when he first heard Oscar Pettiford's bass improvisations.

(*) Somewhere Along The Way TCB 97602 Williams; Gary Bartz (as); Carlos McKinney (p); Stefon Harris (vib); Lenny White (d). 11/96.

(*) Lost In A Memory TCB 99252 As above, except omit Bartz, McKinney; add Geri Allen (p). 97.

The little genius has graced many records over the years but, unlike many a gifted sideman, has also created a body of work under his own name. Buster's harmony is impeccable and he has a rhythmic sense that is unfailing, feeling and utterly original. Williams worked with singers for many years – Dakota Staton, Nancy Wilson, Betty Carter – and always shows an instinct for the dimensions of song. His own compositions, like 'Toku-Do', call out for lyrics and a tough-but-tender singing voice. Williams loves to play melody-lines, scampering tunes almost too urgent for coherence. Somewhere Along The Way unveils the bones of a line-up that was to express Williams's music with real confidence. Vibist Stefon Harris cut his teeth in this band, filling the role that Roy Ayers had performed in the past. Gary Bartz had a similar background in Miles's band and is exceptional on 'Summertime' (Somewhere). Without a horn, the recent Lost In A Memory is even more focused and at times very intense. A couple of horn-led tracks might have made sense, but Buster's playing is so good that one wouldn't have it any other way..

(*) Houdini Sirocco SJL 1014 Williams; Geri Allen (p); Lenny White (d). 3/00.

A lucid essay on the modal forms of the kind of jazz which Williams grew up playing and which he clearly feels still have endless possibilities. Aside from a couple of standards, the only non-Williams originals are Hancock's 'Sorceror' and Shorter's 'Fall', which gives a close idea of the terrain Buster's moving through. Allen is masterful in this music, and if White might seem an unlikely choice, he's a regular playing partner of Geri's and the trio have a serene empathy. Unlikely to garner much attention, in a world full of piano trio records, but Sirocco deserve praise for making it happen.

* Griot Liberté High Note HCD 7123 Williams; George Colligan (p); Stefon Harris (vib); Lenny White (d). 2/04.

A fine version of 'Joined At The Hip' and an interesting return visit to 'Concierto De Aranjuez' help to make this a vintage Williams set. He sounds effortless now and capable of almost anything in his solos. Colligan and Harris combine well, but it's the consistently underrated White who walks off with much of the honours. A crisp display from him.

Also, in brief:

 Live At The Montreux Jazz Festival, 1999 TCB 20152. 7/99.

Buster's leads on 'Toku-Do' are a sharp reminder of what a formidable player he is. Of bassist-led bands, only Ray Brown's could come up to this standard at the time.

 Joined At The Hip TCB 21202. 5/02.

A tight, remarkably punchy bop set with Steve Wilson (as) in the Bird role.

Clarence Williams (1893–1965)

PIANO, JUG, VOICE

Born outside New Orleans, he was a smart hustler who was already earning money from publishing by 1916. He later owned his own publishing house in New York, while organizing countless recording sessions as A&R man for OKeh and playing either piano or jug on his own dates (his wife, Eva Taylor, sang on many, too). He eventually left the business in 1943 and ran a shop in Harlem.

(*) Clarence Williams 1921–1924 Classics 679 Williams; Thomas Morris, Louis Armstrong (c); Charlie Irvis, John Mayfield (tb); Buster Bailey, Sidney Bechet (cl, ss); Don Redman (as); Buddy Christian (bj); Sara Martin, Eva Taylor, Lawrence Lomax, Rosetta Crawford, Mamie Smith, Margaret Johnson, Virginia Liston, Sippie Wallace, Maureen Englin (v). 10/21–11/24.

 Clarence Williams 1924–1926 Classics 695 As above, except add Johnny Dunn, Big Charlie Thomas, Edward Allen, Buber Miley (c); Joe 'Tricky Sam' Nanton, Jimmy Harrison, Jake Frazier (tb); Bob Fuller (cl); Coleman Hawkins (cl, ts, bs); Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (tba); Clarence Todd (v). 7/25–4/26, 2/24–1/26.

 Clarence Williams 1926–27 Classics 718 Williams; Tommy Ladnier, Jabbo Smith, Ed Allen, Bubber Miley, Tom Morris, Louis Metcalf (c); Jimmy Harrison, Joe 'Tricky Sam' Nanton (tb); Buster Bailey (cl); Arville Harris, Don Redman (cl, as); Coleman Hawkins (ts); Fats Waller (p); Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (bb); Eva Taylor (v). 3/26–4/27.

 Clarence Williams 1927 Classics 736 Williams; Ed Allen (c); Henry 'Red' Allen, Ed Anderson (t); Charlie Irvis (tb); Buster Bailey (ss, cl); Carmelo Jari, Arville Harris, Ben Whittet, Albert Socarras (cl, as); Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (bb); Floyd Casey (wbd); Clarence Lee, Evelyn Preer (v). 3–9/27.

Williams was of negligible importance as a musician – he wasn't a great pianist, handled vocals with clumsy enthusiasm, and often resorted to blowing a jug on his Jug Band records – but he was a brilliant hustler and a master at making record dates come together. At his very first session, on the first CD listed above, he secured the services of Sidney Bechet (also making his debut), and in fact Bechet appears on every track on this disc. Later sessions brought in Armstrong alongside Bechet, Bubber Miley, Lorenzo Tio and others. The material was mostly novelty tunes ('Who'll Chop Your Suey When I'm Gone?') or vaudeville blues, with the occasional tougher piece – such as Sippie Wallace's two tracks on volume two – and some instrumentals by Williams's Blue Five.

Both Classics and Hot 'N' Sweet have undertaken complete series, but the latter quickly came to a halt. The Classics discs got off to an indifferent start with the first two discs, which had very mixed reproduction, although Classics 718 and 736 are more consistent and quite lively. Musically, the later sides are hotter, though Bechet makes a striking impact throughout the first disc, and his partnership with Armstrong on 'Cake Walking Babies From Home', 'Mandy Make Up Your Mind' and a few others is exhilarating enough to cut through the acoustic recording. The first Classics disc starts off with some ancient 1921 material in which Williams is basically a band singer on six tracks, historical curios more than anything. Classics 718 has several tracks where Williams and The Blue Five are accompanying the sweet-voiced Eva Taylor, but there is more jazz on Classics 736: three different versions of Williams's hit, 'Cushion Foot Stomp', the knockabout 'Old Folks Shuffle', a Brunswick date with Henry Allen and Ed Anderson as a two-trumpet front line, and two versions of another Williams favourite, 'Shootin' The Pistol'.

 Clarence Williams 1927–1928 Classics 752 Williams; Ed Allen, Joe 'King' Oliver (c); Ed Cuffee (tb); Arville Harris, Benny Waters, Albert Socarras, Buster Bailey (cl, as); Coleman Hawkins (ts); James P. Johnson (p); Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (tba); Floyd Casey (d, wbd). 10/27–8/28.

(*) Clarence Williams 1928–1929 Classics 771 As above, except omit Hawkins, Johnson; add Ed Anderson (c); Ben Whittet (cl, as); Ernest Elliott (cl); Claude Hopkins (p); Charlie Dixon (bj); Kaiser Marshall (d). 8/28–1/29.

 Clarence Williams 1929 Classics 791 As above, except omit Anderson, Elliott, Hopkins, Dixon, Marshall; add James P. Johnson (p); Russell Procope (cl, as). 1–5/29.

(*) Clarence Williams 1929–1930 Classics 810 As above, except add Ed Anderson, Charlie Gaines, Leonard Davis, Henry 'Red' Allen (t); Geechie Fields (tb); Frank Robinson (bsx, hca, v); Prince Robinson (cl, ts). 6/29–4/30.

 Clarence Williams 1930–1931 Classics 832 Williams; Ed Allen, Bill Dillard, Ward Pinkett, Henry 'Red' Allen, Charlie Gaines (t); Jimmy Archey (tb); Albert Socarras (cl, as, f); Henry Jones (as); Arville Harris, Prince Robinson, Bingie Madison (cl, ts); Fred Skerritt (bs, as); Gene Rodgers, Herman Chittison (p); Lonnie Johnson (g); Goldie Lucas (g, bj); Ikey Robinson, Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (tba); Richard Fulbright (b); Bill Beason (d); Floyd Casey (wbd); Eva Taylor, Clarence Todd (v). 5/30–2/31.

* Dreaming The Hours Away Frog DGF14 Similar to appropriate discs above. 5/26–9/28.

(*) Whoop It Up Frog DGF17 Similar to appropriate discs above. 2/29–2/31.

(*) Shake 'Em Up Frog DGF37 As for appropriate discs above. 2/27–5/29.

(*) Speakeasy – QRS Recordings Vol 1 Frog DGF48 Williams; Ed Allen, Joe 'King' Oliver (c); Ed Cuffee (tb); Buster Bailey (cl); Bennie Moten, Arville Harris (cl, as); Benny Waters (cl, ts); Leroy Harris (bj); Cyrus St Clair (tba); Anna Bell, Katherine Henderson (v). 8–11/28.

Williams's music doesn't have any great variety in it: his basic configurations were the Washboard and Jug Bands, the Jazz Kings sides, a few stray piano solos, the occasional vocal where he's accompanied by another (James P. Johnson on one occasion) and some ensemble dates which are simply credited to the Williams Orchestra. The more knockabout material was reserved for the jug or washboard situations, but some of these also have a gentleness about them. Although Casey's irresistible beat and St Clair's parping lines provide a steady momentum, Williams could often find unexpected subtleties in some of his line-ups, pairing reeds together or providing space for the faithful Ed Allen to play one of his tight, incisive solos. Allen is the unsung hero of most of these dates, unfailingly consistent and interesting, and though a few star names turn up here and there, notably King Oliver, Eddie Lang and James P., it's Williams's repertory cast – Allen, Harris, St Clair, Casey, Whittet, Cuffee and a few others – who make the most of the music. Because the playing is fun and unpretentious, these tracks have often been undervalued over the years, but at the same time it's hard to pick out special highlights. We award a token extra notch for Classics 771 (some excellent individual tracks) and Classics 810 (a particularly nice variety of bands and approaches), but if you enjoy one of these discs, you'll enjoy them all.

Frog's two compilations of Williams's Columbia sessions offering superb sound from what seem to be mint copies of the originals make these model reissues. Dreaming The Hours Away is particularly outstanding since it includes several of the best Jazz Kings sides and 11 tracks – mostly accompaniments to the likes of Ethel Waters, Lucille Hegamin and Lizzie Miles – which aren't included in the Classics sequence. The sound on Whoop It Up is just as good, and although the only 'new' tracks are a pair of accompaniments to singer Bertha Idaho, these sessions are some of Clarence's best; the Columbia studios were his most congenial home. These are certainly the discs to get if you want only a couple of Williams CDs.

Frog's two later Williams sets are slightly more specialized. Shake 'Em Up gathers all his Brunswick, Victor, Paramount and Grey Gull sides from 1927–9, with alternative takes: it's a good sampler, in effect, of vintage Williams, with a handful of classics ('Cushion Foot Stomp', 'Shooting The Pistol') and some merely good ones, including his Victor solo date of February 1929. Transfers are astonishingly good, from beautiful originals! Speakeasy is even more of an achievement, since it gathers in 25 tracks culled from Williams's sessions for QRS – records which are in some cases stupendously rare. Even John R. T. apologizes for the sound on some tracks, but mostly it's fine. The tracks with blues singers Bell and Henderson are absent from the Classics sequence. Bravo to Frog!

 Clarence Williams 1933 Classics 845 Williams; Ed Allen (c); Albert Nicholas, Cecil Scott (cl); Herman Chittison, Willie 'The Lion' Smith (p); Ikey Robinson (bj, g); Cyrus St Clair (tba); Willie Williams, Floyd Casey (d, wbd); Eva Taylor, Clarence Todd (v). 5–11/33.

 Clarence Williams 1933–1934 Classics 871 As above, except omit Nicholas, Chittison, Smith, Robinson, Williams, Taylor, Todd; add Charlie Gaines (t, v); Louis Jordan (as, v); James P. Johnson (p); Roy Smeck (bj, g); Dick Robertson, Chick Bullock, Little Buddy Farrior (v). 12/33–6/34.

 Clarence Williams 1934 Classics 891 As above, except omit Gaines, Jordan, Robertson, Bullock, Farrior; add Willie 'The Lion' Smith (p); Richard Fulbright (b); Ikey Robinson (bj, v); Eva Taylor, Clarence Todd (v). 7–10/34.

 Clarence Williams 1934–1937 Classics 918 As above, except omit Smith, Robinson, Todd, Johnson; add Wilbur De Paris (tb); Prince Robinson (ts); Jimmy McLin (g); William Cooley, Chick Bullock (v). 9/34–4/37.

(*) Clarence Williams 1937–1941 Classics 953 Similar to above, except add James P. Johnson (p); Cozy Cole (d); Babe Matthews (v). 4/37–10/41.

 Clarence Williams And His Orchestra Volumes 1 & 2 Timeless CBC 1-056 2CD / 057 2CD As appropriate discs above. 5/33–6/34; 6/34-4/37.

The Depression cut down so many survivors of the '20s that Williams's endurance seems remarkable. He actually made more records in 1934 than in some of his peak years. This is a little-known sequence of sessions, many of the originals very rare, and while nothing much changes from the earlier music, an almost repertorial feel takes over as one goes through the tracks. The principal voices remain those of Ed Allen and Cecil Scott, the most loyal of sidemen, whose respective styles grow more polished down the years without losing the old-fashioned heat that must have seemed anachronistic by the mid-'30s. Along with Casey (still playing washboard) and the similarly faithful St Clair, Williams went serenely on. There is the odd difference between dates: a 1934 Decca session with Willie 'The Lion' Smith (Classics 891) is brighter and rather louder than the others. But as late as the final Vocalion session, of May 1935 (Classics 918), the group are still playing disciplined, impeccable small-group jazz in the manner of a decade earlier.

The final Classics disc is a curiosity. Most of it is taken up with radio transcriptions of uneventful gospel material from 1937. There's a 1938 trio date which Williams hardly seems to take part in, and a final pair of titles with James P. and Eva Taylor from 1941.

The pair of Timeless two-CD sets are a first choice if this is the Williams vintage you're looking for. Several extra takes are included (not an especially revealing bonus, admittedly), and transfers and documentation beat the Classics discs hands down.

Cootie Williams (1910–85)

TRUMPET

Duke Ellington wrote two concertos for him, in 1940 and again in 1963, when Cootie rejoined the orchestra. Having replaced Bubber Miley, he developed a solo style that seemed to cover every creative eventuality, grainy, intense and making use of the mutes.

(*) Cootie Williams 1941–1944 Classics 827 Williams; Milton Fraser, Joe Guy, Harold 'Money' Johnson, Ermit V. Perry, George Treadwell (t); Louis Bacon (t, v); Ed Burke, Jonas Walker, Robert Horton, George Stevenson, Sandy Williams, Lou McGarity (tb); Charlie Holmes, Les Robinson (as); Eddie 'Cleanhead' Vinson (as, v); Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis, Bob Dorsey, Lee Pope, Greely Walters (ts); John Williams, Skippy Martin, Eddie De Verteuil (bs); Johnny Guarnieri, Kenny Kersey, Bud Powell (p); Artie Bernstein, Norman Keenan (b); Butch Ballard, Jo Jones, Vess Payne (d); Pearl Bailey (v). 5/41–8/44.

(*) Cootie Williams 1945–1946 Classics 981 Williams; Billy Ford, Otis Gamble, Harold 'Money' Johnson, Ermit V. Perry, George Treadwell (t); Gene Redd (t, vib); Ed Burke, Robert Horton, Edward Johnson, Dan Logan, Julius Watson (tb); Rupert Cole, John Jackson, Frank Powell, Daniel Williams (as); Eddie 'Cleanhead' Vinson (as, v); Chuck Clarke, Everett Gaines, Eddie Johnson, Lee Pope, Sam Taylor (ts); Bob Ashton, George Favors, Eddie De Verteuil (bs); Arnold Jarvis (p); Sam Allen, Leroy Kirkland, Pee Wee Tinney (g); Jimmy Glover, Norman Keenan, Carl Pruitt (b); Butch Ballard, Sylvester Payne (d); Johnny Mercer, Bob Merrill, Tony Warren (v). 2/45–7/46.

 Cootie Williams 1946–1949 Classics 1105 Williams; Billy Ford (t); Bob Merrill (t, v); Edward Burke, Edward Johnson, Julius Watson (tb); Rupert Cole (as); Willis 'Gator' Jackson (ts); Bob Ashton (bs); Arnold Jarvis (p); Mundell Lowe (g); Norman Keenan, Leonard 'Heavy' Swain (b); Butch Ballard (d); Billy Mack, Eddie Matthews, The Balladeers (v). 46–49.

Ellington wrote 'Do Nothing Till You Hear From Me' as a 'Concerto For Cootie', a feature for the young growler he recruited at 19 as a replacement for Bubber Miley. During the '30s Williams showed himself of all the Ellingtonians the one most capable of sustaining an independent career. His high, bright trumpet was to be replaced by even more agile players, but no one with the sheer musical intelligence of Cootie.

The Classics compilations do not include material recorded under any other leader, so the tracks with Hamp's band or Barney Bigard's Jazzopators (previously available on a Topaz compilation) are not included. As so often in this valuable and clearly documented series, one is apt to be distracted from the leader's achievement by early sightings of soon to be important players. Bud Powell's appearance with the Williams Orchestra marked an important phase in his career, and the band also made the first recordings of two Thelonious Monk compositions, 'Fly Right' (aka 'Epistrophy') and 'Round Midnight', the latter from the August 1944 date covered on both discs. Cootie's own contributions go their growling, alternately chipper and sombre, way. Some will undoubtedly favour the orchestra sides with Vinson playing and singing, and Lockjaw beginning to make his move. These are delightful recordings and even the rather muddy Classics sound can't blunt their appeal.

The second Classics volume is full of anticipations of Cootie's later swing to R&B. His bands of 1945 and 1946 are full of names who would play a part in a later chapter of American music: Gene Redd was the father of singer Sharon Redd and Gene Jr of Kool & The Gang; Sylvester Payne was the father of Basie's drummer; Eddie Vinson puts in an appearance as vocalist on 'Juice Head Baby' and 'When My Baby Left Me'. Excellent as many of these cuts are, they are far short of the quality of Williams's work with Duke. 'Echoes Of Harlem' comes from a 1946 session with Johnny Mercer as vocalist; elsewhere Bob Merrill takes on vocal duties. We find these dates pall on subsequent hearings, but Cootie's admirers will find enough of the real thing to make this a worthwhile purchase.

The latest Classics set takes up the story just as Cootie was looking for commercial success with vocal sides for Capitol, Majestic and Mercury. They're not the most profound things you'll ever hear and some of them are decidedly lame, almost novelty records, but the sound of Cootie's trumpet does cut through when he takes a feature and he sounds in good lip still.

Douglas Williams

CLARINET

A mysterious figure, active in '20s Memphis.

() Douglas Williams 1928–1930 Jazz Oracle BDW 8012 Williams; Nathaniel Williams (c); Alfoncy Harris (as, v); Blaine Eliott, Edgar Brown (p); Melvin Parker (g, v); Sam Sims (d); Telam Lee, B. Smith, Bethenea Harris (v). 1/28–6/30.

Very little is known about Williams and these rare recordings are his only legacy. His style is somewhere between the New Orleans masters and the vaudevillian gaspipe players – a meeting between Johnny Dodds and Wilbur Sweatman, perhaps. Nine of the tracks are effectively solos with minimal accompaniment, but there are also three vocal duets and 13 titles which also feature a cornetist, whose identity is not always certain. Some of the playing is close to excruciating, but other pieces feature playing of real feeling. Annoyingly, both extremes are sometimes touched in the same song. Nothing here is immortal, but as a snapshot of what was going on in Memphis jazz in the later '20s – when very little jazz was being recorded there – it fascinates. John R. T. Davies remastered and the records will never sound better.

Fess Williams (1894–1975)

CLARINET, ALTO SAXOPHONE, VOICE

A great jazz entertainer in Chicago's clubland. He later went into real estate.

 Pre-Victors: The Complete Set Retrieval RTR 79032 Williams; George Temple, Kenneth Roane (t); David 'Jelly' James (tb); Perry Smith (cl, ts, v); Gene Mikell (cl, as, bs, bsx); Hank Duncan (p); Ollie Blackwell (bj); Clinton Walker (tba); Ralph Bedell (d). 10/25–6/27.

Williams clowned his way around Chicago's vaudeville scene for several successful years, and made a lot of records too. His Victor sessions are the most renowned, but this disc, as the title implies, includes everything he did earlier. While his own playing has more comical antics than hot playing in it, he had a pretty useful band and Temple and James in particular do some sterling work. Fess's vocals are a howling delight on tracks such as 'Wimmin – Aah!' and 'Make Me Know It', and though this is hardly a CD to sit through all in one go, it's a nice alternative to A Love Supreme.

Gareth Williams

PIANO

One of Britain's best accompanists.

 Three Ronnie Scott's Jazz House JHCD 62 Williams; Dave Green (b); Tristan Maillot (d). 3/00.

The thing that immediately strikes about Williams is his energy. It isn't deployed at the expense of thought, though. This club date is packed with ideas from start to finish, with Green a consistently reliable presence.

James Williams (1951–2004)

PIANO

A Memphis piano man who latterly taught at Berklee. Spent 1977–81 with Art Blakey and subsequently freelanced and produced in NYC.

 Truth, Justice & The Blues /  We've Got What You Need Evidence ECD 22142 / 22207 Williams; Bill Pierce, Steve Wilson (sax); Javon Jackson (ts on What You Need only); Christian McBride, John Lockwood, Tony Reedus (b); Yoron Israel (d); Miles Griffith, Roger Holland (v on TJ&B only); Dianne Reeves, Etta Jones, Vanessa Rubin (v on What You Need only). 12/94; 12/96.

Williams's characteristic sound was deeply rooted in gospel and the blues, so it was no great surprise when he put out sets like these, with churchy vocals and a strong message. However, they make for strange survivals. Williams's recording career was quite sporadic, fitted in round a raft of other responsibilities, but he had some nice records on DIW which are worth hearing, and a good Sunnyside, which would also merit reissue. These song-based projects, which went out under the name ICU with lyrics by Pamela Baskin-Watson on the first record and standards on the second, are of limited appeal but do both feature fine playing from the overlapping personnel. Williams also has work on the DIW label in Japan, but his American work is surprisingly hard to find in any bulk.

Also, in brief:

 Jazz Dialogues 1–4 Finas Jazz 101–104. 12/00–1/01.

Intriguing but inevitably patchy set of duos with a variety of R&B singers and mainstream modern players. Houston Person, Joe Lovano, Chris McBride, Russell Malone and Etta Jones are among those taking part.

Jessica Williams (born 1948)

PIANO

The prolific Baltimorean has a style very much her own but compounded of many elements of the jazz piano tradition, including Art Tatum, Dave Brubeck, Bill Evans and a lyrical edge reminiscent of Hampton Hawes.

 The Next Step Hep CD 2054 Williams (p solo). 4/93.
 In The Pocket /  A Song That I Heard Hep CD 2055 / 2061 Williams; Jeff Johnson (b); Dick Berk (d). 4 & 7/93; 3/94.

The Next Step catches a mature artist at work. Plaudits to label boss Alastair Robertson for signing her up at a point in the story when Williams was not a well-known name outside Baltimore and California. When she is heard unaccompanied, her style is complex, clever and slightly overwrought, too laden with quotations and parallel ideas. Her experience as a drummer and Hammond-player, and her long experimentation with synthesizers, can be detected in a taste for dense chord-clusters overlain on a driving beat. Often, as on the second and third Hep discs, one wonders what is really required of the bassist and drummer, so ahead of the game does she seem.

Originals like 'The Quilt', inspired by the AIDS memorial quilt, and 'Bongo's Waltz', which is dedicated to her dog, suggest a strong compositional talent, though as time goes by one begins to detect a formulaic quality, too much dependence on certain harmonic quirks. 'A Gal In Calico' on In The Pocket is a tour de force; legacy of many years playing bars and clubs round Baltimore, it underlines her talent for spotting the interrelatedness of thematic material, because buried in the texture one can spot a whole procession of tiny, almost subliminal tags from Rodgers and Hammerstein, Porter and Gershwin songs. 'I Remember Bill', from the same set, is a tender memoir of another potent influence.

 Arrival Jazz Focus JFCD 001 Williams (p solo). 94.
 Momentum /  Inventions Jazz Focus JFCD 003 / 008 Williams; Jeff Johnson (b); Dick Berk (d). 2/94; 1/95.

An almost exact repetition of her recording pattern for Hep, Williams's first three records for Jazz Focus sound somewhat like more of the same. For our taste, the Canadian label gives her a warmer sound, with less space between the instruments.

Alarmingly, Inventions comes with the generic subtitle 'Explorations In Music' which was to appear on some of the later Jazz Focus discs. Much of her 'exploration' involves nothing more than walking in the footsteps of those who have gone before. There is a foray into Coltrane's harmony on 'Last Trane' and a nod in the direction of Toshiko Akiyoshi (both Inventions), but where she is strongest is when the melody-lines are simple and clearly directed and the harmonic language is her own.

 Encounters Jazz Focus JFCD 005 Williams; Leroy Vinnegar (b); Mel Brown (d). 10/94.

No nonsense about 'explorations', and for a change a rhythm section which really does offer Williams some challenges. Recorded live at Atwater's club in Portland, Oregon, Encounters kicks off with a wonderful version of John Coltrane's 'Equinox', not necessarily the kind of repertoire you'd associate with the veteran walker Vinnegar, but all grist to his mill. Randy Weston's 'Berkshire Blues' is equally unexpected but no less effective, and Brown really comes into his own at this point. We suspect that the tracks are not in the order played; there is a certain slackening of pace and a more tentative quality to the tunes after 'If I Were A Bell'. Williams's own 'The Sheikh' is very much a personal feature, but the two standards which follow, 'Wrap Your Troubles In Dreams' and 'Say It Over And Over Again', are quite nondescript and unfocused.

(*) Gratitude Candid CCD 79721 Williams (p solo). 6/95.

We like Gratitude as much as anything she has committed to record. There are two Coltrane tunes in the programme – the blues 'Mr Syms' and 'Like Sonny' – and reprises of her own 'Last Trane' and 'The Sheikh'. She was presumably listening to Trane a good deal at the time, and also to Monk, who is represented again by 'Justice', a marvellous reading, and by a thoroughly individual interpretation of the tired old piano warhorse 'Round Midnight', which is suddenly fresh as a colt again. The two standards are 'I Cover The Waterfront' and 'Nice Work If You Can Get It', both of them dispatched briskly and without indulgence.

(*) Intuition / * The Victoria Concert Jazz Focus JFCD 010 / 015 Williams (p solo). 6/95; 9/95.

The studio album is more thoroughly suffused with the blues than Williams has seemed for a while, not just as a matter of strict harmony but in feel and emotional pressure as well. 'Holocaust Blues' is a dark, strong original, boldly placed first in the set. Billy Cobham's and George Duke's 'Heather' is an entirely unexpected inclusion, but a great find. Otherwise, Monk is the presiding deity, with both 'Green Chimneys' and 'Monk's Dream' covered.

The live album is joyous, open-hearted and at points quite intense. Opening with 'I Want To Be Happy' is some kind of statement of intent, and even blues material like 'Mr Syms' is given a buoyant and almost rambunctious feel. At a quarter of an hour, 'Straight, No Chaser' is a workout of Marine Corps proportions, a real harmonic and rhythmic assault course. Williams, as ever, passes with flying colours (if that isn't mixing military services) but the likely reaction is going to be: So what? – a lot of effort expended for very little real musical return.

 Joy / (*) Jessica's Blues Jazz Focus JFCD 014 / 018 Williams; Jay Thomas (t, ts, f); Hadley Caliman (ts on Joy only); Jeff Johnson (b); Dick Berk, Mel Brown (d, perc on Joy only). 11/95, 1/96; 10/96.

Williams's decision to record with horns wasn't altogether surprising, but it takes a moment or two to adjust to the sheer busyness of the sound. Thomas is a talented and adaptable player, shifting from trumpet on the opening 'Joy', which is retrospectively dedicated to the late Don Cherry, to flute on 'Infinite Circle', to trumpet and flute on a reworked 'The Quilt', and back to trumpet again on the Hancock-like 'Dharma Dance', which also features more straight-ahead tenor from Hadley Caliman.

Williams seems to thrive on these larger-scale arrangements, and she plays with an attractive simplicity that would not be out of place in more restricted settings as well. Unembellished melody statement is the key to Jessica's Blues. It is also a more coherent package, having been recorded in a single session rather than over a period of time and with slightly different personnel from its predecessor.

() Higher Standards / () Jazz In The Afternoon Candid CCD 79736 / 70750 Williams; Dave Captein (b); Mel Brown (d). 11/96; 2/98.
 Blue Fire /  Some Ballads, Some Blues Jazz Focus JFCD 35 / 38 As above, except add Scott Hall (ts on Blue Fire only). 5/99; 00.

It's surprising that a pure standards album should have been so long in coming, but Williams has chosen to bide her time and craft it carefully. Our suspicion is that a very great deal more than is actually released was recorded. Surely it wasn't all as good as this? The downside is that it comes across as an album of peaks and climaxes, with hardly any basic passage-work.

'Mack The Knife' is very good indeed, but the high-points of the album are 'A Night In Tunisia', which is recast as funky post-bop, and 'East Of The Sun (And West Of The Moon)', which can't be faulted on any count whatsoever. Captein is a less effusive and insistent player than either Vinnegar or Johnson, but he takes his place in the trio with great assurance.

By the time of Jazz In The Afternoon, which was recorded live at Chemekata College, Oregon, the trio is functioning like a band that has been working together for years. Williams is once again brilliant on 'Straight, No Chaser', though one wonders how often one would want to buy a record like this just to hear her not repeating ideas. Her own 'I Remember Dexter' is another slightly self-conscious attempt to write herself into jazz history, and a not entirely successful one.

Blue Fire has some lovely things. Jessica's tribute to the late Kenny Kirkland is heartfelt without being fulsome. She kicks off with the title-track, playing inside the piano and adding a few percussion touches as well. Saxophonist Hall joins the trio for this one and pairs Jessica on a fine duo version of 'Everything Happens To Me', which is miscredited on the album. 'The Vision' is a lovely modal idea which inhabits territory somewhere between McCoy Tyner and Bill Evans.

The ballads and blues record is precisely that, entertaining rather than profound but thoughtful as ever. The only non-originals are 'You Don't Know What Love Is', 'My Foolish Heart' and 'When I Fall In Love'. All the rest are Williams compositions, slightly technical in cast but always expressive and stimulating.

 Ain't Misbehavin' / (*) The Real Deal Candid CCD 79763 / Hep 2086 Williams (p solo). 99; 9–10/00.

Much has been made of the acoustic and the piano in the Maybeck Recital Hall beloved of Concord Records. The Holywell Room in Oxford is no slouch in the same regards and this delightful solo performance is one of Williams's best. The Fats Waller tune brings out her wicked side, while the rest of the package demonstrates how thoughtful and exploratory a recitalist she is. How many contemporary pianists would include two Roland Kirk-associated pieces, 'Black Diamonds' and 'The Eulipians'? Who else does Sonny Rollins's 'Paul's Pal', before ending the set with Coltrane's 'After The Rain'? Jessica's allusive soloing is sometimes too self-conscious, but these are thoroughly attractive interpretations.

She picks up on Garner again at the very beginning of The Real Deal, with a fascinating version of 'Misty' that verges on pastiche but still manages to make an individual statement. The bulk of the album is devoted to the music and legacy of Thelonious Monk and includes a heartfelt tribute from Jessica alongside 'Round Midnight' and 'Friday The 13th', but there is also a wonderful 'Petite Fleur' played way up the keyboard with an almost childlike quality and, in sharp contrast, a wonderful version of 'Morning Of The Carnival', directly inspired by Kenny Barron. So, a tribute to more than one favourite pianist and more than one great composer.

(*) This Side Up /  Live At Yoshi's 1 & 2 Maxx Jazz 203 / 207 / 208 Williams; Ray Drummond (b); Victor Lewis (d). 8/01; 03.

Latest in a series of piano recitals from this small label, these catch Williams and a superb trio in sparkling form. Almost all the material is her own and is played, 'Miles to Go' and 'I Remember Dexter' in particular, with enormous energy and compression of mood. The opening track, 'The Judge', is a tribute to the late Milt Hinton and, true to form, Drummond drops in a couple of sly quotes. Jessica's affection for Roland Kirk is reflected in 'Theme For The Eulipians' and 'Black Diamonds', which have become regular components of her work-book. The live dates are pretty strong as well but somehow lack the surprise punch of This Side Up.

(*) All Alone Maxx Jazz 206 Williams (p solo). 8/02.

Williams seems to be having more fun with her playing as the years go by. She opens with a frankly sentimental 'As Time Goes By', continues with Ellington and Irving Berlin, including the title-piece. She gets inside the piano and footers with the strings on 'The Sheikh', which adds to her palette without sounding self-conscious or histrionic. The recording is very close and faithful, with a lot of detail, and Williams has rarely sounded happier at work.

* Billy's Theme: A Tribute To Dr Billy Taylor Origin 82461 Williams (p solo). 2/06.

There is a new-found freshness to Williams's solo work of the last few years. The spontaneous compositions/improvisations and reprise of 'Billy's Theme' that comprise the last half of this record are among the most adventurous and thought-provoking of her now 30-year career. Taylor was an important predecessor in showing how bop piano could have the sophistication and resonant depth of classical music. Nothing remotely Third Stream about these compositions, but they do seem to touch on other registers in Williams's playing. Apparently recorded in a home studio, the set sounds thoughtful without being introverted and delicately cadenced without losing its bluesy toughness.

Also, in brief:

(*) Encounters II Jazz Focus JFCD 33. 10/96.

A happy reunion with Vinnegar and at the same club in Portland that hosted their earlier meeting.

 In The Key Of Monk Jazz Focus JFCD 029. 5/97.

Emphatically not an album of Monk covers, but an attempt to create a seamless suite of meditations on the great pianist and composer.

(*) I Let A Song Go Out Of My Heart Hep 2082. 9–10/00.

Williams's centenary tribute to Ellington was one of many, but typically hers is more individual, more imaginative and in many regards truer to the source material.

Joe Williams (1918–99)

VOICE

Raised in Chicago, he sang in clubs in the city from the late '30s and later toured with Andy Kirk. His hit version of 'Every Day' made his reputation, then he played with Count Basie, 1954–60. After that he worked as a soloist, usually with a trio that included Junior Mance and latterly Norman Simmons.

 Together / Have A Good Time Roulette 31790-2 Williams; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Jimmy Forrest (ts); Frank Strazzeri, Sir Charles Thompson (p); Tommy Potter, Joe Benjamin (b); Clarence Johnston, Charli Persip (d); orchestra. 2–7/61.

 A Swingin' Night In Birdland Roulette 95335-2 Williams; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Jimmy Forrest (ts); Hugh Lawson (p); Ike Isaacs (b); Clarence Johnston (d). 6/62.

 At Newport '63 / Jump For Joy Collectables COL-2706 Williams; Clark Terry (t, flhn); Howard McGhee, Bernie Glow, Thad Jones, Snooky Young (t); Urbie Green, Quentin Jackson (tb);

Phil Woods, George Dorsey, Walt Levinsky (as); Jerome Richardson, Phil Bodner, Romeo Penque (ts, f); Coleman Hawkins, Zoot Sims (ts); Danny Bank (bs); Junior Mance, Bernie Leighton, Hank Jones (p); Kenny Burrell (g); Bob Cranshaw, Milt Hinton (b); Mickey Roker, Sol Gubin (d); Willie Rodriguez (perc). 2–7/63.

(*) Me And The Blues / The Song Is You Collectables COL-2703
Williams; Thad Jones, Clark Terry (t); Urbie Green (tb); Phil Woods, Jerome Richardson (as), Seldon Powell, Ben Webster (ts); Danny Bank (bs); Hank Jones (p); Barry Galbraith (g); Milt Hinton (b); Osie Johnson (d); Frank Hunter Orchestra. 11/63–64.
Williams followed on from Billy Eckstine in bringing in a new sophistication to the black male singer's stance. Though he made his name singing blues with Count Basie (see the Basie entry), Williams preferred superior standards and original material.

The two-on-one Together/Have A Good Time is nice, but a little disappointing; too many of these songs don't really suit Joe as either singer or stylist, and though the Basie-ish backings are skilful, they don't warm him up the way the Count's full band always did. Sweets Edison still sneaks in some agreeable stuff in what are really rather polite settings. In comparison, the Birdland date sounds a bit scrappy, with Edison's group lowering rather than raising the tone, but Williams is in fine voice at least.

The two Collectables discs usefully pick up four of Joe's RCA albums. His set from the 1963 Newport Festival has a starry backing group – Terry, Sims, Hawkins, McGhee, Mance – but the playing is often raggedy. When Williams essays a typically suave 'April In Paris' and Hawkins turns in a fine solo, it's all undone by the flatfooted playing of the rhythm section. Jump For Joy, with helpful charts by Oliver Nelson and Jimmy Jones, works better for him, although it feels a bit harried: none of the tracks gets close to three minutes, and one feels that material like the fast-bossa 'You Perfect Stranger' would sound better if Joe had more time and space to elaborate. His range of dark tones does get some impressive showings, though.

Me And The Blues might be the best of his '60s records. The material is either in the blues form or cast in a bluesy-pop mould, and Joe eats it all up, whether it's 'Rocks In My Bed' (with a Ben Webster cameo), 'Work Song' or a limo-class 'Kansas City'. The mighty voice is right at the front of the mix, and the way he wraps himself around a line that takes his particular fancy is sheer delight. If ever an album made a case for the black-tie blues, it's this one. The Song Is You, which starts with nothing less than Franz Lehár's 'Yours is My Heart Alone', sounds like a full-blooded pitch at the Eckstine camp, although since Mister B had already started to move towards soul at this point, it all feels a bit late. The fulsome Frank Hunter arrangements set Williams a challenge which he offsets with his most operatic voice.

Also, in brief:

 Finest Hour Verve 549674-2. 55–90.
Early stuff with Basie, later sessions for Verve and not much in between.

(*) Joe Williams With The Count Basie Orchestra Telarc CD-83329. 11/92.
Dignity and an air of Zen calm on a nostalgic walk-on with the Basie ghost band.

 Here's To Life Telarc 83357. 8/93.
He endured marvellously well, even though the top end lost its limber power and there were shakes where once all was honey-smooth.

John Williams (born 1929)

PIANO

Known for his work with Stan Getz, but recorded very little on his own account.

 Complete Master Takes, 1954–1955 Fresh Sound FSRCD 405
Williams; Billy Anthony, Chuck Andrus, Ernie Farrow (b); Frank Isola, Jack Edie (d). 7 & 8/54, 5 & 10/55.
The history of the music is peppered with footsoldiers like Williams and it has been Fresh Sound's mission to restore them to notice. The Vermont-born Williams led a big band at the end of the war, but subsequently worked for Getz and other leaders. These trio dates reveal a technically astute, rather lyrical player, with just a touch of steel in the left hand. Nothing much stands out and nobody would be able to identify him on a blindfold test, but these are fine jazz sides and they while away some agreeable time.

John Williams (born 1941)

BARITONE AND TENOR SAXOPHONES, RECORDER

Unsung stalwart of the British scene.

 Baritone Band Spotlite SPJ 564 Williams; Steve Waterman (flhn); John Surman (ss, bs); Alan Wakeman (ss, bs, cl); Andy Panayi (ts, bs, f); Chris Biscoe (as, bs, acl); Jay Craig (bs); John Horler (p); Jim Richardson, Tim Wells (b); Trevor Tomkins (d). 5 & 7/97.
Gerry Mulligan used to say that he found the baritone perfectly weighted and highly responsive to his needs as a musician. That's borne out amply in this lovely baritone project. Sensibly, the front-line guys all double on other horns, so the textures are as varied and rich as could be, but it's the big saxophone that remains the focus. Williams's arrangements are surpassingly thoughtful.

 Tenorama Spotlite SPJ 572 Williams; Steve Waterman (t); Bob Sydor (as, ts, cl); Renato D'Aiello, Phil Day, Dave Gelly, Don Rendell, Karen Sharp (ts); John Horler, Mark Latimer (p); Mario Castronari, Jim Richardson (b); Asaf Sirkis, Trevor Tomkins (d). 10 & 11/02.
Two sessions from Williams's flexible saxophone outfit. His own baritone holds very much to the middle register, anchoring solid arrangements that rely on subtle chord shadings and detailed melodic patterns. The effect is too interesting to be soporific, but there isn't much high drama about these tenor-driven dates, apart from some very fine Steve Waterman trumpet on the October session, and some lovely guest playing from the great Don Rendell.

Mary Lou Williams (1910–81)

PIANO

Mary Elfrieda Scruggs (later Burley) grew up in Pittsburgh and played professionally from her early teens. Along with her husband, John Williams, she joined Terrence Holder's Clouds Of Joy orchestra, shortly to be taken over by Andy Kirk, for whom Mary Lou arranged and performed. Her later style shows a deep understanding of jazz history and a profound spiritual dimension.

(*) Mary Lou Williams 1927–1940 Classics 630 Williams; Harold 'Shorty' Baker, Henry McCord, Earl Thompson (t); Bradley Bullett, Ted Donnelly (tb); Edward Inge (cl); Earl Buddy Miller (cl, as); Dick Wilson (ts); John Williams (as, bsx); Ted Robinson, Floyd Smith (g); Joe Williams (bj); Booker Collins (b); Robert Price, Ben Thigpen (d). 1/27–11/40.

(*) Key Moments Topaz TPZ 1016 Similar to above. 29–40.

* Mary Lou Williams 1944 Classics 814 Williams; Bill Coleman (t, v); Frankie Newton, Charlie Shavers, Dick Vance (t); Vic Dickenson, Trummy Young (tb); Claude Greene, Edmond Hall (cl); Remo Palmieri (g); Al Hall, Al Lucas (b); Jack Parker, Specs Powell (d); Nora Lee King (v). 2–11/44.

 Roll 'Em Solo Art 014 Williams; Al Lucas (b); Jack 'The Bear' Parker (d). 44.

* Mary Lou Williams 1944–1945 Classics 1021 Williams; Bill Coleman (t); Claude Greene (cl); Joe Evans (as); Coleman Hawkins (ts); Margie Hyans (vib); Mary Osborne (g); Jimmy Butts, Al Lucas, Edie Robinson, Bea Taylor (b); Denzil Best, Eddie Dougherty, Bridget O'Flynn, Jack Parker (d); Josh White (v). 11 & 12/44, 6/45.

(*) Mary Lou Williams 1945–1947 Classics 1050 Williams; Irving Kusting, Edward Sadowski, Leon Schwartz (t); Allan Feldman, Martin Glaser (ss); Mauricio Lopez (as, bs); Orlando Wright (ts); Frank Roth (p); John H. Smith Jr (g); Mary Osborne (g, v); Margie Hyams, Bridget O' Flynn (vib, d); Grachan Moncur, Milton Orent, June Rotenberg (b); Rose Gottesman, Jack Parker (d). 45, 2, 7 & 10/46, 47.

Duke Ellington described her as 'perpetually contemporary'. Mary Lou Williams's career encompassed weary days of travel with Andy Kirk's Clouds Of Joy band (she began as a part-time arranger and only grudgingly won recognition as a piano-player), staff arranging for Ellington, and band-leading. Having divorced John Williams, who had taken her on the road with Kirk, she married trumpeter Harold Baker and co-led a group with him.

The earliest Classics compilation covers some intriguing early stuff, including sides made with Jeanette's Synco Jazzers as Mary Leo Burley (her stepfather's name) when she was only 16, and two good solo sides recorded for the Brunswick label in Chicago in 1930. There are also two useful solos from rather later: 'Mary's Special' from April 1936 has her doubling on celeste, and there's a fine 'Little Joe From Chicago', recorded for Columbia in October 1939. The next decade saw Mary move out as an artist in her own right, and the 1944 Classics compilation includes much of the best of that material, including 'Little Joe From Chicago', 'Roll 'Em' and a piece from a jam session organized by the photographer and film-maker Gjon Mili. The disc includes some excellent solos as well as forgettable work accompanying singer Nora Lee King.

The complete World Broadcast performance with Lucas and Parker appears on Solo Art and is worth tracking down, even if the sound isn't wonderful. The sheer vibrancy of this trio makes technical quibbles seem irrelevant.

The appearance of further Classics volumes helps to fill out the story even more. In 1945, Mary Lou was completing work on her Zodiac Suite and also presenting a regular radio programme on which she performed excerpts from the extended work. They are included here under the generic title 'Signs Of The Zodiac' and performed either solo ('Pisces', 'Capricorn', 'Sagittarius', 'Aquarius' and 'Libra') or with a quartet. Most of the material on this volume was recorded for the Asch label, the only exceptions being two astronomically inspired piano solos for Selmer in France and a fascinating single track, 'Timmie Time', recorded some time in 1945 with an all-female group. The remaining tracks were recorded just before Christmas 1944 with an orchestra co-fronted by trumpeter Bill Coleman.

The zodiac pieces mark the emergence of Williams as a more than usually ambitious composer, but there are signs of her breaking free of conventional swing harmonics in a piece like the alarmingly titled 'Carcinoma'. The remaining tracks from the session sound flat and uninflected and one wonders whether Williams and her players – Coleman apart – were at odds about the material. Even the closing 'Lady Be Good' sounds perfunctory, though it closely anticipates Coleman Hawkins's later and better-known 'Rifftide' variant.

The Girl Stars reappear at the start of Classics 1050, making one wonder why it was necessary to split off 'Timmie Time' on the previous issue. Dominated by Williams and Mary Osborne, who sounds superficially like Charlie Christian, the group had more than novelty appeal, and tunes like 'Rumba Rebop', 'Boogie Misterioso' and 'Fifth Dimension' (the latter pair from a July 1946 session for Victor) are full of musical interest. Later that year Williams was working in a trio with June Rotenberg and Bridget O'Flynn (who had swapped drums and vibes duties with Margie Hyams) and recorded a neat selection of standards, including the Dvořák 'Humoresque' and 'All God's Chillun Got Rhythm'. A couple of tracks find her not playing but directing the rather mournful Milton Orent and Frank Roth Orchestra: 'Lonely Moments' is rather effective, but again the band seem either baffled or resentful of some of Mary Lou's alternative changes. Two tracks from 1947 are with a drummerless group including the emergent Kenny Dorham and on bass Grachan Moncur Senior, the father of the '60s trombonist. The return to circulation of the original Zodiac Suite sections is an important development, especially when coupled with the live performance below. For the most part, though, these two issues show Williams working hard at expanding her jazz vocabulary into new areas and coming to terms with the rhythmic demands of bebop, a music which she embraced only somewhat cautiously.

(*) The Zodiac Suite Smithsonian Folkways SF CD 40810 Williams; unidentified big band, featuring Ben Webster (ts); New York Philharmonic Orchestra. 12/45.

On New Year's Eve 1945/6, Williams gave a remarkable performance of her Zodiac Suite with the New York Philharmonic at Town Hall. It's a sequence of dedications to fellow musicians (identified by their astrological characteristics) and combines straight orchestral writing of a slightly bland, film soundtrack sort with jazz interpolations and occasional sections ('Taurus' and 'Gemini', significantly) where the two seem to coincide. Williams had been profoundly dissatisfied with a partial reading of the music, recorded in 1957 for Norman Granz's Verve label, and the rediscovery of the 'lost' tapes from the Town Hall concert is a significant addition to the discography. The sound isn't always very reliable, with occasional crackles and some loss of resolution in the string parts, but Williams is caught in close-up and the piece remains a key moment in the recognition of jazz as an important twentieth-century music, not 'classical', but with its own history and logic.

 Mary Lou Williams 1953–1954 Classics 1417 Williams; Nelson Williams (t); Don Byas, Ray Lawrence (ts); Ray Dempsey (g); Buddy Banks, Rupert Nuese (b); Kansas Fields, Tony Kinsey, Gérard Pochonet, Jean-Louis Viale (d). 6/53–54.

When we interviewed Mary Lou Williams shortly before her death, she identified this period of her life as 'very dark, indeed', and a period during which she seriously considered giving up music for good. She did leave it behind for a time, but even without reading too much into a compilation that begins with 'Sometimes I'm Happy', it's hard for the moment to find much hint of defeatism in these sides, made in London (June 1953), for French Vogue (December) and Club Français Du Disque (1954). There's a cool buoyancy to Mary Lou's playing – check out 'Chicka Boom Blues' and 'Mary's Waltz', as well as the nice line on 'N.M.E.', named after the New Musical Express. Though some of her sidemen are little known outside France, everyone plays capably and in any case Mary's grand manner sweeps through any hesitation. An intriguing pull-together, given that it comes on the brink of a long silence, but nothing in it that would suggest much amiss.

 Mary Lou's Mass Smithsonian Folkways SFW CD 40815
Williams; Julius Watkins, David Amram (frhn); Roger Glenn (f); Leon Atkinson, Sonny Henry (g); Carline Ray, Chris White, Milton Suggs (b); Al Harewood, David Parker (d); Abdul Rahman, Ralph MacDonald (perc); James Bailey, Eileen Gilbert, Honi Gordon, Milton Grayson, Carl Hall, Randy Peyton, Christine Spencer, Leon Thomas (v). 69–72.

A magnificent and variegated work but a difficult one to assess as a listening experience because it was explicitly intended as liturgical music rather than a performance piece. Despite the dominance of vocal passages, it contains enough of interest for anyone who admires Mary Lou. Her rarely heard organ-playing is featured and there are some wonderfully funky passages amidst the praises. The piece's dateline – first performed as Music For Peace in 1971 – puts it across some of the iconic political and social moments of the late '60s: the Vietnam war, the assassination of Martin Luther King ('I Have A Dream') and a general loosening in traditional faith which Williams seems determined to combat by making her mass as dramatic and rhythmic as possible. There is considerable new material not on the original release and a beautifully produced booklet. Her Black Christ Of The Andes is available on Universal Japan.

* Zoning Smithsonian Folkways SF CD 40811 Williams (p solo). 74.
(*) Live At The Cookery Chiaroscuro CRD 146 Williams; Brian Torff (b). 11/75.
 Embraced Pablo 2620-108 Williams; Cecil Taylor (p). 77.
 Solo Recital/Montreux Jazz Festival 1978 Original Jazz Classics OJC 962 Williams (p solo). 78.

There followed a period away from the USA, living in France (where she recorded for Vogue), and then away from music altogether, during which time she worked with drug addicts. Renewed activity from the late '50s onwards included lecture-recitals on the history of jazz, large-scale sacred compositions – Mary Lou's Mass and Black Christ Of The Andes – reflecting her conversion, and stormy contact with the new avant-garde, as on her remarkable if often bemusing collaboration with Cecil Taylor. Embraced gives off little sense of the hostilities behind the scenes, but it underlines her ability to play from almost any stance within the black-music tradition: gospel, blues, swing, bop, free.

Williams was treated dismissively by male colleagues for much of her career (Kirk finds room for only half a dozen references in his autobiography, and his acknowledgement of her 'tremendous influence' seems rather pro forma). In the '70s she was releasing material on her own label, Mary Records, including the superb Zoning (since reissued on Smithsonian Folkways) and the huge Mary Lou's Mass. The Solo Recital from Montreux in 1978 is a defiant showcase performance and its extensive coverage of signature compositions is particularly valuable to have in one place, even if her own playing may not have been what it once was. The rather earlier Live At The Cookery is perhaps a better bet, though. Jon Bates has done an excellent job of bringing the sound up to current standards and there's a minimum of distortion and extraneous noise ('I'm recording. If you talk too loud, it'll be on the record'). It's not clear why she tolerated Brian Torff thudding away relentlessly in her left ear, but Williams had always tended to be a right-sided player and, here more than ever, concentrates on a middle and upper register. Her playing is superb throughout and there are vintage performances of 'Roll 'Em', 'The Surrey With The Fringe On Top' (an odd favourite of hers), 'The Man I Love' and Johnny Hodges' 'The Jeep Is Jumping'.

CORE COLLECTION

* Free Spirits

Steeplechase SCCD 31043 Williams; Buster Williams (b); Mickey Roker (d). 7/75.

As a straightforward performance, Free Spirits is a much better record than those above. Williams's health was still robust (it began to break down towards the end of the '70s) and her playing is much sharper and surer, also more relaxed and swinging. Typically, she mixes standards ('Temptation', 'Surrey With The Fringe On Top') with jazz staples (Miles's 'All Blues', Bobby Timmons's gospel-tinged 'Dat Dere') and her own work, 'Ode To Saint Cecilie', 'Gloria', 'Blues For Timme', unexpectedly adding two John Stubblefield compositions (two takes each of 'Baby Man' and 'Free Spirits') and a promising 'Pale Blue' by bassist Buster Williams, who provides a perfect complement to her light left hand.

* At Rick's Café Americain Storyville STCD 8285 Williams; Milton Suggs (b); Drashear Khalid (d). 11/79.

There are few surviving records from Williams's last period, when she was playing not just with great majesty and grace, but with a return of her characteristic salty wit. This is a fairly standard programme, light on her own compositions – only 'What's The Story, Morning Glory' – but resolutely upbeat, even when the blues mood is strongest. 'Surrey With The Fringe On Top' and 'The Jeep Is Jumping' both make an appearance, buoyant and well thought out. 'St James Infirmary' is one of her best recorded performances, and the closing version of her friend Billy Taylor's 'A Grand Night For Swinging' must have sent the Chicago crowd smiling into the night. Competent as her young sidemen are, a greater admixture of solo playing would have been welcome, but an excellent record nevertheless: wise, witty and full of gentle experience.

Also, in brief:

(*) Mary Lou Williams 1949–1951 Classics 1260. 49–51.
She was thinking of getting out of jazz at this point, and subsequently did.

 I Made You Love Paris Verve 13141. 54.
With some very iffy horns and the acquired taste that is Beryl Bryden (v).

 Nite Life / From The Past Chiaroscuro 103. 71.
Her Jazzspeak interview on this is a revelation, fiercely intelligent and self-aware. Good playing, too.

Roy Williams (born 1937)

TROMBONE

Born in Bolton, he played in different groups during the trad era but his stay with Alex Welsh (13 years, from 1965) made him more renowned. Britain's most distinguished mainstream 'bone.

 Something Wonderful Hep CD 2015 Williams; Eddie Thompson (ky); Len Skeat (b); Jim Hall (d). 3/80–5/81.

 Royal Trombone Phontastic PHCD 7556 Williams; John McLevy (t); Arne Domnérus (as, cl); Putte Wickman (cl); Nisse Sandström (ts); Bengt Hallberg (p); Rune Gustafsson (g); Len Skeat, Georg Riedel (b); Rune Carlsson (d). 12/83.

Williams first emerged as a second-eleven man in British trad, but his stay with the Alex Welsh band of the '60s (and, subsequently, with Humphrey Lyttelton) revealed a much more accomplished and versatile performer than anything most of his colleagues could aspire to. He has a lovely, creamy sound on the trombone which, with its relatively quiet dynamic and effortless delivery, has drawn comparisons with Jack Teagarden that are surprisingly near the mark. These albums are typically relaxed, but inimitably Williams. The trombonist and John McLevy were visiting Sweden for the Phontastic sessions and teamed up with an all-star group of locals. Standards make up most of the menu, although Hallberg pens a crafty twist on 'Exactly Like You' called 'Accurately Like You', and there's a lot of variation in voicings and instrumentations: 'I'm Old Fashioned' is a duet for trombone and piano. Wickman aces out Williams from time to time and has a serene 'I Remember Clifford' to himself, but the guest leader plays admirably throughout.

Something Wonderful relies on Williams's class to see it through, since the material is over-familiar and Thompson's trio uninvolving, although there's a serenely effective duo for piano and trombone on 'It Never Entered My Mind'.

 Standard Time Sine SND0021 Williams; Bob Hudson (p); Pete Heron (b); Derek Bush (d). 9/95.

(*) Interplay Sine SND0038 As above, except omit Heron; add John Barnes (bs), Geoff Pearson (b). 10/96.

Williams has seldom found himself in ideal recording situations: one wonders what records might have resulted from some pre-production and pairing him with a crack rhythm section. These are pleasing enough without being startling. Standard Time has him mulling over 12 standards with Hudson's decent if workmanlike trio, and it's an amiable hour or so of music, if slightly bothered by the very loud bass. Interplay finds him back with old sparring partner Barnes, and this is a lot more energizing. The horns circle round each other like dancing masters and some of the dialogue has a gem-like sparkle to it. The material is, again, a trifle overworked but they do sound very good on the likes of 'Squatty Roo'.

(*) Weavers Of Dreams /  'S Wonderful Raymer Sound RSCD684 / 770 Williams; Frank Brooker (ts, ss); Billy Harper (p); Dave Turner (b); Nigel Cretney (d). 9/98; 8/02.

One night at the Falcon Hotel, Bude. Brooker's band (which has apparently played in Siberia) tend to get in Williams's way more than help him out and there are some distinctly wayward moments, as well as a sound that isn't handing out favours. Despite it all, the trombonist still manages some typically literate and persuasive solos. And four years later, they did it all in Bude again – although this time at the Strand Hotel. The others are about the same, but if anything Williams is even better, and there are a couple of visits to the rarer end of the Ellington archive in 'A Lull At Dawn' and 'Black Butterfly'.

Steve Williams

DRUMS

Journeyman drummer with a delicate touch, perhaps best known for his tenure with Shirley Horn.

 New Incentive Elabeth 621057 Williams; Roy Hargrove, Donvonte McCoy (t); Gary Bartz, Antoine Roney (as); Olivier Hutman (p); Michael Bowie (b). 06.

A belated debut as leader, but an auspicious lineup. As sometimes happens, it's the unknowns – McCoy, Hutman – who stand out most powerfully. There's a nice bluesy feel to the set and Williams sets up a stinging pace on originals like 'Fluid Exchange', 'Fulton & Lafayette' and the nicely ironic 'Song For The Petty Ones'. A very agreeable moment in the sun for one of the music's hardest-working disciples.

Tony Williams (1945–97)

DRUMS

A prodigy, he was working with Miles Davis at 17 and played on key '60s dates such as Dolphy's Out To Lunch. Later investigated jazz-rock in Lifetime, but by the '80s was a revered senior figure, investigating acoustic music again.

CORE COLLECTION

(*) Life Time

Blue Note 99004 Williams; Sam Rivers (ts); Herbie Hancock (p); Bobby Hutcherson (vib, mar); Ron Carter, Richard Davis, Gary Peacock (b). 8/64.

Tony Williams's death following a relatively innocuous surgical procedure was doubly shocking, because it came at a time when his career was in marvellous resurgence. Williams had his baptism of fire in the Miles Davis band while still in his teens; everyone who owns it treasures the live recording from the south of France on which the MC announces 'le jeune Tony Williams à la batterie ... il a dix-sept ans.' Tony gave Miles a raw and unfinished sound, one that didn't know it was breaking the rules. It was clear even then that he would go places, and recordings under his own name weren't slow in coming. Williams's early Blue Notes are intense, inward-looking explorations of the rhythmic possibilities opened up by bebop. Much of what he had learnt to date was concentrated into Life Time. Compare the crisp attacks and precise, undistorted cymbal sound with what Williams had to put up with in later years and judge how worthy the tribute is on both sides. On 'Memory', Williams turns in a remarkable trio performance with Hancock and Hutcherson (and it should be remembered that his most shining moment before this point was on Eric Dolphy's Out To Lunch! session, on which Hutcherson and Davis both played). Rivers's angular approach was ideally suited to the young drummer's multidirectional approach and attack.

(*) Spring Blue Note 746135 Williams; Sam Rivers, Wayne Shorter (ts); Herbie Hancock (p); Gary Peacock (b). 8/65.

The addition of Shorter on Spring underlines the impression that Williams was always happiest with a rather enigmatic lyricism. It's another delightful album and, while it lacks the resonance that comes with the doubled basses on the above Life Time, it has a big, rich sound that reverberates through the memory for many hours after every hearing.

Also, in brief:

 Ultimate Tony Williams Verve 559704. 69–72.
Without something from Williams's Blue Notes and Columbias, an 'ultimate' package isn't possible; but this does offer a picture of the drummer in some of his most powerful settings.

 Believe It Columbia 33836. 75.
Grinding fusion with Allan Holdsworth (g) in god-like form.

 Wilderness Ark 21 8 54571. 12/96.
A strange concept record about the frontier, though testimony to Williams's continuing musical ambition, even in his last years.

Claude Williamson (born 1926)

PIANO, CELESTA

Classically trained in Boston, he has spent his career in Californian jazz, a regular on West Coast record dates all through the '50s. After many years as a studio man, he returned to regular jazz playing in the '80s. His brother was the trumpeter Stu Williamson.

 The Complete 1954–1955 Kenton Presents Sessions Fresh Sound FSR CD 400 Williamson; Max Bennett, Buddy Clark, Curtis Counce (b); Stan Levey, Larry Bunker (d). 6 & 7/54, 5/55.
 The Claude Williamson Trio Fresh Sound FSR-CD 328 Williamson; Don Prell, Red Mitchell (b); Chuck Flores, Mel Lewis (d). 1–12/56.
 Mulls The Mulligan Scene Fresh Sound FSR-CD 373 Williamson; Howard Roberts (g); Red Mitchell (b); Stan Levey (d). 58.
 Hallucinations /  Live At The Jazz Bakery VSOP 95 / Fresh Sound FSRCD Williamson; Dave Carpenter (b); Paul Kreibich (d). 2–3/95.
Stan Kenton spoke warmly of Williamson's devotion to communicability, and the hard work he put into his playing. It turned out to be long career, though much of it relatively invisible in the studios. The Kenton Presents material has some oddities, notably a 'Like Someone In Love' played on celesta, but for the most part these are confidently swinging trio sides, with the odd solo performance there to underline the impression that this was a musician more companionable than not. The fast, helter-skelter 'June Bug', the first track on The Claude Williamson Trio, establishes him as a Bud Powell man through and through, and the elegant decoration of 'Moonlight In Vermont' reminds us that he liked Teddy Wilson, too. The 21 tracks tend to oscillate between those points, and his treatment of the Horace Silver tune 'Hippy', which bypasses the composer's funky blues feel altogether, perhaps suggests the limitations of his approach – or, at least, how deep he was prepared to dig. The album of Gerry Mulligan tunes features him overdubbing a second piano part onto his own on each track, a pretty rare initiative at the time and a long way ahead of Conversations With Myself. It's more a matter of neatness and dovetailing, though.

Like many another West Coast man, he was more or less 'rediscovered' in the '80s and '90s, recording for Japanese labels and returning to club work, as the Bakery set bears out. Though there's plenty of Powell in the live programme, the VSOP set is a specific homage, with six of Bud's originals and other tunes associated with him. Williamson's touch and light-fingered swing remain as chipper as ever, although many of the pieces make one want to return to the original inspiration more than anything.

Larry Willis (born 1940)

PIANO

Born in New York, he played hard bop with Jackie McLean in the '60s before trying fusion, soul-jazz and crossover in the '70s, spending a period with Blood Sweat & Tears. Moved back into straight-ahead in the '80s but consistently adventurous. Served as music director of Mapleshade Records from 1992.

 Inner Crisis Groove Merchant / P-Vine 23440 Willis; Dave Bargeron (tb); Harold Vick (ts); Roland Prince (g); Roderick Gaskin, Eddie Gomez (b); Al Foster (d). 73.
Willis started out as a singer, performing in an Aaron Copland opera, but recognized there were obstacles to progress for an African-American musician. When he switched to jazz, after experience in a high school band with Eddie Gomez and Al Foster, he dabbled in just about everything from soul and funk to free music. This set sees him mining a briefly profitable seam, playing intelligent fusion that bears comparison with some of Herbie Hancock's work of the period. The difference is that Willis never comes on like the star of the session. His interest lay in composition ('For a Friend', 'Journey's End', 'Out On The Coast', the title-cut), tight arrangement and production, and not so much in virtuosic soloing. Still, there's no mistaking that here's a guy with solid chops and a very open-minded approach. The sound is inevitably dated, but this stuff still has a loyal market in Japan and on the club scene, and it's worth giving it a whirl.

 Just In Time Steeplechase SCCD 31251 Willis; Bob Cranshaw (b); Kenny Washington (d). 7/89.
 Heavy Blue Steeplechase SCCD 31269 Willis; Jerry Gonzalez (t, flhn); Joe Ford (ss, as); Don Pate (b); Jeff 'Tain' Watts (d). 12/89.
 Let's Play Steeplechase SCCD 31283 Willis; Santi Debriano (b); Victor Lewis (d). 1/91.
(*) How Do You Keep The Music Playing? Steeplechase SCCD 31312 Willis; David Williams (b); Lewis Nash (d). 4/92.
 Solo Spirit / (*) Unforgettable Mapleshade 1432 / Steeplechase SCCD 31318 Willis (p solo). 4/92; 5/92.
Willis came into his own as a mainstream player with the fine series of Steeplechase sessions. He plays at the gentler end of hard-bop piano, writes tunes that often wind up somewhere near the blues, and often picks compositions that have been neglected by others. Just In Time is a solid start, but Heavy Blue is a more interesting date for the contrasting horns: Gonzalez sounds handsomely lyrical on flugelhorn and is countered by Joe Ford's bruising alto solos, which are always bursting into double-time runs. Willis's five originals here are all worthwhile. The next two trio albums, Let's Play and How Do You Keep The Music Playing?, might be the best places to hear Willis's own playing. The first has lovely readings of 'Who Can I Turn To?' and 'Bess, You Is My Woman Now', and Lewis is in fine form, though Debriano is a bit overbearing at times. How Do You Keep The Music Playing?

finds Willis distilling the lightest of tones out of Wayne Shorter's usually impenetrable 'Dance Cadaverous'; he throws in some gentlemanly funk on 'Slick Rick' and even makes 'Ezekiel Saw The Wheel' fit the programme. Williams and Nash are a near-perfect team. The only disappointment in this stack is the Steeplechase solo disc, dedicated to Nat Cole ballads and, finally, a bit soporific. By himself, Willis expands his voicings and makes some of these tunes sound too weighty and formal, though there are still some pleasing variations.

The Mapleshade disc is rather better and enlivened by a strange back story. The original sessions were actually conducted some months earlier but the master tapes were stolen from producer Pierre Sprey's car and have apparently never been recovered. Willis remade the album and, with its gospelly programme, it sounds pretty well on the second take.

 If Trees Could Talk Mapleshade 6332 Willis; Hamiet Bluiett (bs); Asante (perc). 93.
Tempting of course to review this as a Bluiett album, but the baritonist has a far larger constituency (and discography) already. Willis more than holds his own here, veering between freedom and a rootsy simplicity, an arc that fits very well with Bluiett's own career path. The duo set (Asante only appears on 'The African', the short track that opens the album) covers a wide range of material, songs by both men, the improvised title-track and a John Coltrane blues. The saxophonist has always favoured the upper register of his horn and he squeals away here, sometimes generating more heat than light. Willis, by contrast, might sound as if he's plodding on occasion, but his diffidence camouflages a formidable musical intelligence.

(*) Sunshower Mapleshade 8532 Willis; Kash Killion (clo); Steve Novosel (b); Paul Murphy (d); Steve Berrios (perc). 01.
An intriguing instance of Willis's interest in extending the language of the orthodox piano trio. Killion to some extent replicates what Ron Carter was doing on cello at the beginning of the '60s and the tribute to Dolphy, 'Poor Eric', underlines that lineage. For the most part, the language of the session is subdued, tonally quite dark, and unhurried. All the better for that, we felt, since it allows the pianist's harmonic ideas to linger in the air and not be buried by 'technique'. The label gets the Jackie McLean tune twice wrong by calling it 'Little Melanie', but, that quibble aside, this is well worth getting.

(*) The Powers Of Two /  ... Volume 2 Mapleshade 1023 / 1123 Willis; Paul Murphy (d). 8/02.
At 60 plus the majority of piano-players (of jazz musicians in general) are happy to retread old territory, fall back on the comfort of standards and the odd repertory piece of their own. No so Larry Willis, who with this made his most adventurous record for years, exploring elements of freedom in a series of eight intriguing conversations with percussionist Murphy, who deserves wider exposure. As the longest track, 'Space Dreams' could probably do with a spot of editing, but there isn't a self-indulgent bar in the rest of it. We'd quibble slightly at a second volume from the session, but presumably, having lost their music director to another label, Mapleshade wanted to capitalize as much as possible on his work there. Nicely balanced sound, too, which is not easy with this instrumentation.

* The Big Push High Note HCD 7144 Willis; Buster Williams (b); Al Foster (d). 5/05.
Anyone who thinks that the traditional jazz piano trio is defunct or has been colonized by young whipper-snappers with rock attitude should hear this record, for us one of the very finest in the form for years. The rest of the trio is top-drawer, of course, but it is Larry Willis's own playing which really impresses. He kicks off with a singular solo on 'Surrey With The Fringe On Top' and then moves out into less familiar territory, with themes by Joe Ford, Wayne Shorter (the title-track) and others. The two originals are models of sophistication and 'The Day You Said Goodbye' must rank among Willis's most affecting performances. The change of label has brought a slightly harder, brighter sound to the leader's piano and it suits him well for even the most emotionally freighted of these cuts has a solid core of harmonic and melodic argument. Great stuff and highly recommended.

(*) Blue Fable High Note HCD 7163 Willis; Steve Davis (tb); Joe Ford (as); Eddie Gomez (b); Billy Drummond (d). 3/06.
Willis favoured the trombone/saxophone front line right at the beginning of his career as a leader and one can see how it works for him, filling in an area of harmonic activity that he sometimes elides in his own playing. This is another fine set, and the reunion with Ford on record is a very happy one. The tunes are nicely modulated, alternating medium-pace swingers and some more reflective ideas. 'Rhythm-A-Ning' and 'Nardis' are obvious piano workouts, though Larry finds new things to say on both, while 'Prayer For New Orleans' is as well constructed as it is expressive. Gomez, like Al Foster an old schoolmate, is in particularly good form.

Also, in brief:

 My Funny Valentine Evidence ECD 22205. 2/88.
Marks the turn from Willis the fusioneer to Willis the hard-bopper, here with Kenny Garrett, George Mraz and Al Foster. Originals like 'Ethiopia' and 'Blues For Wynton Kelly' confirmed he wasn't just a Tyner/Evans copyist.

 Every Rung Goes Higher Mapleshade 8232. 11/92.
Not released until 2001, this is Willis's trio back on gospel/traditional territory, including 'The Battle Hymn Of The Republic'. Vocalist Kenyatta muddies things a bit, but a nice record.

(*) Sanctuary Mapleshade 993. 1/02.
With Joe Ford again (see above) and a more orthodox approach, this isn't the most stretching of Willis's more recent records.

Blake Wilner (born 1973)

GUITAR

Grew up in Perth, Western Australia, but studied further in New York and is now established in the UK.

 The Reprieve Ant Jazz CD 3 Wilner; Simon Allen (as); Oli Hayhurst (b); Jacob Smedegaard (d). 6/03.
(*) Interloper Ant Jazz JCD 4 Wilner; Brandon Allen (ts); Oli Hayhurst (b); Chris Hutchings (d). 3/06.
A powerful and already mature debut from a guitarist who is also a highly impressive composer. The title-track of this pungent CD is best testimony to his skills in both departments. However, the best measure of his talent is the range of different expression that runs through the album. It has logic and direction, and that's rarer and more precious. The second record is a definite step forward, not in terms of writing, which is every bit as sophisticated and thoughtful as the first album, but certainly in terms of emotional range and expression. Inspired by life in London, the set seems to evoke a certain ambivalence at being far from home.

'Drunken Romance' has a chastened excitement, 'Café Rouge' has a poignant edge and its sequel, 'The Prayer', which closes the album, is far from transparent in intent. Wilner cleverly highlights his musicians and Brandon Allen, a fellow Australian in London, establishes a strong presence from the start. The guitarist can perhaps now afford to be more adventurous in terms of ensemble and perhaps to cut loose more as a soloist. There is an emotional urgency lurking underneath.

Abram Wilson

TRUMPET, VOICE

Born in Arkansas, raised in Louisiana and nowadays based in London; a gifted composer whose first recordings suggest an imagination unlikely to be fettered to genre.

 Jazz Warrior Dune 11 Wilson; Nathaniel Facey (as); Patrick Clahar (ts, f); Andrew McCormack (p); Neil Charles (b); Shaney Forbes (d). 05.

 Ride! Ferris Wheel To The Modern Day Delta Dune 016 As above, except omit McCormack; add Michael Mwenso (tb); Andy Grappy (tba); Errol Linton (hca); Ben Burrell (p); Giorgio Serci (g). 06.

The debut record is the work of a seasoned and highly committed individual, his title a reflection of the determination needed to make it in the music. Wilson has worked with Roy Hargrove, with singing legend Ruth Brown and in Britain with saxophonist Soweto Kinch. Jazz Warrior is an attractive mosaic of styles, but all of it harnessed to a rich blues tonality.

Ride! is what used to be called a 'concept album', but more exactly a narrative project which tells the story of Albert Jenkins, trumpeter son of a New Orleans family who decides to turn his back on the family business, a jazz club, and make his way in hip-hop. It's a clever idea, and a great basis for experimentation in a variety of modern styles. Wilson's own default position is the kind of ensemble jazz associated with Wynton Marsalis in earlier, less baroque days. His blues touch is absolutely authentic and he has sufficient musical acuity, as well as a broad hinterland, to blend together the project's different styles into a satisfying whole; even the spoken word and sung passages make sense. The opening 'I Want More For Me Than This' will pull in even the most sceptical and resistant listener and suggests that, if all else fails, Wilson might have a second career writing stage musicals. His playing is sometimes a little sharp, but there is an edgy, questing quality to it that paradoxically lends it great authority. The band, which was first convened to play Ride! at the Cheltenham Festival in England, is top notch, with Clahar in tersely good form, making every note count.

Cassandra Wilson (born 1955)

VOICE, GUITAR, SARDO

Born in Jackson, Mississippi, but Wilson emerged in the '80s as a peripheral member of the so-called M-Base group of New York musicians. Following a number of records for JMT, she signed to Blue Note and scored major successes with her first releases for the label.

(*) Blue Skies Winter & Winter 919018-2 Wilson; Mulgrew Miller (p); Lonnie Plaxico (b); Terri Lyne Carrington (d). 2/88.

 Live Winter & Winter 919047-2 Wilson; James Weidman (ky); Kevin Bruce Harris (b); Marc Johnson (d). 90.

Wilson's early records contain all the seeds of the success she has enjoyed at Blue Note, but with one exception they rarely cohere as albums of any particularity or sustained success. Blue Skies was the least typical but easily the best of her JMT records: though made up entirely of standards with a conventional rhythm section, the recital finds Wilson investing the likes of 'Shall We Dance?' with a wholly unfamiliar range of inflexions and melodic extensions which is captivating. Her third-person version of 'Sweet Lorraine' is peculiarly dark and compelling and, while some of the songs drift a little too far off base, it's a remarkable record. The live session confirms that Wilson can sustain a concert set which is essentially a seamless, ongoing vocal improvisation, but the slipshod attention to quality control, as far as the material is concerned, is a point which seems to afflict most of what she does.

 Blue Light 'Til Dawn Blue Note 781357-2 Wilson; Olu Dara (c); Don Byron (cl); Tony Cedras (acc); Charles Burnham (vn); Gib Wharton (steel g); Brandon Ross, Chris Whitley (g); Lonnie Plaxico, Kenny Davis (b); Lance Carter, Bill McClellan (d); Cyro Baptista, Jeff Haynes, Kevin Johnson, Vinx (perc). N.D.

Wilson's debut for Blue Note was hailed in many quarters (mostly by rock critics) as a masterpiece, and it's certainly a clear step forward from her earlier records: Brandon Ross's production clarifies all the colours of her voice for the first time, and the inventive textures involving Dara, Byron, Burnham and Baptista create digital fantasies on country blues and string-band forms. Yet Wilson again makes peculiar labour out of some of the songs: Joni Mitchell and Robert Johnson tunes stagger under her mannerisms, and it's on the simpler, more straightforward arrangements, such as a lovely glide through Van Morrison's 'Tupelo Honey', that it all comes together.

 New Moon Daughter Blue Note 837183-2 As above, except omit Dara, Byron, Davis, Carter, McClellan, Johnson, Vinx; add Graham Haynes, Butch Morris (c); Gary Breit (org); Kevin Breit (g); Mark Anthony Peterson (b); Dougie Bowne (d). 95.

The same again, only more polished, a shade more inventive, as well as a fraction more arch: 'Last Train To Clarksville' was a cute idea for a cover, and Wilson takes it over, but her improvisation on the fade suggests that she doesn't really know what to do with it. 'Strange Fruit' is harrowing in a deadpan, designerish way, and the Robert Johnson tunes again don't fit. Where she really puts her mark on the music is in her own writing: the calm, serenely pretty 'Until' is outstanding, and so are 'Memphis' and 'Find Him'. Jazz as art-song, and pretty damn accomplished.

(*) Traveling Miles Blue Note 54123-2 Wilson; Olu Dara (c); Steve Coleman (as); Vincent Henry (hca); Eric Lewis (p); Regina Carter (vn); Doug Wamble, Marvin Sewell, Pat Metheny, Kevin Breit (g); Stefon Harris (vib); Cecilia Smith (mar); Dave Holland, Lonnie Plaxico (b); Marcus Baylor, Perry Wilson (d); Jeffrey Haynes, Mino Cinelu (perc); Angelique Kidjo (v). 12/97–9/98.

There's always going to be a preening quality in Wilson's vocals, and non-believers will probably find it as hard to warm to this record as to her previous sets. But as a tribute to Miles Davis, this seems like the most creative and thought-through of the many genuflections to the master since his passing. For once – although even this seems self-conscious at times – Wilson seems less like the centre of the music and more like a graceful sound which drifts through a record that is, as usual, heavy on texture and feel and light on improvisational input. There is no trumpet on the record at all – Dara's cornet makes only a couple of ghostly appearances – and most of the weight is carried by the guitarists.

It seems strange to hear the likes of 'Run The Voodoo Down' and 'Blue In Green' adorned with lyrics, although Wilson's poetry is more useful as atmosphere than as substance. But this is surely the best singing she has put down on record, wistful without becoming studied, and 'Time After Time' is a pop interpretation which surpasses any of those she tried on the previous Blue Note albums.

 Belly Of The Sun Blue Note 35072-2 Wilson; Olu Dara (t); Rhonda Richmond (p, v); Boogaloo Ames (p); Kevin Breit (g, bj, bizouki); Marvin Sewell, Jesse Robinson (g); Mark Peterson (b); Xavyon Jamison (d); Cyro Baptista, Jeffrey Haynes (perc); India Arie, Jewell Bass, Patrice Moncell, Henry Rhodes, Vasti Jackson (v). N.D.

Wilson's Mississippi roots are the linchpin for a project which was apparently conceived as a straight blues record. This doesn't much square with the inclusion of the likes of Bob Dylan's 'Shelter From The Storm', Jimmy Webb's 'Wichita Lineman' or A. C. Jobim's 'The Waters Of March', none of which she delivers with any real conviction. Walking a studied line between rootsy authenticity and a digital fantasy on old-time sounds (Baptista and Haynes conjure all sorts of queer percussive noises), the music just about coheres, though nothing works as well as Wilson's simple recitation of 'Darkness On The Delta' against the rickety piano of Boogaloo Ames (who died just before the record was released). Let's call it a 'characteristic' offering from a minor-major artist.

 Glamoured Blue Note 81860-2 Wilson; Grégoire Maret (hca); Brandon Ross (g, bj); Fabrizio Sotti (g); Calvin Jones, Reginald Veal (b); Herlin Riley, Teri Lyne Carrington (d); Jeffrey Haynes (perc). 12/02–3/03.

A dozen years ago she was on top of jazz singing, but first Diana Krall and now Norah Jones have usurped the throne, and Wilson sounds dressed up with few places left to go. Fabrizio Sotti has done much of the arranging and he thins out the backings: less exotica, more guitars, bass and drums, clearly delineated (even Wilson does some twanging). As ever, the material is a wholly unpredictable mix, from 'Lay Lady Lay' to 'Honey Bee', and in at least one instance – the beguiling acoustic funk of 'What Is It?' – there's a search for a hit single (or at least a track that will go down well on radio). It's an appealing enough set, but the singer's mannerisms and solipsistic way with almost every lyric leave the listener unconvinced much of the time.

Also, in brief:

(*) Point Of View /  Days Aweigh Winter & Winter 919004-2 / 919012-2. 12/85; 5/87.

These early records try to marry jazz and hip-hop elements, but the songs are rambling, prescriptive and ultimately flavourless.

(*) Jumpworld Winter & Winter 919033-2. 7–8/89.

A self-conscious return to 'modern' music that doesn't leave the launchpad.

(*) Thunderbird Blue Note 33982. N.D.

She's trying to be Mary J. Blige and falling short. Middle-aged pop.

Garland Wilson (1909–54)

PIANO

Apart from a short time at the beginning of his career and during the war years, he spent most of his time in Europe, where he recorded in his familiar stride style with Nat Gonella and others.

 Garland Wilson 1931–1938 Classics 808 Wilson; Michel Warlop (vn); Nina Mae McKinney (v). 31–38.

 Harlem Piano In Montmartre Verve 548 321-2 Wilson; Danny Polo (cl); Herman Chittison, Charlie Lewis (p); Emmanuel Soudieux (b); Jerry Mengo (d); Arita Day, Nina Mae McKinney (v). 51.

Wilson's playing is buoyant and effective, with a strong sense of melody and little in the way of harmonic sophistication. The Gitanes set is shared with Chittison and Lewis and offers no more than a sampling. Better, if you're interested in him at all, to opt for the Classics set, which covers the key years from his departure from America to the year before he returned at the start of the war. This has pretty much everything Wilson recorded as a leader (the Gitanes set rounds out the story); most of them are solos, but there are a couple of vocals with McKinney and two duos with violinist Warlop, who appears right at the end on 'Limehouse Blues' (very Grappelli-like) and 'You Showed Me The Way'. Garland's two-handed approach is very effective, if a little lacking in subtlety, but he has an ability to squeeze nuances out of tunes – 'Bei Mir Bist Du Schön', 'Your Heart And Mine' – that no one else hears and his originals – 'Blues En Si Bemol', 'The Blues Got Me', 'The Way I Feel', 'You Rascal You' – are endlessly entertaining. A minor figure, to be sure, but not to be overlooked.

Gerald Wilson (born 1918)

TRUMPET, BANDLEADER

Studied in Detroit then joined Jimmie Lunceford, before forming own band. Has worked in LA ever since, arranging, accompanying, bandleading.

 Gerald Wilson, 1945–1946 Classics 976 Wilson; James Anderson, Emmett Berry, Hobart Dotson, Red Kelly, Fred Trainor, Snooky Young (t); Ralph Bledsoe, Vic Dickenson, Robert Huerta, Melba Liston, Isaac Livingstone, Alton Moore (tb); Edward Hale, Leo Trammel, Floyd Turnham (as); Eddie 'Lockjaw' Davis, Vernon Slater, Olis West (ts); Maurice Simon, Charles Waller (bs); Jimmy Bunn (p); Williams Edwards, Buddy Harper, Benny Sexton (g); Arthur Edwards, Robert Rudd (b); Henry Tucker Green (d); Estelle Edson, Dick Gray, Pat Kay, Betty Roche, Thrasher Sisters (v). 5/45–46.

Gerald Wilson joined the Jimmie Lunceford Orchestra just around the time America joined the Second World War. After a stint in the Navy, the talented young trumpeter and composer decided to form his own band. It was a progressive outfit whose faintly experimental air has long since been eclipsed by Stan Kenton's more abrasive approach, but these early recordings are full of interest.

As often with Classics releases, much of the interest lies in identifying stars of the future in embryo. Melba Liston debuts as a soloist on a reading of 'Come Sunday', recorded for Excelsior in 1945, while the irrepressible Snooky Young features on a rather later 'One O'Clock Jump'. Wilson's own contributions as a player are less dramatic. He also features on 'Come Sunday', urbane, unflustered and conscientious but hardly incendiary. His main role is as arranger, turning in crisp, intelligent charts which anticipate the work of later years. There is already a signature Wilson sound: slightly dark, overtoned, regular without being robotic. Anyone who has turned on to the fine bands of the '70s and '80s will find much of interest in these sides. Even where the sound is less than pristine, the content is always involving.

(*) Big Band Modern Jazz Factory JFCD22880 Wilson; Clark Terry, John Anderson, Louis Grey, Allen Smith, Ernie Royal, Walter Williams (t); Isaac Bell, Atlee Chapman, John Ewing, Melba Liston, Henry Coker, Robert Wagner, Trummy Young, Britt Woodman (tb); Sonny Criss, Jerry Dodgion (as); Wardell Gray, Zoot Sims, Teddy Edwards, Paul Gonsalves, Frank Haynes, Stan Getz (ts); Bill Green (bs); Cedric Haywood, Gerald Wiggins (p); Red Callender, Addison Farmer (b); Gus Gustafsson, Lee Young (d). 50, 54.

This valuable reissue pulls together the ultra-rare Big Band Modern LP with an earlier live date at the Veterans Memorial in San Francisco, music which has not previously been released. Its immediate value is that it contains guest appearances from Sims, Getz and Gray, adding something significant to Gray's discography though nothing particularly revelatory in musical terms. The LP stands up pretty well, though the transfers are fairly muddy; Wilson's arrangements, suave, intelligent, but unpretentious, carry the day, even if the hi-fi doesn't.

* The Artist Selects Pacific Jazz 31439 Wilson; Ray Triscari, Jimmy Zito, John Audino, Carmell Jones, Bobby Bryant, Melvin Moore, Jules Chaikin, Freddie Hill, Nat Meeks, Freddie Hill, Jimmy Owens, Al Porcino (t); Bob Edmondson, Frank Strong, Lou Blackburn, Mike Barone, Lew McCreary, Lester Robertson, John Ewing (tb); Kenny Shroyer, Ernie Tack, Bob Knight (btb); Buddy Collette, Harold Land, Harry Klee, Teddy Edwards, Joe Maini, Walter Benton, Don Raffell, Jack Nimitz, Bud Shank, Jimmy Woods, Anthony Ortega, Curtis Amy (reeds); William Green (f, picc); Jack Wilson (p, org); Phil Moore III (p); Richard 'Groove' Holmes (org); Joe Pass (g); Buddy Woodson, Victor Gaskin, Dave Dyson, Herbie Lewis, Leroy Vinnegar, Jimmy Bond (b); Mel Lewis, Chuck Carter, Mel Lee (d); Max Garduno, Modesto Duran (perc). 9/61–1/66.

In the absence of separate editions of Wilson's ten albums for Pacific Jazz, this compilation will have to do for now: chosen by the bandleader himself, it includes classics such as 'Blues For Yna Yna', 'Paco' and 'Josefina', as well as his transformations of 'Milestones' and 'Round Midnight'. Some of the tracks feel foreshortened and some are faded, which suggests that Pacific's Richard Bock was trying to tailor the music for airplay. But the writing is impeccable and there are solos from Wilson regulars such as Harold Land, Carmell Jones and Teddy Edwards.

(*) State Street Sweet Mama MMF 1010 Wilson; Ron Barrows, Bob Clark, George Graham, Tony Lujan, Bobby Shew, Frank Szabo, Snooky Young (t); Thurman Green, Alex Iles, Charlie Loper, Ira Nepus (tb); Maurice Spears (btb); John Stephens, Randall Willis (as); Plas Johnson, Carl Randall, Louis Taylor (ts); Jack Nimitz (bs); Brian O'Rourke (p); Eric Otis, Anthony Wilson (g); Trey Henry (b); Mel Lee (d). 95.

Wilson's appearance at the Monterey Jazz Festival in 1963 was something of a revival meeting. After running a successful band during the '40s, he more or less dropped out of jazz for a decade, returning to the fray only at the start of the '60s. Wilson had cut his teeth with the Jimmie Lunceford Orchestra, where he had replaced Sy Oliver as staff arranger. There he acquired skills which have lasted him to this day. One of the great orchestrators in jazz, he leans heavily on the blues, but integrates swing, bebop, rock and some classical influences. State Street Sweet is a lovely record marked out by well-honed skill and a sure hand at recruiting players. Bobby Shew is excellent on 'The Serpent' and guest Plas Johnson has a brief starring role on 'Come Back To Sorrento'.

* Theme For Monterey MAMA MMF 1021 Wilson; Ron Barrows, Oscar Brashear, David Krimsley, Carl Saunders, Snooky Young (t); Leslie Benedict, George Bohannon, Isaac Smith, Maurice Spears (tb); Scott Mayo, Jack Nimitz, Carl Randall, John Stephens, Louis Taylor, Randall Willis (sax); Brian O'Rourke (p); Eric Veliotes, Anthony Wilson (g); Trey Henry (b); Mel Lee (d). 97.

Wilson was a natural choice for the keynote new work at the 40th-anniversary Monterey Jazz Festival. Prestigious as such a commission is, no one could have expected a piece of such grave and joyous brilliance as Theme For Monterey. At more than three-quarters of an hour, it has a scope and simplicity of purpose which few contemporary players would have dared, and yet repeated listenings reveal a whole raft of subtle ideas, personal and musicological references. The 'encore' pieces, 'Summertime' and the brief bop exercise of 'Anthropology', offer just a glimpse of how a Wilson band attacks repertory material. Both arrangements were premiered at the Library of Congress in recognition of its archiving of Wilson's work.

The real interest lies in his suite of original themes. 'Lyons' Roar' is a dedication to Monterey Festival maven Jimmy Lyons; the main soloists are trumpeter Oscar Brashear, tenors Carl Randall and Randall Willis, and guitarist Anthony Wilson, who probably gets more space on the disc than he strictly deserves. It also features pianist Brian O'Rourke, who is the most effective presence on 'Cookin' On Cannery Row' and 'Spanish Bay'. The set is very nearly hijacked by the very first track, an exquisite thing called 'Romance', which highlights the bright, expressive soprano of Scott Mayo.

* New York, New Sound Mack Avenue MAC 1009 Clark Terry (t, flhn); Jimmy Owens, Eddie Henderson, Jon Faddis, Frank Greene, Sean Jones (t); Benny Powell, Luis Bonilla, Dennis Wilson (tb); Douglas Purviance (tb, btb); Jesse Davis (as); Jerry Dodgion (f, as); Jimmy Heath (ts); Frank Wess (f, ts); Jay Brandford (bs); Kenny Barron, Renee Rosnes (p); Anthony Wilson, Oscar Castro-Neves (g); Bob Cranshaw, Trey Henry, Larry Ridley (b); Lewis Nash, Stix Hooper (d); Lenny Castro (perc). 02.

* In My Time Mack Avenue MACK 1025 As above, except omit Terry, Davis, Heath, Wess, Brandford, Barron, Wilson, Castro-Neves, Cranshaw, Henry, Ridley, Hooper, Castro; add Mike Rodrigues, Jeremy Pelt (t); Kamasi Washington, Ron Blake (ts); Steve Wilson, Dustin Cicero (as); Gary Smulyan (bs); Russell Malone (g); Peter Washington (b). 4/05.

In his 80s, Wilson is still writing music, still visiting new places to have his work played, and it was a marvellous initiative by Stix Hooper's Mack Avenue label to record this all-star collective swinging through some of his material. The big piece is a comprehensive revision of his 1997 'Theme For Monterey', but there are other Wilson favourites such as 'Blues For Yna Yna', and the orchestra bristle through these vintage charts in a mercurial high gear. How much longer anyone will be able to assemble a band which has the likes of Jimmy Heath, Clark Terry and Frank Wess sitting alongside Jesse Davis and Renee Rosnes is impossible to say, but this is a meeting of generations working together on some of the masterpieces of modern big-band writing and creating a record any jazz lover should be delighted to hear.

The follow-up is less of a meeting of generations but has an undiminished power. There's another big piece, 'The Diminished Triangle', and new treatments of vintage pieces, but everywhere there is power directed by invention and softened by sheer musicality.

 Monterey Moods Mack Avenue 31039 Wilson; Jon Faddis, Frank Greene, Sean Jones, Jimmy Owens, Terell Stafford (t, flhn); Jay Ashby, Luis Bonilla, Douglas Purviance, Dennis Wilson (tb); Antonio Hart (ss, as, f); Kamasi Washington (ts); Ronnie Cuber (bs); Hubert Laws (f); Renee Rosnes (p); Anthony Wilson (g); Todd Coolman, Peter Washington (b); Lewis Nash (d). 9/07.
For a change, one might have to say that it's the soloists who carry this one rather than the grand old man's charts. For a change, Wilson has recruited a New York band to perform a West Coast tribute. Rosnes is luminous in her intro to 'Jazz Swing Waltz', but it's Laws who dominates the solo space for much of the way. Indeed, there are moments when one senses that this seven-part suite is a kind of Ellingtonian 'concerto' for the flautist. The different sections, which derive much of their material from a three-note phrase denoting 'Monterey' are in different jazz styles – blues, Latin, ballad, hard swing, etc., with the penultimate part a bass solo. Then there's a needless arrangement of 'I Concentrate On You' and a closing 'Mini Waltz' by Wilson, which just overcooks the whole thing. Laws plays magnificently, like the master he is, but there's an air of ritual about the set that makes it seem ultimately rather empty.

Glenn Wilson

BARITONE SAXOPHONE, BASS CLARINET, ALTO FLUTE

Contemporary saxophonist specializing in baritone, heard in big-band situations and occasional small-group leadership dates.

 Impasse Cadence CJR 1023 Wilson; Harold Danko (p); Dennis Irwin (b); Adam Nussbaum (d). 3/84.

 Elusive Sunnyside SSCD 1030 As above, except add Bob Belden (ts). 12/87.

(*) Bittersweet Sunnyside SSCD 1057 Wilson; Rory Stuart (g). 7/90.

(*) Blue Porpoise Avenue Sunnyside SSCD 1074 As above, except add Marc Copland (p); Jay Anderson (b); Jeff Hirshfield (d). 10/90.

(*) One Man's Blues Sunnyside SSCD 1087 Wilson; Steve Kessler (p); Jim Masters (b); Tony Martucci (d). 2/99.
Although, like so many baritone specialists, Wilson seems doomed to recording mainly as a section sideman (a Buddy Rich veteran!), he plays with fine gusto and thoughtful intelligence on the records made under his own leadership. His debut, Impasse, while a little rough-and-ready, still sounds well, the baritonist getting a huge sound out of the horn, and the playing wants for nothing in ferocity. Danko, always a thinking player, keeps a clear harmonic course underneath. We previously declared his Sunnyside records MIA, but they seem to be around in some numbers, even if they are occasionally, in the words of the 1987 disc, elusive. The chemistry with Danko is interesting, and Belden sounds a bit of a third wheel for much of the way. The duo album with Stuart has a curious instrumentation, but it works for the most part, though the guitarist isn't particularly memorable. He's more effectively deployed with the group on Blue Porpoise Avenue, though some of the music here sounds a bit sophomoric and silly, and redeemed by the section's creditably serious performance. The record wasn't released for some years, and we can understand the reservation. Encouragingly, the most recent record is the best of the bunch: well thought-out, well-played and with a richer and more realistic tone on Glenn's horn than we've heard previously. He's an interesting guy, who deserves a close look. A pity the run of records seems to have dried up for the moment.

Matt Wilson (born 1964)

DRUMS

Came to Boston from Illinois in the late '80s and immediately won a reputation as an intelligent, subtle percussionist who could adapt his approach to any situation. Unusually for a drummer, Wilson has been able to record regularly as leader.

(*) As Wave Follows Wave Palmetto 2020 Wilson; Dewey Redman (ts); Larry Goldings (org); Cecil McBee (b). 4/96.
The debut album was pretty much stolen by fellow Palmetto star Dewey Redman, whose own recording opportunities have been dismayingly few over the years. Redman's muscular tenor sits well with the organ and drums and he delivers some fine playing on 'July Hymn' (a tribute to Don Cherry) and on 'Body And Soul'. Wilson mixes in originals and traditional themes ('Sweet Betsy From The Pike') and includes a couple of unaccompanied drum and percussion features ('Nice Colors' and the clever closing 'Mr Zimmerman's Farm', which does for B. Dylan what Old MacDonald did for agricultural sound effects generally). A fine debut record, even if the oldtimer pinched it.

(*) Going Once, Going Twice Palmetto 2032 Wilson; Joel Frahm (ss, ts); Lee Konitz (as); Andrew D'Angelo (as, bcl); Pete McCann (bj); Yosuke Inoue (b); Ned Sublette (v). 3/98.

* Smile Palmetto 2049 As above, except omit Konitz, McCann, Sublette. 3/99.
The title-track on Going features an auctioneer (Ned Sublette), which is a unique credit in this book. It's a very funny, very cleverly conceived track, also featuring banjoist Pete McCann in a role that might have suited Bill Frisell. It's a set that combines intelligent jazz themes, including Herbie Nichols's rarely heard 'Chit-Chatting', with Pete Seeger's version of Ecclesiastes, 'Turn! Turn! Turn!'. By no means put off by his experience with Redman, Wilson has even more saxophonists this time. D'Angelo is credited with the fine 'Andrew's Ditty', which rivals Wilson's own compositions, and Lee Konitz is drafted in on 'Brattleboro'. A promising sophomore performance from Wilson, who grows in range and stature each time.

Smile was a step on again, a set that mixes in the humour ever more comfortably. 'Take Me Out To The Ball Game' is hilarious, as is 'Go, Team, Go!', though what's interesting is how seamlessly Wilson and his men weave their larking into some fairly robust outside jazz. Frahm's bass clarinet work was likened to Eric Dolphy on this record's first appearance, and while it's an absurd comparison at face value, you can hear what was meant. 'A Dusting Of Snow' shows what a fine impressionistic drummer Wilson can be in a more thoughtful mood, while 'Daymaker' is just great small group arranging. Of the brought-in material, Monk's rarely played 'Boo Boo's Birthday' is outstanding and there is a fine reading of 'Strangers In The Night', which is virtually unrecognizable as such until it's almost over.

(*) Arts And Crafts Palmetto 2069 Wilson; Terell Stafford (t); Larry Goldings (p); Dennis Irwin (b). 3/01.

For this one, Wilson alters the instrumentation considerably and comes up with yet another variation on his protean musical personality. The drafting of Stafford proves to be a key element. The trumpeter is strongly featured on a tribute to Lester Bowie and throughout sounds full-voiced, supple and warm. The inclusion of Ornette Coleman's 'Old Gospel' is another sign of Wilson's eclecticism, but the weight falls very much on his own writing here. 'Final Answer' is a buoyant post-bop idea which clinches the Dolphy connection; 'Arts And Crafts' itself is a slower and more thoughtful theme which conjures one of Golding's best moments of the set (he's on piano throughout). They close the set with 'Love Walked In' and 'All Through The Night'.

* Humidity Palmetto 2089 Wilson; John Carlson (t, pkt-t); Andrew D'Angelo (as, bcl, perc); Jeff Lederer (ts, f, perc); Felicia Wilson (vn); Yosuke Inoue (b). 2/03.

Wilson's awareness of modern jazz history is underlined on the opening 'Thank You, Billy Higgins', a tribute to the late drummer (and possible influence) who worked with Ornette Coleman. Just occasionally it sounds as though Wilson is trying to be eclectic for eclecticism's sake. Here he does 'Don't Blame Me' alongside his own Colemanish 'Swimming In The Trees' and (misnamed) 'Raga', as well as a version of Tadd Dameron's 'Our Delight'. It's all a joyous mess, held together by the sheer force of Wilson's creative personality. Reunited with Andrew D'Angelo and a second reedman, he seems to have discovered his ideal instrumentation. The brassmen and fiddler are guests but Carlson's pocket-trumpet is an important marker of the Coleman/Cherry axis Matt is exploring.

As a body of work, Wilson's Palmetto discs are among the most exciting in recent jazz; conscious of history, exploratory, funny and mournful by turns, they keep the listener guessing and, better still, thirsty for more.

(*) Wake Up! (To What's Happening) Palmetto 2104 Wilson; Terell Stafford (t, flhn); Larry Goldings (org); Dennis Irwin (b, cl); Curtis Stigers (v). 12/03.

Another fine showing from the Arts & Crafts band. Wilson himself shines on Charlie Haden's silence, though he's then outgunned by Stafford, who takes a superb solo. The other modern repertory pieces are Tony Williams's 'There Comes A Time', with a fine guest spot by Stigers, and Jaki Byard's 'Aluminum Baby', which rarely gets an airing. The drummer is crisp and focused throughout, with a few nice features, but not over-prominently featured.

(*) Scenic Route Palmetto 2122 Wilson; Terell Stafford (t, flhn); Gary Versace (p, org); Dennis Irwin (b); Swayettes (v). 9/06.

Wilson has the chops and the critical permission to do just about whatever he wants now. Here, he programmes a few things of his own alongside Monk's 'We See' an Ornette Coleman tune, Pat Metheny's 'The Bat', Bobby Hutcherson's 'Little B's Poem' and an astonishing closing medley of Donald Ayler's 'Our Prayer' (we think Don had died just previously) with the Beatles' 'Give Peace A Chance'. More important than the run of tunes, he makes them work. He even finds a role for a female vocal trio, though the logic isn't entirely obvious. The band's called Arts & Crafts, which doesn't need to be over-analysed as a group name. It delivers quality merchandise, carefully fashioned, aesthetically pleasing and robustly engineered. Wilson's on a high of highs right now. We'd recommend your urgent attention.

Peter Niklas Wilson (1957–2003)

DOUBLE BASS

Brilliant Hamburg-born bassist, musicologist, writer and co-founder of the True Muze label, largely self-taught on his instrument.

 Alphea Leo CD LR 009 Wilson; Hannes Wienert (t, ss, ts). 8/93.

 Yarbles hatOLOGY 510 Wilson; Martin Pfleiderer (ss, ts); Burkhard Beins (d, perc). 4/96.

* Monsun True Muze TUMU 9801 Wilson; Malcolm Goldstein (vn). 10/96.

Sadly, once again, an artist is only fully appreciated once he is no longer on the scene. Wilson succumbed to a febrile illness following a recurrence of leukaemia. His body of recorded work is relatively small, but he had made records with Anthony Braxton (who was an admirer), Rajesh Mehta, and Alphea, the Ton Art Quartet/Ensemble and other groups, and was developing his own individual style of bass-playing, particularly with the bow. Both of these are collaborative dates, but Yarbles was made – apparently spontaneously and without advance preparation – at Wilson's True Muze studio in Hamburg, and it seems he was its driving force. He's often the most prominent voice on the session, working in tandem with the saxophone, but a couple of octaves below. The opening 'Smoothpick' is an almost perfect representation of his hypnotic arco work. It's a peculiar album, in some respects, but Wilson manages to give it a centre of gravity that mitigates the often shapeless frenzy of Pfleiderer's multiphonic flurries and Beins's metreless playing.

Goldstein, a co-founder of the Tone Roads ensemble/promotional organization with composer James Tenney, is exactly the kind of intelligent player with considerable hinterland one would expect to find working with Wilson. Like minds and playing members of the same instrumental family, they find much to discuss on Monsun. They share an unusual articulation, light and with very little obvious attack. Both take a solo spot, and Wilson's 'The Space of the Bass', though considerably shorter than his colleague's feature, is every bit as densely packed with ideas.

In wind-player and visual artist Wienert, Wilson found another like-minded and multi-talented partner. Alphea is a set of character studies exploring harmonic and textural ideas rather than a full-out improvisation record. Some of the pieces actually sound quite formal, in keeping with a strain of Wilson's work which liked to work within a European classical tradition, albeit its avant-garde wing. Highlights are the bluesish 'Crayfish's Return', the self-explanatory 'Beauty And The Beast' and, best of all, the finger-breaking 'Dream Reader Meeting', which now serves as a rather poignant reminder of Wilson's lost talent. Thin pickings for such a potent player, but stimulus perhaps to seek him out on other leaders' records.

Steve Wilson (born 1961)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Played in soul bands as a teenager, then arrived in jazz as a member of Blue Note's Out Of The Blue Band in the '80s.

(*) New York Summit Criss Cross 1062 Wilson; Tom Williams (t); Mulgrew Miller (p); James Genus (b); Carl Allen (d). 12/91.

 Blues For Marcus Criss Cross 1073 Wilson; Steve Nelson (vib); Bruce Barth (p); James Genus (b); Lewis Nash (d). 1/93.

Wilson first surfaced in the mid-'80s with Out Of The Blue, a group dedicated to the classic Blue Note style. With a sound reminiscent of former Messenger Bobby Watson (a stylistic link confirmed by his sound-alike duets with vibraphonist Nelson on Blues For Marcus), the Virginian acquitted himself more than respectably. Wilson is by no means an uncritical retro hard-bopper. His first two CDs as leader demonstrate impressive if marginally over-ambitious skills as a composer ('Diaspora' on the second record gets rather hung up on complex time-signatures) but also an instinct for unusual repertoire. The first record opens with Ted Curson's lovely 'Reava's Waltz' and includes material by Ron Carter, Duke Ellington, Eddie Harris, Thelonious Monk, Joe Sample and Bobby Timmons ('Damned If I Know', rather than the ubiquitous 'Moanin'') alongside a single original. By 1993, Wilson's confidence in his own work is more evident, but there is still room for Ornette Coleman's 'Jayne', Joe Chambers's 'Patterns' and Roland Kirk's 'The Haunted Melody'. Tom Williams is a competent rather than an exciting trumpeter in the Freddie Hubbard mould; he sounds clean and orderly in ensembles but lacks pep in his solos. Ironically, he's missed on the second album, which is rather light in sound. Barth contributes an original, 'Cornerstone', but as a player he lacks Mulgrew Miller's firmly anchored chords and easy switches of register.

* Four For Time Criss Cross 1115 Wilson; Bruce Barth (p); Larry Grenadier (b); Leon Parker (d). 12/94.

The key track is 'Groovesome Twosome', a duet with drummer Parker on his minimal kit. The interplay between the two is the axis round which this working group revolves, though Barth's Monk-influenced style and compositional ideas ('By The Window') are important as well. Wilson sticks to alto and seems determined to keep matters as in-line and uncomplicated as possible. He largely succeeds. Parker is magnificent, and it's good to see his role recognized in the reappearance of his compositon 'Belief', which he used as the title-track for his own record. Grenadier deserves a mention as well, picking up the bare clues in some of Barth's accompaniments and giving them a rounded harmonic support.

 Generations Stretch 9019-2 Wilson; Mulgrew Miller (p); Ray Drummond (b); Ben Riley (d). 2/98.

 Passages Stretch 9025-2 Wilson; Nicholas Payton (t, flhn); Bruce Barth (ky); Ed Howard (b); Adam Cruz (d). 12/99.

The 'generations' refer to the players of yore who have inspired Wilson, and he brought in three of them – Riley aside, not exactly names that were prominent long ago! – to back him up. The results are pleasing, if hardly outstanding. Miller and Drummond are such seasoned pros that even their routine work has an eminence to it, but they don't do much more than create a diplomatic framework for Wilson's solos. The leader sounds fine, although if he's to make an impact as a leader on record, he's going to need a more meaningful context than this. The second Stretch is again too much like piece-work, not enough reason-to-be. 'Turnin' The Corner' is a strong start, but thereafter the material quickly thins out and some accomplished playing searches for a solid line to earth.

Also, in brief:

 Step Lively Criss Cross 1096. 12/93.

Lean, unsentimental and good-humoured jazz.

(*) Soulful Song Max Jazz MAXJ 401. 5/03.

A dull set, with Wilson reduced to accompanist role, backing some very ho-hum (yes, even Rene Marie) singing.

Teddy Wilson (1912–86)

PIANO

Born in Austin, Texas, he visited Chicago in 1928, fell in love with jazz there, and formed a duo with Art Tatum in 1931. Arrived in New York to join Benny Carter. His studio small-group work included classic sessions with Billie Holiday and Lester Young, and he then joined Benny Goodman. A brief spell with his own big band in 1939, then more small-group work, a staff job at CBS and teaching at Juilliard. The most gracious and poised of performers.

() Teddy Wilson 1934–35 / () Teddy Wilson Vol. 1: Too Hot For Words Classics 508 / Hep 1012 Wilson; Roy Eldridge, Dick Clark (t); Benny Morton (tb); Tom Macey, Benny Goodman, Cecil Scott (cl); Hilton Jefferson, Johnny Hodges (as); Chu Berry, Ben Webster (ts); John Trueheart, Lawrence Lucie, Dave Barbour (g); John Kirby, Grachan Moncur (b); Cozy Cole (d); Billie Holiday (v). 5/34–12/35; 1–10/35.

Few jazz records have endured quite as well as Teddy Wilson's '30s music. Wilson arrived in New York as, on the basis of the four solo titles which open the first Classics CD, an enthusiastic young stride pianist, already under the spell of Earl Hines and of Art Tatum, with whom he worked as a two-man piano team. But even here there are the signs of an individual whose meticulous, dapper delivery and subtle reading of harmony would be hugely influential. Amazingly, everything is in place by the time of the first band session in July 1935: the initial line-up includes Eldridge, Goodman and Webster, and the singer is Billie Holiday, who would feature as vocalist on most of Wilson's pre-war records. Two classics were made immediately – 'What A Little Moonlight Can Do' and 'Miss Brown To You' – and the style was set: a band chorus, a vocal, and another chorus for the band, with solos and obbligatos in perfect accord with every other note and accent. All the others seem to take their cue from the leader's own poise, and even potentially unruly spirits such as Eldridge and Webster behave. The first of Classics' comprehensive seven-disc series includes 11 piano solos and 12 band sides, and it's a delight from start to finish, even though there was better to come.

The reissue of these records has been complicated by Holiday's presence, for all her tracks with Wilson are now also available on discs under her own name. Collectors will have to follow their own tastes, but we would opine that, of all the various transfers of this material, the Hep discs – which follow the Classics discs fairly closely in sequencing, if finally not quite so generously in the number of tracks – have the most truthful sound. Even so, the Classics CD, above, is consistently clean and enjoyable in sonic terms.

(*) Teddy Wilson 1935–1936 / * Teddy Wilson Vol. 2: Warmin' Up Classics 511 / Hep 1014 Wilson; Dick Clark, Gordon Griffin, Frankie Newton, Roy Eldridge, Jonah Jones (t); Benny Morton (tb); Benny Goodman, Buster Bailey, Rudy Powell, Tom Macey (cl); Jerry Blake (cl, as); Vido Musso (cl, ts); Harry Carney (cl, bs); Johnny Hodges (as); Ted McRae, Chu Berry (ts); Dave Barbour, John Trueheart, Allan Reuss, Bob Lessey, Lawrence Lucie (g); Lionel Hampton (vib); Israel Crosby, Harry Goodman, Leemie Stanfield, Grachan Moncur, John Kirby (b); Gene Krupa, Big Sid Catlett, Cozy Cole (d); Helen Ward, Ella Fitzgerald, Red Harper, Billie Holiday (v). 12/35–8/36; 12/35–6/36.

 Teddy Wilson 1936–1937 Classics 521 Wilson; Gordon Griffin, Irving Randolph, Henry 'Red' Allen, Jonah Jones, Buck Clayton, Cootie Williams (t); Cecil Scott (cl, as, ts); Vido Musso (cl, ts);

Harry Carney (cl, bs); Benny Goodman (cl); Johnny Hodges (as); Ben Webster, Prince Robinson, Lester Young (ts); Allan Reuss, Freddie Green, James McLin (g); Harry Goodman, Milt Hinton, Walter Page, John Kirby (b); Cozy Cole, Jo Jones, Gene Krupa (d); Billie Holiday, Midge Williams, Red Harper (v). 8/36–3/37.

* Teddy Wilson Vol. 3: Of Thee I Swing Hep 1020 Largely as above. 8/36–2/37.

Wilson hit his stride as this long series of sessions proceeded. The next two Classics CDs are laden with fine music, and Billie Holiday's contributions assume greatness; the 16 tracks she sings on Classics 521 number among her finest records, and the mixed quality of the material seems to make no difference to her. Just as Lionel Hampton began pilfering men from local big bands for his Victor sessions, so Wilson organized similar contingents for his records, and some of these bands are drawn from either the Goodman or the Basie orchestra, although one offbeat session features Henry Allen, Cecil Scott and Prince Robinson. The spotlight is off Wilson to some extent, but one of the major reasons for the success of these dates is the light, singing fluency of the rhythm section, and the pianist's unemphatic but decisive lead is the prime reason for that. Ella Fitzgerald sings on one session on Classics 511 and Midge Williams, Helen Ward and Red Harper take their turns at the microphone, but it's Holiday one remembers. Lester Young's association with the singer also starts here, but his solos are really no more memorable than the offerings by Buck Clayton, Benny Goodman or Roy Eldridge. Those collecting the Classics CDs may be dismayed by the erratic sound-quality on Classics 521 in particular, and once again we prefer the Hep series.

* Teddy Wilson 1937 Classics 531 Wilson; Cootie Williams, Harry James, Buck Clayton (t); Buster Bailey, Benny Goodman, Archie Rosati (cl); Harry Carney (cl, bs); Johnny Hodges (as); Vido Musso, Lester Young (ts); Red Norvo (xy); Allan Reuss, Freddie Green (g); John Kirby, John Simmons, Harry Goodman, Artie Bernstein, Walter Page (b); Cozy Cole, Jo Jones, Gene Krupa (d); Helen Ward, Billie Holiday, Frances Hunt, Boots Castle (v). 3–8/37.

* Teddy Wilson Vol. 4: Fine & Dandy Hep 1029 Largely as above. 3–7/37.

(*) Teddy Wilson 1937–1938 / * Teddy Wilson Vol. 5: Blue Mood Classics 548 / Hep 1035 Wilson; Harry James, Buck Clayton (t); Bobby Hackett (c); Benny Morton (tb); Pee Wee Russell, Prince Robinson (cl); Johnny Hodges, Tab Smith (as); Gene Sedric, Lester Young, Chu Berry, Vido Musso (ts); Red Norvo (xy); Allan Reuss, Freddie Green (g); Walter Page, Al Hall, John Simmons (b); Johnny Blowers, Jo Jones, Cozy Cole (d); Billie Holiday, Nan Wynn (v). 9/37–4/38; 8/37–1/38.

* Teddy Wilson 1938 Classics 556 Wilson; Jonah Jones, Harry James (t); Bobby Hackett (c); Trummy Young, Benny Morton (tb); Pee Wee Russell (cl); Benny Carter, Johnny Hodges, Toots Mondello, Ted Buckner, Edgar Sampson (as); Lester Young, Herschel Evans, Bud Freeman, Chu Berry, Ben Webster (ts); Allan Reuss, Al Casey (g); Al Hall, John Kirby, Milt Hinton, Walter Page (b); Johnny Blowers, Cozy Cole, Jo Jones (d); Billie Holiday, Nan Wynn (v). 4–11/38.

* Moments Like This Hep CD 1043 As above, except add Roy Eldridge (t); Ernie Powell (c). 3/38–1/39.

This is jazz of such a consistently high level that it seems churlish to offer criticism. The Classics CDs are mainly in pretty good, clean sound, with the occasional track sounding a little starchier: the Hep transfers continue to be our first recommendation, though the Classics 'uniform' editions may appeal more to some collectors. The first 1937 CD is magnificent, the first five sessions as strong in material as they are in performances: 'Mean To Me', 'I'll Get By', 'How Am I To Know?' and more. These are also among Holiday's greatest records. The 1937–1938 disc includes the September 1937 session which offered the memorable two-part 'Just A Mood' quartet with Harry James and Red Norvo, as well as a previously rejected date. The 1938 set sees Bobby Hackett arriving to play lead, as well as six solos originally made for the 'Teddy Wilson School For Pianists'. Wilson's mixture of lyricism and vigour is almost unique in the jazz of the period and it suggests a path which jazz doctrine has seldom explored since.

 Teddy Wilson 1939 Classics 571 Wilson; Roy Eldridge, Karl George, Harold 'Shorty' Baker (t); Floyd Brady (tb); Pete Clark (cl, as, bs); Rudy Powell (cl, as); Benny Carter (as, ts); Ben Webster, George Irish (ts); Danny Barker, Al Casey (g); Al Hall, Milt Hinton (b); Cozy Cole, J. C. Heard (d); Billie Holiday, Thelma Carpenter, Jean Eldridge (v). 1–9/39.

Inevitably, Wilson went on to lead his own big band, and musicians were more than impressed by its secure power and purposeful clarity of tone, a direct extension of Wilson's own manner. But it failed commercially, and its records don't quite match its reputation, largely through charts that are only so-so but which may have come alive in person. The 1939 sides are collected here, along with four more Wilson solos, including a sparkling 'China Boy'.

 Teddy Wilson 1939–1941 Classics 620 Similar to above, except omit Roy Eldridge, Powell, Barker, Carter, Hinton, Cole, Carpenter, Holiday, Jean Eldridge; add Doc Cheatham, Bill Coleman (t); Floyd Brady, Benny Morton (tb); Jimmy Hamilton (cl); George James (bs); Eddie Gibbs (g); Yank Porter (d); Helen Ward (v). 12/39–4/41.

After two more sessions with the big band, Wilson returned to small groups and then a trio as his last sessions for Columbia. Still not quite up to the impeccable calibre of the earlier dates, but a 1940 session with Bill Coleman and Benny Morton in the front line is fine, and Wilson's solos-with-rhythm maintain his own fierce standards.

(*) Teddy Wilson 1942–1945 Classics 908 Wilson; Emmett Berry, Joe Thomas, Charlie Shavers, Buck Clayton (t); Benny Morton (tb); Edmond Hall (cl); Ben Webster (ts); Remo Palmieri (g); Red Norvo (vib); Al Hall, Billy Taylor, Johnny Williams (b); J. C. Heard, Big Sid Catlett, Specs Powell (d); Helen Ward, Maxine Sullivan (v). 1/42–8/45.

It starts with a handsome solo on 'These Foolish Things', then moves through various small-group dates for Columbia, V-Disc and his first sessions for Musicraft. The instinctual chemistry of the great '30s sessions is gone, but these are still groups full of fine players, and there are moments to savour: Berry and Morton on 'B Flat Swing', Red Norvo, Maxine Sullivan on 'This Heart Of Mine'. The final date includes Clayton and Webster on four excellent titles.

 Teddy Wilson 1946 Classics 997 Wilson; Buck Clayton (t); Scoville Browne (as, cl); Don Byas, Charlie Ventura (ts); George James (bs); Remo Palmieri (g); Billy Taylor (b); J. C. Heard (d); Sarah Vaughan (v). 5–11/46.

Wilson's Musicraft sessions are tarnished by their indifferent piano sound, and some of his subtlety is lost. But there are nevertheless 14 handsome solos collected here, four titles by an octet with Clayton and Byas, and four by a quartet with Ventura. Sarah Vaughan sings on four tracks; 'Penthouse Serenade' is gorgeous, and the horns are splendid on 'I Want To Be Happy'.

 With Billie In Mind Chiaroscuro CRD III Wilson (p solo). 5/72.
Despite the Collectables issue listed above, Columbia and Verve really should be doing something about reissuing Wilson's late-'50s sessions (Mosaic has done a boxed set of some of them). Until then, there is still a significant gap in the discography, which picks up with these various dates from the late '60s onwards. Wilson's later music is frequently disappointing in the light of his earlier achievements. Lacking any commitment from a major label, he seemed to wander from session to session with a sometimes cynical approach to the occasion, careless of the company and relying on an inner light which had long since burned down to a routine. Only when a sympathetic producer was on hand did Wilson raise his game, and the solo records include some of the best music of his later albums. With Billie In Mind is devoted to material he had recorded with Holiday in the '30s, and its graceful, characteristic atmosphere makes for a special occasion. Six titles are added to the original LP issue.

 Teddy Wilson And His All Stars Chiaroscuro CR(D) 150 Wilson; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Bob Wilber (cl, ss); Major Holley (b); Oliver Jackson (d). 6/76.
A rare example of Wilson leading an American small group. It might have been a little classic, but something's wrong. Bobby Hackett was supposed to play on the date, but he died; Edison, his substitute, is too louche for the occasion. Wilber's arrangements are a shade too clever, and some of the tempos are too fast. But on a few slow ones, where Dickenson can stretch out, and Wilson seems to peer through from the back (the studio sound isn't very good), it sounds much better.

(*) In Copenhagen Storyville STCD 8516 Wilson; Hugo Rasmussen (b); Ed Thigpen (d). 5/79.
(*) Revisits The Goodman Years Storyville STCD 8364 Wilson; Jesper Lundgaard (b); Ed Thigpen (d).
The flurry of Waller material at the start of this marvellous discovery is explained by the fact that Wilson and his trio set down to play on what would have been Fats's 75th birthday. After that, the emphasis switches to Ellington and Strayhorn. Wilson deals with most of this repertory like a Harley Street doctor seeing patients: professionally, reassuringly and with one eye on the clock. Nothing lingers much, though 'St Louis Blues' and 'I'll Remember April' both receive extended visits. It's a lovely find for Wilson fans, and a reminder of how accomplished a player he remained, even in late middle age. He's back in Scandinavia the following summer with a slightly different trio. If it sounds like a nostalgia exercise, this one is musically tougher, with some lovely harmonic work on ''S Wonderful' and an intriguingly different tack on 'I'll Remember April', for which the bassist has to take some credit.

 Masters Of Jazz Vol. 11: Teddy Wilson Storyville STCD 4111 Wilson; Jesper Lundgaard, Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen (b); Bjarne Rostvold, Ed Thigpen (d). 12/68–6/80.
 Alone Storyville STCD 8211 Wilson (p solo). 5/83.
Wilson carried on working into the '80s, and these are among his final recordings. He still sounds much as he did nearly 50 years before – sometimes more professionally detached, occasionally quietly enjoying his own wisdom. The material on the Masters Of Jazz disc – drawn from two trio dates 12 years apart – is still heavily reliant on the '30s standards which Wilson always stood by. As good as anything he recorded later in life. Alone was cut at a Danish concert. The normally taciturn pianist talks between some of the tunes, and he sounds in amiable spirits on some of his favourites, though the location sound and the piano itself seem no more than adequate.

Also, in brief:

 The Alternative Takes: Volume 1 – 1934–1941 / ... Volume 2 – 1938–1945 Neatwork 2021 / 2032. 5/34–4/41; 4/38–8/45.
So elegant a performer, even the rejected stuff has class and quality; but even so, these are for specialist fans.

 His Piano And Orchestra: 1938–1939 Storyville STCD 2068. 38–39.
Solo material recorded by Wilson himself but subsequently released on the short-lived Merit label, plus some orchestral material, including BBC performances. Good, but mainly for collectors.

 The Keystone Transcriptions Storyville STCD 8258. 39–40.
Twenty-six tunes, rattled off in an hour for a transcription service. Brittle and brilliant, with just a few touches of pathos.

 And Then They Wrote ... / Mr Wilson And Mr Gershwin Collectables COL-CD-6680. 1–12/59.
Formerly on Columbia and compromised by a dull remit: jazz hits on one, Gershwin on the other, and down they each go like skittles.

... plus many compilations and repackagings.

Lem Winchester (1928–61)

VIBRAPHONE

One of the saddest, killed in a firearm accident on the brink of success. A Delaware police officer, he had been only an amateur player until the first of these brought him both critical acclaim and awards.

(*) Winchester Special Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1719 Winchester; Benny Golson (ts); Tommy Flanagan (p); Wendell Marshall (b); Art Taylor (d). 9/59.
 Lem's Beat Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1785 Winchester; Curtis Peagler (as); Oliver Nelson (ts); Billy Brown (g); Roy Johnson (p); Wendell Marshall (b); Art Taylor (d). 4/60.
(*) Another Opus Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1816 Winchester; Frank Wess (f); Hank Jones (p); Johnny Hammond Smith (org); Eddie McFadden (g); Eddie Jones, Wendell Marshall (b); Bill Erskine, Gus Johnson (d). 6–10/60.
 With Feeling Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1900 Winchester; Richard Wyands (p); George Duvivier (b); Roy Haynes (d). 10/60.
Winchester's vibes-playing is vigorous enough, if sometimes flat-footed, but he is one of those players who tend to be comprehensively upstaged by their sidemen. Golson's gruff, argumentative tenor on the first record and Nelson's loamy sound on the second create most of the interest, and Wess is as interesting as always on Another Opus. The rhythm section on Lem's Beat and the bonus 'Lid Flippin'' on the third record hint at some of the forthcoming extroversions of soul-jazz without quite leaving hard-bop routine behind. The leader's solo spots on 'Friendly Persuasion' and 'Lady Day' are exquisite, but it's hard to be excited about a player whose moment passed before anyone registered he was there.

Only the final album in the group, the most recent to make the transfer to CD, prompts any substantial reassessment. Abandoning the larger-scale arrangements he got from Oliver Nelson, Lem concentrates on a small-group blowing session and generates a joyous mood on 'Skylark' and 'But Beautiful'. Wyands is as immaculate as ever, punching out solid, blocky chords round the vibes, while Duvivier and Haynes keep the boilers stoked, Winchester's death was a loss to the music and to the truncated history of jazz vibes, but even now he sounds like a minor talent.

Kai Winding (1922–83)

TROMBONE, TROMBONIUM

Born in Denmark and moved to America in his early teens. He was around to see the birth of bebop and helped to devise a fast, clear-toned delivery for the trombone, a development which also had an impact on how big-band sections could sound. His long partnership with J. J. Johnson is definitive.

 Kai And Jay And Bennie Green With Strings Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1727 Winding; Bennie Green, J. J. Johnson (tb); Dick Katz, John Malachi (p); Peck Morrison, Tommy Potter (b); Al Harewood, Osie Johnson (d); strings. 8/52, 12/54.

(*) Nuf Said Rhino 75995 Winding; J. J. Johnson (tb); Dick Katz (p); Tommy Potter (b); Al Harewood (d). 55.

 Trombone Panorama /  Jive At Five /  Cleveland June 1957 Lone Hill Jazz LHJR CD 10315 / Status DSTS 1012 / Storyville 8263 Winding; Carl Fontana, Wayne Andre (tb, trombonium); Dick Lieb (btb, trombonium); Roy Frazee (p); Kenny O'Brien (b); Tom Montgomery (d). 12/56; 6/57; 6/57..

The success of Jay and Kai was, in the end, not altogether equitably shared. Where the ultimately dominant J.J. brought a saxophone-like articulation to the instrument, it was Winding who showed how it could follow the woodwind-players' fast vibrato and percussive attack and still retain its distinctive character. While with the Kenton band, Winding worked out ways of producing a very tight vibrato with the lip rather than using the slide, and this had a marked impact on a younger generation of players. A lot of the surviving Winding material is on discs also featuring J.J., Bennie Green and others, and more can be found under J.J.'s entry. Early on, though, the balance of innovation seemed to fall to the Dane. The sessions from 1952 and 1954 are important not so much for the lush and overcooked tracks with strings as for the later pairing of Jay and Kai in a quintet format. These cuts established a formula which was to become uniquely successful, though it may have hampered both men subsequently. Winding's compositions, 'Wind Bag' and 'Don't Argue', suggest that he was also a deft composer with a quirky approach to harmony and a fuller understanding than most of his employers and colleagues of the value of his rapid-fire attack and clean-edged delivery.

Nuf Said is a valuable reissue, capturing the partnership at its most confident, but in this format also showing how much hard work went on in the studio to perfect the elegantly choreographed sound. There are seven alternative takes, including versions of 'Lover' and 'It's All Right With Me' which seriously rival the release numbers. The quintet had a settled sound by this point, but there is no mistaking that the main action lies with the two front-men, and even the agile Katz is given little of moment to do except comp and fill.

The December 1956 (originally Columbia) and 1957 records are under Winding's sole leadership. His stint with Kenton had convinced him that massed trombones made the noise closest to the angels and he persisted with the choral approach. Here it works very well indeed; though some will be put off by what might be thought to be Kentonisms, they should be assured that the idiom and the arrangements are Winding's own. The key tracks on Jive At Five are an original blues and a thoroughly wonderful version of 'In A Sentimental Mood' in which the voicings could hardly be bettered. The Cleveland set is a club recording and there is a degree of background distraction, but the performances are good and, though this overlaps somewhat with the other set, it is nicely mastered and fans of Kai's approach will enjoy the experience. There remains through it all something a little cold about Winding's work. Certainly, compared to J.J., he couldn't give a ballad more than a gruff expressiveness, but that was not his forte.

 Bone Appetit: The Definitive Black & Blue Sessions Black & Blue BB 955 2 Winding; Curtis Fuller (tb); Hank Jones (p); John Clayton (b); Jimmy Cobb (d). 7/80.

This catches Winding three years from his death and in league with one of the leading trombonists of a somewhat younger generation. Fuller's association with John Coltrane on Blue Train has rather distorted perceptions of his stylistic debts. Here, he sounds perfectly consistent with Kai's drily swinging approach and well up to speed with the older man's ultra-fast delivery on tunes like 'Niçoise' of which two takes are included.

The disc restores all of the material recorded at Black & Blue's outdoor studio in Paris. The sound is clear and natural and the trombones are very well captured. Fuller's original title-tune is instantly appealing and beautifully played. 'La Valse Bonita' is equally delicious, with some wonderfully detailed interplay between the horns. Jones is a master in settings like this and his comping is subtle and gracious from start to finish.

Also, in brief:

 Trombone For Two / Trombone Sound Collectables COL 6674. 55, 56.

Two nice mid-'50s records, long out of print. J.J. is, of course, the other half of the 'two'.

 Complete Ohio Sessions Lone Hill Jazz LHJCD 19402. 57.

With Carl Fontana's Cleveland Express, featuring Wayne Andre again.

Gary Windo (1941–92)

ALTO AND TENOR SAXOPHONES

A legendary figure in modern jazz, with a powerful voice and ebullient personality. An asthma attack brought about a fatal heart seizure.

 Anglo American – Unreleased And Rare, 71–81 Cuneiform RUNE 189 Windo; Mongezi Feza (t); Dudu Pukwana (as); Pam Windo (p); Dave McRae (ky); Ron Mathewson, Steve Swallow (b); Louis Moholo, Robert Wyatt (d); Soft Machine; and others. 71–81.

Before Andy Sheppard became her favourite British reedman, Carla Bley regularly used the big-voiced Windo, who had an extraordinary if slightly faltering career working between jazz and progressive rock. Painfully little of his own work survives in catalogue, though once again devoted Anglophiles Cuneiform have come to the rescue. His Master's Bones was an earlier compilation of mostly unreleased material. This is much in the same vein, though the label has managed to find interesting unheard material, including some fine tracks with members of Brotherhood Of Breath and some further material with Robert Wyatt. At full stretch, Windo made a formidable sound, but there's a lack of shape or logic to a collection like this, which now serves as a sad reminder of another lost giant.

Norma Winstone (born 1941)

VOICE

Studied in London and became associated with the new British jazz of the '60s, singing in a variety of mainstream-to-modern situations. Her coming out was at Ronnie Scott's, opening for Roland Kirk. Formed Azimuth with former husband John Taylor and Kenny Wheeler in the '70s.

* Edge Of Time Disconforme 148 Winstone; Henry Lowther, Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); Malcolm Griffiths, Chris Pyne, Paul Rutherford (tb); Mike Osborne (as, cl); Alan Skidmore (ts); Art Themen (bs); John Taylor (p); Gary Boyle (g); Chris Laurence (b); Tony Levin (d). 71.

One of the things that makes Winstone so exceptional as a singer is her equal confidence with pure abstraction (as in much of her work with Azimuth) and the most straightforward vocal line. Like Karin Krog in Norway, she is a fine musician in her own right, a sensitive lyricist as well as an imaginative standards singer.

Originally issued on Argo, Winstone's debut as leader is still a breathtaking experience. Much of the drama on Edge Of Time comes from her crystalline voice swooping in and out of the horns. The title-track begins slow and abstractly, almost as if caught out of time itself and then the rubato begins to organize itself until the song runs along a big-band line that would satisfy Duke Ellington. The big piece of the album is the joyous and forthright 'Enjoy This Day', where subtle dissonance brings a hint of anxiety, almost foreboding, to an otherwise upbeat tune; Kenny Wheeler's solo is superb and one can clearly hear the dynamic Winstone established with the trumpeter and with pianist Taylor, later to be her husband; his harmonic awareness comes across in every bar. In contrast to 'Enjoy This Day', 'Erebus, Son Of Chaos' ought to be dark and brooding, but comes across as rather jolly. The only weak point is the brief 'Songs For A Child', though this pure-voice balladry has influenced some surprising artists since 1971.

(*) Live At Roccella Jonica Splasc(h) 508 Winstone; Paolo Fresu, Kenny Wheeler (t, flhn); John Taylor (p); Paolo Damiani (b); Tony Oxley (d). 84.

Little-known, but definitely worth searching out, this powerful group offered Winstone a perfect setting: harmonically sophisticated, rhythmically strong and, given the two-trumpet front line, lots of melodic drama as well. The main piece is an astonishing 23-minute improvisation, 'Rumori Mediterranei', which sees the group working with almost telepathic understanding. Taylor and Oxley are like good and wicked angels, the one cajoling gently, the other tempting, caressing his kit and then jangling it dangerously. Damiani, one of the key figures in Italian jazz, isn't especially well-recorded but he's audibly at the heart of things. Fresu and Wheeler play a similar role: Fresu rawer but also more sentimental, Wheeler outwardly soft but with an iron core – his 'The Widow In The Window', segued with 'Mark Time', is the highlight of the first half of a marvellous concert recording.

(*) Somewhere Called Home ECM 1337 Winstone; Tony Coe (cl, ts); John Taylor (p). 7/86.

(*) Well Kept Secret Hot House HHCD 1015 Winstone; Stacey Rowles (flhn); Jimmy Rowles (p); George Mraz (b); Joe LaBarbera (d). 10/93.

 ... Like Song, Like Weather Enodoc ENOCD 002 Winstone; John Taylor (p). 3/96.

 Manhattan In The Rain Enodoc ENOCD 001 Winstone; Tony Coe (ts, cl); Steve Gray (p, syn); Chris Laurence (b). 3/97.

Somewhere Called Home is a more than acceptable sample of Winstone's atmospheric approach. It takes a certain amount of brass neck to include 'Hi Lili Hi Lo' and 'Tea For Two' on a set like this. Coe and Taylor are able and sensitive partners, but one wonders whether it wouldn't have come off better with just Taylor's thoughtful accompaniments.

The title of Well Kept Secret just about says it all. This finds Winstone where she should be (no disrespect to Taylor et al.), working with an international musician of Rowles's quality. 'A Timeless Place' is gorgeous, with its Winstone lyric to the celebrated 'Peacocks' melody, and 'A Flower Is A Lovesome Thing' is fragile and delicate without giving any sense that it will be easy to pull apart.

The security of the secret is underlined by the fact that little has been added to Winstone's catalogue. Manhattan In The Rain and ... Like Song, Like Weather stray perilously close to the Radio 2 strain. These seem to have been released out of chronological sequence. The duo album has a quiet grace but little dramatic tension. 'I Loves You Porgy' is perhaps too polite a reading to be quite convincing, and both Winstone and her playing partner sound easier when the material is slightly quirkier, as on 'Carla's Blues' (aka Carla Bley's 'Sing Me Softly Of The Blues') and 'Tango Beyond', the latter co-written with Tony Coe. Manhattan is another set of light-textured standards opening on a high with Lerner and Loewe's 'The Heather On The Hill', but rarely reaching such heights again. The album seems to be dedicated to the memory of Tom Jobim and Elis Regina; but there's little in a groove that would suggest they are a major influence, and Winstone's reading of 'Retrato Em Branco E Petro' is very much in her own voice, and not a version of someone else's. Coe is underused (his clarinet-line on 'The Heather' is breathtaking) and the absence of a percussionist softens the edges almost too much.

 It's Later Than You Think Provocateur PVC 1037 Winstone; NDR Big Band. 9/04.

Given the weight and hand-speed of the German orchestra, the opening 'Smoke Gets In Your Eyes' is surprisingly slow. It's saved from being ponderous, though, by those same qualities and by Winstone's impeccable phrasing. The choice of track, which is reprised at the end, may have been a strategem to soften up the jazz heads because unusually (for her; it's become pretty common practice generally) she includes some quality pop stuff on this set. The opening track gives place to Joni Mitchell's Green-tinged 'Big Yellow Taxi', built over a strong riff and enlightened by some more fine, though brief solos from NDR BB members. Elvis Costello's '15 Petals' comes next, a less obvious choice but feelingly done. Best of all, though, is Leonard Cohen's 'Sisters Of Mercy', beautifully arranged and sung with an utterly arresting opening and coda. Later on, and after a Randy Newman cover of all things, 'Harlem Nocturne' brings the record back to more-familiar territory. Why the modest rating? Because it seems like the template for a better record, or perhaps for a concert. Solo space is kept to a minimum, and while Winstone's singing and the tight-as-a-nut section-work is impressive, there isn't quite enough light and space to make this one a keeper.

 Amoroso ... Only More So Trio Records TR 576 Winstone; Bobby Wellins (ts); Stan Tracey (p); Andrew Cleyndert (b); Clark Tracey (d). 05.

Winstone and Wellins: two of the most distinctive voices in British jazz. Put them alongside Stan Tracey and you have a combination that is almost guaranteed to succeed. It does that, but on this showing lacks the extra spark that would have made a good record a great record. Norma's voice has lost none of its lustre and Bobby is playing as well as ever, but the group chemistry isn't quite there.

* Distances ECM 2028 Winstone; Klaus Gesing (ss, bcl); Glauco Venier (p). 4/07.

This is, of course, a favourite format, reminiscent of Azimuth but even less linear. Winstone hadn't recorded for ECM for some time when the opportunity to record this group arose. The music is enormously varied with Cole Porter and Peter Gabriel both represented, Satie and Pier Paolo Pasolini both sources of inspiration. Winstone's voice has acquired not the roughened inexactness of pitch that normally passes for 'maturity' but a physicality and immediacy of diction that seems to balance out the supposedly 'ethereal' quality of her earlier work. It's now revealed for what it was, a wonderfully earthy and limber instrument that offers an enormous expressive range without sounding trained. Gesing and Venier – unlike Wheeler and Taylor in Azimuth – are essentially accompanists, and very responsive ones, but this is emphatically a singer-plus-instruments rather than a collaborative group. Ironically, given how bold the programme is, 'Ev'ry Time We Say Goodbye' is the outstanding cut.

Jens Winther (born 1960)

TRUMPET, FLUGELHORN

Danish trumpeter with wide international experience.

(*) Looking Through Storyville STCD 4127 Winther; Tomas Franck (ts); Thomas Clausen (p); Jesper Lundgaard (b); Alex Riel (d). 4/88.

(*) Scorpio Dance Storyville STCD 4179 Winther; Tomas Franck (ts); Ben Besiakov (p); Lennart Ginman (b); Al Foster (d). 3/91.

 The Four Elements Stunt STUCD 19802 Winther; Michael Mølhede, Andreas Pesendorfer, Duncan Mackay, Kornel Kovacs, Rich Nichols, Justin Mullens, Mick Ball (t); Peter Dahlgren, Nichol Thomson, Werner Wurm, Aurelio Santoro (tb); Mattias Jacobson (btb); David Liebman (ss); James Knight, Hagai Amir (as); Felix Petry, Bruno Brochet (ts); Idrikis Veitners (bs); Pessi Levanto (p); Tadao Tsujikawa (syn); Jacco Griekspoor (vib); Carballo Serafin (g); Jacon Jensen (b); Eric Garland (d); Agnes Heginger, Eri Matsubara, Carolina Saboia, Waltraud Kottler, Dorothy Murphy (v). 7/96.

Winther has the confidence to play either tight, modern, hard bop or a more free-thinking, if fundamentally conservative, kind of improvisation. He can sustain long solos, but his ballad statements or flugelhorn lead on the likes of 'Ubataba', on the first record, are just as revealing. The earlier session is solid Danish jazz, but it could have lost a couple of tracks and been the better for it: Lundgaard and Riel don't sound terribly interested for once, and Clausen's frequent use of a Fender Rhodes electric piano lends a somewhat dated feel to the sound. Scorpio Dance is sharper all round. The sound is crisper, if a little dry, and Foster's presence (at Winther's own invitation) is inspirational, with the drummer on tirelessly inventive form. The two long tracks, 'Scorpio Dance' and 'Tree Of Life', bring out terrific solos from Winther, and there is a probing trumpet/drums duet on 'Intimy'. Ginman is lost in the mix, but otherwise the group sound very alert, and Besiakov sensibly takes much more of a back seat than Clausen did on the earlier record.

The big-band record for Stunt is hugely ambitious. It features members of the International Association Of Schools Of Jazz Orchestra, founded by Dave Liebman, which rehearsed Winther's four-part work while working on a cruise ship; it delivered this performance for the 1996 Copenhagen Festival. Winther is principal soloist, Liebman chips in with a terrific solo on 'Fire', and the music is a polymorphous assemblage of styles – Gil Evans veils of sound, Palle Mikkelborg funk, various odds and ends from the big-band tradition. The enthusiasm of the players seems boundless, and if it may not stand up to minute examination it's surely an entertaining show.

(*) Standards Stunt STUCD 00062 Winther; Lennart Ginman (b); Søren Christensen (d). 11/99.

 Walk The Walk Talk The Talk Stunt STUCD 01172 Winther; Claus Waidtløw (saxes); Anders Lindvall (g); Kasper Vadsholt (b); Jeppe Grame (d). 6/01.

Recorded at the Copenhagen Jazzhouse, with a reserved crowd in attendance, Standards is very routine. Winther brings little that's new to material which is all too familiar, and he's dangerously exposed in this setting. Ginman and Christensen sound in great heart, though.

The next one is all muscle, sweat and shouting. The rhythm section play like they're ready for the Mahavishnu revival, Lindvall is all rock over jazz, and the horns keep getting cut up on the curves. There are two enormously long pieces, 'Clear Lydian Sky' and 'The Afghan Road', which kindle the intermittent fire of old-fashioned fusion. It's a rather curious move for the trumpeter, especially since he makes only a modest impression on his surroundings, but some of the music has a heated, sometimes exhausted sense of exhilaration about it.

 Concord Stunt STUCD 510 Winther; Tomas Franck (ts); Antonio Faraò (p); Palle Danielsson (b); Dejan Terzic (d). 7/05.

The best recording from Winther for some time. This is the European Quintet, which delivers unabashed hard bop with a certain contemporary twist. Franck sounds in good shape, blending elements of John Coltrane into other, less definable styles. The opening 'Concord' is one of Winther's grandest themes, but it does little more than set up the group for another half-dozen originals, including the lovely 'August' and the suspiciously titled 'Supreme Love', which finally clinches the Trane obsession. 'Ubataba' is also reprised from the very first disc. 'Peculiar Walk', right at the end, is a fizzy little sorbet.

Nils Wogram (born 1975)

TROMBONE

German trombonist who studied for three years in New York, 1992–4, now making records in various Euro-American situations.

 Speed Life Enja 9346-2 Wogram; Simon Nabatov (p); Nicolas Thys (b); Jochen Rückert (d). 12/97.

Wogram's music is like he sounds: big, brassy, confident. The group follow as keenly as they can. He isn't afraid of free, open space: 'Newsed' makes the most of a seemingly themeless environment, and the four-way contrapuntalism of 'Annoying Neighbour' is a complex idea delivered with punch and panache. His phrasing has a vocalist's touch, full of human colour, shouting interpolations, grunts and occasional snarls, but always pushing quickly onwards to the next idea: he doesn't hang around. Nabatov, who likes a challenge, is a more than suitable partner and they have a rapport which is sometimes striking, sometimes a bit mysterious. The tunes here are rather oblique, though: Wogram's originals are clever, but perhaps not quite as personalized as they should be, and the record runs out of light here and there.

* Odd And Awkward Enja 9416-2 2CD Wogram; Cuong Vu (t); Hayden Chisholm (as, cl); Chris Speed (ts, cl); Steffen Schorn (bs, bcl, cbcl, af); Simon Nabatov (p); Henning Sieverts (b); Jochen Rückert (d). 6/00.

A feast of group music, split between one disc for sextet and another for the full octet. The initial surprise is that the two 'missing' instruments are piano and bass, which leaves five horns and drums to negotiate the eventful twists and turns of the first half. Wogram continually varies the pace and weight of each piece, breaking it into solos, duets, duets plus charts, with and without drums, and the full group roaring through a thicket as dense as 'Children's Hunt' or 'Tea Time Part II' as if they were clearing it with machetes. He has a team of superbly expressive players to make it all happen and comes up with ingenious pairings: listen to Vu's snickering volleys mixed with Schorn's contrabass clarinet on 'Spring Part I'.

The second disc sounds more conventionally orchestrated and loses a degree of rasp and snap. But it's hardly any less inventive. Sometimes Wogram sounds like he's unspooling an endless melody line, often over shifting harmonic banks that have a big band's richness of tonal colour. Kudos to Rückert for keeping the whole thing swinging and the momentum flowing – a less proactive drummer might have turned a lot of the music into an over-coloured sludge. But this is a marvellous entry all round, and certainly Wogram's magnum opus so far.

* Root 70 2nd Floor 008 Wogram; Hayden Chisholm (as, bcl); Matt Penman (b); Jochen Rückert (d). 11/00.

Paring back to a quartet, Wogram continues in top form. This band is all wheeling, whizzing agility. The leader's own playing is so fast and accurate, in terms of getting notes out of the horn and getting them to hit the target, that it leaves the listener breathless. Yet he doesn't skimp on the expressive edge which gave the earlier records their pungency. Chisholm is comparably quick, a tad less vocalized, but his beautifully clear sound moves through the demanding tunes like quicksilver. Penman and the faithful Rückert spin appositely elegant rhythms around the horns, and it's often as if there are two separate teams, dancing balletically in their own right yet interacting with precise synchronicity. Oliver Bergner (working in Cologne) gives them a beautiful sound. The tunes – six by Wogram, with two pieces from Chisholm bookending either side of the record – are bright, funny and ripe with long, long melodies. Terrific!

() Daddy's Bones / () Affinity Intuition INT 3379-2 Wogram; Florian Ross (org); Dejan Terzic (d). N.D.; 1/07.

He calls this group Nostalgia, which may be why he allows in a Billy Strayhorn tune ('A Flower Is A Lovesome Thing', sweetly done), but otherwise the unusual instrumentation tackles post-bop with a lick of organ combo funk and goes at it with Wogram's expected virtuosity. In concert they are probably a lot hotter – some of the tunes feel a little too tight when they should be loose – but he's still a musician to follow. The following record's just as good, but they feel like two slices from the same pie, and it might have been better to deliver just one exceptional disc from this.

Also, in brief:

(*) Serious Fun /  Serious Fun + One CIMP 212 / 221. 9/99.
Wogram steps over into free playing and with one of the great trombone masters of the idiom, Conrad Bauer, to boot. Dominic Duval (b) comes in on the second disc. It's music that stands unexpectedly tall.

Anthony Wonsey (born 1972)

PIANO

A shrewd and adaptable group player who's assembled an impressive body of work as leader.

 Anthonyology /  Another Perspective Evidence/Alfa Jazz ECD 22151/ 221288 Wonsey; Christian McBride (b); Carl Allen (d). 95; 96.

(*) Open The Gates Criss Cross 1162 Wonsey; Nicholas Payton (t); Ron Blake (ts); Gerald Cannon, John Webber (b); Willie Jones, Nasheet Waits (d). 5–12/98.

Wonsey majored in film scoring at Berklee. There is an atmospheric quality to his own writing, notably the wonky chords of 'Faces Of A Clown' and 'Black Fairy Tales' on the debut and the excellent 'Wise Man Willis' on the second. However, Wonsey isn't simply a pictorialist. He writes and plays idiomatically, drawing on whole tracks of jazz piano from Bud Powell to Bill Evans.

The third album is a consolidation rather than a significant step forward. Wonsey's writing is as bright and forthright as ever, but there's some repetition in the harmonic ideas, which seem to rely on certain major/minor idiosyncrasies. The only repertory piece is Duke Pearson's 'Big Bertha'. Blake and Payton are convincing in their parts, and though the rhythm section doesn't have the clout of the earlier groups, they do their work just fine.

 Blues For Hiroshi Sharp Nine 1030 Wonsey; Richie Goods (b); Tony Reedus (d). 2/04.

(*) The Thang Sharp Nine 1035 Wonsey; Eric Alexander (ts); Nat Reeves (b); Joe Farnsworth (d). 6/05.

A more relaxed and philosphical approach from Wonsey. He can still swing out a tune, but he seems more comfortable with things like 'The Peacocks' on Blues For Hiroshi, while his take on 'Waltz For Debby' suggests that Evans has overtaken Powell as role model. The Thang has a bit more attitude. Roving saxman Alexander brings a tough edge to 'Speak Low', but there's more bite in the piano-playing as well.

Jimmy Woods (born 1934)

ALTO SAXOPHONE

Made a promising beginning and then seemed to drift away.

 Awakening Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1859 Woods; Joe Gordon, Martin Banks (t); Amos Trice, Dick Whittington (p); Jimmy Bond, Gary Peacock (b); Milt Turner (d). 9/61, 2/62.

(*) Conflict Contemporary CCD 60793 Woods; Carmell Jones (t); Harold Land (ts); Andrew Hill (p); George Tucker (b); Elvin Jones (d). 3/63.

It's not clear whether Woods said all he had to say and then went off to other things or whether these Contemporary albums were just too far ahead of current tastes. Certainly, Woods is in a more advanced bag than any of his bands on these dates. He has an impassioned, keening sound that seems to go off in a different harmonic direction to Eric Dolphy's, with fewer whole-tone steps and more chromatic business. As will be seen, Woods got some excellent people to work with him. Elvin Jones seems to thrive on his simple-plus-difficult metres, typically a march with something else moving underneath it, and the horns on the sextet album have something subtle to work with.

Phil Woods (born 1931)

ALTO AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES, CLARINET, BASS CLARINET, VOICE

Toured with big bands before much small-group work in the '50s, forming a two-alto band with Gene Quill in 1957. Then more big-band work and many, many studio sessions in the '60s. Formed the European Rhythm Machine quartet while living in Paris. Returned to the USA in the early '70s and has since run his own quintet for many years, touring and recording regularly. A master of unadorned bebop alto, and his unstinting allegiance to the Parker method has been deepened by persistence and a bottomless appetite for playing.

(*) Pot Pie Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1881 Woods; Jon Eardley (t); George Syran (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 10/54–2/55.

 Woodlore Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 052 Woods; John Williams (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 11/55.

 Pairing Off Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 092 Woods; Donald Byrd, Kenny Dorham (t); Gene Quill (as); Tommy Flanagan (p); Doug Watkins (b); Philly Joe Jones (d). 6/56.

(*) The Young Bloods Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1732 Woods; Donald Byrd (t); Al Haig (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Charli Persip (d). 11/56.

(*) Four Altos Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1734 Woods; Gene Quill, Sahib Shihab, Hal Stein (as); Mal Waldron (p); Tommy Potter (b); Louis Hayes (d). 2/57.

(*) Phil & Quill Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 215 Woods; Gene Quill (as); George Syran (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 3/57.

(*) Altology: Complete Quintet & Sextet Sessions 1956–1957 Fresh Sound FSRCD 463 As above, except add Sol Schlinger (bs); Bob Corwin, Dave McKenna (p); Sonny Dallas, Buddy Jones (b); Shadow Wilson (d). 3/56, 3 & 9/57.

 Sugan Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1841 Woods; Ray Copeland (t); Red Garland (p); Teddy Kotick (b); Nick Stabulas (d). 7/57.

 Warm Woods Lone Hill Jazz LHJ 10209 Woods; Eddie Bert (tb); John Williams, Nat Pierce, Bob Corwin (p); Eddie Costa (vib); Sal Salvador (g); Sonny Dallas, John Drew (b); Nick Stabulas, Jimmy Campbell, Gus Johnson (d). 1–11/57.

Phil Woods has never seemed like a beginner. He sprang into his recording career. Tone, speed of execution and ideas were all first-hand borrowings from bebop and, inevitably, Parker; but he sounded like a mature player from the first, and he has often suffered from a degree of neglect, both as a young musician and as a senior one. A series of Prestige dates from the '50s have never exactly been collectors' pieces, but they deserve a fresh appraisal in their OJC incarnations. Pot Pie was his first disc as a leader, and it wears very well. Eardley contributes three angular originals and his clean, clear sound is a pleasing foil for the altoman, who actually sounds rather less in debt to Bird than he sometimes did later. The solos on the title-track and 'Mad About The Boy' have an inquiring bent that belies Woods's rep as an inflexible speedster. Woodlore too is a relatively quiet business, and it's the prettiness of his sound that impresses on 'Be My Love' and 'Falling In Love All Over Again'; but 'Get Happy' is a burner. The rhythm section, with Williams sometimes barely in touch, is less impressive.

Pairing Off and Four Altos milk the jam session format which was beloved by Prestige at the time, and both dates come off better than most. Pairing Off features a couple of crackerjack blues in the title-tune and 'Stanley The Steamer', and only Byrd's relative greenness lets the side down; Philly Joe is superbly inventive at the kit. Four Altos is an idea that ought to pall quickly, but the enthusiasm of Woods and Quill in particular elevates the makeshift charts into something worthwhile. They made a very fine team: Phil & Quill doesn't have an ounce of spare fat in the solos, and the spanking delivery on, say, 'A Night At St Nick's' is as compelling as anything Prestige were recording at the period. Quill's duskier tone and more extreme intensities are barely a beat behind Woods's in terms of quality of thought (they also have two tracks on the subsequent compilation, Bird Feathers, OJC 1735 CD). The Young Bloods, although interesting for a rare '50s appearance by Al Haig, is beset by the familiar problem of Byrd's lack of authority, and sparks never fly between the horns the way Woods would probably have wished. Sugan is an attractive meeting with Red Garland and it has some gripping moments, although the reliance on bebop staples and occasionally rote delivery suggest that the date could have used more preparation.

The Lone Hill Jazz reissue pulls together the 1957 Epic album of that name with seven tracks from different albums which weren't even released under Woods's name. The core record is mainly ballad-orientated but his line 'Squire's Parlor' elicits a stinging uptempo solo. The other pieces, by six- and seven-piece line-ups, are ordinary. The 2007 Fresh Sound double brings together Phil & Quill with Phil Talks To Quill and Phil And Quill With Prestige, which pretty much rounds up everything anyone could want of this material.

 At The Montreux Jazz Festival Verve 065512-2 Woods; George Gruntz (p); Henri Texier (b); Daniel Humair (d). 6/69.

This was a hit group at European festivals at the time, and they played a typically boisterous set here. The long pieces sometimes get bogged down in note-spinning, but it's passionately done in its way. The live sound is OK.

[illegible]

* Phil Woods/Lew Tabackin
Evidence ECD 22209-2 Woods; Lew Tabackin (ts); Jimmy Rowles (p); Michael Moore (b); Bill Goodwin (d). 12/80.

Available briefly as a Japanese vinyl release, this is a great favourite of ours and we are delighted to see it on CD. There can be few more rambunctious jazz records made at that time: in what is a good-natured cutting contest between two masters of bebop saxophone, they have at it for a glorious 58 minutes (there's an alternative take of 'Theme Of No Repeat'). One could argue that everything that has to be said is said in the first eight minutes, a 'Limehouse Blues' that takes the roof off – but, for the sheer ebullience of blowing on the changes, there are few better records than this. The terrific rhythm section is, in the circumstances, a delightful bonus.

* Integrity Red RR 123177-2 2CD Woods; Tom Harrell (t, flhn); Hal Galper (p); Steve Gilmore (b); Bill Goodwin (d). 4/84.

This became a firm line-up, and any who heard the group in concert will surely want this live record. Harrell had worked for some years as a freelance in search of a context, and with Woods he secured a precise focus: the material here is a connoisseur's choice of jazz themes – including Neal Hefti's 'Repetition', Ellington's 'Azure', Wayne Shorter's 'Infant Eyes' and Sam Rivers's '222' – mediated through a very clear-headed approach to modern bop playing. Harrell's lucid tone and nimble, carefully sifted lines are as piquant a contrast with Woods as one could wish, without creating any clashes of temperament. Galper's pensiveness is occasionally a fraction too laid-back, but he moves as one with bass and drums. Woods himself assumes a role both paternal and sporting, stating themes and directions with unswerving authority but still taking risky routes to resolving an idea: his solo on Charlie Mariano's 'Blue Walls', for instance, is rhythmically as daring as any of his early work. Good in-concert recording.

(*) Heaven Evidence ECD 22148-2 As above. 12/84.

This was one of the great touring and recording bands of the '80s, Harrell and Woods inspiring each other and the rhythm section inquiring and swinging. Woods didn't need to change anything about his own style, but it blossoms anew in counterpoint with Harrell's lyrical fire, and each album is handsomely programmed and delivered. However, with Concord deleting all their Woods holdings, there's not much around now. Heaven suffers just slightly from a clattery sound, but the material – two Ellington tunes, Brubeck's 'The Duke', another skintight treatment of Sam Rivers's '222' and a completely unorthodox 'I'm Getting Sentimental Over You' – overcomes.

 Plays The Music Of Jim McNeely TCB 95402 Woods; Brian Lynch (t); Jim McNeely (p); Steve Gilmore (b); Bill Goodwin (d). 2/95.

 Mile High Jazz Live In Denver Concord CCD-4739 As above, except omit McNeely; add Bill Charlap (p). 4/96.

Less frequently recorded in the '90s, the Woods quintet has been through some changes – McNeely has come and gone and Lynch has replaced Crook – while following a course faithful to the leader's stance. These are more good – if not quite outstanding – sessions of modern hard bop. McNeely had already left when the TCB album was made, but he returned to cut seven of his own tunes with the group. Fine material, and the performances are strong, if not quite as multifarious as the themes deserve. Concord's Mile High Jazz is a vigorous show, Lynch in good fettle and the leader showing that he's lost none of his chops. Perhaps the main interest is in hearing how inventive Gilmore and Goodwin are, more than 20 years after they started working with Woods. If the horns have the limelight, they're pushed and fed by a consistently imaginative rhythm that deserves more acclaim than it's received.

(*) The Rev And I Blue Note 494100-2 Woods; Johnny Griffin (ts); Cedar Walton (p); Peter Washington (b); Ben Riley (d); Bill Goodwin (perc). 1/98.

Woods loves two-sax encounters, and this session (he and Griffin, like so many other big-bandsmen who've played together, call each other 'Section') brims over with bonhomie and swagger. The old Hampton favourite 'Red Top' is pure catnip. Griffin is no longer the terror he once was, but Woods still sounds like he could take on any comers. Producer Bill Goodwin has taken the trouble to make sure that there's enough pre-match preparation to take it above blowing-session status, and it all benefits from that finesse. And each saxophonist gets a gorgeous ballad feature.

(*) Play Henry Mancini Jazzed Media JM 1002 Woods; Carl Saunders (t, flhn); Jeff Jenkins (p); Ken Walker (b); Paul Romaine (d). 8/03.

He may be troubled by emphysema these days, but the old warrior can't half play still: he actually sounds stronger here than he does on the Italian sessions. They took the trouble to create quintet arrangements for every tune in this set of Mancini covers, and with Saunders playing some glittering solos to match the altoman, it's a throughly enjoyable set in Phil's classic idiom.

 Groovin' To Marty Paich /  Unheard Herd Jazzed Media JM 1005 / 1013 Woods; Los Angeles Jazz Orchestra. 5/04.

These were both taken from a festival appearance organized by Ken Poston. The first record concentrates largely on material associated with Art Pepper, but arranged for the occasion by pianist Christian Jacob. The ensembles are clear and sunny, though Jacob introduces some fresh elements on 'Walkin' Shoes' and 'Donna Lee'. You'd never think it was Pepper playing, anyway. Phil switches to clarinet for 'Anthropology', which is both funny and very effective. Humour's very much part of the deal here, though Jacob sounds a bit po-faced. The best bit of Unheard Herd is Phil's very funny monologue, remembering the old days. That's not in any way to decry the music, which is great, too, a trawl through some of the Woody Herman band book that never made it onto record. The orchestra's too distinguished to be lumped together like this, but Phil's the real star, romping through 'Keen And Peachy', 'The Great Lie', 'Man, Don't Be Ridiculous' and 'Boomisie (plus a likeable 'Yardbird Suite') like there was nowhere else in the world he'd rather be. The sound's terrific and Woody's ghost must be listening, wishing he could have had engineering like that. Great fun.

 Swingchronicity Jazzed Media JM 1029 Woods; DePaul University Jazz Ensemble. 5/06.

Woods plays for the first half of this set, but make no mistake: this is a formidable big band and Bob Lark's directorship should be a source of pride. The charts are beefy but not unsubtle and 'Stockholm Sweetnin'' is one of the best arrangements of the theme we've heard. There are some soloists in the ensemble and again it seems unmannerly not to list them all, but space is squeezed. A nice sound from the Jazz Showcase in Chicago. Definitely a group to catch live, with or without guest stars, but this is a nice souvenir.

Also, in brief:

 Round Trip Verve 559804-2. 7/69.

Some questionable originals ('Love Song For Dead Che', anyone?) but Woods torches the material and his tumultuous solo on 'Here's That Rainy Day' is a keeper.

 Quartet Volume One: A Live Recording Clean Cuts CCD 702. 5/79.

An on-the-hoof recording from Austin, Texas: relaxed and almost pensive.

 Full House Milestone MCD 9196. 2/91.

Cut live at Hollywood's Catalina, this shows no sign of energy flagging.

() Encontro (On Jobim) /  Voce E Eu / () Dameronia /  The Solo Album / () Balladeer Supreme /  Woods Plays D'Andrea / () Woods Plays Woods Philology 301–7. 5/00.

The label was named in honour of Woods, and Paolo Piangiarelli has frequently recorded his hero. Discs drift in and out of circulation. There are earlier and more recent examples, but these were all recorded in May 2000, an example of Piangiarelli's devotion. Follow the stars.

Reggie Workman (born 1937)

DOUBLE BASS

Played R&B as a teenager, then worked in New York hard-bop groups in the '60s before moving towards the freer styles of Archie Shepp and John Coltrane. Heavily involved in education.

 Synthesis Leo CDLR 131 Workman; Oliver Lake (reeds); Marilyn Crispell (p); Andrew Cyrille (d). 6/86.
(*) Altered Spaces Leo CDLR 183 Workman; Don Byron (cl); Marilyn Crispell (p); Jason Hwang (vn); Gerry Hemingway (d); Jeanne Lee (v). 2/92.

As befits his name, Workman has clocked up a formidable number of credits: with Coltrane (Olé, the 1961 European tour, the Africa/Brass sessions) and with Wayne Shorter, Mal Waldron, Art Blakey, Archie Shepp and David Murray. Workman is also a forceful leader who has moved on to explore areas of musical freedom influenced by African idioms and frequently resembling the trance music of the griots. Synthesis is a live performance from The Painted Bride in Philadelphia. Workman bows, triple-stops and produces unreliably pitched sounds (from below the bridge?), leaving it to Crispell to give the performance its undoubted sense of coherence. Of the six tracks on Synthesis, it is her 'Chant' which sounds most like a fully articulated composition. Workman's ideas are developed less completely, though they often lead to more adventurous solo excursions from the individual performers.

Altered Spaces is the most ambitious work the Reggie Workman Ensemble has tackled. The long suite, 'Apart', explores territory very close to Don Byron's chilling Tuskegee Experiments yet seems closer in spirit to the revolutionary stoicism of Brecht's Mother Courage, which Jeanne Lee's vocal explicitly quotes. The bass-and-violin prelude serves as an introduction to Jason Hwang, author of the controversial play M. Butterfly and of the libretto for Philip Glass's 1000 Airplanes On The Roof. A new member of the Ensemble, Hwang brings an oriental calm that takes the music ever further away from 'jazz'. Oddly, on this occasion it is Crispell who sounds locked into a formulaic sound that seems to be pushing for resolutions that the two string-players' long lines and Hemingway's open-ended patters serve to resist.

 Summit Conference Postcards POST1003 Workman; Julian Priester (tb); Sam Rivers (ts, ss); Andrew Hill (p); Pheeroan akLaff (d). 12/93.
(*) Cerebral Caverns Postcards POST1010 Workman; Julian Priester (tb); Sam Rivers (ts, ss, f); Elizabeth Panzer (hp); Geri Allen (p); Gerry Hemingway (d, elec); Al Foster (d); Tapan Modak (tablas). 4/95.

These are cracking records, made by top-flight players. The Summit Conference group has a wish-list quality and delivers from the very start. Rivers and Priester are in boilingly good form; akLaff keeps the pace up. Hill isn't a delicate player and it worried us that he didn't seem to be coming through the mix. Though the bulk of the session is uptempo, often in fractured metres, there's still room for a heart-on-sleeve ballad, Rivers's 'Solace', introduced by trombone, piano and sax before the composer goes up a gear and delivers his most magisterial solo for years. Priester's 'Breath' is pitched in a distant, sharp-ridden key that would have most players twitching; this group brings it in exactly on the button and without a hesitant moment.

Almost inevitably, Cerebral Caverns (isn't that an off-putting title?) doesn't quite match up, but it's hard to mark it down, given the quality of performances. Allen is always better on other people's dates, and here she's called on to do the sort of high-intensity stuff that Marilyn Crispell brought to previous Workman groups. She's featured in two trios with Workman, one with Hemingway (superb), one with harp. 'Fast Forward' reunites the earlier group, without piano, and with the more experienced but no less passionate Foster on drums. The title-piece is the most ambitious in terms of sound, with harp again, flute, and Hemingway's electronic drum-pads contributing to a complex mix of textures.

World Saxophone Quartet

GROUP

No permutation of instruments can be more sheerly tedious and yet more compelling than four saxophones together. The difference lies in the players involved and, for as many years as anyone cares to remember, the World Saxophone Quartet has been the market-leader. Less self-consciously radical and avant-garde than ROVA and yet streets ahead of the average ensemble for sheer enterprise, they have always been riveting live and only slightly less compelling on record.

 Steppin' / * W.S.Q. / (*) Revue /  Live In Zurich Black Saint 120027/ 120046 / 120056 / 120077 Hamiet Bluiett (bs, f, af, acl); Julius Hemphill (f, ss, as); Oliver Lake (ss, ts, as, f); David Murray (ts, bcl). 12/78; 3/80; 10/80; 11/81.
(*) Plays Duke Ellington / * Dances And Ballads / (*) Rhythm And Blues Elektra Musician 979137 / 979164 / 60864 As above. 4/86; 4/87; 11/88.

Market-leaders in the format, the WSQ was founded in 1977. The debut album was not particularly well recorded but it helped establish the group's identity as adventurous composer-improvisers who could offer great swinging ensembles and remarkable duo and trio divisions of the basic instrumentation. The armoury of reeds was pretty modest to begin with, but increasingly after 1978 all four members began to 'double' on more exotic specimens, with Bluiett's alto clarinet and Murray's bass clarinet both lending significant variations of tonality and texture. 'Scared Sheetless' from the first album gives a fair impression of its not altogether serious appropriation of free-jazz devices. 'R&B' on the second album plays with genre in a friendlier and more ironic way.

The best of the earlier records, W.S.Q. is dominated by a long suite that blends jazz and popular elements with considerable ingenuity and real improvisational fire. 'The Key' and 'Ballad For Eddie Jefferson' are perhaps the most interesting elements, but the closing 'Fast Life' is as fine a curtain-piece as the group has recorded. With Revue (a significant pun), the centre of gravity shifts slightly towards rising star Murray and towards what looks like a reassessment of the group's development. Murray's 'Ming' is well-known from his own records but has never been played with such fierce beauty.

The Ellington album marks a gentle, middle-market turn that did the group no harm at all. Opening and closing with 'Take The "A" Train', they check out 'Sophisticated Lady' and 'I Let A Song Go Out Of My Heart', do a wonderful 'Come Sunday', and add a raw lyricism to 'Lush Life' and 'Prelude To A Kiss'. The sound is better than usual, with no congestion round about the middle, as on some of the earlier sets. There's a broader big-band sound to Dances And Ballads, achieved without the addition of outsiders as on Metamorphosis, below, which seems to draw something from the Ellington set. Hemphill contributes only two tracks, but there's a fine version of David Murray's Pres tribute, 'For Lester' (later to appear on his octet, HopeScope), and Oliver Lake's 'West African Snap', 'Belly Up' and 'Adjacent' are among the best of his recorded compositions. The soul staples covered on Rhythm And Blues – including 'Let's Get It On', '(Sittin' On) The Dock Of The Bay' and, unforgettably, 'Try A Little Tenderness', with Murray's tenor going places Otis Redding never heard of – are done with absolute conviction and seriousness. Only Steppin' and the rather rough Live In Zurich are disappointments, though the latter has a fine reading of 'Steppin'' itself.

All four members developed highly individual careers apart, Murray most of all; along with Hemphill, he is the most distinctive and flexible composer. The durability of the group lay in the degree to which personal strengths were encouraged and exploited rather than subordinated. With so many instrumental permutations and the possibility of internal subdivisions, the WSQ's exploratory sound has never settled into a manner.

 Metamorphosis /  Breath Of Life Elektra Nonesuch 979258 / 983124 Oliver Lake (as, ss, f); David Murray (ts, bcl); Hamiet Bluiett (bs); Arthur Blythe (as); Melvin Gibbs (b on Metamorphosis only); Chief Bey, Mar Gueye, Mor Thiam (perc on Metamorphosis only). 4/90.

The departure of Julius Hemphill and arrival of Arthur Blythe couldn't have looked altogether propitious, given (a) Hemphill's importance as a writer for the group, and (b) Blythe's stuttering fortunes in recent years. The title-track on Metamorphosis, though, is given over to the new boy and he fills the outgoing man's shoes with impressive confidence, checking in with a powerful contrapuntal weave that is lifted a notch by the presence of the three African drummers. In the event, they add a great deal more than bassist Gibbs, who clocks on for three tracks only and might as well not have bothered. Murray's 'Ballad For The Black Man' is very much an individual feature and easily the most coherent single track; Lake's 'Love Like Sisters' has tremendous potential but might well sound better tackled by a more conventional horn-plus-inventive-rhythm outfit.

Even giants nod on occasion and the nondescript Breath Of Life has to be accounted an off-day in the WSQ's impressive progress. The playing is immaculate as ever, but there is a strange lack of focus in the writing, a bland equalization of voices, almost as if someone had called a truce on competing visions.

(*) Moving Right Along Black Saint 120127 Oliver Lake, Eric Person (as, ss); James Spaulding (as); David Murray (ts, bcl); Hamiet Bluiett (bs, acl). 10/93.

First indications were that the WSQ were going to be feeling their way around for some time. Moving Right Along sees the first recording of the group with Eric Person, who also contributes a fresh original, 'Antithesis'. He fits in immediately and well, and sounds closer to the group's overall conception than Spaulding. The emphasis this time is on sharp, tight arrangements. 'Giant Steps' is dispatched in less than three minutes and there is a superb two-part arrangement of 'Amazing Grace' by Bluiett, who also contributes 'N.T.', a hard-edged portrait of the Black insurrectionist. Bluiett's 'Astral Travels' are less convincing, but his alto clarinet has become an integral component of the group sound; opening up the lower registers previously led to the more romantically inclined Murray on his second horn.

(*) Four Now Justin Time JUST 83-2 Hamiet Bluiett (bs, contra-acl); Oliver Lake (as); David Murray (ts, bcl); John Purcell (saxello, eng hn, f, af); Chief Bey, Mar Gueye, Mor Thiam (perc, v). 95.

A reunion of the guest line-up that made the 1991 Metamorphosis record, this is the better album because the elements seem to work together rather than in strict parallel. Three of the tracks are written by Mar Gueye and the gifted Mor Thiam, and one feels that the idiom is more suited to the Senegalese percussionists than was the case on the earlier record. There are also fewer avant-garde gestures from the WSQ itself, who last time out – and this is a view marked with 20/20 hindsight – seemed anxious to demonstrate their greater sophistication by playing rugged dissonances and hard-edged melodies that excluded rather than welcomed the Africans. Purcell has established himself as a key member of the group. His composition 'Colors' may have originally been written for other forces but it is beautifully arranged for the Quartet, and it coaxes some lovely playing from everyone concerned.

 Takin' It 2 The Next Level Justin Time JUST 93-2 Oliver Lake (as); John Purcell (ts, saxello); David Murray (ts, bcl); Hamiet Bluiett (bs); Donald Blackman (ky); Calvin Jones (b); Ronnie Burrage (d). 6/96.

Again the empty chair went to John Purcell; in addition, a full-on rhythm section. The results are typically spirited and entirely within the WSQ tradition. 'Rio' blends the quartet's multiple voices with a percolating rhythm to fine effect, and big set-pieces like 'Blues For A Warrior Spirit' and 'The Desegregation Of Our Children' are as formidable as they should be. But it's hard to avoid the feeling that the group is not continuing out of any artistic necessity, and as propulsive as the rhythm players are, their principal contribution is perhaps to rationalize the WSQ into just another band.

* Selim Sivad: A Tribute To Miles Davis Justin Time JUST 119-2 Hamiet Bluiett (bs, contra-acl); Oliver Lake (as, f); David Murray (ts, bcl); John Purcell (saxello, af); Jack DeJohnette (d, p); Okyerema Asante, Chief Bey, Titos Sompa (perc). 98.

The curse of tribute albums is a craven literalism, a wannabe mimicry of voices which were unique or idiosyncratic or plain perverse. True to form, the WSQ's take on Miles Davis's long and epochal career is cast very much in the band's own idiom. From the delicate lyricism of 'Blue In Green' to the abstract attack of 'Selim' from the violent, palindromic Live/Evil, Miles's music is comprehensively rethought rather than merely pastiched. Some tunes are barely recognizable, a shift that suggests creative response rather than ineptitude. 'Freddie Freeloader' becomes a sardonic African dance; 'Nefertiti', always a test-piece, is handed to kalimba and flute while the other horns spar and dodge; even the late 'Tutu' is recast and put back in time as if it were a contrafact on some forgotten theme of the '60s avant-garde. If the purpose of a tribute is to recognize the genius of a forerunner, Selim Sivad underlines the great genius of its dedicatee, but does something more. It takes and inverts Miles's ideas and makes them work in a musical environment far away from any the great man physically inhabited. The presence of DeJohnette is important. He helped shape the basic metres of this most unbasic of musics. He himself has moved on, but he has retained enough of his rough schooling to think himself back into that revolutionary mind-set. A brilliant, beautiful record.

 M'Bizo Justin Time JUST 123 As above, except omit DeJohnette; add Mario Canonge, D. D. Jackson (p); Jimane Nelson (org);

James Lewis, Jaribu Shahid (b); Ronnie Burrage (d); Mabeleng Moholo (makhoyane). 11/97–6/98.

() Requiem For Julius / () 25th Anniversary: The New Chapter / * Steppenwolf Justin Time JUST 137 / 149 / 128 As above, except omit guest musicians. 99; 5/00; 01.

WSQ quite consciously entered a new phase with these records. They attempted to put the spirit of Julius Hemphill finally and affectionately behind them, celebrated a quarter-century of activity – and in the live session at Steppenwolf Theater turned in one of their most appealing and impressive performances ever.

The earliest record of the group is the fruit of a trip to South Africa and some very happy musical associations created there. The set is, of course, dedicated to the late Johnny Dyani, a man whose spirit touched everyone he met and thousands whom he didn't. The three-part 'M'Bizo Suite' occupies the bulk of the record, though the opening 'Snanapo', which features ethnic touches, and 'Matshidiso', which calls on piano, organ and drums, are both powerful works.

The requiem for Hemphill is a lovely work, preceded by 'Ebony', Bluiett's 'Free And Independent Thought' and the delightful 'All Praise'. Not just for their connection with the WSQ's past, this and the 25th-anniversary record are perhaps the most accessible recordings by the group and they are certainly a good place to start, though listeners should certainly go back to the early discs with Hemphill to see what the great man was all about.

The Steppenwolf gig is the one we would most strongly recommend however. This was the night when Purcell finally sounded like a permanent and unmoveable component of the quartet. Sticking to soprano and clarinet on this occasion, he sets aside his eclectic multi-instrumentalism in favour of a highly focused and very accurate line, blowing cleanly and as swingingly as an old-style clarinettist. Bluiett and Lake provide the harmonic superstructure while Murray weaves his own dark magic. The group's version of 'Giant Steps' is a career high-point.

 Experience Justin Time 102 As above, except add Craig Harris (tb, didjeridu); Billy Bang (vn); Matt Garrison (b). 03.

We wondered how long it would be before the WSQ tackled the Jimi Hendrix songbook. Here it is, fresh, brash and sophisticated in exactly the proportions you would expect. Kicking off with 'Freedom' is the only surprise. After that, all the usual suspects are included: 'Foxy Lady', 'Hey Joe', 'If 6 Was 9', 'Hear My Train A-Comin'', 'Machine Gun', 'The Wind Cries Mary' and 'Little Wing'. The augmented sound is always a plus, especially if you find the sound of four saxophones hard to handle.

World's Greatest Jazz Band

GROUP

Pure hubris, but in reality a continuation of a long-standing Dixieland outfit led by Yank Lawson and Bob Haggart.

 Plays Cole Porter And Rodgers & Hart Jazzology JCD-320 Yank Lawson, John Best (t); Carl Fontana, George Masso (tb); Peanuts Hucko (cl); Tommy Newsom, Al Klink (ts); Ralph Sutton (p); Bob Haggart (b); Gus Johnson (d). 75.

 Plays George Gershwin And Rodgers & Hart Jazzology JCD-300 As above, except omit Newsom; add Billy Butterfield (t); Eddie Miller (ts); Roger Kellaway (p); Nick Fatool (d). 75–6/77.

 Plays Duke Ellington Jazzology JCD-340 Yank Lawson, Billy Butterfield (t); George Masso, Sonny Russo (tb); Phil Bodner (cl); Al Klink (ts); John Bunch (p); Bob Haggart (b); Bobby Rosengarden (d). 76.

The WGJB was something of an institution, and in its heyday kept the Dixie-to-mainstream spirit alive during a dim time for that music. It predated the 'authentic' movement for this kind of jazz, so it tended to stay on the showbiz side of things, which means that the group's many LPs for the World Jazz label have a disappointingly perfunctory edge. It's professional, well-groomed Dixieland which is on show here. That said, these three 'songbook' collections have their moments, courtesy of the various soloists, and they bring back a style of playing which has to a considerable extent vanished with the group's passing.

Dempsey Wright

GUITAR

He came, he recorded, he disappeared again.

 The Wright Approach VSOP 57 Wright; Richie Kamuca (ts); Victor Feldman (p, vib); Ben Tucker (b); Stan Levey (d). 9/58.

There's always a special appeal to singleton records like this. We know next to nothing about Mr Wright, beyond the fact he plays quietly boppish guitar and that he managed to assemble a comme il faut West Coast band to accompany him on this solitary outing. 'Thanks For The Memory' and 'Swingin' the Blues' are the outstanding takes. 'Taps Miller' doesn't work so well right at the end. Wonder if he's still around.

Frank Wright (1935–90)

TENOR SAXOPHONE

Started out playing bass guitar on the Cleveland scene, where he met Albert Ayler. An effective but never celebrated figure of the avant-garde, Wright left a small recorded legacy but exerted a certain influence on like-minded younger players.

 The Complete ESP-Disk Recordings ESP-Disk 4007 Wright; Jacques Coursil (t); Arthur Jones (as); Henry Grimes, Steve Tintweiss (b); Muhammad Ali, Tom Price (d). 11/65; 5/67.

This at least restores some of the small but neglected Wright canon. It's padded out with some extremely inconsequential chat with label boss Bernard Stollman, which sits oddly amid such fiery music. The debut LP, just three tracks long, wasn't as good as the sequel, Your Prayer, but the little-known Price and the now almost mythical Grimes do a very respectable job behind Wright, who screams and wails in the approved Ayler manner. It's a big ask, even over the scanty, half-hour duration of the first record, which is why it's a relief to turn to the quintet tracks from 1967. The set begins with Jones's 'The Lady' and culminates with Wright's own keening title-track. Coursil was no slouch and this rhythm section seems if anything better suited to Frank's torrid approach, tempering some of his excesses.

It isn't a revelatory reissue, of the kind that can reposition a reputation, but it's a solid body of work that gives some substance to Wright's musicianly reputation.

(*) Uhura Na Omoja Emarcy America 067940 Wright; Noah Howard (as); Bobby Few (p); Art Taylor (d). 70.

 Unity ESP-Disk 4028 Wright; Bobby Few (p); Alan Silva (b); Muhammad Ali (d). 6/74.

There's a certain irony to Stollman's discussion with Wright about Europe on the ESP compilation above. The saxophonist moved there, along with much of the American avant-garde, at the end of the '60s. Neither of these is quite authentically a Frank Wright record. Howard largely dominates on Uhura Na Omoja and the other disc should more strictly be credited to the Centre Of The World Quartet, a collaborative outfit that made some interesting and powerful records in the early '70s. This, only released in 2006, is a live performance at the Moers Festival, attended by one of the present authors. The music comes across strongly, though Wright's party noisemaker blasts on the opening track are as off-putting on disc as they were at the time. The real star of 'Unity: Part One' is Silva, whose arco solo is a model of form and concentration. Wright switches to soprano for a time on the second piece, but returns to tenor as the track settles into a blustery groove.

The absence of a bass on the other disc isn't critical. Few fills in most of that area with his big crashing chords, though one misses Ali's intensity and free rein with Taylor at the kit. The front line seems slightly mismatched, effectively so when Howard blows bittersweet against Wright's more acerbic approach, less so when the two voices simply collide and splinter.

Wright died in Germany, relatively neglected. At least now there is a little more to remember him by.

John Wright

PIANO

Veteran Chicagoan, making a modest blend of hard bop and gentle soul-jazz.

 South Side Soul Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1743 Wright; Wendell Marshall (b); Walter McCants (d). 8/60.

 Mr Soul Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1876 Wright; Wendell Marshall (b); Walter Perkins Jr (d). 4/62.

These are pleasant, almost harmless reminders of a pianist whose Prestige albums once attracted a small following. There's little here that didn't emerge just as readily on records by Ahmad Jamal and Junior Mance, and Wright's deferential side – his ballads are carefully weighted and closer to Bill Evans than anything – has perhaps told against a revival of interest. The album titles and tunes of the order of 'Strut' are of their period, and one wonders what Wright felt about the bag he ended up in. He certainly finds the possibilities of 'What's New' (Mr Soul) at least as appealing as any down-home clichés.

Leo Wright (1933–91)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, FLUTE, CLARINET

The Texan studied music at home and began his recording career with vibraharpist Dave Pike. Other associations followed, including Dizzy Gillespie, Tom Jobim and Jimmy Witherspoon. In the '70s, he moved to Europe and worked with his wife, singer Elly Wright. Though primarily an alto-player, Wright was also a superb flautist.

 Suddenly The Blues Koch International 8544 Wright; Kenny Burrell (g); Ron Carter (b); Rudy Collins (d). 4/62.

 Soul Talk Water 146 Wright; Gloria Coleman (org); Kenny Burrell (g); Frank Dunlop (d). 70?

The two key Leo Wright documents are his classic 1960 Atlantic album Blues Shout and his autobiography God Is My Booking Agent. The former is not currently in circulation and the latter hard to find. Soul Talk was also on Atlantic, but it has been revived by a couple of imprints. It's pretty much as it looks, a chugging sax/organ/guitar date with a few niceties and felicities along the way. The Koch reissue is a better introduction to a much underrated player. The repertoire touches usefully on two of Wright's most fruitful associations, with Lalo Schifrin (the intense 'Dionysos') and Jobim ('A Felicidad'). The original themes are relatively scanty but 'The Wriggler' is a fine blowing theme and the title-track highlights the leader's soaring vocalized solo voice. 'Greensleeves' is decidedly tongue in cheek, but Wright is enough of a romantic to leave the old theme intact. To be fair, the set is very nearly stolen by Burrell, who is in cracking form throughout, but fair play too to the little-known Collins, who stokes the boilers manfully.

Richard Wyands (born 1928)

PIANO

A failsafe sideman, he has been in countless bands and on numberless records, always in an easy-going but authoritative bop orthodoxy.

 Then, Here And Now Storyville STCD 8269 Wyands; Lisle Atkinson (b); David Lee (d). 78.

 Reunited /  Get Out Of Town /  Half And Half Criss Cross 1105 / Steeplechase SCCD 31401 / Criss Cross 1185 Wyands; Peter Washington (b); Kenny Washington (d). 95; 10/96; 12/99.

Wyands is an evergreen who seems to have been around for ever. Most jazz fans will have seen or heard him with one group or another, in mainstream or post-bop environments, and been thankful that such a witty and apposite player has been on hand in the rhythm section. That he had turned fifty before making a first record under his own name may suggest that leadership isn't Richard's forte. He is a bright, clear-voiced technician, but by no means a compelling soloist. Wyands is in the venerable tradition of Wynton Kelly, Bobby Timmons and Sonny Clark and so offers few surprises – more a quietly swinging satisfaction. The brickwork is solid enough; one simply waits and hopes for something a little more rough-hewn than his symmetrical, chord-based statements.

It seems that the debut session, originally released on Jazzcraft, was squeezed into a hefty gigging schedule. If so, Wyands and his fans are the gainers. He sounds relaxed, not note-perfect but in tune with both material and sidemen. 'Yesterdays' is the most inventive cut, and a good example of Wyands's witty rhythmic experiments. It's a shame that there isn't an alternative of this number, as there is of Duke's 'Blue Rose' and the Latin-tinged original 'Leonora'. J. J. Johnson's 'Lament' and the show tune 'As Long As There's Music' are both given expressive readings. A drawback is the piano sound, which is disappointingly thin and tingly.

Of the later records – and note the gap in chronology – the first Criss Cross set is our marginal preference, with a more imaginative programme of tunes and a more concentrated approach. Whereas Atkinson and Lee provide not much more than foursquare support on the Storyville, Washington and Washington are more inventive on their own account.

Half And Half comes with an informative sleeve essay by Ted Panken which tells much about Wyands's career, although the most telling remark comes from Kenny Washington, discussing the pianist: 'He just knows instinctively what to do, when he's supposed to do it.' In other words, a failsafe pro, which is fine for the band, but perhaps less interesting for the listener, since Richard doesn't really strike a new note out of anything here. Something of his original favourite, Teddy Wilson, survives in his touch, and maybe a Garnerish chord here and there; but this is proper, elegant piano-playing, which rarely stirs the blood.

Albert Wynn (1907–73)

TROMBONE

Born in New Orleans, Wynn accrued a wide range of experience: touring with Ma Rainey, then various stints in St Louis, Europe (for four years), New York and Chicago, where he settled in the '40s. He worked with various revivalist bands in the city until ill-health slowed him down in the '60s.

 Albert Wynn And His Gutbucket Seven Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1826 Wynn; Bill Martin (t, v); Darnell Howard (cl); Buster Moten, Blind John Davis (p, v); Mike McKendrick (g, bj); Robert Wilson (b); Booker Washington (d). 9/61.

Wynn is on a fair number of Chicago records from the '20s, but he was something of a forgotten man by the time he made this entry in Riverside's Living Legends series. His solos are rather careful and circumspect, which leaves the main limelight to the formidable Howard, whose bustling work leans towards the gaspipe manner at some points but is undeniably exciting. Martin's rather mannered trumpet is a nice balance, and the only time-wasting is from bluesman Davis, whose two vocals are dispensable. Wilson and Washington keep unobtrusive time. A worthwhile survival.

Yerba Buena Stompers

GROUP

First formed by John Gill as a homage to Lu Watters.

(*) Dawn Club Favorites Stomp Off CD 1369 Leon Oakley, Duke Heitger (t); Tom Bartlett (tb, v); Ray Cadd (tba); Larry Wright (cl); Pete Clute (p); John Gill (bj, v); Clint Baker (d). 4/01.

() Barbary Coast Favorites / () New Orleans Favorites / (*) San Francisco Bay Blues Stomp Off CD 1375 / 1381 / 1406 As above, except omit Clute; add Marty Eggers (p). 10/01; 3/02; 1/05.

The YBS certainly have that slightly disreputable and noisy approach to revivalism which was the Watters trademark, and as an antidote to the Lincoln Center variety (though that's no bad alternative) these discs make a rowdily compelling case for the continued relevance of this sort of jazz. Gill has been going at this repertoire from several directions in the past 20 years or so, and where his Dixieland Serenaders and Silver Leaf Jazz Band approach it from a rather more respectful and proper perspective, the YBS just biff their way through it. The fast tempos are a bit quicker than you'd expect, and the slow tempos are a bit quicker than you'd expect. They leave very little time for you to catch your breath: the solos fly past. Larry Wright's clarinet walks a fairly crazy line between Ted Lewis and George Lewis. Tom Bartlett sings here and there: the lyrics to 'Second Line Stomp' were written by Gill while he was working on a steamboat, so you can hardly ask for more authenticity.

Otomo Yoshihide (born 1959)

GUITAR, ELECTRONICS, OTHER INSTRUMENTS

Dogged experimentalist and hyper-eclectic who ranges from minimalist noise with his group Ground Zero and in solo situations to the surreal repertory explorations of his New Jazz Quintet.

 Cathode Tzadik TZ 7051 Yoshihide (various instruments). 10/99.

It would take a devoted – and well-heeled – fan to keep track of Yoshihide's extensive and endlessly evolving discography. Like his compatriot Keiji Haino, he seems determined to capture some musical essence in the very act of changing his style and exploring new parts of the instrumentarium. Here he uses electronic samples alongside a range of traditional Japanese and classical Western instruments. The results are clangorous, often very beautiful and restlessly inventive. Cathode is a more or less random sampling of a huge body of work, which also takes in psych rock (his Soup trio includes Bill Laswell), turntable manipulation and surprisingly gentle song forms.

(*) Flutter Tzadik TZ 7232 Yoshihide; Yoshigaki Yasuhiro (t, d); Tsugami Kenta (as); Kikuchi Naruyoshi (ts); Akita Masami (syn); Mizutani Hiroaki (b); Sachiko M (sound effects). 2/00.

 Dreams Tzadik TZ 7238 As above, except omit Masami; add Masuko Tatsuki (syn); Phew, Kondo Yoshiaki (v). 10 & 11/01.

() Live / () Tails Out DIW 942 / 946 As above, except omit Tatsuki, Sachiko M, Phew, Yoshiaki. 3/02; 7/03.

* Live In Lisbon Clean Feed CF063 As above, except omit Naruyoshi; add Mats Gustafsson (ts, bs).

Yoshihide's move from noise to modern jazz was, of course, music to some ears, a baffling aberration to others. The multi-instrumentalist's New Jazz Quintet (or ONJQ) was to become a staple of his activity, beginning here with a set that kicks off in more familiar mode with the title-track (subtitled 'Modulation For High Tone') and then delves into repertory by Gerry Mulligan and by Eric Dolphy, who became something of an obsession. Dolphy's blues-based 'Serene' is all but unidentifiable in places, while Mulligan's 'Night Lights' is ruthlessly mugged in the dark, but there's a cheerful exuberance to this music which it's hard to dislike.

Dreams, in contrast, is paperlight and irritatingly poppy. Sachiko M's sine wave manipulation is an acquired taste at the best of times, but out of place here and no one seems to know how to break out of the rut most tracks fall into.

The first of the live albums is more like it. The approach to Dolphy's 'Hat And Beard' is relatively straightforward, with Kenta sounding remarkably like the composer. Naryoshi has a bull-roarer intensity of purpose and a strongly vocalized tone. The drummer, who also doubles on trumpet here and there, comes into his own with a terrific splashy solo on Haden's 'Song For Che', the first track on the Lisbon recording. The sound-world here is almost identical to that of Ornette's group, circa Crisis, and again Yasuhiro's ability to add a third horn is invaluable to the opening ensembles. Much as Wayne Shorter's 'Swee Pea' bleeds into the leader's 'There', the Haden tune melds seamlessly into one of Yoshihide's own shapeless wails, sustained on electric guitar but with the bonus of Gustafsson's raw, almost mechanical tenor and baritone. The programme is very similar to the earlier live date, with 'Flutter' and Jim O'Rourke's 'Eureka' both represented. In Lisbon, though, the favoured Dolphy theme is 'Serene'.

There's a further version of 'Song For Che' on Tails Out, which also includes strange and strangely effective versions of 'Strawberry Fields Forever' and 'Orange Was The Colour Of Her Dress, Then Blue Silk' and James Blood Ulmer's 'Moons Shine'. The tracks are much shorter and pointed here, almost as if this style has become formulaic. And yet, the shorter durations actually seem to benefit Yoshihide himself, who plays with a clanging urgency that is sometimes missing from the more stretched-out numbers elsewhere.

* Guitar Solo Doubtmusic 101 Yoshihide (g solo). 10 & 12/04.
This is where Yoshihide's precarious balancing act between extreme noise and 'Eastern' delicacy might seem to be most thoroughly tested. Intriguingly, he comes through with flying colours, creating a richly satisfying album that explores his own harsh electronic palette but also makes room for convincing interpretations of Ornette's 'Lonely Woman', 'Mood Indigo', and, of all things, 'Misty'. Hard to imagine anyone else on the instrument – even Bill Frisell – who could pull off something quite as bold.

(*) Out To Lunch Doubtmusic 108 Yoshihide; Axel Dörner (t, slide t); Tsugami Kenta (as); Mats Gustafsson (ts, bs); Alfred Harth (ts, bcl, t); Cor Fuhler (p); Takara Kumiko (vib); Mizutani Hiroaki (b); Yoshigaki Yasuhiro (d, perc, t). 1 & 9/05.
Homage or heresy? This is hardly the first time that a canonic creation has been recreated. One thinks of recent versions of A Love Supreme and Ascension, or, outside music, of Gus van Sant's scene by scene remake of Psycho. The question is not so much whether it deserves to be done in the first place, but how well? Yoshihide is a maverick, but not an iconoclast, and this seems a thoroughly respectful, even loving re-creation of the Dolphy classic. In purely executive terms – and this is heresy! – it's better done than the original, which is more of a mish-mash and compromise than its fabled status would allow. Yoshihide himself introduces the new element, though one might say his chiming strings and sharply bent notes are the equivalent of Hutcherson's vibes, except of course there is a vibist present.

The guest stars are an interesting bunch of European mavericks, and it's good to see the now underexposed Alfred Harth in the line-up and playing his bass clarinet like Eric himself. Axel Dörner also makes a convincing Freddie Hubbard stand-in. As a listening experience, it's thoroughly enjoyable right through to the leader's 'Will Be Back' coda (a reference to the shop door clock on the original cover, which is also alluded to on the faux-Blue Note cover). As a palimpsest on a sacred modern text, it seems curiously unjudgemental or subversive.

John Young (born 1922)

PIANO

An unfussy and genuine master of post-bebop language.

 Serenata Delmark DD 403 Young; Victor Sproles (b); Phil Thomas (d). 2/59.
A local legend in Chicago, where he has worked and played his whole life, John Young has done little to put his name in the history books or discographies. This short, enjoyable session – three alternative takes carry it just past the 40-minute mark – makes no case for immortality, but it is a fine example of how the music is succoured by the craftsmanship of such an accomplished player. Young hits a soulful groove on some tunes, abetted by the alert but quite spacious rhythms of Sproles and Thomas, and his naturally dancing, infectious manner has enough of the blues in it to make his swing and bebop stylings stay close to the tradition. 'Cubana Chant' is as good as any Ray Bryant or Red Garland fingersnapper, and the title-piece has an unfussy lyricism which is very attractive.

Larry Young (1940–78)

ORGAN

Born in Newark. He studied piano and began on organ, at 17, in his father's nightclub. Associated with hard bop in the '60s, then with fusion (Lifetime); but he made little public headway and was marginalized at the time of his death from pneumonia.

(*) Testifying Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1793 Young; Thornel Schwartz (g); Jimmie Smith (d). 8/60
(*) Young Blues Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1831 As above, except add Wendell Marshall (b). 9/60.
 Groove Street Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 1853 As above, except omit Marshall; add Bill Leslie (ts). 2/62.
Larry Young – later known as Khalid Yasin Abdul Aziz – was the first Hammond player to shake off the pervasive influence of Jimmy Smith (not to be confused with Jimmie the drummer on the earliest of these records) and begin the assimilation of John Coltrane's harmonics to the disputed border territory between jazz and nascent rock.

Young was to achieve almost legendary status with bands like Lifetime and Love Cry Want, and on Miles Davis's electronic masterpiece, Bitches Brew. On all three, and on one-off sessions like John McLaughlin's Devotion, he traded on a wild, abstract expressionist approach, creating great billowing sheets of sound. It's unfortunate that much of what survives of his work outside these groups is a throwback to the organ/guitar/drums jazz he was leaving behind at the end of the '60s. Testifying and Young Blues are both pretty callow, squarely in the Jimmy McGriff mould; Schwartz played with Jimmy for a time. Even so, both sets show a measure of the tonal sophistication Young was to display in later years. James Blood Ulmer fans would sense a kindred spirit on tracks like 'Exercise For Chihuahuas' and 'Some Thorny Blues' and the title-number on Testifying.

Groove Street is a broodingly funky organ/guitar/saxophone workout that manages to make some convincing changes on what might have been a drab and over-exploited formula. It certainly isn't the most subtle of records, but it has great strengths and is well worth hearing.

(*) Into Something! Blue Note 543276-2 Young; Sam Rivers (ts); Grant Green (g); Elvin Jones (d). 11/64.
This record promises somewhat more than it delivers. Sam Rivers plays with concentrated brilliance without engaging the emotions and Green is a good deal drier than usual, perhaps to compensate for a more than usually high-temperature group. Young and Jones keep the temperature well up. All the compositions are by the organist, and 'Plaza De Toros' and 'Tyrone' offer a useful encapsulation of his polytonal approach.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * Unity
Blue Note 56416-2 Young; Woody Shaw (t); Joe Henderson (ts); Elvin Jones (d). 11/65.
Quite simply a masterpiece. Whipped along by Jones's ferocious drumming and Henderson's meaty tenor, even on a soft-pedal tune like 'Softly As In A Morning Sunrise'. Young contributes nothing as a writer, which doesn't in any way diminish the impact of his performance. Woody Shaw's 'The Moontrane', 'Zoltan' and 'Beyond All Limits' are a measure of his under-regarded significance as a composer; the first of the three is the perfect test of Young's absorption of Coltrane's ideas, as he develops a rather obvious (if precocious – Shaw wrote it when he was just 18) sequence of harmonics into something that represents a genuine extension of the great saxophonist, not just a bland repetition. This is a record that has proved hard to track down over the years. Of all our highest-rated albums, it has been one of the most elusive, despite the label and Young's relative eminence. Its inclusion in Blue Note's recent Rudy Van Gelder edition is testimony to two great men of music.

(*) Of Love And Peace Blue Note 73162 Young; Eddie Gale (t); James Spaulding (as, f); Herbert Morgan (ts); Wilson Moorman III, Jerry Thomas (d). 66.

A slight anti-climax after the majesty of the album above, but still a fine effort which takes a mostly obscure band through some fascinating ideas. Really, it's a vehicle for Young rather than a group track, but there's more than enough for him to get his teeth into.

 Larry Young's Fuel BMG 37489 Young; Santiago Torano (g); Fernando Sanders (b); Rob Gottfried (d); Laura Tequila Logan (v). 75.

 Spaceball BMG 37490 Young; Al Lockett (ss, ts, v); Larry Coryell, Ray Gomez, Danny Toan (g); Ray Eubanks (b); Jim Allington (d, perc); Clifford Brown, Farouk Adbul Hakim, Barrett Young (perc); Paula West (v). 77.

In no sense masterpieces, but these late sessions, only reissued on CD in 2006, have some moments that recall the great sessions of yore. The idiom is fusion of a markedly more commercial sort than in Lifetime days, but it's pretty obvious once one cuts through some time-tagged production devices that these sessions are really very little different from Young's earlier work. The earlier of the pair is definitely superior. On 'I Ching (Book Of Changes)', 'Fuel For The Fire' and 'New York Electric Street Music', Larry shows his true mettle, and not quite for the last time. There are flashes again on Spaceball, but all but diehard fans will be disappointed by its diffuse feel and clunky production.

Also, in brief:

(*) Mother Ship Blue Note 90415. 2/69.

The last album for Blue Note only saw the light of day in 1980: a disappointing blend of hard bop, soul-jazz and the avant-garde.

(*) Lawrence Of Newark Sanctuary 81221. 73.

Posed in Arab headdress on the cover, this latter-day Lawrence was already bound for the Empty Quarter in critical terms.

Lester Young (1909–59)

TENOR SAXOPHONE, CLARINET, VOICE

One of the most influential saxophonists ever. He marks a transition from swing to bebop. Borrowing from Frankie Trumbauer, he developed a dry, cool style which coarsened later. He grew up near New Orleans and played in a family setting, but left home to start a professional career with Art Bronson and then with Walter Page's Blue Devils. Count Basie recruited the 25-year-old but Young soon left and joined Fletcher Henderson's band, where he was ostracized for his unorthodox approach. He was soon back with Basie and started to record under his own name and as an accompanist for Billie Holiday. His improvisations grew ever more elegantly structured, built up from short, slightly staccato phrases. He grew increasingly dependent on drink and narcotics; his tone coarsened and his solos became more and more formulaic.

CORE COLLECTION

* The Complete Aladdin Sessions

Blue Note 32787 2CD Young; Shorty McConnell, Howard McGhee (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Willie Smith (as); Maxwell Davis (ts); Joe Albany, Jimmy Bunn, Nat Cole, Gene DiNovi, Wesley Jones, Michael 'Dodo' Marmarosa, Argonne Thornton (p); Irving Ashby, Nasir Baraakat, Dave Barbour, Fred Lacey, Chuck Wayne (g); Ted Briscoe, Red Callender, Curtis Counce, Rodney Richardson, Junior Rudd, Curley Russell (b); Chico Hamilton, Roy Haynes, Tiny Kahn, Lyndell Marshall, Johnny Otis, Henry Tucker (d). 7/42–12/47.

Listeners who have heard Young's classic solos – the 1936 'Lady Be Good' with Jo Jones and Carson Smith, 'Jumpin' At The Woodside' and the later 'Lester Leaps In' with Basie – will have to judge how much of a falling-off is evident in the material on the Savoy sessions, which are marked by flashes of brilliance but not distributed consistently enough. The truth is that Young's best work was nearly all done for others. The Aladdin sessions do, however, cover some of his best work as a leader, though even some of these are for another singer, Helen Humes. Young's cool, wry approach still seems slightly out of synch with prevailing expectations, though he is absolutely simpatico with Willie Smith, another figure now routinely overlooked in accounts of how jazz developed into its modern phase. The big pluses on this generously proportioned compilation are a rare glimpse of the 1942 Los Angeles session with Nat Cole and an instrumental 'Riffin' Without Helen', recorded as part of the Humes session, presumably while she was off powdering her nose.

(*) Lester Young, 1943–1946 Classics 932 Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Al Killian, Joe Newman (t); Ted Donnelly, Dicky Wells, Eli Robinson, Lewis Taylor (tb); Jimmy Powell, Earl Warren (as); Buddy Tate (ts); Rudy Rutherford (bs); Count Basie, Johnny Guarnieri, Clyde Hart (p); Freddie Green (g); Rodney Richardson, Slam Stewart (b); Big Sid Catlett, Jo Jones, Shadow Wilson (d); other personnel as for Aladdin sessions above. 12/43–1/46.

This Classics compilation covers at least some of the same territory as the Aladdin sessions above, and includes the same instrumental from the Humes session, of which Blue Note were making much; Anatol Schenker suggests that it was actually released in small numbers under the title 'It's Better To Give Than To Receive'. The December 1945 and January 1946 sessions overlap both formats, but the Classics set also includes the Savoy dates of April and May 1944, the former under Earl Warren's leadership, the latter a small group with the Count and the Basie band rhythm section.

 Kansas City Sax: The Complete Kansas City Master Takes

Jasmine 2600 Young; Buck Clayton (t); Dicky Wells (tb); Eddie Durham (tb, g); Count Basie, Sammy Benskin, Joe Bushkin (p); Freddie Green (g); Al Hall, Walter Page, Rodney Richardson, John Simmons (b); Jo Jones, Shadow Wilson (d). 38–44.

The title is a clever fudge. When members of Count Basie's rhythm section took time off from big-band duties, they formed the ad hoc Kansas City Five, which became a sextet with the recruitment of Lester, and later evolved into the KC Seven. A couple of tracks are also credited to guitarist Freddie Green accompanying Sylvia Sims. Its activities have been documented on a couple of Classics compilations, but this Jasmine reissue affords a glimpse of the best of the work under Lester's name. He wasn't the only soloist, but he produced some fine work in this relaxed atmosphere and 'Way Down Yonder In New Orleans' and 'Three Little Words' remain classics of the late swing era, so worth a look.

(*) The Complete Savoy Recordings Savoy 27122 2CD Similar to the above. 44–52.

Lester's work for Savoy was of mixed quality, and many of the alternates included on this 46-track collection are only of interest to serious collectors. However, there's enough substance to this handsome and well-documented set to attract anyone who wants to hear the great man in some depth, well-mastered and with informative liner-notes. The personnels are easy enough to disentangle from the comments above, but while label compilations are often useful route maps through a career, for all their importance these sessions don't tell the full Young story, even from this period, and it can just as easily be reconstructed by other means.

 Lester Young 1947–1951 Classics 1247 Young; Jesse Drakes, Shorty McConnell (t); Jerry Elliott (tb); Hank Jones, John Lewis, Junior Mance, Gene DiNovi, Argonne Thornton (p); Nasir Barakaat, Chuck Wayne (g); Ray Brown, LeRoy Jackson, Gene Ramey, Rodney Richardson, Curley Russell, Joe Shulman (b); Bill Clark, Roy Haynes, Jo Jones, Tiny Khan, Lyndell Marshall, Buddy Rich (d). 4/47–1/51.

 Lester Young 1951–1952 Classics 1325 Young; John Lewis, Oscar Peterson (p); Barney Kessel (g); Ray Brown, Gene Ramey (b); J. C. Heard, Jo Jones (d). 1/51–11/52.

The beginning of Young's association with Norman Granz finds him in fairly poor shape, either physically, mentally or both. There's a sleepwalker's false clarity to some of the playing on the September 1949 and June 1950 sessions that bodes ill for the future and the saxophone is thready and insecure. Pres wasn't in the studio at all during 1948 because of the recording ban and the last date before that is a shaky, end-of-contract gig for Aladdin where DiNovi, Wayne, Russell and Khan battle their way through a set that hadn't been discussed, let alone rehearsed, beforehand. Earlier in 1947, Lester had recorded the beautiful 'I'm Confessin'' with a virtually unknown group, his solo standing out like a diamond pin on a dull club tie. His first excursion as leader after the ban was a June 1949 date for Savoy; it sounds unbelievably rough and ready, not much more than a blues jam over not more than two or three ideas. Lester gets off some nice, tongued phrases on 'Ding Dong' (based on the 'All Of Me' chords) but he's struggling in the main. Opinion still rages about this period in Lester's career. Some maintain he was a broken reed; others insist that like Billie Holiday's his expression moved onto a new plane. We're inclined to the former view, even though flashes of the old genius do shine through.

The following volume concludes the January 1951 date with Lewis, Ramey and Jones and marks a possible recovery from wartime trauma and the recording ban. 'Frenesi' is the best thing from that date. It swings unexpectedly and the intonation is light but accurate over Lewis's sophisticated chording. This is the kind of environment in which Lester could create wonderful things out of the flimsiest of material. Two originals, 'Pete's Café' and 'Little Pee's Blues', round out that date but the same orchestra was back in the studio in March to cut another four sides for Mercury and two for Norgran. These are test cases in the Lester Young debate. 'Lester Swings' does exactly that, while the B-side 'Slow Motion Blues' is as painfully dragged and mournful as anything Lester ever committed to disc. It would be tempting to play it as evidence of the saxophonist's mental decline except that there is a sardonic humour to its long line which suggests that something else may be in play.

Some of the later material can be found on the sets below, but suffice it to say that these two volumes are a valuable resource for anyone interested in Young's career and putative decline, provided they're listened to thoroughly and with due scepticism. Not every fractured performance is a sign of incipient breakdown. Nor does a smooth legato point to mental health.

(*) Lester Young & The Piano Giants Verve 835316-2 Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Roy Eldridge (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Nat Cole, Hank Jones, John Lewis, Oscar Peterson, Teddy Wilson (p); Herb Ellis, Freddie Green (g); Ray Brown, Gene Ramey, Joe Shulman (b); Bill Clark, Jo Jones, Buddy Rich (d). 3/46–1/56.

 Lester Young Trio Verve 521650-2 Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Dexter Gordon (ts); Nat Cole (p); Red Callender (b); Juicy Owens, Buddy Rich (d). 43, 4/46.

 Masters Of Jazz: Lester Young Storyville STCD 4107 Young; Jesse Drakes, Idrees Sulieman (t); John Lewis, Bill Potts, Horace Silver (p); Aaron Bell, Gene Ramey, Franklin Skeete, Norman Williams (b); Jo Jones, Connie Kay, Abram Lee, Jim Lucht (d). 5/51–12/56.

(*) The President Plays Verve 521451-2 Young; Oscar Peterson (p); Barney Kessel (g); Ray Brown (b); J. C. Heard (d). 11/52.

 Pres & Sweets Verve 849391-2 Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison (t); Oscar Peterson (p); Herb Ellis (g); Ray Brown (b); Buddy Rich (d). 12/55.

 Pres & Teddy Verve 831270-2 Young; Teddy Wilson (p); Gene Ramey (b); Jo Jones (d). 1/56.

(*) The Lester Young Story Proper PROPERBOX 8 4CD As various discs above. 10/36–9/49.

Immediately after the war there was evidence of some of the less-desirable traits that crept into his '50s work (a formulaic repetition and a self-conscious and histrionic distortion of tone and phrasing akin to his friend Billie Holiday's around the same time); it's clear that he is trying to rethink harmonic progression. A new device, much noted, is his use of an arpeggiated tonic triad in first inversion (i.e. with the third rather than the root in lowest position), which, whatever its technical niceties, smoothed out chordal progression from ever-shorter phrases. Some of that is evident in the 1946 trios with Rich and Cole, and on other augmented line-ups from that time. There are extra versions of 'Back To The Land' and 'I Cover The Waterfront', illustrating Pres's ability to reshape a theme and send it off in a new direction, while still using the same basic roster of melodic devices.

The 1952 session for Norman Granz (now believed to have been made in November, not in August) includes the slightly bizarre sound of Young lewdly singing the lyric to 'It Takes Two To Tango': 'Drop your drawers, take them off ...' It's a curiosity, but the rest of the session is very good indeed. The Verve compilation includes some excellent material, recorded in January 1956, with Roy Eldridge, another stylistic bridge-builder, and Teddy Wilson, together with a 1950 version of 'Up'n'Adam' with Hank Jones. The Nat Cole material is available separately on the Trio album.

The Lester Young Story leaves only a few gaps in its documentation of the first era of Young on record. The four CDs sound good and there's a detailed booklet.

 Lester Young In Washington, D.C. 1956: Volumes 1–5 Original Jazz Classics OJCCD 782 / 881 / 901 / 1043 / 1051 Young; Bill Potts (p); Norman Williams (b); Jim Lucht (d). 12/56.

 The Best Of Lester Young Pablo 2405420 As above.

Young's later years have been unhelpfully coloured by too many sorry anecdotes (about his drinking, world-weariness and increasingly restricted conversational code) and, more recently, by Bertrand Tavernier's composite anti-hero, Dale Turner, in Round Midnight, a character who is truer in spirit to the declining Bud Powell. Powell felt safe in the past and retreated into re-creations of his best work. Throughout his life, Young had been brutally cut off from his own past; by its end the only direction he knew was uneasily forward.

The 1956 OJCs further confound the notion of a man who had given up on life and art; though drastically reconceived and hardly abetted by Potts's backward-looking accompaniments (it was often Pres's sidemen who wanted to play in the 'old style' about which he became so painfully ambivalent), 'Lester Leaps In' and 'These Foolish Things' (both on the better Volume 2) are major jazz performances.

(*) Laughin' To Keep From Cryin' Verve 543301-2 Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Roy Eldridge (t); Hank Jones (p); Herb Ellis (g); George Duvivier (b); Mickey Sheene (d). 2/58.

Late in the day and a desperately tired act. There are moments, as when Pres switches to clarinet for 'Salute To Benny' and 'They Can't Take That Away From Me', when the music is as vivid and logical as one might hope but for the most part this is a drab curtain-call, and Young doesn't even appear on all the tracks, sitting out the first part of the 'Ballad Medley', which he finishes with the trio on 'Blue And Sentimental'. The remastering is very good, and something of the smothered passion of Pres's late recording does come across.

 The Complete Lester Young Studio Sessions On Verve Verve 547087-2 8CD Young; Harry 'Sweets' Edison, Jesse Drakes, Roy Eldridge (t); Vic Dickenson (tb); Nat Cole, John Lewis, Oscar Peterson, Teddy Wilson, Gildo Mahones, Lou Stein, Hank Jones, René Urtreger (p); Barney Kessel, Herb Ellis, Freddie Green, Jimmy Gourley (g); Joe Shulman, Ray Brown, Gene Ramey, John Ore, George Duvivier, Jamil Nasser (b); Jo Jones, Bill Clark, Buddy Rich, J. C. Heard, Connie Kay, Louie Bellson, Mickey Sheen, Kenny Clarke (d). 3/46–3/59.

Here finally are Lester Young's closing years in all the close-up detail befitting such an important musician. Even as vinyl, these dates were scattered across many albums – the booklet reproduces no fewer than 21 different 'original' LP sleeves – and several of the tracks have been unavailable in any form for many years. A lot of it is, by the standards of most jazz, wretched music. All too often in these dates its principal is playing so poorly, with such lack of control, that if newcomers were to hear Young for the first time, in these dates, they would be astonished that he is as revered as he is. Some of the eight discs can be virtually written off altogether as pleasurable listening experiences. Others expose Young as a hollow, crippled voice surrounded by sympathetic but bewildered contemporaries, gamely trying either to hold him up or to cover him up with their own playing. The final session here, recorded in Paris in March 1959, finds Young so enfeebled that he can barely get the notes out of the horn, and to listen to this as entertainment is a stretch which we would rather not extend to.

Young's Verve story, as suggested already, is a lot more complex than mere inexorable decline. The first seven sessions are all tenor-plus-rhythm with, in succession, Nat Cole, Hank Jones, John Lewis and Oscar Peterson. The material is blues, a few workouts on familiar chords and standards, some of them rather surprising choices. None of the performances is bad, and Young contributes something fine to each of them – an unpredictable curlicue, a pale flurry of melody, a bashful beeping on a single note. Yet, at the same time, there is something wrong with all of them. Sometimes a solo will seem ready to fold up and die, and he will have to pull it round at the last moment. Other passages find him strong and hale, only to tamely crack a note or suddenly stumble, a beach jogger tripping over driftwood. It wouldn't matter so much if it happened only here and there – but it happens on every tune, to some degree.

The exceptionally handsome booklet quotes a remark made by Coleman Hawkins, the earth to Lester's air sign: 'That Lester Young, how does he get away with it? He's stoned half the time, he's always late, and he can't play.' It was and it wasn't true.

Also, in brief:

 Jazz Masters 30 Verve 521859-2. 43–56.

A very good introduction to Young's later work, faithfully and pleasingly remastered.

 The Ultimate Lester Young Verve 539772-2. 44–55.

Another in Verve's insightful series in which younger-generation musicians – in this case, Wayne Shorter – select material by their artistic forebears.

() Le Dernier Message De Lester Young Emarcy 598557-2. 3/59.

If you love Lester's music, you won't want to hear this ghastly farewell.

Trummy Young (1912–84)

TROMBONE, VOICE

Young was a sideman with Jimmie Lunceford and Benny Goodman among others; his major affiliation was with Louis Armstrong's All-Stars, with whom he remained for 12 years.

 Trummy Young 1944–1946 Classics 1037 Young; Buck Clayton, Roy Eldridge (t); Harry Curtis, Bill Stegmeyer, Willie Smith, Ray Eckstrand (as); Nick Caiazza, Stan Webb, Herbie Fields, Ike Quebec, Leo Williams, Don Byas (ts); John Malachi, Kenny Kersey, Billy Rowland, Jimmy Jones (p); Mike Bryan, Allan Hanlon, Bill DeArango (g); Slam Stewart, Tommy Potter, Bob Haggart, Trigger Alpert, John Levy (b); Eddie Byrd, Jimmy Crawford, Specs Powell, Cozy Cole (d); Martha Tilton, Jack Leonard, The Holidays (v). 2/44–7/46.

Young is scarcely remembered as a leader, but he did manage to get his name on a few record labels in the '40s, and this disc neatly rounds up six such dates, variously released by Session, Duke, V-Disc, GI and HRS. The pick of them are probably the four titles made for Duke, which feature a crackling seven-piece band starring elegant Buck Clayton and the huge-sounding Ike Quebec, whose tenor booms out of the speakers. Young is a bit of a bystander here, but he does get to take a vocal on 'I'm Living For Today'. Clayton is also on the first of the V-Disc titles and Eldridge takes over from him on the next date, which offers a storming 'Tea For Two'. Mostly, though, these are features for Tilton and Leonard. The GI session is rather ordinary but the final four titles, cut for HRS by Trummy's Big Seven, have some decent late-swing music, with Clayton and Buster Bailey and Young's own vociferous solo style in evidence.

Bojan Z (born 1968)

PIANO

Bojan Z(ulfikarpašić) – he often reduces his name to help out tongue-tied audiences – is from Belgrade, where he switched from being a teenage fusion star to acoustic jazz. He works regularly in the Julian Lourau group and has these CDs to his name.

(*) Quartet Label Bleu LBLC 6565 Zulfikarpašić; Julien Lourau (ss, ts); Marc BuronFosse (b); François Merville (d). 12/93.
(*) Solobsession Label Bleu LBLC 6624 Zulfikarpašić (p solo). 12/00.
* Transpacifik Label Bleu LBLC 6654 Zulfikarpašić; Scott Colley (b); Nasheet Waits (d). 6/03.

Sparkling and original music from Z (we'll call him that to save our typing fingers). Quartet is full of bright, ingenious themes that hopscotch between bases with rare insouciance, cunningly 'European' melodies hidden in settings which otherwise play footsie with post-bop genre moves. Try 'Mashala', which sounds vaguely exotic – an Indian march? – yet refuses to plant its feet anywhere. Lourau and Z are long-standing playing companions and they perform each other's music with fine gusto. The solo record, boiled down from hours of playing, is full of ideas. One Z trait is his concern to get the most out of both hands at the keyboard. He does fascinating essays on 'Valse Hot' and Ornette's 'Mothers Of The Veil', but his own 'Multi Don Kulti' and 'Zulfikar-Pacha' are just as strong, leavened by the kind of humour which contemporary jazz only rarely deals in.

One could muse for hours on how 'Balkan' his music is, and he invites it with titles and pieces like 'Bulgarska' on Transpacifik. This is a virtuoso trio session, yet, again, notably uncluttered: as many-noted as Z's music often is, his lines are often prismatically clear. Colley and Waits fall in with his sound quickly and it all goes to make up a memorable trio record.

Peter Zak

PIANO

Grew up in Ohio, then moved to Oakland to study and play in the Bay Area with the likes of Frank Morgan and John Handy. Subsequently relocated to New York City, where he is also on the faculty of the New School.

 The Peter Zak Trio Steeplechase SCCD 31578 Zak; Paul Gill (b); Al Foster (d). 05.
 For Tomorrow Steeplechase SCCD 31592 Zak; Paul Gill (b); Willie Jones III (d).
(*) My Conception Steeplechase SCCD 31619 Zak (p solo). 7/07.

The solo record is the best place to sample Zak's lyrical, harmonically rich approach. Lots of comparisons have been bandied about: Bill Evans, inevitably; Fred Hersch, more perceptively; and just about anyone in an alphabetical slew of strong solo recitalists that might run from Alan Broadbent through Kenny Drew Jr and Steve Kuhn to Denny Zeitlin. Truth is that Zak has a very original touch indeed, marked by no obvious trademark trills or curlicues, no blatant idiosyncrasies. Much of it has to do with his conception of a song as a complete entity. These are highly logical performances, not without passion, but very thoughtful indeed. Even Blue Mitchell's joyous 'Fungii Mama', which opens My Conception, has a different cast to usual, still with its vivid bossa underpinnings, but somehow almost philosophical as Zak remoulds the chords.

The title-tune is a Sonny Clark line, of course, and Zak seems intent here on showing his grounding in a wide jazz piano literature. He also obviously admires Joe Henderson's writing, playing 'Serenity' here in a manner Joe would approve, and including 'Mamacita' in the first of the Steeplechases. The trio with Gill and the endlessly adaptable Foster is very good indeed, but it's Willie Jones who really gets the best out of him. For Tomorrow marks a move away from the mainly original material on the first album to a standards and repertory set with Monk, Shorter, Hancock, Powell, Larry Young and Duke Pearson all represented and just three Zak tunes. However, the opener, 'The Cream And The Clear' is a sharp reminder of how good a writer he is, a cracking cut that ranks with the best in his output so far.

We'd still be inclined to go for the solo date first. 'With A Song In My Heart' and 'By Myself' will show you why.

Joe Zawinul (1932–2007)

PIANO, KEYBOARDS

Born in Vienna, he studied at the Conservatory there prior to wartime evacuation. Became interested in jazz and eventually went to the USA on a Berklee scholarship. Played for Dinah Washington, then with Cannonball Adderley for the rest of the '60s. Then with Miles Davis, subsequently forming the hugely successful Weather Report, with Wayne Shorter and Miroslav Vitous, eventually disbanded in 1986. Later projects have been mixed successes, but he remains a major composer and few have been as creatively successful with electric keyboards.

 And The Austrian All Stars / His Majesty Swinging Nephews, 1954–1957 RST 91549 Zawinul; Dick Murphy (t); Hans Salomon (as, ts); Karl Drewo (ts); Johnny Fischer, Rudolf Hansen (b); Victor Plasil (d). 10/54–3/57.
 The Beginning Fresh Sound FSRCD 142 Zawinul; George Tucker (b); Frankie Dunlop (d); Ray Barretto (perc). 9/59.

Creator of some of the classic jazz tunes of the last 40 years, from 'Mercy Mercy Mercy' and 'Country Preacher' to 'Birdland' and beyond, Joe Zawinul has managed to place himself where the action is since he arrived in the United States in 1959. These records straddle that moment of fruitful exile. In Austria, the young conservatory-trained pianist had worked with the legendary Friedrich Gulda, but he had also been involved with a number of inventive small groups who represented the accelerated development of jazz during the de-Nazification period. The RST disc covers what was probably the most advanced group in Austria at the time, formed in 1954 and sounding pretty much on a par with any similarly aged and inclined group from the United States. Originally recorded for Turicaphon's Elite Special label, it's a fascinating session for a first glimpse of Zawinul as jazz composer. Even this early, 'Mekka' is unmistakably his, a forceful pounding left hand holding the ideas together, exotic intervals and resolutions consigned to the top line. Elsewhere, Zawinul takes the least likely harmonic path, occasionally leaving the otherwise excellent Salomon and the less adroit Drewo at the starting gate.

By 1957 and his trio with Fischer and Plasil, it's clear that he needs broader horizons for his playing. The move to America seemed inevitable. The Fresh Sound album – misleadingly titled, unless one chooses to think of the move Stateside as the start of his 'real' career – was made soon after his arrival, testimony to the substantial word-of-mouth reputation Zawinul acquired on an already overcrowded scene. In what was then, mercifully, not the parlance, he really goes for it, obviously trying to make an impact with a set of lyrical standards. Given the instincts of Tucker and Dunlop, the pace is medium to up, but there are affecting ballad performances as well: 'My One And Only Love' is beautiful, only slightly marred by Barretto's intrusive percussion.

 The Rise And Fall Of The Third Stream / Money In The Pocket Rhino R2 71675 Zawinul; Blue Mitchell, Jimmy Owens (t); William Fischer, Joe Henderson, Clifford Jordan (ts); Pepper Adams (bs); Bob Cranshaw, Richard Davis, Sam Jones (b); Louis Hayes, Roy McCurdy, Freddie Waits (d); Warren Smith (perc); Alfred Brown, Selwart Clarke, Theodore Israel (vla); Kermit Moore (clo). 4/66–12/67.

In 1967 the fusion revolution, in which Zawinul was to have a significant part, was still a year or two away. These two records are pretty much of their time, a mixture of funky soul-jazz on the earlier Money and then-fashionable classical/non-European cross-overs on the '67 sessions. Third Stream seems less risibly distant now than it once did, and it was a movement that perfectly suited someone of Zawinul's background. The opening track, 'Baptismal', underlines one legitimate objection. A brooding cello solo with viola just behind (anticipating the tonality of later work like 'His Last Journey' on Zawinul) gives way to a medium-pace jazz tune which bears only the slightest relation to the introduction. The setting of the two-part 'Soul Of A Village' would seem, on the face of it, to be far to the east of the Tyrol (China, possibly), and the embellishments are a little intrusive.

The jazzier Money session is nicely done. Joel Dorn's hand at the controls was a guarantee of quality at this time. While he sounds a bit heavy-handed when balancing the strings on Third Stream, the horn arrangements on the remaining tracks are brightly registered, with lots of room for Adams's rich tone and a clear vantage for the neglected Mitchell. Zawinul here shares the credits with Henderson (the thoughtful 'If') and two tunes by another musician who always gets the foundations right before he does the curlicues, bassist Sam Jones. It isn't a classic session, but whenever the horns give ground to Zawinul and the rhythm section, as on the closing 'Del Sasser', his playing is absolutely riveting.

 Zawinul Atlantic 7567 81375 Zawinul; Jimmy Owens, Woody Shaw (t); Wayne Shorter, Earl Turbinton (ss); George Davis, Hubert Laws (f); Herbie Hancock (p); Walter Booker, Miroslav Vitous (b); Joe Chambers, Billy Hart, David Lee (d); Jack DeJohnette (hca, perc). 70.

The eponymous Atlantic album with its haunting sepia cover – a huge close-up of Zawinul's sombre face – was made the year that Weather Report was formed and a year after Zawinul took part in Miles Davis's epochal – or at the very least transitional – In A Silent Way, for which the Austrian wrote the title-track, also included here. Zawinul is a lovely, lovely record. Somewhat pretentiously entitled 'Music for two electric pianos, jazz flute, trumpet, soprano saxophone, two contrabasses and percussion', it nods in the direction of his conservatory past almost as much as it anticipates the experiments in fusion music. Woody Shaw's echoplexed trumpet strongly recalls Miles (who writes the liner-note) but, with Vitous handling one of the bass parts and Shorter replacing the little-known Turbinton on 'Double Image', the original Weather Report is already in place. I Sing The Body Electric, the group's second disc, was to include a live-in-Japan version of 'Doctor Honoris Causa', a tribute to Zawinul's keyboard twin, Herbie Hancock. Here it gets a much more measured reading, less frenetic and intense, more floating and indefinite, as in 'His Last Journey', where the electric piano's ability to imitate tolling bells (another Weather Report favourite) is exploited to great effect. Not just because Shorter is present, 'Double Image' is the track that most clearly points forward. The brief 'Arrival In New York' is an aural impression of the immigrant wharves; not far removed from Mingus's 'Foggy Day' on Pithecanthropus Erectus, it underlines how important sheer sound was to Zawinul and his group.

() Stories Of The Danube Philips 454 143 Zawinul; Amit Chatterjee (g, v); Burhan Ocal (oud, v, perc); Walter Grassman (d); Arto Tunçboyaciyan (perc, v); Czech State Philharmonic Orchestra, Brno; Caspar Richter (cond). 11/95.

Billed as Zawinul's first symphony, this majestically proportioned progress from source to sea and through several centuries of bloody but replenishing history is certainly not a jazz record, nor is it intended to be. Zawinul's long-standing interest in orchestral writing and in finding neutral ground between improvisation and composition is well served, but the music fails to catch light. There are moments in 'Gipsy', which comes at the very heart of the piece, the middle one of its seven movements, when it all starts to make sense, but the pace is ponderous and the orchestrations far from convincing. 'Unknown Soldier' is very different from the haunting track on Weather Report's I Sing The Body Electric, and this is perhaps the best point of comparison with past work. Spectacularly mounted as a live piece, it may well have been impressive. As a recorded work, it simply fails to convince.

 World Tour ESC Records ESC/EFA 03656 2CD Zawinul; Gary Poulson (g); Richard Bona, Victor Bailey (b); Paco Sery (d, kalimba, v); Manolo Badrena (perc, v, nolopipe); Frank Hoffman, Pape Abdou Sech (v). 5–11/97.

Joe! Call home! Between 29 January and 14 December 1997, the Zawinul Syndicate played 126 concerts, 24 in October alone. Even by the overblown standards of stadium mega-rock, this is a pretty heroic endeavour. Sadly, the music documented is rarely more than mildly involving, a mixture of stretched-out world-music jams and tighter song-forms. The best of the material – 'Lost Tribes' on disc two, the long 'Indiscretions' and the opening 'Patriots' on disc one – is close enough to Weather Report grooves to draw in the old fans. Much of the rest, though, falls into a rather bland and formulaic delivery which must have become ever more deeply entrenched as the caravan moved on. The live mixes are generally very good, though often percussion is allowed to dominate. Richard Bona is a less jazz-orientated bassist than Victor Bailey, but in a perverse way he fits more comfortably into the mix. Badrena is a star and occasionally outshines Zawinul himself, but this is unquestionably Joe's concept and the main man's gig.

* My People Escapade 03651 Zawinul; Mike Mossman (t, tb); Bobby Malach (ts); Amit Chatterjee, Osmane Kouyake, Gary Poulson (g); Burhan Öçal (oud); Richard Bona (b); Tal Bergman (d, perc); Alex Acuña, Souleymane Doumbia, Trilok Gurtu, Michito Sanchez (perc); Lucho Avellaneda, Bolot, Assitan Dembele, Djene Doumbouya, Duke Ellington, Salif Keita, Kenny O'Brien, Beto Sabala, Thania Sanchez (v); Arto Tunçboyaciyan (v, perc). 96.

Zawinul claims Czech, Hungarian and Sinti ancestry, and this is his attempt to create a personalized kind of world music by bringing together as many different musical traditions as possible and watching them spark off each other. Except that they don't, leaving a drab residue of common riffs, rhythms and disharmonies. A hugely disappointing record.

* Faces and Places ESC 03679 2 Zawinul; Harry Kim (flhn); Lester Benedict (tb); Bob Malach (ts); Dean Brown, Amit Chatterjee (g); Etienne Mbappe, Richard Bona (b, v); Victor Bailey (b); Paco Sery (d, g); Nathaniel Townsley (d); Manolo Badrena, Zakir Hussain, Randy Regalado (perc); Maria João, Sabine Kabongo, Perry Sisters, Richard Page, Kitty Winter (v). 01.
Joe's best post-Weather Report record, this draws on a typically wide range of influences, from African highlife to hardbop, West Coast cool to Eastern Europe conservatory. The key element in the group sound is Malach, who must be the most convincing and inventive reed man Joe has worked with since Wayne Shorter. Bassist Richard Bona and drummer Paco Sery complete the basic equation. As usual, there are too many Vocoder effects and too many long, bass-driven vamps, but tunes like 'The Spirit of Julian "C" Adderley', 'Café Andalusia' and 'Rooftops of Vienna' are packed with atmosphere and not just atmosphere but also solid musical information. At 70-plus Joe is making some of the most convincing music of his career.

 Vienna Nights/Live At Joe Zawinul's Birdland BHN 4001-2 2CD Zawinul; Alegre Correa, Scott Henderson (g); Amit Chatterjee (g, v); Linley Marthe (b); Nathaniel Townsley (d); Sabine Kabongo, Manolo Badrena, Aziz Sahmaoui, Arto Tunçboyaciyan, Karim Ziad (perc, v). 5–11/04.
Reactions to this may depend on one's affection for fusion chopsmanship. Zawinul has assembled a typically athletic ensemble for this set, cut live at his own place in Vienna, and they do tend to make it seem like an Olympic track event. Most of the players are all technique and not much personality, which isn't that much of a problem when Joe's on song, as he is on parts of this marathon two-disc set. But one longs for quieter, more impressionistic stretches.

Denny Zeitlin (born 1938)

PIANO

Studied with George Russell and has since operated parallel careers in jazz and psychiatry, though the latter seems to be the more dominant side of his work of late.

(*) Time Remembers Time Once ECM 837020-2 Zeitlin; Charlie Haden (b). 7/81.
 Tidal Wave Quicksilver 4007 Zeitlin; John Abercrombie (g); Charlie Haden (b); Peter Donald (d). 1/81, 2/83.
Zeitlin is one of a select number of jazz musicians who have combined playing with a career in medicine or, in his case, psychiatry. While a student at Columbia University, he was signed by the legendary talent-spotter John Hammond and recorded a number of albums, including the excellent Zeitgeist, which showed off his ability to marry free improvisation with a strong sense of musical structure. Ironically, he's probably better known by film-music buffs (largely for a soundtrack to the remake of Invasion of the Body Snatchers) than by jazz fans. It's curious, too, given his undoubted facility as a composer, that he usually prefers to play standards. The set with Charlie Haden is also dominated by other composers' work – Cole Porter, Luiz Eca, Coltrane, Ornette, as well as Haden, and two standards, 'As Long As There's Music' and 'How High The Moon', the latter wittily segued on to Trane's 'Satellite'. The title-piece is in Zeitlin's robust philosophical voice, a piece too secure in itself to be labelled an exercise in nostalgia but one that certainly harks back to an earlier age.

Zeitlin released only three records in the '70s, Expansion, Syzygy and Soundings on the obscure Arch label. He seemed to be returning to music more seriously at the start of the next decade. Tidal Wave has one solo track from 1981 – a fine version of Parker's 'Billie's Bounce' – and a set of group tracks made with Haden again, John Abercrombie and drummer Peter Donald. The results are fine and swinging, though it's the Strayhorn classic 'Chelsea Bridge' that stands out ahead of Zeitlin's atmospheric compositions.

Si Zentner (1917–2000)

TROMBONE

Played with several leading big bands in the '40s, then as a studio musician, and eventually as a bandleader himself. He was still leading a big band at Vegas resorts when in his 80s.

 Swing Fever Fresh Sound FSCD 2007 Zentner; Don Fagerquist, Uan Rasey, Joe Triscari, Ray Triscari, Vince Falzone, Jules Chalkin, Tom Scott, Ollie Mitchell (t); Vern Friley, Bob Pring, Ray Klein, Walt Maltzahn, Roger White (tb); Bernie Fleischer, (as, f); Howard Terry, Don Lodice, Modesto Briseno (ts); Teddy Lee (bs); Bruce McDonald (p); Tony Rizzi, Jack Marshall (g); Lyle Rich, Mel Pollan (b); Jackie Mills, Roy Rotan (d). 12/58–1/59.
 Thinking Man's Band/Waltz In Jazz Time Capitol 873850-2 Zentner; Jules Chaiken, Joe Dolny, Dick Hurwitz, Tom Scott, Gene Coe (t); Pete Carpenter, Bob Edmondson, Bob Pring (tb); Bernie Fleischer, Lanny Morgan (as); John Bambridge, John Hardaway (ts); Don Shelton (bs); Bob Florence (p); Mel Pollan (b); Roy Roten (d). 59–62.
 Suddenly It's Swing/The Swingin' Eye Capitol 581357-2 Zentner; Jules Chaiken, Dick Hurwitz, Tom Scott, Bill Peterson, Jim Bossy, Bill Clark, Dick Forrest, Jack Hohman (t); Don Nelligan, John Warner, Jack Redmond, Bart O'Hara, Bob Edmondson, Bob Pring (tb); Bernie Fleischer, Lanny Morgan, Bob Davis, Al Lasky (as); Louis Cotti, Ronnie Reuben, Jay Migliori (ts); Ted Parker, Dave Madden (bs); Dick Whittington, Bob Florence (p); Tommy Tedesco (g); Lyle Ritz, Jerry Giddis (b); Frank Capp, Chiz Harris (d). 60.
Mike Baillie's excellent sleeve-note for the Fresh Sound set fills in the details of Si Zentner's mostly unsung career in big-band music – a top-notch studio pro but a man zealously dedicated to live work with a genuine, swing-styled orchestra. These sessions were some of the few opportunities he got to record one of his road bands. Baillie unsnobbishly describes it as 'superior dance band music', and although charts such as 'Little Boy Blues' give some space to soloists, the band's the thing, and each of these tunes is given a whip-smart reading, the brass sections predominating. Bones Howe engineered the sessions and gave Si's team a beautiful sound, which carries across 40-plus years with aplomb.

Zentner made numerous big-band dates for Capitol which mostly waver between swing and easy listening. It was a nice and unexpected initiative from the British arm of Capitol to reissue the pair of two-on-one CDs listed above. There are charts from numerous hands but some of the smartest come from Bob Florence and throughout both discs the music is streamlined and swinging in the best big-band manner.

Patrick Zimmerli

TENOR AND SOPRANO SAXOPHONES

An intriguing blend of post-bop jazz and modern classical technique.

(*) Explosion /  Expansion Songlines 1508 / 1530 Zimmerli; Ben Monder (g); Stomu Takeishi (b); Satoshi Takeishi (d). 1/95; 2 & 7/98.

A fascinating figure, Zimmerli has the ability to swing in a quite orthodox way, as he does on 'Seven Steps To Heaven' and 'Where Or When' on the debut record, but one suspects that these are included to prove that he has jazz chops, for the remainder of his ideas are quite advanced and unconventional, with lots of bi- and polytonality and some challenging rhythmic devices, well understood by the brilliant rhythm section here. The second record is all originals and written in Zimmerli's increasingly abstract/ classical style. A suite of pieces dealing with the elements follows some of the work done on Twelve Sacred Dances.

(*) The Book Of Hours Songlines 1541 Zimmerli; Ben Monder (g); Octurn. 12/00.

An ambitious project, which increases the scale of Zimmerli's work to a considerable extent. The Belgian ensemble working with him has nothing like the elasticity and quick response time of the earlier quartet, but with Monder on hand and some very good players to work with, Zimmerli does manage to create a piece with considerable movement and energy.

Also, in brief:

 Twelve Sacred Dances Arabesque ARCD 138. 9/96.

A commissioned piece which explores not just human movement but that of the universe itself. Bold and extraordinary but on the borders of jazz.

 Phoenix Songlines 1548. 3 & 8/03.

This time with Satoshi Takeishi (d) also handling programmed loops and samples, Zimmerli explores electronica as well. Episodically successful, but not as profound as the ensembles.

Eric Zinman (born 1963)

PIANO

Raised and based in Boston, he studied under Bill Dixon at Bennington College. Founded and produced the Playground music series in Cambridge and subsequently established Studio 324. Eclectic influences from modern jazz and 20th-century classical music.

 Live At Zeitgeist Gallery /  Eric Zinman Ensemble Studio 324 / Cadence CJR 1187 Zinman; John Voigt (b); Laurence Cook (d). 11/05; 06.

This is the kind of music you might overlook, so quiet and thoughtful much of it is. Deceptively so, though, because Zinman's spare, undemonstrative approach often conceals vertiginous depths of thought. The live disc on his own label isn't brilliantly recorded, but it catches a very settled group going about its business with intelligence and efficiency. But for the baffling false note of 'Little Jimmy K (The White Hipster)', which is narrated by Voigt, the second record is probably better. Some have likened Zinman's approach to Paul Bley's but he's more individual than that.

Attila Zoller (1927–98)

GUITAR

The Hungarian thrived in all sorts of post-bop situations, sometimes with a folkish element, often not.

 The Horizon Beyond ACT 66013 Zoller; Don Friedman (p); Barre Phillips (b); Daniel Humair (d). 65.

* Zoller Koller Solal MPS 15061 Zoller; Hans Koller (sax); Martial Solal (p). 66.

* Gypsy Cry Collectables COL 6178 Zoller; Lew Tabackin (ts, f); Herbie Hancock (p); Reggie Workman, Victor Gaskin (b); Sonny Brown (d). 70.

(*) Common Cause Enja 3043 Zoller; Ron Carter (b); Joe Chambers (d). 5 & 10/79.

Zoller was in his late 30s when the first of these was made. It's a perfect introduction to his sound, clean, warm and suffused with folkloric elements that come from outside jazz but seem to work well within it too. Friedman is an astonishingly good player and the rest of the group speaks for itself. Levels of interaction are impressively high. On the MPS date, he's in sympathetic and brilliant company and the blend of sounds from three of Europe's most distinctive jazz musicians is intoxicating. Sometimes Zoller sounds similar to his compatriot Gabor Szabo, but there's a funkier element and his basic idiom is more boppish. The 1979 trio helped to make his name in America, belatedly. The interaction with Carter is superb on a mostly original programme and the bassist seems to thrive on the unexpected and often unjazzlike harmonies. The Collectables set brings together two sides of Zoller's work, a straight jazz approach and a freer element which he developed under the influence of Ornette Coleman. For the most part, though, it's a lightly grooving session that will appeal enormously to acid jazz DJs.

* When It's Time Enja ENJ 9031 Zoller; Lee Konitz (as); Larry Willis (p); Santi Debriano (b); Yoron Israel (d). 12/94.

Perhaps the straightest jazz album of the lot, but suffused with the sly imagination of Konitz (an old collaborator) and the underrated Willis as well. Zoller seems to be enjoying himself hugely on these tracks and the saxophonist's 'Lu and Shu' inspires a particularly good exchange. Highly recommended.

Also, in brief:

* The Last Recordings Enja ENJ 9349. 12/97, 1/98.

A melancholy thought that Zoller should have died so relatively young and so little appreciated by a wider audience. As well as a fine memorial, this beautiful set also acted as a wake-up call.

John Zorn (born 1954)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, DUCK CALLS

A lifelong New Yorker, Zorn studied briefly in St Louis but made his mark with the circle of improvisers based in New York in the mid-'70s. Steadily came to wider attention through relentless work, composing, performing, and eventually gaining major-label recognition, though this was soon sidelined in favour of his own label, Tzadik, which releases most of his work. Groups down the years include Naked City, Painkiller and Masada. Outspoken, furiously prolific but ruthless about quality control, Zorn has fashioned his own multiple-idiom music, of which jazz remains a buried but tangible part.

 First Recordings 1973 Tzadik TZ 7304 Zorn (all instruments). 73.

(*) The Parachute Years 1977–1980 Tzadik TZ 7316 7CD Zorn; George E. Lewis (tb); Bruce Ackley (ss); Robert Dick (f, bf, picc); Anthony Coleman (ky); Wayne Horvitz (ky, hca, elec); Bob Ostertag (elec); Mark Miller (vib, perc); LaDonna Smith, Polly Bradfield (vn, vla); Eugene Chadbourne (g, tiple); Davey Williams (g, bj); Henry Kaiser, Bill Horvitz (g); Tom Cora (clo); David Moss, Charles Noyes (d, etc). 77–81.

Whatever path you take across contemporary jazz, contemporary improvisation, contemporary film music or any of the advanced sonics, it is likely that you will come across John Zorn. What follows cannot pretend to be anything more than a sketchy and partial discography and, even if the border patrols we have posted on the country called Jazz are now notoriously soporific and unvigilant, some at least of these records will offend purists.

Zorn's early work on record was for a long time available only on ultra-rare vinyl, or not at all. The debut recordings see him navigating a solitary course through the shattered columns of avant-garde jazz. 'Variations On A Theme By Albert Ayler' (as ever, difficult to be categorical about what Ayler theme it is) suggests where Zorn was artistically at the age of nineteen, but 'Wind Ko/La' and 'Automata Of Al-Jazari' offer useful pointers to the years ahead and their obsessions.

The seven-disc set documents his period with the independent Parachute label. There are four principal works: Lacrosse, in its original sextet version (1978) and in a previously unheard quartet format from a year earlier (Zorn, Chadbourne, Kaiser, Ackley); Hockey, played by two different trios, one acoustic, one electric; Pool, 50 minutes of music by the 1980 quintet of Zorn, Bradfield, Miller, Noyes and Ostertag; and Archery, dated 1979 but cut in 1981, with three long rehearsal-pieces as a bonus. These are all examples of the composer-leader's game of system-pieces, the mechanics of, say, an Avalon Hill wargame used as a suggestive basis for structuring an improvisation. While that sometimes oblique patterning implies a kindred music to those of Leo Smith or Anthony Braxton in the same time-frame, Zorn's meticulousness and intensity outdo even those Chicagoan masters. Lacrosse remains a stunning experience, the instruments recorded in glaring close-up, with the leader's squawking reeds in an almost brutal alignment with the sounds of the string players. While the free playing sometimes approximates the feel and grain of some of the more chamberish Company ensembles, the notes to some of the discs reveal how focused and fierce Zorn was about getting the results he wanted: as 'free' as this improvising is, very little is actually left to chance, at least in the accustomed manner of free playing. What is lost in spontaneity is made up for by the often furious grip which Zorn imposes on all the players and their contributions, an element which remains the constant in his discography.

Historically, this is arguably as important a set as any Blue Note or Prestige milestone, with Chadbourne, Williams, Bradfield, Smith, Kaiser, the Horvitzes and the rest all playing as significant a performing role as the leader in what was an unrepeatable slice of New York's music of that time. Burrowing through it some 25–30 years on, we find it a startling reminder of the small-scale earthquake which these performers instigated. Rather than mere 'prentice work, one can often hear things in this collection which echo more vividly than much of Zorn's more obviously 'outrageous' work with Naked City and the like. Remastered with great vitality, bringing the music right into the present, this is a model reissue. Some of the large-scale pieces have now been made separately available as individual CDs.

(*) Locus Solus Tzadik TZ 7303 Zorn; Wayne Horvitz (ky); Arto Lindsay (g); Anton Fier, Mark Miller, Ikue Mori (d); Christian Marclay (turntables); Whiz Kid (scratching); Peter Blegvad (v). 83.

This is one of the sacred texts of '80s New York improv, a fierce, scrabbly set of associations that draw heavily on the power-trio aesthetic of rock bands like Hüsker Dü. Zorn favours the short, sharp shock approach to improvisation, steering sessions that are remarkably reminiscent of Billy Jenkins's 12 × 3-minute-round 'Big Fights', but for the fact that one player is always refereeing and sometimes even normalizing the music. Locus Solus is one of those records that, in one respect very much of its time, also seems to float freely without obvious stylistic or fashion anchors. It's impressively compact but sometimes rather too abrupt.

 The Classic Guide To Strategy: Volumes 1 and 2 Tzadik TZ 7305 Zorn (ss, as, cl, game calls). 2/83–9/85.

Originally issued as a Lumina LP, Volume One of the The Classic Guide seems to have been the first chapter in a sequence of five records, all bearing the same title. There is some evidence that the history of American culture, and particularly Jewish-American culture, may be the history of huge, hubristic projects which never quite came to fruition: Norman Mailer's multi-decker novel of Hollywood, Alfred Kazin's history of the Jews, Saul Bellow's ever-receding Meisterwerk. It becomes easier with the passing years to see Zorn in this company and this strange, wilful record, reminiscent in its way of Braxton's solo-sax monologues though utterly different in intent, feeds a growing impression of Zorn as a jazz traditionalist who has been let down by the idiom rather than turning his back on it.

This surviving torso of a much larger project serves notice of what an inventive saxophone player Zorn can be, a quality which is easy to overlook. The basic material is tuneful free bop, oddly soulful and full of character. The faux-oriental titles – 'Senki' and 'The Moon In The Cold Stream Like A Mirror' – are a diversion, as are the non-Western flourishes, though the material on Volume Two, almost all of which appears on the CD issue, seems closer to Japanese music than the first sessions. This is emphatically a jazz record.

CORE COLLECTION

♛ * The Big Gundown

Tzadik TZ 7328 Zorn; Jim Staley (tb, btb); Tim Berne (as); Vicki Bodner (ob, eng hn); Bill Frisell, Fred Frith, Jody Harris, Robert Quine, Vernon Reid, Derek Bailey (g); Arto Lindsay, Anthony Coleman, Jamie Saft (p, ky); Wayne Horvitz (p); Big John Patton (org); Orvin Acquart (hca); Toots Thielemans (hca, whistling); Ned Rothenberg (shakuhachi, etc.); Michihiro Sato (shamisen); Guy Klucevsek (acc); Carol Emanuel (hp); Polly Bradfield, Mark Feldman (vn); Erik Friedlander (clo); Melvin Gibbs, Trevor Dunn, Greg Cohen (b); Anton Fier, Joey Baron (d); Mark Miller, Bobby Previte (d, perc); Cyro Baptista, Reinaldo Fernandes, Duduka Fonseca, Claudio Silva, Jorge Silva (perc); David Weinstein (elec); Bob James (tapes); Christian Marclay (turntables); Laura Biscotto, Diamanda Galas, Shelley Hirsch, Mike Patton, Miho Hatori (v). 9/84–00.

Utterly remarkable in every way and one of the essential records of the '80s. Ennio Morricone's soundtrack scores – to movies by Pontecorvo, Lelouch, Bertolucci, Petri and, most memorably, Sergio Leone – are among the most significant artistic collaborations of recent times, a simultaneous confirmation and dismantling of the auteur myth. Zorn appears to have been influenced every bit as much by Leone's weird pans, sustained close-ups and frozen poses (where a fly or a melting harmonica note on the soundtrack might command more attention than the actor), followed by bouts of violence which are ritualized rather than choreographed (as they would be in a Peckinpah movie).

Zorn assembles musicians with his usual puppet-master care, bringing on harmonica player Toots Thielemans to whistle plangently on 'Poverty' from Once Upon A Time In America, organist Big John Patton to grind out the 'Erotico' line from The Burglars, Diamanda Galas and Vernon Reid to lash up a storm on 'Metamorfosi', a theme from Petri's La classe operaia va in paradiso. Zorn's political concerns are engaged to the extent of his determination to raise preterite music to the gates of heaven, thereby overcoming what he considers the 'racist' compartmentalization of high and low, black and white, formal and improvised styles on which the music industry depends.

The Big Gundown* establishes the pattern for much of Zorn's subsequent music. It is very much a 'studio' record, an artefact, and Zorn himself has adduced the example of George Martin and the Beatles, or the earlier works of another enormous, alphabetically and stylistically late-coming influence, Frank Zappa. Like Zappa, Zorn appears to trash the very musics he seems to be setting up as icons. The result is ambivalent, unsettling and still utterly contemporary. In its current incarnation, with superb remastering, there are six tracks which were recorded especially for this new edition, including 'The Sicilian Clan' and 'The Ballad Of Hank McClain'. Rather slighter stuff, although there is the novelty of hearing Derek Bailey play on one track.

 Ganryu Island Tzadik TZ 7319 Zorn; Michihiro Sato (shamisen). 11/84.

Originally issued on Yukon Records, which allowed cynics to grumble that listening to Ganryu Island is like panning for gold: seeming eternities spent plodging through muddy dross in order to turn up just a few moments of pure gold. By the oddest perversity, the very best tracks seem to be those which were excluded from the vinyl release, unless it is simply the case that one needs some time with Zorn and Sato before the music delivers up its delights. Shamisen rarely avoid a generic, plinky-plonky sound, but Sato is genuinely interesting.

* Spillane Elektra Nonesuch 79172 Zorn; Jim Staley (tb); Anthony Coleman, Wayne Horvitz (p, ky); Big John Patton (org); Dave Weinstein (ky); Carol Emanuel (hp); Albert Collins, Bill Frisell (g); Melvin Gibbs (b); David Hofstra (b, tba); Bob James (tapes, CDs); Ronald Shannon Jackson (d); Bobby Previte (d, perc); Christian Marclay (turntables); Kronos Quartet: David Harrington, John Sherba (vn); Hank Dutt (vla); Joan Jeanrenaud (clo); Ohta Hiromi (v). 8/86–9/87.

Zorn's own liner-notes to Spillane offer valuable insights into his work and philosophy: his interest in Carl Stalling, composer of Bugs Bunny and other cartoon soundtracks; his Japan obsession (reflected here in 'Forbidden Fruit' for voice and string quartet); his conceptual-collage, file-card approach to 'Spillane' itself; the need for longer durations to accommodate Albert Collins's blues lines on 'Two-Lane Highway'; his overall conviction that 'the era of the composer as autonomous musical mind has just about come to an end'.

For all their apparent serendipity, Zorn's groups are selected with very great care. He approaches instrumental coloration much as a graphic artist might use a 'paintbox' package on a computer graphics screen, trying possibilities consecutively or even simultaneously, but making his gestures in a very precise, hard-edged way. 'Spillane' is a sequence of tiny sound-bites, evocative not so much of Mickey Spillane's fictional world (in the sense of dim bars, lonely roads, chalked outlines on the pavement) as of his language, which is notably fragmentary, clipped and elided, poised between literalism and the purest self-reference. Zorn has pointed to the fact that Schoenberg's earliest atonal works were given unity only by use of texts; and it's clear that Zorn's imagery works in much the same way, with Mickey Spillane's voices soundtracking the music rather than vice versa.

'Two-Lane Highway' follows a more systematic and structured groove, a concerto for bluesman and improvising orchestra, with Collins's guitar, voice, mere presence taking the part of the solo instrument. The final part, 'Forbidden Fruit', is actually more conventional and is by far the dullest thing Zorn has done on record, reminiscent of Ennio Morricone's non-film, squeaky-door compositions.

(*) Spy Vs Spy Elektra Musician 960844 Zorn; Tim Berne (as); Mark Dresser (b); Joey Baron, Michael Vatcher (d). 86.

In some respects a more straightforward tribute than the Morricone set, Zorn's take on the music of Ornette Coleman is a headlong, hardcore thrash that approaches levels of sheer intensity never attempted by Coleman's own Prime Time band. Only one of the first dozen tracks is over three minutes in length. 'Chronology', from Coleman's classic Atlantic album, The Shape Of Jazz To Come, lasts exactly 68 seconds, and half a dozen others, drawn from Coleman's output between 1958 and the '80s, occupy no more than 15 minutes between them. It is these, rather than the more measured performances, which seem most faithful to the originals. The twinned altos, sharply separated by channel, scribble all over the white-noise drumming, brutal graffito effects which almost miraculously preserve Coleman's melodic outlines.

(*) Elegy Tzadik TZ 7302 Barbara Chaffe (af, bf); David Abel (vla); Scummy (g); William Winant (perc); David Shea (turntables); David Slusser (elec); Mike Patton (v). 11/91.
(*) Kristallnacht Tzadik TZ 7301 Frank London (t); David Krakauer (cl, bcl); Mark Feldman (vn); Marc Ribot (g); Anthony Coleman (ky); Mark Dresser (b); William Winant (perc). 11/92.

Zorn does not play on these remarkable records, but all the music is by him and they bear his stamp throughout. Elegy is a suite of four, inexplicably colour-coded pieces. The later album is a set of more expressive and more obviously programmatic ideas, from the opening 'Shtetl', with its startling echoes of Jewish folk forms, to the closing 'Gariin'. Here are the seeds of what was to be a wholesale engagement – or re-engagement – with Jewish musical culture, most clearly represented in the Masada project of future years, but retroactively evident throughout the work of the previous decade and more. A key moment, even if the man himself wasn't playing.

* Masada: Alef / (*) Masada: Beit /  Masada: Gimel /  Masada: Dalet DIW 888 / DIW 889 / DIW 890 / DIW DIWS 3 Zorn; Dave Douglas (t); Greg Cohen (b); Joey Baron (d). 2/94; 2/94; 2 & 6/94; 2/94.

Zorn's Masada project has become one of the central parts of his work. Although more of the Masada music is now available on his own Tzadik imprint, these early discs by the group appeared on the Japanese DIW label. While it no longer enjoys the widespread distribution it once did, we will break our usual rule of disallowing Japan-only releases, given the discs' importance. Even a project like this one, in which the saxophonist often movingly explores aspects of his Judaism, raises questions about opportunism. Why was his interest in Hebrew culture not made known sooner? A desire for privacy? A slow awakening to his cultural roots? Or a more cynical reason?

There seems no reason to take the third course in approaching these records. They are beautifully played, folk themes with a contemporary cutting edge, performed by a razor-sharp band whose stylistic reach is almost unbelievably capacious. The first three, named after the A-B-C of the Hebrew alphabet, are almost required listening, but thereafter the series becomes almost indistinguishably repetitive, an impression reinforced by near-identical covers.

(*) Bar Kokhba Tzadik TZ 7108 Zorn; Dave Douglas (t); David Krakauer, Chris Speed (cl); John Medeski (org, p); Anthony Coleman (p); Marc Ribot (g); Mark Feldman (vn); Erik Friedlander (clo); Greg Cohen, Mark Dresser (b); Kenny Wolleson (d). 8/94–3/96.

Larger-scale versions of Masada's 'radical Jewish culture', these are exquisitely voiced folkloric essays, executed without strain. Zorn's own part in these ensembles is more distant. The music genuinely sounds as if it arises out of the culture intact and without mediation, which is considerable testimony to his powers of synthesis and persuasion. As ever, Douglas and Speed are the most effective solo performers, though Dresser's rich bass playing is a huge asset.

 Art Of Memory Incus CD 20 Zorn; Fred Frith (g). 94.

Freely improvised, but packed with associations from both players' musical pasts. Frith is a romantic and a mnemonist, creating music like an old bluesman out of remembered shards and fragments. Zorn responds with some of his most rooted and responsive playing, and yet the music seems private, enclosed, elbows out to the world. Fascinating as it is to have such encounters on disc, it also seems intrusive. A record to hear once and then file away.

* Live In Jerusalem / (*) Live In Taipei Tzadik TZ 7234 2CD / 7235 2CD Zorn; Dave Douglas (t); Greg Cohen (b); Joey Baron (d). 97; 97.

Any few remaining doubts about the durability and creative freshness of Masada were blown apart by these extraordinary releases. The sound-quality is good, the performances as good as anything Zorn has ever done as a performing musician. Inevitably, given the group's tacit manifesto, the Jerusalem concert represented an emotional high which isn't sustained in the Taipei recording. Even so, it too is a very valuable document.

() The Circle Maker Tzadik 7122 2CD Marc Ribot (g); Mark Feldman (vn); Erik Friedlander (clo); Greg Cohen (b); Joey Baron (d); Cyro Baptista (perc). 12/97.

Two interrelated groups involved here: the Masada String Trio (Feldman, Friedlander and Cohen); and the Bar Kokhba Sextet, which adds Ribot, Baptista and Baron. Recorded over two days in New York City, and produced by Zorn, these are unexpectedly bright and affirmative pieces, as if the coming of Thanksgiving had lifted the darkness of other cultural associations. The trio tracks which occupy disc one are the more interesting. Zorn's writing for strings isn't entirely idiomatic; here and there, there are melodic lines for violin which sound as if they've been transcribed from saxophone, but this doesn't detract from the impact of almost 30 vigorously expressive pieces. Some have been heard before and Zorn/Masada enthusiasts can indulge comparative studies to their hearts' content.

() Live In Sevilla 2000 / () Live At Tonic 2001 Tzadik TZ 7327 / Tzadik TZ 7334-2 2CD Zorn; Dave Douglas (t); Greg Cohen (b); Joey Baron (d). 00; 01.

Masada continue as a performing unit, and these in-concert survivals will delight admirers. If any part of his work defies charges of obsessive eclecticism, it's this one. Given that the group has worked for ten years with a fixed personnel, it's gone as deeply into one area as any of Zorn's projects will ever do. Zorn's own playing bears some scrutiny. He says he never practises, which suggests that his command of the alto is these days down to instinct, but sometimes there is a want of dynamics in his playing: considering the lyric qualities of so much of the Masada book (which now stretches to hundreds of pieces), it's a little disappointing that he plays so much of his own music with an unyielding fierceness, even if that is his notion of intensity. As a band, it's still top-notch. The Seville concert isn't as ferociously played as the New York one, but the latter is spread over two discs, and is arguably too much of a good thing.

 The Gift Tzadik TZ 7332 Zorn; Dave Douglas (t); Ned Rothenberg (shakuhachi); Jamie Saft (ky); Jennifer Choi (vn); Masumi Rostad (vla); Raman Ramakrishnan (clo); Marc Ribot (g); Trevor Dunn, Greg Cohen (b); Joey Baron (d); Cyro Baptista (perc); Mike Patton (v). 01.

Tzadik package this one as 'John Zorn for "lovers" only'. It's Zorn's nod to mood-music barons such as Martin Denny (one track even uses the jungle noises that Denny loved to put on his records), and is handsomely played by a familiar Zorn gang – Dave Douglas has most likely never sounded more lyrical than he does on 'Mao's Moon'. Even so, one can all but hear Zorn laughing inside his head as the music plays, and Trevor Brown's disturbing cover paintings only add to the 'savage' ironies.

(*) Masada Guitars Tzadik TZ 7171 Bill Frisell, Marc Ribot, Tim Sparks (g solo). N.D.

 Voices In The Wilderness Tzadik TZ 7172-2 2CD Steven Bernstein (c); Avishai E. Cohen, Gary Bohan (t); Ben Goldberg, Doug Wieselman, Chris Speed, Glenn Dickson (cl); Marty Ehrlich (bcl); Steve Adams (sno); Bruce Ackley, Daniel Zamir (ss); David Binney (as); Peter Apfelbaum (ts, org, perc); Larry Ochs (ts); Jon Raskin (bs); Daphna Mor (recorder, melodica); Paul Hanson (bsn); Wayne Horvitz, Anthony Coleman, Sylvie Courvoisier, Michael McLaughlin (p); Brian Mitchell, Hiawatha Lockfort (org); Jamie Saft (ky, b, g); John Medeski (ky); Oleg Dyyak (acc, cl, perc); Jarosław Bester (acc); Kevin Mummey (cajon); Basya Schecter (oud, v); Mark Orton (g, bj, perc); Doug Wamble (g, v); Brad Shepik (g, saz); Ben Oir, Steve Cardenas, Tony Scherr, Nels Cline, Timothy Young, David Phelps, Jon Madof, Eyal Maoz, Brandon Seabrook (g); Carla Kihlstedt (vn, vla); Meg Okura, Jarosław Tyrala , Jenny Scheinman, Charles Burnham, Daniel Hoffman (vn); Noah Heoffeld, Moses Sedler (clo); James Gray (tba); Shanir Ezra Blumenkranz, Wojciech Front, Keith Lowe, Brad Jones, Devin Hoff, Todd Sickafoose, Jesse Murphy, Patrice, Chris Wood, Skuli Sverrisson (b); Andy Roth, Scott Amendola, Kevin Zubek, Roberto Rodriguez, Kenny Wollesen, Ches Smith, Susie Ibarra, Mathias Künzli, Eric Rosenthal, Jim Black, Dafnis Prieto, Billy Martin (d); Ikue Mori (elec); Aaron Johnson, Wesley Anderson, William Winant (perc); Vanessa Saft, Mike Patton, Jewlia Eisenberg (v). 8/02–1/03.

 The Unknown Masada Tzadik TZ 7181 Zorn; Dave Douglas (t, p); Wadada Leo Smith, Gary Bohan (t); Sid Gauld (flhn); Andy Laster (cl, sax); Glenn Dickson (cl); Gregory Tardy (ts); Jamie Saft (ky, g); Michael McLaughlin (p); Tuur Florizoone (acc); Yaron Stavi (g, b); Jon Madof, Brandon Seabrook, Eyvind Kang, Buzz Osborne (g); Erik Friedlander (clo, mand); Michael Grebil (oud, vn); Julian Kytasty (bandura); Jim Gray (tba); Trevor Dunn, Greg Cohen, Shanir Ezra Blumenkranz, Stomu Takeishi (b); Koby Israelite (d, acc, g, ky, cl, v); Dave Lombardo, Eric Rosenthal, Ben Perowsky (d); Satoshi Takeishi (perc); Ikue Mori (elec); Mike Patton, Zahava Seewald, Yoshida Tatsuya (v). 1–5/03.

(*) Masada Recital Tzadik TZ 7190 Sylvie Courvoisier (p); Mark Feldman (vn). 2/04.

Zorn decided to celebrate ten years of Masada by commissioning friends and colleagues to play the excerpts from the band's book in various combinations. Masada Guitars is perhaps the pick of the four discs, the three performers each executing solo versions of the tunes: elegantly passionate, songful, this a beautiful recital. The next two are both various-artists compilations, in effect: the two-disc set features such bands and artists as Zony Mash, ROVA, Medeski Martin And Wood, Peter Apfelbaum and the Tin Hat Trio, each tackling a tune from the Masada book. The Unknown Masada follows a similar path by having a dozen 'new' Masada themes interpreted, mostly, by players from the Zorn repertory company, although the man himself does olay on one piece. Problem with both is that the eclecticism and genre-hopping, which Masada itself has avoided, takes over: like the many rock 'homage' albums to a single artist, in the end both seem like a clutter of interesting bands and tracks, lacking the iron will and focus which Zorn himself brings to bear on his music. Inevitably, there are moments to savour on both.

Volume four returns to a single grouping, and Feldman and Courvoisier create what is in effect a sonorous chamber-music record. Interesting to hear, in this context, how some form of jazz rhythm underpins music which might otherwise have come out of the conservatory. The playing is superb.

(*) 50-2 Milford Graves/John Zorn Tzadik TZ 5002 Zorn; Milford Graves (d). 9/03.

(*) 50-10 Yamataka Eye/John Zorn Tzadik TZ 5010 Zorn; Fred Frith (g); Yamataka Eye (v, elec). 9/03.

Zorn celebrated his 50th birthday with an entire month of concerts at New York's Tonic, covering every area of his work. Eleven discs have been released of the music that was made, although thus far we have only heard the above pair. Both focus on Zorn the instrumentalist rather than the composer. The duets with Graves are a delightfully old-fashioned free-jazz blow-out: Zorn reasserts himself as a player in this context with insouciant ease, and Graves is as magisterial as ever. The meeting with Eye, whose association with Zorn goes back 20 years, is much more mysterious, although credit should be given to technician Sawai Taeji, who does quite extraordinary things with Eye's electronics: we have never heard a performance quite like it, and it is nothing like the screamfest which might have been expected. Frith sits in on one piece.

Tzadik's 'Composer' series documents Zorn's work in the area of contemporary composition, and the results tend to fall outside the province of this book. However, for the record, we have heard these recent editions: Madness, Love And Mysticism (TZ 7065), three chamber works for solo cello, violin/piano duo and trio; Magick (TZ 8006), a doomy string quartet and a rather extraordinary virtuoso dance for two bass clarinets; Mysterium (TZ 8018), two chamber works for small ensemble and a charming motet for five female voices; and Rituals (TZ 8011), a heaving monodrama for one voice and ten instruments, originally composed for the 1998 Bayreuth Festival.

Mark Zubek (born 1974)

DOUBLE BASS

The talented young Canadian was spotted by Betty Carter, who composed lyrics for one of his compositions, 'Love Notes', and recorded it with a group which included Dave Holland, one of Zubek's teachers. He writes fluent, harmonically vivid tunes and is an able improviser.

(*) Horse With A Broken Leg Fresh Sound New Talent FSNT 078 Zubek; Philippe Thomas (t); Seamus Blake, Chris Cheek, Mark Turner (ts); Chander Sardjoe (d). 11/99.

Zubek brilliantly solves the problem of writing for a group without a harmony instrument by distributing the horn voicings with great subtlety and by filling in the vacuum with his own strong presence. Both quartet (Turner on sole tenor) and quintet settings are extremely effective, but without a second saxophone on 'Petite Rosalie' and '2513' the sound becomes very spare indeed.

Lest animal lovers become alarmed, the title-track is a reference to the hobbling 9/4 metre which provides a considerable challenge to the horn soloists and drummer; Sardjoe is excellent, a real find. Zubek himself doesn't solo on it or on 'Low Down', which features the excellent Seamus Blake, but he provides strong statements on 'Yes Yes', 'No No' and on a wonderful arrangement of Hendrix's fiery 'Manic Depression'.

Index

A

Aadne, Terje 95
Aagre, Frøy 1
Aalfs, Tom 793
Aaltonen, Juhani 1, 281, 834, 1432, 1447
Aaltonen, Mongo 1432, 1433
Aanderud, Mark 664
Aaron, Abe 1434
Aaron, Dave 280
Aaron, Lory 814
Aaron, Shoeless Henry 1500
Aarons, Al 50, 92, 93, 279, 491, 1304, 1443, 1486
Aaronson, Jack 888
Aarset, Eivind 34, 964
Aarum, Anders 1301
Abadey, Nasar 1399
Abate, Greg 1, 1227
Abbott, Larry 398
Abbott, Mike 746
Abbs, Tom 2, 488, 808, 1372
Abbuehl, Susanne 2
ABC Chicago Radio Octet 83
Abdul-Malik, Ahmed 287, 372, 708, 933, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1165, 1491
Abdul-Rahim, Emmanuel 438
Abdur-Rahman, Kenyatte 1318
Abdullah, Ahmed 2, 74, 146, 571, 1359, 1360, 1361
Abdullah, Muhammad 146
Abdullah, Pharoah 1360
Abdullah, Talik 221
Abe, Kaoru 595
Abel, David 1543
Abeleen, Staffan 3, 674
Abelen, Chris 169
Abend, George 792
Abene, Michael 264, 299
Abercrombie, John 3, 79, 115, 118, 140, 150, 220, 264, 302, 365, 462, 523, 536, 543, 651, 870, 890, 898, 901, 902, 908, 966, 1111, 1159, 1161, 1193, 1194, 1325, 1335, 1394, 1427, 1447, 1494, 1495, 1540
Åberg, Lennart 3, 5, 21, 46, 246, 387, 447, 781, 782, 897, 1206, 1250, 1339, 1458
Åberg, Rose-Marie 447
Abernathy, Bob 943
Ablanedo, Pablo 6
Ables, Charles 726, 727
Abney, Don 229, 270, 490, 491, 654, 736, 986, 1160, 1398
Abodeely, Joe 1025
Abou-Khalil, Rabih 944
Abrahams, Brian 108, 368
Abram, Richard 767
Abrams, Josh 6, 1009, 1200
Abrams, Lee 337, 424, 627, 758, 813
Abrams, Marc 69
Abrams, Max 1190
Abrams, Muhal Richard 6, 47, 159, 160, 419, 655, 778, 885
Abrams, Ray 254, 654, 667, 1198, 1445
Abreu, Al 1262
Abruzzo, Tommy 780
Abshire, Steve 1195
Abstract, DJ Olle 1487
Acea, Johnny 262, 337, 552, 599, 717, 759, 1502
Acedivo, Memo 1057
Aces Of Syncopation 8
Aceto, Harry 415
Acevedo, George 817, 818
Acevedo, Memo 1057
Acey, Sinclair 501
Achee, Lyndon 162, 860
Achiary, Beñat 906
Ackerman, Bob 1223
Ackers, Andrew 622, 986
Ackley, Bruce 522, 1092, 1242, 1243, 1310, 1542, 1544
Acosta, Ignacio Guerra 1431
Acosta, Mike 566
Acoustic Ladyland 8
Acoustic Triangle 8
Acquart, Orvin 1542
Acuña, Alex 85, 727, 825, 924, 1296, 1475, 1539
Acuña, Claudia 217, 267
Adåker, Ulf 412
Adams, Alan 1308
Adams, Alyson 876
Adams, Arnold 40, 329
Adams, Arthur 323, 1313
Adams, Ben 1019
Adams, Bill 1165
Adams, Bruce 8, 82, 415, 1185
Adams Jr, Clifford 971
Adams, Dave 938
Adams, Dwight 232
Adams, Ernie 250, 888
Adams, George 654, 676, 1005
Adams, Gerald 76, 1217
Adams, Jimmy 271
Adams, John 409
Adams, Oleta 1256
Adams, Paul 96
Adams, Pepper 9, 15, 32, 66, 113, 212, 240, 270, 389, 527, 555, 601, 607, 615, 653, 796, 817, 878, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1009, 1022, 1040, 1071, 1082, 1091, 1137, 1138, 1148, 1170, 1230, 1247, 1254, 1394, 1424, 1539
Adams, Placide 1217
Adams, Stanley Ray 941
Adams, Steve 421, 486, 566, 1243, 1310, 1544
Adams, Terry 137, 1256
Adamson, Greg 566
Adamson, Paul 818
Adasiewicz, Jason 422, 1200
Adasinsky, Anatol 853
Adde, Leo 150, 628, 1076
Adderley, Julian 'Cannonball' 9, 11, 12, 240, 254, 255, 341, 343, 393, 461, 678, 689, 796, 798, 1026, 1178, 1286
Adderley, Nat 10, 11, 11, 33, 201, 230, 254, 255, 257, 527, 569, 570, 596, 607, 678, 689, 752, 783, 786, 787, 796, 797, 798, 813, 986, 1026, 1085, 1233, 1254, 1262, 1286, 1451, 1501
Addison, Bernard 23, 24, 42, 100, 102, 228, 243, 423, 430, 666, 667, 686, 714, 788, 1044, 1316, 1319
Adefelt, Jan 781, 897, 1347
Adejayan, Jenny 76, 1167
Aderhold, Olin 100
Adilifu, Kamau 1427
Adkins, Robert 518
ADL 807
Adler, Henry 50
Adler, Larry 1202
Adler, Murray 624
Adler, Rudolph 100
Adler, Stanley 903, 1490
Adnét, Maúcha 168, 212
Adu, Kofi 1473
Aebi, Daniel 627
Aëbi, Irène 855, 856, 857, 858
Aerts, Josse 1203
Aerts, Philippe 237, 519
Affif, Ron 48
Afifi, Bob 595
Africa, Mervyn 1017
Agee, Tawatha 914
Agerbeek, Rob 411
Agergaard, Thomas 121
Agerholm, Kenneth 391, 392
Ågeryd, Björn 785
Aglora, Joe 388
Agostini, Gloria 368, 384, 797, 829, 909
Aguanno, Joe 118
Agueros, Salvador Rabito 190
Aguiar, Aloisio 234
Aguiar, António Augusto 1263
Agulhon, Franck 443, 1138
Ahern, Bob 814, 815
Ahlberg, Marcus 1348
Ahvenlahti, Olli 834
Ahwai, Robert 226
Aichinger, Oskar 447
Aighetta Quartet 978
Aiken, Bud 155
Aiken, Gus 42, 100, 155, 1251
Aiken, Jack 395
Aiken, Thomas 424
Ainsworth, Billy 397
Air / New Air 13
Ajemian, Jason 97
Akagi, Kei 1292

Akchoté, Noël 14, 60, 906, 1124
Akerberg, Sture 46, 126, 386, 387, 781, 782
Åkerberg, Yngve 386, 544, 615, 616, 1030
Åkerblom, Jonas 151
Åkerhielm, Ulf 1327, 1425
Åkerman, Jan 1150
Åkerman, Ola 1407
Akinmusire, Ambrose 751
Akiyoshi, Toshiko 14, 851, 1003, 1501 akLaff, Pheeroan 13, 162, 337, 420, 559, 713, 860, 877, 1060, 1061, 1134, 1196, 1309, 1529
Aksnes, Flemming 1
Akunyon, Babafumi 501, 1250
Albam, Manny 15, 50, 84, 388, 570, 1445
Albany, Joe 15, 50, 953, 1535
Alberino, Don 1338
Albert, Chris 94, 1406
Albert, Crystal Joy 828
Albert, Kimson 'Kism' 454
Albin, Helge 114, 1407
Albin, Patrik 1407
Albright, Frank 108
Albright, Tim 277
Alcázar, Hugo 780
Alcorn, Alvin 16, 77, 882, 1104
Alcorn, Oliver 238
Alcott, Steve 1442
Alcroft, Randy 247
Aldegon, Jean 65
Alden, Howard 16, 22, 70, 157, 158, 225, 226, 260, 336, 474, 476, 504, 626, 707, 741, 779, 887, 968, 969, 1140, 1162, 1195, 1260, 1352, 1376, 1434, 1435, 1500
Alden, Myron 1139
Alderson, Roger 418
Äleklint, Mats 997, 1459
Aléman, Oscar 49, 272
Aless, Tony 50, 543, 646, 692, 752, 1052, 1118, 1445
Alessi, Joe 1424
Alessi, Ralph 98, 214, 216, 279, 605, 696, 1169, 1182
Alex, Eddie 1218
Alexander, Aaron 259, 516, 1456
Alexander, Adolphe 784
Alexander Jr, Adolphe 379
Alexander, Barney 1044
Alexander, Bob 395, 786, 1179, 1283
Alexander, Charlie 17, 42, 379, 380
Alexander, Curby 705, 913
Alexander, Dee 1399
Alexander, Eric 122, 149, 263, 270, 353, 375, 414, 472, 550, 677, 678, 750, 791, 830, 834, 876, 914, 921, 958, 965, 972, 1136, 1209, 1241, 1284, 1321, 1370, 1371, 1484, 1526
Alexander, Glenn 923
Alexander, Joe 328
Alexander, Leon 725
Alexander, Monty 17, 35, 36, 185, 555, 569, 755, 1195, 1392
Alexander, Mousie 196, 258, 780, 1090, 1162, 1303, 1304, 1314, 1342, 1365, 1446
Alexander, Roland 743, 962, 1220, 1290
Alexander, Taru 709, 895
Alexiev, Grisha 775, 1067, 1351
Alexis, Lester 1438
Alexis, Ricard 76, 77, 238, 737, 784, 998
Alexy, Bob 395
Alfonso, Chefa 1251
Alfonso, Ludwig 107
Alford, Chalmers 649
Alford, Clem 407
Alger, Will 355
Alguire, Danny 487
Ali, Akbar 756
Ali, Luqman 25, 1359, 1360
Ali, Mohammed 730
Ali, Mohammed Naseehu 1463
Ali, Muhammad 54, 857, 1294, 1531
Ali, Rashied 19, 177, 183, 283, 291, 292, 473, 500, 520, 538, 1056, 1060, 1111, 1144, 1294
Ali, Rashied Jamal 1451
Alias, Charles 347
Alias, Don 137, 138, 167, 216, 267, 305, 350, 351, 365, 448, 460, 565, 572, 610, 643, 822, 890, 908, 923, 924, 995, 1048, 1133, 1238, 1255, 1256, 1274, 1340, 1369, 1475
Alibo, Michel 943
Ali Khan, Yousuf 1167
Alix, May 41
Al-Jabry, Mohamed 412
Aljinovic, Boris 515
Alke, Björn 3, 447, 1086
Al-Khabyyr, Sayyd Abdul 709
Alkier, Thomas 850
Allaert, Philippe 1441
Allan, Alistair 1080
Allan, Carl 1236, 1495
Allan, Chris 1490
Allan, Jan 20, 27, 46, 126, 321, 387, 782, 811, 897, 1250
Allan, Laurie 315
Allbee, Liz 421
Allen, Annisteen 999
Allen, Bob 397
Allen, Brandon 1413, 1514
Allen, Bryant 671
Allen, Buff 427, 1075
Allen, Carl 36, 153, 246, 247, 376, 426, 440, 451, 474, 499, 561, 569, 597, 659, 676, 733, 916, 1236, 1379, 1495, 1519, 1526
Allen, Charlie 430, 704, 705
Allen, Dave 21
Allen, Dick 293
Allen, Dorothy 1283
Allen, Doug 1313
Allen, Ed 803, 1319, 1504, 1505
Allen, Eddie E. J. 7, 246, 419, 657, 672, 1149, 1196, 1262, 1263
Allen, Edward 1504
Allen, Fletcher 228, 1483
Allen, Gene 64, 514, 578, 601, 693, 881, 976, 1023, 1052, 1054, 1249
Allen, George 377
Allen, Geri 21, 276, 277, 279, 645, 860, 902, 911, 914, 959, 982, 1019, 1197, 1236, 1286, 1363, 1392, 1396, 1503, 1529
Allen, Harry 22, 82, 269, 635, 748, 756, 962, 1168, 1169, 1195, 1335, 1376, 1389, 1434, 1442, 1500
Allen, Henry 'Red' 23, 42, 56, 100, 102, 228, 329, 638, 666, 686, 714, 734, 780, 788, 882, 999, 1044, 1045, 1098, 1104, 1197, 1251, 1283, 1456, 1504, 1520
Allen, J. D. 24, 73, 463
Allen III, J. D. 128
Allen, Jeremy 174
Allen, Laurie 1207
Allen, Marshall 25, 139, 593, 704, 1030, 1355, 1356, 1357, 1358, 1359, 1360, 1361
Allen, Mike 604
Allen, Moses 912, 913
Allen, Mynall 388
Allen, Napoleon 424, 1186
Allen, Nathaniel 43
Allen, Richard 'Pistol' 208, 244
Allen, Russ 475
Allen, Sam 423, 552, 704, 1109, 1110, 1316, 1505
Allen, Sela 1050
Allen, Simon 1412, 1413, 1514
Allen, Steve 850
Allen, Tex 462
Allen, Tom 965
Allen, Tony 355, 467, 1493
Allen, Tracy 50, 1443
Allende, Angel 1262
Allende, Bobby 822
Alley, John 1487
Alley, Vernon 638, 1162
Alleyne, Archie 520, 987, 1084
Allier, Pierre 667, 1202, 1203
Allier, Roger 1203
Allington, Jim 1535
Allison, Ben 25, 129, 564, 727, 824, 1067, 1068
Allison, Laurence 303
Allison, Mose 26, 268, 1303
Allison, T. D. 1188
Allison, Tommy 413, 848, 1209
Allmond, Peck 38, 129
Allouche, Joël 167, 873
Allred, Bill 27, 1046, 1264, 1366
Allred, John 23, 27, 301, 328, 626, 647, 780
Allsop, James 466
Allyn, David 1189
Allyson, Karrin 778, 982
Almario, Justo 1292
Almark, Danny 1363
Almeida, Laurindo 545, 815, 816, 854, 1231
Almendra, Johnny 214, 1427
Almgren, Dan 897
Almond, Peck 645
Almqvist, Karl-Martin 49, 1347, 1348
Almstedt, Gunnar 27, 386, 424, 1030
Alnaes, Frode 34
Alonge, Ray 201, 462, 545, 607, 755, 793, 797, 886, 969, 1071, 1313
Alpert, Herb 80
Alpert, Herman 504
Alpert, Trigger 43, 424, 489, 504, 614, 783, 793, 912, 1210, 1284, 1327, 1537
Alphonso Trent Orchestra 1316
Alsop, William 1457
Alston, Buzz 576
Alston, Gordon 705
Alston, Ovie 724, 725
Altena, Maarten 224, 296, 1251
Altena, Maarten van Regteren 842
Altenfelder, Andy 169, 170
Alterhaug, Bjørn 327, 781
Alterman, Mike 694
Altschul, Barry 139, 140, 159, 160, 253, 304, 717, 772, 773, 863, 1218, 1297, 1302
Alvarez, Chico 814, 815, 816
Alvarez, Francisco 84
Alvarez, Maro 817
Alvear, Alex 995
Alves, Helio 361, 406, 1227
Alvin, Babafemi 164
Alvin, Danny 102, 257, 297, 504, 710, 937, 947
Alvis, Hayes 42, 196, 228, 358, 430, 477, 638, 704, 711, 999, 1311

Alyce King's Vokettes 271
Amado, Rodrigo 747
Amalgam 28
Amar, Ilya 873
Amaral, Frank 83
Amaro, Eugene 967
Amatulli, Vito 1092
Amber, Lian 493
Ambrose, Ari 28
Ambrosetti, Franco 613
Ambrosio, David 1207, 1270
Ameen, Ramsey 1127, 1381
Ameen, Robby 697, 916, 1262, 1369
Amendola, Scott 28, 261, 738, 1092, 1170, 1544
Ames, Boogaloo 1516
Ames, Ken 296, 1460
Amico, Laura 395
Amico, Sal 1085
Amir, Hagai 468, 1525
Amis, Dave 362, 1403, 1404
Amlotte, Jim 555, 817, 818
AMM 29
Ammatuna, Paola 927
Ammons, Albert 31, 763, 789, 887, 1078
Ammons, Gene 31, 31, 416, 596, 692, 793, 1345, 1443
Amore, Salvo 927
Amour, Edward 384
Amram, Dave 33
Amram, David 393, 517, 962, 1019, 1160, 1511
Amsallem, Franck 33
Amster, Rob 427, 428, 1150
Amundsen, Erik (Gard) 34, 115, 751, 781
Amy, Curtis 662, 1517
An, Thai 873
Anastácio, Waltinho 361, 1055, 1427
Anastas, Tom 694
Anastasio, Trey 38
Anaya, Ogduardo Diaz 880
Ander, Rune 420
Andernach, Gunter 757
Anders, Gabriela 822, 955
Andersen, Arild 34, 326, 453, 512, 523, 846, 932, 1179, 1218, 1250, 1336
Andersen, Bo Thrige 300, 1338
Andersen, Erik 1113
Andersen, Erling 602
Andersen, Jacob 767, 810, 964
Andersen, Martin 392
Andersen, Steffen 300, 1338
Andersen, Teddy 819
Anderskov, Jacob 35
Anderson, Al 1256
Anderson, Alistair 1497
Anderson, Andrew 729
Anderson, Bernard 987
Anderson, Bill 222, 498
Anderson, Carlene 1167
Anderson, Cat 35, 55, 230, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 490, 492, 638, 705, 706, 712, 713, 774, 1348
Anderson, Charlie 705
Anderson, Chris 35, 181, 624, 1118, 1351, 1361
Anderson, Clarence 'Sleepy' 32, 1345, 1467
Anderson, Clifton 7, 22, 35, 454, 1235, 1236
Anderson, Don 588
Anderson, Dorrel 32, 1346, 1352
Anderson, Duke 155, 757
Anderson, Ed 196, 999, 1044, 1098, 1353, 1504
Anderson, Ernestine 36, 447, 656, 1287
Anderson, Frank 221, 1398
Anderson, Fred 36, 318, 767, 1438
Anderson, Gary 694
Anderson, Ivie 429, 430, 431
Anderson, James 254, 1516
Anderson, James Clay 671
Anderson, Jamie 532
Anderson, Jay 28, 107, 142, 143, 215, 220, 557, 806, 838, 839, 870, 904, 916, 1008, 1067, 1147, 1228, 1268, 1269, 1325, 1351, 1461, 1518
Anderson, Jimmy 826
Anderson, John 50, 278, 634, 736, 760, 815, 1000, 1388, 1517
Anderson, Keith 649
Anderson, Kenneth 1311, 1399
Anderson, Larry 43
Anderson, Lloyd 1477
Anderson, Louise 1454
Anderson, Mildred 31
Anderson, Norrie 187
Anderson, Ollie 1290
Anderson, Ray 37, 95, 115, 120, 160, 403, 419, 657, 682, 753, 855, 1131, 1182, 1250, 1260, 1274, 1486
Anderson, Reid 37, 56, 74, 259, 463, 696, 751, 972, 1463
Anderson, Ronald 961
Anderson, Skippy 1058
Anderson, Stewart 118, 337
Anderson, Vance 957
Anderson, Vijay 863
Anderson, Wesley 1544
Anderson, Wessell 896, 948, 950, 951, 952, 1200, 1495
Andersson, Bengt Åke 767
Andersson, Berit 378, 1348
Andersson, Erik 420
Andersson, Hans 49, 1087, 1407
Andersson, Hans-Peter 114
Andersson, Harry 427
Andersson, Krister 412, 897, 1237, 1306, 1348
Andersson, Thommy 392
Andersson, Tony 1087
Andersson, Ulf 1347
Ando, Akira 75, 881, 1128
Andre, Vaughan 755
Andre, Wayne 80, 113, 470, 483, 578, 679, 693, 943, 1027, 1028, 1052, 1077, 1133, 1523
André Pasdoc & Orchestra 1203
Andresen, Willy 602
Andress, Tuck 957
Andreu, Johnny Almendra 1262, 1263
Andrews, Dwight 22, 145, 713, 1309
Andrews, Ernie 11, 201, 656
Andrews, Jeff 114, 903
Andrews, Jim 70
Andrews, Lori 915
Andrews, Stan 591
Andrews, Tommie 461
Andrews Sisters, The 395, 691, 698
Andrus, Chuck 693, 1509
Angélica, María 1029
Angelini, Bruno 468
Angus, Robert 18
Anker, Lotte 38, 121, 1223
Ankrom, Pat 115
Anliker, Hans 1125
Anschuetz, Leise 721
Anter, John 1
Anthony, Al 815
Anthony, Bill 173, 514, 544, 1303, 1509
Anthony, Earl 413
Anthony, Ray 395
Anthony, Scott 747
Antolini, Charly 38, 1046
Anton, Art 817, 557, 588
Antonelli, Francis 848
Antonelli, Tony 396
Antonino, Larry 871
Antoniou, Giorgos 627
Antonsen, Jens Petter 71, 1487
Antunes, Olivier 122
Aoki, Tatsu 36, 37, 474
Aparisi, Francesco 1263
Apfelbaum, Peter 25, 38, 76, 1544
Apgar, Bob 333
Appelaniz, Norberto 1315
Appelbaum, Stan 1405
Appiah, Nana 1473
Appleby, Pete 250, 316, 1055, 1484
Appleton, Killer Ray 677, 957, 1026, 1209
Aprile, Gary 845
Aquino, Guarionex 219
Ara, Vivian 1095
Aragall, Ramón 1029
Arai, Bernie 916
Aran, Dan 1495
Arango, German 42
Arbello, Fernando 423, 628, 686, 724, 912, 913, 1098, 1475
Arcado (String Trio) 38
Arcari, Mario 833, 834, 929, 1106
Arce, Alexis 1261
Archer, Bernard 725
Archer, Brian 532
Archer, George 42, 70, 187
Archer, Vicente 561, 610, 659, 672, 1136, 1139, 1185, 1349
Archetti, Luigi 249
Archey, Jimmy 23, 24, 39, 42, 100, 102, 228, 355, 488, 788, 1098, 1113, 1251, 1314, 1315, 1319, 1353, 1456, 1504
Archia, Tom 423, 424, 758
Ardley, Neil 39, 225, 1386
Areas, Jose 642
Arenas, Mario 1261
Arenius, Claire 1063
Argese, Lenny 1470
Argüelles, Julian 40, 95, 137, 332, 549, 1338, 1412, 1430, 1494
Argüelles, Steve 40, 366, 372, 873, 1329, 1384, 1466
Ariano, Amedeo 1268
Arie, India 1516
Aries, Robert 1274
Arkin, Bruce 40
Arkin, Eddie 414
Arktoft, Hans 1347
Arlen, Harold 573, 1446
Armacost, Tim 510
Armando, Ray 79, 546, 550
Armatage, John 443, 467, 475, 1422
Armato, Sammy 691, 692
Armbruster, Sascha 475, 1083
Armenteros, Alfredo 'Chocolate' 1095
Armit, Ian 77, 187, 466, 475, 869, 918, 1460
Armour, Ed 732, 1003
Armour, Steve 1484
Armstead, Joshie 1290
Armstrong, Adam 148, 239, 1148
Armstrong, Bill 1058
Armstrong, Dwayne 1221
Armstrong, Jim 590
Armstrong, Joseph 600
Armstrong, Joshie 1474
Armstrong, Louis 41, 63, 155, 191, 379, 489, 490, 685, 715, 783, 803, 864, 1097, 1103, 1504
Armstrong, Mark 532, 1413
Armstrong, Ralphe 923
Armstrong, Vinnie 579
Armstrong, Webster 275
Armus, Rob 253
Arnal, Jeff 45, 420

Arnberg, Elisabeth 1367
Arndt, Bernhard 46, 1043
Arnesen, Dag 1213
Arnesen, Rune 1487
Arnet, Jan 450
Arnie, Edmond 255
Arnold, Brent 1297
Arnold, Buddy 817
Arnold, Harold 24, 853
Arnold, Harry 46, 386, 420
Arnold, Horace 304, 650, 1246
Arnold, Jack 108
Arnold, John 1268
Arnone, Don 797
Arnoux, Viviane 943
Arodin, Sidney 150, 628, 937
Aronov, Ben 46, 629, 968, 1140, 1141
Aroso, Nuno 1263
Arquette, Les 236
Arrighini, Riccardo 839
Arrom, Juanjo 1030
Arsenal, Lord 280
Arslan, Vern 397
Arslanian, John 1202
Arslanian, Paul 1063, 1259
Artander, Bengt 1322
Artaud, Vincent 908, 1138
Art Ensemble Of Chicago 46
Artero, Patrick 338
Arthur, Vicente 1285
Arthurs, Tom 48
Artigues, Albert 293
Artin, Tom 1315, 1454
Artzberger, Freddy 1089
Arus, George 50, 1093, 1282
Arvanitas, Georges 324, 394, 497, 583, 867, 1394
Asante, Okyerema 146, 1514, 1530
Asaro, Paul 374, 747
Ascher, Bob 50, 413, 848, 1210, 1445
Ascher, Kenny 483
Ascione, Joe 48, 328, 336, 363, 449, 476, 511, 626, 780, 1162, 1260, 1308, 1350, 1442, 1449, 1450, 1479, 1486, 1500
Ascolese, Giampaolo 990, 1163
Ash, Marvin 937
Ash, Vic 776
Ashby, Dorothy 48
Ashby, Harold 48, 354, 438, 439, 706, 713, 1478
Ashby, Irving 93, 271, 577, 638, 716, 736, 759, 774, 912, 945, 1056, 1151, 1458, 1535
Ashby, Jay 195, 406, 640, 745, 934, 1227, 1385, 1518
Ashby, Marty 406, 640, 934, 1227
Ashby, Michael 1008
Asheim, Nils Henrik 560
Ashford, Bob 1081
Ashley, Ernest 638
Ashman, Mickey 250, 295, 374, 814, 918
Ashton, Bob 32, 338, 383, 971, 1027, 1071, 1234, 1248, 1313, 1505
Ashworth, Dominic 467, 532, 991
Askew, Greg 1262
Askey, Gil 571
Askren, Dave 48
Aslan, Grégoire 'Coco' 1202
Asmussen, Svend 49, 110, 436, 639, 782
Aspland, Robin 99, 333, 956, 963
Asplund, Peter 5, 49, 921, 1347, 1348, 1407
Astaire, Fred 575
Astor, Felix 367
Atakatune 1359
Atanasovski, Vasko 1254
Atef, Cyril 825, 1222
Atiba, Babu 1050
Atkins, Bill 1031
Atkins, Boyd 41
Atkins, Carl 1250
Atkins, Chet 203, 1385
Atkins, Ed 1097
Atkins, Eddie 1200
Atkins, Jimmy 297
Atkins, Nat 424, 687, 1066
Atkinson, Alvin 586
Atkinson, Bill 814
Atkinson, Leon 1511
Atkinson, Lisle 110, 231, 325, 373, 971, 1130, 1247, 1351, 1532
Atkinson, Nat 705
Atkinson, Wayman 1026
Atlantic Jazz Chorus 22
Atlas, Jim 557, 701
Atlas Cello Quartet 509
Aton, Atemu 423
Attenoux, Michel 338, 639
Attias, Michaël 49, 421
Attig, Jürgen 637
Attridge, Bernie 1308
Attwood, John 443
Atwood, Fred 222, 882, 954, 1142
Atzmon, Gilad 50, 880, 1211
Atzmon, Tali 50
Au, Beverly 1260
Audino, John 108, 496, 549, 555, 765, 817, 1230, 1517
Audisso, Michel 473
Auer, Pepsi 383
Aufermann, Knut 315
Augdal, Freddy 1
Augusto, Luiz 519
Augustson, Filip 900, 1087, 1335, 1348
Augustus, Rene 1294
Auld, Georgie 50, 118, 125, 228, 249, 364, 417, 575, 576, 667, 714, 793, 820, 1052, 1093, 1282, 1283
Aulino, Eddie 576
Auryn String Quartet 690
Austin, Claire 1058
Austin, Cuba 975, 1343
Austin, Gene 1388, 1456
Austin, Howard 1254
Austin, Lovie 51, 223, 380, 1114
Austin, Patti 483, 1052
Austin, Sil 1354
Austin, William 653, 803, 867
Autrey, Herman 504, 724, 1279, 1456, 1457, 1458, 1483
Auzet, Roland 14
Available Jelly 51
Avant, John 597, 655, 1031
Avanti! Chamber Orchestra 1
Avellaneda, Lucho 1539
Avendorf, Fred 430
Avenel, Jean-Jacques 266, 366, 548, 855, 856, 857, 858, 1301, 1455
Avery, Bob 395
Avery, Joe 198, 737, 1337
Avery, Teodross 798
Avishai, Yonatan 52
Avison, Avo 1460
Avison, Keith 295
Avitabile, Franck 51
Avital, Omer 52, 268, 897, 898, 1108, 1495
Avola, Al 50, 1282
Axelsson, Jonny 423
Axelsson, Lennart 20
Axen, Bent 52, 210, 383
Axis String Quartet 663
Axt, Kevin 850, 1367
Ayantola, Juma Santos 169
Ayassot, Andrea Ayace 328
Ayers, Kevin 315
Ayers, Roy 933, 934, 1032, 1450
Ayler, Albert 52
Ayler, Donald 53, 54
Ayres, Leslie 155
Ayza, Marc 898
Aznar, Pedro 994
Azucena, Maya 661
Azzi, Christian 102
Azzola, Marcel 451
Azzolina, Jay 966

B

B 35, 48, 463, 470
B, Khari 356
Baadh, Uffe 420, 427
Baadsvik, Øystein 1306
Baagh, Uffe 1344
Baars, Ab 55, 744, 745, 1034
Babad, Bruce 720
Babasin, Harry 43, 55, 64, 205, 247, 318, 571, 577, 579, 627, 665, 820, 848, 882, 945, 1119, 1141, 1160, 1189, 1280
Babatunde, Obba 617
Babbington, Roy 27, 225, 315, 358, 413, 549, 1107, 1306, 1403, 1414, 1489
Babs, Alice 46, 439
Baby Rose Marie 686
Bachar, Shai 1456
Bachelors, The 888
Bachner, Robert 1449
Baciu, Ion 49
Backenroth, Hans 321, 387, 449, 631, 1348
Bäcker, Per 1407
Bäcklund, Harry 616, 897
Backlund, Kaj 834, 1447
Bäckman, Rolf 46
Backus, Earl 395, 1093
Bacon, John 1182, 1246
Bacon, Louis 42, 228, 358, 430, 1475, 1505
Bacon, Max 1322
Bacon, Trevor 999
Bacso, Kristof 921
Badessa, Laurie 441
Badgley, Ed 848, 849, 1052
Badie, Peter 244, 1029
Badini, Gérard 55, 358, 639, 736
Badland 56
Badolato, Greg 678
Bad Plus, The 56
Badrena, Manolo 114, 323, 426, 460, 738, 761, 762, 822, 955, 966, 1275, 1352, 1475, 1539, 1540
Badu, Erykah 649
Bae, Ikwhan 1369
Baevsky, Dmitry 269
Baez, Aquiles 1145
Bagby, Doc 338
Bagby, Steve 376
Bagg, Joe 1288
Bagge, Karsten 122, 1227, 1306
Bagge, Lars 126, 616
Bagley, Bill 998
Bagley, Don 595, 616, 815, 816, 817, 1095, 1141, 1149, 1230, 1478
Bagley, Ed 1445
Bagot, Tony 605, 1362
Bailey, Art 775
Bailey, Benny 46, 56, 119, 254, 255, 352, 383, 418, 545, 553, 583, 638, 655, 797, 897, 971, 1072
Bailey, Bert 1114
Bailey, Bob 91, 1355
Bailey, Buster 24, 40, 44, 56, 63, 102, 122, 123, 155, 257, 271, 329, 355, 423, 588, 685, 686, 711, 714, 796, 825, 826, 853, 937, 999, 1089, 1097, 1098, 1114, 1281, 1316, 1319, 1326, 1353, 1443, 1504, 1520, 1521
Bailey, Colin 614, 1131
Bailey, Craig 57

Bailey, Dave 57, 173, 296, 356, 389, 409, 470, 517, 545, 551, 598, 811, 1052, 1053, 1054, 1056, 1398, 1478
Bailey, Derek 57, 112, 160, 177, 194, 206, 296, 484, 559, 562, 749, 806, 842, 855, 856, 857, 905, 1063, 1108, 1109, 1253, 1270, 1309, 1332, 1333, 1342, 1381, 1476, 1542
Bailey, Donald 113, 666, 912, 1090, 1233, 1245, 1312, 1313
Bailey, Elias 945
Bailey, James 1511
Bailey, Joe 41, 1376
Bailey, John 362, 1064
Bailey, Keith 1403
Bailey, Mildred 62, 398, 423, 574, 575, 711, 1085, 1089
Bailey, Ozzie 435
Bailey, Pearl 1505
Bailey, Victor 309, 460, 914, 1475, 1539, 1540
Bailey Rae, Corinne 644
Bain, Bob 84, 218, 397, 715, 764, 992, 1077
Bain, Jock 70
Baird, Eugenie 63
Baird, Ewen 663
Baird, Joe 826, 987
Baird, Mike 1300, 1326
Baird, Roger 1075, 1127
Baird, Taswell 43, 416, 1443
Baker, Andrew 1129
Baker, Anita 246
Baker, Artie 1093
Baker, Bill 849
Baker, Chet 63, 182, 234, 341, 544, 547, 584, 616, 781, 835, 990, 1052, 1053, 1054, 1119, 1247
Baker, Clint 369, 1300, 1308, 1533
Baker, Dave 1249
Baker, David 886, 1425
Baker, Fred Thelonious 104, 359
Baker, Ginger 1460
Baker, Harold 'Shorty' 69, 430, 431, 432, 433, 435, 490, 504, 648, 699, 712, 826, 1066, 1197, 1510, 1521
Baker, Jim 36, 604, 1200, 1206, 1237, 1439
Baker, Joanne 480
Baker, Julius 1000
Baker, Kenny 70, 248, 652, 674, 1414, 1422
Baker, Lavern 826
Baker, Mel 1076
Baker, Michael 1313
Baker, Newman 169, 559, 612, 650, 942, 1145
Baker, Phil 119, 656
Baker, Ronnie 1414
Baker, Seymour 395
Baker, Shorty 1348
Baker, Tom 85
Bakken, Rebekka 1064
Bakker, Dick 411
Bakr, Rashid 151, 221, 559, 1381, 1383
Bakunin, Karen Elaine 1310
Balaban, Red 70
Balakrishna, Khalil 347, 349, 350
Balanescu, Alexander 296
Balboa, Buddy 416
Balcázar, Juan Pablo 71, 477
Baldock, Kenny 248, 987, 1482
Baldry, Long John 1422
Baldwin, Len 295, 814
Bales, Burt 71, 586, 784, 1058
Bales, Kevin 945
Balitsaris, Matt 1315
Balke, Erik 71, 151
Balke, Jennifer Myskja 71
Balke, Jon 71, 846, 873
Ball, Balls 1044
Ball, Chester 814
Ball, Chet 815
Ball, Dave 1397
Ball, Dick 248
Ball, Kenny 72, 411, 466
Ball, Leo 933
Ball, Mick 1525
Ball, Ray 126
Ball, Ronnie 254, 299, 747, 836, 953, 954, 1038, 1142
Balladeers, The 1505
Ballamy, Iain 72, 95, 389, 466, 956, 1284, 1342, 1413
Ballard, Butch 43, 337, 433, 434, 712, 1505
Ballard, George 1030
Ballard, Jeff 26, 37, 129, 267, 268, 306, 307, 365, 556, 824, 897, 989, 995, 1068, 1139, 1145, 1199, 1213, 1238, 1255, 1268, 1340, 1348
Ballard, Red 488, 574, 575, 1334
Ballew, Smith 398, 429, 573, 1446
Ballin, Peter 247
Ballou, Dave 73, 179, 331, 422, 516, 703, 719, 866, 867, 880, 892, 1057, 1063, 1088, 1268, 1270, 1442
Ballou, Marty 810
Balogh, Mike 1064
Baltazar, Gabe 73, 123, 555, 662, 817, 818
Baltazar, Norman 817
Baltimore, Jesse 410
Balzar, Robert 922
Bambridge, John 109, 1540
Bamford, Rick 203
Ban, Lucian 73
Banana, Milton 545
Bancroft, Phil 74, 74, 1188
Bancroft, Tom 74, 915, 999, 1338
Banda, Ramon 324, 363, 364, 987, 1405
Banda, Tony 363, 364
Bandao, Sergio 76
Band Of The US Navy Liberation Forces 388
Bandy, Greg 90, 536, 1171
Bandy, Riley T. III 895
Bang, Billy 3, 74, 317, 370, 444, 722, 753, 896, 911, 1127, 1129, 1306, 1349, 1360, 1384, 1531
Bang, Jan 1487
Bangoura, Epizo 266
Bank, Danny 84, 181, 199, 231, 299, 342, 343, 345, 455, 469, 514, 553, 576, 601, 646, 661, 752, 969, 993, 1000, 1002, 1027, 1095, 1117, 1160, 1169, 1278, 1283, 1509
Banke, Anders 392
Bankhead, Harrison 36, 1399
Banks, Alvin 272, 1030
Banks, Billy 99, 999
Banks, Buddy 1353, 1498, 1510
Banks, Cheryl 1359
Banks, Danny 413
Banks, Louis 944
Banks, Martin 1451, 1526
Banks, Patryce 713
Banks, Stanley 113
Bannerjee, Robin 76, 776
Bannerman, Kari 368
Bannon, Humphrey 228
Banton, J. D. 586
Bany, Dave 680
Bany, John 504, 680, 701
Banzer, Richard 1443
Baptist, Rick 496
Baptista, Cyro 38, 58, 76, 80, 512, 644, 934, 1515, 1516, 1542, 1544
Baptiste, Denys 76, 81, 776, 824, 1211
Baptiste, Nedia 76
Baptiste, Tink 1041
Baquet, George 1044
Baraakat, Nasir 1535
Barab, Seymour 1002
Baraka, Amiri 1189, 1399
Barakaat, Nasir 1536
Baranco, Wilbert 552, 1466
Baras, Yagil 267
Barati, Joe 1064
Barbarin, Isidore 24, 379, 784
Barbarin, Louis 1224
Barbarin, Lucien 948, 952, 1496
Barbarin, Paul 23, 24, 41, 42, 76, 737, 784, 882, 1044, 1097, 1098, 1103, 1164, 1251, 1337
Barbaro, Clifford 310, 628, 1078, 1361, 1406
Barbato, Sonny 1171, 1270
Barbee, William 1311
Barber, Bill 199, 201, 287, 343, 345, 461, 462, 601, 640, 1052, 1054
Barber, Charlie 63
Barber, Chris 77, 293, 294, 320, 411, 466
Barber, Danny 247, 939
Barber, Dudley 248
Barber, Eric 566
Barber, John 340
Barber, Julian 275
Barber, Seymour 64
Barbera, Joe La 278
Barbie, Gérard 1500
Barbieri, Leandro 'Gato' 78, 136, 203, 244, 245, 533, 623, 775, 1095, 1294
Barbiero, Massimo 334, 446, 447
Barbour, Dave 40, 42, 43, 50, 62, 63, 118, 230, 329, 576, 577, 588, 699, 714, 736, 853, 1089, 1093, 1283, 1284, 1388, 1445, 1520, 1535
Barboza, Felix 228
Barcelona, Danny 44, 45
Barclay, John 333, 1412, 1414
Bard, Lola 622
Bard, Michel 1080
Barda, Daniel 537
Bardach, Buddy 779
Bardfeld, Sam 50, 81, 1018, 1068
Barefield, Eddie 218, 228, 372, 489, 638, 668, 686, 707, 714, 715, 789, 1047, 1197, 1353
Barefield, Spencer 1011, 1012
Barelli, Aimé 1203
Barfuss, Gunter 1043
Bargad, Rob 13
Barge, Gene 1399
Barger, Danny 327
Bargeron, Dave 138, 168, 352, 462, 549, 563, 613, 1052, 1054, 1133, 1256, 1513
Bargeron, Wayne 1452
Bargh, Ian 520
Barguiarena, Ed 226
Bargy, Roy 106, 864, 1388
Barigo, Don 570
Barigozzi, Giancarlo 1278
Barkan, Todd 828
Barkema, Peter 169, 170
Barker, Andrew 792, 1129
Barker, Danny 24, 56, 76, 77, 101, 102, 122, 218, 219, 355, 379, 423, 638, 669, 708, 714, 784, 789, 796, 853, 937, 1070, 1079, 1110, 1113, 1400, 1500, 1521
Barker, Guy 81, 137, 226, 265, 322, 333, 362, 824, 1080, 1284, 1317, 1407, 1412, 1413, 1414, 1415
Barker, Stan 467
Barker, Thurman 6, 7, 74, 767, 896, 973, 1065, 1381, 1382

Barker, Wayne 663
Barksdale, Everett 43, 44, 100, 102, 228, 628, 715, 1276, 1326, 1353, 1377, 1483
Barlow, Dale 1462
Barman, Herb 188, 368
Barnard, Bob 612, 1366, 1367, 1396
Barnard, Len 612, 1366, 1367
Barnard, Tony 747
Barnes, Alan 9, 81, 213, 243, 267, 299, 680, 879, 918, 963, 1412, 1415, 1435, 1482, 1487, 1489
Barnes, Bootsie 363, 1172
Barnes, Colin 531
Barnes, David 1430, 1431
Barnes, Emile 293, 1436
Barnes, George 44, 83, 156, 622, 970, 1093, 1281, 1283
Barnes, Harrison 1436
Barnes, John 355, 443, 467, 596, 734, 918, 1252, 1264, 1484, 1512
Barnes, Lewis 'Flip' 1033, 1127, 1128, 1129
Barnes, Paul 'Polo' 16, 148, 238, 1044, 1224, 1436
Barnes, Richard 1201
Barnes, Wade 1136
Barnet, Charlie 43, 83, 429, 945, 1089
Barnett, Ted 999, 1056
Barney, Thomas 715
Barney, Tom 323, 351, 1008
Barnhart, Jeff 515
Barnsley, Fred 652
Baron, Anne Le 296
Baron, Art 76, 439, 593, 657, 1005, 1135, 1256, 1298, 1461, 1470
Baron, Frank 591
Baron, Joey 4, 5, 84, 120, 216, 399, 426, 512, 519, 695, 789, 909, 981, 1163, 1164, 1174, 1222, 1256, 1274, 1345, 1384, 1395, 1441, 1485, 1542, 1543, 1544
Baron, Marc 1273
Barone, Gary 85, 818, 936
Barone, Mike 85, 662, 1517
Baronian, Souren 136
Baros, Julius 921
Barr, Jim 410
Barragán, Fernando 663
Barrajanos, Danny 262
Barranco, Wilbert 1000
Barreiro, Louis 1322
Barreto, Julio 1245
Barreto, Ray 933, 1028, 1165
Barrett, Bill 567
Barrett, Dan 16, 48, 85, 157, 301, 336, 415, 476, 579, 611, 626, 681, 747, 748, 779, 823, 1224, 1260, 1292, 1352, 1434, 1442, 1500
Barrett, Darren 603, 793
Barrett, Mike 39
Barrett, Richard 518, 1126
Barrett, Sweet Emma 737
Barretto, Carlos 366, 1263
Barretto, Ray 32, 33, 201, 264, 338, 389, 500, 526, 554, 655, 694, 757, 917, 955, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1071, 1277, 1313, 1346, 1405, 1424, 1486, 1538
Barriois, Gil 1283
Barris, Harry 106
Barriteau, Carl 70
Barron, Bill 86, 324, 796, 1002, 1380
Barron, Farid 136, 586, 1214, 1495
Barron, Kenny 1, 23, 66, 86, 86, 89, 167, 171, 195, 234, 256, 265, 308, 371, 407, 450, 493, 503, 547, 554, 587, 624, 630, 651, 672, 684, 688, 709, 740, 787, 811, 838, 861, 895, 903, 955, 993, 1010, 1013, 1031, 1108, 1191, 1256, 1280, 1317, 1370, 1441, 1517
Barrow, George 32, 33, 254, 338, 377, 383, 775, 865, 920, 1000, 1001, 1070, 1313, 1318, 1391, 1486
Barrowman, Mike 819
Barrows, John 343, 554, 692, 886, 1283
Barrows, Ron 202, 1517
Barry, Bob 1358
Barry, Dave 82, 88, 320, 1482, 1489, 1497
Barry, Kevin 810
Barry, Pete 1275
Barry, Robert 325, 631, 880, 1355, 1356, 1358, 1439
Barsh, Sam 267, 268
Barshay, Richie 775
Bart-Greiner, Irena 515
Bárta, Marcel 664
Bartee, Al 759
Bartee, Claude 600
Bartee, Ellis 31
Bartel, Paul 1202
Bartelt, Marcus 174
Barter, Sandy 520
Barth, Benny 83, 571, 736, 1026
Barth, Bruce 88, 353, 376, 543, 678, 791, 826, 1076, 1090, 1255, 1335, 1351, 1484, 1519, 1520
Barth, Harry 888
Bartha, Andy 207
Barthélemy, Claude 957, 1098
Barthlow, Al 923
Bartkowski, Czeslaw 835
Bartlett, Tom 401, 754, 1533
Bartlette, Viola 51, 148
Bartley, Dallas 736, 803
Bartley, Larry 76
Bartley, Tom 869
Barton, Dee 817, 818
Barton, John 628
Barton, Johnny 443
Barton, Leroy 501
Barton, Vic 443
Bartos, Jurain 1449
Bartram, John 266
Bartz, Gary 33, 88, 201, 240, 246, 349, 363, 407, 672, 726, 779, 878, 926, 1006, 1019, 1220, 1258, 1285, 1399, 1426, 1427, 1428, 1503, 1512
Bartz, Hartwig 587
Bascomb, Dud 432, 492
Bascomb, Paul 91, 670
Bascomb, Wilbur 316, 317, 670, 972
Bashford, David 280
Bashore, Todd 1406
Basie, Count 90, 249, 417, 492, 574, 575, 755, 758, 774, 795, 1047, 1535
Bass, Eugene 1503
Bass, Fontella 46, 152, 1060
Bass, Herb 1203
Bass, Jewell 1516
Bassard, Isidore 1202
BassDrumBone 95
Bassett, Rip 41
Bassey, Bus 575, 1283
Bassey, Mark 40, 326, 1355, 1489
Bassini, Piero 1470
Bassini, Ruben 546
Basso, George 356
Basso, Gianni 64, 66, 533
Basso, Guido 108, 967, 1084
Bastable, John 883, 294, 295, 884
Bastide, Michel 1058
Bastien, Biddy 423, 847, 848, 1092
Batchelor, Chris 95, 104
Batchelor, Wayne 195
Bateman, Charlie 31, 32, 43, 1345
Bateman, Edgar 372, 373, 384, 463
Bates, Barney 1315, 1362
Bates, Bob 188, 189, 368
Bates, Colin 72, 475, 628, 991, 1422
Bates, Django 40, 95, 362, 488, 549, 690
Bates, Nat 687
Bates, Norman 188, 189, 368, 395
Bates, Phil 187, 672, 673, 776
Bates, Roland 95, 362
Bates, Walter 423, 848, 1092
Batiste, Alvin 96, 253
Batiste, Jonathan 1237
Batiste, Milton 96, 413
Batson, Mark 22
Batson, Scott 22
Battagello, Walter 1210
Battaglia, Joe 629
Battaglia, Stefano 96, 548, 1107
Battista, Stefano di 1390
Battle, Bobby 1064, 1185
Battle, Kathleen 644
Baty, Harry 42
Bauch, Donald 1221
Bauder, Matt 97, 165, 210
Bauduc, Ray 118, 395, 398, 573, 575, 937, 1017, 1081, 1334, 1388, 1389
Bauer, Billy 199, 270, 271, 413, 552, 577, 622, 654, 664, 692, 693, 716, 786, 815, 835, 836, 1095, 1117, 1118, 1162, 1180, 1417, 1445, 1478
Bauer, Connie 281
Bauer, Conrad 97, 117, 842, 906, 1440
Bauer, Joe 396, 504
Bauer, Johannes 97, 98, 177, 178, 179, 562, 620, 621, 1109, 1382, 1440
Bauer, Matthias 224, 378, 782
Baum, Gertrude 129
Baum, Jamie 98, 126, 282
Bauman, Kris 98, 323
Baumann, Christoph 98
Baumann, Franziska 98
Baumgartner, Henri 1204
Bautista, Roland 323, 713
Bautista, Ronald 871
Bauza, Louis 1008, 1262
Bauza, Mario 218, 488, 803, 1095, 1117, 1197, 1475
Bavan, Yolande 1474
Baxter, Helen 502
Baxter, Quentin 19, 945
Bayley, Gary 1490
Baylor, Marcus 1008, 1479, 1515
Bayron, Grace 748
Bazley, Tony 1026, 1146, 1450
Bazzano, Dino 533
Bazzle, Germaine 951
Beach, Frank 388, 577, 814, 1283
Beach, Scott 642
Beachill, Pete 137, 269, 1250, 1355, 1412, 1482
Beadle, Gordon 972
Beal, Charlie 43, 56
Beal, Eddie 125, 218, 736, 1056, 1353
Beal, John 158, 369, 881, 929, 1165
Beam, Floyd 1328
Beament, Ted 919
Beamer, Keola 811
Beamer, Moanalani 811
Bean, Billy 218, 1446
Bean, Clarence 'Tootsie' 1486
Bean, Floyd 1328
Beard, Jim 114, 152, 168, 240, 460, 977, 1340
Beasley, Irene 1446
Beasley, Kenyatta 501, 860

Beasley, Walyer 736
Beason, Bill 63, 329, 423, 488, 489, 552, 704, 825, 826, 1044, 1098, 1198, 1443, 1483, 1504
Beatty, Wini 125
Beau, Chicago 46, 1290
Beau, Eddie 576
Beau, Heinie 576, 577, 1081, 1093, 1283, 1388
Beaujolais, Roger 98, 1211, 1416
Beaussier, Daniel 137
Beauvoisin, Allon 203
Bechegas, Carlos 842
Bechet, Sidney 42, 99, 148, 297, 784, 796, 1044, 1504
Beck, Al 423, 848, 1092
Beck, Gordon 39, 103, 225, 549, 673, 674, 825, 993, 1276
Beck, Gregor 1366
Beck, Joe 33, 79, 694
Beck, Mick 480
Beck, Roscoe 924
Beckenstein, Ray 201, 299, 461, 545, 601, 646, 1027, 1028, 1445
Beckenstein, Thorsten 174
Becker, Irene 391, 392, 1059
Beckerlee, Franz 300
Beckett, Darren 73, 282, 839, 1147
Beckett, Fred 638, 880
Beckett, Gordon 1207
Beckett, Harry 103, 176, 225, 280, 358, 362, 392, 401, 412, 549, 850, 905, 906, 1059, 1105, 1342, 1347, 1363, 1417
Beckham, Tom 81, 1270
Becton, Clarence 587, 1454
Bedell, Ralph 1506
Bedford, David 314
Bedford, Ronnie 104, 299, 364, 510, 794, 881, 1252, 1308, 1474
Bedori, Gianni 533
Bee, Easy Mo 352
Beebe, George 1081
Beebe, Jim 747, 754
Beecham, John 919, 1362
Beechel, Pete 1414
Beecher, Francis 577
Beechey, Allen 104, 814
Beenen, Martin 411
Beener, Oliver 499
Beeson, Andre 1460
Beeson, Maurice 814
Beeson, Tom 614
Beets, Peter 105
Beger, Albert 402
Beggio, Mauro 940
Begonia, Luca 535
Behr, Steve 362
Behrendt, Bob 817, 818
Beiderbecke, Bix 105, 864
Beier, Chris 680
Beijbom, Lars 1250
Beilman, Pete 937
Beinhorn, Michael 643
Beins, Burkhard 1519
Beirach, Richie 66, 106, 114, 890, 891, 966, 1050, 1187, 1212, 1316
Beitus, Jim 622
Bejerano, Martin 107, 676, 926
Bekkos, Majid 906
Bel, Aaron 1180
Belair, Mark 909
Belden, Bob 107, 689, 1137, 1518
Belfrage, Bengt 20
Belgrave, Marcus 21, 22, 107, 689, 894, 962, 1002, 1005, 1074, 1136, 1374
Belige, Scott 247
Belischenko, Sergey 853
Bell, Aaron 26, 48, 107, 155, 436, 438, 601, 615, 634, 706, 712, 716, 986, 1248, 1281, 1348, 1379, 1400, 1536
Bell, Alfred 148
Bell, Anna 1504
Bell, Charles 108
Bell, Isaac 1517
Bell, Jimmy 820
Bell, Kelvyn 277, 1343
Bell, Khalil Kwame 603, 617, 658, 897, 1169
Bell, Larry 981
Bell, Poogie 80
Bell, Vincent 797
Bellatalla, Roberto 108, 359, 402, 870, 1010, 1016
Beller, Alex 1388
Bellest, Christian 1203
Bellew, Clint 577
Bellinger, Sipho Robert 164
Bellingieri, Osvaldo 79
Bello, John 482, 601, 797, 848, 849, 999
Bellonzi, Charles 519, 611, 1397
Bellotto, Americo 1250
Bellson, Louie 43, 44, 45, 93, 94, 108, 229, 394, 397, 425, 433, 437, 439, 492, 541, 555, 576, 699, 707, 712, 764, 774, 887, 1154, 1155, 1378, 1444, 1445, 1478, 1537
Belmondo, Lionel 170
Belmondo, Stéphane 170
Belogenis, Louie 20, 465, 1062
Beltrami, Maurizio 535
Bembe, Voodoo 1301
Bemkey, Andy 75
Benar, Jacqui 1278
Ben-Ari, Miri 361, 1067, 1068
Benassi, Alessandro 535
Benavent, Carles 873
Benavent, Carlos 352
Benbow, Warren 1430, 1431
Benbrahim, Tarik 1402
Bende, Zsolt 1325
Bender, Chris 411
Bendian, Gregg 59, 60, 109, 177, 923, 1128, 1371
Benech, Pascal 1098
Benedict, Jeff 48
Benedict, Les 202, 481, 839, 1517, 1540
Benedict, Marissa 566
Benedikt, Dani 468
Benet, Eric 1256
Benford, Bill 410, 1044, 1319
Benford, Tommy 39, 102, 272, 667, 1044, 1202, 1326, 1483
Benge, Alfreda 938
Bengtsson, Roland 1322
Ben-Hur, Roni 110
Benita, Michel 448, 873, 1174
Benitez, Gorka 477, 1314
Benitez, John 603, 614, 697, 916, 955, 1006, 1095, 1145, 1262
Benjamin, Adam 1278
Benjamin, Casey 658
Benjamin, Darryl 658
Benjamin, James 537, 980
Benjamin, Joe 15, 43, 44, 173, 181, 189, 201, 209, 383, 436, 438, 439, 491, 553, 653, 669, 699, 715, 783, 827, 1052, 1053, 1211, 1219, 1346, 1391, 1443, 1508
Benjamin, John 369
Benjamin, Sathima Bea 110
Benkenstein, Thorsten 1449
Benn, Maurice 294
Bennellick, Tom 1363, 1488
Bennett, Aaron 863
Bennett, Benny 180, 1030
Bennett, Betty 1445
Bennett, Bobby 118, 638, 796, 937, 1316
Bennett, Cyril 1437
Bennett, Darren 1470
Bennett, Dave 711
Bennett, Don 111
Bennett, Errol 1255
Bennett, Joe 342, 993
Bennett, John 72
Bennett, Joseph 343
Bennett, Lou 1397
Bennett, Mark 368, 1282, 1388
Bennett, Martin 961
Bennett, Max 50, 51, 111, 222, 301, 323, 482, 491, 525, 549, 669, 720, 816, 943, 1245, 1446, 1513
Bennett, Richard Rodney 956
Bennett, Russ 784
Bennett, Samm 1240
Bennett, Tony 92, 191, 241, 458, 1210
Bennett, William 1258
Bennie, Andrew 992
Bennink, Han 58, 60, 111, 116, 139, 149, 162, 177, 224, 245, 262, 298, 325, 366, 385, 562, 621, 646, 691, 730, 744, 745, 842, 992, 1000, 1034, 1246, 1265, 1270, 1272, 1381, 1382, 1430
Bennink, Peter 621
Benskin, Sammy 112, 257, 715, 1535
Benson, Carla 1468
Benson, George 112, 208, 346, 389, 483, 719, 732, 768, 1013, 1040, 1313
Benson, Gerald 538
Benson, Phillippe 1302
Benson, Red 84, 397
Benson, Walter 397
Bensoussan, Aaron 216
Bent, Al 595, 987
Bentall, Scott 247
Bentley, Alison 663
Bentley, Jack 70
Bentley, Joe 1171
Bentley, Joseph 551
Benton, Bob 1001
Benton, Evette 1468
Benton, Walter 254, 383, 894, 1014, 1184, 1220, 1517
Bentzon, Nikolaj 95, 996
Benzie, Alan 1318
Bequillard, Bob 356
Berardi, Frank 576
Berardinelli, Herman 1283
Berberian, Jeremy 1020
Berenhardt, Warren 969
Berenson, Alex 961
Beresford, Steve 112, 296, 315, 722, 1124, 1251, 1407
Berg, Bob 114, 240, 306, 351, 357, 381, 404, 651, 798, 904, 1172, 1362, 1462
Berg, Dick 678, 943
Berg, Donald 'Doggie' 314
Berg, George 63, 576, 1089, 1095, 1210, 1345
Berg, Henning 119
Berg, Kirsten Bråten 34
Berg, Richard 483, 554
Berg, Rolf 27, 46, 424, 616, 1030, 1499
Berg, Shelly 154, 878
Bergalli, Gustavo 745, 1347, 1348
Bergamasco, Beppe 533
Bergcrantz, Anders 114, 621, 809, 810, 1086, 1432
Bergeijk, Tom van 411
Bergen Big Band 846
Berger, Bengt 245, 831
Berger, Chris 302, 483, 657, 845, 912
Berger, Hank 981
Berger, Karl 115, 136, 245, 562, 805, 836, 896, 976, 1246, 1297, 1363
Berger, Kenny 1240
Berger, Manny 118

Berger, Mike 981
Berger, Sven 782
Berger, Sy 1052
Bergeron, Chuck 115
Bergeron, Deborah 247
Bergeron, Wayne 496, 850, 1094
Bergersen, Harald 739
Bergeson, Pat 1385
Bergh, Totti 115, 327
Berghammer, Thomas 447
Berghofer, Chuck 222, 481, 521, 791, 913, 936, 955, 1184, 1239, 1245, 1304, 1409
Bergin, Sean 116, 253, 362, 744, 997, 1016
Berglund, Dan 49, 447, 1087, 1367, 1368, 1407
Bergman, Borah 20, 116, 559, 1144
Bergman, Tal 1539
Bergonzi, Jerry 117, 191, 197, 352, 361, 388, 543, 735, 850, 995, 1212, 1362, 1456
Bergsten, Gunnar 837, 1306
Bergström, Jonas 615
Bergström, Mats 378
Berigan, Bunny 42, 62, 118, 196, 396, 398, 504, 573, 574, 575, 711, 714, 1334, 1457
Berk, Dick 86, 119, 171, 251, 324, 498, 509, 1352, 1507
Berken, Darl 764
Berken, Red 764
Berkman, David 503, 1090, 1352, 1484
Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra 119
Berliner, Jay 234, 361, 1004
Berman, Jeff 1076
Berman, Marty 218, 397
Berman, Sonny 50, 199, 239, 692
Bermel, Derek 1229
Bernard, Alexander 312
Bernard, Eddie 102, 1204
Bernard, Ian 482
Bernard, Noni 395
Bernard, Will 38
Bernardi, Noni 83, 396, 397, 443, 574, 575, 1334
Bernat, Miquel 1263
Berne, Tim 84, 120, 446, 499, 605, 683, 690, 1222, 1223, 1270, 1542, 1543
Berner, Ernest 667
Berner, Paul 1035
Bernfield, Ellen 483
Bernfield, Ernie 483
Bernhardsson, Torbjörn 897
Bernhardt, Clyde 671, 789, 793
Bernhardt, Warren 415
Bernhart, Milt 271, 482, 525, 577, 588, 689, 815, 816, 1093, 1230, 1247
Bernstein, Al 1
Bernstein, Artie 62, 118, 180, 196, 239, 249, 297, 329, 398, 443, 573, 574, 575, 576, 638, 711, 714, 764, 937, 1089, 1353, 1388, 1457, 1505, 1521
Bernstein, Leonard 44
Bernstein, Marc 122
Bernstein, Peter 122, 152, 263, 339, 353, 354, 375, 389, 510, 564, 586, 793, 830, 839, 861, 876, 916, 921, 1074, 1136, 1187, 1198, 1209, 1241, 1315, 1343, 1423
Bernstein, Steven 38, 129, 137, 516, 1135, 1182, 1544
Berrios, Steve 270, 468, 500, 572, 610, 684, 709, 1006, 1095, 1247, 1262, 1514
Berroa, Ignacio 195, 220, 1245, 1247, 1427
Berrocal, Jac 872
Berry, Bill 299, 436, 634, 706, 712, 755, 1084, 1139, 1348
Berry, Chu 24, 40, 62, 63, 90, 91, 122, 218, 228, 329, 423, 488, 638, 686, 704, 714, 734, 847, 937, 1520, 1521
Berry, Emmett 91, 123, 156, 209, 228, 257, 258, 270, 424, 628, 686, 687, 699, 712, 714, 715, 758, 795, 826, 1066, 1184, 1248, 1252, 1353, 1375, 1400, 1477, 1516, 1521
Berry, George 96
Berry, Leroy 1047
Berry, Sean 548
Berry, Steve 225, 356, 357, 1399, 1489, 1490
Berson, Saul 620, 885, 1075
Bert, Eddie 123, 254, 299, 311, 388, 539, 577, 601, 654, 656, 717, 786, 815, 816, 877, 920, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1019, 1022, 1023, 1089, 1095, 1140, 1141, 1165, 1189, 1322, 1527
Bertaux, Bob 229, 791
Berthling, Johan 487, 807, 852, 900, 1258
Bertini, Charlie 1500
Bertles, Bob 39, 225
Bertoli, Stefano 535
Berton, Vic 105, 180, 864, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1252, 1280
Bertoncelj, Gasper 1254
Bertoncini, Gene 148, 221, 327, 369, 511, 601, 811, 823, 871, 877, 968, 1138, 1195
Bertrand, Jimmy 148, 263, 379, 380, 820, 1114, 1326
Besiakov, Ben 123, 375, 742, 760, 781, 1086, 1191, 1525
Bess, Druie 705
Besson, Herb 109
Best, Ahmed 460
Best, Denzil 209, 239, 337, 529, 622, 668, 715, 736, 758, 783, 793, 804, 835, 1069, 1072, 1160, 1286, 1460, 1477, 1510
Best, Donald 213
Best, John 50, 388, 577, 1282, 1531
Best, Ravi 152, 1060
Best, Russell 629
Best, Skeeter 705, 755, 793, 886, 970, 1398, 1400
Bester, Jarosław 1544
Betancourt, Stirling 1363
Bethel, Bill 1203
Bethelny, Roger 17
Betsch, John 74, 183, 266, 317, 743, 855, 857, 858, 1134, 1374
Bettcher, Mark 939
Bettis, Nat 89, 1258
Betts, Harry 84, 184, 271, 525, 720, 736, 815, 816, 1230
Betts, Keter 12, 48, 93, 109, 146, 211, 221, 262, 339, 492, 495, 545, 774, 793, 798, 928, 929, 981, 1402, 1467
Beutler, Allan 817, 818
Bevan, Tony 61, 124, 194, 1063
Bex, Emmanuel 906
Bey, Andy 1299
Bey, Chief 89, 145, 695, 933, 1220, 1258, 1259, 1491, 1530
Bey, Sadiq 216
Bey, Salome 1299
Bey, Skip 796
Beyeler, Lorenz 1438
Beyer, Tom 1187
Beynon, Emily 721
Beytelman, Gustavo 223
Bezget, Igor 1254
Bezin, Leah 401
Bezin, Mike 369, 401
Bhamra, Kuljit 1291
Bianchi, Marcel 209, 1202
Bianchini, Roland 102
Bianco, Gene 368, 962
Bianco, Tony 359, 409, 1267
Bias, Gary 871, 1373
Bias, George 686
Biayenda, Emile 366
Bibb, Oliver 798
Bibbs, Leonard 180, 736
Bickert, Ed 124, 157, 369, 520, 603, 967, 1084, 1155, 1239, 1375
Bickford, Bill 264, 942, 1270, 1461
Biddle, Vernon 970
Biel, Julia 1101, 1171
Bierbichler, Sepp 216
Bigard, Alex 16, 269, 729, 884, 998
Bigard, Barney 43, 44, 63, 125, 230, 238, 270, 380, 424, 428, 429, 430, 431, 711, 714, 715, 788, 793, 958, 1044, 1097, 1098, 1103, 1104, 1202, 1251, 1343, 1344, 1445
Big Black 732, 1491
Big DooWopper 1399
Bigelow, Jack 779
Bigeou, Esther 1167
Biggs, Pete 1044
Biggs, Rayse 21
Bigham, John 351
Bildo, Tom 1448
Bilhorn, Brad 1142
Bilk, Acker 125, 293, 296, 411, 919
Bill, Ronnie 884
Billberg, Rolf 126, 616, 818, 897
Bill Doggett Orchestra 491
Billen, Louis 1203
Biller, Thomas 541
Billett, Cuff 126, 269, 884, 958, 1070, 1217, 1437
Billings, Bernie 622, 889, 1327
Billings, Harold 765
Billings, Josh 666, 1388
Billings, Kenneth 1353
Billingslea, Sandra 860
Billington, Peter 1413
Billy May Orchestra 490
Bindman, David 172, 709, 1088
Binford, Ken 1353
Binford, Lorin 362
Bingert, Hector 1347
Binney, Dave 126, 216, 279, 562, 605, 660, 966, 1254, 1544
Binnings, Paul 705
Binyon, Larry 62, 196, 398, 573, 715, 1081, 1334, 1388, 1456, 1457
Biondi, Fred 560
Biondi, Ray 423, 693, 752, 847, 848, 937, 947, 1092, 1391
Biondini, Luciano 563
Bird, Arthur 295
Bird, Rudy 195
Birdsall, Butch 1117
Birro, Paolo 472
Birt, Heather 104
Biscoe, Chris 104, 281, 362, 1085, 1250, 1487, 1489, 1490, 1509
Biscotto, Laura 1542
Bishop, Andrew 259
Bishop, Dickie 72, 77, 1043, 1362
Bishop, Jeb 97, 124, 178, 206, 325, 422, 562, 984, 1438, 1439, 1440
Bishop, Joe 691, 692
Bishop, John 115, 521, 864, 1280

Bishop, Keith 85
Bishop, Wallace 258, 272, 704, 705, 715, 798, 1176, 1316, 1319, 1322
Bishop, Walter 393, 517, 584, 1119, 1160, 1242, 1311, 1502
Bishop Jr, Walter 32, 70, 127, 133, 341, 383, 392, 413, 517, 543, 570, 673, 973, 979, 1014, 1117, 1118, 1069
Bisio, Michael 127, 478, 536, 646, 983, 984
Biss, Harry 50, 413, 1302
Bissonnette, Big Bill 16, 645, 1437
Bitelli, Dave 1489, 1490
Biviano, Linn 483, 693, 694, 755
Bivins, Willie 1315
Bivona, Gus 118, 249, 575, 576, 577
Björkenheim, Raoul 843, 1432, 1448
Björklund, Christer 807
Björklund, Georg 420
Bjørklund, Terje 781
Björkman, Åke 615, 631
Björksten, Gunnar 'Hacke' 1149, 1176
Björling, John 420
Bjørn, Atli 126, 760, 1033, 1479
Björn, Putte 420
Blach, Lars 356, 1366
Black, Big 732, 1491
Black, Bill 849
Black, Clarence 1044
Black, Dan 611
Black, Dave 434
Black, James 12, 867, 949
Black, Jim 120, 121, 126, 216, 371, 399, 452, 516, 517, 892, 1019, 1330, 1331, 1452, 1544
Black, Lou 1075
Black, Scott 537
Black, Seneca 625
Black, Stanley 667
Blackburn, Lou 128, 1517
Blackman, Cindy 128
Blackman, Donald 1530
Blackman, Marvin 19, 1218
Blackmore, Clive 958
Blackstone, Jane 136
Blackwell, Charlie 698, 1104
Blackwell, Ed 115, 129, 135, 144, 244, 245, 246, 274, 275, 286, 382, 743, 908, 1032, 1059, 1096, 1197, 1343, 1455
Blackwell, Martin 1347
Blackwell, Ollie 1506
Blade, Brian 126, 127, 152, 247, 530, 531, 590, 591, 625, 644, 721, 830, 943, 988, 1064, 1175, 1198, 1199, 1213, 1296, 1302, 1423, 1480, 1485
Blades, Rubén 955
Blailock, Steve 923
Blair, Eddie 125, 918, 1414
Blair, Lee 42, 357, 1044, 1251
Blairman, Allan 54, 859
Blake, Alejandro 1358
Blake, Alex 2, 3, 264, 910, 1185, 1491
Blake, Ellsworth 42
Blake, Eubie 129
Blake, Jerry 91, 218, 686, 1197, 1520
Blake, Jimmy 62, 63, 397
Blake, John 7, 1290, 1468
Blake, Jonathan 52, 282, 652, 926, 1006, 1269, 1285
Blake, Meredith 779, 1388
Blake, Michael 25, 26, 129
Blake, Ran 129, 876, 1194
Blake, Ron 131, 176, 363, 569, 649, 965, 1140, 1335, 1495, 1517, 1526
Blake, Russel 1235
Blake, Seamus 21, 131, 183, 407, 586, 591, 604, 697, 700, 822, 823, 890, 1006, 1140, 1222, 1305, 1340, 1423, 1441, 1545
Blakemore, Floyd 725
Blakeney, Andrew 413, 958, 1104
Blakeslee, Rob 128, 566, 631
Blakey, Art 10, 31, 32, 132, 138, 175, 180, 201, 212, 268, 341, 364, 392, 403, 416, 461, 568, 584, 596, 599, 606, 668, 768, 800, 949, 979, 1009, 1013, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1039, 1069, 1079, 1118, 1176, 1186, 1232, 1233, 1295, 1298, 1302, 1312, 1345, 1402, 1443, 1467, 1491
Blakey, Rubel 209, 638
Blakkestad, Bill 337, 818
Blamires, David 994, 995
Blanc, Charles 1202
Blanc, Max 1203
Blanc, Roger 299
Blancarte, Tom 463
Blanchard, John 918
Blanchard, Patrice 38
Blanchard, Terence 134, 135, 185, 226, 307, 405, 597, 776, 1428, 1463, 1469
Blanche, Marcel 796
Blanchette, Jack 42, 236
Blanchflower, Olly 315
Bland, Jack 666, 1388
Bland, Michael 1175
Blanding, Walter 136, 525, 896, 951, 953, 1185, 1200
Blane, John 247
Blane, Ralph 1284
Blaney, Paul 620, 885, 1075
Blank, Roger 703
Blank, Sammy 888
Blannin, Pete 479, 672, 1199, 1206
Blanton, Jimmy 430, 431, 711, 1066
Blanton, Walt 694
Blareau, Charlie 859
Blasich, Pablo 663
Blaze, Ralph 815, 816, 817, 849
Bleckmann, Theo 402, 719, 804, 1019
Bledsoe, George 181, 1219
Bledsoe, Ralph 552, 1516
Blegvad, Peter 1542
Blehar, Nathan 542
Bleisacker, Carl 847
Blentones 1446
Blenzig, Charles 862
Bless, Noah 153
Blevins, Leo 31, 181, 760
Bley, Carla 136, 203, 623, 625, 775, 938, 1369
Bley, Curt 939
Bley, Paul 68, 138, 274, 440, 516, 548, 558, 721, 838, 960, 1002, 1003, 1120, 1134, 1234, 1249, 1364, 1502
Blind Gilbert 737
Bloch, Sandy 1284
Bloch, Sid 397
Block, Al 343, 462, 578
Block, Barry 51
Block, Dan 143, 380, 415, 539, 611, 612, 748
Block, Sandy 1276
Block, Sid 44, 396, 397
Blod, George 884
Blom, Magnus 1347, 1348
Blomqvist, Curt 420
Blomqvist, Rolf 46, 386, 615, 616, 797
Blons, Harry 461
Bloom, Jane Ira 144, 727, 1182
Bloom, Kurt 83, 84
Bloom, Mickey 397, 398, 1101, 1280
Bloom, Rube 105, 864, 1081, 1446
Bloomfield, Michael 694
Bloomfield String Quartet 467
Blount, Chris 295
Blowers, Johnny 43, 102, 209, 297, 489, 490, 622, 692, 715, 734, 1093, 1275, 1284, 1521
Blue, Danny 50, 1443
Blue, Royal 1290
Blue, Thornton 218
Blue, William 23, 41
Blue Notes 144
Bluiett, Hamiet 145, 152, 232, 233, 444, 654, 743, 753, 1005, 1061, 1399, 1514, 1529, 1530
Blum, John 1062, 1372
Blumberg, Stuart 108, 303
Blumberry, Wallace 1446
Blume, Danny 81, 216
Blume, Martin 1429
Blumenkranz, Shamir Ezra 626, 1018, 1544, 1545
Blundy, Gordon 1080
Blunt, Cal 551
Bly, John 295
Blythe, Arthur 84, 146, 152, 365, 505, 798, 874, 1111, 1427, 1530
Blythe, Jimmy 148, 263, 379, 820
Bob Crosby Orchestra 588
Bob Cutshall 388
Bobe, Eddie 420, 1095
Bobo, Bradley 655
Bobo, Willie 48, 599, 633, 641, 1027, 1187, 1242, 1261, 1262, 1404, 1405, 1502
Bobulinski, Greg 1391
Bocage, Charles 1167
Bocage, Peter 148, 1167
Bocchicchio, Michael 1000
Bock, Al 461
Bock, John S. 814
Bock, Kim 148, 239
Bockholt-Dams, Johannes 747
Boclé, Gildas 920
Bode, Erin 957
Bode, Frank 218, 764, 945
Bodenhouse, Dave 1500
Bodilsen, Jesper 122, 282, 648, 921, 1194, 1395
Bodley, Bob 471
Bodner, Phil 148, 343, 368, 369, 748, 793, 943, 1026, 1071, 1354, 1442, 1501, 1509, 1531
Bodner, Vicki 1542
Boe, Peter 656
Boeddinghaus, David 336, 681, 915
Boeren, Bert 411
Boeren, Eric 51, 116, 148
Boeschoten, Karel 475
Bogie, Stuart 488
Bohan, Gary 1544, 1545
Bohannon, George 175, 259, 279, 633, 656, 1517
Bohannon, Hoyt 577, 763, 764, 1283
Bohannon, Steve 440, 441
Bohman, Sven 427
Böhm-Christl, Elisabeth 1043
Bohn, George 118
Boiarsky, Andres 406, 1227
Boice, John 1210
Boine, Mari 524
Boisen, Myles 863
Boisseau, Sébastien 735
Bol 1261
Boland, Francy 65, 255
Bolar, Abe 725, 789, 793, 999, 1109
Bolcato, Jean 872
Bolden, Lela 1167
Bolden, Walter 413, 544, 689, 786, 861, 928, 1136, 1286

Bolds, Kenny 639
Bolin, Tommy 264
Boling, Arnold 155, 628
Bollani, Stefano 149, 333, 838, 921, 1194, 1195
Bollenback, Paul 149, 226, 357, 363, 527, 811, 1057, 1149, 1284, 1322, 1396
Boller, Danton 813
Bollhem, Sven 386, 1149
Bolling, Arnold 1457
Bolling, Claude 358, 424
Bolot 1539
Bolton, Dupree 862
Bolton, Richard 1466
Boltro, Flavio 371, 473, 559, 1159
Bolvig, Palle 95, 799, 818, 1102, 1250, 1479
Boman, Patrik 1306
Bombardieri, Guido 535, 940
Bona, Richard 372, 565, 955, 995, 1238, 1340, 1539, 1540
Bonaccio, Benny 1388
Bonaccorso, Rosario 371, 536, 1194
Bonafede, Luigi 52, 940, 1433
Bonafede, Salvatore 117, 150
Bonal, Jean 796, 859
Bonanno, Giuseppe 927
Bonano, Sharkey 150
Bonati, Roberto 535, 548, 1419
Bond, Frank 779
Bond, James E. 65
Bond, Jimmy 64, 65, 257, 279, 322, 555, 584, 616, 662, 723, 863, 1016, 1142, 1517, 1526
Bond, Tassili 926
Bone, George 83
Bone, Red 396, 1388, 1446
Bonfa, Luiz 545
Bonfils, Antoine 170
Bonfils, Kjeld 49
Boni, Raymond 772, 983
Bonilla, Luis 152, 612, 613, 733, 916, 955, 966, 1517, 1518
Bonin, Nathalie 1068
Bonini, Marco 536
Bonitas, Ray 150
Bonnel, Jean-François 296, 1058, 1500
Bonnel, Virginie 1058
Bonnemere, Eddie 338
Bonner, Joe 150, 650, 1259
Bonnie, Greg 368
Bonnie, John 817
Bonsanti, Neil 1064
Bonser, Jack 570
Bonvissuto, Brian 539
Booker, Benny 1375
Booker, Beryl 209, 716
Booker, Maria 1296
Booker, Marion 113
Booker, Marion Jr 1315
Booker, Walter 11, 12, 13, 86, 110, 300, 313, 546, 649, 699, 702, 723, 985, 1040, 1234, 1290, 1296, 1302, 1539
Boone, Chester 1184
Boone, Dick 92
Boone, Harvey 686, 1197
Boone, Lester 42, 704, 714
Boone, Mike 463
Boone, Richard 93, 417, 583, 760, 799, 800, 1391
Booth, Bill 85
Booth, Chick 705
Booth, David 1477
Booth, Juni 89, 505, 1300, 1360, 1426
Booth, Paul 532, 773, 1325
Booth, William C. 108
Booze, Bea 826
Boozier, Henry 754, 1014
Borbély, Mihály 934
Borca, Karen 310, 446, 917, 1042, 1057, 1298, 1381
Bordeaux, Catherine 394
Borden, Ray 814
Borders, Ben 1103, 1104
Borght, Ivo Vander 1440
Borgia, Warner 535
Borgmann, Thomas 116, 151
Borgo, David 151
Borgström, Johan 767
Borgström, Mats 420
Born, Georgie 1489
Bornemann, Charlie 333, 476, 551, 710, 1113, 1326
Borneo Horns 240
Böröcz, Thomas 1133
Borrow, George 33
Borshard, Jerry 622
Børsum, Ivar 1103
Boscain, Ugo 446
Boschen, Michael 640, 1296
Boschi, Marcello 533
Bose, Sterling 196, 297, 357, 395, 396, 397, 398, 574, 622, 788, 1252, 1388, 1457
Bossche, Karl van den 680
Bosso, Fabrizio 150, 476, 940
Bossy, James 483, 655
Bossy, Jim 1540
Bostic, Earl 270, 638, 1109, 1110, 1343
Bostic, Ernest 983
Bostick, Juewet 89
Boston, Jonny 961
Boston, Steve 730
Boston Percussion Ensemble 1219
Bostrom, Anders 1480
Boström, Jan 1149
Boswell, Bob 894, 1219
Boswell, Connee 1284
Boswell, Gordon 848, 849, 1188
Both, Christian 590
Bothén, Christer 245
Bothwell, Johnny 552, 848, 1092, 1188
Botkin, Perry 180, 1066, 1388
Botschinsky, Allan 52, 126, 393, 583, 760, 799, 818, 838, 897, 1479, 1502
Botten, Russell 427
Botterill, Jack 652
Botti, Paolo 1092
Botti, Robert 909
Botton, Lewis 228
Boublitz, Bill 924
Boucaya, William 65, 272, 1398
Bouchety, Jean 209, 254, 562, 1498
Bouchon, Lester 556
Boudreaux, Jeff 943
Boukouya, Marc 1266
Bould, Miles 1180, 1285
Boulware, Will 798
Bourelly, Jean-Paul 7, 351, 792
Bourgeois, V. J. 502
Bourgeyx, Vincent 144
Bourguignon, José 1397
Bourjois, Bill 150
Bourne, Dougie 777
Bourne, Eddie 489
Bourne, Stan 1190
Bover, Albert 40, 820
Bowden, Colin 294, 295, 336, 367, 443, 869, 883, 919, 961, 1043
Bowden, Norman 125
Bowden, Ron 72, 77, 78, 293, 294, 316
Bowen, Bill 999
Bowen, Bob 839, 1228
Bowen, Bob III 1481
Bowen, Charles 424
Bowen, Claude 395, 397, 763, 764, 1282
Bowen, Greg 674, 1386, 1488
Bowen, Lyle 1282, 1283
Bowen, Mwata 464
Bowen, Ralph 151, 463, 785, 1158
Bower, Laurie 520
Bower, Phil 1221
Bowers, Gil 779, 937, 1388
Bowie, Joseph 152, 444, 910, 1182
Bowie, Lester 46, 47, 152, 232, 874, 1011, 1062, 1290, 1309, 1399
Bowie, Michael 219, 895, 1050, 1051, 1335, 1512
Bowker, Billy 154
Bowler, Phil 659, 947, 950
Bowles, Russell 912, 913
Bowling, Ray 1044
Bowman, Babe 937, 1282
Bowman, Bob 778, 939, 940
Bowman, Carl 287
Bowman, Dave 43, 99, 101, 424, 504, 588, 622, 715, 889, 937, 947, 1327
Bowman, Dean 152, 197, 214, 216, 1461
Bowman, John 106
Bown, Patti 32, 793, 797, 1031, 1246, 1248
Bowne, Dougie 1515
Bowskill, Damien 480
Boyd, B. 693
Boyd, Emmanuel 1285
Boyd, Jimmy 1030, 1031
Boyd, Nelson 340, 528, 553, 554, 571, 596, 668, 899, 985, 1014, 1020, 1069, 1115, 1219, 1345
Boyd, Ollie 398
Boyd, Roger 671
Boyd, Wayne 971, 972
Boyer, Anita 397, 1283
Boyer, Elwood 542
Boyer, Jo 1204
Boykin, David 1009
Boykins, Ronnie 86, 112, 183, 377, 724, 828, 856, 1355, 1356, 1357, 1359
Boyko, Rabecca 1064
Boyle, Gary 750, 1524
Boys Choir of Harlem 202
Boze, Calvin 760
Bozulich, Carla 28
Braat, Adrie 411
Braber, Hans 541
Brackeen, Charles 2, 152, 571, 1048, 1127
Brackeen, JoAnne 153, 546, 733, 974, 1395
Bracken, Warren 416
Brackett, Jay 884
Braddy, Pauline 748
Braden, Don 153, 175, 195, 1169, 1171, 1172, 1209, 1484
Brader, Ed 1353
Bradfield, Polly 1127, 1542
Bradford, Bobby 154, 233, 261, 275, 370, 559, 566, 631
Bradford, Carmen 154
Bradford, Kirkland 913
Bradford, Perry 155, 788, 1319
Bradley, Alan 961
Bradley, Allan 869
Bradley, Bill 1025
Bradley, Joe 1026
Bradley, Julius 1334
Bradley, Junior 514
Bradley, Mike 453
Bradley, Nita 1282
Bradley, Oscar 228, 736, 1316, 1353, 1376
Bradley, Ruth 118
Bradley, Will 297, 424, 578, 1093, 1283, 1334, 1443
Bradley, Will Jr 1093
Bradshaw, Tiny 155
Brady, Floyd 488, 705, 724, 999, 1184, 1521
Brady, Geoff 485
Brady, Willard 83

Brækhus, Stein Inge 742
Braekke, Øyvind 1279
Braff, Ruby 155, 372, 578, 601, 626, 708, 1252, 1365, 1366
Braga, Paulo 214, 406, 426, 1057, 1169
Brahem, Anouar 524
Brainin, Peter 1095, 1247
Braithwaite, Flame 1259
Brake, Brian 361, 414, 1008
Bralove, Bob 1310
Bramböck, Florian 1449
Bramerie, Thomas 122, 171, 1138, 1166, 1270
Bramwell, Bill 187, 466, 918, 1055, 1476
Brancato, Ted 195
Branciamore, Francesco 1092
Brand, Dollar aka Abdullah Ibrahim 78
Brand, Gail 481, 915, 1309
Brandão, Sergio 934, 1057
Brandes, Åke 427
Brandford, Jay 380, 775, 892, 964, 1214, 1517
Brandgård, Hans 1149
Brandom, Dave 247
Brandon, Joel 7, 767
Brandon, Kevin 1239
Brandt, David 421
Brandt, Mette 938
Brandt, Per Aage 1338
Brandt, Peter 410
Brandt-Sigursson, Gunnar 420
Brannon, Humphrey 209
Brannon, Ted 424, 596, 648, 699, 712, 1467
Branscombe, Alan 248, 407, 570, 632, 672, 981, 1386, 1414
Branson, Bruce 397
Brantley, Sid 388, 847
Brashear, George 685
Brashear, Oscar 92, 93, 259, 323, 871, 1304, 1517
Brassfield, Don 423, 848, 1092
Brassfield, Herschel 155, 410, 1319
Braud, Mark 1496
Braud, Wellman 40, 42, 100, 101, 102, 428, 429, 711, 784, 1044, 1045, 1086, 1104, 1109, 1252, 1331, 1343, 1344
Braufman, Alan 137, 1067
Braugham, Charles 680, 1400
Braun, Johanne 1043
Braune, Buggy 1461
Bravo, Hernando 849
Bravo, Sonny 550
Brawn, Robert 1210
Braxton, Anthony 6, 57, 116, 159, 183, 253, 296, 325, 464, 636, 717, 767, 906, 1088, 1221, 1297, 1311
Bray, Jim 77, 78, 293, 294, 915, 918, 1422
Bray, Nathan 1412
Brazel, Gerald 152
Brazil, Joe 291, 1031
Brazlee, Harrison 293
Breakstone, Joshua 167
Breaux, McNeal 148, 200, 311, 645
Brechtlein, Tom 305, 924
Breckenridge, Dardanelle 638
Breckenridge, Paul 999
Brecker, Michael 3, 66, 167, 168, 192, 240, 264, 302, 305, 307, 426, 448, 520, 610, 625, 643, 644, 793, 844, 992, 994, 1086, 1133, 1158, 1173, 1212, 1245, 1255, 1256, 1299, 1340, 1390, 1427, 1472, 1494
Brecker, Randy 115, 149, 168, 237, 240, 264, 303, 380, 381, 426, 448, 460, 481, 483, 520, 551, 565, 610, 775, 822, 851, 914, 934, 939, 955, 966, 969, 1005, 1006, 1008, 1063, 1086, 1133, 1138, 1255, 1256, 1274, 1299, 1351, 1385, 1452, 1468, 1486
Brederode, Wolfert 2, 169
Breedlove, Nathan 242, 1033
Breen, Barry 51
Breen, Bobby 77
Breen, Joseph 1353
Breen, Larry 577
Breeze, Eric 70, 248
Bregman, Buddy 1093
Brehm, Alvin 886
Brehm, Simon 46, 386, 562, 615, 616, 631, 664, 797, 1149, 1302, 1344
Breidis, Vic 573
Breinschmid, Georg 800, 1110, 1449
Breit, Gary 1515
Breit, Kevin 76, 197, 1515, 1516
Bremen Philharmonic Strings 1228
Brennan, Dave 295
Brennan, Dick 674
Brennan, John Wolf 371, 391, 1110
Brennan, Patrick 169
Brent, Johnny 1058
Brereton, Clarence 99, 101, 826, 1443
Bresano, Modesto 765
Breslin, Paul 719
Breslow, Lennie 672
Bret, Alix 497, 796, 859
Breuer, Hermann 119
Breuer-Capri, Hermann 38
Breuker, Willem 119, 169, 177, 562, 636, 997
Brewer, Christian 182
Brewer, Matt 1106, 1211, 1245
Brewer, Mike 1490
Breyère, Josse 1202
Brice, Percy 228, 229, 394, 582, 1160, 1286, 1379
Briceno, Rolando Napoleon 1095
Bridge, Paul 281, 918, 919
Bridges, Henry 736, 880
Bridges, Lucious 1164
Bridgewater, Cecil 7, 170, 236, 353, 501, 743, 914, 1220, 1221, 1299
Bridgewater, Dee Dee 170, 185, 234
Bridgewater, Ron 1399, 1426
Briggs, Arthur 667
Briggs, Bill 818
Briggs, Bunny 84, 437
Briggs, Pete 41
Bright, Dalbert 31, 687, 1114
Bright, Larry 1359
Bright, Ronnell 279, 669, 1277
Brighton, Ian 1333
Briglia, Tony 42, 62, 236
Brignola, Nick 171, 791, 939, 1227
Brilhart, Arnold 398, 864, 1081, 1388, 1446
Brillinger, Jeff 67, 68, 694, 881, 967, 1141, 1480
Brimfield, Billy 36, 37, 767, 1050, 1150
Bringolf, Serge 1133
Brink, Han 411
Brinker, Ray 850, 889, 939, 955, 1094, 1367
Brinkley, Kent 1425
Brinson, Ted 826
Brion, John 989
Brisbois, Bud 662, 817
Brisbois, Wilbur 642
Briscoe, Ted 1535
Briscoe, Walter 1044
Brisenio, Modesto 418
Briseno, Modesto 1540
Brisker, Gordon 693
Brister, William 1358
Bristow, Dave 549
Britton, Joe 228, 671, 705, 999, 1045, 1353
Britz, Howard 775, 1171
Britz, Mike 680
Brno 1539
Bro, Jakob 375, 1049
Broadbent, Alan 172, 623, 624, 694, 726, 727, 839, 982
Broadnax, Dwayne 926
Broberg, Bosse 5, 46, 300, 387, 781, 782
Brochet, Bruno 1525
Brock, Herbie 172
Brock, Jeff 751
Brock, Zach 1171
Brocklehurst, Brian 187, 918
Brockman, Gail 31, 416, 687, 1443
Brockman, Hilton 1081
Brodbeck, Jean-Paul 1264
Brodda, Claes 1149, 1354
Brodely, Rae 987
Brodis, Wallace 705
Brodrick, Dean 301
Brodsky, Irving 398, 494, 573, 864, 900, 1081, 1252, 1433, 1446
Brofsky, Alex 352, 630
Broiles, Melvyn 886
Brolund, Stefan 1250
Bromberg, Brian 172, 546, 727
Bromley, Tommy 70
Brondel, Laurent 1452
Brönner, Till 1057
Bronson, Melvin 308
Broo, Magnus 5, 172, 487, 1087, 1347, 1348, 1458, 1459
Broockman, Bob 1217
Brook, Paige 1000, 1001
Brooker, Frank 1314, 1512
Brookins, Tommy 1114
Brooklyn Sax Quartet 172
Brookmeyer, Bob 5, 15, 64, 173, 203, 268, 426, 514, 544, 545, 557, 752, 943, 1024, 1052, 1053, 1054, 1094, 1159, 1160, 1249, 1252, 1280, 1303, 1394
Brooks, Arthur 378
Brooks, Beverley 1445
Brooks, Billy 1029
Brooks III, Cecil 147, 154, 175, 617, 700, 860, 1171, 1200, 1461, 1503
Brooks, Cedric 776
Brooks, Dave 680
Brooks, Detroit 1496
Brooks, Dudley 249, 575
Brooks, Duke 418, 431
Brooks, George 1310
Brooks, Harry 99, 101
Brooks, Harvey 41, 347, 1104
Brooks, Juanita 1496
Brooks, Mark 1496
Brooks, Mickey 564
Brooks, Nick 913
Brooks, Randy 489
Brooks, Ray 207
Brooks, Roy 66, 175, 582, 670, 743, 867, 985, 1009, 1247, 1277, 1286, 1299, 1346, 1375
Brooks Jr, Roy 867
Brooks, Stella 1316
Brooks, Stuart 1250, 1364, 1412, 1487, 1489, 1490
Brooks, Tim 480
Brooks, Tina 175, 201, 731, 979, 1312
Broom, Bobby 176, 323, 362, 414
Broom, Kenneth 561
Broonzy, Big Bill 209
Brostedt, Olle 1354
Broström, Håkan 5, 176, 1087, 1458

Brotherhood Of Breath 176
Brötzmann, Peter 116, 151, 176, 559, 560, 562, 621, 842, 906, 1126, 1265, 1270, 1381, 1382
Brou, Steve 150, 937
Brousseau, Paul 1131, 1273
Browden, Marlon 37, 52, 179, 1106
Brown, Abbie 1093
Brown, Ada 1458
Brown, Alfred 867, 1539
Brown, Andrew 218, 219, 711
Brown, Anthony 765, 959
Brown, Archie 687
Brown, Ari 6, 152, 162, 179, 444, 1050, 1399
Brown, Ashley 281
Brown, Bam 1120
Brown, Ben 606, 679, 914
Brown, Benjamin Franklin 555
Brown, Bert 1150
Brown, Billy 1137, 1522
Brown, Boots 557
Brown, Boyce 1076
Brown, Bundy K. 60
Brown, Cameron 73, 90, 129, 179, 321, 804, 846, 909, 1197, 1213, 1250, 1291, 1306, 1307, 1433, 1442
Brown, Carl 855
Brown, Chris 191, 969, 1092, 1243, 1329, 1330
Brown, Clarence 'Gatemouth' 262
Brown, Cleo 180
Brown, Clifford 132, 180, 386, 786, 993, 1219, 1232, 1443, 1467, 1535
Brown, Clyde 815
Brown, Damon 182
Brown, Dean 80, 240, 460, 1256, 1540
Brown, Deborah 914
Brown, Delmar 352, 462, 958, 1133
Brown, Donald 134, 154, 414, 1026, 1071
Brown, Ed 912
Brown, Eddie 528, 779, 1326
Brown, Edgar 432, 1506
Brown, Elmer 1133, 1399
Brown, Everald 324
Brown, Everett Jr 1373
Brown Jr, Everett 319
Brown, Frank 1346
Brown, Fred 1201
Brown, Garnett 54, 113, 202, 264, 323, 389, 419, 450, 555, 641, 642, 655, 656, 871, 969, 1015, 1138, 1249, 1318
Brown, George 'Funky' 32, 202, 911, 1026, 1301
Brown, Guillermo E. 221, 183, 200, 752, 886, 1129, 1196, 1294, 1464, 1465
Brown, Harry 76, 776, 824, 918
Brown, Henry 'Pucho' 1315
Brown, Hilliard 431, 432
Brown, Ida G. 1167
Brown, Irving 'Skinny' 1264
Brown, Jaimeo 1374
Brown, Jason Evan 830, 915
Brown, Jeremy 103, 531, 825, 1180, 1190, 1308
Brown, Jeri 183
Brown, Jesse 43, 1109
Brown, Joe 1184
Brown, John 43, 254, 553, 736, 758, 1316
Brown, Justin 556
Brown, Kay 816
Brown, Kirk 179, 1399
Brown, L. 118
Brown, Lawrence 41, 156, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 435, 436, 437, 438, 492, 638, 699, 705, 706, 711, 712, 713, 774, 780, 795, 1248, 1343, 1344, 1348
Brown, Lee 705
Brown, Lefferts 249
Brown, Leon 'Kid Chocolate' 1237
Brown, Lonnie 685
Brown, Lorenzo 107
Brown, Maggie 895
Brown, Marion 183, 291, 637, 1289, 1290
Brown, Marshall 836, 1252
Brown, Matthew 1360
Brown, Maurice 357, 506, 1002
Brown, Mel 971, 1450, 1507
Brown, Norman 248, 1322
Brown, Norrie 992
Brown, Odell 1346
Brown, Oscar 'Bobo' 1050
Brown Jr, Owen 1360
Brown, Patti 272
Brown, Paul 127, 162, 649
Brown, Pete 56, 183, 413, 477, 668, 680, 736, 947, 1078, 1086, 1275, 1319, 1353, 1400
Brown, Phil 1228
Brown, Pud 1104
Brown, Ralph 1201
Brown, Ray 10, 17, 36, 44, 45, 89, 93, 170, 184, 199, 229, 329, 339, 360, 418, 424, 425, 439, 442, 458, 469, 470, 482, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 511, 540, 544, 545, 552, 553, 555, 592, 639, 656, 662, 666, 668, 699, 712, 716, 755, 774, 786, 787, 794, 796, 818, 821, 841, 843, 849, 854, 945, 965, 970, 1014, 1026, 1037, 1072, 1073, 1093, 1095, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1131, 1143, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1157, 1162, 1176, 1181, 1225, 1233, 1287, 1346, 1392, 1402, 1444, 1445, 1478, 1536, 1537
Brown, Raymond 93, 492
Brown, Reuben 186
Brown, Rob 186, 373, 376, 421, 1041, 1127, 1128, 1129, 1293, 1298, 1421
Brown, Ron 75, 593
Brown, Ronnie 1360
Brown, Russell 763, 764, 1282
Brown, Sam 136, 204, 457, 623, 768, 1047, 1138
Brown, Sandy 187, 466
Brown, Scoville 42, 257, 736, 1443
Brown, Sidney 379, 784, 882, 1041, 1210
Brown, Sonny 194, 827, 828, 829, 1541
Brown, Steve 82, 106, 196, 197, 260, 311, 374, 375, 533, 635, 636, 814, 820, 864, 929, 1077, 1112, 1185, 1389, 1407, 1487
Brown, Stuart 561, 820
Brown, Ted 187, 839, 953
Brown, Terrence 1173
Brown, Terry 1422
Brown, Tiny 1115
Brown, Treg 1388
Brown, Tyrone 200, 866, 957, 1172, 1173, 1221, 1468
Brown, Vernell 530, 871
Brown, Vernon 297, 574, 575, 576, 578, 763, 780, 1056, 1283, 1327
Brown, Walter 987
Brown, Wes 709, 1309, 1311
Brown, Willard 43, 228, 229, 1311, 1353
Brown, William 502
Brown, Wini 638
Browne, Dalton 18
Browne, Glen 18
Browne, Scoville 257, 1521
Brubeck, Chris 191, 192, 193
Brubeck, Danny 191, 192, 193
Brubeck, Darius 191, 192, 193
Brubeck, Dave 182, 188, 368, 982, 1055
Brubeck, Matthew 192, 193
Bruce, Harold 987
Bruce, Jack 39, 136, 549, 680, 938, 939, 1386
Bruce, Marion 1391
Bruckmann, Kyle 421, 604
Bruckner, Kai 590, 1057
Bruel, Max 126
Bruise 193
Brun, Philippe 1202, 1203
Bruna, Dario 334, 335
Brunborg, Tore 34, 71, 265, 915, 1407
Brunel, Bunny 305
Brunel, Nani Villa 305
Bruner, Stuart 764
Brunies, Abbie 16, 150, 293, 1114
Brunies, Albert 628
Brunies, George 102, 105, 125, 150, 297, 622, 710, 711, 888, 937, 947, 1075, 1327, 1328
Brüninghaus, Rainer 524, 1476, 1477
Brunious, John 76
Brunious, Wendell 78, 1070, 1500
Brunner, Eddie 272
Bruno, Daniel Garcia 908
Bruno, Jerry 455, 1501
Bruno, Jimmy 16
Bruno, Sam 793, 1162
Bruno, Tom 249, 1393
Brunod, Maurizio 446, 447
Bruns, George 487, 1058
Brunsden, Martin 332
Brunson, Al 502
Brunson, Calvin 1050
Brusiloff, Nat 398
Bruynen, Rob 690
Bryan, Mike 50, 424, 552, 575, 576, 1081, 1120, 1283, 1344, 1537
Bryant, Ben 1300
Bryant, Bobby 259, 338, 383, 656, 1304, 1517
Bryant, Bubba 871
Bryant, Cliff 85
Bryant, Freddie 676
Bryant, Freddy 913, 1214
Bryant, Lance 539
Bryant, Len 964
Bryant, Nelson 667, 999
Bryant, Ray 181, 194, 230, 231, 262, 342, 425, 491, 553, 568, 605, 609, 669, 795, 899, 964, 1070, 1219, 1232, 1234, 1281, 1304, 1378
Bryant, Ritchie 126, 475, 604
Bryant, Robert O. 323, 1024
Bryant, Rocky 1486
Bryant, Rusty 854, 971
Bryant, Tommy 194, 425, 554, 568, 795, 1281, 1322, 1501
Bryars, Gavin 806
Bryce, Owen 1476
Bryden, Ben 1318
Bryden, Beryl 77, 1279, 1362
Bryson, Jeanie 195, 1469
Buchanan, Tony 483
Buchanan, Walter 262, 1467
Büchner, Lutz 1212
Buchtel, Forrest 694, 1133
Buck Jr, Jim 549
Buck, Tony 1241
Buckethead 296
Buckholz, Dawn 372
Buckingham, John 136, 378
Buckingham, Katisse 226
Buckley, Michael 1338
Buckley, Steve 95, 1466

Buckley, Steve and Chris Batchelor 195
Buckmaster, Paul 39
Buckner, Ken 1460
Buckner, Milt 55, 195, 262, 338, 638, 639, 758, 759, 1344
Buckner, Teddy 228, 243, 638, 912, 913, 1104, 1521
Buckner, Thomas 7, 116, 1011, 1131
Buckwalter, Henry 680
Budbill, David 196
Budd, Tony 72
Budesa, Rick 785
Budimir, Dennis 496, 555, 633, 662, 755, 818
Budman, Vadim 60
Budway, David 1472
Budwig, Monty 222, 301, 320, 457, 469, 546, 584, 614, 634, 693, 772, 808, 820, 821, 912, 935, 936, 1038, 1082, 1131, 1141, 1144, 1230, 1231, 1239, 1245, 1248, 1304, 1307, 1404
Bue, Papa 411
Bues, Martin 841
Buettner, Peter 318
Buffington, Jimmy 64, 199, 287, 343, 369, 462, 554, 678, 679, 797, 877, 969, 1015, 1027, 1028, 1071, 1249, 1283, 1313
Buford, Lawson 1085, 1311
Bugnon, Cyrille 1420
Buhler, Heinz 1046
Buis, Joost 55, 116
Bulgarelli, Luca 536
Bulkin, Sid 482, 595, 1316, 1379
Bullen, Reggie 1373
Bullett, Bradley 1510
Bullman, Mort 715, 1283, 1445
Bullock, Belden 713, 860, 1158
Bullock, Chick 118, 196, 218, 429, 999, 1017, 1197, 1251, 1252, 1505
Bullock, Ernie 1044
Bullock, Hiram 460, 462, 1133, 1255, 1274, 1369, 1479
Bullock, Mike 648
Bullock, Richard 441, 850
Bulman, Mort 424
Bülow, Christina von 95
Bulterman, Jack 228, 667
Bultmann, Nils 1012
Bunce, Michael 1453
Bunch, John 23, 156, 158, 196, 243, 336, 578, 601, 626, 635, 707, 708, 849, 851, 872, 1162, 1168, 1210, 1342, 1389, 1434, 1447, 1531
Bunch, Kenji 1321
Bundock, Rolly 1139
Bunink, Floris Nico 831
Bunink, Nico 383, 1002, 1003
Bunker, Larry 50, 51, 64, 222, 319, 456, 457, 482, 490, 544, 571, 588, 627, 665, 681, 693, 716, 835, 882, 936, 1052, 1093, 1111, 1141, 1142, 1146, 1230, 1231, 1245, 1280, 1434, 1513
Bunn, Alven 828
Bunn, Jimmy 580, 595, 736, 760, 970, 1000, 1115, 1516, 1535
Bunn, Teddy 31, 99, 100, 101, 379, 429, 638, 671, 788, 853, 887, 1078, 1086, 1109, 1319, 1331
Bunn, Tony 1359
Bunnell, Jeff 850
Bunnett, Jane 197, 753, 880
Buono, Nick 763, 764, 765
Burbank, Albert 39, 76, 379, 729, 737, 882, 1037, 1079, 1104, 1224, 1436
Burbidge, Graham 77, 78, 187, 466, 1362
Burden, John 479
Burgan, Lawrence 639
Burger, Danny 389
Burger, Rob 660, 1331
Burgess, Bob 64, 84, 388, 482, 549, 694, 816, 1149, 1434
Burgess, John 74, 561
Burgess, Nancy 876
Burgess, Richard 225
Burgess, Sam 870, 1096, 1497
Burgher, Russ 815
Burk, Edward 1176
Burk, Greg 423, 197
Burke, Al 228
Burke, Ceele 41, 1457
Burke, Chris 413, 958
Burke, David 555
Burke, Ed 705, 1505
Burke, Jerome 1326
Burke, Raymond 16, 198, 293, 556, 711, 737, 1164, 1224
Burke, Sonny 416, 489, 506
Burke, Vinnie 299, 311, 468, 469, 601, 962, 1053, 1186
Burkert, Gene 198
Burkhalter, Ingolf 627
Burkis, Dash 937
Burley, Dan 477
Burman, Anders 27, 386, 424, 562, 615, 1030
Burn, Chris 198
Burnap, Campbell 126, 356, 443
Burnes, George 654
Burnes, Roy 578
Burness, Les 118, 1089, 1282
Burness, Roy 647
Burnet, Bob 83, 84
Burnett, Carl 201, 1142, 1143, 1144, 1405
Burnett, Hayes 917, 1359
Burnett, Joe 482, 817, 818, 1231
Burney, Herman 945
Burnham, Charles 38, 742, 1135, 1196, 1430, 1431, 1515, 1544
Burno, Dwayne 154, 240, 282, 354, 368, 376, 377, 551, 556, 569, 650, 657, 676, 677, 700, 733, 740, 779, 791, 878, 897, 1073, 1105, 1200, 1241, 1370, 1481, 1484
Burns, Billy 99
Burns, Bob 253
Burns, Dave 84, 553, 571, 605, 607, 699, 739, 755, 777, 1030
Burns, Don 929
Burns, Dwayne 603
Burns, Gust 1297
Burns, Jeanne 667
Burns, Mick 96
Burns, Ralph 199, 239, 487, 654, 692, 986, 1056, 1093, 1095, 1165, 1445, 1446
Burns, Robert 63
Burns, Roy 1281
Burns, Terry 1352
Burnside, Violet 748
BuronFosse, Marc 1538
Burr, Ellen 421, 567, 890
Burr, Jon 67, 69, 390, 593, 940
Burrage, Ronnie 75, 145, 146, 353, 361, 500, 505, 568, 700, 903, 1148, 1291, 1351, 1530, 1531
Burrell, Ben 1515
Burrell, Charles 464
Burrell, Dave 183, 199, 730, 1018, 1059, 1060, 1062, 1172, 1290, 1297
Burrell, Duke 125, 200
Burrell, Kenny 12, 32, 66, 170, 185, 200, 212, 213, 231, 240, 254, 270, 360, 392, 458, 462, 471, 526, 545, 570, 571, 647, 656, 662, 669, 678, 679, 716, 726, 755, 759, 793, 794, 797, 799, 813, 867, 899, 933, 1026, 1165, 1187, 1211, 1234, 1242, 1248, 1255, 1277, 1303, 1312, 1313, 1405, 1424, 1483, 1499, 1502, 1509, 1532
Burridge, Bud 1351
Burrill, Chester 99
Burroughs, Alvin 31, 638, 654, 705
Burrowes, Roy 202, 436, 437, 1290
Burt, George 561
Burt, George and Raymond MacDonald 203
Burtis, Sam 136, 837, 892, 1005, 1008, 1095, 1210
Burton, Abraham 361, 587, 672, 1374
Burton, Gary 173, 203, 305, 306, 519, 545, 546, 601, 768, 797, 1369, 1410, 1477
Burton, George 1173
Burton, Kim 869
Burton, Princess Patience 828
Burton, Rahn 221, 941
Burton, Roland 638
Burton, Ron 236, 827, 828, 1032, 1433
Burton, W. E. 51, 148, 263, 379, 827, 1044, 1114
Busby, Lad 70, 889
Busch, Nicholas 549
Bush, Andy 1489
Bush, Clifford 338
Bush, Derek 1512
Bush, Irv 496
Bush, Lennie 125, 158, 248, 253, 321, 370, 475, 479, 591, 672, 1199, 1414
Bushell, Colin 826
Bushell, Garvin 155, 218, 287, 355, 358, 410, 462, 488, 489, 784
Bushini, Carlos 908
Bushkin, Joe 43, 118, 119, 150, 205, 297, 477, 504, 576, 622, 714, 734, 947, 1319, 1327, 1535
Bushler, Herb 324, 462, 1318
Bushnell, Bob 32, 43, 490, 803, 971, 1148, 1248, 1313, 1405
Busnello, Eddie 587
Busse, Henry 105
Bussmann, Nicholas 728, 1043
Buster, Bobby 1346
Buster, Eddie 32
Butacavolli, Ronnie 192, 195
Butcher, John 60, 199, 206, 480, 921, 1007, 1008, 1334, 1440
Butcher, Stan 1190
Butler, Artie 546
Butler, Billy 32, 354, 501, 641, 759, 828, 1148, 1165
Butler, Bob 43
Butler, Frank 291, 312, 345, 527, 665, 723, 736, 862, 1016, 1072, 1142, 1146, 1316, 1479
Butler, Henry 232
Butler, Jack 602
Butler, Joseph 1436
Butler, Martin 335, 951
Butler, Rick 862
Butler, Ross 736
Butman, Igor 853
Butta, Bob 89
Butterbeans & Susie 41
Butterfield, Billy 43, 50, 63, 207, 297, 298, 397, 417, 576, 614, 715, 1110, 1162, 1282, 1283, 1334, 1443, 1531
Butterfield, Charlie 542, 1280, 1446

Butterfield, Don 173, 212, 259, 470, 554, 678, 679, 920, 943, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1015, 1027, 1028, 1031, 1071, 1233, 1313, 1392
Butterfield, Erskine 99
Butterfield, Jimmy 243
Butterfield, Stu 912, 1192, 1492
Butterman, Lou 715
Buttmann, Nels 1012
Buttogello, Wally 108
Buttrey, Kenneth A. 203
Butts, Clyde 609
Butts, Jimmy 736, 1115, 1120, 1400, 1510
Butts, Johnny 226, 360, 674
Byam, Roger 1262
Byard, Denyce 208
Byard, Diane 208
Byard, Jaki 207, 299, 382, 440, 449, 450, 499, 827, 828, 831, 941, 943, 973, 1003, 1004, 1005, 1066, 1171, 1215, 1217
Byars, Chris 1343
Byas, Don 31, 43, 208, 228, 270, 424, 552, 553, 562, 576, 614, 667, 669, 698, 712, 789, 826, 853, 1066, 1109, 1110, 1120, 1178, 1198, 1353, 1443, 1510, 1521, 1537
Byassee, Lloyd 1326
Bye, Andreas 1179
Byers, Bernice 763
Byers, Billy 15, 50, 84, 155, 254, 413, 601, 646, 662, 797, 877, 976, 1024, 1071, 1074, 1094, 1233, 1248, 1281, 1313, 1445
Byers, Bryant 85, 247
Byhaug, Per 602
Bynum, Taylor Ho 165, 166, 210, 422, 498, 1298
Byrd, Bobby 862
Byrd, Charlie 210, 545, 694, 1119, 1402
Byrd, Donald 9, 15, 32, 133, 200, 212, 240, 254, 255, 284, 285, 354, 469, 526, 581, 597, 605, 607, 613, 640, 641, 678, 679, 723, 761, 877, 978, 979, 1013, 1022, 1027, 1038, 1160, 1232, 1234, 1299, 1378, 1405, 1460, 1527
Byrd, Eddie 490, 803, 1537
Byrd, Gene 211, 545
Byrd, Ginny 211
Byrd, Ina Belle 748
Byrd, Joe 211
Byrd, Winston 1019, 1074
Byrne, Bill 108, 693, 694
Byrne, Bobby 42, 84, 395, 601, 1283
Byrne, Donna 1, 1171
Byrne, Ed 1054
Byrne, Pauline 1282, 1283
Byron, Don 145, 161, 213, 216, 464, 512, 654, 657, 753, 955, 1158, 1236, 1515, 1529
Byron Sr, Don 214

C

Cabaud, Demian 542
Cabell, Marvin 1134
Cables, George 89, 215, 240, 472, 485, 500, 505, 583, 651, 688, 797, 861, 878, 903, 1010, 1038, 1142, 1143, 1144, 1220, 1234, 1285, 1290, 1292
Cabot, John 1445
Cabral, Artie 2, 961, 962
Cabrera, Felipe 908
Cabrera, Julian 1262
Cabrera, Yosvany Terry 898
Caceres, Ernie 43, 99, 101, 156, 270, 297, 424, 552, 576, 622, 734, 889, 1110, 1252, 1327, 1388
Caceres, Pinie 622
Cadd, Ray 369, 1533
Cadena, Joe 549, 765
Cafarella, Pete 183
Café 168, 171, 426, 468, 652, 822, 891, 934, 968
Caffey, Bill 93
Cafiero, Mimmo 333, 508
Cagnolatti, Ernie 76, 77, 1224
Cagwin, Jarrod 587
Cahill, Sarah 885
Cahn, Danny 109, 483
Caiazza, Nick 43, 424, 691, 692, 937, 1110, 1388, 1537
Cain, Jackie 596, 982, 1445, 1446
Cain, Michael 131, 216, 365, 1148
Caine, Eddie 343, 345, 413, 461, 545, 1000, 1001, 1210, 1327
Caine, Neil 335
Caine, Uri 126, 214, 216, 399, 400, 550, 605, 660, 790, 1096, 1260
Caine, Wally 969
Caiola, Al 148, 270, 1443
Cairns, Forrie 992
Cairns, Howard 612
Cairns, John 992
Cairns, Matthew 561
Caizza, Nick 1327
Calabrese, Bucky 818
Calabrese, Luca 335, 750, 1092
Caldarell, Bart 815
Calderazzo, Gene 598, 1190
Calderazzo, Joey 217, 117, 167, 381, 543, 943, 948, 1086, 1351, 1461, 1472
Calderell, Bart 816
Caldwell, Buddy 414, 1468
Caldwell, Chris 1490
Caldwell, Dave 1084
Caldwell, George 414
Caldwell, Happy 24, 41, 155, 297, 864, 1044, 1388
Cale, Bruce 673, 1332
Calhoun, Annabelle 263
Calhoun, Eddie 529, 760
Cali, John 105
Caliman, Hadley 1184, 1507
Caliri, Domenico 1193, 1194
Caliste, Lester 1217
Calker, Dan 1280
Calkins, Bill 752
Calkins, Susan 775
Calladine, Rachel 1096
Calle, Ed 1261
Callender, Red 42, 43, 51, 125, 199, 218, 222, 225, 233, 271, 318, 418, 431, 482, 528, 577, 580, 588, 699, 712, 716, 736, 758, 774, 945, 1000, 1089, 1115, 1120, 1316, 1331, 1353, 1378, 1408, 1445, 1517, 1535, 1536
Callett, Lee 259, 496
Calligaris, Pierre 611
Callins, Jothan 1361
Callmer, Ingvar 781, 785
Calloway, Blanche 1201
Calloway, Cab 218, 552, 1197
Calloway, Joe 544
Calmes, Eric 51
Calo, Joe 1211
Calogero, Pablo 137, 777, 1095
Calvert, Bob 1341
Calvert, Leon 321, 747
Calvert, Robert 1333
Calvin, Rosemary 614
Calypso Boys, The 803
Calzado, Rudy 1261, 1262
Camacho, Rene 324
Camara, Sidiki 513
Camarata, Toots 43, 83, 395, 490
Cambridge, Chris 1332
Camden, Ed 937
Cameron, Clayton 202
Cameron, Jay 86, 272, 640, 693, 1103
Cameron, John 219
Cameron, Michael 113, 604
Cameron, Ray 847
Camgros, Armand 715
Camilo, Michel 219
Cammack, James 761, 762, 1399
Campagano, Niclas 1264
Campbell, Aileen 203
Campbell, Arthur 379, 820, 864
Campbell, Bill 585
Campbell, Bruce 70, 248
Campbell, Brun 220
Campbell, Chester 1483
Campbell, Chuck 1456
Campbell, Duncan 918
Campbell, Edgar 685
Campbell, Gary 220, 1452
Campbell, Gordon 1389
Campbell, Greg 128, 1297
Campbell, Jeff 1147
Campbell, Jimmy 49, 84, 311, 395, 469, 693, 764, 817, 1186, 1322, 1527
Campbell, John 220, 364, 556, 1409, 1499
Campbell II, John 550
Campbell, Johnny 49
Campbell, Larry 895
Campbell, Michael 1318
Campbell, Paul 92, 1457
Campbell, Pops 1113
Campbell, Roy 75, 178, 220, 373, 422, 465, 763, 931, 1032, 1033, 1128, 1129, 1293, 1294, 1298
Campbell, Royce 221, 1209
Campbell, Roy Jr 877
Campbell, Tommy 361, 801, 1006, 1235
Campbell, Wilbur 6, 250, 506, 606, 1352, 1465
Campbell, William 213
Campbell-Akinmusire, Ambrose 277
Campo, Toni 407
Campos, Atonio Martinez 880
Campos, Steve 819
Canada, Enric 1255
Canape, Jean-François 773
Candela, Jorge 1029
Candido (Camero) 32, 200, 221, 434, 529, 544, 554, 596, 600, 786, 813, 1054, 1095, 1234, 1379, 1467
Candoli, Conte 64, 82, 108, 222, 222, 231, 301, 319, 415, 482, 498, 525, 542, 544, 549, 550, 579, 580, 588, 595, 616, 656, 662, 681, 692, 720, 752, 789, 791, 808, 815, 816, 841, 936, 1024, 1037, 1054, 1093, 1111, 1140, 1141, 1142, 1184, 1230, 1231, 1247, 1248, 1280, 1281, 1445, 1446
Candoli, Pete 222, 222, 301, 397, 525, 588, 654, 681, 689, 692, 736, 1052, 1093, 1142, 1188, 1230, 1245
Candrix, Fud 1203
Cane, Eddie 461
Canela, Carmen 1255
Canino, Frank 1046
Cannady, James 228, 229
Cannon, Gerald 451, 543, 1139, 1158, 1424, 1503, 1526
Canonge, Mario 1530
Cansfield, Tim 226
Canto, Humberto 587, 772
Cantor, Eddie 542
Cantor, Ila 223
Cantuária, Vinicius 513
Caparone, Marc 1308
Capazuto, Nick 239

Capehart, Art 826
Capello, Carlo 1046
Capers, Bob 1262
Capers, Chris 1357, 1359
Caperton, Brooks 172
Capi, Frank 1210
Capiozzo, Giulio 1278
Caplan, Jerry 622
Capon, John 1084
Capozzo, Jean Luc 562
Capp, Bobby 183
Capp, Frank 15, 257, 497, 1038, 1111, 1139, 1140, 1165, 1180, 1181, 1230, 1366, 1434, 1478, 1540
Capp, Todd 626
Cappadocia, Rufus 493, 1196
Cappi, Dan 1445
Cappozzo, Jean-Luc 1273
Captein, Dave 1507
Caputo, Frank 855
Cara, Mancy 41
Caracchiolo, Sal 259
Caraco, Rino 927
Caratini, Patrice 202, 223, 592, 611
Cardenas, Alexis 519
Cardenas, Steve 26, 323, 415, 625, 1049, 1176, 1544
Carder, Jason 1261, 1269
Cardew, Cornelius 29
Cardinaux, Emilie 660
Cardona, Milton 214, 323, 572, 610, 916, 934, 1006, 1257
Carelli, Gerard 1067
Carello, Joe 375
Carey, Bob 1119
Carey, Dave 918
Carey, Dick 622
Carey, Guy 105
Carey, Hugh 1484
Carey, Roger 1473
Carey, Scoops 63, 423, 686, 705
Carey, Thomas 'Mutt' 223, 784, 1103, 1104
Caribé, Mario 223, 660, 820, 1188
Carisi, John 342, 413, 455, 461, 601, 1188, 1278, 1400
Carl, Rüdiger 224, 562, 874
Carlberg, Frank 174, 224, 1193
Carlberg, Sten 562, 615
Carle, Frankie 622
Carley, Dale 94, 1391
Carlisle, Bob 136
Carlisle, Una Mae 1458
Carlos, Jose 545
Carlquist, Fredrik 71, 223
Carls, Emmett 63, 576, 814, 815
Carlsen, Morten 391, 392
Carlson, Earl 648
Carlson, Frank 691, 692, 818
Carlson, John 422, 507, 518, 775, 1196, 1519
Carlsson, Bengt 1149
Carlsson, Frank 936
Carlsson, Lars-Göran 805
Carlsson, Olaf 49
Carlsson, Petter 1306
Carlsson, Rune 3, 126, 383, 386, 387, 457, 766, 781, 835, 897, 996, 1072, 1338, 1479, 1512
Carlsson, Ulf 27
Carlstedt, Jeremy 536
Carlton, Bud 1282
Carlton, Larry 323
Carman, Jackie 1198
Carmello, Janusz 1225
Carmen, Jack 1210
Carmichael, Hoagy 41, 106, 864, 1066, 1446
Carmichael, Judy 225
Carmona, Javier 1251
Carn, Doug 517
Carneiro, Edmundo 223
Carnemolla, Salvatore 927
Carneol, Jess 1353
Carney, Gary 946
Carney, Harry 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 490, 492, 562, 574, 628, 638, 668, 699, 705, 711, 712, 713, 714, 763, 774, 783, 1343, 1344, 1348, 1478, 1520, 1521
Carney, Jeff 1067
Carol, Judy 999
Carol, Lilyann 1445
Carole, Josie 889
Carolino, Sérgio 1263
Caron, Fern 207, 388, 1445
Carpenter, Dave 323, 448, 497, 541, 550, 961, 1084, 1146, 1452, 1513
Carpenter, Ike 1188, 1467
Carpenter, Pete 1540
Carpenter, Thelma 91, 248, 667, 1521
Carpenter, Tony 1399
Carpenter, Wingy 1406
Carr, Bob 1165
Carr, Bruno 650, 933, 934, 1165
Carr, Helen 1000
Carr, Ian 39, 125, 225, 226, 401, 407, 531, 549, 1206, 1250, 1386
Carr, Lady Will 699
Carr, Mike 226, 1487
Carr, Richard 226
Carr, Sonny 546
Carr, Tony 219
Carranza, Django 709
Carrel, Harry 83
Carreras, Bernardo Garcia 1261
Carriere, Sid 238
Carrington, Louis 424
Carrington, Terri Lyne 149, 226, 381, 454, 644, 844, 1032, 1086, 1105, 1145, 1274, 1296, 1515, 1516
Carrol, Dennis 176
Carroll, Baikida 7, 860, 896, 1059
Carroll, Barbara 239, 577, 664, 982, 1160
Carroll, Bill 551, 682, 1058
Carroll, Bob 84, 1457, 1458
Carroll, Charles 397, 1327
Carroll, Dennis 176, 250, 631
Carroll, Frank 355, 1353, 1443
Carroll, Greg 1189
Carroll, Jimmy 1467
Carroll, Joan 551
Carroll, Joe 552, 554
Carroll, John 228, 433, 814, 815, 1093
Carroll, Karen 377
Carroll, Mike 314
Carroll, Robert 40, 552, 704, 1197, 1198, 1319
Carroll, Roscoe 948
Carroll, Shelley 915
Carrothers, Bill 227, 279, 399, 604, 1352
Carrothers, Peg 227
Carrott, Bryan 7, 129, 221, 750, 1074, 1158, 1401
Carruthers, Earl 912, 913
Carry, Scoops 705
Carson, Big Al 413, 923
Carson, Bill 1433
Carson, Ernie 333, 474, 476, 1113
Carson, Joe 211
Carson, Tee 1342
Carstensen, Stian 1279
Carter Sr, Abubakar Alvin Benjamin 164
Carter Jr, Benjamin 164
Carter, Benny 56, 93, 184, 227, 271, 386, 417, 423, 477, 490, 493, 528, 552, 577, 585, 638, 667, 669, 686, 699, 714, 716, 734, 736, 774, 849, 853, 945, 957, 975, 981, 986, 1089, 1093, 1151, 1156, 1283, 1343, 1353, 1378, 1458, 1476, 1477, 1521
Carter, Betty 194, 231, 1170
Carter, Bill 1377
Carter, Bob 395, 413, 455, 544, 1093, 1314, 1388, 1445, 1446
Carter, Bruce 871
Carter, Chuck 818, 1517
Carter, Chuggy 676, 1008
Carter, Clifford 460
Carter, Daniel 183, 221, 231, 1127, 1128, 1293, 1294, 1393
Carter, Dick 461, 865
Carter, Don 622, 1327, 1334
Carter, Fred 818
Carter, Jack 99, 943
Carter, James 146, 232, 246, 310, 586, 644, 683, 752, 951, 965, 1173, 1424, 1486
Carter, John 120, 233, 253, 610, 1373
Carter, Juanelda 271
Carter, Kent 28, 57, 139, 154, 233, 370, 533, 775, 805, 855, 856, 1246, 1333, 1342
Carter, Kevin 232
Carter, Lance 1515
Carter, Les 39
Carter, Lou 395
Carter, Nigel 401, 549, 1489
Carter, Pete 1225
Carter, Rashaan 942
Carter, Ray 748
Carter, Regina 87, 234, 372, 860, 914, 982, 1349, 1515
Carter, Robert 1333
Carter, Ron 9, 12, 22, 33, 66, 67, 68, 79, 80, 84, 113, 128, 173, 201, 207, 208, 213, 234, 246, 256, 264, 265, 273, 283, 303, 308, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 369, 382, 384, 389, 414, 440, 461, 470, 495, 510, 511, 513, 527, 546, 568, 584, 607, 615, 641, 643, 644, 653, 655, 659, 669, 687, 688, 721, 727, 732, 740, 755, 768, 775, 797, 798, 827, 829, 852, 861, 866, 871, 876, 877, 899, 927, 934, 947, 949, 950, 969, 1019, 1026, 1028, 1037, 1040, 1054, 1136, 1138, 1149, 1170, 1199, 1217, 1235, 1245, 1258, 1277, 1285, 1290, 1295, 1296, 1307, 1313, 1376, 1402, 1426, 1427, 1462, 1463, 1469, 1502, 1512, 1532, 1541
Carter, Viv 869
Cartwright, George 1088
Cartwright, Paul 1081
Caruso, Beppe 468, 535, 1419
Carver, Dwight 817, 818
Carver, Wayman 228, 488, 489, 734, 803, 1476
Carvin, Michael 75, 236, 415, 537, 911, 980, 1351
Cary, Dick 43, 236, 297, 298, 395, 476, 780, 947, 970, 1315, 1327, 1365
Cary, Marc 525, 617, 649, 658, 895, 1185, 1503
Casadei, Fred 1018
Casale, Bill 421, 567
Casales, Mayra 914, 915
Casa Loma Orchestra 62, 236
Casamenti, Al 1027, 1028, 1501
Casano, Joe 819
Casati, Giampaolo 138
Cascales, Jack 552
Cascaro, Jeff 944
Casdas, Elly 34
Case, Russ 574, 715

Casey, Al 43, 63, 122, 184, 209, 228, 238, 337, 374, 424, 628, 638, 667, 668, 705, 707, 714, 715, 788, 987, 1078, 1279, 1344, 1457, 1458, 1521
Casey, Bob 297, 298, 622, 788, 947, 1252, 1327
Casey, Floyd 803, 1504, 1505
Cash, Bernie 1460
Casimir, Sam 386
Casino, Del 83
Casino, Vincent 1204
Cass, Vincent 198
Cassano, Sam 555
Cassard, Jules 937
Casserley, Lawrence 1124, 1125, 1126, 1253
Castagnino, Bill 693
Castaldo, Charlie 576
Castaldo, Lee 1282, 1388
Castellanos, Gilbert 259
Castelli, Marco 921
Castellucci, Bruno 1395
Castellucci, Stella 1408
Castiglione, David 516
Castin, Sammy 1101
Castle, Ben 453, 532, 533
Castle, Boots 1521
Castle, Dave 1347
Castle, Geoff 39, 225, 280
Castle, Lee 396, 397, 576, 1282, 1283, 1388
Castleman, Jeff 438
Castri, Furio Di 508, 548, 940, 1163, 1193, 1433
Castrillo, Eguie 1158
Castro, George 1405
Castro, Joe 222, 418
Castro, Lenny 1255, 1517
Castro, Nelson Serra De 1018
Castronari, Mario 367, 868, 1215, 1216, 1509
Castro-Neves, Oscar 426, 546, 841, 1517
Caswell, Cass 126
Cat 18
Catalano, Bill 571
Catalano, Billy 817
Catalano, Frank 237, 362
Catalyne, Joe 1388
Catchings, John 1385
Catchpole, Nathaniel 1183
Cater, Pete 1225
Cathcart, Carter 1008
Cathcart, Dick 504
Cathcart, Jack 1283
Catherine, Philip 68, 237, 308, 327, 404, 583, 591, 592, 921, 938, 1101, 1102, 1163
Catingub, Matt 108, 850
Catini, Clem 401
Catlett, Buddy 44, 56, 272, 492, 517, 571, 797, 1486
Catlett, 'Big' Sid 31, 42, 43, 63, 100, 101, 102, 123, 209, 228, 238, 297, 329, 423, 424, 431, 489, 552, 576, 628, 638, 648, 667, 668, 686, 705, 714, 715, 734, 788, 887, 1066, 1078, 1109, 1110, 1198, 1210, 1275, 1328, 1377, 1443, 1477, 1520, 1521, 1535
Cato, William 667, 1044
Caton, Lauderic 1066
Caton, Roy 693
Catron, Jessica 421, 567
Cattano, Tony 1018
Caturegli, Alex 1203
Caulder, Albert 938
Cauldwell, Happy 41
Causey, Hayden 764
Cauzard, André 1203
Cavaleri, Tiziana 1092
Cavalière, Bernie 1203
Cavallanti, Daniele 750
Cavallaro, Armand 497
Cavallaro, Mario 535
Cavalli, Pierre 591, 615
Cavanaugh, Dave 1089
Cavanaugh, Inez 528, 853, 1198
Cave, Jay 661
Cave, John (Jack) 184, 577, 818, 1089
Cave, Norman 1190
Cavelli, Larry 693
Cavera, Katie 579
Cavicchiolo, Romano 239, 258, 1396
Cawley, Tom 8, 371, 533, 608, 1096
Cayette, Roland 551
Caymmi, Dori 154, 727
Cazzola, Gianni 533, 534, 940, 1278
CBS Orchestra 457
Ceccarelli, André 170, 238, 371, 587, 859, 1163
Cecchetto, Roberto 1193, 1194
Cecil, Malcolm 546, 607, 629, 776, 1276
Cecil, Tommy 414, 1195
Cederberg, Mattis 5, 49
Cedras, Tony 660, 1515
Cedric, Gene 100, 257
Celea, Jean-Paul 851, 977
Celestial, Samarai 704
Celestin, Oscar 'Papa' 238
Centazzo, Andrea 856
Centeno, Francisco 76, 713
Centeno, Herbert 89
Centis, Gabriele 921, 922
Centobie, Bujie 150, 1328
Centro, Vic 1084
Cepeda, William 406, 1257
Cerino, Sandro 473, 1106
Ceroli, Nick 250, 251, 514, 818, 1038, 1304
Ceroni, Raoul 533
Cerri, Franco 64, 66
Cervantes, Bill 207
Cervenka, Ken 543
Cespedes, Bobbi 1263
Cevasco, Adalberto 79
Cevikce, Sila 239
Chabaud, Jean 1202
Chace, Frank 39, 753
Chadbourne, Eugene 14, 111, 112, 137, 1373, 1542
Chaffe, Barbara 1543
Chaiken, Jules 1540
Chaikin, Jules 496, 662, 1517
Chaillou, Maurice 667, 1202
Chaix, Henri 239, 258, 1316, 1396
Chalkin, Jules 1540
Chalmers, Duncan 1362
Chaloff, Serge 50, 239, 413, 692, 1160, 1165, 1188, 1443
Chalot, Michel 1500
Chamberlain, Dave 82, 371, 608, 814, 1077
Chamberlain, Matt 989
Chamberlain, Ronnie 889
Chambers, Dave 1488
Chambers, Dennis 80, 114, 240, 977, 978, 1274, 1340, 1396
Chambers, Elmer 685
Chambers, Henderson 32, 35, 42, 63, 92, 270, 628, 705, 715, 1248, 1283, 1502
Chambers, Jeff 762, 957, 1026, 1245
Chambers, Joe 33, 240, 303, 347, 509, 676, 687, 702, 732, 733, 739, 740, 1059, 1073, 1217, 1289, 1296, 1451, 1539, 1541
Chambers, Paul 9, 10, 11, 32, 66, 175, 200, 208, 212, 240, 254, 255, 284, 285, 286, 287, 319, 320, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 393, 403, 419, 461, 462, 514, 516, 526, 568, 580, 588, 596, 606, 641, 649, 665, 675, 678, 679, 690, 720, 723, 755, 786, 792, 796, 813, 877, 894, 976, 978, 979, 1009, 1013, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1039, 1070, 1072, 1142, 1148, 1170, 1178, 1186, 1196, 1232, 1233, 1242, 1255, 1295, 1350, 1378, 1390, 1460
Chambers, Wally 349
Chamblee, Eddie 195, 262, 1467
Chambon, Xavier 55
Chamzyryn, Gendos 741
Chan, Jeff 863
Chance, James 8
Chancey, Vincent 7, 131, 137, 152, 1059, 1095, 1222, 1318, 1359, 1421
Chancler, Leon Ndugu 170, 279, 642, 643, 1184, 1475
Chandler, Gary 1468
Chandler, Jess 807
Chandler, Mark 1250
Chandler, Wayne 1493
Chandramouli, B. N. 944
Chaney, Jack 577
Chanson, Dominique 497
Chant, Tom 1183
Chantrain, Raymond 1203
Chapin, Earl 343, 461, 797, 969, 1313
Chapin, Jen 660
Chapin, Thomas 117, 129, 241, 1063, 1134, 1240
Chapman, Atlee 1517
Chapman, David 1165, 1171
Chapman, Harry 591
Chapman, John 291, 377
Chapman, Paul 395, 714, 1264
Chappell, Gus 758, 816, 1467
Chappelle, Juanita 1456
Chaput, Roger 591, 1202, 1203, 1326, 1483
Chard, Verona 919
Charig, Marc 176, 358, 362, 905, 906, 997, 1105, 1403, 1404, 1417
Charlap, Bill 104, 158, 241, 270, 368, 511, 585, 636, 697, 982, 1149, 1226, 1260, 1320, 1350, 1436, 1501, 1528
Charles, Amédée 1202
Charles, Buddy 1328
Charles, David 80, 330
Charles, Denis 242, 461, 855, 872, 941
Charles, Dennis 74, 75, 186, 855, 856, 871, 881, 925, 941, 1032, 1127, 1234, 1305, 1379, 1380
Charles, Dennis (d). 151
Charles, Franck 1234
Charles, Huss 242
Charles, Neil 445, 1515
Charles, Ray 1074, 1424
Charles, Teddy 173, 242, 342, 517, 557, 595, 899, 920, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1025
Charles, Vince 17, 215
Charles, Xavier 206
Charlston, Erik 1067
Charlton, Eddie 27
Charlton, Lee 614
Charmasson, Rémi 242, 772, 773
Charmier, Jean-Marc 746
Chartrand, Pat 765
Chase, Bill 693, 694, 817
Chase, Tommy 243
Chase, Wilder 937
Chastenier, Frank 565, 690, 851, 1057
Chatham, Doc 372
Chatman, Christine 31
Chatterjee, Amit 1539, 1540
Chatterjee, Samir 310, 1240
Chattin, Bill 632, 1046
Chauliac, Leo 1203
Chaurasia, Hariprasad 978
Chautemps, Jean-Louis 65, 497, 1302, 1397, 1398
Chaviano, Ruben 473

Cheatham, Doc 70, 218, 228, 243, 258, 329, 357, 555, 698, 707, 715, 779, 933, 1353, 1354, 1375, 1521
Checchi, Leo 1445
Cheek, Chris 6, 131, 224, 244, 517, 625, 1048, 1049, 1064, 1139, 1199, 1545
Cheek, Cort 1259
Cheek, Robert 724
Cheever, Russ 525
Cheifetz, Sam 397
Cheikes, Mac 396, 397
Cheito 1261
Chekasin, Vladimir 522, 853
Chelf, Bill 1031
Chen, Sisi 216
Chen, Susan 954
Chen, Tao 216
Chen, Ton Qiang 216
Cherico, Gene 14, 203, 368, 369, 545, 1090
Cherico, Vince 328, 964
Chéron, Henri 1500
Chéron, Paul 1500
Cherry, Don 74, 136, 138, 244, 266, 274, 275, 286, 377, 412, 533, 623, 641, 743, 775, 855, 911, 938, 1096, 1234, 1288
Cherry, Ed 406, 555, 750, 1401
Cherry, Mocqui 245
Cherry, Ricky 246
Cherry, Vattel 538, 1302
Cherry, Vivian 483, 1468
Chescoe, Laurie 1469
Chessman, Pritchard 155
Chester, Brian 1490
Chester, Don 1328
Chestnut, Cyrus 183, 232, 246, 270, 649, 659, 965, 1050, 1167, 1466
Chevalier, Christian 209
Chevallier, David 223
Chevillon, Bruno 96, 408, 497, 735, 773, 1174, 1193, 1272, 1273
Chevrolet, Joe 368
Chew, Raymond 1468
Chiasson, Warren 384
Chibah, Reiad 832
Chiboust, Noël 272, 667, 1202, 1203
Chicago Gospel Voices 888
Chicco, Renato 118
Chicoy, Jorge 1261
Chiffoleau, Fred 908
Childers, Bryan 1354
Childers, Buddy 85, 247, 271, 482, 498, 525, 814, 815, 816, 1000, 1111, 1367
Childs, Billy 57, 247, 597, 733, 787, 903, 914, 1284, 1468, 1469
Chilton, John 991, 1422
Chilver, Pete 1276
Chiodini, John 108, 195, 364, 726
Chirillo, James 48, 336, 579, 748, 909, 1149, 1225, 1260, 1292, 1352, 1500, 1501
Chisholm, George 70, 187, 228, 248, 355, 667, 889, 1457
Chisholm, Hayden 565, 1526
Chittison, Herman 42, 63, 248, 272, 1504, 1505, 1516
Chivily, Pete 817, 818
Choi, Jennifer 742, 1311, 1544
Chomer, Roger 1202
Chopek, Stephen 738
Choulai, Aaron 248
Christensen, Anders 123, 375, 781, 1049, 1431, 1493
Christensen, Erling 818, 1479
Christensen, Jon 21, 71, 330, 523, 621, 751, 769, 841, 846, 901, 1193, 1250, 1317, 1336, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1410, 1411, 1451, 1476
Christensen, Søren 1525
Christensen, Tom 719, 892, 909, 1063
Christi, Ellen 249, 520, 1032
Christian, Buddy 56, 99, 947, 1089, 1319, 1504
Christian, Charlie 249, 552, 575, 576, 638, 780, 1020
Christian, David 1314
Christian, Emil 556, 1100
Christian, Jodie 33, 250, 506, 544, 573, 631, 655, 880, 1012, 1107, 1352
Christian, Lillie Delk 798
Christian, Ruth 671
Christians, Buddy 50
Christiansen, Corey 250, 1450
Christiansen, Svein 751, 781
Christianson, Bengt 21
Christianson, Mike 696
Christie, Ian 102, 250, 475, 918, 1055, 1484
Christie, James 1101
Christie, Keith 70, 102, 125, 475, 632, 652, 674, 918, 1414, 1422
Christlieb, Don 251
Christlieb, Pete 108, 109, 250, 319, 550, 720, 850, 878, 939, 961, 1094
Christman, Gene 933
Christmann, Günter 251, 515, 562, 618
Christoffersen, Jacob 114, 647, 1431, 1432
Christophe, Pierre 691
Christopher, Evan 681, 813, 1454
Christy, June 251, 815, 816, 818
Chrome Strings 658
Chrupcala, Mac 1
Chudoba, John 362
Churchill, Pete 252, 533
Churchill, Savannah 228, 913
Chycoski, Arnie 520, 967
Ciancaglini, Pietro 150, 333, 559
Cianci, Andrea 927
Cianciarulo, John 388
Ciarvadone, Joe 943
Ciashine, Ned 1377
Ciavardone, Joe 1171
Cicalese, Andy 1445
Cicalese, Angelo 577
Ciccarone, Rocky 1268
Cicero, Dustin 1517
Cifelli, Barbara 252
Cifelli, Jim 252
Cifuentes, Enrique 1029
Cikada String Quartet 34, 1370
Cilio, Gioconda 318, 927, 1018
Ciminelli, Giancarlo 473
Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra 191
Cinelu, Mino 21, 312, 351, 361, 454, 468, 873, 995, 1174, 1196, 1390, 1515
Cioe, Crispin 1256
Ciotti, Louis 85, 681
Cipelli, Roberto 508
Cipriano, Gene 347, 1024
Circle 253
Cirillo, James 1352
Cirillo, Wally 786, 865, 920
Civello, Chiara 995, 1169
Civil, Alan 549
Cizeron, Maurice 1202
Claes, Johnny 248, 1322
Clahar, Patrick 773, 1515
Claiborne, Deszon X. 38
Clais, Georges 1203
Clancy Hayes' Washboard Five 1472
Clapton, Eric 1256
Clare, Alan 253
Clare, Kenny 255, 1276
Clarinet Summit 253
Clarinet Trio 253
Clark, Babe 545, 1313
Clark, Bill 209, 553, 885, 1075, 1286, 1536, 1537, 1540
Clark, Bob 816, 1517
Clark, Buck 733
Clark, Buddy 319, 466, 482, 549, 550, 574, 588, 720, 791, 820, 933, 1054, 1082, 1111, 1139, 1230, 1434, 1513
Clark, Charles 6, 767
Clark, Charlie 148
Clark, Curtis 74, 111, 253, 1058
Clark, David 810
Clark, Dick 228, 574, 847, 937, 1056, 1282, 1334, 1520
Clark, Garnet 1202
Clark, George 1316
Clark, Gregory 923
Clark, Harold 228, 229
Clark, Henry 798
Clark, James 1468
Clark, Jim 943
Clark, Joe 379, 455, 784
Clark, John 137, 352, 419, 465, 549, 679, 778, 831, 909, 1019, 1043, 1052, 1054, 1250, 1274, 1275, 1320, 1335, 1343, 1427
Clark, Joseph 'Red' 379, 455
Clark, June 428, 1319
Clark, Kevin 923
Clark, Larry 942
Clark, Lawrence J. 20, 651
Clark, Mike 123, 642
Clark, Neil 1491
Clark, Pete 24, 42, 430, 488, 715, 803, 1476, 1521
Clark, Ralph 108
Clark, Sonny 175, 239, 242, 254, 257, 319, 581, 595, 596, 598, 599, 606, 716, 800, 979, 1038, 1141, 1186, 1233, 1247, 1248, 1404, 1502
Clark, Spencer 626, 1252, 1433, 1447
Clark, Terry 1155
Clark, Thais 1496
Clarke, Arthur 113, 755, 777, 793
Clarke, Bob 187
Clarke, Buck 642, 757, 1313
Clarke, Buick 262
Clarke, Chuck 1505
Clarke, Frank 70, 652, 1422
Clarke, George 354, 796, 1316
Clarke, Joe 1103
Clarke, Kenny 10, 11, 32, 63, 91, 100, 102, 180, 200, 209, 254, 255, 270, 319, 340, 341, 342, 392, 413, 415, 424, 469, 489, 553, 581, 587, 588, 591, 592, 601, 627, 668, 670, 671, 714, 715, 730, 754, 755, 772, 786, 787, 799, 836, 886, 907, 920, 954, 962, 1001, 1014, 1020, 1022, 1025, 1030, 1038, 1069, 1072, 1117, 1119, 1154, 1170, 1176, 1178, 1179, 1232, 1302, 1398, 1443, 1486, 1498, 1501, 1537
Clarke, Les 1210
Clarke, Neil 529, 1491
Clarke, Pete 793, 1197, 1198, 1343
Clarke, Richard 329, 714
Clarke, Selwart 275, 867, 1539
Clarke, Stanley 79, 170, 304, 305, 546, 582, 583, 644, 688, 1207, 1208, 1235, 1259, 1428
Clarke, Terry 124, 157, 375, 520, 603, 629, 630, 646, 701, 967, 968, 987, 1084, 1205, 1226, 1239, 1375
Clarke, Vince 963

Clarke-Boland Big Band 255
Clarkson, Jeff 1139
Clarvadone, Joe 693
Clarvis, Paul 195, 256, 870, 903, 1085, 1291, 1355, 1412
Classical Jazz Quartet 256
Classic Jazz Collegium Orchestra 355
Claude Gousset 358
Claudia Quintet 256
Clausen, Bent 391, 392
Clausen, Thomas 121, 173, 256, 338, 503, 583, 729, 760, 1239, 1525
Claxton, Andrew 663
Claxton, Rozelle 753
Clay, Henry 424
Clay, James 257, 1010, 1026
Clay, John 1304
Clay, Omar 982, 1318
Clay, Shirley 40, 329, 573, 704, 705, 724, 798, 1197
Clayborn, Darrell 441
Clayton, Buck 62, 90, 91, 155, 206, 209, 257, 434, 477, 574, 668, 669, 711, 714, 715, 716, 734, 736, 763, 1110, 1117, 1186, 1248, 1252, 1319, 1400, 1445, 1479, 1483, 1520, 1521, 1535, 1537
Clayton, Gerald 521
Clayton, Jay 6, 258, 864
Clayton, Jeff 202, 259, 360, 427, 656, 1499
Clayton, Jimmy 645
Clayton, Joe 80, 871
Clayton, John 93, 185, 259, 493, 521, 755, 843, 844, 981, 1280, 1523
Clayton Jr, John 185, 914, 987
Clayton, Josh 185
Clayton, Leon 8, 9
Clayton Brothers 259
Clayton–Hamilton Jazz Orchestra 259, 844
Cleaver, Gerald 38, 197, 259, 313, 443, 893, 931, 945, 972, 1012, 1042, 1098, 1135, 1229, 1254, 1294, 1311, 1372, 1430, 1452, 1463
Clemendore, Rupert 21, 781, 782, 1250
Clement, Dawn 1184
Clements, Carl 826
Clements, Richard 709, 1301
Clemmons, Bob 1047
Clerc, Olivier 772
Cles, Louis 1188
Cless, Rod 710, 788, 888, 1319, 1388
Cleveland, Jimmy 10, 35, 48, 201, 212, 231, 259, 299, 338, 342, 343, 383, 455, 461, 462, 469, 470, 482, 568, 607, 615, 726, 755, 777, 786, 794, 797, 798, 877, 899, 976, 993, 1003, 1009, 1023, 1027, 1031, 1103, 1138, 1160, 1165, 1179, 1187, 1211, 1233, 1234, 1248, 1249, 1303, 1313, 1346, 1398, 1467
Cleveland Chamber Symphony 986
Clevenger, Dave 943
Cleyndert, Andy 82, 243, 281, 405, 691, 814, 868, 929, 1077, 1180, 1331, 1389, 1415, 1482, 1483, 1524
Cliff, Dave 8, 9, 16, 260, 267, 371, 523, 636, 879, 918, 919, 954, 962, 1422, 1435, 1499, 1500
Cliff, Walter 731
Clifford, Henry 377
Clifford, Winston 99, 182, 540, 832, 914, 1096, 1190, 1308, 1325
Clift, Mick 294
Clifton, Bill 780, 1388
Cline, Alex 109, 120, 260, 261, 421, 537, 565, 566, 610, 890, 1452
Cline, Jeff 1108
Cline, Nels 28, 109, 120, 260, 261, 537, 566, 567, 890, 1243, 1310, 1452, 1544
Clohesy, Matt 749, 780, 811
Clow, Irma 1095
Clown Revisited 262
Clowsey, Peter 464
Clusone 3 262
Clute, Pete 551, 1058, 1533
Clyde Valley Stompers, Ian Menzies & His 992
Clyne, Jeff 28, 39, 103, 225, 360, 539, 549, 673, 674, 726, 747, 750, 905, 1073, 1206, 1332, 1342, 1414, 1416
Coan, Jack 441
Cobb, Alfred 434
Cobb, Arnett 195, 262, 338, 605, 638, 752
Cobb, Bert 1097, 1103
Cobb, Jimmy 10, 12, 13, 22, 48, 86, 122, 127, 146, 200, 212, 240, 262, 263, 263, 273, 284, 285, 286, 343, 344, 393, 404, 421, 491, 506, 507, 568, 569, 570, 597, 611, 723, 795, 798, 813, 871, 966, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1074, 1085, 1142, 1172, 1195, 1295, 1307, 1350, 1402, 1467, 1523
Cobb, Junie C. 379, 1085, 1114, 263
Cobb, Morty 1104
Cobbs, Al 43, 759, 913, 999
Cobbs, Call 54, 712
Cobbs, John 416
Cobey, Bill 937
Cobham, Billy 27, 33, 113, 234, 264, 308, 347, 348, 349, 659, 732, 922, 976, 1299
Cobo, Xavier 907
Coburger, Gabriel 619
Coburn, Alec 963
Cochran, William 'Bugs' 1355, 1356
Cochrane, Michael 265, 1067, 1212, 1460
Cocks, Rachel 480
Cocuzzo, Joe 364, 968, 1168, 1352, 1501
Coda 1314
Codjia, Manu 1394, 1420
Codona 266
Codrington, Ray 655
Cody, Bill 501
Cody, Chris 266
Coe, Gene 92, 93, 1540
Coe, Tony 39, 77, 125, 177, 187, 225, 248, 255, 266, 326, 445, 466, 467, 531, 653, 674, 833, 834, 918, 963, 1389, 1414, 1416, 1435, 1524
Coelho, Tisza 76
Coffee, Denny 250, 316
Coffman, Don 327
Coffman, Tim 362
Coggins, Gil 285, 340, 341, 402, 978
Coghill, Tommy 933
Cohen, Anat 6, 76, 898
Cohen, Avishai 132, 267, 306, 307, 357, 463, 527, 713, 1145, 1238, 1301
Cohen, Avishai E. 6, 52, 268, 468, 897, 898, 1544
Cohen, Ben 475
Cohen, Frank 779
Cohen, Gil 462, 601
Cohen, Greg 276, 336, 399, 400, 415, 420, 611, 612, 626, 748, 992, 1140, 1141, 1225, 1256, 1260, 1350, 1389, 1454, 1542, 1543, 1544, 1545
Cohen, Joe 849
Cohen, Leonard 644
Cohen, Marc 1351
Cohen, Paul 93, 228, 492, 1283, 1391
Cohen, Porky 84, 1283
Cohen, Rachel 1318
Cohen, Ray 1388
Cohn, Al 15, 50, 115, 173, 196, 231, 239, 268, 299, 327, 341, 413, 415, 482, 498, 514, 543, 601, 668, 692, 694, 716, 752, 786, 789, 797, 831, 968, 1053, 1160, 1162, 1188, 1249, 1283, 1303, 1342, 1443, 1445
Cohn, Joe 23, 115, 269, 364, 539, 601, 606, 1141, 1343, 1486
Cohn, Michael 1300
Cohn, Mitch 1428
Cohn, Sonny 92, 93, 94, 250, 491, 492, 755, 1031
Cohn, Steve 269
Cohn, Zinky 1085, 1311
Cohran, Phil 1355, 1356, 1358
Coile, James 441
Coke, Alex 170
Coker, Charles 796
Coker, Dolo 320, 417, 1142
Coker, Henry 92, 228, 254, 328, 491, 552, 698, 758, 760, 799, 1000, 1056, 1278, 1486, 1517
Coker, Jerry 693, 1165
Cola, George 'Kid Sheik' 269, 455, 729
Cola, Sadie Goodson 1496
Colaiuta, Vinnie 80, 460, 644, 825, 924, 961, 978, 1255, 1340
Colam, Simon 1416
Colaneri, Buddy 849
Colbeck, Ric 730
Colbert, Melrose 705
Colbourne, Randall 494
Colby, Mark 483, 939
Cole, Aleta 648
Cole, Anthony 610, 1218
Cole, Bill 295, 884, 958
Cole, Cozy 24, 43, 44, 62, 63, 118, 123, 125, 209, 218, 219, 257, 269, 297, 329, 423, 424, 477, 488, 504, 552, 576, 614, 638, 668, 686, 711, 714, 715, 716, 796, 937, 1044, 1078, 1281, 1316, 1344, 1388, 1477, 1505, 1520, 1521, 1537
Cole, Dick 814
Cole, Donald 670, 999, 571
Cole, Eddie 271
Cole, Freddy 18, 270, 822, 1095, 1469
Cole, Geoff 295, 605, 884
Cole, Gus 1445
Cole, June 686, 1202
Cole, Lionel 270
Cole, Maria 271
Cole, Martin 729
Cole, Nat 271, 638, 774, 815, 816, 1535, 1536, 1537
Cole, Richie 272, 1210, 1211
Cole, Robert 1197
Cole, Rupert 42, 1197, 1505
Cole, Teddy 40, 63, 423
Colella, Jeff 1452
Coleman, Andrea 871
Coleman, Anthony 1068, 1311, 1542, 1543, 1544
Coleman, Bill 102, 196, 228, 230, 271, 272, 423, 704, 714, 947, 1197, 1202, 1251, 1279, 1456, 1457, 1477, 1483, 1510, 1521
Coleman, Cecilia 328, 839
Coleman, Dave 716
Coleman, Davis 937
Coleman, Denardo 276, 994
Coleman, Earl 31, 32, 724, 970, 1069, 1115, 1120, 1232
Coleman, Fitzroy 1422
Coleman, Gary 600

Coleman, George 66, 273, 345, 363, 414, 640, 641, 761, 762, 792, 813, 899, 919, 1040, 1134, 1138, 1219, 1220, 1299, 1351
Coleman, Gloria 317, 1532
Coleman, Ira 18, 153, 481, 644, 947, 1350, 1370, 1484
Coleman, James 648
Coleman, Jamie 1183
Coleman, Jerry 364
Coleman, Matt 532
Coleman, Montez 617, 1201, 1471
Coleman, Oliver 687, 705, 1066
Coleman, Ornette 138, 273, 851, 886, 980, 994
Coleman, Steve 21, 277, 649, 654, 718, 895, 1059, 1169, 1218, 1515
Coles, Bill 1443
Coles, Dominic 104
Coles, Edward 99
Coles, Johnny 22, 32, 175, 201, 278, 343, 345, 439, 461, 462, 641, 656, 884, 958, 1004, 1031, 1136, 1138, 1217, 1254, 1318, 1467
Coles, Norman 327
Coles, Ronnie 1190
Colianni, John 22
Colier, Ralph 434
Colin, Lois 1285
Colina, Michael 1255
Collazo, Julio 500, 554, 1262
Collective 4tet 278
Collett, Dave 125, 126
Collett, Frank 108, 278, 550, 1304
Collett, Lee 236
Collette, Buddy 145, 218, 222, 229, 278, 347, 555, 557, 588, 629, 632, 633, 681, 689, 820, 933, 1003, 1089, 1247, 1304, 1517
Collette, Dan 1095
Colley, Dallas 353
Colley, Scott 126, 127, 149, 241, 247, 279, 302, 330, 331, 503, 629, 630, 695, 703, 721, 811, 822, 826, 841, 895, 943, 957, 966, 1064, 1105, 1106, 1147, 1175, 1176, 1213, 1226, 1229, 1238, 1288, 1305, 1306, 1307, 1351, 1485, 1538
Collie, Max 280
Collier, Cecil 'Kid Haffey' 268, 1303
Collier, Earl 814
Collier, George 1460
Collier, Graham 280
Collier, Jack 70
Collier, Ralph 576, 815
Collier, Robert 595
Colligan, George 28, 73, 98, 214, 282, 293, 614, 684, 779, 839, 881, 967, 1147, 1169, 1171, 1185, 1193, 1374, 1396, 1503
Collignon, Médéric 1098, 1273
Collins, Addison 576, 577
Collins, Albert 1543
Collins, Bob 188, 1404
Collins, Booker 826, 1510
Collins, Burt 54, 113, 601, 693, 1009, 1138
Collins, Cal 578, 634, 946
Collins, Dave 226
Collins, Dennis 914
Collins, Derek 70
Collins, Dick 188, 254, 693, 1165, 1404
Collins, H. 576
Collins, Howard 455, 670, 887, 1249
Collins, Jay 52, 119, 898, 1343, 1390
Collins, Jerry 694
Collins, John 63, 229, 254, 272, 337, 340, 413, 423, 433, 489, 552, 596, 652, 668, 714, 755, 758, 789, 793, 1109, 1304, 1344, 1376, 1379, 1443
Collins, Junior 340, 1052
Collins, Lee 223, 798, 1044
Collins, Pat 421
Collins, Paul 119
Collins, Rudy 554, 797, 933, 1031, 1108, 1165, 1532
Collins, Shad 90, 91, 155, 218, 219, 228, 270, 271, 337, 372, 552, 704, 714, 715, 734, 1184, 1188, 1483
Colman, Andrew 1292
Colman, Mat 281
Cologne Radio Orchestra 868
Colombier, Michel 1134
Colombo, Eugenio 750, 1091
Colombo, Lou 327, 622, 780, 961, 962
Colon, Frank 414, 1343
Colot, Paul 1203
Colpitts, Jamie 148
Colson, Steve Adegoke 325
Colton, Dave 1211
Coltrane, Alice 283, 291, 292
Coltrane, John 10, 32, 200, 240, 254, 283, 284, 328, 341, 342, 343, 344, 384, 402, 436, 526, 552, 606, 712, 723, 755, 877, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1232, 1249, 1378, 1380, 1454
Coltrane, Oran 283, 291
Coltrane, Ravi 20, 128, 279, 283, 293, 982, 1016, 1051, 1056, 1169, 1472
Colucchio, Mike 413, 424, 1343
Colucci, Tony 100, 398, 864, 1081, 1101, 1353, 1446
Coluccio, Rocky 388, 397
Columbus, Chris 43
Colvard, Jim 203
Colville, Randy 564, 1080
Colyer, Bill 250, 294, 316
Colyer, Ken 250, 293, 316, 883, 884
Combatelli, Palmer 1388
Combelle, Alix 228, 272, 667, 796, 1202, 1203
Combelle, Philippe 497, 587, 1394
Combine, Buddy 764
Combs, Larry 932
Comegys, Leon 155, 553, 1219
Comer, Austin 554
Comer, Chris 645
Comfort, Joe 271, 417, 466, 638, 765, 1035, 1160, 1499
Comins, Dan 1326
Company 296
Compo, Charles 722
Conaway, Sterling 1326
Conception, Ray 553
Concini, Viva de 38
Conde, Eddie 75
Condit, Rich 819
Condon, Chick 1081
Condon, Eddie 41, 118, 150, 297, 329, 336, 504, 588, 622, 788, 796, 889, 947, 1017, 1327, 1388, 1456, 1457
Condon, Les 125, 321, 653, 674, 1414
Condouant, André 358
Conference Call 298
Conger, Al 71, 586
Conger, Larry 710, 1113
Coniff, Ray 780
Conigliaro, Joe 423, 848, 1092
Coniglio, Wayne 791
Conlon, Frank 1379
Conly, Sean 81, 660, 750, 1374
Conn, Mike 765
Connell, Bill 1437
Connell, Will 1371
Connell Jr, Will 1127, 1298
Connelly, Peggy 525
Conner, Chris 85
Connick Jr, Harry 948, 952
Conniff, Ray 118, 270, 1283
Connor, Chris 298
Connor, Ray 554
Connors, Bill 140, 304, 523, 1184, 1207
Connors, Chuck 436, 437, 438, 439, 492, 554, 712, 774, 1348, 1391
Connors, Gene 243
Connors, Mike 548
Connors, Norman 1259
Connors, Roland 639
Conquest, Leena 1129
Conrad, Bill 848
Conroy, Reg 591
Conselman, Bob 573, 937, 1388
Constable, Jessica 452
Conte, Luis 961, 994
Contemporary Bebop Quintet 300
Contemporary Jazz Quartet / Quintet 300
Contemporary String Quartet 886
Contet, Pascal 875
Conti, Michele 927, 1018
Contreras, Marta 1058
Convergence 300
Cooder, Ry 513
Cook, Ann 1079
Cook, Carla 539, 1169
Cook, Dave 498
Cook, Derek 1438
Cook, Frank 602
Cook, Janie 1259
Cook, Jean 2, 210
Cook, Jerry 693
Cook, Jimmy 764
Cook, Junior 57, 175, 201, 300, 649, 653, 723, 1009, 1298, 1299, 1427, 1462
Cook, Laurence 231, 377, 378, 865, 962, 1456, 1541
Cook, Phil 693, 764
Cook, Steve 1207, 1489
Cook, Willie 94, 433, 434, 435, 436, 438, 439, 490, 552, 553, 705, 913, 987, 1502
Cooke, Bob 1148
Cooke, Coat 620, 885, 1075
Cooke, India 875, 959, 1361, 1493
Cooke, Janet 846
Cooke, Jez 663
Cooke, Lawrence 1297
Cooke, Terry 819
Cooker, Henry 1188
Cooker, Matt 566
Cooley, Jack 31
Cooley, William 1505
Coolman, Todd 364, 520, 550, 926, 1032, 1269, 1518
Coombes, Jimmy 70
Coombes, Nigel 1333
Coon, Jackie 301, 476, 1389
Coonin, Harvey 818
Cooper, Alan 467
Cooper, Andy 628
Cooper, Bill 789
Cooper, Bob 64, 184, 222, 251, 271, 301, 341, 482, 557, 588, 656, 815, 816, 818, 820, 889, 935, 1093, 1111, 1141, 1143, 1230, 1231, 1247, 1248, 1280
Cooper, Buster 195, 262, 417, 436, 437, 438, 492, 706, 713, 774, 1254
Cooper, Craig 871
Cooper, Don 1190
Cooper, Fred 236
Cooper, Harry 428, 1047

Cooper, Jerome 1208
Cooper, John 754
Cooper, Les 83
Cooper, Lindsay 28, 74, 301, 1271, 1333
Cooper, L. Z. 1104
Cooper, Nick 1365
Cooper, Ray 483
Cooper, Sheila 302
Cooper, Sid 342, 397, 715, 1345
Cooper, Steve 917
Cooper-Moore 742, 1127, 1128, 1129, 1371, 1422
Copeland, Keith 123, 141, 167, 302, 313, 326, 327, 608, 679, 794, 968, 1212, 1250, 1267
Copeland, Ray 35, 231, 259, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1023, 1160, 1491, 1527
Copeland, Rudy 414
Copenhagen Arts Ensemble 121
Copland, Marc 107, 176, 302, 626, 690, 866, 966, 967, 1352, 1355, 1518
Copper, Barry 236
Coppieters, Francis 38
Coppola, John 84, 693, 815, 816, 1000
Coppola, John David 571
Copsey, Ralph 1388
Coq, Laurent 303
Coquille, Bob 708
Cora, Tom 842, 1542
Corado, Don 462
Corb, Morty 579
Corbett, Jon 104, 206, 303, 604, 618, 905, 906
Corcoran, Corky 397, 764
Cordaro, John 1388
Cordella, Charlie 628, 1075
Cordew, Lionel 80, 1169
Cordonnier, Paul 1326
Corea, Chick 170, 183, 204, 205, 253, 267, 303, 308, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 511, 527, 546, 555, 562, 688, 689, 740, 811, 831, 871, 933, 1009, 1261, 1262, 1296, 1302, 1405, 1417, 1452
Corea, Gayle Moran 307
Corley, Leslie 798
Corman, J. K. 1188
Cornelious, Eve 754
Cornelius, Corky 574, 575, 847, 848
Cornell, Butch 1468
Cornell, Dick 937
Corneloup, François 1193, 1394
Cornford, Bob 549
Cornick, David 473
Cornick, Hayley 480
Cornille, André 1202
Cornucopia Ensemble 870
Coro Polifonico 535
Corpolongo, Rich 307, 362
Corrado, Donald 287, 483
Corrao, Vinnie 831, 1346, 1435
Corre, Jay 752, 1210
Correa, Alegere 1449
Correa, Alegre 1540
Correa, Benjamin 'Chamin' 190
Correa, Christine 224
Correa, William 1165, 1313
Corrigan, Pete 869
Corris, Lenny 764
Corsano, Chris 261, 494, 1127, 1297
Corsello, Joe 942, 981
Cortese, Dominic 216, 942, 1168
Cortez, Jayne 709
Corvini, Claudio 473, 536
Corvini, Mario 473
Corwin, Bob 66, 1094, 1527
Coryell, Julian 309
Coryell, Julie 308
Coryell, Larry 67, 168, 203, 308, 591, 592, 633, 775, 864, 933, 938, 942, 1205, 1433, 1535
Coryell, Murali 309
Cosey, Pete 349, 350, 350, 643
Cosker, Alyn 203, 1318, 1410
Cosmosamatics, The 310
Cossa, Carmen 545
Costa, Bill 797
Costa, Carmen 1262
Costa, Eddie 15, 311, 455, 468, 469, 601, 632, 772, 877, 886, 933, 976, 1025, 1186, 1254, 1286, 1322, 1391, 1502, 1527
Costa, Johnny 311
Costanzo, Jack 271, 272, 525, 588, 815, 1247
Costanzo, Sonny 1391
Costello, Elvis 1006
Costello, Johnny 1101
Costello, Mike 810
Coster, Tom 309
Costi, Al 779
Cote, Dominique 183
Cotmon, James 1064
Cott, Jonathan 136
Cotterill, Pete 280, 961
Cotti, Louis 1540
Cottle, Laurence 405, 680, 811, 880, 956, 1112, 1051, 1180
Cottle, Richard 811, 956, 1285
Cottler, Irving 820, 1089, 1239
Cotton, Mike 126, 596
Cotton, P. C. 1050
Cottrell, Louis 76, 77, 311, 1167, 1224
Cottrell, Louis Jr 148
Coulber, Dunstan 311
Coulson, Vic 667
Counce, Curtis 65, 222, 242, 278, 301, 312, 482, 525, 542, 557, 588, 720, 723, 759, 791, 817, 935, 1146, 1230, 1231, 1316, 1513, 1535
Count Basie Orchestra 113, 544, 1445
Countryman, Geoff 1486
Courance, Edgar 272
Courbois, Pierre 314, 637, 1025
Coursil, Jacques 312, 1062, 1531
Courtley, Bert 918, 1206
Courtois, Vincent 96, 313, 1188, 1222, 1273
Courvoisier 1545
Courvoisier, Sylvie 312, 1223, 1544
Cousins, Bob 1499
Cousins, Lorraine 1002
Covelli, Larry 108
Covetti, Frenchy 63
Covey, Arnold 575
Covey, Bill 395
Covington, Charles 113
Covington, Ike 1114
Covington, Kirk 825
Covington, Warren 299, 1052
Cowell, Stanley 88, 183, 197, 313, 365, 500, 679, 787, 1143, 1220, 1234, 1250, 1406
Cowens, Herbert 714, 1184, 1316
Cowherd, Jon 28, 539
Cowling, Pete 28
Cox, Adrian 790
Cox, Alphonse 1202
Cox, Anthony 21, 216, 314, 325, 509, 590, 869, 997, 1067, 1274, 1396, 1460
Cox, Baby 428
Cox, Bruce 57, 601, 659, 1189
Cox, Chris 1016
Cox, Gary 226, 371
Cox, Jerry 999
Cox, John 1315, 1469
Cox, Kenny 793
Cox, Leon 388, 436, 576, 848, 1092
Cox, Marion 431, 432
Cox, Mike 590
Cox, Norrie 314
Cox, Terry 187, 981
Coxhill, Lol 117, 151, 199, 203, 224, 296, 314, 362, 1216
Coxon, John 112, 1311
Coyne, Kevin 938
Cozier, Jimmy 277, 1095, 1218, 1262, 1263, 1406, 1469
Crabb, Tyne 983
Crabtree, Richie 1026
Cracchiolo, Sal 566, 1292
Craft, Curtis 1450
Craft, Morgan Michael 183
Craig, Al 228, 477, 1204
Craig, Archie 477
Craig, Bob 187
Craig, Charles 965
Craig, Debi 578
Craig, James 31, 1467
Craig, Jay 371, 415, 1412, 1415, 1509
Craig, Richard 561
Crain, Malcolm 1282
Cram, Paul 885, 1075
Cramer, Dylan 316
Cramer, Larry 197
Cran, Marshall 1230
Crandall, Clark 1388
Crane, Bob 195
Crane, Mickey 207, 1162
Crane, Ray 187, 248
Crane, Rick 272
Crane, Roy 467
Crane, Thomas 1211
Crane River Jazz Band 316
Cranshaw, Bob 9, 12, 35, 113, 141, 207, 213, 231, 278, 319, 320, 570, 581, 599, 635, 641, 653, 670, 687, 732, 739, 740, 755, 774, 831, 867, 876, 904, 917, 927, 980, 986, 1013, 1018, 1027, 1028, 1031, 1039, 1040, 1085, 1138, 1148, 1165, 1234, 1235, 1242, 1295, 1299, 1424, 1462, 1509, 1513, 1517, 1539
Cranshaw, Emmanuel 6
Craven, Sonny 638
Crawford, Bennie 1074
Crawford, Bixie 92
Crawford, Forrest 118
Crawford, Hank 316, 971
Crawford, Jimmy 43, 63, 94, 257, 490, 577, 578, 628, 715, 759, 783, 797, 912, 913, 1276, 1322, 1537
Crawford, John 773
Crawford, Randy 323
Crawford, Ray 320, 389, 461, 571, 760, 1346
Crawford, Rosetta 1504
Crawley, Wilton 1044
Crayton, Connie 555
Crayton, Pee Wee 1444
Crea, Bob 337
Creamer, David 350
Crean, Tom 166
Creative Jazz Orchestra 162
Creative Music Orchestra 1237
Creeley, Robert 1370
Creese, Malcolm 8, 267, 332, 453, 528
Cregg, Hugh 1365
Cremaschi, George 421
Creque, Neal 1262
Cresci, John 1501
Cressey, Jack 715
Cressman, Jeff 38, 737, 765
Cressman, Juliana 38
Cressman, Natalie 38

Cretney, Nigel 1512
Crews, Felton 351
Crigger, Dave 441
Crimmins, Roy 1190, 1252, 1279, 1484
Crispell, Marilyn 161, 162, 317, 485, 620, 874, 1092, 1123, 1124, 1188, 1529
Criss, Sonny 64, 318, 416, 417, 497, 580, 595, 774, 945, 1119, 1162, 1517
Critchinson, John 126, 320, 1277, 1331
Critchlow, Eddie 1388
Crnobrnja, DJ Sasha 1128
Crocco, Chris 533
Crocker, John 78, 320
Crockett, Ed 763, 862
Crockett, Greg 414
Crolla, Henri 591
Crombie, Tony 210, 321, 370, 479, 672, 1199
Cromer, Austin 554
Cron, Rosalind 748
Crona, Claes 321, 447
Cronholm, Josefine 95, 392, 964
Cronkhite, Glenn 863
Cronkite, Walter 193
Crook, Hal 321, 735
Crooks, Richard 415
Croona, Per-Arne 386, 615
Crosby, Bing 42, 43, 105, 106, 395, 397, 398, 429, 638, 698, 803, 864, 1388
Crosby, Charles 827, 828, 829, 899
Crosby, Daniel 76, 780
Crosby, Gary 76, 776, 1342
Crosby, Harper 595, 665
Crosby, Israel 31, 50, 123, 423, 424, 628, 667, 668, 686, 687, 760, 761, 798, 847, 849, 887, 1086, 1334, 1520
Crosland, Ben 453
Cross, Earl 730
Crossan, Jim 398
Crossan, Jimmy 1081
Crossin, Morris 779
Crossley, Payton 235, 617
Crossley, Tom 561
Crothers, Connie 321
Crotty, Ron 188
Crouse, Cappy 622
Crovetto, Bruno 533, 534
Crow, Bill 26, 173, 259, 268, 311, 394, 544, 627, 982, 1053, 1054, 1192, 1225, 1303, 1352, 1499
Crow, Sheryl 1213
Crowder, Robert 655, 705
Crowe, Austin 372, 373
Crowley, Jack 706
Crown, Clyde 816
Croy, Martin 1081
Crozier, Rube 106, 1446
Cruise, Tara 645
Cruiz, Jimmy 76
Crull, Bob 818
Crum, Robert 1316
Crumbley, Elmer 912, 913
Crumly, Pat 322
Crump, Stephan 443, 660, 751, 752, 923
Crump, Thomas 416, 705
Crumpler, Chester 432
Crusaders, The (Jazz) 322
Cruz, Adam 88, 126, 306, 323, 585, 745, 916, 934, 1006, 1076, 1146, 1176, 1257, 1301, 1520
Cruz, Mario 1133
Cruz, Rafael 323, 406
Cruz, Thomas Raymond 890
Cruz, Tomas 1261
Crystal, Eric 28, 751
Cuadrado, Alexis 98, 323, 481, 778, 972, 1463
Cuban All Stars 1261
Cuber, Ronnie 112, 113, 176, 323, 568, 837, 972, 1005, 1006, 1256, 1518
Cuenca, Sylvia 324, 501, 966, 1392
Cuesta, Henry 1389
Cuevas, Marc 665
Cuffee, Ed 91, 423, 686, 784, 975, 1098, 1343, 1504
Cullaz, Alby 15
Cullaz, Pierre 497
Cullen, Boyce 105, 864
Culley, Ross 1084
Culley, Wendell 92, 99, 218, 262, 638, 1278
Culley, Willard 764
Culliver, Fred 987
Cullum, Jamie 533
Cullum, Jim 1058
Cully, Billy 1092
Culp, Dave 1210
Culver, Laura 334
Culver, Rick 496
Culver, Rollie 1082
Cumberbatch, Tulivu-Donna 1136
Cummings, Cenovia 1321
Cummings, Jock 70, 248
Cummings, Robert 1356, 1357, 1358
Cummins, Marcus 735, 1473
Cunha, João 1263
Cunliffe, Bill 259, 323, 841, 854, 903, 1292, 1335, 1499
Cunningham, Bob 473, 501, 554, 775, 855
Cunningham, Ed 50, 388, 1443
Cuomo, George 83
Cuozzo, Al 764
Cupero, Joe 150
Cuppini, Gil 533
Cura, Domingo 79
Curado, Paulo 747
Curl, Langston 975, 1197, 1343
Curnow, Bob 818
Curran, Alvin 30
Currant, Lester 43
Currie, Scott 1298
Curry, Bert 41
Curry, Bill 753
Curry, James 83
Curry, Richard 753
Curry, Ted 1204, 1344
Curson, Gary 402, 1090
Curson, Ted 86, 281, 324, 377, 383, 1002, 1003, 1289, 1380
Curtis, Al 84
Curtis, Cleophus 987
Curtis, Gail 397
Curtis, Harry 1537
Curtis, Howard 282, 361, 1195, 1396
Curtis, Jual 583, 971
Curtis, King 113, 655
Curtis, Larry 183
Curtis, Luques 205, 659
Curtis, Robert 362
Curtis, Rodney Skeet 240
Curtis, Stuart 51, 1416
Curtis III, T. Howard 945
Curtis, Zaccai 659
Cusack, Kim 754
Cusack, Peter 357
Cush, Frank 494, 1081
Cusick, Freddy 1081
Cusumano, Bob 42, 396
Cuthill, James 480
Cutler, Stew 728, 1182
Cutshall, Cutty 249, 297, 298, 355, 395, 575, 576, 578, 622, 1093
Cuz, Dr 1399
Cypron, Teddy 416
Cyrille, Andrew 1, 7, 21, 75, 116, 137, 152, 183, 255, 310, 324, 372, 373, 623, 669, 775, 778, 842, 860, 896, 917, 959, 1018, 1019, 1060, 1061, 1189, 1271, 1290, 1373, 1374, 1380, 1381, 1529
Czabanyck, Ladislas 1204, 1344
Czech, Jeff 307
Czech State Philharmonic Orchestra 1539
Czelustra, Wolfgang 800, 1477

D

D, Chuck 1291
D'Agaro, Daniele 325
D'Agostino, John 50, 83, 1162, 1443
D'Aiello, Renato 182, 326
D'Aloia, Chuck 171
D'Amato, Chappie 591
D'Ambrosio, Meredith 327
D'Amico, Hal 270
D'Amico, Hank 44, 63, 297, 397, 528, 614, 937, 1089, 1334, 1353
D'Amore, Tony 847, 848
D'Andrea, Dan 42, 716
D'Andrea, Franco 328, 548, 1201, 1278
D'Angelo, Andrew 37, 224, 422, 508, 1518, 1519
D'Angelo, Dave 329
D'Angelo, Jeff 324, 632, 1292
D'Anna, Alberto 473
D'Anna, Stefano 333, 925, 1163
D'Annolfo, Frank 118, 396
D'Arango, Bill 1344, 1443, 1445
D'Aveny, Tony 826
D'Earth, John 352, 361, 1205
D'Hellemmes, Eugène 272, 667, 1202
D'Hondt, Paul 1203
D'Imperio, Bob 355
D'Imperio, Danny 355, 374
D'Oliveira, Bosco 322
D'Rivera, Paquito 195, 406, 465, 555, 934, 991, 1095, 1392
D'Silva, Amancio 407
D'Silva, Mark 532
D'Souza, Adrian 478
D'Urquiza, Juan 991
D'Urso, Phil 44
Daawud, Talib 228, 554, 826
Dabney, Bart 499
Dabney, Eli 32
Da Costa, Paulinho 79, 80, 351, 505, 555, 713, 844, 1255
Dade, Sushil K. 203
Daerr, Carsten 325, 367
Dagley, Chris 956, 1180
Dagradi, Tony 137, 949
Dahinden, Roland 161, 165, 325, 352
Dahl, Carsten 326, 503, 565, 921, 1131, 1212, 1395, 1450, 1453
Dahl, Jan Fredrik 602
Dahl, Jim 15, 1052, 1187
Dahl, Kerstin 1306
Dahlander, Nils-Bertil 46, 65, 615, 616, 1149
Dahlbäck, Erik 1459
Dahlberg, Gus 449
Dahlgren, Chris 73, 165, 166, 649, 1430, 1496
Dahlgren, Peter 35, 997, 1087, 1431, 1525
Dahlgren, Winnie 775
Dailey, Albert 88, 326, 364, 501, 546, 1242
Dailey, Milton Omar 1064
Dailleau, Laurent 30
Daisical, Laka 1487, 1497
Daisy, Tim 1206, 1237, 1439, 1440
Dajcar, Matjaz 1254
Dako, Del 520
Dalachiunsky, Steve 1298
Dale, Carlotta 1334
Dale, Dick 849
Dale, Joe 83, 848, 849, 1092

Dale, Olave 71
Dale, Richard 848
Daley, Joe 7, 137, 210, 452, 462, 498, 625, 1298, 1421
Dall'omo, Massimo 339
Dalla Porta, Paolino 96, 472, 473, 548, 1254
Dallas, Sonny 836, 1417, 1527
Dalseth, Laila 115, 327
Dalto, Jorge 113
Daly, Bernard 864
Daly, Claire 498
Daly, Georges 'Géo' 209, 497, 859
Daly, John 498
Daly, Stan 564
Damanti, Chuck 207
Dameron, Tadd 180, 284, 328, 340, 413, 571, 986, 1069, 1118, 1443
Damiani, Paolo 750, 1419, 1524
Damm, Jean 1203
Dana, Dave 1211
Dandridge, Dorothy 43, 329
Dandridge, Putney 329
Dandridge Sisters 912
Dane, Barbara 401, 464
Dane, Jonathan 720
Danell, Nils 837, 1306
Danemo, Peter 256, 997, 1407
Dani, Roberto 96
Daniel, Arthur 1172
Daniel, Ted 75, 324, 941, 1401
Daniellian, Barry 80
Daniels, Billy 826
Daniels, Douglas 101, 638, 1331
Daniels, Eddie 329, 851
Daniels, Jim 375
Daniels, Marcel 31
Daniels, Marcelle 724
Daniels, Maxine 900
Daniels, Mike 1080
Daniels, Wilbur 1331
Danielsson, Lars 117, 326, 330, 619, 766, 767, 781, 942, 1086, 1317, 1406, 1407, 1431, 1432, 1453
Danielsson, Palle 3, 5, 21, 22, 448, 457, 519, 523, 769, 782, 901, 997, 1087, 1159, 1193, 1336, 1368, 1384, 1525
Danielsson, Per 250
Danish Radio Big Band 938, 1239
Danish Radio Jazz Group 1293
Danish Radio Jazz Orchestra 267, 426
Danko, Harold 67, 69, 187, 327, 330, 536, 778, 837, 838, 839, 1090, 1147, 1518
Dankworth, Alec 9, 81, 82, 192, 332, 332, 333, 367, 531, 825, 879, 880, 963, 1067, 1077, 1140, 1317, 1385, 1389, 1482
Dankworth, E. 18
Dankworth, Jacqui 332, 532, 991, 1167, 1180
Dankworth, John 332, 333, 531
Dankworth Generation Band, Alec and John 333
Danstrup, Peter 391, 809, 810, 1386
Danza, Joseph 1075
Danziger, Zach 217
Daone, Mario 413, 1210
Dapogny, James 244, 612
Dara, Olu 120, 152, 683, 1059, 1185, 1515, 1516
Darby, Ron 96
Darcy, Don 1188
Dardanelle 1354
Dare, Reggie 70, 248, 1322
Darensbourg, Joe 44, 333, 413, 958, 1104
Darensbourg, Percy 1184
Darken, Eric 1385
Darling, David 475, 1131
Darling, Frank Coco 254
Darling, Frank 'Coco' 671
Darling, Wayne 694
Darnell, Bill 671, 913, 1081
Darqui, Alex 1133
Darr, Jerome 562
Darriau, Matt 493, 1270, 1441
Darrohn, Jeff 333
Dart, Bill 784, 1472
Darville, John 417
Dasberg, Sam 228
Dash, Julian 334, 670, 671, 748, 1248 da Silva, Mark 532
Dassary, André 1202
D.A.T.A. 334
Datcher, Irene 1431
Dato, Carlo Actis 334, 446, 476, 750, 1000, 1091, 1092
Datz, Micky 50, 1443
Daugherty, Ed 6
Daughery, Bob 694
Dauner, Flo 944
Dauner, Wolfgang 1477
Dave, Chris 131, 530
Dave Lambert Singers, The 1170
Davenport, Jack 496
Davenport, Jeremy 335
Davenport, Wallace 195, 262, 639, 1500
Davern, Kenny 156, 158, 336, 355, 626, 707, 708, 872, 961, 1090, 1140, 1246, 1260, 1350, 1366, 1435, 1483, 1499, 1500
DaVersa, Jay 642
Davey, Arthur 42
Davey, Ron 918
David, Jacques 33, 1397
David Leonhardt 1074
Davidsen, Nils 121, 375, 1131
Davidson, David 1385
Davidson, Don 816, 1052
Davidson, Jay 18
Davidson, Julian 1104
Davidson, Lowell 337
Davidson, Neil 561
Davidsson, Fredrik 1407
Davie, Alan 1108
Davies, Charlie 759
Davies, Helen 996
Davies, Howard 576
Davies, Hugh 315, 1063
Davies, John R. T. 187, 295, 316, 443, 475, 869, 1352
Davies, Josephine 876
Davies, Julian 296, 316
Davies, Rhodri 206, 296, 357, 480, 832
Davila, Jose 443, 1402
Dávila, José Antonio 703
Davilla, Paquito 1095
Davis, Al 576
Davis, Anthony 151, 337, 730, 778, 885, 1059, 1309, 1310
Davis, Art 16, 32, 134, 247, 287, 289, 290, 291, 292, 384, 544, 554, 597, 669, 732, 792, 797, 800, 827, 894, 899, 939, 943, 1039, 1071, 1219, 1220, 1303, 1313, 1391, 1425
Davis, Ben 262, 869, 1101, 1466
Davis, Beryl 591
Davis, Bill 490, 760, 789
Davis, Blind John 1533
Davis, Bob 105, 337, 494, 900, 1081, 1433, 1540
Davis, Bud 388
Davis, Charles 7, 110, 393, 412, 732, 743, 775, 798, 801, 855, 962, 1184, 1290, 1355, 1356, 1361, 1380, 1391, 1462, 1467
Davis, Charlie 496
Davis, Chicago Carl 337
Davis, Clint 764
Davis, Danny 842, 1355, 1357, 1358, 1359
Davis, Don 996
Davis, Eddie 'Lockjaw' 92, 93, 94, 230, 238, 255, 319, 337, 341, 354, 383, 417, 492, 527, 555, 596, 607, 609, 654, 669, 755, 774, 795, 826, 986, 999, 1069, 1155, 1176, 1277, 1467, 1505, 1516
Davis, Eddy 551, 663, 1454
Davis, Edwin 228
Davis, George 79, 764, 1539
Davis, Glenn 602, 982
Davis, Henry 642
Davis, Howard 752
Davis, Jackie 492, 1467
Davis, Jeff 339, 615, 838, 1098, 1502
Davis, Jerry 601
Davis, Jesse 184, 339, 649, 955, 1187, 1335, 1392, 1517
Davis, John 798
Davis, Johnnie 180
Davis, Johnny 1041
Davis, Joshua 1107
Davis, Julia 379
Davis, Julian 295
Davis, Kay 431, 432
Davis, Kenny 90, 216, 634, 754, 914, 1148, 1390, 1515
Davis, Kris 339
Davis, Lem 528, 698, 715, 853
Davis, Leonard 42, 228, 297, 671, 734, 975, 1251, 1387, 1456, 1504
Davis, Lew 228
Davis, Lloyd 188, 368
Davis, Marc 810, 1227
Davis, Martha 803
Davis, Matt 1173
Davis, Maxwell 736, 789, 1000, 1535
Davis, Mel 780, 1027, 1028
Davis, Michael 80, 109, 240, 1008, 1213
Davis, Mike 483, 1256
Davis, Miles 10, 229, 239, 284, 340, 413, 416, 552, 668, 726, 758, 877, 945, 1000, 1052, 1114, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1120, 1176, 1232, 1443
Davis, Nathan 587
Davis, N. Glenn 353
Davis, Numa Lee 760, 987
Davis, Nyles 1388
Davis, Orbert 427, 888
Davis, Palmer 705
Davis, Pat 42, 62, 236, 1446
Davis, Peter 415
Davis, Pike 410, 428
Davis, Quincy 525, 652, 818, 1210, 1471
Davis, Rhodri 199
Davis, Richard 48, 88, 113, 135, 208, 299, 329, 330, 345, 353, 373, 382, 384, 385, 394, 449, 462, 499, 501, 509, 518, 546, 555, 633, 647, 687, 688, 701, 702, 703, 706, 739, 755, 775, 792, 794, 799, 827, 828, 831, 871, 943, 1028, 1031, 1059, 1071, 1090, 1133, 1258, 1259, 1301, 1346, 1398, 1405, 1443, 1445, 1446, 1462, 1479, 1512, 1539
Davis, Robert 551
Davis, Ron 195, 694
Davis, Sam 1109
Davis, Sammy 24
Davis, Scott 845
Davis, Shelby 1141
Davis, Spanky 497
Davis, Stanton 1250

Davis, Stanton Jr 1343
Davis, Steve 122, 149, 267, 285, 286, 306, 307, 329, 353, 368, 376, 460, 472, 603, 640, 677, 697, 733, 777, 876, 932, 1073, 1134, 1136, 1241, 1296, 1370, 1424, 1425, 1481, 1514
Davis, Strethen 262
Davis, Tim 517
Davis, Tiny 748
Davis, Troy 18, 335
Davis, Vincent 250, 485
Davis, Walter 319, 320, 1378
Davis, Walter Jr 133, 135, 354, 373, 419, 554, 796, 899, 979, 1219, 1242, 1290
Davis, Wild Bill 78, 155, 354, 433, 438, 439, 492, 759, 803, 859, 1037, 1344
Davis, Will 201, 970
Davis, Xavier 154, 234, 354, 355, 603, 645, 652, 658, 733, 791, 1073, 1424, 1481
Davison, Wild Bill 100, 101, 102, 297, 298, 355, 467, 1113
Dawes, Bob 84
Dawes, Dwight 18
Dawkins, Ernest 356, 444
Dawn, Charene 357, 1479
Dawson, Alan 16, 191, 208, 319, 320, 449, 450, 469, 501, 582, 592, 647, 758, 759, 797, 827, 831, 985, 1013, 1031, 1075, 1148, 1346, 1435
Dawson, Chris 611, 823, 1308
Dawson, Eddie 729, 1037
Dawson, Eric 652
Dawson, Nick 1217
Dawson, Roger 136
Dawson, Sid 753
Dawud, Talib 155
Day, Arita 248, 1516
Day, Bernie 1388
Day, Ike 31
Day, Janice 1080
Day, Phil 1509
Day, Terry 357, 1251
Daye, Irene 847, 848
Dayle, Aubrey 1430, 1431
De Arango, Bill 337, 552, 1186, 1477, 1537
De Azevado, Daudeth 79
De Bernardi, Davide 1043
De Bethmann, Pierre 443, 478, 1138
De Boer, Jean-Victor 772
De Brashov, Roberto 183
De Ceunyck, Camille 1479
De Clouet, Theryl 738
De Cock, Joris 737
De Cock, Omer 667
De Concini, Viva 76
De Concordu, Tenore 1201
De Droit, Johnny 357
De Droit, Paul 357
De Flon, John 483
De Gouw, Toon 744
De Graaf, Dick 68
De Gregorio, Daniele 535
De Haas, Eddie 33, 65, 506, 627, 785, 954, 1302, 1400, 1499
De Holanda, Hamilton 519
De Hollanda, Heloísa Buarque 546
De Jesus, Joe 50
De Jong, Ron 60
De Jonge, Henk 169, 170
De Joode, Wilbert 55, 149, 594
De Julius, Rudy 83
De Karske, Karle 84
De Kort, Bert 411
De Krom, Sebastiaan 81, 533, 1096
De Laat, Henk 772
De La Rosa, Frank 440, 441
De la Torre, Luis 663
De Leon, Joey 363
De Leon, Jose 324
De Luca, Rudy 50, 1443
De Lucia, Rocco 446
De Lussanet, Louis 411
De Marco Sisters 504
De Orosei, Tenore 1201
De Paolis, Tony 1171
De Paris, Sidney 100, 102, 228, 357, 502, 628, 788, 975, 1044, 1197, 1319, 1353
De Paris, Wilbur 42, 100, 102, 228, 357, 431, 432, 712, 734, 1044, 1505
De Paulo, Jose 1262
De Pew, Bill 488, 574, 1334
De Piazza, Dominique 977
De Reuver, Annie 667
De Robertis, Johnny 269
De Rooy, Nico 667
De Rosa, Carol 21, 28
De Rosa, Clem 865, 1001
De Rosa, Richard 969
De Roy, Nich 228
De Sah, Wanda 369
De Saram, Rohan 29
De Sequeira, Luiz Carlos 412
De Serio, Antonio 533
De Sousa, Yorke 591
De Souza, York 228
De Verteuil, Eddie 254, 1176, 1505
De Villers, Michel 254, 358, 497, 1204
De Wilde, Laurent 943
Dean, Alex 967, 968
Dean, Bob 1113
Dean, Chasie 962
Dean, Chris 137
Dean, Demas 99
Dean, Donald 655, 863
Dean, Elton 137, 358, 362, 409, 1215, 1403, 1404
Dean, Kevin 360
Dean, Roger 280, 281
Dean, Terence 1423
Dean, Vinnie 84, 123, 199, 816
Dean, Weesley 83
Deane, Dorena 155
Deane, J. A. 728, 1043
Deane, Laura 83
DeAngelis, Joseph 679
Deardorf, Chuck 864, 961
Dearie, Blossom 360, 543
Dearne, Phil 316
DeBellis, Robert 'Bob' 7, 420, 790, 1088, 1262
DeBrest, Spanky 133, 285, 402, 800, 1040
Debriano, Santi 110, 115, 215, 240, 309, 354, 361, 405, 493, 505, 661, 672, 753, 765, 894, 914, 985, 1061, 1242, 1513, 1541
Dechter, Ted 816
Deck, Pierre 1202, 1203
Decker, Bill 1203
Decker, Bob 1203
Decker, James 1283
Decobain, Dave 1333
Decou, Walter 783, 784
Dedication Orchestra, The 362
Dedrick, Rusty 1354
Dee, Brian 9, 23, 82, 367, 756, 776, 961, 963, 1046
Dee, Johnny 395, 576, 1052
Deems, Barrett 44, 125, 362, 504, 654, 711, 1315, 1328, 1389
Deep Blue Organ Trio 362
Deep River Boys 1458
Def, Mos 738
DeFatto, Guy 102, 272
DeFaut, Volly 105, 711, 1044
Defauw, John 362
DeFense, Nene 1290
Defferary, John 958, 1070, 1112, 1113
DeFrancesco, Joey 131, 149, 202, 238, 323, 351, 362, 363, 364, 550, 791, 958, 977, 1191, 1351
DeFrancesco, Papa John 363, 363
DeFranco, Buddy 271, 364, 397, 550, 552, 639, 716, 815, 848, 851, 1162, 1378
Degen, Bob 587
Degibri, Eli 365
DeHart, George 528
DeHay, Bill 855
Dehnhard, Tilmann 747, 1266
Dehors, Laurent 1174
Deidda, Dario 1268
Dejan, Harold 269, 413
Dejan, Leo 413
DeJohnette, Jack 3, 22, 106, 113, 147, 167, 168, 171, 201, 213, 214, 234, 283, 304, 347, 348, 349, 350, 365, 369, 381, 426, 457, 458, 523, 536, 641, 643, 688, 689, 694, 732, 769, 770, 771, 822, 831, 836, 851, 901, 924, 938, 994, 1040, 1133, 1137, 1175, 1235, 1238, 1245, 1256, 1274, 1296, 1310, 1340, 1364, 1365, 1369, 1411, 1417, 1424, 1427, 1451, 1452, 1462, 1494, 1530, 1539
Dekany, Zoltan 1292
Dekker, Bob 411
Dekker, Hans 565, 745, 1228
Del Barrio, Eddie 547
Del Curto, Héctor 406
Del Frà, Riccardo 52, 69, 173, 376, 943, 1163, 1226
Del Monte, Reinaldo Valera 1261
Del Rio, Jack 797
Del Simone, Al 84
Del Val, Gonzalo 477
Deland, Freddie 450
Delander, Hans 1087
Delaney, Eric 652
Delaney, Jack 16, 150, 293
Delany, Jack 737, 1164, 1337
Delaporte, Michel 223
DeLaria, Lea 1285
Delaunay, Charles 1202
Delbecq, Benoît 366, 728, 729
Delchambre, Laurent 359
Delcloo, Claude 312, 1297
Delegge, Salvatore 654
Delerme, Asher 713
DeLeston, Ellen 537
Delgado, Elvita 908
Delgado, Jimmy 454
Delgado, Mário 366
Delius, Tobias 51, 116, 253, 366, 594, 1016, 1034
Dell'Arte, Sebastiano 927
Dell, Christopher 174, 366, 805
Dell, Eddie 63, 1089
Dell, Gene 1210
Dell, Maurey 579
Dellert, Sigge 1354
Delmar, Andy 1188
Delmar, Elaine 367
Delmiro, Hélio 79, 1444
Deloof, Gus 1202
Delpierre, Maxime 1273
Delplancq, Fred 359
Delta Jazz Band 367
Delta Rhythm Boys 63, 913
Deltour, Emile 1203
Delville, Michel 359
Demany, Jack 1203
DeMasure, Geoffroy 277
Dembele, Assitan 1539
Dembski, Stephen 485
DeMello, Thiago 969
DeMichael, Don 336, 362
Demierre, Jacques 312, 367, 832
DeMonte, Mike 747
Dempsey, Ray 1414, 1510
Dempster, Loren 983

Dempster, Stuart 983
Denaut, Jud 1282, 1283
Dengler, John 207, 622
DeNicola, Tony 158, 336, 626
DeNigris, Cary 633, 634, 756, 1148
DeNiro, Angela 1057
Denis, Michel 55
Deniz, Frank 70
Deniz, Joe 70, 591
Denjean, Jacques 254
Denley, Jim 198
Dennard, Kenwood 352, 454, 563, 798, 958, 1133
Denner, Anton 227
Dennis, Arthur 43, 758, 760
Dennis, Denny 397
Dennis, Don 816
Dennis, John 799
Dennis, Kenny 606, 877, 1346, 1454
Dennis, Matt 367, 577
Dennis, Rudolf 987
Dennis, Stanley 42, 62, 236
Dennis, Willie 545, 578, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1054, 1094, 1248
Denson, Karl 649
Dent, LaForet 912, 1047
Denton, Jackie 226
Denton, Joe 691, 692
Dentz, John 222, 458, 882, 1144
DePaul, Joe 779
DePaul University Jazz Ensemble 1528
Depew, Art 1093
Deppa, Claude 74, 104, 108, 137, 362, 368, 680, 1016
Deppe, Lois 686
Deppe, Russell 542
Deppenschmidt, Buddy 211, 545
Derado, Tino 619
Derbigny, Duke 729
DeRisi, Al 173, 601, 797
Deron, Claude 562
DeRosa, Pete 239, 1165
DeRosa, Vince 199, 218, 466, 818, 1095, 1142, 1283, 1408
DeRosa, Vincent 1082, 1111
DeRose, Dena 368
Derrick, Dorothy 686
Derrick, Frank 671
Derry, Bob 1388
Dervaux, Pierre 102
Dervieu, Eric 1434
DeSair, Skippy 691, 692
Des Plantes, Ted 369, 682
Desandre, Xavier 451, 943
Desandre-Navarre, Xavier 1086
Deschepper, Philippe 1272, 1393
DeSiena, Pete 85
Designer 214
Desmond, Johnny 848, 1092
Desmond, Paul 66, 188, 189, 190, 191, 368, 1053
Despaigne, Ferdinanco 335
Dessinger, George 622
Desvignes, Sidney 1114
Detail 370
Deuchar, Jimmy 255, 370, 413, 479, 672, 673, 674, 776
Deupree, Jerome 422
Deutsch, Erik 739, 997
Deutsch, Mark 1131
Devens, George 1028, 1313
Devereaux, Laurence 1290
Devilla, Don 705
Devine, Pete 682, 1454
Devins, George 797
Devisscher, Christophe 1422
DeVito, Frank 466
DeVito, Harry 388, 443
De Vito, Maria Pia 1412
DeVol, Frank 251, 491
DeVore, Charlie 314, 1436
DeVore, Sammy 1436
DeVos, Bob 414, 617, 967
Devroye, Lucien 1203
Devuuyst, Russel 1292
Dew, Barry 1362
Dewar, Andrew Raffo 166
Dexter, Julie 780
Dexter, Roy 570
Di Bartolo, Joel 108, 498
Di Battista, Stefano 371, 1159, 1194
Di Bonaventura, Daniele 1452
Di Carlo, Tom 847, 1282
Di Castri, Furio 508, 548, 940, 1163, 1193, 1433
Di Filippo, Beppe 335
Di Giusto, Gerardo 908
Di Gregorio, Daniele 535
Di Leonardo, Marcello 559
Di Lernia, Alfred 44
Di Lieto, Gaspare 1268
Di Maio, Nick 108, 395, 397
Di Martino, John 270, 1149
Di Mauro, Giovanni 927
Di Mauro, Walter 927
Di Veta, Marion 668
Diabate, Abdoulaye 38
Diabate, Mamadou 25
Dial, Garry 1228
Dial, Harry 263, 490, 803, 1457
Diamond, Ed 108
DiAngelo, Jeff 903
DiAngelo, Joe 108
Diaz, Anga 1026
Diaz, Denny 666
Díaz, Ernesto 991
Diaz, Horace 83, 691, 937
Diaz, Jesús 277
Diaz, Jose Alexis 916
Diaz, Luis 543
Diaz, Miguel Anga 1146
Díaz, Pedrito 1029, 1170
Diaz, Vince 85, 765, 1211
DiBartolo, Joe 889
DiBlasio, Denis 483
DiCenso, Dave 1428
Dicenzo, Daniel 18
DiCenzo, Derek 18, 630
Dick, Robert 371, 1542
Dickbauer, Klaus 1449
Dickens, Bill 888
Dickens, Doles 1326
Dickens, John 686
Dickenson, Bob 207
Dickenson, Vic 31, 43, 100, 101, 102, 123, 125, 155, 156, 228, 258, 355, 372, 425, 450, 528, 552, 622, 628, 668, 669, 698, 715, 725, 788, 795, 945, 970, 981, 1089, 1109, 1110, 1248, 1251, 1252, 1315, 1353, 1375, 1478, 1483, 1499, 1510, 1516, 1522, 1535, 1536, 1537
Dickerson, Carroll 41
Dickerson, Dwight 719
Dickerson, R. Q. 218, 379
Dickerson, Walt 372, 391
Dickey, Whit 373, 487, 1293, 1464
Dickie, Neville 374
Dickinson, Barnaby 81, 1096, 1412
Dickler, Paul 1031
Dick Morrissey Quartet 70
Dickson, Glenn 1544, 1545
Dickson, Gus 1283
DiDomenica, Robert 1002
Diebetsberger, Rudolf 1477
Diehl, Bob 100
Diehl, Eddie 1346
Diehl, Eric 1192
Diehl, Ray 395
Diemer, William 272
Diener, Christian 627
Diepenbroek, Toon 667
Diers, Lisbeth 767, 964, 1431
Dies, Werner 38
Diesner, Dietmar 151
Dieterle, Kurt 106
Dietz, Mike 637
Dieval, Jacques 209, 591, 1030
Digby Fairweather's Half-Dozen 991
DiGeronimo, Nick 324
Diggs, Latasha N. Nevada 183, 751
DiGirolamo, Orlando 920
Dijkstra, Jorrit 74
Dillagene 692
Dillard, Bill 228, 552, 704, 734, 1098, 1483, 1504
Dillard, Stacy 586
DiMaggio, Charlie 118, 1283
DiMeola, Al 304, 977, 992, 1208
DiMuzio, Jerry 247, 939
DiNardi, Tony 84, 388
Dinesen, Jakob 375
Dingman, Chris 877
Dinizulu, Kimati 657, 1236
Dinkjian, Ara 25
Dinné, Ignaz 197
DiNovi, Gene 157, 375, 947, 986, 1095, 1535, 1536
Diop, Massamba 644
Diorio, Joe 222, 376, 655, 1346
DiPasqua, Michael 524, 1477
Diplomats, The 376
Dirac, John 422, 775
DiRubbo, Mike 353, 354, 376, 1135
Discon, Bob 556
DiSiena, Pete 720
Disley, Diz 72, 187, 293, 294, 377, 591, 592, 859, 869, 1362
DiStachio, Gene 239, 1171
Distel, Sacha 772, 886
Ditmas, Bruce 462, 1134, 1193
Diva 945
Diven, Ernie 83
Dix, Tommy 576
Dixie Stompers 377
Dixieland Jug Blowers 377
Dixon, Akua 1424
Dixon, Ben 389, 402, 598, 599, 600, 1134, 1502, 1503
Dixon, Bill 377, 1109, 1381
Dixon, Charlie 685, 686, 1343, 1504
Dixon, Eric 92, 93, 94, 491, 492, 596, 755, 793, 797, 1071, 1454
Dixon, George 704, 705, 1311
Dixon, Gus 50, 1284, 1443
Dixon, Iain 40, 82, 168, 415, 598, 879, 1412
Dixon, Joe 118, 297, 396, 397, 1275
Dixon, Kenny 1313
Dixon, Lawrence 704, 705, 753, 1201, 1322
Dixon, Lucille 609
Dixon, Nat 1218
Dixon, Otha 798
Dixon, Ron 1500
Dixon, Willie 600
Dixson, Arti 761
Dizzy Gillespie Orchestra 1467
Djengue, Sam 368
Djll, Tom 515
DJ Logic 965
DJ Mutamassik 886
DJ Ninj 59
DJ Olive 216
DJ Pogo 1167
DJ Spooky 214
Dlahart, Vernon 542
Do Nascimento, Alfredo 412
Doane, Donald 694
Dobrogosz, Steve 378, 996, 997
Dobson, Smith 1142, 1342
Dockery, Sam 133, 182

Dockery, Wayne 253, 300, 520, 684, 1291
Doctor, Marcio 168
Dodd, Pat 228
Dodds, Baby 41, 100, 102, 223, 355, 379, 379, 380, 386, 710, 784, 798, 882, 883, 1044, 1079, 1097, 1113
Dodds, Johnny 41, 51, 263, 377, 379, 820, 1044, 1097, 1103
Dodds, Roy 332, 1416, 1497
Dodge, Joe 188, 189, 368
Dodgion, Dottie 708
Dodgion, Jerry 123, 168, 234, 299, 380, 389, 578, 641, 656, 799, 894, 969, 981, 1009, 1027, 1071, 1138, 1288, 1313, 1405, 1517
Doggett, Bill 43, 337, 338, 489, 490, 562, 736, 757, 758, 760, 803, 999, 1056, 1375
Doggs, Joe 363
Doky, Chris Minh 380, 381, 859, 1212
Doky, Niels Lan 380, 381, 565, 651, 1086, 1212, 1362
Doldinger, Klaus 381
Dolger, Pete 929
Doling, John 1036
Dolne, Chas 1203
Dolney, Bill 278
Dolny, Joe 1540
Dolphin, Dwayne 147, 175, 934, 1171, 1461, 1503
Dolphy, Eric 181, 234, 274, 287, 289, 338, 381, 462, 632, 633, 702, 732, 886, 894, 899, 973, 1000, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1070, 1170, 1249
Domagalski, Victoria 642
Domancich, Sophia 359, 386, 906, 927
Domanico, Chuck 80, 440, 726, 727, 821, 986, 1103, 1143
Domber, Mat 476
Domber, Rachel 158
Domedi, Dudi 1016
Domènech, Òscar 665
Domínguez, Enrique 1029
Dominique, Monica 1250
Dominique, Natty 51, 379, 380, 386, 1044, 1086
Domnérus, Arne 20, 46, 49, 180, 386, 420, 427, 615, 616, 631, 781, 782, 797, 1030, 1149, 1250, 1512
Donahue, Miles 388
Donahue, Sam 388, 817, 847, 848
Donald, Barbara 1300, 1301
Donald, Keith 296, 356
Donald, Peter 1540
Donaldson, Bobby 123, 194, 210, 578, 601, 705, 793, 933, 993, 1255, 1313, 1486
Donaldson, Don 100, 101, 102
Donaldson, Frank 888
Donaldson, John 82, 88, 389, 533, 665, 1413
Donaldson, Lou 132, 180, 389, 754, 928, 1020, 1312, 1463
Donarier, Matthieu 478
Donato, João 1261, 1262
Dondron, Charles 398
Done, Steve 303
Doneda, Michel 390
Donegan, Dorothy 390
Donegan, Lonnie 72, 77, 78, 293, 294, 992
Donelly, Ted 760
Donin, Liran 875
Donkin, Phil 1300
Donlon, Mark 391
Donnelly, Ted 669, 671, 826, 1375, 1510, 1535
Donner, Henrik Otto 1
Donovan, Bob 775, 1054
Donovan, Gerald 32
Donovan, Jerold 1503
Doof, Sal 228, 667
Doran, Christy 391, 932
Doran, Patrick 601
Dorf, Michael 777
Dørge, Pierre 178, 391, 412, 763, 1059, 1386
Dorham, Kenny 133, 231, 254, 328, 383, 392, 415, 416, 540, 568, 638, 687, 690, 699, 702, 755, 786, 800, 894, 979, 1020, 1070, 1117, 1118, 1136, 1176, 1219, 1232, 1254, 1298, 1380, 1462, 1527
Dorian, Pat 892
Doris, Red 815
Dorise, Didier 394
Doriz, Dany 394, 639
Dorn, Jerry 50, 693
Dorn, Jonathan 499
Dörner, Axel 6, 206, 515, 562, 618, 747, 782, 1043, 1266, 1439, 1440, 1534
Dorough, Bob 394, 654
Dorris, Red 814
Dorsey, Alec 389, 1054
Dorsey, Bob 219, 687, 715, 1400, 1505
Dorsey, George 44, 228, 488, 553, 638, 715, 755, 783, 1509
Dorsey, Georgia Tom 263
Dorsey, Jimmy 42, 62, 105, 196, 297, 395, 396, 398, 666, 864, 888, 900, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1089, 1101, 1280, 1388, 1446
Dorsey, Leon Lee 487, 713
Dorsey, Ralph 389, 414, 1148
Dorsey, Tommy 43, 62, 105, 297, 395, 398, 431, 573, 575, 864, 900, 1066, 1081, 1101, 1280, 1446, 1457
Dorsey Brothers Orchestra 398
Dotson, Dennis 694
Dotson, Harold 959
Dotson, Hobart 32, 416, 1000, 1002, 1004, 1355, 1356, 1358, 1516
Doty, Mike 118, 396, 424
Doty, Robert 368
Dougan, Jackie 546, 607, 652, 674, 1276, 1414
Douget, Derek 949
Dougherty, Bill 705
Dougherty, Eddie 31, 62, 63, 100, 714, 715, 763, 788, 789, 1078, 1376, 1510
Dougherty, Jack 397
Doughty, Len 1484
Douglas, Beatrice 704
Douglas, Bill 55, 863, 1146
Douglas, Dave 98, 112, 216, 398, 728, 896, 909, 982, 990, 992, 1240, 1243, 1324, 1485, 1493, 1543, 1544, 1545
Douglas, Dezron 236, 247
Douglas, Franky 116
Douglas, Fred 724
Douglas, Jim 24, 355, 596, 734, 992, 1252, 1315, 1484
Douglas, Tommy 987
Douglass, Bill 211, 218, 982, 1378, 1404, 1499
Douillez, Jean 1203
Doumbia, Souleymane 1539
Doumbouya, Djene 1539
Douthwaite, Dick 958
Douzi, Chrysanthi 34
Dover, Jayne 118
Dover, William 155, 1326
Dowdy, Bill 12, 1402, 1424
Dowell, Saxie 398
Dowling, Peter 561
Down, Morris 971
Down Home Jazz Band 401
Downes, Bob 401, 905
Downes, Geoff 750
Downes, Jason 104
Downes, Kit 445
Downes, Randy 272
Downey, Alan 483, 1414, 1494
Downing, Will 965
Downs, Geoff 605, 1362
Downs, Lila 916
Downs, Michael 571, 796
Downs, Richard 494
Doyle, Arthur 401, 730
Doyle, John 83
Doyle, Pat 476
Drake, Gordon 50
Drake, Hamid 25, 36, 37, 177, 178, 179, 196, 221, 318, 392, 401, 473, 485, 559, 589, 609, 803, 1033, 1061, 1126, 1128, 1129, 1189, 1399, 1422, 1438, 1439, 1464
Drake, Ron 443
Drakes, Jesse 1536, 1537
Drakes, Jessie 793
Draper, Ray 285, 319, 402, 978, 1219, 1220
Drayton, Charlie 184, 228, 736, 760, 803, 945, 1353, 1477
Dr. Cuz 179
Dreamtime 402
Dreares, Al 596, 1195, 1351, 1491
Drees, Michele 876
Drelinger, Art 43, 118, 715, 734, 779, 1093, 1283, 1443
Drenching, T. H. F. 61
Dreno, François 233
Dresel, Bernie 1052
Dresser, Mark 38, 109, 120, 144, 150, 154, 161, 162, 372, 398, 402, 420, 452, 516, 626, 682, 728, 877, 890, 907, 909, 990, 1088, 1145, 1223, 1240, 1246, 1471, 1543, 1544
Drevet, Pierre 223
Drew, John 849, 974, 1527
Drew, Kenny 33, 49, 66, 175, 278, 284, 319, 339, 341, 364, 393, 403, 417, 469, 471, 541, 580, 581, 582, 583, 598, 607, 608, 670, 690, 783, 846, 954, 970, 973, 979, 980, 1160, 1232, 1303, 1316, 1345, 1394, 1396, 1479, 1502
Drew, Kenny Jr 404, 785, 1006, 1016, 1306
Drew Jr, Kenny 323, 966, 1006, 1461
Drew, Martin 8, 17, 230, 364, 405, 733, 824, 879, 962, 1131, 1155, 1156, 1157, 1225, 1261, 1277, 1331, 1389, 1469, 1482
Drew, Peter 1333
Drewes, Billy 512, 866, 867, 909, 1048, 1320, 1325, 1352
Drewes, Glenn 109, 375, 656
Drewo, Karl 255, 1538
Drexter, Dan 422
Drinkard, Carl 716
Driscoll, Kermit 372, 512, 682, 719, 728, 1019
Driscoll, Mary Anne 405, 1057
Driskill, Jeff 496
Dr John 1136
Drootin, Al 622
Drootin, Buzzy 156, 239, 297, 298, 397, 622, 808, 1093
Drouet, Jean-Pierre 1174
Drover, Adrian 483
Drover, Martin 1363
Drummond, Anne 87, 267, 658
Drummond, Billy 28, 88, 122, 131, 138, 220, 273, 282, 302, 309, 407, 420, 481, 503, 518, 557, 585, 608, 657, 678, 684, 703, 804, 838, 839, 846, 852, 870, 881, 1050, 1076, 1137, 1147, 1175, 1212, 1213, 1238, 1241, 1268, 1317, 1321, 1343, 1351,

1370, 1423, 1456, 1461, 1480, 1481, 1484, 1514
Drummond, John 1406
Drummond, Ray 15, 87, 89, 119, 123, 149, 167, 195, 202, 221, 273, 324, 339, 389, 407, 407, 409, 417, 419, 453, 471, 498, 536, 547, 569, 587, 603, 608, 651, 678, 699, 701, 724, 733, 793, 878, 947, 985, 1019, 1037, 1059, 1061, 1063, 1071, 1091, 1148, 1149, 1259, 1269, 1320, 1328, 1362, 1374, 1422, 1461, 1481, 1508, 1520
Druss, Lenny 1031
Dryden, Bob 570
Dubber, Goff 605
Dubin, Louise 658
Duboc, Jane 1055
Du Bois, Alain 239, 258
Du Hautbourg, Roger 1202
Dubois, Jean-Pierre 1058
Dubois, Scott 408
Duchaussoir, René 591
Duchemin, Philippe 394
Duchesne, Carlos 552
Duconge, Pete 42
Ducret, Marc 120, 121, 223, 408, 690, 735, 805, 869, 924, 1131, 1272
Dudash, Stephan 191
Duddington, Alan 1055
Duddy, Brian 409
Dudek, Gerd 119, 177, 408, 562, 1270
Dudley, Eddie 1388
Dudley, Jimmy 975
Dudley, Tony 39
Dudli, Joris 695, 1461
Dudziak, Urszula 462
Dueñas, Ismael 408
Duerr, Clayton 118
Duewhite, Damon 860, 960
Duff, Ronnie 1055
Duffy, Al 398
Duffy, Melvyn 956
Duffy, Mike 590, 1308
Dufort, Russ 1150
Duke, Erika 1310
Duke, George 170, 264, 351, 442, 582, 684, 1234, 1235, 1274
Duke, John 93, 128, 605
Duke, Vernon 63
Duke-Kirkpatrick, Erica 1310
Duke Of Iron 102
Dukes, Joe 719
Dukoff, Bob 395, 1093
Dulany, Howard 847, 848, 1092
Dulbecco, Andrea 1268, 1419
Dulin, Tucker 648
Dulman, Jesse 973
Dulong, Jack 693
Dumas, Tony 215, 472, 688, 787, 1037, 1142, 1143
Dumont, Jack 577
Dumont, Marcel 1202
Dumont, Pierre 497
Dunbar, Danny 1490
Dunbar, Rudolph 410
Dunbar, Sly 18, 643
Dunbar, Ted 145, 409, 462, 1422
Duncan, Calyer 731
Duncan, Fionna 992
Duncan, Hank 101, 355, 622, 1098, 1457, 1506
Duncan, Henry 99, 827, 1279
Duncan, Jack 1075
Duncan, Leon 18
Duncan, Mac 294, 409, 883
Dungee, John 31
Dunham, Slim 209
Dunham, Sonny 42, 62, 236, 575
Dunkel, Manuel 1432
Dunlap, Bruce 934
Dunlap, Richard 424
Dunlop, Dave 967
Dunlop, Frankie 86, 343, 482, 899, 1001, 1022, 1023, 1024, 1234, 1465, 1532, 1538
Dunmall, Paul 359, 409, 881, 906, 1051, 1267, 1404
Dunn, Clyde 218
Dunn, Deacon 1283
Dunn, Joe 937
Dunn, Johnny 155, 410, 1504
Dunn, Trevor 419, 564, 922, 959, 1542, 1544, 1545
Dunne, Marianne 1445
Dunning, Mike 915
Dunsdon, Martin 898
Dunson, Claude 228, 254, 826
Dunstan, Wayne 817
Dunton, Wayne 272
Duo 48nord 886
Dupree, Cornell 136, 264, 349, 649, 828, 1290
Dupree, Jerome 1042
Duquesne, Ralph 99
Duran, Carlos 1404
Duran, Eddie 614, 706, 1342, 1404
Duran, Horatio 705
Duran, Manuel 1404
Duran, Modesto 1517
Durand, Bob 388
Durant, Jimmy 70, 248
Durham, Allen 638
Durham, Bobby 55, 339, 417, 425, 492, 493, 495, 555, 601, 605, 606, 774, 971, 988, 1131, 1153, 1155, 1156, 1245, 1347, 1392
Durham, Eddie 90, 410, 763, 912, 1047, 1535
Durham, Mike 1490
Durham, Nathan 721
Durholm, Mogens 1102
Duriez, Desiré 1203
Durrant, Phil 198, 206, 411, 832, 915
Durrell, Mike 1469
Dürst, Thomas 1386
Duryea, Cindy 553
Duss, Xavier 352
Dutch Swing College Band 411
Dutrey, Honoré 41, 379, 380, 1097
Dutt, Hank 1543
Dutton, Charles 948
Dutton, Fred 188, 347, 368, 587
Dutz, Brad 260, 421, 566, 825
Duval, Dominic 25, 411, 487, 649, 881, 911, 919, 984, 1144, 1145, 1223, 1320, 1371, 1383, 1384, 1496
DuVal, Duke 710
Du Vall, Thomas 1220
Duvivier, George 9, 32, 35, 130, 194, 201, 229, 230, 234, 262, 270, 299, 338, 364, 372, 382, 470, 504, 545, 570, 578, 592, 629, 632, 647, 668, 669, 715, 758, 759, 772, 783, 793, 794, 797, 851, 859, 866, 876, 877, 886, 913, 999, 1027, 1054, 1070, 1075, 1079, 1094, 1165, 1176, 1177, 1196, 1245, 1248, 1249, 1255, 1277, 1286, 1308, 1313, 1314, 1347, 1354, 1375, 1379, 1405, 1435, 1444, 1478, 1486, 1501, 1522, 1537
Dvorak, Jim 359, 362, 402, 1404
Dweck, Steve 818
Dworkin, Richard 790, 996
Dyani, Johnny Mbizo 144, 150, 224, 245, 370, 392, 412, 621, 730, 743, 763, 1016, 1058, 1294, 1459
Dyani, Thomas Akuru 392, 412, 1167
Dybka, Darryl 107
Dyer, Nikki 480
Dyer, Pete 645, 884, 958, 1437
Dylag, Roman 21, 46, 126, 781, 835, 1250
Dyson, Dave 1517
Dyson, D. K. 277
Dyson, Willard 539, 955
Dyvik, Hans 49
Dyyak, Oleg 1544
Dzierzanowski, Udo 658
Dziubak, Agnieszka 1107

E
E, Sheila 80, 264, 643, 706
Eade, Dominique 1441
Eager, Allen 239, 413, 514, 543, 668, 1053, 1069, 1210
Eagle Brass Band, The 413
Eaglestone, Dave 532
Eales, Geoff 413
Eanet, Larry 414
Eardley, Jon 243, 632, 1025, 1052, 1053, 1302, 1527
Earl, Jimmy 305, 825
Earland, Charles 414, 1468
Earle, Dean 1120
Earley, Kevin 1412
Earls, Mike 579
Early, Sally 32
Easley, Bill 154, 414, 414, 465, 777, 971, 972, 1013, 1057, 1136, 1376, 1470
Easley, Richard 971
Eason, Alan 334
East, Nathan 914
East–West Jazz Septet 415
Easter, Allison 751
Easter, Clarence 1406
Easton, Derek 294
Easton, Gene 1356
Easton, Jack 1467
Easton, Madeleine 832
Easton, McKinley 32, 1467
Eastwood, Bill 628, 1076
Eaton, Bill 1468
Eaton, Cleveland 33, 94, 597, 887, 888
Eaton, Darryl 1210
Eaton, John 356
Eaton, William 1468
Eaves, Herbert 89
Eaves, Hubert 866
Ebah, Akh Tal 1355, 1357, 1358, 1359
Ebbert, Tom 537
Eberle, Bob 395, 698
Eberle, Ray 236
Ebert, Ken 579
Eby, Thomas 1459
Ecay, Jean-Marie 907
Echampard, Eric 408
Echoes Of Ellington Orchestra 415
Eckert, John 831, 837, 1351
Eckert, Rinde 590
Eckford, Pete 776, 1096
Eckhardt, Kai 309, 549, 977
Eckinger, Isla 27, 210, 258, 587, 591, 627, 940, 1046, 1264, 1454
Eckles, Dick 715
Ecklund, K. O. 487
Ecklund, Peter 415, 611, 748, 1454
Eckstine, Billy 416, 552, 705, 970
Eckstrand, Ray 1537
Ecqart, John 818
Ector, Vincent 57
Eddie Chamblee Orchestra 1467
Eddy, Richard 1261
Edegran, Lars 537, 737, 884, 1314, 1315, 1438
Edelstein, Walt 398, 1388
Edenton, Ray 203
Edge, Norman 32
Edgehill, Arthur 262, 338, 392, 1277, 1454

Edie, Jack 1509
Edison, Estelle 970
Edison, Harry 'Sweets' 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 173, 222, 230, 232, 272, 339, 416, 435, 442, 492, 493, 555, 557, 580, 606, 639, 656, 693, 714, 716, 719, 755, 759, 760, 774, 783, 795, 820, 861, 1093, 1095, 1154, 1156, 1162, 1210, 1212, 1230, 1304, 1378, 1396, 1409, 1477, 1478, 1508, 1522, 1535, 1536, 1537
Edman, Robert 615, 616, 631
Edmonds, Lu 315
Edmonds, Paul 1489
Edmondson, Bob 496, 550, 765, 1093, 1517, 1540
Edson, Estelle 1516
Edström, Ulrika 897, 1367
Eduardo, Zé 418, 1030
Edvarsson, Bengt 1250
Edwards, Arthur 1516
Edwards, Ben 248
Edwards, Brian 776
Edwards, Bruce 1360, 1361
Edwards, Charles 'Lefty' 337
Edwards, Cliff 864
Edwards, Donald 339, 697, 1185
Edwards, Eddie 270, 409, 1100
Edwards, Gene 720, 831
Edwards, Gordon 136
Edwards, Henry 'Bass' 428
Edwards, Jodie 1097
Edwards, John 124, 194, 199, 206, 418, 560, 832, 910, 1063, 1085, 1090, 1124, 1126, 1127, 1183, 1492
Edwards, Marc 494, 538, 1381, 1464
Edwards, Mark 1482, 1483
Edwards, Paul 556, 708
Edwards, Richard 137, 322, 1364, 1412
Edwards, Simon 1497
Edwards, Susie 1097
Edwards, Teddy 181, 200, 229, 318, 319, 413, 418, 528, 580, 662, 720, 736, 755, 760, 936, 945, 970, 971, 1165, 1170, 1219, 1450, 1517
Edwards, W. J. 228
Edwards, Williams 1516
Efford, Bob 253, 496, 674, 720, 811, 889, 1386, 1409
Egan, John 1081
Egan, Mark 80, 460, 462, 546, 993, 1256, 1486
Egan, Mike 819
Egea, Claude 223, 1324
Egerbladh, Berndt 1250
Eggar, Dave 895
Eggers, Marty 682, 1300, 1454, 1533
Eggers, Mike 1300
Eghjort, Mogens 417
Egli, Dominic 1264
Ehrlich, Marty 7, 161, 162, 371, 399, 419, 445, 610, 657, 675, 683, 703, 778, 896, 990, 1134, 1140, 1182, 1250, 1260, 1544
Ehrling, Thore 420
Eichem, Bernard 1028
Eichmann, Dietrich 420
Eick, Mathias 621, 810
Eick, Trude 1487
Eidem, Bruce 375, 721, 1296
Eidus, Arnold 1028
Eike, Bjarte 71
Eikelmann, Lutz 1043
Eilertsen, Dag Einar 71
Eilertsen, Mats 72, 169, 1301, 1350, 1422
Eisen, Steve 888, 939
Eisenbeil, Bruce 421, 1371
Eisenberg, Jewlia 1544
Eisenman, Mark 421
Eisenstadt, Harris 376, 421, 1254, 1309
Either/Orchestra 422
Ek, Bengt 1087
Ekh, Johnny 46
Ekhé, Christer 1150
Ekholm, Anders 1459
Ekholm, Magnus 1087
Eklöf, Mats 423
Eklund, Nathan 272
Ekman, Bertil 1150
Ekornes, Kenneth 71
Ekstrand, Ray 424, 576
Ekyan, André 667, 1202, 1203
El Fine, Armandito 1261
El-Malek, David 238, 303, 443, 1418
El Nil Troop 832
El'Zabar, Kahil 146, 427, 444, 654, 1060, 1309
Elden, Bob 83
Elder, Lonnie 1001
Elderfield, Pete 672, 1206
Eldridge, Jean 430, 1406, 1521
Eldridge, Joe 423, 424
Eldridge, Peter 923
Eldridge, Robert 801
Eldridge, Roy 43, 62, 63, 93, 122, 156, 228, 383, 423, 435, 491, 492, 555, 570, 639, 667, 668, 669, 686, 704, 706, 714, 715, 716, 734, 759, 774, 795, 847, 848, 849, 1003, 1020, 1092, 1093, 1095, 1117, 1151, 1153, 1154, 1283, 1284, 1375, 1378, 1478, 1520, 1521, 1536, 1537
Electric, Coco 8
Elén, Jesper 38, 610, 1025
Eletto, Michele 508
Elf, Mark 679
Elgart, Billy 139, 328, 472, 473, 944, 1494
Elgstam, Erik 427
Elias, Eliane 425, 789
Elias-Brecker, Amanda 426
Eliasson, Jan 767
Eliez, Thierry 170, 171
Eliott, Blaine 1506
Elite Syncopators, The 426
Elizondo, Michael 260, 1452
Elkes, Tibor 894
Elkins, Howard 1058
Elkins, Leon 41
Elkins, Marty 426
Ellboj, Rune 'Lulle' 426, 1322
Ellefson, Art 427, 1084
Ellefson, Lee 427
Ellerbee, Charles 276
Elliman, Peter 362
Elling, Kurt 153, 427, 696, 738, 1008
Ellingsen, Audun 1
Ellington, Duke 43, 110, 428, 490, 492, 711, 712, 774, 1348, 1539
Ellington, Judy 56, 83
Ellington, Marie 431, 432
Ellington, Mercer 433, 436, 437, 438, 439, 492, 699, 774
Ellington, Ray 1066
Ellington, Richard 416
Ellington, Ruth 671
Ellington, Steve 470, 520, 666, 718, 1354
Elliot, Bill 757
Elliot, Lloyd 1093
Elliott, Don 156, 340, 368, 470, 490, 877, 1186, 1286, 1345
Elliott, Ernest 410, 502, 685, 788, 1098, 1504
Elliott, George 228
Elliott, Jerry 1536
Elliott, Louise 1497
Elliott, Lu 433
Ellis, Chris 467, 1352
Ellis, Dave 440, 737, 738
Ellis, Don 384, 440, 482, 655, 899, 1002, 1249
Ellis, Eddie 379, 820
Ellis, Graham 483
Ellis, Herb 17, 43, 44, 45, 185, 211, 229, 329, 360, 395, 425, 442, 490, 491, 492, 511, 544, 550, 553, 592, 639, 656, 662, 668, 669, 716, 774, 849, 1093, 1110, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1156, 1162, 1181, 1211, 1346, 1388, 1478, 1536, 1537
Ellis, John 323, 442, 481, 561, 738, 778, 949, 1264
Ellis, Kenny 74, 812
Ellis, Lisle 169, 564, 1075, 1092, 1170, 1223, 1243, 1330, 1493
Ellis, Lloyd 1090
Ellis, Mike 295
Ellis, Peggy Ann 297
Ellis, Ray 299
Ellis, Seger 105
Ellis, Vivien 1404
Ellis Larkins Trio 299
Ellison, Alex 762
Ellison, Charles 604
Ellman, Liberty 443, 751, 752, 1402
Ellman, Pete 362
Elly, Ernest 244, 1217
Elly, Ernie 737, 915, 1217
Elman, Ziggy 62, 397, 443, 488, 574, 575, 638, 1334, 1443
Elmberg, Bengt 615
Elmer, Carl 1095
Elmer, Ziggy 764
Elmes, Barry 604, 1084
Elmiger, Billy 1031
Elmore, Rick 915
Elniff, Jørn 52, 383
Elrick, George 228, 1322
Elsberg, Vagn 1502
Elsdon, Alan 443, 628, 869
Elson, Steve 1196
Elton, Bill 461
Elton, Don 1446
Elvin, Norman 207
Emanuel, Carol 1542, 1543
Embales, Carlos 1261
Emberson, Norman 374, 475, 1493
Emblow, Jack 593, 1385
Emborg, Jörgen 503, 1407
Embrey, Danny 939, 940
Emergency 445
Emerick, Randy 1133
Emery, James 160, 445, 778, 833, 1349, 1401
Emili, Rossano 535
Emler, Andy 1174
Emmanuel, Gordon 6
Emmanuel Amadasun 1084
Emmanuele, Giuseppe 1433
Emmery, John 831
Emmons, Bobby 933
Emmons, Buddy 203
Empirical 445
Enders, Johannes 903
Endresen, Sidsel 71, 1279, 1487
Endsley, Shane 127, 966, 1067, 1278
Eneidi, Marco 378, 446, 1128, 1223
Enevoldsen, Bob 222, 301, 446, 466, 468, 481, 491, 496, 549, 557, 571, 588, 720, 839, 935, 1052, 1077, 1082, 1094, 1111, 1142, 1230, 1245, 1247, 1248, 1280, 1408, 1409
Engel, Rudi 922, 944, 1472
Engelhardt, Dirk 1429
Engelholt, Steen 818
Engels, Eddie 831
Engels, John 68, 831, 1239
Engels, Jorg 174
Engen, Anders 1487
Englander, Mike 441
Engle, Vic 686, 1081

Englebright, Scott 483, 839
Englert, Don 1210, 1211
Englin, Maureen 1504
English, Bill 32, 201, 596, 669, 777, 793, 1075
Englund, Ernie 46, 631
Englund, Gene 271, 368, 544, 814, 815, 816, 1230
Enlow, Buddy 393
Ennett, Lucky 637
Ennis, Skinny 398
Enoch 1399
Enoch, Tommy 705
Enois, Leonard 987
Enriquez, Bobby 272
Ensemble Ginestra 1369
Enten Eller 446
Entress, Lorne 810
Enzlberger, Hannes 447
Ephron, Fima 493
Ephron, Mike 1297
Eppel, Ralph 620, 885, 1075
Epps, Joe 228, 229
Epstein, Al 50, 173, 299, 576, 1249
Epstein, Ed 412
Epstein, Jack 100
Epstein, Jay 227
Epstein, Peter 216, 590, 1288
Erb, Reiner 352
Erbetta, Marc 1420
Erceg, Tomi 1254
Erdmann, Daniel 325
Erguner, Kudsi 873
Erian, Michael 922
Erickson, Eddie 23, 85, 301, 476
Ericksson, Runo 782, 1250
Ericson, Roffe 1479
Ericson, Rolf 20, 64, 84, 299, 312, 341, 386, 393, 426, 436, 437, 439, 447, 570, 615, 713, 723, 782, 817, 862, 881, 1003, 1004, 1118, 1176, 1210, 1247, 1445
Ericsson, Hans-Ola 1087
Eriksberg, Folke 420
Eriksen, Søren 392
Eriksson, Göran 1150, 1354
Eriksson, Rudolf 1322
Eriksson, Sixten 46, 1030
Erikstad, Tove Margrethe 1
Erixon, Bertil 46
Ermelin, Fred 1204, 1344
Ernie Wilkins Orchestra 36
Ernst, Charlie 1055
Ernst, Miriam 800
Ernström, Agneta 245
Erquiaga, Steve 939
Errington, Joe 1113
Errisson, King 11
Erskine, Bill 1522
Erskine, Les 155, 372
Erskine, Peter 3, 4, 5, 114, 115, 168, 205, 215, 427, 448, 472, 483, 524, 610, 688, 818, 819, 844, 851, 873, 992, 1008, 1133, 1137, 1431, 1452, 1475, 1494
Erskine, Sally 876
Erskine Hawkins Alumni 1307
Erstrand, Lars 387, 448, 734, 1499
Ervin, Booker 207, 449, 675, 831, 899, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1346
Ervin, Darryl 111, 1399
Erwin, Pee Wee 336, 396, 397, 450, 504, 947, 1275
Escamilla, Bob 888
Escher String Quartet 428
Eschete, Ron 363, 656, 844, 954
Escoffery, Wayne 451, 551, 652, 1006, 1200, 1214
Escoto, Bobby 1095
Escott, Dick 1322
Escoudé, Christian 237, 451
Escovedo, Pete 264, 1261
Escovedo, Sheila 80, 264, 643, 706
Escudero, Ralph 685, 975, 1343
Esen, Aydin 735
Eshel, Idit 182
Eskelin, Ellery 84, 451, 572, 681, 682, 735, 892, 1131, 1429, 1441
Eskenazi, Dario 406, 991, 1262
Eskovitz, Bruce 453
Eskridge, George 1031
Espersen, Per 1479
Esposito, Al 50
Esposito, Gene 222, 1141
Esposito, George 84
Esposito, John 1148
Esposito, Marco 1419
Esposito, Nick 1162
Ess, Gene 20
Essex, Lord 705
Essian, Gabe 280
Essiet, Essiet Okon 135, 695, 916, 1471
Estabrook, Pete 595
Estell, Oscar 180, 469
Estes, Alan 440, 441
Estes, Buff 575, 638
Estes, Gene 236, 301, 476, 579, 626, 680, 1230, 1442
Estievenart, Jean-Paul 359
Estrand, Lars 386
Estren, Joe 83
Estren, Tony 119
Estrin, Harvey 1189, 1445
Estrin, Joe 691
Etheridge, Dave 592
Etheridge, John 453, 531, 592, 680, 868, 1416
Ethridge, Frank 99
Etkins, Gerry 264
Etri, Bus 83, 84
Etter, Charlie 1162
Eubanks, Charles 19, 454, 1197
Eubanks, Duane 463, 713, 898, 972, 998
Eubanks, Horace 1044
Eubanks, Kevin 226, 327, 363, 454, 549, 860, 894, 914, 957, 1035, 1396
Eubanks, Ray 1535
Eubanks, Robin 21, 168, 270, 277, 454, 610, 645, 649, 656, 689, 690, 718, 793, 947, 1006, 1095, 1148, 1222, 1305, 1424, 1427, 1469
Euell, Julian 284, 394, 613, 1454
Eugene, Homer 148, 729, 1436
Eugene, Wendell 77, 413, 958
Eulau, Andy 164, 241
Eureka Brass Band 455
Eustis, Sister Elizabeth 1337
Evans, Al 1359
Evans, Alfie 100, 398, 864, 1081
Evans, Anita 462
Evans, Bill 10, 15, 39, 66, 311, 314, 343, 351, 455, 460, 470, 546, 786, 877, 886, 933, 978, 1070, 1186, 1249, 1278
Evans, Brandon 163, 164
Evans, Chuck 847
Evans, Dave 711
Evans, Doc 461
Evans, Frank 674
Evans, George 70, 228
Evans, Gil 342, 461
Evans, Gordon 520
Evans, Gus 638, 760
Evans, Herschel 63, 90, 638, 763, 798, 1521
Evans, James 961, 1080
Evans, Joe 793, 1510
Evans, Major 987
Evans, Marcus 1009
Evans, Miles 352, 462
Evans, Nick 176, 280, 358, 359, 402, 998, 1016, 1403, 1417
Evans, Orrin 24, 152, 454, 463, 617, 697, 966, 1158, 1470, 1471
Evans, Peter 463
Evans, Richard 482, 655, 701, 945, 1467
Evans, Roy 1041
Evans, Seeward 987
Evans, Sticks 384, 886, 1002
Evans, Stump 380, 1044, 1097, 1103
Evans, Sue 264, 462, 851
Evans, Terry 1313
Evans, William 1264
Everett, Peven 915
Everett, Sangoma 183, 1455
Ewans, Kai 49
Ewart, Douglas 464, 571, 885
Ewell, Don 39, 102, 379, 464, 753, 884, 1104, 1328, 1389
Ewing, John 218, 413, 662, 705, 912, 913, 1517
Ex, Terrie 112
Excelsior Brass Band 465
Exploding Customer 465
Exuberance 465
Eyden, Bill 70, 539, 632, 672, 673, 747, 776, 880, 1199, 1414
Eye, Yamataka 1545
Eyges, David 147, 862
Eyles, Alex 889

F

Faatz, Paul 502
Fabricatore, Dan 898, 1171
Fabrie, Cor 295
Fabris, David 130
Face To Face 465
Facenda, Aubrey 943
Facey, Nathaniel 76, 445, 1515
Facey, Stanley 1326
Faddis, except add Jon 1154
Faddis, Jon 18, 80, 185, 201, 465, 483, 501, 555, 640, 656, 679, 689, 707, 914, 923, 982, 1005, 1133, 1255, 1468, 1517, 1518
Faehnle, Dan 119, 550, 551, 823, 1450
Fagerlund, Kenneth 544, 1149
Fagerquist, Don 51, 184, 301, 364, 466, 491, 525, 588, 681, 693, 720, 848, 849, 1052, 1092, 1111, 1139, 1165, 1230, 1283, 1408, 1540
Fagerstadt, Claes-Göran 616, 1149, 1237, 1327
Fagg, George 104
Fagg, Steve 991
Fahey, Craig 548
Fahlström, Örjan 1087
Fahn, Mike 119, 703
Faieta, Phil 511
Fairclough, Peter 466, 1489, 1490
Fairhurst, Richard 48, 466
Fairweather, Al 187, 466, 467, 711, 869
Fairweather, Digby 467, 596, 968, 991
Faith, Percy 1443
Faithfull, Marianne 938
Faku, Feya 744
Falabella, Vanessa 80
Falanga, Tony 276
Falay, Maffy 255, 1250
Falbo, Javier 880
Falco, Gil 108, 818
Fale, Cheikh Tidiane 1259
Falk, Bror 1406

Falk, Jacey 517
Falk, Kurt 602
Falk, Rune 46, 782
Faller, Markus 800
Fallon, Jack 70, 72, 467, 652, 672, 918, 919, 1276, 1279, 1352, 1362
Fallow, Gavin 1139
Falls, Mildred 435
Fallstitch, John 118
Fält, Jon 900, 997, 1087
Faluotico, Sergio 995
Falzone, Giovanni 467, 476
Falzone, Jim 815
Falzone, Vince 1540
Fambrough, Charles 134, 468, 645, 785, 949, 1259, 1426, 1472
Fame, Georgie 533, 739
Fanfare Band 907
Fanni, Sergio 533
Fant, Edward 687, 705, 798, 1066
Fantien, Laïka 443
Faraò, Antonio 1525
Faraò, Ferdinando 467, 468
Faraò, Massimo 339, 1278
Farber, Alon (Hagiga) 468
Farber, Andy 362
Farberman, Hymie 105
Fardella, Charles 551, 923
Farinacci, Dominic 845
Farley, Max 398, 1388, 1446
Farley, Mx 1081
Farlow, Tal 199, 320, 364, 468, 1089, 1160, 1284, 1408
Farmer, Addison 15, 26, 32, 173, 243, 318, 418, 469, 470, 517, 596, 717, 899, 920, 1103, 1454, 1517
Farmer, Art 15, 32, 180, 234, 243, 254, 259, 311, 386, 455, 469, 568, 595, 596, 630, 665, 717, 797, 800, 802, 877, 894, 920, 962, 976, 993, 1053, 1054, 1103, 1160, 1163, 1249, 1299, 1454, 1478
Farnham, Allen 211, 477, 478, 968, 969
Färnlöf, Lars 3, 46
Farnsworth, James 1073
Farnsworth, Joe 300, 353, 354, 376, 380, 471, 569, 611, 636, 677, 678, 876, 952, 1136, 1241, 1242, 1343, 1441, 1463, 1481, 1526
Farnsworth, Stan 918
Farr, Christopher 483
Farr, Gary 480
Farr, Tommy 691
Farrán, Ramón 1029
Farrar, Danny 913
Farrar, Fuzzy 398, 864, 1446
Farrás, Josep M. 1170
Farre, Chauncey 814
Farrell, Charles 472
Farrell, Charlie 105, 1081
Farrell, Joe 215, 264, 299, 303, 304, 305, 472, 483, 702, 768, 957, 969, 1002, 1199
Farrell, Larry 107, 109, 375, 689, 910, 1008, 1268
Farrington, Norman 170
Farrior, Little Buddy 1505
Farris, Ralph 420
Farrow, Ernie 867, 1509
Farrugia, Adrean 573
Fasman, Louis 839
Faso, Tony 576, 715
Fasoli, Claudio 472, 534
Fassi, Riccardo 473, 1043
Fasteau, Kali Zusaan 473, 730
Fataah, Muneer Abdul 1382
Fatool, Nick 125, 236, 249, 443, 474, 504, 528, 575, 638, 715, 764, 872, 1283, 1284, 1445, 1531
Fatto, Guy de 424
Faulise, Paul 369, 554, 601, 607, 656, 679, 755, 797, 943, 1028, 1071, 1313, 1502
Faulk, Dan 474
Faulk, Ken 1210, 1211
Faulk, Kenneth 1064
Faulkner, Roland 639, 655
Faunt, Jamie 305
Faust, Bob 818
Favors, George 1505
Favors, Malachi (Mahgostut) 2, 46, 47, 152, 444, 464, 474, 571, 701, 973, 1011, 1062, 1290, 1297, 1310
Favre, Pierre 475, 627, 841, 932, 1096, 1174, 1270, 1271, 1364
Fawbert, Andy 1482
Fawkes, Wally 102, 126, 475, 711, 918, 919, 991, 1055, 1422, 1476
Fay, Jack 1066, 1081
Fay, Rick 85, 301, 476, 579, 626, 1264
Fay, Tom 1054
Faye, Alioune 465, 651
Faye, Don 401
Faye, George 814
Faye, Norman 596, 1188, 1445
Fazio, Enrico 334, 335, 476
Fazola, Irving 150, 714, 1334
Fearrington, Norman 67
F(ernán)dez-Vallejo, Miguel 477
Feather, Leonard 43, 125, 248, 477, 736, 758, 793, 947, 1109, 1286, 1331, 1443
Feather, Phil 236
Featherstonehaugh, Buddy 70, 228, 477
Febbo, Christy 268, 661
Fedchock, John 477, 969, 1268
Federico, Frank 150
Fedoriouk, Alexander 509, 934
Fefer, Avram 128, 478, 484
Fei, James 163, 164, 166, 792
Feichtner, Dieter 1161
Feiten, Buzzy 1255
Felberbaum, Michael 478
Feld, Morey 355, 450, 477, 504, 544, 576, 588, 614, 622, 734, 1093, 1252, 1314, 1344, 1353, 1443
Felden, Bobby 211
Felder, Marion 813
Felder, Wilton 322, 323, 600, 854, 871, 1313
Feldkamp, Elmer 398
Feldman, Allan 1510
Feldman, Harold 343
Feldman, Lawrence 138, 168, 323, 330, 465, 1008, 1256, 1274, 1275
Feldman, Mark 4, 5, 7, 38, 57, 76, 115, 168, 216, 313, 398, 399, 400, 420, 426, 478, 661, 909, 1063, 1065, 1176, 1240, 1270, 1321, 1441, 1442, 1466, 1542, 1543, 1544, 1545
Feldman, Vic 10
Feldman, Victor 10, 12, 222, 226, 257, 301, 345, 364, 370, 479, 540, 693, 720, 786, 798, 821, 936, 1026, 1027, 1111, 1142, 1143, 1146, 1199, 1211, 1225, 1233, 1239, 1248, 1304, 1450, 1468, 1531
Felice, Ernie 577
Felix, Delbert 947
Felix, Lennie 355, 475, 1422
Fell, Milo 1497
Fell, Simon H. 56, 296, 315, 480, 631, 698, 1190, 1309
Fellini, Tommy 494, 900, 1081, 1433
Fells, Nick 561
Felson, Ed 130
Felten, Eric 481
Felton, Roy 228
Feman, Ben 423, 848
Fen, Min Xiao 1491
Fenn, Rick 938
Fenton, Nick 999
Feraud, Hadrien 978
Ferber, Alan (Hagiga) 127, 323, 481, 719
Ferber, Mark 21, 28, 323, 408, 481, 778, 844, 845, 1107, 1213, 1222, 1228, 1292
Ferber, Tom 614
Ferchen, Tim 1448
Ferguson, Alan 248, 477, 1322, 1457
Ferguson, Charles 1169
Ferguson, Harry 987
Ferguson, Maynard 84, 299, 482, 525, 588, 815, 816, 1230, 1280, 1467, 1477
Ferguson, Peter 483
Ferguson, Sherman 154, 202, 954, 957, 1259, 1280, 1501
Ferina, Tony 816, 1445
Ferm, Ned 35
Fernandes, Reinaldo 1542
Fernandez, Adam 1314
Fernández, Agustí 484, 621, 1126
Fernandez, Angelo 263, 820, 1114
Fernandez, Charles 566
Fernandez, David 1064
Fernandez, Enrique 777
Fernandez, Juan 1202
Fernqvist, Bertil 449
Feron, Walter 1203
Ferracone, Glenn 363
Ferragutti, Torinho 76
Ferrante, Johnny 576
Ferrante, Joe 173, 231, 545, 601, 1249
Ferrante, Russell 924, 1008
Ferrar, Nick 1203
Ferrara, Don 601, 836, 1052, 1054
Ferraresi, Eros 533
Ferrari, Luc 14
Ferré, Boulou 445, 855
Ferré, Pere 1170
Ferreira, Dorio 369
Ferreira, Paulo 545
Ferrero, Alessandro 534
Ferrero, Ruben 663
Ferret, Paul Challain 451
Ferret, Pierre 1202, 1203
Ferret, René 1204
Ferretti, Andy 395, 396, 397, 424, 504, 1283, 1443
Ferretti, Augie 1171
Ferretti, Chet 299
Ferrier, John 272
Ferris, Glenn 120, 264, 266, 1278, 1394, 1460
Ferris, Ralph 1321
Ferrone, Steve 18, 363, 460
Fetterer, Gus 937, 1101
Fettig, Mary 981
Few, Bobby 54, 450, 473, 484, 730, 731, 856, 857, 1531
Few, Cyrille 856
Fewell, Garrison 484, 1387
Feza, Mongezi 144, 176, 358, 485, 998, 1523
Fiaindratovo, Mimy 746
Fian, Bumi 1448, 1449
Fiddleman, Hymie 1093
Fiddmont, Keith 259
Fiedler, Alvin 803
Fiedler, Joe 792, 898, 916, 1406
Fiegl, Johnny 38
Field, Dave 1084
Field, Dennis 869
Field, Gregg 94, 481, 496
Field, John 808
Field, Norman 1490
Fielder, Alvin 2, 152, 518, 571, 1011
Fielder, Bill 1355
Fielder, Joe 703

Fields, Allen 1189
Fields, Arthur 900
Fields, Dave 520
Fields, Eugene 63, 788, 1326
Fields, Fran 1337
Fields, Frank 737, 1100
Fields, Geechie 788, 1044, 1504
Fields, Gene 63, 667, 714
Fields, Harry 1445
Fields, Herbie 262, 638, 736, 783, 1020, 1110, 1537
Fields, Jackie 667, 699, 1458
Fields, Kansas 257, 554, 783, 1179, 1510
Fields, Lawrence 96
Fields, Scott 485
Fields, Ted 272
Fier, Anton 1542
Fier, Newman 1101
Fierstone, George 70
Fig, Anton 870
Figelski, Cecil 1478
Figueroa, Ernie Thomas 205
Figueroa, Guillermo 1221
Figueroa, Sammy 80, 219, 351, 406, 934, 1285
Figuerola, Xavier 1030
Fila, Alec 249, 575, 1388
Filiano, Ken 119, 478, 486, 536, 560, 565, 566, 572, 593, 610, 675, 697, 747, 1223, 1319, 1320, 1371, 1384, 1431, 1452, 1487
Finch, Andy 1217
Finch, Otis 555, 739, 1134, 1277, 1424
Finch, Simon 281
Finck, David 330, 406, 486, 804, 846, 852, 1057, 1181, 1227
Finckel, Christopher 1221
Finckel, Eddie 413
Find, Mikkel 1396
Findley, Bob 481
Findley, Chuck 259, 951, 1210, 1432
Findon, Ron 564
Fine, Elliott 486
Fine, Jack Wolf 155
Fine, Milo 165, 486
Fine, Mitch 957
Finegan, James 629, 630
Finerman, Uzi 468
Finerty, Paul 464
Fine Trash 1487
Finkbeiner, John 863
Finke, Doug 747
Finkel, Sigi 1211
Finlay, Gun 1322
Finlayson, Jonathan 277, 877
Finlayson, Tucker 125, 126
Finn, James 487
Finn, Julio 46, 1290
Finnell, Douglas 1184
Finnerty, Barry 323, 351, 676
Finnis, Tony 1476
Finucane, Dave 422
Fioravanti, Ettore 473, 508, 1107, 1419
Fiorentino, Umberto 536
Fiorini, Enrico 533
Firehouse 487
Firehouse Five Plus Two 487
Fire Of Space 488
Firestone, Ross 158
Firmature, Sam 765
First House 488
Fischer, Bernd 38
Fischer, Carl 483
Fischer, Clare 322, 871, 889, 1143, 1405
Fischer, Jacob 49, 616, 647, 913
Fischer, Johnny 1538
Fischer, Kai 1322
Fischer, Lisa 80, 1275
Fischer, Sören 1266
Fischer, Tom 369, 551, 681, 923, 1300
Fischer, William 11, 1539
Fischer, William S. 1259
Fischetti, Guy 415
Fishel, Bob 83
Fishelson, Stan 576, 692, 1188, 1209, 1283, 1284, 1445
Fisher, Abby 937
Fisher, Bobby 1388
Fisher, Colin 423
Fisher, Hal 868
Fisher, Herb 1223
Fisher, Jacob 1175
Fisher, Jenelle 89
Fisher, Larry 1210
Fisher, Lisa 754
Fisher, Rob 987, 1143, 1405
Fisher, Tony 255, 1386, 1415, 1488
Fishkind, Arnold 118, 490, 622, 632, 664, 794, 835, 836, 1115, 1180, 1283, 1314, 1417
Fishkind, Larry 744, 1034
Fishwick, Matt 226, 371, 608
Fishwick, Steve 226, 608
Fiszman, Nicholas 1441
Fiszman, Nicolas 944
Fitch, Bill 614, 871
Fitzgerald, Andy 201, 462, 667
Fitzgerald, Ella 43, 44, 45, 488, 774, 803, 849, 1117, 1210, 1520
Fitzgerald, Joe 1141
Fitzgerald, Warren 394
Fitzpatrick, Bob 482, 720, 736, 815, 816, 817, 818
Fitzpatrick, Francis 555
Fitzpatrick, Pete 210
Fiuczynski, Dave 777
Fiuczynski, David 7, 361, 493, 549, 661, 777, 833, 1250, 1428, 1461
Five Birmingham Babies 494
Flaherty, Paddy 660
Flaherty, Paul 494, 1297
FLAM, Chris 1294
Flanagan, Tommy 9, 32, 56, 200, 201, 203, 212, 230, 240, 254, 258, 262, 285, 286, 319, 339, 341, 384, 393, 394, 425, 449, 469, 470, 492, 494, 517, 555, 568, 582, 587, 596, 634, 635, 668, 669, 670, 675, 678, 689, 754, 755, 772, 774, 783, 786, 787, 795, 796, 799, 800, 899, 933, 982, 1003, 1009, 1027, 1054, 1075, 1143, 1160, 1165, 1170, 1184, 1192, 1233, 1235, 1252, 1254, 1320, 1328, 1375, 1391, 1392, 1398, 1486, 1522, 1527
Flanigan, Phil 196, 611, 635, 962, 1367, 1434, 1435, 1500
Flaten, Ingebrigt Håker 496, 618, 619, 1083, 1439, 1440, 1487, 1492
Flato, Ludwig 83
Flavelle, Jackie 78
Flax, Marty 554, 899, 1210
Flea 1199
Fleagle, Brick 257, 430, 712, 853, 1343, 1344
Fleck, Béla 307, 1340
Fleck, Derek 1490
Fleig, Timo 1386
Fleischer, Bernie 496, 1540
Fleming, Art 1089
Fleming, Bill 1318
Fleming, Herb 155
Fleming, Jock 1322
Fleming, John 1318
Fleming, Leopoldo 1060
Fleming, Michael 66, 828
Fleming, Peter 247
Fleming Jr, Teagle 609
Flemming, Herb 410, 1458
Fletcher, Aaron 135
Fletcher, Chris 225, 1180
Fletcher, Liz 82
Fletcher, Mark 322, 413, 1284, 1285
Fletcher, Milton 228, 704, 705, 798
Fletcher, Stan 816
Fletcher, Willy 1426
Flick, Mike 48
Flint, Shelby 305
Flood, Bernard 42, 671
Flood, Bill 671
Flood, Tim 911
Floody, Brian 690
Florence, Bob 496, 1139, 1540
Flores, Chuck 219, 220, 693, 986, 1142, 1280, 1409, 1513
Flores, Jack 937
Flores, Luca 69, 1433
Flores, Richie 697
Florian, Ray 818
Floridis, Floros 842
Florizoone, Tuur 1545
Flory, Chris 143, 415, 635, 748, 779, 1162
Flory, Med 85, 184, 481, 497, 549, 601, 1139, 1142, 1165
Flowers, Bob 170
Flowers, Clyde 27
Flowers, Herbie 401
Floyd, Frank 1468
Floyd, Harlan 93, 263
Fludas, George 176, 543, 606, 631, 965
Flükiger, Fredi 1349
Flynn, Frank Emilio 50
Flynn, George 70, 477, 478, 1268, 1269
Flythe, Alvin 529
Foccroulle, Geneviève 166
Fogle, Abe 505
Fohrenbach, Jean-Claude 254, 1204
Fol, Hubert 254, 497, 668, 1030, 1204
Fol, Raymond 48, 55, 65, 497, 591, 639, 712, 859, 1030, 1204, 1391
Folds, Chuck 497
Folson, Eileen 860
Foltz, Jean-Marc 497
Folus, Mickey 654, 691, 692, 1089, 1283
Folwell, James 54
Folwell, William 53, 54
Fonda, Joe 162, 163, 298, 325, 498, 1063, 1088, 1090, 1309, 1430, 1496
Foni, Igal 50, 478
Fonseca, Duduka da 87, 88, 934, 968, 1055, 1227, 1275, 1542
Font, Adrià 1170
Fontaine, Paul 1, 693
Fontana, Antonio 334
Fontana, Carl 109, 111, 222, 498, 693, 720, 817, 1162, 1292, 1523, 1531
Fook, Alonso 987
Foort, Kris de 694
Foote, Richard 1318
Forbes, Graham 118
Forbes, Harry 271, 814, 815
Forbes, Joel 23, 85, 451, 1343
Forbes, Shaney 445, 1515
Forchetti, Joe 1327
Forcione, Antonio 625
Ford & Ford 51
Ford, Andrew 'Fats' 43, 413, 435, 757
Ford, Billy 155, 1505
Ford, Clarence 1500
Ford, Clinton 443
Ford, Hank 606
Ford, Harry 1101
Ford, Jimmy 482, 1228
Ford, Joe 468, 501, 572, 1399, 1426, 1427, 1513, 1514
Ford, Larry 496

Ford, Ricky 130, 353, 499, 743, 857, 1005, 1250, 1427, 1455
Ford, Robben 460, 590, 924
Ford, Victor 1283
Forde, Sara 433
Fordin, Jordan 571
Fordjour, Robert 832, 1167
Foreman, Chris 362
Foreman, James 552, 553
Forenbach, Jean-Claude 1204
Foretich, Herman 450, 1354
Forey, Jim 443, 605
Forman, Bruce 185, 272, 1038
Forman, Mitchel 546, 1187, 1274
Formanek, Michael 35, 40, 68, 73, 120, 121, 144, 200, 216, 323, 331, 420, 499, 806, 809, 898, 924, 1006, 1144, 1166
Formenti, Andrea 475, 1083
Forrest, Dick 236, 1540
Forrest, Eddie 487
Forrest, Helen 575, 576, 764, 1282
Forrest, Jimmy 35, 93, 341, 432, 499, 596, 598, 605, 826, 1226, 1508
Forrester, Bobby 1486
Forrester, Joel 996
Forsberg, Ulf 1367
Forsén, Arne 500, 1327, 1425
Forslund, Jan 767
Forslund, Tore 426
Forsman, Alf 843
Forss, Peter 807
Forster, Terry 1055
Forsyth, Jim 'Farrie' 187
Fort, Anat 500
Fort, Henry 1086
Fortier, George 293
Fortier, Lee 693
Fortune, Sonny 12, 75, 236, 349, 350, 500, 743, 1258, 1426, 1455
Forzisi, Barbara 927
Foscher, Jakob 1086
Fosdick, Dudley 1017, 1081
Foss, Niels 49
Fosset, Marc 394, 592
Foster, Abby 238
Foster, Al 23, 35, 88, 89, 106, 113, 347, 349, 350, 351, 406, 495, 519, 583, 624, 628, 688, 727, 740, 759, 795, 798, 802, 852, 909, 942, 947, 1009, 1029, 1037, 1050, 1159, 1175, 1226, 1235, 1238, 1385, 1427, 1428, 1513, 1514, 1525, 1529, 1538
Foster, Alex 462, 1005, 1006, 1133, 1275, 1468
Foster, Andy 1202
Foster, Artie 396, 1252
Foster, Darryl 1129
Foster, Frank 18, 92, 93, 200, 213, 490, 491, 501, 540, 588, 596, 701, 723, 759, 792, 799, 914, 946, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1074, 1075, 1130, 1247, 1278, 1378, 1444, 1445, 1486
Foster, Gary 324, 626, 839, 954, 1292, 1405, 1409
Foster, George 'Pops' 23, 24, 39, 40, 41, 42, 63, 100, 101, 102, 148, 334, 355, 357, 379, 464, 501, 666, 710, 711, 725, 788, 789, 1044, 1113, 1251, 1314, 1315, 1319, 1388, 1456, 1457
Foster, Herman 389, 573, 937
Foster, Kay 50
Foster, Marquis 1120, 1286, 1379
Foster, Mick 532, 608, 1355
Foster, Mo 225
Foster, Norman 504
Foster, Ronnie 113, 170, 600
Foster, Stan 1258
Foster, Stuart 397
Foster, Wade 937
Fouad, Pierre 1203, 1204
Fouche, Earl 1041
Fougerat, Tony 1224
Fountain, Pete 502, 708
Four Dusty Travellers, The 888
Four Hits & A Miss 489
Four Knights, The 827
Four Stars, The 83
Four Wanderers, The 23, 1456
Fourie, Johnny 674
Fournier, Denis 497
Fournier, Vernell 748, 761, 798, 801, 1350
Fowler, Bernard 643, 1213
Fowler, Billy 685
Fowler, Bruce 421, 566
Fowler, Dylan 680
Fowler, Lem 502, 1184
Fowler, Luke 424
Fowler, Robert 82
Fowler, Steve 566
Fowler, Walt 264
Fowlkes, Charlie 92, 93, 155, 254, 262, 492, 638, 755, 1254, 1278, 1502
Fowlkes, Curtis 214, 512, 625, 637, 738, 777, 1068, 1182, 1401
Fox, Billy 502
Fox, Bunchie 246
Fox, Charles 318, 341, 499, 580, 1392
Fox, Dan 422
Fox, Donal 502, 860
Fox, Fred 817, 1283
Fox, Manny 50
Foxley, Ray 294, 295, 883
Foy, Jim 694
Foyen, Larry 483
Frahm, Joel 52, 252, 268, 368, 503, 614, 1518
Frampton, Roger 1013
France, Martin 40, 72, 95, 195, 488, 904, 1300, 1384, 1466
France, Nic 758
France, Percy 1312
Franceschini, Bob 1095, 1340
Francioli, Léon 1174
Francis, Al 440
Francis, George 428
Francis, John 415, 963
Francis, Karen 313
Francis, Panama 35, 55, 194, 195, 219, 262, 273, 372, 390, 424, 503, 609, 757, 783, 999, 1281, 1467
Franck, Daniel 1131
Franck, Tomas 95, 503, 1191, 1324, 1395, 1525
Franco, Guilherme 147, 324, 1426
Frang, Arne 71
Frangenheim, Alexander 124, 206, 251, 420, 1381
Frank, Art 68
Frank DeVol Orchestra 491
Franken, Rob 1395
Franker, Eric 1098
Frankhauser, Charlie 576, 692, 847
Frank Hunter Orchestra 1509
Franklin, Henry 571, 626, 1184, 1285
Franklin, Phil 869
Franklin, Wallace 1322
Franklin, William 704, 798, 1200
Franks, Alan 70
Franks, Aubrey 70, 248
Franks, Jez 48
Franks, Stanley 1060
Franz, Don 377, 1113
Franz, Wiliam 41
Franzella, Sal 63, 588, 1334
Franzetti, Carlos 852
Fraser, Angus 1333
Fraser, Bob 845, 1339
Fraser, Dave 1190
Fraser, Hugh 281, 640, 1494
Fraser, Milton 1505
Fraterman, Evert Jan 680
Fratila, Dumitru Ovidiu 50
Fratini, Michele 1085
Fratzke, Erik 648
Frazão, Alexandre 366, 1263
Frazee, Roy 943, 1523
Frazier, Bill 416, 1443
Frazier, Bob 798
Frazier, Charles 329, 395, 788, 1098
Frazier, Cie 198, 269, 455, 737, 884, 1164, 1224, 1314, 1315
Frazier, David 38, 147
Frazier, Earl 263
Frazier, Jake 1504
Frazier, John 40
Frazier, Josiah 238, 645, 729, 737, 1079
Frazier, Larry 971
Frazier, Simon 998
Fredericks, Sonny 24
Frederickson, Alan 461
Frederiksen, Erik 49
Frederiksen, Finn 52, 126
Free, Ronnie 26, 299, 311
Free, Stan 299
Freed, Sam 398
Freedman, Bruce 620, 1075
Freedman, Daniel 52, 268, 897, 1108
Freedman, Fardijah 480
Freedman, Joel 53
Freelon, Nnenna 982, 1019
Freeman, Ahnee Sharon 625
Freeman, Ben 1092
Freeman, Bruz 233, 665, 1118
Freeman, Bud 118, 196, 297, 298, 396, 397, 398, 474, 504, 573, 574, 588, 937, 1252, 1327, 1334, 1353, 1388, 1446, 1457, 1521
Freeman, Chico 147, 365, 505, 506, 713, 874, 914, 1185, 1247
Freeman, Earl 730, 1105, 1290
Freeman, Eddie 477
Freeman, Ernie 736
Freeman, George 505, 607, 1118
Freeman, Hank 1093, 1282
Freeman, Harry 50, 1282
Freeman, Ken 955
Freeman, Russ 64, 65, 80, 180, 239, 318, 341, 482, 506, 544, 557, 578, 584, 588, 935, 936, 1000, 1111, 1115, 1119, 1141, 1142, 1143, 1180, 1184, 1230, 1247, 1409
Freeman, Sharon 136, 462, 623, 1318
Freeman, Stan 734, 1117, 1283
Freeman, Von 427, 506, 506, 1118
Free Range Rat 507
Freling, Henry 118
French, Jeremy 187, 475
French, John 60
French, Mike 1080
Frendin, Henrik 996, 997
Frere-Jones, Sasha 60
Fresco, Johnny 764
Fresk, Babe 397
Fresu, Paolo 138, 507, 535, 767, 873, 940, 1174, 1194, 1419, 1524
Freudenberg, Sebastian 39
Freund, Joki 38, 708
Freundlich, Kenny 422
Frey, Peter K. 520
Frieboe, Brigitte 838
Friede, Al 764

Friedland, Ed 946
Friedlander, Eric 1241, 1311
Friedlander, Erik 76, 168, 216, 313, 327, 398, 399, 419, 420, 452, 508, 695, 696, 867, 909, 1240, 1325, 1542, 1544, 1545
Friedli, Gabriela 1461
Friedman, Art 1445
Friedman, Dave 509, 871, 1299
Friedman, David 734, 735
Friedman, Don 272, 278, 384, 509, 541, 558, 688, 792, 838, 899, 933, 1392, 1541
Friedman, Gary William 602
Friedman, Irving 1388
Friedman, Izzy 105, 106, 864, 1446
Friedman, Janice 557, 707
Friedman, Joel 1425
Friend, Becky 1047, 1297
Friend, Carl 849
Friesen, David 404, 511, 646, 650, 802, 946
Friesen, Kelly 415
Frigo, John 17, 211, 327, 337, 511, 1093
Frigo, Rick 511
Friis, Marie Lorette 129
Friis-Nielsen, Peter 38, 1131, 1223
Friley, Vern 549, 550, 818, 1095, 1540
Fringe, The 512
Frink, Laurie 516, 719, 892, 1019, 1256, 1268, 1269
Frink, Miff 937
Fripp, Robert 1416
Frisell, Bill 34, 84, 120, 127, 140, 213, 235, 512, 523, 549, 590, 591, 629, 637, 696, 728, 997, 1034, 1048, 1049, 1213, 1222, 1256, 1274, 1275, 1340, 1494, 1542, 1543, 1544
Frishberg, David 85, 327, 514, 823, 849, 968, 1248, 1352
Frith, Fred 166, 296, 402, 842, 1243, 1373, 1542, 1544, 1545
Fritz, Gary 414, 617
Frock, Johnny 108
Froeba, Frank 40, 118, 357, 574, 588, 666
Frohman, Mitch 1263
Froman, Ian 943, 1317
Fromm, Ed 388
Fromm, Lou 50, 577, 764, 945, 1283, 1284
Frommer, Gary 482, 1141, 1142
Front, Wojciech 1544
Frosk, John 554, 578, 601
Frost, Richard 209, 1030
Frost, Søren 996
Fruscella, Tony 413, 514
Fry, Adrian 608
Fry, Martin 549, 1488
Frye, Carl 42, 228, 714, 1198
Frye, Don 56, 628, 1078, 1098, 1483
Fryer, Jim 515
Fryer–Barnhart International All Star Jazz Band 515
Fryland, Thomas 515, 921, 996
Frylmark, Bertil 420, 664
Fu, You Qun 709
Fuchs, Wolfgang 515, 1043, 1382, 1440
Fuglsang, Peter 121, 392, 1175
Fuhler, Cor 1035, 1065, 1534
Fujii, Satoko 516
Fujiwara, Kiyoto 637, 709
Fujiwara, Tomas 210
Fujiyama, Yuko 249, 1311
Fulbright, Richard 99, 228, 423, 552, 704, 1078, 1098, 1319, 1483, 1504, 1505
Fulford, Tommy 488, 489, 803, 1476
Fuller, Arthur 162, 325
Fuller, Bob 1504
Fuller, Curtis 57, 93, 134, 254, 284, 285, 393, 461, 470, 471, 516, 568, 569, 678, 687, 688, 732, 776, 796, 797, 867, 894, 899, 978, 1008, 1009, 1013, 1039, 1074, 1148, 1178, 1188, 1296, 1462, 1523
Fuller, Jerry 369, 1155, 1156
Fuller, Walter 254, 638, 704, 705, 1056, 1322
Fullerton, Dave 591
Fullick, Teddy 645
Fulton, Euan 1318
Fulton, Jack 105, 1388
Fulton, John 715
Fulvio Maras 1420
Fumero, Horacio 943
Fumero, Isoca 79
Fumo, John 565, 566, 890
Funoldi, Ronald 1210
Furic, Stephane 517
Furnace, Sam 172, 419, 683, 709
Furness, Bill 489
Furness, Peck 489
Furness, Slim 489
Furt 518
Furtado, Stephen 94, 775, 801
Fusco, Andy 374, 518, 1351, 1480, 1481
Fusers, Rudi 38
Fussenegger, Ulli 833
Fust, Fritz 46, 420, 427
Fuster, Francis 368
Futterman, Joel 518, 803, 1057

G

G, Nino 1477
Gaardvik, Svein-Erik 739
Gaber, George 817
Gabriel, Percy 987
Gabrielsson, Stig 420, 1176
Gadbois, Hearn 1196
Gadd, Per-Ola 1149
Gadd, Steve 80, 136, 304, 305, 307, 871, 924, 1159, 1160, 1208, 1255, 1256, 1468
Gaddy, Christopher 767
Gaddy, Willy 155
Gadson, James 89, 642
Gaer, Leon 441
Gafa, Al 555, 968, 969, 1138
Gaffney, George 1084
Gagliardi, William 518
Gaglio, Nick 848
Gaillard, Slim 1078, 1115, 1120
Gailloreto, Jim 427
Gaines, Charlie 42, 803, 1456, 1504, 1505
Gaines, Everett 1505
Gaines, Roy 195, 1248
Gaines, Will 296
Gains, Charlie 1456
Gais, Don 1344
Gakhil, Seva 853
Galas, Diamanda 842, 1542
Galbraith, Barry 50, 63, 181, 222, 270, 299, 355, 384, 455, 462, 469, 601, 607, 632, 634, 669, 670, 716, 755, 772, 777, 789, 794, 804, 816, 851, 886, 962, 976, 993, 1094, 1186, 1219, 1249, 1281, 1284, 1313, 1400, 1443, 1445, 1467, 1509
Galbraith, Charlie 72, 1362
Galbreath, Frank 42, 1056
Gald, David 1279
Gale, Dave 693, 942
Gale, Eddie 1535
Gale, Eric 113, 136, 204, 483, 641, 719, 969, 1262, 1313, 1468
Gale, Jack 693, 942
Gale, John 80
Galépides, François 102
Gales, George 553
Gales, Larry 320, 338, 596, 607, 927, 1023, 1024, 1242, 1375
Galeta, Hotep Idris 1134
Galetta, Nick 779
Galipault, Croix 572
Gallagher, Frank 693, 1165
Gallaud, Louis 198, 269, 645, 998, 1072
Galliano, Richard 508, 519, 559, 1174
Gallio, Christoph 520
Gallivan, Joe 462
Gallo, Danilo 540
Gallon, Ray 1019
Galloway, Jim 520, 987, 1434
Galloway, Steve 92, 93
Galper, Hal 11, 66, 68, 168, 520, 651, 836, 1498, 1527
Galsworthy, Sonja 735
Galtman, Henry 83
Galuman, Chris 818
Gambale, Frank 305, 307
Gambarini, Roberta 521
Gambella, Vince 1313
Gambino, Tommy 639
Gamble, Donald 832
Gamble, Otis 1505
Gambrell, Antonio 949
Gamby, Oscar 1391
Gámez, Jorge Luis 1030
Gammage, Gene 1151, 1152, 1156
Gandee, Al 105
Gandhi, U. T. 1193
Ganelin, Slava (Vyacheslav) 521
Ganelin Trio 522
Gania, Mahmoud 177
Ganley, Allan 16, 70, 157, 253, 260, 267, 332, 360, 367, 370, 466, 522, 531, 546, 596, 635, 652, 665, 673, 674, 828, 879, 900, 962, 1077, 1225, 1352, 1385, 1435
Gannon, James 1210
Gansch, Thomas 1449
Ganse, Sharine 995
Gant, Frank 17, 36, 627, 653, 761, 867
Gant, Mosey 687
Gantert, Christof 1349
Garay, Minino 908, 1390
Garbarek, Anja 941
Garbarek, Jan 523, 623, 769, 810, 863, 964, 1137, 1250, 1410, 1452, 1477, 1494
Garbarelli, Luca 941
Garber, Victor 779
Garberg, Mats 1087
Garbutt, Maurie 464
Garchik, Jacob 719, 839, 1370
Garcia, Carmelo 871, 1262, 1405
Garcia, Dick 455, 1120, 1186, 1278, 1286
Garcia, Hungaria 'Carmelo' 322
Garcia, Jerry 276
Garcia, Louis 1252
Garcia, Rob 747
Garcia, Russell 491, 525
Garcia, Xavier 539
Garcia-Bruno, Daniel 443
Garcia-Fons, Renaud 873
Garcin, Lionel 861
Gard Amundsen, Erik 781
Garden, Amos 43
Gardeñas, Jordi 409
Gardenas, Steve 966
Garden City Gospel Choir 586
Gardiner, Darrel 850
Gardiner, Ronnie 230, 1150

Gardner, Albert 'June' 1029
Gardner, Alonzo 743, 778, 974
Gardner, Andrew 423, 424
Gardner, Billy 57, 389
Gardner, Buzz 1397
Gardner, Derrick 57, 501, 529, 658
Gardner, Don 1203
Gardner, Earl 138, 454, 549, 679, 718, 739, 914, 948, 1006, 1256, 1275, 1304, 1320, 1343, 1427, 1469
Gardner, Freddy 228, 1190
Gardner, Herb 450
Gardner, Jack 763, 764, 937
Gardner, Jeff 511, 942
Gardner, Joe 501
Gardner, June 657
Gardner, Paula 876
Gardner, Simon 82
Gardner, Vincent 501, 525, 895, 1136
Gardony, Laszlo 485, 826
Garduno, Max 1517
Gare, Lou 29, 30, 526
Garetti, Jean-Michel 1263
Garforth, Jimmy 443
Gargano, Mauro 468
Gargano, Tom 105
Gari, Mike 592
Gariepy, Frank 1150
Garland 8
Garland, Ed 356, 784, 958, 1103, 1104
Garland, Edward 1104
Garland, Eric 1525
Garland, Fred 820
Garland, Joe 24, 42, 43, 671, 999, 1044, 1198
Garland, Judy 397
Garland, Red 262, 284, 285, 338, 341, 342, 343, 516, 526, 669, 787, 978, 1119, 1142, 1232, 1378, 1527
Garland, Tim 149, 182, 307, 333, 527, 533, 773, 811, 1413
Garling, Tom 483, 939
Garnås, Agnes Buen 524
Garner, Erroll 50, 209, 528, 694, 1115, 1120, 1344
Garner, Linton 416, 571
Garnes, Kåre 115
Garnett, Alex 82, 1096
Garnett, Alvester 232, 234, 246, 657, 895
Garnett, Carlos 347, 349, 350, 414, 529, 1259
Garnov, Preben 818
Garofoli, Fabrizio 535
Garrett, Donald Rafael 291, 473, 582, 655, 827, 1352
Garrett, Glenn 247
Garrett, Harold 694
Garrett, Kenny 35, 240, 306, 351, 530, 590, 644, 651, 676, 733, 948, 1016, 1275, 1340, 1462, 1472
Garrett, Sarnie 973
Garrette, Duke 638
Garrick, Christian 333, 453, 531
Garrick, Gabriel 532
Garrick, Michael 315, 531, 1206
Garrison, Arvin 199, 340, 418, 945, 970, 1115, 1120
Garrison, Jimmy 86, 229, 274, 275, 283, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 308, 393, 436, 517, 796, 979, 1234, 1290, 1425
Garrison, Kirk 939
Garrison, Matthew 20, 240, 955, 977, 978, 1236, 1531
Garros, Christian 229, 358, 568, 579, 1398
Garry, Sid 429
Garstedt, Anders 1087
Garvanoff, Gabriel 338
Garvin, Carl 1388
Garvin, Clint 443, 1388
Garvin, Tom 1452
Garwood, Duke 735
Garzone, George 123, 224, 388, 512, 533, 735, 785, 910, 1193, 1270, 1385
Gasca, Lou 818, 93
Gascoyne, Geoff 81, 394, 533, 956, 1284
Gaskin, Leonard 156, 209, 341, 504, 528, 544, 716, 719, 757, 786, 1136, 1176, 1275, 1307, 1322
Gaskin, Roderick 1513
Gaskin, Victor 11, 438, 439, 582, 1517, 1541
Gaslini, Giorgio 533, 750
Gassen, Loed 731
Gassin, Gilbert 1398
Gassman, Michael 96
Gaste, Louis 1202
Gastelum, Cochemea 1196
Gately, Buddy 396
Gates, Giacomo 536
Gates, Larry 201
Gateway 536
Gatto, Roberto 52, 114, 150, 333, 536, 925, 940, 1085, 1163, 1194, 1433
Gauchel, Walter 119, 1266
Gauci, Stephen 128, 536
Gaudion, Peter 1367
Gaudry, Michel 55, 358, 497, 639, 1027
Gauld, Sid 95, 1545
Gault, Billy 537, 980
Gaumont, Dominique 349, 350
Gaup, Ingor Ántte Áilu 524
Gause, Leland 939
Gauthé, Jacques 537, 915, 1300, 1308
Gauthier, Bertrand 199
Gauthier, Jeff 110, 260, 537, 566, 890, 1452
Gavilan, Ilmar 1095
Gavillet, Christian 352, 1395
Gavin, Alistair 104
Gay, Al 24, 1190, 1315, 1352, 1460, 1484
Gayle, Charles 538, 1062, 1306, 1383
Gayle, Rozelle 423, 424
Gaylor, Hal 632, 1120
Gaylor, Ruth 118
Gaylord, Charles 106
Gaynair, Wilton 'Bogey' 38, 539
Gayton, Clark 26, 126, 419, 477, 478, 612, 1006, 1068, 1406
Gebbia, Gianni 539, 1091
Gebhardt, Steve 136
Gebhart, Robert 1081
Gee, Eddie 1468
Gee, George 539
Gee, Jonathan 182, 540, 832, 956, 1482
Gee, Matthew 31, 32, 92, 435, 540, 552, 671, 759, 1170, 1345, 1346
Gee, Maurice 549
Geerken, Hartmut 540, 1050
Geers, Didier 1112, 1113, 1217
Geier, Karl Theodor 1501
Geiger, Thomi 627
Geil, Paul 764
Geisler, Ladi 367
Geisser, Heinz 278
Geissman, Grant 108
Gekker, Chris 1296
Gekler, Tom 301
Gelato, Ray 415
Gelda, Philippe 452
Geller, Harry 50, 574, 1282, 1283
Geller, Herb 64, 69, 108, 222, 466, 481, 482, 496, 514, 525, 540, 542, 588, 720, 897, 922, 936, 1093, 1111, 1142, 1230, 1245, 1247, 1467
Geller, Lorraine 222, 257, 341, 482, 542, 1010, 1247
Gelly, Dave 39, 1386, 1509
Gelmi, Oscar 535
Gelmi, Ugo 535
Gemus, Jimmy 1089
Genders, Harry 622
Genesis, Lee 1250
Gennaro, Mike 618
Genockey, Liam 28, 359, 1473, 1497
Genova, Domenic 626
Genovese, Leo 542
Gentile, Michel 1182
Gentry, Art 118
Gentry, Chuck 199, 395, 525, 576, 577, 763, 764, 1230, 1283, 1284
Genus, James 80, 114, 149, 167, 205, 217, 248, 283, 293, 399, 400, 460, 569, 608, 676, 697, 822, 830, 838, 904, 920, 958, 1076, 1225, 1317, 1472, 1519
George, Al 63, 118, 1089
George, Karl 90, 228, 552, 638, 814, 815, 970, 1000, 1466, 1521
George, Klaus-Dieter 737
George, Russell 579, 811, 1252
George Hartman Band 198
Georges, Dupor 57
Georgia Melodians, The 542
Georgian Ensemble 1051
Georgians, The 542
Gerace, Don 752
Geraldo, Tino di 873
Gerald Wilson Orchestra 229
Gérard, Fred 497
Gerber, Michael 1133
Geremia, Renato 548, 750, 1091
Gerhardt, Bill 542, 881
Gerhardt, Niels 838
Gerlach, Tyrus 136
Germanson, Rick 451, 539, 543, 551, 672, 690, 1139
Gerrard, Fred 1398
Gerrold, Carl 542
Gersback, Squire 784, 1058
Gersh, Squire 44
Gershman, Manny 397, 1093
Gershman, Nate 632, 633
Gershman, Paul 1028
Gershon, Russ 422, 423
Gerstein, Ben 932
Gertoft, Tommy 1150
Gertz, Bruce 117, 388, 543
Gertze, Johnny 110, 742
Gervais, Jacques 1179
Gesing, Klaus 1525
Gestrin, Chris 1019
Getsug, Aaron 1387
Getz, Jane 1165, 1258
Getz, Stan 64, 173, 491, 514, 543, 553, 576, 577, 587, 627, 668, 692, 694, 814, 815, 895, 1092, 1314, 1517
Gewelt, Terje 265, 1179, 1213, 1317, 1492
Ghee, Eugene 7, 145
Ghetti, Paolo 929
Ghiglioni, Tiziana 548
Ghose, Sai 548
Giacabetti, Tom 560
Giammarco, Maurizio 548
Giamo, Louis 1052
Giangaglini, Pietro 838
Giannelli, John 861
Giannetto, Lelio 539
Giardina, Phil 1093
Giardullo, Joe 984
Giausserand, Eric 519
Gibbons, Al 694, 775, 1138, 1318

Gibbs, Doc 1468
Gibbs, Eddie 196, 254, 357, 671, 1326, 1521
Gibbs, George 591
Gibbs, Georgia 397, 1283
Gibbs, Gerry 233, 364, 550, 551, 881
Gibbs, Leonard 1468
Gibbs, Melvin 452, 756, 1530, 1542, 1543
Gibbs, Michael 39, 280, 549, 905, 923, 1488
Gibbs, Terry 55, 239, 364, 413, 490, 511, 549, 654, 692, 752, 1160, 1210
Gibellini, Sandro 1268
Gibson, Alfred 228, 552, 796, 1056
Gibson, David 418, 551, 640, 1172
Gibson, Douglas 520
Gibson, Earl 219
Gibson Jr, Frank 172
Gibson, Harry 'The Hipster' 297
Gibson, Henry 655
Gibson, Michael 1031
Gibson Brass Band, The 551
Giddis, Jerry 1540
Giegas, Maurice 1203
Gies, Joachim 1381
Gifford, Gene 62, 236
Giger, Peter 1476
Giglio, Claudio 927
Gilad 1076
Gilbert, Eddie 1388
Gilbert, Eileen 113, 1242, 1511
Gilbert, Jack 280, 409
Gilbert, Jesse 165
Gilbert, Les 70
Gilbert, Phil 388, 413, 817, 1209
Gilbert, Stan 26, 201, 1405
Gilberto, Astrud 545
Gilberto, João 545, 546
Gilbertson, Gish 576
Gilbertson, Howard 1388
Gilbrook, Russell 78
Gilchrist, Lafayette 1061
Gilder, Rusty 981
Giles, Terry 367, 1043
Giles, Tim 48, 466
Gilkes, Marshall 1269
Gill, John 369, 401, 537, 551, 681, 682, 1058, 1300, 1326, 1533
Gill, Paul 614, 921, 1321, 1343, 1481, 1538
Gill, Sam 1491
Gillenwater, Jason 1213
Gillespie, Dizzy 50, 184, 209, 218, 230, 249, 271, 340, 390, 413, 416, 425, 431, 544, 552, 638, 639, 667, 704, 707, 736, 774, 815, 849, 886, 947, 999, 1000, 1089, 1114, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1120, 1154, 1155, 1179, 1188, 1262, 1316, 1443
Gillett, Bob 105, 1075
Gilligan, Mick 443, 628
Gillis, Cary 1353
Gillis, Verna 246
Gillmor, Stewart 163
Gills, Charles 238
Gillum, Charles 736
Gilman, Joe 556
Gilmore, David 7, 131, 214, 216, 721, 754, 965, 1472
Gilmore, John 134, 702, 724, 800, 1302, 1355, 1356, 1357, 1358, 1359, 1360, 1361
Gilmore, Marcus 277, 562, 752, 1245
Gilmore, Steve 268, 327, 395, 514, 651, 839, 891, 946, 969, 1498, 1527, 1528
Gilruth, Charles 1388
Ginman, Lennart 123, 326, 503, 729, 1086, 1191, 1525
Ginsberg, Ben 1282
Ginsburg, Joshua 282, 1264
Giobbe, Felix 1388
Gioga, Bob 271, 814, 815, 816
Giordano, Steve 757
Giordano, Vince 551, 579, 611, 612, 741, 747, 748, 1300
Giorgani, John 1210
Giorgianni, Sal 352, 612, 613
Giovannini, Davide 773
Girard, Adele 947
Girard, George 556
Girardi, Tony 888
Girland, Ludvig 1327
Girotto, Javier 536, 556, 941, 1194
Girsback, Squire 784
Gisbert, Greg 300, 374, 375, 477, 556, 746, 969, 1213, 1226, 1268, 1320, 1422
Gisley, Fabian 1264
Gismonti, Egberto 623, 624
Gite, Welton 89
Gitler, Ira 943
Giuffre, Jimmy 64, 140, 141, 173, 222, 242, 301, 442, 525, 557, 588, 692, 791, 886, 935, 1082, 1089, 1093, 1111, 1141, 1210, 1230, 1231, 1247
Giuffrida, Johnny 450
Giuliana, Mark 267, 268
Giuliani, Marcello 1420
Giuliani, Rosario 81, 150, 536, 559
Givens, Al 709
Givens, Spaulding 1000, 1001
Givens, Tim 48, 328, 964
Gjakonovski, Martin 587
Gjerde, Erlend 1487
Gjerstad, Frode 370, 559, 1088
Gladden, Eddie 68, 215, 583, 894, 1192
Gladieu, Maurice 1203
Gladieux, Michel 199
Glaesel, Jan 800
Glamann, Betty 393, 434, 877
Glanden, Don 560
Glapion, Raymond 1037
Glas, Rainer 680
Glascoe, Percy 502
Glasel, Johnny 101
Glaser, Martin 1510
Glasgow Improvisers Orchestra 561, 905
Glasper, Robert 135, 561, 1139, 1285, 1349, 1406, 1447
Glasser, Adam 533
Glasser, Dave 18, 561, 963, 1350, 1392
Glassman, Ben 947
Glasson, Charlotte 956
Glawischnig, Dieter 744
Glawischnig, Hans 451, 562, 619, 1257
Gleason, Phil 1081
Gleeson, Dr Patrick 414, 642, 684, 963, 1184
Glenn, Lloyd 609, 1104
Glenn, Roger 555, 1262, 1405, 1511
Glenn, Tyree 44, 45, 209, 218, 219, 228, 270, 432, 433, 439, 562, 668, 699, 780, 796, 853, 1066, 1186, 1198, 1343, 1391
Glennon, Gene 413, 943
Glenny, Albert 293, 1072
Glerum, Ernst 51, 111, 116, 325, 691, 722, 744, 745
Gleves, Ronnie 355
Globe Unity Orchestra 562
'Gloomy' Moody, James 673
Glover, Cliff 725
Glover, Ed 1176
Glover, Henry 155, 999
Glover, Jimmy 1505
Glover, Pete 1443
Glow, Bernie 15, 173, 231, 342, 343, 345, 462, 483, 545, 601, 692, 755, 886, 943, 969, 1009, 1027, 1028, 1094, 1095, 1278, 1283, 1284, 1313, 1508
Glow, Ernie 1248
Gnitka, Steve 486
Gobalet, James 667
Gobson, Andy 1412
Godard, Michel 475, 563, 800, 869, 1107, 1272
Godart, Gabrielle 394
Godding, Brian 1489
Godecke, Heinz-Erich 1381
Godfrey, Bruce 480
Godfrey, Helen 480
Godfrey, Sir John 1196
Godfroid, Marc 627
Godley, A. G. 789, 1109
Godske, Poul 126
Godwin, Ralph 333
Goe, Gene 93
Goessens, Kris 173, 174
Goetz, Mike 8
Goff, Harper 487
Goffin, Maurice 1081
Goines, Lincoln 114, 219, 1340
Goines, Victor 563, 586, 896, 951, 952, 1214, 1495
Goins, Larry 571
Gola, Armando 1261
Gold, Al 1252
Gold, Art 1388
Gold, Gerry 1182
Gold, Harry 564, 1484
Gold, Larry 216
Gold, Laurie 1190
Gold, Sanford 209, 544, 1314
Goldberg, Aaron 365, 442, 451, 525, 550, 603, 700, 845, 1139, 1199, 1208, 1237
Goldberg, Ben 261, 419, 564, 1493, 1544
Goldberg, Bing 737
Goldberg, Dave 70, 1199
Goldberg, Doc 50
Goldberg, Max 228
Goldberg, Michel 747
Goldberg, Mitch 577
Goldberg, Norberto 1055
Goldberg, Richie 201
Goldberg, Specs 413
Goldberg, Stu 977
Golden, Gene 79, 572
Golden, Jimmy 416
Golden Gate Quartet 43
Goldfield, Harry 864, 1388, 1446
Goldie, Don 1389
Goldie, Jack 118
Goldie, John 593, 1385
Goldings, Larry 122, 137, 168, 381, 564, 750, 921, 1169, 1213, 1241, 1256, 1274, 1275, 1351, 1352, 1417, 1518, 1519
Goldman-Yoskin, Mona 1468
Goldsbury, Mark 120, 1223
Goldsby, John 518, 565, 955, 968, 1449, 1500
Goldschmidt, Per 565, 1502
Goldsmith, Adam 76, 1180
Goldsmith, John 1358
Goldstein, Gil 168, 352, 426, 462, 565, 629, 895, 898, 934, 1008, 1227, 1256, 1305, 1340
Goldstein, Len 63, 1089
Goldstein, Lou 1089
Goldstein, Malcolm 565, 1519
Goldstein, Peter 275
Goldstein, Rolf 228
Goldstein, Stephen 464
Goldy, Ken 549

Golia, Vinny 109, 120, 260, 421, 565, 610, 675, 863, 885, 890, 1075, 1128, 1161, 1223, 1319
Gollehon, Joseph 152
Gollehon, Mac 568
Goller, Ruth 1101
Golove, Jonathan 566
Golson, Benny 133, 135, 180, 231, 235, 259, 384, 470, 471, 554, 555, 568, 690, 776, 796, 811, 813, 886, 894, 928, 1002, 1009, 1160, 1249, 1467, 1502, 1522
Goltzer, Harold 1353
Golub, Jeff 80, 568
Gomar, Larry 196, 398, 1388
Gomer, Victor 1250
Gomes, Gilmar 131
Gomez, Carlos 797, 862
Gomez, Claudia 1263
Gomez, Eddie 5, 139, 168, 171, 305, 307, 365, 375, 448, 457, 458, 459, 569, 587, 733, 775, 836, 891, 903, 904, 924, 934, 940, 954, 955, 961, 1159, 1205, 1212, 1385, 1411, 1427, 1513, 1514
Gomez, Edsel 214, 697, 916, 1257
Gomez, Felix 1261
Gomez, Nico 1010
Gomez, Phil 1104, 1328
Gomez, Ray 1535
Gonçalves, Rui 746
Gondi, Eugen 253
Gondor, Mark 845, 1339
Gonella, Bruts 570
Gonella, Nat 570, 853, 1279
Gone Orchestra 1224
Gonga, Dawilli 264
G on Groove Shop 259
Gonsalves, Paul 91, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 490, 492, 544, 552, 570, 634, 706, 712, 713, 774, 886, 1165, 1348, 1391, 1502, 1517
Gonsalves, Virgil 571
Gonsoulin, Bertha 784
Gonsoulin, Tom 763, 764, 779, 847
Gonzales, Babs 571, 1066, 1141
Gonzales, Dave 639
Gonzalez, Andy 572, 610, 1094, 1095, 1247, 1424
González, Dennis 152, 571
Gonzalez, Israel 1262
Gonzalez, Jerry 477, 572, 676, 895, 1094, 1133, 1257, 1513
Gonzalez, Joe 468, 1095, 1247
González, Lorenzo 1029
Gonzalez, Ricardo 1263
González, Robbie 80, 991
Gonzi, Mario 627, 800, 1449
Good, Dennis 1210
Good, Jerry 821
Goodall, Bill 297, 298
Goodall, Lee 680, 1404
Goode, Brad 362, 506, 517, 573
Goode, Coleridge 531, 532, 591, 652, 811, 1066, 1203
Gooden, Bill 238
Goodhew, Denny 728, 1280, 1411
Goodman, Benny 43, 156, 187, 196, 423, 479, 488, 570, 573, 664, 673, 674, 714, 847, 888, 937, 1081, 1089, 1334, 1388, 1422, 1446, 1520, 1521
Goodman, Harry 443, 488, 573, 574, 575, 638, 711, 937, 1334, 1388, 1520, 1521
Goodman, Irving 83, 118, 249, 395, 574, 575, 576, 577
Goodman, Jerry 922, 976
Goodman, John 278
Goodman, Wayne 951
Goodrich, Andy 578
Goodrick, Mick 204, 321, 388, 472, 623, 1107, 1369, 1396, 1456
Goods, Richie 695, 998, 1526
Goodson, Bill 987
Goodspeed, Mert 239
Goodwin, Bill 16, 27, 204, 221, 268, 279, 327, 511, 514, 651, 652, 768, 839, 946, 1103, 1142, 1281, 1450, 1498, 1527, 1528
Goodwin, Carl 943
Goodwin, Gordon 108, 850
Goodwin, Henry 39, 100, 102, 254, 671, 1319
Goodwin, Herbert 1406
Goodwin, Jim 514
Goody, Phil 70, 918
Goraguer, Alain 579
Goraguer, Patrick 517
Gordan, Scott 1189
Gordon, Amos 43
Gordon, Bob 482, 579, 720
Gordon, Bobby 64, 70, 180, 415, 468, 476, 579, 611, 748, 823, 1082, 1230, 1247, 1308
Gordon, Carl 948
Gordon, Charlie 703
Gordon, David 531, 1416
Gordon, Dexter 43, 228, 416, 418, 450, 552, 580, 595, 638, 640, 641, 736, 760, 797, 846, 980, 1089, 1170, 1176, 1353, 1400, 1443, 1479, 1536
Gordon, Frank 7
Gordon, Freddy 1322
Gordon, George 1001
Gordon Jr, George 1001
Gordon, Honey 1001, 1002
Gordon, Honi 1511
Gordon, Joe 212, 554, 584, 736, 821, 862, 936, 943, 966, 1022, 1026, 1171, 1526
Gordon, Jon 282, 327, 477, 557, 585, 721, 875, 876, 969
Gordon, Justin 681, 820
Gordon, Larry 779
Gordon, Peter 80, 168, 462, 739, 1133
Gordon, Richard 1001
Gordon, Tom 1317
Gordon, Wally 102, 1328
Gordon, Wycliffe 27, 246, 586, 626, 651, 951, 952, 1068, 1185, 1200, 1214, 1260, 1350, 1495
Gordon Family 1316
Gore, Rufus 155
Gorgas, Joe 596, 1262
Gorham, Wilbur 1085
Görling, Zilas 427
Gorman, Israel 729
Gorman, Mike 1051
Gorn, Steve 365, 896
Gorter, Arjen 169, 170, 224, 636, 637, 992, 1270
Gosnell, Craig 85, 720
Gossez, Pierre 497
Gotesman, Arkadi 521
Gott, Tommy 864
Gottesman, Rose 1510
Gottfried, Rob 1535
Gottlieb, Danny 204, 250, 462, 612, 613, 830, 870, 873, 993, 994
Gottlieb, Gordon 630
Gottschalk, Gunda 842
Gottuso, Tony 209, 1282
Gotwalls, Dave 83
Goubert, Simon 1226
Goudaroulis, Dimos 839
Goudbeek, André 169, 1440
Goudie, Frank 'Big Boy' 71, 272, 586, 1202
Goudsmit, Anton 691
Gougen, Charlie 148
Gouirand, Doudou 392
Gould, Bunny 1386
Gould, Robin 1203
Gourley, Jimmy 180, 587, 591, 752, 907, 1206, 1302, 1537
Gousset, Claude 338, 639
Goutard, Raymond 1203
Govetas, Christos 513
Gowans, Brad 148, 297, 504, 588, 622, 808, 889, 937, 1081, 1252
Gower, Chris 467, 991
Goya, Dodo 117, 1268
Goykovich, Dusko 38, 255, 587, 694, 1029
Gozzo, Conrad 199, 388, 692, 1093, 1188, 1230, 1409
Graaff, Rein de 1025, 1281
Graas, John 222, 301, 557, 587, 815, 816, 1052, 1141, 1230
Grab, Christoph 588
Grab, John 720
Grabowski, Robert 1064
Grace, Teddy 588
Gracia, Louis 398
Graciela 1095
Gracy, Dick 228
Gradischnig, Herwig 1449
Grady, Eddie 578
Graettinger, Bob 229
Graewe, Georg 206, 589, 594, 730
Graf, Bob 64, 589
Graham, Ann 574
Graham, Bill 92, 395, 424, 435, 1120, 1188
Graham, Billy 483, 1120
Graham, Chauncey 1457
Graham, Eddie 476
Graham, Elwood 820
Graham, George 496, 850, 1517
Graham, Jack 1062
Graham, Leonard 490
Graham, Mary F. 31
Grahn, Lennart 767
Graillier, Michel 68, 69, 611
Grainge, Alain 1502
Grainger, Gary 1274
Gram, Jeppe 375, 1525
Grammenou, Fotini 34
Gran, Magnus 781, 830, 997, 1368, 1369, 1453
Granafei, Enrico 394
Grand Dominion Jazz Band 589
Grand, Rodgers 1262
Grande, Vincent 1101
Grandmixer DST 643
Granelli, Jerry 144, 258, 590, 614, 944, 1411
Granowsky, Harold 632
Grans, Frank 212
Granstaff, Earl 410
Granström, Johan 1087
Grant, Alice 8
Grant, Coot 101
Grant, Darrell 153, 590, 654, 694
Grant, Dave 730
Grant, Frank 527
Grant, Jewel 789
Grant, Jewell 228, 1466
Grant, Jewell L. 1000
Grant, Mel 461
Grant, Peter 1055
Grant, Rael Wesley 454
Grant, Rodgers 871
Granville, Charles 70
Grappelli, Stéphane 49, 204, 272, 436, 591, 624, 667, 993, 1154, 1155, 1202, 1203, 1204, 1326, 1385
Grappy, Andy 281, 362, 1487, 1489, 1515
Graselli, Paul 1446
Grason, Matt 1127
Grasset, Roger 272, 1202
Grassi, John 423, 622, 848, 1092
Grassi, Lou 25, 186, 421, 518, 536, 593, 602, 747, 870, 1090, 1320, 1331, 1371, 1487

Grassman, Walter 1539
Grassnet, Robert 1202
Grasso, Frank 1223
Gratkowski, Frank 589, 594, 682, 730, 1034, 1065, 1109, 1223
Gratteau, Phil 939
Grau, Gonzalo 1268, 1269
Grau, Jürg 562
Grauengaard, Jørn 49, 126
Graume, Mickey 1502
Graupe, Ronny 325
Grauso, Joe 297, 710, 1252, 1327
Gravátt, Eric 684, 862, 1184, 1426, 1474
Graveer, Charles 1283
Graven, Luther 41
Graver, Charles 1283
Graves, Claiborne 987
Graves, Harry 1328
Graves, Joe 84
Graves, Marlon 644
Graves, Mel 595
Graves, Milford 54, 139, 255, 337, 595, 904, 1545
Graves, Peter 1133, 1210
Gravis, Frank 934
Gravish, Andy 252, 375
Gray, Bazzi Bartholomew 895, 1290
Gray, Dick 1516
Gray, Diva 1052
Gray, George 617, 744
Gray, Glen 236
Gray, Harry 1201
Gray, James 1544
Gray, Jerry 1282
Gray, Jim 775, 1545
Gray, John 51, 70, 662, 1031
Gray, Larry 247, 250, 309, 511, 517, 631, 785, 888
Gray, Leroy 580
Gray, Louis 43, 228
Gray, Luther 197, 210, 865, 1042
Gray, Mark 1008
Gray, Steve 1524
Gray, Thomas 798
Gray, Tick 1097
Gray, Wardell 242, 318, 413, 416, 528, 577, 580, 595, 627, 664, 665, 705, 716, 945, 1037, 1069, 1114, 1115, 1517
Grayson, Milt 586, 1511
Great British Jazz Band, The 596
Greaves, John 386, 908, 938, 939
Grebacken, Par 1348
Grebenschikov, Boris 853
Grebil, Michael 1545
Grech, Rich 981
Greco, Buddy 577
Greco, Tommy 764
Greeman, Stan 1093
Green, Al 424
Green, Arthur 895
Green, Bennie 31, 32, 113, 239, 319, 341, 439, 571, 588, 596, 705, 786, 899, 1000, 1136, 1162, 1346, 1443, 1445, 1446, 1523
Green, Benny 153, 184, 185, 597, 652, 668, 733, 811, 841, 843, 1035, 1157, 1168, 1321, 1370, 1499
Green, Bill 259, 323, 398, 555, 656, 662, 1517
Green, Bunky 597, 1346
Green, Cal 1451
Green, Charlie 42, 155, 685, 686, 1457
Green, Dave 16, 70, 81, 82, 125, 157, 187, 196, 197, 260, 266, 267, 273, 315, 320, 332, 407, 467, 523, 531, 532, 570, 598, 635, 636, 653, 726, 814, 824, 831, 879, 912, 919, 962, 1077, 1206, 1225, 1306, 1352, 1366, 1385, 1389, 1414, 1422, 1435, 1482, 1499, 1500, 1506
Green, Eddie 320, 798, 957, 1172
Green, Emmanuel 1028
Green, Eugene 155
Green, Freddie 63, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 156, 173, 228, 257, 268, 337, 492, 574, 601, 714, 716, 755, 758, 795, 861, 1053, 1117, 1162, 1165, 1180, 1188, 1248, 1252, 1278, 1353, 1375, 1400, 1443, 1467, 1483, 1521, 1535, 1536, 1537
Green, George Hamilton 1165
Green, Gerry 590
Green, Grant 57, 389, 499, 598, 640, 739, 854, 1013, 1039, 1134, 1186, 1195, 1312, 1346, 1424, 1502, 1503, 1534
Green, Gunnar 1322
Green, Henry Tucker 736, 1516
Green, Hill 1461
Green, Jack 207, 601, 693
Green, Jeff 358, 1105, 1498
Green, Jerry 77
Green, Jesse 601, 602
Green, Lew 754
Green, Madeline 705, 1056
Green, Marcellus 670
Green, Mel 814, 815
Green, Robert 671
Green, Rodney 24, 136, 463, 586, 965, 998, 1105, 1106, 1200, 1335, 1341
Green, Roger 997
Green, Russell 912, 913
Green, Sture 427, 1322
Green, Thurman 259, 656, 1517
Green, Urbie 15, 156, 196, 231, 258, 270, 394, 417, 455, 491, 554, 601, 607, 622, 656, 693, 786, 796, 797, 848, 849, 933, 1009, 1027, 1071, 1165, 1248, 1277, 1281, 1313, 1342, 1486, 1501, 1508, 1509
Green, Wilburn 1355
Green, William 183, 218, 1517
Greenberg, Irv 50
Greenberg, Jack 43, 654
Greenberg, Kenneth 602
Greenberg, Marty 1327
Greenberg, Rowland 602, 1118
Greenblatt, Rich 775
Greene, Bert 820
Greene, Bob 1224
Greene, Burton 314, 593, 602, 1034
Greene, Charles 316
Greene, Claude 1510
Greene, Everett 603
Greene, Frank 501, 1008, 1517, 1518
Greene, Freddie 760, 1502
Greene, Hilliard 169, 465, 538, 778, 870
Greene, Jimmy 267, 268, 354, 603, 652, 897, 1073, 1135, 1139, 1158, 1214, 1241
Greene, Madeline 705
Greene, Norman 42, 670, 725, 1056
Greene, Otis 983
Greene, Richard 204
Greene, Thurman 247
Greenfield, Steve 154
Greening, Chris 266
Greening, Leon 182
Greenlea, Charlie 424
Greenlea, Eph 31
Greenleaf, Freddie 710
Greenlee, Charles 287, 552, 846, 1002, 1290
Greenlief, Phillip 421
Greenow, Bill 958, 1437
Greenwald, Harry 118
Greenwich, Sonny 142, 603
Greenwood, Lil 435, 436
Greer, Sonny 43, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 562, 638, 699, 705, 706, 711, 712, 788, 1044, 1066
Gregg, Jack 183
Grego, Massimo 1419
Gregorio, Guillermo 6, 130, 604
Gregory, Edmond 987
Gregory, Joe 783
Gregory, Kyle 1254
Gregory, Terry 593, 1385
Greg Yasinitsky 1067
Greig, Stan 125, 187, 293, 294, 466, 475, 604, 711, 915, 918, 919, 1315, 1422, 1469
Grein, Stan 187
Grenadier, Larry 105, 122, 131, 244, 585, 586, 604, 676, 823, 844, 902, 934, 988, 989, 995, 1049, 1199, 1257, 1355, 1423, 1484, 1520
Grenadier, Phil 542, 604, 785
Grenidge, Robert 1468
Grenu, Georges 497
Gresham, Pete 1460
Gress, Drew 21, 81, 98, 121, 213, 216, 217, 227, 256, 282, 293, 302, 399, 445, 451, 508, 605, 626, 675, 695, 696, 867, 877, 924, 1019, 1085, 1222, 1345, 1429, 1430, 1441
Gresty, Alan 1362, 605
Grey, Al 92, 93, 228, 229, 339, 493, 554, 605, 639, 739, 774, 787, 899, 913, 971, 988, 1038, 1160, 1353, 1392, 1396, 1502
Grey, Carolyn 692, 848, 849
Grey, Harry 329
Grey, Louis 1517
Grey, Mike 606
Grey, Sonny 255, 583
Grey, Tony 978, 1428
Grider, Thomas 'Sleepy' 43, 424, 999
Grieg, Stan 126
Griekspoor, Jacco 1525
Griener, Horst 1502
Griener, Michael 420, 1043, 1502
Grieve, Tony 1492
Grievey, Buddy 416
Griffen, Anders 911
Griffin, Bob 1399
Griffin, Chris 574, 578, 714, 734, 780, 1093, 1283, 1334
Griffin, Dick 7, 316, 743, 828, 1129
Griffin, Francine 250, 606
Griffin, Fred 1275
Griffin, Gordon 62, 83, 488, 574, 576, 715, 1017, 1520
Griffin, Johnny 12, 17, 66, 93, 133, 338, 497, 555, 571, 583, 596, 606, 638, 649, 774, 777, 791, 796, 917, 1008, 1009, 1022, 1023, 1026, 1027, 1102, 1209, 1254, 1352, 1390, 1465, 1528
Griffin, Paul 113, 1405, 1468
Griffin, Ralph 912, 913
Griffith, Charlie 1093
Griffith, Dick 39, 645, 1224, 1437
Griffith, Earl 1380
Griffith, Frank 371, 608, 1185, 1389
Griffith, Fred 1320
Griffith, John 295
Griffith, Joseph A. 1101
Griffith, Miles 951, 1020, 1461, 1506
Griffith, Rollins 1120

Griffiths, Malcolm 177, 281, 362, 549, 562, 749, 997, 1253, 1363, 1364, 1404, 1414, 1415, 1417, 1482, 1488, 1489, 1524
Griggs, Bernie 413, 584, 943, 1119, 1120
Grigson, Lionel 39
Grillier, David 465
Grillo, Dennis 817
Grillo, Fernando 515
Grillot, François 870, 942
Grim, Joe 780
Grimes, Henry 26, 53, 244, 245, 373, 609, 675, 851, 1001, 1052, 1053, 1233, 1234, 1278, 1379, 1380, 1381, 1417, 1425, 1531
Grimes, Herman 432
Grimes, Iris 918
Grimes, Jimmy 764
Grimes, Tiny 257, 262, 270, 477, 609, 648, 668, 669, 715, 716, 759, 1066, 1110, 1115, 1120, 1186, 1376, 1377
Grimm, Joe 221
Grimm, Jurgen 174
Grimmonprez, Thomas 52, 223, 1324
Grinage, Les 455, 912, 1278
Grissett, Danny 603, 610, 652, 695
Grissom, Billy 433
Grissom, Dan 912, 913
Grissom, Jimmy 433, 434
Gritz, Peter 1226
Groder, Brian 610
Grofe, Ferdie 106
Grogan, Pete 875
Grohowski, Kenny 1169
Grolnick, Don 114, 264, 448, 610, 1008, 1255, 1256, 1274
Gromin, Nicolai 610
Gross, John 936
Gross, Louis 1326
Gross, Mark 324, 539, 718
Gross, Sidney 634, 1397
Gross, Walter 1353
Grossman, David 657
Grossman, Richard 610
Grossman, Stefan 308
Grossman, Steve 347, 348, 349, 608, 611
Grosvenor, Verta 1358
Grosz, Marty 156, 415, 579, 611, 748, 1079, 1225, 1260, 1264, 1366, 1367, 1499
Groves, Lani 483, 914, 1256
Grubbs, Carl 612, 683, 1173
Grubbs, Jeff 1064, 1171
Gruber, Freddy 413
Gruenbaum, Leon 1431
Gruenenfelder, Bob 461
Gruntz, George 352, 612, 1527
Grupo Changüi de Santiago/Guantánamo 197
Grupp, Martin 797
Grusin, Dave 1055
Gruvstedt, Lennart 114, 1087, 1407
Gryce, Gigi 180, 212, 231, 243, 469, 568, 584, 613, 786, 962, 1021, 1022, 1160, 1219, 1278, 1454
Grydeland, Ivar 613
Guagua, Eddie 80
Gualandris, Fiorenzo 1106
Guaraldi, Vince 614, 693, 808, 1239, 1261, 1404
Guarella, Giuseppe 927, 1091
Guarente, Frank 398, 542, 1388
Guarino, Felix 357
Guarna, Tom 614, 1171
Guarnieri, Johnny 43, 125, 209, 249, 257, 270, 372, 395, 424, 575, 576, 614, 780, 1110, 1186, 1283, 1315, 1343, 1344, 1375, 1477, 1505, 1535
Guarnieri, Leo 614
Guarrella, Giuseppe 1092
Guarrella, Pino 927
Guatelli, Alceo 533
Gubertini, Ronnie 228
Gubin, Sol 93, 455, 817, 976, 1027, 1303, 1405, 1509
Gudice, Joe 889
Gudina, Bob 1093
Guerin, Beb 312, 1018, 1297, 1401
Guerin, John 85, 1024, 1168, 1225, 1248
Guérin, Roger 254, 358, 497, 568, 797, 1398
Guerin, Roland 442, 948
Guerra, Marcellina 1262
Guerra, Vince 552
Guerrero, Chico 1231
Guerrero, Roland 945, 1095
Guertin, Vern 765
Guery, Stéphane 1291
Guesnon, George 645, 729, 737, 883, 884, 1224, 1314, 1436
Gueye, Mar 1530
Gueye, Serigne C. M. 366, 1201
Guico, Jose 713
Guidone, Glenn 1172
Guilbeau, Phillip 316
Guilberg, Arno 602
Guilfoyle, Ronan 302
Guilland, Nicole 240
Guillard, Alain 386
Guillard, Yvon 386
Guillaume, Stéphane 223, 451
Guillemet, Eustis 372, 639
Guillemin, Michel 1316
Guillen, Lasse 126
Guimaraes, Lionel 42
Guiraud, Jean-Luc 1500
Guittierrez, Steve 871
Guizen, Christian 497
Gulbrandsen, Jostein 615
Gulda, Friedrich 615
Gulkowski, Wlodek 834, 1250
Gulley, Terreon 811
Gullin, Lars 65, 180, 386, 447, 544, 545, 615, 631, 797, 897, 1030, 1149, 1176, 1289
Gullin, Peter 616, 838
Gullotti, Bob 321, 512
Gully, Terreon 131, 442, 617, 658, 754, 904, 965, 1390
Gulz, Torbjörn 172, 725, 852, 900, 1087
Gumbs, Fernando 12
Gumbs, Onaje Allan 12, 202, 617, 757, 914, 1285
Gumina, Tommy 1142
Gumpert, Ulli 97, 857
Gunde, Henrik 122
Gunkler, Hymie 218, 1408
Gunman, Lennart 1086
Gunn, Jimmy 1406
Gunn, Russell 529, 617, 951, 1503
Gunnarsson, Lars Gunnar 1007
Gunnison, Eric 300, 997
Gunther, John 300, 617, 698, 746
Gunther, Paul 1451
Gupta, Sameer 1019
Gurianov, Gustav 853
Gurtu, Trilok 524, 873, 977, 1099, 1161, 1539
Gush 618
Gussak, Bill 83, 1089
Gustafson, Gus 693, 1165, 1517
Gustafson, Thomas 423, 805
Gustafsson, Anders 49, 114, 996
Gustafsson, Mats 178, 179, 251, 484, 518, 589, 604, 618, 618, 620, 621, 1083, 1438, 1459, 1533, 1534
Gustafsson, Rigmor 49, 619
Gustafsson, Rune 1, 21, 46, 126, 387, 781, 782, 1250, 1512
Gustavito 1261
Gustavsen, Tord 619
Gustavsson, Anders 1407
Gustavsson, Christer 1407
Gustavsson, Owe 1327
Gustin, Gérard 65
Gut, Steve 587
Guthoff, Thomas 1043
Guthrie, Gwen 483, 914
Gutierrez, Eli 597
Gutierrez, Jose 1388
Guttormsen, Finn 1279
Gützkow, Dieter 1375
Guy, Barry 28, 367, 378, 401, 484, 518, 561, 618, 620, 749, 842, 905, 906, 1012, 1016, 1092, 1121, 1122, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1126, 1170, 1182, 1214, 1215, 1253, 1332, 1341, 1382
Guy, David 690, 1406
Guy, Fred 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 711, 1066
Guy, Herb 711
Guy, Joe 209, 238, 667, 715, 716, 774, 999, 1110, 1505
Gwaltney, Tom 356
Gwaltney, Tommy 211, 622, 981
Gwangwa, Mosa 412
Gwin, Jim 157, 158, 1171
Gwis, Alessandro 556
Gwo-Ka Masters 1061

H

Haapa-Aho, Umto 834
Haarla, Iro 621, 1448
Haas, Eddie de 250, 272
Haas, Steve 139
Haastrup, Benita 844, 964, 1387
Haazz & Company 621
Habraken, Paul 8
Hackett, Bobby 43, 156, 297, 298, 397, 477, 504, 574, 588, 621, 629, 715, 780, 889, 947, 1110, 1334, 1353, 1388, 1521
Hackett, Dominic 1412
Hackett, Ernie 70
Hackney, Lou 553
Hadar, Mira 1259
Haddad, Jamey 153, 660, 891, 1270
Haden, Charlie 21, 79, 136, 138, 141, 144, 168, 246, 274, 275, 283, 286, 623, 630, 651, 767, 768, 769, 772, 775, 838, 894, 895, 994, 1047, 1048, 1096, 1142, 1143, 1164, 1198, 1245, 1256, 1274, 1289, 1294, 1309, 1540
Haderer, Andy 690
Hadi, Kwame 1358, 1359
Hadi, Shafi 1000, 1001, 1002
Hadley, Michael 999
Hadlock, Richard 1308
Hadnott, Billy 595, 758, 760, 803, 880, 1089, 1445
Hadrick, Joe 757
Hafer, Dick 84, 156, 236, 601, 622, 626, 693, 1003, 1004, 1103, 1165
Haffner, Wolfgang 330, 627, 851, 1407
Hafid, Moulay Ali 79
Hafiz, Nasir 985
Hagan, Harry 450

Hagans, Tim 107, 131, 176, 302, 477, 585, 626, 800, 806, 819, 825, 870, 910, 926, 966, 1019, 1087, 1268, 1306, 1325, 1432
Hagart, Bob 1327
Hagemann, Henry 49
Hagen, Billy 'Fats' 207
Hagen, Earle 396, 504
Hagen, Gerard 626
Hagen, John 626, 996, 1127
Hagen, Ray 1056
Haggart, Bob 43, 48, 157, 297, 301, 336, 431, 474, 489, 490, 504, 575, 579, 601, 614, 626, 680, 715, 734, 741, 780, 872, 1093, 1118, 1162, 1252, 1281, 1284, 1327, 1334, 1350, 1354, 1443, 1500, 1531, 1537
Haggerty, Danny 1422
Hagmann, René 757, 1080
Hagood, Kenny 340, 553, 754, 1020
Hahn, Harold 388
Hahn, Jerry 203, 204, 646
Haid, Bill 1081
Haidalgo, Giovanni 1424
Haider, Joe 627
Haig, Al 64, 66, 239, 337, 340, 413, 543, 544, 552, 595, 596, 627, 668, 1052, 1069, 1117, 1118, 1120, 1443, 1477, 1527
Haig-Joyce, William 653
Haimila, Heiki 1432
Haines, Fran 763
Haislip, Jim 377
Häkä 1448
Hakim, Farouk Adbul 1535
Hakim, Omar 351, 510, 914, 961, 1274, 1475
Hakim, Sadik 337, 571, 628, 1030, 1115
Hakoköngäs, Jukka 1432
Halberstadt, Randy 259
Halburian, Armen 1285
Halcox, Pat 77, 78, 711, 1043
Hale, Edward 736, 1516
Hale, Eileen 136
Hale, Ziggy 933
Halferty, Tommy 302
Halfway House Orchestra, The 628
Haliffi, Roberto 1034
Hall, Adelaide 428, 429, 999, 1376, 1457
Hall, Al 43, 63, 125, 184, 209, 254, 257, 298, 435, 529, 552, 570, 628, 789, 826, 1110, 1120, 1176, 1348, 1365, 1379, 1445, 1477, 1483, 1510, 1521, 1535
Hall, Arthur 1433
Hall, Barry Lee 439
Hall, Ben 83
Hall, Bobbye Porter 600
Hall, Candy 1457
Hall, Carl 1511
Hall, Clarence 238
Hall, Dana 176, 573, 1335, 1399
Hall, Darryl 293, 478, 539, 603, 1057, 1418
Hall, Dexter 614
Hall, Ed 257, 298
Hall, Edmond 24, 43, 44, 62, 102, 155, 196, 238, 297, 298, 355, 372, 477, 504, 628, 638, 667, 668, 714, 724, 725, 1078, 1112, 1353, 1376, 1510, 1521
Hall, Herb 504, 1100
Hall, Howard 42, 236
Hall, James 1225
Hall, Jennifer 85
Hall, Jim 12, 173, 235, 241, 275, 368, 369, 384, 456, 457, 470, 491, 545, 546, 557, 558, 629, 632, 662, 665, 797, 836, 851, 886, 943, 982, 1031, 1054, 1056, 1105, 1159, 1234, 1287, 1307, 1346, 1479, 1512
Hall, Jimmy 278
Hall, Joe 62, 886
Hall, Kenny 537
Hall, Larry 397
Hall, Mike 532
Hall, Minor Ram 43, 464, 1104
Hall, Ornington 155
Hall, Rene 671
Hall, Roy 514
Hall, Scott 1507
Hall, Skip 1483
Hall, Stuart 95, 333, 466
Hall, Tom 810
Hall, Tubby 41, 42, 180, 1086
Hall, Wilbur 105, 106, 864
Hall, Willie 1047
Halladay, Marvin 1313
Hallaran, Pat 721, 845
Hallberg, Bengt 27, 46, 49, 180, 386, 387, 544, 545, 616, 631, 797, 846, 1149, 1250, 1512
Halldén, Jerker 21
Halle, Gunnar 35, 392
Halle, Morten 71
Halley, Rich 631
Halliburton, John 301, 816
Halliday, Lin 588, 631, 880, 1136
Halliwell, George 631
Hall Moran, Alicia 1036
Hallonsten, Tomas 465
Hal Mooney Orchestra 1444, 1467
Halopoff, Gary 247, 850
Halperin, Jimmy 632, 954
Halsey, Jeff 313, 845, 1339
Halten, Torg 423, 847, 848, 1092
Halter, Tom 422, 423
Haltli, Frode 1279
Halton, Jon 480
Halvorsen, Kathy 775
Halvorson, Mary 165, 166, 210
Ham, Larry 143, 415, 561, 963, 1225
Hamady, Jennifer 505
Hamann, Vic 691, 692, 764
Hambrick, Joe 765
Hambro, Lenny 207, 632, 849, 1095
Hameen, Jesse 971
Hamel, Hersh 1142
Hameline, Teddy 65
Hamer, Ian 125, 362, 549, 632, 674, 1414, 1494
Hamer, Stu 652
Hamid, Abdul 638
Hamill, Andy 1416
Hamilton, Anthony 649
Hamilton, Bob 632, 853
Hamilton, Charlie 884
Hamilton, Chico 278, 469, 525, 588, 595, 632, 716, 736, 760, 886, 1052, 1053, 1375, 1498, 1535
Hamilton, Dick 85, 236, 247
Hamilton, Jack 42
Hamilton, Jeff 85, 184, 185, 259, 363, 537, 550, 635, 656, 755, 796, 814, 843, 844, 854, 1195, 1287, 1409
Hamilton, Jimmy 43, 184, 196, 253, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 490, 492, 562, 634, 669, 699, 705, 706, 712, 713, 714, 736, 774, 1056, 1160, 1348, 1397, 1521
Hamilton, Joel 85, 109, 537, 566, 720, 1452
Hamilton, John 'Bugs' 424, 1457, 1458
Hamilton, Milton 1262
Hamilton, Ralph 789
Hamilton, Rhonda 760
Hamilton, Ross 1410
Hamilton, Scott 157, 196, 212, 578, 634, 656, 781, 879, 963, 968, 974, 1090, 1162, 1308
Hamilton, Steve 81, 825, 920, 1317, 1318, 1410
Hamm, Jerry 487
Hammack, Bobby 1082
Hammann, Joyce 168, 1067, 1256, 1321
Hammar, Karin 49
Hammer, Al 1327
Hammer, Jan 3, 264, 922
Hammer, Karin 1348
Hammer, Tardo 329, 426, 561, 636, 955, 1343
Hammerschmid, Hans 587
Hammes, Ernie 483
Hammett-Vaughan, Kate 885, 1075
Hammond, Benjamin 1109
Hammond, Don 369, 395
Hammond, Gary 1416
Hammond, John F. 1077
Hamner, Curley 638
Hampel, Gunter 183, 636, 1381, 1382
Hamperian, Ralph 208
Hampton, Lionel 41, 42, 43, 249, 297, 424, 552, 574, 575, 578, 637, 708, 711, 758, 1005, 1029, 1054, 1378, 1467, 1520
Hampton, Riley 31
Hampton, Slide 12, 18, 454, 482, 630, 640, 650, 653, 677, 679, 899, 1002, 1269
Hamptonians, The 638
Hana, Anders 1084
Hanchrow, Joe 551, 748
Hancock, Herbie 12, 113, 135, 168, 173, 213, 226, 234, 305, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 384, 393, 546, 584, 599, 605, 640, 678, 679, 684, 732, 740, 866, 942, 947, 949, 963, 965, 979, 980, 1013, 1018, 1019, 1027, 1028, 1039, 1040, 1133, 1165, 1217, 1234, 1295, 1296, 1424, 1451, 1512, 1539, 1541
Hancock, Larry 1301
Handa, Junko 842
Handy, Captain John 269, 645, 998, 1315, 1437
Handy, Craig 38, 107, 138, 407, 468, 645, 676, 689, 733, 1005, 1006, 1073, 1406, 1461, 1481
Handy, George 552, 645, 1115, 1188, 1302
Handy, John 646, 729, 1002, 1005, 1224, 1314
Handy, Sylvester 645, 998, 1438
Haney, David 646
Hängsel, Björn 1087, 1407
Hanley, Wells 1098
Hanlon, Allan 424, 1327, 1537
Hanlon, Allen 63, 780, 1089, 1334
Hanlon, Bob 637, 1250, 1351
Hann, Jason 1242
Hanna, Jake 16, 85, 94, 156, 158, 230, 442, 520, 626, 634, 635, 647, 693, 765, 872, 954, 961, 962, 974, 981, 1002, 1084, 1154, 1162, 1205, 1389, 1434
Hanna, Jane 1490
Hanna, Ken 271, 815
Hanna, Sir Roland 201, 235, 263, 329, 353, 414, 578, 592, 647, 679, 727, 799, 831, 1002, 1066, 1180, 1396, 1444, 1445, 1449
Hannah, Paul 216
Hanning, Chris 892
Hannisdal, Henrik 1279
Hannisdal, Morten 1279
Hannisdal, Odd 1279

Hannon, Biff 483
Hanscombe, Les 296
Hansen, Bjarne 921
Hansen, Bjørn Otto 647
Hansen, Erik 'Skippy' 668, 1438
Hansen, Finn Otto 628, 647, 1112, 1113
Hansen, Gunnar 962
Hansen, Helmuth 818
Hansen, Jack 84, 398, 1017, 1081
Hansen, John 115
Hansen, Mads 647
Hansen, Nicolai Munch 1431
Hansen, Niels Richard 1438
Hansen, Ole Jacob 115, 319, 327, 781, 1191
Hansen, Ole Kock 605, 799, 954, 1101, 1396, 1479
Hansen, Rudolf 1538
Hansen, Steen 95, 495, 996
Hansen, Thirsty Dave 1442
Hansom, Joan 862
Hanson, Jack 1081
Hanson, James 1093
Hanson, Mick 680, 868
Hanson, Paul 1544
Hansson, Kjell 781
Happy Apple 648
Haque, Fareed 406, 444, 1150, 1256
Har, Billy 878
Harada, Masashi 565, 648
Harari, Daniel 663
Hardaway, Bob 496, 693
Hardaway, John 1540
Hardee, John 609, 648, 736, 853
Harden, Wilbur 284, 285, 867
Hardie, Cliff 549
Harding, Al 814
Harding, Alex 2, 3, 73, 146, 649
Harding, Buster 424, 796
Harding, Stanley 502
Hardison, LeRoy 705
Hardman, Bill 57, 133, 389, 649, 777, 978, 1454
Hardwick, Otto 428, 430, 431, 432, 711
Hardy, Earl 488, 667, 912, 913
Hardy, Hagood 933
Hardy, Jon 1355, 1356
Hare, John 380
Harewood, Al 15, 33, 127, 231, 389, 449, 568, 580, 598, 599, 739, 786, 837, 1130, 1186, 1424, 1511, 1523
Hargreaves, Brad 751
Hargrove, Roy 185, 192, 263, 354, 468, 640, 644, 649, 726, 727, 895, 915, 965, 982, 993, 1019, 1136, 1157, 1235, 1257, 1340, 1463, 1512
Haritounian, Varty 239
Harland, Eric 135, 443, 530, 603, 619, 657, 902, 1035, 1106, 1140, 1199, 1208, 1301, 1371, 1428, 1480
Harlem Art Ensemble 650
Harley, Clyde 1284
Harley, Rufus 1234
Harmon, Bob 440, 441
Harmon, Zach 136
Harnell, Jason 483
Harner, John 819
Harper, Arthur 1027, 1173, 1277
Harper, Billy 462, 500, 650, 1019, 1040, 1041, 1220, 1399, 1406, 1512
Harper, Buddy 552, 1516
Harper, Geoff 89, 1184
Harper, George 247
Harper, Herbie 84, 496, 571, 579, 816, 1111
Harper, Lee 38
Harper, Michael 757
Harper, Philip 240, 1006, 1463
Harper, Red 1520, 1521
Harper, Richard 974
Harper, Scott 651
Harper, Winard 651, 713, 915, 934, 1057, 1074, 1269, 1424, 1486
Harpster, Ken 1388
Harrell, Elmer 1311
Harrell, Tom 122, 153, 237, 265, 458, 565, 608, 611, 629, 630, 651, 694, 709, 804, 837, 861, 924, 993, 1067, 1091, 1250, 1264, 1292, 1362, 1369, 1370, 1527
Harrell, Ziggy 693
Harries, Tim 332, 466, 1490
Harrington, Bob 247
Harrington, David 1543
Harrington, Frank 1388
Harrington, Guy 1406
Harrington, John 826, 999
Harrington, Terry 236
Harriott, Joe 77, 125, 531, 652
Harris, Ace 670, 671, 1109
Harris, Albert 228, 667, 1275
Harris, Alfoncy 1506
Harris, Arville 218, 1044, 1098, 1456, 1457, 1504
Harris, Barry 10, 110, 212, 320, 375, 394, 469, 474, 581, 582, 583, 607, 611, 653, 670, 759, 777, 792, 799, 837, 861, 862, 867, 954, 963, 971, 985, 1013, 1026, 1031, 1038, 1039, 1040, 1085, 1120, 1165, 1195, 1288, 1346, 1501
Harris, Beaver 53, 66, 79, 183, 775, 846, 856, 974, 1289, 1290, 1433
Harris, Bennie 705
Harris, Benny 209, 552, 705, 1117, 1188
Harris, Bert 862
Harris, Bethenea 1506
Harris, Bill 199, 205, 229, 239, 271, 297, 413, 576, 578, 639, 654, 692, 693, 752, 774, 815, 1093, 1095, 1117, 1151, 1162, 1445
Harris, Bixie 228
Harris, Charles 251, 262, 638, 736
Harris, Charlie 272
Harris, Chiz 1540
Harris, Chuck 1052
Harris, Craig 7, 654, 743, 1059, 1060, 1061, 1359, 1531
Harris, David 715, 775
Harris, Dickie 783, 793
Harris, Dicky 262
Harris, Doug 501, 1262, 1427
Harris, Eddie 655, 1130, 1274, 1313
Harris, Edward 541
Harris, Fred 874
Harris, Gary 1450
Harris, Gene 12, 36, 184, 257, 656, 755, 982, 1209, 1402, 1424
Harris, Herb 586
Harris, Herschel 499
Harris, Hilda 1468
Harris, James 43, 670, 671
Harris, James , 671
Harris, Jamie 1473
Harris, Jerome 214, 365, 371, 512, 657, 1049, 1076, 1235, 1240, 1250, 1343
Harris, Jerry 860, 1234
Harris, Jody 1542
Harris, Joe 243, 259, 272, 447, 455, 490, 545, 574, 797, 847, 970, 1030, 1118, 1170, 1176, 1249, 1299, 1334
Harris, John 1344
Harris, Kevin Bruce 277, 1515
Harris, Lafayette 36
Harris, Larry 939
Harris, Leroy 155, 687, 705, 1098, 1443, 1504
Harris, Little Benny 783
Harris, Loston 657
Harris, Marc 969
Harris, Mark 697
Harris, Matt 939
Harris, Max 652
Harris, Milt 917
Harris, Nikki 656
Harris, Peter 949
Harris, Ratzo 322
Harris, Raymond 530
Harris, Richard 670, 998
Harris, Richard Leigh 663
Harris, Slide 356, 981
Harris, Stefon 87, 246, 256, 405, 427, 657, 689, 738, 1035, 1105, 1106, 1199, 1335, 1390, 1424, 1466, 1495, 1503, 1515
Harris, Steve 663
Harris, Steve & Zaum 658
Harris, Tasso 388, 848
Harris, Tom 39
Harris, Tris 334
Harris, Walter 705
Harris, Wayne 1357, 1358
Harris, William Jr 108
Harris, Wynonie 999
Harrison, Bob 773
Harrison, Donald 36, 134, 135, 153, 265, 591, 659, 676, 916, 949, 1185, 1422
Harrison, Donald Sr 659
Harrison, Eddie 362
Harrison, Frank 50, 660
Harrison, Jackson 660
Harrison, Janice 226
Harrison, Jimmy 228, 428, 686, 1319, 1343, 1475, 1504
Harrison, Joel 660
Harrison, Len 228, 477, 667, 1457
Harrison, Malcolm 605
Harrison, Matthew 480
Harrison, Paul 660, 961, 1410
Harrison, Stan 1256
Harrison, Wendell 107
Harrit, Niels 300, 1338
Harrod, Ben 1095
Harrold, Keyon 1349, 1406
Hart, Antonio 13, 170, 185, 246, 270, 454, 463, 555, 640, 651, 660, 718, 956, 1335, 1427, 1518
Hart, Billy 1, 28, 46, 56, 88, 89, 106, 122, 123, 140, 153, 171, 186, 197, 215, 263, 278, 282, 302, 326, 363, 388, 391, 399, 407, 412, 471, 493, 500, 520, 546, 568, 579, 583, 642, 651, 654, 655, 661, 684, 685, 726, 751, 765, 802, 831, 837, 838, 874, 875, 878, 891, 901, 915, 942, 958, 959, 963, 966, 967, 1035, 1038, 1050, 1086, 1096, 1102, 1147, 1172, 1187, 1191, 1206, 1225, 1258, 1259, 1269, 1270, 1308, 1313, 1314, 1316, 1352, 1374, 1396, 1406, 1441, 1447, 1469, 1539
Hart, Clyde 24, 122, 150, 209, 270, 329, 416, 423, 552, 609, 638, 667, 668, 714, 783, 796, 825, 999, 1109, 1115, 1120, 1316, 1477, 1535
Hart, Dick 39, 549, 749, 905, 1253
Hart, Jim 405, 1223
Hart, John 115, 143, 302, 608, 661, 945, 1137
Hart, Lorca 1165

Hart, Owen Jr 1035
Hart, Roslyn 395
Hart, William 1258
Hart, William W. 350
Harte, Roy 542, 571, 579, 1280
Harth, Alfred 1534
Hartigan, Royal 709
Hartley, Dave 269, 1412
Hartley, Pat 1412
Hartley, Roy 1476
Hartman, Bill 819
Hartman, Johnny 289, 528, 552, 661, 705
Hartman, Lennie 716
Hartman, Peter 551
Hartog, Jim 914, 1441, 1470
Hartounian, Varty 1171
Hartwell, Jimmy 105
Hartzfield, John 705, 1110
Harvey, Bruce 1084
Harvey, Dud 693, 1165
Harvey, Eddie 370, 475, 918, 1190, 1206, 1363, 1476, 1488
Harvey, Graham 814, 1067, 1180, 1482
Harvey, James 120
Harvey, Peter 39
Hary, Charles 1203
Hashim, Michael 539, 662
Hashimoto, Keiichi 775
Haskell, Andrew 1127
Haskins, Deane 1171
Haskins, Taylor 6, 1193
Haslam, George 117, 315, 663, 1455
Haslip, Jimmy 226, 1008
Hass, Steve 293
Hassan, Ali 1357, 1358, 1359
Hassan, Melvin 972
Hassay, Gary 249
Hasselberg, João 746
Hasselbring, Curtis 81, 224, 422, 516, 590, 1196, 1270
Hasselgård, Åke 'Stan' 562, 577, 664, 945
Hassinen, Mikko 1432
Hassler, Hans 1429
Hastings, Jimmy 333, 664, 919
Hastings, Lennie 24, 70, 355, 443, 467, 734, 1190, 1252, 1362, 1484
Hat 665
Hatfield, Brad 549, 1250
Hatfield, Ernie 489
Hathaway, Lalah 1256
Hathaway, Martin 532, 1355
Hatori, Miho 1542
Hatt, Nelson 108, 694
Hatwich, Anton 1206, 1237
Hauberg, Svend 49
Hauch, Frank 601
Haug, Lars Andreas 1279
Hauge, Herman 1333
Haughton, Chauncey 99, 218, 228, 430, 431, 432, 488, 725, 1198
Haughton, James 470
Haughton, John 'Shorty' 125, 219, 228, 488, 671, 1457
Haukenheiser, Bill 1280
Hauschild, Thomas 1477
Hauser, Johnny 118
Hausser, Michel 591, 772, 1397, 1398
Hauta-Aho, Teppo 1, 1125, 1447
Havel, Christian 1461
Havel, Vojtech 664
Haven, Bob 236
Havens, Bob 556, 681, 708, 1315
Haverhoek, Henk 1025
Hawdon, Dickie 250, 672
Hawes, Hampton 318, 319, 320, 418, 470, 517, 580, 595, 665, 820, 821, 1002, 1082, 1141, 1142, 1146, 1230, 1233, 1247, 1248, 1280
Hawes, Pat 250, 295, 296, 316
Hawk, Marshall 207, 397, 601
Hawkes, Bill 1365
Hawkins, Annie 295, 515, 919, 1217
Hawkins, Coleman 23, 24, 43, 50, 63, 91, 156, 201, 228, 229, 270, 271, 338, 383, 413, 417, 423, 436, 477, 491, 544, 552, 574, 596, 609, 638, 666, 685, 686, 706, 716, 734, 774, 894, 975, 1021, 1022, 1117, 1220, 1234, 1252, 1343, 1400, 1478, 1504, 1509, 1510
Hawkins, Delores 848, 849
Hawkins, Derek 889
Hawkins, Erskine 670
Hawkins, Geoff 663, 1182
Hawkins, Jay 125
Hawkins, June 270
Hawkins, Leonard 416, 580, 698, 1176
Hawkins, Marshall 272
Hawkins, Michael 247
Hawkins, Ralph 50, 763, 764
Hawks, Colleen 1454
Hawksworth, Johnny 604, 1414
Hay, Emily 566
Hay, Jeff 864
Hayakawa, Takeharu 516
Hayasaka, Sachi 516
Hayase, Susan 765
Hayat, Guy 1179
Hayden, Marion 1229
Hayes, Al 32, 638
Hayes, Aleta 1129
Hayes, Alvis 228
Hayes, Bill 1268
Hayes, Buddy 814
Hayes, Clancy 784, 1472
Hayes, Clifford 377, 379
Hayes, Curtis 377, 379
Hayes, Edgar 24, 42, 196, 254, 671, 999
Hayes, Ernest 793
Hayes, Ernie 33, 633
Hayes, Gerald 672
Hayes, Harry 70, 248
Hayes, Jim 1203
Hayes, Johnny 443
Hayes, Kevin 966
Hayes, Louis 9, 10, 12, 33, 113, 200, 212, 240, 254, 257, 284, 285, 403, 516, 582, 583, 598, 599, 653, 672, 673, 677, 687, 688, 700, 732, 754, 774, 777, 798, 800, 862, 867, 872, 916, 917, 932, 978, 1026, 1027, 1037, 1039, 1072, 1153, 1156, 1186, 1298, 1299, 1351, 1380, 1427, 1451, 1527, 1539
Hayes, Marian 1399
Hayes, Mutt 1388
Hayes, Thamon 1047
Hayes, Tubby 321, 370, 479, 672, 776, 1199, 1414
Hayhurst, Oli 50, 389, 1190, 1497, 1514
Hayland, Hank 1089
Hayley, Dave 334
Haymer, Herbie 63, 118, 271, 395, 577, 691, 764, 1089, 1093, 1283
Haymes, Dick 576, 763, 764
Haynes, Akili Jamal Mshauri 1006
Haynes, Charles 923
Haynes, Cyril 125, 209, 628, 1264
Haynes, Frank 57, 1491, 1517
Haynes, Graham 216, 277, 654, 676, 895, 1051, 1515
Haynes, Jamal 1006
Haynes, Jeff 945, 1169, 1515, 1516
Haynes, Johnny 710
Haynes, Orville 937
Haynes, Phil 402, 451, 675, 1223, 1319, 1320, 1429, 1430
Haynes, Ray 1066
Haynes, Roland 936
Haynes, Ronald 853
Haynes, Roy 11, 16, 48, 79, 135, 181, 203, 205, 207, 287, 289, 292, 304, 305, 306, 307, 324, 338, 341, 365, 382, 470, 490, 495, 543, 544, 545, 546, 552, 570, 571, 593, 595, 596, 675, 701, 733, 786, 793, 802, 827, 829, 855, 899, 980, 994, 1014, 1021, 1022, 1069, 1070, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1143, 1159, 1176, 1177, 1226, 1228, 1232, 1233, 1258, 1277, 1290, 1443, 1445, 1486, 1501, 1522, 1535, 1536
Haynes, Stephen 378, 637, 1298
Haynes, Warren 1275
Hayrod, Larry 36
Hays, Kevin 131, 569, 585, 676, 684, 685, 942, 1136, 1175, 1198, 1423, 1484
Hayton, Lennie 1017, 1081, 1388, 1446
Hayton, Steve 28
Hayward, Alf 652
Hayward, Andre 640, 718, 896, 1424
Haywood, Cedric 758, 1104, 1517
Hazel, Boonie 416, 1443
Hazel, Marion 424, 758
Hazel, Monk 150, 556, 1328
Hazeltine, David 270, 353, 354, 376, 465, 536, 672, 677, 689, 916, 921, 1032, 1241, 1242, 1321, 1370, 1371, 1441
Hazelton, Ben 182, 832
Hazevoet, Kees 621
Hazilla, Jon 130, 678
Hazlett, Chester 105, 864, 1353, 1388
Hazlett, Mike 845
Healey, Derek 1489
Healy, John 280
Heap, Don 464
Heard, Eugene 'Fats' 529, 694
Heard, J. C. 32, 63, 70, 100, 102, 184, 209, 219, 228, 229, 243, 257, 262, 271, 338, 413, 424, 489, 504, 544, 552, 576, 605, 614, 667, 669, 699, 705, 712, 714, 716, 736, 758, 759, 774, 789, 793, 796, 859, 866, 970, 1089, 1151, 1162, 1184, 1186, 1275, 1316, 1344, 1353, 1400, 1443, 1478, 1521, 1536, 1537
Heard, John 85, 93, 94, 201, 215, 236, 339, 417, 761, 1016, 1143, 1155, 1259, 1304, 1451
Hearn, Geoff 658
Hearne, Jim 1388
Heath, Albert 'Tootie' 12, 160, 215, 284, 394, 404, 417, 469, 470, 471, 568, 570, 582, 596, 607, 641, 670, 678, 679, 755, 786, 800, 801, 943, 954, 962, 985, 1009, 1012, 1027, 1029, 1031, 1040, 1165, 1101, 1209, 1328, 1397, 1402, 1454, 1462, 1479
Heath, Don 446, 466
Heath, Helen 83
Heath, James Mtume 79, 89, 349, 350, 679, 1234, 1426
Heath, Jimmy 12, 180, 341, 392, 393, 414, 552, 587, 597, 640, 641, 661, 678, 679, 723, 732, 755, 786, 792, 798, 970, 1009, 1040, 1170, 1184, 1307, 1391, 1392, 1405, 1486, 1517
Heath, Liam 1318

Heath, Percy 10, 12, 138, 180, 254, 268, 274, 286, 299, 341, 342, 368, 369, 392, 394, 456, 469, 470, 543, 568, 578, 601, 629, 668, 678, 679, 723, 754, 755, 786, 799, 886, 970, 1014, 1020, 1021, 1027, 1117, 1170, 1176, 1232, 1233, 1298, 1467, 1501
Heath, Ray 764
Heath, Shelton 1203
Heath, Ted 228
Heath Brothers, The 679
Heathman, Mike 987
Heatley, Spike 226, 299, 680
Heberer, Thomas 119, 745, 1266, 1373
Hebert, John 50, 73, 224, 703, 727, 731, 877, 907, 1147, 1275, 1342, 1430
Hecht, Arno 1256
Heckstall-Smith, Dick 187, 466, 680
Hedberg, Olle 615
Hedberg, Sven 420
Hedén, Gösta 420
Hedenbratt, Sonya 386, 785
Hedges, Chuck 362, 476, 680, 1046, 1264
Hedges, Michael 957
Hedman, Norman 505
Hedrenius, Mats 'Dicken' 49, 1150
Heenan, Chris 420
Heert, John 877
Hefti, Neal 43, 50, 84, 228, 681, 692, 752, 764, 1353, 1443, 1445
Hegarty, Tim 1169
Heggarty, Danny 1190
Heginger, Agnes 1525
Heick, Aaron 240
Heid, George 1171
Heidepriem, Ewald 1501
Heidepriem, Thomas 841
Heikens, Tammo 943
Heikkinen, Esko 1432, 1433, 1448
Heimel, Coco 1457
Hein, Wes 62, 63, 1089
Heinilä, Kari 1432, 1448
Heinilä, Sonny 1433
Heitger, Duke 537, 551, 681, 747, 923, 1308, 1533
Heitlinger, Alex 746
Hekkema, Evert 68, 744
Hekman, Klaas 221
Helasvuo, Esa 1448
Helberg, Loren 461
Held, Julius 1028
Helias, Mark 37, 95, 160, 246, 318, 366, 391, 419, 420, 507, 572, 681, 682, 690, 909, 1034, 1065, 1197, 1254
Helje, Lars-Urban 1250
Hellawell, James 825
Helleny, Joe 1350
Helleny, Joel 336, 611, 681, 748
Heller, Ben 388, 443, 574, 575, 763, 764, 1334
Heller, Ingmar 174
Heller, Paul 174
Helm, Bob 401, 537, 682, 1058, 1326
Helsvuo, Esa 834
Helzer, Rick 151, 567
Hemingway, Gerry 37, 95, 161, 162, 318, 445, 498, 589, 594, 626, 682, 730, 870, 1034, 1145, 1240, 1529
Hemmeler, Marc 55, 591, 592
Hemmings, Will 570
Hemphill, Julius 512, 683, 775, 842, 860, 1529
Hemphill, Scad 431
Hemphill, Shelton 42, 196, 431, 432, 433, 671, 999, 1475
Hemwall, Danny 566
Hendelman, George 1188
Hendelman, Tamir 259, 521
Henders, Bob 427
Henderson, Bill 624, 625, 1299
Henderson, Carlos 1148, 1349
Henderson, David 275
Henderson, Earle 53
Henderson, Eddie 89, 414, 472, 499, 569, 579, 641, 642, 644, 650, 676, 684, 723, 874, 890, 966, 1325, 1469, 1517
Henderson, Edmonia 51, 1044
Henderson, Fletcher 249, 575, 685, 1343
Henderson, George 1436
Henderson, Horace 23, 24, 122, 228, 238, 423, 666, 686, 687, 715, 1066, 1197
Henderson, Jack 83, 84, 575
Henderson, James 525
Henderson, Joe 12, 201, 278, 283, 305, 393, 394, 414, 511, 599, 624, 641, 649, 687, 701, 702, 726, 732, 733, 739, 740, 836, 950, 1037, 1039, 1138, 1285, 1299, 1302, 1426, 1451, 1534, 1539
Henderson, Katherine 1504
Henderson, Leroy 128
Henderson, Luther 699, 783, 793, 1391
Henderson, Lyle 1282, 1283
Henderson, Mark 227
Henderson, Michael 347, 348, 349, 350
Henderson, Richmond 880
Henderson, Rick 433, 434, 1467
Henderson, Robert 561
Henderson, Rosa 685
Henderson, Russell 411, 1363
Henderson, Scott 305, 1540
Henderson, Skitch 1501
Henderson, Slim 913
Henderson, Wayne 322
Henderson, William 1259
Hendricks, Jon 92, 192, 427, 437, 689, 951, 1024, 1170, 1249
Hendricks, Michele 135
Hendricks, Ray 574
Hendrickson, Al 43, 525, 577, 820, 945, 1093, 1283
Hendrickson-Smith, Ian 689
Hendrix, Fred 1201
Hendrix, Michele 1067
Henke, Bob 790
Henke, Fred 611
Henley, John 1085, 1114
Henneman, Ig 55
Hennen, Mark 278, 722, 1298
Henocq, Benjamin 559
Henri, Tanya 126
Henriksen, Arve 34, 71, 72, 805, 1279
Henriquez, Carlos 563, 896, 952, 953, 1245
Henry, Ann 554
Henry, Connie 340, 341, 654
Henry, Eric 1316, 1319
Henry, Ernie 393, 540, 552, 553, 554, 690, 1021, 1069
Henry, Felix 655
Henry, Haywood 379, 655, 670, 671, 705, 716, 757, 1179
Henry, Mike 1080
Henry, Paul 481
Henry, Richard 95, 137, 680, 1355
Henry, Shifty 416
Henry, Sonny 455, 1511
Henry, Stephanie 566
Henry, Trey 198, 202, 247, 496, 850, 889, 955, 961, 1094, 1275, 1367, 1517
Henry, Vincent 1515
Henry Chaix Orchestra 230
Henryson, Svante 71
Hensel, Wes 525, 1188
Henze, Andreas 1461
Henze, Sheryl 1256
Heoffeld, Noah 1544
Hepburn, Michael 871
Hepner, Darcy 1266
Hequibal, Riza 1185
Héral, Patrice 34, 326, 391, 1449
Herbert, Arthur 100, 101, 667, 1275
Herbert, Elisha 798
Herbert, Greg 67, 694
Herbert, John 932, 1193
Herbert, Monk 298
Herbert, Mort 44, 45
Herbert, Peter 445, 690, 833, 834, 1083, 1430, 1466, 1472
Herbert, Tom 8, 865, 1171, 1211
Herbig, Gary 914
Herborn, Peter 690
Herbst, Michael 488
Heremann, Ray 720
Herfurt, Skeets 42, 396, 397, 1283, 1284
Herget, Raoul 833
Heri, Amit 944
Herington, Jon 114, 152, 240, 460, 1340
Herman, Benjamin 691
Herman, Max 1334
Herman, Mookie 294
Herman, Ron 1332
Herman, Sam 156, 397, 797, 1189, 1445
Herman, Woody 156, 239, 432, 691, 752, 945
Herman McCoy Choir 437
Hermann, Ray 720
Hermansson, Mats 1347
Hermason, Jeff 1169
Hernandez, Horacio 'El Negro' 153, 219, 361, 955, 991, 1094, 1095, 1424
Hernandes, Jorge Reyes 1261
Hernandez, Alejandro 553
Hernandez, Frank 1262
Hernandez, Humberto Nengue 1263
Hernandez, Kyle 1237
Hernandez, Orlando 1261
Hernandez, Oscar 80, 1262
Hernandez, Rene 1095
Herndon, Jim 1355
Herndon, John 60
Herold, Diana 709, 775
Heron, Pete 1512
Herr, Michael 237
Herrera, Juancho 6
Herrera, Nathan 567
Herriford, Leon 41
Herring, Phil 818
Herring, Vincent 13, 440, 536, 672, 676, 694, 966, 1006, 1424, 1463, 1484
Hersch, Fred 117, 144, 183, 205, 258, 471, 485, 650, 695, 866, 1034, 1147, 1395
Hershman, Jim 259
Herth, Milt 853, 1319
Herting, Mike 944
Hertlein, Rosi 984, 1145
Hervey, Clay 849
Herwig, Conrad 352, 406, 460, 557, 629, 630, 689, 696, 916, 966, 967, 969, 1006, 1226, 1351, 1480
Herz, Lupa 224
Herzer, Glenn 764
Hess, Andrea 1412
Hess, Fred 697
Hess, Mikkel 1431, 1432
Hesse, Ralf 174
Hession, Patrick 483
Hession, Paul 117, 315, 480, 560, 663, 664, 698, 984
Hetherington, Brian 295
Hetherington, Ryan 884
Heutchel, Jean 1203
Heute, Rainer 627
Hevia, Fabian 266

Heward, John 412, 858, 1329
Hewins, Mark 359
Hewitt, Kent 1063
Hewitt, Lonnie 1094, 1404, 1405
Hey, Henry 357, 660, 1305, 1472
Heyner, Matthew 1372, 1393
Heywood, Eddie 238, 489, 628, 667, 698, 714, 715, 1066, 1343, 1344
Heywood Jr, Eddie 228
Hibbler, Al 431, 432, 433, 699, 712, 829, 987
Hickman, Sylvester 32
Hicks, Billy 42, 628, 853
Hicks, Henry 999
Hicks, John 48, 75, 86, 89, 110, 119, 134, 145, 147, 171, 175, 183, 231, 309, 353, 450, 500, 505, 568, 649, 699, 822, 878, 910, 915, 988, 1006, 1040, 1059, 1061, 1074, 1171, 1259, 1300, 1328, 1406, 1470
Hicks, Marva 226
Hicks, Olympia 699
Hicks, Otis 913, 1406
Hidalgo, Giovanni 916, 1247, 1427
Hiekkala, Jarmo 664
Higginbotham, J. C. 23, 24, 31, 40, 41, 42, 56, 100, 101, 102, 196, 228, 609, 666, 667, 669, 686, 784, 788, 789, 887, 999, 1044, 1098, 1251, 1283, 1456, 1457
Higginbottom, Chris 700
Higgins, Billy 33, 35, 88, 138, 150, 208, 213, 246, 254, 257, 272, 273, 274, 275, 285, 313, 414, 418, 419, 450, 581, 582, 583, 584, 599, 611, 623, 624, 640, 641, 655, 688, 702, 720, 723, 740, 755, 801, 855, 894, 901, 902, 940, 971, 979, 980, 985, 994, 1010, 1013, 1022, 1037, 1039, 1040, 1059, 1101, 1143, 1165, 1198, 1234, 1239, 1242, 1247, 1269, 1275, 1380, 1462, 1463, 1491, 1501, 1502
Higgins, Chris 40, 244, 972, 1171, 1207, 1343, 1447
Higgins, Dan 850
Higgins, Eddie 327, 680, 701, 961, 1039, 1295, 1434, 1435
Higgins, Frank 549, 818
Higgins, Malcolm 992
Higgins, Patience 7, 146, 1218
Higgins, Sean 651
Higginson, Fred 710
Higgs, Pat 362
Hightower, Willie 798
Hilaire, Andrew 1044, 1103
Hildinger, Dave 1446
Hilgenberg, Matt 1095
Hill, Alex 263, 297, 1085, 1311
Hill, Andrew 372, 687, 701, 739, 827, 1013, 1105, 1526, 1529
Hill, Benny 42
Hill, Bertha 'Chippie' 223
Hill, Buck 211, 726
Hill, Calvin 236, 266, 837, 872, 1221, 1426
Hill, Cliff 576
Hill, Don 43, 155
Hill, Donald 43
Hill, Elton 424, 1056
Hill, Ernest 'Bass' 23, 228, 329, 734, 1109, 1184, 1319, 1326
Hill, Freddie 128, 555, 662, 1450, 1517
Hill, Frederick 1024
Hill, Howard 1044
Hill, Joe 213
Hill, Leroy Elton 999
Hill, Nicky 181, 1352
Hill, Phil 595
Hill, Ray 1184
Hill, Rod 351
Hill, Teddy 23, 423, 552, 704, 1251
Hill, Tim 663
Hill, Tyrone 704, 1033, 1360, 1361
Hill, Walter 263
Hillery, Art 339, 417, 755, 971, 1451
Hilliard, John 1405
Hilliard, Terry 1405
Hillman, Roc 395
Hillman, Roscoe 42
Hillpot, Billy 1446
Hills, Chris 942
Hillyer, Lonnie 383, 867, 985, 1003, 1004
Hilton, Don 1377
Hilton, Roy 260
Hinant, Peppy 917
Hine, Jack 1113
Hines, Babe 1406
Hines, Earl 41, 43, 44, 63, 100, 102, 229, 258, 270, 380, 417, 704, 783, 848, 1066, 1085
Hines, Frankie 780
Hines, George 973
Hines, Roger 845
Hing, Kenny 93, 94, 492, 755
Hinnant, William Peppy 917, 1402
Hino, Motohiko 647, 662, 688
Hino, Terumasa 662, 798, 974, 1250
Hinrichs, Henk 667
Hinshaw, Bill 346, 681, 818
Hintersteininger, Michael 833
Hinton, Larry 1406, 1457
Hinton, Milt 15, 76, 77, 83, 123, 148, 155, 156, 173, 181, 184, 196, 201, 206, 207, 209, 218, 219, 222, 230, 231, 257, 258, 259, 268, 270, 299, 327, 334, 336, 338, 364, 368, 417, 462, 499, 529, 550, 552, 562, 571, 595, 601, 626, 638, 639, 661, 662, 668, 693, 701, 707, 714, 716, 726, 727, 757, 772, 783, 786, 789, 794, 796, 797, 877, 917, 965, 976, 987, 988, 993, 1003, 1025, 1026, 1074, 1090, 1114, 1162, 1168, 1186, 1219, 1248, 1249, 1252, 1278, 1303, 1313, 1326, 1342, 1354, 1365, 1366, 1375, 1447, 1467, 1478, 1483, 1499, 1501, 1509, 1521
Hioki, Robie 566
Hipp, Eric 507
Hipp, Jutta 616, 708
Hird, Karl 790
Hird, Katy 480
Hiroaki, Mizutani 1533, 1534
Hiromi, Ohta 1543
Hirsch, Shelley 371, 1542
Hirschi, Philip 923
Hirsh, Meyer 1210
Hirshfield, Jeff 4, 67, 98, 107, 115, 117, 126, 143, 176, 187, 266, 327, 330, 331, 499, 695, 806, 834, 866, 867, 944, 957, 966, 1147, 1193, 1269, 1306, 1345, 1351, 1518
Hirt, Al 708
Hirt, Erhard 1007
Hisashi, Sasaki 59
His Dixie Flyers 333
Hiseman, Jon 39, 879, 1214, 1386, 1397, 1487
Hitchcock, Jack 394, 1445
Hitchcock, John 933
Hitchcock, Ken 465
Hitchcock, Nigel 81, 405, 956, 1284, 1412, 1413, 1482
Hite, Les 41
Hittner, Frank 299, 693
Hitz, Bill 848, 1443
Hixon, John 341
Hixson, Richard 343, 345, 797, 886
Hjorth, Matthias 913
Hjukström, Casper 420
Hjulmand, Louis 1160
Ho, Fred 172, 683, 708
Hobbs, Christopher 29
Hobbs, Gary 819
Hobbs, Jim 709, 775, 1042
Hobbs, Steve 709
Hobgood, Laurence 427, 428
Hobson, Hank 591, 1190
Hobson, Homer 41
Hobson, Roy 1114
Hochberg, Eric 111, 237, 307, 427
Hochhalter, Paula 441
Hocker, David 1292
Hockett, Ron 414, 626
Hodeir, André 254, 710
Hodes, Art 100, 101, 102, 125, 336, 356, 501, 710, 937, 1079, 1113
Hodes, Bob 71
Hodge, Derrick 135, 270, 658, 998, 1335
Hodges, Billy 578
Hodges, Dean 864
Hodges, Johnny 43, 62, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 490, 492, 562, 570, 574, 638, 698, 699, 705, 706, 711, 714, 774, 788, 1044, 1066, 1334, 1348, 1391, 1478, 1520, 1521
Hodgkinson, Tim 741
Hodgkiss, Alan 591, 1203
Hodgson, Mark 1112
Hoellerhagen, Ernst 667
Hoenig, Ari 28, 149, 227, 239, 908, 1166, 1228, 1485
Hofbauer, Eric 485
Hoff, Brynjar 766, 767
Hoff, Devin 261, 564, 1544
Hoff, Karl Otto 1103
Hoffbauer, Manfred 1477
Hoffman, Amos 267, 713
Hoffman, Christopher 502
Hoffman, Daniel 1544
Hoffman, Frank 1539
Hoffman, Georg 226
Hoffman, Harry 398
Hoffman, Holly 151
Hoffman, Marjorie Wood 1188
Hofmann, Amos 267
Hofseth, Bendik 34
Hofsteter, Steve 817
Hofstetter, Beat 475, 1083
Hofstra, Dave 518, 790, 996, 1128, 1129, 1543
Hogan, Carl 490, 803
Hogan, G. T. 127, 1491
Hogan, Granville 723
Hogan, Ray 671, 725, 1184, 1458
Hogan, Wilbert G. T. 1186, 1491
Högberg, Bengt 46
Hogg, Derek 968
Hoggard, Jay 162, 210, 505, 713, 750, 860, 1479
Högman, John 1150
Hohansen, Egil 21
Hohman, Jack 1540
Hoist, Allan 1262
Hol, Roy 937
Holborough, Kevin 1292
Holbrooke, John 1489
Holcomb, Bill 1283
Holder, Frank 652
Holder, James Frank 765
Holder, Martin 1341
Holder, Trevor 751
Höldrich, Robert 165, 326
Holdsworth, Allan 225

Holdsworth, Dave 905, 1488
Holgersson, Jonas 172, 852, 1407
Holiday, Billie 43, 491, 573, 624, 711, 714, 1282, 1520, 1521
Holiday, Clarence 228, 329, 686, 1198
Holiday, Joe 717
Hölker, Stefan 1109
Holladay, Marv 693, 817
Holland, Charles 228, 686
Holland, Dave 7, 22, 106, 115, 135, 136, 139, 159, 160, 167, 171, 205, 216, 232, 253, 304, 346, 347, 348, 349, 454, 536, 610, 630, 643, 644, 688, 689, 717, 794, 831, 836, 901, 908, 909, 976, 994, 1019, 1159, 1175, 1332, 1336, 1363, 1396, 1417, 1494, 1515
Holland, Milt 247, 364, 1093, 1231
Holland, Peanuts 209, 562, 859, 1179, 1198
Holland, Ray 409
Holland, Roger 1506
Hollander, Rick 758
Hollenbeck, John 174, 256, 486, 696, 719, 1452
Hollenbeck, Paul 174
Holley, Clay 183
Holley, Major 22, 115, 187, 195, 201, 268, 336, 339, 417, 425, 436, 437, 647, 652, 670, 736, 755, 797, 827, 828, 829, 877, 974, 988, 1055, 1151, 1162, 1277, 1315, 1354, 1422, 1424, 1483, 1499, 1522
Holley, Scott 585
Holliday, Billie 423
Hollins, Everett 650
Hollis, Thomas 948
Holloman, Bill 568
Hollon, Kenneth 329, 714, 715, 803, 1078
Holloway, Red 32, 36, 112, 184, 195, 363, 656, 719, 928, 971, 987, 1213, 1392
Holloway, Tracy 1489
Holm, Eilif 602
Holm, Stig 420
Holman, Bill 84, 222, 466, 482, 491, 525, 549, 719, 808, 816, 1082, 1230, 1245, 1304
Holman, Cliff 357
Holman, Libby 1066
Holmes, Bobby 155, 788, 1098
Holmes, Carlton 128, 236, 474, 529
Holmes, Charlie 23, 24, 41, 42, 502, 999, 1251, 1456, 1505
Holmes, Richard 'Groove' 720, 757, 831, 1517
Holmes, Tim 1487
Holmlander, Per-Åke 179, 618, 620, 621, 900
Holmqvist, Olle 20, 46, 897
Holmqvist, Ronie 1354
Holmström, Gilbert 766
Holmström, Ulf 1407
Holober, Mike 115, 721, 1213
Holshouser, Will 663, 721
Holstein, Mike 542
Holt, Dave 532
Holt, Red 887, 1031
Holt, Scott 980
Holt, Scotty 730
Holton, Judith 1359
Holtz, Anders 49
Holub, Mark 875
Holy, Steve 316
Holzman, Adam 351, 923, 1159, 1236
Homburger, Maya 561
Home, Matt 814, 1211
Homefield, Roger 483
Homer, Sarah 95
Homi, Amanda 943
Honda, Yuka 777
Hones, Norris (Sirone) 730
Honeybourne, Jack 564
Honeydreamers, The 1445
Hong, Pauline 709
Honing, Yuri 721
Honore, Gideon 798, 1086
Honshuku, Hiro 775
Honsinger, Tristan 58, 116, 253, 296, 366, 722, 744, 745, 1035, 1127, 1266, 1373, 1381, 1382, 1383
Hood, Bill 64, 85, 184, 229, 681, 720, 736, 1111, 1230, 1231, 1304, 1408
Hood, Harold 570
Hooke, Max 754
Hooker, John Lee 948
Hooker, William 722
Hooks, Frank 93
Hooper, Stix 322, 323, 1517
Hooper, Tom 531
Hoover, Merrill 571
Hope, Bertha 723, 723, 911
Hope, Elmo 180, 312, 723, 862, 978, 1232
Hope, Stan 317, 724, 1149
Hopfner, Ray 691, 692
Hopkins, Chris 86, 724
Hopkins, Claude 504, 669, 724, 1375, 1504
Hopkins, Duncan 1329
Hopkins, Fred 2, 7, 13, 145, 152, 177, 325, 444, 654, 860, 941, 973, 1032, 1058, 1059, 1060, 1185, 1373, 1387, 1441
Hopkins, Greg 946
Hopkins, Linda 948
Hopkins, Sam 999
Hopkinson, George 250, 316, 918
Hopper, Hugh 137
Hopps, Jimmy 827, 828
Horan, Bill 817
Horenstein, Stephen 378
Horiuchi, Glenn 725, 959
Hörlén, Johan 5, 49, 725, 897, 997, 1347, 1348
Horler, Dave 267, 549, 570, 690, 1386, 1494
Horler, John 8, 22, 82, 267, 332, 531, 665, 680, 726, 824, 1140, 1509
Hormon, John 867
Horn, Alisa 964
Horn, Jim 642
Horn, Paul 184, 347, 1230, 1231, 1404
Horn, Shirley 241, 624, 726, 961, 1316, 1392
Horne, Ashley 860
Horne, Della 642
Horne, Ellis 784
Horne, Lena 84, 99, 416, 1283
Horne, Lindsey 7
Horner, Bob 207
Horner, Lindsey 419, 478, 690, 990, 1034, 1222, 1442
Horner, Tim 25, 252, 542, 585, 661, 807, 903, 969, 1057, 1067, 1268, 1352
Horner, William 913
Horns, Heavy 1180
Hornsby, Bruce 460
Horowitz, David 462
Horsley, Gus 155, 788, 1319
Horst, Kenny 924, 1352
Horsthuis, Maurice 744, 1373
Horton, Bob 1176
Horton, Brian 651
Horton, Danny 418
Horton, Pug 727, 1499, 1500
Horton, Robert 671, 1475, 1505
Horton, Ron 25, 26, 81, 129, 144, 542, 703, 721, 727, 790, 1490
Horton, Yogi 1468
Horvarth, Lou 764
Horvath, Dick 50
Horvath, Jimmy 691, 692
Horvitz, Bill 421, 1542
Horvitz, Wayne 420, 513, 728, 1182, 1542, 1543, 1544
Horwath, Bill 546
Hoskin, Niall 1415
Hoskins, James F. 31
Hoskins, Jimmy 31, 63, 789
Hostetter, Joe 83, 236
Hotta, Laurent 1500
Hotz, Gregor 728, 1043
Houghton, Chauncey 1476
Houghton, Steve 73, 496, 733, 778, 939, 1163
Houle, François 366, 590, 728, 874
Houlgate, Dick 525
Houlind, Søren 1112, 1113, 1217
Houmark, Karsten 729
House, Art 50, 1443
House, Danny 1094
House, William 1255
Houston, Cissy 828
Houston, Clint 9, 89, 145, 546, 672, 1031, 1285, 1406
Houston, Dolly 693
Houston, John 32, 863, 1345
Houston, Tate 12, 416, 482, 755, 798, 867, 1031, 1400
Houtkamp, Luc 515
Hove, Michael 22, 95, 800, 996, 1324
Hovensjø, Sveinung 1487
Hovey, Bob 1223
Hovman, Klaus 964
Howard, Avery 'Kid' 729, 882, 883, 884
Howard, Bert 889, 918
Howard, Camille 736
Howard, Charlie 100
Howard, Darnell 40, 148, 263, 386, 464, 704, 705, 798, 1044, 1097, 1103, 1104, 1114, 1201, 1251, 1315, 1322, 1328, 1533
Howard, Earl 730
Howard, Ed 88, 114, 132, 149, 282, 303, 676, 684, 685, 727, 801, 822, 903, 904, 1335, 1352, 1479, 1520
Howard, Erica 1469
Howard, Frank 525
Howard, Fred 1311
Howard, Gene 814, 815
Howard, Joe 1283
Howard, Lee 913
Howard, Noah 473, 730, 1531
Howard, Norman 53, 731
Howard, Owen 731
Howard, Phil 358
Howard, Richie 104
Howard, Sylvia 324
Howard, Thomas 1137
Howard, Tom 1162
Howe, Jack 626
Howe, Phil 1058
Howell, Bert 1456
Howell, Bob 1172
Howell, Earlene 671
Howell, John 84, 693, 752, 815, 816, 1165, 1230, 1404
Howell, Michael 555
Howell, William A. 46
Howes, Christian 753, 1106
Howles, Dominic 608, 1211
Hoyer, Jeff 278
Hoyle, Art 606, 1355, 1400
Hoyle, Arthur 111, 1107 Hrvatin, Andrej 1254
Hubbard, Dave 414
Hubbard, Freddie 94, 134, 175, 215, 240, 274, 285, 287, 291, 382, 385, 389, 403, 414, 456, 472, 517, 555, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 615, 640, 641,

642, 643, 678, 679, 689, 702, 731, 739, 740, 797, 962, 979, 1013, 1026, 1070, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1217, 1220, 1234, 1242, 1295, 1296, 1427
Hubbard, Nathan 151
Hubbard, Tom 270
Hubble, Ed 70, 207, 336, 1058
Hubert, Roger 1203
Hübner, Ralf 1476, 1477
Hubweber, Paul 910
Huck, Daniel 907
Huckins, Greg 850
Hucko, Peanuts 43, 45, 156, 270, 297, 298, 299, 397, 417, 489, 504, 622, 734, 779, 1203, 1210, 1315, 1327, 1388, 1531
Hudgins, Jeff 775
Hudgins, Jimmy 207
Hudgins, Reggie 1359
Hudson, Bob 1512
Hudson, George 1355, 1356
Hudson, Lee 143, 561, 1225
Hudson, Rob 719
Huebner, Gregor 106
Huergo, Fernando 6, 991, 995
Huerta, Robert 1516
Huffaker, Peter 104
Huffine, Charles 83
Huffsteter, Steve 85, 108, 202, 251, 496, 498, 817, 839, 889
Hug, Armand 150, 1114, 1328
Hug, Charlotte 357, 1082
Hugart, Jim 85
Huggins, Frank 550, 817
Hughart, Jim 250, 251, 492, 514, 954, 1077, 1131
Hughes, Bill 92, 93, 94, 492, 755, 1278
Hughes, Buddy 848, 849
Hughes, Dana 108
Hughes, Dick 869
Hughes, Ernie 937
Hughes, George 250, 555, 785, 1444
Hughes, Graham 104
Hughes, Jeff 1113
Hughes, Luther 656
Hughes, Ronnie 1488
Hughes, Spike 734
Hughes, Vince 848, 1092
Huisman, Arend 8
Huke, Jörg 326, 1059, 1266, 1382
Hull, Arthur 494
Hull, Gene 775
Hull, Harry 155, 410, 788, 1319
Hull, Henry 1290
Hullin, Bernard 1204
Hultcrantz, Torbjörn 52, 485, 545, 583, 781, 1178, 1237, 1459
Hultén, Pelle 115, 449, 1498, 1499
Hultman, Annika 1433
Humair, Daniel 103, 117, 381, 470, 472, 519, 548, 591, 611, 734, 772, 836, 850, 1179, 1324, 1527, 1541
Humble, Derek 255, 370, 479
Hume, Carolyn 735
Humes, Helen 90, 91, 209, 736, 763
Hummel, Fritz 236
Humphrey, Bobbi 1041
Humphrey, Earl 1438
Humphrey, Paul 655, 656, 719, 785, 854, 987, 1313, 1499
Humphrey, Percy 455, 737, 1337
Humphrey, Roger Lee 757
Humphrey, Willie 76, 737, 737, 1164
Humphrey Lyttelton Band 1422
Humphreys, Conn 84, 1081
Humphries, Frank 999
Humphries, Hildred 24
Humphries, Lex 212, 213, 240, 286, 554, 867, 1026, 1137, 1195, 1358, 1359, 1425, 1470
Humphries, Roger 792, 934, 1299
Hunck, Peter 294
Hund, Gerhard 'Doggy' 737
Hunnekink, Bernard 169, 170
Hunt, Bill 693
Hunt, Bob 415, 1080
Hunt, Dave 1077
Hunt, Frances 574, 1521
Hunt, Fred 24, 77, 355, 734, 1252, 1279, 1484
Hunt, George 90, 686, 705
Hunt, James 'Chumly' 494
Hunt, Joe 509, 545, 1249
Hunt, John 316, 433
Hunt, Louis 42, 1475
Hunt, Nimrod 1355, 1358, 1359
Hunt, Pee Wee 42, 62, 236
Hunt, Steve 110, 923, 1438
Hunt, Tamm E. 568
Hunter, Alberta 1456
Hunter, Charlie 737, 957, 965, 1182
Hunter, Chris 219, 462, 549, 612, 613, 1278, 1489
Hunter, Frank 1052
Hunter, Ivory Joe 1066
Hunter, Jerome 862
Hunter, Joe 845
Hunter, Stanford 501
Hunter, Thomas 1355, 1360
Hunter-Randall, Ian 1362
Huntington, Bill 244, 293, 949, 959
Huntington, Billy 737
Hupfer, Nick 691
Hupp, Rosalind 136
Huppert, Leo 617
Hurfurt, Skeets 395, 396, 504
Hurlbut, Andrew 775
Hurley, Clyde 1056, 1283
Hurley Ramey 1066
Hurst, Bob 226, 561
Hurst, Kate 480
Hurst, Lew 1089
Hurst, Robert 154, 265, 531, 694, 844, 902, 945, 947, 948, 1026, 1106, 1286
Hurst, Robert Leslie III 950
Hurt, James 568, 895
Hurt, Marlin 1066
Hurt, Pete 137, 1250, 1355
Hurt, Sam 552
Hurtado, Mono 663
Hurwitz, Dick 1540
Husband, Gary 264, 326, 869, 978, 1051
Husby, Per 115, 327, 739
Hussain, Ustad Shaukat 524
Hussain, Zakir 902, 977, 978, 1540
Huston, John 1031
Husum, Niels 760
Hutchenrider, Clarence 42, 62, 236
Hutchens, Jimmy 1114
Hutcherson, Bobby 215, 363, 384, 385, 505, 530, 531, 555, 581, 584, 599, 600, 605, 646, 687, 699, 701, 702, 733, 739, 821, 866, 895, 980, 1018, 1037, 1040, 1134, 1138, 1289, 1426, 1427, 1428, 1462, 1512
Hutchings, Chris 1514
Hutchins, Clarence 542
Hutchinson, Gregory 122, 131, 152, 184, 185, 335, 556, 557, 563, 649, 688, 754, 841, 956, 957, 965, 1157, 1198, 1199, 1315
Hutchinson, Matt 199
Hutchinson, Ralph 1328
Hutman, Olivier 1512
Hutton, June 1284
Hutton, Mick 81, 488, 527, 746, 868, 963, 1051, 1085, 1306, 1329, 1384
Huxley, George 515
Hwang, Jason Hao 210, 269, 412, 722, 1018, 1127, 1128, 1529
Hyams, Margie 692, 1286, 1445, 1510
Hyde, Dick 642, 765, 817
Hyde, Slide 251
Hyder, Ken 741
Hyhne, Mads 121, 392
Hyland, Bill 62, 1089
Hyldgaard, Susi 939
Hyman, Arnie 1113
Hyman, Dick 83, 148, 157, 158, 270, 336, 424, 570, 626, 708, 741, 780, 912, 1026, 1056, 1162, 1260, 1302, 1354, 1447, 1499, 1500
Hyman, Mike 204
Hymas, Tony 256, 1175
Hynes, Jim 80, 240
Hyquist, Håkan 1250
Hystad, Ole Jacob 742
Hytti, Antti 621

I

Iaazane, Ali 1473
Iaco, Joe 880
Ibarra, Diego 84
Ibarra, Susie 312, 484, 742, 896, 1128, 1293, 1311, 1421, 1464, 1544
Ibrahim, Abdullah 110, 742, 792, 1221, 1375
Ichikawa, Hideo 688
ICP Orchestra 744
Ignatzek, Klaus 745, 1227, 1228
Igoe, Sonny 577, 693, 1446
Iivanainen, Johanna 621
Iivanainen, Mikko 621
Ikeda, Yoshio 662
Ike Perkins 31
Ikkelä, Petri 1448
Ikonen, Tapani 1
Iles, Alex 413, 496, 850, 1094, 1517
Iles, Nikki 746, 869, 963, 1329, 1354
Ilett, Denny 280
Ilg, Dieter 851, 873, 944, 992
Illingworth, Patrick 1190
Illvibe, DJ 1373
Ilmiliekki Quartet 746
Imaizumi, Chie 746
Imbert, Diego 478
Imbert, Jean 1500
Imig, Peggy 136
IMI Kollektief 746
Impallomeni, Nino 533
Implicate Order 746
Improvisors Pool 747
Inaba, Kunimitsu 688
Inácio, Nuno 1263
Ind, Peter 87, 138, 674, 747, 836, 837, 954, 1315, 1384, 1417, 1418, 1493
Independence Hall Jazz Band 747
Indigo, Hans 775
Indo-British Ensemble 747
Indrizzo, Victor 989
Ineke, Eric 1192
Infascelli, Silvia 535
Infinity Orchestra 444
Inge, Edward 23, 24, 826, 1197, 1198, 1343, 1510
Ingemarsson, Ove 1369
Ingerfield, Ken 1190
Ingham, Keith 22, 415, 579, 611, 747, 823, 968, 1498
Ingle, Red 105
Ingmarsson, Ove 767
Ingraham, Bob 797
Ingraham, Paul 345, 755
Ingram, Gerry 564

Ingram, Robert 1095
Ingram, Roger 939, 951
Ingram, Wally 1310
Ingrand, Jean-Marie 772, 1397
Ingvaldsen, Didrik 559
Ink Spots 489, 490
Innanen, Mikko 621
Innes, Brad 992
Innes, Mike 415
Ino, Nobuyoshi 1266, 1373
Inoue, Yosuke 1518, 1519
Insaurralde, Mirta 663
Insell-Stack, Judith 372, 1106
International Sweethearts Of Rhythm 748
Intlehouse, Ernie 542
Intorre, Carmen 845
Inzalaco, Tony 583, 615
Ioannou, Chris 1127
Iodice, Pietro 473
Iona, Andy 42
Ippolito, Adam 1031
Ipsen, Kjeld 22, 95
Irabagon, Jon 615
Irgens-Møller, Christer 1122
Irish, George 228, 1521
Irizarry, Ralph 822, 914
Irvin, Tiny 552
Irvine, Weldon 732
Irving III, Robert 351, 1060
Irvis, Charlie 428, 1044, 1311, 1457, 1504
Irwin, Aaron 749
Irwin, Cecil 704, 1311, 1322
Irwin, Dennis 23, 28, 134, 167, 187, 188, 211, 212, 265, 269, 380, 426, 533, 561, 635, 636, 662, 663, 861, 910, 921, 926, 968, 969, 1147, 1172, 1212, 1274, 1320, 1321, 1436, 1484, 1518, 1519
Irwin, Pee Wee 24, 574, 1334
Isaacs, Charles 609
Isaacs, Ike 194, 253, 417, 450, 491, 591, 596, 689, 861, 1354, 1414, 1422, 1508
Isaacs, Russ 397
Isaksson, Stefan 300, 781, 1459
Ischer, Yvan 1395
Isenmann, Luc 468
Isham, Mark 863
Iskra 1903/1912 749
Isler, Todd 660
Ismaily, Shahzad 183
Isola, Frank 26, 173, 514, 543, 544, 1509
Isotope 749
Israel, Theodore 1539
Israel, Yoron 202, 266, 270, 309, 505, 750, 761, 762, 1074, 1212, 1506, 1541
Israel, Yosef Ben 179, 356, 444, 1399
Israelite, Koby 1545
Israels, Chuck 383, 384, 442, 456, 457, 509, 640, 666, 933, 1249, 1380
Italian Instabile Orchestra 750
Itauna, Adriano Adewale 1101, 1190
Ithursarry, Didier 1098
Iversen, Carl Morten 71
Iversen, Einar 115, 751, 1103
Iversen, Morten 739
Iverson, Ethan 37, 56, 244, 604, 661, 751, 1329
Iverson, Russell 1210
Ivor Raymond Orchestra/Chorus 811
Iwahori, Chikako 76
Iwate, Keiko 721
Iyer, Vijay 751, 877, 922, 959, 1012
Izenhall, Aaron 43, 490, 803
Izenzon, David 275, 377, 851, 1048, 1234, 1289
Izoird, Paulette 1203
Izu, Mark 765, 959

J

J. R. 352
Jackel, Conny 38
Jackson, Adam 1318
Jackson, Alan 532, 1214, 1363, 1488, 1489
Jackson, Ali Muhammad 171, 212, 285, 645, 952, 953, 1199
Jackson, Andy 671
Jackson, Anthony 18, 152, 219, 892, 1159, 1160, 1261, 1340, 1428
Jackson, Benny 228
Jackson, Billy 349
Jackson, Bob 590
Jackson, Bull Moose 238, 999
Jackson, Calvin 125, 278
Jackson, Charlie 1097, 1114
Jackson, Chip 36, 299, 323, 419, 500, 694, 1379
Jackson, Chubby 43, 50, 84, 222, 239, 413, 570, 596, 654, 668, 692, 693, 694, 752, 1052, 1445, 1446, 1467
Jackson, Cliff 63, 100, 118, 297, 395, 669, 947, 1252, 1322
Jackson, Darryl 'Munyungo' 226, 841, 871, 963, 965
Jackson, Dave 414
Jackson, David P. 1020
Jackson, D. D. 75, 146, 752, 1060, 1530
Jackson, Dewey 753
Jackson, Duffy 17, 23, 94, 752
Jackson, Dwight 643
Jackson, Ed 155, 1441
Jackson, Edwin 1326
Jackson, Ella 6
Jackson, Fletcher 699
Jackson, Franz 40, 424, 705, 753, 1201
Jackson, Fred 1134, 1503
Jackson, Freddie 783
Jackson, Gene 5, 24, 454, 644, 697, 791, 830, 869, 903, 966, 1006, 1076, 1305, 1307, 1340
Jackson, Harry 'Pee Wee' 357, 687, 705, 912, 1066
Jackson, James 803, 1355, 1358, 1359, 1360, 1361
Jackson, Jason 1008, 1320, 1406
Jackson, Javon 135, 270, 517, 597, 672, 700, 733, 754, 793, 916, 966, 1166, 1422, 1463, 1506
Jackson, Jimmy 736
Jackson, John 416, 767, 987, 1443, 1505
Jackson, Josh 43, 416, 490, 803
Jackson, Julian 956
Jackson, Keywood 699
Jackson, King 937
Jackson, Kingsley 1082
Jackson, Lawrence 724
Jackson, Laymon 12, 212
Jackson, LeRoy 31, 1118, 1536
Jackson, Mahalia 435
Jackson, Melvin 655
Jackson, Michael Gregory 860
Jackson, Milt 10, 93, 170, 230, 254, 299, 341, 342, 425, 552, 555, 668, 754, 774, 786, 970, 1014, 1020, 1026, 1027, 1069, 1153, 1154, 1156, 1157, 1466, 1501
Jackson, Oliver 22, 23, 32, 258, 339, 354, 372, 386, 417, 425, 570, 582, 592, 647, 706, 756, 759, 793, 794, 827, 829, 867, 1046, 1075, 1245, 1281, 1307, 1315, 1348, 1375, 1398, 1499, 1522
Jackson, Papa Charlie 379, 820
Jackson, Paul 323, 642, 643, 1234, 1255
Jackson, Pete 483
Jackson, Preston 40, 42, 379, 386, 798, 1086, 1251
Jackson, Quentin 35, 48, 92, 218, 219, 272, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 490, 712, 755, 797, 1003, 1004, 1027, 1197, 1278, 1348, 1391, 1467, 1508
Jackson, Romayne 1109
Jackson, Ronald Shannon 53, 276, 756, 1381, 1425, 1543
Jackson, Rudy 99, 428
Jackson, Vasti 1516
Jackson, Wilbur 1137
Jackson, Willie 1098
Jackson, Willis 'Gator' 757, 1505
Jacob, Christian 198, 720, 889, 1094, 1367
Jacob, Jules 820, 1189
Jacobi's Bottomland Orchestra, C. W. 757
Jacobi, Claus 757, 1080
Jacobs, Dave 396, 397
Jacobs, Dick 490
Jacobs, Pete 724, 725
Jacobs, Sid 622, 779, 937
Jacobsen, Helge 49, 1322
Jacobsen, Ivan 602
Jacobsen, Martin 758
Jacobsen, Michael 566
Jacobsen, Pete 831, 758, 1482, 1497
Jacobson, Bud 504
Jacobson, Jack 591
Jacobson, Mattias 1525
Jacobson, Sid 591
Jacobsson, Bertil 427
Jacobsson, Olle 420
Jacoby, Aske 810, 1086
Jacoby, Don 388, 752
Jacquemont, Georges 1203
Jacquemyn, Peter 843
Jacquet, Illinois 91, 195, 238, 271, 413, 489, 638, 662, 716, 758, 760, 774, 849, 1375
Jacquet, Russell 758, 759, 760
Jäderlund, Thomas 423, 805
Jaedig, Bent 52, 356, 760, 799, 800, 818, 1130, 1502
Jaeger, Harry 249, 575, 1081
Jafet, Jean-Marc 451, 519
Jaffe, Allan 1224
Jaffe, Nat 42, 83
Jahziz 182
Jaimeo Brown 1374
Jakobsen, Frank 1213
Jakobsson, Carl 1150
Jakobsson, Mikael 1433
Jakso, Christian 174
Jamal, Ahmad 184, 185, 727, 760
Jamal, Khan 151, 221, 762, 1032, 1033, 1173, 1294
Jamerson, James 323
James, Alex 1183
James, Benny 196, 999
James, Billy 338, 655, 831, 1346
James, Bob 330, 369, 483, 763, 871, 1054, 1444, 1468, 1542, 1543
James, David 'Jelly' 670, 671, 1506
James, Doug 317
James, Duncan 83
James, Dwight 762, 763
James, Elmer 24, 42, 56, 100, 228, 671, 686, 725, 999, 1311, 1476

James, George 42, 228, 263, 999, 1311, 1458, 1521
James, Harry 31, 90, 574, 638, 763, 789, 1334, 1521
James, Herbie 437
James, Hilary 66
James, Ida Mae 704, 705
James, Joe 1436
James, Louis 729, 737, 1037
James, Percy 499
James, Peter 531
James, Pinocchio 639
James, Prince 32
James, Ricky ‘Bongo’ 324
James, Roy 125
James, Stafford 19, 54, 89, 1259, 1285, 1286, 1351
James, Steve 792
James, Vance 971
James Madison University Jazz Orchestra , Harrisonburg, VA 891
Jami, Hakim 1247, 1290
Jamieson, Mike 818
Jamil, Hakim 974
Jaminez, Ivar 84
Jamison, James C. II 473
Jamison, Xavyon 1516
Jams, Doug 626
Janarro, Mario 100
Janes, Roger 464
Jang, Jon 709, 765
Janisch, Michael 1318, 1410
Jankeje, Jan 859
Jankowski, Steve 18
Jannah, Denise 170
Jannotta, Roger 137, 938
Jannuska, Karl 132, 478
Janotta, Roger 939
Jansen, Banner 49
Jansen, Nils 1279
Jansen, Sigurd 602
Janson, Peter 766, 1459
Janssen, Guus 55
Janssen, Huub 411
Jansson, Kjell 68, 766, 781
Jansson, Lars 766, 830, 921, 1010, 1086, 1431, 1453
Jansson, Lennart 46, 616
Jansson, Ulrika 1367
Jarcus, Wade 349
Jardim, Luis 956
Jari, Carmelo 1504
Jarman, Joseph 46, 47, 485, 518, 593, 767, 1185
Jarnberg, Kurt 126, 616
Jarnefeldt, Hans 602
Jaroslawski, Christian 637
Jarr, Ahmadu 392
Jarreau, Al 1025
Jarrett, Art 1085
Jarrett, Chauncey 913
Jarrett, Keith 204, 348, 349, 767, 901, 1047, 1137, 1494
Järvelä, Jouni 1432, 1433
Jarvinen, Arthur 1310
Järvinen, Mikko 1432
Jarvis, Arnold 757, 1505
Jarvis, Carol 480, 876
Jarvis, Clifford 66, 283, 404, 653, 724, 731, 732, 867, 980, 1058, 1258, 1301, 1355, 1356, 1358, 1359
Jarvis, Jack 1056
Jarvis, Jane 707
Jarvis, Jeff 939
Jarvis, Robert 772, 1253
Jaspar, Bobby 33, 299, 710, 754, 772, 786, 787, 813, 933, 1206
Jaudes, Chris 272
Jaume, André 772, 983
Jaworzyn, Stefan 480, 773
Jaxon, Frankie 148
Jayasinha, Shanti Paul 50, 74, 301, 453, 532, 773
Jazz, Junior 19
Jazz At The Philharmonic 774
Jazz Bigband Graz 719
Jazz Composers Alliance Orchestra 775
Jazz Composers Orchestra 775
Jazz Couriers 776, 1276
Jazz Five, The 776
Jazz Jamaica 776
Jazz Messengers 776
Jazz Passengers, The 777
Jazz Pops Orchestra 681
J. C. White Singers 1220
Jean, George 434, 752
JeanJean, Roger 1203
Jean-Marie, Alain 183, 223, 324, 894
Jeanneau, François 734, 735
Jeanrenaud, Joan 1543
Jeanson, Jean-Louis 1202
Jeanty, Val 1236
Jederby, Thore 386, 420, 424, 1118
Jedrzejowski, Adam 835
Jeffers, Jack 7, 136, 539, 623, 641, 775, 777, 1095, 1318, 1391
Jefferson, Andrew 1037
Jefferson, Carter 572, 1262, 1285, 1399
Jefferson, Clay 1044
Jefferson, Eddie 777, 1030, 1031, 1170
Jefferson, Freddie Lee 1279
Jefferson, Freddy 1406, 1443
Jefferson, Hilton 23, 24, 423, 433, 488, 489, 490, 553, 666, 668, 669, 686, 724, 725, 783, 796, 826, 1098, 1476, 1520
Jefferson, Maceo 42, 410
Jefferson, Ron 1160, 1242, 1450
Jefferson, Thomas 1337
Jefferson, Tony 405, 510, 561
Jefferson, Viola 687
Jeffery, Hilary 366
Jeffery, Rob 1366
Jeffrey, Paul 802
Jeffrey, William 233
Jeffries, Allan 1198
Jeffries, Cevera 450
Jeffries, Herb 100, 430, 431, 704
Jeffries, Hilary 409
Jeffries, Norm 511
Jefsen, Jens 778
Jeger, Ben 1349
Jekabson, Erik 778, 1019
Jemmott, Gerald 1290
Jemmott, Jerry 221, 969
Jenkins, Al 85
Jenkins, Arthur 637, 688, 828, 829, 1234, 1359, 1360
Jenkins, Clarence 1060
Jenkins, Clay 259, 427, 778, 841, 854, 1147
Jenkins, Eddie 119
Jenkins, Freddy 428, 429, 430, 711, 1044
Jenkins, George 262, 529, 638
Jenkins, Gordon 43, 489, 490
Jenkins, Henry 959
Jenkins, Jeff 573, 746, 1528
Jenkins, John 243, 801, 978, 1188, 1465
Jenkins, Karl 39, 225, 280, 905
Jenkins, Kenny 1301
Jenkins, Leroy 6, 19, 136, 159, 283, 337, 778, 828, 829, 885, 1047, 1208, 1290, 1297, 1381
Jenkins, Les 50, 396, 504, 1282, 1334
Jenkins, Lillette 779
Jenkins, Marvin 821
Jenkins, Pat 1248, 1264
Jenkins, Ray 207
Jenkins, Ron 80, 460
Jenkins, Terry 158, 299, 374
Jenkins, Willie 971
Jenner, Russ 83
Jennessen, Uli 1266
Jenney, Bob 779
Jenney, Jack 63, 779, 1089, 1283
Jennings, Al 118
Jennings, Bill 43, 354, 490, 757, 803, 1226
Jennings, Jack 113, 369, 1027, 1028
Jennings, Jerome 1172
Jenny, Bob 118
Jenny-Clark, Jean-François 67, 79, 245, 472, 519, 533, 734, 735, 850, 944, 1048, 1159, 1193, 1250, 1323, 1441
Jenoure, Terry 778
Jensen, Arne Bue 356, 628, 1112, 1113
Jensen, Christian 49, 1322
Jensen, Christine 780
Jensen, Frank 52, 668
Jensen, Ingrid 282, 368, 690, 779, 811, 1148, 1268, 1269, 1270
Jensen, Jacon 1525
Jensen, Jørn 356, 628, 1112, 1113
Jensen, Knud 1223
Jensen, Ole Kurt 799, 818, 1479
Jensen, Peter 996
Jenssen, Mel 62, 236
Jeremiahs, Marcello 663
Jerome, Chris 1167
Jerome, Jerry 63, 157, 443, 574, 575, 576, 626, 638, 780, 1283, 1500
Jerrett, Nick 1445
Jessup, Red 118
Jewell, Jimmy 912
Jewell, Russell 422, 775
Jhelisa 1167
Jiebing, Chen 765
Jiles, Albert 148, 293, 1037, 1072, 1079, 1164
Jillich, Anton 1477
Jimmie Lunceford Orchestra 1353
Jimmy Cobb Orchestra 1467
Jimmy Mundy Orchestra 229
Jivelid, Roland 449
J-Life 780
João, Maria 1540
Jobim, Antonio Carlos 545
Jobim, Daniel 1169
Jodice, Mark 548
Joe, Montego 112
Joe Mooney Orchestra 1444
Johansen, Bjørn 739, 781
Johansen, Egil ‘Bop’ 46, 115, 387, 447, 602, 616, 751, 781, 781, 782, 809, 897, 1149, 1213
Johansen, Jonas 95, 503, 729, 778, 781, 921, 1102, 1324, 1432
Johansen, Per Oddvar 1492
Johansen, Vidar 1301, 1487
Johansson, Åke 68, 300, 766, 781, 1327, 1453
Johansson, Arnold 27, 46, 420, 615
Johansson, Dan 1087
Johansson, Jan 46, 545, 570, 781, 1160
Johansson, Jörgen 20, 1250
Johansson, Markku 897, 1433
Johansson, Per 852, 1347
Johansson, Per ‘Ruskträsk’ 807
Johansson, Per ‘Texas’ 49, 807
Johansson, Rony 383
Johansson, Sven-Åke 176, 177, 224, 562, 782, 1265, 1459
Johansson, Ulf 387, 1150, 1433
John, Dr 316, 317, 924, 1275

John, Freddie 958, 1217
Johnakins, Leslie 714, 1095, 1311, 1406
Johnny Armatage's Band 1252
Johnny Keating Orchestra 986
Johnny Keating Sound 811
Johns, Jimmy 374
Johns, Pete 691
Johns, Russell 40
Johns, Steve 500, 878, 1063, 1134, 1250, 1321, 1379
Johnsen, Harald 619
Johnson, Aaron 488, 1406, 1544
Johnson, Abdu 957
Johnson, Alonzo 1026
Johnson, Alphonso 66, 170, 264, 323, 684, 1474, 1475
Johnson, Alvin 757
Johnson, Archie 705, 999
Johnson, Bashiri 351, 530, 830, 1199
Johnson, Ben 1150, 1151
Johnson, Bert 1184
Johnson, Bibbi 386
Johnson, Bill 263, 379, 380, 1097
Johnson, Birch 1163
Johnson, Bobby 488, 671, 757, 1089, 1311
Johnson, Bruce 429, 756
Johnson, Bud 270
Johnson, Budd 35, 42, 92, 93, 230, 258, 272, 416, 425, 461, 596, 638, 667, 668, 704, 705, 707, 715, 716, 783, 789, 793, 797, 826, 1093, 1248, 1281, 1313, 1391, 1443, 1477, 1478
Johnson, Buddy 1406
Johnson, Bunk 100, 101, 379, 783, 882
Johnson, Charles Icarus 1114, 1234
Johnson, Charlie 228, 229, 699, 1311
Johnson, Charlton 154
Johnson, Chris 424
Johnson, Clarence 803, 1030, 1248
Johnson, Craig 478
Johnson, Danny 769
Johnson, David 566, 923, 1184
Johnson, Dean 1054, 1055, 1496
Johnson, Dewey 139, 291, 1057
Johnson, Dick 299, 542, 961, 962, 1081
Johnson, Dink 1103, 1104
Johnson, Duane 775
Johnson, Eddie 250, 427, 785, 803, 1031, 1056, 1505
Johnson, Edward 880, 1505
Johnson, Eric 617, 778, 785, 978
Johnson, Freddy 228, 667
Johnson, Gene 724, 725, 1078, 1095
Johnson, George 105, 257, 744, 825, 826, 1109, 1202, 1477
Johnson, George A. Jr 785
Johnson, Gerey 506
Johnson, Gordon 227, 483
Johnson, Gunnar 180, 544, 545, 781, 785, 1149
Johnson, Gus 26, 92, 93, 157, 194, 258, 268, 338, 491, 492, 669, 705, 707, 708, 716, 789, 981, 987, 1054, 1180, 1248, 1303, 1366, 1375, 1522, 1527, 1531
Johnson Jr, Gus 632, 1354
Johnson, Harold 'Money' 687, 999, 1505
Johnson, Henry 785, 888, 928
Johnson, Honey 1344
Johnson, Howard 7, 79, 80, 136, 197, 203, 228, 316, 352, 365, 377, 415, 420, 423, 462, 503, 553, 613, 623, 679, 687, 704, 725, 734, 739, 775, 828, 1004, 1019, 1074, 1133, 1135, 1258, 1270, 1275, 1289, 1318, 1351, 1406, 1427, 1483
Johnson, J. J. 10, 32, 93, 94, 180, 228, 234, 340, 341, 392, 491, 544, 552, 553, 568, 571, 615, 668, 669, 755, 758, 760, 774, 783, 785, 970, 1000, 1052, 1066, 1114, 1115, 1141, 1169, 1176, 1233, 1234, 1299, 1304, 1345, 1375, 1444, 1523
Johnson, James 182, 797
Johnson, James P. 101, 102, 155, 297, 379, 410, 628, 784, 788, 803, 975, 1078, 1098, 1252, 1456, 1504, 1505
Johnson, Jane 362
Johnson, Jay 816
Johnson, J. C. 736, 864
Johnson, Jeff 521, 1507
Johnson, Jeff Lee 1175, 1196
Johnson, Jerry 967, 1388
Johnson, Jimmy 373, 413, 435, 436, 754, 1357, 1445
Johnson Jr, Jimmy 113
Johnson, Joe 754
Johnson, John 443, 967, 1493
Johnson, Keg 24, 42, 122, 218, 219, 228, 461, 686, 783, 1186
Johnson, Kevin 787, 1468, 1515
Johnson, Lamont 980, 1013
Johnson, Lem 100, 803, 1109, 1406
Johnson, Lennie 92, 797, 1171
Johnson, Lonnie 31, 41, 379, 428, 736, 864, 1504
Johnson, Manzie 23, 24, 40, 100, 102, 329, 1044, 1197, 1198
Johnson, Marc 3, 4, 5, 141, 219, 244, 426, 427, 448, 458, 459, 546, 587, 695, 789, 798, 830, 837, 873, 887, 895, 908, 1064, 1163, 1164, 1274, 1323, 1395, 1411, 1485, 1515
Johnson, March 1384
Johnson, Margaret 714, 1504
Johnson, Mark 277, 1060
Johnson, Marvin 41, 552
Johnson, Matt 850
Johnson, Maxene 271
Johnson, Money 258, 437, 439, 999, 1283
Johnson, Myra 1279, 1319
Johnson, Oliver 159, 548, 582, 855, 856, 857, 1058, 1281
Johnson, Osie 15, 26, 123, 173, 181, 182, 199, 222, 231, 259, 262, 268, 299, 368, 417, 455, 462, 470, 570, 571, 596, 601, 609, 634, 646, 661, 669, 705, 712, 716, 717, 726, 759, 772, 777, 786, 789, 794, 796, 797, 855, 877, 974, 976, 993, 1026, 1074, 1160, 1165, 1176, 1180, 1188, 1249, 1252, 1255, 1278, 1302, 1303, 1375, 1397, 1398, 1400, 1478, 1486, 1509, 1523
Johnson, Otis 23, 24, 42, 228, 1197, 1251
Johnson, Pete 31, 125, 238, 763, 789, 793, 887, 1109, 1248
Johnson, Plas 115, 417, 442, 656, 662, 681, 719, 755, 841, 1304, 1517
Johnson, Puss 1319
Johnson, Reggie 127, 183, 201, 278, 611, 627, 651, 740, 768, 775, 904, 1289, 1294, 1399, 1499
Johnson, Rich 1213
Johnson, Robert 670, 671
Johnson, Roy 1522
Johnson, Russ 339, 839, 1228, 1370
Johnson, Shelby 649
Johnson, Sonny 469
Johnson, Sy 881, 1352
Johnson, T. J. 790
Johnson, Todd 923
Johnson, Tommy 449
Johnson, Vinnie 469
Johnson, Walter 23, 24, 56, 108, 228, 329, 666, 667, 686, 725
Johnson, Will 23, 24, 666, 1044, 1098, 1251, 1456
Johnson, William 228, 670
Johnsson, Christer 1087
Johnston, Aaron 38
Johnston, Archie 207
Johnston, Bill 1184
Johnston, Clarence 417, 500, 1031, 1424, 1508
Johnston, Darren 863
Johnston, Donald 67, 520
Johnston, George 118
Johnston, Grace 573
Johnston, Jimmy 1210
Johnston, Lynn 863
Johnston, Philip 996, 790
Johnston, Randy 363, 389, 790, 1149
Johnston, Ron 316
Johnston, Roy 900, 1433
Johnstone, Bruce 483
Jolley, Dale 1388
Jollimore, Keith 1084
Jolly, Pete 65, 66, 229, 549, 791, 1082, 1142, 1143, 1146, 1225, 1230, 1231, 1409
Jolobe, Churchill 412
Jonas, Chris 163, 498, 791, 1128, 1129, 1421
Jones (Sirone), Norris 183
Jones, Al 553, 1467, 1468
Jones, Alan 295, 511, 946
Jones, Alberta 428
Jones, Albinia 209
Jones, Archie 542
Jones, Arthur 199, 312, 1062, 1290, 1531
Jones, Billy 542, 685, 889, 900, 937, 1100, 1101
Jones, Bobby 62, 236, 693, 1005, 1081
Jones, Boogaloo Joe 919, 1468
Jones, Brad 7, 214, 400, 529, 777, 1349, 1544
Jones, Buddy 173, 646, 1527
Jones, Bunky 502
Jones, Calvin 'Fuzz' 155, 410, 591, 654, 1516, 1530
Jones, Carmell 449, 792, 863, 985, 1299, 1517, 1526
Jones, Charles 670, 671
Jones, Charlie 41
Jones, Clair 1388
Jones, Clarence 665, 1150, 1151
Jones, Claude 24, 42, 218, 416, 431, 432, 433, 488, 666, 667, 686, 743, 803, 975, 1044, 1045, 1197, 1343, 1475
Jones, Clifford 263
Jones, Clifford 'Snag' 729, 998
Jones, Dale 44
Jones, Darryl 351, 1213, 1274
Jones, Darwin 880
Jones, Dave 72, 983
Jones, David 409, 476, 1422, 1434
Jones, David Lee 1006, 1169
Jones, Dennis 958
Jones, Desi 18

Jones, Desmond 18
Jones, Dick 396, 397
Jones, Dill 70, 187, 336, 370, 652, 918, 1190, 1422, 1447
Jones, Doug 1189
Jones, Duke 1184
Jones, Ed 182, 680, 1211, 1342
Jones, Eddie 92, 156, 173, 254, 259, 394, 588, 596, 799, 861, 1074, 1075, 1188, 1486, 1502, 1522
Jones, Edmund 788, 1098
Jones, Elaine 283
Jones, Elayne 432
Jones, Elvin 9, 168, 173, 184, 200, 201, 240, 275, 283, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 308, 342, 343, 371, 384, 436, 461, 462, 469, 470, 495, 499, 501, 505, 546, 555, 598, 599, 600, 611, 653, 662, 687, 701, 706, 726, 732, 754, 772, 786, 787, 792, 794, 795, 796, 799, 800, 821, 828, 836, 855, 867, 909, 950, 977, 1001, 1051, 1072, 1073, 1099, 1142, 1143, 1170, 1184, 1233, 1234, 1295, 1425, 1426, 1454, 1526, 1534
Jones, Etta 125, 185, 195, 705, 789, 793, 928, 1392, 1506
Jones, Floyd 639
Jones, Frankie 32, 793, 1148
Jones, George 262, 783
Jones, Hank 9, 10, 11, 32, 33, 83, 108, 113, 123, 148, 156, 173, 222, 231, 240, 254, 259, 270, 299, 327, 330, 341, 393, 415, 434, 470, 489, 490, 495, 514, 516, 521, 545, 562, 571, 583, 588, 592, 601, 639, 661, 662, 668, 669, 716, 726, 754, 755, 758, 759, 774, 780, 785, 786, 789, 792, 794, 799, 826, 827, 829, 849, 859, 877, 895, 910, 915, 954, 970, 993, 1000, 1001, 1026, 1028, 1038, 1054, 1075, 1090, 1094, 1103, 1109, 1110, 1117, 1162, 1187, 1199, 1205, 1211, 1248, 1254, 1283, 1284, 1287, 1314, 1347, 1396, 1398, 1404, 1435, 1445, 1446, 1469, 1486, 1501, 1509, 1522, 1523, 1536, 1537
Jones, Harold 92, 93, 94, 230, 597, 655, 656, 957, 981, 982, 1444
Jones, Harry Parr 760, 1056
Jones, Harry 'Parr' 218, 698
Jones, Henry 42, 1251, 1504
Jones, Henry L. 1098
Jones, Herbie 436, 437, 438, 492, 713, 774
Jones, James 538
Jones, Jamyll 925
Jones, Jeremy 651
Jones, Jesse 987
Jones Jr, Jesse 1064
Jones, Jessica 38
Jones, Jimmy 35, 99, 101, 155, 181, 201, 209, 257, 413, 492, 552, 570, 596, 607, 668, 712, 713, 755, 774, 783, 793, 799, 986, 993, 1169, 1219, 1316, 1344, 1346, 1348, 1391, 1392, 1443, 1445, 1477, 1478, 1486, 1502, 1537
Jones, Jo 31, 63, 83, 90, 91, 155, 195, 206, 229, 249, 337, 360, 372, 384, 433, 435, 461, 491, 562, 575, 576, 578, 592, 638, 669, 670, 693, 707, 714, 736, 758, 759, 763, 795, 799, 853, 1003, 1025, 1090, 1095, 1153, 1162, 1165, 1188, 1248, 1252, 1344, 1345, 1346, 1348, 1378, 1379, 1446, 1478, 1483, 1505, 1521, 1535, 1536, 1537
Jones, Joe 199
Jones, Jonah 40, 102, 218, 219, 228, 638, 668, 705, 714, 795, 1186, 1316, 1520, 1521
Jones, Josh 38, 147
Jones, Julia 155
Jones, Kenn 1367
Jones, Kevin 363, 651
Jones, Leonard 6, 973, 1455
Jones, Leroy 628
Jones, Lucille 1468
Jones, Maggie 1101
Jones, Martin 480
Jones, Norah 644, 660, 738, 1213
Jones, Norris 183
Jones, Oliver 796
Jones, Paul 136
Jones, Philly Joe 10, 66, 175, 180, 201, 231, 239, 240, 254, 284, 328, 341, 342, 343, 344, 393, 403, 456, 457, 458, 459, 461, 469, 470, 526, 527, 568, 580, 588, 596, 607, 649, 690, 723, 724, 732, 755, 796, 802, 813, 894, 899, 979, 1008, 1009, 1013, 1027, 1072, 1142, 1178, 1186, 1232, 1233, 1255, 1290, 1346, 1390, 1391, 1479, 1527
Jones, Quincy 46, 469, 553, 554, 797
Jones, Ralph 868
Jones, Randy 191, 192, 193, 483
Jones, Reggie 41
Jones, Reunald 35, 40, 92, 671, 913, 1188, 1197, 1233, 1346, 1475
Jones, Richard M. 379, 798, 1086, 1097
Jones, Robin 401, 663, 664, 987, 1278, 1279, 1416
Jones, Rodney 36, 214, 426, 555, 798, 971, 972, 1315
Jones, Roger 219
Jones, Rufus 299, 437, 438, 439, 774
Jones, Russell 724
Jones, Rusty 237, 591
Jones, Sam 10, 12, 32, 33, 56, 66, 175, 194, 201, 212, 231, 257, 262, 338, 341, 354, 383, 392, 393, 403, 435, 456, 506, 526, 527, 554, 570, 582, 583, 598, 599, 607, 653, 673, 731, 755, 757, 774, 777, 786, 795, 796, 798, 801, 802, 813, 862, 867, 894, 917, 932, 945, 973, 1009, 1022, 1026, 1027, 1031, 1072, 1085, 1101, 1153, 1156, 1178, 1184, 1186, 1312, 1328, 1346, 1378, 1391, 1392, 1402, 1424, 1451, 1462, 1501, 1539
Jones, Sean 131, 1517, 1518
Jones, Slick 100, 209, 329, 638, 803, 1457, 1458
Jones, Thad 9, 15, 92, 201, 240, 404, 582, 583, 641, 717, 755, 792, 797, 799, 1000, 1001, 1023, 1031, 1071, 1130, 1188, 1234, 1277, 1278, 1313, 1460, 1479, 1486, 1502, 1508, 1509
Jones, Tommy 38
Jones, Truett 763, 764
Jones, Victor 323, 505, 546, 568, 640, 700, 1006, 1095, 1159
Jones, Virgil 414, 419, 501, 639, 650, 689, 755, 854, 919, 1019, 1427, 1468
Jones, Wallace 228, 329, 430, 431, 432
Jones, Walter 724, 725
Jones, Wardell 196, 999
Jones, Warren 222, 498
Jones, Wayne 377, 754, 1058, 1454
Jones, Wesley 1535
Jones, Willie 570, 723, 961, 1001, 1021, 1186, 1391, 1491, 1526
Jones, Willie III 105, 428, 521, 614, 649, 650, 830, 1149, 1200, 1343, 1441, 1538
Jones, Wilmore 'Slick' 102, 1279
Jones Wood, Helen 748
Jónsdóttir, Pálina 752
Jönsson, Cennet 114, 1407
Joode, Wilbert De 242, 366, 646
Joos, Herbert 563, 800, 841, 1477
Jordan, Al 395, 847, 848
Jordan, Clifford 130, 384, 471, 555, 640, 800, 985, 1004, 1039, 1170, 1196, 1220, 1299, 1462, 1539
Jordan, Connie 1326
Jordan, Daniel 244, 545
Jordan, Deborah 1010
Jordan, Duke 31, 32, 67, 123, 175, 201, 212, 340, 424, 447, 469, 544, 717, 793, 802, 1115, 1117, 1136, 1144, 1160, 1191, 1345, 1346, 1391
Jordan, Edward 'Kidd' 25, 37, 145, 473, 518, 571, 803, 1298
Jordan, James 1258
Jordan, Joe 999, 1406
Jordan, Kent 950
Jordan, Kevin 819
Jordan, Louis 42, 43, 488, 489, 490, 803, 1476, 1505
Jordan, Marlon 571, 659
Jordan, Paul 1093
Jordan, Rodney 517, 945
Jordan, Sheila 136, 179, 197, 747, 804, 1246, 1249, 1369
Jordan, Stanley 1016
Jordan, Steve 80, 155, 156, 372, 450, 460, 578, 981, 1188, 1235, 1255, 1256, 1274, 1275, 1375, 1400
Jordan, Taft 342, 343, 431, 432, 488, 489, 490, 578, 699, 712, 803, 1400, 1443, 1475
Jordy, Hal 150, 937
Jørgens, Pere Oliver 1122
Jorgensen, Eric 566
Jørgensen, Knud 126, 383, 781
Jørgensen, Per 71, 939, 964, 1059
Jørgensen, Peter Ole 178, 1223, 1453
Jörgensmann, Theo 804
Jørgenson, Knud 449
Joris, Bert 237, 627, 1163
Jormin, Anders 71, 246, 378, 478, 766, 805, 901, 964, 1206, 1336, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1495
Jormin, Christian 805
Josefsberg, Mark 790
Joseph, Ferdinand 238
Joseph, John 269, 729, 884
Joseph, Jonathan 168
Joseph, Julian 81, 265, 273, 505
Joseph, Pleasant 101
Joseph, Stephen 590
Joseph, Waldren 'Frog' 76, 737, 1100
Joseph Holbrooke (Trio) 806
Jospin, Mowgli 102
Joule, Alain 1161
Jourdan, André 102, 1204
Joyce, Andrew 832
Joyce, Leon 1399

Jr, Leon Joyce 888
Joyner, George 32, 284, 526, 899, 933, 1072, 1491
Juan José Mosalini Et Son Grand Orchestre De Tango 1174
Jubalaires, The 827
Juckem, Gene 461
Jud Conlon's Rhythmaires 51
Judy 1253
Juhlin, Bo 1150
Juhnke, Gerrit 637
Julian, Bob 622
Julian, Zeb 937
Julian Work Orchestra 63
Julio 1261
Jullien, Ivan 358, 497
Juma 730, 1301
Junco, Cheo 1261
Jungner, Mats 1150
Junior, Bradley 413
Jurasi, Ondrej 921
Juris, Vic 195, 302, 536, 806, 859, 866, 867, 891, 892, 903, 944, 966, 1067, 1345, 1447
Jurković, Darko 922

K

Kaargard, Morten 617
Kaart, Dick 411
Kaart, Ray 411
Kaatee, Frits 411
Kaatee, George 411
Kabak, Milt 814, 815
Kabaka, Remi 960
Kabir, Omar 1060
Kabongo, Sabine 1540
Kadleck, Tony 368, 477, 478, 719, 721, 1268, 1269, 1351
Kae, Soo-Jung 775
Kahn, Alfie 1457
Kahn, Roger Wolfe 807
Kahn, Tiny 50, 51, 84, 413, 544, 786, 1189, 1535
Kaihatu, Victor 1395
Kail, Jerry 797, 1071
Kaiser, Henry 59, 60, 807, 1310, 1542
Kaiser, Jeff 566
Kaiser, Wollie 690
Kajfeš, Davor 807
Kajfeš, Goran 807, 852
Kakhidze, Jansug 524
Kako 1262
Kako, Takashi 445, 855
Kalaf, Jerry 626
Kaldestad, Steve 226, 533
Kaleem, Musa 609, 1031
Kalet, Noel 356
Kallen, Kitty 395, 1283, 1284
Kallin, Ivor 1251
Kallin, Sture 27, 383, 615, 616, 897
Kalmanovitch, Tanya 1018
Kamaguchi, Masa 2, 310, 727, 824, 1166, 1207
Kaminsky, Max 63, 100, 228, 297, 396, 397, 504, 588, 734, 788, 807, 947, 1252, 1283, 1319, 1388, 1446
Kämpgen Schuller, Nicole 130
Kamuca, Richie 65, 66, 201, 482, 550, 584, 693, 720, 808, 816, 817, 836, 936, 1093, 1142, 1146, 1165, 1184, 1230, 1239, 1247, 1303, 1304, 1409, 1531
Kanan, Michael 808, 1238
Kanders, Kristina 76
Kane, Sol 576
Kane, Walter 234, 797, 1027
Kanerva, Markku 1432
Kang, Eyvind 512, 728, 983, 1545
Kangas, Jeanette 890
Kanner, Kevin 720
Kannisto, Jouni 1448
Kano, Misako 324
Kanter, Ben 1282, 1283
Kantonen, Seppo 808, 834, 1432
Kantor, Ben 574
Kaper, Bob 411
Kaphengst, Christian von 944, 1057
Kaplan, Alan 108, 441
Kaplan, Delmar 588
Kaplan, Marty 853
Kaplan, Ori 808, 1129, 1298
Kapp, Bobby 78, 730
Kappeler, Beat 475, 1083
Kappes, Jim 627
Kaproff, Armond 1478
Kapsalis, Terri 206
Kapstad, Egil 115, 327, 781, 808, 846
Karan, Chris 225, 747, 1276
Karayorgis, Pandelis 604, 809, 931
Karle, Art 573, 1388
Karle, Chuck 207
Karlic, Chris 733, 892, 898, 1073
Karlsson, Daniel 5, 807, 1087, 1406
Karlsson, Mikael 767
Karlsson, Raymond 1453
Karlsson, Stefan 569
Karlzon, Jacob 49, 114, 1406, 1407
Karn, Michael 1172
Karr, Dave 337
Karskov, Uffe 356, 799, 818, 1479
Kase, Christopher 1005
Kashkashian, Kim 525
Kasparyan, Yuri 853
Kasper, Julien 810
Kaspersen, Jan 809
Kassap, Sylvain 1103, 1324
Kastel, Karlheinz 38
Katarzynski, Raymond 497
Katché, Manu 524, 525, 810
Kates, Karl 1327
Kätka, Ippe 843
Kato, Lawrence 736
Katz, Bruce 810
Katz, Danny 502
Katz, Dick 15, 70, 229, 392, 595, 786, 811, 831, 836, 886, 889, 962, 1066, 1160, 1233, 1523
Katz, Dill 225
Katz, Fred 632, 633
Katz, Mike 626
Katz, Stuart 504
Katzenbeier, Hubert 119
Katzer, Georg 515
Katzman, Lee 9, 388, 720, 817, 1245
Kaucher, Craig 362
Kaufman, Achim 721
Kaufman, Bernie 601
Kaufman, Dan 423
Kaufman, Irving 105, 398, 1081, 1101
Kauker, Robbie 959
Kaumeweiha, Keala 826
Kaučič, Zlatko 1254
Kavafian, Ida 304, 1369
Kavanaugh, Mike 871
Kavee, Elliot Humberto 751, 922, 959
Kavich, Al 937
Kawasaki, Ryo 462
Kay, Alistair 967
Kay, Carol 692, 854
Kay, Connie 10, 66, 196, 299, 340, 368, 369, 491, 544, 578, 629, 668, 678, 679, 754, 755, 886, 1090, 1168, 1233, 1346, 1398, 1402, 1435, 1499, 1536, 1537
Kay, Dolly 542
Kay, Judy 967
Kay, Kendall 172, 839, 841, 1452
Kay, Nelly 1203
Kay, Pat 1516
Kay, Stan 1210
Kay, Stanley 413
Kay, Tommy 63, 395
Kaye, Jeff 247
Kaye, Joel 817, 818
Kaye, Leonard 397, 576
Kaye, Randy 558, 773
Kaye, Robert 299
Kaye, Robin 652
Kaye, Saul 1445
Kaye, Teddy 1445
Kazebier, Nate 395, 574, 847, 848, 1334
Keane, Shake 38, 531, 539, 652, 653, 811
Keberle, Ryan 1269
Keck, Bill 514
Kee, Gene 1031
Keeghan, Edwin 779
Keelen, Bryan 267
Keeler, Ken 369
Keenan, Norman 93, 1176, 1505
Keene, Linda 622, 947, 1388
Keene, Richard 1128
Keeny, Chick 1445
Keever, Dale 849
Keezer, Geoff 135, 184, 185, 323, 527, 630, 776, 780, 811, 904, 920, 956, 965, 1180
Kegley, Charles 666
Keim, Dave 819
Keir, Dave 294, 1055, 1190
Keita, Salif 1539
Keith, Jimmy 880
Keith, Mekea 89
Keith Mansfield Orchestra 483
Kelbie, Dave 453, 531
Kelehan, Noel 1304
Kellaway, Roger 104, 201, 267, 272, 811, 912, 924, 943, 957, 1010, 1027, 1028, 1056, 1071, 1212, 1234, 1303, 1304, 1352, 1450, 1498, 1531
Kelleher, Jack 947
Kellens, Christian 1397
Keller, Fred 1388
Keller, Paul 680, 843, 1264
Keller, Robert 1210
Keller, Ron 818
Keller, Werner 1046
Kellers, Willi 1404
Kelley, George 1264
Kelley, Greg 165, 494, 648, 812
Kelley, Mark 617
Kelliher, Jay 423, 848, 1092
Kellin, Orange 551, 747, 1224, 1300, 1438
Kellner, Murray 398, 1081
Kellock, Brian 74, 223, 541, 812, 1188, 1225, 1318, 1389
Kellso, Jon-Erik 85, 143, 157, 476, 551, 579, 611, 612, 626, 638, 656, 736, 747, 812, 1225, 1260, 1366, 1442, 1500
Kelly, Beverley 1036
Kelly, Don 388, 816, 817
Kelly, Ernest 238
Kelly, George 503, 609, 1443
Kelly, Guy 31, 238, 1086
Kelly, James 775
Kelly, Juliet 1167
Kelly, Monty 716
Kelly, Paula 1283
Kelly, Red 388, 482, 693, 765, 817, 1165, 1516
Kelly, Ted 424, 552, 553, 758, 1030
Kelly, Thad 1412, 1482
Kelly, William 1137, 1282
Kelly, Wynton 9, 10, 12, 212, 231, 240, 257, 259, 286, 319, 337, 343, 344, 345, 544, 554, 568, 570, 571, 582, 597, 606, 607, 678, 679, 690, 716, 736, 755, 759, 786, 796, 798, 813,

827, 855, 894, 899, 932, 1000, 1001, 1008, 1009, 1013, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1038, 1039, 1066, 1141, 1142, 1232, 1233, 1255, 1295, 1307, 1316, 1350, 1390, 1467
Kelsey, Chris 1371
Keltner, Jim 513, 989
Kem, Randy 226
Kemanis, Aina 260, 964, 1161
Kemp, Chubby 433, 712
Kemp, Fred 413
Kemp, Hal 398
Kemper, Norbert 757
Ken Colyer Trust Band, The 814
Kendis, Al 443
Kendrick, Rodney 895, 1037
Kennan, Norman 92, 93
Kennedy, Bob 1089
Kennedy, Charlie 549, 550, 681, 720, 848, 849, 1052, 1092, 1093, 1095, 1142, 1445
Kennedy, Dave 819
Kennedy Jr, Joe 761, 762
Kennedy, Ken 580
Kennedy, Laurie 1366
Kennedy, Ray 158, 364, 1168, 1169, 1260
Kennedy, Raz 660
Kennedy, Rick 918
Kennedy, Tim 318, 416
Kennedy, Tom 829, 1450
Kenney, Dick 84, 693, 815, 816
Kenny, Richard 552
Kenny Barron 1392
Kenny Graham's Afro-Cubists 1276
Kenny Washington 1
Kent, Brian 763, 764
Kent, Chris 1385
Kent, Stacey 814, 914, 919, 1407
Kent, Val 845
Kenta, Tsugami 1533, 1534
Kenton, Stan 251, 577, 814, 1092
Kenworthy, Merrit 542
Kenyatta, Robin 1246
Kenyon, Steve 721
Keogh, Stephen 660, 820, 825, 865, 1306
Keogh, Steven 825
Keplinger, Gregg 231
Kepp, Augie 461
Keppard, Freddie 379, 820, 1114
Keppard, Louis 1072
Kerber, Randy 441
Kerr, Anthony 82, 533, 820, 879, 956, 976, 1489, 1490
Kerr, Clyde 1496
Kerr, Pete 992
Kerr, Trudy 394, 533, 608
Kerr, William 270
Kersey, Kenny 24, 337, 413, 575, 634, 714, 796, 1078, 1281, 1505, 1537
Kershaw, Martin 223, 820
Kershaw, Steve 663, 664
Kersting, Michael 841
Kesber, Dim 411
Kessel, Barney 205, 211, 229, 318, 319, 364, 368, 417, 424, 490, 577, 580, 665, 693, 716, 736, 820, 945, 1089, 1093, 1104, 1115, 1143, 1151, 1162, 1210, 1230, 1233, 1245, 1248, 1283, 1284, 1378, 1445, 1477, 1478, 1536, 1537
Kessel, Barry 849
Kessler, Abe 1028
Kessler, Kent 36, 178, 179, 325, 589, 983, 1438, 1439, 1440
Kessler, Siegfried 1291
Kessler, Steve 1518
Kesterson, Bob 418, 814, 815, 945, 970, 1115
Ketchum, Leon 999
Ketola, Markus 1432, 1433
Kettner, Scott 76
Kettwiger Bach Choir 216
Keune, Stefan 821, 1251
Kevin, Bobby 253
Keyes, Joe 90, 1047, 1109
Keys, Calvin 762
Keys, Marshall 971
Keyserling, Thomas 637
Keystone Trio 822
Khalid, Drashear 1511
Khan, Chaka 689
Khan, Eddie 86, 384, 571, 687, 701, 732, 1220, 1277
Khan, Lewis 1095
Khan, Nisar Ahmad 'George' 879, 1488, 1489
Khan, Steve 264, 822, 992
Khan, Tiny 239, 1536
Khan, Ustad Fateh Ali 524
Khan, Ustad Nazim Ali 524
Kiah, Tim 1068
Kiavue, Klod 1061
Kibsgaard, Ole 921
Kibwe, Talib 1218, 1491
Kidjo, Angelique 1515
Kid Ory's Creole Jazz Band 223
Kiefer, Ed 692
Kiefer, Rick 690
Kielsgaard, Rune 35
Kievman, Louis 577
Kiffe, Karl 50, 51, 395, 1252
Kiger, Alan 886, 1249
Kihlberg, Rasmus 913, 1406
Kihlstedt, Carla 564, 1243, 1544
Kikoski, David 114, 132, 361, 586, 645, 661, 676, 685, 697, 822, 903, 916, 958, 1006, 1035, 1086, 1158, 1257, 1305, 1352, 1472
Kikuchi, Masabumi Masahiko 662, 1049
Kilbert, Porter 228, 424, 570, 668, 758, 797
Kilgo, Keith 213
Kilgore, Rebecca 23, 85, 449, 496, 681, 823, 1308
Kilgore, Robbie 114
Killian, Al 50, 91, 318, 416, 432, 433, 638, 783, 1535
Killian, Dwight 946
Killian, Lawrence 414, 1259
Killion, Kash 1057, 1103, 1361, 1514
Kilpatrick, Jesse 1468
Kilson, Billy 357, 460, 661, 718, 1169
Kim, Harry 1540
Kim, Jin Hi 842, 1122
Kim, Laura So-Yeon 807
Kimball, Henry 1114
Kimball, Jeanette 1100, 1337
Kimball, Narvin 238, 1114
Kimball, Ward 487
Kimble, Grover 1169
Kimbrough, Frank 25, 26, 73, 129, 727, 823, 1067, 1068, 1268, 1269
Kime, Warren 247
Kimmig, Harald 1381, 1382
Kimura, Yoichi 1224
Kincaid, Nelson 410
Kincaide, Deane 396, 397
Kinch, Don 487, 1058, 1472
Kinch, Soweto 776, 824
Kindred, Bob 328, 511, 824
King, Al 262
King, Albert 1150
King, Alfonso 913
King, B. B. 948
King, Bertie 228, 477, 652
King, Bill 1101
King, Bob 1490
King, Chris Thomas 214
King, Clifford 820, 1326
King, David 56, 227, 648, 1372
King, Eddie 1201, 1456
King, Gary 80, 483, 1468
King, Gerryck 36, 48, 184, 250, 606
King, Howard 89
King, Jackie 982
King, James D. 970
King, J. D. 826
King, Johnny 783
King, Jonny 481
King, Leonard 232, 233
King, Miff 570
King, Nancy 185
King, Nora Lee 184, 1406, 1510
King, Paul 826
King, Peter 81, 226, 273, 479, 483, 652, 824, 1389, 1412, 1414, 1415, 1482
King, Ron 85, 108, 247, 1094
King, Stan 42, 62, 196, 396, 398, 494, 864, 900, 947, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1280, 1388, 1433, 1446, 1457
King, Teddi 1165
King, Tempo 118
King, Vernon 638
Kingsland, Paddy 225
Kingston, Greg 124
Kinhan, Lauren 276
Kinnel, Duncan 1278
Kinney, Michelle 1401
Kinsella, Arnie 579, 611, 612, 748
Kinsey, Gene 83, 576, 1283
Kinsey, Scott 626, 825, 1238
Kinsey, Tony 253, 652, 672, 1510
Kinsler, Jules 1089
Kirby, Brian 1460
Kirby, John 24, 56, 62, 63, 83, 228, 271, 329, 379, 423, 575, 638, 666, 668, 686, 711, 714, 796, 825, 853, 937, 1078, 1089, 1319, 1353, 1443, 1476, 1477, 1520, 1521
Kirby, Roy 826
Kirby, Steve 232, 246, 785
Kirby, Steven 826
Kirk, Andy 826
Kirk, Rahsaan Roland 208, 673, 675, 797, 827, 1003, 1005
Kirk, Wilbert 99, 100, 101, 357, 1184
Kirkeby, Ed 494, 900, 1433
Kirkland, Dale 694
Kirkland, Kenny 448, 468, 713, 798, 947, 948, 949, 950, 1261, 1451, 1472
Kirkland, Leroy 670, 671, 1176, 1505
Kirkman, Liam 1412
Kirkpatrick, Don 23, 42, 102, 357, 379, 784, 1197, 1198, 1476
Kirkpatrick, John 1203
Kirkpatrick, Tom 1481
Kirksmith, Jack 1283
Kirkwood, Neal 478, 1067
Kirschner, Erik 668
Kishino, Yoshiko 829
Kisor, Justin 830
Kisor, Ryan 136, 152, 323, 586, 629, 811, 830, 876, 895, 1005, 1006, 1055, 1209, 1214, 1307, 1343, 1369, 1481
Kitagawa, Kiyoshi 87, 465, 530, 679, 968, 1335
Kitchingman, Ray 494, 900, 1101, 1433
Kitsis, Bob 50, 423, 848, 1089, 1092, 1282, 1283
Kitsis, Bob (on Volume 3 only), 848
Kittig, Rex 423, 848, 1092
Kjaeldgaard, Poul 818
Kjaergaard, Søren 129

Kjaergaard, Thomas 996
Kjellberg, Anders 176, 246, 766, 767, 1086, 1431, 1458
Kjellberg, Jeppe 648
Kjellemyr, Bjørn 1487
Klangforum Wien 445
Klapper, Martin 1122
Klar, Ernesto 6
Klarman, Scott 1064
Klatzka, Tony 694
Klaymann, Lou 1282
Klee, Harry 199, 557, 681, 848, 1283, 1517
Klee, Harvey 1189
Kleeb, Hildegard 165, 326
Klein, Dave 888, 1388
Klein, Fred 797
Klein, Gary 694
Klein, Guillermo 1314
Klein, Harry 321, 479, 652, 674, 776, 817, 1414, 1422
Klein, Larry 733
Klein, Manny 62, 196, 395, 398, 573, 574, 764, 864, 888, 1081, 1089, 1282, 1283, 1284, 1353, 1387, 1446
Klein, Oscar 411
Klein, Ray 815, 1540
Klein, Sol 888
Kleine-Horst, Dietrich 757
Kleiner, Ulf 944
Kleinschuster, Erich 255
Kleinsteuber, Carl 107
Kleintank, Harry 694
Kleive, Audun 34, 71, 805, 964, 1059, 1487
Klemm, Thomas 1382, 1429
Kleps, Dale 465
Kless, Rod 1327
Klette, Arne 602
Kline, Janet 1454
Kline, Merrill 1252
Kline, Olive 106
Klinefelter, Paul 560
Kling, Scmitto 859
Klinger, Frank 83
Klinghagen, Göran 330, 447, 805, 830
Klink, Al 156, 397, 576, 578, 715, 872, 986, 1093, 1283, 1443, 1531
Klippert, Jim 314
Kloss, Eric 831, 957
Klouman, Carsten 602
Klucevsek, Guy 162, 399, 400, 512, 1542
Kluften, Tonny 613
Kluger, Irv 50, 552, 1176, 1189, 1283, 1284, 1322
Knapp, Jim 259
Knaus, Jack 1081
Knepper, Jimmy 9, 136, 201, 203, 345, 383, 384, 455, 461, 481, 689, 775, 799, 831, 837, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1230, 1278, 1320, 1391
Knight, Bob 622, 817, 1517
Knight, Earl 1397
Knight, Gloristeena 1358
Knight, James 1525
Knight, Joe 540
Knight, Joe Earl 1160
Knight, Peter 1473
Knight, Ray 817
Knight, Renée 489, 490
Knight, Terry 96, 884, 958, 1437
Kniss, Dick 509
Knitzer, Jack 343
Knob St Choir 227
Knox, Bertell 211, 732
Knox, Walter 416
Knudsen, Kenneth 34, 583, 996, 1102
Knudsen, Niclas 1431
Knudsen, Perry 799, 1479
Knutsson, Jonas 831, 1458
Köbberling, Heinrich 541, 637, 875, 1472
Koch, George 764
Koch, Hans 620, 621, 832, 1382
Koch, Joe 397, 577
Koch, Klaus 378, 833
Koch, Merle 502
Koch, Ritsche 325
Koczy, Sam 480
Koehler, Kyle 154, 697, 750
Koehler, Trevor 462
Koeller, Reginald 1496
Koen, Ben 1128
Koen, Mae 1399
Koenig, George 43, 574, 638, 1089, 1282, 1334
Koenig, John 713
Koenigsberger, Chunky 1210
Koerner, Gill 395
Koffman, Moe 967, 1084
Kofi, Tony 368, 832, 1211
Kogan, Maurice 63, 779, 1089
Kogel, Christian 590
Koglmann, Franz 141, 445, 833
Kohlbacher, Steve 694
Kohlhase, Charlie 422, 423, 572, 1387
Kohlin, Jan 95, 1102, 1306, 1347
Kohlman, Freddie 77, 465, 1079, 1100, 1500
Kohut, Larry 573, 939
Koivistoinen, Eero 834, 1432
Koki, Sam 42
Kolar, Val 818
Kolax, King 416
Kolber, Ron 247
Kolberg, Ole-Thomas 1301
Kolesnik, Dmitri 834
Kolker, Adam 88, 943
Kolkowski, Alex 722, 1043, 1109, 1373
Koller, Hans 65, 841, 1541
Koller, Martin 1449
Kölner Rundfunkorchester 38
Kolstee, Wim 411
Koltermann, Eckard 804
Komeda, Krzysztof 834
Komer, Chris 1193
Komer, Gene 764
Kondakov, Andrei 834
Kondo, Toshinori 111, 177, 178, 595, 722, 842, 1127
Kondrashkin, Alexander 853
Kondziela, Paul 438, 439
Kong, Jonny 481
Konitz, Lee 66, 67, 199, 201, 258, 296, 340, 342, 458, 461, 616, 787, 816, 833, 835, 954, 1000, 1001, 1052, 1053, 1057, 1143, 1159, 1394, 1400, 1417, 1418, 1494, 1518, 1541
Konket, Guy 1061
Konkova, Olga 840
Kono, Ben 719
Kono, Masahiko 249, 722, 842, 1128, 1129
Konopasek, Jan 694
Konrad, Bernd 841
Konstantynowicz, Marek 1279
Kontomanou, Elisabeth 238, 1076, 1340
Koøan, Jarda 664
Kooistra, Martineke 394
Koonse, Dave 236, 765, 841
Koonse, Larry 174, 198, 247, 626, 778, 841, 903, 955, 1084, 1292, 1452, 1466
Koor Nieuwe Muziek 170
Kopel, Simon 835
Kopf, Sabine 1381
Korb, Kristin 841
Korchinska, Maria 652
Kordus, Tom 247
Korman, Cliff 1055
Korn, Benny 1043
Kornacher, Bob 377
Kornazov, Guergoi 1394
Korner, Christopher 1095
Korsrud, John 620, 885, 1075
Korsström, Rasmus 621
Kortwright, Wito 1262
Korvin, Al 533
Kory, Erich 183
Koschorrok, Rolf 1080
Kosciecha, Paul 480
Kosek, Kenny 415
Kosloff, Lou 398, 1388
Koslov, Boris 550
Kosmides, Michael 315
Kosow, Stan 576
Kostavara, Athina 505
Koster, Jos 295
Kotche, Glenn 261
Kotheimer, Kurt 845
Kotick, Teddy 173, 243, 268, 311, 455, 458, 514, 544, 601, 976, 1079, 1117, 1119, 1192, 1249, 1278, 1299, 1323, 1397, 1460, 1527
Kottek, Hannes 1448
Kotter, Tommy 766
Kottler, Waltraud 1525
Kousakis, James 154
Koutzen, George 1001
Kouyake, Osmane 1539
Kovacs, Kornel 1525
Koven, Jack 83, 118, 889
Koverhult, Tommy 485
Kowald, Peter 20, 37, 97, 176, 177, 231, 317, 378, 484, 539, 562, 841, 906, 1265, 1270, 1332, 1382, 1403
Kozak, Ron 107, 327
Kozlov, Boris 282, 697, 916, 961, 1006, 1269, 1305
Kraabel, Caroline 1082, 1492
Kragh, Rik 49
Krahmer, Carlo 70, 918, 1286
Krajncan, Lojze 921
Krakatau 843
Krakauer, David 1088, 1543, 1544
Kral, Irene 279, 482, 550
Kral, Roy 50, 596, 1443, 1445, 1446
Krall, Diana 135, 185, 335, 843
Krall, Jackson 186, 446, 1041, 1145, 1298, 1383
Kramer, Maj-Britt 844
Kramer, Mark 569
Kramer, Tim 1403
Kranenburg, Kees 228, 667
Krantz, Wayne 126, 1175, 1441
Krasno, Eric 965, 1199
Kraus, Phil 483, 780, 797, 1313
Krause, Jo 972, 1463
Krauss, Briggan 129, 259, 516, 590
Krauss, Viktor 513
Krechter, Joe 1282, 1283
Krehm, Andy 1084
Kreibich, Paul 85, 123, 247, 301, 388, 656, 889, 955, 1038, 1083, 1091, 1146, 1225, 1292, 1452, 1499, 1513
Kreilein, Mitch 1043
Kreisberg, Jonathan 844, 904
Kreisler String Orchestra 225
Kress, Carl 43, 83, 105, 106, 395, 398, 622, 628, 715, 864, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1252, 1275, 1280, 1327, 1388
Kresse, Hans 708
Krimsley, David 1517
Kristensen, Kim 938, 939
Kristensson, Håkan 1149
Kristensson, Karin 1149
Kristian, Billy 225
Kristiansen, Søren 1396
Kristof, Emil 800
Krivda, Ernie 845
Krog, Karin 739, 846, 1364
Krokfors, Uffe 1, 621, 808, 843, 1448

Krom, Sebastiaan de 326, 394, 533
Kron, Göran 423
Kroner, Erling 799, 809, 810, 838, 1502
Kronos Quartet 1543
Kronquist, Tom 631
Kronqvist, Karl-Åke 1217
Kroon, Steve 110, 235, 843, 1074
Kropinski, Uwe 97, 511
Kroucrick, Leo 398
Krueger, Bennie 1100
Kruger, Jerry 56, 430, 847
Krum, Paul 752
Krupa, Gene 180, 297, 397, 423, 488, 504, 573, 574, 575, 576, 578, 638, 666, 711, 714, 774, 779, 847, 937, 1017, 1052, 1089, 1092, 1151, 1334, 1388, 1445, 1456, 1520, 1521
Kubera, Joseph 7, 1131
Kubis, Tom 850
Küchen, Martin 465
Kugel, Klaus 487, 521, 805, 1372
Kühn, Joachim 117, 276, 308, 734, 735, 850, 1323
Kuhn, Peter 1127
Kühn, Rolf 601, 851
Kuhn, Steve 393, 470, 545, 804, 846, 851, 969, 1302, 1369, 1370
Kuit, Peter Jr 169
Kujala, Steve 726
Kukko, Sakari 1, 1447
Kukkonen, Jarno 1433
Kull, Mike 983
Kullhammar, Jonas 766, 807, 852, 1087, 1459
Kumalo, Bakithi 168, 960
Kumar, Dev 747
Kumar, Sitara 747
Kumiko, Takara 1534
Kummer, Vinzenz 1046
Kummert, Nicolas 1422
Kuncl, Jack 377, 754
Kunkel, Russ 270
Kunstler, William 1290
Kunstner, Martin 1477
Kuntner, Christian 1386
Künzli, Mathias 1544
Kunzli, Matthias 1348
Kupke, Jürgen 253, 1429
Küpper, Sven 1043
Kurkiewicz, Sławomir 810, 1337
Kurkinen, Matti 834
Kurmann, Stephan 1396
Kurstin, Greg 226
Kurtzer, Dave 461, 1160
Kuryokhin, Sergey 853
Kusby, Ed 577, 764, 1283
Kusen, Hank 622
Kusting, Irving 1510
Kutch, Eugene 119
Kuzborski, Ed 577
Kviberg, Jesper 814
Kyle, Billy 24, 43, 44, 45, 56, 63, 477, 489, 490, 588, 638, 648, 699, 714, 715, 825, 826, 853, 1056, 1089, 1281, 1343, 1344, 1353, 1443
Kynard, Ben 638, 757
Kynard, Charles 854, 1346
Kyner, Sonny Red 516, 800, 867, 1170, 1188, 1195
Kytaasy, Julian 61
Kytasty, Julian 1545

L

L.A.4 854
La Centra, Peg 1282
La Conja 1006
La Fave, Dick 388
La Lupe 1262
La Motte, Keith 817, 818
La Penna, Dario 473
La Perche, Sal 397
LA Philharmonic 740
La Rue, Charles 397
LA String Quartet 914
LaBarbera, Joe 172, 222, 278, 323, 324, 330, 458, 459, 486, 521, 541, 778, 791, 841, 854, 878, 903, 904, 913, 914, 946, 955, 961, 1082, 1084, 1103, 1163, 1280, 1281, 1292, 1367, 1466, 1524
LaBarbera, Pat 792, 939, 1210, 1211
Labelle, Patti 1468
Laboriel, Abe 170, 264, 825, 1468
Lacey, Fred 1535
Lacey, Jack 118, 574, 1353
Lachance, Andre 916
Lachapelle, Norman 132
Lachat, Vincent 627
Lachmann, Gerhard 38
Lackerschmid, Wolfgang 67, 859
Lackner, Marko 174
Lacy, Butch 68, 89, 838, 854, 1227, 1228
Lacy, Ku-umba Frank 134, 137, 568, 1005, 1006
Lacy, Steve 57, 201, 203, 315, 461, 462, 533, 548, 562, 744, 775, 855, 992, 993, 1023, 1246, 1379, 1380, 1454, 1455
Lada, Tony 1210
Ladd, Mike 751, 752
Ladley, Bill 172
Ladnier, Tommy 51, 99, 100, 686, 1044, 1114, 1504
LaDuca, Paul 481, 1198
LaFargue, Taylor 26
LaFaro, Scott 274, 456, 479, 665, 862, 886, 899, 1036, 1111
LaFell, Leon 853, 1078
Lafertin, Fapy 711
Lafitte, Guy 263, 272, 273, 859
Lafone, Andy 773
Lafosse, André 1204
Lagasse, Benny 1093
Lage, Julian 205
Lagerberg, Klas 1150
Laginha, Mário 40
Lagrène, Biréli 238, 451, 462, 519, 859, 1133, 1390
Lagrène, Gaiti 859
Laguna, George 817
Lahey, Bill 814
Lahm, Dave 1211
Lahti, Pentti 1432, 1433, 1447, 1448
Laine, Bob 616
Laine, Reino 834
Laing, Ralph 1493
Laird, Jack 84
Laird, Rick 210, 568, 828, 922, 1210, 1276, 1414
Laka, Don 960
Lakatos, Tony 587, 922, 1325
Lake, Bonnie 271, 1283
Lake, Gene 400, 493, 649, 1256, 1401
Lake, Jahi 877
Lake, Oliver 117, 318, 325, 502, 572, 654, 860, 895, 1309, 1399, 1529, 1530
Lakey, Claude 763, 764
LaLama, Dave 48
Lalama, Ralph 374, 375, 861, 910, 926, 955, 1320, 1481
Lallemand, Sadi 772
Lalli, Gina 382
Lalo Schifrin orchestra 1444
Lamar, Luther 150
Lamare, James 83, 84, 937
Lamare, Nappy 125, 180, 329, 937, 1334, 1388
LaMaster, Jonathan 231
LaMattina, Steve 188
Lamb, Andrew 1298
Lamb, Bob 693
Lamb, Bobby 125, 615
Lamb, Giles 561
Lamb, John 436, 437, 438, 492, 774
Lamb, Merrit 1081
Lamb, Steve 1497
Lambe, Bobby 549
Lambe, Jeanie 756, 1046, 1264
Lambert, Dave 528, 848, 1117
Lambert, Donald 1110
Lambert, Eddie 182
Lambert, Fred 388
Lambert, Harold 1081
Lambert, Hendricks & Ross 861
Lambert, Hendricks and Ross 191
Lambert, Lloyd 1217
Lambert, Michael 843, 861
Lambert, Phamous 1217
Lambert, Scrappy 398, 573, 1066, 1446
Lamburn, Maria 1466
Lamkin, John 659
Lammi, Dick 784, 1058, 1472
Lamoglia, Felipe 1261
Lamond, Don 156, 199, 207, 239, 298, 355, 543, 544, 601, 692, 716, 752, 764, 794, 851, 877, 986, 1052, 1056, 1093, 1095, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1180, 1188, 1249, 1284, 1302, 1314, 1345, 1354, 1501
Lamont, Duncan 299, 367, 549, 1389, 1494
Lamont Jr, Duncan 608
Lamory, André 1202
Lampert, Steve 861, 1147
Lamphere, Charles 63, 1089
Lampkin, Chuck 544, 554
Lamptey, Chris 1167
Lamy, Gerry 693, 694
Lanauze, Yvonne 433
Lancaster, Byard 763, 862, 1062, 1172
Land, Harold 33, 181, 182, 312, 458, 479, 527, 540, 611, 662, 665, 723, 733, 740, 862, 1022, 1026, 1146, 1170, 1219, 1230, 1239, 1245, 1467, 1499, 1517, 1526
Landau, Michael 351, 825
Landau, Otto 864
Lande, Art 863, 1137, 1430
Landers, Wes 254
Landers, Wesley 31, 32, 1345
Landgren, Nils 619, 1087, 1406, 1407, 1458
Landham, Byron 363, 463, 791, 1370
Landham, Robert 1172, 1173
Landolf, Domenic 627
Landrum, Richard 79, 828, 1134
Landrum, Richie 732
Landseert, Jean-Luc 1098
Landsman, Julie 909
Landsnes, Endre 559
Landström, Sven-Åke 20
Landsvig, Mogens 126
Lane, Ace 1165
Lane, Adam 464, 593, 646, 863, 973, 1387
Lane, Adrian 1489
Lane, Jay 737
Lane, Jimmy 1319
Lane, Julian 150, 1328
Lane, Kitty 118
Lane, Lillian 577, 848, 1284
Lane, Morris 638, 699, 705, 1176
Lane, Muriel 692
Laneville-Johnson Union Brass Band 379
Lang, Eddie 41, 62, 105, 396, 398, 573, 807, 864, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1280, 1388, 1446

Lang, Irv 848, 947, 1092
Lang, Mike 441, 889, 1143, 1367
Lang, Red 118
Lang, Ronnie 466, 1139, 1408
Lang, Thomas 1449
Långbacka, Mikael 1432, 1433
Lange-Nielsen, Fred 602
Langereis, Rob 1395
Langereis, Robert 1029
Langford, Frances 42, 395, 397
Langford, George 925
Langham, Spats 961
Langley, Jake 363
Langley, Noel 333, 1355, 1489
Langlois, Isadore 1326
Langnes, Andreas Ulvo 1
Langone, Frank 395
Langone, Steve 995
Langosch, Paul 221
Langstaff, Allan 849
Lanin, Sam 105
Lankford, Harvey 1114
Lannigan, Jim 297
Lanoix, Auguste 148
Lanoue, Conrad 937
Lanphere, Don 601, 693, 864, 1280
Lanphier, Bill 247
Lantner, Steven 865
Lantz, Jack 1388
Lapcíková, Zuzana 1050
Lapeyronnie, Gaston 1202
Lapitino, J. 1456
LaPolla, Ralph 388
LaPorta, John 254, 413, 654, 692, 865, 920, 993, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1038, 1118
Lapp, Daniel 1075
Lapsey Band 379
Lapthorn, Tim 865, 1284, 1325
Lapuble, Pocho 79
Larkins, Ellis 63, 155, 156, 157, 490, 628, 667, 866, 999, 1275, 1353, 1483
Larkins, Milton 262
LaRoca, Pete 86, 207, 278, 470, 509, 640, 899, 979, 1233, 1249
LaRocca, Nick 1100
Laros, Louis 388
Larry, Ben 1210
Larsen, Kent 816, 817
Larsen, Mona 938, 939, 1431
Larsen, Morten Gunnar 1150
Larsen, Per 818
Larsen, Ture 800
Larson, John 417
Larsson, Björn 1149
Larsson, Monika 1060
Larsson, Rolf 427, 449, 602, 1030
Larsson, Sune 616
Larsson, Sven 897, 1250, 1459
Larue, Georges 497
Lasha, Prince 384, 866, 1173
Lashley, Lester 6, 506, 767, 1011
Lashley, Yorel 183
Lashway, Jeff 483
Láska, Jozef 664
Lasky, Al 1540
Lasley, David 1256
LaSpina, Steve 4, 117, 376, 485, 573, 629, 695, 806, 811, 866, 870, 968, 981, 1057, 1345, 1501
Lasserson, David 1490
Lassila, Sampo 843
Lassus, Francis 1272
Laster, Andy 420, 508, 516, 867, 1545
Laster, Shelton 600
Lastie, Melvin 641, 655, 1165
Laswell, Bill 59, 643
Lateano, Vince 987, 1405
Lateef, Yusef 10, 12, 212, 240, 517, 552, 598, 867, 1002, 1391, 1470, 1502
Latham, John 1030, 1031
Latimer, Lewis 1167
Latimer, Mark 868, 1509
Lattimore, Harlan 686, 1197, 1198
Laubrock, Ingrid 48, 869, 1101, 1171
Lauder, Murray 1084, 1377
Lauer, Christof 137, 367, 563, 869, 1472
Laugarts, Xiomara 1390
Laughton, Gail 1189
Laukamp, Bernt 690
Laukkanen, Pekka 1432, 1433
Laurence, Chris 81, 104, 269, 408, 870, 905, 1212, 1291, 1364, 1365, 1386, 1489, 1494, 1524
Laurence, Dave 333
Laurence, Quinny 269
Laurie, Cy 280, 869
Lauvergnac, Anna 1449
LaVaughn, Prince 377
LaVell, Bobby 1469
Lavelle, Matt 870, 1129, 1371
LaVere, Charles 715, 1388
LaVerne, Andy 4, 106, 117, 460, 546, 694, 845, 870, 1212, 1267, 1268
Lavorgna, Bill 204, 969
Law, Billy 628
Law, John 870, 903
Lawless, Rudy 793, 1226
Lawlor, Jack 943
Lawrence, Arnie 633, 1391
Lawrence, Azar 350, 1426
Lawrence, Bruce 571, 1066, 1141
Lawrence, Claude 871, 1305
Lawrence, Elliot 1052, 1303
Lawrence, Hugh 175
Lawrence, Michael 308
Lawrence, Mike 688
Lawrence, Ray 1510
Lawrence, Richard 1399
Lawrence, Ron 412, 1067
Lawrence, Trevor 1262
Laws, Hubert 66, 202, 234, 303, 304, 305, 322, 369, 551, 641, 768, 871, 919, 961, 1028, 1133, 1262, 1474, 1518, 1539
Laws, John 1210
Laws, Ronnie 871, 871
Laws, William 1044
Lawson, Bob 395, 417, 1089, 1283
Lawson, Cedric 349, 350
Lawson, Chad 872
Lawson, Charles 1114
Lawson, Don 187, 1206, 1422
Lawson, George 424
Lawson, Happy 1282, 1283
Lawson, Harold 1283
Lawson, Harry 826
Lawson, Hugh 417, 500, 739, 867, 872, 1470, 1508
Lawson, Terry 1173
Lawson, Yank 297, 396, 397, 424, 504, 626, 780, 872, 970, 1275, 1327, 1334, 1443, 1531
Lawton, Tom 560
Lay, Pete 296
Lay, Ward 864, 1280, 1446
Laya, Jean Baptiste 451
Laylan, Rollo 297, 947
Layne, Terry 819
Layton, Jeff 483
Layton, Skip 716, 815
Lazar, Sam 600
Lazarowitz, Barry 1031
Lazo, Eliel 1084
Lazro, Daunik 498, 872, 906
Lê, Nguyên 448, 660, 873, 992, 1174
Le Fleming, Orlando 72, 81, 99, 132, 263, 265, 700, 1180
Lea, Barbara 872, 1352
Lea, Simon 1096
Leach, Brian 1250
Leach, Mike 933
Leadbetter, Huddie 1104
Leader, Stan 443, 869
Leaders, The 874
Leahey, Harry 268
Leake, Jerry 775
Leake, Paul 473
Leake, Rob 1473
Leali, Brad 380
Léandre, Joëlle 161, 312, 729, 842, 858, 874, 906, 1088, 1161, 1271
Leaper, Bob 39
Leary, Bob 476, 741, 780, 1434
Leary, Ford 84, 118, 1327
Leary, James 94, 1451
Leary, Jimmy 338, 783
Leary III, James 656
Leatherbarrow, Bob 889, 1472
Leatherwood, Ray 368, 680
Lebaigue, Jim 402
LeBaron, Anne 515, 730
Lebeaux, Herman 1496
Lebeugle, Patricia 394
LeBlanc, Carl 1360
Lebovich, Abi 52
Lebovich, Ari 897
Lebovich, Avi 267
Lebow, Herman 555
Lebron, Vicente 423
Lechner, Otto 447
Lechusza, Alan 566
LeCocque, Archie 817
Led Bib 875
Leddy, Ed 466, 482, 720, 808, 816, 817, 1119
Lederer, Jeff 1519
Lederer, Steve 694
Ledesma, Pablo 663
Ledford, Mark 214, 460, 903, 994, 995
Ledgerwood, LeeAnn 875, 966
LeDonne, Mike 376, 380, 569, 663, 876, 904, 1187, 1198, 1225, 1320, 1321, 1322
Lee, Abram 1536
Lee, Bill 919, 1350, 1351
Lee, Canada 257
Lee, Chucky 862
Lee, Clarence 1201, 1504
Lee, Crissy 876
Lee, Dave 332, 467
Lee, David 1234, 1309, 1532, 1539
Lee, Dick 74
Lee, Freeman 723
Lee, Geoff 1450
Lee, George 'Buddy' 975
Lee, Jeanne 129, 130, 136, 183, 197, 324, 636, 637, 842, 876, 1290, 1529
Lee, John 640, 1227
Lee, Jon 415
Lee, Julia 987
Lee, Mel 26, 202, 863, 1517
Lee, Okkyung 2, 210, 752
Lee, Peggy 125, 206, 400, 566, 576, 577, 620, 728, 885, 1075, 1408
Lee, Perri 1346
Lee, Phil 280, 322, 326, 726, 880, 1140, 1342
Lee, Ralph 1189
Lee, Sam 200, 413, 424
Lee, Scott 67, 1193, 1345
Lee, Sonny 118, 395, 574, 588
Lee, Søren 648
Lee, Teddy 1540
Lee, Telam 1506
Lee, Thomas 395
Lee, Tony 70
Lee, Will 80, 114, 168, 240, 483, 924, 1008, 1340
Leecan, Bobbie 1456
Leeds, Charlie 1210

Lee Jr, David 949
Leeman, Cliff 83, 84, 298, 336, 355, 397, 528, 622, 708, 710, 1282, 1365, 1447
LeFave, Dick 388, 576
Lefcoski, Jonathan 949
Lefebvre, Tim 126, 217, 330, 460, 493
Lefèvre, Christian 1058
Leff, Jim 790
Leftwich, Slim 357
Legan, Bill 1171
Legarreta, Felix Pupi 1261, 1262
Legge, Wade 212, 259, 553, 613, 978, 1000, 1001, 1025, 1232
Leggett, Alan 480
Leggett, Archie 315
Leggio, Carmen 123, 482, 693
Legnini, Eric 371
Legon, Freddy 918
Legrand, Michel 877
Legros, Nicole 1251
Lehman, Steve 164, 166, 443, 751, 877, 1088
Lehn, Thomas 206, 251, 411, 594
Lehto, Heikki Lefty 843
Leibrook, Min 105, 106, 864, 1388
Leigh, Carol 682, 1437
Leighton, Bernie 715, 1056, 1118, 1283, 1354, 1509
Leighton, Elaine 716
Leijonhufvud, Johan 1057
Leimgruber, Urs 390
Leininger, Bob 1417, 1445
Leistola, Elisabeth 1447
Leisz, Greg 513
Leitch, Peter 90, 183, 878, 1155
Leith, Dick 346, 765
Leith, Richard 1231
Leitham, John 247, 301, 498, 541, 889, 1225, 1409
Leitham, John/Jennifer 878
Leitham, Johnny 626
Le Lann, Eric 1324
Leloup, Denis 223, 519, 1324
LeMaire, Jack 937, 947
Lemarchand, Pierre 65, 209, 796, 1030, 1204, 1206, 1302
Lemer, Pepi 39
Lemer, Peter 879, 1207, 1386, 1397, 1487
Lemerle, Dominic 587
Lemoine, Philippe 1098
Lemon, Brian 70, 81, 82, 157, 158, 187, 248, 266, 267, 467, 596, 635, 879, 962, 1046, 1225, 1389, 1435
Lemon, Eric 57
Lendreseau, François 1061
Lennholm, Karl-Erik 427
Lenz, Günter 119, 835
Lenza, Joe 388
Leo, Kevin 76
Leon, Dana 1402
Leon, Joyce Jr 888
Leon, Reuben 84, 440, 441
Leonard, Bob 967
Leonard, Brian 967
Léonard, Gaston 1203
Leonard, Harlan 879, 1047
Leonard, Harvey 50, 268, 413, 1210, 1443
Leonard, Jack 396, 397, 1537
Leonard, Tony 694
Leone, Tony 551
Leong, Dana 751, 753, 898
Leonhardt, David 934
Leonhardt, Michael 28
Leonhart, Carolyn 451
Leonhart, Jay 46, 88, 196, 327, 328, 361, 701, 739, 794, 837, 1057, 1168, 1292, 1501
Leonhart, Michael 739, 1255, 1481
Leoni, Adelio 535
LePinto, Frank 1209
Lepistö, Johan 1150
Leppard, Greg 1473
Lerner, Al 763, 764
Lerner, Marilyn 880
Le Roc, Kele 1167
Lertoft, Gorm 668
LeSage, Bill 70, 652, 672, 880
Lesberg, Jack 16, 102, 156, 157, 270, 297, 336, 355, 397, 477, 576, 601, 622, 626, 668, 715, 734, 779, 970, 1260, 1319, 1327, 1366, 1388, 1443
Lescalleet, Jason 812
Lesher, Bob 848, 849
Leshin, Phil 319, 413, 1228
Lesicki, Jerzy 834
Leslie, Alex 918
Leslie, Bill 1534
Leslie, Ralph 814
Lessey, Bob 155, 423, 686, 1198, 1520
Lester, Norman 24, 669, 1098
LeTanka, Pete 976
Letcher, Henry 917
Lété, Olivier 1098
Letham, Harry 70
Letman, Johnny 219, 705
Lett, Bruce 1288, 1472
Leukaufe, Carl 880
Leusink, Albert 991
Leva, Jasmin Avitabile 927
Levallet, Didier 104, 872, 911, 1103, 1324
Levander, Jan 1347
Levanto, Pessi 1525
Léveque, Gérard 1203, 1204
Leveratto, Piero 534, 929, 940, 1107
Levett, Patrick 865
Levey, Stan 50, 65, 66, 125, 222, 364, 469, 479, 491, 525, 543, 544, 552, 553, 616, 654, 662, 666, 720, 793, 808, 816, 953, 1115, 1146, 1149, 1230, 1239, 1247, 1248, 1287, 1346, 1445, 1478, 1513, 1531
Levi, James 643
Leviev, Milcho 264, 441, 655, 861, 1143, 1165
Levin, Alexei 51
Levin, Daniel 186, 648, 880, 942
Levin, Dave 1409
Levin, Elliott 881, 1173, 1298
Levin, Goran 68
Levin, Mike 362
Levin, Pete 462, 1274
Levin, Tony 103, 225, 359, 386, 408, 409, 652, 674, 824, 881, 1051, 1109, 1404, 1494, 1524
Levine, Bob 207
Levine, Dave 957
Levine, Duke 549
Levine, Harvey 1210
Levine, Henry 100, 1252
Levine, Mark 987, 1292, 1405
Levine, Nat 100
Levine, Rozanne 1127
Levine, Steve 1403
Levinsky, Walt 545, 601, 626, 797, 1094, 1249, 1509
Levinson, Dan 551, 611, 741, 747, 748, 1352, 1454
Levinson, Mark 139
Levitt, Al 138, 173, 639, 837, 855, 886, 1001, 1186, 1417
Levitt, Alan 591, 954
Levitt, Joshua 52
Levitt, Rod 461, 553, 554, 797, 881, 1467
Levy, Al 586
Levy, Bob 775
Levy, Howard 428
Levy, Jed 878, 881, 967
Levy, Jesse 1168
Levy, John 184, 209, 257, 1286, 1316, 1344, 1445, 1537
Levy Jr, John 528
Levy, Lou 50, 51, 170, 222, 239, 251, 301, 471, 491, 540, 544, 546, 549, 571, 587, 669, 692, 720, 752, 882, 954, 1038, 1082, 1084, 1093, 1143, 1162, 1230, 1231, 1244, 1280, 1346
Levy, Rudolph 357
Levy, Yaaki 182
Lew, Ricardo 79
Lewin, Max 1457
Lewington, Bill 70
Lewis, Al 1224
Lewis, Bob 372
Lewis, Cappy 525, 691, 692
Lewis, Charles 1202, 1203
Lewis, Charlie 102, 1516
Lewis, Ed 90, 91, 262, 1047, 1169
Lewis, Eric 896, 952, 1169, 1185, 1214, 1392, 1515
Lewis, George 151, 160, 161, 294, 379, 455, 562, 783, 784, 856, 857, 858, 882, 959, 1075, 1112, 1314, 1337, 1437
Lewis, George E. 6, 7, 159, 160, 744, 885, 992, 1059, 1121, 1122, 1271, 1542
Lewis, Greg 1076
Lewis, Gwyn 826
Lewis, Harold 1283
Lewis, Herb 1277
Lewis, Herbie 322, 740, 862, 979, 980, 1290, 1424, 1426, 1517
Lewis, Irv 84, 228, 692
Lewis, James 499, 731, 1374, 1531
Lewis, Jimmy 92, 854, 1165, 1299, 1468
Lewis, John 180, 299, 340, 341, 457, 490, 544, 553, 629, 668, 754, 785, 786, 886, 1000, 1001, 1014, 1054, 1115, 1117, 1170, 1232, 1233, 1302, 1345, 1346, 1536, 1537
Lewis, Juno 291
Lewis, Kerry 681, 1496
Lewis, Lockwood 377, 379
Lewis, Matt 124
Lewis, Maxayn 713
Lewis, Meade Lux 31, 100, 101, 628, 736, 789, 887, 1078
Lewis, Mel 9, 51, 67, 111, 123, 156, 173, 201, 229, 230, 258, 301, 329, 369, 384, 447, 466, 482, 491, 542, 549, 550, 555, 615, 634, 720, 736, 791, 816, 817, 831, 926, 933, 943, 954, 971, 1031, 1052, 1053, 1054, 1082, 1093, 1094, 1111, 1142, 1146, 1230, 1231, 1245, 1277, 1280, 1303, 1313, 1346, 1354, 1408, 1434, 1513, 1517
Lewis, Michael 648
Lewis, Mingo 304, 1208
Lewis, Ramsey 570, 887, 939
Lewis, Robert 455
Lewis, Robert 'Son' 455
Lewis, Steve 1167
Lewis, Sylvester 424, 724, 725
Lewis, Ted 888
Lewis, Teddy 686
Lewis, Tony 654
Lewis, Vic 70, 622, 889, 1190

Lewis, Victor 87, 132, 137, 142, 149, 171, 215, 303, 389, 471, 503, 546, 547, 587, 684, 685, 709, 787, 890, 891, 895, 914, 916, 934, 985, 993, 1071, 1102, 1111, 1147, 1227, 1242, 1250, 1280, 1285, 1286, 1335, 1352, 1369, 1406, 1424, 1441, 1461, 1463, 1471, 1491, 1508, 1513
Lewis, William 228, 1167
Lewis, Yvonne 1468
Ley, Steve 426
Leybaert, Emiel 295
Leyden, Norman 1443
Leykin, Leonid 853
Lhotzky, Bernd 890
Libano, Giulio 64, 66, 533
Librecht, Marcel 1203
Lichter, Paul 224
Liddington, Gethin 409, 1404
Lieb, Dick 461, 1523
Liebezeit, Jaki 562
Liebig, Steuart 109, 110, 890
Liebman, David 153, 302, 330, 349, 350, 408, 508, 548, 601, 613, 651, 660, 735, 806, 851, 890, 992, 976, 1102, 1111, 1187, 1369, 1492, 1525
Liesse, Jean 1302
Lietzmann, Willy 562
Ligeti, Lukas 1310
Liggett, Kim 1141
Lightcap, Chris 50, 186, 373, 893, 1042, 1314, 1372, 1463
Lightfoot, Paddy 72, 443
Lightfoot, Terry 443, 893
Lightsey, Kirk 66, 183, 499, 754, 874, 878, 894, 916, 1192
Ligthart, Arie 411
Lijbaart, Joost 721
Lilja, John 559
Liller, Bjarne 1112
Lil Hardin, Armstrong 24, 40, 41, 379, 380, 1097, 1103, 1389
Lima, Alyrio 977, 1475
Limouzin, Vincent 1098
Lince, Louis 1217
Lincoln, Abbey 384, 894, 1219, 1220
Lincoln, Abe 494, 542, 900, 937, 1433
Lincoln, Lisa 467
Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra 895
Lind, Björn 1250
Lind, Göran 1150, 1354
Lind, John 818
Lind, Olle 20, 387, 1250
Lind, Ove 27, 424, 449, 1499
Lindberg, Göran 447, 1237
Lindberg, Jeff 1393
Lindberg, John 120, 161, 742, 896, 960, 1088, 1311, 1349, 1472
Lindberg, Nils 21, 439, 897
Lindberg, Ulf 1150
Lindblom, John 487
Lindblom, Putte 616
Linde, Ulf 386
Lindell, Ivar 300, 1327
Lindell, Rolf 46
Lindén, Anders 1150
Lindenmaier, Lukas 1381
Linder, John 420
Lindgreen, Ole 'Fessor' 356
Lindgren, Ben 1329
Lindgren, Carl-Erik 1149
Lindgren, Carl-Henrik 615
Lindgren, Gunnar 766
Lindgren, Jens 1149, 1354
Lindgren, Jonas 807
Lindgren, Kurt 383
Lindgren, Lars 767, 996
Lindgren, Magnus 49, 1347, 1348
Lindgren, Marcus 1347
Lindholm, Lucas 69
Lindner, Jason 52, 267, 268, 897, 1108
Lindqvist, Bengt 1306
Lindqvist, Claes 767
Lindroth, Claes 616
Lindsay, Arto 216, 512, 1542
Lindsay, John 31, 42, 100, 379, 798, 1044, 1085, 1167
Lindsay, Johnny 223
Lindsay, Tommy 667
Lindschouw, Ib 1113
Lindsey, John 1103
Lindström, Hans 897
Lindström, Jeanette 805
Lindvall, Anders 'Chico' 95, 996, 1525
Lindvall, Per 378, 1086
Linehan, Tommy 691, 692
Lines, Trevor 898
Lingle, Paul 898
Linka, Rudy 898
Linn, Ray 125, 364, 395, 416, 482, 525, 577, 691, 692, 1056, 1089, 1093, 1230, 1283, 1284
Linnavalli, Esko 1, 834
Linson, Adam 899, 1126
Linsted, Kari 1448
Lintinen, Kirmo 1432, 1433
Linton, Charles 1476
Linton, Errol 1515
Lionberg, Red 1093
Lipere, Thebe 59, 95, 1016, 1050, 1122
Lipkins, Steve 118, 396, 1089, 1283
Lipnik, Lawrence 1260
Lipp, Karsten 335
Lippman, Joe 118, 395, 1282
Lipscomb, Ronald 1290
Lisée, Charles 667, 1202, 1203
Lisée, Max 1202
Liss, Joe 63, 1089
List, Garrett 169
Listengart, Sam 848, 1092
Lister, Ken 1075
Liston, Bill 850
Liston, Melba 231, 338, 383, 553, 554, 580, 690, 732, 755, 797, 798, 899, 1027, 1071, 1277, 1313, 1467, 1516, 1517
Liston, Virginia 1504
Liter, Monia 570
Litteral, Paul 1256
Little, Booker 287, 382, 383, 894, 899, 1219, 1220, 1350
Little, Kay 50
Little, Simon 1285
Little, Steve 438, 579, 748, 823, 1066
Little, Wilbur 495, 732, 772, 786, 787, 792, 802, 1130, 1246, 1391
Little Beaver 1134
Little Huey Creative Music Orchestra 1129
Littlejohn, Jeff 119
Little Ramblers, The 900
Littleton, Jeff 986
Littman, Peter 64, 65, 616, 943, 1425
Litton, Martin 336, 467, 611, 900
Litty, Joachim 1429
Lively, Bob 815
Living, Bernard 905, 1488
Livingston, Bob 967
Livingston, Fud 42, 395, 573, 1017, 1081, 1280, 1446
Livingston, Ulysses 228, 488, 489, 528, 667, 714, 758, 789, 1078, 1331, 1343, 1344, 1353
Livingston, Wally 629
Livingstone, Isaac 1516
Ljunggren, Gustav 648
Ljungh, Knut 751
Ljungkvist, Fredrik 487, 618, 805, 900, 1087, 1350, 1459
Llado, Sébastien 1098
Llewellyn, Jack 591, 1203
Lloyd, Charles 11, 633, 768, 900
Lloyd, James 1468
Lloyd, Jerry 786, 1052, 1303, 1460
Lloyd, Jon 902
Lluis, André 1202, 1203
Lobligeois, Roland 195, 262, 609, 1394
Lobo, Edú 369
Lobovsky, Nat 118
Lock, Billy 1422, 1484
Lockart, Rob 903
Locke, Chauncey 499
Locke, Eddie 194, 201, 263, 425, 570, 668, 670, 963, 1186, 1352, 1436
Locke, Joe 87, 149, 215, 235, 270, 323, 330, 357, 361, 368, 451, 486, 527, 591, 661, 678, 684, 791, 811, 862, 903, 926, 1006, 1180, 1227, 1241, 1307, 1318, 1325, 1480
Locke, Major 668
Locke, Sharese 1399
Lockert, James 662
Lockett, Al 1535
Lockett, Andrea 709
Lockett, Mornington 405, 956, 1277, 1284, 1415, 1482
Lockfort, Hiawatha 1544
Lockhart, Walt 424
Lockheart, Mark 95, 99, 281, 904, 1171, 1466
Lockrane, Gareth 608
Lockwood, Bill 388
Lockwood, Bob 321
Lockwood, Didier 237, 519, 841
Lockwood, John 110, 502, 512, 678, 809, 930, 1506
Lockwood, Will 1204
LoCrasto, Frank 1139
Locrian String Quartet 1413
Lodati, Claudio 249
Lodder, Steve 453, 1250, 1291, 1412, 1497
Lodice, Don 118, 397, 818, 1540
Lodico, Alex 221, 1128, 1129
LoDuca, Andy 680
Lodwig, Ray 864, 1387, 1446
Loeb, Chuck 80, 329, 330, 546, 851
Loeffler, Carl 1433
Loeffler, Tschirglo 859
Löfcrantz, Johan 49, 386, 387
Loffler, Carl 398
Löfgren, Martin 1347
Lofsky, Lorne 967, 1156, 1157
Lofthus, Torstein 1301
Logan, Dan 1505
Logan, Ella 180, 1331
Logan, Freddie 360, 673, 674
Logan, Giuseppi 904
Logan, Laura Tequila 1535
Logan, Michael 7
Logan, Steve 1159
Logic, DJ 738, 1236
Löhrer, Eric 908
Lohrer, Klaus 95
Løkke, Birgit 964
Lolatte, Bill 395
Lomax, Alan 1045
Lomax, Amelia 1169
Lomax, Arene 1169
Lomax, Lawrence 1504
Lombardi, Clyde 63, 123, 199, 424, 576, 577, 632, 664, 945, 947, 1095, 1162, 1189, 1302, 1417, 1445
Lombardo, Dave 1545
Lomon, Glynis 648
Lonberg-Holm, Fred 97, 178, 179, 206, 604, 618, 1257, 1439
Londell, Rolf 420
London, Amy 110
London, Frank 1543
London Brass 1365

London Community Gospel Choir 1167
London Improvisers Orchestra 905
London Jazz Composers' Orchestra 621, 905
London Symphony Orchestra 193, 923, 992
Lonesome Dragon 203
Long, Donald 'Slats' 118, 396, 888, 1089, 1353
Long, Huey 40, 337, 798
Long, James 111
Long, Kathleen 83, 119
Long, Red 628, 1075
Long John 1261
Longmire, Wilbert 946
Longnon, Jean-Loup 569
Longo, Alessandra Giura 508
Longo, John 627, 947
Longo, Mike 555, 1031
Longstreth, Everett 1171
Lonzo, Freddie 465, 950, 1496
Lookofsky, Harry 962, 1028
Loomer, Martin 520
Looney, Scott R. 124
Looss, Walter 576
Loper, Charlie 85, 108, 496, 656, 1517
Lopes, José 1263
Lopez, Charlie 889
López, Horacio 663
Lopez, Israel Cachao 871
Lopez, Ivan 815
Lopez, Manny 362
Lopez, Mauricio 1510
Lopez, Paul 440
Lopez, Pedrito 406
Lopez, Perry 1314
López, Ramón 484, 818, 819, 906, 1145
Lopez, Tommy 817, 1405
Loposer, Avery 357
Lord, Bobby 50
Lord, Sian 76
Lorden, Herb 765
Lorentsen, Sue 1321
Lorentz, Robin 1310
Lorentzen, Stein 602
Lorraine, Al 1210, 1445
Los Angeles Jazz Orchestra 1528
Loschi, Mario 533
Losito, Dino 375
Lossing, Russ 907, 1345
Lötjönen, Antti 746
Lott, Simon 739
Lott, Sinclair 577
Loueke, Lionel 135, 268, 644, 1447
Lough, Chris 1223
Loughborough, Bill 65
Louhivuori, Olavi 746, 1422
Lou Holden Orchestra 588
Louis, Elmer 991
Louis, Kevin 914
Louis Jordan Tympany Five 43, 489
Louiss, Eddy 546, 587, 734, 907
Loupe, John 301
Lourau, Julien 895, 908, 1538
Lourie, Vic 490, 803
Lourties, Stéphane 1500
Louth, Cyril 316
Louvel, Olivier 943
Lovano, Joe 4, 150, 184, 192, 246, 407, 445, 448, 481, 610, 629, 630, 651, 652, 750, 789, 895, 908, 948, 1048, 1049, 1173, 1175, 1199, 1212, 1270, 1274, 1307, 1318, 1369, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1428
Løvdal, Jesper 35
Love, Anita 424
Love, Candy 642
Love, Charles 148, 1072
Love, Geoff 1190
Love, Preston 91, 760, 999
Lovejoy, Chris 738
Lovelace, Jimmie 112, 113, 866, 1027, 1065
Lovelle, Herbie 221, 257, 504, 529, 719, 783, 1170, 1483
Loven, Jack 461
Lovens, Paul 224, 251, 296, 562, 594, 613, 874, 875, 910, 1122, 1125, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1271, 1373, 1381
Lovett, Leroy 35, 712, 1478
Lovett, Sam 987
Lövgren, Bertil 20, 46, 782, 1250, 1306
Lovillete, Irvin 1301
Loving, Ed 826
Loving, Keith 462, 828
Löwå, Dag 427
Lowe, Bill 7, 501, 1298
Lowe, Dal 80
Lowe, Francis 62
Lowe, Frank 19, 74, 75, 246, 283, 910, 983
Lowe, Geoffrey 362
Lowe, John 496, 818
Lowe, Keith 728, 1544
Lowe, Leroy 151, 503, 763, 766, 830, 1250
Lowe, Mundell 108, 156, 229, 230, 270, 299, 360, 470, 715, 734, 736, 772, 797, 912, 986, 1119, 1181, 1278, 1443, 1444, 1478, 1505
Lowe, Sammy 670, 671
Lowenkron, Paul 764
Lowry, Leonard 667
Lowther, Henry 40, 119, 280, 281, 315, 362, 532, 549, 608, 905, 906, 912, 1251, 1266, 1355, 1364, 1386, 1403, 1412, 1414, 1415, 1482, 1488, 1489, 1494, 1524
Lowther, Ken 1203
Loyacano, Arnold 'Deacon' 150, 937, 1076
Loyacano, Joe 628
Lozano, Rolando 1261, 1262
Lozano, Sal 850, 1094
LSTwo Ensemble 480
Luadet, Phillippe 1500
Lubambo, Romero 76, 80, 87, 212, 217, 406, 830, 934, 955, 1469
Lubat, Bernard 546
Luboff, Abe 815, 816
Luc, Sylvain 859
Luca, Francis 1203
Luca, Loes 170
Lucas, Al 123, 156, 210, 431, 432, 698, 758, 759, 760, 786, 1109, 1510
Lucas, Buddy 54, 113, 867
Lucas, Gary 1456
Lucas, Goldie 1098, 1504
Lucas, Joe 622
Lucas, Johnny 487, 888
Lucas, Ray 112, 113, 719, 871, 1262, 1402
Lucas, Reggie 349, 350
Lucas, Tommy 848, 849, 1066
Luce, Francine 1016
Luchowski, Larry 307
Lucht, Jim 1536, 1537
Lucía, Paco de 977
Luciani, Dante 1064, 1261
Lucie, Lawrence 24, 42, 228, 423, 667, 686, 711, 714, 734, 789, 999, 1044, 1470, 1520
Lücker, Björn 1416
Luckhurst, Jo 480
Lucky Four, The 999
Lucky Seven, The 999
Lucy, Lawrence 108
Lüdi, Werner 842
Ludvig, Svend 818
Ludwig, Gene 175, 719, 1171
Luening, Warren 496, 1409
Lugg, George 100
Luino, Severin 1203
Lujan, Tony 916, 1517
Lukiwski, Terry 1084
Lukkarinen, Jaska 746
Lunardi, Stephano 722
Lunceford, Jimmie 912
Lund, Art 576
Lund, Bernt Simen 1279
Lund, Håvard 1279
Lund, Lage 132, 780, 914, 1285, 1349
Lund, Morten 122, 648, 767, 914, 921, 1194, 1453
Lundberg, Don 26
Lundberg, Johannes 423
Lundberg, Ron 821
Lundborg, Erik 616
Lundén-Welden, Gunnar 420, 427
Lundgaard, Jesper 38, 49, 68, 140, 151, 256, 308, 339, 387, 495, 503, 515, 610, 719, 800, 802, 834, 838, 850, 894, 913, 954, 1130, 1191, 1192, 1212, 1227, 1237, 1396, 1502, 1522, 1525
Lundgren, Jan 222, 387, 388, 449, 508, 541, 791, 913, 921, 955, 1084, 1146
Lundgren, Mårten 921, 1227
Lundgren, Morten 767
Lundin, Fredrik 71, 781, 809, 810, 964, 1431
Lundström, Allan 897
Lundstrom, Lasse 114
Lundy, Benjamin 340
Lundy, Carmen 914, 915
Lundy, Curtis 75, 183, 231, 310, 505, 700, 914, 915, 915, 1037, 1038, 1071, 1259, 1470, 1471
Lunetta, Larry 720, 1008, 1169
Lunge 915
Lunsford, Carl 401, 1058
Luppi, Riccardo 473, 535
Luscomb, Stephen 1333
Lusher, Don 125
Lussu, Pietro 559
Lustgarten, Alfred 1478
Luter, Claude 102, 537, 915, 1319
Luther, Bill 763, 764
Luther, Frank 1446
Luthra, Arun 502, 1331
Luty, Christoph 259
Lutzkanov, Krassen 908
Lutzke, Myron 630
Lyall, Chick 74, 820, 915
Lybaart, Joost 721
Lychou, Gunnar 938, 939
Lyle, Bobby 170, 871
Lyle, George 203, 561
Lyle, Teena 453
Lyle, William 148
Lymperis, Bob 815
Lynane, Dave 371, 483
Lynch, Brian 134, 368, 543, 697, 916, 1035, 1209, 1222, 1269, 1321, 1351, 1352, 1528
Lynch, Carl 113, 248, 789
Lynch, Eddie 461
Lynch, Jim 937
Lynch, Jimmy 1388
Lynch, John 826
Lynch, Reuel 1082
Lynch, Willie 999
Lyne, Tom 999
Lynn, Ray 720
Lyons, Art 1388
Lyons, Artie 395
Lyons, Cliff 252
Lyons, Jimmy 136, 324, 917, 1057, 1380, 1381
Lyric String Quartet 825

Lytell, Jimmy 63, 1081, 1101, 1353
Lytle, Hub 1388
Lytle, Johnny 917, 1402
Lyttelton, Humphrey 102, 520, 915, 917, 1476
Lytton, Paul 409, 484, 515, 562, 620, 621, 821, 906, 919, 1012, 1120, 1121, 1122, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1126, 1439, 1453

M

M, Erik 390
M, Johnny 1080
M, Sachiko 1533
M'Boup, Abdou 465, 651, 1159, 1424
M'Bow, Gana 1398, 1501
Maakheru, Aayodele 709
Maass, Torsten 174
Mabane, Bob 987
Mabern, Harold 231, 273, 353, 377, 470, 499, 579, 598, 639, 679, 732, 919, 980, 1013, 1040, 1041, 1136, 1241, 1351
Mabett, Tony 483
Macari, Kim 1318
Macaulay, Eddie 228, 248, 477
Macchiarola, Ray 681
Macchio, Mario 533
MacConnell, Kevin 560
MacDonald, Doug 247, 259
Macdonald, Ernest 31
Macdonald, Everett 764
Macdonald, Laura 920
MacDonald, Nicola 203
MacDonald, Ralph 369, 483, 1255, 1468, 1511
MacDonald, Raymond 561, 920
MacDonough, Bill 442
Macé, Philippe 223
Mace, Tom 329, 646, 714, 937, 1445
Macero, Teo 347, 350, 877, 920, 1000, 1001
Macey, Tom 1520
MacFarlane, Malcolm 223, 533
MacGlone, Una 561
Machado, Edison 234, 545
Machito 815, 1095, 1117, 1379
Machtel, Jos 691
Macintosh, Adrian 918, 919
MacIntosh, Jim 409
Macioci, Giovanni 1091
Mack, Billy 1505
Mack, Clarence 155
Mack, Peter 375
Mackay, Bernie 490
MacKay, Dave 440, 441
Mackay, Duncan 898, 1525
Mackel, Billy 262, 638, 639, 1029
MacKenzie, Kevin 74, 1188
MacKenzie, Tony 18
Mackey, Bernie 118, 489
Mackie, Hank 681
Mackie, Red 1328
MacKinnon, Chuck 76
Mackintosh, Andy 108, 269, 483, 1412
Mackintosh, Spike 187, 475
Mackness, Vanessa 296, 921
Mackrel, Dennis 94, 137, 241, 327, 795, 1168, 1260, 1268, 1287, 1350, 1376
MacLean, Don 1162
MacLeod, John 967
MacNiven, Tom 1318, 1410
MacQuordale, Mac 691
Macrae, Dave 39, 225
Macuchu 1261
Madden, Dave 693, 765, 1540
Madden, Gail 413
Madden, Gladys 667
Maddock, Red 39, 461
Maddox, Art 226
Maddox, Napoleon 498, 1068
Maddox, Paul 860
Mader, Patrick 1043
Madera, Jose 550, 1095
Madera, Oscar 99
Madi, Kalil 538
Madigan, Art 50, 514, 544, 693, 1443
Madigan, Betty 849
Madiot, Thierry 906
Madison, Bingie 42, 1098, 1251, 1343, 1504
Madison, Dianne 1399
Madison, James 265, 827, 1228
Madison, Jimmy 1067, 1270, 1460
Madison, Louis 'Kid Shots' 238, 379, 784, 882
Madof, Jon 1544, 1545
Madrick, Steve 779
Madrid, John 1210
Madsen, Flemming 95, 356, 495, 799, 996, 1102, 1324, 1479
Madsen, Katrine 921
Madsen, Knud Ryskov 356, 628, 1112, 1113
Madsen, Pete 1496
Madsen, Peter 709, 1063, 1134, 1135
Maebe, Art 346, 818
Maesto, Christian 1101
Maestri, Harold 'Katz' 293
Magadini, Pete 520
Magdaluyo, Melecio 765
Magis, Jo 1203
Magliocchi, Marcello 1107
Magnarelli, Joe 28, 299, 375, 518, 721, 921, 926, 1078, 1091, 1321, 1343, 1370, 1480
Magnien, Jean 1202
Magnoni, Maurice 1420
Magnusson, Bob 104, 151, 272, 278, 376, 1143, 1211, 1280, 1281, 1292, 1320
Magris, Roberto 921
Magruder, John 440, 441
Maguire, Alex 116, 359, 922, 1034
Maguire, Carl 922
Mahadevan, Shankar 978
Mahalakshmi 976
Mahall, Rudi 562, 782, 922, 1266, 1372, 1373
Mahan, Earl 207
Mahanthappa, Rudresh 172, 751, 752, 922
Maharaj, Prakash 646
Maharaj, Vikash 646
Mahavishnu Orchestra 922
Mahavishnu Project, The 923
Mahdee, Kahlil 706
Maher, Clare 938
Maher, John 285
Maheu, Jack 355, 923, 981
Mahieux, Jacques 1103, 1393
Mahieux, Nicolas 1098
Mahlanghu, Ngenekhaya 960
Mahn, Tim 187, 466
Mahn, Tom 475
Mahogany, Kevin 18, 185, 923, 939, 1019
Mahones, Gildo 201, 324, 449, 689, 861, 1170, 1242, 1486, 1537
Maiden, Willie 299, 482, 705, 818
Maidman, Ian 1497
Maier, Giovanni 96, 108, 446, 1193, 1194
Maihack, Jim 1058
Maillot, Tristan 320, 963, 1506
Main, Steve 281
Maina, Ed 1064
Maini, Joe 549, 550, 681, 935, 1000, 1001, 1093, 1517
Mainieri, Mike 448, 565, 610, 1028, 1210, 1256, 1362
Mains, Dick 576
Maio, Rogerio 1055
Maiorana, Maurizio 1092
Maiore, Salvatore 96, 1254
Mairants, Ivor 70, 228, 248
Maisel, Bob 589
Maisel, Jack 430, 853, 1344
Maize, Bob 469, 1038, 1205, 1409, 1499
Majewski, Virginia 577
Makarski, Michelle 1337
Maker, Greg 1302, 1318
Makgathi, Sibongile 960
Makihara, Toshi 1297
Makis, Peter 1071
Makowicz, Adam 924
Malabe, Frank 1008
Malaby, Tony 339, 516, 625, 681, 696, 727, 809, 893, 924, 1049, 1088, 1098, 1135, 1228, 1254, 1270, 1275, 1342, 1430, 1442
Malach, Bob 240, 265, 266, 352, 709, 810, 924, 1008, 1340, 1441, 1452, 1540
Malach, Bobby 1539
Malachi 1349
Malachi, John 416, 596, 1443, 1523, 1537
Malaguti, Llanfranco 924
Malcolm, Austin 564
Maldonado, Angel 'Cachete' 80
Maldonado, Raymond 1262
Maldonado, Yolanda 1095
Malfatti, Radu 176, 358, 362, 411, 515, 906, 997, 1016
Malfatto, Gianpiero 335, 476, 535
Mal Hallett Orchestra 588
Malik, Magic 277, 908
Malik, Raphe 518, 917, 925, 962, 1243, 1298, 1381
Malin, Joe 1028
Malinverni, Pete 926
Malkiel, Rafi 898
Mallet, Alain 789, 934, 991
Mallett, Gavin 415
Mallon, Barney 355
Mallory, Clark 487
Mallory, Eddie 196, 228, 798, 999
Malloy, Bobby 1120
Mallozzi, Lou 1429
Malmberg, Charlie 897
Malneck, Matty 62, 105, 106, 864, 1388
Malone, Billy 183
Malone, Douglas 1171
Malone, Kas 1389
Malone, Mike 1084
Malone, Russell 185, 205, 235, 465, 597, 727, 843, 844, 926, 948, 965, 1256, 1335, 1501, 1517
Malone, Tom 'Bones' 80, 264, 352, 462, 1008
Maltese, Stefano 318, 927, 1018
Maltzahn, Walt 1540
Man, Larry 1203
Manasia, Jeremy 551
Mance, Junior 10, 12, 31, 32, 259, 338, 418, 491, 554, 555, 570, 571, 582, 584, 596, 606, 607, 777, 927, 1031, 1345, 1391, 1392, 1465, 1467, 1509, 1536
Mancinelli, Augusto 929, 1193
Mancini, Nick 1331
Mancusi, Fred 395
Mancuso, Roger 321, 322
Mandarini, Alberto 446, 447, 476, 535, 750, 1091
Mandel, Hy 1189

Mandel, Johnny 50, 92, 1210, 1443, 1445
Mandel, Mike 308
Mandello, Pete 249
Manderscheid, Dieter 594
Mandrus, Thomas 945
Mandyck, Rick 115, 127
Maneri, Joe 809, 865, 929, 932
Maneri, Mat 117, 259, 452, 604, 648, 809, 833, 865, 874, 907, 930, 931, 931, 1042, 1096, 1293, 1294, 1372, 1383, 1464
Maneri, Sonia 932
Manetta, Manual 238
Mangan, Jack 1326
Mangano, Mickey 397, 423, 848
Mangelsdorff, Albert 177, 562, 637, 851, 896, 932
Mangelsdorff, Emil 708
Mangeon, Jean-Paul 668
Mangiapane, Sherwood 16, 737, 1328
Mangione, Chuck 768, 932
Mangione, Gap 932
Mangual, José 529, 553, 554, 1037, 1095, 1379, 1405
Mangual, Luis 79
Manguiel, Jose 1283
Mani, T. A. S. 944
Manieri, Bucky 416
Manley, Mike 388
Mann, Bosco 690
Mann, Dave 395
Mann, Geoff 488, 808, 934, 1372
Mann, Herbie 66, 181, 199, 299, 796, 855, 877, 933, 962, 1146, 1219, 1254, 1443
Mann, Howie 514
Mann, Hubert 1483
Mann, Kenny 970
Mann, Ned 329
Mann, Peggy 698
Mann, Tony 1347
Manne, Shelly 64, 85, 125, 180, 229, 242, 271, 274, 278, 301, 320, 413, 457, 470, 482, 506, 544, 552, 557, 579, 584, 588, 629, 662, 665, 666, 667, 668, 681, 692, 698, 712, 736, 752, 774, 791, 815, 816, 820, 821, 835, 854, 935, 947, 971, 1066, 1082, 1089, 1117, 1118, 1131, 1141, 1142, 1144, 1162, 1180, 1181, 1184, 1188, 1230, 1231, 1233, 1247, 1248, 1280, 1287, 1304, 1307, 1402, 1404, 1445
Mannigan, Chris 922
Manning, Bob 443
Manning, Chuck 626, 1452
Manning, Irv 622
Manning, Rita 1365
Mannutza, Luca 536
Manone, Wingy 297, 357, 573, 937, 1081, 1388
Manring, Michael 1310
Mansell, Bobby 118
Mansfaroll, Abraham Manfa 908
Mansfield, Ernie 918
Mansfield, Saxie 691, 692
Manson, Bevan 826
Mantilla, Ray 79, 202, 272, 700, 933, 934, 1006, 1220, 1221, 1463
Mantler, Karen 137, 138, 938, 939, 1369
Mantler, Michael 136, 137, 203, 623, 775, 938
Mantooth, Frank 939
Mantovani, Davide 869, 1211, 1497
Manusardi, Guido 940
Manzi, Massimo 929, 1387
Maoz, Eyal 1544
Mapp, Gary 1020, 1021
Marable, Fate 1114
Marable, Larance 64, 65, 222, 242, 257, 319, 403, 418, 453, 540, 542, 580, 595, 624, 665, 755, 1016, 1037, 1119, 1146, 1231
Marabuto, John 1404
Marais, Gérard 957
Maras, Fulvio 1419
Marcal, Armando 994
Marcandalli, Umberto 535
Marcelli, Andrea 197
Marchesano, Federico 334, 335
Marchese, Andy 1388
Marcheteau, Michel 537
Marcinko, Marko 483, 892
Marclay, Christian 1542, 1543
Marc O'Connor's Hot Swing Trio 940
Marco, Fernando de 1101
Marcotulli, Rita 941, 1085, 1174, 1197
Marcour, Mickie 628
Marcus, Marie 629
Marcus, Michael 310, 941, 1033, 1301
Marcus, Michala 233
Marcus, Mitch 1019
Marcus, Steve 309, 329, 694, 775, 818, 934, 942
Marcus, Toni 136
Mardigan, Art 123, 595, 1192
Mardin, Arif 992
Marechin, Richard 233
Mares, Paul 1075
Maret, Grégoire 279, 357, 738, 995, 1340, 1390, 1472, 1516
Mareze, Adrien 1202
Margasak, Todd 97, 1237
Marge, George 113, 201, 234, 368, 369, 462, 881, 1028
Margitza, Rick 114, 115, 351, 426, 477, 478, 870, 942, 949, 1086, 1268, 1351
Margolin, Sherry 856
Margolis, Samuel 155
Marguet, Christophe 874, 1394, 1472
Margulis, Bill 864
Margulis, Charles 105, 398, 574, 1282, 1446
Maria, Mary 54
Mariani, Carlo 1122
Mariani, Joe 817
Mariano, César Camargo 1169
Mariano, Charlie 14, 111, 222, 239, 442, 525, 588, 720, 772, 805, 816, 817, 818, 935, 943, 992, 1003, 1004, 1165, 1447, 1476, 1477
Maricle, Sherrie 944, 1077
Marie, René 506, 945
Marienthal, Eric 305, 307
Marin, Orlando 505
Marini, Lou 549
Marino, Barney 1445
Marino, Don 622, 970
Marino, Tony 521, 891, 892
Marinoni, Vittorio 535, 1419
Marion, Percy 439
Marion, Tom 1454
Mariottini, Mirco 96
Maritime Jazz Orchestra 1494
Mark, Stan 483
Markee, Dave 355, 483
Markham, John 84
Marko Lackner 921
Markow, Debbie 551
Markow, Elliot 551
Markowitz, Irwin 'Marky' 84, 369, 395, 483, 601, 679, 692, 986, 1119, 1248, 1249, 1313, 1342
Markowitz, Phil 67, 68, 806, 891, 1008
Markowitz, Sam 231
Marks, Jon 958, 1217, 1314, 1438, 1457
Marks, Reggie 983
Marksham, John 578
Markussen, Uffe 22, 95, 391, 495, 996, 1324
Marlowe, Sterling 999
Marmarosa, Michael 'Dodo' 32, 199, 318, 340, 397, 418, 638, 848, 945, 970, 1089, 1115, 1120, 1189, 1283, 1284, 1535
Marney, Chris 280
Marohnic, Chuck 498, 946
Maroney, Denman 402, 403, 626, 1241
Marotti, Art 1313
Marowitz, Herman 692
Marowitz, Sam 299, 654, 692, 752, 764, 848, 849
Marquand, Timothy 136
Marques, Mário 1263
Marquet, Alain 537
Marquez, Sal 829, 1210
Marr, Hank 360, 946
Marre, Michel 392, 1393
Marrero, Ernie 1114
Marrero, John 238
Marrero, Lawrence 16, 293, 379, 783, 784, 882, 1079
Marrero, Nicky 572
Marrero, Simon 238
Mars, Johnny 711
Marsala, Adele Girard 579
Marsala, Joe 118, 150, 329, 477, 622, 796, 937, 947
Marsala, Marty 297, 504, 937, 947, 1252
Marsalis, Branford 96, 134, 135, 236, 351, 454, 468, 649, 726, 947, 949, 950, 951, 1235, 1472
Marsalis, Delfeayo 948, 951, 1472
Marsalis, Ellis 12, 263, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951
Marsalis, Jason 442, 948, 949
Marsalis, Wynton 134, 468, 505, 555, 643, 649, 688, 726, 895, 940, 947, 948, 949, 1067, 1068, 1136, 1214, 1472, 1495
Marsh, Arno 498, 693
Marsh, George 595, 864
Marsh, Jim 590
Marsh, Roy 591
Marsh, Tony 104, 1215, 1489
Marsh, Warne 15, 68, 250, 251, 458, 835, 836, 837, 846, 953, 1010, 1046, 1142, 1210, 1417
Marshall, Ben 250, 295, 316, 1043
Marshall, Bert 1202
Marshall, Eddie 14, 1144, 1290, 1301, 1451
Marshall, Fred 614
Marshall, George 529
Marshall, Hannah 357, 1171
Marshall, Jack 821, 1089, 1540
Marshall, James 426
Marshall, Joe 913, 1248, 1344
Marshall, John 34, 225, 280, 281, 453, 549, 565, 690, 955, 1179, 1363, 1364, 1416, 1417, 1476, 1477, 1488
Marshall, Johnny 674
Marshall, Kaiser 24, 41, 101, 155, 228, 638, 685, 686, 734, 864, 937, 975, 1343, 1456, 1457, 1504
Marshall, Lyndell 1535, 1536
Marshall, Neil 864, 1446
Marshall, Oren 60, 74, 262, 281, 1096, 1309, 1404

Marshall, Wendell 11, 32, 70, 123, 212, 231, 254, 262, 270, 299, 311, 338, 369, 383, 433, 434, 435, 491, 514, 527, 544, 562, 599, 609, 613, 634, 638, 669, 712, 717, 757, 786, 827, 865, 933, 1030, 1038, 1066, 1070, 1136, 1187, 1188, 1226, 1252, 1255, 1348, 1375, 1378, 1398, 1478, 1522, 1532, 1534
Marshall, William 388
Martel, Benny 574
Martel, Johnny 575, 847
Mårtensson, Staffan 996
Marthe, Linley 1174, 1540
Marti, Andreas 832
Martignon, Hector 214, 955
Martin, Adam 43
Martin, Andre 183
Martin, Andy 109, 119, 247, 251, 499, 720, 850, 889, 955, 1094
Martin, Bad Bill 549
Martin, Ben 1292
Martin, Bill 40, 1533
Martin, Billy 129, 200, 1275, 1544
Martin, Bob 371, 608
Martin, Bruce 1281
Martin, Chink 16, 150, 556, 628, 1076, 1114, 1164, 1328
Martin, Christine 1388
Martin, Claire 533, 593, 622, 811, 955, 1285, 1385, 1482
Martin, David 1326, 1456
Martin, Delores 668
Martin, Emile 413
Martin, Grady 203
Martin, Jack 1377
Martin, Jackie 83
Martin, James 701, 954
Martin, Joe 28, 474, 585, 1238, 1255
Martin, Joel 415
Martin, Kelly 529, 670, 715, 783, 1379
Martin, Kenny 395, 1388
Martin, Lois 909
Martin, Louis 888
Martin, Mary 691, 1388
Martin, Mel 270, 957, 1262
Martin, Paul 464
Martin, Peter 335, 563, 957, 1167, 1198, 1207
Martin, Rebecca 1049
Martin, Rudy 1467
Martin, Sara 1504
Martin, Skippy 83, 249, 575, 576, 1505
Martin, Stan 850, 1094
Martin, Stu 517, 797, 846, 861, 957, 976, 1161, 1174, 1234, 1363, 1417
Martin, Teddy 338
Martin, Tom 356
Martin, Tony 627
Martin, Uwe 1381
Martin, Vernon 827, 828
Martin, Walter 803
Martine, Tucker 728, 1184
Martineau, Pierre 1203
Martinez, Andre 1381
Martinez, Dick 818
Martinez, Eddie 79, 80, 1262
Martinez, Frankie 236
Martinez, Javier Campos 908
Martinez, Lorenzo 483
Martinez, Louis 577
Martinez, Modesto 1095
Martinez, Nick 614
Martinez, Osvaldo 'Chihuahua' 641, 1261, 1262, 1463
Martinez, Pedro 131
Martinez, Peter 1454
Martinez, Ricky 1250
Martinez, Sabu 1, 552, 584, 786, 834, 1250, 1298
Martinez, Willie 713, 1095
Martinis, Nick 73, 440, 791, 1245
Martino, Pat 363, 646, 720, 757, 831, 957, 985
Martinon, Jacques 1204
Martins, Fernando 1018
Martinson, Red 953
Martlock, Kenny 84
Martucci, Dante 1186
Martucci, Tony 302, 1518
Martyn, Barry 125, 269, 413, 645, 737, 884, 958, 1070, 1314, 1437
Martyn, Emile 737
Martyn, John 956
Marucci, Mat 1387
Marvin, Bob 357
Marvin, Frank 429
Marx, Dick 511
Marx, Fran 853
Marx, Justin 1314
Mary Lou Williams Collective, The 959
Masakowski, Steve 959
Masami, Akita 1533
Masaoka, Miya 886, 1493
Masaoka Orchestra 959
Mascart, Vincent 1098
Masekela, Hugh 959
Masetti, Glauco 66, 533
Maskell, Roy 367, 1043
Maslak, Keshavan 960
Maslov, Eugene 960
Masman, Theo Uden 667
Mason, Bill 377
Mason, Billy 1322
Mason, Christopher 68
Mason, Cookie 424
Mason, Dave 191
Mason, Earl 43
Mason, Harvey 113, 170, 414, 642, 643, 684, 713, 726, 1054, 1468
Mason, Harvey Sr 1468
Mason, Henry 1279
Mason, Janette 1284
Mason, John 1162
Mason, LeGrand 1326
Mason, Molly 415
Mason, Nick 938
Mason, Norman 377, 1114
Mason, Pat 72
Mason, Paul 398
Mason, Phil 280, 961
Mason, Rod 1362
Mason, Roger 382
Mason Sr, Harvey 235, 483
Massarão, José 1263
Massazza, Sandro 535
Masseaux, Garvin 599, 1187, 1242
Massenberg, Sam 1264
Massey, Bill 31, 32, 1014, 1345
Massey, Cal 1290
Massey, Waheeda 1290
Massey, Zane 221, 756, 1033, 1399
Massingill, Obie 84, 388
Masso, David 962
Masso, George 115, 258, 578, 626, 780, 872, 961, 1225, 1500, 1531
Massoth, Jim 939
Massy, Pierre-François 475
Master Gnawa Musicians Of Marrakech And Tanger 1491
Master Musicians Of Joujouka 276
Mastern, Al 1089
Masters, Art 1282
Masters, Jim 1518
Mastrangelo, Stefano 536
Mastren, Al 576, 937, 1081
Mastren, Carmen 63, 100, 102, 396, 397, 504, 575, 714, 937, 947, 1327
Masuda, Mikio 662
Masujaa 2, 756, 1401
Masuko, Taki 775
Masuo, Yoshiaki 1234
Matas, Jordi 665
Mateen, Sabir 402, 473, 925, 962, 1062, 1129, 1298, 1372, 1373, 1393, 1496
Mateen, Tarus 310, 657, 658, 941, 1036, 1105, 1106, 1390, 1466
Mathaba, Kenny 960
Mathes, Dick 1052
Mathews, Bob 386
Mathews, Dave 1334
Mathews, George 122
Mathews, Mat 962, 1186
Mathews, Ronnie 110, 263, 419, 608, 649, 650, 672, 675, 689, 732, 798, 800, 801, 962, 1019, 1039, 1220, 1391
Mathewson, Ron 39, 103, 225, 355, 674, 1186, 1252, 1261, 1276, 1277, 1342, 1386, 1469, 1484, 1523
Mathias, Eddie 1220
Mathiesen, Leo 1322
Mathieu, Stephan 1043
Mathisen, Leo 668
Mathisen, Ole 840
Mathisen, Per 840, 841
Matinier, Jean-Louis 509
Matlock, Matty 118, 937, 1252, 1334, 1388
Matos, Hector 1257
Matricó, Paulo 746
Matshiza, Lawrence 960
Matsubara, Eri 1525
Matsuda, Seizan 842
Matsuura, Zen 75, 221
Matt, Peter 1005
Matta, Nilson 76, 87, 212, 406, 830, 934
Matta, Tom 939
Mattaliano, Al 817
Matthews, Al 184
Matthews, Art 152
Matthews, Babe 1505
Matthews, Bill 16, 882
Matthews, Bob 198, 882
Matthews, Dave 84, 395, 504, 574, 575, 638, 763, 764, 814, 815, 1388
Matthews, David 299
Matthews, Doug 610, 1218
Matthews, Eddie 1505
Matthews, Emmett 1457
Matthews, George 42, 91, 155, 488, 489, 553, 554, 671, 715, 736, 1476, 1483
Matthews, Gilbert 300, 412, 1386, 1425
Matthews, Hal 424
Matthews, Kaffe 886
Matthews, Llew 888
Matthews, William 238
Matthey, Stéphane 1058
Matthias Seuffert 1080
Mattison, Bernie 622
Mattison, Don 42, 395
Mattocks, Doug 850
Mattos, Marcio 199, 315, 317, 359, 409, 589, 903, 1012, 1109, 1126, 1182, 1190, 1192
Mattos, Michael 1196
Mattsson, Teemu 1432
Mattsson, Vesa-Matti 1432
Maunuvaara, Tapio 1087
Maupin, Bennie 183, 304, 347, 348, 365, 641, 642, 643, 684, 963, 1040, 1108, 1285, 1299, 1315
Maurer, Albrecht 233
Maures, Chick 514
Mauricio, Zé 76, 365
Mauro, Lou 476
Maus, Carl 764, 1282
Mavounzy, Robert 1203
Mawford, Pete 443, 869
Maxey, Billy 99
Maxey, Leroy 123, 218
Maxey, Virginia 368, 443
Maxted, Billy 450, 1081

Maxwell, Aaron 670, 671
Maxwell, Bob 462
Maxwell, Jimmy 424, 575, 576, 797, 1093, 1117, 1278, 1313
May, Billy 83, 1388, 490
May, Christof 2
May, Earl 32, 66, 284, 285, 501, 555, 933, 963, 1103, 1242, 1277, 1345, 1379
May, James 465
May, Neil 735
May, Paul 735
May, Timothy 108
May, Tina 963, 1415
Mayer, Bertly 1449
Mayer, John 652, 1275
Mayer, Jojo 840
Mayer, Red 106, 864
Mayer, Tim 678
Mayers, Lloyd 338, 596
Mayes, Martin 151, 750, 1106, 1333, 1382
Mayfield, John 1504
Mayhew, Bob 42
Mayhew, Jack 106, 1283
Mayhew, Nye 106, 398
Maynard, Andy 367, 1043
Maynes, Frank 395
Mayo, Scott 1517
Mays, Bill 453, 881, 964, 1054, 1055, 1281, 1335
Mays, Lyle 993, 994, 995, 1369
Mazanec, Emil 848, 849
Mazetier, Louis 537
Mazur, Marilyn 71, 391, 392, 524, 842, 964, 1431, 1477
Mazurek, Robert 97, 965
Mazzaroppi, Gary 469, 982
Mazzillo, Marc 773
Mazzoli, Frank 999
Mazzon, Guido 750
Mazzone, Vincenzo 750, 1000, 1091
Mazzy, Jimmy 1113
Małek, Jerzy 90
Mbappe, Etienne 1540
McAfee, Johnny 576, 764
McAll, Barney 90
McAllister, James 797, 1082
McAllister, Jay 259, 817, 886, 1022
McAlmont, David 1167
McBeath, Carlton 84, 1095
McBee, Cecil 68, 147, 153, 283, 485, 505, 611, 654, 676, 702, 733, 743, 768, 813, 866, 867, 874, 890, 891, 901, 925, 980, 1018, 1056, 1065, 1143, 1218, 1242, 1258, 1259, 1296, 1301, 1373, 1375, 1395, 1406, 1427, 1518
McBee, Ron 473, 1361
McBirnie, Bill 928
McBride, Chris 1199
McBride, Christian 122, 131, 153, 185, 192, 195, 205, 246, 306, 307, 426, 428, 440, 499, 501, 590, 597, 630, 649, 659, 676, 688, 689, 754, 795, 843, 844, 890, 895, 908, 965, 988, 995, 1013, 1019, 1168, 1175, 1198, 1238, 1256, 1275, 1320, 1427, 1428, 1463, 1472, 1491, 1506, 1526
McBride, Nate 572, 809, 1041, 1042, 1439, 1440
McBrowne, Lennie 320, 419, 450, 455, 653, 716, 862, 957, 985, 1148, 1491
McCaffer, Don 70
McCain, Alva Beau 699
McCain, Bobby 699
McCain, Fawntice 567
McCall, Mary Ann 83, 691, 692, 1165
McCall, Steve 6, 13, 36, 74, 159, 636, 637, 767, 1058, 1059, 1382
McCallum, Johnny 78
McCamish, Charles 847, 1388
McCandless, Paul 767, 863, 1098, 1099, 1133, 1410, 1411, 1477
McCann, Les 460, 655, 1424
McCann, Pete 252, 923, 1441, 1442, 1518
McCants, Walter 1532
McCarthy, Dick 39, 645, 1224, 1437
McCarthy, John 612, 1367
McCarthy, Pat 1292
McCarty, Ernest 529
McCaslin, Donny 126, 400, 562, 612, 613, 920, 955, 966, 1166, 1268, 1269, 1270, 1305, 1447
McCheskie, Bob 889
McChesney, Bob 889, 1094
McClain, Meredith 1210
McClain, Mighty Sam 810
McCleary, Vincent 705
McClellan, Bill 1515
McClendon, Chuck 639
McCloud III, Andy 792
McClung, Tom 1291
McClure, Robin 1159
McClure, Ron 67, 114, 123, 136, 140, 220, 313, 509, 510, 568, 688, 813, 834, 837, 838, 839, 875, 881, 901, 903, 938, 966, 1184, 1187, 1250, 1314, 1328, 1351
McClure, Ruby 1220
McComb, Frank 80
McCombe, Mike 590
McConnell, John 228, 424, 488, 686
McConnell, John Rocks 1056
McConnell, Rob 124, 967, 1084
McConnell, Shorty 416, 1443, 1535, 1536
McConney, Ed 670, 671, 1109
McConville, Leo 398, 864, 1017, 1081, 1388, 1446
McCook, Don 83, 1089
McCord, Castor 228, 999
McCord, Henry 1510
McCord, Steve 1031
McCord, Ted 975, 999
McCorkle, Susannah 968
McCormack, Andrew 76, 776, 1515
McCormick, Count John 280
McCormick, Pat 850
McCoy, Charlie 203, 797
McCoy, Donvonte 1512
McCoy, Paul 395
McCoy, Rose Marie 54
McCoy, Roy 638
McCracken, Bob 1104
McCracken, Charles 1002, 1028, 1071
McCracken, Hugh 1008, 1248
McCrae, Margaret 574
McCraven, Steve 1291
McCreary, Foley 351
McCreary, Lew 681, 720, 1093, 1409, 1517
McCree, Fat Cat 981
McCuller, Arnold 1256
McCullin, John 798
McCullough, Ullanda 1468
McCullum, George 238
McCune, Brandon 895
McCurdy, Roy 11, 12, 94, 201, 231, 339, 470, 755, 866, 932, 1137, 1144, 1234, 1292, 1402, 1451, 1539
McCusick, Hal 207, 455, 601, 1052
McCutchen, Jeff 890
McCutchin, Joe 1201
McDade, Steve 967
McDaniels, Rev Eugene 740
McDaniels, Rudy 373
McDermott, Tom 923
McDevitt, Andy 70, 228, 248, 477
McDonald, Brian 1064
McDonald, Bruce 764, 1540
McDonald, Earl 377, 379
McDonald, Geordie 142
McDonald, Harold 105, 106
McDonald, Helen 502
McDonald, Jim 487, 967
McDonald, Joe 693, 1162, 1165
McDonald, Johnny 1388
McDonald, Marshall 406, 1095
McDonald, Ralph 66, 113, 201, 234, 1220
McDonell, Larry 17
McDonough, Dick 62, 398, 573, 574, 714, 864, 1017, 1081, 1089, 1388, 1446, 1457
McDowell, Al 276
McDuff, Jack 32, 112, 598, 656, 719, 757, 827, 987, 1226, 1346
McEachern, Murray 42, 488, 525, 574, 716, 1334
McEachern, Pete 1134, 1135
McElroy, Donna 762
McFadden, Eddie 1312, 1522
McFall, Reuben 693, 816
McFarland, Bill 1399
McFarland, Gary 969, 1094
McFarlane, Andy 334
McFay, Nat 970
McFerrin, Bobby 307, 555, 952, 1468
McGaha, Rod 969
McGarity, Lou 43, 249, 297, 298, 336, 355, 489, 504, 575, 576, 601, 970, 1110, 1113, 1117, 1210, 1252, 1283, 1327, 1505
McGarry, Kate 696, 1452
McGarvey, Red 63, 1089
McGee, Johnny 40, 42
McGee, Noel 730
McGhee, Andrew 639, 694
McGhee, Charles 828, 1290
McGhee, Howard 50, 318, 418, 436, 528, 552, 580, 661, 668, 712, 716, 774, 783, 826, 945, 970, 1031, 1052, 1069, 1114, 1115, 1160, 1162, 1348, 1445, 1508, 1535
McGhee, John 489
McGhee III, Richard A. 164
McGhie, Noel 1401
McGill, Guillermo 1255
McGlohon, Loonis 1354
McGloin, Shawn 507
McGovern, Tom 461
McGrath, Fulton 42, 118, 196, 396, 398, 1089, 1282
McGrath, Luton 62
McGrath, Mac 1319
McGregor, Chris 144, 176, 730, 1105
McGriff, Jimmy 971
McGriffe, Debra 1259
McGuinness, Alec 918
McGuinness, Pete 252, 721, 1268
McGuire, Larry 85, 765
McGurk, Mike 302, 881
McGurn, Dan 850
McHardie, Jack 918
McHenry, Bill 37, 893, 972, 1314, 1340, 1463
McHugh, Mary 430
McIntosh, Don 777
McIntosh, Jim 280, 961
McIntosh, Tom 470, 655, 678, 755, 871
McIntyre, Earl 137, 352, 613, 1006, 1095, 1250, 1382
McIntyre, Kalaparush(a) Maurice 506, 972

McIntyre, Makanda Ken 12, 377, 383, 973, 1380
McIntyre, Mark 1283
McIntyre, Maurice 6, 1011
McIver, Craig 763, 866, 1172, 1173
McKay, Bob 532
McKay, Carol 118
McKay, Duncan 956
McKay, Jimmy 1304
McKay, Oscar 652
McKay, Ron 125, 280, 443, 869, 961
McKay, Stephanie 649
McKay, Stuart 1089
McKean, Randy 161
McKee, Andy 323, 373, 611, 1006, 1067
McKee, Julie 104
McKee, Lonette 584
McKee, Paul 250, 506, 606, 939
McKendrick, Mike 42, 180, 1114, 1326, 1533
McKenna, Dave 111, 156, 157, 268, 364, 601, 622, 635, 693, 849, 855, 961, 974, 1090, 1168, 1171, 1303, 1376, 1445, 1446, 1447, 1499, 1527
McKenna, John 727
McKenna, Kari 223
McKenna, Larry 560
McKenzie, Colin 1473
McKenzie, Jerry 236, 817, 818
McKenzie, Red 297, 504, 666, 864, 1081, 1331, 1388
McKesson, Brent 1425
McKey, Bernard 999
McKibbon, Al 10, 230, 254, 257, 319, 322, 340, 413, 552, 553, 668, 681, 705, 754, 783, 789, 793, 999, 1020, 1079, 1093, 1261, 1286, 1404, 1443
McKimmey, Eddie 1283
McKindra, Wilson 362
McKinley, Ray 42, 395, 504, 574, 1203, 1327
McKinney's Cotton Pickers 975
McKinney, Bernard (Kiane Zawadi) 9, 212, 640, 732, 867
McKinney, Carlos 793, 975, 1503
McKinney, Eddie 622
McKinney, Harold 107
McKinney, Nina Mae 1516
McKinney, Ray 867, 985
McKinnon, Bruce 48
McKinstrey, Ray 1327
McKnight, Blackbird 642
McKoy, Mike 976
McKusick, Hal 15, 199, 601, 693, 976, 1188, 1210, 1249
McLagen, Kent 697, 997
McLarand, Paul 577
McLaren, Toby 875
McLaughlin, Bob 1388
McLaughlin, Brian 1259
McLaughlin, Eddie 798
McLaughlin, John 103, 136, 187, 226, 308, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 584, 976, 1296, 1363, 1451, 1452
McLaughlin, Michael 362, 1544, 1545
McLaughlin, Rick 423, 775
McLaurine, Marcus 265, 418, 539, 617, 744, 1392
McLean, Charlie 416
McLean, Ernest 1337
Mclean, Hal 106
McLean, Jackie 32, 133, 135, 175, 212, 254, 340, 341, 342, 354, 393, 402, 469, 555, 641, 649, 894, 978, 1001, 1002, 1018, 1039, 1040, 1196, 1312, 1378, 1454, 1460
McLean, James 64
McLean, John 939
McLean, Jordan 488
McLean, Mark 197
McLean, René 617, 914, 980
McLean, Richard 76, 737, 1337
McLeary, Jimmy 798
McLellan, John 932
McLemore, Scott 1171
McLemore, William 670
McLeod, Don 815
McLeod, Kieran 1318
McLevy, John 1512
McLewis, Joe 687, 705
McLin, Jimmy 56, 714, 715, 1319, 1505, 1521
McLung, Gus 1483
McLure, Ron 266
McMahon, Bill 416
McMickle, Dale 780, 1283
McMickle, Mickey 576
McMillan, James 1489
McMillan, Vic 340, 1115, 1120
McMillan, Wallace 6, 7
McMinn, John 1064
McMullen, George 421, 566
McMurdo, Dave 1084
McMurray, David 21
McMurray, Fred 411
McNab, Colleen 363
McNair, Harold 219, 797, 981
McNamara, Tim 362
McNaught, Mike 912
McNeal, Kevin 1105
McNeely, Jim 515, 546, 547, 866, 1212, 1347, 1528
McNeil, Ed 1264
McNeil, John Henry 551
McNeill, Chip 483
McNulty, Chris 149
McPartland, Dick 1388
McPartland, Jimmy 105, 297, 573, 981, 981
McPartland, Marian 981, 981, 1287, 1392
McPhail, Jimmy 437
McPhail, Peter 906
McPhee, Joe 20, 128, 178, 401, 412, 473, 772, 872, 926, 931, 982, 1125
McPherson Jr, Charles 986
McPherson, Charles 9, 383, 470, 777, 985, 1003, 1004, 1005
McPherson, Eric 353, 354, 603, 703, 877, 898, 1139
McPherson, Fraser 520
McPherson, Norman 1388
McQuade, Jack 1084
McQuardy, Dick 765
McQuater, Tommy 70, 228, 248
McRae, Carmen 191, 491, 986, 1287
McRae, Dave 44, 337, 424, 715, 1458, 1489, 1523
McRae, Ted 24, 43, 219, 714, 803, 1476, 1520
McRae, Teddy 329, 488, 489, 490
McRee, Fat Cat Johnson 356
McReynolds, Gus 1189
McShann, Jay 520, 708, 987, 1366, 1451
McShann, Pete 1375
McSweeney, Mary Ann 252
McTaggart, Neil 1490
McVea, Jack 638, 699, 736, 774, 1114, 1120
McVeigh, Bill 83
McWashington, Willie 1047
Mdluli, Thabo 960
Me, We & Them Orchestra 1465
Mead, Al 1190, 1422
Mead, John 622
Mears, Adrian 1449
Mears, Jason 422, 567
Measham, Guenevere 566
Measto, Louis 1101
Méchali, François 772
Medal-Johnson, Justin 989
Medberg, Gunnar 46, 1250
Medeski, John 422, 773, 775, 1275, 1310, 1544
Medlock, Colin 480
Mee, Bill 281, 532
Meecham, Lori 969
Meeks, Nat 1517
Meeks, Nathaniel 418
Megalos, Georges 591
Megro, Joe 50, 1188
Mehegan, John 638, 1000, 1001
Mehldau, Brad 122, 168, 244, 267, 503, 625, 838, 902, 988, 995, 1198, 1199, 1255, 1275, 1296, 1343, 1423, 1480
Meier, Hans 1046
Meier, Tommy 1349
Meijas, Rafaël 519
Meilahn, Jack 369, 401, 754, 1308
Meisel, Ken 388
Meisner, Gary 680
Meissner, Russell 1207
Meisterman, Richard 1031
Mela, Francisco 542
Melady, Jack 1398
Meldonian, Dick 84, 611, 1052, 1054, 1188
Mele, Gavino 535
Melendez, Ozzie 80
Melford, Myra 20, 420, 792, 990, 1401
Melgaard, Jens 608
Melillo, Mike 990
Melito, Tom 46, 926, 955, 1033
Mella, Aldo 328
Melling, Steve 405, 825, 956, 991, 1306
Mello, Mc 1167
Mellor, Arthur 118
Mellor, Brian 515
Mellor, Steve 280
Mellor, Walt 118
Melly, George 991, 1055, 1362, 1484
Melnic, Emil 848
Melnick, Mitch 849
Melon, Louis 1203
Melrose, Frank 263, 379, 937
Mel-Tones, The 1283
Meltzer, Abe 887
Melvin, Brian 1134
Melvoin, Mike 109, 251, 442, 550, 625, 662, 1450
Memory, Thara 656
Menardi, Louis 1204
Mendell, Johnny 83, 504
Mendelsohn, Art 1334
Mendelson, Julie 83
Mendelson, Stanley 16, 150, 293, 737
Mendes, Barbara 1348
Mendoza, Victor 991
Mendoza, Vince 3, 168, 351, 722, 991
Menegon, John 1074
Mengelberg, Misha 55, 119, 162, 385, 730, 744, 745, 992, 1246, 1386
Mengo, Jerry 272, 1203, 1516
Mensah, Paapa J. 1473
Mensch, Homer 1133
Mentanaro, Artie 962
Menza, Don 108, 818, 1210, 1211
Menzel, Susanne 745
Menzies, Ian 992
Menzies, Lee 684
Merata, MC Benu 897
Mercado, Raul 79
Mercedes, Manuel 1029
Mercer, Johnny 271, 575, 937, 1287, 1505
Mercer Ellington Orchestra 63

Merchant, Karim 869
Merchez, Robert 1203
Mercurio, Walter 396, 504
Meredith, Jack 1184
Meredith, Matthew 668
Meresco, Joe 398, 1388
Meriam, Leon 999
Meringuito, Andres 436
Merk, Sebastian 325, 1057
Merkt, Arie 411
Merrill, Alan 993
Merrill, Bob 987, 1500, 1505
Merrill, Esther 437
Merrill, Helen 181, 705, 993
Merrill, Reggie 1353
Merritt, Jymie 133, 134, 254, 517, 772, 1040, 1220, 1295
Merritt, Ranzell 1060
Merriweather, Charles 293
Merry, Elmer 542
Mertz, Paul 105
Merville, François 1273, 1538
Mesene, Jimmy 570
Messelier, Alf 254
Messerschmidt, Eric 566, 850
Messin, Frank 689
Messina, Don 632, 1046
Messner, John 578, 780, 1027, 1028
Mesterhazy, George 727
Metaxu 941
Metcalf, Amy 1473
Metcalf, Greg 819
Metcalf, Louis 428, 711, 788, 1251, 1504
Metcalfe, Neil 315, 362, 993, 1012, 1126, 1315, 1334
Metheny, Pat 60, 167, 168, 204, 205, 530, 624, 630, 676, 895, 993, 1134, 1198, 1274, 1515
Metropole Orchestra 722, 1239
Mettam, John 826, 833
Mettome, Doug 394, 577, 693, 1095, 1165, 1209
Metz, Ed 680, 780, 1434
Metz, Ed Jr 301, 741, 1500
Metz, Ed Sr 626
Metz Jr, Ed 27, 1367, 1435, 1500
Metzke, Paul 79, 80, 462, 1047
Meunier, Maurice 358, 497, 1204
Meurkens, Hendrik 211, 912, 1227, 1375
Mewes, Oliver 86
Meyer, Bob 1345
Meyer, James 597
Meyer, Joe 395
Meyer, Jojo 1449
Meyer, Norman 1100
Meyer, Walter 1280
Meyers, Eddie 814, 815, 1089
Meyers, George 1165
Meyers, John 978
Meyers, Paul 969
Meyers, Ron 440, 441
Mezey, Johnny 763
Mezquida, Allan 1057
Mezzadri, Malik 'Magic' 277, 908
Mezzrow, Mezz 100, 101, 102, 257, 297, 638, 710, 1078, 1388, 1457
Mhridri, Khalil 827, 828
Miano, Fabio 1343
Michael, Alan 722
Michael, Don 671
Michaels, Lloyd 694
Michaels, Mike 1282
Michaels, Ray 83
Michall, Ernest 1114
Michaux, Pascal 9
Michel, Matthieu 612, 613, 1264, 1395, 1449
Michel, Neil 1120
Micheli, Marco 1419
Michelin, Nando 995
Micheline Day Et Son Quatuor Swing 1203
Michell, Marco 1419
Michelli, Anthony 746, 1329
Michelot, Pierre 102, 180, 183, 209, 229, 254, 257, 342, 358, 424, 497, 519, 568, 581, 584, 591, 608, 668, 735, 886, 1030, 1178, 1179, 1204, 1206, 1302, 1397, 1498
Michels, Doug 1064
Michels, Lloyd 775
Michelsen, Morten 1
Michelutti, Andrea 118
Michel Warlop Orchestra 1203
Michiru, Monday 1305
Mickiewicz, Katrin 233
Mickleburgh, Bobby 918
Mickman, Herb 236
Microscopic Septet, The 996
Middlebrooks, Wilfred 279, 491, 558, 719, 720, 1170
Middleton, Andy 1268
Middleton, Jimmy 395
Middleton, Jock 570
Middleton, Julia 663
Middleton, Middy 1172
Middleton, Roger 817
Middleton, Velma 43, 44
Middleton Pollock, Marilyn 961
Midgley, Bobby 70
Midorikawa, Keiki 842
Midtsaeter, Omar Heide 602
Miele, Bill 2
Mielke, Bob 101, 102, 401
Migiani, Armand 65, 254
Migliardi, Rodolfo 472, 1419
Migliore, Jimmy 423, 848, 1092, 1280
Migliore, Mike 107, 483, 1095
Migliori, Jay 1540
Mihelich, Ed 84, 423, 764, 848, 1092
Mikell, Gene 24, 196, 999, 1506
Mikkelborg, Palle 5, 351, 462, 583, 584, 615, 818, 964, 996, 1102, 1137, 1250, 1416, 1479
Miklin, Karlheinz 281
Milan, Irina 1448
Milano, Carlo 534
Milazzo, Jimmy 83, 848
Milazzo, Paola 927
Milder, Björn 1354, 1499
Milder, Joakim 378, 897, 915, 996, 1010, 1335, 1336, 1347, 1348
Miles, Buddy 976
Miles, Butch 27, 93, 148, 191, 364, 394, 493, 511, 550, 1046, 1264, 1354, 1366, 1376, 1499, 1500
Miles, Jason 80
Miles, John 182
Miles, Lizzie 150, 883
Miles, Matt 82, 820, 1077
Miles, Ron 512, 513, 618, 697, 728, 746, 997
Miley, Bubber 155, 428, 711, 1044, 1504
Milian, Jerzy 835
Militello, Bobby 191, 192, 193, 483
Milito, Helcio 545, 1028
Miljeteig, Sjur 1487
Millar, Greg 1246
Miller, Allison 420, 660, 1315
Miller, Art 297, 1081, 1388
Miller, Bill 63, 83, 84, 395, 1089
Miller, Brian 750
Miller, Butch 755
Miller, Byron 643, 1234
Miller, Charlie 316
Miller, Clarence 'Big' 173
Miller, Colin 320, 605
Miller, Doug 864, 1250, 1280
Miller, Earl 'Buddy' 826, 1510
Miller, Eddie 118, 125, 474, 575, 937, 1089, 1334, 1388, 1484, 1531
Miller, Eric 638
Miller, Eugene 570
Miller, Glenn 398, 573, 666, 1066, 1081, 1388, 1446
Miller, Harry 176, 358, 401, 997, 1016, 1105, 1107, 1190, 1306, 1363, 1403, 1488
Miller, James 'Sing' 16, 269, 1224, 1436
Miller, Jesse 31, 705
Miller, Jim 560, 1081
Miller, Jimmy 99, 101, 105, 429
Miller, Johnny 150, 271, 580, 638, 774, 937
Miller, Marcus 351, 460, 530, 676, 1076, 1255, 1256, 1468
Miller, Mark 863, 1542
Miller, Maurice 549
Miller, Mike 305
Miller, Mitch 63, 1353, 1467
Miller, Mulgrew 48, 134, 145, 205, 235, 361, 440, 454, 503, 530, 531, 569, 657, 659, 695, 733, 811, 891, 908, 916, 943, 945, 947, 985, 998, 1032, 1035, 1037, 1071, 1072, 1138, 1139, 1241, 1256, 1285, 1320, 1335, 1369, 1370, 1424, 1470, 1515, 1519, 1520
Miller, Phil 315
Miller, Punch 39, 148, 379, 729, 884, 998, 1114
Miller, Randall 1282
Miller, Roger 722
Miller, Ron 199
Miller, Steve 315
Miller, Stewart 506, 517
Miller, Tim 1107
Miller, Troy 824
Miller, Vladimir 858
Miller, Walter 971, 1356, 1357
Millet, Neil 294
Milligan, Dave 999, 1338
Millikan, Bob 1008, 1140, 1351
Milliman, Linc 1260
Millinder, Lucky 552, 999, 999
Milliner, Tony 187, 466
Millman, Jack 588
Millman, Linc 1308
Mills, Billy 762
Mills, Irving 428, 429
Mills, Jackie 271, 318, 528, 571, 765, 945, 1089, 1141, 1189, 1499, 1540
Mills, Lincoln 155, 228, 724, 1279, 1353
Mills, Maude 1456
Millsap, Corney 731
Mills Blue Rhythm Band 999
Mills Brothers, The 42, 93, 228, 488, 489
Millward, Nick 374
Milne, Andy 277, 293
Milosevic, Aleksandar 111
Milton, Roy 736, 789
Milverton, Craig 467, 991
Mimstedt, Sandra 1043
Min, Haewon 1088
Min, Ye 1333
Minafra, Pino 750, 1000, 1404, 1419
Minasi, Dom 1000
Mince, Johnny 336, 396, 397, 474, 476, 504, 715, 872, 889, 1315
Mincemacher, Yoval 317
Minear, Frank 818
Miner, Neal 690
Minerve, Harold 439
Minetto, Alessandro 540
Minger, Pete 93, 94, 492, 752, 755, 1064
Minghetti, Lisa 1478

Mingot, Alejandro 71
Mingus, Charles 138, 242, 341, 342, 384, 436, 552, 638, 716, 758, 760, 786, 799, 827, 920, 970, 1000, 1025, 1089, 1117, 1119, 1120, 1160, 1177, 1345, 1379, 1459, 1466, 1486
Mingus, Eric 1006
Mingus, Kevin Ellington 751
Mingus Big Band 1005
Minichiello, Ziggy 816
Minkkinen, Erik 14
Minnicucci, Bob 954
Minns, Pete 480
Minor, Dan 90, 91, 1047
Minor, Fred 269
Minor, Orville 987
Minotti, Alfredo 473
Minshull, Mac 652
Minter, Keith 1438
Minton, Phil 199, 301, 357, 515, 832, 833, 1007, 1065, 1083, 1109, 1489
Mintz, Billy 521, 566, 890, 924, 1275
Mintzer, Bob 4, 168, 428, 448, 481, 549, 610, 822, 851, 914, 924, 1008, 1133, 1347, 1452
Mirabassi, Gabriele 536, 1163
Miralta, Marc 33, 132, 418, 477, 1343
Miranda, Bibi 49
Miranda, Edgardo 572, 955
Miranda, Luis 1095, 1117, 1404
Miranda, Rafael 553
Miranda, Ralph 1037
Miranda, Roberto Miguel 120, 154, 202, 233, 566, 1373
Miranda, Santa 1345
Miranda, Tony 342, 343, 368, 797
Mires, Trevor 76
Mironov, Jeff 80, 1255
Mishra, Shivanath 646
Miskiewicz, Michal 1337
Misterka, Seth 45, 163
Mitchell, Alex 'Razz' 1264
Mitchell, Austin 262
Mitchell, Billy 48, 92, 226, 240, 255, 506, 554, 605, 799, 1038, 1308
Mitchell, Blue 10, 108, 112, 113, 175, 389, 527, 607, 717, 720, 723, 739, 796, 798, 854, 867, 919, 971, 979, 1008, 1195, 1209, 1242, 1298, 1299, 1312, 1346, 1402, 1424, 1462, 1467, 1539
Mitchell, Bob 93, 803, 912, 913
Mitchell, Brian 296, 1544
Mitchell, Dave 987
Mitchell, Dick 496
Mitchell, Emily 909
Mitchell, Frank 768, 1040
Mitchell, Fred 228
Mitchell, George 128, 379, 704, 1044, 1085, 1103, 1251
Mitchell, Grover 92, 93, 94, 491, 1304
Mitchell, H. B. 1400
Mitchell, Hal 571
Mitchell, Harold 803
Mitchell, Herman 184, 228, 783, 789, 793
Mitchell, J. R. 862
Mitchell, Jimmy 670, 671
Mitchell, John 272, 315, 410, 850, 913, 1489
Mitchell, Joni 644, 1134
Mitchell, Joseph 725
Mitchell, Leonard 729
Mitchell, Lester 1406
Mitchell, Nicole 166, 1009, 1200
Mitchell, Ollie 662, 765, 818, 1211, 1230, 1231, 1540
Mitchell, Paul 388, 396, 397
Mitchell, Ray 429
Mitchell, Razz 803
Mitchell, Red 27, 140, 230, 257, 268, 274, 446, 450, 468, 469, 482, 495, 514, 525, 542, 543, 579, 588, 629, 631, 632, 654, 665, 666, 716, 811, 817, 820, 836, 846, 863, 897, 940, 953, 1009, 1053, 1082, 1089, 1131, 1143, 1146, 1180, 1181, 1186, 1231, 1245, 1248, 1250, 1280, 1316, 1392, 1404, 1445, 1479, 1498, 1513
Mitchell, Robert 780, 1010, 1167
Mitchell, Roscoe 6, 7, 46, 47, 116, 199, 250, 464, 885, 1011, 1018, 1062, 1290, 1293
Mitchell, Shedrick 24, 530, 661, 965
Mitchell, Sue 118
Mitchell, Thomas 797
Mitchell, Tom 342, 601, 786, 1249, 1313
Mitchell, Tom Jr 461
Mitchell, Tommy 15
Mitchell, Tony 797
Mitchell, Tyler 611, 726, 1360
Mitchell, Whitey 855, 1186, 1187
Mitchell-Davidson, Paul 315
Mitchner, William 'Happy' 671
Mixon, Danny 501
Mixon, John 499, 589
Miyagawa, Taiji 725
Miyamoto, Takana 945
Mizell, Larry 89
Mkhize, Themba 960
Moat, Gaston 1203
Moberg, Per 1087
Moberg, Urban 126
Mobley, Bill 414, 1012
Mobley, Hank 133, 181, 200, 212, 213, 254, 344, 345, 392, 393, 403, 469, 553, 600, 606, 723, 732, 786, 792, 796, 813, 978, 1013, 1038, 1040, 1219, 1290, 1298, 1299
Mobus, Frank 721
Moccia, Danilo 627
Mock, King I. 973
Mockúnas, Liudas 1131
Modak, Tapan 1529
Modern Jazz Duo 1013
Modern Jazz Quartet 1014
Modern Sounds, The 571
Modern String Quartet 627
Modiba, Innocent 960
Modirzadeh, Hafiz 959, 709
Moe, Hal 764
Moe, Sharon 1095
Moeller, Kai 1322
Moer, Paul 482, 579, 588, 1016, 1434
Moffat, Adelaide 779
Moffett, Charles 2, 275, 384, 866, 911, 983, 1289, 1301, 1425
Moffett, Charnett 276, 405, 454, 530, 911, 947, 950, 1016, 1261, 1428
Moffett, Codaryl 'Cody' 2, 1016, 405, 925, 1033
Moffett, Mondre 1016
Mogensen, Anders 35, 121, 1493
Möhl, Manfred 1043
Moholo, Louis (-Moholo) 1016, 59, 144, 176, 224, 253, 358, 359, 362, 621, 722, 997, 998, 1105, 1124, 1246, 1271, 1315, 1381, 1403, 1404, 1523
Moholo, Mabeleng 1531
Moio, Dom 498, 499, 946
Mojica, Alfred 130
Moksha Big Band 410
Molakeng, Stephen 960
Molaskey, Jessica 1169
Mølbach, Erik 52, 126
Mole, Miff 63, 105, 297, 807, 864, 1017, 1081, 1101, 1327
Molenhof, Bill 921
Moleri, Nick 1101
Molgaard, Torolf 818
Mølhede, Michael 1525
Moliere, Frank 1496
Molin, Ole 49, 126, 404, 583, 818, 1479
Molineaux, Othello 17, 18, 762, 1133
Molinelli, Bob 301
Molinelli, Larry 50, 576, 577
Molinetti, Armand 209, 424, 591
Möller, Ale 1407
Moller, Kai 49
Møller, Lars 921, 1086
Molvaer, Nils Petter 34, 71, 964, 1487
Molyneux, Sam 1322
Momate, Ed 698
Momin, Ravish 962, 973, 1018
Mommas, Marc 542
Monasterios, Silvano 1064
Monat, Paul 1454
Moncada, Antonio 927, 1018
Moncell, Patrice 1516
Moncur III, Grachan 118, 183, 199, 329, 504, 640, 641, 688, 711, 714, 763, 911, 980, 1018, 1041, 1127, 1186, 1264, 1289, 1290, 1296, 1297, 1510, 1520
Monday Night Big Band 1019
Mondello, Pete 575, 576, 654, 691, 692, 1095, 1162, 1179
Mondello, Toots 118, 443, 574, 575, 638, 715, 734, 779, 780, 1017, 1093, 1353, 1443, 1521
Monder, Ben 37, 126, 244, 259, 562, 585, 605, 778, 789, 824, 839, 866, 966, 972, 1019, 1049, 1207, 1213, 1268, 1269, 1314, 1541
Monder, Elizabeth 1095
Monder, Jay 1268
Mondesir, Michael 95, 978, 1010, 1166
Mondragon, Joe 50, 64, 180, 184, 222, 301, 364, 417, 490, 491, 544, 577, 579, 662, 665, 692, 693, 716, 764, 835, 935, 1052, 1093, 1111, 1141, 1142, 1230, 1231, 1280, 1287, 1408
Money, A. B. 352
Monges, Amadeo 79
Monheit, Jane 135, 940
Monie, Rickie 1496
Monique 1102
Monk, T. S. 1019
Monk, Thelonious 133, 209, 249, 284, 341, 343, 668, 690, 754, 1020, 1053, 1110, 1117, 1232, 1233, 1391
Monne, Joan 1314
Monniot, Christophe 223
Monquin, Al 542
Monroe, Diane 1350
Monroe, Walter 880
Monsborough, Ade 918
Montaggioni, Charles 254
Montague, Sidney 1337
Montalbano, Rick 28
Montanaro, Art 2
Monte, George 577
Monte, Tony 1169
Montego Joe 324, 419, 759
Monteiro, Guilherme 428
Montera, Jean-Marc 390, 515, 1273
Monterose, J. R. 123, 242, 392, 1001, 1025, 1397, 1460
Montgomery, Bernard 17
Montgomery, Buddy 689, 1026, 1026, 1027, 1029

Montgomery, Julio 483
Montgomery, Little Brother 295
Montgomery, Monk 201, 469, 666, 689, 1026, 1027, 1029
Montgomery, Tom 1523
Montgomery, Wes 10, 12, 689, 755, 813, 862, 1026, 1029, 1313
Montgomery, Wynell 566
Montgomery Brothers 1029
Montmarche, Robert 228, 667
Montoliu, Tete 160, 393, 581, 583, 760, 943, 1029, 1289, 1375
Montrell, Roy 389
Montrose, Jack 64, 579, 588, 839, 1082, 1141, 1230
Montrose, Ronnie 642
Montzka, Karl 517
Monville, Serge 1397
Moody, James 33, 192, 254, 363, 386, 406, 521, 550, 553, 554, 555, 571, 582, 639, 656, 673, 755, 774, 777, 797, 970, 1030, 1462
Moody, John 756
Moolgaard, Torolf 1479
Moon, Eric 997
Moon, Keith 693, 816
Moon, Ok Joo 807
Moonan, Dennis 591
Moondoc, Jemeel 242, 763, 1032, 1127, 1371
Mooney, Joe 489, 1210
Moore, Alfred 43, 736
Moore, Alton 43, 228, 1353, 1516
Moore, Anita 439
Moore, Bass 1098, 1251
Moore, 'Big Chief' Russell 43, 44, 257, 504, 1315
Moore, Bill 184, 398, 864, 900, 1044, 1433
Moore, Bobby 90, 1056, 1109
Moore, Brew 413, 543, 970, 1033, 1066, 1120, 1400, 1404
Moore, Charles 868
Moore, Danny 799, 1027, 1071, 1351
Moore, Darryl 60
Moore, Dave 680
Moore, David 6
Moore, Don 1288
Moore, Donald 792
Moore, Duncan 632
Moore, Eddie 511, 1197, 1259, 1342, 1455
Moore, Eustis 667
Moore, Freddie 100, 101, 102, 357, 379, 710, 788, 1098, 1314, 1315
Moore, Glen 308, 511, 1098, 1099, 1410
Moore, Glenn 139
Moore, Gregg 51, 169
Moore, Jackson 163
Moore, Jimmy 888
Moore, Joe 570
Moore, Kermit 275, 829, 867, 1539
Moore, Melvin 555, 662, 912, 913, 1517
Moore, Michael 16, 22, 51, 66, 149, 156, 158, 193, 196, 211, 262, 299, 366, 400, 459, 462, 511, 578, 601, 682, 744, 745, 811, 823, 831, 837, 922, 981, 990, 1033, 1034, 1201, 1304, 1434, 1435, 1442, 1527
Moore, Mike 694
Moore, Monette 125, 883, 1311
Moore, Numa 1030
Moore, Oscar 271, 528, 638, 1035, 1376
Moore, Pee Wee 554, 571, 1030, 1031
Moore, Phil 83, 555
Moore, Phil III 1517
Moore, Ralph 87, 184, 185, 323, 363, 406, 656, 676, 787, 831, 916, 1035, 1157, 1172, 1269, 1463
Moore, Robert 1250
Moore, Sam 207
Moore, Shirley 826
Moore, Slim 1458
Moore, Sol 715
Moore, Stanton 1182
Moore, Thurston 618, 1297
Moore, Tommy 119
Moore, Tony 1035
Moore, Vic 105
Moore, Wild Bill 736
Moore, Willie 670, 671
Moorman, Dennis 505
Moorman, Wilson III 1535
Mor, Daphna 1544
Mor, Omri 52
Mora, Carlos Francisco Hernandez 880
Morales, Humberto Canto 553, 1345
Morales, Janot 1203
Morales, Lloyd 1434
Morales, Pilar 1029
Morales, Richie 80
Morales, Tiburon 197
Moran, Gayle 304, 305, 922, 1208
Moran, George 107
Moran, Jason 214, 277, 507, 598, 657, 902, 909, 965, 982, 1035, 1105, 1106, 1169
Moran, Leo 1089
Moran, Matt 256, 452, 719, 880
Moran, Pat 550, 1036
Morand, Herb 379, 882, 1036
Morand, Morris 1037
Morant, Edward 999
Moraschini, Maurizio 535
Morcom, Pete 295, 814
Mordecai, Harry 1058
Morecambe, Dick 1489
Morehouse, Chauncey 105, 398, 542, 1017, 1081, 1353, 1446
Morehouse, Foster 398
Moreira, Airto 79, 170, 213, 304, 305, 347, 348, 349, 369, 462, 546, 629, 732, 768, 871, 976, 1134, 1296, 1474
Moreira, Emanuel 1055
Morel, Jean-Philippe 1324
Morel, Ysabel 1001
Morell, Marty 457, 458, 459, 969
Morello, Joe 123, 189, 190, 191, 203, 394, 469, 601, 982, 993, 1001, 1142, 1192
Moreno, Daniel 895, 1051, 1335
Moreno, Jairo 955
Moreno, Mike 442, 561, 603, 1139, 1208, 1211, 1348, 1349
Moreno, Tony 824, 946
Morente, Enrique 1255
Moresco, Joe 196, 1388
Moret, Pat 1438
Moretone Singers 616
Moretti, Umberto 533
Morgan, Al 123, 205, 218, 297, 666, 803, 937, 1388, 1456, 1457
Morgan, Andrew 729, 1037, 1041
Morgan, Art 747
Morgan, Barry 125
Morgan, Dick 573, 793
Morgan, Eddie 693
Morgan, Frank 242, 254, 471, 550, 595, 895, 1014, 1037
Morgan, Gary 1084
Morgan, Herbert 1535
Morgan, Ike 1041
Morgan, Jeffrey 1244
Morgan, Lanny 299, 496, 720, 1038, 1540
Morgan, Laurie 1073
Morgan, Lee 133, 134, 175, 284, 470, 554, 568, 606, 687, 690, 796, 813, 919, 980, 1013, 1018, 1038, 1295, 1315
Morgan, Paul 405, 665, 1225
Morgan, Peter 22, 900
Morgan, Russ 542
Morgan, Sam 1041
Morgan, Sonny 79
Morgan, Stan 880, 970
Morgan, Stanley 1359
Morgan, Thomas 127, 408, 660
Morgan, Tom 83, 118, 575, 576, 829
Morganelli, Mark 406
Morganthaler, Jürg 627
Morgenstern, Dan 158
Morgera, Fabio 24
Mori, Barak 689, 1200
Mori, Ikue 313, 402, 742, 1243, 1542, 1544, 1545
Mori, Yasuhito 547, 767, 1369, 1453
Moriconi, Massimo 473, 990
Morillas, Charlie 247, 850
Morimando, Bill 136
Morin, Camille 455
Moring, Bill 661
Morks, Jan 411
Morland, Morris 99
Morley, Rosamund 1260
Morning, Bill 1352
Moroch, Nick 240, 460
Moroni, Dado 184, 536, 559
Morrell, John 936
Morres, Don 83
Morris, Cleopas 389
Morris, Eddie 998
Morris, Ernest 570
Morris, Floyd 605, 739
Morris, Joe 262, 373, 572, 638, 803, 865, 880, 930, 1041, 1293
Morris, John 228, 229, 638, 1210
Morris, Lawrence 'Butch' 74, 75, 728, 842, 855, 911, 1043, 1058, 1059, 1515, 1515
Morris, Leo 113, 389, 1315
Morris, Marlow 1248
Morris, Marlowe 238, 609, 638, 705, 1477
Morris, Matthew F. 663
Morris, McClure 1056
Morris, Nigel 359, 750, 1253
Morris, Ramon 1285
Morris, Scott 272
Morris, Sonny 295, 316, 409, 869, 1043
Morris, Thomas 1504
Morris, Tom 1456, 1504
Morris, Wally 228, 477
Morris, Wilber 20, 25, 74, 151, 221, 242, 446, 478, 484, 538, 559, 593, 602, 731, 871, 974, 1059, 1060, 1298, 1371
Morrisey, Allan 819
Morrison, Audrey 362
Morrison, Barbara 550, 1313
Morrison, Clifton 776
Morrison, Henry 228
Morrison, James 185, 656, 670
Morrison, Johnny 570, 656
Morrison, Peck 57, 278, 384, 389, 436, 527, 571, 786, 793, 985, 1170, 1277, 1523
Morrison, Rudy 987
Morrison, Stu 295
Morrissey, Dick 226, 374, 632
Morrow, Buddy 396, 1162, 1282, 1334
Morrow, Fred 1081

Morrow, George 66, 181, 182, 1219, 1232, 1467
Morrow, Liza 576
Morse, Dick 814, 815
Morse, Trudy 1381
Mortimer, John 125, 1460
Mortimer, Johnny 1315
Mortimore, Malcolm 680
Morton, Bea 1109
Morton, Ben 953
Morton, Benny 23, 24, 90, 91, 155, 156, 196, 228, 297, 425, 488, 628, 686, 714, 1109, 1110, 1197, 1281, 1343, 1353, 1400, 1457, 1483, 1520, 1521
Morton, Bob 849
Morton, Clive 126
Morton, George 999
Morton, Hank 1400
Morton, Jeff 835, 1417, 1418
Morton, Jelly Roll 410, 937, 1044, 1075, 1103, 1300
Morton, Jim 461
Morton, Norval 380, 820, 1114, 1201
Morton, Simon 226, 322, 963, 976
Morton, Tom 1101
Mosalini, Juan José 223
Mosca, John 375, 1320, 1481
Mosca, Ray 390, 708, 851, 974, 1162, 1379
Mosca, Sal 123, 632, 747, 835, 836, 954, 1045
Moseholm, Erik 383
Moseley, Edgar 784, 882
Mosello, Joe 656
Mosely, Edgar 784
Moser, Joe 1203
Moses, Bob 115, 197, 203, 204, 308, 520, 549, 768, 828, 890, 942, 993, 1205, 1369
Moses, J. C. 384, 393, 702, 800, 1288, 1289
Moses, Rakalem Bob 1447
Moshe, Ras 870
Mosher, Jim 775, 1210
Mosher, John 1342
Mosher, Larry 693
Moshesh, Ken 1358
Mosley, Clint 871
Mosley, Don 1347
Mosley, Snub 42, 724
Moss, Danny 126, 332, 411, 680, 756, 961, 968, 1046, 1264, 1367, 1415
Moss, Danny Jr 332
Moss, David 377, 1542
Moss, Sandy 1302
Moss, Steve 1396
Mossblad, Gunnar 892
Mosse, Sandy 752, 1031, 1206
Mossman, Michael Philip 454, 656, 661, 1008, 1095, 1011, 1539
Most, Abe 236
Most, Sam 279, 299, 394, 469, 550, 752, 1210
Moten, Bennie 357, 1047, 1504
Moten, Buster 1047, 1477, 1533
Moten, Clarence 24
Moten, Lemont 489
Mothle, Ernest 1473
Motian, Paul 21, 26, 120, 136, 139, 140, 141, 150, 311, 317, 318, 321, 375, 455, 456, 457, 475, 500, 511, 512, 513, 623, 624, 651, 652, 721, 767, 768, 769, 770, 824, 839, 907, 910, 933, 972, 1047, 1163, 1164, 1186, 1194, 1246, 1249, 1278, 1323, 1329, 1339, 1394, 1417
Motihar, Diwan 652
Motsage, Margaret 960
Motsinger, Buddy 1404
Mott, David 590, 753
Mott, Francis 824
Motta, Arthur 1204
Mottola, Tony 614, 715
Moufflard, Maurice 1202, 1203
Moule, Ken 1206
Moultrie, Thomas 228, 229
Mounsey, Rob 428, 822, 844
Mountjoy, Monte 487
Mouse, Franziska 1043
Moutin, François 922, 1166, 1174, 1226, 1324
Moutin, Louis 1226
Mouzon, Alphonse 34, 308, 309, 1426, 1474
Moyake, Nick 144
Moye, Famoudou Don 46, 47, 145, 199, 255, 505, 540, 874, 894, 1050, 1185
Moylan, Benny 710
Moylan, Paul 532
Moyse, Nigel 1341
Moyses, Sean 1043
Mozdzer, Leszek 330
Mozian, Roger 817
Mraz, George 1, 15, 23, 106, 171, 201, 263, 270, 327, 386, 404, 495, 510, 519, 547, 555, 593, 630, 640, 647, 678, 793, 795, 822, 831, 887, 898, 909, 910, 924, 942, 954, 993, 1029, 1050, 1094, 1143, 1147, 1192, 1195, 1226, 1303, 1304, 1308, 1469, 1524
Mraz, Jiri [George] 1156
Mseleku, Bheki 1050
Mtume, James Heath 79, 89, 349, 350, 350, 679, 1234, 1426
Mtungwazi, Eska 824, 1010, 1167
Mucci, Enzo 537
Mucci, Louis 62, 201, 342, 343, 345, 395, 461, 462, 576, 865, 993, 1000, 1089
Muddel, Joe 70
Mueller, John 504
Mugavero, Nat 785
Muhammad, Ameen A. C. 356
Muhammad, Idris 33, 113, 145, 176, 273, 414, 505, 600, 658, 699, 733, 761, 762, 791, 798, 822, 854, 909, 919, 1030, 1258, 1259, 1299, 1343, 1390, 1468
Muhammad, Wali 183
Muhkerjee, Sheema 1167
Muir, Chris 1310
Muir, Jamie 1063, 1121
Muir, Jes 1259
Muirhead, Brad 885
Mujician 1051
Mukherjee, Sheema 1167
Mukunda, Vimu 483
Muldrow, Ronald 655
Muldrow, Sidney 441
Mulia, Michael 793, 1226
Mullarkey, Robin 1010
Mullen, Jim 27, 81, 226, 367, 398, 413, 533, 912, 956, 1051, 1077, 1285
Mullens, Bitsy 1210
Mullens, Eddie 'Moon' 43, 436, 712, 1109, 1184, 1348
Mullens, Justin 1525
Müller, Bruno 944
Muller, Patrick 1420
Müller, Torsten 515, 1253, 1254
Mulligan, Gerry 182, 191, 192, 340, 369, 413, 435, 544, 632, 835, 1005, 1022, 1051, 1379, 1400
Mulligan, Mick 991, 1055
Mullins, Herb 180
Mullins, Johnny 1319
Mullins, Reynold 639
Mullins, Riley 175, 672
Mullins, Zeke 639
Mulot, Jean-Pierre 338
Mulraney, Bill 228
Mulvenna, Tim 1438, 1439
Mumford, Don 1360
Mumford, John 39, 280, 475
Mummey, Kevin 1544
Munan, Maika 908
Münchinger, Christian 921
Munck, Jakob 1131
Munday, Brian 443, 869
Mundy, Jimmy 704, 705, 986, 1056, 1322
Muniak, Janusz 1336
Munisteri, Matt 813
Munk, Torben 356, 760
Munn, Billy 70, 228, 248
Munns, Roger 320
Muñoz, Tisziji 1056
Munro, Doug 1315
Munthe, Christian 251
Murakami, Hiroshi 662
Murakami, Yoshito 1210
Muranyi, Joe 872, 1352
Murcia, Sarah 277
Mure, Billy 1093, 1313, 1328
Muresu, Nicola 326
Mureškič, Nino 1254
Murgia, Gavino 563
Murley, Mike 968
Murphy, Curtis 999
Murphy, Dave 355
Murphy, Dick 1538
Murphy, Dorothy 1525
Murphy, Earl 1079
Murphy, Early 461
Murphy, Greg 20
Murphy, Jesse 131, 1340, 1544
Murphy, Joe 671, 757
Murphy, Lambert 106
Murphy, Malc 814
Murphy, Mark 914, 1056, 1284
Murphy, Nipper 247
Murphy, Norman 423, 848, 1092
Murphy, Paul 247, 405, 917, 926, 1057, 1330, 1514
Murphy, Sky 790
Murphy, Spud 83, 84
Murphy, Tim 1396
Murphy, Turk 784, 1058, 1472
Murray, Atu Harold 444
Murray, Bert 355
Murray, Bob 826
Murray, David 183, 200, 253, 325, 365, 444, 502, 609, 752, 753, 765, 1058, 1189, 1529, 1530
Murray, Dierdre 7, 1401
Murray, Don 105, 864, 1059, 1075, 1446
Murray, Frank 729
Murray, Lino 32
Murray, Matie 729
Murray, Mike 494
Murray, Randall 1360
Murray, Ricky 1356, 1358
Murray, Rod 885, 1075
Murray, Sunny 53, 199, 294, 300, 377, 401, 538, 960, 1060, 1062, 1265, 1290, 1380
Murren, Terence 536
Murrow, Ed 44
Murto, Janne 1432, 1433
Muscutt, Les 244, 737, 1100, 1217, 1496
Music Improvisation Company 1063
Musicos Cubanos 832
Musiker, Lee 328, 968, 1057
Musiker, Sam 423, 847, 848, 1092
Musillami, Michael 1063, 1134, 1135
Musso, Vido 488, 574, 576, 638, 692, 714, 763, 764, 815, 816, 847, 1334, 1520, 1521

Mussulli, Boots 239, 814, 815, 1171, 1445, 1446
Mustafa, Melton 1064, 1470
Mustafa, Yamin B. 1064
Mustarde, Bill 504, 1327
Mustonen, Mikko 1432, 1433
Muthspiel, Christian 1064, 1449
Muthspiel, Wolfgang 721, 789, 1048, 1064, 1449
Muzzillo, Ralph 40, 395, 574, 1334
Mwenso, Michael 1515
Myers, Amina Claudine 6, 7, 152, 162, 1064, 1291, 1401
Myers, Bumps 228, 229, 577, 760
Myers, Eddie 83
Myers, Evelyn 638
Myers, Frank 779
Myers, George 943
Myers, Louis 1309
Myers, Pete 85
Myers, Ron 1210
Myers, Wilson 99, 100, 101, 228, 272, 329, 431, 714, 796, 1326, 1331, 1343
Mygind, Jakob 392, 1059
Myrow, Joe 83

N

N'Doye, Miki 71
Nabatov, Simon 594, 1065, 1525, 1526
Naber-Tchicai, Margriet 1387
Nabicht, Theo 253, 1429
Nabors, Roi 40
Nabrier, Margriet 1386
Nacci, Alberto 535
Nagai, Shoko 488
Nagel, Paul 2
Naidu, Ajay 751
Najee 414
Nakamura, Kengo 952, 1185
Nakamura, Tatsuya 1259
Nakamura, Toshimaru 207
Nakamura, Yasushi 845
Nakasan, Stephanie 1091
Nakatani, Tatsuya 75, 648, 1422
Nalepka, Brian 748
Namtchvlak, Sainkho 842, 1122
Namuth, Walt 1210
Namysłowski, Zbigniew 834, 835
Nance, Ray 35, 208, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 555, 570, 571, 687, 698, 699, 706, 711, 712, 713, 783, 836, 1066
Nance, Teddy 1357
Nant, Richard 991
Nanton, Joe 'Tricky Sam' 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 711, 788, 1504
Napier, Bill 1058
Napier, Jean 975
Napoleon, Cedric 1468
Napoleon, Marty 44, 155, 752, 783, 1446
Napoleon, Phil 395, 398, 1017, 1066, 1101, 1280
Napoleon, Teddy 388, 848, 849, 1052, 1092, 1101, 1445
Napper, Kenny 253, 321, 370, 479, 539, 570, 632, 672, 674, 776, 1206, 1414
Napton, Johnny 118, 395, 576, 847
Naranjo, Valerie 372
Nardini, Lorenzo 533
Naret, Bobby 1203
Naruyoshi, Kikuchi 1533
Nascimento, Tiberio 406
Nash, Derek 394, 991, 1067, 1225
Nash, Dick 319, 388, 681, 1142, 1230
Nash, Kenneth 201, 607, 643, 694, 866, 1143
Nash, Lewis 15, 87, 110, 176, 185, 202, 205, 235, 246, 256, 405, 440, 451, 495, 501, 510, 555, 597, 630, 635, 640, 649, 684, 776, 843, 844, 876, 908, 910, 916, 934, 947, 952, 965, 985, 1072, 1138, 1139, 1141, 1156, 1157, 1175, 1192, 1239, 1269, 1424, 1428, 1463, 1469, 1470, 1496, 1513, 1517, 1518, 1519
Nash, Louis 689
Nash, Paul 1067
Nash, Ted 25, 26, 109, 466, 491, 525, 733, 820, 909, 1067, 1185
Nasser, Jamil 273, 284, 383, 627, 761, 899, 1537
Nassoo, Tõnu 664
Natalie, Cliff 118
Nathan, Jon 48
Nathan, Ray 736
Nathanson, Roy 722, 777, 1068
Natoli, Anthony 1334
Natoli, Nat 398, 1275, 1388
Naturel, Gilles 324, 758
Naturel, Guillaume 324
Naughton, Bobby 161, 1309
Naulais, Jérôme 386
Naundorf, Frank 958
Nauseef, Mark 875, 1311, 1448
Navarre, Xavier Desandre 1407
Navarro, Fats 254, 337, 413, 416, 552, 668, 758, 774, 826, 970, 1069, 1118, 1176, 1177
Navazio, Michele 709
Nawahi, Joe 42
Nay, Joe 680, 1029
Ndegeocello, Meshell 649, 877, 1199, 1340
NDR Big Band 69, 744, 1524
Neagley, Clint 50, 423, 576, 847, 848, 1092
Neal, Bob 791
Neal, Buddy 848, 849
Neal, Larry 1093
Neale, Alison 876
Neapolitan, Ray 440, 441
Neary, Jerry 574, 691
Neblett, Nate 89
Neckham, Maria 923
Nedea, Vasile 943
Neel, Bob 64, 65, 229
Neeley, Jimmy 793, 1226
Neely, John 639
Neergaard, Niels 391, 392, 760, 800
Negri, Danny 63
Negus, John 247
Neidlinger, Buell 161, 558, 855, 1379, 1380
Neighbor, Bob 754
Neighbourhood School Children's Choir 1228
Neil, Brian 50
Neil, Steve 911, 1301
Neill, Larry 716
Neilson, Alexander 561
Neiman, Paul 358
Nekljudow, Tom 1, 621
Nell, Bob 128
Nelligan, Don 496, 1540
Neloms, Bob 499, 1005
Nelson, Alan 265
Nelson, Allen 1173
Nelson, Arnett 263, 1326
Nelson, Brian King 925
Nelson, Dave 788, 1098, 1319
Nelson, Don 798
Nelson, Gail 1299
Nelson, Howard 1456
Nelson, Jeff 892, 1351
Nelson, Jimane 1060, 1530
Nelson, Louis 269, 737, 884, 958, 1037, 1070, 1072, 1079, 1436, 1438
Nelson, Martin 483
Nelson, Oliver 11, 32, 45, 338, 383, 527, 797, 986, 1070, 1234, 1424, 1486, 1522
Nelson, Steady 691, 692
Nelson, Steve 154, 195, 353, 407, 657, 718, 811, 876, 915, 998, 1071, 1074, 1076, 1241, 1287, 1335, 1362, 1470, 1519
Nelson, Steven 718
Nelson, Willie 460
Nelson, 'Big Eye' Louis 1072
Nelson Riddle Orchestra 490, 491
Nemeth, Ferenc 1447
Nemo, Henry 91, 628
Nemoli, Phil 1282
Nepus, Ira 259, 694, 1517
Nerem, Bjarne 27, 46, 545, 602, 606, 616, 781, 782, 897, 1306
Nesbitt, John 975
Neste, Arnulf 751
Neto, Alipio Cavalho 746
Netta, Tobias 1382
Netz, Björn 3
Neuenschwander, Mark 250
Neufville, Renee 649
Neumann, Andrea 782, 906
Neumann, Hans Ulrik 49
Neumann, Scott 129, 507
Neumeier, Mani 562
Neves, John 203, 299, 545, 851, 1171
Neville, Aaron 1275
Neville, Chris 1501
Neville, Derek 1322
Nevrin, Klas 900
New Art Orchestra 174
Newborn, Calvin 316, 389, 500, 739, 899, 1072
Newborn, Phineas 418, 675, 787, 899, 971, 1001, 1072
Newcombe, Clyde 297, 504, 622, 848
New Departures Quartet 1073
Newell, Laura 1353
Newell, Scott 487
New Jazz Composers Octet 1073
Newman, Al 321
Newman, Bill 487, 1058, 1104
Newman, Blake 810
Newman, Bob 693
Newman, Cadino 1074
Newman, David 'Fathead' 149, 257, 270, 316, 407, 414, 649, 655, 791, 854, 934, 971, 972, 1073, 1275, 1315
Newman, Freddy 150
Newman, Jesse 127
Newman, Joe 15, 32, 54, 91, 92, 228, 230, 258, 268, 299, 319, 491, 588, 638, 655, 669, 716, 717, 758, 759, 760, 783, 793, 797, 987, 1015, 1027, 1031, 1071, 1074, 1188, 1248, 1278, 1313, 1345, 1353, 1400, 1467, 1502, 1535
Newman, Kurt 618
Newman, Tim 640
Newmark, Andrew 956
Newmark, Andy 1255
Newmark, Harvey 247, 417
New Orchestra Workshop 1075
New Orleans Jazzmen 893
New Orleans Rhythm Kings 1075
Newsom, Tom 210
Newsom, Tommy 104, 158, 236, 647, 780, 1077, 1442, 1531
Newsome, Chubby 1069, 1118
Newsome, Sam 88, 463, 753, 945, 1076

Newton, Adrian 658
Newton, Bill 820, 1085
Newton, Curt 1041, 1438, 1440
Newton, Dave 680, 1407
Newton, David 81, 82, 814, 879, 1077, 1112, 1225, 1385, 1482
Newton, Frankie 31, 56, 83, 100, 101, 228, 270, 488, 704, 715, 788, 1078, 1319, 1353, 1483, 1510, 1520
Newton, James 147, 233, 279, 325, 765, 778, 1078
Newton, Lauren 163, 1373, 1448
Newton, Nancy 136
Newton, Seldon 761
New York Hard Bop Quintet, The 1078
New York Philharmonic Orchestra 1510
New York Voices 630
Ngo, Nanh Thanh 75
Nguyen, Co Boi 75
Nhien, Hao 873
Niblock, Alan 772
Nice, Steve 869
Nichol, Bill 388
Nicholas, Albert 23, 24, 41, 42, 100, 102, 355, 379, 461, 789, 798, 1044, 1045, 1079, 1097, 1103, 1104, 1251, 1456, 1457, 1505
Nicholas, 'Big' Nick 108, 341, 553, 793, 999
Nicholas, George 155
Nicholas, Wooden Joe 198, 379, 1072, 1079
Nicholls, Barrie 1493
Nicholls, Nick 1362
Nichols, Dave 84
Nichols, Herbie 1079
Nichols, Jim 1142
Nichols, Keith 919, 1080, 1150, 1352, 1490
Nichols, Marion 83
Nichols, Red 494, 542, 888, 900, 1017, 1080, 1387
Nichols, Rich 1525
Nichols, Rudy 1001
Nichols, Tony 1210
Nicholson, Albert 113
Nicholson, Ed 184, 552, 580, 609, 1443
Nicholson, Guy 1188
Nicholson, Peter 561
Nicholson, Reggie 7, 151, 221, 356, 538, 778, 990, 1401
Nicholson, Todd 75, 536, 1128
Nicita, Carlo 468
Nicolescu, Florin 943
Nicolini, John 83
Nicols, Maggie 561, 875, 1082, 1253, 1271, 1403, 1404
Nicosia, Pucci 1433
Niebergall, Buschi 177, 408, 562, 1265, 1270
Niehaus, Lennie 816, 817, 1082, 1247
Nielsen, Benny 581, 583, 1033
Nielsen, Bent 818, 1479
Nielsen, Ole Thoger 800
Nielsen, Per 818
Nielsen, Peter Friis 178, 1122
Nielsen, Valdemar 49
Nieman, Paul 749, 905, 906, 1253
Nieske, Bob 422, 785
Nieto, Ubaldo 553, 1037, 1095, 1283, 1379
Nievergelt, Derek 135
Niewood, Gerry 195
Niggli, Lucas 2, 367, 475, 1083
Nightingale, Glen 680
Nightingale, Mark 82, 332, 333, 532, 636, 1096, 1112, 1412, 1413, 1415, 1482
Nigro, Danny 996
Nijholt, Nico 170
Nilsen, Håkon 602, 751
Nilsen, Per 602
Nilsen, Tore 781
Nilson, Gunnar 615
Nilssen-Love, Paal 179, 559, 560, 618, 619, 766, 1083, 1258, 1279, 1439, 1487
Nilsson, Erik 5, 387, 782, 897, 1250
Nilsson, Gösta 46
Nilsson, Gote 782
Nilsson, Jorgen 800
Nilsson, Lennart 1118
Nilsson, Lisa 1102
Nilsson, Matz 1369
Nilsson, Mikke 1348
Nilsson, Torgny 897
Nilsson, Vincent 95, 114, 495, 583, 799, 939, 996, 1084, 1324, 1407
Nilsson, Ylva 830
Nilsson, Yngve 420
Nimitz, Jack 85, 111, 202, 550, 555, 656, 662, 693, 817, 889, 933, 1082, 1084, 1093, 1119, 1165, 1280, 1517
Nimmer, Dan 953
Nimmons, Phil 1084
Nimms, Walter 691
Nimrod, Carl 1358
Ninck Blok, Edu 68
Ninh, Lê Quan 390, 842, 1043
Nistico, Sal 258, 693, 694, 932, 1085, 1170
Nitta, Glenn 697
Nitta Rette Et Son Trio Hot 1203
Nivison, Dick 242, 595, 1283
Nix, Bern 276, 911, 1032, 1033
Nixon, Teddy 99, 685
Nizza, Pat 715
Njami, Jules Bikôkô 443
Nkwazi, Bina 1432
Noah, Bert 1388
Noakes, Alfie 70, 248
Noakes, Don 1472
Nobile, Mario 508
Noble, Eddie 551
Noble, Liam 869, 898, 1085, 1308, 1325, 1482, 1497
Noble, Steve 56, 124, 195, 296, 315, 832, 1085, 1085
Nock, Mike 867, 942
Noda, Mika 1310
Noday, Dennis 483, 818
Nodwell, Mark 1075
Noel, Dick 397, 681, 1189
Nolan, John 316, 442
Nolan, Walter 1188
Nolet, Jim 128, 777
No Name 1396
Nonnenmacher, Horst 747, 1502
Nook Shrier Orchestra 1467
Noonan, Ray 779
Noonan, Terry 483
Noone, Jimmie 820, 1085, 1097, 1388
Noordhoek, Tineke 939
Norbakken, Helge Andreas 71
Norberg, Johan 807, 831, 1087
Norby, Caecilie 914, 1086
Nord, Mike 226
Norden, Ray 1388
Nordenström, Jesper 807
Nordermark, Robert 1087
Nordeson, Kjell 465, 487, 604, 852, 1257, 1439, 1459
Nordin, Sture 781, 782, 897, 1237, 1306, 1479, 1498
Nordlie, Tore 602
Nordmark, Robert 1348
Nordqvist, Ole 1407
Nordsø, Klavs 810
Nordsø, Mikkel 964
Nordsoe, Klaus 583
Nordström, Bengt 'Frippe' 401, 1086
Nordström, Fredrik 1086
Nore 637
Norelius, Lise-Lotte 1257
Norén, Fredrik 5, 447, 767, 997, 1087, 1306, 1347, 1348, 1479
Norén, Jack 180, 386, 544, 616, 1030, 1118, 1149, 1302
Norén, Neta 1347, 1348
Noriega, Oscar 2, 516, 839
Norin, Carl-Henrik 46, 420, 424, 616, 631, 1030
Norman, Charles 424, 562
Norman, Fred 724, 725
Norman, Gene 1219
Normann, Robert 602
Norrbotten Big Band 5, 626, 1087
Nørregaard, Kjeld 49
Nørregaard, Svend-Erik 339, 356, 417, 838, 954, 1366, 1375, 1396
Norris, Al 912, 913
Norris, Alex 28, 897, 1169
Norris, Alexander Pope 1169
Norris, Catherine 730
Norris, Charles 789
Norris, Enrique 663
Norris, Jean 530
Norris, Walter 69, 274, 540
Norström, Erik 545, 767, 785, 1176
North, Dave 504
Northern, Bob 287, 461, 462, 470, 623, 732, 755, 775, 797, 1022, 1355, 1357
Northern Sinfonia Strings 528
Northington, Larry 1358
Northover, Adrian 1205
Norton, Freddy 118
Norton, James 709
Norton, Jim 765, 959
Norton, Kevin 73, 163, 164, 409, 445, 498, 560, 721, 790, 792, 875, 877, 1088, 1131, 1371
Norton, Steve 422
Norvo, Red 62, 63, 83, 230, 469, 525, 557, 575, 576, 577, 578, 588, 628, 692, 1089, 1115, 1142, 1230, 1344, 1353, 1408, 1521
Noto, Sam 816, 817
Nottingham, Jimmy 15, 84, 553, 638, 715, 797, 943, 1027, 1028, 1095, 1179, 1254, 1278, 1283, 1391
Nourrédine, Jacques 497
Novak, David 163
Novak, Gary 114, 305, 306, 527, 904
Novak, Larry 237, 550
Novak, Rudy 779, 848
Novelli 79
Novello, John 305
November, Linda 483
Novick, Billy 748
Novosel, Steve 700, 726, 727, 777, 827, 828, 1074, 1514
Nowinski, Paul 957
Noyes, Charles 1542
Noyes, Charles K. 807
Nozati, Annick 98, 1440
Ntoni, Victor 960
Ntshoko, Makaya 110, 412, 581, 742
Nu, Peter 1082
Nu Band, The 1090
Nuclear B 637
Nuese, Rupert 1510
Number, The 1090
Nunez, Gabriel 1128
Nunn, Tom 539
Nurallah, Shahita 21
Nuss, Ludwig 174, 690

Nussbaum, Adam 4, 114, 118, 142, 220, 329, 380, 388, 543, 651, 837, 840, 841, 845, 891, 892, 898, 903, 966, 1111, 1212, 1268, 1273, 1351, 1369, 1370, 1447, 1452, 1518
Nussbaum, Joe 591
Nussbaum, Lou 889
Nwobueze, Chim 906
Nya 1420
Nyberg, Gunnar 386
Nyberg, Lina 830, 1087
Nyhaug, Per 602
Nykänen, Anssi 1432
Nykyruj, Peter 1105
Nylander, Peter 725
Nymand, Hans 15
Nymark, Claus 366
Nymo, Frode 71
Nyqvist, Håkan 996, 1459
Nyström, David 807

O

O'Brien, Elmer 1327
O'Brien, Floyd 228, 297, 504, 847, 937, 1334, 1457
O'Brien, Hod 68, 187, 269, 374, 375, 1025, 1091, 1186, 1397
O'Brien, John 486, 502
O'Brien, Kenny 242, 596, 1445, 1446, 1523, 1539
O'Brien, Pete 1148
O'Bryant, Jimmy 51, 1114
O'Callaghan, Patricia 214
O'Carroll, John 226
O'Connell, Bill 709
O'Connell, Billy 468
O'Connell, Brian 244, 737
O'Connell, Helen 395
O'Connell, Kevin 801
O'Connor, Mark 940
O'Connor, Pat 207, 395
O'Connor, Paul 1500
O'Day, Anita 578, 814, 815, 848, 1092
O'Dell, Jim 775
O'Donnell, Aidan 660, 1318, 1338
O'Donnell, Ed 293
O'Donnell, Johnny 542
O'Farrill, Arturo 137, 1094, 1095
O'Farrill, Chico 1095
O' Flynn, Bridget 1510
O'Gallagher, John 172, 727, 731
O'Hara, Barrett 236
O'Hara, Bart 1540
O'Hara, Betty 236, 476, 504
O'Hara, Mary 27
O'Higgins, Dave 1051, 1095, 1385, 1413
O'Leary, Mark 1096
O'Leary, Pat 912, 926, 1224, 1225, 1495
O'Neal, Harold 1106, 1471
O'Neal, Johnny 586, 1395
O'Neil, Dolores 1282
O'Neil, Kevin 163, 164, 877
O'Neil, Michael 154
O'Quinn, Keith 109, 477, 478, 689, 1008, 1268, 1269, 1275
O'Reilly, Evan 210
O'Rourke, Brian 202, 247, 498, 499, 1517
O'Rourke, David 1139
O'Rourke, Jim 60, 618
O'Sullivan, Tony 367
Oakley, Leon 369, 682, 1058, 1300, 1326, 1533
Oatts, Dick 331, 689, 806, 909, 968, 969, 1090, 1228, 1320, 1335, 1347, 1348, 1447
Obeng, Kwaaku Kwaakye 713, 1311
Oberg, Sten 1007
Oberkanins, Ingrid 1449
Obermayer, Paul 518, 1126
Oblon, James 1090
Oçal, Burhan 1539
Occhipinti, Giorgio 1000, 1091
Ochs, Larry 485, 522, 564, 896, 1092, 1242, 1243, 1310, 1329, 1330, 1493, 1544
Ocker, David 566
Octurn 1541
Oddvar Johansen, Per 1279
Oderich, Jimmy 1282
Odgers, Brian 549, 976, 1363
Odgren, Jim 549, 678, 991, 1428
Odrich, Ron 148, 330, 1303, 1391
Odun 1359
Odun, Spencer 638
Oeconomy, Bobby 1133
Oehler, Dale 1025
Oettel, Jason 704
Off Broadway Woodwind Ensemble 415
Öfwerman, Rune 27, 383, 616, 639
Ogay, Antoine 1395
Ogilvie, Brian 48, 85, 681, 1308, 1366, 1500
Ogle, Arthur 455
Ogle, Red 847
Ogle, Rodney 692
Ohlsson, Gordon 46
Ohlsson, Kettil 616
Ohm, David 991, 1211
Öhman, Kjell 449, 1213
Ohms, Fred 297, 424
Ohta, Keisuke 334
Oir, Ben 1544
Öiseth, Hildegunn 767
Okegwo, Ugonna 28, 88, 353, 474, 652, 753, 881, 926, 945, 1076, 1340, 1389, 1390
Okoshi, Tiger 117, 891
Okou 1101
Okri, Ben 76
Okudaira, Shingo 529
Okura, Meg 282, 1076, 1370, 1544
Olandersson, Karl 1348
Olatuja, Michael 824
Olatunji, Mike 797
Olczak, Matthew 658
Old And New Dreams 1096
Oldham, Bill 42, 753
Oldham, George 42, 638
Oldham, Lloyd 433
Oldham, Oscar 341, 499
Oleaga, Hasier 71
Olejniczak, Andrzej 366
Olen, Ole 1217
Oles, Bartolomiej Brat 1223
Oles, Louis 173, 1210
Oles, Marcin 1223
Olesen, Mads Kjølby 664
Olesen, Winstrup 1322
Oleszkiewicz, Darek 'Oles' 550, 841, 902, 963, 989, 1084, 1292
Olin, Maggi 780
Olinder, Anders 832
Oliphant, Grassella 1277
Olive, DJ 216, 400
Oliveira, Jose 815
Oliveira, Laudir 305
Oliveira, Pedro 1263
Olivella, Phil 622, 937
Oliver, Bilal 442, 561
Oliver, Buford 209, 219, 1110, 1198
Oliver, Jay 224, 917
Oliver, Joe 'King' 788, 864, 1044, 1097, 1103, 1504
Oliver, Mary 116, 745
Oliver, Mort 1188
Oliver, Ray 239
Oliver, Sy 43, 397, 489, 490, 912, 1281
Olivera, Phil 1066
Oliver Nelson orchestra 1313
Oliveros, Pauline 742
Olko, Marek 351
Ollé, Tierry 1500
Ölmedal, Nils 997
Olney, Dave 415, 1347
Olofsson, Christer 767
Olofsson, Lars 1250
Olsen, Bob 817
Olsen, Eyvind 115
Olsen, Ivar 1250
Olsen, Jens Skou 844, 1059
Olsen, Ole 1112, 1113
Olsen, Peter 1458
Olsen, Ray 1388
Olsen, Rune 1431
Olson, Gary 151
Olson, Marty 848
Olson, Stewart 1092
Olson, Stuart 848
Olsson, Crille 807
Olsson, George 616
Olsson, Lars-Göran 1149
Olsson, Mats 420, 615, 616
Olsson, Samuel 767
Olstad, Peter 939, 1095
Olstad, Tom 115, 327, 751
Omkar, G. 944
Omoe, Eloe 1358, 1359, 1359, 1360
Onderdonk, Dave 427
One, Vox 762
Ono, Naoko 962
Oppens, Ursula 296
Opsvik, Eivind 127, 339, 615, 1098
Oquendo, Manny 1095, 1379, 1405
Orange, Joseph 1289
Orchard, Frank 788, 947, 1319
Orchart, Raymond 871
Orchestra, London Symphony 193, 923, 992
Orchestra della Toscana 149, 1043
Orchestra Jazz della Sardegna 535
Orchestra Of St Luke's 1469
Orchestre National Du Jazz 1098
Ord, Graham 620, 1075
Ord, Johnny 1377
Ordean, Jack 814
Ore, John 75, 723, 724, 855, 1013, 1022, 1023, 1024, 1136, 1360, 1361, 1537
Oredson, Sverre 420
Oregon 1098
Orena, Charlie 247
Orendorff, George 41
Orenstein, Lou 801, 1462
Orent, Milton 1510
Organic Grooves 1128
Original Camellia Jazz Band Of New Orleans 1100
Original Dixieland Jazz Band 1100
Original Indiana Five 1101
Original Memphis Five 1101
Oriole 1101
Orlandi, Sergio 535
Orlando, Phil 419
Orloff, Gene 646, 1028
Ormond, John 895
Ornowski, Ed 395, 1078
Ornstein, Maarten 721
Oron, Yorai 182
Orozo, Stenio 815
Orpheus Chamber Orchestra 644
Orpwood, Ray 316
Orquendo, David 1095
Orquesta Roma Sinfonietta 536
Orquestra Jazz De Matoshinos 840
Orr, Bobby 187, 248, 467, 652, 811
Orr, Buxton 905
Orr, Carl 264
Orr, Raymond 416

Orrell, Tony 410
Orrje, Carl Fredrik 1237, 1327
Orselli, Mauro 249
Ørsted Pedersen, Niels-Henning 15, 49, 52, 67, 93, 94, 126, 140, 160, 210, 230, 364, 381, 391, 393, 404, 425, 493, 541, 546, 555, 565, 581, 582, 583, 591, 592, 607, 639, 670, 674, 733, 760, 774, 799, 802, 818, 836, 846, 954, 980, 996, 1029, 1101, 1131, 1153, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1157, 1159, 1191, 1289, 1290, 1303, 1316, 1386, 1395, 1479, 1522
Orta, Mike 220, 1261
Orta, Nicky 220, 1261
Ortega, Anthony 482, 661, 662, 1103, 1517
Ort Ensemble Wuppertal 842
Orth, Clemens 637
Orti, Guillaume 1174
Ortolano, Joe 395, 396
Orton, Mark 1544
Ory, Cecile 1104
Ory, Kid 41, 51, 379, 784, 1044, 1097, 1103, 1251
Osborn, Ralph 764
Osborne, Bill 161
Osborne, Bobby 203
Osborne, Buzz 1545
Osborne, Donny 1287, 1409
Osborne, Jimmy 558
Osborne, Mary 413, 668, 1316, 1510
Osborne, Mike 104, 549, 905, 997, 998, 1105, 1325, 1341, 1363, 1417, 1488, 1524
Osborne, Ralph 388
Osborne, Sonny 203
Osbourne, Ralph 764
Osby, Greg 226, 302, 443, 454, 630, 657, 738, 909, 1035, 1105, 1396
Osgood, Kresten 129, 375
Oshita, Gerald 1011
Oslawski, John 694
Ossa, Ronnie 818
Osser, Glenn 622
Ostaszewski, Jacek 835
Oster, Martien 541
Österberg, David 807
Østergren, Thomas 412
Osterloh, Klaus 38, 690
Ostertag, Bob 1542
Östholm, Jonas 619
Östlund, Pétur 'Island' 321, 996, 997
Öström, Magnus 379, 1367, 1368, 1407
Ostwald, David 1260
Oswald, John 60, 807
Oswanski, Ron 483
Otero, Fernando 406
Othello 1133
Otis, Eric 1517
Otis, Fred 692, 1095
Otis, Johnny 758, 1535
Oto, Lloyd 1189
Ott, Horace 971
Ottaviano, Roberto 475, 534, 548, 921, 1106
Ottini, Roberto 137
Otto, John 369, 1308
Otto, Lloyd 815, 816
Otto, Matt 778
Otto, Tim 1196
Otwell, Marshall 987
Oughton, Chas 570
Ounaskari, Markku 808
Ourio, Olivier Ker 943
Ousen, Ole 1396
Ousley, Harold 650, 1107, 1467
Outcalt, Alfred 'Chippie' 31, 416, 1345, 1443
Outlaw, Ernest 1031
Outram, Mike 332, 746, 1096, 1329, 1416
Ouwerckx, John 1203
Ovalles, Gustavo 908
Ovary Lodge 1107
Overberg, Don 588
Overberghe, Cel 1440
Overgaauw, Wim 1395
Overs, Kieran 197, 880, 920, 928, 1340
Overton, Hall 242, 543, 1192
Overton, Nancy 173
Overwater, Tony 721, 1060
Ovesen, Thomas 95, 565, 630, 996, 1324, 1396
Ovsepian, Vardan 1107
Owen, Mike 413, 537, 826, 1300, 1308
Owen, Paula 845
Owen, Reg 70
Owens, Brandon 135, 303, 355, 651, 1349
Owens, Charles 154, 233, 247, 259, 897, 1108, 1210
Owens, Charles II 259
Owens, Jack 1089
Owens, Jimmy 88, 113, 208, 264, 419, 439, 450, 655, 689, 871, 1004, 1031, 1108, 1290, 1318, 1517, 1518, 1539
Owens, John 63, 83, 691, 692, 1275
Owens, Jon 483, 719, 1095
Owens, Juicy 1536
Owers, Michael 1318
Ox, Ferhat 324
Oxidine, Matais 1064
Oxley, Colin 532, 814, 1077, 1407
Oxley, Frank 1217
Oxley, Tony 59, 103, 177, 378, 459, 549, 594, 749, 806, 905, 906, 929, 976, 1108, 1193, 1214, 1215, 1253, 1266, 1276, 1306, 1336, 1363, 1364, 1381, 1382, 1383, 1524
Ozada, Atsushi 1106
Ozaki, Jinshi 825
Ozone, Makoto 204, 205, 381
Ozsuca, Evrim 324

P

'Pa' 1436
Paakkunainen, Seppo 1447
Paasonen, Timo 1432, 1433
Pace, Sal 450
Pace, Tony 1101
Pacheco, Johnny 113, 529, 1425
Pacheco, Mike 817
Paci, Ray 927
Paci, Roy 927
Pack, Helder 869
Pacque, Glyn 228
Padden, Daniel 203, 561
Padden, John 485
Padilla, Ricardo 1433
Padin, Jorge 79
Padmore, Danny 243
Pagano, Vinnie 2
Page, Billy 1097
Page, Dave 424, 638
Page, David 262
Page, Drew 763, 764
Page, Hot Lips 31, 101, 102, 122, 205, 297, 714, 789, 793, 1047, 1109, 1283, 1477
Page, Les 316
Page, Mick 1489
Page, Mike 1489
Page, Richard 1540
Page, Tim 480
Page, Tom 1055, 1484
Page, Vernon 1047
Page, Walter 63, 90, 91, 100, 101, 102, 155, 156, 298, 355, 372, 574, 714, 736, 763, 795, 853, 987, 1047, 1165, 1188, 1248, 1375, 1521, 1535
Page, Zack 872
Pagen, Angelo Mark 1263
Pago Libre 1110
Paich, Marty 222, 446, 466, 491, 525, 588, 935, 1111, 1230, 1408
Paigankar, Chandrahas 652
Paige, Billy 1103
Paige, Bob 705, 1020
Paine, Benny 429
Paine, Sylvester 489
Päivinen, Pepa 1432, 1433, 1448
Päivinen, Pertti 1432, 1433
Pajeaud, Willie 455
Palacios, Quelo 79
Paladino, Don 815, 816, 1283
Palet, Benet 1314
Paley, John 694
Paley, Ron 694
Palin, Joe 1207
Palladino, Bernard 649
Palladino, Pino 649, 1256
Pallemaerts, Dre 173, 227, 1264, 1418
Pallesen, Guffy 1025
Pallmaerts, Dré 52
Palma, Miriam 539
Palmer, Alan 1503
Palmer, Clarence 113, 1078
Palmer, Dick 1056
Palmer, Earl 279, 555, 681, 1170
Palmer, Francis 1252
Palmer, George 476
Palmer, Gladys 424
Palmer, Jack 63, 763, 764, 1089, 1445
Palmer, Jeff 675, 1111
Palmer, Kyle 324
Palmer, Mick 39
Palmer, Robert 276
Palmer, Roy 379, 380, 798, 1044
Palmer, Stanley 652, 671
Palmer, Ted 1190
Palmer, Thomas 1050
Palmer, Tom 560
Palmer Brothers, The 428, 704, 853, 1251
Palmieri, Eddie 916, 1405
Palmieri, Paul 1053
Palmieri, Remo 43, 63, 125, 270, 477, 489, 552, 1210, 1443, 1501, 1510, 1521
Palmisano, Angelo 628
Palmore, Gayle 183
Palmore, Steven 36
Palombi, Paul 483
Palombi, Phil 329
Palser, Barry 295
Palumbo, Manlio 533
Pameijer, Pam 475
Panasenko, Sergey 853
Panayi, Andy 82, 333, 533, 868, 879, 1112, 1317, 1509
Pancoast, Bob 1314
Panelli, Charlie 646, 1101
Panico, Porky 752
Pantoja, Antonio 79
Pantoja, Victor 642, 871, 1405
Panzer, Elizabeth 473, 1182, 1529
Paoli, Walter 333
Papa, Tony 222
Papa Bue's Viking Jazz Band 1112
Papageorge, Tod 136
Paparelli, Frank 552
Papetti, Fausto 64, 66
Pappalardo, Frank 84, 815
Paquay, Georges 1202
Paque, Glyn 24, 1098
Paquette, David 356, 1217
Paquinet, Guy 667, 1202, 1203, 1204
Paquito 1261
Paraboschi, Roger 358
Paramount Jazz Band Of Boston 1113
Parenti, Tony 297, 355, 710, 864, 1113
Pareti, Lello 333

Parga, Luiz 545
Parham, Ernest 1406
Parham, Fred 798
Parham, Tiny 263, 379, 1114
Parham, Truck 63, 108, 423, 705, 710, 711, 913, 1328
Paris, Jackie 212, 752, 1001, 1005
Park, Joe 397
Park, John 818
Park, Kim 939, 940
Park, Sang-Won 807
Park, Soo-Kyung 1213
Parker, Baird 1460
Parker, Brian 187
Parker, Bud 817, 818
Parker, Bunky 499
Parker, Charlie 64, 340, 341, 413, 552, 609, 774, 945, 987, 1000, 1069, 1089, 1095, 1114, 1176, 1400, 1443
Parker, David 1511
Parker, Dee 395
Parker, Dolores 432, 705
Parker, Don 1100
Parker, Eddie 95, 1050
Parker, Evan 58, 112, 116, 142, 161, 162, 176, 177, 198, 251, 296, 315, 362, 409, 472, 484, 515, 561, 562, 620, 621, 729, 749, 842, 856, 857, 905, 906, 927, 1012, 1016, 1063, 1083, 1108, 1120, 1182, 1183, 1253, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1270, 1332, 1333, 1341, 1342, 1381, 1382, 1415, 1494
Parker, Frank 1496
Parker Jr, Frank 427
Parker, Isaiah 1128
Parker, Jack 'The Bear' 209, 271, 571, 698, 789, 793, 1109, 1510
Parker, Jeff 6, 28, 356, 422, 485, 886, 1009, 1199, 1200, 1387
Parker, Jerry 1117
Parker, Johnny 294, 467, 475, 789, 915, 918, 1362
Parker, Junior 543
Parker, Knocky 461, 1113
Parker, Leo 31, 416, 667, 758, 759, 760, 785, 1069, 1176, 1400, 1443
Parker, Leon 33, 179, 232, 738, 822, 1257, 1389, 1390, 1423, 1520
Parker, Maceo 798
Parker, Matt 483
Parker, Maynard 33, 414, 1468
Parker, Melvin 1506
Parker, Paul 1026, 1412
Parker, Ray 101, 148
Parker Jr, Ray 643
Parker, Rick 1127
Parker, Ted 1540
Parker, William 25, 37, 59, 74, 151, 177, 178, 186, 196, 221, 231, 249, 278, 310, 378, 402, 446, 473, 484, 520, 538, 559, 722, 728, 803, 843, 874, 875, 917, 924, 925, 926, 931, 941, 1032, 1033, 1041, 1126, 1127, 1144, 1161, 1189, 1293, 1294, 1298, 1330, 1381, 1382, 1383, 1421, 1464, 1465
Parkes, Bud 401
Parkins, Andrea 261, 452, 516, 658, 722, 1042
Parks, Aaron 135, 1140
Parks, Bob 83
Parks, Mary Maria 54
Parlan, Horace 57, 230, 278, 449, 571, 580, 583, 719, 800, 828, 1001, 1002, 1059, 1084, 1130, 1191, 1237, 1290, 1391, 1392, 1424
Parlato, Dave 441, 954
Parloff, Michael 910
Parnell, Jack 70, 371, 889, 1352, 1389
Parnell, Marc 1211, 1416, 1473
Parr, Frank 1055
Parran, H. D. 420
Parran, J. D. 145, 161, 163, 177, 214, 464, 703, 1131, 1140, 1298
Parricelli, John 333, 408, 814, 904, 1180, 1284, 1291, 1292, 1300, 1329, 1355, 1412, 1494, 1495
Parrini, Emanuele 476
Parrish, Avery 670
Parrish, Chuck 362
Parrish, Matthew 234
Parrish, Terry 426
Parrott, Lisa 1196
Parrott, Nicki 336, 511, 823, 1308, 1442, 1479
Parry, Harry 70
Parry, Ron 260, 831
Parshal, Harry 1283
Parsley, Marcus 657
Parson, Dion 465, 1424
Parsons, Bob 1351
Parsons, John 1310
Parsons, Longineu 973, 1383
Partajo, Victor 1138
Parton, Rob 939
Partyka, Edward 174, 690, 1449
Pasanen, Mikko 664
Pasborg, Stefan 1131
Pascal, Alix 'Tit' 325
Pascal, Didier 1500
Paschal, Elvis 1064
Pasco, Mark 118
Pascoal, Hermeto 348, 349
Pascoe, Keith 1365
Pasillas, Ricardo 'Tiki' 1292
Pasley, Frank 784
Pasmanick, Kenneth 211
Pasqua, Alan 448, 854, 1452
Pasquall, Jerome 99, 686, 820
Pass, Joe 93, 94, 230, 364, 425, 439, 442, 492, 493, 555, 592, 733, 755, 774, 787, 854, 986, 1131, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1181, 1304, 1392, 1395, 1444, 1445, 1517
Pastels, The 815
Paster, Bennett 826
Paster, Ted 1120
Pastor, Tony 50, 1282
Pastora, Lee 264
Pastorius, Jaco 642, 643, 993, 1008, 1133, 1475
Pastre, Michel 1500
Patania, Rosario 927
Patato, Nee-Daku 1473
Patchen, Frank 1141, 1247
Pate, Don 462, 505, 1056, 1065, 1513
Pate, Johnny 435, 1031
Patent, Harry 100, 1353
Paterson, Don 528
Paterson, George 596
Paterson, Graham 645, 884, 958
Paterson, William 'Spaceman' 676
Patillo, Marvin 1258, 1300
Patiris, Danny 571
Patitucci, John 4, 18, 153, 168, 171, 205, 217, 305, 306, 307, 460, 527, 591, 644, 721, 822, 958, 1145, 1213, 1292, 1296, 1301, 1302, 1318, 1325, 1340, 1371, 1480, 1486
Patrice 1544
Patrick, Johnny 371
Patrick, Kevin 506
Patrick, Pat 287, 678, 798, 1009, 1031, 1262, 1351, 1355, 1356, 1357, 1358, 1359, 1360
Patscha, Glenn 335, 659
Patterson, Alfred 7, 777
Patterson, Ann 247, 441
Patterson, Don 338, 831, 1346
Patterson, Mark 300
Patterson, Ottilie 77, 78
Patterson, Pete 377
Patterson, William 1256
Patti, Brian 362
Pattison, Ernie 967
Pattison, Gary 967
Pattison, Pat 1076, 1327
Patton, Big John 600, 1134, 1542, 1543
Patton, Jeb 651, 679
Patton, John 389, 599, 719, 1312, 1502
Patton, Julie 214, 216
Patton, Larry 848, 849
Patton, Mike 1542, 1543, 1544, 1545
Patton, Pat 784, 1058, 1472
Patumi, Daniele 371, 1000, 1110
Pauer, Fritz 302, 615
Paul, Emanuel 429, 455, 998, 1436, 1437
Paul, Leah 488
Paul, Les 774, 957
Paula, Jose 797
Paul Baron Orchestra 63
Paulo, Jose 545, 1165
Paulsen, Arvid Gram 602
Paulson, Bruce 324
Paulson, Jen Clare 604
Paulsson, Anders 897
Paulucci, Sergio 663
Paul Weston Orchestra 490
Paul Williams's Hucklebuckers 1467
Pauvels, Charlie 1479
Pauwels, Benny 1203
Pavageau, Alcide 'Slow Drag' 16, 269, 293, 311, 379, 737, 784, 882, 883, 884, 1079, 1224, 1314, 1436, 1437
Pavageau, Annie 1224
Pavolka, Akiko 481
Pavolka, Matt 179, 1229
Pavone, Jessica 166, 210
Pavone, Mario 241, 378, 1134
Pavone, Nat 46, 93, 1210
Pawson, Dan 413
Payano, Omar 1128
Payne, Benny 122, 218, 219
Payne, Bob 108
Payne, Cecil 10, 200, 230, 254, 259, 328, 340, 392, 393, 416, 424, 447, 540, 553, 596, 668, 690, 717, 759, 783, 785, 1093, 1136, 1162, 1176, 1199, 1443, 1467, 1491
Payne, Davey 357
Payne, Delores 1109
Payne, Don 274, 545, 1142
Payne, Ewell 1188
Payne, Lloyd 663
Payne, Sonny 92, 195, 492, 609, 671, 861, 1177, 1188
Payne, Stanley 714, 715, 1078
Payne, Sylvester 490, 1176, 1505
Payne, Vess 1505
Payton, Nicholas 153, 185, 389, 442, 550, 689, 793, 895, 949, 957, 1080, 1106, 1136, 1167, 1199, 1237, 1238, 1260, 1466, 1520, 1526
Payton, Walter 465, 1136, 1217
Payton, Walter Jr 1496
Payuo, John 1188
Paz, Victor 578, 1095
Pazant, Ed 539, 639
Peacock, Annette 139
Peacock, Burnie 999

Peacock, Gary 33, 53, 139, 140, 141, 302, 303, 305, 318, 337, 381, 440, 457, 462, 721, 769, 770, 771, 821, 863, 1137, 1159, 1323, 1364, 1411, 1512, 1526
Peagler, Curtis 417, 1137, 1313, 1522
Pearce, Bob 826
Pearce, Dale 397, 1209
Pearce, Dick 269, 1211, 1277
Pearce, John 82, 311, 322, 541, 635, 636, 1046, 1225, 1389, 1407
Pearce, Mary 776
Pearce, Pauline 280, 961
Pearcy, Stan 316
Pearle, Jack 1283
Pearlmutter, Sid 118
Pearman, Dale 629
Pearson, Buddy 439
Pearson, Colin 566
Pearson, Dave 475
Pearson, Duke 212, 213, 278, 599, 1137
Pearson, Earl 207
Pearson, Geoff 1512
Pearson, Henry 'Mettathias' 827, 827, 828
Pearson, James 332
Pearson, Mike 179
Pearson, Simon 898
Pease, Jon 266
Peaston, David 152
Peberdy, Jack 1190
Pecar, Samo 1254
Peck, Bob 207
Peck, Fletcher 1345
Peck, Nat 254, 255, 562, 668, 674, 1030, 1302
Pecora, Santo 150, 556, 937, 1075
Pecqueux, Louis 1202
Pedersen, Bjarne 'Liller' 628, 1112
Pedersen, Bjørn 602
Pedersen, Guy 591, 706, 877, 907
Pedersen, Hans Leonardo 417
Pedersen, Henrik Bolberg 22, 95, 996
Pedersen, Henrik Gunde 648, 921
Pedersen, Niels-Henning Ørsted 15, 49, 52, 67, 93, 94, 126, 140, 160, 210, 230, 364, 381, 391, 393, 404, 425, 493, 541, 546, 555, 565, 581, 582, 583, 591, 592, 607, 639, 670, 674, 733, 760, 774, 799, 802, 818, 836, 846, 954, 980, 996, 1029, 1101, 1131, 1153, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1157, 1159, 1191, 1289, 1290, 1303, 1316, 1386, 1395, 1479, 1522
Pederson, Guy 730
Pederson, Pullman 1188
Pederson, Tommy 397, 525, 577, 681, 692, 848, 1092
Pedroli, Raphael 1438
Pedron, Pierrick 103, 324, 1138
Pedroso, Bruno 418
Peer, Beverly 63, 488, 489, 490, 803, 999, 1353, 1476
Peer, Bill 461
Peer, Rex 578, 601
Peet, Wayne 260, 565, 566, 567
Peeters, Arthur 1203
Peiffer, Bernard 254, 1302
Peil, Roland 944
Peipman, Mike 775
Pejakovic, Branko 587
Pell, Dave 466, 557, 588, 955, 1139
Pelland, Bob 590
Pellara, Mike 68
Pellegatti, Paolo 534, 1433
Pellegrini, Al 764
Pelletier, Jean-Claude 796, 859
Pellicane, Joe 50
Pellitteri, Marcello 74, 302
Pellizzi, Pete 1101
Pellow, Dave 1171
Pelt, Jeremy 24, 110, 451, 486, 501, 603, 672, 695, 945, 1006, 1139, 1158, 1296, 1349, 1517
Peltola, Seppo 1
Pelton, Shawn 738, 895
Pelzer, Jacques 1397
Pemberger, Wolfgang 627
Pemberton, Bill 273, 372, 503
Pena, Ralph 173, 557, 588, 633, 791, 886, 935, 1230
Pendarvis, Leon 1256
Pendleton, Amy 1098
Pendleton, Dick 461
Pendreigh, Allan 203
Penland, Ralph 154, 215, 301, 597, 914, 975
Penman, Matt 845, 875, 972, 1065, 1139, 1348, 1463, 1526
Penn, Andrew 155, 638, 671
Penn, Clarence 149, 150, 205, 248, 381, 400, 465, 519, 657, 1140, 1198, 1213, 1229, 1268, 1269, 1317, 1447, 1466, 1480
Penn, Jack 248
Penn, Sammy 39, 645, 1224, 1436, 1437
Penner, Ed 487
Penque, Romeo 113, 342, 343, 345, 368, 545, 641, 716, 797, 969, 1027, 1028, 1283, 1509
Penton, Kay 576
Peoples, Terry 1354
Pepe, Carmen 717
Pepito 1261
Peplowski, Ken 46, 211, 336, 449, 611, 612, 626, 794, 823, 879, 961, 968, 1033, 1140, 1168, 1169, 1225, 1260, 1409, 1442
Pepper, Art 64, 65, 271, 272, 470, 525, 571, 588, 736, 792, 814, 815, 816, 821, 935, 953, 1000, 1111, 1141, 1146, 1210, 1230, 1408
Pepper, Jim 308, 511, 623, 768, 1048
Pepper, Johnny 779
Pepper, Stan 821
Peralta, Luis 233
Peraza, Armando 1262, 1286, 1405
Perciful, Jack 765
Percy, Neil 1487
Perdomo, Luis 28, 293, 562, 1374
Pereira, Vanderlei 282, 969
Perelman, Ivo 1144
Perez, Danilo 195, 205, 267, 406, 499, 555, 640, 651, 652, 952, 991, 1019, 1145, 1257, 1261, 1296
Pérez, Edward 107
Pérez, Jorge 1029
Perez, Jose Olivares 197
Perez, Tony 1261
Perillo, Ron 176, 506
Perissi, Richard 347, 818, 1283
Peritz, Benny 667
Peritz, Hugo 667
Perkel, Carl 601
Perkins, Bill 41, 64, 85, 222, 229, 468, 550, 588, 689, 693, 791, 816, 817, 818, 820, 839, 886, 889, 1082, 1083, 1093, 1111, 1142, 1146, 1165, 1230, 1231, 1280, 1281, 1376, 1408
Perkins, Carl 9, 65, 181, 312, 364, 479, 629, 758, 808, 862, 1035, 1037, 1142, 1146, 1219, 1244, 1316, 1450
Perkins, Edward 96
Perkins, Geoff 749, 1253, 1414, 1489
Perkins, Ike 31
Perkins, Phillip 1399
Perkins, Sara 909
Perkins, Walter 32, 194, 207, 278, 319, 470, 828, 957, 986, 1026, 1085, 1351, 1398
Perkins Jr, Walter 1532
Perkis, Tim 515
Perko, Jukka 1362, 1433
Perla, Gene 348, 793, 890
Perlmann, Dave 849
Perlow, Steve 720, 817, 1210
Perlson, Jordan 660
Permillion, Herbert 413
Perna, Michael 488
Perowsky, Ben 114, 152, 217, 323, 372, 400, 957, 992, 1096, 1340, 1545
Perowsky, Frank 270
Perraud, Edward 401
Perrella, Harry 106
Perret, Harry 272
Perri, Danny 43, 622, 734, 986, 1093, 1283
Perrilliat, Nat 12, 949
Perrine, Matt 301, 923
Perrotta, Angelina 476
Perrottet, Dave 1488
Perry, Barney 213
Perry, Bay 1312
Perry, Bazeley 1344
Perry, Catherine 1458
Perry, Charles 413, 543, 627, 865
Perry, Dan 715
Perry, Ermit V. 553, 554, 578, 1505
Perry, Frank 1107, 1403
Perry, George 108, 388
Perry, John 1292
Perry, Mario 106
Perry, P. J. 967
Perry, Ray 638, 758
Perry, Rich 239, 330, 331, 477, 478, 562, 695, 696, 749, 778, 839, 862, 870, 926, 966, 967, 1050, 1147, 1201, 1268, 1269, 1275, 1320, 1351, 1447
Perry, Ronnie 50, 691, 692, 1282
Perry, Van 356, 450
Persad, Chris 375
Persiany, André 195, 262, 358, 497, 796
Persip, Charli 112, 173, 201, 234, 278, 383, 384, 393, 440, 461, 470, 526, 527, 553, 554, 568, 654, 755, 783, 793, 827, 886, 899, 974, 976, 1009, 1013, 1038, 1136, 1170, 1187, 1199, 1211, 1249, 1391, 1467, 1502, 1508, 1527
Persoff, Sam 1282, 1353
Person, Eric 633, 634, 756, 1148, 1530
Person, Houston 32, 235, 270, 363, 414, 426, 600, 603, 724, 791, 793, 1148, 1299, 1479
Person, Lee 146
Persson, Åke 46, 180, 255, 439, 545, 615, 631, 797, 897, 1149, 1176
Persson, Anders 997
Persson, Bent 1080, 1149, 1354
Persson, Erik 1354
Persson, Stig 1347
Pesendorfer, Andreas 1525
Pesonen, Palle 1493
Pet, Jack 228, 667
Pete Dyer 269
Peter, Eric 479, 652, 1029, 1170, 1179, 1501
Peter, Paul and Mary 191

Peters, Brock 348
Peters, Finn 262
Peters, Grégoire 1057
Peters, Jay 638
Peters, Jerry 871
Peters, John 356
Peters, Mike 96, 1499, 1500
Peters, Olivier 565, 690
Peters, Teddy 1097
Petersen, Ed 427, 506, 606, 939, 1150
Petersen, Egon 800
Petersen, Mette 38
Petersen, Per Carsten 356, 799
Peterson, Bill 1540
Peterson, Billy 924, 1227, 1352
Peterson, Bobby 1352
Peterson, Camille 864
Peterson, Charlene 191
Peterson, Charles 691
Peterson, Charlie 850
Peterson, Chuck 50, 397, 571, 945, 1282
Peterson, Dave 864
Peterson, Eddie 111
Peterson, Hannibal Marvin 462, 792, 1259
Peterson, Lennie 388
Peterson, Lucky 895
Peterson, Mark Anthony 1431, 1515, 1516
Peterson, Oscar 44, 45, 93, 184, 229, 230, 329, 339, 364, 424, 425, 442, 490, 491, 492, 544, 553, 555, 592, 639, 668, 716, 733, 755, 774, 849, 1093, 1102, 1117, 1150, 1162, 1304, 1316, 1346, 1444, 1445, 1477, 1478, 1536, 1537
Peterson, Paul 1256
Peterson, Pete 42, 63, 83, 504, 588, 714, 1089
Peterson, Ralph 216, 282, 313, 354, 463, 543, 645, 651, 901, 911, 914, 947, 1051, 1059, 1096, 1139, 1158, 1471
Peterson Jr, Ralph 217, 1059
Peterson, Randy 73, 809, 930, 931, 932
Peterson, Ricky 451, 460, 1255, 1256
Peterson, Tom 481, 951
Petersson, Inge 1407
Petersson, Krister 805
Peticca, Carl 207
Petit, Didier 317
Petit, Joe 379, 1079
Petit, Julien 1223
Petit, Leo 591
Petitdidier, Patrice 223
Petrella, Gianluca 536, 1107, 1194
Petrilla, Paul 388
Petrin, Umberto 548, 925, 1420
Petrone, Rick 483, 942
Petrowsky, Ernst-Ludwig 97, 119, 177, 562, 1109
Petruccelli, Peter 1031
Petrucciani, Louis 52, 167, 1159
Petrucciani, Michel 593, 611, 837, 908, 1159
Petry, Felix 1525
Petry, Fred 1282
Petschauer, Rudy 1239
Pettaway, Bernard 1357
Pettaway, Hubert 1406
Petters, John 296, 336, 374, 711, 1217
Pettersson, Göran 3, 1237
Pettersson, Gösta 420
Pettersson, Lars 46, 616
Pettersson, Linda 617
Petties, Leon 33, 863
Pettiford, Alonzo 987
Pettiford, Ira 229
Pettiford, Oscar 43, 63, 123, 199, 200, 238, 239, 299, 337, 341, 342, 392, 393, 416, 424, 431, 432, 455, 469, 477, 552, 587, 634, 667, 668, 669, 670, 690, 692, 699, 705, 712, 714, 715, 736, 755, 780, 783, 787, 799, 813, 836, 933, 962, 993, 1021, 1022, 1066, 1072, 1160, 1177, 1186, 1188, 1220, 1233, 1242, 1348, 1377, 1379, 1397, 1398, 1459, 1477, 1486
Pettinen, Mikko 1432, 1433
Pettis, Jack 1075, 1081
Petts, David 1205
Petts, Louise 1205
Petzold, Dietrich 1043
Peucker, Paul 690
Pevsner, Alex 764
Peyroux, Madeleine 415, 564
Peyton, Dave 798
Peyton, Randy 1511
Pezzotta, Mario 64, 66
Pfeffner, Ralph 692
Pfeifer, Stefan 174, 690
Pfleiderer, Martin 1519
Pfleuger, Sidney 148
Phaneuf, Mark 962
Phelps, David 38, 1544
Phelps, Jay 445
Pheto, Gibo 1016
Pheto, Pule 1016, 1017
Phew 1533
Philburn, Al 40, 42, 196, 1093
Philharmonia Orchestra 888
Philippe, Claude 102
Philips, Greg 397
Philipson, David 421, 1310
Phillard, Afifi 36
Phillatoni, Tony 693
Phillinganes, Greg 1052
Phillip, Errol 1363
Phillips, Barre 58, 142, 296, 384, 558, 637, 648, 763, 772, 833, 842, 861, 906, 930, 931, 1161, 1174, 1289, 1363, 1417, 1488, 1541
Phillips, Bob 476, 943
Phillips, Brigham 520
Phillips, David 721, 737, 946
Phillips, Derek 751, 1076
Phillips, Derrek 73, 738
Phillips, Dudley 281, 904, 1412, 1466
Phillips, Earl 424
Phillips, Flip 43, 228, 239, 257, 271, 336, 424, 491, 550, 578, 626, 639, 654, 692, 694, 705, 708, 712, 716, 752, 774, 815, 849, 1066, 1089, 1095, 1114, 1115, 1117, 1151, 1162, 1443, 1486
Phillips, Greg 848
Phillips, Harvey 461, 797, 886, 969, 1027
Phillips, Joe 731
Phillips, Jonny 1101, 1171
Phillips, Joseph 1436
Phillips, Lloyd 101
Phillips, Noah 421
Phillips, Peter 641
Phillips, Reuben 757, 826
Phillips, Sister Berenice 883
Phillips, Sonny 32, 33, 655, 1148, 1468
Phillips, Tim 296
Phillips, Tubby 413, 1210
Phillips, Woolf 70
Phillipson, Mike 39
Phipps, Arthur 33, 978
Phipps, Jimmy 671
Phyfe, Eddie 211
Piana, Dino 533
Pias, Ed 128
Picard, Andy 622
Picard, John 187, 466, 467, 674, 869, 918
Picard, Simon 359, 906, 912, 1404
Picciotto, Tonny 395
Pichl, Bernhard 944
Pichon, Walter 1251
Pickard, Gary 502
Pickens, Ed 107
Pickens, Willie 109, 237, 364, 506, 597, 606, 611, 655, 982, 1150, 1392, 1399
Pickering, Ben 396
Pickett, Lenny 415, 1256
Pickett, Leroy 148, 1114
Pico, André 1202
Pied Piper Quintet 577, 734
Pieranunzi, Enrico 238, 536, 630, 1163, 1450
Pierce, Bill 134, 1506
Pierce, Billie 754, 1164
Pierce, Billy 134, 313, 750, 1013, 1370
Pierce, Dale 1189, 1283, 1445
Pierce, De De 1164
Pierce, John 678, 1249
Pierce, Kyle 1075
Pierce, Nat 84, 108, 155, 156, 173, 230, 268, 270, 425, 601, 634, 693, 694, 795, 861, 877, 1165, 1187, 1188, 1252, 1315, 1527
Pierce, Robert 506
Pierce, Sylvia 1188
Pierre, Cameron 832, 1167
Pierre, Yves Aime 183
Pierson, Bob 694
Pierson, Earl 238
Pierson, Eddie 76, 1037
Pietro, Dave 721
Pietropaoli, Enzo 114, 333, 925, 1194
Pifarély, Dominique 96, 1272, 1489, 1502
Piggott, Mike 1080
Piguillem, Al 1203
Pikard, Gary 1169
Pike, Dave 171, 255, 933, 1165
Pike, Midge 226
Piket, Roberta 98, 1166
Pilafian, Sam 946
Pilc, Jean-Michel 559, 943, 1166
Pilet, Michel 258
Pilkington, Bob 775
Pillicane, Joe 1443
Pillow, Charles 115, 168, 477, 478, 721, 1268, 1269, 1274
Pilman, Bill 1408
Pilz, Michel 562, 1265
Pilz, Roland 757
Pinciotti, Anthony 1032, 1331
Pinckney, Lloyd 99
Pincock, Christian 648
Pincotti, Anthony 845
Pinder, Eddie 105
Pine, Courtney 445, 1050, 1167
Pinetti, Francesco 467, 468
Pingitore, Mike 106, 716, 864, 1388
Pinkerton, Phyllis 1000, 1001
Pinkett, Ward 1044, 1098, 1475, 1504
Pinkston, Valerie 1256
Pinna, Franco 6
Pino, Andy 848
Pinson, Kenny 693
Pinson, Malcolm 650
Pinter, Jerry 839, 1094
Pinto, Frank Lo 576
Pinto, Mike 1211
Pinton, Alberto 49, 1087, 1347
Pious, Minerva 504
Piper, Adrian 1036
Pipps, Buddy 652
Pirenet, Roger 1202
Piron, Armand 1167
Pirone, Massimo 473, 536
Pirozzi, Luca 473

Pirro, Vincent 1388
Pisano, John 632, 633, 844, 1131, 1146
Pistorius, Steve 401, 537, 551, 681, 915, 1300, 1308, 1496
Pitch, Bernie 1084
Pitchen, Jocelyn 225
Pite, Richard 1080
Pitman, Bill 218, 936
Pitt, Thomas 71
Pitt, Tony 125, 126, 475, 1484
Pitt, Vic 72, 78, 320, 475
Pitterson, Pete 652
Pittman, Bill 368
Pitts, Terry 869
Pitts, Trudy 827, 829, 957
Pitts, Vincent 867
Pitz, Rudi 1449
Pivert, Kurtis 719
Pizzarelli, Bucky 32, 85, 123, 156, 157, 158, 196, 226, 327, 329, 336, 511, 592, 593, 626, 635, 708, 739, 793, 823, 872, 962, 1027, 1054, 1162, 1168, 1168, 1169, 1224, 1354, 1435, 1444, 1445, 1447, 1479, 1499, 1500, 1501
Pizzarelli, John 18, 158, 185, 364, 511, 593, 1168, 1168, 1479
Pizzarelli, Martin 158, 364, 1168, 1169
Pla, Roberto 1473
Plake, Bill 566
Planar, Elvira 964
Planchenault, Bernard 497, 859
Plank, Jim 376
Plasil, Victor 1538
Plater, Bobby 92, 93, 94, 492, 638, 639, 755
Platt, Sgt Jack 1203
Platt, Walter 775
Plavan, Bill 845
Plaxico, Lonnie 126, 134, 214, 277, 454, 568, 598, 661, 798, 1035, 1105, 1169, 1171, 1280, 1390, 1515
Player, Bobby 93
Pleasant, David 538, 1302
Pleasant, Tim 324, 808, 1238
Pleasure, King 1169
Pleis, Jack 986, 1093
Plenar, Elvira 301, 964
Pletcher, Stew 62, 1089
Pletcher, Tom 626, 741
Pliakas, Marino 179
Plimley, Paul 620, 885, 1075, 1170, 1310, 1381, 1493
Plonsey, Dan 165
Plotkin, Ben 1282
Plum, Guy 1203
Plumb, Neely 1283
Plummer, Paul 1249
Plumppu, Magnus 1087
Po, Warren 604
Pochonet, Gérard 272, 1397, 1398, 1510
Pogson, E. O. 70, 228
Pohjola, Pekka 834
Pohjola, Verneri 746
Poindexter, Dina 1170
Poindexter, Pony 581, 689, 861, 1026, 1170
Pointer, Lowell 31
Pointon, Mike 958, 1217
Polain, Bill 1366
Poland, Bob 576, 764, 765
Polar Bear 1170
Polard, Damien 359
Polcer, Ed 70, 1434
Poli, Michel 497
Polifroni, Polly 764
Polisoidis, Dimitris 165, 326
Polito, Ed 622
Politzer, Kerry 1171
Politzer, Robert 615
Polk, Gordon 397
Polk, James 154
Polk, Lucy Ann 397, 1139
Polk, Vernon 466
Polla, Ralph Lo 576
Pollack, Ben 150, 1076
Pollack, Eddie 1085
Pollak, Max 76
Pollan, Albert 817
Pollan, Mel 496, 1434, 1540
Pollard, Terry 867
Pollard, Tommy 479
Polley, Claudia 130
Pollitt, Alfred 862
Pollo, Lou 957
Pollock, Marilyn Middleton 280
Polo, Danny 248, 667, 1275, 1334, 1353, 1516
Pomárico, Emilio 445
Pomeroy, Herb 239, 426, 886, 943, 1094, 1119, 1120, 1171
Pommier, Jean-Louis 1098
Ponce, Daniel 643
Ponder, Calvin 705
Ponder, Jimmy 650, 1171
Ponella, Mike 406
Poniatowski, Mark 810
Ponomarev, Valery 134, 300, 1172, 1452
Ponomareva, Valentina 853
Ponsford, Jan 104
Pontiggia, Claudio 352
Pontin, Claudio 1083
Ponty, Jean-Luc 734, 922
Ponzo, Piero 334, 335
Poole, Alex 1044
Poole, Carl 578, 1008, 1093, 1117, 1443
Poole, John 1093
Poor, George 629
Poor, Ted 1019, 1452
Poore, Melvyn 515, 594, 730, 906
Pope, Gordon 1283
Pope, Lee 687, 1176, 1505
Pope, Mike 904
Pope, Odean 612, 862, 866, 1172, 1221
Popkin, Lenny 321
Poppink, Wim 228, 667
Porcaro, Joe 108, 1409
Porcelli, Bobby 689, 964, 1019, 1057, 1095, 1263, 1463
Porcino, Al 50, 271, 491, 549, 550, 662, 681, 692, 693, 720, 736, 799, 815, 816, 848, 849, 1052, 1093, 1095, 1111, 1117, 1142, 1162, 1210, 1230, 1404, 1408, 1443, 1517
Pork Chop 1396
Porrello, Tom 694
Porres, Nannie 1237, 1327
Porta, Paolino Dalla 1387
Portal, Michel 2, 519, 734, 735, 1174, 1449
Porter, Art 111, 250
Porter, Dan 1399
Porter, Dick 796
Porter, Eugene 228
Porter, Gene 552, 1000, 1458
Porter, Jake 228
Porter, John 826
Porter, Larry 353, 912
Porter, Randy 511, 986
Porter, Roy 318, 340, 418, 580, 945, 970, 1000, 1115
Porter, Tom 898
Porter, Vernon 638
Porter, Yank 42, 196, 228, 714, 1353, 1376, 1457, 1521
Portinho 79, 80, 406, 1261
Posey, Hal 211
Posmontier, Dave 333
Posta, Sara Della 368
Poston, Alan 'Slim' 280
Poston, Joe 820, 1085
Pot, Fred 721
Potenza, Frank 656
Potoker, John 397, 780
Potratz, Oliver 325, 367
Potter, Butch 1489
Potter, Chris 126, 127, 153, 279, 400, 407, 478, 556, 557, 565, 601, 602, 630, 661, 718, 739, 826, 830, 873, 945, 969, 982, 1005, 1006, 1048, 1049, 1164, 1175, 1229, 1238, 1241, 1296, 1305, 1325, 1369, 1370, 1485
Potter, George 357
Potter, Jerry 609, 669
Potter, John 72, 869
Potter, Karl 1278
Potter, Larry 1309
Potter, Tommy 31, 32, 156, 319, 340, 341, 413, 416, 447, 461, 495, 500, 543, 553, 595, 596, 627, 705, 757, 1021, 1069, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1136, 1160, 1176, 1176, 1177, 1232, 1252, 1284, 1303, 1345, 1443, 1508, 1523, 1527, 1537
Pottle, Benny 937
Pottle, Bonnie 1388
Potts, Bill 1536, 1537
Potts, Steve 855, 856, 857
Poulsen, Hasse 38, 874, 1273
Poulson, Gary 460, 1539
Poutanen, Juhani 1, 1447
Poveda, Alejo 888, 939
Povel, Ferdinand 483, 587, 1191
Povey, Bill 1377
Powe, Norman 43
Powell, Benny 9, 92, 212, 439, 491, 640, 679, 799, 801, 871, 899, 1074, 1138, 1278, 1304, 1400, 1486, 1491, 1517
Powell, Bill 1310
Powell, Bud 239, 254, 340, 413, 580, 581, 670, 785, 1002, 1069, 1115, 1118, 1119, 1176, 1322, 1345, 1443, 1501, 1505
Powell, Calton 248
Powell, Carl 477
Powell, Chris 182
Powell, Dave 191, 281, 333, 362
Powell, Eddie 63, 1353
Powell, Eleanor 396
Powell, Ernie 228, 667, 714, 1109, 1353, 1521
Powell, Forest 1375
Powell, Frank 1176, 1505
Powell, Garth 539
Powell, Ginnie 764
Powell, James 228, 533, 1457
Powell, Janet 226
Powell, Jesse 552, 970
Powell, Jimmy 91, 107, 209, 416, 479, 553, 554, 698, 714, 1109, 1458, 1535
Powell, John 1309
Powell, Johnny 297
Powell, Kenny 674
Powell, Mel 43, 575, 576, 577, 578, 937, 1203
Powell, Randy 191
Powell, Richie 181, 182, 712, 1219, 1232, 1467
Powell, Roy 1179
Powell, Rudy 24, 35, 219, 254, 671, 714, 715, 795, 826, 1248, 1343, 1457, 1520, 1521
Powell, Scat 430
Powell, Seldon 54, 211, 231, 578, 615, 732, 797, 877, 1179, 1254, 1313, 1354, 1391, 1501, 1502, 1509
Powell, Shannon 335, 1496
Powell, Sledon 1405
Powell, Specs 50, 63, 205, 424, 477, 529, 552, 576, 667, 715, 780, 825, 1089, 1110, 1115, 1120, 1281, 1326, 1334, 1353, 1445, 1510, 1521, 1537
Powers, Ben 1109
Powers, Buddy 694

Powers, Eddie 357
Powers, Frank 369, 377, 401, 551, 1308, 1454
Powers, Lewis 1316
Powers, Patti 50
Pöyry, Pekka 1447
Poyser, James 649
Pozar, Robert 763
Pozo, Chano 552, 553, 759, 1069, 1095, 1242, 1255, 1283
Pozo, Francisco 552
Pozza, Andrea 326, 1194
Prager, Carl 63, 1353
Prather, Harry 1044, 1406
Prati, Walter 1121, 1122, 1123, 1124, 1126, 1419
Pratt, Alfred 42
Pratt, Bobby 479, 918
Pratt, Jimmy 388, 544, 1115, 1280
Pratt, Maurice 918
Prättälä, Tuomo 746
Preble, Charlie 764
Preddy, Gait 239
Preece, Ollie 532
Preer, Evelyn 1504
Prell, Don 299, 579, 1280, 1513
Premru, Ray 253, 549, 1386
Prentice, David 983, 1309
Presencer, Gerard 82, 333, 527, 533, 593, 825, 879, 904, 956, 1180, 1385, 1389, 1412, 1415, 1482
Pressley, Julian 1172, 1173
Preston, David 1285
Preston, Don 136, 938, 939
Preston, Eddie 436, 439, 1000, 1005
Preston, John 480
Preston, Nik 311
Previn, André 229, 588, 736, 820, 935, 1180
Previte, Bobby 120, 144, 391, 420, 657, 728, 738, 1182, 1542, 1543
Prévost, Eddie 29, 30, 31, 61, 207, 318, 1124, 1182
Prevost, James 1224
Pribek, Gary 374, 375
Price, Bill 39
Price, Bob 397, 691, 692, 937
Price, Charles Q. 91, 1375
Price, Dave 262
Price, Derek 70
Price, Ed 84
Price, Ernest 125
Price, George 815
Price, Gerald 1347
Price, Hamilton 551
Price, Jeremy 1355
Price, Jesse 488, 557, 789, 814, 815, 880, 987, 1089, 1109, 1110, 1477
Price, Magnum Coltrane 49
Price, Mike 1210
Price, Naomi 1319
Price, Ray 1156
Price, Red 466
Price, Robert 1510
Price, Ruth 1183
Price, Sam 24, 99, 101, 102, 184, 209, 243, 736, 1184, 1248
Price, Tom 609, 1531
Price, Vito 1031
Price, Willie 671
Pride, Zach 586
Priester, Julian 130, 144, 264, 287, 383, 439, 483, 511, 590, 607, 641, 642, 646, 718, 728, 732, 796, 894, 899, 1009, 1040, 1138, 1184, 1219, 1220, 1315, 1355, 1356, 1360, 1405, 1424, 1467, 1529
Priestley, Brian 1185
Prieto, Dafnis 38, 220, 753, 880, 916, 955, 1401, 1402, 1544
Priha, Antero 1433
Prina, Giampiero 279, 509, 534, 535, 548, 1470
Prince, Bill 1210
Prince, Curtis 506, 546
Prince, Earres 218
Prince, Gene 42
Prince, Henry 41
Prince, Hughie 397
Prince, Jimmy 1201
Prince, Ken 1050
Prince, Roland 792, 1513
Prince, Vito 752
Prince, Wesley 271, 638
Pring, Bobby 496, 611, 1140, 1540
Printup, Marcus 246, 586, 895, 951, 1068, 1185, 1200, 1374
Prinz, Spencer 1282, 1283
Prisby, Lou 50, 397, 1283, 1284, 1443
Priseman, Dave 466
Pritchard, Billy 1093
Pritchard, William 1443
Privin, Bernie 50, 84, 270, 336, 576, 578, 715, 1117, 1203, 1282, 1283, 1443
Probert, George 487, 1104
Procope, Russell 23, 56, 63, 78, 155, 228, 423, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 490, 492, 552, 638, 648, 666, 686, 699, 704, 706, 712, 713, 774, 825, 853, 1030, 1044, 1066, 1078, 1281, 1326, 1348, 1353, 1443, 1504
Procter, Helen 1264
Promane, Terry 967
Pronk, Rob 1149
Prospero, Nick 847
Proteau, Tony Et Son Orchestre 209
Proulx, John 85
Provan, Felicity 253
Provey, Vance R. 637
Pruden, Clayton 414
Prudence, Brian 187
Prudente, Vincente 439, 639
Pruitt, Carl 243, 424, 705, 1066, 1176, 1505
Pryor, Nate 1355
Prysock, Red 155, 609
Puccin, Al 693
Pude, Charlie 591
Puente, Omar 76, 1010
Puente, Tito 550, 569, 797, 934, 1247
Pugh, Jim 138, 304, 465, 629, 630, 694, 739, 909, 934, 1208, 1274, 1275, 1296
Pugh, Jon 864
Puig, Pierre-Luc 1500
Pukwana, Dudu 144, 176, 412, 1342, 1523
Pulida, Lucia 126
Pullara, Frank 932
Pullen, Don 145, 197, 904, 1005, 1185
Pulliam, Steve 338
Pulphus, David 335
Puls, Magnus 1087
Puls, Stan 1389
Pulsford, Jan 505
Pulver, Art 645, 1437
Puma, Joe 123, 299, 455, 747, 855, 933, 962, 1025, 1186
Pumiglio, Pete 577, 1081, 1446
Pumpyan, Alexander 853
Puntin, Claudio 169, 1083
Purbrook, Colin 674, 1206, 1482
Purce, Ernest 228, 913, 999, 1353
Purcell, John 7, 145, 361, 365, 571, 1059, 1256, 1530
Purcell, Randy 483
Purim, Flora 304, 305, 1134
Purnell, Alton 882, 883, 958, 1314, 1315
Purnell, Joel 1292
Purnell, Keg 228, 489, 698, 1319, 1344
Purrone, Tony 679, 1395
Pursglove, Percy 502
Purtill, Maurice 63, 118, 396, 397, 1089
Purvance, Don 424
Purves, Alan 'Gunga' 1201
Purviance, Douglas 454, 640, 658, 689, 819, 1320, 1424, 1517, 1518
Purvis, Jack 666
Pusch, Franz 550
Puschnig, Wolfgang 137, 138, 563, 800, 938, 1448, 1449
Pushkin, Alex 1167
Puthli, Asha 275
Putnam, Janet 343, 345, 716, 1242
Pyatt, Larry 694
Pyke, Tony 884
Pyle, Cheryl 651
Pyle, Jason 1064
Pyle, Pip 315
Pyne, Chris 125, 549, 1276, 1363, 1364, 1386, 1415, 1494, 1524
Pyne, Martin 1354
Pyne, Mike 549, 673, 674, 674, 1186, 1206, 1342, 1352, 1347, 1500
Pyysalo, Severi 256, 805, 834, 1362

Q

Q, Tip 649
Qamar, Nadi 702
Qi-Chao, Liu 765
Quail, Kevin 880
Quaranta, Bob 1263
Quartette Indigo 1424
Quaye, Terri 28
Quealey, Chelsea 494, 900, 1433
Quebec, Ike 219, 423, 424, 598, 599, 796, 1109, 1186, 1312, 1537
Queen, Alvin 273, 381, 404, 565, 587, 608, 859, 1187, 1259, 1406
Queener, Charlie 355, 576, 622, 947, 1327
Quersin, Benoît 65, 413, 591, 772, 796, 1302, 1397, 1398, 1434
Quest 1187
Questal, Mae 1089
Quezada, Sebastian 908
Quicksell, Howdy 105
Quigley, Benjamin 465
Quigley, Herb 1388
Quigley, Ryan 1318, 1410
Quill, Gene 15, 173, 455, 601, 716, 877, 912, 1052, 1054, 1074, 1170, 1187, 1210, 1248, 1303, 1527
Quimette, Tim 1095
Quincy Jones Orchestra 1467
Quine, Robert 1542
Quinichette, Paul 32, 92, 173, 181, 284, 588, 716, 987, 1165, 1188, 1219, 1314, 1443, 1467
Quinn, Justin 480, 955
Quinn, Lance 483
Quiñones, Marc 80, 822
Quintana, Ismael 1405
Quintero, Luis 205, 1245, 1256
Quintero, Luisito 898
Quintero, Robert 1245
Quintus, Katya 1311
Quintus, Walter 563, 1311
Quinty, George 118

R

Ra, Avreeayl 356, 179, 1399
Raahauge, Steen 767, 921
Raashiek, Luba 1050

Raaymakers, Boy 169, 170
Rabbia, Michele 96, 108, 150, 556, 1188
Rabe, Anders 1354
Rabe, Bernd 38, 859
Rabe, Christian 352
Råberg, Bruno 830
Råberg, Mikael 49, 1347
Rabeson, Tony 1174, 1394
Rabinowitz, Michael 498, 645, 833, 909, 1006
Rabinowitz, Sol 1095
Raboy, Art 84
Racheotes, Nick 512
Radcliffe, Fred 209, 638
Radcliffe, Leon 1388
Radding, Reuben 45, 231, 1297
Radebe, Nonhlanhla 960
Rader, Abbey 911
Rader, Don 491, 694, 1013, 1038
Raderman, Harry 888
Raderman, Lou 1081, 1456
Radford, Rollo 1050, 1360
Radio Orchestra Hannover 69
Radise, Peter Shimi 412
Radovan, Christian 1382, 1448, 1449
Radovitch, Jack 498
Rae, John 74, 211, 223, 545, 694, 706, 812, 933, 1094, 1188, 1188, 1225, 1338, 1385, 1404, 1405
Rae, Ronnie 24, 734, 1225, 1484
Rae, Ronnie Jr 1188
Rae, Ronnie Sr 1188
Raeburn, Boyd 1188
Raffeiner, Walter 833
Raffell, Don 1283, 1517
Ragab, Salah 1360
Ragaglia, Angelo 927
Ragas, Henry 1100
Raggio, Bob 682, 1326
Raghavan, R. 977
Raghavendra, Dr K. 944
Ragin, Hugh 654, 752, 896, 1011, 1059, 1060, 1061, 1189
Raglin, Alvin 628
Raglin, Junior 430, 431, 432, 433, 489, 490, 699, 1343, 1344
Ragsdale, Jeremy 746
Råhauge, Steen 648
Rahid, Emmanuel 292
Rahier, Gaston 1203
Rahman, Abdul 1511
Rahman, Idris 1101, 1190
Rahman, Zoe 1190, 1413
Rainer, Tom 121
Raines, Phil 398
Rainey, Bhob 648
Rainey, Chuck 27, 79, 113, 168, 204, 221, 308, 323, 655, 719, 969
Rainey, Hugh 869, 1460
Rainey, Tom 20, 40, 121, 261, 478, 605, 681, 690, 695, 696, 867, 924, 932, 1065, 1066, 1085, 1096, 1147, 1223, 1254, 1288, 1419, 1441, 1442
Rainier, Tom 73, 755
Rains, Jack 755, 1502
Rajagopal, R. A. 944
Rakotonanahary, Julio 907
Ralph, Alan 1054
Ralph, Tobias 493
Ralph Burns Orchestra 299, 654
Ralph Hamilton 699
Ralph Sharon Quintet 299
Ralston, Art 42, 236, 576
Ramakrishnan, Raman 1544
Ramakrishnan, T. K. 932
Ramamani, R. A. 944
Raman, V. K. 944
Ramanan, Roland 1190
Ramey, Gene 238, 257, 258, 337, 413, 499, 543, 552, 580, 598, 627, 654, 758, 786, 793, 987, 1020, 1069, 1162, 1232, 1248, 1298, 1400, 1417, 1418, 1443, 1451, 1536, 1537
Ramey, Hurley 687, 705, 798
Ramirez, Luis 1128
Ramirez, Roger 'Ram' 329, 488, 736, 826, 1186, 1190, 1343
Ramm, Nick 262
Ramm, Ted 443
Ramm, Tedd 869
Ramond, Christian 367, 805
Ramos, Frederico 868
Rampton, Kenny 613, 972, 1006, 1095
Ramsden, Mark 1190
Ramsey, Al 764
Ranaldo, Lee 722
Rand, Joe 1066
Rand, Samuel 1353
Randall, Carl 1517
Randall, Carl Jr 202
Randall, Eddie 571
Randall, Freddy 355, 1190, 1469
Randall, George 720
Randall, Terry 900
Randall, William 705
Randall, Willie 687
Randel, Herb 693
Randell, Charles 1444
Randle, George 720
Rando, Arthur 1334
Rando, Doc 937
Randolph, Brother 1164
Randolph, Harold 429
Randolph, Hatty 1355
Randolph, Irving 63, 122, 218, 228, 488, 628, 638, 686, 714, 1520
Randolph, Lucious 1355
Randolph, Marvin 31
Randolph, Zilner 42
Ranelin, Phil 107
Raney, Doug 67, 269, 758, 1191, 1192, 1237, 1396
Raney, Jimmy 173, 187, 242, 243, 270, 543, 544, 601, 627, 716, 976, 1089, 1165, 1192, 1283
Raney, Sue 889
Range, Bob 571, 670, 671, 757
Rangecroft, John 993, 1012, 1126, 1192
Ranger, Claude 1075
Ranglin, Ernest 17, 18, 19, 738, 1276
Ranier, Tom 202, 251, 330, 486, 497, 541, 550, 551, 1038, 1131
Rank, Bill 105, 864, 1081, 1282, 1388, 1446
Ranku, Lucky 680
Rann, Bob 1326
Rantanen, Hannu 1432
Rantanen, Harri 1432
Rantzer, Tito Mangialajo 467, 468
Raph, Alan 113, 221, 1008
Raphael, Mickey 460
Raphael, Phil 1228
Raphaello, Neva 250, 918, 1484
Rapp, Winfried 1477
Rappolo, Leon 628
Rapson, John 120, 161, 566
Rasele, Red 207
Rasey, Uan 764, 1540
Rasheed, Harlem 639
Rasiyah 824
Raskin, Jon 522, 1092, 1242, 1243, 1310, 1544
Raskin, Milt 50, 397, 443, 716, 847, 848, 1056, 1093, 1283, 1284, 1445
Rasmussen, Alfred 49
Rasmussen, Eric 1171
Rasmussen, Hugo 15, 356, 392, 417, 605, 647, 1130, 1191, 1228, 1366, 1396, 1479, 1522
Rasmussen, Kurt 850
Rasmussen, Ole 616
Raspail, Roger 202
Rassinfosse, Jean-Louis 68, 745, 1227, 1228
Rastegar, Kaveh 1278
Ratajczak, Dave 477, 478, 1260
Rates, Sam 398
Rathbun, Andrew 224, 731, 867, 1171, 1192
Rathbun, Chris 327
Rathel, Gil 441, 694
Ratledge, Mike 358
Ratliff, Rev. Joe 561
Rattigan, Jim 40
Rauch, Billy 62, 236
Rauch, Russell 42
Raulin, François 1193, 1272
Rausch, William 1443
Raux, Richard 202
Rava, Enrico 136, 150, 473, 533, 536, 548, 743, 750, 855, 917, 1193, 1246, 1270, 1381
Raven, Carl 480
Ravens, The 1467
Ravnan, Kari 1
Rawcliffe, Susan 260
Rawlings, Les 918
Rawlings, Rob 422
Rawlings, Vic 648
Raworth, Tom 178
Ray, Aurell 1234
Ray, Carline 748, 1511
Ray, Frank 1081
Ray, Justin 324
Ray, Michael 1360, 1361
Ray, Nat 622
Ray, Scott 566, 890
Ray, Vicki 1310
Raye, Martha 692
Raye, Norman 64
Raymact, Armando 1261
Rayman, Morris 50, 1283, 1284
Raymond, Christian 86
Raymond, Henry 357
Raymond, Joe 1081
Raynal, Yves 1203
Rayner, Harry 70
Raynor, Michael 307, 427, 507, 606
Ray Warleigh 1386
Razaf, Andy 686, 788, 1456
Razz, Randy 530
Razze, Ralph 247
Rea, Danilo 114, 1433
Read, Alan 694
Read, Graham 475, 1080
Read, Hugo 690
Reading, Bertice 639
Reagan, Bob 499
Reale, Paolo 927
Reardon, Casper 1388
Reasinger, Clyde 461, 797, 817, 1230
Reason, Lionel 1104
Reason, Rex 1278
Rebello, Jason 81, 527. 956, 1180, 1306
Rebennack, Mac (Dr John) 659
Rebillot, Pat 369, 501
Reboul, Mark 542
Rechardt, Pekka 1448
Red, Gene 705
Red, Louisiana 1246
Red, Kyner Sonny 516, 800, 867, 1170, 1188, 1195
Red, Tampa 263
Redd, Alton 1104
Redd, Chuck 211, 212, 221, 450, 912, 968, 1140, 1195, 1501
Redd, Freddie 32, 447, 469, 1176, 1195

Redd, Gene 1505
Redd, Robert 212, 1195
Redd, Rufus 478
Redd, Sonny 971
Redding, Marion 1081
Reddy, Rob 1196
Redfield, Bob 1143, 1405
Redlig, Gösta 420
Redman, Dewey 129, 136, 179, 197, 275, 623, 767, 768, 769, 994, 1096, 1196, 1199, 1424, 1518
Redman, Don 41, 155, 228, 428, 571, 685, 975, 1066, 1197, 1343, 1504
Redman, George 579
Redman, Joshua 184, 192, 306, 307, 481, 649, 793, 876, 908, 965, 1134, 1136, 1198, 1209, 1423, 1427, 1463
Redmond, Jack 247, 720, 817, 1540
Redmond, Jerry 1388
Reece, Alf 549, 615, 1489
Reece, Dizzy 479, 801, 802, 1199
Reed, Cassandra 80
Reed, Clyde 620, 631, 885, 1075
Reed, Damion 561
Reed, Don 817
Reed, Eric 240, 265, 586, 951, 952, 1200, 1495
Reed, George 24
Reed, Grant 1262
Reed, Lucy 455, 1445
Reed, Mike 1200
Reed, Ray 247
Reed, Sam 1172
Reed, Waymon 93, 316, 755, 1444, 1445
Reedus, Tony 153, 323, 377, 454, 530, 569, 597, 677, 921, 1071, 1321, 1322, 1328, 1351, 1480, 1506, 1526
Rees, Bob 1297
Reese, Gail 118
Reese, Kirsten 1043
Reese, Lloyd 1353, 1376
Reese, Rostelle 228, 705, 715, 913
Rees-Jones, John 919
Rees-Roberts, Tom 480
Reeves, Chick 691, 779
Reeves, Dianne 135, 506, 952, 965, 1019, 1136, 1238, 1495, 1506
Reeves, Gerald 1044, 1200
Reeves, Nat 353, 354, 376, 472, 530, 677, 678, 790, 791, 1063, 1441, 1526
Reeves, Ruben 218, 1200
Reeves, Scott 892
Reeves, Talcott 1197, 1198
Reeves, Tony 39, 879
Refosco, Mauro 129
Regalado, Randy 1540
Regev, Reut 50, 166
Regina, Elis 1395
Rehak, Frank 15, 35, 268, 270, 342, 343, 345, 461, 553, 554, 601, 646, 661, 752, 849, 877, 899, 1052, 1165, 1187, 1233, 1249, 1254
Reich, Howard 577
Reichel, Hans 151, 224
Reichelt, Tone 1279
Reichenbach, Bill 211, 545, 656, 1133
Reichert, Ralph 1461
Reichlin, Paul 747
Reichlin, Pete 747
Reichman, Ted 161, 256
Reid, Bill 1279, 1484
Reid, Bob 445
Reid, Damion 303
Reid, Damon 73
Reid, Dottie 576, 1210, 1327, 1446
Reid, Jock 248
Reid, Neal 691, 692
Reid, Richard 719
Reid, Rufus 1, 6, 48, 57, 87, 110, 144, 171, 183, 186, 202, 215, 327, 365, 471, 474, 503, 547, 583, 654, 655, 733, 747, 787, 837, 845, 878, 891, 894, 903, 993, 1008, 1035, 1201, 1227, 1269, 1288, 1335, 1422
Reid, Steve 146, 351, 1459
Reid, Todd 573, 1339
Reid, Tomeka 1009, 1200
Reid, Vernon 756, 1175, 1430, 1431, 1542
Reider, Jim 1054
Reidling, Jack 850
Reidy, Frank 70
Reijseger, Ernst 38, 262, 589, 730, 744, 745, 1000, 1034, 1065, 1201
Reikenberg, Dave 892, 1073
Reilles, Jean-Baptiste 591
Reilles, Mac Kac 859
Reilly, Dean 83, 614, 736
Reilly, Jack 865, 1250
Reilly, Jeff 590
Reinders, Fritz 667
Reinhardt, Babik 451
Reinhardt, Bill 710, 1328
Reinhardt, Django 228, 272, 591, 667, 1201, 1326, 1344, 1483
Reinhardt, Heiner 1429
Reinhardt, Joseph 272, 591, 1202, 1203, 1204
Reinhart, Bill 102
Reinhart, Randy 579, 612, 748
Reinón, Eladio 1030
Reis, Les 686
Reiser, Dan 131
Reiser, Dave 207
Reiserer, Christoph 203, 561
Reisinger, Wolfgang 563, 833, 851, 1448
Reisman, Joe 388
Reit, Peter 107
Reiter, Joerg 859
Reith, Dieter 38
Reitmeier, Bob 504, 748, 823, 850, 1352
Rek, Vitold 921
Remington, Dave 710
Remler, Emily 184, 968, 1205
Remondini, Marco 1419
Remote Viewers, The 1205
Rempis, Dave 1206, 1439, 1440
Remy, Pierre 1203
Rena Rama 1206
Renard, Alex 1202, 1203
Renaud, Henri 180, 497, 786, 1160, 1206, 1302, 1398
Rende, Pete 179, 323, 482, 972, 1348
Rendell, Don 39, 125, 253, 370, 407, 531, 532, 653, 817, 918, 1206, 1509
Renkel, Michael 783
Renliden, Weine 20, 46, 615, 616
Renn, Buzz 881
Renshaw, John 958
Renzi, Gianluca 473
Renzi, Matt 1207
Renzi, Mike 327, 361, 1052, 1376
Renzi, Paul 817
Renzi, Sam 817
Reser, Harry 864
Resnick, Art 13
Resnicoff, Richard 1210
Resnicoff, Richie 1210, 1299
Rest, Bernd 735
Restivo, David 967, 968
Resto, Eddie 1292
Rettenberg, Milt 1353
Return To Forever 1207
Retzlaff, Peter 148
Reuben, Ronnie 1540
Reuss, Allan 43, 63, 119, 125, 329, 395, 423, 488, 574, 576, 577, 638, 668, 711, 714, 736, 764, 847, 1283, 1334, 1388, 1445, 1520, 1521
Revell, Alex 374
Revis, Eric 24, 277, 463, 617, 942, 948, 1158, 1472
Revolutionary Ensemble 1208
Rex, Ove 356
Reynaud, Sudie 1201
Reynolds, Blake 1282
Reynolds, Bob 1208
Reynolds, Dave 960
Reynolds, Dennis 845
Reynolds, Ellsworth 1319
Reynolds, George 798
Reynolds, James 1311
Reynolds, Jimmy 24, 1109
Reynolds, Roy 818, 819
Reynolds, Todd 923
Reys, Rita 616
Rhames, Arthur 19
Rhodes, George 262
Rhodes, Henry 1516
Rhodes, Phil 443, 628
Rhodes, Robbie 1326
Rhodes, Todd 913, 975, 1343
Rhyne, Melvin 916, 1026, 1208
Rhynie, Talib 743
Rhythm Boys, The 864
Riabov, Andrei 272
RIAS Big Band 23, 851
Ribas, Amoy 519
Ribot, Marc 14, 76, 419, 452, 777, 1068, 1256, 1311, 1543, 1544
Riby, Keith 333
Ricard, Fip 263, 491, 826, 1467
Ricchiuti, Mike 80
Ricci, George 369, 969, 1028
Ricci, Marco 509
Ricci, Paul 42, 43, 118, 578, 715, 1017, 1093, 1353
Rice, Casey 60
Rice, Charlie 66, 338, 970
Rice, Frank 1078
Rice, Marlene 1196, 1229
Rich, Billy 976
Rich, Buddy 91, 118, 119, 229, 271, 319, 397, 413, 417, 489, 576, 639, 648, 668, 815, 849, 853, 947, 1095, 1117, 1118, 1162, 1176, 1209, 1282, 1353, 1378, 1446, 1536, 1537
Rich, Cathy 1210
Rich, Lyle 1540
Rich, Mickey 1210
Rich, Sidney 918
Rich, Sonny 50, 1443
Richard, Flip 1031
Richard, Thadeus 335
Richards, Ann 816
Richards, Chuck 686, 999, 1476
Richards, Danny 119
Richards, Dom 1196
Richards, Emil 681, 818, 936, 1231, 1286
Richards, Jo 956
Richards, Keith 1213
Richards, Lynn 764
Richards, Martin 205
Richards, Red 123, 257, 273, 372, 503, 504, 707, 1328, 1406
Richards, Terrie 16
Richards, Tim 1211
Richards, Trevor 336, 537, 711, 1100
Richards, Trudy 84, 1284
Richardson, Barry 269
Richardson, Ben 725, 1248
Richardson, Eddie 551
Richardson, Edie 455

Richardson, Jerome 10, 11, 15, 32, 123, 200, 201, 231, 254, 255, 259, 323, 338, 343, 345, 383, 386, 462, 606, 609, 641, 661, 705, 732, 739, 755, 793, 797, 799, 801, 877, 894, 969, 993, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1009, 1027, 1094, 1160, 1162, 1211, 1277, 1281, 1304, 1313, 1401, 1405, 1467, 1501, 1509
Richardson, Jim 748, 1498, 1509
Richardson, Johnny 248, 595, 747, 1279, 1384, 1484
Richardson, Larry 706
Richardson, Lee 476
Richardson, Logan 240, 1211, 1374
Richardson, Oliver 1264
Richardson, Rodney 91, 424, 1535, 1536
Richardson, Rudy 798
Richardson, W. A. 571
Richardson, Wally 194, 529, 740, 759, 793, 1226, 1248, 1277, 1398
Richardson, Wayman 826
Richenburg, Rob 1225
Richford, Doug 1460
Richie, Larry 978
Richko, Steve 845
Richman, Abe 207
Richman, Albert 368, 554, 886, 1189
Richman, Boomie 397, 578, 601, 1327, 1328
Richman, Helen 1193
Richman, Jeff 226
Richmond, Barney 712
Richmond, Bill 1139
Richmond, Cassius 232
Richmond, Dannie 9, 66, 384, 449, 455, 499, 802, 831, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1005, 1079, 1130, 1303
Richmond, Jack 236
Richmond, John 407
Richmond, June 218, 826
Richmond, Kim 85, 496, 566
Richmond, Mike 352, 361, 612, 1212, 1267, 1268, 1441
Richmond, Rhonda 1516
Richter, Andreas 1477
Richter, Caspar 1539
Richter, Paul 779
Rickert, Ralf 566
Rickey, Paul 780
Rickman, Patrick 57, 651
Rickman, Sean 277
Ricks, Howard Smiley 659
Rickson, George 410
Ricotti, Frank 39, 81, 104, 267, 280, 549, 1212, 1355
Riddick, Billy 889
Riddick, Jeff 556
Riddick, Johnny 357
Riddle, Nelson 397, 491
Ridge, Pete 295
Ridgley, William 238
Riding, Al 424
Ridl, Jim 892, 1067
Ridley, Ethel 155
Ridley, Larry 527, 582, 597, 675, 732, 980, 1013, 1031, 1040, 1299, 1517
Ridley, Michael 1290
Ridley, Stretch 671
Riedel, Bob 622
Riedel, Georg 21, 46, 386, 387, 545, 616, 781, 782, 897, 1149, 1512
Riedl, Angelika 833
Riegler, Robert 1449
Riekenberg, Dave 723
Riel, Alex 173, 174, 256, 338, 378, 381, 393, 581, 583, 591, 605, 610, 674, 742, 778, 846, 913, 954, 980, 1086, 1102, 1212, 1289, 1316, 1396, 1450, 1479, 1525
Riermeier, Albrecht 1043
Ries, Barry 269, 477, 478, 910, 1212, 1369
Ries, Tim 33, 107, 248, 557, 689, 721, 892, 1067, 1213, 1226, 1268, 1484
Rieser, Dan 244, 972
Riessler, Michael 964
Rifbjerg, Frands 326, 565
Rigby, Jason 408, 1098, 1213
Rigden, Reg 1476
Riggins, Karriem 185, 649, 811, 998, 1136, 1157
Riggs, Chuck 23, 143, 157, 269, 336, 611, 635, 1162
Riggs, Joe 765
Rigoletti, Marco 335
Rigon, Sergio 534
Riikonen, Matti 1448
Riis, Jakob 1131, 1453
Riis, Jesper 648, 1324
Riisnaes, Knut 739, 1213
Riley, Adam 663
Riley, Ben 1, 48, 68, 69, 86, 87, 89, 90, 145, 187, 194, 202, 234, 283, 327, 338, 499, 536, 547, 571, 596, 607, 701, 743, 798, 811, 927, 988, 990, 1010, 1023, 1024, 1196, 1214, 1234, 1269, 1288, 1373, 1520, 1528
Riley, Dean 706
Riley, Herlin 18, 96, 105, 371, 586, 761, 896, 948, 950, 951, 952, 1191, 1214, 1495, 1516
Riley, Herman 202, 1313
Riley, Howard 359, 620, 749, 905, 906, 1214, 1253
Riley, Jack 850
Riley, Jim 347, 1119
Riley, John 115, 612, 709, 721, 1008, 1228
Riley, Teddy 465, 950
Rimington, Sammy 200, 269, 294, 295, 645, 958, 1070, 1217, 1224, 1437, 1493
Ring, Børge 49
Ring, Justin 864, 1446
Ringo, Tom 818
Ringstad, Oistein 602
Ringstrand, Willard 1322
Rinker, Al 106
Rinne, Tapani 843, 1448
Rios, Carlos 305
Rios, Miguel Puntilla 908
Rios, Orlando 'Puntilla' 1095
Riperton, Ray 1399
Ripp, Brian 247
Ripper, Peter 415
Ripshar, Mick 407
Risberg, Annica 1306
Riskin, Itzy 105, 864
Riso, Pete 1405, 1143
Ritchie, Greg 749
Ritchie, Larry 285, 402, 978, 1196
Ritchie, Ruth 441
Ritchie, Stu 1338
Ritenour, Lee 79, 80, 460, 1468
Ritthoff, Wolfgang 1429
Ritz, Lyle 1540
Rivard, Mike 422
Rivera, Dave 209, 219, 796, 1186, 1343
Rivera, Edward 1262
Rivera, Emedin 477, 1268
Rivera, Mario 572, 697, 916, 1095
Rivera, Martin 201, 582, 1242
Rivera, Marty 928
Rivera, Nino 1261
Rivera, Ramon 849
Rivera, Ray 794
Rivera, Scarlet 170
Rivers, Craig 1262, 1263
Rivers, Sam 610, 702, 717, 739, 747, 775, 1036, 1184, 1185, 1217, 1512, 1529, 1534
Rizzi, Tony 397, 1093, 1139, 1189, 1540
Rizzotto, Dalton 763, 764, 847
Roach, Freddie 757, 1186
Roach, Max 10, 64, 181, 182, 209, 222, 228, 239, 259, 271, 321, 340, 341, 384, 393, 413, 436, 482, 544, 553, 568, 606, 667, 668, 690, 717, 765, 774, 786, 799, 894, 899, 1001, 1020, 1021, 1052, 1079, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1160, 1162, 1176, 1177, 1219, 1232, 1233, 1247, 1249, 1255, 1345, 1392, 1443, 1459, 1467
Roach, Maxine 860, 895
Roane, Eddie 803
Roane, Kenneth 100, 271, 1483, 1506
Robair, Gino 165, 206, 515, 539, 1429
Robbins, Dave 764
Robbins, Jimmy 555
Roberson, Bryce 1346
Roberson, Orlando 671, 724, 725
Robert, Eric 1500
Robert, George 627, 651
Robert, Guy 1500
Robert, Howard 588
Robert, Yves 296, 408, 1222, 1272, 1502
Robert Farnon Orchestra 113, 1287
Roberto, Luis 1064
Roberts, Auston 1150, 1151
Roberts, Bob 362, 504
Roberts, Bryn 481, 1222
Roberts, Caughey 90, 91, 1457
Roberts, Chapman 1474
Roberts, Chris 1218
Roberts, Claude 704, 705
Roberts, Conrad 349
Roberts, Dick 487
Roberts, Don 242
Roberts, George 681, 815, 816, 1093, 1111, 1230
Roberts, Hank 38, 84, 120, 260, 512, 675, 1256
Roberts, Howard 51, 222, 229, 301, 364, 446, 466, 525, 588, 632, 662, 665, 791, 1024, 1037, 1111, 1143, 1230, 1287, 1408, 1513
Roberts, Juliet 76, 776
Roberts, Luckey 1222
Roberts, Lynn 780
Roberts, Marcus 950, 951, 952
Roberts, Osian 466
Roberts, Scott 362, 737
Roberts, Steve 247
Roberts, Tom 1300
Roberts, Tony 225, 280, 549, 912
Robertsen, Ragnar 751
Robertson, Bill 83, 84
Robertson, Curtis A. 89
Robertson, David 1338
Robertson, Dick 429, 573, 686, 999, 1066, 1081, 1505
Robertson, Herb 120, 121, 408, 498, 516, 593, 594, 620, 621, 675, 682, 867, 919, 1034, 1065, 1222, 1256, 1320, 1421
Robertson, Jane 1333
Robertson, Janne 807
Robertson, Joe 629, 729
Robertson, Lester 418, 662, 1391, 1517
Robertson, W. C. 1188
Robertson, Walter 849
Robertson, Zue 1044
Robertsson, Niklas 767
Roberty, Kelly 1060
Robeson, Paul 91
Robichaux, Joe 883, 884
Robillard, Duke 810
Robins, Fats 1200

Robins, Millard 1311
Robinson, Adrian 820, 1114
Robinson, Alan 555, 681, 814
Robinson, Albertine 113, 1290
Robinson, Alexander 148
Robinson, Alexandra 1403
Robinson, Andy 17
Robinson, Anna 788
Robinson, Bill 817, 1197, 1290
Robinson, Carleen 709
Robinson, Carol 690
Robinson, Clifton 1050
Robinson, Danny 226
Robinson, David 1224
Robinson, Donald 446, 926, 1092, 1223, 1243, 1329, 1330, 1493
Robinson, Dougie 248, 652
Robinson, Duggie 70
Robinson, Edie 1510
Robinson, Edward Bass 668
Robinson, Eli 50, 91, 760, 999, 1535
Robinson, Frank 757, 1504
Robinson, Fred 41, 219, 228, 424, 758, 826, 1044, 1197, 1211
Robinson, Gale 681
Robinson, George 424, 1457
Robinson, Ikey 248, 263, 686, 798, 1114, 1311, 1504, 1505
Robinson, James 638
Robinson, Janice 499, 1285, 1391
Robinson, Jason 151
Robinson, Jesse 1516
Robinson, Jim 379, 645, 729, 737, 783, 784, 882, 883, 884, 1041, 1079, 1224, 1337, 1437
Robinson, Jimmy 155
Robinson, Jonathan 197
Robinson, J. Russel 1100
Robinson, Justin 650, 895, 1224
Robinson, Kevin 76, 680
Robinson, Les 50, 125, 575, 576, 692, 764, 1056, 1282, 1283, 1505
Robinson, Lester 555
Robinson, Mabel 803
Robinson, Milton 228, 686, 826
Robinson, Orphy 124, 194, 480, 832
Robinson, Perry 25, 136, 191, 500, 593, 609, 623, 637, 1224, 1289
Robinson, Pete 1089
Robinson, Prince 40, 42, 424, 428, 714, 736, 975, 1319, 1343, 1504, 1505, 1521
Robinson, Scott 85, 86, 109, 157, 174, 406, 415, 477, 478, 611, 612, 748, 823, 824, 910, 939, 1008, 1086, 1136, 1140, 1224, 1260, 1268, 1269, 1320, 1362, 1363, 1442, 1480, 1500
Robinson, Scott Allan 958
Robinson, Spike 1225
Robinson, Stan 39, 1206
Robinson, Sugar Ray 705
Robinson, Ted 826, 1510
Robinson, Wayne 639
Robinson, Wesley 42
Robson, Phil 332, 956, 1085, 1112, 1225
Roca, Pete La 732
Rocci, Massimo 473
Roccisano, Joe 109, 251, 441, 1226
Rocco, Enzo 334
Roch, Emmanuelle 233
Roche, Betty 432, 433, 705, 1066, 1226, 1516
Roche, Emma 561
Roche, Harry 70
Rocheman, Manuel 1103, 1226
Rochester, Cornell 1172
Rochford, Sebastian 8, 182, 1101, 1171, 1211, 1487, 1490
Rockingham, Greg 362, 414
Rockwell, Bob 651, 809, 810, 913, 1227
Rodberg, Gary 1113
Rodberg, Paul 1433
Rodby, Steve 994, 995
Roddy, Ruben 455
Roder, Jan 1266
Roderick, Stan 70, 248
Roderman, Ted 1084
Rodgers, Gene 228, 667, 1098, 1344, 1504
Rodgers, Harry 50, 763, 764, 1282, 1283
Rodgers, Nile 1255
Rodgers, Reuben 563
Rodin, Gil 1334, 1388
Roditi, Claudio 1, 2, 89, 171, 195, 406, 499, 555, 629, 640, 662, 745, 878, 934, 991, 1227, 1242, 1427
Rodman, Deidre 1228
Rodney, Red 239, 413, 555, 692, 699, 837, 848, 1052, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1160, 1210, 1228, 1242, 1445
Rodnon, Mel 578
Rodrigues, Angelina 1263
Rodrigues, Mike 1517
Rodrigues, Rui 1263
Rodriguez, Alex 693
Rodriguez, Bobby 550, 1037, 1405, 1499
Rodriguez, David 'Piro' 1095
Rodriguez, E. J. 777
Rodriguez, Eddie 1262, 1263
Rodriguez, Edwin 1401
Rodriguez, Frankie 572
Rodriguez, Johnny 299
Rodriguez, Jose 1405
Rodriguez, Jose 'Papo' 323, 324, 1292
Rodriguez, Mario 80
Rodriguez, Michael 625
Rodriguez, Mike 1200, 1245
Rodriguez, Nicholas 734, 1198
Rodriguez, Orlando Q. 952
Rodriguez, Pedro 916
Rodriguez, Pete 916
Rodriguez, Red 228
Rodriguez, Reuben 822, 916
Rodriguez, Ricardo 96
Rodriguez, Richard 1128, 1129
Rodriguez, Rico 182, 776
Rodriguez, Robert 553, 676, 742, 1095, 1283, 1544
Rodriguez, Rod 1044
Rodriguez, Sandra 1095
Rodriguez, Willie 201, 554, 670, 716, 899, 917, 1056, 1234, 1303, 1425, 1509
Roebke, Jason 97, 422, 485, 1206
Roets, Marjorie 943
Roger, Danielle P. 874
Roger, Marc 1324
Rogers, Adam 126, 127, 150, 168, 226, 240, 279, 591, 790, 916, 1006, 1175, 1176, 1229, 1301, 1305, 1390, 1447, 1486
Rogers, Barry 610, 1405
Rogers, Billy 323, 691, 692
Rogers, Chris 122, 608, 826
Rogers, David 1229
Rogers, Emmett 628
Rogers, Ernest 783, 784, 1072
Rogers, Harry 1282, 1284
Rogers, Hilda 40
Rogers, Johnny 736, 789, 1477
Rogers, Paul 124, 296, 359, 362, 386, 390, 409, 872, 903, 906, 927, 1016, 1051, 1121, 1145, 1230, 1253, 1267, 1341, 1404
Rogers, Reuben 131, 152, 442, 603, 902, 957, 1136, 1199, 1208, 1237, 1470
Rogers, Shorty 228, 242, 251, 270, 543, 557, 588, 692, 693, 791, 815, 816, 935, 936, 986, 1141, 1230, 1247, 1280, 1353
Rogers, Timmie 228
Rohde, Bryce 1232
Rohde, John 375
Rohrer, Samuel 2, 169, 1438
Roitstein, Chris 841
Roitstein, David 914
Roizner, El Zurdo 79
Rojas, Marcus 129, 131, 400, 403, 419, 630, 777, 790, 1296, 1311, 1401
Roker, Mickey 12, 33, 93, 167, 168, 194, 213, 230, 425, 492, 555, 587, 613, 641, 656, 755, 774, 787, 790, 854, 876, 878, 904, 927, 929, 1009, 1040, 1078, 1138, 1155, 1168, 1234, 1277, 1299, 1424, 1462, 1509, 1511
Rokovic, Bora 587
Roland, Billy 424
Roland, Boyd 1093
Roland, Gene 814, 815, 817, 818, 970, 1188
Roland, Joe 1160, 1283, 1286
Roland, Johnny 570
Roland, Larry 925
Roland Shaw Orchestra 70
Rolfe, Bob 765, 817, 818
Rolle, Alex 328, 334, 446
Roller, Scott 486
Rollet, Christian 872
Rollings, Matt 1385
Rollini, Adrian 105, 398, 494, 666, 900, 1017, 1081, 1388, 1433, 1446
Rollini, Arthur 43, 397, 443, 488, 574, 575, 576, 638, 763, 780, 1334, 1388
Rollins, Dennis 445, 776, 1167
Rollins, Horace 847
Rollins, Sonny 181, 182, 341, 393, 553, 571, 786, 894, 1014, 1021, 1066, 1069, 1176, 1177, 1219, 1232
Rollins, Winston 76
Roma, Jimmy 50
Romaine, Paul 300, 746, 1528
Roman, Olga 1145
Romani, Giancarlo 533
Romano, Aldo 15, 245, 852, 944, 1159, 1174, 1193, 1394
Romano, Joe 108, 932, 1140, 1211
Romans, Leroy Barbie 18
Romão, Dom Um 213, 1470, 1474, 1475
Romeo, Pino 335
Rømer, Ole 391, 809, 810
Römer, Rolf 690
Romero, Elliott 1262
Romersa, Tom 578
Romersa, Tommy 577
Romersea, Ted 814
Ronander, Mats 378
Ronchaud, Roland 1397
Rondin, Mats 997
Ronen, Tal 468
Roney, Antoine 793, 975, 1016, 1236, 1512
Roney, Wallace 22, 35, 195, 226, 306, 352, 405, 460, 555, 590, 643, 695, 993, 1016, 1019, 1052, 1054, 1236, 1256
Rongetti, Nick 1327
Rönn, Ove 420
Ronsenfeld, Benny 1324
Ronstadt, Linda 136

Rood, Hale 270
Roon, Marc van 1035
Root, Alan 605
Root, Billy 182, 554, 596, 817, 1038
Roper, William 154, 566, 725
Roppolo, Leon 1075
Roque, Alberto 1263
Ros, Edmundo 1457
Rosa, Eddie 576, 764
Rosa, Jerry 395
Rosa, Rui 1263
Rosalies, Edgard 1404
Rosaly, Frank 1206
Rosati, Archie 937, 1104, 1521
Rosatie, Archie 1353
Rosciglioni, Dario 559
Rose, Adonis 957, 1136, 1236
Rose, Anders 122
Rose, Doudou N'Diaye 1174
Rose, Michael 776
Rose, Pat 1190
Rose, Simon 56
Rose, Steve 540
Rose, Stewart 465
Rose, Wally 401, 784, 1058, 1472
Roselund, Ralph 1283
Roseman, Josh 38, 131, 152, 214, 216, 399, 422, 718, 1196, 1240, 1254
Rosen, Abe 692
Rosen, Jay 128, 166, 310, 411, 421, 478, 536, 538, 617, 649, 941, 942, 984, 1000, 1144, 1145, 1223, 1319, 1371, 1384, 1496
Rosen, Jerry 1388
Rosen, Marvin 84
Rosen, Ralph 810
Rosen, Sam 396
Rosen, Terry 765
Rosenberg, Marlene 1395
Rosenberg, Paul 295
Rosenberg, Roger 67, 270, 352, 465, 943, 1005, 1008, 1250, 1275
Rosenberg, Scott 164, 165, 1237
Rosenblatt, Joel 219
Rosenblum, Sam 764
Rosenboom, David 161
Rosendahl, Claes 21, 46, 387, 781, 782, 897, 1250
Rosenfeld, Benny 95, 583, 799, 996, 1502
Rosengarden, Bobby 148, 327, 345, 355, 546, 626, 701, 707, 708, 794, 1028, 1054, 1308, 1447, 1483, 1499, 1531
Rosengren, Bernt 21, 245, 387, 447, 485, 781, 897, 1191, 1237, 1250, 1336, 1459
Rosenthal, Eric 210, 1544, 1545
Rosenthal, Irving 218, 817
Rosenthal, Ted 573, 739, 1055, 1063, 1141, 1260
Rosenwinkel, Kurt 98, 131, 244, 282, 365, 375, 604, 1048, 1139, 1175, 1199, 1238, 1255, 1423
Rosenzweig, Rich 727
Rosewoman, Michele 74
Rosi, Vic 1388
Rosnell, Esko 1, 834
Rosnes, Renee 16, 302, 407, 454, 518, 740, 878, 921, 982, 1050, 1102, 1147, 1238, 1321, 1362, 1424, 1480, 1517, 1518
Rosolino, Frank 50, 51, 64, 108, 222, 229, 301, 479, 550, 580, 616, 720, 736, 752, 808, 816, 821, 849, 1082, 1093, 1149, 1230, 1239, 1247, 1248, 1287, 1304, 1408
Ross, Allie 685
Ross, André 1302
Ross, Andrea 1397
Ross, Annie 1030, 1117
Ross, Arnold 50, 247, 417, 553, 736, 764, 779, 1089, 1160, 1445
Ross, Billy 272, 1064
Ross, Brandon 778, 997, 1196, 1401, 1515, 1516
Ross, Candy 229, 699
Ross, Edwin 119
Ross, Florian 1526
Ross, Hank 424, 551, 574, 715, 1093, 1113, 1117
Ross, Harold 820
Ross, Henry 1334
Ross, James 880
Ross, Jimbo 441
Ross, Margaret 462
Ross, Rashwan 131
Ross, Ronnie 918, 1206
Ross, Roy 698
Rosser, Boyd 'Red' 1044
Rossi, Jordy 267
Rossi, Lauro 447, 476, 750, 1000, 1091, 1092
Rossi, Massimo 334, 335
Rossi, Ray 388
Rossi, Roberto 929, 940, 1106
Rössle, Ekkehart 841
Rossy, Jordi 1030, 1463
Rossy, Jorge 37, 40, 131, 244, 406, 474, 481, 527, 543, 713, 745, 751, 988, 989, 1238, 1255, 1340, 1423, 1475
Rossy, Mario 988, 1030
Rostad, Masumi 1544
Rostaing, Hubert 209, 254, 562, 1203, 1204, 1344
Rostock, Paul 601, 602
Rostvold, Bjarne 760, 799, 818, 1239, 1391, 1479, 1522
Rota, Roger 535
Rotan, Roy 1540
Rotella, John 50, 577
Roten, Roy 1540
Rotenberg, June 1510
Roth, Andy 728, 1544
Roth, Frank 1510
Roth, Irv 50, 1443
Roth, Jack 1101
Roth, Jennifer 567
Roth, Russell 710
Rothenberg, Ned 371, 419, 521, 1124, 1127, 1182, 1223, 1240, 1371, 1542, 1544
Rothenberg, Rich 1441
Rotondi, Jim 149, 353, 368, 414, 536, 677, 791, 834, 876, 1136, 1241
Rotondi, Joe 376
Roulette, Freddy 1310
Roulette, Vernon 1326
Roumain, Daniel Bernard 1464
Roumanis, George 780, 1314
Rounds, Clyde 118, 396
Roupé, Bjarne 809, 938, 939
Rouse, Charlie 12, 56, 180, 229, 254, 343, 469, 571, 584, 596, 802, 933, 971, 1022, 1023, 1024, 1052, 1069, 1160, 1242, 1378, 1455
Rousell, Woodrow 198
Rouser, Jimmy 1468
Rousseau, August 238
Rousseau, Jerry 1113
Rousselet, Bruno 103
Routch, Robert 138
Rouzan, Oscar 465
ROVA 1242
Rovatti, Ada 978
Rovère, Gilbert 611, 627, 1179, 1323, 1397
Rovère, Paul 579, 772
Rovira, Tony 1202, 1203
Rowe, Keith 29, 30, 390, 1182, 1244
Rowe, Kenrick 680, 776, 1211
Rowin, John 89, 871
Rowland, Billy 50, 270, 667, 1445, 1537
Rowland, Dennis 94, 501
Rowles, Jimmy 9, 50, 64, 183, 184, 229, 230, 387, 417, 418, 541, 544, 557, 571, 577, 578, 579, 580, 634, 654, 693, 716, 720, 820, 821, 837, 912, 933, 986, 1053, 1089, 1090, 1131, 1146, 1210, 1244, 1280, 1303, 1304, 1444, 1445, 1479, 1524, 1527
Rowles, Stacy 1452, 1524
Rowser, Jimmy 194, 482, 526, 759
Roy, Badal 349, 350, 822, 890, 976
Roy, Benny 699
Roy, Broto 149
Roy, Teddy 450, 808
Royal, Ernie 15, 35, 93, 113, 239, 259, 270, 342, 343, 345, 461, 462, 470, 553, 554, 607, 638, 640, 661, 692, 752, 755, 759, 777, 797, 877, 969, 1001, 1003, 1027, 1030, 1071, 1160, 1233, 1249, 1313, 1397, 1467, 1502, 1517
Royal, Marshall 92, 93, 491, 638, 656, 698, 736, 1254, 1304, 1376, 1502
Royal, Vince 705
Royen, John 537, 923
Royston, Rudy 997
Rozen, Jay 166
Rozenthuler, Guillermo 1101
Rozie, Rick 505
RS Quartet 1276
Rubalcaba, Gonzalo 307, 909, 1245
Rubin, Alan 80, 316, 439, 483, 549, 1008
Rubin, Jules 43, 576, 1282
Rubin, Mike 51
Rubin, Ron 187, 267, 467, 968, 1386
Rubin, Vanessa 1392, 1506
Rubinowich, Sam 395, 691, 692
Rubinstein, Herman 50
Rubinstein, Marty 752
Rubsam, Ed 1353
Ruby, Sam 494, 1433
Rucker, Laura 705
Rucker, Robert 952
Rucker, Washington 555
Rückert, Jochen 1525, 1526
Rud, Epsen 846
Rudd, Bob 1120
Rudd, Jimmy 736
Rudd, Junior 1535
Rudd, Robert 1516
Rudd, Roswell 55, 79, 136, 137, 359, 623, 775, 855, 856, 857, 858, 1193, 1246, 1289, 1290, 1371, 1380
Ruddick, Joe 790, 1128
Ruderman, Morton 1282
Rudolph, Adam 36, 868, 1310
Rudolph, Bob 693
Rudolph, Lars 224
Rueckert, Jochen 98, 302
Rüegg, Matthias 1448, 1449
Ruff, Michael 1255
Ruff, Ron 589
Ruff, Willie 342, 343, 461, 755, 797, 1009, 1346, 1398
Ruffo, Mascagni 423, 847, 848, 1092
Ruffo, Musky 50, 764
Ruggieri, Vinnie 932
Ruggiero, Pete 849
Ruggiero, Vinnie 1085
Rugolo, Pete 251, 1141
Ruiz, Hilton 1, 2, 273, 505, 572, 713, 829, 1060, 1247, 1262

Ruiz, Otmaro 978
Ruiz, Romario 977
Ruiz-Palma, Andrew 104
Rullo, Frank 1093
Rully, Ron 1084
Rumboltz, Robert 161
Rummage, Bob 506
Rumsey, Howard 64, 222, 341, 557, 1141, 1247
Rundqvist, Fredrik 1087, 1348
Running, Taana 1060
Runolf, Sören 1257
Runswick, Daryl 401, 632, 912
Runyon, Hal 461
Rupp, Jim 360, 946
Rupp, Kenny 46, 299, 1138
Rupp, Olaf 1043
Ruppersberg, Don 83, 84
Ruschel, Rudolf 833
Rusen, Hammond 622
Rushen, Patrice 871
Rushing, Jimmy 90, 91, 190, 191, 257, 436, 574, 578, 918, 1047, 1248, 1303
Rushton, Alan 401
Rushton, Joe 1082
Russel, Gunter 757
Russell, Curley 51, 132, 155, 180, 228, 239, 340, 403, 543, 552, 571, 606, 668, 800, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1069, 1115, 1117, 1118, 1176, 1177, 1298, 1302, 1345, 1443, 1445, 1459, 1460, 1535, 1536
Russell, George 976, 1249
Russell, Graham 415, 1412
Russell, Hod 461
Russell, Jack 1280
Russell, John 199, 206, 315, 357, 821, 1124, 1126, 1250
Russell, Johnny 228, 329
Russell, Luis 23, 24, 41, 42, 228, 734, 1044, 1097, 1103, 1251
Russell, Mischa 106, 1388
Russell, Pam 1142
Russell, Pee Wee 63, 105, 156, 297, 298, 343, 355, 504, 588, 622, 666, 669, 706, 788, 808, 889, 1017, 1023, 1081, 1252, 1327, 1334, 1353, 1388, 1521
Russell, Ray 225, 401, 549
Russell, Ron 1362
Russell Garcia Orchestra 44, 45, 466
Russin, Babe 118, 395, 396, 397, 443, 574, 577, 638, 714, 764, 779, 937, 1017, 1056, 1081, 1283, 1353, 1388
Russin, Jack 494, 666, 1388
Russo, Andy 63, 395, 450, 622, 1066, 1089
Russo, Anthony 395
Russo, Bill 815, 816, 1141
Russo, Charles 909
Russo, Pat 221
Russo, Santo 797
Russo, Sonny 48, 865, 1283, 1531
Russo, Tony 848, 1092
Rusten, Shelley 602
Rutan, Bill 333, 474
Ruth, Bryon 946
Ruth, Peter 'Madcat' 191
Ruther, Wyatt 188, 368, 529, 633, 694, 1210
Rutherford, Paul 39, 162, 177, 315, 359, 362, 409, 562, 749, 905, 906, 1108, 1121, 1252, 1265, 1270, 1332, 1342, 1363, 1404, 1440, 1488, 1489, 1494, 1524
Rutherford, Philip 1490
Rutherford, Rudy 91, 416, 760, 1483, 1535
Rutledge, Leroy 428
Ruud, Fredrik 1348
Ryan, Dave 236, 720
Ryan, George 207
Ryan, Jack 395
Ryan, Joel 874, 1124, 1126
Ryan, John 937
Ryan, Johnny 1101
Rydh, Niclas 423, 767, 805
Rydqvist, Robin 805
Ryerson, Art 63, 355, 1118, 1284
Ryerson, Arthur 529
Ryerson, Frank 1388
Ryg, Jørgen 126
Ryga, Campbell 1239
Ryker, Doc 864
Rypdal, Terje 523, 938, 1161, 1250, 1336, 1364
Ryskog, Arne 1479
Ryuishi, Masuda 59
Rzewski, Frederic 30

S

Saari, Jarmo 1432
Saarti, Tero 1432, 1433
Saastamoinen, Ilja 834
Sabala, Beto 1539
Sabatella, Marc 1189
Sabbagh, Jerome 6, 303
Saberton, Pete 281, 1355, 1489
Sabir, Kamal 778
Saboia, Carolina 1525
Sabol, Mickey 397
Sacco, Tony 398
Sachelle, Sam 764
Sachs, Aaron 63, 108, 270, 698, 705, 783, 1066, 1089, 1443, 1445
Sachse, Joe 97, 224
Sacks, Bob 937
Sacks, Jacob 127, 1098
Sadi, Fats 497, 1302
Sadigursky, Sam 1213
Sadola, John 588
Sadownick, Daniel 126, 168, 240, 368, 493, 921, 958, 1136, 1148, 1209, 1305, 1325, 1351, 1481
Sadowski, Edward 1510
Saenger, Christof 1472
Safranski, Eddie 63, 84, 206, 209, 271, 413, 424, 544, 552, 815, 1141, 1314, 1443
Saft, Jamie 76, 144, 400, 590, 932, 1182, 1311, 1331, 1452, 1542, 1544, 1545
Saft, Vanessa 76, 1544
Sager, David 369, 551, 741, 948, 1300, 1308, 1500
Saguet, Arthur 1203
Sahai, Shalda 1291
Sahmaoui, Aziz 1540
Sahu, Rachim Ausur 743
Sai Anatam Ashram (Singers) 283
Sailes, Jesse 789
Sailiers, Harold 'Red' 542
Saindon, Ed 1352
Saine, Helen 748
Saisse, Philippe 80
Saitoh, Tetsu 1161
Sakata, Akira 842
Šalamon, Samo 1254
Salata, Val 1388
Salathiel, Doyle 1188
Saleem, Ameen 651
Salerno, Michele 927
Salerno, Steve 1319, 1320
Salgueiro, José 1263
Salifoski, Seido 1288
Salim, A. K. 1254
Salim, Rashied IV 1358
Salis, Antonello 473, 508, 750
Salisbury, Gerry 1055, 1362
Salko, Jimmy 816, 1089
Sallent, Jacques 1500
Salmasian, Dan 819
Salminen, Simo 1432, 1433
Salminen, Teemu 1432, 1433
Salmins, Ralph 9, 82, 333, 1412
Salomon, Hans 615, 1538
Salperto, Drew 68
Salter, Bill 827, 828, 978
Salters, Dotty 219
Saltman, Henry 118
Saltmarsh, Bob 629
Salut, Christian 167
Saluzzi, Dino 79, 944, 1337
Salvador, Sal 123, 311, 632, 816, 1322, 1527
Salvant, Jeanette 238
Salvi, Pierluigi 535
Samake, Mamane 1050
Sam and Dave 1133
Sambeat, Perico 988, 1030, 1255, 1263
Samborski, Bob 247
Sammons, Arthur 416
Sample, Joe 322, 323, 351, 871, 1402
Sampson, Dewey 1500
Sampson, Edgar 42, 118, 428, 488, 638, 686, 711, 796, 1311, 1319, 1476, 1521
Sampson, Jackie 324, 1451
Sampson, Joe 652
Sampson, Michael 53
Samson, Armand 1150
Samson, Jacki 583
Samuel, Morey 118, 1283
Samuels, Dave 1054, 1055, 1156
Samuels, David 863, 995
Samuels, Paul 845
Samuelson, Kjell 1237
Samuelson, Lars 1250
Samuelsson, Björn 767, 1087, 1347
Samuelsson, Lars 46, 782, 897
Samworth, Ron 620, 885, 1075
San, Mircea 1447
Sanabria, Bobby 240, 477, 478, 985, 1362
Sanborn, David 114, 168, 462, 977, 1133, 1255, 1274, 1340
Sanchez, Antonio 168, 267, 279, 562, 920, 966, 991, 995, 1226, 1257, 1305
Sanchez, David 361, 441, 555, 562, 640, 676, 1006, 1247, 1257, 1261, 1424, 1485
Sanchez, Michito 1292, 1539
Sanchez, Poncho 987, 1143, 1405
Sanchez, Thania 1539
Sanctuary Choir of J. W. James Memorial A.M.E. Church 888
Sandea 483
Sandell, Nils-Erik 427
Sandell, Sten 618, 782, 1083, 1257, 1439
Sanders, Bob 1094
Sanders, Ed 801
Sanders, Fernando 977, 1535
Sanders, Fred 1237
Sanders, Joe 556
Sanders, John 434, 435, 436, 438, 490
Sanders, Mark 56, 124, 151, 194, 195, 359, 409, 418, 480, 560, 589, 870, 903, 915, 1090, 1124, 1190, 1215, 1258, 1492
Sanders, Oscar 74
Sanders, Pharoah 88, 245, 283, 291, 292, 531, 775, 792, 1056, 1061, 1258, 1491
Sanders, Roger 384, 867, 894
Sanders, Zack 1468
Sandhaus, Jody 926
Sandke, Randy 23, 48, 586, 611, 626, 734, 756, 780, 961, 968, 969, 1140, 1162, 1168, 1260, 1350, 1442, 1449, 1500
Sandman, Mark 422

Sandole, Dennis 397, 1188
Sandoval, Arturo 928, 1019, 1032, 1095, 1261, 1339
Sands, Bobby 724, 725
Sandstrom, Brian 237, 506, 1150
Sandström, Nisse 447, 1512
Sanfino, Gerald 461, 545, 576, 1345
San Juan, Stéphane 1292
Sankaran, Trichy 1170
Sannella, Andy 864
Sanner, Carl 708
Sanner, Willi 65
Sanon, Jennifer 953
Sansone, Jumpin' Johnny 197
Santacruz, Bernard 242, 773, 911
Santamaria, Luis 1261
Santamaria, Mongo 219, 553, 1261, 1404
Santandreu, Jesús 418
Santangelo, Ralph 397
Santiago, Joe 1095
Santiago, Lester 76, 737, 882, 1037
Santiago, Mike 1054
Santiago, Wiso 1064
Santillán, Julio 6
Santin, Kellie 876
Santisi, Ray 212, 327, 1171
Santoro, Aurelio 1525
Santoro, Dave 117, 118, 1090
Santos, Elson Nascimento 1360, 1361
Santos, John 738
Santos, Jumma 890, 1290
Saporito, Jim 1169
Sapsford, Geoff 1473
Sarath, Ed 281
Saravia, Bob 1165
Sarbib, Marceau 1202
Sardjoe, Chander 1545
Sargent, Gray 157, 1292
Sargent, Kenny 42, 62, 236
Sarin, Michael 25, 26, 73, 81, 224, 241, 398, 399, 420, 564, 681, 727, 924, 1065, 1135, 1193, 1240, 1288
Sarmanto, Pekka 1, 834, 1432, 1433, 1448
Sarpila, Antti 756, 779, 1366, 1500
Sarpola, Dick 969
Sarrocco, Frank 84
Sass, John 1448
Sassetti, Bernardo 81, 1263
Sasson, Jean-Pierre 102, 272, 1397
Sathe, Keshav 407, 652
Satin, Lonnie 705
Sato, Michihiro 842, 1542, 1543
Satoh, Masahiko 874
Satriani, Joe 957
Satta, Sandro 473
Satten, Steven 890
Satterfield, Jack 576, 601, 1283, 1334, 1443
Satterfield, Tom 105, 106
Satterly, Chris 367, 1043
Satterwhite, Tex 397
Saturnino, Pernell 127, 307, 966, 1146, 1257, 1301
Saudrais, Charles 324, 583, 1302
Sauer, Heinz 367, 562
Sauer, Warren 1264
Saul, Pinise 1342
Sauls, Earl 167
Saunders, Bill 932
Saunders, Bruce 216, 481
Saunders, Carl 497, 720, 727, 817, 818, 1517, 1528
Saunders, Harry 1234, 1316
Saunders, Jay 818
Saunders, Jimmy 764
Saunders, Keith 1078
Saunders, Ken 958
Saunders, Larry 918
Saunders, Melvin 424
Saunders, Red 263
Saunders, Russ 64, 601
Saunders, Theo 85, 1452
Saunders, Tom 369, 537, 551, 681, 915, 923, 1046, 1264, 1308
Saunders, Vince 682, 1326
Saury, Julie 324
Sauter, Eddie 62, 83, 545, 1089
Sautour, Alban 443
Savage, Darius 357
Savage, John 502, 703
Savitt, Buddy 692
Savitt, Pinky 764, 848, 1210
Savolainen, Jarmo 1362, 1432
Savoy Sultans, The 1264
Savy, Tomas 943
Sawai, Tadao 842
Saward, Bernard 102, 250, 918
Sawtell, Paul 1279
Sawyer, Jaz 895
Sawyer, Ryan 421
Saxbe, Marvin 105, 1076
Saxton, Bill 501, 537, 1406
Sayek, Tom 469, 1223
Sayer, Cynthia 415, 1454
Sayles, Emanuel 76, 148, 311, 737, 884, 998, 1100, 1437
Sbarbaro, Tony 297, 1100
Scales, James 1355
Scalzi, Eddie 691, 692, 1445
Scarborough, Russell 946
Scarff, Phil 775
Scarpa, Eddie 1044
Scarpantoni, Jane 129
Scatozza, Giampaolo 1473
Scavarda, Paul 476, 747
Scavone, Sam 693
Schabata, Woody 1448
Schack, Martin 1264
Schackman, Al 394, 747
Schaefer, Bill 1283
Schaefer, Eric 367
Schaeffer, Jack 763, 764
Schaffer, Bill 396
Schantz, Jack 1156
Schatz, Jerry 933
Schatz, Milton 118
Schatz, Noam 163, 164
Schaufelberger, Philipp 475, 1083
Schechter, Julie 1282
Schecroun, Rafe 254, 1030
Schecter, Basya 1544
Schefer, Bill 576
Scheidegger, Buddha 1046
Scheinman, Jenny 6, 28, 513, 965, 1243, 1544
Schellange, Augie 150, 937
Schenck, Beth 567
Schenck, James 584, 1220
Scheps, Ron 775
Scherer, Peter 76, 512
Scherr, Tony 129, 513, 1240, 1268, 1288, 1484, 1544
Scherrer, Andy 627, 1264, 1449
Schertler, Stephan 328
Schertzer, Hymie 118, 396, 397, 443, 488, 574, 575, 576, 578, 638, 714, 715, 780, 1093, 1275, 1283, 1334, 1443
Schiaffini, Giancarlo 548, 750, 1419
Schiano, Mario 750
Schick, Steven 885
Schifano, Frank 555
Schiff, Bobby 247
Schifrin, Lalo 384, 544, 554, 669, 797
Schildkraut, Dave 341, 646, 816, 1160
Schilperoort, Peter 411
Schimmel, Bill 1068
Schindler, Xenia 352
Schiøpffe, William 49, 126, 210, 545, 616, 631, 1033, 1479
Schlegel, Jan 249
Schleiermacher, Steffen 604
Schlesinger, Sol 15
Schlicht, Ursel 747
Schlinger, Sol 173, 578, 601, 693, 865, 976, 1093, 1248, 1249, 1527
Schlippenbach, Alexander von 119, 224, 562, 637, 1122, 1125, 1218, 1126, 1265, 1270, 1372, 1373
Schlossman, Teddi 1468
Schlott, Volker 1382, 1429
Schmid, Peter A. 1125, 1241
Schmid, Wolfgang 264
Schmid-Grandy, Wolfgang 38
Schmidli, Peter 1046
Schmidlin, Peter 210
Schmidt, Mel 1093
Schmidt, Sylvio 1203
Schmolck, Stephan 367
Schmool, Barak 95, 1010
Schneebiegl, Rolf 65
Schneider, Bill 579
Schneider, Eric 94, 1400
Schneider, Hans 730, 821, 1121
Schneider, Hymie 477, 1457
Schneider, Larry 264, 352, 458, 612, 903, 1212, 1267
Schneider, Maria 1268
Schneider, Michael 1043
Schneider, Roland 619
Schneiderman, Rob 1269
Schnitter, David 134, 1270
Schoebel, Elmer 1075
Schoen, Vic 489, 490
Schoenbeck, Sara 166, 421, 566, 728
Schoenberg, Loren 611, 748, 982, 1292
Schoeppach, Brad (Shepik) 399
Schols, Jacques 187, 385, 1239
Scholten, Joop 195, 1395
Scholz, Stephen 494
Schöning, Büli 737
Schöning, Lars 427
Schoof, Manfred 281, 562, 637, 1250, 1265, 1270
Schoonderwalt, Herman 38
Schoonderwoerd, Jacko 116, 253
Schoonhoven, Jaap 730
Schorn, Steffen 612, 1526
Schott, John 564
Schram, Larry 207
Schrama, Cees 1395
Schreck, Ferenc 921
Schreiber, Freddy 1094
Schrier, Joop 411
Schroder, John 69, 281
Schroeder, Gene 209, 297, 298, 355, 397, 504, 947, 1252, 1327, 1388
Schrudder, Ken 207
Schubert, Gert 834
Schubert, Matthias 281, 486, 637
Schulkowsky, Robyn 301
Schuller, Ed 120, 130, 500, 602, 907, 909, 911, 930, 931, 932, 1048, 1223, 1270, 1270, 1320, 1441
Schuller, George 130, 224, 298, 388, 507, 602, 826, 909, 961, 1063, 1193, 1270, 1342, 1430, 1442
Schuller, Gunther 340, 343, 554, 886, 909
Schulman, Harry 1002
Schulman, Ira 440, 441
Schulman, Josz 1203
Schulman, Louise 630, 1221
Schultz, Max 176, 447, 997
Schultz, Nikolaj 95
Schultz, Oscar 772

Schultz, Ray 1081
Schultze, Dave 847
Schulz, Bob 401, 551
Schulz, Gaby 'Ottilie' 757
Schumacher, David 897
Schumann, Bill 1282
Schumann, William 764
Schutt, Arthur 105, 396, 398, 542, 574, 864, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1388, 1446
Schutz, Buddy 83, 395, 575, 1284, 1334
Schutz, Martin 832
Schutz, Max 619
Schütz, Tatjana 1043
Schuur, Diane 939
Schwager, Reg 928, 1168, 1287
Schwaller, Roman 627, 1448
Schwartz, Evans 629
Schwartz, George 50, 1283, 1284, 1443
Schwartz, Jack 50, 549, 848, 849, 1052
Schwartz, Julie 576
Schwartz, Leon 1510
Schwartz, Radam 175, 617
Schwartz, Thornel 500, 971, 1312, 1313, 1534
Schwartz, Wilbur 1095, 1189
Schwartz, Willie 681
Schwartzman, Joe 443
Schwarz, Brian 247
Schwarz, Curtis 814
Schwarz, Gerard 275
Schwarz, Jerry 1210
Schwarz, Paul 841
Schwarz, Thomas 800
Schwatzberg, Alan 483
Schweiger, Max 1095
Schweizer, Irène 224, 318, 842, 875, 906, 1270, 1271, 1349
Schwetsin, Josef 1202
Schwimmel, William 1068
Schwimmer, Mike 426
Scianni, Joseph 1145, 1496
Sciubba, Sabina 35
Sclavis, Louis 177, 400, 1145, 1272, 1382, 1393
Scobey, Bob 784, 1058
Scodwell, Tony 818
Scofield, John 66, 140, 205, 264, 351, 381, 448, 460, 549, 585, 643, 651, 688, 689, 789, 898, 987, 1054, 1055, 1086, 1102, 1175, 1213, 1273, 1318, 1340, 1369, 1396, 1417, 1431
Scoggins, Virgin 1331
Scorzo, Harry 566
Scott, Aaron 1427
Scott, Bobby 66, 726, 797, 1027
Scott, Buck 937
Scott, Bud 43, 125, 379, 380, 798, 1044, 1085, 1097, 1103, 1104
Scott, Calo 78, 136, 1053, 1290, 1454
Scott, Cecil 24, 423, 704, 710, 714, 783, 803, 1078, 1319, 1343, 1443, 1483, 1505, 1520
Scott, Christian 659
Scott, Dave 1275
Scott, Dick 747, 836, 954
Scott, George 867, 1002
Scott, Harold 41
Scott, Hazel 1001, 1275
Scott, Henry 756
Scott, Howard 228, 416, 685, 734, 1443
Scott, Jeff 270
Scott, Jimmy 1256
Scott, Kendrick 135, 610, 1481
Scott, Kermit 667, 705, 714
Scott, Lannie 24, 1110
Scott, Leslie 668, 783
Scott, Lloyd 1483
Scott, Mae 502
Scott, Mike 187
Scott, Noel 1360, 1361
Scott, Riley 150
Scott, Robert 91, 416
Scott, Ronnie 226, 255, 321, 370, 479, 652, 672, 673, 674, 776, 1199, 1276, 1414
Scott, Ryan 749
Scott, Sherri 767
Scott, Shirley 338, 605, 1248, 1277, 1424
Scott, Skip 1046
Scott, Stephen 235, 407, 501, 645, 649, 688, 1235, 1335, 1424
Scott, Tom 85, 264, 440, 441, 1024, 1133, 1255, 1540
Scott, Tony 46, 228, 455, 470, 552, 571, 595, 716, 1278, 1353, 1443, 1445, 1477
Scott, Ulysses 1109
Scott, William 'Chiefie' 43, 699, 912, 913, 999
Scragg, Phil 1211
Scrima, Mickey 763, 764
Scriven, Graham 605
Scroggins, Janice 656
Scruggs, Irene 1097
Scully, John 469
Scummy 1543
Scurry, John 1367
Scusa, Joe 1445
Sdrucia, Torquato 473
Seaberg, Artie 1100
Seaberg, George 397, 691
Seabrook, Brandon 463, 1544, 1545
Seales, Marc 864, 1280
Sealey, Paul 296, 356, 467, 475, 919, 1070, 1352, 1469
Sealls, Eric 414
Seals, Sonny 1399
Seals, Warner 798
Sealy, Bob 422
Sealy, Marshall 775
Sealy, Paul 269, 320
Seaman, Jim 1052
Seamen, Phil 70, 266, 370, 479, 652, 653, 672, 673, 776, 1199, 1414, 1422
Searcy, De Loise 736
Searle, Jackie 577, 664
Sears, Al 431, 432, 433, 489, 638, 669, 699, 712, 763, 1020, 1210, 1343, 1344
Sears, Bill 939
Seaton, Laura 1321
Seaton, Lynn 405, 477, 478, 1351, 1486
Seay, Clarence 650, 949
Sebastian, Ricky 468, 934
Sebesky, Don 66, 482, 817
Sech, Pape Abdou 1539
Secole, Mary 1167
Secrest, Andy 864, 1093, 1446
Seder, Jules 1283
Sedlar, James 221, 943, 1313
Sedler, Moses 1544
Sedric, Gene 209, 329, 450, 622, 788, 1198, 1278, 1457, 1458, 1483, 1521
See, Cees 587
Seeley, Blossom 542
Seeley, Jim 1095
Seelig, Norman 397, 764
Seewald, Zahava 1545
See-Yuen, Victor 1020, 1335
Segal, Jerry 26, 242, 243, 394, 517, 920
Seghezzo, Dave 352
Seidel, Don 1388
Seidelin, Mogens 1112, 1113
Seidman, Mickey 570
Seifers, Jill 779
Seifert, Zbigniew 1099, 1336
Seim, Trygve 621, 810, 1279
Sejby, Pelle 427
Selander, Mikael 1354
Self, Jim 441, 1409
Sellani, Renato 66, 328, 838, 1278
Sellers, Joey 516, 566, 924
Sellers, Roger 39, 225
Sellin, Hervé 170
Selvaggio, Pete 845
Selwyn, Esmond 664, 1279
Sem, Ciril 1254
Semple, Archie 1190, 1279, 1484
Sen, Amit 682, 1257
Senatore, Pat 817
Senior, George 591
Senior, Milton 975
Senn, Mike 672
Senn, Reto 1126
Senter, Boyd 1044, 1280
Sepulveda, Charlie 555, 1247
Serafin, Carballo 1525
Serci, Giorgio 1515
Serensky, Jimmy 51
Sergeant, Grey 1171
Sergel, Alfred 872
Sérgio, António 1263
Sergo, Greg 754
Sernesky, Jimmy 51
Serrano, Paul 597, 701, 1031, 1262
Sertso, Ingrid 115
Sery, Paco 907, 1539, 1540
Sessions, Tim 1351
Sete, Bola 614
Settles, Bill 386
Settles, Brian 2
Seuffert, Matthias 369, 757, 1080
Severino, Frank 719, 755, 1392
Severinsen, Doc 84, 299, 388, 545, 601, 755, 970, 1054, 1093, 1094, 1249, 1313
Severn, Eddie 74, 1389
Severö, Curt 785
Sewell, Marvin 750, 945, 1036, 1076, 1256, 1515, 1516
Sewell, Thomas 108
Sewelson, David 996, 1128, 1129
Sewing, Jack 55, 592
Sexton, Benny 1516
Sferra, Fabrizio 96, 333, 838, 1194
Sgalambro, Alfio 927
Shaaf, Charles 1202
Shabazz, Cherelle 1016
Shabazz, Majid 1258
Shadid, Jaribu 47
Shaeffer, Scott 502
Shaeffer, Sy 576
Shaffer, Paul 1056
Shafranov, Vladimir 834
Shahid, Jaribu 21, 232, 279, 1011, 1012, 1061, 1189, 1372, 1531
Shahid, Sadiq Abdu 941
Shakespeare, Bill 591
Shakespeare, Robbie 18
Shakur, Hassan J. J. Wiggins 19, 415, 1195
Shames, Stacey 1213
Shanahan, Dick 84, 184
Shand, Terry 937, 1388
Shane, Mark 48, 415, 1224, 1225, 1260, 1434, 1499, 1500
Shank, Bud 64, 68, 84, 222, 229, 301, 341, 482, 491, 525, 557, 629, 815, 816, 818, 820, 854, 1052, 1142, 1230, 1231, 1247, 1248, 1280, 1444, 1517
Shank, Kendra 878, 895
Shankar, L. 977, 1290
Shanko, Timo 709, 1042
Shanks, Andy 203
Shannon, Bobby 992
Shannon, Terry 321, 370, 479, 539, 672, 673, 674, 776, 1199
Shapera, Dan 880

Shapiro, Artie 118, 123, 150, 297, 396, 423, 477, 504, 577, 667, 716, 937, 947, 1056, 1093, 1283, 1284, 1334, 1353, 1388, 1445
Shapiro, Dave 374, 375, 1063
Shapiro, Harvey 1028
Shapiro, Jason Hale 486
Shapiro, Paul 996
Shapiro, Sam 396, 574, 888
Shapiro, Ted 1017
Shapko, Dimitri 1188
Sharma, Bihari 347
Sharon, Nita 119
Sharon, Ralph 70, 92, 299, 661, 1025, 1276
Sharon, Sally 937
Sharp, Elliott 728, 1310, 1431
Sharp, Fred 1327
Sharp, Geoff 694
Sharp, Karen 919, 1509
Sharp, Matthew 1490
Sharpe, Amy 537, 915, 1308
Sharpe, Avery 1037, 1427
Sharpe, C. 1196
Sharpe, D. 137, 938
Sharpe, Jackie 672
Sharpe, Len 'Boogsie' 17
Sharpley, Andrew 14
Sharpsteen, Tom 487
Sharrock, Sonny 348, 862, 933, 934, 1258, 1296
Shashikumar, T. N. 944
Shatz, Milton 43
Shaughnessy, Ed 15, 32, 123, 173, 206, 242, 299, 424, 596, 654, 716, 772, 793, 797, 899, 912, 920, 943, 1028, 1071, 1302, 1303, 1313, 1314, 1391, 1445, 1446, 1467
Shavers, Charlie 43, 50, 56, 63, 84, 92, 99, 100, 209, 238, 270, 271, 379, 397, 417, 489, 528, 576, 577, 578, 588, 668, 669, 693, 699, 714, 716, 774, 780, 825, 849, 853, 1086, 1089, 1093, 1151, 1162, 1209, 1281, 1313, 1326, 1353, 1445, 1502, 1510, 1521
Shaw, Alex 1469
Shaw, Artie 62, 118, 714, 807, 1089, 1282, 1457
Shaw, Arvell 43, 44, 45, 390, 578, 705, 1315
Shaw, Bob 1354
Shaw, Brian 1326
Shaw, Bryan 85
Shaw, Charles 'Bobo' 74, 160, 910
Shaw, Clarence 1000, 1001
Shaw, Darryl 109
Shaw, Eilidh 1188
Shaw, Hank 652
Shaw, Iain 533
Shaw, Ian 956, 1284
Shaw, Jaleel 423, 676, 1139, 1285
Shaw, Ken 39, 225, 315
Shaw, Lonnie 639
Shaw, Mack 428
Shaw, Marlena 185
Shaw, Martin 532, 533, 898, 1096, 1412
Shaw, Woody 303, 304, 384, 450, 530, 688, 733, 1005, 1013, 1258, 1285, 1299, 1455, 1534, 1539
Shawker, Norris 'Bunny' 715, 734, 1284, 1443
Shayne, J. H. 223
Shea, David 1543
Shea, Frank 757
Shea, Kevin 463
Sheaff, Lawrence 29
Shear, Howie 550
Shearer, Dick 818, 819
Shearing, George 70, 192, 591, 982, 987, 1026, 1168, 1286, 1409
Shedowski, Ed 849
Sheen, Mickey 668, 669, 1537
Sheene, Mickey 1537
Sheldon, Jack 312, 557, 578, 588, 647, 681, 720, 736, 817, 850, 851, 933, 1094, 1111, 1142, 1143, 1146, 1287, 1367, 1409
Shelladay, Nelson 50
Sheller, Martin 1165, 1262
Shelton, Aram 97, 604
Shelton, Don 496, 889, 1540
Shen, Pei Sheng 709
Shepard, Ernie 32, 437, 570, 698, 713, 1345
Shepard, Shep 358
Shepard, Tom 752
Shepard, Tommy 681
Shepherd, Berisford 228
Shepherd, Bill 553, 1030, 1081
Shepherd, Dave 596, 1190
Shepherd, Jim 1352, 1469
Shepherd, Leo 638
Shepherd, Shep 1283
Shepherd, William 1030, 1031
Shepik, Brad (Schoeppach) 833, 867, 1270, 1288, 1331, 1544
Shepley, Joe 113, 1138
Shepp, Archie 199, 289, 291, 377, 633, 846, 1018, 1062, 1288, 1297, 1380
Sheppard, Andy 137, 138, 844, 870, 941, 1250, 1291, 1413
Sheppard, Bob 247, 306, 324, 427, 486, 854, 903, 961, 1256, 1292
Sheppard, Ian 1457
Sheppard, Martha 1404
Sherba, John 1543
Sherbourne, Mike 1314, 1460
Sheridan, John 27, 741, 1058, 1435
Sheriff, Jamil 1292
Sherman, Al 847
Sherman, Daryl 158, 395, 1292
Sherman, Dick 268, 646, 1095, 1445
Sherman, James 40, 63, 329, 714, 1316
Sherman, Lynne 91
Sherman, Paul 566
Sherman, Ray 85, 474, 504, 579, 689
Sherman, Sammy 1292
Sherock, Shorty 125, 150, 230, 395, 774, 847, 848, 1092
Sherr, David 319
Sherrill, Joya 431, 432, 434, 1344
Sherry, Fred 304, 909, 1369
Sherwood, Bobby 180, 1089, 1282, 1283
Shevak, Iggy 84, 319, 418, 779
Shevak, Robert 50
Shew, Bobby 108, 109, 324, 694, 939, 1210, 1292, 1517
Shields, Harry 556
Shields, Larry 1100
Shiels, Brian 1338, 1385
Shifflett, John 28, 38, 709
Shiffman, Bud 576
Shigeta, Brad 551, 801
Shigihara, Paul 115
Shihab, Sahib 35, 212, 231, 255, 284, 328, 340, 424, 471, 517, 568, 796, 797, 800, 894, 1020, 1160, 1242, 1254, 1278, 1293, 1454, 1467, 1479, 1527
Shilansky, Mark 826
Shilkloper, Arkady 927, 1110, 1449
Shim, Mark 146, 443, 617, 657, 777, 877, 914, 915, 1006, 1105
Shimura, Aya 96
Shine, Bill 576
Shipcott, John 316
Shipinski, Murray 552
Shipp, David 506
Shipp, Matthew 221, 931, 984, 1096, 1126, 1144, 1293, 1464, 1465
Shiratori, Emiko 830
Shirley, Jimmy 238, 248, 334, 489, 490, 614, 628, 667, 715, 788, 789, 793, 853, 1283
Shiurba, John 165, 515
Shive, Carol 922
Shlomo, Absolom Ben 1358
Shoemake, Charlie 453
Shoffner, Bob 51, 753, 798, 1097, 1103, 1251, 1311
Shoffner, Dub 236
Sholar, Kelvin 57, 651
Shoobe, Lou 779
Shopnick, Mark 270
Shore, Marvin 765
Short, Bobby 1141
Short, Charlie 70, 248, 889, 1302
Short, Damon 697
Short, Daniel 1318
Short, Tim 663
Shorter, Alan 183, 1289, 1294, 1296
Shorter, Wayne 133, 134, 135, 213, 346, 347, 348, 389, 462, 584, 642, 643, 644, 732, 813, 1018, 1019, 1039, 1040, 1133, 1159, 1274, 1294, 1402, 1474, 1475, 1512, 1539
Shotham, Ramesh 944
Shoup, Wally 261, 1297
Shreve, Dick 222, 278, 1247
Shrier, Nook 1467
Shrimpton, Rebecca 775
Shroyer, Kenny 247, 681, 817, 1093, 1230, 1231, 1517
Shu, Eddie 45, 151, 849
Shull, Tad 1423
Shulman, Joe 340, 433, 783, 1052, 1536, 1537
Shulman, Matt 1485
Shutz, Adolf 395
Shutz, Buddy 574
Shy, Robert 237, 506, 827, 828, 1107, 1150
Shylkova, Elvira 853
Sickafoose, Todd 28, 1544
Sickler, Don 309, 328, 801, 964, 1019, 1196, 1214, 1288, 1462, 1463
Sida, Rafael 1347, 1348
Sid Bulkin 413
Siddik, Rasul 1059
Sidell, Al 150, 504, 588, 1327
Sides, Doug 127, 499, 646, 1346
Sides, Douglas 111
Sidorenko, Janusz 835
Sidran, Ben 1227
Sidran, Leo 1227
Sidwell, Steve 1389, 1414
Siegel, Aaron 165, 166
Siegel, Julian 869, 1355
Siegel, Max 640
Siegel, Ray 1052
Siegelstein, Sandy 340
Siegfield, Frank 1282
Siegler, Ruth 1240
Sieverts, Henning 1526
Siewert, Brian 1385
Siewert, Martin 833
Signetto, Valerio 929
Signorelli, Frank 105, 396, 398, 864, 947, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1101, 1280, 1446
Siikasaari, Eerik 1362
Sikora, Ray 817
Silas, Meshack 1050
Sill, Kelly 573, 939
Silloway, Ward 396, 397, 424, 937
Silva, Alan 25, 53, 54, 199, 378, 602, 703, 775, 1018, 1062, 1128, 1290, 1297, 1358, 1380, 1381, 1531
Silva, Charlie 27

Silva, Claudio 1542
Silva, Jay 1031
Silva, Jocelyn Sete Camara 71
Silva, John 752
Silva, Jorge 1361, 1542
Silva, Jose 'Chombo' 1261, 1262, 1404
Silva, Luciano 277
Silva, Michael 195, 262, 1366
Silvano, Judi 445, 909, 1298
Silver, Horace 11, 132, 133, 170, 180, 200, 212, 240, 254, 255, 341, 392, 469, 544, 654, 754, 786, 800, 1014, 1038, 1233, 1298, 1345, 1536
Silveri, Franca 476
Silver Leaf Jazz Band 1300
Silverlight, Terry 299
Simcock, Gwilym 8, 528, 1300
Simeon, Omer 357, 423, 461, 638, 686, 704, 705, 798, 913, 1044, 1056, 1076, 1097, 1098, 1103, 1104, 1201, 1311, 1322
Simeone, Frank 63, 1089
Simeoni, Mario 446
Simkins, Geoff 260, 523
Simmons, Art 209, 272, 553
Simmons, Charles 571
Simmons, Fred 19, 162, 1197
Simmons, James 'Sid' 167, 1172, 1468
Simmons, John 42, 209, 228, 238, 271, 284, 328, 338, 415, 417, 447, 482, 489, 528, 529, 540, 576, 668, 698, 715, 716, 754, 758, 788, 853, 1020, 1109, 1210, 1345, 1353, 1375, 1400, 1477, 1521, 1535
Simmons, Kermit 83, 691
Simmons, Larry 1378
Simmons, Lonnie 1457
Simmons, Norman 48, 231, 425, 603, 606, 607, 719, 986, 1057, 1228, 1486
Simmons, Renaud 702
Simmons, Richard 269, 295, 1070, 1437, 1493
Simmons, Sam 488, 1109, 1264, 1311
Simmons, Sonny 310, 384, 866, 1300, 1374
Simmons, Teddy 1086
Simms, Gus 732
Simms, Jack 576
Simms, Jimmy 815
Simoëns, Lucien 209, 272, 1202, 1203, 1344
Simon, Eduardo 890, 934
Simon, Edward 126, 127, 135, 556, 585, 934, 1213, 1229, 1301, 1335, 1423, 1471
Simon, Fred 552, 638
Simon, Freddie 736, 803
Simon, Gene 999, 1197
Simon, George 91
Simon, John 1172
Simon, Ken 1302
Simon, Mark 300, 746
Simon, Marlon 468, 1247, 1471
Simon, Maurice 571, 758, 760, 1516
Simon, Richard 73, 123, 279, 1140, 1165
Simon, Stafford 228, 803, 999, 1343
Simonoviez, Jean-Sébastien 772
Simpkins, Andy 12, 17, 73, 417, 550, 982, 1209, 1304, 1313, 1402, 1424, 1444, 1445
Simpkins, Georgia Boy 686
Simpkins, Jesse 490, 638, 687, 803, 1066
Simpson, Cassino 1311
Simpson, Don 849
Simpson, Gregg 1075
Simpson, Jimmy 586
Simpson, Mike 511, 570, 1391
Simpson, Ron 958, 1314, 1315
Sims, Edward 670, 671, 705
Sims, Ginny 1326
Sims, Ken 125, 869
Sims, Leonard 576
Sims, Pete 687
Sims, Pete (La Roca) 851, 1302
Sims, Ray 720, 765, 1093, 1139, 1304
Sims, Sam 1506
Sims, Sylvia 257, 707
Sims, Tommy 913
Sims, Zoot 9, 15, 64, 66, 93, 173, 180, 205, 258, 268, 299, 341, 413, 424, 449, 466, 470, 492, 517, 543, 576, 578, 616, 668, 692, 694, 708, 774, 787, 797, 816, 877, 974, 1003, 1052, 1053, 1054, 1094, 1119, 1143, 1171, 1179, 1230, 1248, 1278, 1283, 1302, 1314, 1379, 1444, 1447, 1502, 1509, 1517
Sinacore, Joe 758
Sinatra, Frank 397, 763, 764
Sinatra, Spencer 1303
Sinclair, Bill 645, 1437
Sinclair, Nigel 1484
Sinclair, Richard 315, 1416
Sinclair, Ted 638
Sine Qua Non Sextet 734
Sines, Miff 815
Sinesi, Quique 663, 944
Sinfonia, Bob 422
Singe, DJ M. 832
Singer, Hal 209, 424, 1451
Singer, Henry 779
Singer, Joe 173, 343
Singer, Lou 50, 528, 1283
Singh, Satin 76, 776
Singh, Talvin 1361
Singleton, Charlie 783
Singleton, Clyde 814
Singleton, Jim 68
Singleton, Zutty 24, 41, 42, 43, 56, 63, 99, 101, 125, 180, 272, 355, 423, 622, 638, 788, 889, 937, 947, 1044, 1045, 1093, 1104, 1114, 1115, 1120, 1252, 1353, 1388, 1458, 1483
Siniscalco, Marco 556
Sipiagin, Alex 126, 168, 697, 718, 834, 1006, 1169, 1256, 1268, 1305
Siravo, George 847
Sirett, John 367, 869, 1043
Sirkis, Asaf 50, 389, 528, 868, 870, 1225, 1509
Sirocco, Frank 780
Sirone (Norris Jones) 75, 78, 373, 473, 538, 730, 1208, 1258, 1305, 1381, 1383
Sirvent, Sergi 71, 665
Sissle, Noble 99, 129
Sissoko, Baba 1050
Sisters, Perry 1540
Sithens, Buzz 388
Sitterlix, John 855
Sivaro, Frank 84
Six, Jack 191, 192, 469, 693
Sjökvist, Gustaf 387
Sjöstedt, Martin 1347, 1348
Sjøsten, Lars 447, 583, 837, 1306, 1498
Sjösten, Lasse 1479
Sjöström, Christer 1087
Sjöström, Frans 1150
Sjöström, Harri 1382, 1383
Sjunnesson, Bernt 1407
Skaff, Greg 426, 1470
Skeaping, Mathew 956
Skeaping, Rod 1403
Skeat, Len 23, 467, 541, 596, 756, 961, 991, 1046, 1225, 1499, 1512
Sked, Malcolm 1080
Skeef, Eugene 1010
Skeete, Franklin 209, 337, 622, 717, 813, 1119, 1177, 1219, 1536
Skelton, Matt 814, 1051
Skerik 1182
Skerritt, Fred 671, 1095, 1098, 1457, 1504
Skidmore, Alan 104, 280, 358, 362, 549, 632, 824, 1105, 1306, 1325, 1363, 1412, 1415, 1417, 1488, 1524
Skidmore, Jimmy 70, 248, 652, 918, 1206, 1422
Skieraski, Ray 1388
Skinner, Billy 537, 980
Skinner, Colin 415
Skinner, Dale 1388
Skinner, Edward 1355
Skinner, Tom 76, 869, 1329
Skivington, Pete 475
Skjelbred, Ray 401, 682, 1058, 1308
Skjold, Andreas 46, 420, 616, 781, 782
Sklar, Lee 264
Skogehall, Bror 427
Skogh, Patrik 1087, 1347, 1348
Skoglund, Annika 766
Skoglund, Bosse 3, 616
Skolnick, Sam 396
Skoog, Nisse 420, 426
Skoog, Patrik 49
Skorupka, Adam 835
Skovbakke, Jeppe 35, 648, 1131
Skrimshire, Nevil 250, 869, 918, 1055, 1352, 1484
Skullerud, Harald 71
Skyles, Jimmy 1093
Slack, Freddy 395
Slagle, Steve 137, 623, 645, 910, 1005, 1006, 1306, 1351, 1352
Slagter, Jacob 721
Slaney, Tom 482, 817
Slany, Sonia 1466
Slater, Ashley 137, 1250
Slater, Harry 295
Slater, Vernon 1516
Slaughter, Bob 1114
Slaughter, Don 552
Slaughter, James 701, 1467
Slaughter, John 78
Slaughter, Roy 798
Slauson, Ed 85
Slavin, Archie 70
Slavin, Neil 912
Slavo, Gary 818
Slay, Emitt 43
Sleeman, Dick 8
Sleet, Don 1307
Sleet, Frank 1375
Slettahjell, Solveig 71
Slevin, Dick 864
Slifstein, Mark 1250
Sloan, Harry 638
Slocum, Melissa 923
Sloutsker, Simon 183
Slusser, David 1543
Small, Andrew 1416
Small, Clifton 705
Small, Ernie 765, 1024
Small, Paul 573
Smalls, Cliff 334, 570, 596, 707, 1307
Smalls, Theodore 987
Smart, Syd 917, 925
Smeby, Jörgen 321
Smeck, Roy 218, 542, 1098, 1505
Smedegaard, Jacob 1514
Smelser, Cornell 429
Śmietana, Jarek 90
Smildiger, Chris 195, 411
Smiley, Bill 816, 817
Smillie, Dennis 909

Smith, Allen 461, 1162, 1404, 1517
Smith, B. 1506
Smith, Becki 876
Smith, Becky 480
Smith, Ben 228, 725, 826, 1109, 1311
Smith, Bessie 864
Smith, Betty 1190
Smith, Bill 188, 190, 191, 1020, 1089, 1307, 1309
Smith, Bobby 670, 671, 1307
Smith, Brian 39, 225, 280, 549, 1058, 1403, 1488
Smith, Buddy 606, 691, 692, 710
Smith, Buster 383, 789, 1109
Smith, Buzz 83
Smith, Cal 377, 379
Smith, Carl 90, 1406
Smith, Carrie 647, 651, 1392
Smith, Carson 64, 65, 180, 544, 632, 633, 716, 835, 1052, 1210, 1280, 1425
Smith, Cecilia 1515
Smith, Charles Edward 155
Smith, Charlie 250, 424, 489, 490, 528, 699, 786, 933, 1160, 1379
Smith, Ches 564, 1544
Smith, Chris 125, 674
Smith, Chuck 991, 1388
Smith, Colin 125, 475, 1279
Smith, Dalton 817, 818
Smith, Damon 124, 539, 843, 1429
Smith, Dave 1325
Smith, David 148, 481, 1331
Smith, Dennis 401
Smith, Derek 70, 104, 109, 148, 263, 327, 336, 364, 626, 707, 708, 831, 886, 1077, 1162, 1206, 1308, 1354, 1405
Smith, Dick 77, 78, 293, 294, 1362
Smith, Don 816, 1000
Smith, Donald 152, 654, 860
Smith, Dr Lonnie 176, 719, 798, 1315
Smith, Earl 'Buster' 1360, 1361
Smith, Earl 'Chinna' 738, 1361
Smith, Eddie 40, 77, 78, 155
Smith, Edward 1375
Smith, Emma 1171
Smith, Ernie 263
Smith, Floyd 63, 552, 826, 1510
Smith, Frank 542
Smith, Freddy 377, 379
Smith, Geechie 705, 736
Smith, George 410, 820, 1363, 1488
Smith, Greg 819
Smith, Guy 395, 734
Smith, Hal 333, 369, 401, 415, 450, 537, 551, 579, 611, 748, 823, 1189, 1300, 1308, 1500
Smith, Harold 552
Smith, Harold E. 862, 983
Smith, Harrison 1308
Smith, Harry 70, 187, 1190
Smith, Harumi Makino 1310
Smith, Howard 396, 397, 504, 1089, 1388
Smith, Howie 939
Smith, Ian 315, 1309
Smith, Isaac 640, 1452, 1517
Smith, Ishmael Wadada Leo 6, 159, 296, 742, 841, 896, 910, 1294, 1309, 1325, 1493, 1545
Smith, J. R. 884
Smith, J. Wright 1044
Smith, Jabbo 428, 724, 1311, 1319, 1504
Smith, James 1457
Smith, James Herb 1468
Smith, Jimmie 201, 230, 339, 417, 495, 500, 529, 550, 555, 689, 720, 755, 793, 794, 1073, 1142, 1304, 1534
Smith, Jimmy 113, 201, 218, 320, 363, 1027, 1312
Smith, Joe 223, 685, 975, 1314, 1343
Smith, John 85, 86, 219, 269, 358, 423, 503, 531, 704, 947, 1457, 1458
Smith Jr, John H. 1510
Smith, Johnny 544, 588, 780, 794, 1314
Smith, Johnny Hammond 1070, 1522
Smith, Johnny 'Hammond' 32, 732, 1468
Smith, Joshua Douglas 1314
Smith, Jumaane 20
Smith, Keith 1314, 1414
Smith, LaDonna 1542
Smith, Larry 232, 1399
Smith, Lavay 551
Smith, Lee 1262
Smith, Leo 160, 973
Smith, Lloyd 705
Smith, Lonnie Liston 79, 112, 113, 347, 389, 650, 719, 754, 827, 828, 829, 972, 1064, 1258, 1301
Smith, Louis 201, 899, 1298
Smith, Lucien 398
Smith, Malcolm Earle 467, 532, 608
Smith, Mamie 1504
Smith, Marshall 949
Smith, Marvin 'Smitty' 17, 126, 145, 153, 216, 219, 247, 277, 308, 405, 407, 454, 471, 569, 637, 699, 718, 878, 903, 947, 1006, 1035, 1050, 1205, 1235, 1287, 1321, 1422, 1427, 1470, 1479
Smith, Mauricio 1095, 1262
Smith, Max 118
Smith, May 1311
Smith, Merton 1388
Smith, Michael 159, 855
Smith, Mike 247, 415, 606, 939
Smith, Nate 718, 1175, 1176
Smith, Nathan 487
Smith, Neal 247
Smith, Neil 118
Smith, Nolan 93, 493
Smith, Oscar 209
Smith, Otis 1031
Smith, Paul 397, 490, 491, 493, 552, 774, 1093, 1244, 1301, 1316
Smith, Perry 1319, 1506
Smith, Pete 1171, 1414
Smith, Putter 172, 839, 1352, 1452
Smith, Ray 295, 1043, 1113, 1150, 1316
Smith, Richard 655, 1477
Smith, Richard 'Drahseer' 1399
Smith, Roger 50, 1315, 1333, 1334
Smith, Rollin 410
Smith, Rowan 737
Smith, Roy 1084
Smith, Ruby 788, 1184, 1279
Smith, Rudy 412
Smith, Russell 24, 219, 228, 666, 685, 686, 1343
Smith, Sam 1490
Smith, Sean 241, 322, 585, 619, 878, 1057, 1162, 1341
Smith, Sonelius 324, 473, 777, 827, 828, 1060
Smith, Steve 309, 1316
Smith, Stuff 272, 490, 592, 1153, 1316, 1355
Smith, Tab 24, 91, 699, 714, 715, 853, 999, 1078, 1343, 1467, 1521
Smith, Teddy 393, 800, 1234, 1299, 1300
Smith, Tommy 205, 904, 1317, 1413
Smith, Tony 977
Smith, Trixie 99, 379
Smith, Valerie 549
Smith, Vernon 705
Smith, Wally 1414
Smith, Warren 7, 162, 186, 462, 473, 487, 683, 777, 969, 1250, 1318, 1472, 1539
Smith, William H. 880
Smith, William Oscar 667
Smith, Willie 125, 238, 271, 272, 388, 417, 433, 552, 699, 712, 716, 736, 760, 764, 765, 774, 849, 912, 1000, 1056, 1117, 1151, 1445, 1535, 1537
Smith, Willie 'The Lion' 100, 297, 434, 1222, 1318, 1505
Smith Youth Jazz Orchestra, The Tommy 1318
Smithers, Elmer 396, 397, 1283, 1334
Smoker, Paul 25, 109, 161, 162, 164, 422, 498, 593, 602, 675, 697, 863, 1319
Smookler, Gene 694
Smudo 637
Smulyan, Gary 138, 465, 689, 746, 910, 921, 1006, 1019, 1269, 1320, 1348, 1463, 1481, 1517
Smuts, Pat 467, 570
Smyth, Steve 111
Smythe, Pat 652, 653, 811
Snaer, Albert 102, 724, 725
Snaps, Ginger 1056
Sneed, Damien 586
Sneed, Ed 913
Sneed, Jack 853
Sneider, John 551, 564
Snétberger, Ferenc 587
Snidero, Jim 677, 876, 916, 921, 1321, 1441, 1480
Snitzer, Andy 80, 299
Snodgrass, Jim 441
Snow, Michael 136
Snow, Valaida 1322
Snowden, Elmer 1322
Snurpus, George 937
Snustead, Mike 818, 819
Snyder, Bob 249, 575, 639, 847, 848
Snyder, Frank 1076
Snyder, Gwen 214
Snyder, Jim 369, 1326, 1454
Snyder, Terry 84, 434, 1443
Soana, Emilio 533, 1419
Socarras, Albert 571, 1066, 1504
Socolow, Frank 238, 311, 752, 1176, 1189, 1283, 1322, 1445
Socolow, Gene 15
Socolow, Paul 934
Söderberg, Bo 900
Söderberg, Peter 1257
Soderblom, Kenny 597
Söderblom, Peter 837
Söderqvist, Stig 1237
Soderstrom, Ron 127
Soffe, Jerry 663
Soft Machine 1523
Soirat, Philippe 103, 324
Sokal, Harry 1448, 1449
Sokolov, Lisa 1128
Solal, Claudia 1324
Solal, Martial 209, 254, 470, 608, 734, 836, 837, 851, 1027, 1174, 1323, 1397, 1398, 1541
Solano, Rafael 220
Soldén, Anders 420
Solder, Steve 1247
Soldier, Dave 372
Soldier String Quartet 371
Soldo, Joe 1052
Soler, Alain 773
Soler, David 1208

Solís, Ricardo 1170
Sollenberger, Jay 819
Soloff, Lew 80, 137, 138, 219, 316, 352, 414, 460, 462, 499, 549, 555, 630, 689, 895, 993, 1005, 1008, 1182, 1250, 1296
Sologub, Victor 853
Solomon, Ayi 392, 1084
Solomon, Clifford 469
Solomon, Joe 321
Solomon, Nathan 395
Solomon, Red 779, 1093
Solomon, Shorty 395
Solothurnmann, Jürg 98, 1126
Sølund, Jens 356, 628, 1112, 1113
Sølvguttene Boys' Choir 524
Solyanik, Vladimir 663
Somerford Junior School Choir 531
Sommer, Gunter 'Baby' 97, 177, 224, 539, 841, 920, 1271, 1311, 1324, 1381, 1382
Sommer, Peter 746
Sommer, Ted 962, 1186, 1303
Sommers, Eddie 269, 729
Somogyi, Arnie 88, 182, 825, 865, 956, 991, 1325, 1413, 1497
Sompa, Titos 1530
Sondergaard, Jens 417, 838
Song, Jeff 959
Sonic Pleasure 61
Sonnanstine, Charlie 682
Soorez, Jose 545
Soovik, Ralph 767
Soph, Ed 694, 1335, 1391
Sorbara, Joe 48
Sordini, Fiorenzo 334, 335, 476
Sorell, Dion 566
Sørensen, Helle 938, 939
Sørensen, Knud 818
Sørensen, Marianne 938, 939
Sørenson, Søren 1438
Sorey, Tyshawn 877, 1306
Sorgen, Harvey 498, 1496
SOS 1325
Soskin, Mark 264, 903, 934, 1227, 1234, 1235, 1250, 1325
Sotolongo, Inor 880
Sotti, Fabrizio 1516
Sottile, John 1210
Souchon, Edmond 76, 293, 1113, 1328
Soudieux, Emmanuel 591, 1030, 1202, 1203, 1204, 1516
Soule, Russell 937
Soulsby, Barry 1490
Soulsby, Peter 1490
South, Eddie 1326
South, Harry 370, 632, 672, 1199
Southall, Henry 693, 694
Southern, Jeri 624
South Frisco Jazz Band 1326
Souza, Aureo de 225
Souza, Luciana 76, 127, 852, 966, 1146, 1193, 1228, 1268, 1269, 1301
Sovak, George 1063, 1135
Sowden, Geoff 1362
Spahn, Tom 361
Spångberg, Sune 52, 545, 1178, 1237, 1327
Spang-Hanssen, Simon Cato 391, 809, 810, 873
Spanier, Calder 738
Spanier, Herbie 142, 1084
Spanier, Muggsy 100, 101, 102, 105, 297, 398, 504, 666, 888, 1252, 1327, 1334
Spann, Leon 669
Spann, Les 12, 56, 272, 435, 517, 527, 554, 571, 797, 798, 894, 1003, 1138, 1328, 1478
Spargo, Tony 450, 1066
Sparks, Bobby 649
Sparks, Melvin 316, 317, 363, 414, 719, 854, 971, 1315, 1468
Sparks, Phil 259, 631
Sparks, Tim 1544
Sparrow, Arnette 554, 913
Sparrow, Johnny 43, 638
Spaulding, Antonia 820, 1326
Spaulding, James 75, 499, 599, 732, 740, 753, 1040, 1051, 1059, 1060, 1138, 1220, 1258, 1296, 1299, 1328, 1355, 1356, 1424, 1530, 1535
Spaven, Richard 1010
Spaven, Victor 1010
Speake, Martin 1329
Spearman, Glenn 445, 925, 926, 1243, 1329, 1493
Spears, Alphonse 551
Spears, Bill 764
Spears, Calvin 465
Spears, Louis 650, 655
Spears, Maurice 202, 259, 323, 1517
Spedding, Chris 39, 225, 401, 549, 938, 1212, 1488, 1489
Speed, Chris 120, 121, 224, 256, 399, 445, 508, 590, 719, 742, 833, 990, 1330, 1452, 1526, 1544
Speed, Sam 410
Speicher, Martin 747, 1331
Speight, Andrew 263
Speight, Ed 281
Speiginer, Louis 1375
Speiser, Tara 566
Speller, Keno 862
Spence, Dave 905
Spencer, Christine 1511
Spencer, David 1399
Spencer, Dick 85, 108
Spencer, Herb 1446
Spencer, Herbert 398
Spencer, Isaiah 357
Spencer, Joel 247
Spencer, Kenneth 257
Spencer, Leon Jr 1468
Spencer, Maynard 937
Spencer, O'Neil 24, 40, 56, 63, 99, 196, 379, 588, 825, 826, 853, 999, 1078, 1086, 1089, 1319, 1353
Spencer, Richard 108
Spencer, Roger 969
Spendel, Christoph 841
Spering, Christian 5, 49, 176, 378, 725, 767, 830, 831, 996, 997, 1087, 1406, 1407, 1458
Sperling, Jack 119, 466, 1139
Sperrings, Per-Erik 664
Sperry, Matthew 165, 515
Spicher, Norman 203
Spiegel, Ray 1146
Spiegel, Russ 1331
Spieldock, Al 638
Spieler, Barney 388, 576
Spiers, Pierre 591
Spillett, Simon 1331
Spinozza, David 221
Spirits Of Rhythm, The 1331
Spiro, Michael 211
Spissky, Peter 71
Spivak, Charlie 396, 574, 779, 1353, 1388
Spivey, Victoria 23, 24
Splawn, Johnny 284
Spoerri, Bruno 932
Sponberg, Anders 327
Spontaneous Music Ensemble 1332
Spoon, Lloyd 818, 819
Spooner, John 591
Sportsmen, The 577
Sprague, Don 779
Sprenger, Christoph 588
Spring, Bryan 81, 225, 1212, 1306, 1414, 1482
Springer, Joe 423, 609, 715, 848, 1092
Springer, Joel 775
Springer, Lloyd 1388
Spring String Quartet 839
Sprite 637
Sproles, Victor 134, 364, 544, 607, 702, 886, 1039, 1040, 1228, 1352, 1355, 1391, 1392, 1534
Spruill, John 639
Spurgin, Tony 591
Spurlock, Jack 817, 1210
Squires, Bruce 395, 574, 575, 763, 764, 847
Squitero, Roger 235
Stabbins, Larry 906, 1016, 1182, 1334, 1403, 1404
Stabenow, Thomas 841
Stabulas, Nick 26, 268, 311, 461, 601, 615, 986, 1192, 1417, 1460, 1527
Stacey, Jack 42, 395, 1282, 1283
Stacey, Jeremy 527, 533, 956, 1180
Stacey, Paul 956
Stachel, Norbert 38
Stack, Jim 1354
Stackenas, David 619, 1439
Stacy, Jess 90, 297, 423, 443, 488, 504, 574, 575, 576, 577, 638, 711, 763, 847, 1076, 1252, 1319, 1327, 1334
Staff, Sam 693
Stafford, George 24, 228, 297, 1311, 1388
Stafford, Greg 465, 1496
Stafford, Jo 624
Stafford, Mary 783
Stafford, Terell 88, 259, 844, 934, 1008, 1187, 1277, 1335, 1466, 1470, 1471, 1518, 1519
Stagg, Bill 958
Stagg, Nick 1210
Stagl, Franz 1477
Stagliano, James 1283
Stagnaro, Oscar 406, 991
Stahl, Dave 93, 94, 375, 694
Ståhl, Mattias 5, 807, 831, 997, 1087, 1335
Stahlberg, Sven 1217
Stahlin, Olle 1322
Staley, Jim 1542, 1543
Stametz, Jack 207
Stamm, Marvin 80, 109, 113, 352, 369, 483, 613, 693, 735, 799, 817, 818, 939, 943, 964, 969, 1028, 1138, 1335, 1468
Stamps, Brett 819
Stan, Mircea 1432, 1447
Stanchfield, Stan 764
Standifer, Floyd 797
Stanfield, Leemie 488, 670, 671, 757, 1520
Stanfield, Lennie 671
Stangl, Burkhard 833
Stan Kenton Orchestra 251
Stanley, Bill 797
Stansbury, Johnny Mae 748
Stanton, Jerry 1472
Staples, Mavis 1275
Stapleton, Bill 694
Starinskaite, Daiva 324
Stark, Bengt 725, 897, 1237, 1348
Stark, Bobby 24, 228, 329, 488, 489, 666, 686, 736, 803, 1343, 1475
Stark, Emil 398
Stark, Willie 41
Starks, Artie 31, 798
Starlighters 271
Starling, Jack 272
Starling, Ray 817, 818, 1103, 1210
Starr, Kay 271, 937, 1089
Starr, Ron 440, 441
Stata, Bob 591

Statham, Rob 453, 1416
Staunton, Chris 1279, 1484
Stavi, Yaron 50, 1545
Stavitt, Pincus 1188
Stańko, Tomasz 281, 562, 810, 834, 835, 1096, 1137, 1336, 1381, 1447
St Clair, Cyrus 228, 803, 1098, 1113, 1311, 1504, 1505
St Cyr, Johnny 41, 76, 198, 379, 380, 737, 798, 1037, 1044, 1072, 1079, 1097, 1103, 1114, 1251, 1337
Steacker, Richard Lee 1468
Stearns, Al 91, 763, 764, 848, 1445
Stearns, Lawrence 576
Steckel, Jordan 1246
Steele, Alphonse 24, 714, 784
Steele, Ben 728
Steele, Colin 74, 371, 1338
Steele, George 53
Steele, Joan 1338
Steele, Joe 488, 1476
Steele, Skye 502
Steen, Bernt Anker 739
Steen, Niels 339
Steen, Niels Jørgen 356
Steen, Ron 656
Steen, Uffe 778
Steenberg, Ole 1479
Stefani, Gino 533
Stefanski, Janusz 1336
Steffensen, John 818, 1479
Stegmeyer, Bill 43, 207, 715, 734, 780, 970, 1537
Steig, Jeremy 569
Stein, Andy 748
Stein, Hal 268, 1527
Stein, Lou 474, 622, 693, 734, 786, 872, 1074, 1445, 1537
Stein, Manny 180
Steinberg, Elena 890
Steinel, Mike 939
Steinholtz, Olle 378, 379
Steinke, Mickey 461
Steinmetz, Demetrius 845
Steinmetz, Hugh 300, 1270, 1338
Steinmeyer, David 939
Stenfalt, Norman 70, 479, 570, 652, 1199
Stengl, Eberhardt 1501
Stenning, Leon 1211
Stenson, Bobo 5, 21, 176, 246, 330, 447, 523, 805, 901, 997, 1087, 1206, 1329, 1336, 1338, 1350
Stephan, Jerry 1203
Stephan, John 472
Stephans, Michael 174, 963
Stephen, Keith 1490
Stephens, Charles 539, 1290, 1357
Stephens, Chip 1339
Stephens, Dave 187
Stephens, Gurdeep 1010
Stephens, Haig 40, 42, 489, 490, 588, 715, 947
Stephens, John 1517
Stephens, Nick 560, 1088, 1341, 1342
Stephens, Paul 1136
Stephens, Phil 51, 504, 1093, 1283
Stephens, Stanley 465, 1070, 1217, 1496
Stephenson, Louis 228
Stephenson, Ronnie 226, 546, 568, 674, 1027, 1276, 1414
Stepney, Charles 597, 655
Stepton, Rick 272, 1084, 1210, 1211
Sterling, Arnold 971
Sterling, George 551
Stern, Emile 272
Stern, Hank 398, 1446
Stern, Mike 114, 273, 351, 629, 892, 938, 957, 1134, 1212, 1340
Stern, Peggy 838
Sternbach, David 818
Sterner, Dave 353
Stetch, John 1193, 1340
Stevens, Al 450
Stevens, Cathy 658
Stevens, Charles 501, 1359
Stevens, Don 779, 1081
Stevens Jr, Gale 1380
Stevens, Hal 1283
Stevens, Jack 693
Stevens, John 28, 57, 58, 59, 154, 247, 370, 559, 680, 856, 906, 1122, 1332, 1333, 1334, 1341
Stevens, Leith 529, 557
Stevens, Lynne 50
Stevens, Mark 441
Stevens, Michael Jefry 298, 412, 498, 1430
Stevens, Phil 83, 84, 474, 937
Stevens, Sandra 642
Stevens, Thanea 480
Stevenson, Burke 1436
Stevenson, George 705, 715, 999, 1109, 1343, 1505
Stevenson, Graham 397
Stevenson, Nick 564
Stevenson, Rudy 1462
Stevenson, Tommy 667, 912, 1176, 1197
Steward, Herb 199, 247, 571, 945, 1141, 1283, 1284, 1342
Steward, Ken 1322
Stewardson, Jamie 1342
Stewart, Aaron 7, 703, 751, 1372
Stewart, Al 84, 577, 1095
Stewart, Alex 1351
Stewart, Andrew 480
Stewart, Bill 33, 122, 131, 132, 168, 171, 227, 279, 303, 381, 564, 585, 586, 604, 610, 626, 677, 779, 837, 844, 852, 908, 946, 966, 995, 1229, 1241, 1274, 1275, 1318, 1324, 1325, 1355, 1441
Stewart, Bob 73, 136, 137, 146, 147, 152, 512, 637, 679, 1059, 1136, 1202, 1222, 1320, 1343
Stewart, Buddy 848, 1445
Stewart, Charlie 118
Stewart, Chuck 912, 913, 1113
Stewart, David 1364
Stewart, Dee 1047
Stewart, Froshine 725
Stewart, Graham 294, 295, 443, 869, 1362
Stewart, Grant 830, 1343, 1371
Stewart, James 501
Stewart, Jason 949
Stewart, Jason Scott 1237
Stewart, Jim 1490
Stewart, Kirby 819
Stewart, Louis 327, 360, 1225, 1287
Stewart, Luke 1316
Stewart, Martha 1377
Stewart, Michael 530, 871
Stewart, Phil 1343
Stewart, Priscilla 1114
Stewart, Rex 100, 123, 228, 430, 431, 432, 638, 686, 705, 711, 853, 975, 1204, 1343
Stewart, Robert 951
Stewart, Sandy 242
Stewart, Slam 209, 257, 270, 528, 552, 575, 576, 614, 668, 1089, 1110, 1115, 1344, 1376, 1377, 1458, 1535, 1537
Stewart, Teddy 31, 32, 528, 552, 553, 554, 1345, 1467
Stewart, Tom 855
Stiberg, Sven 420
Stibon, Franck 519
Stief, Bo 245, 338, 381, 404, 465, 581, 835, 954, 980, 1084, 1239, 1375, 1479
Stiffe, Roy 1075
Stigers, Curtis 656, 1519
Stiles, Danny 461
Still, William Grant 685
Stillman, Loren 408, 1098, 1228, 1345
Stilo, Nicola 67, 69
Stilwell, Ray 542, 1280
Stines, Boone 247
Sting 351, 689, 1256
Stinson, Albert 633, 646, 740
Stinson, G. E. 110, 260
Stirling, Byron 689
Stitely, Jeff 1150
Stitt, Ingrid 520
Stitt, Sonny 31, 32, 33, 134, 155, 182, 239, 254, 344, 416, 491, 553, 653, 760, 786, 886, 1069, 1143, 1176, 1276, 1345
Stitzel, Mel 105, 573, 1075
St James, Al 589
St John, Art 1388
St John, Dell 947
St John, Jay 1389
Stobart, Kathy 918, 919, 1347
Stocker, Paul 116
Stockhausen, Markus 875, 1174, 1411, 1419
Stockholm Jazz Orchestra 1347
Stockli, Phil 1348
Stoddard, Dale 1388
Stoetter, Claus 920
Stoffner, Flo 588
Stokes, Irving 497, 503, 1470
Stokes, Sammy 370, 652, 1206
Stolarz, Jozef 835
Stolle, Ole 356, 1112, 1113
Stoller, Alvin 50, 51, 229, 329, 368, 397, 417, 442, 466, 482, 490, 525, 528, 576, 668, 716, 1093, 1151, 1160, 1162, 1316, 1378, 1478
Stone, Dave 85, 109, 1442
Stone, David 16, 27, 85, 301, 476, 647
Stone, Dorothy 1310
Stone, Fred 439
Stone, Gene 440
Stone, Mark 1229
Stone, Ron 1190
Stoneburn, Sid 42, 43, 396, 573, 1388
Stoor, Bosse 616
Storaas, Vigleik 1364
Storesund, Oyvind 559, 560
Storey, Tyshawn 751
Storløkken, Ståle 1350
Storne, Jean 1203
Storrs, Dave 631
Story, Nat 488, 489, 803, 1251, 1476
Story, Vernon 1344
Stotesbury, Bill 295
Stout, Chris 1497
Stout, David 566
Stout, Ron 247, 496, 720, 839, 1094
Stoute, Ed 1136
Stovall, Don 40, 789, 793, 1109, 1184
Stowe, Bill 1354
Strachota, Mark 461
Stracuzzi, Andrea 446
Strahl, Bob 848, 849, 1052
Straijer, Horacio 663
Strait, Todd 940
Strand, Joe 705
Strandberg, Bertil 5, 996, 1306, 1347, 1348

Strandberg, Bo 1087
Strandberg, Göran 1327, 1347, 1348, 1348
Strange, Pete 467, 596, 918, 919, 1422
Strangefruit, DJ Pål 1487
Strasberg, Bim 1078
Strasser, Joe 551, 689
Strassmayer, Karolina 1077
Stratakos, Ellis 357
Strater, Volker 1010
Stratton, Don 855, 1165
Strausser, Joe 28
Straw, Syd 1256
Strayhorn, Billy 43, 110, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 562, 699, 712, 1348, 1391, 1478
Strazzeri, Frank 73, 109, 469, 863, 889, 1082, 1083, 1142, 1146, 1508
Streatfield, Art 1476
Streenberg, Ole 503, 608
Street, Al 1139
Street, Ben 150, 224, 227, 244, 365, 375, 556, 661, 808, 961, 1019, 1146, 1193, 1238, 1255, 1340, 1498
Street, Karen 1487, 1490
Streiff, Co 1349
Strempel, Sebastian 174
Stretch, John 1201
Strickfaden, Charles 105, 106, 864, 1388, 1446
Strickland, Calvin 229
Strickland, Cliff 1388
Strickland, E. J. 282, 293, 355, 614, 695, 926, 1148, 1349, 1481
Strickland, Marcus 236, 400, 561, 603, 676, 1169, 1349, 1472, 1481
Strickland, Walter 597, 1355
Strid, Raymond 618, 620, 621, 729, 900, 1439
Striepens, Ansgar 174
Stringle, Julian Marc 467, 991
Strings, Trytten 170
String Trio Of New York 1349
Stripling, Byron 138, 170, 270, 626, 1350
Strobert, Andre 743, 973, 974
Strobert, Andrei 3
Strobert, Ricardo 221
Stroman, Clarence 962
Strønen, Thomas 72, 74, 1335, 1350
Strong, Danny 101, 102
Strong, Frank 1517
Strong, Jimmy 41
Strozier, Frank 66, 675, 798, 899, 936, 1130, 1350
Struble, Harry 1388
Struve, Kyle 1127
Stryker, Dave 645, 923, 966, 1268, 1307, 1351, 1461
Strzelecki, Henry 203
Stuart, Al 83
Stuart, Glenn 440, 441, 819
Stuart, Kenneth 704, 705
Stuart, Kirk 1444
Stuart, Moira 824
Stuart, Niels 647
Stuart, Rory 1144, 1518
Stubblefield, John 12, 349, 572, 654, 661, 672, 743, 767, 890, 973, 1005, 1006
Stubbs, Ken 488
Stuberville, Benny 32
Stuckey, Jack 109, 611, 626, 1140, 1226
Studd, Tony 48, 461, 462, 545, 641, 797, 1027, 1313
Studdert-Kennedy, Matthew 561
Studer, Fredy 391, 475, 832
Stuhlmaker, Mort 118, 119, 504, 576
Stuip, Tom 8
Stulce, Fred 396, 397, 504
Stultz, Gene 1282
Sturgis, Rodney 803
Sturgis, Ted 209, 228, 423, 424, 425, 714, 1176, 1198, 1443
Sturm, Hans 485
Sturr, Harold 864
Sturt, Dave 1416
Stuttgart Radio Symphony Orchestra 1477
Stutz-Boukoya, Marc 1043
Suarez Paz, Leonardo 1016
Sublett, Bubbles 297
Sublette, Ned 1518
Subway Trio, The 1454
Succi, Achile 535
Succi, Achille 447, 535, 1254
Suchanek, Bronislaw 1250, 1336
Suchman, Harry 1093
Suchoski, Bob 1210
Sudashan, S. 944
Sudduth, Rob 564
Suderman, Oliver 779
Sudhalter, Dick 1264, 1292, 1352
Sudler, Joe 1172, 1173
Sudler, Monnette 762
Suggs, Milton 1511
Suggs, Pete 686
Suggs, Tony 183
Sulieman, Idrees 32, 180, 200, 228, 243, 255, 383, 489, 583, 615, 669, 671, 689, 717, 772, 799, 803, 818, 897, 1020, 1130, 1178, 1219, 1454, 1460, 1477, 1536
Sulkin, Harry 83
Sullivan, Charles 499, 501, 963
Sullivan, Chris 612
Sullivan, Dave 680
Sullivan, Frank 154
Sullivan, Ira 222, 237, 376, 527, 573, 631, 743, 797, 827, 1064, 1228, 1352
Sullivan, Jeri 43
Sullivan, Jim 567
Sullivan, Joe 41, 100, 101, 102, 297, 573, 638, 667, 714, 864, 937, 1017, 1081, 1353, 1388, 1446
Sullivan, John 268, 676
Sullivan, Maxine 228, 981, 1281, 1353, 1521
Sullivan, Tim 697
Sulzmann, Stan 39, 40, 82, 256, 280, 549, 746, 963, 1051, 1085, 1300, 1354, 1363, 1386, 1417, 1494
Sumen, Jimi 1448
Sumer, Irfan 245
Summer, Mark 406
Summers, Bill 89, 154, 642, 643, 963, 1234, 1235
Summers, Bob 94, 236, 483, 720, 889, 1031
Sumney, Harold Jr 414
Sun, Selçuk 245
Sund, John 1084
Sundby, Terje 830
Sunde, Helge 1279
Sunde, Torbjørn 71
Sundermeyer, Bernie 461
Sundevall, Lennart 424
Sundevall, Leppe 386, 615, 616, 1030
Sundstrom, Bob 747, 1454
Sung, Helen 1374
Sunkel, Phil 461, 601, 1025, 1052
Sun Ra 75, 1355
Sunshine, Monty 77, 78, 293, 294, 295, 316, 1362
Suojärvi, Tauno 616
Suonsaari, Klaus 1224, 1225, 1362, 1432
Surin, Lionel 1324
Surman, John 4, 104, 140, 280, 281, 462, 549, 846, 879, 957, 976, 1105, 1161, 1174, 1276, 1325, 1337, 1363, 1417, 1451, 1488, 1509
Susemihl, Norbert 737
Sussman, Richard 168
Suttles, Jeffrey 871
Sutton, Ralph 102, 156, 157, 297, 298, 355, 356, 626, 708, 741, 987, 1113, 1365, 1500, 1531
Sutton, Roger 39, 225
Sutton, Teo 127
Sutton, Tierney 247, 1367
Suzin, Maciej 835
Suzuki, Akio 296
Suzuki, Yoshio 662
Svanoe, Anders 1012
Svantesson, Lars 1086
Svärd, Petter 664
Svare, Jørgen 356, 628, 1112, 1113
Svedberg, Magnus 1087, 1347, 1348
Sveidahl-Hansen, Henrik 809, 810
Svensson, Conny 897
Svensson, Esbjörn 1367, 1406
Svensson, Ewan 1368
Svensson, Gunnar 46, 386, 387, 615, 616
Svensson, Harald 805, 1369
Svensson, Mattias 913, 914, 1406
Svensson, Nils-Erik 1306
Svensson, Reinhold 1149
Svensson, Rolf 785
Svensson, Staffan 423, 805, 997
Sverrisson, Skuli 1019, 1288, 1330, 1331, 1544
Swain, Leonard 'Heavy' 155, 757, 1505
Swainson, Neil 360, 520, 811, 878, 987, 1168, 1239, 1287
Swallow, Steve 40, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 197, 203, 204, 205, 303, 440, 470, 475, 546, 558, 768, 775, 804, 839, 846, 851, 892, 938, 1048, 1096, 1174, 1182, 1228, 1249, 1273, 1274, 1275, 1291, 1302, 1369, 1394, 1432, 1523
Swana, John 152, 463, 468, 569, 603, 921, 966, 1140, 1175, 1275, 1370, 1480
Swanerud, Thore 562, 1030
Swansen, Chris 203, 942
Swanson, Anders 725, 841
Swanson, Chris 818
Swanston, Ed 43, 1170
Swanton, Lloyd 266
Swärd, Anders 426
Swartz, Harvie 1, 109, 406, 734, 804, 826, 903, 1325, 1395
Swayettes 1519
Swayzee, Edwin 218, 1044, 1475
Swedish Radio Orchestra 897
Sweet Inspirations 867
Swell, Steve 25, 84, 120, 169, 376, 478, 593, 747, 790, 808, 941, 1033, 1128, 1129, 1223, 1298, 1371, 1384, 1430, 1441
Swenson, Sture 817
Swetja 664
Swift, Bob 692, 1188, 1283, 1284
Swindell, Bill 999
Swinfield, Ray 747
Swingle Singers, The 991
Swisshelm, Bob 345
Swisshelm, Robert 287
Switzer, Don 694, 1211
Swope, Bob 1188
Swope, Earl 108, 239, 543, 692, 1119, 1160, 1188, 1210

Swope, Rob 1210
Swope, Terry 577
SWR Big Band 968
Sydor, Bob 280, 1509
Sylla, Mola 1201
Sylvén, Bo 799
Sylvester, Art 574
Sylvester, Charles 729
Sylvester, Johnny 1101
Sylvester, Jorge 1302
Sylvestre, Frédéric 451
Sy Oliver Orchestra 43, 299, 489
Syran, George 1527
Szabados, György 165
Szabo, Frank 93, 94, 108, 656, 1517
Szabo, Gabor 369, 633
Szandai, Mátyás 934
Szukalski, Tomasz 1336, 1447
Szymanski, Walt 539

T

T., Booker 242
Tabackin, Lew 16, 213, 733, 775, 1496, 1527, 1541
Tabbal, Tani 21, 232, 1011, 1012, 1372
Tabnik, Richard 321, 322
Taborn, Craig 38, 121, 127, 232, 279, 420, 605, 742, 931, 932, 1012, 1098, 1175, 1176, 1189, 1229, 1311, 1372
Tab Smith Orchestra 1467
Tachibana, Yasuhiko 334
Tack, Ernie 85, 236, 662, 765, 1517
Tackus, Bill 469
Tacuma, Jamaaladeen 276, 391
Tadić, Miroslav 1311
Tady, Joanne 1374
Tafjord, Hild Sofie 1279
Taft, Jim 42
Taft, Slim 395
Tagford, Jimmy 320
Tagg, Nick 489, 1388
Tainaka, Fukushi 1315
Tait, George 826, 1020
Takahashi, Shinnosuke 1185
Takahashi, Yuji 874
Takamaki, Jone 843
Takao, Hideki 1172
Takas, Bill 311, 394, 1192, 1322
Takase, Aki 119, 1266, 1372
Takeishi, Satoko 1241
Takeishi, Satoshi 50, 81, 165, 186, 426, 508, 955, 1541, 1545
Takeishi, Stomu 508, 516, 990, 1241, 1401, 1452, 1541, 1545
Takuja 1128
Takvorian, Tak 388
Talbert, Elmer 882
Talbot, Jamie 81, 1412, 1414
Tall, Sam 1047
Talley, Leonard 687
Talmor, Ohad 839, 1370
Tamburr, Christian 1435
Tamisier, Geoffrey 1098
Tammen, Hans 1223
Tamper, Bill 272
Tamura, Natsuki 516
Tana, Akira 202, 221, 471, 498, 679, 954, 1269, 1304
Tang, Achim 800
Tangerding, Götz 1250
Tanggaard, Aage 49, 69, 326, 387, 515, 647, 719, 954, 1130, 1191, 1228, 1237, 1396, 1502
Taninaka, Hideji 221
Tankio Band 473
Tanksley, Francesca 650
Tanksley, Jesse 38
Tannenbaum, Wolfie 780
Tanner, Elmo 1085
Tanno, Vinnie 752, 817
Tans, Jan Cees 116
Tanza, Rudy 1283, 1284
Tapestry Strings 1285
Tapio, Jorma 843, 1448
Tapscott, Horace 128, 1373
Tarasov, Vladimir 165, 522
Tardy, Gregory 52, 658, 703, 897, 916, 1073, 1176, 1185, 1370, 1374, 1545
Tariska, Rado 921
Tarrant, Jesse 553
Tartell, Joey 483
Tarto, Joe 105, 398, 542, 864, 1017, 1066, 1081, 1446
Tassinari, Gastone 533
Tate, Buddy 91, 155, 195, 232, 257, 258, 338, 372, 417, 424, 571, 578, 639, 669, 707, 779, 981, 987, 1162, 1248, 1354, 1375, 1483, 1535
Tate, Erskine 820, 1114
Tate, Frank 16, 157, 497, 748, 780, 823, 1292, 1304, 1376, 1442, 1500
Tate, Grady 48, 79, 170, 183, 194, 201, 230, 303, 317, 352, 354, 361, 389, 414, 492, 546, 639, 655, 713, 739, 755, 791, 828, 831, 877, 971, 1027, 1028, 1054, 1057, 1071, 1138, 1149, 1165, 1181, 1248, 1277, 1287, 1304, 1313, 1347, 1376, 1405, 1424, 1444, 1445, 1468
Tate, James 379, 820, 1114, 1200
Tate, Roy 1454
Tatsuhara, Ichiro 1416
Tatsuki, Masuko 1533
Tatsuya, Yoshida 59, 1545
Tatum, Art 43, 125, 238, 424, 667, 668, 714, 1376
Taussig, Lynn 1259
Tavaglione, Steve 825
Tavares, Paulo André 426
Tavolazzi, Ares 1194
Taylor, Al 228, 1353
Taylor, Alfred 1109, 1311
Taylor, André 1202
Taylor, Art 32, 48, 56, 175, 200, 212, 240, 254, 257, 262, 284, 285, 286, 338, 341, 342, 354, 383, 393, 447, 469, 495, 497, 526, 527, 540, 568, 581, 607, 609, 611, 613, 690, 717, 723, 755, 786, 802, 827, 933, 973, 978, 979, 1001, 1021, 1022, 1038, 1070, 1098, 1117, 1120, 1136, 1160, 1176, 1177, 1178, 1184, 1232, 1242, 1290, 1346, 1375, 1378, 1392, 1394, 1417, 1418, 1454, 1460, 1522, 1531
Taylor, Bea 1510
Taylor, Billy 24, 63, 125, 209, 257, 270, 337, 341, 424, 430, 489, 562, 614, 628, 638, 648, 667, 668, 670, 698, 699, 711, 712, 715, 716, 783, 793, 912, 975, 982, 1044, 1160, 1184, 1198, 1202, 1283, 1316, 1326, 1343, 1344, 1353, 1376, 1378, 1397, 1443, 1457, 1521
Taylor, Billy Sr 196
Taylor Sr, Billy 430
Taylor, Bucky 655
Taylor, Cecil 775, 1221, 1379, 1381, 1511
Taylor, Chad 2, 37
Taylor, Chip 1447
Taylor, Chris 422, 652
Taylor, Darren 780, 1167
Taylor, David 138, 168, 352, 421, 439, 477, 483, 549, 593, 640, 689, 909, 1005, 1006, 1008, 1067, 1223, 1250, 1320, 1383, 1441
Taylor, David Earl 80
Taylor, Dick 848, 849, 1052
Taylor, Dicky 915
Taylor, Dotti Anita 409
Taylor, Dr Billy 713
Taylor, Dylan 763
Taylor, Eddie 126, 187, 253, 475, 900, 918, 1422
Taylor, Eva 1504, 1505
Taylor, Freddy 1202
Taylor, Gene 175, 670, 777, 962, 1009, 1138, 1298, 1299
Taylor, Happy Jack 1084
Taylor, Herb 1081
Taylor, Hosea 732
Taylor, Ian 1207
Taylor, James 168, 1047, 1385
Taylor, Jasper 379, 820, 1044, 1201
Taylor, John 34, 39, 104, 280, 448, 478, 508, 523, 549, 625, 729, 826, 944, 1193, 1225, 1306, 1318, 1363, 1364, 1384, 1417, 1451, 1494, 1524
Taylor, Johnny 653
Taylor, Josea 867
Taylor, Larry 83
Taylor, Lewis 1535
Taylor, Louis 91, 704, 705, 1173, 1322, 1517
Taylor, Malcolm 439
Taylor, Mark 7, 19, 27, 50, 87, 226, 260, 270, 273, 368, 426, 541, 775, 912, 1112, 1196, 1225, 1298
Taylor, Martin 76, 592, 593, 747, 1384
Taylor, Mike 1171, 1173, 1386
Taylor, Myra 880
Taylor, Noel 864
Taylor, Pearl 970
Taylor, Penelope 6
Taylor, Raymond 987
Taylor, Richard 301, 923
Taylor, Rick 74, 956
Taylor, Rudy 44, 490, 705
Taylor, Sam 'The Man' 219, 999, 1176, 1281, 1505
Taylor, Stan 1075
Taylor, Tom 31
Taylor, Tommy 263, 576
Taylor, Yack 1184, 1406
Tbilisi Symphony Orchestra 524
Tchamitchian, Claude 772, 1472
Tchicai, John 291, 391, 392, 412, 538, 540, 593, 863, 1050, 1131, 1246, 1288, 1289, 1381, 1386
Teagarden, Charlie 395, 573, 574, 807, 1334, 1388, 1446, 1456
Teagarden, Cubby 1388
Teagarden, Jack 41, 43, 44, 63, 196, 297, 398, 424, 504, 573, 574, 575, 588, 714, 807, 937, 1081, 1110, 1387, 1446, 1456, 1457
Teagarden, Norma 297, 1388, 1389
Teague, Thurman 150, 763, 764
Tear, Julian 991
Teboe, Dana 1261
Techner, Joe 1052
Ted Easton Jazz Band 1451
Tedesco, Tommy 1540
Tedesco, Tony 1168, 1169
Tee, Richard 136, 204, 827, 828, 871, 1255, 1256, 1468
Teele, Phil 566
Teepe, Joris 20
Tei, Adrian 1092
Teitelbaum, Richard 30, 160, 162, 296, 874, 885
Teixeira, Cidinho 1057
Tejada, Fabian 663
Telesmanick, Rachel 1088
Telfer, John 74
Tellemar, Hasse 420
Temiz, Okay 245, 246, 485

Temperley, Joe 258, 586, 663, 689, 831, 896, 918, 928, 929, 1347, 1389, 1469
Temple, Brannen 1447
Temple, George 1506
Tempo, Nino 482
Tempo Twisters, The 622
Tenda, Toru 877
Terenzi, Danilo 1489
Termos, Paul 744
Terran, Tony 496
Terrasson, Jacky 128, 371, 619, 658, 1389
Terrell, Pha 826
Terrill, Harry 848, 849, 1052, 1117
Terrill III, Will 474
Terroade, Kenneth 1062, 1297
Terry, Buddy 919
Terry, Clark 32, 35, 57, 84, 93, 109, 113, 185, 203, 211, 327, 338, 383, 386, 390, 418, 433, 434, 435, 438, 465, 490, 492, 493, 545, 554, 555, 570, 571, 595, 607, 634, 639, 678, 706, 732, 755, 774, 777, 783, 797, 798, 867, 894, 939, 982, 988, 1002, 1003, 1009, 1019, 1021, 1023, 1027, 1052, 1054, 1056, 1136, 1151, 1153, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1160, 1162, 1165, 1168, 1179, 1233, 1248, 1277, 1278, 1375, 1380, 1390, 1396, 1467, 1501, 1502, 1508, 1509, 1517
Terry, Edlin 639
Terry, Howard 820, 1095, 1540
Terry, Lisa 1260
Terry, Pete 50
Terry, Sue 801
Terry, Yosvany 267, 268, 880, 916, 1245
Tervalon, Clement 77, 465
Tervalon, Ralph 386, 753
Terzano, Lucio 940
Terzic, Brandon 1018
Terzic, Dejan 587, 1525, 1526
Teschemacher, Frank 297, 398, 888, 937, 1017
Tesinsky, Frank 694
Tesone, Ace 1409, 1445, 1446
TEST 1393
Testa, Carl 166
Texidor, Joe 'Habao' 828, 829
Texier, Henri 470, 472, 734, 735, 836, 1393, 1527
Texier, Sébastien 1394
Thaae, Frederik 1413
Thacker, Clive 225, 549
Thaler, Manny 1283
Thall, Sid 102, 1328
Thamm, Duane 362, 680
Thanh, Huong 873
Thanning, Bjarne 417, 800
Tharpe, Sister Rosetta 77, 999
Thathaal, Deepika 524
Thayer, Jules 1363
Theard, Sam 1114
Theerakulstit, Shyaporn 709
The Holidays 1537
Thein, Ko 60
Theissing, Tscho 1110
Thelin, Eje 281, 616, 834, 897
Thelin, Jan 1087
Themen, Art 82, 280, 281, 320, 531, 532, 627, 1216, 1414, 1415, 1482, 1524
The Apollo Stompers 208
The Blentones 1445
The Mills Brothers 1197
The Modern Sounds 571
The Palmer Brothers 428, 704, 853, 1251
The Scottish Ensemble 1436
The Swingle Singers 991
The Tune Twisters 180
Theo Bleckmann 719
Thérain, Alexis 1098
Therkeld, Jerry 413, 1210
Theselius, Gösta 386, 615, 1030, 1118, 1149
Theselius, Hasse 427
Theus, Fats 971
Theus, Sonship 1373
Theus II, Woodrow 1285
Thewis, Warren 461
Thiam, Mor 1530
Thiam, Yamar 1433
Thieke, Michael 1429
Thielemans, Marcel 228, 667
Thielemans, Maurice 667
Thielemans, Toots 381, 458, 519, 555, 726, 727, 774, 781, 797, 961, 965, 1133, 1154, 1155, 1262, 1286, 1394, 1406, 1542
Thigpen, Ben 826, 1510
Thigpen, Ed 32, 49, 108, 119, 284, 339, 360, 390, 418, 471, 491, 583, 607, 639, 708, 736, 796, 800, 802, 896, 912, 921, 940, 1084, 1103, 1130, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1156, 1188, 1303, 1346, 1379, 1395, 1454, 1467, 1471, 1478, 1479, 1499, 1502, 1522
Thilo, Jesper 356, 495, 605, 647, 799, 1396, 1479, 1502
Thirkeld, Jerry 1210
Thoma, Ernst 1429
Thomas, Alan 187, 869
Thomas, Arnold 803
Thomas, Big Charlie 1504
Thomas, Bill 488, 1476
Thomas, Bob 76, 1113, 1436
Thomas, Bobby 368, 470, 546, 871, 1027, 1029
Thomas, Bobby Jr 18, 1236
Thomas, Butch 1133
Thomas, Charlie 1375
Thomas, Cheyney 313
Thomas, Christopher 335, 1198, 1423
Thomas, Cicero 263, 1200
Thomas, Clarence 600
Thomas, Craig 333
Thomas, Earl 655
Thomas, Eddie 1359
Thomas, Eric 502
Thomas, Frank 487
Thomas, Gary 149, 216, 226, 282, 391, 657, 690, 785, 977, 1105, 1169, 1396
Thomas, Gene 705
Thomas, George 428, 975
Thomas, Herb 228, 1353
Thomas, Hociel 223
Thomas, Ian 1051, 1067, 1112, 1412
Thomas, Jason 649
Thomas, Jay 1031, 1281, 1507
Thomas, Jerry 1535
Thomas, Jim 424
Thomas, Joe 40, 125, 184, 209, 228, 270, 423, 424, 686, 712, 714, 715, 793, 912, 913, 947, 1044, 1376, 1458, 1521
Thomas, Joe 'Brother Cornbread' 729
Thomas, John 41, 108, 379, 380, 688, 753, 1200
Thomas, Kid 884
Thomas, Leon 183, 829, 1258, 1259, 1511
Thomas, Leron 1471
Thomas, Luther 74
Thomas, Mason 'Country' 450
Thomas, Maurice 497
Thomas, Melissa 890
Thomas, Michael Tilson 923
Thomas, Oluyemi 1062, 1298, 1310
Thomas, Pat 151, 296, 315, 832, 915, 1109
Thomas, Phil 1534
Thomas, Philip 739
Thomas, Philippe 1545
Thomas, Reggie 778
Thomas, René 546, 772, 907, 1179, 1397
Thomas, Rob 511, 618, 660, 923, 1350
Thomas, Robert Jr 1472
Thomas Jr, Robert 17, 18
Thomas, Sybil 713
Thomas, Vaneese 460, 1275
Thomas, Walter 'Foots' 218, 219, 270, 668, 1044, 1114, 1477
Thomas, Wardell 313
Thomas, William 631
Thomas, Worthia 76
Thompson, Ahmir 1199
Thompson, Barbara 39, 549, 1207, 1214, 1386, 1397, 1487
Thompson, Bill 705
Thompson, Billy 1397, 1487
Thompson, Bruce 983
Thompson, Butch 198, 244, 295, 314, 475, 1070, 1308
Thompson, Chester 1475
Thompson, Chuck 319, 528, 580, 595, 665, 820, 1000
Thompson, Danny Ray 219, 674, 981, 1355, 1358, 1359, 1360
Thompson, Don 124, 369, 510, 520, 603, 604, 646, 967, 987, 1084, 1205, 1239, 1287, 1375, 1409
Thompson, Earl 1510
Thompson, Ed 1086
Thompson, Eddie 1225, 1512
Thompson, Emery 413
Thompson, Ernest 43
Thompson, Evelyn 686
Thompson, Frank 1484
Thompson, Fred 108
Thompson, George 101, 148
Thompson, Jack 622
Thompson, Jim 299
Thompson, Kim 87, 1340
Thompson, Leo 1337
Thompson, Leslie 42, 228
Thompson, Lloyd 1199
Thompson, Lucky 43, 44, 91, 199, 257, 259, 340, 341, 552, 553, 587, 661, 754, 760, 795, 817, 945, 1000, 1020, 1056, 1109, 1110, 1114, 1115, 1120, 1160, 1169, 1189, 1397, 1466
Thompson, Malachi 1399
Thompson, Mark 247
Thompson, Marshall 32, 33, 544, 597, 655, 701, 945, 1031, 1295
Thompson, Mayo 224
Thompson, Michael 1129
Thompson, Michael T. A. 473, 870
Thompson, Mike 572
Thompson, Rich 1147
Thompson, Shirley 1189
Thompson, Sir Charles 155, 210, 258, 372, 489, 601, 622, 638, 668, 758, 759, 760, 999, 1074, 1119, 1186, 1248, 1400, 1508
Thompson, Sonny 1175
Thompson, Tommy 271
Thompson, Walter 686
Thompson Jr, Robert 18
Thoms, Renato 661, 830, 991, 1200
Thomson, Earl 826
Thomson, Michael T. A. 572
Thomson, Nichol 371, 956, 1355, 1389, 1525
Thönes, Jo 690, 1109
Thorin, Eric 104
Thornburg, Lee 85
Thornhill, Claude 504, 574, 714, 779, 1353, 1400
Thornton, Argonne 580, 1477, 1535, 1536
Thornton, Clarence 987
Thornton, Clifford 199, 1290, 1401

Thornton, Eddie 776
Thornton, Norman 725
Thornton, Steve 351, 1159, 1427
Thorpe, Simon 82, 99, 814, 1329, 1407, 1482
Thouin, Daniel 132
Thoumire, Simon 1188
Thoumy, Willard 238
Thow, George 395, 574, 1282, 1283
Thrasher Sisters 1516
Threadgill, Henry 6, 13, 75, 464, 1059, 1401
Three, The 1402
Three Angels, The 552
Three Esquires, The 396
Three Little Maids 1198
Three Riffs, The 1170
Three Sounds, The 12, 1402
Three Varieties, The 705
Thuillier, François 223, 1324
Thunen, Tommy 1081
Thuresson, Svante 921
Thys, Nicolas 227, 1525
Tiago, João 1263
Tiana, Mayo 108
Tibbs, Leroy 155, 410, 975, 1098
Tiberi, Frank 1, 694
Tidd, Anthony 277
Tied and Tickled Trio 60
Tikhomirov, Igor 853
Tilbury, John 29, 30, 31, 1125
Tilché, Jean-Jacques 209, 553, 562, 1344
Tilitz, Jerry 756
Tilles, Nurit 695
Tillotson, Brooks 483
Tilton, J. Thomas 151
Tilton, Liz 388
Tilton, Martha 574, 575, 578, 1282, 1537
Timbrell, Tiny 764
Timbuktu 807
Timmons, Bobby 9, 10, 12, 64, 65, 133, 201, 257, 262, 392, 393, 470, 482, 568, 582, 798, 917, 1026, 1039, 1103, 1346, 1402
Timonen, Markko 1433
Tindall, Blair 327, 465
Tiné, Ciccio 927
Tiner, Kris 421
Tines, Oliver 42
Tinney, Pee Wee 571, 1141, 1505
Tintera, Glenn 377
Tintweiss, Allen 602
Tintweiss, Steve 54, 1531
Tio, Lorenzo Jr 1167
Tip, Q 649
Tippett, Keith 28, 203, 296, 358, 359, 362, 402, 409, 466, 927, 981, 997, 998, 1016, 1017, 1051, 1090, 1107, 1215, 1403, 1414
Tippetts, Julie 136, 997, 1051, 1107, 1333, 1403, 1404
Tirabasso, John 954
Tircuit, William 1072
Tisone, Ace 182
Tissendier, Claude 394
Titov, Alexander 853
Tittarelli, Daniele 536
Tizol, Juan 108, 272, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 436, 699, 711, 712, 764, 765, 1056
Tizzi, Tony 1139
Tjader, Cal 188, 987, 1000, 1094, 1143, 1261, 1286, 1404
Toan, Danny 1535
Tobin, Christine 1413
Tobin, Louise 575, 734, 779
Toccane, Bruno 386
Todd, Clarence 56, 1504, 1505
Todd, Garry 1251
Todd, Gary 38
Todd, Oliver 987
Todd, Phil 225, 1412, 1414
Todd, Rick 481
Todd, Tommy 577, 1283
Tofani, Dave 549, 1256
Toffel, Billy 667
Togashi, Masahiko 857
Togava, Paul 299
Togeby, Lars 800
Toigo, Pete 415
Tokunaga, Kiyoshi 558
Tokyo Strings 172
Tolbert, Skeets 1406
Toledo, Maria 545
Toledo, Rene Luis 1261
Tolentino, Ife 869
Tolentino, Julius 1200
Tollin, Ellis 182, 1445
Tollington, David 480
Tolliver, Charles 88, 450, 672, 702, 703, 980, 1220, 1299, 1406, 1426
Tolliver, Chet 1406
Tolliver, James 100, 102
Tolonen, Jukka 834
Tolstoy, Viktoria 1406
Tolvan Big Band 1407
Tomasic, Phil 648
Tomatito 220
Tomita, Toyoji 421
Tomkins, Trevor 39, 225, 267, 407, 531, 532, 653, 726, 868, 1206, 1216, 1509
Tomlin, Dave 1386
Tomlin, William 'Sleepy' 912
Tomlinson, Alan 177, 906, 1407
Tomlinson, Jim 532, 814, 919, 1407
Tommaso, Bruno 534, 750, 1419
Tommaso, Enrico 1080
Tommaso, Giovanni 1193, 1194, 1433
Tommy Rey Caribe Street Band 813
Tompkins, Eddie 714, 912
Tompkins, Eustis 1113
Tompkins, Herb 691, 692
Tompkins, Pam 441
Tompkins, Ross 108, 123, 236, 301, 1304
Tompkins, Trevor 531
Tompkins, Willie 913
Tompros, Angelo 1119, 1188
Tonaghi, Carlo 855
Tonani, Franco 533, 534
Toney, Kevin 213
Toni, Italo 855
Tonolo, Pietro 929, 941, 1049
Tononi, Tiziano 130, 548, 750
Tontoh, Frank 1167
Tookes, Darryl 1052
Tooley, Ron 7, 483, 1133, 1250
Toomey, John 945
Toop, David 722
Toots Camarata Orchestra 1276
Topping, Steve 1341
Torano, Santiago 1535
Torchinski, Yves 1434
Torell, Mattias 807
Torff, Brian 309, 592, 981, 1409, 1511
Torin, Symphony Sid 457, 1120
Toriyama, Take 1107
Tormé, Mel 1054, 1283, 1284, 1287, 1377, 1408, 1446
Torn, David 524, 810
Törner, Gösta 420
Törnroos, Tomas 621
Toro, Efrain 1409
Torrance, Albert 570
Torrant, Shay 1389
Torrente, Erik 73
Torres, Al 1404
Torres, Ed 1058
Torres, Gene 862
Torres, Hilario Duran 1261
Torres, Juan Pablo 1095
Torres, Richard 818, 819
Torres, Samuel 955, 1472
Tortiller, Franck 563, 1449
Tortomas, Tony 1101
Torvund, Oyvind 559
Toscano, Nello 927, 1433
Toscarelli, Mario 1334
Tosti, Don 84
Totah, Knobby 469, 933, 1303
Totah, Nabil 622, 640, 772, 849
Total Praise Gospel Choir 660
Toth, Jerry 1084
To-Tiko 1262
Touff, Cy 511, 693, 752, 1165, 1409
Tough, Dave 63, 118, 249, 297, 396, 397, 504, 574, 575, 576, 692, 752, 763, 780, 1283, 1344, 1388, 1445
Toussaint, Jean 134, 894, 1050
Towndrow, Paul 1410
Towner, Ralph 3, 34, 150, 204, 308, 523, 1098, 1099, 1137, 1174, 1410, 1474, 1494
Townes, Wilson 1044
Towns, Colin 1412
Townsend, Al 424
Townsend, Bross 1318
Townsend, Cliff 889, 1190
Townsend, Kubryk 1211
Townsend, Larry 1345
Townsend, Rob 466, 1325
Townsley, Nathaniel 1169, 1540
Toxvaerd, Laura 35, 1413
Toyama, Keiko 1224
Toyama, Yoshio 1224
Toyozumi, Yoshisaburo 842
Toyuzumi, Sabu 445
Tracanna, Tino 467, 468, 485, 508, 535, 1387
Tracey, Clark 81, 82, 312, 691, 879, 956, 1067, 1077, 1306, 1412, 1413, 1414, 1415, 1435, 1482, 1500, 1524
Tracey, Stan 39, 81, 125, 210, 321, 370, 407, 546, 568, 570, 607, 691, 811, 828, 1017, 1073, 1276, 1306, 1403, 1413, 1524
Tracy, Kirk 888, 1399
Traeger, Charles 102
Trafficante, Mike 106, 864
Tragg, Nick 44
Trail, Mark 855
Trainer, Fred 228, 229, 1516
Trainor, Jack 736
Trammel, Leo 1353, 1516
Tramontana, Sebi 589, 750, 874, 875, 1018
Tranberg, Kasper 35, 121, 392, 1175
Tranchini, Salvatore 117
Trappier, Arthur 628, 1113, 1458
Traugott, Erich 1084
Traversa, Leo 214, 1055
Travis, Charles 395
Travis, Mike 912
Travis, Nick 15, 111, 173, 231, 299, 384, 554, 577, 601, 720, 752, 1023, 1052, 1054, 1056, 1095, 1302, 1303
Travis, Theo 680, 1416
Traxler, Gene 396, 397, 504, 947
Traxler, Ron 148, 1162
Trayle, Mark 567, 1310
Traylor, Rudy 705
Treadwell, George 783, 793, 1176, 1443, 1505

Treagar, Charlie 450
Treese, Jack 855
Trench, Fiachra 1489
Trenet, Charles 1203
Trenier, Claude 125, 913, 1000
Trenner, Don 50, 84, 466, 544, 1000, 1139, 1478
Tressler, Randolph 965
Trevor, Pete 295
Tricarico, Bob 201, 345, 461, 462
Trice, Amos 1526
Trice, Clarence 826
Trick, Seymour 502
Trifan, Danny 308
Trigg, Dave 247
Triglia, Bill 413, 514, 1000, 1001
Trillo, Andrea 1211
Trilogue 1134
Trimble, Jim 85, 1210
Trimble, Kenny 388
Trio, The 1417
Trio Beyond 1417
Triscari, Joe 576, 848, 1092, 1540
Triscari, Mike 848, 1052
Triscari, Ray 549, 550, 736, 849, 1052, 1093, 1230, 1517, 1540
Tristano, Carol 321, 1417
Tristano, Lennie 413, 552, 835, 1118, 1417
Tristao, Amaury 234
Trock, Bob 64
Troiani, Teresa 1415
Trombetta, Umberto 1194
Trombetta, Vince 85
Trombetta, Vince Jr 85
Trone, Bill 1081
Tronzo, David 129, 590, 790, 1241, 1256
Tropea, John 264
Trotignon, Baptiste 943, 1418
Trotman, Lloyd 433, 712, 1176, 1502
Trott, Jack 236
Trotter, John Scott 43, 490
Trotter, Terry 195, 251
Trottier, Nappy 125, 711, 1079
Trottman, Gerald 923
Trottman, Lloyd 1348
Troup, George 622, 1433
Troupe, Quincy 502, 885
Troutman, Jim 764
Trovesi, Gianluigi 508, 535, 750, 940, 1193, 1404, 1419, 1419
Trowers, Robert 529, 539, 968
Trucker, Sid 42
Trueheart, John 42, 329, 488, 489, 490, 714, 803, 1476, 1520
Truffaz, Erik 1420
Truitt, Sonny 341, 943, 1165, 1278
Trujillo, Bill 817
Trumbauer, Frankie 62, 105, 106, 864, 1081, 1388, 1420
Trunk, Peter 587, 1398
Trussardi, Luigi 358, 587
Tryon, James 867
Trytten, Lorre 170
Tsabropoulos, Vassilis 34
Tsahar, Assif 20, 186, 401, 742, 1128, 1189, 1421
Tsahourides, Matthaios 50
Tschentscher, Erik 800
Tsiboe, Nana 1473
Tsiganov, Alexei 505, 1342
Tsiganov, Misha 240
Tsilis, Gust William 147, 1222
Tsuchitori, Toshio 595
Tsujikawa, Tadao 1525
Tucci, Lorenzo 559
Tucci, Ray 1388
Tucker, Ben 26, 55, 57, 389, 394, 419, 462, 581, 598, 647, 759, 797, 867, 933, 953, 957, 1054, 1056, 1141, 1142, 1280, 1531
Tucker, Bobby 319, 416, 571, 595, 715, 716, 1501
Tucker, Dion 1200
Tucker, George 201, 208, 262, 324, 372, 373, 382, 449, 580, 596, 706, 757, 792, 793, 800, 978, 985, 1070, 1195, 1211, 1277, 1303, 1398, 1424, 1526, 1538
Tucker, Handel 18
Tucker, Henry 1535
Tucker, Lee 1137
Tucker, Mickey 300, 409, 471, 501, 649, 672, 828, 1422
Tucker, Ronald 978
Tuckwell, Barry 1287
Tull, David 198
Tull, Olle 1407
Tulsi 283
Tunçboyaciyan, Arto 114, 147, 240, 452, 789, 825, 1099, 1340, 1343, 1539, 1540
Tunia, Ray 490, 774, 999
Tuomarila, Alexi 1422
Tupper, George 461
Turan, Tim 663
Turbinton, Earl 1539
Turcotte, Kevin 967
Turetzky, Bertram 515, 1161, 1310
Turica, Zanago 1254
Turk, Rob 765
Turk, Tommy 716, 774, 1117, 1162
Turkman, Erik 1189
Turkoz, Saadet 1493
Turner, Benjamin 148
Turner, Bob 1333
Turner, Brad 753, 916
Turner, Bruce 70, 187, 248, 294, 355, 466, 652, 918, 991, 1190, 1315, 1422, 1422
Turner, Buford 83
Turner, Charles 1457, 1458
Turner, Chris 1333
Turner, Danny 93, 94, 492, 752, 755, 957, 971
Turner, Dave 1512
Turner, Earl 1031
Turner, Henry 99, 101, 724, 725, 803, 1353
Turner, Jack 1089
Turner, Jackie 475
Turner, Jean 818
Turner, Jimmy 414
Turner, Joe 93, 94, 228, 555, 667, 789, 1202, 1319, 1353, 1376, 1423
Turner, John 422
Turner, Kevin 946
Turner, Loyd 864
Turner, Mark 37, 127, 131, 244, 282, 561, 585, 661, 839, 1238, 1255, 1285, 1423, 1498, 1545
Turner, Matt 227, 485
Turner, Milt 316, 418, 419, 584, 1072, 1074, 1450, 1526
Turner, Roger 61, 832, 1007, 1008, 1251, 1407
Turner Jr, Russell 1210
Turner, Tiny 644
Turner, Toby 704
Turney, Norris 250, 416, 425, 438, 439, 503
Turnham, Floyd 413, 1353, 1516
Turnham, Gerry 295
Turnock, Brian 269, 645, 958, 1070, 1217, 1314
Turre, Peter 1424
Turre, Steve 18, 153, 454, 499, 572, 610, 640, 657, 658, 750, 914, 965, 1006, 1035, 1074, 1247, 1285, 1286, 1343, 1424, 1427, 1462, 1463
Turrentine, Stanley 184, 201, 641, 649, 656, 732, 762, 802, 843, 894, 1138, 1219, 1277, 1299, 1312, 1313, 1424
Turrentine, Tommy 240, 254, 389, 449, 894, 979, 1219, 1289
Tusa, Frank 139
Tusques, François 1401
Tutunjian, Jim 16, 1437
Twang, Blak 1167
Twardzik, Dick 65, 239, 413, 616, 943, 1425
Twins Seven Seven 756
Two Fishmongers, The 99
Ty 1010
Tyas, Ben 453
Tyle, Chris 369, 401, 537, 551, 681, 747, 1300, 1308
Tyler, Alvin 'Red' 719
Tyler, Barry 1080
Tyler, Charles 53, 74, 763, 1425
Tyler, Kenneth 855, 856
Tyler, Toby 691, 692, 847
Tyner, McCoy 113, 134, 167, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 384, 389, 592, 599, 687, 731, 732, 740, 792, 1013, 1037, 1039, 1184, 1235, 1242, 1295, 1296, 1424, 1425
Tynes, Margaret 434
Tyrala, Jarosław 1544
Tyre, Henry 42
Tyree, Glenn 1375
Tyree, Jerry 482
Tyrrell, Christine 961
Tyson, June 1358, 1359, 1360, 1361
Tyus, Wesley 973
Tzoi, Viktor 853
Tzur, Tomer 267

U

Uba, Mchaka 1309
Udden, Jeremy 423, 775
Ueda, Noriko 1077
Uehara, Hiromi 1428
Uehlinger, Kevin 163, 164
Ughi, Federico 231, 1429
Ugochi 1009
Uhlíř, František 921
Ulander, Lars-Göran 1007, 1458
Ulano, Sam 1114
Ulher, Birgit 1429
Uling, Jan 1250
Ulivelli, Ettore 533
Ullberg, Anders 1237
Ullberger, Jacob 1150
Ullmann, Gebhard 253, 298, 498, 1429
Ulmer, James 'Blood' 115, 147, 233, 688, 1134, 1430
Ulrich, Dieter 588, 1498
Ulrich, John 622
Ulrich, Tomas 25, 128, 210, 249, 412, 478, 1067, 1088, 1145, 1319, 1321, 1371, 1384, 1431, 1496
Ulrichsberg Tri-Centric Ensemble 166
Ulrik, Hans 921, 964, 1086, 1431
Ulveseth, Sigurd 742
Ulyate, Bill 525
Ulyate, Lloyd 525
Umansky, Mo 187
Umezu, Kazutoki 334
UMO Jazz Orchestra 1432
Underwood, Ian 80
Underwood, Jerry 137, 359
Underwood, Keith 168
Underwood, Mark 566
Underwood, Ruth 264
Ungar, Jay 415
Ungureanu, Marius 475

University Of Illinois Creative Music Orchestra 162
University Six, The 1433
Unruh, Andrew 224
Unternährer, Marc 604
Unterseher, Neil 915
Uotila, Jukkis 68, 117, 725, 778, 1087, 1191, 1227, 1347, 1348
Upchurch, Phil 113, 363, 546, 914, 987, 1256, 1313
Upchurch, Ralph 1468
Uptown String Quartet 1221
Urbani, Massimo 1163, 1433
Urbani, Maurizio 1433
Urbaniak, Michal 140, 308, 351, 462, 834, 835
Urcola, Diego 267, 268, 406, 897
Urmson, Bill 1250
Urso, Phil 64, 65, 66, 413, 514, 693, 1000, 1052, 1160
Urtreger, René 254, 342, 497, 587, 735, 772, 886, 1397, 1434, 1537
Urtubei, Sergio 663
Usden, Dave 652, 672
Usera, Ramon 99
Usselton, Billy 1434
Utal, Matt 1409
Uter, Tony 776
Uttal, Jai 38
Uusitalo, Jeff 819
Uuskyla, Peeter 1086, 1381

V

Vaccaro, Frank 239
Vaché, Allan 626, 1058, 1350, 1434, 1435
Vaché, Vanessa 1434
Vaché, Warren 70, 157, 196, 225, 415, 578, 707, 879, 1055, 1077, 1168, 1188, 1292, 1435, 1501
Vadsholt, Kasper 1525
Vaes, Tony 1479
Vail, Evan 1189
Vainio, Taito 1448
Val, Vic 511
Valarde, Benny 614
Valdambrini, Oscar 533
Valdes, Alberto 1405
Valdes, Carlos ‘Patato’ 323, 392, 554, 569, 599, 797, 890, 933, 934, 941, 1095, 1138, 1242, 1247
Valdes, Chino 440, 441
Valdes, Chucho 1261, 1424
Valdés, Gilberto 553
Valdés, Merceditas 1261
Valdez, Frankie 505
Valente, Al 413
Valente, Caterina 616
Valente, Catherine 65
Valente, Gary 137, 138, 152, 613, 623, 1095, 1250, 1270
Valentin, Dave 426, 468, 610, 934, 1262, 1424, 1427
Valentine, Dave 709
Valentine, Dickie 1484
Valentine, Gerald 416, 705, 1443
Valentine, Jerry 416
Valentine, Kid Thomas 645, 1164, 1224, 1436
Valentini, Andrea 1171
Valentino, Peter 80
Valesti, Rico 1104
Valiente, Abdiel 1093
Valihora, Martin 1428
Valizán, Louis 1261
Valle, Giulia 898, 1314
Vallerina, Paul 1141
Vallet, Pierre-Luc 1420
Vallis, Buddy 102, 918, 1476
Vallon, Colin 1438
Vallribera, Josep 1035
Valon, Onilde Gomez 908
Van Beerendonk, Ad 295
Van Bergen, Peter 515, 1381
Van Camp, Sus 1203
Van Cleef, Maurice 667
Van de Geyn, Hein 68, 170, 237, 238, 1030, 1163
Van den Brink, Bert 68, 170, 237
Van der Hoeven, Frans 721
Van der Kooij, Frank 772
Van der Ouderaa, André 228, 667
Van der Schyff, Dylan 366, 400, 620, 728, 885, 1019, 1075, 1253
Van der Suils, Koos 195
Van Der Voort, Mariette Roupe 55
Van Drakestein, Henk Bosch 411
Van Duin, Sytze 411
Van Duynhoven, Martin 55
Van Dyke, Earl 1186
Van Dyke, Louis 1239
Van Eps, Bobby 42, 395
Van Eps, George 16, 574, 626, 1089, 1388
Van Eps, John 1388
Van Eps, Johnny 396
Van Geel, Oene 366
Van Geest, Franz 1441
Van Gelder, Rudy 888
Van Haften, Nils 174
Van Helvoirt, George 228, 667
Van Herswingels, Jeff 1203
Van Heys, Rurik 757
Van Hove, Fred 98, 176, 177, 594, 858, 1270, 1440
Van Kemenade, Paul 119
Van Kriedt, Dave 188, 189, 368, 816
Van Lake, Turk 50
Van Lier, Bart 691
Van Lier, Eric 255, 627
Van Norden, Maarten 169
Van Manen, Willem 177
Van Oosterhout, Hans 237, 1163
Van Oven, Bob 411
Van Oven, Harry 228
Van Rooyen, Ack 38, 352, 1476
Van Ruller, Jesse 677, 1140, 1371, 1441
Van Schaik, Joost 237
Van Schalk, Joost 691
Van Schouwburg, Jean-Michel 1251
Van’t Hof, Jasper 314, 465, 944, 1441
Vance, Dick 63, 209, 423, 433, 488, 489, 668, 686, 698, 715, 853, 1346, 1477, 1510
Vander, Maurice 33, 229, 591, 859, 1204
Vanderjeught, Jim 1203
Vandermark, Ken 36, 178, 604, 983, 1042, 1253, 1438
Vanderveer, Leroy 685
Vandever, Ed 667
Vandeweyer, Els 746
Vanelli, Jimmy 1445
Vanicelli, Henry 1100
Vanizel, Dick 1025
Vann, Georgie 1331
Vannoy, Byron 1184
Vant, Louise 155
Vappie, Donald 952
Vargas, Christian 637
Varley, Anne 869
Varner, Tom 98, 269, 352, 833, 857, 890, 1067, 1107, 1349, 1441, 1449
Varro, Johnny 27, 157, 301, 476, 579, 626, 680, 734, 962, 1046, 1264, 1350, 1367, 1442, 1500
Varsalona, Bart 228, 271, 461, 654, 692, 786, 814, 815, 816, 1095, 1117, 1283, 1445
Vas, Olaf 811
Vasconcelos, Nana 34, 79, 234, 246, 266, 475, 523, 524, 1193, 1256, 1396
Vasko-Caceres, Vesna 1452
Vasquez, Angel ‘Papo’ 1094, 1095, 1247, 1296
Vasquez, Ray 588
Vass, James 7, 19, 1285
Vasseur, Benny 65, 102, 1398
Vatcher, Michael 51, 116, 594, 1034, 1543
Vaughan, George 83
Vaughan, Madison 228
Vaughan, Sarah 50, 181, 416, 552, 826, 1176, 1443, 1521
Vaughan, Wes 398, 1282
Vax, Mike 818
Vaz, Bob 1202
Vazley, Anthony 540
Veal, Reginald 105, 586, 948, 950, 951, 952, 957, 1167, 1214, 1472, 1516
Veasley, Gerald 1172
Vecchi, Marco 1122, 1123, 1124
Veen, Robert 8
Vées, Eugène 591, 1202, 1203, 1204
Vega, Junior 777
Vega, Ray 1136, 1263
Veijonsuo, Markku 1432, 1433
Veitners, Idrikis 1525
Velarde, Bayardo 1261, 1404
Velasco, Arturo 324, 1292
Velez, Glen 216, 995, 1240
Veliotes, Eric 1517
Venaas, Terje 115, 327, 751, 781, 809, 1213
Venegas, Victor 1261, 1262, 1404
Venier, Glauco 1525
Vennik, Dick 831
Vennik, Jan 68
Ventresco, Craig 682, 1300, 1454
Ventsel, Jaanika 324
Ventura, Ben 596, 1445
Ventura, Charlie 122, 413, 552, 596, 774, 848, 849, 1052, 1092, 1445, 1521
Ventura, Pete 1445
Venuti, Joe 105, 196, 398, 707, 708, 807, 1066, 1081, 1388, 1446
Vera, Jose 1064
Veras, Nelson 277
Verbruggen, Teun 1422
Vercher, Javier 1447
Verdier, Camille 497
Verdier, Robin 1113
Verdon, Roland 1150
Verdura, Rafael 1029
Verdurmen, Rob 169, 170
Veres, Celena 198
Verheyen, Robin 468
Verlade, Bayardo 1404
Verly, François 408, 509, 873
Vernon, George 20, 46, 420, 1250, 1354
Vernon, Joe 814
Verrell, Ronnie 411, 1414
Versace, Gary 28, 511, 614, 660, 719, 731, 840, 844, 845, 867, 870, 921, 1193, 1268, 1269, 1275, 1288, 1345, 1447, 1519
Versaci, Bill 1443
Verstraete, Charles 497
Verstraeten, Michel 1217
Vesala, Edward 1, 408, 523, 834, 1336, 1447
Vesely, Lukas 1019
Vesely, Ted 575, 1282
Vespestad, Jarle 619, 805, 1179, 1492
Vesta 965
Vestergaard, Alf 996
Vestgard, Edgar 602
Vestine, Henry 54

Viale, Jean-Louis 65, 180, 497, 591, 772, 1204, 1302, 1397, 1434, 1510
Viazzani, Romano 50
Vicari, Frank 694
Vick, Harold 600, 720, 1134, 1138, 1299, 1513
Vickers, Dale 295
Vickers, Dave 295
Vickery, Don 520
Vic Lewis Orchestra 889
Victor, Frank 937
Victory, Gene 66
Victor Young Orchestra 180
Vida, Andre 163, 183
Vidacovich, Johnny 68, 942, 959, 1274
Vidal, Carlos 84, 322, 340, 552, 627, 815, 1095, 1117, 1247
Vieira, Monito 663
Vienna Art Orchestra 1448
Vig, Steen 356, 1449
Viger, Frédéric 648
Viggiano, Mike 937
Vigilante, Tony 333
Vignola, Frank 211, 363, 415, 449, 511, 940, 1140, 1352, 1449, 1486
Vignolo, Rémi 52, 443, 559, 1390
Vigone, Francesco 476
Viklicky, Emil 1050
Vilakazi, Vicky 960
Vilato, Orestes 550
Villar, Miguel 477
Villar, Miguel 'Pintxo' 71
Villarini, Tommy 1262
Villaume, Kasper 1227, 1395
Ville, Christian 1272
Villeger, André 223, 587
Villeneuve, Norman Marshall 796, 928
Vinaccia, Paolo 34
Vinayakaram, T. H. 977, 978
Vincent, Eddie 379, 820
Vincent, Janse 1012
Vincent, Jonathan 648
Vincent, Randy 595
Vincent, Ron 241, 1054, 1055
Vincent Cass Band 198
Vinci, Mark 477, 478, 658, 1268
Vinding, Mads 122, 173, 174, 256, 390, 471, 584, 607, 647, 760, 795, 802, 897, 913, 1084, 1191, 1212, 1324, 1391, 1450, 1502
Vine, Johnny 622
Vines, Mel 182
Vinkeloe, Brigitte 1381
Vinnegar, Leroy 9, 15, 51, 65, 66, 222, 229, 230, 239, 278, 319, 320, 364, 393, 418, 419, 479, 540, 542, 544, 580, 655, 666, 723, 736, 808, 821, 862, 935, 971, 1037, 1053, 1072, 1142, 1146, 1180, 1233, 1239, 1280, 1338, 1346, 1409, 1450, 1462, 1501, 1507, 1517
Vinnie Burke Quartet 299
Vinson, Eddie 'Cleanhead' 94, 338, 755, 1156, 1176, 1444, 1451, 1505
Vinson, Millard 1468
Vinson, Pete 763
Vinson, Will 481, 845
Vint, Bill 826
Vinten, Jonathan 605
Vinx 1515
Viola, Al 279, 736, 936
Viqueira, Katie 6, 995
Viredaz, Benoît 1440
Virgadamo, Pat 848, 1092
Virgillio, Joe 983
Virji, Fayyaz 137, 368
Virtainen, Heikki 834
Visby Big Band 1498
Visentin, Caris 891, 892, 1187
Visibelli, Giulio 929, 940
Visor Jr, Carrington 555
Vissing, Lars 121, 809
Vital, Raul 1146
Vitale, Bill 692, 734
Vitalo, Nick 1101
Vitet, Bernard 562, 1297
Vito, Joe 511
Vitous, Miroslav 304, 307, 308, 365, 524, 735, 852, 933, 934, 1296, 1451, 1474, 1475, 1539
Vitro, Roseanna 1486
Viva 136
Vives, José 1029
Vivian, Jim 604, 967
Vizzutti, Allen 305
Vlatkovich, Michael 566, 567, 631
Vloeimans, Eric 1035, 1163
Voerkel, Urs 520
Vogel, Allan 1310
Vogel, Karsten 1338
Voigt, Andrew 522, 1242
Voigt, John 962, 1033, 1541
Vola, Louis 591, 1202, 1203, 1204
Völker, Ute 1251
Volonte, Claudio 855
Volonté, Eraldo 533
Volpe, Lou 934
Volpi, Dario 925
Volquartz, Ove 1381
Von Doran, Matthew 961
Von Essen, Eric 183, 260, 471, 537, 1452
Von Essen, Reimer 711
Von Eyben, Finn 1246
Von Hermann, Heinz 38
Von Kalnein, Heinrich 1449
Von Kaphengst, Christian 1057
Von Schlippenbach, Alexander 747
Von Wald, Steve 946
Von Zell, Harry 83
Voss, Aage 49
Voss, Meegan 1275
Voynow, Dick 105
Vredell, Jackie 1299
Vu, Cuong 792, 867, 990, 995, 1096, 1330, 1421, 1452, 1526
Vuckovich, Larry 587, 1451
Vunk, Lyman 83, 84, 388, 1334
Vysniauskas, Petras 521, 805

W

Wabich, Chris 841
Wachsmann, Philipp 224, 296, 515, 618, 620, 749, 906, 919, 1012, 1109, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1126, 1251, 1403, 1453
Waddilove, Don 716
Wade, Charlie 388
Wade, Dave 1282
Wade, Henry 542
Wade, Iona 1030
Wade, Jimmy 1326
Wadenius, George 323, 834
Wadham, John 1304
Wadlow, Tommy 1180
Wadsworth, Derek 280, 483, 564, 680
Wadud, Abdul 146, 337, 419, 683, 885
Waechte, Alexander 833
Wagner, Babe 423, 848, 1092
Wagner, Charly 1449
Wagner, Christian 272, 1203
Wagner, Robert 1517
Wahnschaffe, Felix 119, 747
Waidtløw, Claus 1525
Wain, Bea 1282
Wainapel, Harvey 595
Wainwright, Connie 416, 1056, 1109, 1311, 1443
Wainwright, Eccleston W. 1259
Wainwright, Rob 222, 498
Waisvisz, Michel 856
Waits, Freddie 88, 353, 378, 647, 703, 720, 963, 1031, 1040, 1041, 1108, 1258, 1395, 1426, 1539
Waits, Nasheet 354, 375, 463, 507, 598, 661, 696, 703, 877, 924, 941, 1036, 1073, 1105, 1211, 1498, 1526, 1538
Wakeman, Alan 280, 905, 1489, 1490, 1509
Wakenius, Ulf 184, 185, 767, 921, 1102, 1157, 1407, 1453
Wal-Berg Et Son Jazz Français 1203
Walbridge, Mike 369, 401, 682, 754, 1079, 1454
Walcott, Collin 266, 308, 350, 890, 1098, 1410
Walden, Myron 52, 474, 733, 897, 1073, 1139, 1481
Walden, Narada Michael 923, 1133, 1475
Walder, Woody 1047
Waldo, Terry 1454
Waldron, Leslie 730
Waldron, Mal 32, 135, 161, 200, 202, 234, 243, 270, 284, 382, 384, 402, 412, 491, 511, 548, 587, 649, 716, 793, 855, 856, 857, 877, 894, 899, 920, 933, 978, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1188, 1220, 1291, 1298, 1454, 1527
Waldrop, Don 496
Waldwick High School Marching Band 777
Wales, Ashley 112, 124, 194, 1251
Walker, Aaron 895, 1277
Walker, Al 712
Walker, Arthur 705
Walker, Barbara 216
Walker, Bill 1444
Walker, Chris 276
Walker, Clarence 602
Walker, Clinton 1098, 1506
Walker, Colin 39
Walker, David T. 89, 170, 323, 642
Walker, Earl 638
Walker, Earl Fox 155
Walker, Gene 946
Walker, Herb 1050
Walker, Hugh 919, 1134
Walker, James 726
Walker, Joe Louis 948
Walker, Jonas 1505
Walker, Ken 1172, 1339, 1528
Walker, Kirby 779
Walker, Loyal 228
Walker, Mack 329, 638, 1316, 1483
Walker, Mark 406, 1099
Walker, Martin 1310
Walker, Mike 40, 74, 1179
Walker, Sammy 1199
Walker, Steve 1237
Walker, T-Bone 774, 1451
Walkington, Julie 963
Wall, Bobby 1201
Wall, Dan 4, 118, 1354, 1456
Wall, Greg 1456
Wall, Murray 46, 415, 611, 681, 748, 1186
Wall, Phil 1446
Wall, Raphael 612
Wall, Roy 114, 1407
Wallace, Andy 956
Wallace, Babe 1406
Wallace, Bart 1283
Wallace, Bennie 946, 1471
Wallace, Bill 1219
Wallace, Billy 181, 597, 1350
Wallace, Cedric 248, 1279, 1353, 1457, 1458
Wallace, Jack 570
Wallace, Joe 945
Wallace, Matt 483

Wallace, Mike 818, 819
Wallace, Simon 1284
Wallace, Sippie 31, 1504
Wallace, Steve 796, 967, 968, 1084
Wallace, Zach 165
Wallberg, Gunnar 1322
Wallbridge, Mike 1454
Walldoff, Sven-Olof 897
Wallemme, Christophe 1226
Wallen, Byron 832, 869, 1342
Wallen, Errollyn 1487
Waller, Charles 1516
Waller, Thomas 'Fats' 228, 297, 410, 686, 788, 888, 975, 1388, 1456, 1504
Wallez, Georges 1203
Wallez, Gus 706, 877
Wallgren, Jan 1458
Walli, Hasse 1
Wallin, Bengt-Arne 46, 616
Wallin, Byron 1167
Wallin, Harry 1459
Wallin, Henry 420, 427
Wallin, Per Henrik 1458
Wallington, George 239, 268, 413, 543, 772, 1459
Wallis, Bob 294, 1460
Wallumrød, Christian 1279
Walon, Jon 1284
Walp, Charlie 416, 692, 693, 1119, 1165, 1209, 1404
Walrath, Jack 7, 146, 272, 352, 418, 613, 700, 881, 909, 911, 1005, 1006, 1067, 1460
Walsh, Brian 567
Walsh, Danny 903, 1461
Walsh, Ed 1468
Walsh, Everett 784
Walsh, Larry 118
Walsh, Tom 753
Walshe, Jennifer 604
Walss, Priska 1461
Walter, Andreas 590
Walter, Willy 1012
Walters, Bob 764
Walters, Dave 248
Walters, Errol 628
Walters, Gary 1210
Walters, George 848, 937
Walters, Greely 1505
Walters, Teddy 270, 395, 705, 715, 848, 1445
Walton, Cedar 33, 134, 154, 184, 202, 275, 286, 309, 320, 393, 419, 470, 472, 568, 582, 583, 611, 640, 655, 678, 679, 687, 732, 755, 800, 801, 894, 914, 957, 966, 985, 1009, 1037, 1040, 1074, 1148, 1195, 1284, 1295, 1462, 1528
Walton, Charles 506
Walton, Derek 816
Walton, Greely 23, 24, 42, 219, 1251
Walton, John 1283
Walton, Jon 576
Walton, Peter 415
Walton, Scott 154
Walton, Tony 250
Waltzer, Ben 972, 1463
Waltzer, Phil 42
Wamble, Doug 948, 1515, 1544
Wand, Matt 1109
Wanders, Kris 562
Wanderscheid, Roger 886
Wang, Cindy Zuoxin 709
Wang, Dave 1019
Wang, Gary 1331
Wang, Jane 962
Wansel, Dexter 1468
Wanzo, Mel 93, 492, 694, 755
Warburton, Dan 401
Warburton, Paul 151
Warburton, Tom 223, 409
Ward, Alex 60, 61, 315, 1085
Ward, Bob 1043
Ward, Carlos 2, 19, 115, 136, 137, 246, 743, 1047, 1381
Ward, Greg 1200
Ward, Helen 424, 574, 764, 847, 1353, 1520, 1521
Ward, Michael 951
Ward, Nick 515
Ward, Ron 294, 295, 883
Ward, Stan 1058
Wardell, Anita 532
Wardener, Max de 48
Ware, Bill 657, 777, 1134
Ware, David S. 2, 324, 1381, 1464
Ware, Efferge 880, 987
Ware, Jabbo 1465
Ware, James 1290
Ware, Leonard 99, 101, 209
Ware, Munn 102, 1328
Ware, Ozie 428, 429
Ware, Trevor 940
Ware, Wilbur 175, 254, 270, 284, 393, 540, 598, 606, 607, 690, 800, 1008, 1009, 1021, 1022, 1053, 1233, 1302, 1394, 1465
Wareham, Pete 8, 1171
Warfel, Tom 1064
Warfield, Bill 892, 1351
Warfield, Tim 463, 658, 965, 1136, 1237, 1277, 1335, 1466
Warland, Jean 38, 254
Warleigh, Ray 243, 362, 549, 674, 680, 1276, 1355, 1494
Warlop, Michel 1202, 1326, 1516
Warnaar, Brad 1133
Warnecke, Louis 1167
Warner, Albert 148, 269, 455, 783, 1164
Warner, Earl 937
Warner, Elmer 43, 736
Warner, Henry 1127
Warner, John 1540
Warner, Malcolm-Jamal 226
Warney, Leo 100
Warren, Bob 207
Warren, Butch 127, 213, 254, 343, 393, 581, 599, 640, 641, 687, 723, 979, 1013, 1023, 1502
Warren, Dennis 925
Warren, Earl 35, 90, 91, 195, 257, 258, 262, 417, 714, 717, 755, 763, 1110, 1400, 1502, 1535
Warren, Ed 440, 441
Warren, Geoff 281
Warren, Guy 1206
Warren, Huw 1466
Warren, John 1363, 1364, 1488, 1489
Warren, Peter 159, 365
Warren, Quentin 1312, 1313
Warren, Ted 967, 1340
Warren, Tony 1505
Warrington, Tom 174, 278, 388, 496, 498, 499, 778, 841, 854, 914, 955, 1038, 1082, 1083, 1091, 1452, 1466
Warska, Wanda 835
Warwick, Carl 118, 553, 554, 692, 1197
Washburne, Chris 792, 916
Washburne, Phil 84, 395
Washer, Bill 1008
Washingon, Peter 585
Washington, Albert 41, 42
Washington, Benny 1085
Washington, Booker 40, 753, 1047, 1533
Washington, Buck 41, 666
Washington, Darryl 1468
Washington, Dinah 262, 638, 1466
Washington, Earl 739
Washington, Edmund 1436
Washington, Elizabeth 377
Washington, Elliott 1114, 1201
Washington, Fred 125, 1103, 1104
Washington, George 24, 42, 91, 196, 228, 552, 686, 734, 798, 999
Washington, Grover Jr 201, 264, 270, 414, 1019, 1032, 1055, 1468
Washington, Herman 760
Washington, Jack 90, 91, 714, 763, 1047
Washington, John 1316
Washington, Kamasi 1517, 1518
Washington, Kenny 1, 57, 158, 167, 215, 231, 241, 242, 270, 330, 389, 503, 555, 603, 636, 662, 663, 707, 719, 724, 791, 838, 861, 876, 915, 916, 921, 1035, 1071, 1074, 1091, 1148, 1172, 1191, 1198, 1209, 1241, 1242, 1261, 1320, 1321, 1328, 1343, 1370, 1371, 1392, 1470, 1481, 1513, 1532
Washington, Laura 671
Washington, Leon 263, 705
Washington, Peter 176, 215, 241, 242, 263, 270, 335, 353, 354, 368, 376, 405, 407, 440, 454, 465, 495, 518, 536, 555, 557, 569, 597, 610, 636, 652, 663, 677, 678, 689, 709, 776, 861, 876, 916, 921, 929, 956, 1035, 1071, 1072, 1074, 1139, 1147, 1149, 1191, 1214, 1238, 1239, 1241, 1260, 1269, 1284, 1317, 1320, 1321, 1343, 1350, 1370, 1371, 1424, 1480, 1517, 1518, 1528, 1532
Washington, Reggie 277, 323, 633, 649, 756, 860
Washington, Tyrone 1246, 1299
Wasilewski, Marcin 810, 1337
Wasserman, Eddie 173, 299, 577, 601, 849, 1095
Wassermann, Herb 855
Wastell, Mark 296, 480, 832
Watanabe, Butch 1084
Watanabe, Kaoru 657
Watanabe, Mari 737
Waterford, Charles 987
Waterman, Steve 88, 137, 281, 532, 663, 664, 880, 1364, 1482, 1509
Waters, Benny 39, 226, 272, 725, 913, 1109, 1311, 1315, 1469, 1504
Waters, Charles 1129
Waters, Ethel 398, 429
Waters, Fred 64
Waters, Oren 641
Waters, Tony 688
Wates, Matt 532
Watkins, Derek 125, 549, 1355, 1412, 1415, 1494
Watkins, Doug 9, 32, 133, 175, 200, 212, 284, 285, 469, 516, 527, 568, 669, 799, 827, 933, 978, 979, 1003, 1025, 1038, 1188, 1233, 1298, 1299, 1470, 1527
Watkins, Earl 552, 706, 1162
Watkins, Joe 882, 883, 884
Watkins, Julius 56, 201, 212, 287, 343, 345, 461, 462, 470, 517, 554, 568, 571, 678, 679, 732, 755, 775, 797, 962, 1000, 1004, 1009, 1014, 1021, 1071, 1160, 1242, 1258, 1318, 1328, 1391, 1511
Watkins, Kobie 176
Watkins, Reggie 483
Watkins, Tony 437, 439
Watkis, Trevor 1470
Watkiss, Cleveland 76
Watrous, Bill 640, 656, 694, 850, 1027, 1028, 1139, 1143, 1354
Watson, Adam 1484

Watson, Andy 629
Watson, Billy 'Spaceman' 351
Watson, Bobby 134, 672, 874, 878, 914, 915, 934, 1006, 1019, 1071, 1218, 1461, 1469, 1470
Watson, Brian 362
Watson, Dudley 1188
Watson, Eric 896, 1471
Watson, Jim 81, 82, 182, 533, 820, 1096, 1180
Watson, Jimmy 479, 652
Watson, Julius 1505
Watson, Laurel 424, 1198
Watson, Leo 477, 847, 1282, 1331
Watson, Pamela 1471
Watson, Sandy 424
Watson, Wah Wah 89, 643
Watt, Don 588, 691
Watters, Lu 784, 1472
Watts, Arthur 187, 1206
Watts, Charlie 1213
Watts, Ernie 85, 215, 264, 453, 465, 560, 623, 624, 642, 656, 829, 914, 1024, 1210, 1211, 1261, 1472
Watts, Grady 42, 62, 236
Watts, Hugh 1314
Watts, Jeff 'Tain' 149, 168, 217, 277, 283, 381, 454, 468, 530, 603, 697, 798, 822, 916, 920, 945, 947, 948, 950, 955, 1006, 1106, 1145, 1146, 1167, 1235, 1305, 1321, 1428, 1472, 1513
Watts, Joe 788
Watts, Kenny 184, 209
Watts, Patricia 1472
Watts, Steve 40, 74, 95, 195, 252, 466, 1329, 1497
Watts, Trevor 28, 39, 57, 58, 154, 359, 749, 856, 905, 906, 997, 1253, 1332, 1333, 1341, 1403, 1473
Waverley, Mike 1210
Wayland, Hank 118, 119, 125, 150, 574, 1282
Wayman, Willie 355
Wayne, Chuck 63, 125, 206, 239, 461, 664, 668, 692, 736, 783, 793, 851, 937, 947, 1286, 1344, 1379, 1388, 1443, 1459, 1474, 1535, 1536
Wayne, Frances 692
Wayne Cochran's C C Riders 1134
WDR Big Band 168, 1419, 1461
Weatherburn, Ron 72, 295
Weatherford, Teddy 380, 1326
Weather Report 1134, 1474
Weaver, Mark 421
Weaver, Sylvester 736
Webb, Art 1285
Webb, Chick 42, 280, 430, 488, 490, 803, 1056, 1475
Webb, Doug 720
Webb, George 102, 918, 1476
Webb, John 104, 280
Webb, Ray 228, 667
Webb, Stan 113, 368, 369, 601, 715, 797, 1027, 1028, 1537
Webb, Warren 1095
Webber, John 122, 263, 300, 507, 543, 636, 654, 663, 678, 830, 921, 965, 1136, 1241, 1242, 1526
Weber, Alex 352
Weber, Christian 420, 1349, 1498
Weber, Eberhard 204, 523, 524, 591, 993, 1410, 1476
Weber, John 793, 955
Weber, Michel 1395
Weber, Reto 932, 1477
Webster, Ben 50, 218, 228, 229, 230, 238, 258, 417, 423, 430, 431, 432, 435, 470, 490, 492, 552, 602, 638, 639, 654, 667, 668, 686, 692, 693, 699, 707, 711, 712, 714, 716, 736, 759, 774, 788, 789, 821, 849, 877, 986, 1047, 1053, 1066, 1071, 1109, 1110, 1151, 1378, 1443, 1477, 1509, 1510, 1520, 1521
Webster, Eric 1043
Webster, Freddy 50, 228, 416, 705, 715, 803, 912, 999, 1176, 1322, 1443
Webster, Harold 424
Webster, Jeremy 480
Webster, Paul 219, 912, 913, 1047
Webster, Rufus 228, 1110
Webster, Vaughn 694
Wechlin, Peter 737
Wechsler, Moe 207, 299
Weckl, Dave 219, 305, 307, 829, 1261, 1340
Weddell, Jack 269
Weed, Buddy 102, 489, 504, 716, 1210, 1281, 1327
Weed, Johnny 652, 1199
Weed, Tad 119
Weedon, Paul 338
Weeke, Stefan 1416
Weekes, Alan 776
Weeks, Jack 368, 1404
Weeks, Willie 1275
Wehner, Martin 660, 709
Weidenmüller, Johannes 33, 573, 1485
Weidler, George 271, 815
Weidler, Walt 84
Weidler, Warner 815
Weidler, Warren 271
Weidman, James 420, 454, 713, 910, 923, 1479, 1515
Weidner, Christian 637
Weight, Alan 440, 441
Weil, Herb 494, 900, 1433
Wein, George 439, 982
Weinberg, Meyer 150
Weiner, Jimmy 943
Weinreb, Paul 368
Weinstein, Aaron 1479
Weinstein, Dan 1084
Weinstein, Dave 1543
Weinstein, David 1240, 1542
Weinstein, Jimmy 2, 649, 1207
Weinstein, Mark 933, 1405
Weinstein, Myles 658
Weinstein, Ruby 1327, 1388
Weir, Bob 1060
Weir, Frank 591
Weisgard, Ethan 95, 799, 996
Weiskopf, Joel 329, 477, 518, 608, 921, 1351, 1370, 1480, 1480, 1481
Weiskopf, Walt 329, 407, 518, 1321, 1325, 1351, 1480, 1480
Weiss, Carl 922
Weiss, Dan 127, 562, 660, 922, 1098, 1481
Weiss, David 127, 733, 1073, 1406, 1481
Weiss, Doug 73, 282, 503, 604, 677, 839, 1147, 1175, 1226, 1241, 1480, 1481
Weiss, Klaus 615
Weiss, Michael 323, 608, 1481
Weiss, Otto 1375
Weiss, Peter Martin 317
Weiss, René 1202
Weiss, Robert Michael 834
Weiss, Sammy 40, 42, 51, 396, 397, 574, 614, 937, 1017, 1282
Weiss, Sebastian 1481
Weiss, Sid 83, 205, 206, 257, 270, 297, 355, 431, 576, 712, 734, 780, 848, 937, 947, 1017, 1252, 1282, 1327, 1334, 1343
Welch 164
Welch, Jimmy 396
Welch, John 855
Welch, Matthew 164
Weldon, Jerry 48, 1078
Weldon, Nick 243, 322, 1225
Welin, Mattias 172, 780, 900, 1087
Weller, Bob 151
Weller, Dick 496, 850, 1288
Weller, Don 88, 226, 462, 680, 1482
Wellesley, Sonny 596
Welling, John 72
Wellins, Bobby 252, 321, 831, 956, 976, 1073, 1414, 1482, 1482, 1524
Wellman, Ricky 351
Wells, Bill 203
Wells, Chris 869, 1407
Wells, Dave 84, 440, 441, 634
Wells, Dicky 23, 24, 90, 91, 228, 257, 258, 272, 423, 504, 552, 666, 686, 704, 705, 715, 734, 758, 783, 937, 1248, 1251, 1252, 1443, 1483, 1535
Wells, Duke 182
Wells, Henry 724, 725, 826, 912
Wells, Johnny 1085, 1353
Wells, Spike 82, 632, 674, 726, 824, 1186, 1482, 1483
Wells, Tim 322, 690, 870, 1355, 1509
Wells, Wally 1388
Wellstood, Dick 39, 101, 102, 336, 355, 520, 741, 1114, 1447, 1483, 1493, 1500
Welsch, Chauncey 514, 576, 601, 1027
Welsh, Alex 24, 355, 734, 1252, 1279, 1484
Wendel, Ben 1278
Wendelboe, Jens 781
Wendholt, Scott 153, 248, 477, 478, 591, 612, 676, 721, 845, 1008, 1057, 1166, 1213, 1268, 1320, 1362, 1484
Wendt, George 62, 576, 1089, 1283
Wendt, Tim 247
Weniger, Peter 745, 1057
Wennerström, Leif 485, 781, 1237, 1459
Wennerstrøn, Leif 126
Wenten, I. Nyoman 1310
Wenziker, Judith 352
Werchowski, Mathieu 1251
Werner, Kenny 98, 144, 361, 388, 448, 454, 837, 838, 903, 908, 909, 1212, 1268, 1395, 1485
Werner, Lasse 1237
Wertico, Paul 60, 111, 237, 307, 309, 427, 994, 995
Wertmuller, Michael 179
Werts, Daniel 1381
Wesley, Alonzo 93
Wesley, Fred 754, 755
Wess, Frank 32, 48, 92, 241, 254, 284, 380, 415, 417, 418, 465, 491, 578, 596, 601, 656, 707, 719, 723, 739, 754, 775, 792, 793, 797, 799, 968, 972, 1000, 1074, 1075, 1254, 1278, 1285, 1304, 1350, 1391, 1444, 1449, 1467, 1468, 1486, 1501, 1502, 1517, 1522
Wess, Richard 299
Wess, Sid 1334
Wessberg, Lis 809, 810
Wessel, Ken 81, 518, 1487
Wesseltoft, Bugge 34, 265, 524, 964, 1487
West, Alvy 716, 1093
West, Bob 1103
West, Cedric 187, 652, 1422

West, Danny Quebec 1020
West, Harold 'Doc' 209, 423, 424, 528, 609, 699, 714, 987, 1115, 1120, 1184, 1344
West, Mae 398
West, Olis 1516
West, Paul 48, 554, 606, 1038, 1242, 1316, 1467
West, Paula 1535
West, Tamsin 104
Westberg, Ingemar 615, 1149
Westbrook, Chauncey 1242
Westbrook, Kate 1487, 1489, 1490
Westbrook, Marsha 923
Westbrook, Mike 1487, 1488
Westby, Øivind 781
Westbye, Finn 602
Westerberg, Kjell 1087
Westergaard, Jonas 129, 1431
West Jesmond Rhythm Kings 1490
Weston, Calvin 276
Weston, Fritz 101
Weston, Harvey 356, 900, 1315, 1347, 1484, 1493
Weston, Paul 491, 1443
Weston, Randy 278, 1491
Weston, Veryan 206, 315, 1007, 1008, 1182, 1309, 1473, 1492
Westray, Ronald 896, 951
Westwood, John 316
Westwood, Paul 1397
Wethington, Crawford 41, 196, 671, 999
Wetmore, Dick 1053, 1103
Wettenhall, Simon 1454
Wettling, George 43, 63, 101, 102, 118, 150, 297, 298, 355, 477, 489, 490, 504, 601, 622, 667, 715, 780, 788, 796, 937, 1076, 1089, 1282, 1319, 1327, 1328, 1334, 1388, 1457
Wettre, Petter 1492
Wetzel, Ray 84, 271, 692, 815, 816, 1141
Weyburn, Tom 1417
Whaley, Dick 962
Whaley, Wade 784, 1104
Whalum, Kirk 1385
Wharf, Charles 480, 698
Wharton, Dick 118
Wharton, Geoffrey 1403
Wharton, Gib 1515
What We Live 1493
Wheatley, Jon 157, 158, 962
Wheatley, Martin 374, 1080
Wheeler, Archie 818
Wheeler, Benny 622
Wheeler, Clarence 424, 502
Wheeler, Dave 817, 818
Wheeler, De Priest 218
Wheeler, Ian 77, 78, 294, 883, 1043, 1493
Wheeler, Kenny 4, 9, 39, 119, 144, 159, 174, 187, 225, 280, 281, 302, 362, 401, 472, 475, 512, 549, 562, 570, 615, 652, 674, 690, 718, 747, 749, 841, 944, 1016, 1108, 1193, 1206, 1253, 1276, 1306, 1309, 1317, 1332, 1355, 1363, 1414, 1417, 1433, 1485, 1488, 1489, 1493, 1524
Wheeler, Ted 654
Wheeler, Walter 1098
Whetsol, Arthur 428, 429, 430, 711
Whigham, Jiggs 38, 818
Whitaker, Harry 676, 914, 1495
Whitaker, Rodney 105, 136, 463, 530, 586, 645, 649, 1140, 1200, 1214, 1495
White, Alistair 532
White, Amos 586, 1114
White, Andrew 683, 1474
White, Ben 1503
White, Beverley 725, 827
White, Bill 228, 505, 654
White, Bob 937, 1089
White, Bobby 64, 229, 631, 1141, 1404
White, Brian 605
White, Carla 1495
White, Cecil 1201
White, Chip 419, 745, 793, 1031, 1149, 1227
White, Chris 554, 797, 871, 1031, 1108, 1511
White, Chris C. 1165
White, Clarence 1290
White, Colin 652
White, Dave 749, 1253
White, Dr Michael 1496
White, Evelyn 1264
White, Georgia 1085
White, Gil 99, 101
White, Hal 1433
White, Harold 89, 827
White, Harry 42, 218, 999, 1109
White, Hy 50, 388, 489, 490, 504, 667, 691, 692, 1327
White, Jerry 236, 247
White, John 30
White, Johnny 576, 577, 945
White, Josh 100, 101, 1510
White, Kenny 827
White, Kieran 225
White, Lenny 22, 79, 80, 235, 304, 309, 347, 684, 688, 732, 834, 1026, 1133, 1159, 1207, 1208, 1236, 1285, 1352, 1503
White, Leo 84
White, Leroy 705
White, Lillias 67, 1008
White, Mac 1080
White, Mark 991
White, Maurice 887, 888, 1346
White, Meredith 876
White, Michael 465, 950, 952, 1258, 1301, 1426
White, Mike 646
White, Morris 218
White, Patrick 281, 1112, 1355, 1415, 1482
White, Peter 80
White, Rev. Richard 211
White, Rocky 439
White, Roger 1540
White, Sonny 100, 228, 229, 357, 714, 715, 1283, 1353
White, Steve 571
Whitecage, Mark 25, 412, 498, 637, 1090, 1134, 1371, 1496
Whited, John 1036
Whitehead, Annie 359, 453, 919, 1342, 1497
Whitehead, Neville 358
Whitehead, Tim 1497
Whiteman, Claude 1388
Whiteman, Henry 864, 1081
Whiteman, Paul 62, 106
Whitfield, John 250, 606, 1107, 1399
Whitfield, Mark 697, 754, 955, 1167
Whitfield, Scott 1463
Whitford, Dave 466, 1225
Whiting, Fred 779
Whiting, Margaret 577
Whiting, Trevor 711
Whitley, Chris 1515
Whitley, Robert 384, 894
Whitlock, Bob 15, 544, 953, 1052, 1141
Whitlock, Elmer 42
Whitman, Mike 850
Whitmore, Bill 628
Whitner, Leonard 395
Whitney, Belinda 1256
Whitney, James 42, 43
Whitney, Len 395
Whittaker, Peter 1416
Whitted, Pharez 179
Whittet, Ben 1457, 1504
Whittington, Dick 584, 1526, 1540
Whittle, Tommy 70, 248, 674, 1498, 1500
Whitworth, Gordon 515
Whiz Kid 1542
Whylie, Marjorie 18
Whyman, Peter 1466, 1487, 1489, 1490
Whyte, Duncan 228, 1322
Whyte, Frank 1375
Whyte, Ross 1318
Wiberny, Heiner 690
Wiborg, Anders 1087, 1347, 1348
Wichard, Al 789
Wichard, Albert 760, 987
Wick, Steve 906
Wickins, Dave 252, 1329, 1482
Wickman, Putte 378, 386, 387, 615, 616, 631, 811, 1306, 1498, 1512
Wickner, Irv 461
Widlowski, Jim 427
Widmark, Anders 781
Wiedermann, Thomas 1382
Wiegand, Paul 816
Wienert, Hannes 1519
Wierbos, Wolter 51, 116, 594, 682, 744, 745, 997, 1034, 1121, 1382, 1498
Wieselman, Doug 512, 728, 1544
Wiesendanger, Chris 1498
Wiest, Steve 104, 939
Wiggins, Gerald 17, 202, 218, 222, 228, 254, 278, 339, 417, 419, 424, 468, 469, 525, 588, 736, 759, 760, 1014, 1142, 1170, 1244, 1302, 1404, 1477, 1498, 1517
Wiggins, J. J. 18, 414, 606
Wiggs, Johnny 882, 1224
Wigham, Jiggs 562
Wiik, Håvard 1440, 1492, 1493
Wikan, Jon 780
Wike, Freddy 1
Wiklund, Magnus 1348
Wilber, Bob 101, 102, 156, 355, 537, 622, 626, 708, 727, 779, 970, 1162, 1354, 1365, 1499, 1522
Wilborn, Dave 41, 975, 1343
Wilbraham, John 549
Wilbur, Slim 1081
Wilburn, Ismael 1475
Wilcox, Edwin 912, 913
Wilcox, Larry 865
Wilcox, Spiegel 1447
Wilczewski, David 5, 379, 778, 805, 830
Wild, Craig 876
Wild, Ken 170, 1367
Wilder, Joe 92, 148, 157, 199, 212, 270, 395, 554, 601, 626, 679, 823, 877, 913, 986, 1160, 1249, 1254, 1313, 1486, 1501
Wilen, Barney 342, 587, 886, 1179, 1501
Wiles, Anthony 1258
Wiley, Arnold 789
Wiley, Cliff 207
Wiley, Jackson 1001
Wiley, Lee 297, 398, 1334
Wilfong, Jerry 548, 826
Wilfong, Lonnie 1203
Wilhelmsson, Arne 449, 602, 782, 1499
Wiliams, James 134
Wiliams, Roy 24
Wiliams, Tom 679
Wilkerson, Don 1501
Wilkerson, Edward 444, 464
Wilkes, Corey 47, 1012
Wilkes, Matthew 480

Wilkie, Dick 819
Wilkins, Bruce 691
Wilkins, Dave 70, 248, 477, 591, 1457
Wilkins, Ernie 35, 92, 254, 554, 705, 1391, 1502
Wilkins, Jimmy 92, 1391
Wilkins, Rick 967, 1084, 1155
Wilkinson, Alan 61, 480, 698, 773, 870, 1085
Wilkinson, Harry 308
Wilkinson, Kristin 1385
Wilkinson, Mark 1150
Willard, Clarence 691, 692
Willars, Mike 871
Willecke, Claas 747, 1266
Willers, Andreas 1502
Willescroft, Simon 480
Willette, Baby Face 598, 1503
Williams, Abbie 784
Williams, Al 257, 270, 666, 712, 1345
Williams, Alfred 148, 455, 645, 729, 1224
Williams, Alonzo 410
Williams, Andrew 228, 424, 1073
Williams, Arthur 1127
Williams, Ben 1109
Williams, Bob 1458
Williams, Bobby 715, 1198
Williams, Bonnie Lou 397
Williams, Brad 606, 1150
Williams, Brian 85, 850, 1094
Williams, Bruce 175, 501, 617, 1214, 1503
Williams, Buddy 137, 414, 914, 934, 1255, 1343
Williams, Buster 32, 67, 86, 90, 135, 187, 234, 247, 308, 309, 322, 326, 419, 579, 582, 583, 597, 641, 642, 643, 684, 700, 726, 759, 837, 852, 866, 919, 959, 963, 973, 975, 985, 1035, 1074, 1205, 1227, 1236, 1247, 1424, 1462, 1503, 1511, 1514
Williams, C. I. 501
Williams, Charles 1444
Williams, Chink 571
Williams, Chocolate 1079
Williams, Chris 875
Williams, Chuck 31
Williams, Clarence 99, 788, 803, 864, 1097, 1098, 1504
Williams, Claude 90, 826
Williams, Clyde 1355
Williams, Cootie 55, 249, 262, 429, 430, 431, 436, 437, 438, 439, 492, 575, 576, 638, 667, 686, 711, 714, 774, 788, 1176, 1467, 1505, 1520, 1521
Williams, Courtney 803, 1457
Williams, Daniel 1505
Williams, Dave 645
Williams, Davey 1085, 1542
Williams, David 35, 87, 324, 611, 640, 677, 743, 801, 954, 1074, 1142, 1143, 1144, 1284, 1462, 1463, 1513
Williams, Debo 687
Williams, Don 972
Williams, Douglas 1506
Williams, Dr Odies III 1150
Williams, Earl 634
Williams, Eddie 605, 853, 1045, 1198
Williams, Eddie Jr 739
Williams, Edwin 1399
Williams, Elmer 42, 423, 488, 686, 687, 999, 1066, 1476
Williams, Ernie 880
Williams, Fayette 380, 820, 1085, 1114
Williams, Fess 1184, 1201, 1506
Williams, Floyd 'Horsecollar' 793, 1109
Williams, Francis 431, 432, 433, 503, 759
Williams, Frank 887
Williams, Fred 228, 1353
Williams, Freddie 715, 1301
Williams, Gareth 72, 405, 533, 956, 1051, 1112, 1413, 1506
Williams, Gene 468
Williams, George 502
Williams, Greg 525, 600
Williams, Harold I. 350
Williams, Henry 51
Williams, Herbert J. 1120
Williams, Howard 285
Williams, Ira Buddy 12
Williams, Jackie 16, 497, 601, 614, 626, 707, 748, 779, 928, 929, 987, 1304, 1486
Williams, Jacob 944
Williams, James 1, 202, 205, 265, 414, 469, 471, 579, 651, 678, 707, 754, 878, 912, 913, 942, 982, 1205, 1501, 1506
Williams, Jeff 28, 73, 141, 485, 676, 823, 839, 907, 972, 1166, 1212, 1275
Williams, Jessica 1507
Williams, Jimmy 228, 248, 396, 398, 589, 667
Williams, Joe 92, 827, 1474, 1508, 1510
Williams, John 10, 24, 63, 94, 100, 101, 108, 173, 259, 264, 544, 705, 712, 714, 715, 826, 853, 943, 1225, 1299, 1303, 1483, 1505, 1509, 1510, 1527
Williams, John B. 230
Williams, Johnny 31, 43, 56, 297, 379, 411, 514, 573, 628, 667, 763, 779, 788, 789, 887, 1078, 1521
Williams, John T. 466, 525
Williams, Junior 416
Williams, Kenny 1360
Williams, Leo 687, 1537
Williams, Leroy 110, 115, 162, 300, 636, 649, 653, 654, 681, 723, 837, 861, 926, 955, 1037, 1133, 1134
Williams, Louie 1344
Williams, Marion 1347
Williams, Mars 178, 179, 1438, 1439
Williams, Mary Lou 63, 554, 577, 578, 664, 826, 959, 1375, 1445, 1509
Williams, Midge 40, 118, 1521
Williams, Mike 362
Williams, Murray 118, 654, 691, 847, 848, 1117, 1445
Williams, Nathaniel 228, 1458, 1506
Williams, Nelson 432, 433, 712, 1510
Williams, Nolan 1041
Williams, Norman 1536, 1537
Williams, Odies 250
Williams, Richard 207, 338, 383, 449, 450, 462, 527, 613, 640, 732, 799, 802, 829, 867, 969, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1070, 1220, 1247, 1502
Williams, Robert 1197
Williams, Rod 1059
Williams, Roger 1412, 1415
Williams, Roy 27, 157, 355, 449, 596, 680, 734, 879, 962, 1252, 1264, 1352, 1469, 1484, 1512
Williams, Rubberlegs 552, 1120
Williams, Rudy 32, 209, 337, 414, 571, 596, 712, 725, 736, 853, 970, 1069, 1110, 1264, 1483
Williams, Sandy 100, 102, 430, 488, 489, 490, 667, 686, 712, 803, 999, 1110, 1343, 1344, 1353, 1475, 1505
Williams, Sarah 1355
Williams, Skippy 431, 432, 1056, 1184
Williams, Steve 129, 130, 700, 726, 727, 1313, 1512
Williams, Teddy 31
Williams, Terence 961
Williams, Todd 950, 951, 952
Williams, Tommy 470, 545, 568, 786, 1009, 1519
Williams, Tony 59, 66, 67, 215, 234, 345, 346, 347, 385, 393, 495, 546, 584, 640, 641, 643, 688, 702, 938, 949, 979, 1018, 1159, 1217, 1234, 1296, 1426, 1427, 1512
Williams, Trefor 280, 961
Williams, Valdo 1120
Williams, Victor 977
Williams, Waddet 43
Williams, Walter 229, 638, 1056, 1517
Williams, Willie 309, 801, 1019, 1319, 1463, 1505
Williams, Winston 880
Williams, Woody 1374
Williamsen, Roger 1
Williamson, Bruce 696, 1067
Williamson, Claude 64, 84, 222, 301, 468, 469, 482, 818, 820, 1139, 1141, 1247, 1248, 1280, 1513
Williamson, Enoch 1050
Williamson, Ernest 100, 102
Williamson, Gary 1084
Williamson, James 1095
Williamson, Joe 366
Williamson, Steve 1010, 1016, 1050
Williamson, Stu 9, 180, 301, 549, 550, 693, 720, 723, 736, 815, 816, 935, 1082, 1093, 1111, 1230, 1247, 1248, 1408
Williamson, Tex 1388
Williamson, Tom 233
Willis, Dan 719
Willis, Edgar 316, 1074, 1346
Willis, Gary 240
Willis, Jack 76
Willis, Larry 12, 90, 146, 354, 572, 640, 672, 684, 688, 824, 947, 959, 980, 1040, 1050, 1239, 1285, 1286, 1369, 1513, 1541
Willis, Randall 202, 1517
Willis, Reggie 6
Willis, Stan 1490
Willman, Ilkka 1, 834
Willox, Rox 674
Wills, Gary 825
Wilner, Blake 1514
Wilner, Don 701
Wilson, Abram 76, 824, 1515
Wilson, Alex 773, 776
Wilson, Anthony 844, 1165, 1517, 1518
Wilson, Benny 19
Wilson, Bert 1300
Wilson, Bill 41
Wilson, Bob 32
Wilson, Buster 784, 1104
Wilson, Carl 'Flat Top' 757, 1109, 1110
Wilson, Cassandra 13, 135, 214, 277, 427, 454, 951, 957, 1061, 1169, 1256, 1390, 1515
Wilson, Chuck 16, 107, 823, 1260, 1500
Wilson, Clive 645, 958, 1100, 1217
Wilson, Dan 410
Wilson, Dennis 93, 94, 492, 755, 1517, 1518
Wilson, Dick 826, 1510
Wilson, Ed 1367
Wilson, Felicia 1519
Wilson, Frank 363, 1313
Wilson, Garland 1516

Wilson, George 424, 1458
Wilson, Gerald 218, 228, 238, 279, 312, 436, 681, 760, 912, 1450, 1467, 1516
Wilson, Glenn 107, 1518
Wilson, Graeme 203, 561
Wilson, Jack 279, 1392, 1467, 1517
Wilson, Joe Lee 537, 1290
Wilson, John 1192
Wilson, Junious 729
Wilson, Larry 207
Wilson, Mark 1490
Wilson, Matt 129, 298, 368, 422, 485, 503, 509, 564, 573, 625, 697, 727, 806, 824, 826, 839, 870, 964, 990, 1068, 1076, 1135, 1197, 1325, 1430, 1442, 1447, 1518
Wilson, Nancy 888, 1286
Wilson, O. C. 1188
Wilson, Ollie 199, 388, 654, 692, 1095, 1189, 1283, 1284
Wilson, Perry 1165, 1235, 1515
Wilson, Peter Niklas 161, 1519
Wilson, Phil 693
Wilson, Phillip 152
Wilson, Quinn 704, 705, 798, 1044, 1056, 1085, 1114, 1322
Wilson, Rail 125
Wilson, Robert 1533
Wilson, Robert Lee 1467
Wilson, Rolando 18, 1290
Wilson, Ronald 1356, 1360
Wilson, Shadow 50, 91, 200, 257, 284, 328, 416, 514, 528, 529, 543, 596, 638, 668, 669, 715, 754, 758, 759, 760, 786, 799, 803, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1053, 1056, 1069, 1074, 1079, 1186, 1278, 1345, 1375, 1379, 1400, 1527, 1535
Wilson, Sox 101, 102
Wilson, Spanky 1084
Wilson, Stan 622, 820
Wilson, Stanley 155
Wilson, Steve 88, 109, 149, 153, 168, 212, 267, 306, 307, 368, 405, 407, 557, 591, 657, 677, 689, 718, 811, 876, 892, 998, 1158, 1269, 1335, 1442, 1470, 1481, 1484, 1506, 1517, 1519
Wilson, Teddy 42, 62, 63, 196, 228, 229, 257, 329, 423, 488, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 628, 664, 668, 711, 714, 736, 774, 780, 849, 937, 1089, 1093, 1115, 1353, 1478, 1479, 1520, 1536, 1537
Wilson, Thad 1127
Wilson, Vance 182
Wilson, Willie 1137
Wimbely, Michael 202
Wimberley, Johnny 551
Wimberly, Michael 109, 465, 473, 538, 1024
Wimhurst, Karen 74, 658
Wimsey, Stu 1460
Winant, William 1092, 1329, 1330, 1493, 1543, 1544
Winburn, Anna Mae 748
Winchester, Daisy 803
Winchester, Lem 793, 1070, 1277, 1522
Winckel, Christoph 151
Wind, Martin 368, 510, 541, 745, 881, 964
Windfeld, Axel 22, 95, 583, 799, 800, 996, 1102, 1479
Windhurst, Johnny 297, 298
Winding, Kai 199, 268, 340, 543, 552, 668, 786, 787, 797, 815, 1000, 1052, 1119, 1160, 1162, 1169, 1283, 1313, 1345, 1445, 1523
Windmill Saxophone Quartet 130
Windo, Gary 137, 176, 938, 1294, 1523
Windo, Pam 1523
Winestone, Benny 248
Winfield, Herb 542, 900, 1280
Winfield, John 1487, 1490
Winiker, Robert 818
Winn, Bob 222
Winograd, Barry 362
Winslow, Ray 299, 693
Winstein, Dave 150
Winston, Albert 113
Winston, Brice 135, 957
Winstone, Norma 39, 225, 531, 532, 749, 1010, 1253, 1333, 1386, 1412, 1433, 1488, 1494, 1524
Winter, Jon 602
Winter, Keith 225
Winter, Kitty 1540
Winter, Lois 113
Winter, Robbie 992
Winterhalter, Hugo 416, 779
Winters, Tiny 248, 667, 1469
Winther, Jens 95, 123, 137, 1395, 1502, 1525
Winther, Mette 938, 939
Wintz, Doug 566
Wirht, Harvey 423, 775
Wirtel, Tom 817
Wise, Arnie 457, 458
Wise, Buddy 571, 848, 849
Wise, Fritz 517
Wise, Wilmer 1474
Wiseman, Steve 539
Wishart, Stevie 198, 315, 409
Wisner, Jimmy 1409, 1445, 1446
Wisniewski, Konrad 1410
Witham, Dave 537, 1472, 1452
Withers, Bill 1468
Witherspoon, Jimmy 358, 987, 1375
Witkowski, Deanna 487, 502
Witte, Andy 38
Witte, Peter 38
Wittman, Ben 214, 549
Wittström, Bengt 615
Wittwer, Stephan 224, 832
Witty, Keith 163, 164, 183
Wodrascka, Christine 1145
Wofford, Mike 85, 493, 936, 1103, 1131, 1280, 1281, 1304, 1444, 1445
Wogram, Nils 539, 588, 1065, 1066, 1083, 1373, 1525
Wohletz, Joe 655
Wolf, Georg 1331, 1381
Wolf, Steven 80
Wolf, Warren 1139, 1237, 1471
Wolfe, Ben 823, 951, 952
Wolfolk, Ephraim 761
Wolfson, Hymie 888
Wollesen, Kenny 126, 127, 224, 419, 513, 605, 690, 867, 898, 990, 1098, 1288, 1544
Won, Allen 709, 719
Wonder, Stevie 642, 644
Wong, Francis 154, 709, 725, 765, 959, 1387
Wong, Willie Mae 748
Wonsey, Anthony 354, 914, 915, 1136, 1237, 1484, 1526
Wood, Andrew 639, 1412
Wood, Arthur 443
Wood, Bill 1491
Wood, Bobby 933
Wood, Booty 48, 55, 93, 94, 262, 435, 436, 439, 492, 570, 634, 638, 671, 757
Wood, Chris 1275, 1544
Wood, Colin 126, 315, 1333
Wood, Dave 869
Wood, Elise 699, 700
Wood, Freddy 693
Wood, Gloria 937
Wood, Helen 777
Wood, Ian 532
Wood, J. Douglas 1081
Wood, Les 1460
Wood, Mark 225, 1416
Wood, Marshall 2, 17, 157, 158, 961, 962, 1171, 1292, 1352
Wood, Michael 671
Wood, Nate 1278
Wood, Ronnie 1213
Woodard, Nat 436
Woodard, Rickey 259, 878, 1140, 1313
Woode, Jimmy 35, 55, 239, 255, 263, 383, 434, 435, 436, 437, 490, 497, 570, 592, 634, 1119, 1120, 1162, 1245, 1302, 1391, 1478
Woodfork, Eustern 51, 263, 379
Woodiel, Paul 1321
Woodlan, Bobby 1095
Woodlen, George 228
Woodley, Dave 839
Woodman, Britt 230, 287, 342, 433, 434, 435, 436, 490, 554, 634, 638, 698, 713, 736, 1000, 1003, 1004, 1006, 1009, 1056, 1071, 1189, 1304, 1313, 1391, 1517
Woodman, William 736
Woodridge, Cliff 228
Woods, Byron 1399
Woods, Chris 94, 136, 1391, 1392
Woods, Dave 967
Woods, Jimmy 418, 584, 633, 1517, 1526
Woods, Phil 15, 56, 203, 229, 311, 327, 336, 384, 415, 470, 514, 554, 585, 601, 615, 641, 652, 797, 877, 916, 933, 934, 982, 1022, 1023, 1052, 1054, 1071, 1094, 1102, 1162, 1170, 1234, 1248, 1249, 1254, 1277, 1281, 1303, 1313, 1391, 1460, 1509, 1527
Woods, Sonny 1251
Woodson, Bill 319
Woodson, Buddy 319, 1517
Woodson, Terry 440, 441
Woodyard, Nat 32
Woodyard, Rickey 259
Woodyard, Sam 35, 48, 55, 195, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 490, 492, 570, 634, 639, 707, 712, 774, 1348, 1391, 1478
Wooley, Nate 45, 536
Woolf, Simon 22, 260, 322, 758, 976, 991, 1112, 1185
Woolley, Nate 880
Wooten, Mary 1321
Wooten, Red 578, 693
Wooten, Victor 309, 1340
Wordsworth, Ray 919
Worford, Rita Omolokun 973
Workman, Nioka 1106
Workman, Reggie 1, 88, 134, 201, 269, 283, 287, 289, 317, 318, 384, 450, 500, 599, 613, 732, 775, 802, 860, 867, 899, 973, 1012, 1031, 1039, 1040, 1041, 1059, 1165, 1258, 1289, 1290, 1295, 1296, 1374, 1406, 1455, 1462, 1529, 1541
World's Greatest Jazz Band 1531
World Saxophone Quartet 1529
Worley Jr, John 765
Wormack, Earl 609
Wormick, Jimmy 638
Wormsworth, Jimmy 636, 861
Worrell, Frank 848, 1334, 1388
Worrell, Lewis 53, 1246
Worster, John 818, 819

Worth, Bobby 9, 82, 367, 467, 541, 748, 919, 991, 1315, 1498, 1499
Worthington, Tom 889
Wrase, Tina 747
Wraskoff, Raymond 1203
Wrate, Jeanette 725
Wratten, Barry 369
Wray, Ken 370, 479, 652
Wright, Bernard 351
Wright, Bill 271
Wright, Dempsey 55, 1531
Wright, Denny 356, 652, 918
Wright, Edythe 396, 397
Wright, Elmon 424, 552, 553, 755
Wright, Eugene 48, 189, 190, 191, 1404, 1499
Wright, Florence 528
Wright, Frank 925, 1381, 1382, 1531
Wright, Gene 31, 32, 190, 368, 369, 1345, 1404
Wright, Geoff 483
Wright, Herman 48, 66, 466, 605, 739, 867, 1470
Wright, James 803
Wright, John 102, 918, 1532
Wright, Joseph 1318
Wright, Lamar 218, 219, 552, 553, 638, 643, 999, 1047, 1176
Wright Jr, Lamar 84
Wright, Larry 369, 1533
Wright, Leo 201, 554, 571, 1165, 1532
Wright, Les 894
Wright, Lizz 1256
Wright, Marvin 395
Wright, Orlando 1510
Wright, Paul 480
Wright, Rev. Jeremiah 950
Wright, Richard 315
Wright, Ruth 1359
Wright, Specs 10, 194, 231, 403, 491, 526, 527, 552, 669, 1233
Wright, Steve 1113
Wright, Syreeta 89
Wright, Walter 155, 263, 1326
Wright, Wayne 156, 578, 797, 1435
Wrightman, Stan 150
Wrightsman, Stan 937, 1282
Wrightsmann, Stan 125, 764
Wrobel, Engelbert 86
Wroblewski, Jan 'Ptaszyn' 835
Wuepper, Craig 1495
Wurm, Werner 1525
Wurr, John 295
Wurzburg Philharmonic 944
Wyands, Richard 32, 56, 263, 338, 383, 419, 498, 507, 613, 662, 681, 793, 827, 861, 1000, 1002, 1070, 1148, 1149, 1162, 1211, 1224, 1304, 1328, 1486, 1522, 1532
Wyatt, Robert 50, 315, 938, 939, 1497, 1523
Wyble, Jimmy 578
Wyboris, Peer 943
Wyeth, Howie 1031
Wykes, Roy 1476
Wylie, Tony 1258
Wyn, Kris 1259
Wynn, Al 40, 753
Wynn, Albert 686, 798, 1533
Wynn, Nan 1521
Wynter, Courtney 7

X
Xia, Xu Feng 842
Xiao-Fen, Min 60, 1241
Xiques, Ed 942
Xirgu, David 1030

Y
Yaged, Sol 1281
Yahel, Sam 152, 586, 830, 1137, 1199, 1241, 1441
Yamamoto, Eri 1129
Yamaoka, Yuku 516
Yamashita, Kei 959
Yan, Zhang 765
Yance, Bob 1210
Yance, Ed 848, 1092, 1445
Yancey, Bill 1170
Yancey, William 655
Yancey, Youssef 6
Yanda, Jim 675
Yaner, Milt 395, 574, 588, 715, 1283
Yang, Justin 165
Yankee, Alan 819
Yannatou, Savina 34
Yarde, Jason 108, 359, 776, 780, 824, 1016, 1211
Yasinitsky, Ann 1067
Yasuhiro, Yoshigaki 1533, 1534
Yates, Doug 98, 126, 422, 481, 507, 775, 1006
Yates, Jojo 1473
Yates, Joy 225
Yates, Sammy 155
Yavnai, Alon 406
Ydstie, Jim 790
Yeager, Harry 123
Yeh, C. Spencer 494
Yellin, Pete 688, 689, 1008, 1210
Yen, Lee 959
Yennior, Joel 423
Yerba Buena Jazz Band 1472
Yerba Buena Stompers 1533
Yeyito 1261
Ylönen, Marko 1448
Yngvesson, Monica 1107
Yoder, Walter 691, 692
Yolonsky, Harry 1081
York, Adrian 1284
York, Pete 78, 320
Yoshiaki, Kondo 1533
Yoshida, Tatsuya 516
Yoshihide, Otomo 842, 1043, 1243, 1533
Yoshizawa, Motoharu 296, 595, 1122
Yoss, Morty 413
Young, Al 155, 786, 1445
Young, Andy 96
Young, Arthur 591
Young, Austin 106, 198, 783, 784, 1037, 1072, 1079
Young, Barrett 1535
Young, Billie 1044
Young, Dave 148, 230, 375, 423, 687, 796, 999, 1066, 1155, 1156, 1249, 1355, 1467
Young, David 1009
Young, Eldee 887, 1031
Young, George 109, 465, 483, 578, 1256
Young, Graham 423, 848, 1092
Young, Jacob 846
Young, James 609
Young, Jim 96
Young, Jimmy 148, 1056
Young, Joe 1322
Young, John 506, 785, 1534
Young, Johnny 826
Young, Larry 347, 500, 599, 600, 793, 976, 1534
Young, Lee 271, 272, 577, 638, 774, 1035, 1457, 1466, 1517
Young, Leon 125
Young, Lester 90, 91, 271, 574, 614, 668, 711, 714, 715, 716, 736, 774, 849, 1117, 1151, 1184, 1483, 1521, 1535
Young, Mike 939
Young, Oscar 542
Young, Reggie 933
Young, Snooky 91, 92, 94, 108, 113, 201, 202, 259, 552, 638, 656, 736, 755, 760, 797, 798, 799, 912, 969, 970, 1003, 1015, 1027, 1031, 1056, 1248, 1304, 1313, 1502, 1508, 1516, 1517
Young, Timothy 728, 1182, 1544
Young, Trummy 44, 50, 63, 228, 257, 270, 416, 552, 580, 648, 704, 705, 758, 783, 853, 912, 913, 1056, 1120, 1188, 1353, 1443, 1510, 1517, 1521, 1537
Young, Webster 402, 978
Youngman, John 397
Youngs, Rod 76, 747, 776
Youngstein, Dick 139
Youngstein, Richard 136, 1246
Youssef, Dhafar 873
Ypma, Peter 411
Ysaguirre, Bob 23, 24, 1167, 1197, 1198
Yuen, Victor See 12, 35, 152
Yukl, Joe 42, 395, 398
Yvonne Louis & Orchestra 1203

Z
Z, Bojan 908, 1538
Z, Pamela 752, 842
Zach, Ingar 71
Zacharias, Bernard 102
Zack, George 1327
Zad, Ed 270
Zafret, Fulvio 922
Zahn, Tilman 352
Zak, Peter 830, 1481, 1538
Zaletelj, Marko 1254
Zamir, Daniel 1544
Zampieri, Maxime 908
Zanchi, Attilio 508, 548, 1278, 1470
Zank, Dan 483
Zanoni, Gene 50, 1443
Zanot, Olivier 303
Zanussi, Per 1493
Zaploski String Quartet 630
Zarchy, Zeke 62, 63, 488, 574, 764, 1282, 1283
Zardis, Chester 269, 729, 737, 882, 884, 1070, 1224, 1496
Zavaroni, Erik 535
Zawadi, Kiane 501, 689, 732, 743, 801, 1290
Zawinul, Joe 10, 11, 347, 349, 482, 500, 777, 798, 867, 1451, 1467, 1468, 1474, 1475, 1479, 1538
Zebra Coast String Trio 565
Zeitlin, Denny 511, 1540
Zelman, Shai 182
Zelnick, Mel 123, 577, 664
Zenker, Martin 1172
Zenon, Miguel 562, 625, 898, 1257, 1374, 1481
Zentner, Si 395, 1283, 1284, 1540
Zepilli, Pierre 1202
Zeppetella, Fabio 333
Zerang, Michael 124, 178, 179, 206, 485, 1257, 1429
Zetterberg, Torbjörn 1087
Zetterlind, Johan 1327
Zetterlund, Monica 3, 587, 1102
Zetternberg, Torbjörn 852
Zeuthen, Jesper 391, 392, 1059, 1131
Zhang, Bao Li 216
Ziad, Karim 873, 943, 1540
Ziarelli, Bruno 451
Zickefoose, Bill 1203
Ziegler, Finn 810, 1375
Ziegler, Matthias 98, 403

Zielinski, Adam 835
Zigmund, Eliot 458, 459, 1137, 1159
Zimak, Petr 664
Zimmer, Lynn 551, 1058
Zimmer, Pete 533
Zimmer, Scott 946
Zimmerli, Patrick 1541
Zimmerlin, Alfred 1109
Zimmerman, Charlie 779
Zimmerman, Fred 1001
Zimmerman, Jack 848, 849, 1052
Zimmerman, Roy 708, 1164
Zimmerman, Tom 942
Zimmermann, Ute 119, 1266
Zimmers, Tony 40, 937, 1282
Zimmitti, Robert 108
Zindiko, Bayete Umbra 1184
Zingaro, Carlos 233, 296, 842, 872, 874, 875, 1431
Zinman, Eric 1541
Zinno, Dave 1
Zitano, Jimmy 212, 239, 1171
Zito, Freddie 84, 814, 815, 1095, 1189, 1283
Zito, Jimmy 247, 1230, 1517
Zito, Ronnie 694
Zito, Torrie 993
Zitro, James 1300
Zittman, Sam 50, 1443
Ziv, Amir 76
Zocher, Norma 775
Zollar, James 214, 419, 420, 627, 777, 1060, 1270, 1343, 1406
Zoller, Attila 509, 838, 933, 1277, 1405, 1541
Zonce, George 1210
Zorn, John 59, 76, 177, 296, 996, 1240, 1311, 1541
Zorn, Leo 764
Zottola, Bob 640
Zottola, Glenn 779, 1499
Zoufonoun, Omid 421
Zubek, Kevin 1544
Zubek, Mark 1545
Zudecoff, Barney 62, 63, 1089
Zudecoff, Moe 150, 588
Zulaica, Al 1405
Zulfikarpašić, Bojan 908, 1174, 1394, 1538
Zullo, Frank 42, 236
Zulu, Fana 960
Zum Vohrde, Jan 95, 495, 1102, 1502
Zung, Bob 991
Zunino, Aldo 339, 1278
Zurke, Bob 575
Zweig, Barry 1210
Zwerin, Mike 340
Zwingenberger, Torsten 1375
Zylber, Jan 835

'Indispensable and incomparable' NME

'The leader in its field ... if you own only one book on jazz, it really should be this one' INTERNATIONAL RECORD REVIEW

14,000 CDS REVIEWED

2,000 NEW DISCS IN THIS EDITION

MORE THAN 500 NEW ARTIST LISTINGS

The Penguin Guide to Jazz Recordings is the classic guide to the world of recorded jazz, renowned for its reliable, insightful and witty criticism of thousands of albums. This ninth edition has been fully updated, with each entry reassessed. Guiding you through the minefield of new CDs, essential classics and must-have downloads, this book is the ultimate companion, full of information for both jazz buffs and newcomers alike.

- Artist biographies
- Full line-ups given
- Authoritative critical ratings throughout
- Includes the authors' personal selection of the essential recordings for every collection
- Full index of artists

'Every look through its seductively erudite pages reveals more that simply has to be heard ... Here, anyway, is enough for a lifetime' THE TIMES

'Knowledgeable, urbane, wise and witty ... This is one of the great books of recorded jazz; other guides don't even come close' IRISH TIMES

'The entry on each artist reads like an intriguing blend of good liner notes and sharp critical assessment. It's the kind of book that you'll yank off the shelf to look up a quick fact and still be reading two hours later' FORTUNE

NINTH EDITION

read more www.penguin.com

ISBN 978-0-141-03401-0

Keeping woodland alive with WOODLAND TRUST

Cover photograph
© Bettmann/CORBIS

Penguin Reference

U.K. £35.00
CAN $38.50
US $35.00